TO THE MEMORY OF OUR PIONEER FATHERS AND MOTHERS, WHO BY PERSONAL SACRIFICE AND THE GIFT OF THEIR NOBLEST ENERGIES, BLAZED THE WAY AND FOUGHT THE BATTLES TO ESTABLISH THIS NATION OF AMERICA.

"Good blood — descent from the great and good — is a high honor and privilege. He that lives worthily of it is deserving of the highest esteem; he that does not, of the deeper disgrace."—Colton.
FOREWORD

"History should be painted as a stern goddess, with truth on her right hand and memory on her left. While in the background should appear tradition, like a wandering light glimmering along the quicksands of oblivion, and in the foreground should stand an angel pointing to the future."—Sorrows of Nancy.

The history of this family discloses a long line of patriots, and many pioneers worthy of permanent record. The history of the first four generations is as complete as it could be made by a diligent research of the records in the Congressional Library of Washington and the public libraries of Chicago, of Boston, New York, and other cities. Much data of the early Bryants was obtained from records of the Holland Society of New York, and from tombstone inscriptions at Springfield, N. J., Connecticut Farms, N. J., Westfield, N. J., Mt. Freedom, N. J.; from church records of early New York City and New Jersey; from histories of Bergen, Morris, Hudson and Essex counties, N. J., and from marriage records of Essex county. Modern records have been obtained from family bibles and other family records. More time could have been spent searching records for early history of the family, but it was thought best to publish at this time the material collected.

We trust that some interested descendant may carry on the work. All persons having further data on the ancestors or descendants of David Bryant or his wife are requested to send a copy of the same to the undersigned for preservation. As soon as enough additional data is received supplementary pages will be issued. Delineations of character have but rarely been attempted, since it would have been impossible to render justice to all. The virtues ascribed by their kindred are a gratifying testimony that many individuals of the later generations have been worthy descendants of an honored ancestry. We learn from those yet living some of the characteristics of the pioneer forefathers. The mothers stood side by side with their pioneer husbands in the dignity and resolution required to subdue and build up a new country. They truly possessed great fortitude which enabled them to withstand the dangers and privations encountered. They had refinement of character, the outgrowth of strong religious sentiment, and loyalty of principles which gave Statehood as the outcome of the lives of these generations of pioneers, first in the East, then ever Westward.

An interest in the Bryant family led the compiler for more than thirty years to collect data. A desire to become a charter member of the Daughters of the American Revolution in 1890 was the motive to inquire into the military record of David Bryant. An increasing interest in the research came in meeting the Bryant family in the annual reunions. These reunions have afforded valuable aid in collecting history and traditions held in remembrance by the older members. However, traditions have not been used in the book except when so stated or verified by records.

We thank the descendants who have assisted in any way. We wish to mention especially Miss Ida E. Fisher, of Hebron, Ind., and Mr. John M. Lindly, of Winfield, Iowa. We ask the indulgence of the Bryant family for any inaccuracies, omissions, or errors which may have occurred.

(Mrs.) Clara Vaile Braiden,

Rochelle, Illinois.

June, 1913
BRYANT FAMILY ASSOCIATION

A gathering of the Bryant relatives was proposed by Miss Ida E. Fisher, of Hebron, Ind. After consultation with Mr. Elias W. Bryant, of Lafayette, Ind., and Miss Eva Bryant, of Hebron, Ind., invitations were sent out to all the known relatives. The result was the presence of one hundred and twenty-four Bryant descendants at a meeting held in August, 1902, at Hebron, Ind. Of those present a score were the grandchildren of the revolutionary ancestor, David Bryant (No. 37, p. 31). Some of these were octogenarians. Acquaintances and friendships were formed among the relatives, who had been strangers, and a desire to meet again. The second meeting was held August 22, 1903, at Hebron, Ind. The Bryant Association was then organized with the following officers:

President — Elias W. Bryant, Lafayette, Ind.
Vice-President — Clara V. Braiden, Rochelle, Ill.
Recording Secretary — Eva Bryant, Hebron, Ind.
Corresponding Secretary — Ida E. Fisher, Hebron, Ind.
Treasurer — M. C. Bryant, Hebron, Ind.

Historical Committee — Clara V. Braiden, Ida E. Fisher, Eva Bryant. The following year J. M. Lindly, of Winfield, Ia., who is a well-informed historian, was added to this committee; also Dora L. Bryant, of Clifton Forge, Va., and Adelaide Post, of Carthage, Mo.

Committee on Badges — Mr. Oscar Dinwiddie, Hebron; Mrs. Orah Doddridge, Mentone; Nettie Bryant and Laura Bryant of Hebron, Ind.

The badge selected was the Bryant coat of arms. A recognition card to be worn by those present at the reunions indicating ancestral line, from David Bryant (37), was also adopted. Ten of these family reunions have been held; nine of them at Hebron, Ind., and the tenth, in 1912, was held in Rochelle, Ill., at the home of Mrs. C. V. Braiden. Fifteen states have been represented. Reminiscences from older members formed an interesting part of the programs. When the society decided to publish a family history, the corresponding secretary sent out the Claypool genealogical blanks to addresses of all known Bryant descendants, and the information obtained from these blanks and other correspondence was compiled by Mrs. Clara V. Braiden.

WALICH VAN WINKLE
ORIGIN OF THE NAME

Henry Barber, in his book on "British Family Names," says: "The name Bryant is from Breaunt, a locality in Normandy; French, Briand, Briant." In "A Dictionary of Names," by Mark Antony Lower, we find that Bryan (Bryant) is a Celtic personal name of great antiquity, implying originally Regulus, or Chieftain. H. A. Long, in "The Names We Bear," says: "Briant, Bryan (whence Bryant) means strong. Mr. Versteeg, of Holland Society, New York City, gives the Dutch spelling Breyandt, meaning broad hand. In the early New Amsterdam records the name is also spelled Breijandt."

The name is found on English records as early as the 13th century. A coat of arms was granted to Guy de Brian at this period of time. The name is found in Dorsetshire, Gloucestershire, Somersetshire, Suffolk and Wiltshire.

THE COAT OF ARMS

Tradition gives the Bryants an English origin, they having gone from England to Holland on account of religious persecution.

The Bryant coat of arms, in frontispiece, is that granted in 1634 to Thomas Bryant of Bampton, in Devonshire, age 28. Description: Azure, a cross, or (gold) charged with a cinquefoil (five leaves) between four lozenges, gules (red).

Crest: A flag azure (blue), charged with a saltier argent (silver).

Motto: Fortiter et Fidelity; i.e., Boldly and Faithfully.

Cinquefoil (five leaf) signifies hope and joy, lozenges represent honesty and constancy, also held to be a token of noble birth. Azure signifies loyalty and truth. Red donates military fortitude and magnanimity, or (gold) denotes generosity and elevation of mind. Argent (silver) signifies peace and sincerity.

A saltier is a St. Andrew's cross, or a cross in the form of an X. It is one of the nine greater or honorable ordinaries.
EXPLANATIONS

The system employed in compiling this genealogy is believed to be the most approved in use at the present time. The aim has been to simplify so that it may be readily understood. Each descendant has his own number, placed at the left of his name. When the name is followed by a + mark on the right, it occurs again in capital letters as the head of a family in the succeeding generation with the same number. When descendants do not have issue, their full biography, with a few exceptions, will be found with their names first mentioned.

Small superior figures at the end of the names denote the generation.

When tardy data was sent in, after numbering had been completed, it was necessary to give the child the parents' number with a letter of the alphabet added. Conflicting dates have been sent in, and dates given from memory are often erroneous. Some of the writing has been almost illegible, but many letters have been sent out in the endeavor to secure correct information. If a name or date has been omitted, then it has not been given. If notification of errors shall be given to the secretary of the Bryant Association, corrections will be printed and furnished to purchasers of the Bryant Genealogy.

ABBREVIATIONS

Abt., about; bap., baptized; b., born; Ch., church; dau., daughter; deft., defendant; d., died; m., married; pltf., plaintiff; R. D., Reformed Dutch; rec., record; unm., unmarried.

Usually genealogies follow only the line bearing the name of the male ancestor. In the Bryant Genealogy a record has been given, as far as obtainable, of all of the descendants of David Bryant and Catherine Woolley Bryant of whatever name, thus including the female lines of descent.

ANCESTORS OF PIETER CORNELISZ BRYANT

Minutes of the Orphanmasters of New Amsterdam

P. 5.

Nov. 9, 1655. Cornelis Clasen Swits & Tobias Teunissen perished in the Indian massacre of September 15. Egbert Woutersen, Tomas Hall and Cornelis Aertszen appointed managers of their estate (especially cattle) left by them.

P. 58.

Geertje Hendrick widow of Andries Hoppe, deceased, appearing states that her deceased husband has appointed as guardians of the children Cornelis Aarsen and Lambert Huybersen Mol, but has not made a testament. It is ordered that said guardians shall inform the Orphanmasters by inventory of the estate of Andries Hoppe, dec'd, real and personal, debts and credits (1658).

P. 59.

Whereas Andries Hoppe has died and has left here besides the widow & children some property and whereas he has named, before he died, as guardians of his infant children, Cornelis Aarsen, and Lambert Huybersen Mol, Therefore deeming it necessary that a proper inventory of the property may be taken to prevent loss and injury to the widow and the children in their rights and possessions, the orphanmasters herewith order said guardians to take as soon as possible an inventory of the estate, including furniture, property, real and personal, debts and credits here in the country and to report to the Orphanmasters who will then advise what disposition of it shall be made. Dec. 18, 1658.

p. 61.

Jan. 8, 1659. The wife of Ryck Hendricksen had died in 1658. Besides her husband she left Hendrick Rycken in his 10th year and dau. Gosewyn Rycken in her 9th year. Guardians Cornelis Aarsen & Pieter Stoutenburgh.

p. 75.

Whereas Cornelis Aarsen & Lambert Huybertsen Mol have been appointed by Andrees Hoppe before his death as guardians of his children, Therefore having learned that an inventory has been made of the property of deceased, the Orphanmasters hereby direct said guardians to appear before this Board at the City Hall next Wednesday, Feb. 26 & to show by inventory the condition of the estate of Andrees Hoppe, dec’d, when such disposition shall be made of it as shall be found proper. Feb. 19, 1658.

p. 79.

Feb. 26, 1659.

Geertje Hendricks comes with Cornelis Aarsen & Lambert Huyberzen Mol, the guardians of the children of Andrees Hoppe, dec’d, and said guardians report that they have agreed with the widow Geertje Hendricks about a settlement on the children of their paternal inheritance and 1000 guilders that is 200 for each child have been allowed, but the agreement has not yet been written out. So ordered.

Ryck Hendrickzen coming with Pieter Stoutenburgh and Cornelis Aarsen, guardians of the children left by Ryck’s deceased wife, the guardians report that they have agreed with the widower & that Ryck is to pay to each child on coming of age 50 guilders. Write it out.
July 7, 1659. Pieter Lauwerens produces an account, according to which Jacob Coppe [dec'd] still owes him a balance of 110 guilders. The Orphanmasters order their Secretary to write to Cornelis Aarsen & Jan Van der Bill directing them not to take to themselves any goods of Jacob Coppe dec'd before they have proved to the Board their rights.

Aug. 2, 1659.

Before the Board appeared Cornelis Aarsen who was informed of some declarations, made before the Board, that the testament made by Jacob Coppe had been destroyed. He says, that may be reported by some people, because they would like it to be so; he requests a copy of the declarations, which was allowed to him.

Sep. 27, 1659. Having seen that the Burgomasters & Schepens of this City, after reading the statements of Willem Pietersen, Master Paulus Van der Beecq, Pieter Lauwerensen & wife, do not consider them sufficient to invalidate the last will and testament, made by Jacob Coppe, dec'd, the orphanmasters have decided that, for the best of the heirs, guardians and administrators must be appointed, electing thereto Timotheus De Gabry & Isaac Kip.

Whereas Jacob Coppe has died and there has been found among his papers and property here a testament made December 14, 1653, before Notary D. Van Schelluyne & witnesses in favor of Lysbeth Cornelis, daughter of Cornelis Aarsen & Merritje Jans, dau. of Jan Van der Bilt, naming both heiresses of his estate, Therefore the Orphanmasters have resolved to appoint administrators of said estate, so that the heiresses may come to their own & they have elected & authorized, as they hereby do, Timotheus De Gabry & Isaac Kip, who are directed to make as soon as possible a complete inventory of all the goods & property, etc.

Nov. 13, 1659. Cornelis Aarzen & Jan Van der Bilt request that they with some other persons may be authorized by the Worshipful Orphanmasters to administer upon the estate left by Jacob Coppe, dec’d, as their children are heirs of his property. Granted.

P. 134.

Apr. 29, 1660. Before the Board appeared Cornelis Aarzen who requested that the settlement of the estate of Jacob Coppe, dec’d, may go on, whereupon Jacobus Vis & Isaacq Kip were called in. Jan Van der Bilt directed to appear before the Board a week from date, showing inventory of cattle, lands etc. left by Coppe.

p. 136.

May 7, 1660. Before the Board appeared Jan Van der Bilt & Cornelis Aarzen, parents of the children named as his heirs by Jacob Coppe, dec’d, in the testament executed before Notary Dirck Van Schelluyne & witnesses. Said Jan Van der Bilt declares, that he undertakes to pay for his child Merritje Jans, & for the child of Cornelis Aarsen, called Lysbet Cornelis, the sum of 700 guilders in wampum, or for each 350 gldrs, out of the property left by Jacob Coppe in goods, lands and otherwise, including the charges on his farm, viz. 30 guilders still due to Tousein Bryeel for the land; he binds as security for the payment of said 700 guilders to the Orphans Court here said farm & cattle & generally his person & property, real & personal, present & future, nothing excepted, subject to all Courts & laws.

May 23, 1660. Before us the underwritten Orphanmasters of the City of Amsterdam in New Netherland, appeared Geertje Hendricks, widow of Andrees Hoppe, dec’d, who stated she would give to her children Catrina, Wilhemmus, Hendrick, Matthys & Adolf Hoppe, as their share of their father’s estate, the sum of 1000 guilders, or 200 gldrs to each child at once & not more when they came of age or married, according to the agreement; made with the chosen guardians Cornelis Aarssen & Lambert Huybersen Mol and executed before Notary Mattheus De Vos & witnesses March 6, 1659.

p. 142.

Aug. 6, 1660.

[Geertje Hoppe] was asked what had become of the 13 bearskins, 6 elkhides & 170 deerskins sent to Holland. She answers she had not sent any deerskins to Holland, only the bearskins & elkhides, but in partnership with Cornelis Aarsen. The Orphanmasters direct that Cornelis Aarzen & wife, Geertje Hendricks, Jacobus Vis & Isaack Kip shall be summoned for next Monday.

p. 143.

Aug. 9, 1660. Jacobus Vis & Isaack Kip, administrators of the estate of Jacob Coppe, dec'd, came with Cornelis Aarsen & wife, Jan Vander Bilt & Geertje Hendricks. Cornelis Aarsen & Jan Van der Bilt asked whether they knew anything about it [some items in the inventory], said no.

p. 157.

Nov. 17, 1660. Cornelis Aarzen is asked, what shall be done to collect from his wife's sister the money due to the estate of Jacob Coppe & whether execution shall be ordered. He asks for delay until the next session, so that he may speak with Jan Van der Bilt.

This wife's sister was Geertje Hendrick's widow [wife] of Andries Hoppe, deceased.

p. 207.

March 2, 1662. Weyntje Elberts, wid. of Aart Willemsen delivers an inventory of her property & requests, that Burgomaster Paulus Leendersen Van der Grift & Symon Jansen Romeyn be appointed guardians of her children, which is allowed & they are to make an agreement with her according to the following order:

Whereas Weyntje Elberts, widow of Aart Willemsen intends to marry again & take Cornelis Aarssen, widower of Beletje Hendrickn, as husband and whereas said Weyntje has four minor children by said Aart Willemsen upon whom before the solemnization of her marriage she is willing to settle their paternal inheritance, so that when they come of age or marry they may have their own, therefore the Orphanmasters of this City herewith after communication with and approbation of the widow, appoint the Hon. Paulus Leendersen Van der Grift, at present burgomaster of this City & Simon Jansen Romeyn, burgher & inhabitant here, as guardians, who are authorized to make as guardians & administrators with the widow such an agreement on behalf of the children concerning what comes to them from their father's estate by a complete inventory & appraisal, statement of debts & credits, as justice may require & to report the same to this Board for approval.
Before us the Orphanmasters of the City of Amsterdam in New Netherland appeared Weyntje Elberts widow of Aart Willemsen who declared that according to the agreement made with Burgher residing here, guardians of said Weyntje's children she truly owes to her children Willem,* Annetje, Elbert & Evert Arents* the sum of 2200 guilders for their paternal inheritance, that is to each child 550 gldrs, for which she gives as security to the orphans chamber a mortgage on her house, mill & lot on the Eastside of the Heere Straat. (Broadway)

* As there was no child Hendrickje Arents or Aerts among these children it is plain that Hendrickje Aerts could not have been the stepsister of Pieter Cornelissen Van Steenwyck Breyant.

