PREFACE

It is difficult to sum up many years of work in a preface. As a part-time hobby, we have each spent over seven years researching the Bartram family. Three years ago we combined forces and shared our research. The logical course dictated that we bring our efforts into print. The part-time hobby thus became what seemed to be a full-time career.

Perhaps the most rewarding culmination of genealogical research is to have it in print where many can share its revelations. However, it is what we were not able to accomplish that bears heavy on the mind as we send our work off to the publisher. To wait until all branches of the family had been fully researched would mean that this work would never go into print. The many pages that follow are the sum total of our knowledge of the Bartram family. The only statement we can make about our knowledge, with any certainty, is that it doubtlessly contains errors. Many documents may have contained erroneous dates or facts. Other errors will probably result from faded memories, worn tombstones or mistakes in previous research on the family. It is also likely that we ourselves added errors in our interpretation of the facts and in recopying during the publication process.

A book of this scope could not have been produced by just two individuals. As a book about a family, it is also documentation of family unity. Countless other Bartrams contributed to these pages with family groups, photographs, and remembrances. Researchers of allied families were just as helpful. Arthur James Wriston was one of the pioneers in the research of Bartram family history. Starting in the 1930's he uncovered many public documents and oral histories that greatly contributed to this publication. His research was thorough and his generosity was wholehearted. There are many other people we would like to thank for their diligent assistance and encouragement, for without whom this book would not have been possible. Especially noted are: Queen D. Franklin, John L. Bartram, Carnas B. Branham, Armina Bartram, Liz Lynch, Paul R. Bartram, W. Holt Bartram, Golden and Mae Bartram, Jean B. Sword, Eva and Woodrow Crabtree, H. R. "Roundy" Bartram, Rosa Smith, Kenneth Hampton, Chester Enoch Bartram, Marie B. Hobbs, Richard Wellman, Pharo Osborn, Glen Bartram, Rev. John Young, Helen F. Journey,
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Ruth Waterman, Evelyn Massie, Carlton Hargreaves, and the staffs of the West Virginia and Kentucky Archives and the Wayne County Courthouse. Also many thanks to Elizabeth "Toots" Bartram for her hospitality in providing a base from which to do research and for acting as a surrogate researcher in times of need, Junior and Sue Bartram for hosting the annual Bartram reunion and unrelent Colleen Mahon for proofreading the personal history essays and labeling the maps. A very special thanks to Byron T. Morris, whose column provided us with a constant source of Bartramia. His support and encouragement is sincerely appreciated. Heartfelt gratitude goes to Jim Bartram for his steadfast support, understanding and patience during this long and time-consuming project. There are also a multitude of others who assisted and contributed freely and to whom we are eternally grateful.

It is hoped that this book can be used by members of the numerous Bartram families as a research tool and handy reference. An attempt has been made to tie the various branches of the Bartram family together, whenever proven. Perhaps one day a complete genealogy may be researched and written uniting the many, seemingly unrelated, families to one Norman ancestor. This is not such a work. What we have prepared is a manuscript in which all known Bartram branches, limbs and twigs (and deadwood, when known) are included.

GENEALOGY
KEY TO FORMAT OF GENEALOGY SECTION

All known descendants of Stephen Bartram are included. Each generation is listed separately in order to group all members of a family together. Each individual descendant has been assigned an identification number which remains the same throughout the book. As an example, refer to John P. Bartram on the facing page. As a son of Stephen, he is assigned the identification number 2. When he becomes the head of a family in the second generation (on the same page) his identification number 2 precedes his name in parenthesis. The same number identifies him in the personal history section.

Adopted children are included but are indicated as such where known.

Key to Symbols Used

2, 1 ( , ) Abbreviated lineage showing descent from the original ancestor with the raised numbers indicating the generation.

TWELVE POLE AND BIG SANDY VALLEYS
The progenitor of the Bartram family in West Virginia was Stephen Bartram. As with all immigrant ancestors, a great deal of oral facts and fiction about his life has been passed down to each succeeding generation. Naturally, with every repetition, certain facts were omitted or forgotten and some fictional embellishments incorporated into the stories.

Separating the fact from the fiction is always a difficult task. A common sense rule of thumb in historical research is that those accounts written nearer the time of the event are more reliable than later versions of the same event. In the case of Stephen Bartram, aside from legal documents made during his lifetime, it was not until 1884 that any personal record of his life was recorded. That account, in Hardesty's History of Wayne County, West Virginia, simply stated that he had emigrated from Tazewell County, Virginia. Another thirty-nine years passed before the next personal record of Stephen's life was written. In 1923 Elder David K. Frasher wrote his History of the Frasher Family, relying on personal recollection in the pamphlet. Elder Frasher reported that Stephen had come to America from Ireland, served in the Revolutionary War and was married to Jane Peery.

Frasher's remembrances allied closely with a written record found in a Bible belonging to a great-great-grandchild of Stephen. The owner of the Bible has never been fully ascertained, but according to some older family members it is believed to be in the possession of either Roy Charles Bartram's family or Mrs. Willard Robinson's family. Mrs. Robinson was the former Kizzie See and a sister to Julia (See) Bartram and Wilda (See) Bartram. As this Bible has not been personally reviewed by any family researcher it cannot be judged when the record of Stephen Bartram's life was recorded in it, and thus how valid it may indeed be. Two great-great-granddaughters of Stephen transcribed the Bible entry, either in person or by correspondence. The following excerpt appears to be the more accurate of the two:

"Stevie (or Stephen) Bartram, a Scotchman, came into Ireland to preach. Being a Protestant he was not well received, so he and his Irish bride (Betty Swangran) came to America, he became a Revolutionary soldier and is supposed to have been at Valley Forge with Washington. He served 7 years and 2 months and did not right at first find his wife. He finally did find her near Philadelphia. Betty Swangran Bartram could shoot like a trooper, and wore a bright red hunting shirt. She is said to have shot a raven on the wing. Their son David married Rebecca Blue after they had travelled to Tazewell County Virginia—finally crossing the mountains to West Virginia. Stevie Bartram and Betty Swangran Bartram were my great-great-grandparents."

The statements in the preceding record were corroborated by a similar account written by Sadie Bartram Baker to her first cousin, Holt Bartram, in 1964. It is apparent that Mrs. Baker had access to the same Bible record. Her version read:

"Grandad David Bartram's father Stephen Bartram left Scotland and went into Ireland and being a Protestant was not very well received by the Irish. Then they came to America and he was in the service with General Washington, serving 7 years and 2 months. They said his wife could shoot like nobody's business. Then he lost track of her and when he found her she was in Philadelphia, her maiden name was Betty Swangran. They had a son David... My cousin died and this was in her Bible. Her grandson has the Bible and I am trying to find out where he lives and if I do I will let you know."\(^4\)

Recently Mrs. Carnas Bartram Branham, a great-great-great-granddaughter of Stephen recalled that her great-uncles told her:

"That Stephen was born in Ireland, went to Scotland then made his way through England, where there were a lot of Bartrams. He was supposed to have left England and landed in a port on the James River (in Virginia). (The port's name) started with an E. They said (their Grandad) David Bartram told them. Once (Roy Charles Bartram) said to me that Stephen had to leave Ireland for stealing a horse and they were going to hang him. I thought by his expression that he was only teasing me. Roy also told me that Stephen had signed on as a member of a crew on a ship that brought him to America and he jumped ship after landing in Virginia. My family had always heard the bit about Stephen spending the winter at Valley Forge and coming home to Virginia. When he found his wife she was hunting, but not in the red shirt—it was a man's coat in our version."\(^5\)

Queen D. Franklin, another great-great-grandchild of Stephen Bartram recalls hearing her mother speak of her ancestors being married in Dublin, Ireland.\(^6\) In the Frasher history Elder D. K. Frasher states that:

"Stephen Bartram was married to Jane Perry and she was a sister to Nancy Peery, the wife of William Shannon... Stephen must have come to Big Sandy sometime after 1788... He had three sons, viz: John, David and James, and a daughter who was married to a man whose surname was Bruster... I have been told by some of my people, and I think by Grandfather David Bartram himself, that old John Ferguson, the father of James, was his cousin... I found out since commencing the writing of this pamphlet that Stephen came from Ireland to Virginia before the Revolutionary War, was a soldier in the Army, and was married to Jane Peery in 1775 or before that time."

In comparison, the oral histories preserved by the descendants of Stephen Bartram are quite similar. When taken into consideration one statement at a time, they can be better evaluated for insight, hypothesis and probable truths.

It is a fact that there is a large Bartram family in Scotland, centered near Edinburgh. The Scottish Bartrams are primarily adherents to the Church of Scotland, or Presbyterian Church. There is a known history of migratory movement from Scotland into protestant sections of Ireland, near Belfast, in the Eighteenth Century. The reasons for such migration were usually based on economic, religious or educational motives and spawned the title of "Scots-Irish".

In the early American records of Stephen Bartram the surname is often misspelled by tax collectors, court recorders and census enumerators as Bartren, Bartrum, Bartron, Batram or Battern. Although the misspelling of surnames is a common error in the records at that time, it does suggest an accent, possibly Scottish, by whomever was pronouncing the name for spelling. Even today, in Wayne County, West Virginia, there are some older citizens who pronounce the name Bartram as Battern, having always heard it in that manner when they were growing up.

There is a great inclination on the part of modern day descendants of Stephen to tie him into the family of the famed botanist, John Bartram of Philadelphia. It would be nice to be able to make such a connection, but that is just not possible. The Pennsylvania family has been fully researched and Stephen could not be placed amongst them, even by loose conjecture. However, there are two families which may be more closely related to Stephen Bartram.

Reverend William Bertram was born 2 February 1674 in Edinburgh, Scotland. After an education at the university there, he removed to the Presbytery of Bangor, Ireland (near Belfast), where he was ordained. His only surviving son, John Bertram, disappeared during a time of political unrest. Rev. William, suspecting his son might have fled to Pennsylvania, brought his remaining family with him to that colony in 1732. At that time Rev. Bertram met John Bartram, the botanist, and they discussed their lineage. The Quaker had not yet received his reputation as an American naturalist, so it is probable that they met as a result of the Scotsman looking for a John Bertram about that age. Failing to locate his son, Rev. Bertram remained in Pennsylvania the rest of his life. Family historians have been as unsuccessful as William Bertram in the search for his son. For a genealogy of this family refer to the Bartrams of Scotland section.

It is not improbable that Stephen was descended from this John Bertram, either as a son or a grandson. The change from Bertram to Bartram appears to be common in the history of the surname, and such a slight change may have been somewhat beneficial to anyone wanting to avoid easy identification. The similarity in Rev. William's life and the account that survives about Stephen's is incredible. The story could have been attributed to Stephen by misunderstanding and the long passage of time.

Historians know that Rev. William Bertram met the great botanist because a letter has survived that was written in 1761 from John to Archibald Bartram in Scotland. John Bartram, who was a close friend of his future son-in-law, George Bartram, was thankful for a coat of arms of the Scottish Bartram family that was sent by Archibald for his grandson to give to him. In writing his grateful acknowledgement to the elderly Scotsman, the botanist repeated the story of the two brothers to Archibald, attempting to explain their own unknown relationship.

Archibald's grandson, George Bartram, married Ann Bartram, the botanist's daughter, in 1764. George Bartram Jr. was born in 1767 and is the only known offspring of the marriage. George Jr. did have a son named David Bartram, but all that is known about him is that he was a printer. Whether the Bartrams of West Virginia are related to the aged Archibald Bartram of Scotland, and thereby the botanist himself, is only conjecture at this stage. This particular family is covered fully in both the Scottish and Pennsylvania sections of this book.

Elder D. K. Frasher's recollection of a cousin relationship between the Fergusons and the Bartrams opens up another possible Scotland hypothesis for Stephen Bartram. While the Fergusons intermarried with the Bartrams after both families arrived in the Ohio Valley area, it was not known that they may have been related when they came to West Virginia.

Frasher's "old John Ferguson" was a son of Ensign Samuel Ferguson, born in Scotland in 1744. At an early age Samuel's father, Adam Ferguson, removed to the northern section of Ireland. Sam Ferguson and his brothers left Ireland for America while their father remained behind. The Ferguson migration pattern is similar to the one attributed to Stephen Bartram. Although this route was a common one, it does cause speculation that Stephen may have accompanied Ferguson kin on their journey to the colonies. After 1790, when it is possible to find evidence of Stephen Bartram's journeys, Samuel Ferguson was always nearby.

Evelyn Massie, whose Ferguson genealogy is to be published soon, wrote that she has long suspected there might be a brother-in-law relationship between Samuel Ferguson, a Revolutionard War veteran, and William Peery. Together they donated land for the Tazewell County seat in 1800. For reasons discussed later on, this would suggest that there was not a family connection between Samuel and Stephen until after both had ended up in the southwestern section of Virginia.

In Stephen Bartram's will he appointed his "loving frien (sic) Jain Bartram, my loving wife" sole executrix of his estate. That revelation, in the only document that mentions a wife, corroborates Elder Frasher's contention about Jane Peery. However, the other statements about a Betty Swangran were so detailed that she cannot be eliminated. It is an educated guess that Stephen was married twice. The question of which woman was the mother of which children is more complicated without benefit of a marriage record.

Many of the informed descendants of Stephen's sons John and David Bartram believe that their mother was Betty Swangran, while many descendants of James P. are split between a Swangran and a Peery heritage. The Bible entry was very specific that the Irish bride was Betty Swangran. When the stories were told and retold, it was Betty who was associated with Stephen's life prior to 1790. Frasher's recollections of Jane Peery as the mother of David question the assumption that Betty must be the first wife. But, it should be considered that he was writing mainly from memory and he may have remembered Jane because she was the wife who survived Stephen. Jane came with him when he crossed the mountains and raised his older children. Frasher may have just assumed that she was his great-grandmother. His marriage date of 1775 or earlier was based on the presumption that, being David’s mother, Jane would have had to have married Stephen before the children were born. It is doubtful that the date of 1775 was based on any personal knowledge.

Arthur Wriston, a true pioneer researcher of the West Virginia Bartrams, recalled that in his early days of research he found a reference to the marriage of Stephen Bartram and Jane Peery or Perry. The date was either 1765 or 1775 (which he thought was a miscopy and should have been 1795) in Tazewell County, Virginia. Page 6 of Marriage Book Number 1 was where the record was to be found, according to an index, with John Peery/Perry having performed the ceremony. Unfortunately, Mr. Wriston did not record the source of this reference. Tazewell County (not formed in 1795) does not have this marriage on record, and neither do any surrounding counties.

If the 1795 date can be assumed, then it would follow that John and David were the children of Betty Swangran, leaving James P. in uncertainty as he was born in 1794 or 1795. At any rate, the fact that Stephen mentioned Jane in his will allows researchers the luxury of assuming that she is the second wife.

Very little has been uncovered about the parentage of Stephen Bartram’s wives. About his first wife, Betty Swangran, there are some clues. Leonard Swearingen, who was about the same age as Stephen, was an early settler of the Yorkville area in present day Lincoln District of Wayne County, West Virginia. He had arrived in the Big Sandy Valley sometime before 1808 when he built the first gristmill in the district.13

It is interesting that Leonard Swearingen had at least one son, Van Swearingen, who was born in 1795.14 It may be only coincidence or an evidence of relationship that Stephen’s eldest son John named two of his children Leonard and Van, uncommon names in that area at that time. These facts seem to suggest the hypothesis that Betty was actually a Swearingen, which with any accent could have been garbled into Swangran.15 If so, then Leonard was probably her brother who had joined his late sister’s family after their move to the Big Sandy. His place of residence prior to 1808 is unknown, except to state that he did not reside in Tazewell County, Virginia during the period of Stephen's residence there.

The two Peery and Perry families were separate and distinct from each other. Both had large family groups centered in the Tazewell County area. Even though they were not the same family, the name Jane Peery was used interchangeably with Jane Perry throughout the Frasher history.

Stephen Bartram's dealings provide the best evidence that his second wife was of the Peery family. After he had moved to Wayne County, West Virginia, Stephen sold some property in Tazewell County. He appointed James P. Carroll to act with power of attorney, witnessed by Thomas Gibson. Mr. Carroll and Mr. Gibson were both married to daughters of George Peery. A fairly complete record of the family of George Peery exists. He did have a daughter Jane who married a Mr. Whitten and had descendants by him. George Peery also had a daughter Nancy, who was married to Isaac Muse. Yet, the connection is very strong between this Peery family and Stephen Bartram. At one time Stephen owned land adjacent to Archibald Thompson, believed to be still another son-in-law of George Peery. Whatever the relationship, it is enough for researchers to concentrate on Jane Peery instead of Jane Perry.

Elder D. K. Frasher recalled that Jane Peery had a sister Nancy who married William Shannon. Some of the Shannon children came to Wayne County, West Virginia and of them much is known. However, nothing that has been uncovered about Nancy Peery Shannon's descendants has shed any light on her parentage. It is assumed that she remained in the southwestern Virginia area.

The final major statement made in the Bible entry on Stephen's early life was that he was in the Revolutionary War, as a soldier in the army at Valley Forge, and that he served 7 years and 2 months.

The most obvious weakness in the Bible account is the length of service. The first shot in the war was fired in April 1775. The last major battle was fought in October 1781, a span of 6 years and 6 months. It is unrealistic to consider the time frame mentioned in the Bible record. Regarding the statement that Stephen served under General George Washington, anyone who was in the Continental Army was ultimately under Washington and would have probably been at Valley Forge. It must be stated that Stephen Bar-
Bartram did not ever file for a Revolutionary War pension and there is no record that he had served in the army or received bounty land.

However, there is some circumstantial evidence to support the claim that he was in the Revolution. The strongest indication is that his known children were all born after the war. Immigration into the colonies came to a virtual halt around 1776 and did not resume with any strength until about 1790. Stephen would have had to come to this country before the war, so there is a ten year span after his marriage in which he was childless. This theory could be nullified should he have had earlier children who died before reaching adulthood and are unknown to family historians.

There is a theory that Stephen came to the colonies as an indentured servant, serving about 7 years as a virtual slave to a wealthy patron who had paid his passage. It is not impossible to consider that Stephen may have been hired to serve in place of another man who could afford to buy his way out of service, a common practice among the rich of the day. That would explain why there is no record of Stephen's service or pension.

Statements made by Mrs. Carnas B. Branham, a sixth generation descendant of Stephen Bartram, are perhaps the most convincing about his service. She recalled hearing:

"all the stories from my great-uncles and Dad's cousin, (Roy Charles Bartram), about Stephen Bartram having fought in the American Revolution and had received a bounty deed for a piece of land in western Virginia. (Stephen) finally went to look it over, but didn't care for it and traded it for a sack of dried apples and a musket."5

Mrs. Branham had desires to join the Daughters of the American Revolution, but required more proof than old stories. Having just about given up, she wrote to the Virginia State Capitol in Richmond in 1968 and asked if they had any knowledge of Stephen Bartram, of the Clinch River Valley, having been in the Revolution. Mrs. Branham continued the story:

"They answered my letter and as near as I can remember they said: 'We have a record of a Stephen Bartrum, with seven or eight other men of that area, joining up with the Army of Virginia. This is possi-" bly the same person.' Then they gave me the name and address of several people in Richmond who would do research for me for a fee. I intended to contact one of them but I moved to Florida with my daughter and stayed awhile. I came home on the bus so I couldn't bring anything but some clothes. They had a near miss from a hurricane that dumped tons of water on them and when it was over a great many of my things were destroyed, most of my (nursing) uniforms and the box that contained that letter."

What exactly is known, or at least theorized, about Stephen Bartram's life before 1790? He was probably born in Scotland, near Edinburgh. Early in his life he removed to northern Ireland where he married Elizabeth "Betty" Swearingen, a sister to Leonard. Emigrating to the colonies, they probably settled in the James River Valley in Virginia where he farmed, served as an indentured servant or fought in the war. After the war he had difficulty locating his wife, finding her in the Philadelphia area. By 1789 Stephen Bartram, with his wife or already a widower, settled in Montgomery County, Virginia.

THE SOUTHWESTERN VIRGINIA PERIOD (1790-1806)

When Stephen Bartram arrived in Montgomery County, Virginia he stepped out of the shadows of oral history and came into the light of public records. The records that help tell the story of Stephen's life are the common ones of a common man. The southwestern portion of Virginia that Stephen resided in was dominated by the then huge counties of Montgomery, Russell and Wythe. It is in these three counties, and the county of Tazewell created in 1800 from the last two, that historians find the first records of Stephen's existence.

It is known that Stephen Bartram owned land on the Maiden Spring Fork of the Clinch River, now in Tazewell County, sometime prior to 1804. The Maiden Spring Fork has its source at the head of Thompson Valley. The stream flows down the valley for about 10 miles, then flows under Rich Mountain and gushes out about a mile southwest of Liberty Hill. It then flows by Maiden Spring. During frequent Indian attacks, Stephen's family may have taken refuge in what became the historical Maiden Spring Fort erected by Lieutenant Rees Bowen.

No record has been found that shows Stephen received a deed or paid taxes on this Maiden Spring land. It is logical to assume that he rented most of his land or squatted on land that was unclaimed.

Whether land was owned or not, Stephen did have to pay taxes on his personal property. At that time taxable personal property was defined as horses, slaves and gold or silver items. White males aged 16 years and older were also considered taxable, or tithables. The personal property tax rolls give historians a good picture of where and how Stephen lived.

The first public record that has been found on Stephen Bartram was in the 24 February 1790 personal property tax roll of Montgomery County, Virginia. For an unknown reason, Stephen's name appears on no other personal property tax roll until 1800 in Wythe County. Yet we know that Stephen did remain in the area during those years in between. In 1801 he appears on the first personal property tax roll of newly created Tazewell County, then moved to Russell County to pay their tax the next year. Stephen Bartram appears on the last tax roll of his stay in southwestern Virginia in Tazewell in 1806. The tax rolls usually show that he was taxed only on himself, his sons John and David after they turned 16 and on 4 or 5 horses.

In the late-Eighteenth and early-Nineteenth Centuries new counties were forming every few years in Virginia. Large, established counties were resented by residents who lived far from the county seat. The frontiersmen wanted to control their own destiny and creating a new county was a good way to gain power as well as make life more convenient with a closer county seat. Property owners near the county towns found it highly profitable because business activity was heightened by the festivities surrounding the court sessions.

Creating a new county in Virginia involved petitions signed by a majority of local taxpayers and sent to the legislature. It is in the petitions that we also find Stephen and more clues about his whereabouts and his neighbors. All of the petitions in question were trying to create a new county out of "the upper end of Russell County and that portion of Wythe County which lied north of the Clinch Mountains." The petitions, all of which were denied by the Virginia Legislature, were dated 23 October 1793, 25 November 1795, 31 November 1796, 6 December 1797 and 5 December 1798. Stephen Bartram signed all of these petitions. Many other recognizable Wayne County, West Virginia surnames can be found on the petitions such as Thompson, Ross, Ferguson, Ratcliff, Owens, Osborn, Lambert, Garrett, Newman, Bowen, Workman and Pauley. There are also surnames that have a connection to the oral histories surrounding Stephen including Peery, Shannon and Brewster. The final petition of 1799, which resulted in the formation of Tazewell County, was the only one that Stephen did not sign.

The county court was an integral part of early life in southwestern Virginia and it is in those records that researchers have found more clues about Stephen’s life there. On 3 March 1801 Stephen served on a jury in Tazewell. The case was the Commonwealth of Virginia versus Micajah Anderson Thorn. Also serving on the same jury was William Shannon, Thomas Brewster and Frasher’s "old John Ferguson" when he was a young man of 34. The jury found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay damages of five dollars plus costs of the trial.

A few years later Stephen faced a jury of peers himself, which may have indirectly prompted his subsequent move to Wayne County, West Virginia. During the June 1805 quarterly term of the Russell County Court a case was brought to trial against Stephen Bartram by Charles Carroll (of unknown relationship to James P. Carroll or Carroll). The suit involved a debt owed by Stephen of fourteen and two-thirds dollars. On 4 June 1805 Samuel Isaaks was summoned to court to testify that he owed Stephen Bartram eighty dollars payable in any kind of saleable property and due on Christmas Day of 1806. In addition, Isaaks also held the following personal property of Stephen’s: one skillet, one pot, one cowhide, one pair of Bellows leathers (sic), two pairs of door latches and one box with some plunder in it. The next day the court ordered that the property and debt held by Isaaks be condemned and sold by the sheriff. The proceeds of the sale were to be garnisheed to pay off Stephen’s debt with Carroll and the remainder, if any, returned to Stephen. There are no records of the sale of Stephen Bartram’s property held by Isaaks, but it can be assumed that someone purchased the note and paid Stephen less than eighty dollars for it.

The southwestern Virginia period of Stephen Bartram's life has left behind facts that, when combined with oral histories, give researchers a clearer and more reliable picture of the years between 1790 and 1806. Stephen Bartram arrived in the area around 1789 and remained in the general vicinity until 1806 or 1807. He first resided in what was then Montgomery County. By 1793 he had gone to the Clinch River Valley, possibly on Maiden Spring Fork, where he remained until 1801. During his stay in this area of present day Tazewell County, Stephen assisted in the formation of the county and served on a jury. His son David Bartram shot a bear on nearby Clinch Mountain around 1799.22

In 1802 Stephen moved to neighboring Russell County, where he paid personal property taxes. For the years 1803 and 1804 there are no records that ascertain exactly where he was living, but it can be assumed he remained in either Russell or Tazewell. In 1805 he was on trial for debt in Russell County. The court case, debts and other economic factors probably prompted Stephen Bartram to look for greener pastures. In late 1806 or early 1807 he left Tazewell to join other southwestern Virginians, most notable of which was Samuel Ferguson, in the search for a better life one county and a long journey to the north.

THE WAYNE COUNTY YEARS (1807-1821)

Another reason for leaving southwestern Virginia was given by Thomas A. Bartram, a grandson of Roy Charles Bartram. He repeated a story his grandfather had told him as a boy. The tale involved a deed, made on sheepskin, that contained a title to land in West Augusta County, Virginia (then what is now most of West Virginia and Kentucky) naming the grantee as either William or John Bartram for services rendered in the Revolutionary War. Thomas A. Bartram declared that he had last heard that the deed was in the possession of a nephew of his Grandmother Bartram and his name was Robinson.23

Stephen Bartram brought his wife and at least two of his children, James P. and Betsy, to the waters of the Ohio Valley, probably in the Spring of 1807. John had remained behind to marry and joined his family later that year. David probably remained behind, too. For he served on a jury in Tazewell in September 1807. The most logical path the Bartram family would have taken was to cross the mountains near the boundary point of the present day states of Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky and then follow the Guyandotte River Valley northward to the Ohio River.

Stephen and family ended their trek somewhere near where the Guyandotte River flows into the Ohio River (the present site of Huntington, West Virginia). At that time the area south of the Ohio River and east of the Big Sandy River was Kanawha County, Virginia, Cabell County after 1809. The western and southern portion of Cabell County became Wayne County in 1842 and West Virginia after 1863. The place where Stephen first settled was between the mouths of Twelvepole Creek and the Guyandotte River and is still within the boundary of Cabell County.

As was previously written, Carnas B. Branham recalled being told by Roy Charles Bartram that Stephen disliked the bounty land given to him in western Virginia and so he traded it away for a sack of dried apples and a musket. There is another oral history that has been passed down to researchers. Some descendants claim that Stephen Bartram was given his choice of two parcels of land in West Virginia for military service. The story relates that one tract was where the City of Huntington now stands and the other was in what is now Wayne County. As the tale goes, Stephen chose the Wayne County land because it had more plentiful wildlife.

Stephen's name appears on the 1810 and 1815 tax rolls of Cabell County. According to the date of his 1815 entry, Stephen resided near his sons in what is now Wayne County. That was not the case in 1810 when David was entered on the rolls on the 30th of March, John P. on the 24th of April and Stephen on the 31st of May, the last day. Stephen's immediate neighbors were Thomas Buffington, Jr., Daniel Huddleston, William Merritt, Nathaniel Scales, Cornelius Blue and George Merritt. A map of what was then Cabell County, drawn by John Woods during that period shows that Scale's Tavern and Buffington's residence (landmarks at the time) were near the Ohio River between the Guyandotte River and Twelvepole Creek. This shows that Stephen remained in what is now Cabell County until after 1810.

Before 1810 the Ohio and Big Sandy Valleys were areas on the frontier, or actually a void. To the east were the older, more established settlements whose lands were hard to come by, expensive and overworked. To the west was the rapidly populating Bluegrass region of Kentucky with its expensive, fertile lands. To the north were the flat, productive lands of Ohio, still occupied by the Indians. The Ohio and Big Sandy River Valleys were in a pocket of unsettled lands whose main attractions were abundant wild game, plentiful waterways and virgin timber. When Stephen arrived in the area he was considered one of the first settlers, there being not more than 75 families in all of the area of modern day Wayne and Cabell Counties.

Somehow avoiding the payment of taxes, Stephen had retained title to some property in Russell County, Virginia. On 5 December 1815 James P. Carrell was proven as having power of attorney for Stephen by the Russell County Court so he could sell Stephen's property to Andrew Long. Stephen also owned land on Rockcastle Creek, near what is now Clifford in Lawrence County (then Floyd), Kentucky, just across the Tug Fork of Big Sandy from Wayne County, West Virginia. Stephen probably lived on this land for part of the time after 1807. Tax records that could prove his residency in Kentucky were not preserved during the period of time in question.

Cabell County court records shed additional light on Stephen Bartram's later years. On 8 October 1811 Stephen served as a juror for the Cabell County Superior Court, serving once more in a state case around the same time. In June 1816, in Cabell County Court, a case was filed by Thomas Ward against Stephen Bartram and his son John. There is no mention as to what the case involved. On 8 June 1816 the jury, including Sherod Adkins who was John Bartram's neighbor and future in-law, returned a "hung" verdict. The case was tried again on 25 June 1816 with a new jury, but there is no notation of their decision. On 15 October 1816 Stephen was back in Cabell County Superior Court as a juror in the case of Benjamin Brown versus William Walker and James Stewart. The jury returned a verdict for Brown, the plaintiff.

In 1820 Stephen Bartram was recorded in his first and only Federal Census. Previous censuses for the areas in which Stephen had lived were destroyed by the British when they burned Washington, D. C. in 1814. In 1820 the census did not list individual members of a household. Only the head of the family was listed and then the approximate ages of the various family members were checked off. Stephen was enumerated as being over the age of 45. Other members of the household were two females, of age 16 but under 26, and one female over the age of 45. One member of the household, presumably Stephen, was engaged in the business of agriculture. It is fairly obvious that the eldest female was Jane Peery Bartram. One of the younger females was probably the youngest daughter Betsy. The identity of the other female has been in doubt. The possibilities are endless, but she could have been the eldest daughter Polly, a boarder or a servant.

In late September of 1820 Stephen's health was failing and, expecting death, he wrote his last will. All grammar and underlining is as it appears in the original record:

"In the name of God amen, this 20th day of September 1820. I am of a low state of being in health and perfect memory thanks be to God, and calling to remembrance the uncertain Estate of transitory life and all flesh must yield unto death when it shall please God to Call do make and declare this my last will and testament in manner form following first being penitant Sorry for my sins mast humbly desiring forgiveness for the same I command my sole unto Almighty God my Saviour and redeemer in whom and by these merits i trust and believe assuredly to be saved and my body I commit to the earth to be decently buried at the discretion of Executors here after named and for the selling of my temporal estate and such goods and chattels and debts as it hath pleased God to bestow on me. Stephen's will was written in the standard form of his day with the first portion being devoted to penitence. The will was written by someone else who recorded it as Stephen dictated. The original was not saved, but a copy was taken by the court recorder and recopied into the will book. The underlining was done at a later date by someone criticizing poorly spelled words. Punctuation was usually ignored in that era. The will was proven in Cabell County Court on 28 May 1821 by the oaths of the signed witnesses, one of which was Frasher's "old John Ferguson", then aged 53 years. Stephen must have died between September 1820 and May 1821, probably nearer the latter date.

Stephen's use of a mark would normally suggest that he was illiterate. However, his mark was unusual in that it was a legible and artistic initial S. for Stephen. Although some people of that time did know how only to make a fancy mark, it does open up possibilities that Stephen was literate, but too weak to sign his name. It is known that James P., Stephen's youngest son and a child raised on the outskirts of civilization, had a legible signature. The argument that Stephen Bartram was literate gains strength when it is realized that, at a time when there were no schools, someone had to teach James P. how to sign his name, and possibly read and write.

The will also gives evidence that Stephen owned 75 acres on Rockcastle Creek opposite John Cox, who was murdered in 1823 by his son-in-law for his estate. The will also mentions a daughter Betsy who was not recalled by any oral histories. Much time has been spent trying to decipher what is meant by her being a "dears child". The context in which it is used suggests that she may have been either a daughter of Jane Peery by a previous marriage or she was "not quite right" and needed to be provided for. The will's inventory of the items in Stephen's estate gives researchers a good idea what he had that he thought was valuable.
Much speculation has circulated as to where Stephen Bartram died and where he was buried. Many descendants of his son David feel that he was buried near Fort Gay, while some others suggest it might have been in Catlettsburg, Kentucky (where no family members lived until 1850). Still other researchers speculate that he may have been buried on his farm near Clifford, Kentucky. Judging from the fact that his son John Bartram inherited the lion's share of the estate, once his sister and step-mother died, and coupled with the circumstantial evidence in the 1816 civil suit, it is also probable that Stephen lived with him at his death. John lived near Adkins Mills, now East Lynn. It is an educated guess that Stephen died there and was buried nearby. None of his children had accumulated any wealth by that time, so it is doubtful that any of them could have afforded to erect a permanent marker on his grave in 1821. There may have been a marker erected when the children became more affluent before the Civil War, but it has not been found.

Mrs. Carnas Branham recalled a story about headstones near the Bartram Cemetery on High Street in Fort Gay where Stephen's son David was buried in 1864:

"There is a large tree just outside of the cemetery fence and just inside the (Fort Gay High School) football field. The graves were under that tree on the (north) side. They were building the High School and some of the teachers (some of whom were also city councilmen) and the boys were excited about a football field and they were working on it. I would stop and watch them for a few minutes on my way home. I saw them tear up the tombstones and throw them over the fence. They had a horse and a scraper and were going to level the knoll and a Mr. Wellman came out there and stopped them. They smoothed out the ground and planted grass, but they didn't put the stones back. I had no idea at the time who was buried there. All I knew was that it was some of the early settlers of the area. It wasn't until I decided to go into the D. A. R. that I heard about the tombstones again. A cousin, Pansy (See) Walker told me that her brothers had found Stephen's grave in the Bartram cemetery. (We) searched everywhere but could find nothing. We even borrowed a pick and went around the fence probing for buried stones. I called (Pansy) back and she said to call Jarvis Bartram. I did and he told me that the people living near the ball park had carried the tombstones away and made walks out of them. He said he had talked to the people that carried off the stones, but they said they couldn't remember the names on the stones; it had been too long and the stones had been destroyed or covered up with cement."

If Stephen Bartram had been buried with a tombstone in the Fort Gay, West Virginia area it is likely he would have been under that tree. Family historians may never know for certain.

Stephen Bartram, a common man who died over 160 years ago, has left a profound impact on the lives of his descendants. Quite literally, we would not be alive had he never existed. Bartrams in the seventh generation are one-sixty-fourth descended from him. While some of us have none of his genes anymore, others may have many of his characteristics. His ultimate move to West Virginia has also affected our lives. Many of his descendants remain in the vicinity of Wayne County, others in nearby states and some all over the United States and a few foreign countries. Yet, all of us can claim a West Virginian heritage and a frontier ethic in our backgrounds.

The descendants have in turn, particularly in the post-Civil War years, left an impact on Stephen Bartram's life. He was almost forgotten. During the Civil War various branches of the family took opposing sides. The Republican-Unionist descendants of David Bartram, who lived along the Big Sandy River, and the Democratic-Rebel descendants of James P. Bartram, who lived along Twelvepole Creek, were the most responsible. What resulted was the obliteration of the memory of Stephen, at least in public. Many Bartrams who still live in Wayne County will attest to the fact that they were always told that those "other Bartrams" over the ridge were of a different family and not their kin. Kelsie Bartram, a descendant of David and the local mailman in Fort Gay, and Okey Bartram, a descendant of James P. and a farmer on Wolf Creek, were good friends. They honestly believed, because they had always been told, that they were not even remotely related.

