Dedication

Ancestors whose courage, arduous labor and spirit of adventure prompted them to abandon security and venture into an unknown wilderness to help develop a sorely needed system of transportation that would open Ohio to homesteaders and developers.

... to those pioneers this family history is dedicated.

Digging for Our Roots We Found Bedwell

As a child, the author wondered why he knew so few Bidwells. In 1927 his mother, Fava Bidwell, met Flora Alder Bidwell at the Ohio Pythian Sisters convention at Marietta, Ohio. Flora described the central Ohio Bidwell family organization and invited George and Fava to attend its 8th annual reunion at her farm home, Will-O-Flo, near Plain City, 26 August 1928. There, in addition to local Bidwells, was Daniel Doan Bidwell of East Hartford, soliciting contributions for a memorial for General Daniel Davidson Bidwell, killed at the battle of Cedar Creek 19 October 1864. (A bronze statue of the General on his horse was subsequently unveiled in Buffalo in 1952.)

With the death of Flora and William in a train-car accident the following December, Bidwell contact was lost until 2 May 1974 when Dwight Lawrence "Larry" Bidwell in a letter to the author announced first nation-wide meeting of the Bidwell Family at Madison, Tennessee. Larry had found the Bidwell name in the Manhattan telephone directory while visiting Fort Riley, his former WWII military post. Unable to attend the June 30-July 1 meeting, the Manhattan couple were his and Irene's overnight guests the following weekend. The couples met once again at the Lansing BFA meeting 1 July 1978.

At Lansing it was learned that Joan Bidwell of Tama, Iowa was about to publish a Bidwell Family History. Anxious to be included, Fava submitted vital data and addresses of close relatives who could supply more. One was Elisabeth Bidwell Kahn, then of Ann Arbor, MI.

With the brochure announcing Joan's publication came her 26 February 1983 note stating our line was omitted because of insufficient proof that ancestor, Mathew, was the son of Elisha Bidwell, as proposed. Joan mitigated the disappointment by proposing to conduct research in Tuscarawas County that summer.

There she obtained vital information and photographs for a draft copy of Mathew's line. Using Elisabeth Bidwell Kahn's information that Elisabeth's great Grandfather, Mathew, came from near Lewes, Sussex, England, Joan discovered his parents to be John and Jane Funnel Bedwell.

This story of John and Jane and their descendants would have remained untold had it not been for Joan Bidwell.
Origin of the Name

Of English origin, the Bedwell surname has among its variations Bedell, Bedewelle, Bydewell, Bidewell, Biddell, Bidwell, Bidwill, Bidwelle, Bidle, Biddle, Bidel, Biddel, Biddol, Biddoll and Biddulps. Most commonly used, according to Edwin M. Bidwell, are Bidwell, Bedwell, Biddle and Biddulph. Illegibility of the first vowel in cursive documents apparently caused many variations between Bedwell and Bidwell.

Frank Holmes stated that the name comes from the Saxon, Biddulph, meaning castle according to his 1964 book, Ancestral Heads of New England Families, 1620-1700. The Biddulph castle in Norfolk, the county believed to be where the name originated, is one of England’s oldest castles. Built about 1066, it is unlisted in Guide to Castles in Britain, however. Tradition says that the name was established in Briton when one of William the Conqueror's generals married a Biddulph heiress and assumed her name.

A Thetford, Norfolk County, England source states that the generic name appears in the 13th century of an Abbot Bedewell or Bidewell in East Anglia. That source says one meaning is "Dweller by a stream in a shallow valley." Elizabeth Leach Rixford said it means war wolf (werewulf?) in her 1934 book, Three Hundred Colonial Ancestors and War Service.
Family Coat of Arms

Heraldry is a science, art and set of social practices used in Europe for more than eight centuries. It arose to identify fighting men covered with armor. From individual designs painted on their shields and helmets came the science of heraldry. Not only was it used in battle, but also in tournaments where strict discipline developed for announcing the identity of the participants and description of the markings. The "blazon", or heraldry description, followed strict rules. Most of the terms of the blazon of arms, such as colors, portions of the shield and symbols are in Latin or old French because old French was the language of the elite at the time heraldry developed.