Mrch. 23, 1662. The son [Aart Cornelissen] of Cornelis Aarsen, appearing says that Willem the orphaned son of Margriet Samuel has lived for some time at his parents' house & his father after the death of his mother has turned the farm over to him, he requests the Orphanmasters to leave said Willem in his service. He is told, first to speak with Willem & then to come with him to the next session of the Board.

Dec. 10, 1666. Pieter Cornelissen, alias the Swede, had died leaving daughter Margrieta Pietersz, and widow Brieta Olofs. Her farm situate opposite Stuyvesant's farm.

From this and above entry it will be shown that Pieter Cornelisz
Sweet and Pieter Cornelisz Van Steenwyck or Bryant were two distinct persons, having no relationship. As guardians of Margrieta Pietersz were appointed Pieter Stoutenburgh & Jan Jansz Langestraet (Longstreet). Nor was this Pieter Cornelisz Sweet any relation of Cornelis Aerts.

May 6, 1658. Cornelis Aarsen v. s. Pieter Jansen & Gerrit his partner, defts. Defts. in default.

Sep. 17, 1658. Cornelis Aarsen demands from Cristiaan Barenzen's widow 100 guilders in beavers arising from the sale of a horse. Deft. says she has no objection to it, but has no beavers, offers to pay in seawant at beavers price. The Court orders deft. to pay pltf. the sum demanded within 14 days in beavers.

Raghel Van Tienhoven demands from Cornelis Aarsen according to obligation 401 gldrs, saying thereon is paid 2 skepels winterwheat, 1 skepel of white & 1 skepel of gray pease, 99 gldrs. 4 stivers. Deft. says he offered an ox to which pltf. answers she does not know what to do with it. Referred to arbitrators.
Raghel Van Tienhoven demands from Cornelis Aarzen 401 gldrs according to obligation whereon she declares she has received 99 gldrs 4 stivers in zeawant & 1 skepel of white pease at 3 gldrs. & 1 skepel of gray peas at 4 gldrs & 2 skepels of wheat at 5 gldrs the skepel, amounting together to 117 guilders. Deft. denies owing so much producing an offset a/cc but without date. Pltf. demands costs of suit. The Court orders deft. to pay pltf. according to obligation, deducting the 117 gldrs pltf. acknowledges to have received, & if any further payment has been made on the obligation he shall have duly to prove it.

Jan. 25, 1661. The Court refer the matter in dispute between J. J. Van de Langh Straat (Longstreet) and Simon De Sweedt to Cornelis Aarsen & Pieter Stoutenburgh as arbitrators.

François De Bruyn demands from Cornelis Aarzen 5 beavers for $2 aam of French wine, drawn in his name at the funeral of Jacob Coppe, dec’d. Deft. admits the wine was drawn in his name, but says he cannot obtain any proceeds from the estate. The Court orders deft. to pay pltf.

Thomas Hall & Cornelis Aertsen, in quality of overseers, appointed by the Hon. Director General & Council, of the Common Fences on the Island of Manhattan Pltfs vs. Pieter Van de Linde, Hendrick Van Dyck, the wife of Paulus Leend a Van die Grift and Egbert Woutersen, defts.

Defts. accused of not attending to their share in the repairing of the fence of the common pasture land on Manhattan Island.

Vol. II, p. 91. May 1, 1656.

Cornelis Jansen, Woodsawyer, says that in the last trouble with the Indians Cornelis Aertsen requested and engaged him to remain with him on the General's (Stuyvesant's) Bouwery, and that he would pay him therefor as much as the others, being Frenchmen. And as each of the Frenchmen received for his part 25 gldrs, he requests that deft. be condemned to pay him likewise 25 gldrs. Deft. acknowledges that during the late troubles (in September, 1655) with the Indians he requested & engaged pltf. on the Hon. General's Bouwery on aforesaid conditions; but that he did so in the absence of the Hon. General, by the order of Fiscal Tienhoven. Maintains he must look to the Fiscal, but offers to pay pltf., if he may deduct it from the rent of the Bouwery. Parties being heard, the Court decide as Corns Aertsen engaged & hired pltf. Cornelis Jansen as aforesaid he is bound to pay him as well as the others, who were then there. Therefore deft. is condemned to satisfy pltf., saving his guarantee against whomsoever gave him orders & directions to hire pltf.

Nicasius De Sille in quality as Schout (prosecutor) of this City vs. Dirck Clasen Braeck, deft. For that deft. on last Sunday afternoon during the sermon tapped for & gave drink to 3 or 4 different persons against the placard & ordinance. Deft. denies the same; says he only treated Nicolaes Verleth, Corn^ Aertsen & Ide Van Vorst & their wives to a drink of beer, through friendship and good neighborhood, without taking a penny therefor, as they did him many favors heretofore when after his cattle. Parties being heard, deft. is excused with a warning, this being his first offence, & pltf’s. demand herein dismissed.

Nicasius de Sille in his quality as Schout pltf. vs. Cornelis Aersen, Ide Van Vorst & their servants, defts. For that their servantmen raced last Sunday evening after the sermon, within the City, with horses & wagons & much noise & singing, from which great damage & disaster might have arisen. Concludes, therefore, that defts. or their servants be condemned each in a fine of £4—Flemish. Cornelis Aersen & Ide Van Vorst, as masters of their servants, for their committed fault, condemned each in a fine and penalty of three guilders.

Whereas Dirck Clasen is frequently absent on business, the Court has, at the request of Wm. Beeckman, appointed in his place Ide Van Vorst, who is authorized with Cornelis Aertsen to value the damage (as noted on p. 10 of these notes, July 3, 1656, p. 127 of New Amst. records).

Before me Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Sec'y. of New Netherland, appeared Cornelis Arissen, aged about 36 years, who at the request of Cornelis Leendersen, deposes,—that it is true that he accompanied Jacob Stoffelsen & Gerrit Dyrksen into the fort on the day after the attack on the Indians & there heard the Director [kieft] say: "'Tis the fault of the freemen that the Indians were attacked—but your neighbor, Abraham Planck, was well aware of it, who might have warned you." All which deponent declares to be fact & truth. Done in Fort Amsterdam, 28 March, 1643, in New Netherland.

Sep. 12, 1648. Note. Cornelis Arentsen of Pavonia (Jersey City) to Isbrandt Dirksen Goethardt for 322 guilders in seewant.

This will show that before locating on Manhattan Cornelis Aertsen had settled at Pavonia. Thence he seems to have gone to Midwout, L. I., and from there to Manhattan Island.

There was also a very prominent merchant, Cornelis Jacobsen Steenwyck, living at New Amsterdam at the time, but there is not the least evidence to connect him with Pieter Cornelissen Bryant Van Steenwyck.

Cornelis Lambert Huybertsz Hendrickje Cornelis

May 4, 1661

This doubtless accounts for Lambert Huybertsz' Moll being in the Hopper Aerts family circle. After the death of his 1st wife he married Hendrickje to all appearances the daughter of Cornelis Aerts [probably before 1658].

Pieter Cornelissen

In the absence of any absolute, primary documentary proof of the close relationship between Pieter Cornelissen Van Steenwyck or Bryant and Cornelis Aertsen of Manhattan Island we have to rely on secondary or circumstantial proof or evidence. And this is abundantly furnished, especially by the baptismal records.

In the first place, the name or patronymic of the subject of our investigation was Cornelissen which according to the well established Dutch and New Netherland usage of the time meant that he was the son of Cornelis. The investigator, in his extensive search, has found only one Cornelis among the very many bearing this name who could logically have been the parent of Pieter Cornelissen Bryant, and this Cornelis was Cornelis Aertsen.

There existed a very close relationship between the Hopper and Cornelis Aertsen families, as shown by the baptismal records, first of New Amsterdam, where [see p. 1 of the notes] Cornelis Aertsen & his wife Belitje Hendricks were constant witnesses at the baptisms of Hoppe or Hopper children. The wife of Andries Hoppe & the wife of Cornelis Aertsen were sisters. The baptismal records of Bergen show the close relationship — thro their continually acting as witnesses for each other — between the Cornelissen and Hopper families. This generation were cousins, through their mother. At the baptism [p. 1 of notes] of Dierck son of Fredrick Thomassen & Catryna Hoppe, Hendrickje Aert, wid. of Pieter Cornelise was a witness. Why? Because through her deceased husband she was a cousin by marriage of Catryna Hoppe. On page 1 of the notes we find Lambert Huybertszen Mol acting as a witness with Arie Cornelissen for a child of Andries Hoppe. Why? Doubtless because having recently married Hendrickje Cornelis (dau. of Cornelis Aertsen) he, Mol,— through his wife,— had become a relative of the Hoppers. These notes also contain several instances where Cornelissens acted as witnesses at Hopper baptisms and vice versa.

The Hackensack baptismal records again bear testimony to the close relationship between the Breyants & the Hoppers, as indicated through their continually officiating as witnesses for each other, and interrelated families. Note also at the foot of p. 13 of these notes that both Hendricktie Arens [wid. of Pieter Cornelissen Van Steenwyck or Bryant] and Hendrick Hoppe were witnesses, in 1700, at the baptism of a daughter of Belitie Van Schaick. On p. 53, Vol. 7, of the N. Y. Genealogical and Biographical Record it is stated that the children of Cornelis Aertse & Belitje Hendricks took the name Van Schaick. All except Hendrickje bap. July 7, 1641, who probably died unmarried. We know that she did not, but married Lambert Huybertszen Mol.

Therefore the Van Schaicks and Bryants were brothers and sisters, which accounts for their often acting as witnesses for or with each other under the name of Cornelissen, as well as once at Hackensack under the name of Van Schaick & Hendricktie Arens or Aerts as the wid. of Pieter Cornelissen.

The question of why Pieter Cornelissen then did not share in his paternal inheritance [p. 53, Vol. 7, N. Y. Gen. & Biogr. Record] remains to be considered. Pieter doubtless was the oldest son of Cornelis Aertsen and settled in New Jersey while his younger brothers and sisters were growing up, and assisting their father on his farm. As happened with so many older sons who set out for themselves, he doubtless had received advances from his father which fully covered his share in the paternal inheritance. If we could find Cornelis Aertsen's will, this would have been stated, as it was stated in the wills of many later testators which have come down to us. Pieter was busy developing his Bergen or Hackensack holdings which occupied all his time and energy, and at the time of Pieter's marriage to Hendrickje Aerts (July 10, 1670) his father had just died.

Joining the various links in the chain of secondary or circumstantial evidence, as shown in the accompanying notes, there can be no doubt that Pieter Cornelissen Van Steenwyck or Bryant was the son of Cornelis Aertsen of Manhattan.

It is not plain why Cornelis Aertsen's younger children should have taken the name Van Schaieck. There is a Schaick, a neighborhood, section or district, 2½ miles northeast of Leerdam in the province of South Holland, besides 2 polders (drained lakes) in the same location. There are also two manors, Great and Little Schaick, 1½ miles northeast of Scherpenzeel in the province of Gelderland, and about 25 or 30 miles distant from Steenwyck in the Province of Overysel.

It was nothing unusual among the Holland Dutch in those early pioneer days for children of the same parents to adopt entirely different family names. It, in reality, occurred so often that the practice almost became a custom. This custom doubtless accounts for the disappearance of many descendants of early pioneers from the records. Those descendants adopted certain names and where the records do not clearly indicate the connection or relationship between the bearer of the original name and the bearers of the later adopted name, the means of identification are lost.

N. Y., Dec. 10, 1912.

Dingman Versteeg.
BRYANTS IN AMERICA

Cornelis Aertszen (Bryant!), b. 1607, probably in Steenwick, Holland; m. (1st) Belitje Hendricks, who died before March 2, 1662. He m. (2nd) July 10, 1662, Weyntje Elberts, widow of Aert Willemszen (N. Y. R. D. ch. rec., Marriages). Cornelis Aertszen was in New Netherslands (now New York) prior to 1650.

His children by his first marriage were:

2. I. Pieter Cornelisse Breijandt (see Dutch rec., p. 16); m. Hendrickje Arentse+
3. II. Hendrickje Breijandt, b. July 7, 1641; m. Lambert Huybersen Moll (Dutch rec., p. 19).
4. III. Arie (Adriaen) Breijandt, b. July 9, 1642; m. Rebecca Yrens.
5. IV. Hendrick Breijandt, b. Sept. 23, 1646; m. Geertie Hoppe. (Dutch rec., p. 1.)

Cornelis Aertszen, the founder of the American branch of the Dutch family of Bryant, like so many thousands of others (says Mr. Dingman Versteeg of New York, an expert on the records of early Holland Dutch in this country, and who has made extensive research on the Bryant ancestry), appears to have been known and referred to only by his patronymic. One of his sons seems to have adopted the family name of Breyant [a customary proceeding which was regarded as both proper and legal]. Tradition states that two brothers of the family of Bryant went from England to Holland to escape religious persecution. They may have married in Holland before then, or more probably their descendants emigrated to America. The custom of taking surnames, sometimes, of a near relative makes it possible that Pieter Cornelisse adopted the name of Breyant, which may have belonged to the maternal side of the house. As in most all similar instances, the evidence appears to be only circumstantial. Sufficient time has not been taken to solve this problem.

Cornelis Aertszen was worthy in every respect, enterprising and public-spirited, a pioneer entitled to recognition among the founders of this great nation. He was in New Netherland prior to 1650 and took a prominent part in the affairs of his day, "so you certainly have reason to be proud of him."

David Bryant

It is a difficult matter to pay worthy tribute to these early pioneers of America. We cannot even fancy what trials they met, what hardships they endured, or with what determination they braved the dangers of the times to provide homes for their families. Of this sturdy stock was our ancestor, David Bryant, soldier and pioneer, courageous to face the foe in securing liberty for the American people, and one of the earliest pioneers to brave the savage and blaze the way for the civilization of the West. Born in 1756, he spent his early childhood in New Jersey, where he found that strength of character so essential in the higher development of our nation. At the age of nineteen he entered the Continental Army, enlisting at Springfield, New Jersey, and remaining in service five years. In 1790 he, with his family, moved to Washington County, Pennsylvania. He there purchased a farm in Buffalo Township, near Owl Creek. The name of David Bryant appears in the first census of the United States taken in 1790, as residing in Washington County, Pennsylvania, his family consisting then of seven members. In 1816 he again moved westward to Knox County, Ohio. Here he owned three farms near Fredericktown, Ohio. The following is a communication dated August 8, 1911, from the recorder of Knox County, Ohio: "David Bryant purchased one hundred acres from Reuben Sutton, another one hundred and ninety-eight acres from Jacob Mitchel, another about two hundred acres from Wm. Mitchell."

At an advanced age he started westward with his wife, in company with the family of his son Elias, this time for Indiana. Mrs. Bryant objected to the new venture, and as they visited friends on the way, each tried to dissuade them from going further, but David was not a man to brook opposition. They finally came to Wolf Lake, about fifteen miles northwest of Fort Wayne, Indiana, where they spent the summer of 1835. Elias bought land there from the government. The aged parents could not withstand the hardships incident to pioneer life. They both sickened and died in the month of August. They are buried on the east bank of Eel River, on ground which Elias Bryant sold to his nephew David Vasbinder.

Mr. Strain lived within three miles of the graves; there is also a wagon road not more than twenty rods east of them. The exact spot, as far as we can ascertain, is unknown. The indomitable will and progressive spirit of this ancestor led him always in the forefront of western emigration, and he gave to this country sons and daughters who have proved to be loyal patriots and faithful citizens. There have come down to us through the older members of the family many interesting traditions of this great-grandfather David. Mrs. J. K. Blackstone, his granddaughter remembers hearing her father say that his father was a strict disciplinarian, which might have been due to his military training. He was over six feet in height, and an average weight of about one hundred and ninety pounds, his frame large and powerful with a commanding presence. In later life he fell and fractured a hip so that he was obliged to use a cane. The wife, Catherine Woolley Bryant, was a small woman. She lost her eyesight and was blind for fifteen years before her death. She left a memory of sweetness and loving kindness that was a benediction to all who were privileged to know her. Her mother, Catherine Woodruff Woolley (widow of Abraham Woolley) spent her last years in the home of her grandchildren, Joseph and Dorothy Campbell Bryant, who lived in Buffalo Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania, near Claysville. She died there in 1825 at the advanced age of one hundred and six years and was buried near Claysville, Pennsylvania. Mr. Joseph Bryant of Clifton Forge, Virginia, son of the above Joseph, is authority for this record of the good old age of our ancestress, Catherine Woodruff Woolley. Military record of David Bryant: "State of New Jersey, office of Adjutant General. It is certified that the records of this office show that David Bryant served one month in 1776 as private, minute man Captain Horton's Co., 1st Regiment, Essex Co., N. J. militia; again served 8 days in same company and regiment; served 3 months in the winter of 1778-79 as private, same company and regiment; afterwards served 7 monthly tours under Capt. Joseph Horton during Revolutionary War."