In Hardesty's History of Wayne County, West Virginia early settlers to the area were recalled, but the Bartrams listed are the sons of Stephen, as if he had never existed. Civil War battlefields left many tragedies among the Bartram family, but perhaps the greatest casualty of all was Stephen Bartram. Wherever he is buried, the authors hope that he can now rest in peace.

The eldest son of Stephen, John P. Bartram, was born sometime between May 1784 and September 1785 in the Piedmont region of Virginia. This area is southwest of Charlottesville, Virginia perhaps in what is now Appomattox County. There has not been any oral history preserved about John's life except a brief mention in Frasher's History:

"John, the eldest, was married and his wife's given name was Mary, and there were born unto them 4 boys and a girl, viz: Stephen, William, Thomas, Solomon and Jennie. He had more children by his second wife."

John remained in his father's household throughout the moves to Montgomery, Tazewell and Russell Counties in Virginia. In late-1804 and early-1805 John was the plaintiff in a civil case in Russell County Court against Asher Crockett and Alexander Dunlap. By 1806 he had reached his majority and was recorded on the Tazewell personal property tax roll apart from his family. The roll stated that he was over 16 years of age and taxable, but had no other personal property, such as horses, etc., which could be taxed. His name was recorded a week after his father appeared on the roll so it could be assumed that they did not live in close proximity to one another.

When his father went to the Big Sandy Valley to live, John remained behind to marry Mary "Polly" Davis on 2 August 1807 in Tazewell County. Soon thereafter they moved to Kanawha County Virginia which became Cabell County the next year and Wayne County in 1842. John P. Bartram's initial stay in what is now Wayne County West Virginia lasted until his father's death in 1821. It is not known where he first settled in Wayne County, but at least for a time he lived in the vicinity of Adkins' Mill, now East Lynn, at the fork of the Twelvepole Creek. He probably lived nearby on Bartram Fork which was named after him. Cabell County personal property tax rolls record that in 1810 he was taxed on 1 horse and in 1815 on 3 horses and 3 head of cattle.
Court records shed some light on John P.'s existence in the area. John P. was appointed constable, on 3 January 1815, of the large precinct in Cabell County that included the mouth of the Guyandotte River (now Huntington, West Virginia). John and his father Stephen were both sued by Cabell County Sheriff Thomas Ward on 8 June 1816, probably for debt. The jury included Sherod Adkins, a neighbor and future in-law of John P., and returned a verdict of "hung". A new jury heard the case on 25 June 1816 but no decision was recorded in the minutes. On 22 May 1818, in the Cabell County Superior Court of Law, John P. sued Jesse Spurlock and both agreed to dismiss the case.

In 1820 John P. Bartram was still in Cabell County, now East Lynn, Wayne County, where he was recorded in the Federal Census. According to the census he was engaged in agriculture and was already a widower. He soon remarried to another Mary but no record of the ceremony has been found.

The following year, 1821, John's father died and he moved to his inherited land on Rockcastle Creek in what is now Clifford, Lawrence County, Kentucky. Soon after the move John P. witnessed the will of neighbor John Cox. Lawrence County tax records for 1822 show that John P. had 2 horses valued at 125 dollars and an estate worth 3250 dollars, an unusually high figure that he never again attained. The tax records also show that he had three children (Stephen, William and Solomon) in school. His eldest child, Nancy Jane, was already on her own and sons Thomas and Leonard were still too young to attend school.

By 1823 John P. had returned to what is now Wayne County West Virginia. There is no record of him ever having paid taxes on or selling off his father's 75 acres on Rockcastle Creek. In that year he received part interest in 2000 acres of land on the dividing ridge between Twelvepole Creek and Tug Fork in what is now southern Wayne County. John P. held an interest in this land until 1835. On 19 January 1824 he returned to Louisa, Kentucky to prove the will of former neighbor John Cox who had recently been murdered by his son-in-law. About this time John P. received a deed from James Parot Wilson to 40 acres on Mill Creek which he held until 1843.

In 1825 John P. Bartram returned to the Clifford, Kentucky area where he remained until 1832. His first year back in Kentucky he was taxed for only 1 horse. On 7 February 1826 he received 80 acres on Louisa (Levisa)
Fork from Lewis Wellman and wife. Thomas Duckham deeded an additional tract on Tug Fork to John on 3 May 1827. The 1827 Lawrence County tax roll shows that he was assessed for 100 acres of third rate land on Tug Fork at a value of 1.50 dollars per acre. In 1828 he only held 50 acres of second rate land on Big Sandy River valued at 4 dollars per acre.

In 1829 he was not taxed on any land, apparently selling the parcels he had owned. John P. was taxed for 2 horses and had 2 children who were not attending school. The estate of John Cox deeded him 100 acres on Tug Fork on 10 September 1829 and on 21 December 1829 he sold 260 acres on Tug Fork to Joseph M. Clark. The Cox land was probably sold for profit because he never paid taxes on it.

The 1830 Federal Census recorded John P. Bartram in the Clifford, Kentucky area as a farmer with his second wife and family. Also in the household was a female born between 1771 and 1780 who may have been his step-mother Jane Peery Bartram. Later that year, on 15 September 1830, he received the 260 acres of land on Tug Fork back from Joseph M. Clark and others. That land may have been held by Clark as a security or to hide it from possible creditor actions in court.

During 1832 John P. Bartram sold off his remaining land in Lawrence County. On 14 March 1832 he sold 80 acres on Sandy River to Andrew Chapman Jr. and on 7 September 1832 he sold a tract on Tug Fork (probably 260 acres) to Garred See.

In 1833 John P. moved back to what is now Wayne County West Virginia where he likely remained until his death. In 1834 he may have been the John Bartram who held a note on the estate of Robert Ball (or this could be his nephew, John, the eldest son of James P.). In 1840 John P. received a deed from William Low (or Loar) for 40 acres on the dividing ridge between Twelvepole Creek and the Sandy River, which he held until 1846. This land was placed on the 1851 delinquent tax list to be sold for nonpayment of 1850 taxes.

In 1844 it appears that John P. Bartram went to the upper district of Greenup County Kentucky, the portion that eventually became Boyd County in 1860. A John Battern lived near Leonard Battern (his son) and Lucy Battern (his brother David's wife). John, who was taxed for a 30 dollar horse and 2 head of cattle, had not appeared on the Greenup tax lists in the years preceding 1844 or after. It can probably be assumed that he died between the years 1844 and 1846.

In the November 1846 term of the Lawrence County Kentucky Court William Vinson brought a suit against William Bartram, Solomon Bartram, Stephen Bartram, Thomas Bartram, Janny Cole, James Cole, Polly Brewer and E. Brewer. The Chancellor of the court ordered that the defendants convey to Vinson 100 acres of land on Tug Fork adjacent to Stephen Marcum in consideration of 75 dollars paid on 12 months credit. James Fulkerson was appointed by the court to act as a commissioner and the land was deeded to Vinson on 4 May 1847.

The defendants were the children of John P. by his marriage to Mary Davis and his sister Polly Bartram Brewer. James Cole and E. Brewer, as husbands of the females, were considered, in those days, to be the owners of their wives. The court case suggests that John P.'s descendants had inherited the property from their father and brother after his death. No will or estate settlements for John P. have been found, but it can be assumed that he was dead by the time the case was brought to court in November 1846.

(3) DAVID BARTRAM

David Bartram, the second child of Stephen, was born 20-29 October 1786 in what is now Appomattox County Virginia, the Piedmont region. David has been remembered by his descendants through oral histories better than any of Stephen's other children. When still a baby he accompanied his family to Montgomery County Virginia and then to the Clinch River Valley. Elder David Kelly Frasher recalled:

"My grandfather, David Bartram, told me of killing bear when he was 13 in Clinch Mountain in Tazewell County Virginia."3

In 1806 David was still at home with his father as shown by the Tazewell County tax records. Later that year his father removed to the Big Sandy Valley, but David remained behind in Tazewell where he served as a juror on 26 September 1807.4
About 1808 David Bartram rejoined his family in Wayne County, probably settling on Lick Creek. Oral histories do not agree on the year. According to one source:

"James Bias reared his cabin at the mouth of Lick Creek on the banks of the 12 Pole in 1802. David Bartram coming the next season."

Hardesty added:

"David was his (James Bias's) first neighbor."

Ely's History stated:

"David Bartram when a boy began his Sandy Valley career near the forks of the Sandy and the Tug. He came to the locality in 1810. He hunted, fished, made shoes and farmed. Everybody liked him for his good qualities. He was the father of James and William Bartram-two men of prominence in the lower Sandy Valley. The older Bartrams were ardent Democrats but when the war came on they declared themselves for the Union, and since that time have been among the most pronounced Republicans. They are members or adherents of the M. E. Church in religion. David, the ancestor, died in Catlettsburg in 1863 at an advanced age."

Other older family members state that David Bartram came to Wayne County and resided on Mill Creek. What is known for sure is that David was in Cabell County Virginia (now Wayne County West Virginia) on 30 March 1810 when he was entered on a personal property tax roll and taxed for 2 horses. On 19 July 1810 David married Rebecca Blue in Cabell County. Rebecca, known to her descendants as "Granny Blue" was born about 1794 in what is now the eastern panhandle of West Virginia.

David and Rebecca's first five years of marriage produced only one child and little growth in wealth. By 1815 he was still taxed on only 2 horses and 4 head of cattle. In 1816 David had 50 acres surveyed on Millers Fork of Beech Fork, near the present-day East Lynn. He received the grant of this property in 1817, thus becoming the first Bartram to own property in what is now Wayne County. He held the title to the Millers Fork land until 1819 when he sold it to Luke Adkins.

In 1820 David was recorded on the Federal Census as living in what is now Wayne County and engaged in agriculture. Later in 1820 David had 3 parcels of land surveyed for him. The first was for 75 acres on the left fork of Twelvepole Creek which he apparently never held on to for he was not taxed on it. The second was for 150 acres on the main left fork of Twelvepole of which he sold 50 acres to John or James Witherow in 1823 and the remaining 100 acres in 1829 to Joseph P. Workman. The third 1820 survey was for 75 acres on the left fork of the Sandy River (Tug Fork) for which he was also never taxed. In 1822 James Parot Wilson sold David Bartram 45 acres on Camp Creek which he retained title to until 1830.

Sometime before 1825 his wife died. According to the Bible record uncovered by Arthur Wriston:

"Rebecca was homesick and lost her mind. She took her Baby John and rode a three year old colt into Mill Creek and upon a rock, and though the water was very high, no body was wet. Rebecca died and Great-Grandfather (David) remarried, but had no children by this marriage."

The late Jarvis Bartram, a descendant of David and Rebecca and an oral historian, often claimed that "Granny Blue" was buried in Pike County Kentucky on Pond Creek, about 7 or 8 miles upstream from its mouth. Pond Creek flows into the Tug Fork opposite the town of Williamson, Mingo County West Virginia.

David Bartram travelled to Lawrence County Kentucky on 27 March 1825 where he was married by James Shorter to Lucy Sperry Page. Lucy was born about 1798 in southwestern Virginia and had first married to Timothy Page. In the genealogical section of this book we have credited David Bartram with having children numbered 20 and 21. These two boys, who did not grow to manhood, may in fact be Lucy's children by her previous marriage. Lucy and David had two girls who did not survive to adulthood, so there are no descendants of this marriage.

In 1826 David bought 110 acres at the forks of the Sandy, near Fort Gay, from James Wellman. It was on this land that he and Lucy probably decided to live. David retained all 110 acres until 1840 when he sold 75 acres to Lucy's nephew, William Vinson. He kept the 35 acres until after he had removed to Kentucky, when it was sold in 1855 to James Todd for nonpayment of taxes for the year 1845.

David Bartram served on a jury on 27 August 1827 in

All during this time his main occupation was farming, as shown by the 1830 Cabell County census. In 1836 David had 100 acres surveyed on Little Lynn Branch, near his former home, but probably did not live there as he was never taxed. By 1840, when he sold the majority of his Fort Gay property, he returned to the East Lynn section of Wayne County where he was recorded in the Federal Census. According to the 1840 census, 3 members of the family were involved in the business of agriculture (probably David, his youngest son John and another male, either a relative or a farm hand, in his twenties).

On 26 April 1841 David Bartram was fined a hefty 16 dollars by the Cabell County Superior Court of Law for:

"failure to attend court as a witness and ordered to make his fine with John Rutherford, Esq., Lt. Governor of this Commonwealth (Virginia)."

It is interesting to note at this point that all of David Bartram's property was missing from the 1844 Wayne County tax rolls. At first it was thought to be an oversight resulting from the confusion surrounding the organization of a new county (Wayne County was created in 1842). However, the property that David retained title to after his 1852 move to Kentucky was sold in 1855 for nonpayment of 1845 taxes, probably incurred in 1844. For some reason it seems that David did not or was not able to pay taxes in 1844.

The Greenup County Kentucky tax rolls of the upper district, the portion that became Boyd County in 1860, show that in 1844 a Lucy Battern lived near John Battern (probably John P., David's brother) and Leonard Battern, who was John P. Bartram's son. Lucy was head of the household as there were no males living there who were over 16 years of age. She was taxed on 1 head of cattle and had one child between the age of 5 and 15 years. Lucy was not recorded on Greenup tax rolls in the years preceding 1844 or after.

If this Lucy was David Bartram's wife it opens up for speculation what happened to her husband. The two most obvious assumptions are that he left her on her own for a time either out of a marital dispute or to scout out a new place to live, such as Missouri, etc. Since she is living near her brother-in-law it is more likely that David left to find greener pastures for the family. In any event, in 1845 David Bartram again appeared on the Wayne County West
Altho en he appare en the Wayne County tax roll of 1850, David has not been found in the 1850 Federal Census in West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio or Missouri. The cause for this is probably a common oversight on the part of the census enumerator.

In 1852 David and Lucy Bartram left West Virginia for good and crossed the Tug Fork to live in the vicinity of Clifford or the Falls of the Tug in Lawrence County Kentucky. They lived near his son James Bartram who was becoming very wealthy as a local merchant and who probably wanted to take care of them in their older years.

At the time of his departure, David owned only one parcel of land in Wayne County, which was sold by the sheriff in 1855. While still remaining in Kentucky, David was taxed in 1855 and 1856 for 90 acres at the head of Blue Lick Creek in Wayne County with no record being found to explain how he acquired the land or why he was not taxed on it in 1857. Also in 1855 David sold 55 acres on Tug Fork in Wayne County to Savira Adkins, yet he had never been taxed on it and there is no record of how he had come to possess it.

The tax records of David Bartram's stay in Lawrence County Kentucky from 1852 to 1863 show a change in his age, farming styles and the general economy. In 1852 he owned two horses that were valued at 20 dollars each. In 1854 he still owned two horses but they had become more valuable at 50 dollars each. In 1855 he only owned one horse and by 1862 that horse, then aging, was only worth 25 dollars. David did not have any cattle until 1856 when he had only 1 head. He was not taxed on cattle again until 1860 when he had 3 head and then 5 head in 1861. In 1856 David raised 1 hog, increasing to 19 head in 1858. He had only 8 head of hogs in 1859 and then 1 head in 1860. David grew corn in 1859 and 1860, raising 300 and 550 bushels respectively. During 1858 he had custody of a child between the ages of 6 and 18 years. After 1857, because of his advancing age, he was no longer considered a tithable and, thus, was not taxed as a white male over 21 years of age.

In 1860 David and Lucy Bartram were recorded by the Federal Census in Lawrence County as 72 years old and 64 years old respectively. He was actually 73, but who's counting. That year he claimed to have 800 dollars in real estate holdings and 175 dollars in personal property. Both claimed to have been born in Virginia and they were recorded as not being able to read or write.

Sometime in late-1863 David Bartram went to live with his eldest son James, who had recently moved to Catlettsburg, Boyd County Kentucky. It was in Catlettsburg that David died on 28 April 1864. His body was returned to Cassville, now Fort Gay, Wayne County West Virginia where he was the first person buried in what was to become the Bartram Cemetery on High Street. His grave was marked with a finely engraved granite slab.

Lucy died after 1860, but it is not known if she survived her husband. There was some speculation that she was buried at Salt Petre, Wayne County West Virginia, on the Vinson homestead. There was a sepulcher containing the remains of Lucy's sister Rhoda Sperry Vinson Marcum and her brother-in-law James Vinson. According to older Vinson family members either Rhoda's sister or a niece was buried with her. Many thought it was Lucy Bartram who was there. The Columbia Coal Gasification Corp. purchased this land a few years ago and removed the graves. Only two adult remains were found along with one small child. Lucy Bartram was probably buried elsewhere, but the small child could have been her child by either Timothy Page or David Bartram.

David Bartram's impact on Bartram family history is very important. He was apparently a great storyteller and his remembrances were the origins of much of the oral histories on his father. His grandchildren held the aging gentleman in awe and clung to his every word. Many Sandy Valley historians including Ely and Hardesty, who were Union supporters, erroneously gave David Bartram the title of ancestor of the Bartram family in Wayne County. Fortunately, David's grandchildren remembered his stories and passed them along so that the real ancestor, Stephen, would not be forgotten.

(4) MARY "POLLY" BARTRAM BREWER/BRUER

The eldest daughter of Stephen Bartram, "Polly" or Mary, was probably born between sons David and James P. Very little is known about her. This is not from any lack of interest on the part of Bartram researchers, but because she apparently did not reside in the Big Sandy
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Her father, in his will, stated:

"also to Polly Bruen twenty shillings".¹

Although he did not refer to her as a daughter, it can be assumed. Only son John P. Bartram was given the title "son" and it is known that David and James P. were also his sons.

Elder Frasher remembered hearing about Polly. In his History of the Frasher Family he wrote:

"Stephen had three sons, viz: John, David and James, and a daughter who was married to a man whose surname was Bruster."²

Two separate and reliable sources gave Polly Bartram's married name as either Bruen or Bruster. Some researchers felt that it might be Bowen, but that surname often appeared in Cabell County documents during that time and it was always spelled correctly.

One record does provide more clues to Polly's life. In the November term of the Lawrence County Kentucky Court William Vinson sued William Bartram, Solomon Bartram, Stephen Bartram, Thomas Bartram, Janny Cole, James Cole, Polly Bruer and E. Bruer.³ Vinson won a decree in which the defendants had to sell him 100 acres on Tug Fork adjacent to Stephen Marcum.

The Bartrams and Janny Cole were the children of John P. Bartram's first marriage. It is not known why Polly held an interest in her brother's land. The signatures on the document were copied from the court record so they are not actual, but Polly's signature appears to be Bruer and her apparent husband looks like E. Brewer.

In searching the census and tax records of Cabell and Wayne Counties in West Virginia and Lawrence, Boyd and Greenup Counties in Kentucky there are no E. Brewers. In 1810 there is an Isaac Brewer living in Cabell County Virginia and in 1850 an Isaac Brewer is living in Floyd County Kentucky.⁴

Polly's father, Stephen Bartram, did own land on Maiden Spring Fork in Tazewell County Virginia adjacent to Ebenezer Brewer. A James Bruester resided in Lawrence

County Kentucky in 1856. What relationship this James had to either Ebenezer or Polly is not known.

Until more documentary evidence comes to light, little more can be stated with authority on Polly Bartram Brewer/Bruer.

James P. Bartram, the third and youngest son of Stephen, was born between 1 June and 21 August 1794 on Maiden Spring Fork, Wythe (now Tazewell) County Virginia. Around the time of his 13th birthday, he accompanied his father on the move to what is now Wayne County West Virginia. Hardesty’s History recalled that:

"James P. emigrated from Tazewell County Virginia with his father Stephen Bartram and settled at an early date in what is now Wayne County... he was an early settler of Butler District."

When he was 18 years old, he married Delila Wilson on 7 May 1813 in Cabell County Virginia. Delila was born 22 June 1795 in what was then Greenbrier County Virginia, a daughter of James Parot Wilson and Sarah "Sallie" Mountz. Frasher wrote of the family:

"James, brother of John and David Sr., was married and there was born unto him and his wife three sons: Lewis a missionary Baptist preacher, John who married Mary Pinson, and Robert who married a Bartram, the daughter of Stephen and Bertha Bartram."

J. T. Lambert, a nephew of Delila Wilson Bartram, recalled James P. Bartram's family:

"Delilah married James Bartram, their children were John, Charles, Robert, Rev. Lewis of Greenbrier, Mary Cyrus, Marinda Bartram and Sarah Lambert."

All oral histories of James P. neglected to recall his entire family. Many older family members had heard that he had about 10 children, but no one remembered that the missing children were daughters Nancy, Surrilda and a female who died young.

At the end of April 1814 James P. was drafted to
BARTRAM BRANCHES

On 3 May 1814 he reported to the Cabell County seat at Barboursville to be mustered into Captain Moses Congleton's Company B of Colonel George Huston's 4th Regiment of the Virginia Militia. Another Wayne County drafted at the same time was Charles Booth. James P. was mustered out on 29 August 1814 at Norfolk, Virginia. It was estimated that it would take him 26 days to make the 520 mile trip home and he was paid 6.94 dollars as a travel expense.

The next year, in 1815, the Cabell County tax records show that James P. Bartram paid tax on the 2 horses and 5 head of cattle on his farm. By the time of the 1820 Census of Cabell County, the household had 2 boys and a girl and James P. was engaged in the business of agriculture.

On 26 June 1821, a few months after his father's death, James P. served as a juror on a state case at Barboursville. Two years later, on 23 June 1823, he served on a grand jury with his father-in-law, James Parot Wilson, and returned 7 indictments. Later in 1823 James P. received 40 acres on Mill Creek from his brother-in-law, Alexander Wilson. He retained title to this land until 1855 when it was sold for nonpayment of taxes for the year 1845. In April 1825 James P. bought part of the estate of old Samuel Ferguson.

A year later he purchased 100 acres on the right fork of Twelvepole Creek, near Sidney, from Edmund McGinnis. James P. and Delila then moved to this property, which he held until he and Delila deeded it to her sister Sarah Wilson Ball, the widow of Robert Ball, in 1840. It was in James P.'s Sidney cabin that the old Pleasant Baptist Church was formed in 1827. Hardesty stated:

"The third society in Lincoln District was Pleasant Baptist Church, first organized at the house of James Bartram in 1827. The building is now (1884) situated on the left fork of Mill Creek 6 miles southeast of Fort Gay."

A. W. Dameron and Charles E. Walker wrote that:

"Pleasant Church was organized at the house where brother Jackson Wilson now (about 1903) lives on the west or right fork of Twelvepole just across the stream where the Twelvepole Valley Baptist Church now stands."
According to the records of the Pleasant Baptist Church minutes, it had been stricken off as an arm of the Big Sandy Church in August 1829. Whether the church was formed in 1827 or 1829 is not known for sure.

In 1830 James P. Bartram was not recorded in the census of Cabell County (now Wayne). Tax records show that he still resided on Twelvepole at that time, so it is probable that he was just overlooked.

After Robert Ball died, James P. purchased some of the estate of his brother-in-law at the June 1832 sale. Ball had apparently borrowed money from James P. and when the estate was settled in November 1834 the note was paid off.

Sometime before 1833 the original Pleasant Baptist Church had disbanded. A new Pleasant Baptist Church was reorganized on 12 August 1833 and the congregation contained many of the same members. On 11 January 1834 the church held its monthly meeting at James P. Bartram’s cabin, returning again on 10 January 1835. Edmond Napier, Ely Belcher and James P. were appointed to choose a place for a permanent meeting house for the church and on 7 March 1835 they reported that it should be located in a small bottom where the state road leaves Twelvepole on the west side. This area description appears to be present-day Echo.

On 28 and 29 September 1835 James P. Bartram went to Barboursville to serve on a grand jury. The first day they returned 1 indictment and then 19 more on the second day. The next Spring James P. sold 125 acres on Big Lynn Creek, near East Lynn, to William Buffington. There is no record of James P. ever buying or paying tax on this property.

In 1839 James P. purchased 40 acres on the left fork of Twelvepole Creek from William, Edmond and Thomas F. Napier. He held this land until 1851 when it was placed on the delinquent tax roll. It is doubtful he ever lived on this land. In 1840, after he had sold his Sidney farm, James P. and family moved in with his newlywed son Charles Bartram. It was at Charles’s home, a few households south of the future Wayne County Courthouse, that James P. was recorded in the 1840 Census.

Soon thereafter, James P. probably took his family to the left fork of Mill Creek, across the ridge from Greenbrier Creek, where he ran into some financial difficulties in 1844.

James P. was indebted to Alexander Hazelett for 50 dollars, payable on 25 December 1844. In order to secure the debt, James P. deeded all his personal property to Absalom Ballenger on 17 April 1844. James P. was to retain the right to use and profit from his property in the meantime. If he defaulted on all or part of the 50 dollars, Ballenger could have had the sheriff condemn his personal property: 1 small grey mare, 1 black cow, 1 white cow, 1 red and white pied cow, 1 calf, 3 two-year-old heifers, 6 head of sheep, all his household and kitchen furniture, farming tools and the rest of his personal property. The property would have been advertised and then sold on the courthouse steps at Trouts Hill (Wayne) to pay Ballenger back for covering the note to Hazelett. There are no records in Wayne County to ascertain whether or not James P. was able to repay the note.

He probably was able to pay back the loan. Arguing the case against James P.'s repayment, though, is the fact that his daughter, Marinda, married her cousin Joseph H. Bartram on 28 December 1844 in Greenup County Kentucky, three days after the debt was due. This would suggest that James P. had gone to Greenup to live for a time, possibly because he had no personal property and wanted to start a new life. It is doubtful that he had gone to Greenup to escape the debt, because Ballenger could have sued to have the sheriff of Wayne County condemn James P.'s real estate holdings in West Virginia and, since this was not done, it must not have been required.

On 7 February 1846 James P. was appointed by the Pleasant Baptist Church to watch over Joel Robertson who:

"got drunk and told lies."

By 7 August 1847 the Pleasant Baptist Church reported in its minutes that it had given up on James P. Bartram and other brethren because they had become members of the Bethesda Church.

On 30 March 1847 James P. had 45 acres surveyed on Greenbrier Creek, in Wayne County, near land owned by his son, Rev. Lewis Bartram. James P.'s son Charles and his son-in-law, Joseph H. Bartram, acted as chainmen in the survey. A title was delivered to James P. on 27 October 1847, but he apparently never kept the land for it was never taxed or sold. Sometime during the year 1847 James P. Bartram moved back to Greenup (now Boyd) County Kentucky where he was taxed for 1 horse. By 1848 he had returned to Wayne County.

In 1849 James P. briefly moved to Kentucky again. While he lived there, he received 50 acres on the right fork of Twelvepole Creek, in Wayne County, from his brother-in-law, Allen Wilson. James P. kept this land until 1857. Later in 1849, James P. was attending the New Salem, now Greenbrier, Baptist Church in Echo, Wayne County West Virginia. In the 21 April 1849 minutes it was recorded that:

"The church met in order and after preaching proceeded to business to lodge a complaint against brother James P. Bartram for intoxication and also appointed brother Stephen Workman to invite him to our next meeting in course."

At the next church meeting of 27 May 1849:

"The case of brother James P. Bartram was referred to a committee of five brethren and brother Lewis Bartram was appointed to invite brother J. P. Bartram to our next meeting."

On 23 June 1849, the next meeting, the committee was absent. The church voted to keep James P. as a member, anyway. Later that Fall, it appears that he was back in hot water. On 27 October 1849:

"Brother William Ball appointed to invite James P. Bartram to our next meeting in course to answer a grievance between him and brother John Geareles (Jarrell)."

James P. did not show up at the next meeting on 24 November, so his case was continued until 22 December 1849. At that church meeting James P. again failed to appear. Lewis Bartram (who was to become pastor of the church and was currently keeping the minutes) was asked to invite his father to the next church meeting.

On 26 June 1850 Lewis Bartram recorded that:

"The case of brother James P. Bartram was referred to a committee of three brethren to wit: Joel Ferguson, Abraham Ones (Owens) and Jonathon Dean, where of there (sic) decision was that he be expelled from our body."

As the courts decided civil and criminal laws, the churches decided moral laws. James P. Bartram was "churched" and found guilty, probably of intemperance or some other moral crime of excess. Soon thereafter, he and his family removed to Greenup County Kentucky, the portion that was to become Boyd County in 1860. In 1850 Greenup tax shows that he was enrolled in the local militia, had 1 horse and 2 children between the ages of 5 and 16 years.

On 21 August 1850 James P. had moved further west to neighboring Carter County where he was recorded on the 1850 Census. James P.'s entry shows that he was 56 years old, literate, a farmer with no real estate and born in Virginia. Delila was 54 years old, born in Virginia and illiterate. Their two youngest children, Robert and Surilda, were still at home. James P.'s two recently orphaned grandchildren, Ben and Sarah Vaughan, were also in the household, having just returned from Missouri.

James P. was still a resident of Carter County Kentucky on 20 November 1850 when he appeared before the Lawrence County Kentucky Justice of the Peace, James Prichard, to give a deposition for bounty land:

"On the 20th day of November AD 1850 personally appeared before me a Justice of the Peace within and for the county and state aforesaid James P. Bartrum (sic) aged 56 years a resident of Carter County in the State of Kentucky who being duly sworn according to law declares that he is the identical James P. Bartrum who was a private in the company commanded by Captain Moses Congleton in the 4 Regiment of militia of Virginia commanded by George Huston Colonel commandant in the war with Great Britain declared by the United States on 18th day of June 1812. That he was drafted at Barboursville Cabell County in State of Virginia on or about the last day of April 1814 for the term of three months and continued in actual service until the 29th day of August 1814 and was honorably discharged at Norfolk on the afore sd 29th day of Augt 1814 as will appear by the muster Rolls of said Company.

"He makes this declaration for the purpose of obtaining the bounty land to which he may be entitled under the act granting bounty land to certain officers and soldiers who have been engaged in the military service of the United States passed September 28th 1850—

James P. Bartram (signed)"

In the Spring of 1851 James P. and family had returned to Greenup County Kentucky where he was taxed for 1 horse. Tragedy struck on 29 April 1851 when Delila died. The only particulars we have on her death is the date. It cannot be stated where she died or was buried, but an educated guess would be that it occurred in what is now Boyd County Kentucky.

Spring 1852 found James P. Bartram still residing in Greenup County where he was taxed for 1 horse and had 3 children aged between 5 and 16 years. Shortly afterwards, James P. was in Lawrence County Kentucky where he was married to Rebecca, the widow of Philip Fannin, on 21 March 1852. Rebecca, who was the mother of small children, possessed large amounts of land in Lawrence County.

Shortly after their marriage, James P. and Rebecca Bartram went west to Daviess County, Missouri. Land records show that James P. purchased 80 acres in Daviess County, near the county seat of Gallatin. This land may have been a bounty for his service in the War of 1812. The Daviess County land was adjacent to 120 acres owned by Solomon Tomblin, who had married Rebecca's daughter Julina J. Fannin in Lawrence County Kentucky in 1849.

On 26 August 1853, in Daviess County, Missouri, James P. and Rebecca sold to her son, Harvey T. Fannin, 526 acres lying in Lawrence County Kentucky that had been originally purchased by Rebecca's first husband, Philip Fannin. The necessary documents were forwarded to Lawrence County where the deed was entered 20 September 1853.

Their stay in Missouri was apparently short. James P.'s daughter, Surrilda Bartram, was married in July 1854 in Greenup County Kentucky to her cousin Weddington Bartram. Whether James P. had returned by that time is not known. Surrilda Bartram was only 16 years old, and it is logical that she had gone to Missouri with her father. But, it is possible that she had remained behind with James P.'s trusted neighbor and nephew, Stephen Bartram, the father of Surrilda's groom.

James P. may be listed in the Greenup County tax list of 1855. Some researchers suspect that his middle name was Peery, assuming that his mother was Jane Peery. By 1855 there was already another James Bartram in Greenup County, the son of David, who owned a lot in the town of Catlettsburg, Kentucky. On the 1855 tax list is a Pannel Bartram who was taxed for 1 horse, 1 head of cattle and 2 children aged between 6 and 18 years (Rebecca's two children, William and Nancy, would have been 13 and 9 years old, respectively). In comparing the 1854-56 tax rolls of Greenup, all other Bartrams are accounted for. The argument for James P. being James Pannel Bartram is very strong.36

In 1856 Henry Clay (not the famous one) brought a suit against the widow and heirs of Philip Fannin in Lawrence County Kentucky court. The case involved an inequity in land in Lawrence County on Jacks Fork. James P. was a codefendant in the suit as he had legal interest in the land by virtue of his marriage to Rebecca. Judgement was in favor of Clay and the land was deeded to him on 18 October 1856.37

James P. and family were back in the Greenbrier Creek area of Wayne County in 1857. On 21 February 1857 he was received back into Greenbrier Baptist Church, where his son Lewis had recently been ordained a minister. A restoration prayer was said for James P. by Shadrach Estep. On 22 March 1857 Rebecca Fannin Bartram was received by the church and she was baptised in Trace Fork by Rev. William Ball on 26 April 1857. James and Rebecca were members in good standing with Greenbrier Baptist until 24 October 1857 when the church granted them a letter of dismissal so they would be able to join another Baptist church with ease.

Soon afterwards James P., Rebecca and her two youngest children returned to their land in Daviess County Missouri. The 1860 Census of Daviess County recorded them at Gallatin post office on the 16th of June. James P. claimed to be 60 years old; he was 66. He stated that he farmed, was born in Kentucky, held 1000 dollars worth of real estate and 150 dollars in personal property. Rebecca's son John Monterville Fannin was also recorded in the household with identical land and personal property values. Her two youngest children, William and Nancy, were recorded as having the surname Bartram. It is not known whether this was a mistake on the part of the census enumerator or if James P. had adopted them legally. William and Nancy were both under 10 years old at the time their mother remarried.

On 4 May 1867 Rebecca Bartram sold 60 acres to her son John Monterville Fannin in Daviess County. The land bore the same description as the land purchased by James P. about 10 years previous. The same day Solomon and Julina J. (Fannin) Tomlin sold an adjacent 50 acres to John Monterville Fannin. Rebecca claimed, in the deed, to have a legal right to sell the land. In 1867 a married woman could only sell property if her husband was dead or had deeded it to her. It is known that James P. was still alive and there are no records that show she received a deed from her husband. The only explanations are that James P. had either deserted or divorced her or moved on to look for a new place to live and gave her permission to sell.

There have been no records found to tell researchers where James P. Bartram was or what he was doing from 1860 to 1872. On 29 February 1872 in Boyd County Kentucky he married for the third time to Rebecca Lunsford Sexton, a widow 34 years his junior. James P. claimed to be 70 years old; he was 77. He also stated that he was a widower. His signature on the bond was recognizable when compared with the one on the bounty deposition of 22 years earlier, but it was unsteady and affected by his advanced age. This marriage, as was his previous one, was childless.

James P. and Rebecca remained in Boyd County Kentucky. In 1872 and 1873 they resided on Chadwicks Creek, near his son Robert and many Bartram nephews and grandnephews. In 1872 he was taxed for only 1 head of cattle. In 1873 he was still taxed for 1 head of cattle, but was also able to put in a crop of corn, raising 30 bushels. In 1874 and 1875 he moved to nearby Keys Creek where he raised 20 bushels of corn and had 1 head of cattle the first year. In 1875, probably too old and sick, he did not have and was not taxed on any cattle or crops.

On 27 September 1875 Rebecca Bartram was summoned to Boyd County Court where she was offered the opportunity to serve as executrix over her late husband's estate. She declined and the court assigned the task to the Sheriff. Apparently, James P. died after the 1875 tax roll was prepared, but before the 27th of September.