Small unimportant artistic variations in reproductions of a family coat-of-arms occur because only the blazon, or verbal description, and not the picture, is inherited from one generation to the next.

Elizabeth Rixford listed three Bidwell coats of arms, one for the Bidwells of Devonshire, another for Bidwells of Thetford, County of Norfolk, and the third for Bydewells.

Bidwell of Devonshire Heraldic Description 1/

ARMS - Per saltire Or and Gule 4 roundles each charged with a martlet, all countercharged. (X-shaped in gold and red with four circles, each containing a martlet, all with colors reversed).

CREST - A hand in fesse, couped, holding a curling stone. (Hand in horizontal position, cutting off of a head or limb by an even line.)

According to Burke's General Armory, the arms for Bidwell of Thetford and East Dereham, County of Norfolk, are the same except that the crest is a black martlet. The Bydewell version differs only from the Devon version in having a "Gyronny" rather than "Per saltire." The close resemblance of the three versions shows that the families are descended from the same ancestor. The illustrated crest appears to be that of the Devonshire version.

Migration into and development of the hinterlands beyond the original colonies progressed slowly because of Indian resistance and undeveloped transportation systems. Soon after Ohio became a state in 1803 its leaders sought federal support for canals and roads.

In response, Albert Gallatin, Secretary of the Treasury, in 1808 proposed four canals and four highways to the mid-west that included a canal around Niagara Falls. Congress, however, refused to grant funds for canal projects. States' financing was delayed by the War of 1812.

Ohio occupied an enviable position in projected canal schemes. Virginia and Maryland hoped to use Ohio canals to connect the James River and Kanawha Canal, respectively, to the Ohio River or its tributaries. Pennsylvania hoped to connect its Main Line canal with the Ohio system via canals to the Beaver River or to the Ohio River near Pittsburgh.

Completion of the Erie Canal around Niagara Falls in 1825 hastened construction of a series of feeder canals and stimulated an Ohio Act of 1825 authorizing construction of the Ohio and Erie Canal from Cleveland to Portsmouth and the Miami Canal from Cincinnati to Dayton. One relating to this history was the Chemung Canal from the Erie Canal to Elmira, near the Pennsylvania border, completed in 1833.

Construction of the Ohio and Erie Canal, begun near Newark in July, 1825, was completed in 1832. Passage of the Ohio Act of 1836 authorized numerous branches. One started at Bolivar in 1825, was the Sandy and Beaver Canal, a wholly private enterprise that connected the Ohio and Erie Canal with Smith's Ferry, Columbiana County, on the Ohio River.

Canal use peaked by 1851. Due to railroad competition traffic and revenues declined rapidly after that. A section of the Ohio and Erie Canal was given to Cleveland in 1872. The Hocking Canal was abandoned in 1894 and the Muskingum-River Improvement was ceded to the Federal Government in 1896. All regular canal operations ceased after the devastating floods of 1913.

1/ Excerpts from "The Ohio Canals" by Frank W. Trevorrow.
BEDWELL, without doubt, was the spelling of the emigrant ancestor's surname in England. Sussex County, England birth, baptism and marriage records list BEDWELL. In America, his name and that of his descendants appears both as BEDWELL and BIDWELL. John and Jane's children born in England, Joseph, Mathew, and Mary Ann, were listed as Bedwells. No records have been found that lists the surname of William, their fourth child, born at Elmira, New York in 1834, to have been anything other than BIDWELL.

John's second family with Matilda, on the other hand, usually, but not always, was spelled BEDWELL. Their sons, Lewis and John T. are listed as BEDWELLs in the Eightieth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. Joan Bidwell reported that family land records used both BEDWELL and BIDWELL. The owner of the New Philadelphia cemetery lot was listed as John BIDWELL but the tombstone inscription for him and Matilda reads BEDWELL.

Cursive census records often are inconclusive as the second letter may be interpreted either as an "e" or an "i."

Based on other records, Joan Bidwell says, all ten children spelled the surname as BIDWELL.