There were many smaller engagements during his five years of active service in and around Springfield. It is probable that he faced the enemy many times with ball and powder. On the 17th of September, 1776, there was a brisk skirmish at Springfield which is described as follows by Col. Symmes, the American commander: "On the approach of Gen. Lesley's 'British' troops towards Springfield they were discovered by Maj. Spencer's cadets stationed on the western road. Major Spencer instantly dispatched a light horseman at full speed four miles to Chatam to notify the Col.
Commandant that the enemy in considerable force were within two miles of Springfield. The brigade 'American' was already under arms and was ordered instantly to march towards Springfield to sustain Maj. Spencer. Meantime, the Major prudently abandoned Springfield and retreated toward Chatam, westward, where he was reinforced by the American brigade at Bryant's Tavern. After Maj. Spencer had communicated to the Col.
Commandant the position of the enemy then occupying Springfield, the brigade advanced to the attack. The center of the enemy occupied the ground in front of and the meadow behind the Woodruff Tavern. The Col. Commandant of the militia supported by Col. Lindly on the left and Major Spencer (who now commanded the Essex Regiment) on the right brought up the center of the brigade until they were within pistol shot of the enemy.
The conflict continued about an hour, when darkness forbade a longer contest at that time and the firing seemed mutually to cease on both sides. The Brigade fell back that evening only one mile to Briant's Tavern, struck up fires and lay all night on their armes, intending to make a second attack in the morning, but in the morning the enemy was not to be found: he had withdrawn in the night with all possible speed. This was the first instance in the state of New Jersey when the British troops turned their backs and fled from those they called rebels, and this success, small as it was, taught the Jersey militia that the foe was not invincible.”

There was another skirmish at Springfield on the fifth of January, 1777. Again was fought the battle at Springfield on June 23, 1780, when 5,000 British tried to enter the hill country surrounding Morristown, where General Washington had his camp, but were severely repulsed. On the occasion of the burning of Springfield by General Clinton, Chaplain Caldwell, whose wife with babe in her arms was shot by a British soldier, rushed to the church when the men were in want of wadding, came out with his arms filled with hymn books and shouted, “Put Watt's into them, boys.”
History states that all but three of the houses of Springfield were burned. Many family records were destroyed. The following shows that the father and mother of David Bryant received slight Family tradition harbors many interesting experiences of these ancestors during the Revolutionary period. The horrors of war were nowhere greater, if as great, as in New Jersey. The winter of 1779–80 is memorable for the severity of the season and for the devastation made by the merciless foe.

The following is a fac-simile of signature of David Bryant of 1756 (37):

Elias Bryant accompanied his parents on their removal from New Jersey to Washington County, Pennsylvania, and there he was reared and educated. He afterwards removed to Knox County, Ohio, about 1820. He followed farming in the Buckeye State until the fall of 1835, when he went by wagon to Lake County, Indiana, settling at Pleasant Grove in Cedar Creek Township. Here he was one of the first settlers and purchased land from the government for which he paid one dollar and twenty-five cents an acre. On March 16, 1839, Elias Bryant entered from the United States the west half of southeast quarter of section 18. His patent is dated June 25, 1841, and is recorded in Book 87, page 102, Indiana Land Records. He transformed this raw tract into richly cultivated fields and carried on farming until his death at the age of sixty-six years. He was a zealous and active member of the Presbyterian Church, in which he served as an elder. He gave his political support to the Whig party and during his early residence in Lake County his enterprise and energy made him a valuable citizen of the frontier district.

Isaac Bryant served in the War of 1812. He was a very extensive stock-raiser and meat-packer in Columbus, Ohio. He sustained a heavy loss in 1844, when his extensive packing houses were washed away by a flood. In 1845 he purchased a farm near Wyandot and engaged in stock-raising and shipping, which occupied his time until his death. His children were educated by a governess in the home.

Mrs. Bryant was the daughter of Frederick Fisher, who was born in Elsasse, France. He was a ropemaker, and made the kite-cord that carried the first wire across the Niagara Falls for the first suspension bridge. The kite was made of silk and was ten feet long. Her mother was ....... Quigley, born in Ireland.

94. IV. Alexander Campbell Bryant, b. Oct. 8, 1828; m. (1st) Jenevieve Gallager; m. (2nd) Mary Calvert Berry+

Thomas Campbell was a member of the celebrated Campbell clan of Scotland, and Duke of Argyle. He sailed from Ireland for America with his family. They were shipwrecked off the coast of Scotland, so returned and spent the winter in Glasgow, where his son Alexander attended the University. They came to United States the following spring and lived in Bethany, Burke County, Virginia, where he and his son Alexander established Bethany College and became the founders of the Christian Disciple Church. In 1832 Alexander Campbell went into Kentucky where he established the new faith. Dorathy Campbell Bryant died December 12, 1861, in Indianapolis, Indiana. She was a woman of fine intellect, and was called a better theologian than her brother Alexander, the great teacher, and bequeathed to her descendants fine intellectual and physical strength. Joseph Bryant was a very extensive farmer and stock-raiser. A strong Whig and Republican. He was a friend of John Brown, whom he met at Pleasant Hill Seminary, Washington County, Pennsylvania, and planned ways and means for aiding negroes to escape by means of the “Under ground Railroad.” He was a prominent member of the Campbellite or Christian Church and was the first member baptized by the Rev. Alexander Campbell. The baptism took place in Owl Creek on the Bryant Farm in Washington County, Pennsylvania.

The boyhood days of Samuel D. Bryant were spent on a farm. He was taught the tanner's trade, but, due perhaps to his love for horses, he spent more of his early life as a teamster than tanner. As a teamster over the Allegheny Mountains he encountered dangers that might have ended disastrously had it not been for his marked skill as a horseman. Later in life he was clerk for his uncle, Lieutenant Colonel Abram Roll Woolley, at the Arsenal near Pittsburgh. He served well in that capacity. He was enlisted in the War of 1812, but was never mustered into service. A few years later he was married to Mary Ross. In 1829 Samuel Bryant, with his second wife, Joanna Woodruff, and their two children, Mary and Jacob, left the Pennsylvania farm and moved to Ohio, where he continued his occupation of farming and stock-raising. Possessed with the spirit of change, in the spring of 1835, accompanied by his brothers, Simeon and David, and a brother-in-law named Agnew, he moved his family to Indiana. They settled in Pleasant Grove, on what was later known as the Jones’ place, seven and a half miles south of Crown Point. In the fall they were joined by Elias Bryant, thus forming what was known as the “Bryant Settlement.” In the fall of 1848 Samuel returned to Ohio and lived on his brother Isaac’s farm, being his partner in the raising of stock and grain. Here he remained until the spring of 1857, when he again removed to Indiana and bought a farm south of South East Grove, near Hebron, where he lived until 1874 when he sold his farm, broke up housekeeping, and went to live with his stepson, John Young. Here in the fall his wife died. He then made his home with his daughter, Hannah Robertson, until his death in 1875 at the age of 85 years. Although he was a man of great physical endurance, his death was caused by exposure. Throughout life he seemed possessed of untiring industry and great resoluteness. In politics he was a Democrat until 1840, then a Whig, and later a Republican.

116. XII. Henrietta Barclay Cooper, b. Dec. 18, 1835; m. Mar. 1, 1893, Mr. Edmunds. She was a graduate of Washington Female Seminary, Washington, Pa. She taught in public schools of Ohio and Illinois for several years. The writer remembers with gratitude the impress of culture she left upon her young life. June 6, 1857, Henrietta B. Cooper united with the First Presbyterian Church of Lane (Rochelle), Ill. She d. Sept. 12, 1897, at her home in Avalon, Mo.

Two brave youths who had the courage to face the enemy in battle for liberty, during the war of the Revolution, had at the close of the war the fortitude to meet the savage in the unsettled wilds of Western Pennsylvania. One of these young men, Zebulon Cooper, a soldier in the Continental troops of New York, lured by the promise of a goodly land, crossed the Allegheny Mountains in 1777 with his father’s family and his young wife, Mary White Cooper. Some of the company traveled by horseback. Moses Cooper, father of Zebulon, failed to reach the journey’s end — died on the way — and was buried at Waynesburg, Pennsylvania. Zebulon Cooper reached his destination and on October 11, 1793, was enabled to purchase of George Atkinson a large tract of land on the north fork of Ten Mile Creek near Prosperity, Pennsylvania. For this tract of land he paid five hundred fifty pounds. As was customary, it was surveyed by blazing trees, the purchaser obtaining as much land for a given price as could be “stepped off,” and trees blazed to mark boundaries, within a given time. The savages were not the only dangers these pioneers had to encounter: there were also the wild beasts of the forest. One day when Zebulon

Cooper and wife, with their babe Sylvanus, were returning to their home and nearing the house, they saw a huge bear in a sycamore tree in the yard. Mr. Cooper hastened into the house for his gun, shot the bear, and the skin served as a rug for several years. This babe Sylvanus, when grown to manhood, married Mary Bryant, daughter of David Bryant (37), the New Jersey youth who entered the Continental army at nineteen, served five years, married Catherine Woolley. About 1789 they crossed the Allegheny Mountains and settled in Morris Township, Washington County, Pennsylvania, a neighbor to Zebulon Cooper. He later removed to Buffalo Township. The marriage of Mary Bryant and Sylvanus Cooper was a social event of importance. The young ladies, of whom there were a large number in attendance, were all dressed in white. The festivities included the "infare" the following day at the home of the bridegroom. The dinner was an important part of this event, cooked in an open fireplace, the bread baked in a "Dutch oven." After the marriage they began life on a large farm called "Pheasant's Resort," an inheritance from his father. It was located on the north fork of the Ten Mile Creek adjoining lands of John and Thomas Atkinson and Charles Cracraft. In his youth Sylvanus Cooper studied for the ministry, but a growing family claimed his attention and he never entered the profession. For many years he was an elder in the Presbyterian Church. In 1864 he entered into the mercantile business in Washington, Pennsylvania. Mary Bryant Cooper was a woman of noble character who lived a life of sacrifice for her loved ones. She possessed a ripe Christian character which left its impress upon the sons and daughters who were committed to her care. Mr. Cooper was of Puritan ancestry.

Note.—Wm. Arthur, in his Etymological Dictionary, says the name Cooper (Copier) is of Scottish origin, derived from Co, high, a beacon fire or signal for ships; Pyre origin of pier, a wharf, landing place.

The following is the Cooper line: John Cooper1 at the age of 41 came from Olney, Buckinghamshire, England, in 1635 in the Hopewell to Lynn, Massachusetts, with his wife Wibroe, and children, Mary,2 aged 13, John2 10, Thomas2 7, and Martha2 5. He was one of the elders of the church when it was organized at Lynn, and owned 200 acres of land in that township. He was one of the twenty heads of families who formed the association for the settlement of Southampton in 1639. The emigrant ancestor John¹ had son John² born in England in 1625, who had son James³ who was made a justice of the peace in Southampton, Long Island, and who was Judge James Cooper until his death in 1722. James³ had son James⁴ born about 1700; died about 1753. He married Abigail . . . , who died about 1734, aged 32; he married, second, Mary . . . , and had children, James⁶, Zebulon⁵, Stephen⁵, Moses⁵, Elizabeth⁵, Ezekial⁵, Silas⁵, Benjamin⁵, Philip⁵, Abigail⁵, Mary⁸ and Selah⁵. These are mentioned in the will of the father. Moses⁵ married Mary Coleman, or as some claim, Mary Doty. Coleman is an ancient Anglo-Saxon name, mentioned by Bede; is in Doomsday Book. The widow of Moses Cooper lived with her son about six miles southeast of Washington, Pennsylvania, where at an advanced age she died and was buried in what is known as the Red Brick Churchyard near Dunn Station, Washington County, Pennsylvania. Moses had son Zebulon, who had son Sylvanus. Twenty-four families of the Cooper name are mentioned in Burke’s General Armory as bearing coats of arms. Zebulon Cooper,⁶ son of Moses and father of Sylvanus,⁷ served in Third Company, Third Regiment, of New York troops, commanded by Colonel James Clinton, Revolutionary War. His name appears on the muster roll of that company dated August 9, 1775, which shows: “Time of enlistment, July 25, . . . ; age twenty years; born So. Hampton; stature five feet six inches; light complexion with light hair.” His name also appears on a roll of the organization mentioned, dated Camp at Lake George, October 15, 1775, covering the period from June 28 to October 15, 1775, with remarks: “A Private. Sick at So. Hampton.” His name last appears on a pay-roll of Captain John Hulbert’s company, “of ye 3d Regt. of New York Forces,” commanded by Colonel James Clinton, for the period from September to December 31, 17 . . , with remarks: “time of entry Sept. 1, 17 . . ; Time due four mos. A Private.”—By authority of Secretary of War. F. T. Ainsworth, Chief, Record and Pension Office.

The White ancestry is as follows: “Sylvanus Cooper,⁷ who married Mary Bryant, was the son of Zebulon Cooper,⁶ and Mary White.⁷ Her emigrant ancestor was Thomas White,¹ born 1599 in England; lived at Weymouth, Massachusetts; died 1679. His son, John White,² went to Southampton, Long Island, in 1644. He had wife Ann, and children: John,³ Sarah,³ Hannah,³ wife of Captain Thomas Topping, James, Martha, wife of Captain John Howell, Abigail, wife of Abraham Howell, Esther, wife of Samuel Clark. James White married November 24, 1675, Ruth Stratton of East Hampton, Long Island. He died August 21, 1694. He had son, Captain Ephraim White, who married Sarah Herrick, daughter of William Herrick. Ephraim White died January 2, 1752. This Captain Ephraim White and Sarah Herrick White had the following descendants: John White, who had son John White, who had daughter Mary White, who was the wife of Zebulon Cooper. There are 74 English families of this name White mentioned by Burke as bearing coats of arms. Other authority makes mention of one hundred and eleven families of White name as bearing coats of arms. The name White is derived from Anglo-Saxon hwit (Albus) or more probably from hwita, a sharpener, swordsmith or armorer.—Lower.

Descendants of Sarah Herrick, who married Captain Ephraim White will be interested in the following record of Herricks (Eyryk, Eric, Erik, Ericke, Herik, Heyrick): This ancient family claim descent from Ericke, a Danish chief who invaded Britain during the reign of Alfred. They settled in East Anglia. He is recognized in history as "Ericke, king of those Danes who held the country of East Angle." The first of whom we have record in direct line is Eyryk, the Dane of East Anglia Britain (mentioned by early English historians) whose descendant Eric the Forester was a resident in Leicestershire, England, at the time of the Norman Invasion. This Erick the Forester was in possession of extensive domains along the sources of the Severn and on the borders of Wales. Erick raised an army to repel the invaders, and he bore a prominent and conspicuous part in dispossessing the Normans of their recent conquest. Failing in this, he was stripped of his wealth, but was taken into favor by William the Conqueror and entrusted with important offices, and in his old age permitted to retire to his house in Leicestershire, where he died. This Erick the Forester is not in our direct line. The second in line was Henry Eyryk of Great Stretton, of Leicester; then John Eyryk of Stretton; Robert Eyryk of Stretton, who had wife Joanna; Sir William Eyryk, Knight of Stretton, was commissioned to attend the Prince of Wales on his expedition into Gascony in 1355; Robert Eyrice of Houghton, 1450, wife Agnes; Thomas Eyrick, gentleman of Houghton, and is the first of the name on the books of the corporation where he is recorded as a member of that body in 1511; will proved in Leicester; buried in St. Martin’s Church, Leicester; Nicholas Eyrick⁸ of Houghton; freeman 1535; mayor of Leicester 1552. He bought a “tabernacle” where the church goods of St. Martin’s were sold at the Reformation in 1547, paying 2s., 8d. for same; Thomas Eyrick⁹ was chamberlain of Leicester; will proved at Leicester 1625; buried June 8, 1625; James Herrick,¹⁰ baptized September 11, 1603. Lucius C. Herrick in his revised Herrick Genealogy says that the date of the birth of the James Herrick,¹⁰ son of Thomas Herrick,⁹ alias Eyrick of Leicestershire, England, is identical with the date of the birth of James Herrick of Southampton, Long Island; and Jedediah Herrick Genealogy says, “No other James is found in England or America answering to the time.” Howell in his History of Southampton states the following: “This (Southampton) family is without question descended from the Herricks of Leicestershire in England, as the crest of that family is engraved on the tombstone of William Herrick,¹¹ the son of James Herrick,¹⁰ the first of the name in Southampton. This is said because at the time of the death of William Herrick,¹¹ 1736, men in this country had not begun to use arms, as they did at a later period and do now, to which they are not entitled. This William Herrick,¹¹ born 1654, was the father of Sarah Herrick,¹² wife of Captain Ephraim White,⁴ who died January 2, 1752. This Sarah is twelfth in line of descent; the thirteenth in the Herrick line of descent is John White,¹³ son of Sarah Herrick¹² and Ephraim White.⁴ John White,¹³ who had wife Jerusha; fourteenth, John White,¹⁴ who had daughter Mary White,¹⁵ wife of Zebulon Cooper, and their son Sylvanus Cooper¹⁶ married Mary Bryant.