Rebecca's refusal to serve as executrix may be explained by the simple fact that there just was not anything in the estate. Her mother lived nearby and she probably opted to just go back home to live. Rebecca remarried to Adam Crum at Ashland in Boyd County on 24 February 1876.
James P. Bartram was probably buried on Chadwicks Creek, near the Baptist Church, where the majority of the Bartrams in the area lived and worshipped.

(6) BETSY/BETSEY BARTRAM

According to Stephen Bartram's will, he had a youngest daughter named Betsy:

"...a certain tract of land...to be granted to my loving (sic) wife and daughter--Betsy as she is a delars child...I also bequeath to my loving wife and daughter Betsey the following..."

Betsy or Betsey Bartram, her given name probably being Elizabeth, has not been remembered by any family members in oral histories. She is not mentioned in any other documents besides her father's will. Most researchers agree that she may have been a dullard or retarded child, because of Stephen's use of the term "delars child". All her inheritance was conditional upon her death, at which time the property and articles would go to her brother John P. Apparently Stephen felt that she needed to be looked after and that she would not outlive her older brother John. If she was retarded, then she would have been legally barred from marrying and would have lived with her family until her death at an early age.

If she was not retarded, then she may be the Nancy Bartram who married Benjamin Brown on 25 November 1827 in Cabell County. Attempts to locate a Benjamin Brown, with a wife named Nancy or Betsy, in any area records have been unsuccessful. Bartram researchers are not sure who the parents of Nancy Bartram Brown were. Until more definite proof on Betsy/Betsey Bartram's life is discovered, her personal history will be severely lacking in details.

(7) NANCY JANE BARTRAM ADKINS COLE

The eldest child of John P. and the first grandchild of Stephen, Nancy Jane Bartram, was born about 1804 in Tazewell County Virginia or around 1808 in what is now either Cabell or Wayne County West Virginia. Her exact birthdate is not known because documents containing her age vary from 1804 to 1812. As she was married in 1821, the later dates may be accounted for by vanity. If she was born before 1807 it would mean that her father had been married previous to Mary Davis; to a woman whose identity is not known.

Family members relate that her full name was Nancy Jane, although she was only referred to in documents as Jane, Janny, Jennie and Gincy. Elder D. K. Frasher recalled that her brother Stephen Bartram, born about 1809, was John P.'s eldest child. Frasher went on to reflect that:

"Jennie married Ed Adkins and unto them 3 sons and 3 daughters were born: Atison, Harvey, Calvin, Nancy, Elizabeth and Margaret. Jennie, by her second husband, James Cole, had children born unto her: John, Hawk, George and Elisha."

Cabell County records show that "Gincy" Bartram married Edward Adkins on 24 May 1821. Ed Adkins was born 15 March 1803 in Giles County Virginia, now probably southeastern West Virginia. He was the son of Sherod and Sarah "Sallie" (Lucas) Adkins. Jane and Ed were childhood neighbors at East Lynn, Wayne County. They had 6 children when Ed died on 24 March 1833 at East Lynn.

Nancy Jane remarried on 6 July 1836 in Cabell County to James Cole, whom Hardesty recalled:

"James Cole was prominent as one of the first citizens of what is now Wayne County West Virginia and was born within its limits."

James and Jane Cole were recorded in the 1840 Census in the East Lynn area with 3 members of the household engaged in agriculture. In November 1846 William Vinson sued Jane and James Cole, her brothers and her aunt in Lawrence County Kentucky court to force them to sell 100 acres on Tug Fork that had probably belonged to John P. Bartram. Vinson won the suit and received a deed on 4 May 1847; James Cole signed the document.

Sometime before 1850 James Cole died. In the 1850 Census of Wayne County Jane was living closer to the Fort Gay area, a widow with small children. By 1859 she was in Boyd County Kentucky in the Chadwicks Creek area, near some of her brothers. The 1860 Census of Boyd recorded Jane as being illiterate, born in Kentucky (she had dedclared Virginia in 1850), had no real estate and only 25 dollars in personal property. Obviously her brothers were taking care of their sister and her children.

No records have been found regarding Jane Cole, After 1861. She apparently lived with her children. Jane died on 19 March 1875 and was buried in Section H of the Catlettsburg (Kentucky) Cemetery.

(8) STEPHEN BARTRAM

Stephen Bartram was born about 1809 in what is now either Cabell or Wayne County, West Virginia. A son of John P. and Mary (Davis) Bartram, he was the first grandson and only namesake of his grandfather born during the elder's lifetime. Sometime before 1830 Stephen married Cynthia Adkins, born 15 October 1811, the daughter of Jesse and Nancy Adkins and the sister of Owen Adkins.

Stephen was not recorded in the 1830 Census, however he might have been in Wood County West Virginia, near Point Pleasant, seeking employment. If he was in Wood County, then he was likely living in someone else's household. He had returned to Wayne County by 7 December 1833 when he was mentioned in the Pleasant Baptist Church minutes. On 25 October 1836 he bought part of William Davis's estate. It is suspected that William Davis was the father or brother of Mary Davis, and thus Stephen's grandfather or uncle. In 1837 he received a grant to his first land, a survey of 7 acres on Laurel near East Lynn. The 1840 Census showed him in that vicinity and as a farmer.

The remainder of the 1840's was a time of land transactions, debts and court cases for Stephen. On 27 September 1841 he was summoned to appear with William Adkins and Samuel F. Stark at the first day of the next term of the Superior Court of Cabell County, for an unknown reason. In 1842 Stephen and his step-mother Mary deeded their personal property to Hezekiah Adkins as security on a debt. In 1843 he deeded 40 acres on Twelvepole to William T. Nicholas as a trust on a debt. The estate of Charles J. Love, in 1845, had many notes on people in Cabell and Wayne counties. One debtor was Stephen. On 9 February 1846 Hiram Bloss won a judgement against Stephen for a debt on a bond, which ultimately forced Stephen to deed 140 acres on the left fork of Twelvepole to him in 1854. In November 1846, in Lawrence County Kentucky, William Vinson won a suit against Stephen and the other heirs of John P. Bartram. In 1847 Thomas Bartram, his brother and neighbor, deeded personal property to Stephen, who acted as a security on a note.

The last years of the decade were no less active. In 1848 Stephen received a grant to 150 acres on Brush Creek, which he sold to Albert Laidley in 1849. Another grant was received in 1849 for 120 acres which he was never taxed on. On 13 March 1849 Thomas Wallace brought suit against Stephen Bartram, Owen Adkins and Sherod Adkins, winning the decision on 3 September 1850. Stephen once again deeded his personal property, or what was left of it, in 1849 to Winchester Adkins to secure a debt.

What was perhaps the final blow to Stephen's moral and financial well-being in Wayne County occurred in 1848 and 1849. In 1849 Stephen sued Stephen H. Wheeler. In 1848 he had entered himself as a special bond for his friend Wheeler, who had been arrested for debt. Wheeler, according to Stephen's own words:

"had absconded from this county leaving his family and taking up with another woman."

As Wheeler had left no real estate in Wayne County, Stephen had no recourse in the courts to collect the debt.

In 1850 the Wayne County Census recorded Stephen as still residing as a farmer in the East Lynn neighborhood. That year he deeded his remaining property to his father-in-law and other Adkins relatives. This was to either hide them from possible confiscation by the courts or to prepare to move away from the country.

In late 1851 or early 1852 Stephen Bartram left Wayne County for good and went to join some of his family who lived in the section of Greenup County Kentucky that would later become Boyd County. He settled first on Big Sandy and then, after 1854 on Chadwicks Creek, near where Interstate 64 crosses the Big Sandy River into West Virginia. Stephen lived there until his death, sometime between the years 1887 and 1900. Greenup County tax records from 1852-9 show that Stephen was able to rebuild his wealth in the years before the Civil War.
He had only 1 horse in 1852, but by 1854 had 6 and in 1859 he had 10. In 1852 he had no cattle, 15 head by 1854 and 26 head in 1859. Stephen began to raise hogs in 1854, starting with 30 head. The number of hogs fluctuated during the 1850's to 2 head in 1856, 21 head in 1857 and 4 head in 1859. In 1859 he was taxed for the first time on a crop, 2000 bushels of corn and 20 bushels of wheat.

During the '850's Stephen also took on other responsibilities. When his uncle, James P. Bartram, left for Missouri the first time, in 1853, Stephen may have kept his daughter Surrilda. Surrilda married Stephen's eldest son Weddington Bartram in 1854 and it is interesting that after they were divorced she was still welcome in his home and remarried there in 1870. Stephen also took care of Ben Vaughan, another first-cousin and the grandson of James P.

In the 1860 Census of newly created Boyd County, Stephen still resided on Chadwicks Creek and was recorded as having no real estate, yet amassing a personal property valued at 2000 dollars. Stephen's occupation in 1861 was recalled by Ely in 1887:

"In 1861 old Stephen Bartram was the mail contractor and carrier between Catlettsburg and Pikeville Kentucky. Many of the older people may call to mind
'Uncle Steve's' little white pacing horse, on which the mails were conveyed, making two trips a week, if it did not rain too hard. All the mail matter could then be put into a good large pair of saddlebags, such as travelers on horseback used to carry. In fact, the mail bag was full to repletion not more than once a week going up, and on coming down the postmaster had to shake carefully the bag to find anything in it, on many occasions. In 1861 but few post offices were found outside of the county (seats)."16

It may be interesting to note that, as the mail carrrier, Stephen was probably trustworthy beyond reproach because every census recorded consistently his being totally illiterate.

Although he was too old to serve, the Civil War had an affect on Stephen Bartram. The war doubtlessly affected everyone financially, but it is safe to say that much of his livestock, especially his horses, was probably stolen by soldiers on both sides. His tax records in Boyd County Kentucky from 1860-75 show that every category of taxation decreased. Some of this decrease is partially due to advancing age combined with the hard times of postwar Kentucky.

In 1860 he had 12 horses, decreasing to 3 in 1865 and only 1 in 1871. His 20 head of cattle in 1860 had shrunk to 3 in 1874. Eleven hogs in 1861 had been reduced to none in 1874. In 1861 he raised 1000 bushels of corn and 150 bushels of wheat. In 1864 he raised 500 bushels of wheat, 2000 bushels of barley and no corn. By 1873 he raised only 100 bushels of corn and nothing else. In 1869 and 1870 he had 30 sheep killed by roaming packs of wild dogs. Apparently this was a problem in the area for it was a category on the tax rolls.

The 1870 Census of Boyd County showed that Stephen still did not possess any real estate, and his personal property had decreased in value from 2000 dollars ten years earlier to only 400 dollars. By the 1880 Census of Boyd County Stephen, aged 71, had no taxable personal property either. He died after 1887, when Ely wrote:

"Stephen Bartram appeared like an old man when he was carrying the mails up Sandy in 1861, but still lives, hearty although venerable."

Cynthia A. was buried near her home on Chadwicks Creek, having died 1 January 1888.

William P., the third child of John P. and Mary (Davis) Bertram, was born about 1810 in Cabell County Virginia, now West Virginia. The debate rages over whether he was born in Cabell or what is now Wayne, but it was probably the former.

On 3 October 1833, in Lawrence County Kentucky, William P. married to Elizabeth Loar. About that time William and Elizabeth joined the Pleasant Baptist Church. It is safe to say that their marriage was less than blissful. On 8 February 1834 William was churched for "discarding" his wife and excommunicated. Apparently they made up, but not for long. On 9 August 1834 Elizabeth was charged by the congregation for "striking her husband in anger and making use of ill language." She was found guilty and also excommunicated.

Feelings against their former church were not too bad for, in 1837, when their first child was born they named him Pleasant Bartram. The marriage produced one more child, Leathia, in 1839. In 1840 they moved to Lawrence County Kentucky where William was recorded in the Federal Census. It shows that William was a farmer.

The next year Elizabeth sued William for divorce in Floyd County Kentucky court, on 19 November 1841. She dropped the lawsuit in May 1842. Soon thereafter, she must have finally ended the marriage. In the first membership roll of Greenbrier Baptist Church, in Wayne County, her name is recorded with a note in the margin that she was deceased around 1847-9. By 1847 William P. Bartram had already remarried to Rebecca Adkins Runion, so William and Elizabeth would have had to have been divorced.

In 1844 William P. returned to Lawrence County Kentucky where he was taxed for 1 horse and had 2 children aged 7 to 17 years in his home. Only 1 child was his, so the other one was apparently Rebecca's. In 1845 they had returned to Wayne County where Rebecca received 60 acres on Beech Fork (now near East Lynn and under the waters of the Beech Fork Lake) from her father, Sherod Adkins. William paid the tax on his wife's land until 1856. Rebecca paid the tax from 1857 until 1870 when she sold it to Randolph Adkins. In November 1846 William Vinson sued William P. and the other heirs of John P. Bartram in Lawrence County Kentucky.

Sometime before 1850 William P. received a grant of 60 acres on the left fork of Twelvepole for which he was never taxed. Rebecca sold this land in 1872 to Margaret Adkins. In 1850 the Wayne County Census recorded William and Rebecca Bartram and his two children by his previous marriage. Apparently Rebecca had no children by William. If she did have children by William P., then they must have died in infancy before 1850.

In 1850 William P. also received title to 125 acres on Beech Fork in Wayne County, which he and Rebecca both sold to John Adkins in 1859. For some unknown reason, William P. continued to pay taxes on the land until 1874. In 1855 he bought part of the estate of William Parson.

In 1857 William P. Bartram sold 62½ acres on Beech Fork to his son Pleasant and moved to Greenup, now Boyd, County Kentucky. Around this time he and Rebecca were divorced. Rebecca remained in Wayne County, paying taxes on her own land. William probably resided on the Big Sandy River with his older brother, Stephen Bartram, where he was living when the 1860 Census of Boyd County was enumerated.

From 1861 to 1863 William P. was not recorded in the Kentucky counties of Boyd or Lawrence or Wayne County West Virginia tax lists, so he might have gone to another location where he married Affie Malissa P. T. Hensley. In 1864 William P. returned to Boyd County where he remained from 1875 to 1880.

Tax records of William P. Bartram during his stay in Boyd County show he occasionally had 1 head of cattle, grew less than 100 bushels of corn per year, grew 20 pounds of tobacco in 1867 and often did not even have a horse. William P. was not taxed in Boyd County in 1870, but he was recorded on the census there that year. He might not have been taxed because the census shows he had no real estate or personal property of value. In 1871 he lived on Chadwicks Creek, Eastam Branch in 1872, Big Sandy in 1873, East Fork in 1874 and in 1875 resided again on Chadwicks Creek.

On 27 June 1874 William P., aged 63 years and residing in Boyd County, made a deposition in Catlettsburg in the divorce case of Martha Bartram against her husband, Weddington Bartram. Weddington, who deserted his wife, was William P.'s nephew and the son of Stephen. The major emphasis of William P.'s deposition was against his nephew.

By 1880 William P. Bartram had returned to Cabell County West Virginia. He died at his home on 1 April 1882. His widow, Malissa, remarried on 10 November 1889, in Boyd County Kentucky, to Peter Musser.

Solomon Bartram was born about 1816 in Cabell County Virginia, now West Virginia, the fourth child of John P. and Mary (Davis). Prior to 1833 he married Margaret. The early years of their marriage were spent in Wayne County West Virginia.

In 1840 they moved to Lawrence County Kentucky, where Solomon was taxed for owning 1 horse. The 1840 Census of Lawrence County reported that he was a farmer. The next year Solomon and Margaret Bartram returned to Wayne County.
BARTRAM BRANCHES

In November 1846 William Vinson sued Solomon and the other heirs of John P. Bartram in Lawrence County Kentucky court. T. G. L. Buring sued Solomon on 15 December 1846 in Wayne County. Mr. Buring (probably Beuhring) won a judgement that Solomon had forfeited on a bond and would be required to pay off the bond, with interest, and the court costs.

In 1848 Solomon Bartram received a title to 125 acres on Beech Fork in Wayne County, which he paid taxes on until 1870. Solomon and Margaret moved to Greenup, now Boyd, County Kentucky in 1850. Solomon was listed in the 1850 Census there as being illiterate, having real estate valued at 200 dollars and two children—Frederick and Allen—attending school. In 1851 they were taxed in Greenup for 1 horse and had 2 children aged 5 to 16 years old.

From 1852 to 1854 tax records in Wayne County state that Solomon was living in Kentucky. Kentucky tax records do not list his name. He may have gone to Ohio. In 1855 he had returned to Wayne County, where he received a grant to 105 acres on the left fork of Beech in 1857. Solomon paid taxes on this land until 1870.

In 1857 Solomon Bartram returned to what is now Boyd County Kentucky. Tax records show he remained in the area until 1862-3. During that time Solomon was usually taxed for 1 horse, 1 head of cattle and 150-200 bushels of corn. In 1859 there was a free white blind person in the household.

On 8 June 1863 Solomon and Margaret’s eldest son, Frederick, went to Catlettsburg, Kentucky, joining the Union Army for 12 months. At Catlettsburg, on 10 October 1863, he was mustered in as a private in Company B of the 45th Kentucky Mounted Infantry. The company soon went to Mount Sterling, Kentucky, where they bivouacked until August 1864. The military records show that Frederick Bartram, who had been promoted to corporal by December 1863, died on 1 June 1864 at his home in Ohio. When the records were reviewed by the military authorities later that year there was a note in the margin that no authorization could be found to explain why he was allowed to go home to Ohio.

Obviously, Solomon and Margaret had moved to Ohio, probably near Ironton in Lawrence County, by 1864. It is not known when Solomon Bartram died. His name no longer appeared on the Wayne County West Virginia tax rolls after 1870, with no record of the land being sold. He might have died in Ohio or West Virginia about that time.
The last child of John P. by Mary (Davis) Bartram, Thomas, was born about 1818 in either Cabell County or what is now Wayne County West Virginia. Around 1838 he married Charlotte, a native of Ohio.

The 1840 Census of Cabell County shows Thomas lived in the Adkins Mill (now East Lynn) area of what is now Wayne County. He and Charlotte were still childless and farming. In November 1846 William Vinson sued Thomas and the other heirs of John P. Bartram in Lawrence County Kentucky Court. In 1847 Thomas deeded his personal property to his older brother, Stephen Bartram, who secured a debt for him. The 1850 Census found Thomas and family in Wayne County, near East Lynn, where he had no real estate. Also in the household was a Mary Bartram, born about 1779, who may have been his step-mother.

In 1851 Thomas Bartram moved to Greenup, now Boyd, County Kentucky and was taxed for 1 horse. The next year he moved to Lawrence County Kentucky, where he was taxed in 1852 on 1 horse and, in 1853, on 1 horse and 2 hogs. Thomas was not taxed in Kentucky in 1854, so he might have returned to Wayne County.

In 1855 the family moved, once again, to the section of Greenup that became Boyd County Kentucky, where he was taxed until 1862. Those tax records show that Thomas usually had 1 horse, 2 or 3 head of cattle and a few hogs. In 1860-2 he grew a total of 850 bushels of corn, 40 bushels of wheat and 15 pounds of tobacco. On 4 May 1860 Thomas was the bondsman for the marriage between John H. Bartram and Mary Barbour.

On 9 August 1862 Thomas Bartram joined the Union Army, in Boyd County Kentucky, for 12 months service. He was mustered in on 9 September 1862 at Catlettsburg as a private in Company F of the 10th Kentucky Cavalry. Soon thereafter his company went to Lexington, Kentucky. On 24 October 1862 a sick Thomas Bartram was sent to a hospital in Covington, Kentucky. He remained in that hospital until December 1862, when his company returned to Catlettsburg. He was reported as sick in Boyd County in January 1863 and probably allowed to return to his family for nursing.

By July 1863 Thomas had rejoined his company, which was stationed at the mouth of Beaver's Creek. On 17 September 1863 Thomas, aged 44 years, was mustered out of the army at Maysville, Kentucky. He was not paid for the last few months of service, because he owed them $36.51 for failing to return the following equipment: 1 complete Beals revolver, 1 complete Colts revolver, 1 saddle blanket and a cartridge pouch.

Soon after his discharge Thomas and family moved to Lawrence County Ohio, where they remained until 1870. In late-1870 they returned to Boyd County Kentucky. Tax records show that he lived on the Big Sandy River in 1870, Chadwicks Creek in 1871-3 and Shopes Creek in 1874. Thomas had 1 horse and 1 hog in 1872-3 and 1 head of cattle from 1871-3. He grew 10 bushels of corn in 1871 and 40 bushels in 1873.

Sometime before 1880 the family moved to Ironton in Lawrence County Ohio. The 1880 Census records Thomas and Charlotte living on Hecla Street with their younger children and their recently widowed daughter, Paulina, and her small children.

By 1892 Thomas and Charlotte Bartram moved to Ceredo in Wayne County West Virginia, where he died on 22 May 1892 at age 74. His obituary stated that the funeral was at the Ceredo Methodist-Episcopal Church and burial was in nearby Brown's Hill Cemetery. Charlotte survived him and was living with her son Thomas Jefferson Bartram in the Greenup County Kentucky 1900 Census.

(12) LEONARD BARTRAM

Leonard Bartram was born in 1821 in either Cabell or Wayne County in what is now West Virginia. He was the sixth child of John P. Bartram and the first by his second marriage.

In 1843 Leonard was the first Bartram to move to Greenup County Kentucky, now Boyd. On 2 July 1844 he married Nancy Blankenship. Nancy died without producing children. About 1848 Leonard remarried to Sarah A. Chadwick. Leonard remained in what is now Boyd County Kentucky from 1843 until his death.

Tax records show that Leonard never owned land, but lived near Catlettsburg and probably rented his home. He usually had 1 or 2 horses and 1 or 2 head of cattle.
raised as much as 200 bushels of corn in 1872 and 1873 and oftentimes grew no corn at all. In 1867 he raised 10 pounds of tobacco and cut a half ton of hay in 1874. Leonard had 1 hog in each of the years 1869 and 1874, 3 hogs in 1870 and 4 hogs in 1871.

The 1860 Census of Boyd County Kentucky records Leonard as a farmer with 150 dollars in valued personal property. The Census Enumerator erroneously listed his place of birth as Germany. In 1869 Leonard and Sarah may have had marital difficulties. A Mrs. Sarah Bartram was listed on the Boyd County tax list with 3 children aged 6 to 20 years. Leonard was listed separately, with no children, that year.

A reconciliation must have occurred by the 1870 Census when Leonard and Sarah were entered together in Boyd County. Leonard Bartram was a farmer, born in Virginia (West Virginia) and had personal property valued at 300 dollars. Also living in the household was Sarah’s mother, Lucinda Chadwick. Mother and daughter were both unable to read or write and children Leonard P., Birl B. and Martha E. were attending school.

The 1880 Census of Boyd County Kentucky shows Leonard and Sarah Bartram had no occupation and were both born in Kentucky. Leonard died in 1909 and was buried in East Ashland Memorial Gardens. His widow, Sarah, followed him there in 1926.

(13) SAMUEL BARTRAM

The seventh child of John P., Samuel Bartram, was born about 1823 near Rockcastle (now Clifford) in Lawrence County Kentucky.

Samuel was taxed for 1 horse in 1845 in Greenup County Kentucky. Around that time he married Levina . By June 1846 they had moved to what is now Wayne County West Virginia, where their first child, Leonard Bartram, was born. In 1847 Samuel and Levina returned to Greenup, where he was taxed until 1852. The tax records reveal he had a horse in 1847 and 1850-2 and 3 head of cattle in 1850. Samuel was enumerated in the 1850 Greenup Census as a farmer with no real estate.

Sometime between 1850 and 1857 Levina died and Samuel remarried to Arena Cyrus. In 1853 he moved to Lawrence County Kentucky and was taxed for 1 horse and 2 hogs. In 1854 the family journeyed back to Greenup and paid a tax on their 1 horse and 1 head of cattle. The 1855 tax records of Greenup show a Pannel Bartram, which may be Samuel.

In 1857 Samuel had taken his family back to Lawrence County and lived at the Forks of the Sandy, or Louisa. He was taxed for 1 horse and 1 vehicle in 1857 and 1858. By 1859 Samuel and family traveled north to Ceredo in Wayne County, now West Virginia. The 1860 Census recorded them in Ceredo, where Samuel was a day laborer and had personal property valued at 164 dollars. The census entry also shows that Samuel was literate, which is known to be false. His children Leonard, Martha and Mary H. had attended school during the year.

In 1861 they returned to newly created Boyd County Kentucky, where Samuel was taxed for 1 horse and 3 head of cattle. He may have returned to West Virginia in 1862-3, when he was not recorded on Kentucky tax lists. From 1864-74 Samuel was back in Boyd County. Tax records tell researchers that he had 1 horse, a few head of cattle and modest crops. Samuel Bartram resided on Keys Creek in 1870, in Ashland in 1871, on Chadwicks Creek in 1872 and in Flatwoods in 1873-4. The 1870 Census of Boyd recorded Samuel as a farmer, born in Kentucky, with a personal property value of 50 dollars and that he was illiterate.

Around 1874-5 Samuel Bartram left Kentucky, with his family, and moved to near Ironton in Lawrence County Ohio. The 1880 Census of Lawrence County listed Samuel there with his wife and three youngest children. Apparently, Samuel died sometime after that date.

(14) JOSEPH H. AND MARINDA (BARTRAM) BARTRAM

Joseph H. Bartram was born January 1827/8 on Tug Fork, near Clifford, in Lawrence County Kentucky. He was the eighth child of John P. Bartram. In Greenup County Kentucky, on 28 December 1844, he married his first cousin, Marinda Bartram. "Rinda" was born May 1825/6 in Cabell County Virginia, now Wayne County West Virginia. She was the sixth child of James P. and Delila (Wilson) Bartram.

Joe and Rinda appear on the Greenup County tax rolls in 1847 and then from 1850-9. On 30 March 1847 Joseph was a chainman in a survey for his father-in-law, James P., to 45 acres on Greenbrier Creek in Wayne County. The 1850 Census of Greenup recorded Joseph as a farmer, with no real estate and born in Kentucky. Marinda was born in Virginia (West Virginia). Also in the household was Martha J. Bartram, age 6 years and born in Kentucky. Martha might not have been their child, but possibly a niece or a non-Bartram relative or boarder.
(14) JOSEPH H. AND MARINDA BARTRAM

The tax records of Greenup during the 1850's show Joe had a horse, often no cattle or hogs and raised 200 bushels of corn in 1859. During their stay in Greenup they probably lived on or near Chadwicks Creek, where they attended the Baptist Church.

In 1859 Joe and Rinda moved to the left fork of Mill Creek, over the ridge from the head of Greenbrier Creek, where they attended the Greenbrier Baptist Church. On the 28th and 30th of December 1859 Joseph Bartram offered prayers at a religious revival. He was mentioned frequently in the church minutes through 1876, often for his praying or singing in service and sometimes for preaching.

The 1860 Census recorded Joseph and Marinda in Wayne County. He had no real estate and personal property valued at 75 dollars. On 26 January 1861 the Greenbrier Baptist Church minutes report they:

"received brother Joseph Bartram by restoration (prayer), he being a member of the Chadwick Creek Church, church being gone so that she could not give him a letter of dismissal."

Marinda did not join the church officially until 26 April 1868 when she was received by a letter from another church. As her brother, Rev. Lewis Bartram, was the pastor of Greenbrier, it is obvious that she probably attended before that date.

In 1871, while still attending Greenbrier Baptist Church, Joe and Rinda moved back to Boyd County Kentucky. At first they settled on Chadwicks Creek and then on Laurel in 1872-3. In 1874 they again moved to Chadwicks Creek, where he was taxed for 1 horse, 16 bushels of corn and 60 pounds of tobacco. In 1875 they were back on Laurel Creek.

By June 1876 Joseph and Marinda Bartram had returned to Mill Creek in Wayne County West Virginia, where they were recorded in the 1880 Census. In late 1886 Joseph sued
BARTRAM BRANCHES

John Hoge and William Vinson in Wayne County Chancery Court. On 16 December 1884 William Vinson had sold John Hoge 18 acres on the ridge between Twelvepole Creek and Mill Creek. Hoge paid Vinson 60 dollars cash and a note, payable on 1 August 1885, for an additional 20 dollars. William Vinson sold the note to Joseph H. Bartram, but John Hoge failed to pay it off. The court summoned Hoge to appear in December 1886 and he did not show. The court ordered that the 18 acres be sold to pay off the debt owed to Joseph H. Bartram. Soon thereafter, Joseph H. and others were sued in the same court by Dennis Watts. The action in this case is not known.

Sometime before 1900 Joseph and Marinda went to live with their son, Joseph H., Jr., on Tug Fork, near Clifford in Lawrence County Kentucky. The 1900 Census recorded Joseph as having been born in January 1828 and Marinda in May 1826. Marinda had given birth to 6 children, of whom 4 were alive in 1900. Joseph died soon after 1900. Mrs. Queen Dickerson Franklin, a grandniece of Marinda, recalled:

"Joseph and Rinda lived on Tug River in Kentucky. I remember when she came and spent a few weeks with my mother, Emarine B. Dickerson, and Aunt Rhoda in 1904/5. She was about 85 and a widow then."

(15) VAN BARTRAM

Van Bartram, the last child of John P., was born about 1829 on Tug Fork, near Clifford, in Lawrence County Kentucky. About 1848 he married Mary Prince. With exception to the years 1855-7, Van and Mary spent their entire married life in what is now Boyd County Kentucky.

Greenup County Kentucky tax records from 1848-59 show that Van had a horse, 1 head of cattle in the years 1854 and 1858-9, a hog in 1854 and a free white blind person in the household in 1859. The 1850 Census of Greenup reveals Van was a farmer and had no real estate. The 1860 Census of newly created Boyd County Kentucky discloses that Van had been able to improve his life with the addition of 1000 dollars of real estate and personal property valued at 150 dollars.

Boyd County tax records from 1860-69 tell researchers that Van had 1 or 2 horses, 1 or 2 head of cattle, modest crops, a hog or two and, in 1869, 3 mules. In early 1870 Van was taxed for 67 acres on Laurel Creek, which he and Mary sold to John M. Burns on 26 October 1870. The 1870 Census of Boyd enumerated Van in the Cannonsburg District with no real estate and 455 dollars in personal property. His wife Mary and children John A., Joseph and Eleanor could not read or write. His daughter Mary G. could not read, yet none of his children had attended any school during that year.

In 1871 Van lived on Chadwicks Creek, moving back to Laurel Creek in 1872, where he owned and was taxed on 10 acres. While on Chadwicks Creek in 1871, Van witnessed a marriage between Levi Boyd and Telitha C. Smith. He was entered on the minister’s return as Vance Battern, leading to speculation that his nickname was "Van".

The 1880 Census found Van in Boyd County, where he again claimed to have been born in Virginia (West Virginia—as he had also claimed in 1860 and 1870). On 16 February 1881 Van and Mary sold property to their Laurel Creek neighbor, Harvey Spears. On 26 November 1887 Van and Mary sold more land to James Hunt. The Boyd County deed books record that land owned by Albert, Joseph, Mary and Van Bartram was sold to James Hunt on 28 January 1888.

Researchers know that Van Bartram was dead by 28 January 1888, when Mary sold another parcel of her late husband’s land to Jane Hunt. Mary Bartram moved to near Cerredo in Wayne County West Virginia by 1900, when she was living with her son-in-law, L. W. Workman, and enumerated in the Census. On 25 June 1901 Mary died in Wayne County. Her death was recorded in the register, having been reported by someone who listed themselves as "a friend".

The eldest son of David, James T. Bartram, was born 1 August 1813 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. On 2 October 1833 he married Jane Gay Frasher in Lawrence County Kentucky, where Jane was born in December 1809.

James and Jane lived in what is now Wayne County West Virginia in the first year of their marriage. Tax records for Lawrence County Kentucky were not preserved for the years 1835-6. It is not known just when they left West Virginia, but James appears on the Lawrence County tax list in 1837. In 1838 he was taxed there for owning a 200 dollar lot in the town of Louisa. He apparently sold this lot in 1840. The 1840 Census of Lawrence County shows that, in addition to his own wife and children, James had a 20-29 year old male and 2 males aged 15-19 years in the household. James again disappears from the tax record in 1844-5, probably back in Wayne County.

On 10 July 1845 James served as a chainman in his own survey of 20 acres on the ridge between Mill Creek and Tug Fork in Wayne County. The property was jointly owned with Martin Frasher. Both sold it in 1852 to Williamson Vinson. Although he was residing in Lawrence County at the time, James Bartram’s name appears on two more land transactions in Wayne County West Virginia in 1846. James T. and Martin Frasher had 40 acres on Mill Creek and Sperry Branch surveyed that year, selling it to Williamson Vinson in 1852. Later in 1846, B. S. Baly (probably Bailey) signed a deed conveying his personal property and 100 acres on Bartram’s Branch, in Wayne County, to James as collateral on a debt. James never paid tax on the land, so it can be assumed that Bailey made good on his debt.

Having probably lived in Wayne County in 1844-5, there is an entry on the 1845 tax roll of Lawrence County Kentucky entitled James Bartram and Company, taxed for 1 store valued at 1200 dollars. The store was located at the Falls of the Tug and appears on the tax rolls up to 1851. It was worth 1800 dollars in 1846, 5000 dollars in 1847, 10000 dollars in 1849 and 9000 in 1850.

In 1846 James and family returned to Lawrence County, where they were taxed for 2 years. The 1846 taxes were paid on 2 horses and 13 cattle and report that he had 1 child aged 7-17 years. The following year James was recorded as a qualified voter, owning 3 horses and having 3 children aged 7-17 years. Neither James and Company’s store nor James T., the individual, were recorded on the Lawrence County tax rolls in 1848. Whether he went back to West Virginia is not known. He returned in 1849, making the following affidavit in Lawrence County Court:

"This day personally appeared...James Bartram and made oath that he has purchased and imported into the Commonwealth from Wayne County (West) Virginia the following named slaves for his own use and not for merchandise—to wit: Henry a yellow man, Naomi his wife a black woman, and Martha and Henderson their children. Given...26th day of May 1849."
The 1849 tax list of Lawrence County recorded that James Bartram had 4 slaves (one of which was over 16 years of age), 1 child 7-17 years old, 3 horses, 10 head of cattle and owned 300 acres on Tug Fork. The 1850 Census of Lawrence County enumerated James as a merchant with $4700 dollars in real estate. On 11 October 1851 James bought a man's saddle and a cow from his father-in-law, William Frasher's estate in Wayne County West Virginia. On 20 January 1852 he reported to the Wayne County Court as William Frasher's administrator.

During the years 1850-60 James' fortunes soared. His wealth increased yearly. With exception to 1859, when he briefly moved to Catlettsburg, James remained in Lawrence County Kentucky during the decade. His land holdings were 150 acres at the Forks of the Sandy (Louisa) in 1850, 100 acres on Sandy in 1852, 420 acres on Tug Fork in 1853, 482 acres on Tug Fork in 1855, 576 acres on Tug Fork and Rockcastle Creek in 1858 and ending up with 800 acres on Tug and Rockcastle in 1860. In 1855 he purchased a town lot in Catlettsburg, Greenup (now Boyd) County Kentucky, which he held onto for 2 years. In 1850 James received a grant to 3000 acres on Hezekiah's Fork in Wayne County West Virginia, which he and Jane sold to members of the Queen family in 1854. James received an additional grant of 25 acres on Hezekiah's Fork in 1857, which he paid taxes on until 1868, and 200 acres on Mill Creek, which he and Jane sold to his brother, William Bartram, that same year.

During the 1850's the number of horses James owned doubled from 3 to 6 and the number of cattle increased from 26 to 40. In 1853 he raised 10 hogs and had 20 by 1855. In this period the family possessed a silver watch, a gold watch and silverware, on which they were taxed. Slave holdings increased from 4 to 6, as the slave family had additional children. In 1858 the family owned a nice vehicle, probably a coach, which they paid a tax on.