While none of Mathew's descendants we've contacted ever knew the family surname to be BEDWELL, an item in the Lawrence Township section of the 1988 Tuscarawas County History listed a Bolivar baker, Mathew's son and the author's grandfather, as Joseph BEDWELL.
FIRST GENERATION

There is no evidence to support the original belief that John migrated to America to work as a boatman on the Chemung branch of the Erie canal at Elmira N. Y. or the Ohio and Erie Canal in Tuscarawas County, Ohio. His sons, Joseph, Mathew and William were canal boatmen at the time of the Tuscarawas County 1850 census.

     vii. William Richardson Bidwell¹⁹.
SECOND GENERATION

As a boy at Trenton, Matthew drove mules on the Ohio and Erie canal tow-path. By age 27 the 1850 census listed him as a boatman. While the Canton and Stark Co., OH history states he was a canal boatman until his death in 1864, the 1860 census both in Medina and Tuscarawas Counties listed him as a laborer.

When the first boats began moving through the canal in 1830 Bolivar became a regional shipping center with a great influx of people and a planned Sandy-Beaver branch that would connect Bolivar with Pittsburgh. Before that grain had been hauled to Cleveland or Pittsburgh by horse and wagon.

No doubt, the sale in 1858 of Mathew's house in Trenton (now Tuscarawas) to his brother, Joseph, and his move to Dover with his 2nd wife of only two years and from there in 1859 to Bolivar was motivated by job opportunity. The villages of Trenton, Dover and Bolivar, once prominent canal sites, lost their employment appeal with railroad competition. At Trenton boats no longer diverted to Uhrichsville. Sugar Creek became only an important water supply source at Dover. By 1851 the canals had passed their peak of usefulness and the once hailed Sandy and Beaver branch at Bolivar saw little operation after 1852, becoming a water supply source only by 1857.

He married, first, Margaret Jones, circa 1845²⁴. Born, 4 Jul 1825, in Ohio²¹. Died, 28 Feb 1854, in Bolivar, Tuscarawas, OH. Burial: 1854, in Warwick Twp, Tuscarawas, OH. Children:

iv. Edna Blanche Bidwell.

Pvt. 1917, WWI. Member, Ohio 70th Engineers.

The Dover, Ohio Daily Reporter of 2 October 1947 obituary lists his name as Howard R. Bidwell.

vii. Marcia M. Bidwell.

Little is known of Joseph's youth. He is believed to have attended Bolivar's elementary school. Likely with his brothers he helped his mother operate the family bakery and run the bakery wagon. It is assumed that he took over the bakery, once known as the Bidwell Brothers Bakery, in 1886 when his brother, Tom, moved to Canton. When sold in 1896 it was known as the bakery of "J. A. Bidwell, Manufacturer, Dealer in Fresh Bread, Pies and Cakes."

It is not known how and when Joe met Mary Demuth of northwestern Ohio. It may have been while she was visiting Demuth relatives in Tuscarawas County. Her father had emigrated from there in 1846 and no doubt left numerous relatives and friends. Married in 1889 at Whitehouse when Joe was 29 and Mary, nearly 28, provided lots of time for courtship. Her relatively late marriage in those days may have been the reason for her disdain of the term, "old maid."

There is no record of where Joe and Mary lived when they took over the farm in the spring of 1896, and so it is assumed that they moved in with her parents in the original 1850 house.

Renatus died in the fall and his wife in 1904 of breast cancer. The Waterville address on the death certificate suggests that she may have moved to that village as the 1900 census did not list her at the farm address.

The writer recalls his grandfather in his sixties as being a tall soft-spoken, kind, modest gentle man. Although Joe's last years were excruciatingly painful, his grandson cannot recall his grandfather chastising him for hyperactivity or a childish misdeed.

25 i. George Alfred Bidwell.
26 ii. Bessie Amelia Bidwell.