Sir William Herrick, grandson of Thomas of Houghton, was a member of Parliament from 1601 to 1630; was a successful courtier and politician; was commissioned by Queen Elizabeth on an important embassy to the Ottoman Porte, and as a reward for his success with the hitherto intractable Turk, he was appointed to a situation in the Exchequer, which he held through the remainder of Queen Elizabeth’s reign and the following reign of James. He acquired great wealth. He early purchased the estate of the unfortunate Earl of Essex at Beau Manor Park in the parish of Loughboro and County of Leicester, which is still in possession of his descendants in the direct line and has been for 250 years the headquarters of the Herrick race. Following is the Herrick coat-of-arms: "to their posteritie forever, a certeyne crest or badge, namelie: on a wreathe of their couloures a bull’s head argent, yssuing forthe of a laurell garland. The mussel, eares and horns tipped sable. To be annexed and borne with their auncient coat-of-armes, which is silver, a fesse verray, orr and gules." The two horizontal lines composing the center of escutcheon is emblematic of the military girdle worn around the body over the armor. Motto: "Virtus omnia nobilitat" (all virtue is noble).

James Herrick, of 1603-1687, married Martha Topping, daughter of Thomas Topping, who was in Milford in 1639 and was a refugee to America from religious persecution in England. Following is Topping coat-of-arms: Azure, ten lozenges, four, three, two, one argent. Crest: Two lion’s gambs, sable holding up a roundel vair.

123.  VII. Harriett Elizabeth Bryant, b. May 10, 1845; d. Feb. 23, 1858.

Mr. Bryant received a common school education in Washington County, Pennsylvania; moved to Sandusky, Ohio, where he married. In the winter of 1835 he started with his family in wagons for Indiana. They came to the new country inhabited only by Indians, and for a time lived in a wigwam until a log house could be made. They settled one and a half miles from Hebron, Indiana, then only an Indian village. They had no trouble with the Indians, for Mr. Bryant and his wife were always kind to them. Before the railroads were constructed they hauled their grain and produce to Chicago and Michigan City, receiving $1.50 per hundredweight for hogs. Simeon was of a very kind disposition, always avoiding trouble and ever ready to see the bright side of life.

Mr. Bryant took up 160 acres of government land near what is now Hebron, Indiana, as shown by the following Preemption Certificate issued June 25, 1841.

David Bryant spent the early part of his life on the farm near Washington, Pennsylvania, and later moved with his parents to Fredericktown, Ohio.

David Bryant's early life possessed much of a roving nature. He made money easily and could have amassed a fortune, but was always going into new countries, building a good home, and then a desire for a change would come, and they would move onward, usually into the frontier.

He had many experiences with Indians, who were numerous in the settlements at that time. One day he and a friendly Indian were sitting on a log, and the Indian said to Mr. Bryant, "Move along," so he moved along. "Move along," said the Indian and kept crowding against Mr. Bryant. "Why," said he, "you will push me off." The Indian then said, "That is what the white man is doing to the Indian, pushing him off all the time."

At another time when Mr. Bryant and family were moving from Illinois to Missouri, in 1837, and had almost reached their destination, they came to a large stream which they were obliged to ford; it had raised in the night until it was dangerous to cross, but the party was unaware of that and started their teams into the swollen stream. One of the horses fell, and in plunging about to extricate himself from the wagon, turned it over with all of the occupants penned in under the cover. In this wagon were Mrs. Bryant, her sister Mrs. Nevitt, Nancy, and two children (John and Mrs. Bryant's little sister). Nancy broke the cover loose and got on top of the overturned wagon, and the two women followed and held to the sides while they were fast going down stream. Shortly the little girl, Sarah Ann Steinbrooke, came to the surface and Nancy caught her by the dress and held her while they floated a quarter of a mile. She also took John from her step-mother's arms, supposing he was dead also, but he afterwards was resuscitated. Help came after they had gone nearly a mile and the lives of all were saved except that of the little girl.

At another time while living in Missouri, a large party of Indians were being taken across the Mississippi River; they camped several days near Mr. Bryant's home, and they would trade their supplies for food, etc. One day Nancy, then a child, took a basket of apples to trade for beads, and an Indian boy demanded an apple, but offered nothing in return. Nancy refused to part with her fruit without the necessary payment, which angered the young redskin. His sister saw his movements and called to Nancy to jump, which she did, and had no sooner gotten behind a tree when an arrow went whizzing past her, shot by the boy. He received a severe whipping from his father and did not get any apples.

Mr. Bryant encountered many hardships in new countries, but his taste for adventure seemed to be a part of his nature and he always made plenty of friends, a good living, and seemed to enjoy life to a good old age, dying at the age of seventy-seven years from paralysis.

Mr. Mitchell was a farmer; adherent of the Presbyterian faith. He enlisted for service in the Civil War, but was rejected by the recruiting officer because of disability. At the first draft for soldiers he offered again and was again rejected. When the Civil War broke out Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell had eight sons old enough and young enough to enlist; five offered themselves for their country’s defense in the Union army, and three were accepted in the Ninth Indiana regiment. The children were all born in Richland County, Ohio. Burke’s General Armory gives 25 families of the name of Mitchell as bearing coats of arms.

Elizabeth Bryant, (David [37], Simeon, Cornelia, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Mar. 13, 1801, Washington, Pa.; d. Feb. 22, 1886; m. Apr. 22, 1824, in Fredericktown, Ohio, Charles Cracraft Post, who was b. July 27, 1800, at Claysville, Pa.; d. Mar. 28, 1884; buried at Spencerville, Ohio. He was the son of Jeremiah Post and Martha Cracraft, dau. of Major Charles Cracraft, who served in the war of the Revolution. In politics, Mr. Post was a Republican; in religion a Methodist; occupation, a millwright.

Children:

146. II. Martha Post, b. Aug. 7, 1827; m. Cyrus Hart Hover.

147. III. Bryant Post, b. July 25, 1830; d. May 11, 1831.

148. IV. Leonidas Hamline Post, b. Aug. 9, 1832; m. Eliza Jane Stewart.
149. V. Adam Clark Post, b. Nov. 2, 1834; m. 1st Isabelle Martin; m. (2nd) Lucy Frost; m. 3rd Eliza J. Rawles+
150. VI. Isaac Bryant Post, b. June 21, 1837; m. Emma Berry+
151. VII. Charles Graham Post, b. Dec. 31, 1839; m. Maria Rockwell+
152. VIII. Harvey Post, b. Feb. 9, 1845; d. Mar. 31, 1846.

Mr. and Mrs. Post were among the pioneers of Ohio. Mr. Post was a millwright and built and operated for a number of years the present grist mill now on the Auglaize River, known in the past as the Post mills, but at present as the Tone's mills. After disposing of his mill he bought a large tract of land one mile west of the Auglaize River on the Lima and Spencerville road, which he improved, and here he resided until a short time previous to his death, spending the last few months in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Martha Hover. In politics Mr. Post was a Republican and took an active part in the local and political issues of the past, and was sent to represent Allen County in the General Assembly of the state of Ohio in 1856–8, in which he honored himself and his constituents. Mr. and Mrs. Post were both born in the same neighborhood in Washington County, Pennsylvania, and thus had known each other since childhood. They were married in Ohio, and this marriage tie remained unbroken for almost sixty years when death claimed the husband. Father Post, as he was familiarly called, was noted for his charity. The poor never suffered in his neighborhood. No man was turned away from his door hungry. Mrs. Elizabeth Post was a quiet woman, domestic in her tastes, but of very decided character. She was an excellent housekeeper and very industrious. In person she was small, quite short of stature, of fair complexion and blue eyes. Their home was the stopping place of the Methodist preachers and quarterly meeting occasions were times for the gathering of the members of the pioneer churches. Their three younger sons served in the Union army during the Civil War. Isaac Bryant, and Charles Graham enlisted in the “three months’ service.” After being mustered out of the service, Isaac re-enlisted in the Thirty-second Ohio Infantry and Charles in the Fourth Ohio Cavalry. An older brother, Adam Clark, enlisted in the Eighty-first Ohio Infantry. All served until the close of the war, when Isaac held the rank of major, Adam Clark that of lieutenant, and Charles that of corporal. All escaped without injury except Charles, who was shot in the knee in a skirmish while in Alabama. The surgery possible was very crude, the bullet being cut out by a veterinary surgeon with a razor. After a two weeks' stay in the hospital he reported for duty.

Jacob Bryant removed with his parents to Knox County, Ohio, when twelve years old. They first settled in Dallas Township, then later they went to Scott Township, in Marion County. Jacob, by this time being a young man, started in the business of buying and selling stock, in which business he was successful. He used to drive large herds to Pittsburgh and Baltimore. At this time it was not uncommon to buy large herds and drive them to be fattened in the rich bottom lands of Scioto River below Columbus, where corn could then be purchased at ten cents a bushel. In 1833 Jacob and his family moved to Bucyrus, Ohio, where he entered the mercantile business on Main Street. Later he removed to La Timberville, about ten miles from Bucyrus, where he continued in the mercantile business. In 1838 he settled on his farm. It was then a portion of the Gillespie lands, which were regarded as the garden spot of the plains. Here Jacob transacted almost the whole stock business of the country and enjoyed the full confidence of the entire community. A singular illustration of the openess of his dealings and of our peculiar financial condition at that time is found in the account we have of an eye-witness. Mr. Bryant would purchase from farmers their droves of hogs or herds of cattle and having disposed of them would return with a bulky package of several thousands of dollars in the promiscuous wild cat currency of this and surrounding states. As farmers would call for the money due them he would place this pile on the table and bid each man select such money most satisfactory to himself, which each one would proceed to do. Jacob was a good neighbor and an honorable man in his worldly dealings. In politics he was a Whig and a Republican, and in religion a Methodist. The last twenty years of his life he was a partial invalid, caused by paralysis arising from a fall from a horse while driving cattle. During these years he had the most tender care of his wife and children. He was buried in his family lot at Oakwood Cemetery, Bucyrus, Ohio. Mrs. Bryant was a woman of remarkable physical vigor, retaining until within a few months of her death the elasticity and activity of youth. She was a faithful wife, an affectionate mother, and a woman who attended to her own affairs and was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Agnew (from Agneau, French) means a lamb. Some of the family came into England at a very early date, and some of them accompanied Strongbow into Ireland. Others settled in Scotland, where Sir Andrew Agnew was hereditary sheriff of Wigtonshire in 1452, which office the family retained about four hundred years. Tradition says three brothers emigrated in the early part of the eighteenth century to America from Great Britain. One of these brothers settled in New Jersey, and two of them settled near Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. The American genealogy of this family begins with David Agnew, of Scotch descent, who was born in New Jersey. Was a soldier of the Revolution. After the war he moved to the vicinity of Washington, Pennsylvania; married Ruth Maxwell; children, Jonathan, William, John, Jane, David, and Cumie, who married Andrew Vance. A brother, William Vance, married the above Jane Agnew.

Mr. Welsh was an extensive farmer and stock-raiser; in politics a Democrat; in religious faith a Presbyterian. When five years of age, Jane Bryant removed with her parents from Washington County, Pennsylvania, to Fredericktown, Ohio, where they lived until she grew to womanhood. While attending the wedding of her brother Jacob Bryant and Jane Ann Welsh and festivities following, she met Madison Welsh, whom she married in 1828. She was eighteen years old and Madison twenty. She was of medium height, well-proportioned, very fair complexion, with rosy cheeks and even features and auburn hair. She had an unusual amount of self-respect and commanded the regard of all who knew her. It was a happy home and some of the children lingered, loath to occupy a home of their own. Her first home after her marriage was in Wyandot County, south of the town of Wyandot. At that time the Indians were numerous in that part of Ohio, they having a trail past the door, into which they rudely gazed, but never molested the young wife. In 1831 they moved to Bucyrus, which was a small town without railroads, the county seat of Crawford County. After living there a year and a half, they moved six miles south of Bucyrus. Two years later they moved onto land in Crawford County purchased from the government at a dollar and a half an acre, where they had a lovely home and a farm of eleven hundred acres. In early life, while living on the farm, the prairie fires often raged and threatened their home and stock. The wife by good management assisted in carrying the husband through a financial crisis. In 1875 they moved to Upper Sandusky, at that time a town of about five thousand inhabitants. In 1878 they celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Two weeks later from their home their son George was buried. Later Mr. and Mrs. Welsh and their single daughter Jane went to Lathrop, Missouri, where they remained until their passing away. Mrs. Welsh had the care and raising of the children and oversight of the farm from 1834 until 1855, her husband being in the eastern cities, New York, Philadelphia, and Lancaster, a great deal of the time. His stock was driven over the road and he traveled by stage coach, which consumed much time. Stock business was uncertain at that time on account of the fluctuation of prices; also the keeping of large droves in the city was expensive. After repeated reverses her husband failed. It seems that the condition of their affairs financially was not known to the wife until the crash actually came. The hard-working, saving and sacrificing companion faced poverty with a large family, the daughters being young and unable to help themselves and their parents. The two younger boys who were at home came nobly to their rescue. Fortunately, Madison had always been a liberal provider, which gave them plenty of material with which to help along for a few years, and with the mother's good management, and by all working together, the crisis was passed.

Robert Bryant remained at home with his parents until twenty-one years of age, after which he was employed for two years at the low wages of $12.00 and $13.00 per month. At this early date Ohio and Indiana were practically a tractless and almost uninhabited wilderness. When Robert was a boy of nine years his father, Elias Bryant, accompanied by his family consisting of his wife Ann and his five children, came to Lake County, Indiana, and there settled. Railroads at this time had not extended so far west. A journey which could now be made in a day was made by wagon and required several weeks. The nearest mill was one hundred and fifty miles distant, and it was necessary to go to Michigan City to obtain supplies. Indians were very common and even years later a few were to be found who were on intimate terms with their paleface brothers. Robert’s advantages were few for acquiring an education, but he was a natural lover of books and had the faculty of retaining what he once read; he thus became very well informed. He and his brother purchased eighty acres of land which were sold, together with a half interest in his father’s farm, when he moved to Porter County in 1854. Here with his brother John he purchased 480 acres and later 100 acres more. This remained undivided until about 1861, after which he bought 40 acres of farming land and 40 more acres of timber. He had at the time of his death 310 acres of the finest land in the county, about a mile and a half from Hebron. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bryant were members of the Methodist Episcopal church.

When Mr. Bryant removed with his parents to Indiana the Pottawatomie tribe of Indians were about the only people in Lake County at that time. He pursued his education in one of the primitive log school houses found in the frontier settlements. He attended school through the winter months until eighteen years of age. In the summer season he was employed upon the home farm, gaining practical knowledge and a broad experience concerning the best methods of promoting agricultural interests, which later brought him great success. In 1852 he crossed the plains to California with a horse team, traveling north of Salt Lake City on the old Kit Carson route. Here he remained until 1857 when he returned to the East by way of the Panama and Aspinwall route to New York, spending two days on the island of Cuba while en route. He went to Hebron to visit his brothers David and Robert and remained there and engaged in agricultural pursuits and merchandising in Lake County, Indiana, until 1880, when he located on a farm. In 1882 he again went to California to visit his relatives who had crossed the plains with him in 1852, thirty years before. He remained in the Golden State two months, when he again returned to Lowell and in the same year he removed to South Chicago and engaged in the grocery business, in which he continued for about three years. On the expiration of that period he again went to Lowell and resumed farming, which he has since followed. He had a valuable tract of land of one hundred and seventy acres, and the land is arable and highly cultivated, while many substantial improvements have been made on the farm which indicate his enterprising spirit. Mr. Bryant was a lifelong Republican, active in the work of his party and deeply interested in its success, yet never seeking or desiring office as a reward for party feality. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity at Lowell, Lodge No. 378, and of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows at South Chicago, Lodge No. 245; he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church. His has been an eventful, useful, and interesting life history, for he was familiar with pioneer experiences in Indiana and in the Far West, and his mind was stored with many interesting reminiscences of his sojourn in the Golden State during the early days of its mining development.