In 1859 James took his family to Catlettsburg, where his holdings were considerably smaller. He only had 1 head of cattle, having sold 1500 acres of his land on Big Sandy (in Lawrence County) to Joshua M. York on 16 March 1859. Back in Lawrence County, the 1860 Census showed James as a farmer, with in-law Cushing Frasher as a farm hand. George Ratcliff was a clerk in the store, which James had re-started that year. John W. Frasher and Thomas Marcum were common laborers. James told the census enumerator that his real estate was worth $10000 dollars and his personal property was valued at $8000 dollars, enormously rich for that area and time. Tax records back up his claim. The 1860 tax records show that the new store was worth 3000 dollars and 800 acres of land he owned on Tug and Rockcastle was worth 6000 dollars. James also had 3 horses, 20 head of cattle, 6 slaves worth 4000 dollars, gold and silver watches and plates, 30 hogs and grew 2000 bushels of corn.

In 1861, his last year in Lawrence County, taxes were paid on a store worth 500 dollars, 6 slaves valued at only 2500 dollars (the uncertainty of the time caused their reduction in value), 237 acres on Tug and 356 acres on Rockcastle worth 2000 dollars, 5 head of horses, 60 head of cattle, 30 head of hogs, gold and silver items and he grew 20 tons of hay and 2000 bushels of corn. In 1861 he also received 75 acres at the Falls of the Tug (on the West Virginia side) from the heirs of a Mr. Lawson as a result of a case James won in Wayne County Chancery Court. He and Jane paid taxes on the land until 1871, when they sold it to Owen Adkins.

In 1862 James' financial bubble began to burst. Although he supported the Union, the war was threatening to cause him undue losses as the value of his slaves plummeted. By February 1862 James had moved to Catlettsburg, where on 11 February he made a deed in Lawrence County to 226 acres at the Falls of the Tug (where Rockcastle Creek enters into it) to Harvey Childs. Harvey and associates were from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The deed was, in effect, a mortgage, whereby Childs et al. gave James 861 dollars and 21 cents. James was to pay the loan back in 12 months, which he did not. Thus began a period of financial decline for James Bartram. According to Ely:

"James Bartram was no ordinary man. He struggled along, as most boys were compelled to do in the rugged country where he lived; but, by industry and perseverance, he rose to be a large merchant and timber dealer. He had a good business education, picked up as he could spare a little time from pressing work. When the Civil War set in, James Bartram owned the great farm at the Falls of Tug, where he had a store, and was largely engaged in trade. He had, at the time, valuable property in Catlettsburg. He lost heavily by the war. He moved to Catlettsburg and for awhile was engaged in buying horses for the government. At the close of the war he went back into the timber business and merchandising. Although doing a large business, he was unsuccessful. He lost most of his property, and kept a hotel for a living until he died in 1883." According to the late Frances P. Bartram, a granddaughter of James T., he built and operated hotels in Catlettsburg. James built the Bartram Hotel for himself and also helped build the Mansard Hotel, later known as the Shively. Frances' sister, Mrs. Georgie Wilburn, recalled that James had an interest in the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company. He did not own a Bartram Hotel, it was their home. The hotel he owned was a separate structure and was run by a manager. James' favorite business was logging. Georgie went on to reflect:

"The reason so many people referred to the Bartram Hotel was because it was always full of visiting relatives, but no one was ever charged. On the first floor of the large frame structure was James' office on the left side of the foyer. On the right side of the foyer was a dormitory, where the raftsmen of the lumber company would spend the night. The men stayed under a watchful eye for had they been left on their own they would have become drunk and unreliable. No one of the family would stay at the hotel—Grandma (Jane) wouldn't have let them. James was an upright man, of whom it was never said he had a drink."

Tax records in Boyd County Kentucky reveal a continual decline in taxable wealth of the James Bartram family. One exception was the year 1867, when he was taxed for 80 vehicles. The vehicles were probably related to the logging and hauling of the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company. In 1863, as a result of the Emancipation Proclamation, James became 2400 dollars poorer as he freed his slave family. From 1865-71 James owned a lot in Catlettsburg, which he and Jane sold to Laban T. Moore on 23 August 1871. In 1867 Jane began to be taxed, apart from her husband, for a lot in Catlettsburg, which was probably their home. In 1864 James sold the last of his Wayne County West Virginia land holdings, 500 acres at the Falls of Tug, to Owen Adkins.

The 1870 Census of Boyd County shows how James, although still wealthy, had suffered from the preceding 10 years. He was recorded as a timber merchant, with real estate valued at 3200 dollars (mostly Jane's) and personal property worth 1000 dollars. The year 1875 brought more misery to sagging spirits in the Bartram household. Ely related:

"In the early part of the month of July 1875 the Big Sandy suddenly rose forty feet, and as the Ohio River was at that time much below the ordinary low-water stage, the waters from the raging Sandy poured into it like a mighty avalanche, reaching to the north shore of that river, lashing boats tied there from their fastenings, and sending them adrift as though they were shingles. The force of the water was so great that South Front Street, from Division to two hundred feet above Franklin, was in less than twelve hours carried into the stream, together with all of the buildings on the street, excepting two; and from one of those left, the front rooms, the principal part of the house, which was a large one (the Bartram Hotel), were carried with others into the river."

Frances P. Bartram remembered that:

"A large section of the building, nearly half of it, was hanging precariously over the edge of the river bank. James and a crew of carpenters went to work with axes and crosscut saws and cut the overhanging portion off and allowed it to fall into the river, saving the remainder, which was moved to the back of the lot, along the alley. Their home remained at that location, where it completely burned about 2 years ago (circa 1977)."

James T. Bartram died on 2 December 1883 and was buried at the Catlettsburg Cemetery. Jane continued to live in and pay taxes on the home. She lived there even after she and her sons sold it to her daughter, Mrs. L. G. Chatfield, on 17 April 1891.

Jane Gay Frasher Bartram died in 1907 in Catlettsburg and was buried beside her husband at the Catlettsburg Cemetery. She was:

"97 years old and had survived cholera, smallpox and floods. She could remember seeing Indians from Ohio in canoes on the Tug Fork as a child. At her death she had regained her second sight and could go to her window, which faced the Ohio River, and count the clothes on the lines of homes on the Ohio shoreline."

(17) WILLIAM BARTRAM

William Bartram, the second son of David, was born 1 September 1816 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. He was known as "Billy" to his friends, "Uncle Billy" in his old age, "Pap" to his children, "Grandfather Bartram" (obviously) to his grandchildren and "Captain Bartram" to Wayne Countians in the Civil War. The aspects of his life can be broken down into three groups: progenitor to a huge number of descendants, large and prosperous land owner/farmer and leader of an infamous band of "Home Guards" during the War Between the States. It will be easier to treat each aspect of his life separately.

William Bartram, the landholder/farmer, at one time owned most of what is now Fort Gay and surrounding Mill and Hurricane Creeks in Wayne County West Virginia. He gave his name to the Bartram Branch of Hurricane Creek, where in 1837 he received title to his first piece of land—40 acres—which he owned nearly the rest of his life. Until the Civil War, he spent most of his resources acquiring land and then, in his older years, gave most of it to his children. To dissect each land transaction (there are over 100), and the years he held each parcel, would prove tedious. Instead, a summary will suffice.

Up to 1850, William received the following property through surveys and grants: 280 acres on the ridge between Mill and Big Hurricane Creeks in 1847, 40 acres on Hurricane in 1848 and 40 acres on Mill Creek at its mouth in 1850. Parcels that he purchased during this time include: 114 acres on the Lick Branch of Big Hurricane from Frederick Moore in 1847 and 100 acres on the ridge between Big Hurricane and Mill from Robert Wellman in 1849. In 1850 William had acquired and retained possession to 614 acres, which, according to the 1850 Census of Wayne County, was worth about 1800 dollars.

From 1851-60, William Bartram received additional property by purchasing it, including: 100 acres on Big Hurricane (from an unknown source) in 1851, 42 acres on Big Hurricane (from an unknown source) in 1857, 200 acres on Mill Creek (that had been part of the estate of William Frasher) from James Bartram and Company in 1857, 14 acres on Mill Creek from Samuel Frasher in 1857, 102 acres at the mouth of Mill Creek in 1858 from John Wellman, 70 acres on Mill Creek from John Akers in 1858, 172 acres on Mill from David Webb in 1859, 100 acres on Hurricane from John W. Perry in 1859 and 51 acres on Tabor's Creek from Frederick Moore in 1860. By 1860 William had acquired and continued to hold 1288½ acres of land.

The period from 1861-74 saw the last of William's land purchases: 30 acres on Big Hurricane from John Akers in 1861, ½ acre (lots 9 and 10) in the town of Cassville (Fort Gay) from James Stone in 1864, 102 acres on Mill Creek at its mouth in 1866 from James Wellman, 8 acres on Mill at Tug River from James Wellman in 1868, a parcel on Tug from Amelia Wellman in 1868, a parcel on the ridge between Twelvepole and Tug River in 1869 from James Stone, 159 acres on Mill from Elisha Wellman in 1870, 51 acres from James Bartram in 1870, 39½ acres on Mill from Minerva Wellman in 1870, personal property from Delilah Gilkerson in 1871 and 39½ acres on Mill from Elisha Wellman in 1874. In 1874 the Wayne County tax assessor consolidated William's land holdings into larger and more easily taxed tracts. He had acquired and retained possession to 750½ acres at that time.

Starting in the mid-1860's, William began to sell or give his land to his children. By the time of his death, in 1877, he had retained title to 3 tracts of land, valued at 7000 dollars: 300 acres (the home tract) on Mill Creek near Fort Gay, the Artrip tract of 110 acres and 41 acres on Big Hurricane. A large portion of his land on Mill Creek was purchased from his children by Judge Milton Jameson Ferguson in 1879 and is now known as the M. J. Ferguson addition to Fort Gay. The remainder was subdivided among William's heirs and is also a large portion of the Fort Gay community today.

The military career of William Bartram, during the Civil War, was as eventful and approached with no less vigor than his land acquisition. On 2 July 1862, nearly 46 years of age and too old to be in the regular service, William joined a company of militia, or "Home Guards", under the command of Captain David Bartram, his eldest son. The company was mustered in on 2 August 1862 in Wayne County and attached to the Union-supported 167th West Virginia State Militia Troops. William served in this company during its existence, which was for an unknown length of time, but probably less than a year.

The Home Guards have been the subject of much abuse and are remembered poorly in the annals of history. The purpose of the local militia was to protect the civilians from enemy attacks and seizure of property. Substantial evidence points to the fact that these protectors often persecuted Rebel supporters and were guilty of stealing money and livestock themselves. They were even known to have killed those who tried to stop them from illegal activities. War does strange things to normal men. When engaged in a cause in which they fervently believe, they often commit acts that seem illogical or immoral in the analysis of hindsight, but were deemed appropriate and just at
WILLIAM BARTRAM

After his service in the 167th had ended, William gained further political power and was named in 1863 to the committee that divided up Wayne County into minor civilian townships, such as Butler District, etc. In 1864, William was advanced again on 22 January when he was authorized to raise his own company of 30 men from Wayne County to form a militia (in response to Col. Ferguson’s return to the area with his 16th Regiment of Confederate troops). He was commissioned a Captain of the company, named the Wayne County Independant Scouts, on 23 January. On 1 February 1864 the 30 men, including 4 sons, a son-in-law and various cousins, were mustered in at Fort Gay.

The movements of the company, taken from Captain Billy Bartram’s own words, in February were:

"Made scout from Cassville (Fort Gay), West Virginia to Wayne Court House, 1 February 1864. Captured 1 horse from Colonel (Milton Jameson) Ferguson and returned it to the owner by order of Colonel (George W.) Gallup, commanding Eastern District of Kentucky. Also 2 Enfield rifles. On (February) 2nd proceeded with a detachment of the 14th and 39th Kentucky (Union Cavalry. The 14th was commanded by Billy’s nephew and namesake—Capt. William H. Bartram); on the night of the 14th, just to the left fork of Twelvepole engaged the enemy near the head of Lick Creek, a branch of the left hand of Twelvepole. Captured Col. Ferguson, 2nd Lts. William Asbury and Thomas Morris and 44 privates; ten Enfield rifles and five Mississippi and Richmond rifles and one thousand rounds of cartridges. The above named arms are in my possession and I shall await your orders. (Signed) William Bartram Captain."

The February 21, 1864 issue of the Cincinnati Commercial (Newspaper) carried a more detailed account of this skirmish:

"Louisa, Ky., Feb. 17, 1864, Col. Ferguson of the 16th Virginia Calvary (C. S. A.) has for the last month been in the mountains of Wayne and Logan Counties, Virginia, and from thence made raids on different parts of these counties. Some 10 days ago he captured Gen. Scammon and his staff (actually on 11 Feb.), and burned a steam boat on the Kanawha River, and harassed the troops in West Va., taking every good horse they could find."
Several attempts have been made to dislodge them. A detachment was sent out from Louisa last week, a portion of the 13th Virginia (Union) cooperating, and scouted over the whole county of Wayne, but the rock houses (caves) and the almost impenetrable laurel thickets afforded the rebels more secure protection than casemated fortifications would have been.

On the 14th instant at 8 o'clock p. m. a picked force of 400 men, under command of Col. G. W. Gallup, consisting of portions of the 15th and 39th Kentucky regiment (and Capt. Billy Bartram's Home Guards) left Louisa and made a forced march of 25 miles reaching the vicinity of Col. Ferguson's command.

Next morning a rebel soldier on picket was captured and used as a guide.

The first intimation the enemy had of the presence of our men was a summons to surrender by Captains J. C. Collins and William H. Bartram, who were with the Company B of the 14th Kentucky in the advance. (This was Billy's nephew, a son of James and Jane Gay Frasher Bartram.)

The enemy broke in confusion and received the fire of our troops. The fight did not last over three minutes, in which time the enemy had 16 killed and a large number wounded, besides 60 prisoners, 80 stands of arms, and a large number of horses were captured with all their supplies of forage, subsistence and ammunition.

Col. (Milton) Jameson Ferguson, 16th Virginia Cavalry, his surgeon, and two Lieutenants were captured and are now prisoners at Louisa. Sixteen hundred prisoners were released (may mean only 16).

We regret to add that Capt. Pinkard, assistant quartermaster of Gen. Scammon's staff and Lt. Griswold and a sergeant of the Fifth Virginia regiment were killed. Col. Gallup speaks in the highest terms of commendation of Captains Collins and (W. H.) Bartram.

Most of Col. Ferguson's command will be picked up it is thought by our mounted men. The prisoners leave here today for Cincinnati.

Col. Gallup in his official report of this engagement said, 'In the fight we captured Col. Ferguson, his surgeon, two lieutenants and 38 non-commissioned officers and men, and we killed 10 rebel soldiers, wounding several and releasing 16 federal prisoners held by the enemy."\(^\text{11}\)

Billy Bartram, in his memorandum on the return roll for the month of March, 1864 reported:

"March 10th started out of scout to Twelvepole, distance of about 8 miles. Fell in and skirmished with a squad of rebels same night, wounding one but failed to capture him. Pursued all night. Captured in the morning three men of the 16th Reg. Va. Cavalry and one man of the 8th Va. Cavalry. Delivered the same to Provost Marshall at Louisa, Ky."\(^\text{10}\)

In his report of April 1864, William wrote:

"Scouted out of left hand fork of Twelvepole capturing one horse and one prisoner. The prisoner I turned over to the U. S. Forces at Louisa, Ky. and the horses I have on hand and shall await your order for disposal. I have since been co-operating with the U. S. Forces at Louisa, Ky., by order of Col. Gallup commanding Eastern District of Kentucky."

These reports show a diligent and obedient commanding officer engaged in legitimate military scouting campaigns. However, many activities were not being reported to superiors. It is known that, about this time, Captain Billy Bartram knew of and probably condoned the ambush killing of his first cousin's husband, Enoch Cyrus, for making anti-Union remarks (as a civilian). The bushwacker was Billy's own son-in-law, William Pauley. The company was also known to have killed, without cause, a civilian prisoner enroute to Louisa after another prisoner, Thomas Vaughan, escaped from them in the weeds of Greenbrier Creek.

Many suspected that Captain Bartram began to take his duties to an extreme. He no doubt believed in what he was doing and probably just wanted to be a respected military leader. But, he had perhaps gone too far. On 1 May 1864 William was ordered to disband his company effective 9 May, per General Order #6, and was discharged. According to a great-granddaughter, Liz Bartram Lynch, troops had to be brought in to stop him from continuing his "scouting out the enemy".

Apparently his targets had not only been the Rebel-supporting families of the Twelvepole Valley, for in his own neighborhood of Fort Gay, heavily pro-Union, he was somewhat ostracized and suffered great consternation after the war. He was a successful farmer and land speculator, but a man shamed to those whom he had once had power over. It is interesting to note that, in the 1890 Census of Union Veterans and Widows, his widow Susanna reported that (under disabilities encountered while in service) he had been blinded. Family members do not recall such an affliction. It makes one wonder if she meant it in the physical sense in the first place.

WILLIAM BARTRAM

William Bartram in his third role, the family man, was no less than an overachiever. On 23 August 1836 he married Lurana "Raney" Wellman in Lawrence County Kentucky. Lurana was born 26 March 1821 in Lawrence County. She gave birth to 11 children before being found dead in bed from a heart attack on 5 March 1871. Before remarrying to Susanna Baker Walker, who bore him two additional children, William fathered a child, William Sherman Copley (later taking the Bartram name), by Mrs. Aly Copley—the former Miss Jane Pack. Although he had 14 children, he was able to provide them with the best care and comforts available. Each of the legimates received generous amounts of land from their father. Even little Sherman was provided for in the will and William saw to it that he was raised by his son, Elisha W. Bartram.

William was recalled by his grandchildren. Fornie Jerusha Bartram Wriston, who was small when he died, could remember seeing him only twice, but recalled that he was fair complexioned, with light hair, blue eyes and light healthy skin.

William Bartram died on 7 August 1877 at his cabin, which stood where the church in the Cedar Heights section of Fort Gay is now located. He was buried, on his own land in the Bartram Cemetery, beside his first wife and at the head of his father's grave. The cemetery is on what is now High Street in Fort Gay. His will was proven a week later and shows that he had owned and operated a thriving farm. In 1879 Judge Milton Jameson Ferguson, the Colonel and former adversary, purchased an interest in the estate from some of the children and the land was subdivided the following year.

However one decides to remember William Bartram, the fact remains that he was human. Perhaps his greatest deed was not the soil or a military campaign, but the role as a father. He raised a respectable family and his descendants are numbered as the largest in the West Virginia Bartram family, many still residing in the Fort Gay area today.

Perlina Alafair Bartram, the third child of David and Rebecca (Blue), was born in 1818 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. In 1833 she married Samuel Frasher in Lawrence County Kentucky.

Samuel and Perlina resided at what is now Clifford in Lawrence County, near her father. Samuel Frasher was a large landholder and slave owner in Lawrence County. Elder D. K. Frasher, in his history, recalled his parents:

"Samuel Frasher, the father of the writer, was born the 2nd day of December 1812, married to Perlina Bartram in 1833, and died in 1892. Perlina Alafair, his wife, was born in 1818, died 20 (Lawrence County

Floyd Shannon built a house for my father, Samuel Frasher, at the Falls of the Tug about 1850-1. (Floyd was the son of John "Doc" Shannon; and a grandson of Nancy Peery Shannon—the sister of Stephen Bartram’s second wife.)

Perlina died on 22 May 1853 in her home. The register records her occupation as "spinster" (probably same as a weaver). It also reported that she was the daughter of David and Rebecca Bartram and had died from consumption (probably tuberculosis). Samuel remarried to Christina Napier and had additional children.

Two of the children of Perlina and Samuel, William and James, were in their Uncle Billy Bartram’s Home Guards in 1864.

(19) JOHN P. BARTRAM

The fourth and last surviving child of David and Rebecca (Blue), John P. Bartram, was born in 1820 in what is now Wayne County, West Virginia. Elder Frasher recalled him:

"John was born 1820 and went to Missouri and married there. There was born to him children: William, Mary, Plina, Louana and Fred. He also died in Missouri."

John P. went to Missouri around 1840. On 18 July 1843 he married Sarah Ann O’Brien in Ralls County. Sarah Ann was the daughter of Augustus and Elizabeth (Coons) O’Brien.

The 1850 Census of Ralls County, Missouri recorded John P. as a plasterer with 200 dollars in real estate. The 1860 Census found him still in Ralls County. There was another unrelated Bartram family in the same county that year. Around 1864 John P. Bartram was a Justice of the Peace for Salt River Township in Ralls County and performed marriages.
John P.'s nephew, Jeremiah Lincoln Bartram, came to Missouri while hauling goods by raft or wagon and stayed with him about 1883. He must have died sometime after that date.

John Bartram, the eldest child of James P. and Delila (Wilson), was born about 1814 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. John was probably a small infant, or not yet born, when his father left to fight in the War of 1812.

On 10 April 1832 he married Mary, the daughter of John Pinson, in Cabell County (West) Virginia. They first set up housekeeping near the Pinson family at the forks of Twelvepole Creek, now called East Lynn in Wayne County. John was one of the first people to cast a ballot when the area was made a precinct of Cabell County in 1836. The 1840 Census of Cabell County found John engaged in farming in the East Lynn area.

In 1842 John and Mary Bartram signed a trust deed for 40 acres between Twelvepole and Mill Creek to John W. Hite. In 1846 James Ferguson sold John 90 acres on Big Branch of the right fork of Twelvepole. John paid taxes on this land until 1858, when he sold it to Alexander Porter. John Bartram received title to 45 acres on the west side of the right fork of Twelvepole through an 1849 survey. He paid taxes on this property until 1858, when he sold it to Jacob May.

The 1850 Census of Wayne County recorded John Bartram and family in the area near what is now the town of Wayne, where he was engaged in farming and had real estate valued at 375 dollars. In 1853 John and Mary sold 400 acres on Mill Creek to Anthony Copley and 140 acres on Mill Creek to Thomas Copley in 1854. The land had probably been owned by the Pinson family. Mary's father, John Pinson, died in 1857 and on the 28th of April John Bartram conducted the estate sale.

In late December 1858 Enoch Cyrus brought a suit in Wayne County Chancery Court against his brother-in-law, John Bartram. The suit alleged that John had become indebted to the merchants Ferguson, Bromley and Company in the amount of 37 dollars and 67 cents. John had Enoch Cyrus cosign the promissory note, as a security, on 22 August 1857. Cyrus claimed that John had bought and was living on 95 acres of land on Pinson Branch from Granville P. May, but let May keep the title. May then gave the deed to John's son, James Bartram, for no financial consideration on 14 August 1858 (or 4 days before the note to Ferguson, Bromley and Company was due). Then James gave the title to his brother-in-law, Sylvester Copley, for no financial consideration. Soon thereafter, Cyrus claimed that John and James Bartram left for Kentucky, leaving no other property in Wayne County. The court upheld Cyrus' contention that the land in the possession of Copley was given to him to defraud the legitimate claims of John Bartram's creditors. The land was sold to Washington Adkins on 11 October 1859 and the proceeds went to Cyrus to repay him for his expenses in paying off the note.

Tax records show that John Bartram and his sons James and John H. went to Greenup (now Boyd) County Kentucky by 1859. John was taxed that year for 1 horse and 2 head of cattle. The household also contained 5 children aged 6 to 18 years and 1 free white blind person. The 1860 Census of newly created Boyd County recorded John and family near Catlettsburg, where he had no real estate and only 25 dollars in personal property. Later that year, tax records show that John purchased 130 acres on Laurel Creek, selling it before the 1861 tax roll was compiled.

On 14 September 1861 James Bartram, the eldest son of John, enrolled in Company F of the 5th West Virginia Infantry (Union) at Ceredo, West Virginia. He was mustered in at Camp Anthony, West Virginia. James was furloughed home to Catlettsburg, where he died from measles on 15 December 1861.

Sometime between 1860 and 1863, Mary (Pinson) Bartram died. On 10 September 1863, at Catlettsburg, John remarried to Lucinda (__) Raimey, a widow. The bond was signed by John Bartram and George Walters (of unknown relationship to Lucinda). The 1870 Census of Boyd County reveals that John and Lucinda resided in Catlettsburg, where he was a farm laborer and had no real estate and 100 dollars in personal property.

Tax records of Boyd County show that John Bartram was residing in Catlettsburg until 1873. He had modest amounts of personal property, farm animals and crops until 1865. No record of John Bartram's existence has been found after 1873, so it is likely that he died about that time.
The second child of James P., Nancy Bartram, was born about 1816 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. On 15 October 1835, in Cabell County, she married Thomas Vaughan. Thomas was born 19 October 1813.

Thomas and Nancy continued to live in Cabell and Wayne Counties until after the 1843 tax roll of Wayne was compiled. His father, John Vaughan, died on 31 October 1843, just having emigrated to Platte County Missouri. There is some speculation that Thomas and Nancy headed to Missouri to be near his family, or had heard that his father was dying and wanted to be with him.

After 1843, the chronology of events in Thomas and Nancy Vaughan's life is uncertain. They were both missing from the 1850 Census, likely having died. That census reveals that their four children had been split up amongst relatives. Eldest son Lewis was a hired hand in the household of Alanson Bowers. Lydia was living with her namesake and grandmother, Lydia (Crabtree) Vaughan. Benjamin and Sarah had returned to Kentucky, where they were living with their grandparents, James P. and Delila (Wilson) Bartram, in Carter County.

Lewis E. Vaughan, in his book Vaughan Pioneers, speculated that Thomas may have accompanied his brother, Daniel Vaughan, to California. Two of Thomas' children, Lewis and Lydia, both ultimately made their way to California, living in the vicinity of their Uncle Daniel.

Reverend Lewis Bartram was born 10 March 1818 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia, the third child of James P. and Delila (Wilson). Lewis' life was multifaceted; he was a large landowner and respected citizen, a Missionary Baptist Minister and a patriarch of a large family. Each aspect of his life was interwoven with the others, but it will be easier to treat them separately.

As a landowner and citizen, Lewis was very active. He was an adversary of the court just once, though. He failed to appear as summoned at Cabell County Court on 12 November 1842, shortly before Wayne County was formed.
Lewis was very proud of land acquisitions and his grandchildren recalled the small amounts of money it had cost him to secure title to a vast acreage of large timber. Very little of Lewis' land was purchased from others, but was gained through grants and surveys of unclaimed land in the general vicinity of Greenbrier Creek, near Echo, in Wayne County West Virginia.

In 1840 Lewis acquired 50 acres at the head of Mill Creek by purchasing it from Jacob Low, selling it to Jackson Wilson in 1842. In 1845 Lewis and others deeded the Walker family lands of 50 acres on Davidsons Branch of Twelvepole Creek to Urban Walker. In 1846 Milton Ferguson sold 52 acres on Greenbrier to Lewis, which was to become his home.

From 1846 to 1852 Lewis Bartram acquired 705 acres of land on Greenbrier Creek, Trace Fork of Twelvepole Creek, Joel's Branch of Twelvepole Creek and Big Hurricane Creek. Of the 705 acres, 690 acres were gained through surveys and grants and 15 acres were deeded by James and Virginia (Wilson) Ball. Seventy acres on Trace Fork was co-surveyed by brother-in-law, Thomas "Tommy" Vaughan (who married Minerva Walker). Lewis held on to his property until his later years. On 16 April 1872 he sold 110 acres on Trace Fork to son-in-law, Charles Wesley Crabtree and several tracts on Trace Fork to his son, Enoch Bartram. In 1874 he sold 20 acres on Greenbrier and Big Hurricane Creeks to John J. Ferguson and 15 acres on Greenbrier Creek to Enoch Bartram. In 1880 Lewis sold 5 acres on Greenbrier and Big Hurricane Creeks to Rev. Leander Osborn. By 1883 Lewis had reduced his acreage to 154 acres that year to his children.

As a citizen, Lewis Bartram felt obliged to help in the cause of the Great Rebellion. Being 44 years of age, he was too old to be in the regular services, so he joined the local militias. Lewis' service, when he was already an ordained minister, is confusing to interpret. Descendants claim that Lewis was a pro-Confederate sympathizer and was victimized by the Union-supported Home Guard militias. Public records show Lewis was himself a member of the same Home Guards that his descendants so despised.

On 2 July 1862 Lewis joined the company of the 167th Militia under the command of Captain David Bartram. He was mustered in at Wayne County on 2 August 1862. In the Fall of 1863 his son, Enoch Bartram, joined the Confederate troops. When his son's rebel regiment returned to the Wayne County area, Lewis was again called into service with the Independent Scouts under his first cousin, Captain William "Billy" Bartram. Lewis was mustered in on 1 February 1864 at Fort Gay and served until 9 May 1864.

During that time Lewis Bartram was involved in a military expedition that ended with the capture of Colonel M. J. Ferguson and members of his son's (Enoch) own unit (see personal history of Number 17, William Bartram, for more details). All of this would suggest that Lewis was pro-Union. His military service record shows no signs that he ever defied his superiors. However, John Lewis Bartram, a grandson, has in his possession a 100 dollar Confederate War Bond, dated 1 February 1865, issued to L. Bartram.

Lewis Bartram's neighbors were all rebel-Democrats. The dividing line between Union-Republicans and rebel-Democrats in Wayne County was the ridge between the waters of the Big Sandy and Twelvepole Creek. Oral histories have been passed down to researchers that provide an entirely opposite view of Lewis Bartram's Civil War experience than his service record:

"When the Home Guards were searching for Enoch Bartram (in February or March 1864), they arrested Lewis Bartram, Tommy Vaughan (who married Minerva Walker) and another man. One of the guards put his gun to Grandpa (Lewis') chest and swore he would shoot unless Grandpa told where they could find Enoch (who was hiding a few hundred yards away). Grandpa, unafraid, said, 'Boys, do you have a captain?' and they said that they did and he was Uncle Billy Bartram. Grandpa said, 'Tell him to come here. If I talk to a man I want to talk to a man. I don't want to talk to a fool!' So the captain, Billy Bartram, made the young brave behave.

"The guards released Lewis and the other 2 men were then taken away on horseback at dusk. Both men were on the same horse with Thomas in the back. Tommy Vaughan slipped off the horse and quickly crawled away through the tall grass on Greenbrier Creek. The Guards shot and killed the other man. He was buried across the road from where Enoch Bartram later lived, about 25 or 30 feet up the hill from the bridge. This was on a farm once owned by Charles and Sarah Ellen (Copley) Thompson, then by Bill Holland and later by a Mr. Elkins. Someone constructed a stone wall out of rough stone around the grave and in later years Bill Holland filled it in with soil and used it as a lettuce bed."
The area is now known as 'Grave Hollow'.

When the source of the above story, Mrs. Queen Franklin, was told that Lewis Bartram had been a member of that very bunch of Home Guards, she was honestly shocked and discounted it. Mrs. Franklin recalled that she had also been told that the Home Guards came into Lewis' home, supposedly looking for rebels, but looked behind the clock faces obviously in search of money. She made the claim that the Guards would not have done such a thing to one of their own. It is known that when Enoch came home for his clandestine visit, his father fully welcomed him. Another visitor's experience, that of Hiram "Dick" Crabtree, was recalled in 1926:

"In the year 1864 he enlisted in the 16th Virginia Cavalry (CSA), Co. E, commanded by Col. (M. J.) Ferguson. While breakfasting at Lewis Bartram's on Greenbrier Creek (Feb/Mar 1864) he was taken prisoner by the Union Home Guards. He was taken to Louisa and from there to Louisville, Kentucky and thence to Camp Chase Ohio, where he was kept a prisoner for 11 months."

Lewis Bartram's true roll during the Civil War may never be known. To some he was pro-Union and to others he was a pro-rebel resistance fighter. To explain this discrepancy is impossible for researchers today. He could have been afraid to express his real sentiments or may have figured that the easiest way to keep an eye on the Home Guards was to be one. It is quite possible that he was given no choice in joining the militia; his political beliefs may not have mattered when it came to civic duties.

Lewis Bartram's main motivation in life was his Bible. Grandchildren recall:

"All of this family was well educated in their Bible and when they were together most of their conversation was Bible and church."

"Conversations about our ancestors weren't much. They were very religious people and most of their talk was about the Bible and their church work."

Lewis Bartram was baptised in Tom's Creek by the Bethesda Baptist Church in September 1844. He took a very active roll in the Baptist church from the start. Each of the churches that he attended were members of the Teays Valley Association (until 1865), the Guyandotte Association (until 1893) and then the Twelvepole Association. Lewis received many duties from his churches and the missionary associations. On 27 November 1847 Lewis was appointed a deacon of New Salem (now Greenbrier) Baptist Church, a position he held until 9 August 1856. He was elected clerk of the church on 26 May 1848, until 17 April 1854. Bethesda Baptist Church issued him a license to preach the gospel on 18 March 1854 and he was ordained into the ministry by Greenbrier Baptist, along with William T. Ball, on 14 June 1856:

"17 May 1856—considered the gift and usefulness of brothers Lewis Bartram and William Ball and do heartily approve of their setting apart for ordination of the ministry.

14 June 1856 (The Saturday before the third Lord's Day of the month)—the ordination of brothers Lewis Bartram and William Ball be attended to by a presbytery namely Edmund Osborn, John Jarrel and Shadrach Estep. Preaching by William Ball, then a sermon delivered by Lewis Bartram. Then the ordination was attended to."

On 22 May 1859 Reverend Lewis Bartram was elected pastor of Greenbrier, a position he held until 25 July 1868. Lewis also served as pastor of several other Baptist Churches, but he is most often identified with Greenbrier. On 22 August 1868 Lewis was elected a trustee of Greenbrier with Thomas Osborn and Thomas Vaughan. When Rev. William T. Ball was absent on 23 January 1869, Lewis was made pastor for that day. From 26 April 1873 to 25 July 1874 Lewis Bartram served Greenbrier Baptist as her treasurer, then elected pastor again on 26 September 1874. He was reelected on 23 October 1875 for another 1 year term. The church minutes end in 1876 and do not start again until after Lewis had died. It is not known when he served his last term as pastor of Greenbrier Baptist, but, by the time Hardesty was written in 1884, Rev. William T. Ball was again serving as pastor.

Aside from elected duties at Greenbrier Baptist, Lewis was also given other responsibilities. Nearly every summer the minutes record that he was chosen as one of the church's delegates to the Teays or Guyandotte Association Conventions. Lewis was also in charge of many of the baptisms of new members. The minutes show that Lewis attended every monthly meeting of the church, except for the 22 December 1860 service.
Rev. Lewis Bartram also prayed or preached a sermon at nearly every church meeting. On 26 December 1859 he even delivered a singing prayer. In his mid-fifties, the minutes show that Lewis had not lost his enthusiasm. The 29 November 1873 minutes of Greenbrier Baptist Church record that Rev. Lewis prayed, preached, delivered sermons, exhorted and even inspired.

Lewis was also involved in the day-to-day operations of the church. On 21 December 1867 the Greenbrier Church agreed to pay him 3 dollars and 75 cents to dig, haul and put up 30 bushels of coal in a dry place at her meeting house. On 25 October 1873 Lewis, as treasurer, was given approval to buy the church a new Burnside stove. Apparently, Lewis thought that it would be frivolous, in the face of mounting debts, to make such a purchase. On 24 January 1874 the church ordered him to use the 11 dollars in the treasury to buy the stove. At the next meeting, on 21 February 1874, Lewis reported that he had settled the church's debt and bought lamp oil, leaving in his hands 6 dollars and 25 cents. The stove was purchased, later that year, after Lewis was no longer treasurer. When the church decided to build a new meeting house, Lewis was appointed, on 14 June 1885, to serve on the building committee.

Being a Missionary Baptist preacher, Rev. Lewis was appointed by the Guyandotte Association Central Committee to 3 missionary assignments. The minutes of the Greenbrier Baptist Church on 25 December 1869, on the same day when the name was changed from New Salem Baptist Church, Lewis received contributions for his missionary work. Lewis received additional such contributions on 28 September 1873 and 27 February 1875.