Two years old when his father died, Tom was raised by his mother in the town of Bolivar where he attended school until he was 16. For five years he taught public school. For several years he worked in the family's bakery and confectionary. In 1886 he moved to Canton where he established the T. J. Bidwell and Company wholesale/retail grocery. About 1890 he became an insurance agent, later Stark County district manager for the Aetna Life Insurance Company. The company became Bidwells' Insurance Agency.

As a Republican Tom served two terms as ward assessor, six years as Canton Twp. Trustee and in 1903 was elected Canton City Treasurer. (Source: Canton and Stark County, Ohio. p. 759. ca. 1903.)

He married Minerva J. Burgert, daughter of Tobias Burgert and Lydia Dietz, 7 Jan 1883, in Coshocton, Coshocton, OH. Born, 17 Sep 1854, in Baltic, Tuscarawas, OH. Died, 25 Jan 1937, in Canton, Stark, OH. Burial: Jan 1937, in Canton, Stark, OH. Children:

While her father, Canton city treasurer, lay ill in a Cleveland hospital, 18-year old Florence, acting in his stead, withdrew $30,000 in gold from the Canton State bank a few moments before the bank closed its doors. The event is described in a newspaper, with a 26 May 1904, Staff special, Canton, Ohio dateline.

Florence was office secretary and bookkeeper for her husband, Dr. Alvin Portz, during his practice in Canton, Ohio. She assisted her husband, caring for patients, during the influenza epidemic of 1918.

ii. Raymond Harrison Bidwell.

14. Ella³ Bidwell (William, 4). Born, circa 1858, in Tuscarawas Co., OH.

She married John W. Blakely, 3 Oct 1881, in Columbus, Franklin, OH. Children:

FOURTH GENERATION

She married Edward Doremus. Children:

35  i. Ida Ruth⁵ Doremus.
36  ii. Edward Doremus Jr.

George began attending the Demuth school in 1896, graduating and successfully passing the Boxwell examination 30 April 1906. He completed an Ohio State University College of Agriculture winter course on 26 Feb 1915. The class of 186 members elected him one of six class officers, Sergeant at Arms.

In 1960 George completed 28 years as Waterville Twp. Trustee, at that time the longest tenure of any Waterville Twp. Trustee. From 1937 to 1964 he was Board Member and Secretary of the Whitehouse Grain and Supply Co. For many years he was a Director of the Whitehouse State Savings Bank that later became a branch of Ohio Citizens Bank of Toledo. In 1982 Ohio Citizens became a division of National City Corporation, a Rothschild bank of Cleveland.

George was a member of the Waterville United Methodist Church and Whitehouse Knights of Pythias lodge. He was Superintendent of the Whitehouse Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday School during the 1930s, succeeding Albert J. Bradley.

In her youth Fava was known to have lived with her parents at her birth place on Doran Road; in Waterville where her father managed the Pekin mill; at the Thompson farm, north-east edge of Neapolis and finally at their residence in Neapolis, where she married.

She was one of 112 Lucas County elementary-school graduates to pass the Boxwell examination, and receive a certificate 08 June 1912.

At the time of her marriage she was the Neapolis reporter for the Tri-County News of Grand Rapids.

During the 1930s Fava was pianist for the Whitehouse Methodist Episcopal Church and Sunday School, sharing the responsibility with Gladys Noble. Throughout her life Fava was a creative performer and artist in other lines as well. She is remembered as a milliner, a clothing designer and tailor.

weather observer with the 8th Weather Squadron, of which 15 months were spent at the Lagens air base, island of Terceira, Azores. There he made surface weather observations, spotted maps and charts and encoded and decoded weather messages. His highest rank was Sgt.

For 34 1/2 years, from 1950 to 1984 Orville was a soil scientist with Kansas State University, rising to Assoc. Prof. in 1954, and Prof. in 1960. He served as acting head of the Agronomy Dept. from 1970-1971. He was a Visiting Professor at Ahmadu Bello University, Zaria, Nigeria in 1972. Other overseas experiences as a soil scientist included the Soviet Union and Australia.

In 1964 at the 8th International Congress of Soil Science at Bucharest, Romania, Orville presented the paper, Numerical Classification of Soils by Electronic Computer. This was the first publication to suggest later use of computers in soil classification.