When Samuel Ross Bryant was an infant his mother died, leaving him to the tender care of his grandmother Ross and her daughter Elizabeth. Here he made his home until his father left Pennsylvania in 1829 for Ohio, accompanied by his second wife and children. In 1835, with his father's family, he removed to Lake County, Indiana. In 1843 he attended school in Valparaiso, Indiana, the teacher being Mr. Harvey Ball of Crown Point, Indiana, the only school in the place at that time. After leaving Valparaiso he clerked in the dry goods store of Leonard Woods in the village of Door, La Porte County. Later he engaged in the merchantile business in partnership with Mr. Warren Mason of Valparaiso, Indiana. Soon after his marriage in 1849 he bought a drug-store of Mr. William Harrison in Valparaiso. He continued successfully in this business for twenty-five years. In 1857, fearing the effects of so severe a climate on lungs already affected by its severity, he made arrangements for a home in the South. However, the unsettled condition of affairs in the South and the near approach of that terrible war-cloud deterred him from carrying out his plan. In the spring of 1879 he accompanied his son Hubert, then in poor health, to Denver, Colorado. From here he was soon compelled to return, being unable to endure the effects of the alkaline dust of that region. Previous to this time he had by unflagging and patient effort battled against the insidious disease, consumption, until he felt that he had at least gained partial victory, but it ultimately gained the mastery. As he neared the end, the deep current of his life thought came to the surface in the expression of the deep, warm affection that he felt for the loved ones who watched at his bedside. In early life he united with the Methodist church, but soon after his marriage he and his wife transferred their membership to the Presbyterian church of Valparaiso, of which he proved a faithful and efficient member, ever ready with open hand and warm heart, in his characteristic quiet manner, to help build up the kingdom of his Master, on whose rod and staff he calmly and confidently leaned, even down to the valley and shadow of death. In business for many years, no one had cause to suspect his fidelity and integrity. Charged with public trusts of considerable magnitude, he closed each with a correct record.

Jacob C. Bryant,⁷ (Samuel⁸ [63], David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Nov. 26, 1828, in Green Co., Pa.; m. Nov. 23, 1853, at Valparaiso, Ind., to Adelia Frances Tyler, who was born Nov. 6, 1837; dau. of Jeremiah and Mary Ann Fitch, Rensselaer Co., N. Y. She d. Aug. 20, 1905, at Wichita, Kan.

236. IV. Mary Ann Bryant, b. Jan. 15, 1861; m. Henry Tucker+

When Jacob C. Bryant was one year of age his parents moved to Knox County, Ohio. When seven years of age, he with his parents moved to Lake County, Indiana. His education was principally acquired at the Pleasant Grove school, which was the first organized in this settlement. The teacher was Bell Jennings, half brother of Mrs. Joanna Woodruff Bryant, who made his home with the family and who, having a love for hunting, had no trouble in supplying the family with venison during the winter, which was cooked to a queen's taste by Mrs. Bryant. Jacob attended school at Crown Point and afterwards at Valparaiso. Later he went to western Ohio where he engaged in business with his cousin Simeon Mitchell. Soon after, returning to Valparaiso, he continued in business for a number of years. The Tyler family removed to this vicinity from New York when the daughter was three years old. Immediately after his marriage he removed to Crown Point, Indiana. In the spring of 1860, with his wife and two children, he drove in a wagon to Franklin County, Kansas. The extreme drought of that summer compelled him to return to Indiana, where he remained until 1863, when he located at Galva, Illinois. Here he was employed by the United States government as mechanic and was stationed at Nashville, Tennessee, later being transferred to Atlanta, Georgia. Severe fighting took place about Nashville, and all mechanics were held in readiness for active service under arms. After serving the government for about six months he returned home. In 1866 he located at Chickasaw, Iowa, where he lived until 1888, going from there to Cowley County, Kansas. In the fall of 1904 he moved to Wichita, Kansas, where in August, 1905, his wife died, after a lingering illness, respected and esteemed by those who knew her. The closing years of her life were spent much in travel in an effort to regain her health, but to no avail. Since the death of his wife Jacob Bryant makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Grear Nagle, 1501 Maple St., Wichita, Kansas. At the age of eighty-five he still enjoys a reasonable degree of health.

When Hannah Bryant Robertson was nine years old her mother died. Hannah being the oldest daughter at home was of great assistance to her father in caring for the family. At the age of seventeen years she united with the Methodist Episcopal church at Westville, Indiana, and remained a member of that denomination until her death. The first ten years of her married life were spent in or near Westville, Indiana. Here her three children were born. In 1862 the family moved to Eagle Creek Township, Lake County, Indiana, where they remained for twenty years. Her next and last home was in Crown Point, Indiana. She was a farmer’s daughter and a farmer’s wife, devoted to her family.

When Harvey Bryant was two years old his father and mother, with six children, in a party of some twenty relatives, started by wagon from the Ohio farm to Lake County, Indiana, a distance of 300 miles. As a growing boy in pioneer times he had his share of hardship. Left without a mother’s care at seven, he made his home for the most part with Uncle Harvey Woodruff at Orchard Grove in the winter; and with Daniel Merris at Pleasant Grove during the summer (that he might have access to the summer schools). In these boyhood days he could be seen drowning gophers and trapping prairie chickens and quail, both as a diversion and occupation, for the chickens and quail were sent to Chicago by wagon and sold or traded for clothing. Christmas of 1848 found him — now a boy of almost sixteen — on the way back to Ohio helping Uncle David Bryant drive cattle. Others in the party were his brother Isaac and his cousin David. In Ohio he made his home with his father, who had returned in the fall of 1848, attending school or working on the farm as the season demanded. In 1852 he came to Indiana, this time by stage, boat, and rail, and spent the summer with his brother Ross and his sister Hannah and others. Four cousins, Avis Bryant, Kate Mitchell, Robert Bryant, and Harvey Bryant, made the return trip together, leaving Chicago over the Michigan Central; 1853 was characterized by a trip over the Allegheny Mountains to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, with a drove of cattle, in company with Bryant Welsh as leader. In the fall of 1854 he entered college at Oberlin, where he attended for a part of two years. Here Rev. Charles G. Finney, president of the college, commanded his respect and made a lasting impress upon his mind. The influences brought to bear upon him here no doubt culminated in his christian character of honesty and integrity. He soon entered into church relations, and has ever since been a Methodist. On December 3, 1855, he entered the rude schoolhouse at Orchard Grove, Indiana, as teacher. Among the first pupils to arrive was a girl of fifteen, in her shawl and hood — the fashion of the day — and her ten-year-old brother, wearing his faded but clean blue denim blouse and overalls tucked into his boot-tops. These two were destined to have their lives closely interwoven with that of the teacher, for the girl became his wife and the boy almost a life partner in farming and mercantile affairs. He continued teaching for four more winters — two terms at Orchard Grove and two at the Buckley school — while during the summers he farmed land owned by Jerry Kenney. In 1856 he cast his first presidential vote, which was lost, being a supporter of John C. Fremont. After his marriage in 1860 he purchased a house and lot adjoining the tract entered by his father-in-law, Conner Dowd. These were the beginnings of the present Bryant Dowd & Company farm located five miles southwest of Hebron. Along with his farming interests he cared for an apiary, which at one time numbered 230 hives, all having had their origin in the single swarm of bees presented by Jerry Kenney as a wedding present. One shipment of honey — 3,000 pounds — was marketed at 27 cents per pound, while the year's yield amounted to $810. In 1874 failing health came as a blow upon an heretofore active and ambitious life. A change of climate and surroundings was recommended by Dr. J. K. Blackstone, hence a trip to Colorado accompanied by his kinsmen, Marion Robertson, David Fisher, and Homer DeWitt. With health improved, after a few months he returned to his old pursuits, which in the next few years were to be supplemented by town interests, for in 1876 he built a house in Hebron, moved his family, and in 1881, in partnership with J. H. Dowd, his brother-in-law, purchased a general stock of goods of William Sturgeon, owned just previously by J. E. Bryant. A burglary and fire in 1890 necessitated the removal of the remnant of the stock to temporary quarters, and in time the building of the corner brick, now in use and known as the Bryant Dowd & Company store. In recent years, while in a sense Mr. Bryant had retired from store work, he had general oversight of the finances; and though a man of eighty, his pioneer life of toil and privation apparently had no effect upon later years other than to have its share in the molding of a well-rounded character of sterling worth. He passed the fourscore years, retaining far more than usual both of physical and mental strength. His generosity in supporting the publication of the Bryant Genealogy is highly appreciated. A stroke of apoplexy May 19, 1913, caused his death, which occurred at the home of his son, May 23, 1913.

At the death of his mother, when Isaac Bryant was five years old, he was separated from father, brothers, and sisters, and in the years following had various homes in the neighborhood. However, his disposition was such that, even as a child, he would not be imposed upon by those under whose care he was placed. An approaching whipping was enough to warrant him in seeking a new home. To his mind, boyish pranks should not be thus dealt with, and these pranks were not foreign to his nature. The district school was a source of annoyance, but not for long at a time; for he gained his freedom from it in the same way that he did from a distasteful home. His nature demanded independence and freedom. In early life he was apprenticed to one Obadiah Dunham, in Valparaiso, to learn the tailor’s trade. While he was clever at the trade, he never entered into the business, but chose rather to work on his father’s farm in season, and hunt and trap at leisure times. He was a remarkable shot, and many prairie chickens, geese, and deer were the victims of his deadly aim. On at least two different occasions he assisted in driving cattle to the East — in one instance to Ohio, and in another across the Alleghenies to Pennsylvania. Knowledge of the western frontier was gained by a trip taken when he was a young man. Railroads were still incomplete in the West, and sometimes he was obliged to go on foot. He toured several of the states, spending some time with his sister, Jane Stalter, then living in Kansas. On August 11, 1861, he was enlisted in Company H, Ninth Indiana Volunteers. During the fight at Green Briar, West Virginia, he was wounded in his left arm; consequently he was granted a furlough and later an honorable discharge. A Lake County paper dated October 10, 1861, says: “We notice among the wounded the name of Isaac Bryant, who is the first of Lake County’s men to receive the mark of a rebel bullet.” After his marriage he worked part of his father’s farm on shares, but after the division of the Pearce estate they established their home on the portion falling to them, half-way between Hebron and Lowell. Here he lived uninterruptedly for years, a successful farmer devoted to the interests of his family. About ten years before his death he moved to Hebron, Indiana, where he built a roomy and comfortable home with a view to spending his closing years in retirement from active pursuits.

During only two years of Jane Bryant Stalter's life did she have a mother's care; then she was left to the protection of others — of neighbors, perhaps, and of a nine-year-old sister. Her school days were passed in the old Pleasant Grove schoolhouse. When she was ten years old she was taken back to Ohio with her father's family, where because of her environment, she learned to depend upon herself and to make her own pleasures out of the simple country life. At the age of seventeen she was married to John Stalter in Wyandot County. The young couple made their home in Ohio until 1858, when they went by rail and by boat to Franklin County, Kansas. They lived on the ranch of John Brown, the noted abolitionist. On Brown's last trip through Kansas, he and a companion called one night at the Stalter home. They were on the way to the home of Brown's brother-in-law, Horace Day, who lived a half-mile away. During these troublous times, while her husband was away fighting the border ruffians, Jane was caring for her home, her family, and the ranch. In 1861 when she had charge of affairs — her husband fighting in the state militia on the Missouri and Kansas line — grasshoppers completely destroyed the crops. While they yet lived in Franklin County, they had also to contend with the ravages of fire, which wiped out their home and its contents. In 1871 with their five living children — three being left behind in the little graveyard — they moved to Cowley County by wagon to take up frontier life in southern Kansas. Here occasional hardships were interspersed with much good fortune, for they were successful in accumulating land and live stock, and owned a ranch famed for miles around. Prosperity was theirs for some fifteen years, but in 1886–7, when money matters took a bad turn, they lost all their property. However, they were a solace one to the other, for Jane Stalter was no weak, dependent woman, but one who possessed a brave, noble, and unselfish nature that knew no failure. Thoroughly Christian, she was a leader whether in church, school, or temperance movements. Because of her untiring industry and her noble Christian character, she never failed to command the respect of those with whom she mingled. Five years of her later life were spent in Woodward County, Oklahoma. Thence the couple moved to Pacific Grove, California, where in 1909 death claimed her, and where her husband still lives.
JOANNA BRYANT,⁷ (Samuel⁶ [63], David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Apr. 2, 1840, near Lowell, Lake Co., Ind.; m. Sept. 10, 1862, at Valparaiso, Ind., to EDWIN RUTHVEN BEEBE, who was b. Nov. 30, 1835, in Tompkins Co., N. Y.; son of Samuel Clark Beebe and Currence Benedict Gregg. He d. May 14, 1906, at Princeton, Wis.

Children:

268.  I. Joanna Belle Beebe, b. Oct. 8, 1878; educated in Princeton, Wis., and at Ripon (Wis.) College. Fond of reading; teacher of high school subjects in various towns of Wisconsin and Minnesota; successful in her line of work. When family lived in Chicago — earlier — she was proof-reader.

269.  II. Edwin Hubert Beebe, b. Nov. 7, 1881; m. Mary Sullivan+

270.  III. Ione Currence Beebe, b. Aug. 30, 1883, was educated in Princeton, Wis., the town of her birth. Later took business course in Chicago and has since been employed as stenographer in Ripon, Wis., and Princeton. Earlier she had been type-setter in her father’s printing office.

When Joanna Bryant was an infant her mother died and she was left to the care of her uncle Elias Bryant, with whom she lived until she was twelve years of age. Her early education was gained in a log schoolhouse about a half-mile from her home and her first teacher was Hon. Martin Wood, of Crown Point. When she was twelve years old, her uncle and aunt both having died, she went to Valparaiso to live with her half-brother Ross Bryant, with whom she made her home until her marriage to Edwin Ruthven Beebe, a printer. In 1863 Mr. and Mrs. Beebe moved to Chicago where they lived near Halsted and Twelfth streets. Chicago, in those days before the great fire, did not bear much resemblance to the metropolis of to-day. A walk of three miles to the post-office was necessary when they wanted the mail. A public hydrant on the street corner was the only source of water supply. There were few street-cars, an old-fashioned omnibus making the run to the business section. Farther to the south and west of where they lived was nothing but marsh and uninhabited lowlands. In 1864 they moved to Orchard Grove, Indiana, where they lived on a farm for four years. They then went back to Valparaiso, where Mr. Beebe was employed as a printer. In May, 1872, they moved to Lowell, Indiana, and commenced the publication of the Lowell Star, the first paper ever published in Lowell. Several years later Mr. Beebe moved his paper to Crown Point, Indiana, where it became the Lake County Star, still one of the prominent papers of the county. In 1878 Mr. Beebe disposed of his business interests in Crown Point and soon after moved to Princeton, Wisconsin. Here he soon became the editor of the Princeton Republic, and the family remained there until 1899 when they moved to Chicago. After two years they returned to Princeton, which again became the family home until Mr. Beebe’s death in 1906. The following fall Mrs. Beebe moved to Ripon, Wisconsin, where her son and her daughter Ione were employed. After two years she returned to the home in Princeton, Wisconsin, where she still lives. In early life she became a member of the Presbyterian church and has always been loyal in her support of her church and devoted to her home.

279.  IX.  Ralph D. Cooper, b. Dec. 23, 1860; d. Feb. 1, 1872.

Zebulon Cooper resided in Washington County, Pennsylvania, until the fall of 1863, when he removed with his family to Rochelle, Illinois, where they remained until March, 1864, when he located on a farm near Winfield, Iowa, where he remained until 1876, when the pioneer spirit again took possession of him and he removed to Miami County, Kansas. In 1885 he moved to Ottawa, Kansas. He followed agriculture as an occupation. In politics he was a Republican; in religious faith a Presbyterian. He was an extensive reader, a well-informed man of sterling integrity of character, and esteemed by all who knew him. He is buried in Ottawa, Kansas. His wife is still living, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years.

Obituary published in Winfield, Iowa, weekly paper: “Catherine Cooper Gamble was the second child of a family of twelve children, six of whom survive her. On January 1, 1837, at her home in Pennsylvania, she was united in marriage to Harvey Gamble, well known in this vicinity for his noble and consistent Christian character and example, and affectionately remembered for his many disinterested efforts on behalf of those who were in trouble, sorrow, and bereavement. Her husband preceded her to glory twenty-three years ago. Immediately after her marriage she and her husband moved to Shelby, Ohio, where they lived until 1845, when they moved back to Washington County, Pennsylvania. The next removal was to Iowa, where, with the exception of two years, the deceased has lived on the farm where she died. Her death took place on Tuesday, March 8, 1892, at the residence of her son John C. At the age of seventeen years she made a profession of her faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and for the long period of threescore years has been a humble and faithful follower of her Divine Master. She was of Puritan origin and always prided herself on the fact, tracing her ancestry back to the Pilgrim Fathers who landed on Plymouth Rock. A firm adherent of the doctrines and government of the Presbyterian church, she has been in communion with it all her Christian life.