Lewis Bartram's role in the church was also of a personal nature. The Pleasant Baptist Church minutes of 21 February 1847 record that at a meeting, at Lewis' home on Greenbrier Creek, three new members—Rebecca Ball, Cessa Ball and Susan (Wilson) Vaughan—were received by experience. In 1849 Lewis was twice called upon to bring his father, James P. Bartram, into Greenbrier Baptist Church to answer charges against him. Lewis had similar duties for his brother-in-law, Thomas Vaughan, on 23 October 1852 and for Adaline Ferguson on 26 September 1857. Eliza Frances (Walker) Bartram, Lewis' wife, was asked to bring Catherine Workman to church on 22 March 1851. On 24 September 1870 Lewis Bartram was chosen by Greenbrier Baptist to be a delegate and meet with Mount Vernon Church to aid in erecting a school of high grade.
In the midst of Rev. Lewis Bartram's term as pastor of Greenbrier Baptist, the Civil War caused the church to discontinue official meetings. The minutes cease on 27 September 1862 and do not resume again until 27 May 1865, with the exception of one lone meeting on 1 May 1864. The minutes of Greenbrier Baptist Church on 27 May 1865 probably reflected her pastor's own sentiments:

"On motion resolve that we adopt the resolution as follows: Where as the evils of a great Civil War has visited us for the last four years and laid waste our fields and flooded our country with blood and in view of the many evils that may surround the church—therefore—resolve that we avail ourselves of all the means within our power to suppress riots and in case we fail to furnish authority with the facts in the case."

Rev. Lewis Bartram's religious leanings also carried over into charitable sharing to others who were less fortunate:

"My grandparents raised a girl that they took when she was only 6 years old. Her name was Lydda Spence. It was the law in the state that when a child was reported neglected the law appointed someone who was capable to take the child and give them a home. My grandparents agreed to take the girl. She had lived with her grandmother who was sick. When grandfather (Lewis) went to get her he said the old lady was laying down on a pile of old rags on the floor. He took the girl home with him. She rode horseback behind him. Grandmother went out to greet them. Lydda was so starved grandmother said it was like helping a baby down off the horse. The girl was really dirty and had a big crop of head lice and grandmother was so sorry for the girl she felt like crying. Lydda stayed in their home till she was a grown woman and married."

Lydia Spence was born about 1838 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. Lewis would have gained custody about 1844. Rev. John Jarrel married her to Noah Lambert on 9 September 1855 in Wayne County. Noah was the son of Elijah and Elizabeth (Wilson) Lambert.

Lewis Bartram's third role as a father is what is most significant to this genealogy. Lewis' family has produced a large number of Bartram descendants. On 25 December 1839 Lewis married the orphaned Eliza Frances Walker in Cabell

Lewis and Eliza Frances (Walker) Bartram
In 1840 the Cabell County Census recorded Lewis and Eliza living on Mill Creek, near Greenbrier, where he was engaged in farming. Soon thereafter, they moved to Greenbrier Creek, where they raised a large family and lived the remainder of their lives.

The old log cabin that Lewis built for his family was on the upper bottomland of what was later the Rev. William V. Dickerson farm (who weatherboarded the home), then the Rev. Carmi Crabtree farm and now owned by Bill and Dorothy (Bartram) Stewart. An old well house still stands near where the home stood before being torn down and is close to the present home of Eva and Woodrow Crabtree.

The Wayne County West Virginia Censuses from 1850-80 show that Lewis’ family grew with each new decade. As a literate man, Lewis sent his children to school, at least so they could learn to read the Scriptures. Lewis’ financial wealth can be seen through the censuses: in 1850 he had 1000 dollars in real estate, 1000 dollars in real estate and 502 dollars in personal property in 1860, and 1500 dollars in real estate and 300 dollars in personal property in 1870.

In his later years, Lewis Bartram was still active in all aspects of his life. According to Hardesty, in 1884 at age 66, Lewis was able to:

"still continue in good health and able to discharge the duties of his calling."17

Eliza F. Bartram died on 28 February 18901 at her home. Lewis soon remarried, probably out of the need for a caretaker/cook/companion, on 30 May 189022. His new bride was neighbor Mrs. Mary Damron Dean23, the widow of John Wesley Dean. This marriage, as are most later remarriages, was not looked upon favorably by the grown children of the new couple:

"Not long after the death of (Eliza), (Lewis) married Will Dean’s mother. They only lived together for a few years when grandfather died. I remember my family talking about how she made a lot of trouble about his estate and they had to pay her off before they could settle.16

From Mary Damron Dean’s side:

"I never heard that she (Mary) married a second
Lewis Bartram began to get sick in the Spring of 1894. He complained of stomach troubles and it is assumed that he had an ulcer or stomach cancer. Queen Dickerson Franklin, a granddaughter, was 3 years old at that time and can remember that Lewis was still able to help with the wheat harvest that summer. On 13 September 1894 Lewis died at his home on Greenbrier Creek. That same day Enoch Bartram, Lewis Bartram Jr., and G. W. Workman went out and purchased 1 suit for $12, 1 shirt for 90 cents, 1 pair of shoes for $1.75, 1 pair of half hose for 70 cents, 1 dozen coffin screws for 20 cents, 5 yards of bleach cloth for 50 cents, 1 bunch of cotton batting for 10 cents, 3 pairs of coffin handles for $1 and 7½ yards of camdine cloth for 47 cents. Son-in-law, William "Bill" Pelfrey, built the coffin and the funeral was preached under apple trees by his home. The coffin was carried up the steep hill to be buried next to his first wife, in a grave marked with a simple rock—unmarked and now much overgrown.

The estate was appraised on 25 September 1894 at $623.40 by Laban Thompson, Lewis Bartram Jr. and Lewis Stokes Ferguson. The appraisal was countersigned by administrators Charles Wesley Crabtree and Enoch Bartram. The widow, Mary Bartram, was paid off and the estate was settled.

Mary died on 21 February 1898 and was buried beside her first husband, under the name of "Mary—his wife". Her estate was appraised on 7 June 1898, under the name of Mary Bartram, at Echo. The appraisors were Morris Wilson, Edmund Thompson and Chilton Wilson. A sale was held on 18 June and the estate purchasers included William Dean, Solomon Thompson, E. Watts, Sarah Tuigler, Chilton Wilson, Stanley Copley, M. D. Rigg, George Ellis and John H. Rigg.

(27) CHARLES BARTRAM

Charles Bartram was born about 1821 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. He was the fourth child of James P. Bartram. Early in his life he was sent to school, as was recalled by this fanciful tale:
"A story told by my mother (Emarine Bartram Dickerson) had to do with her Uncle Charley Bartram who once started through the woods for school. On hearing the distressing squealing of a pig he ran to the bank of a branch and looked over. He saw going up the other branch a bear walking on its hind legs and carrying the squealing pig in its arms. I doubt Uncle Charley attended school that day."

On 28 May 1840 in Cabell County (West) Virginia, Charles married Cynthia Ann Dean. Soon thereafter, Charles was recorded on the 1840 Cabell County Census, near the present town of Wayne, probably on Wilsons Creek. His father, James P., lived with Charles, both engaged in farming. Later that year Cynthia joined the Pleasant Baptist Church. Charles apparently never did officially join a church, but possibly attended with his wife.

On 22 November 1845 Charles had surveyed 175 acres on Greenbrier Creek, near his brother Lewis. Charles and his brother-in-law, Joseph H. Bartram, served as chainmen in the survey. Charles and Cynthia probably never lived on this land for long, if at all, selling it in 1849 to Thomas Vaughan. In 1847 Cynthia joined the Greenbrier Baptist Church (then New Salem) for a short time. The 1850 Census of Wayne County (West) Virginia recorded Charley and Cynthia living in the Wilson Creek area, where he was a farmer with no real estate.

Charles Bartram appears in the Wayne County Court Order Books on 4 June 1850 and 3 June 1851. Both cases were titled "Court vs. Charles Bartram"—the nature of which is unknown. The first case was ruled not guilty by Justice Ferguson and the second one was dismissed. Having some financial difficulties in 1854, Charles made a personal property deed/trust to Harrison Walker, who acted as a security on a debt. In 1856 Charles sold a parcel on Wilson Creek to Jacob Adkins.

Charles' daughter, Hester Ann Bartram, was received by the Greenbrier Baptist Church on 22 January 1860. Cynthia was readmitted by the church on 25 March 1860 and was baptised by her brother-in-law, Rev. Lewis Bartram, on 21 April 1860. The 1860 Census of Wayne County found Charles on Twelvepole Creek as a farmer with no real estate and 50 dollars in personal property. Also in the household was son-in-law John Hardy, daughter Elizabeth Bartram Hardy and a granddaughter. John Hardy was a farm hand for his father-in-law and had 100 dollars in personal property.
Charles had sent his children to school during the year.

On 23 February 1861 John Hardy was charged with the crimes of dancing and swearing by the Greenbrier Baptist Church. A Mary Hardy (who may have been Mary Elizabeth Bartram Hardy) was also charged with fornication. Cynthia and Hester Ann Bartram were summoned to the next church meeting as witnesses. On 23 March 1861 John Hardy apparently repented for his sins and was forgiven. Mary Hardy was excluded from the church for fornication. Rebecca Bartram, a daughter of Charles, was also excluded at that meeting for fornicating.

On 7 September 1862 Charles Bartram enlisted with Spurlock's Company of rebels, later called Company E of the 16th Virginia (Confederate) Cavalry. He saw action at Gettysburg (See #166--Enoch Bartram--for more details on the military campaigns of this company). When his company returned to Wayne County in 1864, Charles was captured on 22 February. He was sent to Louisa and then Louisville, Kentucky. On 15 March 1864 he took the Oath of Allegiance to the United States Constitution and was repatriated as an American citizen. At that time the service records report that he had dark hair, a dark complexion, hazel eyes and stood 5 feet--8 inches tall. As a volunteer deserter from the Confederate Army, Charles returned to Union controlled Catlettsburg, in Boyd County Kentucky. His family joined him there, where he was taxed in 1864.

When the war ended Charles took his family back to Wayne County. In 1866 his last remaining property in Wayne County was sold by the court to Washington Adkins, 50 acres on Wilsons Creek. This forced sale may have resulted from his not being able to return and pay taxes at rebel dominated Wayne Court House; he was classified as a traitor. Charles continued to appear on the 1870 and 1880 Wayne County Censuses, in Butler District. Charles and Cynthia died after 1880 but before 1900.

(Sarah "Sally" Bartram, the seventh child of James P. and Delila (Wilson) , was born June 1827/28 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. At age 14, she joined the Pleasant Baptist Church in October 1842. On 21 January 1847 she married Eli Lambert. The Pleasant Baptist Church minutes of 7 August 1847 report that Sarah Lambert was given...
The 1850 Census of Wayne County (West) Virginia records that Eli and Sarah lived on the left fork of Mill Creek, where he was farming. Sarah had joined the Greenbrier Baptist Church about that time and was granted a letter of dismissal on 27 November 1852. Soon afterwards, Eli and Sarah moved to Greenup, now Boyd, County Kentucky. Tax records show that they lived there until 1860. Eli was usually taxed for 1 horse, 1 or 2 head of cattle and a few hogs. In 1859 he raised 200 bushels of corn. They moved back to Wayne County, where on 25 March 1860 the Greenbrier Baptist Church readmitted them by a letter of dismissal from a Kentucky Baptist church. The 1860 Census of Wayne County found them at the Falls of the Tug, where Eli was a farmer with no real estate and 50 dollars in personal property. The eldest children were attending school.

Sarah and Eli continued to reside in that area and attend Greenbrier Baptist until 1888. The following rough draft of a dismissal letter, dated 26 February 1888, was found amongst the 1871 entries of the Greenbrier minutes:

"This is to certify that Eli Lambert and Sarah Lambert his wife are members of this church and in full fellowship and good standing with us and are hereby dismissed from us to unite with the Ceredo Baptist Church."

About that time Eli and Sarah moved to Ceredo, where she died on 3 March 1895:

"Mrs. Sara Lambert, aged 68 years and 9 months, wife of Eli Lambert, died at her home in Ceredo. She had been a Christian for 54 years, having joined the Pleasant Baptist Church on Mill Creek at the age of 14, then a member of the Ceredo Baptist Church. She married Eli Lambert on 21 January 1847. Surviving her was the aged husband, 8 daughters and 2 sons. Burial was in the Brown's Hill (or Crescent) Cemetery in Ceredo."

Eli died soon thereafter and was buried beside her. They share one stone that reads, "S. and E. Lambert", without any dates. Eli also has his own stone which reads, "Eli Lambert 25 Jan. 1827- ".

Mary "Pop" Bartram was born about 1829 or 1830 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. She was the eighth child of James P. and Delila (Wilson) Bartram. For reasons that will become obvious later, she is a favorite amongst researchers who have broken a code of silence in oral histories. Bartram descendants who remember her do so with either humor or hatred; there is no middle ground.

Around 1843 or 1844 she married Enoch Cyrus. On 4 April 1853 Enoch surveyed 25 acres on Mill Creek, next to Wade Ferguson and John Robertson. This was the home tract, on the left hand fork of Mill Creek side of Cyrus (now Watts) Ridge. The land extended over the ridge towards the head of Greenbrier Creek. In 1854 Enoch purchased 87½ acres on Mill Creek from H. Murray, and 90 acres on Mill Creek from Nathan Holt and A. Wilson.

Enoch's brother-in-law, John Bartram, became indebted to the merchants Ferguson, Bromley and Company for 37 dol-
On 22 August 1857 Enoch co-signed a twelve month promissory note for John Bartram. Just before the note was due John Bartram disposed of his Wayne County property, for no financial consideration, and left for Boyd County Kentucky. Enoch Cyrus was forced to cover his debt. Enoch sued his brother-in-law in Chancery Court in December 1857 and had the deeds, made by Bartram, invalidated. John Bartram's land was sold in 1859, with the proceeds going to Enoch to cover his expenses.

On 8 January 1860 Mary Cyrus was baptised into Greenbrier Baptist Church by the pastor, (her brother), Rev. Lewis Bartram. A funny story was recalled about Pop's interaction with her brother at the church:

"She was witty. She said once, when Grandpa (Lewis) Bartram had baptised a group, and was dismissing, he prayed for those on 'both sides of the stream'. Pop marched up and said, 'Lewis, you did not pray for those in midstream on that island.' He said, 'Pop, you never did have any sense.'"

The 1860 Census of Wayne County (West) Virginia found Enoch and Pop at the Falls of the Tug (probably nearer to Mill Creek), where Enoch was farming and had land worth 600 dollars and personal property valued at 400. Both Enoch and Pop were illiterate.

In the early 1860's the Civil War changed the family's life, fortunes and reputation forever. In the spring of 1864 the Home Guard was trying to round up members of the 16th Virginia (Confederate) Cavalry. Captain William "Billy" Bartram, of the Home Guards, was looking for Enoch Bartram when Enoch Cyrus made some anti-Union remarks. While chopping wood, William "Bill" Pauley, who married Captain Billy Bartram's daughter, shot Enoch Cyrus "off the log". The horrors of that act caused a great rift between the children of brothers David and James P. Bartram.

Mary "Pop" Bartram Cyrus' life story can thus be broken down into two time frames, with 1864 as the clear dividing line. What actually happened to her after 1864 is really open to interpretation, if it is anyone's business. As we have decided to write a personal history on members of the Bartram family, we have had to make it our business and will try to present what we have found in a non-judgmental and unbiased manner. The authors actually respect the fact that Pop survived such adversity in living conditions and social ostracization. Others show her much less respects. She probably wouldn’t have cared a bit. Pop was left with 7 children aged 18 to infancy. Times were, to say the least, tough. Researchers hesitate to quote rumors and heresy evidence, but it is obvious that there is some strain of truth in as much as the story tellers agree on the rumors. These are probably accurate renditions of the rumors; whether the rumors are true is open to debate. What is definitely the gospel truth is that after her husband’s murder, the public perception of Pop drastically changed:

"Some of the old people were not very nice. Aunt Pop was a bad character; she and her daughters. As I remember the gossip about Aunt Pop, she lived with her family and went straight until her husband was shot and killed by the so called Home Guards who roamed through the country and did a lot of killing and stole a lot of supplies that people stored. Some of these mean men were recognized after the war. People didn’t have much love for the Home Guards. Anyway, Aunt Pop went man crazy and her daughter Sis (Surrilda), as she was called, had men to come and see her too. It was known as a house of ill fame and I think Aunt Pop was turned out of the church. I don’t know exactly what the charges were against Aunt Pop. I think it was adultery. I remember that my mother (Rhoda Bartram Ferguson) felt sorry for Aunt Pop and took food to her when she was sick. I went with Mother to the funeral when she died."*

The following is taken from the minutes of the Greenbrier Baptist Church:

"27 December 1873--Brother Wesley Ball reported that sister Mary Cyrus had failed to live according to the requirements of the gospel as a member of Christ and on motion his report was received.

24 January 1874--The case of sister Mary Cyrus was taken up for investigation and she being present denied the accusations then the case was laid over until our next meeting.

21 February 1874--The church resolved to take up the case of sister Mary Cyrus and dispense of it then the case was taken up for investigation and resulted in her exclusion."

A great-grandson recalled:

"Aunt Pop wasn't afraid of anything or anybody and nobody never did run her over or her family. If she had to she would fight a man just the same as she would a woman. No one bluffed her and everyone in the community knew it. I was told that after her husband got killed the family had it pretty rough, but evidently they were all good managers and workers. I guess things like this have been happening ever since there have been people on Earth."7

Whatever is remembered about Aunt Pop, at least she raised her family without charity. Her demeanor probably ruled out any hope of remarriage, so she used what options she had open to keep their heads above water. Woodrow Crabtree recalled hearing some hushed and some not-so-hushed talk on Greenbrier Creek:

"The wolf was at the door with the widow and smaller children, so if the men stopped by on a Friday with a chicken, the girls would clean it up and they would all eat it and then have a real good time. One of the less delicate ways to put it was that Pop was the neighborhood girlfriend. The daughters joined in the sinning and had some offspring by it. No outside women were involved and no one was forced. A lot of this wasn't known by most people, just a little gossip, but when she died it really became common knowledge. The older people who remember, and didn't have a father involved, get amused."8

Woodrow Crabtree was a friend of the late Leo Jarrel of Mill Creek. Leo often laughed with Woodrow about how his father was romantically involved with Pop, when both were older. Leo's sister, Oney Jarrel Billups, remembered Pop less kindly:

"Pop was very unrespected by the county. They said she was downright mean and spiteful. She stole one of my mother's chickens and killed it for food. The children of the neighborhood, including me, would act like we were wringing the neck of a chicken whenever we saw her. I didn't like her one bit. That was one nice family before the Civil War, but seeing her husband shot probably set her off."9

All of this sounds like a ringing indictment against Aunt Pop Cyrus. It must be remembered that the only facts that can be presented are that she was kicked out of the church (on less than specific grounds) and her daughter, Surrilda "Sis", did have two illegitimate children. Her spitefulness could probably be accounted for by the way she herself was treated. Whatever moral indiscretions she did commit have probably been exaggerated, but she is no longer around to defend herself.

The courts apparently felt that Pop was a suitable mother. On 4 November 1874 she was approved and appointed as the legal guardian for her two youngest children—Lewis and Virginia Cyrus. This was not always done after the father's death, especially so many years after the fact. She probably felt that the day would come when someone might try to make a claim against her suitability as a mother, having been kicked out of the church just 8 months earlier.

Thirteen years after her husband was killed, Pop had not yet partitioned the lands on Mill Creek to her children. Her son, James P. Cyrus, was probably impatient and wanted his share. There is some evidence that they were on less-than-endearing terms. In July 1876 James P. Cyrus won a suit in chancery ordering his mother to partition the lands. The widow was to receive a one-third value of the lands and then the children were to receive a one-seventh share of the remainder. Mary did not cooperate with the order, so G. G. Burgess was appointed a special commissioner by the court, in January 1877, to do it for her. On 17 April 1877 the Mill Creek lands were divided among her children: 50 acres to Marshall Cyrus, 69 acres to Smith Cyrus, 49 acres to Lewis Cyrus, 25 acres to Virginia Cyrus (the home tract), 41 acres to James Cyrus, 31 acres to Surrilda Cyrus and 65 acres to Recey Cyrus Robertson. It is not known how much land Pop received. In 1878 her son-in-law, Richard Robertson, gave her 175 acres on Trace Fork.

In her later years, Pop was still welcome at her relatives' homes. At harvest time she helped her niece (by marriage), Polly Crabtree Bartram, prepare dinner for the men in the fields. Pop died at her home sometime between 1907 and 1920. She was buried in the John Cyrus Cemetery on Cyrus (now Watts) Ridge, in an unmarked grave near her daughter Surrilda.

(32) ROBERT AND SERENA (BARTRAM) BARTRAM

The ninth child of James P., Robert Bartram, was born
Attison Adkins was born in 1826 in what is now East Lynn, Wayne County West Virginia, a son of Edward and Nancy Jane (Bartram) Adkins.  Attison was the owner of a vast acreage of land in the Twelvepole Valley around East Lynn and Big Lynn Creek. He also owned several lots in the town of Wayne. The 1860 Census of Wayne County (West) Virginia recorded Attison and family residing near Wayne (Court House), where he was engaged in farming and had 1000 dollars in real estate and 448 dollars in personal property.

According to Hardesty, Attison was elected to the first town council of Wayne on 21 June 1882 and in 1884 was serving as Marshal. Attison died in 1915 and was buried in the cemetery near the Wayne Court House, at the very top of the knoll. A descendant, Ronnie Adkins, researched Attison's life and reported that:

"He also had an illegitimate son, Hance Adkins, who went to Arkansas. After he had made good some of Attison's other children moved there and they are the ancestors of all the Adkinses in Arkansas today. One of Hance's grandchildren was Governor of Arkansas in the late 1940's."

There was a Homer M. Adkins who served as Governor of Arkansas from 1941-5.
Harvey Adkins was born 17 October 1831 near what is now East Lynn, Wayne County West Virginia. For a time he was a sergeant in Col. Milton Jameson Ferguson’s 16th Regiment of Virginia Cavalry (Confederate). Harvey was owner of most of what is now Little Lynn Creek. He was a merchant and farmer in that area. Harvey died on 12 July 1893 on Little Lynn and was buried in the family cemetery there.

John Henderson Cole was born 2 June 1837. He was a son of Nancy Jane Bartram and her second husband, James Cole. John owned land on Laurel Creek, a branch of Twelvepole Creek. He became involved in the Confederate cause by joining Ferguson’s Company of the 16th Virginia Infantry on 15 September 1862. He died at the Battle of Martinsburg, in West Virginia, on 15 July 1864. He left behind a widow and two sons. The widow, Martha Fry Cole, remarried to Clark Scaggs.

John H.’s children, Lafayette and Columbus Cole, both led active lives in Wayne County. They were both partners in the firm of H., L., and C. Cole of Ceredo, dealers in groceries, hardware, queensware and glassware. Hardesty called their stock first class, with their attention to orders prompt and satisfactory, and their trade constantly growing. Columbus was later a minister in Huntington. Lafayette was elected a member of the Ceredo School Commission on 24 March 1899, per an article in the short-lived newspaper, The Ceredo Squedunk.

Elisha Cole was born 2 July 1844 in what is now East Lynn, Wayne County West Virginia. He was a son of James and Nancy Jane (Bartram) Cole. On 15 September 1862 he was listed on the muster-in roll of the 16th Virginia (Confederate) Cavalry. Although no such record has been found, he must have deserted the Confederate cause. On 26 May 1864 he was drafted into Company A of the 22nd Kentucky Infantry (Union) in Boyd County Kentucky, serving until 28 June 1864.
No public records have been found for Elisha, except for the 1871 tax roll of Boyd County Kentucky, when he was living on Chadwick's Creek and had 1 head of cattle and grew 30 bushels of corn. Elisha was still alive in 1890, when he was listed in the Census for Union Veterans and Widow Pensioners, living in Boyd County Kentucky. He died 2 September 1916 and is buried on Catletts Creek.

Weddington Bartram was born in January 1831 in Wood County (West) Virginia. He was true to his name; Wed wedded four times and was divorced thrice.

In July 1854 Wed married his first cousin once-removed, Surrilda Bartram, a daughter of James P. Wed and Surrilda lived together for about 4 years before splitting up. Surrilda took her children and moved in with her father-in-law, Stephen Bartram. She was remarried, at Stephen's, on 7 June 1870 to Isaac Elliott. On her marriage bond she reported that she had been widowed.

Wed moved to Ceredo in Wayne County West Virginia, where he remarried to Martha J. about 1859. In 1860 Wed was recorded in the Wayne County Census at Ceredo as a day laborer with no real estate or personal property. Not faring well in Ceredo, Wed and family returned to Boyd County Kentucky in 1862. The 1870 Census of Boyd County found Wed and Martha on Catletts Creek, where he was farming with no real estate and 400 dollars in personal property (most of which was Martha's). Also in the household was Wed's daughter by Surrilda, Louisa, and Martha's child, Marcena Alice. A laborer lived with them, too—Meredith Dixon, Jr. He was 20 years old and may have been a relative of Martha's.

At the time of the 1870 Census, Melissa Epling was pregnant with Weddington's child. In late-Fall of 1870 Wed left Martha and went to Raccoon Creek in Wayne County West Virginia, where he and Melissa cohabitated. Martha finally filed for divorce in 1874. Wed was summoned to Wayne County Court in June 1874, but could not be found by the process server. Depositions were taken in Catlettsburg on 27 June 1874, where Wed's own uncle, William P. Bartram, testified that Wed had left Martha about 4 years previous and was living on Raccoon Creek in Wayne County. A Mr. C.
S. (unreadable) testified that he knew Wed and Martha for about 12 years, that they lived on Catletts Creek and that Wed left her three or four years previous and was now living in Wayne County with another woman. The final decree was issued on 6 July 1874, when the court recorded, in their opinion, that:

"he (Wed) manifested reckless habits, abandoned her and came to Wayne County West Virginia. She has had to make her living by servitude."

Wed and Melissa had lived together for 7 years and produced 2 children when they were married on 8 August 1877 in Wayne County West Virginia. On the marriage license Wed claimed he had never been married before. Soon thereafter, they went to Cabell County West Virginia, where Wed farmed and was recorded in the 1880 Census. Sometime before 1887 Wed and Melissa split up. Wed and Lucinda Johnson had a child, Richard Bartram, in February 1887 and were married 8 April 1888 at Princess in Boyd County Kentucky. They had six additional children by 1900.

Wed died between 1900 and 1910. Lucinda moved to Logan County West Virginia, where she died on 23 September 1915 at Holden from uterine cancer.

Owen Bartram was born in January 1840 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. Right after the Census was taken in 1860, he married Lavina Adkins. Owen and Vina resided at what is now Chadwick's Creek in Boyd County Kentucky, where he owned land and operated a nice sized farm. He was often taxed for 3 horses, 10 head of cattle, several hogs and some gold or silver items. The farm produced large crops of corn, barley, wheat and tobacco. Owen evidently kept a sizeable number of sheep for he reported that 15 were killed by packs of wild dogs in 1869 and 12 in 1870. The 1870 Census of Boyd County Kentucky shows that Owen had 1000 dollars in real estate and 1364 dollars in personal property. Owen and Vina were members of the Chadwick's Creek Church, giving land to their church on 18 November 1879.

Vina died on Chadwick's Creek on 19 April 1904. Owen remarried the orphaned Cynthia Short on 21 June 1906.
They were married at the home of Cynthia's guardian, William White, who was given custody of her by the Ohio Children's Home. Owen made his will on 29 March 1920 and sold his last remaining Kentucky property on 26 July 1920. Soon thereafter, he and Cynthia removed to Kenova, Wayne County West Virginia. Owen died there on the evening of 22 December 1925. According to Rev. W. T. Jarrel, who reported the death, Owen died from a venereal disease. Owen's will was proven in Wayne County Court on 13 January 1926, and had given everything to his second wife:

"for she has taken care of me. For many years I have been a cripple and invalid. Nothing to my children because they are all comfortable."

Owen's body was returned to Chadwick's Creek for burial.

Wesley Bartram was born about 1842 in Wayne County (West) Virginia. In late-1860 he married Rebecca Adkins. They resided in Boyd County Kentucky until 1862, where he was taxed for 2-3 horses, 5-7 head of cattle, 6 hogs, 200 bushels of corn and over 50 bushels of wheat.

In 1863 Wes and Rebecca moved to Wayne County West Virginia. Wes bought 50 acres on Peter Cave Branch (or Steve Branch and Grassy Ridge) from Tilman Ferguson in 1867, selling it in 1875. Descendants of his legitimate children report that he had 2 illegitimate children by Eveline Johnson. These two Uncles were known by all and even kept in touch when they moved to Logan County West Virginia.

Wes died on 27 December 1886 in Wayne County. His widow remarried at her home to Rev. John W. Stephens on 1 March 1889.

Pleasant Bartram was born about 1837 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. About 1859 he married Susan M. Adkins and resided near Ceredo. He had received 62½ acres on Beech Fork from his father, but that land passed back into the hands of his mother after his parents split up. His mother and sister, Letty, lived with him in 1860.

Pleasant joined Company H of the 16th Virginia (Confederate) Cavalry in 1862 as a private. On 20 February 1863 he transferred to Company B of the 22nd Virginia Cavalry, holding the rank of Lieutenant. Muster rolls report that he was captured by the Union Army in either April or 10 May 1863. Later rolls report that he was arrested on 4 November 1863 in Wayne County West Virginia as a deserter from the rebel army. He was sent to Wheeling, West Virginia and then arrived at Camp Chase, near Columbus, Ohio, on 27 December 1863. At that time the service record states that Pleasant stood 6 feet and ¾ inches tall, had grey eyes, dark hair and a florid complexion. Due to the horrible sanitation, crowded conditions and spoiled food, Pleasant died on 8 February 1865 from chronic diarrhea. He was buried at the cemetery adjoining Camp Chase.

His widow, left with two young daughters, remarried to Martin Van Buren Fry and had additional children.

(73) DICEY BARTRAM

Dicey Bartram, born January 1840 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia, is a most confusing figure to family researchers. In 1860 she married Harrison B. Johnson in Boyd County Kentucky. This marriage was recorded in Marriage Book 1A, page 20 and, unfortunately, that book was stolen from the courthouse.

In 1870 she was recorded in the Wayne County West Virginia Census as Dicey Bartram with her nine year old son Thomas. Apparently she and Johnson had either divorced, he died or they were never married (the minister’s return would have answered the latter, but was in the missing marriage book). In 1880 she was found in the Wayne County Census in Ceredo, as Dicy Bartram, a widow, with her son Thomas, a niece—Ella (born about 1876 and possibly a daughter of William Washington and Paulina Bartram). Also in the household was a John Bartram, no age listed, who was of unknown relationship to Dicey.

At no time was there any evidence that she had a daughter. If she did have a daughter, she must have remained with her father. In 1900 Dicey was living with her grandson, Joseph Mayo, in Ceredo. This obviously suggests that she did have a daughter, who married a Mayo. Dicey probably died between 1900-10 in Ceredo, Wayne County West Virginia.

Paulina Bartram was born about 1846-7 in Wayne County (West) Virginia. On 23 June 1868 at Eliza Bartram's, in Boyd County Kentucky, she married her second cousin, William Washington Bartram (#156), who was born about 1846 in Wayne County (West) Virginia. The marriage was witnessed by his brother-in-law, Sylvester Copley, her father, Thomas Bartram, and Peter Hudson.

Washington Bartram was a veteran of the Civil War, having joined Company B of the 45th Kentucky Mounted Infantry (Union) on 24 July 1863. He was mustered in at Catlettsburg on 10 October 1863 and went with his company to bivouac near Mount Sterling, Kentucky. In March 1864 the company moved to Lexington, Kentucky until October 1864. The muster roll for May-June 1864 records that Washington was absent. The first reason written down was that he was sick, but that was scratched out and the words "under arrest" were substituted. There are no additional details as to the reason for the incarceration. Washington was discharged, with other members of his company, at Catlettsburg on 24 December 1864.

Washington and Paulina spent the early years of their marriage on Shope's Creek in Boyd County Kentucky, where he was taxed for 1 horse, a few head of cattle and usually grew less than 75 bushels of corn. After 1873 Washington and Paulina no longer appear on the Boyd or Lawrence tax records. Their son Charles was born in Kentucky in 1879, so they might have gone to Greenup or a county further west. Ella Bartram, born about 1876 in Kentucky, who was living with her Aunt Dicey Bartram in 1880, may be a daughter of Washington and Paulina.

Washington must have died in 1879 or early-1880 in Kentucky. The 1880 Census found Paulina and her children living on Hecla Street in Ironton, Lawrence County Ohio with her father, Thomas Bartram.
Thomas Jefferson "Jack" Bartram was born in August 1865 in Lawrence County Ohio. On 12 January 1888 Jack married Amanda Ann "Mandy" Workman at her father's residence in Hampton City (now Catlettsburg), Boyd County Kentucky. Around 1890 they moved to Ceredo in Wayne County West Virginia.

Their marriage was never considered "made in heaven". On 10 August 1897 Jack was served a summons to appear at a deposition taking in Ceredo; Mandy was suing him for divorce. At that time there were only two grounds for divorce, adultery and desertion. Oftentimes one party would allow the other to embellish the facts to get out of a bad marriage, but this case was so explicit it appears to be truthful.

James Bowen, aged 69 years of Ceredo, who knew the couple for about 2 years, gave the following deposition on 14 August 1897:

"All I know about it is this: I know that the defendant, T. J. Bartram, has been for about 2 years back continually associating with a woman by the name of Perdue whose character is known to be that of a public prostitute. I have seen them together in the willows and thickets along the Big Sandy River a number of times in the last two years and I have known them to lay out on the river banks in the willows of nights—on these occasions the two would be alone. I was living on the river during these times and I know that both the defendant and the Perdue woman were arrested for living in adultery together at Catlettsburg and that each of them were fined for adultery and imprisoned. I know that they were living in a house together and was so living when they were arrested and fined for living in adultery. I have seen the defendant and the Perdue woman in private, secret places in the willows lying and wallowing with each other on the ground—this I have seen a number of times during the last two years."

Mandy's lawyer waited for Jack to appear to testify, but he did not (as was often the case in divorce actions). On 18 August 1897 Mandy gave the following deposition:

"I am 26 years of age (she was 28) and reside in the town of Ceredo, Wayne County West Virginia and have so resided in Wayne County about 7 years continuously and I am the plaintiff in this suit. I am his wife. We were married on the 10th day of January 1888. I have (been a faithful wife and tried to make my home comfortable). Shortly after our marriage he began a course of treatment towards me that was both cruel and inhuman. He would often come home and without any provocation or cause would assault me with his fist or stick and beat and bruise me, and has left scars on my person. Since our marriage he has failed, neglected and refused to furnish me with any support for myself and children. When he did any work, which was seldom, he would take the money he received for each work and bestow it upon women of low and lewd characters with whom he was associated and spent most of his time. And I have subsisted alone by my own labor, by taking in washing for other people and performing menial labor for families living in town.

All I know about (his adultery) is: That he has been running with a woman by the name of "Het" Perdue whose character for virtue is notoriously bad and has been spending most all of his time with her almost entirely abandoning his home and I know that he has stolen my clothes from my home and take them and give them to the Perdue woman, I went after my clothes and found some of them in her possession and took them back home, and these clothes so taken by him and given to the Perdue woman were clothes that I worked for myself and bought. He also would come to the house and carry away the provisions and dishes that I had worked for and bought myself and would take them to the Perdue woman. I know that the defendant and the Perdue woman were both arrested at Catlettsburg, Kentucky and each were fined and jailed for living with each other in adultery in that state.

(I have) two (children by T. J. Bartram)—Garland, five years old and Elmer, two years old. (T. J. Bartram) has not contributed anything to the support of either of them since their birth and as I have said I supported the children and myself by my own labor. He has been at home but very little since our youngest child was born. I learned that he had been keeping this woman a year before the birth of our youngest child.

On 20 August 1897, Marshall Cyrus, a second cousin to Jack Bartram, made a deposition:
"I am 52 years of age and reside in Ceredo, Wayne County West Virginia. I know that (Jack) has been living and cohabiting with a woman by the name of Perdue since his marriage to the plaintiff. (The Perdue woman) bears the name in this community of being a public prostitute. I have seen them together in the woods back of Kenova and in the willows along the Sandy River, as many as half a dozen times, by themselves. It is understood in this community that they are still living and cohabiting together and that the defendant spends most of his time with the Perdue woman. (Jack and Mandy) lived near me and I know that the defendant gave the plaintiff but little attention, seldom being at home and I know that the plaintiff took in washing to support herself and children. (Mandy) is unquestionably the most suitable parent to have the care and training of the two children. I am a distant relative of the defendant. I am sorry to say."