“Catherine Gamble was well known to nearly all in this vicinity, and those who were well acquainted with her will bear out the writer of this obituary in saying that she was one who studiously avoided making known her good deeds while she lived and who would not wish to be praised when she is dead. Some points in her character, however, we should mention for the imitation of those who survive. Her religion was unobtrusive, though her faith was unwavering; and she showed its reality rather in her life than in her words. Her piety was grounded on humility; her hope, through the merits of her Redeemer was as ‘an anchor of the soul, sure and steadfast.’ She preferred to commune with her own heart, and in her chamber; and by applying herself to God’s Word and to prayer, she sought, as instructed by the Psalmist, to cleanse her ways. In the transactions of life she thought and spoke and acted as in the sight of God. Just and true in all her dealings, she endeavored to do her duty in that sphere of life into which it had pleased God to call her. To the poor she was liberal and kind, to the bereaved and afflicted, sympathetic and helpful. She was always ready, according to her ability, to lend a helping hand to those who were in trouble, and the families in this community are not few in number who have been blessed by her presence when sickness or death invaded their homes. In her the neighborhood has lost a most useful example, the church one of its most consistent members, her family a valued and beloved relative, the poor a true friend, and the world an honest and a good woman.

"Although a great sufferer for months her sun did at last go down without a cloud and she passed out of time into eternity without a struggle. Jesus was to her soul as a morning without clouds, and gave her a peaceful end. "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace." By her own request the funeral services were held at the residence of her son John C., and were conducted by her former pastor, Rev. James B. Butter, now of Blirstown, Iowa, assisted by Rev. David McEwan, pastor of Presbyterian Church of Winfield. Despite the inclement nature of the weather the services were largely attended, and the long procession that followed the remains to the cemetery east of town was but one more testimony to the esteem in which she was held. B.'

October 14, 1903, at Appleton, Wis., KITTE STUDLEY, dau. of Dr. William Harrison Studley, who was b. in Bridgeport, Conn., and Caroline Louise Heath, b. in Wanhouse Point, Conn. She was a "Daughter of the Revolution" and a "Colonial Dame." Dr. Studley was graduated an Episcopal clergyman from Trinity College, New Haven, Conn., after which he attended Rush Medical College in Chicago, Ill., and graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City. Dr. Edwin S. Cooper is a graduate of the Missouri Medical College of St. Louis, and of Bellevue College of New York City. Politically he is a Republican, "but votes for the best man." Mrs. Cooper was educated in New York City, became a member of St. James' Episcopal Church, although she says at heart she is a member of all churches. Dr. Cooper has an extensive practice in Almond, Wis.

"Mr. David Bryant Cooper received a liberal education in the schools of Washington County, Pennsylvania, and remained on the farm until twenty-one years of age, when he engaged in merchandising with his older brother Zebulon at Washington, Pennsylvania, and there continued for two years. He then sold out and purchased a farm, after which he engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1850 our subject sold his farm and moved to Lee County, Iowa, where he farmed and also speculated in land. In the spring of 1857 he sold out and moved to Scotland County, Missouri, where he purchased the large tract of land he owned until his death. He was school director while in Iowa and was elected clerk of the elections. In 1862 he was elected county judge, and after two years when all other officers were thrown out he was appointed by Governor Gamble, and at the next general election was re-elected by the people and served eight years. He was a Republican and a worthy and enterprising citizen.” (History of Scotland County, Missouri, 1887.)

Copied from a Memphis journal: “Judge David B. Cooper died of paralysis at his home in this city, Monday, June 22d, 1891, after a brief illness, aged 74 years, 1 month and 22 days. He was a man of sterling integrity and worth, whose word was as good as his bond, and his friendship was an honor to all on whom it was bestowed. He was one of nature’s noblemen, a born gentleman, with a great, big, generous heart, always thoughtful of others, brave, honest, truthful, generous and straightforward. In the home he was a kind and devoted husband, an indulgent father, an excellent neighbor, and, as a citizen of the town and county he was highly esteemed and respected, and ranked among the foremost and best. Therefore, in tendering the bereaved family our sincere sympathy in their deep affliction, we simply voice the sentiment of a very large circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. L. Hogue at the family residence in this city, today, at 10 a.m., after which all that is mortal of our old-time friend was tenderly and lovingly laid to rest in the Memphis cemetery.”

Children:

310. I. Mary Elizabeth Vaile, b. April 28, 1849; unm.+
311. II. Clara E. Vaile, b. Jan. 9, 1851; m. Miles Joseph Braiden+
312. III. Susan Maria Vaile, b. Aug. 8, 1852; m. Charles Edwin Cort+
313. IV. Anna Eliza Vaile, b. Apr. 13, 1854; m. Byron Hall+
314. V. Emma Caroline Vaile, b. Mar. 13, 1864; m. Eugene L. Cole+
315. VI. Edward Leonard Vaile, b. Nov. 4, 1868; m. Maude Eggert+

Caroline Vaile, possessing energy, enterprise, and the pioneer spirit of her ancestors, left a home of comfort and plenty, willing to share with her husband in giving their young lives to aid in building up a new country on the prairies of northern Illinois. They arrived in Lane (Rochelle), Ogle County, Illinois, in October, 1853, three months before the completion of the North Western Railroad through to the Mississippi River. The Blackhawk War had cleared that region of the savage, but wild animals were not uncommon. Mr. Vaile had made a previous trip and purchased a farm which later proved to be one of the richest and most highly cultivated farms in the state, one and a half miles from Rochelle. Here they continued to reside until the death of Mr. Vaile in 1895, when Mrs. Vaile with her daughter Mary left the farm home with its cherished memories and took up residence in Rochelle where she still resides in remarkable strength of mind and body at the age of eighty-six years (1913). During their early pioneer days religious privileges were few. Colporteurs went occasionally through the country holding meetings and distributing missionary tracts. The Vaile home was the place of these meetings, and the well-known hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Vaile was always extended to these bible agents. This worthy couple constituted a part of the first church society organized in the village of Lane. Services were first held in the homes, then in a car, stationed for the purpose; later a log schoolhouse was used, which had previously been a flouring mill. At this schoolhouse in September, 1854, a committee from the presbytery of Chicago organized a Presbyterian church in the town of Lane, later renamed Rochelle. A church was erected in 1857, replaced by a larger one in 1874. Mr. Vaile had a prominent part in the erection of these church buildings and in sustaining the best interests of the church. In politics he was Democratic until after attending a Lincoln-Douglas political debate previous to the Civil War. He then became a stanch Republican; always deeply interested in the politics of his country; never willing, however, to hold any important office. He was the son of Leonard Vaile, a native of Winhall, Bennington County, Vermont, and Mary Minton, of Washington County, Pennsylvania, b. 1808, d. 1884. Leonard Vaile, in early manhood went to Washington County, Pennsylvania, where he taught school until after his marriage, when he became a merchant in Prosperity, Pennsylvania. He was the son of Edward Vaile of Upton, Massachusetts, b. 1774, d. 1859, who married Lois Perham of Chelmsford and Upton, Massachusetts, b. 1777, d. 1855, who has a long line of Perham ancestry extending into England. Edward Vaile was the twelfth child of Edward Vaile and Mary Oberton, whom he married in 1772 in Bridgewater, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. This Edward was born October 20, 1746. His parents lived in Boston at the time of a great fever, to which both were victims. Edward Vaile served in the Continental army in the war of the Revolution, enlisting at Upton, Massachusetts, and furnishing his own fire-arms. He served under Captain B. Reed. His military service is on record in the Secretary's office in the state of Massachusetts. The Vaile coat of arms is in the British Museum in London, England. The name on this coat of arms is spelled Vaile. This is mentioned because the name appears with other spellings. Mary Lindley Minton, the mother of Edward Gallatin Vaile, was the daughter of Mathias Minton of Morristown, New Jersey, b. 1783, and Sarah Lindley, b. 1786, daughter of Caleb Lindley, who was the son of John Lindley, son of John Lindley of Morris-town, New Jersey, born about 1666, who was the son of Francis Lindley, the emigrant ancestor who came to Connecticut in 1639. Francis married Susanna Culpepper. Caleb Lindley, grandfather of Mary Minton, served in the Continental army during the Revolution; enlisted in 1776, Captain Joseph Horton's company; military record in office of Adjutant General, Trenton, New Jersey. Caroline Vaile is a member of the Daughters of the Revolution. Both of her grandfathers served in the war of the Revolution.

317. II. Charles Bryant Cooper, b. Nov. 19, 1864; m. Katherine Christie McGrew +

318. III. Haviland Cooper died in infancy.

Charles W. Cooper was educated at West Alexandria Academy, Pennsylvania, graduated at theological school at Princeton, N. J. Entered as a junior, 1847, Washington and Jefferson College. In 1851 he graduated. In a historical address by Prof. A. H. McCaughey of Erie, Pennsylvania, Charles Cooper was pronounced "the best looking man in the class. Pure-minded, warm-hearted, strong and faithful in his friendships — with few faults except that unusual one of not thinking as highly of himself as he ought to think — he was one whom we all loved heartily." This same history states he is related not remotely to America's most famous novelist, J. Fenimore Cooper. In 1849-50 he studied law at Steubenville, Ohio. In September, 1851, he entered Princeton Theological Seminary as a student, and after a full course of study graduated there in May, 1854. Licensed to preach, his first charge was in Pontiac, Michigan. His next charge was the Huntingdon South Church, Babylon, Long Island, a relation which he sustained for twelve years. In 1870 he took charge of Marlborough Church on the Hudson River, where he remained until his death. It was his privilege while pastor at Marlborough to receive at one time 74 members into the church. The Duyckinck family records with coat of arms are found in the Armoral at The Hague, Holland, published about the twelfth century.

John C. Cooper7 (Mary6 [65], David5, Simeon4, Cornelius3, Pieter Cornelisse2, Cornelis1), b. Feb. 11, 1832, near Washington, Pa.; m. Sept. 27, 1860, at Jefferson, Tex., Lucy M. Harris, dau. of Frank Harris and Martha Freeman. She was b. Feb. 23, 1843, at Montgomery, Ala.; d. at Carrollton, Mo., Aug. 30, 1882.

Children:

323. V. Harry Bryant Cooper, b. Oct. 5, 1873; m. Florence Thomas+

Dr. John C. Cooper was reared on a farm. His early education was obtained in the common schools; he afterward attended the academy of West Alexandria, Virginia. He then read medicine with Dr. Warren Blachly and Dr. Thomas McKennan of Washington, Pennsylvania. He was a graduate of the Pennsylvania Medical University at Philadelphia. He took a post-graduate course in New Orleans. In 1856 he located in Jefferson, Texas. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted in the First Texas Partisan Rangers, and served as surgeon in the Confederate army during the war. In 1867 he moved with his wife and family to Carrollton, Missouri, where he still resides. Dr. Cooper is now past 80 years of age, tall and straight, with a gentlemanly bearing and a professional, dignified appearance.

332. IV. Lillian Elizabeth Blackstone, b. July 1, 1870; d. Nov. 21, 1900+
333. IV. Benjamin E. Blackstone, b. Jan. 4, 1876; attended high school, Hebron, Ind., after which he spent two years at medical school in St. Louis, Mo. Res., Hebron, Ind.
Margaret was the first white girl born in Boone Township, Lake County, Indiana, and grew to womanhood on the old farm. Her parents often repeated their early experiences with the Indians. Once in the absence of her father the old Chief Shawne-Quoke came to the home, took a piece of chalk, made a circle on the floor, and said in the Indian language that for five miles around belonged to the Indians and ordered her to leave, threatening to kill her with a butcher knife, saying “Kin-a-bode” (kill you) if she did not leave at once. He approached her with the uplifted knife when her scream aroused two large dogs that were near by. They attacked the Indian, thus defeating his murderous intention. At another time in the absence of the family the Indians came and were trying her father’s gun and inspecting things in general. Catherine Sadoris, the maid, came home while they were there. Just as she came around the corner of the house an Indian raised the gun to look through it; the girl, supposing that he intended to shoot her, ran for her life. The Indians told the family of the incident upon their return and she was not found until the next day, when she said she supposed that the family had all been slain. She stated that in the night seven deer came near to her, but she felt no fear except of the Indians. Ordinarily the Indians were civil and peaceful and gave but little trouble. At her father’s home the first Methodist meeting was held and a society was organized in 1837 in Hebron, Indiana. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and for many years gave valuable service to the Sunday school but has now given her place to the younger workers.

Dr. J. K. Blackstone graduated from the Western Reserve Medical College, of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1848. He practiced his profession in several places in Ohio, and in June, 1856, he located in Hebron, Indiana, where he resided until his death. Dr. Blackstone served in the Mexican War. He was appointed second lieutenant of the Ohio Volunteers, First Brigade, Twenty-second Division, of the militia of the state. He was the youngest commissioned officer of the army. His commission was signed June 4, 1846, by Governor Samuel Galloway and Secretary of State M. Barley. Dr. Blackstone served in the Civil War, was appointed captain Company E, Ninth Regiment of the Indiana Volunteer Militia, at Indianapolis, the first day of September, 1861. November 1, he was appointed regimental surgeon of the same company. He organized the above company.

336. III. Florence Bryant, b. Sept. 12, 1889; res., Chicago, Ill.

Florence possesses fine musical talent. She excels as a violinist. She studied music for several years in Berlin, Germany.

Mr. Bryant was one who responded to his country's call in 1862 and enlisted in Company I, Fifth Indiana Cavalry, in which he served nearly three years. During this time he was a prisoner seven months in Andersonville, having been captured at Sunshine Church, Georgia. After the war he was appointed postmaster and served twelve years. He owned a farm of five hundred acres adjoining the town of Hebron, Indiana, and a farm of one hundred sixty acres in Kansas. He was a Methodist. His daughters Nellie and Florence are in Berlin, Germany, where Florence is studying music, her specialty being the violin.

345. VI. George Harold Bryant, b. Apr. 12, 1887.
346. VII. Myra Lillian Bryant, b. July 31, 1895, at Hebron, Ind. She is a musical student.

Elias Bryant was born on the farm which his father purchased from the government, and has in his possession the deed dated June 25, 1841, and signed by President John Tyler. The house was built from timbers hewn from the native forest and its framework is still used for the present home. The Indians were friendly;
Simeon, his father, had always treated them kindly and was willing to trade grain or whatever he had for their fish and some articles they had for sale. When under the influence of liquor they were troublesome. In politics Mr. Bryant is a Republican. The old homestead holds many sacred memories. Here occurred many of the births, marriages, and deaths of the family. An illustration of the old house accompanies this sketch. Residence, Hebron, Indiana.

NANCY BRYANT⁷ (David⁶ [67], David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,⁳ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis,¹), b. Sept. 25, 1825, near Wyan- dot, Ohio; d. July 24, 1913; m. May 22, 1854, WILLIAM FISHER, who was b. June 9, 1825, near Schenectady, N. Y., the son of Alexander Fisher, who was b. in Ayr, Scotland, and Agnes Brown, b. in Paisley, Scotland.

Children:

350. I. David A. Fisher, b. Mar. 13, 1855; m. Elizabeth Bliss+

351. II. Arabella F. Fisher, b. Sept. 21, 1857; m. Charles W. Hayward+

Nancy Bryant came to Indiana with her parents in 1835, when the settlements were very few. Her mother died at Pleasant Grove, Lake County, and was buried near Valparaiso, Indiana. At this time Nancy was a child of only ten years, and with her brother Isaac was placed in school by her father in Wellsburgh, Virginia, where they lived in the home of Dr. Grafton, a son-in-law of Joseph Bryant. After about a year their father married Margaret Steinbrooke, in Illinois, and he brought them back to their western home. In 1849 her step-mother died, and Nancy was left with the care of six brothers, the youngest a mere babe. She filled the position of sister and mother to her brothers until her marriage.

In 1854 Mr. Fisher wedded this noble young woman who has proved his devoted companion and effective helpmeet during the long intervening years. They began their married life on a farm in Lake County, where, sustained by mutual affection and sympathy, and by common aims and ambitions, they toiled early and late, in order that they might gain the goal of definite independence and prosperity. With the passing of years they accumulated one of the valuable landed estates of Lake County, and the same still remains in their possession.

They remained on this homestead until 1884, when they removed to Hebron, Porter County, Indiana, where they have since resided, and have a secure place in popular confidence and venerating esteem. Soon after establishing residence in Hebron, Mr. Fisher engaged in the hardware business and later he turned his attention to the dry-goods business, in which he continued active operations until 1894, when he disposed of the stock and business, after having been one of the leading merchants of the town for a full decade. Later he here established the private banking institution which was later transformed into the present Citizens State Bank, of which he is president and of which his daughter Ida is cashier, the institution being one whose success is based alike on careful and conservative management and ample capitalistic reinforcement. Miss Fisher became cashier of the original private bank and has continued her effective services under the present régime, with the result that she is known as an especially able and discriminating business woman and as the effective coadjutor of her honored father, who has attained the patriarchal age of eighty-seven years (1912) and whose life has been one to offer both lesson and inspiration.
William Fisher gained his early educational training in the common schools of his native county and thus laid the foundation for the comprehensive knowledge which he was later to acquire through active association with men and affairs. At the age of twenty-five years, his youthful ambition responded to the lure of the West, which offered superior opportunities for the winning of success through individual effort. He had kinsfolk in Indiana and thus was led to make that state his destination, while his resourcefulness was shown by careful preparation for business activities in the new home. He came west with the means and intention of engaging in the manufacture of brooms, and he brought with him not only a supply of broom-corn seed, but also the requisite drill for the cultivation of the product. Upon his arrival in Lake County he formed a partnership with his cousins, the late William and John Brown, and engaged in the raising of broom-corn, in the manufacturing of which they employed a skilled broom-maker. They continued in this line of enterprise for several years and at one time had nearly one hundred acres of land under effective cultivation for the propagation of broom-corn. The products were shipped to Detroit, Chicago, and other places in the Middle West, and the industry was made a profitable venture.

He has been a loyal adherent of the Republican party from the time of its organization and while a resident of Lake County he served with marked ability and zeal as a member of the board of county commissioners. He held this office for seven years and within that time he earnestly fostered the movements which resulted in the erection of the county court house, jail, and infirmary, the buildings of each of which were erected during his incumbency of office. He and his family are devoted members of the United Presbyterian church in Hebron and all who remain here show a lively interest in everything that tends to advance the moral, educational and social welfare of the community. A substantial fortune stands as the concrete evidence of the excellent labors of Mr. Fisher in the years that have passed, and his career has been one unblemished by injustice or selfishness. He and his estimable wife have shown sympathy for those in affliction and have been animated by a spirit of helpfulness that ever indicates a high sense of stewardship. Secure in the high regard of all who know them, they may well look back into the perspective of the years and find satisfaction in the goodly fruitage which has crowned their efforts, as well as the faith and confidence which their earnest labors and kindly deeds have inspired in those about them. Forty-three English families of Fisher name bear coats of arms. (Burke's General Armory.)

James Harrison Bryant\(^7\) (David\(^8\) [67], David,\(^5\) Simeon,\(^4\) Cornelius,\(^3\) Pieter Cornelisse,\(^2\) Cornelis,\(^1\)), b. Apr. 24, 1840, in Gentry Co., Mo., near St. Joseph. Moved to Illinois with family soon after birth where he lived until he was 19 years old. In 1859 went across the plains with his brother John to California. He lived in different parts of California until 1865, when he returned to his old home. In 1867, went to Kansas with his three brothers, Daniel, David, and Allen. All four brothers took up claims about four miles north of Erie, Kan.; m. Jan. 1, 1873, Minnie May Hodges in Erie, Kan. She was b. Feb. 23, 1855; dau. of Norman W. Hodges and Eliza J. Britt.

Children:

355. I. Belle Bryant, b. Dec. 30, 1876; d. Jan. 9, 1890.

In 1879 Mr. Bryant moved to Colorado Springs, Colorado, and was engaged in railroad contracting until 1883. He returned to Kansas and located in Parsons, his present home. For eight years he was Street Commissioner of Parsons. He then engaged in the street paving business until 1906, when he established a wholesale coal and feed business, which he is now conducting.

Belle Bryant attended the Parsons public schools from 1884 to 1896, when she became an invalid and was such until her death.

Harry A. Bryant attended the Parsons public schools, and also Parsons Business College, and in 1901 entered the employ of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company, where he remained two years and then took a position as assistant cashier of the Parsons Commercial Bank, and was afterwards promoted to cashier, which position he still holds.

361. V. Joseph Allen Bryant, b. June 6, 1882; m. Margaret Anderson+

Joseph Allen Bryant served as a soldier during the Civil War. He enlisted when about eighteen years of age, August 10, 1861, at Oneida, Illinois. He was mustered into service as a private in Company C, Forty-second Illinois Volunteer Infantry, for the period of three years. He re-enlisted on the first day of January, 1864, as a veteran volunteer for a period of three years, at Stone’s Mills, Tennessee. He was mustered into service as a veteran February 16, 1864, at Chattanooga, Tennessee. Received his appointment as sergeant in Company C, Forty-second Regiment of Volunteer Infantry, on the 30th day of April, 1864. His residence at date of first enlistment is stated as Altoona, Knox County, Illinois. He was in service from the time of his first enlistment until the close of the rebellion, and was credited as a brave and loyal soldier. After his return from the war he went to Erie, Neosho County, Kansas, and from there to Arizona, where, while working on the construction of the Atlantic & Pacific Railway, he was also deputy United States marshal, and was shot while arresting a desperado. The following clipping was taken from an Arizona paper, the Arizona Miner:

“A man from San Bernardino, Cal., named Miller, alias Grizzly, had threatened the life of Railroad Contractor King, who swore out a warrant for the arrest of said Miller, and placed same in the hands of Allen Bryant, railroad contractor and deputy United States marshal. A man by the name of Holmes, a United States marshal from Albuquerque, New Mexico, armed with a Remington rifle, accompanied Mr. Bryant in making the arrest of Miller. Bryant read the warrant and commanded the accused to surrender his revolver, which he pulled and shot Bryant twice, one ball passing through the breast, the other through the abdomen. Holmes, the assistant, was posted behind a tree, and like the coward he was, allowed his brother officer to be murdered. The assassin, after mortally wounding Bryant, took his arms and then demanded of Holmes his gun, which the United States marshal threw to him and begged mercy at his hands. Miller, after coming off victorious, mounted a fine horse and started off into the mountains, waving his hat at the enraged people of Flagstaff, who followed in hot pursuit. Holmes also left, to avoid being lynched by the citizens, who were rightly incensed at his beastly cowardice. Mr. Bryant died about six hours after the shooting. He was an honest, law-abiding citizen, with an excellent wife and three little children.”

Orah Alice Bryant attended the public schools, and also the Valparaiso College. She moved to Illinois with her parents, and when she was eleven years of age her mother died and she with her father came to Indiana, where they made their home with her sister, Nancy Bryant Fisher, until her marriage. Orah and her father lived a short time in Kansas with her brothers. After her marriage she assisted her husband in the drug business, and then she engaged in the photograph business, which she carried on very successfully for several years until she went to Lafayette, Indiana, where she placed their son Phillip in Purdue University. She remained there four years, then returned to Mentone, and is now a registered pharmacist. In politics, Mr. Doddridge is a Republican; religion, Methodist; occupation, druggist and jeweler. They have resided in Hebron, Indiana; Galva, Illinois, and at present in Mentone, Indiana. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

William Bryant Doddrige [366] lived with his parents in Hebron and attended the public schools, and moved with them to Galva, Illinois, and then to Mentone, Indiana. He studied the jewelry and drug business, and assisted his father. He worked for some time in Chicago. In 1895 he went into the jewelry business for himself in Claypool, Indiana, where he was living at the time of his untimely death, which occurred on New Year's night, 1896, when, going home with a young man from a "watch night" prayer-meeting, cold and overcome with sleep, the horse went upon the railroad tracks in front of an express train. Willie and his companion were dashed into eternity without a moment's warning.

DAVID BRYANT
Copied from the Historical Edition of Amanda Church, the following: “The late David B. Mitchell of Amanda Church was a man whose daily life was a most excellent example for the Christian to follow, yet he himself wisely pointed out the Master as the only perfect man. His earlier life was spent in Richland County, Ohio. After his marriage they located on a farm near Amanda Church in Allen County, Ohio. His good wife was a member of the Baptist Church and a most devoted Christian. Mr. Mitchell said his wife never failed to pray before retiring and that her devotion was largely the means of bringing him into the fold. He was converted on May 19, 1867, united with the Amanda Baptist Church, where he became an active worker and was elected deacon. Mrs. Mitchell was called from this life on the 12th day of May, 1881, and in her death Amanda Church lost a most highly esteemed member. David B. Mitchell was a great bible student as the well-marked pages of his favored book mutely testify. Having quietly and peacefully laid down the burdens of life, with his work completed, after fourscore years, he cheerfully entered into the joys of a better life on the 8th of May, 1901. He was conscious until the last moment and had even dictated his own modest obituary shortly before the end came. During the long period of failing health he frequently called his little grandchildren to his side and told them of the better life that awaited him; of the mansions God had prepared in heaven. He was honored and respected by all who knew him.”

We believe that a sketch of the life of Mrs. Isabelle Mitchell should not be omitted in the history of this family, for she not only fulfills the proverb, "She looketh well to the ways of her household," but by a life of usefulness she left a radiance of lasting influence in bringing about reforms that tend toward the betterment of humanity. She assisted in providing churches and organizing Sunday schools for the colored people of the South. Her work in the temperance cause covered a wide territory, particularly in the state of Missouri, where she spent twenty years associated with the Woman's Christian Temperance Union organization. Her attention was attracted toward the condition of prisons. She found that the prison cells throughout the South were under ground, and through her solicitation prison cells were placed above ground.

In 1890 Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and family removed to Iowa. Mrs. Mitchell was appointed state organizer of Bible Reading Societies under the state Woman's Suffrage Association. These bible study clubs were organized in many cities and towns throughout the state. Later, going to Wisconsin, she became a member of the National Prison Reform Association. She traveled extensively and visited many prisons in the United States. She gave brief addresses to the prisoners. She had a special gift in reaching the hearts of the people. While in the line of prison work she made the acquaintance of Mrs. Eva Booth, "the little mother of the prisoners." Mrs. Mitchell excelled as an organizer. During her residence in Wisconsin she organized night schools and bible study classes among the women of the Fox River Paper Mills. She was engaged in this work when one evening, while returning to her home, her strength gave out on the way, and soon her useful life passed away.

On the 9th day of August, 1862, Joseph Mitchell enlisted in what was known as the Railroad Regiment, being the Eighty-ninth Regiment, Illinois Volunteers; First Brigade, Third Division, Fourth Army Corps, of the Army of the Cumberland. His first engagement was at Perryville, Kentucky; then at Stone River, followed by Liberty Gap, Tullahoma, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, Knoxville, Rocky-face Ledge, and Dallas in succession; these being the regular battles, with fifteen or twenty heavy skirmishes scattered between.
At Dallas on the 27th day of May, 1864, he was wounded and taken prisoner, his wound being in the side. After lying on the battlefield for two nights and one day he was removed to a field hospital, where he laid on the ground five days with nothing done for him except being given a little corn bread, and coffee made from burnt beans. Then, on a dark, rainy night, he was taken to Marietta in a wagon train, with sixteen hundred other prisoners, and placed for the night in a church, in beds of straw, which seemed like beds of down to the poor torn bodies. Here the Union ladies came with tea, wine and other good things, and insisted upon feeding the men. The next day they were loaded into freight cars and taken into Atlanta, where they were met and again fed by the Union ladies, before being taken to the prison hospital.

No one can tell of the suffering endured during these days and nights on the battlefield and during the removal into Atlanta, but while there in the prison hospital they were treated as well as the rebels, with their limited resources, could treat them, which was very different from their after-treatment at Andersonville. Before Atlanta fell, the prisoners were all sent to Andersonville where Mr. Mitchell soon died, a victim to the horrors of that terrible place. He is buried in the National Cemetery at Andersonville, Georgia, the number of his grave being 11,617.

The highest praise can be accorded his memory. He lived and died a Christian soldier. He was always in the front rank and ready for duty; full of patriotism and love of country, but always remembering the loving wife and little daughters at home; always thinking and planning for their welfare, and daily praying and longing for the time of returning to them. His life went out a sacrifice to his country. He has slept away the years of his manhood, far from his home and loved ones, but surely he will receive his reward from the Great Commander.

Children:

385. III. John Franklin Mitchell, b. Dec. 23, 1866; m. Estella McClandish.

Mrs. Mitchell's mother's maiden name was Johanna French. She died September 19, 1906. Mr. Mitchell's early childhood was spent on a farm. His father, however, in connection with his farming carried on milling, a mill for grinding flour, a sawmill, and a carding and fulling mill for making cloth. In 1842 his father removed with his family to Crawford County, Ohio, where he purchased a farm. John Bryant Mitchell's education was received in the public schools. At the age of twenty he entered Oberlin College. He did not finish the college course because of ill health. While there he believes that his future character was formed through the preaching of Rev. Charles G. Finney, president of the college. After leaving college Mr. Mitchell spent twelve years as agent of the American Bible Society, distributing bibles and collecting funds for that society. Many thousands of bibles were distributed by him throughout the newly-settled frontier where usually no churches existed. He reluctantly gave up this service and was connected with the American Tract Society, his field of labor being the middle and southern states. While in Tennessee near the mountains he heard much about the destitution and poverty of the people living in the mountain district. He became interested to know the truth of the matter. He arranged with a friend to go with him. They loaded a spring wagon with bibles, testaments and other good literature and spent a month traveling through the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina. He was astonished and distressed by what he saw, both of destitution and ignorance, existing there. He gave up all other plans and vowed with the aid of his Master to give up the remainder of his life for the benefit of these poor, neglected people. He has spent twenty-one years in this service. He placed among these people 115,000 bibles and testaments and 300,000 gospel books and tons of other literature and of clothing. Mr. Mitchell gave largely of his own money and also was assisted in his work through his solicitations with donations from churches and missionary societies. He received $15,000 in money with which to purchase bibles.

399. XI. Martha Jane Hover, b. July 14, 1872; m. Frank Austin Hitchcock+

Martha Post lived in the home of her childhood at Fredericktown, Ohio, until about nine years of age. Her parents then removed to Shelby, Richland County; Ohio, where they remained until 1838. In that year her father was sent by the government to Upper Sandusky to build there a sawmill and a gristmill on the Indian reservation. During their residence at this place Martha taught a school composed of six Indians and eight white children. She taught this school before she was fourteen years of age. In 1842 the family removed to Amanda Township, Allen County, Ohio. Martha attended school in Shelby and in Lima, Ohio. She taught several terms in Amanda Township. A few of the pupils are still living (1912). After her marriage to Mr. Hover in 1847 they lived in Lima, Ohio, until 1850, when they removed to Delphos County, where they remained until 1863, when they moved to a farm five miles east of Spencerville. In 1887 they made their residence in Spencerville and there remained until the death of Mr. Hover in 1896. Mrs. Hover was a remarkable woman in mind and personal charm. She was a fine conversationalist. Her mind was well stored through the various experiences she encountered from the early pioneer days and through the rapid and marked development of her native state during the nineteenth century. Much is due to her and those who lived, as she did, for the present degree of civilization, in a country recently in possession of savages. She represented an important link between the past and the present. Mrs. Hover possessed a strong religious temperament. She united with the first society of Methodists formed in Hartford, Ohio, when she was fifteen years old. Her public life was modest, but her home life was very wholesome and pronounced. During her long life she has left a good and illustrious record. She has left her posterity a rich heritage and has been a great blessing in example to her associates. It is said of her, with the privilege of a college education she would have made her mark in the religious and literary world. She would have stamped the printed page with the same sunny and cheerful glow she did her home life. Mr. and Mrs. Hover are buried in the Woodlawn cemetery at Lima, Ohio.

Leonidas Hamline Post, when a child, moved with his father's family to Shelby, Richland County, and from there to Upper Sandusky, Wyandot County, where for three years the father—a millwright by profession—was engaged in constructing a grist and sawmill, and also a council house for the Wyandot Indians. He had much commerce with this tribe by whom he was held in high esteem on account of his just dealings. In March, 1841, the family moved to Allen County, where the father built a sawmill for his cousin, Chas. Marshall, near the old town of Hartford. In 1843 he moved four miles east of Spencerville on the Auglaize River where he built the Post Mill, which he operated until 1849, when he bought over 500 acres of land about one and a quarter miles west of his former location, and here the subject of our sketch grew to manhood.

When a young man L. H. Post learned the molder's trade, working both in Delphos and Lima. Later he attended Oberlin College, and in 1852 he made a trip to California, via New York, crossing the Isthmus of Panama, and thence up the coast to San Francisco. Here he engaged in gold-mining, returning to Ohio in 1854 via Nicaragua and New Orleans. After his marriage he settled on a farm in Amanda Township, Allen County, where he continued to reside until his death October 3, 1904. His farm home was one of the best in his community and the farm one of the best equipped as to other buildings, farming machinery, and all that goes to make a first-class farm.

Among other agricultural interests he devoted much time and attention to the careful breeding of draft horses and probably to his interest and work in this direction is due the excellence of this stock in Amanda Township, he having owned several imported French horses, in company with Mr. James Hover of Lima. He took great pride in his fine Shorthorn cattle, and is credited with introducing this breed into the township.