Obviously, the divorce was granted. Soon afterwards, Mandy gave birth, in February 1898, to their third child—Mareta "Marie" Bartram. On 18 January 1899, at the residence of Lizzie Justice in Hampton City, Boyd County Kentucky, Amanda married John Boyles. Boyles was a merchant who resided in Baltimore, Ohio, and was a son of Irish immigrants. He probably died as Mandy married a third time, about 1900, to Robert Whitney, his fourth marriage, and had additional children by him.

Jack left "the Perdue woman" by 1900 and was living at Russell in Greenup County, Kentucky (near Ashland). Although Mandy considered him negligent to his children, all three children were living with him, as was his mother—Charlotte. By 1904 Jack had moved back to Wayne County, where his son Elmer died. In 1910 son Garland, who was a laborer at the planing mill, and daughter Marie were living with their mother and step-father, Robert Whitney. Jack had probably died by that time.

(103) ISABELLE VICTORIA BARTRAM BOCOOK

Isabelle Victoria Bartram was born about 1855 in Greenup, now Boyd, County Kentucky. Her uncle, Rev. Lewis Bartram, married her on 28 June 1876 to George William Bocook in Wayne County West Virginia. Bill and Victoria lived on the ridge between Greenbrier and Mill Creeks, receiving Queen Dickerson Franklin remembered this family:

"Victoria had three girls. They had to be chaperoned at all times. Victoria could knit. She would have one finished sock. She and a daughter would start (on foot) for a store in Echo. The girl had to go to carry the basket. Victoria would knit another sock enroute, then sell the pair at the store. She would start another sock and finish it enroute home. They usually stopped and had dinner with (my) mother."

Victoria died in Wayne County West Virginia on 27 November 1933 and her husband died a few years later.

William Henry Bartram was born in October 1834 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. He and Minerva Ratcliff left their respective homes in Lawrence County Kentucky to marry in Wayne County (West) Virginia on 27 December 1858. In 1860 they were residing near Louisa in Lawrence County, where William H. was already prospering with real estate worth 500 dollars and personal property of 1200 dollars (of which 500 dollars was the value of a 12 year old male mulatto slave, received from his father the year before).

When the Civil War began William H. took his family to Catlettsburg, where he was enrolled in the local militia. On 25 October 1861 he joined Capt. Isaac Hollingworth's Company H of the 14th Regiment of Kentucky (Union) Infantry. He was commissioned a First Lieutenant, to fill a vacancy, on 19 November. 1st Lt. Bartram was mustered into service on 10 December 1861 at Camp Wallace in Lawrence County Kentucky. During the remainder of December he was stationed at Camp Moore and in late-February 1862 was on detached duty with another unit. Capt. Hollingsworth, age 23, died of typhoid fever at Catlettsburg on 25 February 1862. 1st Lt. and Adjutant John F. Babbitt was promoted to Captain of Co. H. 1st Lt. Bartram was given the title Adjutant, or second in command, in place of Capt. Babbitt.

In March 1862 1st Lt. Bartram was at Camp DeCourey in Kentucky. The company then moved down to the Cumberland Gap to secure it for the Union forces under Brigadier General George Washington Morgan. Company H was stationed on the southeast side of the gap, until 17 September 1862. The threat of Major General Edmund Kirby Smith's Confederate Invasion of Kentucky forced Morgan to abandon Cumberland Gap. The following note appears in the September 1862 muster roll of the Regiment:

"the remainder of the month (September) being occupied in the march from Cumberland Gap to the Ohio River—no report made from 17 September 1862, having abandoned or destroyed books, blankets and everything (except arms and ammunitions) to avoid them falling into the enemy’s possession. Most of the march was kept up 20 hours to the day, the other 4 hours applied to cooking for the next day and resting. Arrived at Greenupburg on the Ohio River 3 October 1862 barefooted and nearly naked, bivouacked for the night (having destroyed all the baggage at the gap). 4 October commenced crossing the Ohio River."

Kirby Smith's invasion decided to split up and not only chase Morgan, but also to capture Covington, Kentucky. Covington proved to be too well defended and Morgan's troops escaped. Smith was still considered so successful in this campaign that he was promoted to a Lieutenant General of the Army of the Confederate States of America.

In late-October 1862 the company of 1st Lt. Bartram had returned to Kentucky and was bivouacked at Camp Finnell in a field near Winchester in Clark County. In November they moved to near Richmond in Madison County Kentucky and then to Danville in Boyle County Kentucky in December. On 13 January 1863, at Danville, Capt. Babbitt tendered his letter of resignation. He explained that he had joined the war thinking that he was worth about 1000 dollars. Since then he had become a defendant in a circuit court suit and had to employ lawyers in Louisville, Kentucky. Babbitt felt that he could not attend to the war and his business in court, too. His superiors praised his performance when they accepted his resignation, effective 23/24 January 1863. Babbitt left for Louisville on 21 January, leaving 1st Lt. William Henry Bartram in command. On 26 February 1863 Bartram was commissioned a Captain of Company H.

Soon thereafter the company returned to Louisa. In response to the Confederate threat of Colonel M. J. Ferguson, who was in the mountains of West Virginia, Capt. Bartram commanded the advance forces that captured Col. Ferguson and other high ranking rebel officers and troops on 15
In late April 1864 Capt. Bartram's company left Eastern Kentucky and headed for Chattanooga, Tennessee to be placed under the command of Major General John M. Shofield, of the 23rd Corps—Department of Ohio, and joined in Sherman's Atlanta Campaign. On 5 May 1864 Shofield's army of 13,500 men advanced south along the railroad (to Atlanta), at Buzzard Roost, Georgia to threaten General Joseph E. Johnston's rebel troops. On 7 May they were near Dalton, Georgia and then advanced upon Johnston's left flank on the 13th of May, near Resaca, Georgia. Heavy fighting occurred on the 14th of May. By the 19th Capt. Bartram's company was engaged in the Allatoona Hills and the Battle of Dallas, Georgia. This was followed by the Battle of Kenesaw Mountain, in Georgia, on the Culp's farm from 22-27 June 1864. The muster roll of 30 June shows that Bartram's company was in camp on the battlefield at Culp's farm. On 4 July 1864 Shofield's army prepared to make a surprise crossing, in ponton (or pontoon) boats at the mouth of Soap Creek, precipitating the Battle of Chattahoochee River on 8th July and Johnston's retreat to Atlanta on the 9th.

The Siege of Atlanta followed. Bartram was engaged in the skirmish of Peach Tree Creek on 20 July 1864, and then held the line before Atlanta. By 31 August Shofield had moved to cut the Macon Railroad to Atlanta, at a place called Rough and Ready, near Jonesboro, Georgia. The Battle of Jonesboro was fought on 1 September 1864 and that same day Gen. Hood's rebel forces evacuated Atlanta. Shofield's troops remained at Decatur until 25 September 1864 when they returned to Atlanta, which was now a Union command post. When Atlanta was burned by Sherman on 15 November 1864, Captain Bartram was long gone from the city. In October 1864 his company had been ordered to near Rome, Georgia, to repair the railroad that they had earlier destroyed. On 31 October 1864 they were on an active campaign between Cedar Bluff, Alabama and Rome, Georgia. By late-November 1864 Bartram's company had returned to Lawrence County Kentucky and was in camp on Big Blaine Creek.

On 31 January 1865 Capt. Bartram was mustered out of the service at Louisa and returned to civilian life. He had seen one of the most colorful and successful campaigns of the Civil War and returned home without a scratch. William Henry Bartram took his family to Wayne County West Virginia in 1865-6, then to Catlettsburg in Boyd County Kentucky, where he owned a town lot. William H. and family are lost to researchers from 1869-71. They have not been found on the 1870 Census. Wayne County land tax books record William H. as an out-of-state property owner who resided in Kentucky. The Boyd County tax rolls record him as a non-resident who still owned a town lot in Catlettsburg. The family was not taxed in Lawrence County at that time. It is probable that they were in Cabell County West Virginia, just west of Huntington.

By 1872 the family was again located in Wayne County, where they remained until 1875. During that time they lived on 55 acres near the mouth of Twelvepole Creek (once called Kellogg and now part of Westmoreland in Wayne County, near the Cabell County line), when in 1873:

"the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad went through Ceredo. (The railroad) was to build a fence on both sides of the right-of-way from West First Street to the west side of Twelvepole, and from the east side of Twelvepole to the western line of property owned by William Bartram."

William H. also jointly purchased 200 acres on Trace Fork, near Echo in Wayne County, with J. M. Marcus in 1874, and received 100 additional acres on Trace Fork from Richard Poindexter in 1878.

In 1875 William H. Bartram returned to Lawrence County Kentucky, where he owned 135 acres on Rockcastle Creek, next to Samuel Zattoo Frasher. The 1880 Census of Lawrence County found William and Minerva on Patrick's Gap with their family. Also in the household were cousins, Elisha and Minerva Martin and their son Charles Martin, and Minerva Bartram's nephews, William and Daniel Stansbury. William H. took his family back to Wayne County West Virginia from 1887-90.

The majority of public documents relating to the remainder of William H. Bartram's life are land transactions and the subsequent court actions surrounding land disputes. On 14 February 1885 Minerva's father, William Ratcliff, died in Wayne County. He willed Minerva 40 acres on Bear Creek, with another 40 acres going to the heirs of her late sister, Polly Ratcliff Stansbury. Minerva sought to buy Polly's interest in the adjacent 40 acres, but her heirs would only sell that parcel if she bought 16⅓ acres of additional land. Minerva had William H. sell off other land.
her father left her so she could buy all of the Stansbury property on 7 December 1887. The deeds were made out in the name of William H. Bartram and caused a great deal of confusion. When William H. was sued for debt by Frank Hammond, the court auctioned off Minerva's property in 1899. Minerva then countersued Hammond in 1900, returning her land to her. The property was again involved in court when William H. sued the heirs of Polly Stansbury on 17 February 1907 to have a vendor's lien removed.

Another major land dispute arose between William H. and his cousin, John Bartram. Apparently, William H. Bartram and Lorenzo Dow Jackson had signed a 6 months promissory note for 75 dollars owed to John Bartram on 1 September 1890, when William H. lived "back of Salt Petre (in Wayne County), near the Wellman settlement". John claimed his cousin left the state soon afterwards, leaving only 2 town lots in Cassville (now Fort Gay). These lots were sold in 1900 to cover the debt. Then, after the death of William H., his heirs sued John Bartram's heirs for title to 78 acres (surface only) on Tug River, known as the Copley farm. When Hammond won the original case against William H. the land was sold by the sheriff to John Bartram. After Minerva won her land back the deed was lost and the property became entangled in John's estate with his heirs claiming that they had rights to it. William H.'s heirs won the suit and received title to the land.

Having returned to Clifford, Lawrence County Kentucky in 1890, William H. and Minerva began to dispose of their property on Rockcastle Creek. They gave the bulk of it to their children in March 1891. Minerva died between 1900-8. On 22 November 1908, at the home of Lindsey Salmons in Lawrence County, William H. married Flora Salmons. Without producing issue in his second marriage, William H. Bartram died on 31 March 1912 at Clifford. He had written his will on 12 June 1911 and it was originally probated in Lawrence County. Due to property holdings in Wayne County, it was also probated there on 15 January 1917. William H. was buried in the Bartram Cemetery on Rockcastle Creek in Martin County Kentucky, on land he bequeathed to his grandsons—James and Nile Ratcliff Bartram—whom he raised.

Sarah Frances Bartram was born in August 1845 at the
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Falls of the Tug River in Lawrence County Kentucky. Known as Miss Fanny for the first 43 years of her life, she remained in her father’s home and assisted her parents in their endeavors. In 1888 she married LeGrand Chatfield from Sheridan, Ohio, who had recently lost his first wife and five year old son. His six year old daughter, Estella, was raised by Fanny. LeGrand was a salesman and merchant, associated with H. Krish Wholesale Dry Goods of Catlettsburg.

After the death of her father, Fanny helped her mother run the businesses. On 17 April 1891 Fanny and LeGrand received a deed to the Bartram home in Catlettsburg (also known as the "hotel") from her mother and brothers. Fanny had no children by LeGrand. After her death all of Fanny’s possessions went to her step-daughter, Mrs. Ellis (Stella) Conley. Pictures of James T. and Jane G. (Frasher) Bartram were included in the estate and are now lost to family members who have tried to retrieve them from the Conley family.

(121) Captain JOHN ALLEN BARTRAM

John Allen Bartram was born 24 November 1851 at Clifford in Lawrence County Kentucky. He was named for Doctor John Allen, who delivered him. At age 34 he married Georgia Cyrus on 25 April 1886 (Easter Sunday) in Ironton, Lawrence County Ohio.

John A. was a captain, owner and builder of various passenger steamships that plied the Big Sandy and Ohio Rivers from Louisa to Cincinnati to Gallipolis. He had a part interest in a ship which wrecked on its maiden voyage and also owned a percentage of the "Fleetwing", "Sonoma" and "Favorite". Milton Freee was captain of the "Fleetwing" and her records show that in 1872 her freight included families with household goods, farm produce and hoop poles (for skirts of the day). During a loaded trip up the Big Sandy river, "Favorite", growing old, caught on a snag at the mouth of George’s Creek and sank. No lives were lost, but Capt. J. A. Banks lost his health. The 200 pound hand-made anchor was found by fishermen in 1953.

John A. taught music and choir and for a time worked for the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company, which his father had a part interest in. Before his marriage he had traveled to...
Paris, France.² Ely states that by 1887:

"Captain John A. Bartram has been a seeker of public favor, and, though not successful, ran ahead of his ticket."³

Georgia Cyrus Bartram separated from John A. about 1901 and divorced him about 1903. She remarried her distant cousin George Cyrus and had a child by him. Captain John A. Bartram was in Lexington, Kentucky, when he died on 10 August 1910. His remains were returned to Catlettsburg, where he was buried near his parents.

David Bartram was born on Mill Creek near Fort Gay in what is now Wayne County West Virginia on 30 December 1836. He married Eliza Jane Ratcliff on 8 February 1858 at Fort Gay.¹ When Hardesty was written in 1882-4, the people who had individual biographies included in it were actually only those who had purchased the book before it was printed. David supplied the data on himself and declared that he was a farmer and blacksmith of Butler District (Mill Creek).² David also included that he had been a captain in the state militia from 1854-9. What he did not include in Hardesty is more interesting. He was also a captain of the 167th State Militia Troops, a Home Guard unit during the Civil War that was mustered in on 2 August 1862 and was a private in his father's Independant Scouts unit, from 1 February to 10 May 1864. The fact that David Bartram failed to have this information recorded for posterity suggests that he may have been embarrassed by it or was inclined to let it be forgotten.

The 1860 Census of Wayne County recorded David and Eliza at Palmetto (an archaic post office address near Fort Gay), where they were farming, had no real estate and personal property valued at 152 dollars. By 1874 they owned 460 acres on Mill Creek, much of it purchased or given to them by his father, William Bartram. From 1876-8 he was a Deputy Sheriff of Wayne County.² In the late-1880's David and his son, John Bell Bartram (who would later become a doctor), were partners in the merchandising firm of D. Bartram and Company. As a result of being an active landholder, merchant and lawman, David was often involved in civil suits in Wayne County Chancery Court that dealt with debt and title disputes.

David died on 15 October 1900 at his home on Mill Creek and was buried on the Charles Bartram farm, now called the Bartram Church Cemetery, at the mouth of Paddle Creek. Eliza died on 24/25 March 1915 and was buried beside her husband.

(124) Captain JOHN "HUMPY" BARTRAM

John Bartram was born 23 January 1839 in what is now Fort Gay, Wayne County West Virginia. On 24/27 March 1862, in Lawrence County Kentucky, He married Mary Stafford Wellman.

John Bartram was called Captain John, but never attained that rank in the military. It is possible that he was involved in the Big Sandy's waterway traffic. In the military he was a private in his brother's 167th State Militia in 1862 and a Third Sargeant in his father's Independent Scouts in 1864. Soon afterwards he took his family to Louisa, in Lawrence County Kentucky, where he was taxed in 1864-5. In 1864 he paid taxes on 1 horse, 3 head of cattle and 100 bushels of corn. In 1865 he was taxed for owning 340 acres on Greenbrier Creek (in Kentucky), 1 horse, 3 head of cattle and growing 10 bushels of corn. On 21 May 1864, soon after his arrival in the county, John was drafted into Company C of the 68th Regiment of Kentucky (Union) Infantry, which was an upgraded enrolled militia, and served for 1 month (22 June-23 July 1864) as a private. John saw no action and was not outfitted or drew against his clothing account. At the time of his mustering in he was described as being 5 feet 11 inches tall, with black eyes, black hair and a fair complexion.

John and family returned to Wayne County in 1866-7 and then moved back to Lick Creek in Lawrence County from 1868-9. Once again he took his family back to Fort Gay in Wayne County, remaining there the rest of his life. About this time he began to acquire large blocks of land in Lawrence County on Lick Creek, Levisa Fork of the Tug River and Big Blaine Creek. In Wayne County he owned valuable acreage on Tug River, Mill and Big Hurricane Creeks. His wife, Mary S., owned her own property (rare for that time, because it was listed in the tax books under her name) that she had received from her family, the Wellmans.
Captain John Bartram was a prominent man in Fort Gay, then called Cassville, around the turn of the century. Cassville received a town governing charter about 1871-2, but it was allowed to lapse several times. John secured another charter for the town about 1900, which still governed it in the 1920's.\(^2\) Frances P. Bartram recalled her father's first cousin (whom she thought was his uncle):

"My parents took my little sister, age 2, and me, age 5 (circa 1899/1900) in the back seat of a buckboard to visit Uncle Humpy John Bartram in Fort Gay, or Cassville as it was known then. He was a leading citizen, wealthy land owner and stock man. He wore old clothes and had his pockets full of 1000 dollar bills and always paid his debts with those bills. He was called Humphy John because of the hump on his nose. He had a large, fine home. He welcomed us as guests and invited us in. He looked at my father's horse and said, 'Take your horse to the bone yard!', which he did. I only knew him as my father's uncle."\(^3\)

Due to his carrying large amounts of money, John also packed a pistol and was indicted by two grand juries for the same in September 1898 and May 1908. There was probably only a fine involved.

Captain John and his first cousin, Captain William H. Bartram, were legal adversaries twice—once in life and once in death. In 1899 John brought a suit against William H. Bartram and Lorenzo Dow Jackson, who had given John a 6 months promissory note on 1 September 1890 for 75 dollars. They then left the state without paying John and left only 2 lots in Fort Gay for which John could sue and recover his debt (which by 1899 was 112 dollars and 88 cents after interest). The court ruled on 5 October 1900 that the lots should be sold to repay John. Then, after both John and William H. had died, William's heirs sued John's heirs and recovered title to the Copley tract of 78 surface acres on Tug River in Wayne County.\(^5\)

Either due to financial hardships or oversight, Captain John failed to pay his land taxes in 1908 on 40 acres on Paddle Creek, 15 acres on Lick Creek, 154 acres on Mill Creek and town lot number 56 in Fort Gay. This property was sold by the Wayne County Sheriff, after his death, in December 1910 to Lafayette Vinson.\(^6\)

Captain John Bartram died, without a will, on 11 February 1910 (1909 per Wayne County records) at his home in
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Fort Gay. He was buried in the Bartram Cemetery on High Street in Fort Gay, near his father and grandfather. At the time of his death he owned 19 parcels of land in Wayne County—15 in the corporate limits of Fort Gay, 3 (mineral only) containing 105 7/8 acres and 1 tract of 170 acres. His son, William L. Bartram, sued the widow and other heirs of Captain John to have the landed estate partitioned in 1910. A special commissioner’s sale was held on 13 February 1911 of 2 parcels of 66 acres and 175 acres. The remainder was distributed amongst the children.

Mary Stafford (Wellman) Bartram died on 1 April 1928 at Lewis Borders’ home in Fort Gay and was buried beside her husband. Her name and date of death were added later to her husband’s stone and erroneously recorded as 1923. She had made her will on 10 September 1921 and it was probated on 5 April 1928, giving her estate equally to her children and 100 dollars to a nephew, George W. Wellman.

(125) JAMES BARTRAM

James Bartram was born 26 February 1841 in what is now Fort Gay, Wayne County West Virginia. He married Mary Elizabeth Pauley, called just Elizabeth, on 28 December 1858 in Wayne County. During the Civil War James served in the local militias commanded by his brother in 1862 and his father in 1864.

Sometime before 1872 James served Wayne County as its Sheriff. In October 1872, on behalf of the heirs of the late William Walker (as the administrator of the estate), James sued the heirs of James Walker. James Bartram was owner of a lot of property on Big and Little Hurricane Creeks and Tabor’s Creek. In 1869 he deeded 1 acre on Big Hurricane, for a school, to the Wayne County Board of Education--District 12.

His first wife, Elizabeth, died in 1870. On 23 February 1871, in Lawrence County Kentucky, James remarried to Julia Burgess. On 28 March 1872 Julia’s new father-in-law, William Bartram, gave her 100 acres on the ridge of Hurricane Creek, either as a reverse dowry or to hide it from creditors. Julia and her sister-in-law, Mary S. Bartram, jointly received another 58 acres on Spruce Branch of Big Hurricane Creek from William in 1877.

Queen Dickerson Franklin recalled a circa 1905-7 con-
James Bartram was the father of John Henry Bartram, who married my sister Eliza (Dickerson). While I had no use for Home Guards, I thought and still think my brother-in-law was one of the best men I ever knew. Eliza and her father-in-law once discussed Uncle Enoch Cyrus' death in my presence. Mr. Bartram regretted that, and many other things, but felt that in a time of war it was all justified. Of course, Eliza would never mention other things mother had told us. Terrible. Mr. James Bartram was not old enough to take part in the war, I think.8

The following letter, dated 17 January 1911, was written by Mary E. Bryan to Fornie J. Wriston and gives a good insight into the feelings of children as their parents age:

"Father and Mother are still in the restaurant. It is very confining on them, but it is all they can do it seems to me for they are both getting old and not stout. But they are not exposed to the cold in there."9

James died on 20 September 1916 in Fort Gay.1 He was buried on Frasher Hill, next to his first wife, and his stone has a Masonic emblem on it. Julia died on 14 February 1919 in Fort Gay. She was buried on the other side of James on Frasher Hill.

Perlina Jane Bartram was born 26 June 1842 in Fort Gay, Wayne County (West) Virginia. She married William Pauley on 19 July 18581 in Wayne County. Bill Pauley was a private in his father-in-law’s Independent Scouts from 1 February-10 May 1864. During that time, after his first cousin once-removed had made an anti-Union remark, Bill Pauley shot Enoch Cyrus "off the log".

In 1869 Bill and Perlina received 4 tracts in Wayne County from her father.2 Bill Pauley died young, on 19 October 1872. His double brother-in-law, James Bartram (who first married Bill's sister), was at the deathbed. Local rumors had been circulated that Bill Pauley had asked for forgiveness in the killing of Enoch Cyrus and died grieved and tormented. James, during the conversation overheard by Queen Dickerson Franklin in 1905-7, said that that was not the truth. James Bartram claimed Bill made no mention of Enoch Cyrus and died peacefully. Bill Pauley was buried on Frasher Hill.

Perlina died on 1 March 1908, from the information of one of her descendants. It is not known where she died or where she was buried, except that it was not at Frasher Hill. In 1879, when M. J. Ferguson sued the heirs of William Bartram, Perlina still bore the surname Pauley. Although it has not been researched, there is some evidence that she may have remarried by 1884 to a York.

(128) ROBERT SAMUEL BARTRAM

Robert Samuel Bartram, called Sam, was born 6 September 1847 in Fort Gay, Wayne County (West) Virginia. He WILLIAM CALLAHAN BARTRAM was a private in his father's Independent Scouts in 1864. On 11 April 1865 he was in Covington, Kenton County Kentucky, where he enrolled in Company K of the 53rd Kentucky (Union) Mounted Infantry as a private. He was mustered in that same day and was described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, with blue eyes, light hair and a fair complexion. Sam's signature on the enlistment documents was with an X. In May-June 1865 he was stationed in Mount Sterling, Kentucky, moving to Lexington in July-August 1865. On 15 September 1865 Sam was mustered out of the service at Louisa.

Before 1869 he married Mary Cynthia Scisson. They resided on Long Branch and Tabor's Creek, where Sam died on 5 March 1916. Mary, who had been an invalid since about 1930, died 16 February 1940 on Tabor's Creek. Both were buried on Tabor's Creek.

Reverend WILLIAM CALLAHAN BARTRAM

William Callahan Bartram was born 31 August 1850 in what is now Fort Gay, Wayne County West Virginia. He was named after both his father and his father's good friend, Callahan Beare. About December 1869 he married Sarah Elizabeth Thompson.

By 1872, seeking employment, Bill and Sarah had moved to Lawrence County Ohio. They had returned to Wayne County by September 1878, when Thomas L. Black (of Black and Hammond and Company) sued Bill for an unpaid grocery bill of 31 dollars and 15 cents. After October 1879 Bill took his family back to Lawrence County Ohio, where they were recorded in the 1880 Census.

William C. was a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was called "Powder Bill" by some, because he was a fiery preacher, having a short temper and exploding easily. When McKinley was President (1897-1901) William C. received a Federal appointment to serve as a United States Marshal (similar to a sheriff). A great-grandson recalled:

"I remember that my great-grandmother told me that she had been in the Moundsville (W. VA.) Penitentiary and paused. It made me wonder momentarily what kind of crime she had committed. Then she laughed and told me that she went with her husband to take a prisoner there and decided to take a short tour."
About 1903, Rev. William C. ran a hotel in Fort Gay. In January 1904 he went before a grand jury, charged with assaulting Attison Huffman. It is not known if he was indicted. Near the end of his life, William C. lived in Fort Gay, north of the High School, on the last street against the hill. He owned a farm, through his wife’s family, where the Mount Carmi, or Bartram, Cemetery is. A granddaughter, Liz Lynch, owns the property now and claims that Sarah E. (Thompson) Bartram got it through the Bowen/Brewer family and that was the same family as the original Stephen Bartram’s daughter, Polly Bartram Brewer (#4).

Bill and Sarah also owned 50 acres on Mill Creek that was sold in December 1910 to LaFayette Vinson for nonpayment of 1908 taxes. Rev. William C. Bartram died on 19 August 1923 in Fort Gay. He was buried on his farm, his wife following him on 26 June 1944. Bill’s obituary stated that he had been a minister for nearly 50 years.

(130) ELISHA WELLMAN BARTRAM

Elisha Wellman Bartram was born 4 December 1852 at Fort Gay, Wayne County (West) Virginia. Called Lish, he married Martha Jane Robinson on 25 June 1874 in Wayne County. Soon after his marriage, Lish became responsible for the upbringing of his step-brother, William Sherman Copley (who later took the surname Bartram).

Lish owned land on the hill opposite the Fairview Cemetery in Fort Gay, where he operated a small coal mine. Lish was also a farmer, grocery store owner and had a dray business, meeting boats on the Big Sandy and hauling the freight either to Louisa or Fort Gay businesses. A grandson, Paul R. Bartram, recalled that he had a sandy mustache and was balding in old age.

The 1890 Veteran Census of Wayne County records an Elisha Bartram at Dickson who claimed to have served as a private in Company A of the 5th West Virginia (Union) Infantry from 15 October 1861-15 October 1863 and had suffered from 28 years of lung troubles due to the war. In October 1861 Lish was only 8 years old, so it is not known if there was another Bartram who went by the name of Elisha, or if the Census was in error.

Lish’s son, William R. Bartram, married Lizzie Fitz-
She left him and sued for divorce in 1907 (using adultery), but the divorce was not granted. William R. then sued Lizzie for divorce, claiming desertion and adulterous cohabitation in Ohio. Lish testified that he knew Lizzie all her life, but she had not treated his son right. The divorce was granted on 20 February 1912. William R., after 17 years behind the wheel, opened a driving school in Louisa in the 1920's. Elisha's daughter, Sadie Baker, was the source of one of the Bible transcriptions of Stephen Bartram's life.

Elisha suffered a stroke, at his home near Fort Gay, on 6 April 1919 and died two days later. Martha died on 29 December 1933 at Fort Gay and was buried beside her husband at the High Street Cemetery. Lish's stone shows that he had been a Mason.

Mary Elizabeth Bartram was born 22 or 24 June 1855 in what is now Fort Gay, Wayne County West Virginia. She married Felix G. Wilson on 27 January 1871 in Wayne County (or 2 March 1871 from her obituary). She joined the Fort Gay Methodist Episcopal Church in 1873. Sarah E. (Smith) Young recalled:

"At age 4 (circa 1894) I went to Sunday School in a small church on Uncle Felix (Wilson's) farm." Frank Ailiff wrote of Felix's historical significance to lovers of fine fruit:

"Felix Wilson, who owned a large farm where Bill Ratcliff now owns (this written in 1982) and near the old Wilson Chapel Church, was rafting logs down Mill Creek when he noticed a thriving little green sapling among some brush that had washed upon the raft. He took it home and planted it and later as the tree grew, Mr. Wilson discovered that the tree was bearing the most delicious apples that no one in this area had ever seen or heard of. News soon spread around about the discovery and with the help of a local nurseryman, the late H. Willard Lycan, cuttings were taken from the tree and in a few years most everyone had at least one of the prized possessions in their yards."
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Mary Elizabeth and Felix had a large family of fourteen. Mary Elizabeth's obituary listed surviving daughters as Mrs. W. S. Riggs, Mrs. Lewis Carr, Mrs. Pearl Dawson, Mrs. Lee Dawson, Mrs. Sam Harvey, Mrs. H. V. Wilson, Mrs. T. L. Copley, Mrs. Lys Wellman, Mrs. Felix Bartram, Mrs. F. E. Peters and Miss Sarah Wilson (1 daughter and 2 sons had died previously). In the genealogy section we listed daughters: Emmaline (who married Thomas Lincoln Copley), Sarah (unmarried), Vergie (who married Felix Bartram), Mary Ellen, Georgia, Opal Perlina, Lauraine and four unknown females. We do not know which daughter married which man.

Felix died in 1913 when a building he was working on collapsed on him. Mary died 17 November 1933 on Mill Creek. She was buried near her home.

(132) GEORGE WASHINGTON BARTRAM

George Washington Bartram was born in Fort Gay, Wayne County (West) Virginia on 9 December 1857. He married on 7 April 1881 at Lawrence County Kentucky to Julia Margaret See. George died on 26 January 1915 in Fort Gay and was buried at the High Street Cemetery. His obituary, for the time, was rather prominent and appeared on the front page. In 1915 many deaths went unreported by the Wayne County paper; this obituary was reprinted from Louisa's "Big Sandy News":

"On Tuesday, January 26, George Bartram, a well known and highly respected citizen of Fort Gay, died at his home in that place, age 57 years. Interment was made in the old Bartram burial ground, near town, Thursday. The services were conducted by the Rev. L. D. Bryan for the church and were also Masonic in character; the deceased having been a Free and Accepted Mason. A widow and 6 children survive the husband and father.

Some weeks ago, while working on his farm near Fort Gay, Mr. Bartram sustained an injury to one of his arms. It in some way became infected and, in spite of all that could be done, death followed the injury (from blood poisoning)."

Julia died on 29 April 1939 at Fort Gay and was buried beside her husband.

Their eldest child, Bertha, was unmarried. She was an excellent cook at the Vanhoose Hotel in Fort Gay and later ran a restaurant in Louisa. Another child, Roy Charles Bartram was the source of many stories on Stephen Bartram.

Jeremiah Lincoln Bartram, known as Jerry, was born 25 October 1863 in Fort Gay, Wayne County (West) Virginia. His life is best recalled by a granddaughter, Carnas B. Branham:

"I never realized until asked about Grandad that I never heard him talk about his childhood or himself very much. He would rather tell you funny things that happened to others. You couldn't mention anyone's name that he didn't know of some incident or deed or something funny they had said. He was a farmer, but also a builder, blacksmith, self-taught veterinarian, and he could pull teeth when necessary.

He was the 11th child of William and Lurana. His mother died when he was 7 years old and his father when he was almost 14. He had it pretty rough I was told. Grandad was doing a man's work at 14 and he must have been around 16 when he started working with the lumbermen. From there he went to hauling. He made several trips down the Mississippi on rafts. There were certain homes that kept raftsmen and there was one in Missouri where they always stayed. They had a little girl there, named Carnas, who was about 9 years old. Grandad liked her and played with her. He'd make her toys by whittling them out of wood. He made her a doll, a top and a dog— one per trip— so that would account for at least 3 trips. Grandad always liked mules and wouldn't work with anything else. He got himself a span of mules and made several trips to Missouri hauling staples and raw materials like salt, clothing and other things that wouldn't spoil, but were needed in the stores there.

When he took those trips to Missouri hauling staples, he always managed it so that he could find a place to stay where they had a barn and stalls. He wanted a safe place to park his wagon and a stall for his mules. After he rubbed them down and fed them he'd put some fresh hay under the mule's belly and make his bed there (to be safe from bushwackers). He said a mule would never step on you and you were safe there. He always kept a double barrelled shotgun with him, as that was his favorite gun. He could also use a black snake whip, though he didn't believe in using it on animals. He said it was a good weapon if handled right.

When Grandad made his last trip to Missouri he went to work. He had an uncle, David's (Bartram) son-- John (P.), living there. Grandad liked to tease us and he'd say, 'I went to Missouri, got See sick and had to come home.' His eyes would twinkle and he'd look at Grandma and smile. We finally got the joke."

Jerry's See-sickness forced him to return to his sweetheart, Alwilda Paralee See. She was known as Wilda or Willie. They married on 10 October 1883 at Louisa.2
Carnas continues her story:

"Besides being a farmer, he also had a store at Salt Petre for awhile, but sold it. He liked farming better. His farm was about 2 miles south of Fort Gay on the Sunny Side Road. In fact, it was halfway between Fort Gay and Salt Petre and extended from the ridge to the Tug River.

I loved to spend the night at Grandad's. He would recite poetry, mostly humorous, but some Irish. He and Grandma would sing old ballads. They both had good voices and could sing well together. He always popped corn when it was cool enough to light a fire.

Grandad was 6 feet tall, with thick black hair and the bluest eyes. He was a devout Christian and had been saved at the Methodist (Episcopal) Church in Fort Gay two or three years after his marriage. (His obituary stated he had been a member since about 1878 and Wilda's said she joined about 19053). He'd get up before daylight, build a fire in the cook stove, wake up Grandma, then go do his chores by lantern light. He always did the milking, too. After breakfast he would sit and read his Bible until it was light enough to see how to work. He would also read it at noon and at night, then have family devotions before going to bed."

Jerry died on 7 November 1933 and was buried at the Bartram Church Cemetery. His wife of 50 years soon followed him there, on 2 February 1935.
William Sherman Copley was born 12 May 1872 near Fort Gay in Wayne County West Virginia. He was the son of William Bartram by Mrs. Aly Copley—the former Jane Pack. Sherman was raised by his step-brother, Elisha W. Bartram, and soon took the surname of Bartram, dropping the Copley (which he really wasn't).

His early life was tough, to say the least. Elisha apparently made every effort to raise him as one of his own, at least like a brother. But, very few of Sherman's other step-siblings accepted him publicly, even though he posed no threat to their inheritance. Sherman did receive some money from his father, but did not share in the landed estate. Some tensions probably erupted when, in 1926, Sherman was indicted on the misdemeanor charge of:

"unlawfully threatening to kill, beat and wound and do bodily harm to one Lizzie Bartram and her whole family." ²

Sherman lost his first wife, Nettie Lett, in 1913, leaving him with two small children. He remarried Lizzie Pyles in 1914, at his first father-in-law's home in Kenova. In his later years he lived with some of his children in Ohio, where he died on 24 April 1961.

David Kelly Frasher, who was known only as D. K., was born 22 February 1840 at Clifford in Lawrence County Kentucky. In 1923 he wrote, and had published, a pamphlet entitled History of the Frasher Family. Other members of his family spelled their name Frazier, but researchers have chosen to standardize that surname, and Ratcliff, to conform with those forms that D. K. used. His history was the genealogy of his relations, as he remembered them, and was written in the style of the Old Testament of the Holy Bible. It has very few personal facts or dates, but it is one of the most valuable sources on the relationships between many Big Sandy Valley families.

D. K. was an elder in a Protestant church, most probably Baptist. He died in Kenova in 1925.

² ANGELINA BARTRAM COPLEY

Angelina Bartram was born about 1834 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. On 17 January 1855 she was married to Sylvester A. Copley in Wayne County. ¹ In 1858 her father, John, and her brother, James, gave Sylvester all of their property in Wayne County to hide it from a creditor, Enoch Cyrus. John and James Bartram then left the state for Kentucky. Angelina's Uncle Enoch Cyrus then sued all of them to have the deeds invalidated. ²

The 1860 Census of Wayne County found Sylvester and Angelina at the Falls of the Tug River. On 10 August 1861 Sylvester joined Co. F (or H) of the 5th West Virginia (Union) Infantry, but developed rheumatism and was discharged at Camp Dennison Ohio on 26 June 1862. ³ William H.
Copley, Sylvester's brother, operated a large general merchandise store in Ceredo and participated in the two 1861 Wheeling Conventions that were the birth of the State of West Virginia. William H. then became the first State Senator from the 8th District (Wayne, Cabell, etc.). After his release from the army, Sylvester took his family to Ceredo to operate his brother's store while he served in the Legislature.

The Copley store at Ceredo was destroyed by fire, possibly the act of Confederate sympathizers. William H. Copley, losing the source of his income, was forced to leave the Senate and decided to go to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania to find work. William H.'s first wife, Nancy, refused to go and went to live with Sylvester and Angelina, who had just moved to Chadwick's Creek in Boyd County Kentucky in 1864.

Sylvester and Angeline remained in Boyd County, moving to Shope's Creek by 1873. Angelina died between 1870-7. Sylvester remarried to Julia A. about 1877 and had additional children. In the 1880's his brother, William H., returned from Indiana with his second wife to live with Sylvester temporarily (the first wife had already left). William H. Copley was still living there in 1900.

William H.'s daughter, Mary, born about 1852, had accompanied her father to Pittsburgh and chose to remain there. She was drawn to a church and was so moved by the sermon that she drew a ring off her finger to put in the collection plate; she had no money. One of the church elders was a widower named William Thaw, a millionaire. As the legend goes, they met after he heard what she had done, fell in love and were married a few month's later. Mary (Copley) Thaw's eldest surviving child was Harry K. Thaw, who killed the famous New York architect, Stanford White and had a much publicized sexual proclivity. Mary became the benefactor of Pikeville (Kentucky) College later in her life, hoping to help those people in the mountains who weren't as fortunate as she had been.

Benjamin Vaughan was born about 1840 in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. His sister, Sarah, was born about 1842 in Missouri. Before their 10th birthdays they were apparently orphaned and their family was split apart.
Ben and Sarah's older siblings went to live with their Vaughan relations in California. Ben and Sarah returned to live with their grandfather, James P. Bartram, where they were recorded in the 1850 Census of Carter County Kentucky.

The next year their grandmother, Delila Bartram, died and James P. remarried and left for Missouri. Ben went to live with neighbor and trusted relative, Stephen Bartram, where he worked as a farm hand and was recorded in the 1860 Boyd County Kentucky Census. Sarah was living next door with James P.'s youngest son, Robert Bartram. Sarah married Gooden Adkins in Boyd County in 1864.

A letter survives today that was written by Francis M. Booth to his grandmother, Lydia (Crabtree) Vaughan. It was dated 6 March 1867 from Wayne, Wayne County and contains the following paragraph:

"Benjamin Vaughan and Sary is here. Ben makes his home here with us a part of the time. He started down the river last Saturday, I don't know how long he will be gone. Sarah is married. She married a man by the name of Adkins, one of old Jesse Adkin's sons. She is living on Trout's Hill (now the town of Wayne) and is well. She has one child."

(165) MARTHA BARTRAM THOMPSON

Martha Bartram was born 12 July 1843 on Greenbrier Creek in Wayne County (West) Virginia. About 1866 she married Laban Thompson. Laban had joined Company E of the 16th Virginia (Confederate) Cavalry on 6 September 1862 as a Corporal. He was captured on 7-8 August 1864 at Moorefield, West Virginia and was sent to Harper's Ferry. On 10 August 1864 his name appears on a prisoner's roll at the Athenæum Prison in Wheeling, West Virginia and was sent the next day to Camp Chase Ohio, arriving on the 12th. At that time he was recorded as being 5 feet 7 inches tall, with a light complexion, grey eyes and light hair. On 18 March 1865 he was sent to Point Lookout, Maryland for a prisoner exchange. On 28 March 1865 he arrived at Camp Lee near Richmond, Virginia, where he was released. Receiving a month's furlough from the rebels, the war was over when the month was up and he never did return to his unit.

Martha and Laban's niece, Queen Franklin, recalls that they were of mild disposition, kind and loved by every-Martha and Laban converted to the Mormon faith around the turn of the century. About 1902-4 they invited 5 Mormons to stay with them at their home on Flat Branch near Genoa. Some neighbors formed a gang and whipped the visitors. The following story was told at a rainy day gathering at Bill Pelfrey's blacksmith shop by Bill Holland and was remembered by Queen:

"Henry Thompson, who was a brother of Laban and lived next door to him, was baptised by the Mormons in Twelvepole Creek below his barn. As Mormons always see visions, Henry, on coming up out of the water, saw the gates of Heaven open up and Joseph Smith in the opening just beckoning with his hands for Henry to come join him. Bill Holland said, 'Some of them said, when he got the water out of his eyes so he could see, it was his old mule in the barn door flapping his ears.' Uncle Laban and his brothers—Albert, Bernard and Henry—all went to Holden, Missouri at the same time. All of Laban's children were Mormons, except for Wilburn. Wilburn and Andrew went to Missouri for about a year, but soon returned to Wayne County. Their son Emory became a noted doctor at Holden."

Martha died at Sedalia, Missouri on 22 January 1927 and was buried at Holden. Laban soon followed on 12 December 1927 at Sedalia and was buried beside his wife.

Enoch Bartram was born on 2 July 1844 on Greenbrier Creek in what is now Wayne County West Virginia. He was named after an uncle, Enoch Cyrus, who had recently married Pop Bartram. According to the 1850 Census of Wayne County, Enoch Bartram attended school during the previous year. He had an adequate education as surviving writings reveal a fairly literate and composed hand. Sometime prior to July 1853 Enoch was baptised in Twelvepole Creek, near Echo, by the New Salem (now Greenbrier) Baptist Church.

On 2 September 1862 Enoch traveled to Trout's Hill (now the town of Wayne) and joined a cavalry company of Confederates being raised by Captain Hurston Spurlock for the Guyandotte Battalion of Colonel Milton Jameson Ferguson. Enoch was mustered into service on 15 September 1862 at Wyoming County (West) Virginia. Probably remaining in southwestern West Virginia, Ferguson's Battalion merged with Caldwell's Battalion on 15 January 1863 and the two were consolidated into the 16th Regiment of Virginia cavalry. Enoch's unit became Company E.

Due to poor conditions, Enoch fell very ill and was sent to a private hospital in Roanoke, Virginia from 10-27 February 1863. When he returned to his company they were moving north in preparation for raids in the northern Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

In May 1863 the 16th Virginia was placed under the command of Jenkins' Brigade. Albert Gallatin Jenkins, a graduate of Harvard Law School and a former United States Representative from Virginia, had been promoted to Brigadier General of the Confederate States Army by 1863. Jenkins' Brigade of Cavalry was briefly attached to the command of Lieutenant General Richard Stoddert Ewell's II Corps of A. N. V. (who succeeded Stonewall Jackson). In early June 1863 Enoch saw action at Middletown, Strasburg and Cedarville, Virginia. His company was also involved in minor skirmishes along the Front Royal Road. On 12 June 1863 Jenkins' Brigade was ordered to capture Federal garrisons, and retrieve rebel prisoners, at Berryville, Virginia and Martinsburg, West Virginia. Due to poor communication with Rodes' Infantry unit, the victory was only partially fulfilled.

Jenkins' Brigade then led an advance guard and crossed the Potomac River on 15 June 1863 and waited at Williamsport, Maryland for Ewell's main body of troops to catch up with them. General Robert E. Lee ordered Ewell to send Jenkins to Chambersburg, Pennsylvania in advance of the Gettysburg campaign. It was at Chambersburg that Jenkins was captured by the Union Army. Waiting for Jenkins' exchange, the brigade moved on to Greenwood, Pennsylvania to join Ewell. Once returned to his command, Brigadier General Jenkins led his brigade to Harrisonburg, Pennsylvania and then to Gettysburg.

The Battle of Gettysburg was fought 1-3 July 1863. It was there that Jenkins was wounded and Private Enoch Bartram spent his 19th birthday. Surviving the battle, and many others, without a scratch, Enoch was later asked how he managed to escape injury. He answered:

"Prayer. Whenever I went into danger I asked the Lord to accompany me."\(^3\)

Enoch's company returned to the Shenandoah Valley and made camp near Washington, Virginia, where on 26 July 1863 Enoch received 16 dollars in return for the food rations he had missed during his 16 day hospital stay in February.
According to the muster rolls of Company E, Enoch was absent on 31 October 1863 taking care of the wounded at North Mountain Station (or Depot) in Berkeley County West Virginia.

Colonel M. J. Ferguson and his troops returned to Wayne and Logan Counties West Virginia in January 1864. On 11 February 1864 Ferguson's 16th Virginia Cavalry Regiment boarded a steamboat at Red House Shoals on the Kanawha River, capturing Union Brigadier General Eliakim Parker Scammon. Scammon was sent to infamous Libby Prison in Richmond, Virginia. The steamboat's $10,000 cargo was seized before the rebels burned it, blocking navigation on the river. These acts caused a lot of fear and apprehension to Union supporters in the area. In response to the Confederate threat, two Wayne County local militias were formed on 1 February 1864. One was called the Independent Scouts and was commanded by Captain William "Billy" Bartram. A private in the Independent Scouts, or better known as "Home Guards", was Billy's first cousin, Rev. Lewis Bartram (Enoch's father). Union Colonel G. W. Gallup of Kentucky led a force of 400 regular service and local militiamen, on 14 February 1864, to rout out Ferguson's forces. On the left fork of Twelvepole Creek they found Ferguson's Regiment, near the head of Lick Creek. Col. Ferguson, 2 officers, the regiment surgeon and 44 privates were captured that day. The rebels lost 16 killed and a large number wounded. Sixty Federal prisoners were recovered from the Confederates.

Ferguson's remaining troops, including Enoch Bartram, split up and hid. Capt. Billy Bartram's Independent Scouts spent the next 2 weeks trying to round them up. Enoch's namesake, Uncle Enoch Cyrus, made an anti-Union remark about this time. While chopping wood, Cyrus was shot "off the log" by Independent Scout Private Bill Pauley. Even though his father was a Home Guard (descendants claim that this is not true), Enoch went to his father's home on Greenbrier Creek to hide out. Capt. Billy, suspecting that Enoch was there, ordered his men to search Lewis' home and even look behind clock faces for money. For Lewis to harbor a rebel would have meant treason and sure death, should he have been caught.

When the Home Guards arrived at Lewis', Enoch Bartram was away from the house, around the hill (near where Eva and Woodrow Crabtree live today). The Independent Scouts were interrogating Private Lewis and were going to arrest him, but Capt. Billy let his first cousin go free. They did arrest Thomas Vaughan and another man and were going to take them to Louisa. Vaughan escaped, but the other man was shot and killed on the spot. Enoch heard the shots and peeked around the hill. His sister Martha, who was in the doorway of Lewis' home, motioned for him to get out of sight. Enoch promptly got out of sight. 3

Enoch avoided capture and, before returning to active duty, even had an opportunity to meet and become smitten with a young girl named Charity. 17 By the end of March 1864 the 16th Virginia Regiment was under the command of Colonel Graham and had returned to the Shenandoah Valley, making camp at Jefferson County West Virginia. Another private in Company E was Benjamin Franklin Dean, a brother of Cynthia (Dean) Bartram, the wife of Enoch's Uncle Charley. On 19 July 1864 Ben wrote a letter to his wife which gives a good picture of the rebel sentiments at that time. It also gives some insight into Enoch Bartram at age 20:

"In Camp near Winchester, Virginia, July, 19, 1864.
Dear Wife:

I embrace the opportunity to write you a few lines to let you know I am alive and I am hoping that when these few lines come to hand they will find you well.

We are under General McCaslin (actually McCausland). We have been on a raid ever since the 11th day of May. We started at Lynchburg, from there back to the Valley of Virginia to Winchester, from there to Maryland to Frederick City. We fought 25,000 there. Lt. T. S. Walker was wounded, his jaw broken. Lt. Harris was wounded and captured. Hiram Grizzle's thigh was broken. Abraham Vaughan was shot through the body. I had two holes shot through my clothing in this battle—one through by pocket and one through my shirt sleeve.

We went near the City of Washington. We came back through East Virginia. We marched all last night. We have had mighty hard raids this Spring and Summer.

Nancy, I am very poor and feeble. And, Nancy, I want very much to see you and William and Lummy once more. I want to see you worse than any time in my life. Nancy, I haven't had a clean shirt for over 5 weeks. We manage to get enough to eat. We hook the Yanks at every point we can.

Tell my father and mother I would like to see them again before we are all swept into eternity. Tell father Booth and mother Booth that there is not a day but what I think about them, and long to see them once more.

We have been commanded by Col. Graham. He does nothing but drink and curse and if Col. Ferguson isn't exchanged by next season, I never expect to make another raid in this war.

Nancy, tell Matt I would like to see him but not in any War. Nancy, do the best you can, for at the best you now have a hard way of getting along.

Nancy, tell Charity that Enoch Bartram has fallen in love with her and says she is the prettiest girl he has ever seen. He asked me to come and see her for him. He says he is going to write her. We left Enoch Bartram at North Mountain with Hiram Grizzle, who was wounded. Enoch is a fine young man.

Nancy, when I return I want to see you fat and well, but War is very uncertain and I may never be able to see you again. I haven't drawn any money since I wrote you last.

Tell William and Lummy to be good children till I come home and the Lord will bless them. I have got two mighty fine horses and if peace was only made sometime soon, I could bring them back. I am worried sick to think I can't enjoy my home and the thought that I am banished from my wife and two little children grieves me daily. Tell Lummy and William to save me some apples to eat after I get back home from the war.

So, no more at present, I remain your affectionate husband until death."

Whether Enoch had actually fallen in love with Charity or was just being polite to one of Ben's relations is unknown. If he had fallen in love, he could not have pursued it. Ben did not know it, but when he wrote his letter Enoch was already in the hands of the Yankees. Of the raids mentioned by Dean, Enoch only saw the first few.

Before the march to Frederick, Maryland, Sargeant Hiram Grizzle broke the upper third of his right thigh. According to Hiram's service records, the wound occurred on 3 July 1864. He was taken to North Mountain Station (or Depot) by his buddy Enoch the same day. Either on that day or the next, 4 July, Enoch and Hiram were captured by the Union forces. Enoch recalled, in later years, that he hid under the porch of a cabin before being captured. 6

Hiram Grizzle was sent to Martinsburg, West Virginia for confinement, with his wound going untreated. Not until the next Spring was he sent to a hospital in Baltimore, Maryland. At that time nothing could be done for the leg, which had grown back 3/4 inch shorter than the left leg and at an angle which caused a serious limp. Where Enoch was confined at first is unclear, but it was probably Martinsburg or Harper's Ferry. Enoch's name doesn't appear on Company E's muster rolls until 31 December 1864. That roll listed him as absent and in the "hands of Yanks", having been captured on 3/4 July near Harper's Ferry. In February 1865 the company's muster roll lists Enoch as present, suggesting an exchange had taken place.

A prisoner's muster roll at Harper's Ferry on 23 February 1865 lists Enoch as newly confined there, having been captured 18 or 19 February at Hedgesville, West Virginia. Hiram Grizzle's records at Martinsburg, in late February 1865, also state that he was captured at Hedgesville on 19 February. Apparently, Enoch and Hiram were again captured at the same time. Due to his severe wounds, Hiram was sent to Baltimore and then released. After the war he returned to Wayne County, where he is mentioned as leading prayers and preaching at Greenbrier Baptist Church. He later moved away, but returned on a visit in his old age. He and Enoch met and it was reported that it was quite a reunion. Enoch stayed at Harper's Ferry for only 1 day. He was shipped out by train on 24 February 1865 to the Old Capitol Prison in Washington, D. C. The Old Capitol Prison was a hastily built substitute for the United States Capitol, which was burned by the British in 1814. Previous to the Civil War it had also been a hotel and by 1865 was considerably run down and crowded.

On 1 March 1865 Enoch was sent to Elmira Prison in New York State, arriving there on the 3rd. Elmira was started as a prison in May 1864, around barracks on the Chemung River. It was supposed to serve as a relief to the overcrowding of other prisons when both sides quit exchanging prisoners. The barracks of Elmira could only house half of the 10,000 prisoners held there, the remainder living in tents in the yard. According to some reports, the death rate was 5 percent a month and the scanty food was spoiled.

Although Enoch Bartram did not stay at Elmira during the harsh winter months, the conditions were still not desirable. Soon after arriving there, Enoch noticed that rebel prisoners were summoned to the commandant's office and never returned. The rumor was that they were being killed as sport for the Union officers' own amusement. One day Enoch Bartram was summoned to see the commandant and he knew that he was as sure as dead. When he got before the Union officer he was told that he must black (polish) his boots and then the commandant handed them to Enoch. Figuring he was going to be killed anyway, Enoch told the commandant that:

"I black no man's boots but my own."

The commandant laughed and took his boots back. As Enoch told the story, the commandant was so impressed with him that he made him a prison trustee and gave him special duties and privileges. On 19 June 1865, 2 months after the war ended, Enoch took the Oath of Allegiance at Elmira and regained his citizenship. At that time he was described as standing 5 feet 7 inches tall, with a florid complexion, dark hair and grey eyes.

In his later years Enoch told a granddaughter that he had to walk all the way home and was so hungry that a large family let him share in their bear meat supper and sleep on their cabin floor. A sister of Enoch told a different story to her daughter. Emarine B. Dickerson, who was 8 years old in 1865, remembered sitting on her father's porch on Greenbrier Creek. They all saw a man on a horse coming around the same hill where Enoch had hid the year before. Emarine said, "That looks like Enoch!". Everyone thought she was crazy, but sure enough it was Enoch, returning on the same horse he had left with.

When Enoch came home he began to court Mary Crabtree, whom he married on 11 October 1865 in Wayne County:

"I remember Grandma (Mary) had only her thumb and index finger on her right hand. She had told me that she was feeding some cane into a cane mill and lost three fingers (other descendants claim that the three fingers were not lost, but were ground into one gnarled mass that looked like a huge finger). Grandma was a bride when she had this accident; I think she said she had been married about 3 weeks. She had to learn to write with her left hand and raised 12 children."

Enoch and Polly, as she was known to her friends, lived on Greenbrier Creek. In 1870 they still did not own any land and, according to the Census of Wayne County, had only 120 dollars in personal property. By 1883 Enoch had received or bought several hundred acres on Greenbrier Creek, mostly from his father. Their home was upstream from Rev. Lewis' and hung over the hill on the north side of the road (between the little bridge and Bee Gum Hollow). Enoch earned his living by farming. Aunt Pop Cyrus often told a story on Polly Bartram. One harvest Pop helped Polly cook dinner for the men working in the wheat fields:

"(Pop) said Polly called out, 'All men who have worked come and eat and the rest of you stay there.'"

When Rev. Lewis Bartram died in 1894, Enoch served as administrator of the estate with his brother-in-law, Charles Soon afterwards, Enoch took his family to Kellogg (now near Camden Park in Westmoreland) in northern Wayne County, so that his unmarried sons could find work. Enoch remained on Greenbrier during the week to work the fields and then drove his team of horses to Kellogg on the weekends to be with his family.

Enoch's son, Freelin Bartram, decided to remain on Greenbrier Creek, so he went to live with his Aunt Emarine Dickerson, who lived in Rev. Lewis' old home. Freelin ran around with Clara Dickerson and Drucilla "Sissy" Osborn.
When Freelin and Sissy decided to get married on 27 February 1896, at Walter T. Osborn’s home on nearby Wolf Creek, Clara went along:

"They did not tell Emarine where they were going. When they returned Emarine was angry that she hadn’t been told, not because she would have gone, but she would have liked to know beforehand. Emarine refused to cook them any dinner, so Clara went into the kitchen and prepared their dinner."

Disaster struck when Enoch's rented Kellogg home burned down to the ground, destroying all their possessions. Neighbors tried to offer help, but Enoch would not accept. He held out his hands and said that as long as he had them he would do for himself and provide for his own family.

By 1899 Enoch's family had returned to Greenbrier Creek. On 25 March 1899 the Greenbrier Baptist Church minutes record that charges were preferred against Enoch Bartram, Jr. and Pearley Bartram for drunkenness and profane swearing. Rhoda B. Ferguson was also called upon at that meeting to visit Mary Workman and Harriet Huff and learn of their spiritual condition—apparently related to the charges against the Bartram boys. It was reported on 22 April 1899 that Enoch Jr. had said that he had never really been converted, so the church withdrew the hand of fellowship. After much investigation, on 22 July 1899, the church also withdrew the hand of fellowship from Fletcher Noble, Pearley Bartram and Bernard Bartram. Pearley was restored to full fellowship on 7 February 1901.

During that Summer of 1899 Enoch decided to head west:

"Grandpa was gone all one summer on a trip out west before they went there to live. He either traveled in a wagon or by horseback. He returned in the evening, while Grandma was milking. Grandma was really mad because he left his family to shift for themselves."

Enoch had gone to Oklahoma and liked what he saw. After discussing it over, the family decided to move west in late-1900. When packing, Polly realized that they could not take much on the train. She did want to take the slop jar; she scrubbed it out well, filled it with cookies and Bert, who was still a boy, had to carry it over his arm the whole trip. The only children of Enoch and Polly who did not go to Oklahoma were Freelin and Pearley, who remained on Wolf and Greenbrier Creeks, respectively. Pearley died on 22 December 1903 and was buried in the Osborn Cemetery.

on Wolf Creek. Freelin, whose wife owned the cemetery, lived on Wolf Creek all his life. He was primarily a farmer and kept dairy cows to make some extra income. He was a respected citizen of the area. Freelin served as a deacon of the Greenbrier Baptist Church, clerk from August 1905 to August 1916 and Sunday School Superintendent for two terms—August 1908 to August 1909 and August 1919 to August 1920.

The Bartram family traveled west by rail as far as they could go and then used horses and covered wagons. Tennie Bartram Ferguson and her family arrived a little later and were met at the train by her brother William in a wagon. The whole clan settled at or near Meridian, Oklahoma. One of Enoch and Polly's neighbors was the John E. and Nancy Jane (Wilson) Smith family, who were also their neighbors on Greenbrier Creek about 1872. While at Meridian, Rebecca met and was courted by Fred McCroskey, who was studying to be a teacher. Tennie's family contracted malaria and a local doctor told them that they would all die unless they left. Tennie's daughter, Rebecca Ferguson, did die there on 2 October 1902. Tennie and Sid brought their family back to Wayne County West Virginia by January 1903 and only went west again, on a visit, in 1914.

By the end of 1902 the whole Bartram family had returned to Wayne County. John Wesley Bartram was elected clerk of the Greenbrier Baptist Church in 1902, serving until 1903. Upon returning from Oklahoma, Polly, Rebecca, William, Laban and Bert Bartram and Tennie Ferguson also rejoined their old church. A revival was held on 8 January 1903 on Greenbrier and, while on their way home, Laban and William Bartram stopped at their Aunt Emarine's to attend an impromptu prayer meeting. William, Laban, Rebecca, Bert and Polly Bartram and Tennie Ferguson left Greenbrier Baptist Church in January 1903 to unite with Bethel Church.

In 1905 Enoch decided that he wanted to try his luck out west again, this time to homestead (they had rented in 1900). Preparing to leave, William married Vennie Crabtree and Bert married Laura Thompson, both on 29 November 1905. In December 1905 Enoch, Polly, John W. and family, William and wife, Bert and wife, Rebecca and George Bartram boarded a train for the trip west. Tennie, Freelin and Bernard decided to remain in the east. Enoch Jr. and Laban soon joined their family the next year.

Everyone settled again at Meridian, Oklahoma, except John W., who decided on nearby Coyle. Although they had not written each other during their separation:

"Rebecca was again courted by Fred (McCroskey), who had heard she was back. After 18 months they were married on 20 July 1907. They soon went to Guthrie for statehood celebrations. Fred was a teacher and had a short tenure as County Superintendent of Education. He went to work, in 1910, for the First (and only) State Bank of Meridian as a cashier (and by the time of his death was President). 14

The Bartrams rented the Oklahoma land again, because good homestead claims were not available. In 1907 Enoch and his sons, William and Laban, went further west to look for homestead land. Something happened to the horses, so Bill and Laban took off on foot, at dusk, towards a distant light. When they got to the cabin to get assistance, the homesteaders would not let them in at first. Enoch was left in the wagon. He often told a tale about wolves coming right up to the side of the wagon and peering over, scaring him to death. 12 Finally getting to Fort Sumter, in what is now DeBaca County New Mexico, they applied for homestead land in a valley about 10 miles to the north. Three hundred twenty acres was all that could be claimed by one family for a homestead. Enoch and William got a full section (640 acres), adjacent to each other. William later received title to all this land for helping his father in his final illness. Nothing else was available nearby, so Laban applied for 320 acres about 4 or 5 miles across the valley at Harris (or House). Bert later got land near Laban. 16

Gathering up the families in the latter part of 1907, they were ready to move to New Mexico by covered wagon. Rebecca recalled that in the first wagon was Enoch, Polly and George. In another wagon was Bert with Laban's family. Laban rode to New Mexico in a railroad boxcar to feed, milk and watch over the families' cattle and was assisted by Beecher Crabtree. Beecher's wife, Maryetta (Bartram), and son Floyd Crabtree went with Bill and Vennie, who were in the third wagon. Enoch Bartram, Jr.'s family was in the last wagon.

Beecher Crabtree stayed only part of a year, having settled at Fort Sumter. Bert Bartram stayed less than three years, returning to Wayne County by 1911. Laban stayed only a few years, too short of a time to get clear title to his homestead. For a brief period he operated a store in Fort Sumter and then returned to Wayne County.

Enoch Bartram laid aside about 6 acres of his land for a church and named the area Taft, New Mexico for the President. At Taft, Enoch attempted cattle ranching. On the northern end of the land he dug a big well and had a wind mill to pump water into a tank for the animals. But, it just wasn't profitable.

In 1909, starving as a farmer (especially in the dry climate of New Mexico), William took his wife and son back to Oklahoma, where he rented land near Guthrie. Enoch watched over their land, but fearing that he would lose his homestead, William returned to Taft in 1910-1. Bill hated to farm, so he built a small store and post office at Taft. The trade was mostly with local homesteaders, Indians and Mexicans. Vennie, who ran the post office, learned to speak Spanish. The area was a breeding ground for wild rabbits—a local menace. Bill paid a small bounty for the skins of the rabbits and soon had them piled high on benches in his store. He took the rabbits to another location where they weren't so plentiful and sold them at a nice profit. That was about the only profit any of the Bartrams made in New Mexico. Some descendants claim that they decided to leave New Mexico because they feared World War I would come up through Mexico and overtake them. Others say that it was just a matter of boredom, desolation in emergency situations and miserable growing conditions.

By 1918 the Bartram family had all returned to West Virginia, except for Enoch, Jr., John W. and Rebecca. Enoch, Polly, Bill and Vennie just came home for a visit to see relatives, but took one good look around and decided to stay in the east. It is not known where Enoch and Polly lived from 1918 until the early 1920's, when they went to live with Tennie Fergusson, near Wheelersburg, Ohio. Tennie's daughter, Helen, recalls:

"Grandpa Enoch was a thin man with grey hair and he couldn't hear too well. He didn't talk a lot and spoke in a low voice. At our home he had a garden and carried vegetables in a sack, slung over his shoulder. He would carry the sack to Wheelersburg and sold the vegetables door-to-door. Grandma was also hard of hearing and neither had teeth. Grandpa was always humming or whistling under his breath. Grandma read people's lips. She called Enoch 'Pa' and 'old man'. I remember when they were reading their Bible they traced the lines with their fingers and always read aloud."6

Polly Bartram got very ill while at Tennie's. About 1925 Enoch and Polly went to live in Kenova, Wayne County West Virginia with Bill and Vennie, who had made good. Returning from New Mexico in 1918, Bill's family stayed for a short time with Freelin on Wolf Creek. They then went to Nolan in Mingo County to open a store, where Bert Bartram was the foreman in a coal mine. The trade at Nolan was with laid off miners who couldn't pay their debts. When 2000 dollars in accounts due were on the books, William decided to take his losses and board a train for Kellogg. They opened another store in Kellogg, where Laban had a store of his own. Business there being poor, Bill left after a few months. They then settled in Kenova and rented a frame two story building on Chestnut Street and moved into the three story home next door. Through innovations such as loss leaders and sidewalk displays, Bill finally lured enough business his way to invite Laban, whose store was not doing so well, to come join him in 1925. The store was then renamed "Bartram Brothers" and the brick-faced building was bought from George O. Ellis.

When Enoch brought Polly to live with Bill, she was alert and communicative, but bedridden. Enoch watched his son go to the city farmstand and buy truckloads of fruits and vegetables at, what seemed to him to be, high prices. Enoch got permission to put in a garden in a vacant lot on Pine Street. When his crops came in, Enoch sold them to Bill, who paid a little higher than top dollar. Enoch's death certificate recorded (in William's own hand) that he had continued farming until 1927.

On 5 December 1929 Polly died. She was laid out in a blue dress and placed in a grey coffin. As was a custom with some at the time, a professional photographer came into Bill's front parlor (where the visitation was) and took her picture. The funeral was preached at Greenbrier Baptist Church by Rev. B. S. Akers. It poured rain on the day of her funeral, making difficult the burial on top of the hill at the Osborn Cemetery on Wolf Creek.

Near the end of Enoch’s life, Bill recalled that he had not seen his father angry in over 30 years. Enoch was a riveting storyteller, especially about the Civil War. Freelin’s grandson, Jim Bartram (who was 5 when Enoch died), recalls that his most vivid memory of Enoch was the stomach ache he had every time his great-grandfather visited. He could never understand why until, years later, it was pointed out by his brother, Harold, that the stomach ache was undoubtedly caused by laughter at Enoch’s tales.

Enoch Bartram became seriously ill in September 1932 from nephritis and hypertension. Dr. J. W. Rife was called in, but at age 88, there was very little they could do. Enoch died on 22 November 1932 and was laid to rest next to his wife. His funeral was also held at Greenbrier Baptist Church and preached by his nephew, Rev. Carmi Crabtree.

Mary Bartram was born 31 May 1848 (or 21 June 1859) on Greenbrier Creek, Wayne County (West) Virginia. On 16
February 1868, she married Charles Wesley Crabtree. C. W. and Mary lived on the ridge between Greenbrier Creek and the head of Joel's Creek. According to their son, Strother Crabtree, the home started out as a log cabin and then later was improved into a large frame house, which burned in late June or early July 1916.

Mary was a fine seamstress and quilter who often spun and dyed her own material. She passed this skill to her daughter, Mary Ellen Crabtree Ratcliff, whom the Wayne County News proclaimed was the quilt making champion of the county in 1933. C. W. Crabtree, along with his brother-in-law, Enoch Bartram, was administrator of the estate of Rev. Lewis Bartram in 1894.

Mary died on 3 November 1895 at her home. C. W. died on 14 May 1925 (or 14 June 1924) in Wayne County. Their son Strother was a family historian and kept a valuable notebook in which he recorded a great deal of Wayne County history by interviewing older residents. Carmi Crabtree, another son, was a prominent Baptist minister and resided in the former home of Rev. W. V. Dickerson. Mary's youngest son, Chauncey R. Crabtree, was disabled during World War I. He served as postmaster of Fort Gay from 1934-9.

Armilda Bartram, called Mildie, was born 24 August 1854 on Greenbrier Creek. On 29 November 1869 she married Lindsey Wilson in Wayne County. They reared their family on Flat Branch near Genoa. Queen D. Franklin recalled that:

"Aunt Mildie, mother of 14, was very small, gentle and kind. Her family visited us often. Her younger boys went to school at Flat Branch, where my sister Eliza was their teacher."

Mildie's daughter Martha Jane married James Matthew Young, who was, in fact, a Mounts.

Emarine Bartram was born 7 April 1857 on Greenbrier Creek in Wayne County (West) Virginia. On 23 July 1874 she married Rev. William Vincent Dickerson on Greenbrier Creek. According to Hardesty, Rev. Dickerson entered the ministry...
They first lived with Rev. Lewis Bartram, then built their own home about 100 yards further downstream. In late June or early July 1894 Rev. Dickerson was going to buy some planks of wood for a building project. He borrowed a mule owned by Freelin Bartram and went to the mill. The mule was spooked and caused Dickerson to be hit in the head by a plank. He lingered for a time and died at his home on 14 July 1894, his wife still in a state of shock. His three year old daughter, Queen, recalled:

"Father's funeral was preached under 4 huge apple trees. Someone who had a mill made seats. I remember them. They were still there when Grandpa died in September. Mother had an awful task. She worked in the fields and house, but was independent.

Mother was medium height, slender, grey eyes, jet black hair, jolly, full of jokes (never a smutty joke), read a lot and had a good memory. Bad language was never allowed at our house. Mother had little schooling but a wonderful education. She kept up with current events all of her life. Uncle Lewis (Jr.), Aunt Rhoda and mother were together a lot and my sister often said it was a delight to her to hear them discuss the Bible.

On 8 January 1903 mother was down with the 'grip'. A revival meeting was in progress at Greenbrier Baptist Church with Rev. Jack Smith as minister. Brother Henry or I had to stay with mother by turns. I was 12. It was my turn to stay. Eliza was 22. She hurried home, sat on mother's bed and began: 'We had a wonderful meeting. Boyd and Pearly Rigg were converted this p.m. before meeting. I have asked the group who come this way to come in for a prayer meeting. Do you feel like getting up before they get here?' Mother had been in bed most of the time for several days, but she started rolling out and dressing. The oldest of the group were Laban (Bartram) and Eliza (Dickerson). There were Laban, William, Bert and Floyd Bartram, Baylas and Pearly Rigg, cousin Milton Ferguson and brothers Boyd and Willie (Dickerson). Eliza said, 'I am asking Laban to conduct this prayer meeting and to especially pray for 3 things: Mother's recovery, Willie's conversion and Floyd (Dickerson's) return—he was working away—before this meeting closes.' All three prayers were answered. These boys held prayer meetings in an old vacant house later on. Floyd Bartram (John W.'s son) was converted there. I am the only one of the group present that night who is living (1984).

My family continued to have family prayer until work called them away. Eliza continued as long as she lived to kneel by her bed at night after reading her Bible. I had the joy of attending school on Joel's Branch with her as my teacher. She read a chapter and prayed each morning. She always received awards in any Bible contest.

Mother was very strict with us. We were not allowed to say any of the slang words many used. I wanted to use bad words then, but knew the consequences. Later I did not want to, so to this day I do not have the habit."

In 1907 Emarine and Queen moved to Holden, Missouri. On 21 December 1907 Freelin Bartram asked Greenbrier Baptist Church to write a letter of dismission for them so they could unite with a Holden Baptist church. The letter was granted and given to Freelin so that he could send it to them.

Willie V. Dickerson's first wife, Sadie Ball, died after childbirth on 25 May 1914 in Chillicothe, Ohio. Her death left Willie with three young daughters. Sadie's sisters helped out for a year and then, about 1915:

"Grandmother Emarine came to live with us. She raised us 3 girls. Grandmother Emarine was a very religious person who always took us to Sunday School and church. She was kind and good to us and kept us neat and clean. She was a very hard working woman and always fed anyone who came to our door begging. Everyone loved her. She would do anything she could for her neighbors. She was a very good cook, too."

Emarine was living with her daughter, Queen, in Versailles, Indiana when she died in December 1935. Her body was brought back to Barboursville in Cabell County West Virginia and buried in the Oaklawn Cemetery.

Her daughter, Queen Franklin, is the source of so many wonderful stories of Wayne County history. Born in 1891, her memory begins about 1894 and is clearer than many half her age. Although she loves to recall the past, and does it so well, she does not live in it. Queen is a professional artist whose work has had many exhibitions. A Christmas plate edition was made of one of her pieces and Lewis Bartram, Junior was born 5 December 1859 on Greenbrier Creek in Wayne County. He married first to Lenova Ferguson and then to Tennie C. Artrip. He raised his family on Crabtree Hill between the heads of Hurricane Creek and Trace Fork of Twelvepole Creek. Queen D. Franklin recalled that her Uncle Lewis was gentle, kind and jolly. His son, John Lewis Bartram, recalled:

"While my grandfather was a preacher, my father taught singing in churches as a young man. He drove a team of ox for his father-in-law, logging sawmills and rafting timber. Tennie's father was L. K. Vinson of Saltpetre. My father would get up at 4 a.m., walk a mile, feed 5 or 6 yoke of oxen. When they were through eating he would yoke them up and go to the woods. Timber, in those days, were 3-4 feet across at the stump.

Aunt Josephine was mother's youngest sister (her father was probably a Dolan); she was blind and referred to as Blind Jo. She made her home with her sister Tennie Bartram. She never married. When I was young the churches and neighbors collected money and bought her a Bible printed in Braille. It came to Echo on the morning train. My father and half-brother (Alonzo or 'Lon') took the team and wagon to haul the box of books home. There were 12 volumes of them in a large wooden box. When they arrived back at the creek crossing at the old Wesley Huff place the creek was up. They carried the box of books across the walk log. My father went back to drive the team and wagon across the creek. The wagon bed floated off the wagon with my father in it. He tried to save it by holding on to the willows. He gave up and dove into the water. He swam ashore with a big overcoat on, a whip in his hand and wearing a pair of felt boots. Lon cut the harness off the horses and led them out of the water. The wagon hung in the willow bushes."

In 1910 Lewis became bedridden and developed a terrible cough. He died at his home on 8 December 1910 and was laid to rest in the Bartram Cemetery across the road (now the big bend on Route 37).

John Lewis Bartram has been another source of wonderful stories and oral histories. He was for many years a cook on ships. Until recently he was the only plumber in Tucson, Arizona who could repair damaged enamel in bathtubs, hence the nickname of "the Bathtub Man".

Rhoda Bartram was born 13 August 1863 on Greenbrier Creek. She married 20 May 1882 on Greenbrier Creek to Lewis Stokes Ferguson. They raised their family on Greenbrier Creek, between Lewis and Enoch Bartram's homes. Rhoda lost 5 of her 8 children in infancy. The babies were buried in the family cemetery near her father.

Rhoda had blue eyes and brown hair. She was very religious. About 1906 the Greenbrier Baptist Church was debating whether or not to buy an organ. Rhoda felt that there should not be instrumental music used in the church. When someone told her the organ had been bought and delivered she became so upset that she forgot whether she had eaten her supper or not.

Rev. Lewis' Bible went to Rhoda, whose husband helped appraise his estate in 1894. After Rhoda's death it went to her daughter, Nellie J. Baker. Besides raising her own children, Rhoda also raised her daughter, Margaret Dean's, children. Nellie continued:

"Greenbrier Creek once had a dam opposite our house. Our farm had a house, large barn and chicken house. When we left West Virginia, the farm was sold to Scott Christian. All of the buildings were burned and I had been told that Scott was convicted of arson and sent to prison."

Rhoda and family went to Holden, Missouri about 1907. The 1910 Census showed them living in Rose Hill Township in Johnson County Missouri. In the mid-1920's:

"Rhoda and Lewis Ferguson spent the summer visiting folks in Ohio and West Virginia. Their Model T Ford was loaded down and they cooked their meals along the and slept in the car. They parked in our back yard and refused to sleep in the house (Tennie Bartram Ferguson's), but they did eat with us. Enoch (who was
In 1944 Rhoda was living with her nephew, Bill Bartram at Kenova in Wayne County. She died there on 19 March 1944. She was buried on Wolf Creek at the Osborn Cemetery. Her husband, Lewis Stokes Ferguson, followed her there in 1955.

Their daughter, Nellie Jane Ferguson Baker, was a good source of many interesting tales of Wayne County families. In her 80's her mind was very sharp. According to Queen Franklin, Nellie had gone to Sac City, Iowa on a visit. She was knocked down by a dog and broke her hip. She was never able to return home, and at the last she had a stroke or two before dying on 23 December 1982.

Nellie's brother, Milton J. Ferguson, also met with a tragic death. He was helping an old man gas up his car when a group of teenagers drove up. Their car struck Milton and pinned him into the other car. His leg was so badly cut that he died to death on the way to the hospital.

America Bartram was born on 3 November 1865 on Greenbrier Creek. Because she was the last child of Rev. Lewis, whose oldest child was 22 years old in 1865, she was called Babe all her life. She married William V. "Bill" Pelfrey on 4 March 1880 at her home by her brother-in-law, Rev. W. V. Dickerson. Babe was only 14 years old.

Bill Pelfrey was a blacksmith on Greenbrier Creek and his shop was a local hangout for stories and gossip on rainy days. Bill made the coffin for Rev. Lewis in 1894, as well as many others.

Babe died at age 31 on Crabtree Hill on 19 January 1896. She was buried beside her parents on Greenbrier Creek. Bill remarried Anne Robinson and had additional children.

Marshall Cyrus was born about 1846 on the left fork of Mill Creek in Wayne County. On 26 July 1865 he married Nancy Osborn in Lawrence County Kentucky. His mother, Mary "Pop" Cyrus granted permission for him to marry. Marshall and Nancy lived on Wolf Creek, near her parents, for a time. By 1897 they were living in Ceredo.

(198) JAMES P. CYRUS

James P. Cyrus was born 14 April 1852 on Mill Creek in Wayne County. He was named after a grandfather, James P. Bartram. Jim Cyrus was an eyewitness to the murder of his father in 1864.

James P. had a falling out with his mother, Pop Cyrus. He sued her in July 1876 to have his father’s lands partitioned. As a result of that action, Jim’s family was not included with the others in the John Cyrus Cemetery on Cyrus (now Watts) Ridge and established his own less than 100 yards away.

Jim Cyrus was a farmer on the ridge between Greenbrier and the left fork of Mill Creek. He was especially known for raising peaches.

(219) CHAPMAN ADKINS

Chapman Adkins was considered the best chancery lawyer at the Wayne County Bar during the late-1800’s. He was the first postmaster at Adkins’ Mills (now East Lynn) in 1868. Chapman was also the 1st recorder for the town of Wayne, elected 21 June 1882 and was Commissioner of Accounts in Wayne County in 1883-4.

His son, Boyd Adkins, studied law under Chapman. Boyd then studied under J. M. Meek. In February 1919 the West Virginia Legislature passed a special act authorizing the Supreme Court of West Virginia to issue Boyd Adkins a license to practice law.

Chapman’s daughter, Myrtle, married Menis Elbert Ketchum. Menis went by his initials—M. E. As Sheriff of Wayne County, M. E. Ketchum appeared in Ripley’s Believe It or Not for the appropriateness of his name. Menis’ first wife was Nancy Maud Thompson, a daughter of Bernard P. and a niece of Laban Thompson. She took their young son, Bernard Ketchum, and left with the Mormon movement in Wayne County to settle at Holden, Missouri.
Harriet Adkins married William Smith Napier, who was the owner of two general merchandise businesses; in Ceredo he operated W. S. Napier and Company and in Wayne Court House he ran Adkins and Napier. Between 1884 and 1912 they were divorced, having no children. By 1912 Harriet was living in Washington State. She then moved back to Ceredo, dying there on 6 June 1921. She was buried at Wayne under the name of Adkins.

W. S. Napier began in the timber business and then went into merchandising. About 1900 he got involved in the flourishing coal industry around East Lynn and in southern Wayne County. At the time of his death, on 24 September 1921, he had amassed a great deal of wealth.

Gus Bartram came to Lexington, Kentucky as a child. In 1903 he appeared as a soloist in a concert given at Morrison Chapel on the campus of Transylvania University. In 1918 he had a chance meeting on a New York City Street with a friend from Lexington, Vertner Saxton. They formed a Vaudeville act called "Bartram and Saxton" and brought down the house at the plush Keith House in New York with their singing, yodeling and side-line patter. The team of Bartram and Saxton reached its zenith when they performed at New York's famed Palace which was known as the pinnacle of success for vaudeville performers.

John Bell Bartram was a partner in the firm of D. Bartram and Company—the D. being his father, David. John later opened a drug store in Fort Gay. He then attended medical school and built the first hospital at Ashland, Kentucky. The hospital, Saint Mary's, was located at 738 Carter Avenue. Dr. John Bell was a noted surgeon and specialized in women's disorders and nervous complaints.
George Washington Bartram, called Wash, didn't like his name. His older brother, William Vincent, had died at a young age after being kicked in the head by a horse. Wash went to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania early in the Twentieth Century, where he was a city policeman. He began to sign his name with just the initial W. and added a little tail to it which suggested something else. People would ask about the name, "Is it Wm.?", so he just assumed that name. He later added the V. and sometimes even used the full name Vincent. His children, who only knew him as Wm. V., didn't understand why everyone around Fort Gay called him Wash and everywhere else he was called Bill.

Ulysses Grant Bartram, who usually used only his initials—U. G. Bartram, owned considerable amounts of land.
in Fort Gay. In 1922 he subdivided this land near the High School and sold the lots. This area of Fort Gay is still known on the plats as the U. G. Bartram addition.

James Davis Bartram, called Davis, died 7 January 1908 at Fort Gay. Davis was a Republican and was shot and killed instantly by Sam Kinsler, a Democrat, on election night. Davis left behind a widow and a 1 year old daughter, Edith. There is also some evidence that Davis had another child. Edith inherited land in Fort Gay from her grandfather, John Bartram, where the High School, football field and Bartram Cemetery are today. The land was collecting a lot of rent and her mother, Bessie (Ratcliff) Bartram, was appointed trustee and guardian.

Bessie's brother-in-law, William Lewis Bartram, who never married, did not think Bessie was the best mother for Edith. Bessie had remarried to Ballard Thompson who sued her for divorce on the grounds of adultery. William L. sued Bessie and got custody of Edith. Bessie continued to keep Edith for awhile and received a sum of money from William L. for doing so until William L. got Amanda Bartram Wilkinson to keep Edith for a lesser sum. When Bessie remarried again to Burt Billups, she proved to the court that she was a fit mother and received Edith back. William L. then kidnapped Edith to get her away from her mother. Just before her 15th birthday, Edith died on 16 August 1921 and the land passed to Bessie's other two children—Leon and Bill Billups.

Abigail Bartram married Lewis Wellman Borders, who was a partner in a Fort Gay Hardware store with his brother, Wallace Borders. Lewis was also a member of the Butler District Board of Education at the time when the Fort Gay High School was built. The Borders were also involved in trucking and owned one of the first filling stations in Fort Gay.
The Wayne County News carried the following article on 14 January 1915, on page 3:

"DAVID BARTRAM KILLED"

On last Tuesday morning David Bartram, son of Sam Bartram of Long Branch, Butler District, was killed near Genoa, by someone in the bushes nearby. Bartram had had trouble with George Copley over his wife and had brought a suit against Copley for 10,000 dollars damages. Bartram’s wife had been staying in the vicinity of Copley’s home since this separation. Bartram had received a letter asking him to come to Genoa and that his wife would live with him again if the suit would be dropped. Bartram went and it is said compromised the suit and had started to go back to his father’s home his wife being with him but when they reached a point near the mouth of Drift five shots were fired at Bartram and all entered his body and he died instantly from the wounds. A coroner’s jury pronounced the death due to gun shot wounds.

Bartram’s body was taken to Tabor's Creek and buried on last Friday.

No arrests have been made at this date but both Copley and the Bartram woman will be taken into custody as soon as their whereabouts can be obtained.”

According to local reminiscences, David, while on his way to ultimate death, walked through the woods, stopping at the home of his wife’s cousin, Julia Doss Dawson. Julia begged him not to go, but he refused to listen. When shot, Dave fell and grabbed a barbed wire fence. The wires went through his hands and had to be cut out before they could load his body into a wagon owned by Pharaoh Watts.

According to one source, Maud and George fled to Tennessee where they were apprehended. Traveling to Tennessee to extradite the couple, the authorities (thought to have been bribed) reported back that the couple in custody was not Copley and Bartram. The two were released with no charges filed.

John L. Bartram remembered it another way:

"George claimed he thought David was going for his gun. When they got to David, he was hanging with both hands clinched to the top wire of the fence. He had several bullet holes in his back. Sam Crum was sheriff and I think Wesley Huff was a deputy. He was William Johnson Bartram, or Jay, was a teacher in Fort Gay in his teens. He went to the University of Louisville Medical School before his 18th birthday, returning to practice at Fort Gay. He lived and had an office in his home at the mouth of Paddle Creek on Mill Creek about 3 miles out of Fort Gay. In 1918 Dr. Jay had an office at Omar, West Virginia. He moved back to Fort Gay to set up another office there where he was known as an especially good fever doctor. During an extended heat wave, he died in 1936 of a massive heart attack at the foot of his stairs. His third wife, Laura, and Charley Price found him moments later. Laura (Ellis) Bartram had two sons who bore the Bartram name—James Robert Bartram who was born 21 December 1937 in Wayne County and Jackie Bartram who was born 19 April 1939 in Wayne County.
Arvil P. Adkins was one of the first men in West Virginia to suffer the fate of the new death penalty under the Lindbergh Act for Kidnapping. Adkins, Arnett Allen Booth and a man named Travis were executed on 21 March 1938 for the kidnapping of a Dr. Seder from his home on Eighth Avenue in Huntington on 1 November 1937.

A few days after the kidnapping, members of the Seder family received a ransom note for 50,000 dollars. On 11 November Dr. Seder was found alive near the entrance to an abandoned mine on Gragston Creek in Wayne County. The kidnappers were arrested a few hours later. Dr. Seder died on 15 November 1937 from pneumonia and cerebral hemorrhage, suffered from repeated blows on the head. Adkins was found guilty of kidnapping in December in Cabell County and was sentenced to hang, Governor Holt refusing a pardon or stay of execution. He was buried at Fairview Cemetery in Fort Gay.¹

William "Bill" Stewart was the American Broadcasting Company newsmen who was shot by a Nicaraguan National Guardsman in June 1979. The television footage of his death was broadcast on all major networks and was seen with horror by millions. Bill Stewart, a native of Wayne County and Huntington, was buried near Ashland, Kentucky in Rose Hill Mausoleum on U. S. Route 60-West.

Since many researchers feel that Jane Peery was the daughter of a John Peery, the following was taken from Schreiner-Yantis, Netti, Annals of the Pioneers of Tazewell County Virginia, (Springfield, VA, 1973), pg. 278:

There were two John Peery/Perrys living in Tazewell County Virginia who received Revolutionary War Pensions. One was John Peery who was residing in Cabell County (West) Virginia on 2 December 1812, when he applied for a State Pension and stated that he was 74 years old and had no family to support him. He had served in the Revolution under Capt. James Moore at the Alamance; received wounds—one in the right arm, one in the right hand, one in the breast, two in the neck, and four in the head with swords. Samuel Ferguson deposed on 30 September 1812 that he was at the Alamance with John Peery. The second John Perry who had served in the Revolution died 5 March 1844. His widow applied in Tazewell County on 10 July 1845.

It is interesting to note that the researcher appointed by the Wayne County Court published the names of the descendants of David and Eliza (Ratcliff) Bartram, mistaking him for his grandfather. Lucy, whose children died without issue, could have been moved without such efforts by the court.

and Rev. J. C. Lambert. He died 11 February 1857 at Sidney, Wayne County Virginia, now West Virginia. According to the Bible of grandson Rev. Lewis Bartram, James Parot Wilson married in 1794 to Sarah Mountz in Jackson County Tennessee at the home of her father, David Mountz. Other descendants report that it was her brother, David Mountz.

Sarah "Sally" Mountz was born 19 February 1775 or 19 April 1780 in Maryland and apparently died during the Civil War when death records were not kept in Wayne County. A family legend states that she (or her mother) was stolen by the Cherokees and held captive for 7 years. Another story was that she was of Indian blood. The white name John Mountz and the Indian names Woodal and Rain Crow are prominent in the stories. A Rain Crow has been found in the 1835 Census of Cherokees in North Carolina.

A marriage bond exists in Bath County Virginia where on 11 January 1795 Agnes Givens granted permission for a Sally Mounts to marry James Wilson. The consent note was witnessed by Robert Given and John Berry. On 13 January 1795 a Bath County marriage bond was issued to James Wilson and was cosigned by Robert Given. George Guthrie, a regular Baptist Minister, made an entry on 30 July 1795 that he had performed the ceremony, presumably earlier in the year. The relationship between the Givens and Sarah Mountz is unknown. Agnes Givens was also guardian of Polly Mountz (believed to be Sarah's sister) in 1801. A Rev. Wilson was known to have the guardianship of several children in the settlement on Jackson's River in Bath County. Rev. Wilson died about 1790. It is possible the Mountz girls then went to live with the Givens family who lived near the Wilsons and were connected by marriage. An Agnes Bratton married to William Givens in 1764 in Augusta County Virginia.

There is strong speculation that Sarah Mountz Wilson was the daughter of Lawrence and Sarah Mounts. Sarah (the elder) returned to Maryland from Bath County Virginia to settle the estate of her late husband Lawrence Mounts. Lawrence and Sarah are known to have had at least two children, named David and Sarah.

A David Mounts settled on the Tug River at the mouth of Peter Creek in Pike County Kentucky in 1802. By 1810 he was living in Cabell County where he received 125 acres on Tug River in 1820. In 1832 he received a grant to 100 acres on Tug in what is now Mingo County West Virginia. The children of David Mounts were Charles, Jackson, Alexander, Nancy, Sarah, William, Peter, Michael and Patsey Mounts. The descendants of David Mounts claim a Portuguese ancestry. One of his descendants was probably Ellison Mounts, a cohort of the Hatfields in their famous feud, who was hanged in Pikeville, Kentucky in 1890.

The earliest known Mounts in Maryland was Christopher Mounts/Mounce who was naturalized a British citizen in Cecil County in 1700. He reported that he was born of Dutch parents. He married a Martha and had the following children (all born in St. Stephen's Parish, Cecil County Maryland): Marey Mounce baptised 6 September 1698; Ann Mounce baptised 9 January 1702 and married in 1727 to Robert Mercer; Martha Mounce baptised 16 March 1704; Anderson Mounce baptised 13 October 1708.

There is a similarity in the names found in the families of David and Lawrence Mounts when compared with the children of Sarah Mountz Wilson. Although there is no known relationship between them, it can be assumed.

There is a contemporary James Wilson of Cabell, Mason and Kanawha Counties, now in West Virginia, who appears to be of no relationship to James Parot Wilson. That James Wilson, an attorney, was a son of Stephen and Jane (Dinwiddie) Wilson and married Patsy Russell, a daughter of Jeffrey and Sally Russell. This Stephen Wilson was a nephew of Rev. William Wilson who died about 1790 in Bath County Virginia.

The children of James Parot and Sarah "Sally" (Mountz) Wilson are:

31-New Salem (Greenbrier) Baptist Church Minutes. Baptist church minutes generally did not record the dates of death, marriage or infant baptism of their members at that time. However, a note might be made on the current membership roll. Rev. Lewis Bartram, the church clerk put such a note by his mother's name stating that she died "Aprile 29th, 185_." The last numeral was faded through age and rebinding. The date 1851 has been ascertained because she was alive in the 1850 census in August and her husband remarried in March 1852.

36-Pannel could be a reference to William F. Bartram, the son of John and James P.'s nephew. In the 1840 Cabell County Virginia (West Virginia) Census is a William Pannel aged 30 to 40 years with his family. Next door was a younger James Pannell. Both Pannel(l) families were adjacent to a James T. Carroll (James P.?) aged 50-59 years and a Charles Carroll aged 20-29 years. It is not improbable that this is the same James P. Carroll who was an in-law to George Peery and who acted as Stephen Bartram's attorney in 1815 in Russell County Virginia. Perhaps the Pannels were relations or friends of Stephen Bartram. That William Pannel(l) probably married on 25 December 1830 in Montgomery County Virginia to Elizabeth Reece, the daughter of George Reece. The third option on who Pannel was is that it may have been a transcription error and was meant to be Van Bartram, who is thought to have not moved to the area for a few years after 1855.

Each family was given a nickname to keep down the obvious confusion when referring to them, such as the Bowwow Adkins who were noted for their loudness, etc. Edward Adkins' line was the Royal Adkins. They were supposedly descended from Mary, Queen of Scots. They began with four brothers—David, Sherod, Jacob and Mark. Mark was allegedly hanged by the British during the Civil War. The remaining three brothers came at an early date to the southwestern portion of WV. Dave settled on Mud River in Cabell County. Sherod settled at the forks of the Twelvepole and built a gristmill—the area becoming known as Adkins' Mill—now East Lynn—in Wayne County. Jake settled on Harts Creek in Lincoln County. Sherod, the father of Ed Adkins, married Sarah Lucas on 18 October 1793 in Montgomery Co. VA. She was the daughter of Charles Lucas.

3-Rebecca was the daughter of Sherod and Sarah "Sallie" (Lucas) Adkins and a sister to Edward Adkins.

4-Lawrence County Kentucky tax record of 1840—3 children aged 7 to 17 years. At that time William P. had a 3 year old boy and a baby girl. He may have already taken up with Rebecca, who was born in 1799-1800 and would better fit the census record of 30-40 years. By 1844 Rebecca's older two children may have already gone out on their own.

There is a discrepancy in the names of the children, per Frasher: From Chapter 12 he stated that they had eight children—the eldest William Henry, Sarah Frances, Samuel Z., John Allen and Linzey. The three children after William Henry died when young. From Chapter 32 he stated that they had 8 children—W. F., Sarilda, James, Harrison, David, Reilla, Sarah Frances, Samuel Zattoo, John Allen and Linzey. That's 10. It's obvious that there are a few misplaced commas in this account, but it leaves in

The Walker Family:
A letter dated 21 July 1916 to Tennie Bartram from
BARTRAM BRANCHES

Charles E. Walker, supplied by John Lewis Bartram:

"I have been thinking of your request to renew the statement of our family history and connections formerly supplied to your late husband (Lewis Jr) by me, and while I may not now be able to give it as fully as I gave it to him. I give you here what I am now able to think of: The first progenitor of the Walker family whose name I have was C. H. Walker, born in Virginia, a surveyor. His father was born in England, most likely Scotland which is part of the British Isles, all of which we are accustomed to speak of as England, but the mother was born in Holland, so you see there is a mixture of the Dutch in us. This C. H. Walker was employed by James Hector and did some surveying for him west of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and from him secured title to 1100 acres of land on Devil's Fork of the Guyandotte River. Later, C. H. Walker moved over to what is now Kanawha County, West Virginia, and engaged in the manufacture of salt; later was engaged in the manufacture of hats. I think where Charleston now stands. He closed out his business in what is now West Virginia and returned to the old State where he was born, taking his family with him. He became surety for some Sheriff who defaulted and was sold out, leaving him only the 1,100 acres of land of the Guyandotte River above mentioned. To this he returned with a part of his family, a part remaining in Virginia. I cannot now give you the names of all of his children, but I think of two sons, Numa Walker and Underwood Walker. Numa Walker had two sons, Charles C. Walker and Crespy Enos Walker, but the number of daughters I cannot now tell certainly, but here are some of the names I recall: Cordelia, Charity, Caroline and the others whose names I cannot now recall. This Charles C. Walker was my grandfather, married a Calloway and lived in Raleigh County in the vicinity of Flat Top, where also Uncle Enos lived until his death. Grandfather Walker lived for a time in that country, but I cannot tell exactly when he came to what is now Wayne County. My father was born here September 10, 1814, but Aunt Nancy, who married Milton Ferguson, was born while he lived on Indian Creek in Raleigh County. He lived on Twelvepole at Walkers Branch which runs in at the "Turn-hole Bend", but about 1842 or 43 (probably means 1822-3) moved around on the Ohio River near the mouth of Croots Creek. I recall that while he was living there my Uncle Enos Walker "went west", and arranged to have a boat land on the West Virginia shore to take him and his family..."
and goods aboard. I have heard that when the start was made the entire family marched out across the bottom, held a short religious service on the bank of the river at which the good old hymn, now almost forgotten, "Farewell, my dear Brethren" was sung, a prayer offered, and they went aboard the boat which bore them away down the Ohio River and away from all knowledge of our family. Grandfather Walker's children, as far as I now recall were: Harrison, (my father, known locally as Dr. Walker), Irvin, died in Erath County, Texas, Emos, whose descendants I think I have found in Indiana, Minerva, married Thomas Vaughn, Eliza, married Lewis Bartram, your mother-in-law, Ellen, married William Steward, Nancy, married Milton Ferguson, Cynthia married Jameson Ferguson. She became the mother of William S. Ferguson, known as "Billy Bing" from his wife's maiden name, Sarah H. Bing, also Alderson Ferguson, whose son Hiram now lives at the bridge above Dickson, Anthony died many years ago, but further than this, I do not know Uncle Jameson's children. Another sister, Caroline (Walker) married James Ball, brother of old Bro. Ball, and they removed to Missouri, where they both died. Among our cousins in this country, I think of the Stewarts near and in Ceredo, from Aunt Ellen, Charles W. Ferguson, his brother Joseph at Ashland, and the late Judge M. J. Ferguson of Louisa, Joe Ferguson only now living, your mother-in-law's descendants, and the Vaughan's, some of whom are yet living in Wayne County and Lawrence County KY. Of the Vaughans now living in Wayne County are Walter Osburn's widow with her son Pharoah, and Elizabeth, whose husband, John S. Osburn was this spring sent to the State Hospital for the Insane at Romney where he is now. William Vaughan at East Lynn, and perhaps others with whom, doubtless, you are acquainted.

It may be that if you will write your sister-in-law who has the letter I wrote your late husband while I was living in Minnesota, you may get the letter or a copy, and it may give some further history I do not now recall."

Children of C. H. or Charles Walker, a Revolutionary War Soldier, who left Rockingham County Virginia about 1783 with Christian and John Peters to near Wolf Creek, Giles County Virginia--near present town of Narrows: (All other accounts skip the generation of a Numa Walker. Charles supposedly m. a sister of the Peters.)

3-The Lambert Family:

From correspondence of Wilda Ohrmund, 9173 B Larkin Rd, Live Oak, CA 95953. Job Lambert came to Cabell Co. WV with his wife, Hannah Rice, about 1800-09 from Wythe Co. VA. Job died about 1810-5 and Hannah remarried 1 Oct 1818 in Cabell Co. to John Withrow. Children:

1-Jeremiah Lambert b. 1775-90, d. Jun 1850 Lawrence or Carter Co. KY, m. to Mary, apparently without issue.

2-Benjamin Lambert b. ca 1780-90, d. 1837-9 Carter Co. KY, wife probably proceeded him as children were adopted by John and Bryant Fannin.

Probable parents of Eli are James and Ezekial. There are other Lambert families who lived in Ohio and Kentucky and had come from Wythe Co. VA and New Jersey. Eli could have been from one of those groups, too.

(31) - Mary Bartram Cyrus:

1-Enoch Cyrus' parents are not known. His descendants claim that there are two separate Cyrus families in Wayne County—one Anglican and one Portuguese in ancestry. However, inasmuch as Enoch named one son Smith Cyrus suggests a connection with the "other" Cyrus family of northern Wayne County. A complete stab in the dark would be to assume that Enoch was a son of Smith Cyrus, son of Jesse.

(115) - William Henry Bartram:

1-Wayne County West Virginia Marriage Book 1, pg. 6 by Rev. John Jarrel. The Ratcliff Family originally came from Tazewell and Botetourt Cos. in VA. The descendants of Stephen Bartram can claim a relationship to three Ratcliff family groups that spell their names Ratliff, Radcliffe, etc: Washington Ratliff came from VA to Pike Co. KY. Silas Ratliff, a son of William, came to Eastern KY from VA. No proof has been found for a relationship between Silas and Washington, or a third Ratcliff--Daniel, who married Elizabeth Griffeth. A son of Daniel, William Ratcliff, was the first white child born in Lincoln District of Wayne Co. WV—now called Yorkville, on 19 May 1802. He died in 1885 in Wayne Co. Hardesty wrote of William that he was elected a magistrate of Wayne Co. in 1839, served for 30 years and had only 1 of his legal decisions overturned on appeal. William was President of the County Court for 8 years and was elected to the VA Legislature in 1860 by the largest majority ever in Wayne County. William, also called Judge or Squire, represented Wayne Co. at the Second Wheeling Convention in 1861, helping to form the constitution of the new state of West Virginia. He married first on 20 Feb 1823, Lawrence Co. KY, to Nancy Garred, who was born 27 Mar 1804 and died 15 Feb 1864, a dau. of David and Jane (Graham) Garred. William married again on 16 Jan 1865 in Lawrence Co, KY to Rachel Vinson, b. 21 Feb 1831 in Lawrence Co, who had married first to Bowe. Rachel was a daughter of James and Rhoda (Spery) Vinson. William's children:

1-Jane Ratcliff b. 26 Dec 1823.
2-Elizabeth Florence Ratcliff b. 7 Nov 1825, m. Joseph Dennis York.
3-Garred S. Ratcliff b. 26 Jan 1828.

5-Nash, Jay Robert, Murder Amongst the Mighty, (Delacorte Press, NYC, NY, 1983), pp. 20-40. Harry Kendall Thaw married Evelyn Nesbit, a former Floradora Girl, who had been romantically linked to New York Architect Stanford White. Wishing White to leave his wife and marry her, and trying to escape the sadistic torment of Harry (who was known to beat women and boys for pleasure), Evelyn tried to make Stanford jealous. Failing that, she then tried to make her husband jealous and get even with White, who had deflowered her 4 years earlier. Thaw proceeded to shoot White in 1906, causing a legal battle and scandal that rocked high society. Mary Copley Thaw spent over $1,000,000 to save her son from the death penalty. This sad story was even more fantasised in the movies, "The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing" and more recently in "Ragtime".

(165) - Martha Bartram Thompson:

1-Thompson, Mary E., The Samuel Thompson Family of Lawrence County Kentucky, (Louisa, KY, 1979) makes the highly unsubstantiated claim that the earliest proven member of this family was a Samuel Thompson who (along with partners Carter Braston, Richard Carlin, John Blair, Thomas Walker and Gilmer) received a grant of 59,000 acres on Big Sandy River, from Louisa to the Ohio River, in 1772. She further claims that Samuel had the following children:

1-Gen. William Thompson, who came to Big Sandy in 1773 for a time.

2-Capt. John Thompson. She claims that John had two sons. Researchers have proven that the following men are indeed brothers, but have not yet been able to tie them in with the above men.

A-Richard Thompson b. ca 1742 (most researchers claim that he was born in Ireland), d. ca 1830 Lawrence Co. KY. Richard came to Floyd Co. KY (now Lawrence) ca 1800-10. Children:

i-Samuel Thompson b. ca 1780, d. Lawrence Co. 1852, m. to ___, m2. 12 Jul 1809 Floyd Co. KY to Hannah Kirby, m3. to Rhoda Boling. Sam lived on Little Blaine Creek.

ii-Andrew Thompson, lived Little Blaine Creek and Greenup Co. KY.

iii-James Thompson, lived Greenup Co. KY.

iv-Richard Thompson Jr., lived on Big Blaine Creek and then returned to Russell Co. VA where he d. ca 1830.

v-William Thompson built first grist mill ca 1802 on Mill Creek near Fort Gay, Wayne Co. WV.

vii-John Thompson, b. 1775, d. 1857, m. Elizabeth Kirby b. 1783, d. 1867, emigrated from VA to Big Sandy ca 1805. Children:

a-Fleming Thompson, b. ca 1815 Wayne Co. WV, d. 21 July 1874, m. Druzilla Ferguson, b. ca 1824 and had children:

1-Joel Thompson b. ca 1840, m. Martha Wilson.

His children theorize that the parents never married, but did know that he was about 18 years old when Ben was born. Ben was raised by a Miss Stafford at Williamson WV. Miss Stafford had a daughter and a son who was a mine supervisor at Logan. She died during World War II at Williamson, having been supported by Ben in her later years. OTHER BRANCHES
Reverend William Bertram of Scotland visited the home of John Bartram, the soon-to-be famous Philadelphia botanist, in 1732. John, whose family had emigrated from Derbyshire in the north of England to Penn's Colony in 1682, was curious about the relationship between the families of the two men. The Rev. Mr. Bertram explained that they were both descended from brothers of Norman heritage who had come to England from France with William the Conqueror in 1066. According to the Scotsman, one brother remained in the north of England and the other went further north to Scotland, accounting for the relationship between the Bartram and Bertram men.

There are various theories about the origin of the Bartram family, which has undergone several spelling changes over the past millennium. One source claims that the name Bertram or Bertrand, the most common spellings, means "stately hero". The earliest known Bartram's ancestors settled at Portou and Bourbonnais in the Normandy section of the north of France. The change from Bertram to Bartram appears to have been made by some members of the family prior to 1600. It is evident that both Bartrams and Bertrams descended from the same family. The Christian names David, Henry, Isaac, James, John, Paul, Richard, Robert, Roger, Samuel and William appear to be the most commonly used in the family.

Family #1:

1. Robert Bertrannus or Bertrand lived in France in 1047 and is the earliest known member of the family. He was the ancestor of another Robert Bertran/Bertrand who held the family lands of Briquebec, Normandy in the late 1100's. The children of this later Robert:

Family #1:

(1) Reverend William Bertram b. 2 Feb 1674 Edinburgh, Scotland, d. 2 May 1746 Derry, Lancaster (now Dauphin) Co. PA, m. ca 1706 to Jane/Elizabeth (Gillespie) McClain, the widow of Angus McClain. Rev. William was educated at the University of Edinburgh, then was ordained at the Presbytery at Bangor, Ireland (now near Belfast in Northern Ireland, U. K.). When his son John disappeared, the family came to PA in 1732, suspecting that they would find him there. At that time William met John Bartram, the botanist, in Philadelphia. The Bartrams, failing to find their son, went on to Donegal and joined the Presbyterian Church there. Rev. William was installed as pastor of the churches at Paxtang (on Spring Creek) and Derry, now Dauphin Co. PA, on 17 Nov 1732, serving at the latter until his death. He was buried in the Derry Churchyard in 1746.

KEY TO THE INDEX

The index includes all individuals named in the book, regardless of relationship to Bartrams. Women are indexed by both maiden and married names, with the maiden name shown in parenthesis.

Identification numbers assigned to descendants of Stephen Bartram in the genealogy section are used to distinguish among persons with the same name and are shown in parenthesis following the name.

Letter symbols are used to indicate persons of branches other than the West Virginia branch and to identify the branch. These symbols precede the page number and are:

- ea = Early Bartrams of England and France
- sc = Bartrams of Scotland
- gy = Bartrams of Germany
- ct = Bartram Family of Connecticut
- pa = Pennsylvania Bartrams
- us = Other Bartram Families of the United States (non-West Virginia branch)
- sl = Descendants of the slave family

The West Virginia Branch has no letter symbol. Persons of the other branches may also show a dash and a number after the name such as: John-2 sc552. This indicates there are two different Johns of the Scotland branch on page 552. Persons of the West Virginia Branch are listed individually regardless of name duplications.