Mr. Post was a member and ardent supporter of the Amanda Baptist Church. He was a man widely known, highly respected wherever known, having several times been elected to office in his home township. In the last few years of his life, after he had quit work, he was fond of relating incidents of his childhood, especially of the few years he had only Wyandot Indian children for his playmates. They played with bows and arrows much as any children of that time would have done. A few years prior to his death, while on a visit to his brother at Carthage, Missouri, he went into the Indian Territory to see if he could find some of his old-time playfellows, but found only a few of them, and was told that most of the tribe had died (no doubt of grief, as was frequently the case) after they had been forced to leave their old home in Wyandot County, Ohio, for their new home in the Red Man's State.

Eliza Jane Post was reared under the care of her uncle William Stewart, her mother having died when she was four years old. Her childhood was spent in Champaign County where she was educated in the common schools. At the age of nineteen she united with the King's Creek Baptist Church. She was married in 1854 to Leonidas H. Post, of one of the prominent families of Allen County. Returning with her husband to their future home in Amanda Township, she became a charter member of the Amanda Baptist Church, to the interests of which she ever remained loyal and where she was a regular attendant at all of the services until hindered by the infirmities of old age. She was faithful in the home, nothing being too arduous for her to undertake for her loved ones. She was a granddaughter of Captain Arthur Thomas, a brave soldier of the War of 1812, who with his company had been ordered to Fort Findley to guard the public stores. He and his son, on their return to their home near Urbana, Ohio, were killed and scalped by the Indians near Bellefontaine and the bodies, which had been badly mutilated, were carried to Urbana in sacks by a deputation of citizens sent out from that place.

Adam Clark Post enlisted on July 21, 1862 from Allen County, Ohio, to serve three years or during the war, and was mustered into the United States service at Camp Lima, Ohio, as orderly sergeant of Captain W. H. Hill’s Company A, Eighty-first Regular Ohio Volunteer Infantry; Colonel Thomas Morton Commander. He was promoted to Second Lieutenant of Company D, June 14, 1864; to First Lieutenant of Company A, February 14, 1865, and was mustered out with his command, at Louisville, Kentucky, July 21, 1865. March 2, 1862, the regiment was ordered to St. Louis, Missouri, and there was armed with Enfield rifles. It was assigned to the Second Brigade, Second Division, Sixteenth Corps, Army of the Tennessee, and with it he participated in the following engagements: Shiloh or Pittsburg Landing, Seige of Corinth, Mississippi; also battle of Corinth; Iuka, Mississippi; Tuscumbia, Alabama; Snake Creek Gap, Georgia; Leey’s Ferry, Georgia; Resaca, Georgia; Rome Cross Roads; Dallas or New Hope Church; battle and siege of Atlanta, Georgia; Jonesboro; Sherman’s March to the Sea; Savannah, Georgia; Bentonville, North Carolina; Goldsboro, North Carolina; Raleigh, North Carolina.

He marched to Washington, District of Columbia, by way of Richmond and participated in the Grand Review, May 24, 1865. He was a member of Station Post No. 16, Department of Missouri, Grand Army of the Republic, of which he was Senior Vice-Commander. He was a member of the Masonic order. After the war Mr. Post entered extensively into farming. Residence, Carthage, Missouri. In politics he was a Republican; in religion, a Methodist. In 1902, while on a visit to Wyandotte, Indian Territory, Captain A. C. Post of Carthage, Missouri, found several old Wyandotte Indian friends with whom he studied in their government schools when a boy of eight, sixty years ago, at Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

After Sixty Years Apart—Captain A. C. Post Met and Knew Indian Schoolmates—Studied With Split-log, Old Mudeater, and Other Wyandotte in Ohio, and Will Hunt With Survivors.

"While at Wyandotte, Indian Territory, Thursday Captain A. C. Post, of Carthage, found several old Wyandotte Indian friends with whom he studied in their government schools when a boy of eight, sixty years ago, at Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

"The tribe was moved from its Ohio reservation to a point just west of Kansas City in the forties. The Kansas City suburb of Wyandotte was named for them. In 1868 these Indians were moved to their present reservation in the Territory, southwest of Carthage. One of the old Indian schoolmates was the well-known Mathias Splitlog, who built the old Splitlog, or P. & G., Railroad through this country. Another was the father of Ex-Chief Albert Mudeater, and such others as Black Sheep, Between-the-Logs and Gray Eyes.

"These are all dead now, but Captain Post ran across several old fellows whom he actually had gone to school with, and they remembered him, even after sixty years, during which time they had never met. Among them were Isaac Zane and Isaac Long, half-bloods. Of course he also met Albert Mudeater, and Shoto Armstrong, brother of the present chief, and was invited by them to go down this fall and join in a hunt. Captain Post will accept. All are now growing old and this may be their last opportunity before the 'happy hunting grounds' are reached."

Enlisted in Fifteenth Ohio Volunteer Infantry in April, 1861; re-enlisted in Thirty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served in West Virginia during 1862. In 1863 he led a company of men in General Grant's campaign against Vicksburg, Mississippi, and in 1864 as Captain of company served with General Sherman in campaign against and capture of Atlanta, Georgia; later accompanied General Sherman's army "from Atlanta to the sea,” then leaving Savannah crossed the Savannah river into South Carolina, moving east along the coast and cutting off Charleston, South Carolina; then turning north captured Columbia, South Carolina, and marched further north to Greensboro, North Carolina, where Sherman’s army encountered the Confederate army under General Johnston. Toward the close of the war was appointed major of regiment and assigned to staff duty as division inspector. At the close of the Civil War he returned to his parents’ home and remained with them until they were past their fourscore years, when he came to Spencerville, Ohio, and started a private bank.

This marriage occurred at the home of an aunt of the bride in La Timberville, Ohio. Mary Elizabeth Miller was born December 25, 1829, near Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; died October 4, 1871. She was of Quaker descent. Her grandfather was a Quaker minister. Her parents removed to Detroit, Michigan, when she was a child. Edmund Randolph attended the public school of Bucyrus, Ohio. In 1843 he entered Bethany College, Virginia. While there he boarded in the home of Bishop Alexander Campbell, who was president of Bethany College and the founder of the Campbellite or Christian Church. Mr. E. R. Bryant has still in his possession the bible purchased of Bishop Campbell. After leaving college he entered into the business of buying and selling of stock, and later extensive farming. Soon after his marriage he purchased forty acres of land, to which he added until he owned three hundred acres. In the fall of 1875 he sold the farm and with his family moved to Bucyrus, Ohio, where he remained until 1877, when he removed to Hebron, Indiana. His death occurred two years later. He was buried in Bucyrus, Ohio, the place of his birth. In 1891 his family became residents of Chicago, Illinois. In religious faith Mr. Bryant was a Methodist; in politics, a Republican.

MARGARET JANE AGNEW7 (Nancy6 [72], David,5 Simeon,4 Cornelius,3 Pieter Cornelisse,2 Cornelis1), b. Aug. 15, 1829, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio; d. Apr. 4, 1856; m. May 29, 1855, at Wyandot, Ohio, GEORGE HENRY WELSH, who was b. Apr. 15, 1829.

Child:

430. I. Agnew Welsh, b. Apr. 11, 1856; m. Cora E. Hous- stater+

She spent several years of her life in teaching, making her home with her uncle Isaac Bryant in Wyandot, Ohio, from whose home she was married. After her marriage she and her husband moved to a farm a few miles east of Wyandot, Ohio, where her only child, Agnew Welsh, was born. Seven days after this journey into the valley of the shadow of death, she laid her life upon the altar of motherhood. Rev. Silas Johnston who performed her marriage ceremony also officiated at the funeral.

G. H. Welsh was the youngest of five sons of Zachariah Welsh and Nancy Steen and was born near the village of Wyandot, Ohio, on April 15, 1826; he also had six sisters, one of whom, Jane Ann, married Jacob Bryant. Madison W. Welsh, an older brother of G. H. Welsh, married Jane Bryant, and Bryant became a family surname, there being Bryant Agnews and Bryant Welsches.

437. VII. Herbert Ross Agnew, b. . . . . . , 1881.

Mr. and Mrs. Agnew are pioneer residents of Buchanan County, Iowa, going there in 1854, Mrs. Agnew making her wedding trip from Indiana there in 1856. The entire country was sparsely settled, and when Mr. Agnew located on his farm in Fairbank Township there was not a house on the prairie between his place and West Union. The early settlers had a tendency to take to the woods. Mr. Agnew preferred the prairie land and entered 160 acres, which he still owns, which is the only land in the county which has never been transferred from the original patentee. At various times Mr. Agnew added to his possessions. When building his house it was necessary to haul the lumber from Dubuque, the trip each way taking three or four days. Those were the days of deer and Indians. For the first two years, many deer were daily seen on the trail between Otter Creek and the river. The winter of 1856, however, was one of heavy snows, and the deer were nearly all slaughtered that season. Indians were plenty in the spring and fall on their migrations north and south. They constantly begged for “squaw chicken,” absolutely refusing the roosters. Their requests were usually granted, as the fowls were stolen if the demand was denied. In 1901 the family moved to Independence, Iowa, where they now reside. September 9, 1906, this worthy couple celebrated their golden wedding. Both Mr. and Mrs. Agnew have been lifelong members of the Methodist Church, and generous in its support.

Bryant Welsh attended the country schools near where he lived, and afterwards Bethany College. His father was a stockman and sold in the markets at Philadelphia and other eastern towns, remaining at those cities sometimes several months till he sold the cattle or sheep. There being no railroads, the animals were driven, and, being ready for market, it was necessary that they should not be hurried on the way, and it took a long time to reach their destination. Drovers were hired to drive them, and they had what they called the "boss" who had the management of the men and cattle, and would ride in advance of the herd and engage water and pasture for the cattle and board and lodging for the men for the night and over Sundays. Bryant, being a trustworthy lad, and old beyond his years, seemed to have responsibility thrust upon him before the usual time, for at the age of twelve he was a "boss." Hotels or inns were far apart and farmers were frequently forced to accommodate these herds, or see them and the men suffer for want of food or water. So people having fine springs on their places on the road to the market would feel driven to have a room to accommodate these men. It would usually be a large room in the upper story of these large log houses where they would place as many as four beds. The boss must sleep here in the room with these big rough men, and this lad, who had been brought up by a refined mother, dreaded these long, dangerous trips. It was necessary for him to always carry a good deal of money to pay the expenses of the trip, and sometimes his father had him carry large sums of money, usually in gold, in a belt strapped around his waist under his clothing. Having to ride ahead and engage the pasture, and then to return to the herd and see that they were brought to the right place, caused him to ride more than the others. It was a feeling of relief to be alone and lest one of these men might follow him he would spur his horse on and away from them. There was a stretch of woods on the road and, boylike, he peered among the shadows, fearing he knew not what, but something to be dreaded.

All this tended to develop courage. On one of his semiannual trips when he had arrived at manhood he met Margaret, the young daughter of Samuel Stuckey, of Bedford County, Pennsylvania, whom he married in 1853. The Stuckeys were thrifty people, and in addition to the well-filled chests her father gave the young couple a new rockaway, a then generally used carriage. The young people started in this on their wedding trip to their home in Wyandot County, Ohio. Here they lived two years, when they thought it well to go west. With their little daughter Alice, then a year old, in the same carriage they started, and settled on a farm near Altona, Illinois. Here they lived for fourteen years, and here three other daughters, Jane, Emma, and Annie, and two sons, George and Harry, were born. About this time (1866) Missouri was attracting attention and being advertised by railroad companies. Bryant Welsh with his brother St. Clair went on the first train over the then just completed road, Hannibal and St. Joseph route, and bought a large farm at Lathrop, Missouri, where he brought his family March 20, 1867. At this place two other children, Albert and Margaret, were born, and here his family was reared. One of the daughters, Emma, died at the age of twelve. Three of the daughters, Alice, Jane, and Annie, were married here. In 1901 he disposed of most of his possessions at Lathrop, and on November 20 moved to Apache, Oklahoma, then a town but a few months old, in order that he might live in a mild climate, and at the same time be near members of his family, some of his children having lived in the Indian Territory many years previous to this time. During his residence here he was ill most of the time, died April 19, 1906, and was buried at Lathrop, Missouri. It can truly be said that his was a life of practical Christianity, integrity, and usefulness. He was one of the peacemakers of the community. When a dispute arose between neighbors and was left to arbitration he was usually the first man selected. He was just, and his judgment was good. He held the Sabbath day sacred and never allowed anything to be done on that day that could be done at other times. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. He was jovial and kind-hearted and had a host of friends wherever he lived.

IV. Gertrude P. Welsh, b. June 7, 1871; m. Frank P. Brown. They have three children, two sons and a daughter. The two younger are twins. Res., Lathrop, Mo.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Welsh lived in Ohio near Bucyrus on the Scioto River for one year, then moved to the Pike. From there they moved to Altona, Illinois. In 1867 they bought land two miles northeast of Lathrop, Missouri, where they built up a most pleasant home. Later they traded this property for a tract of land in Caldwell County, Missouri, where their son Anson now lives on the land which is the dower interest of his widow.

George H. Welsh7 (Jane6 [73], David5 Simeon4 Cornelius3 Pieter Cornelisse2 Cornelis1), b. Jan. 16, 1834; m. Nov., 1876, Amanda Foster, Indiana. For years Mr. Welsh bought and sold stock extensively in Indiana. In Ohio he had a fine farm from which he shipped stock to the eastern cities. The first year of his married life he spent in Upper Sandusky, Ohio; the second year he lived at Kokomo, Ind. The climate affecting his health unfavorably, he with his family went in Nov., 1878, to Upper Sandusky to attend the golden wedding of his parents. Being taken ill with a congestive chill, he passed away within a week of pneumonia.

The following sketch was taken from "American Ancestry," a book in the Chicago Public Library, page 157: The Gillespie family belong to the Campbell clan. Their home was in the Highlands of Scotland. They were strong adherents of the Calvinistic doctrine, and one of them helped to frame the "Confession of Faith." They fought for religious liberty. About the close of the seventeenth century three brothers crossed into Ireland, settling in County Antrim. Their names were David,1 John,1 James.1 During the Revolution of 1690 James1 fought under William III, Prince of Orange, with whom he crossed the Boygne, July, 1690. His sword is still kept as a relic by one of his descendants. After this decisive battle the Gillespies moved to County Monaghan, Banbridge, Ireland, where they owned a large tract of land. In 1895 Elizabeth, a descendant, was living in the old home place where her people had lived for over two hundred years. The Gillespies were linen drapers. James1 married Elizabeth Riddle about 1700; children: James,2 John,2 Mathew,2 Elizabeth,2 Letitia,2 Sarah.2 James2 came to America about 1750. It was reported that he was killed in the war of the Revolution. John1 married Jane Stewart; children: James,2 Isaac,2 Jane,2 Elizabeth,2 Agnes,2 Letitia.2 Isaac,2 son of John,1 married Jane Boyd; children: seven sons and three daughters. One son, William,3 emigrated to America about 1830; settled in Jo Davies County, Illinois. John4 was a Presbyterian minister, educated in Bellast, Ireland. The first mentioned David\(^1\) married Isabella Wilson; had son Joseph,\(^2\) who married Sarah Breakey; children, five; one, David,\(^3\) fled to America to escape British yoke.

Children:

John S. Stuckey was born in Bedford County, Pennsylvania, April 24, 1834, living in his native state until he enlisted in the Civil War in August, 1862, in Company D, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers. For distinguished bravery he was made captain of the company, participating in the battles of Brandy Station, Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor, Fishers Hill, and Winchester. In 1872 Mr. Stuckey with his family moved to Plum Creek, Nebraska, where they lived two years. He was elected county treasurer and engaged in stock-raising and farming. Mr. Stuckey helped organize and was the first president of the Plum Creek (now Lexington) Bank; his son Madison was chosen assistant cashier. Mr. Stuckey's death occurred February 23, 1897, from an affection of the heart. The death of the son Madison followed on the 27th of June, 1898, resulting from an operation performed at Denver, Colorado, where he had gone on business. The marriage of the daughter, Ruby, left Mrs. Stuckey alone in the world and she has since resided with her daughters in the state of Washington.
The following reminiscences are from the pen of Mrs. Pauline Welsh Stuckey:

"My parents lived six miles south of Bucyrus, Crawford County, Ohio, on the Bucyrus and Marion road at the time of my birth. My early childhood enjoyments were greatly enhanced by the lively, stirring boyhood of brother John, who was two years my junior. By perseverance I succeeded in forming a taste for refining and elevating thought and speech. Our home was a two-story house situated on a farm of eleven hundred acres. On the south and joining the yard was the orchard, beyond it was pasture land, and, farther south, cultivated lands, reaching east to the river. Intervening between the orchard and the pasture was a rivulet, which ran swiftly from the pasture to the highway, then down the slightly rolling plain to the Scioto River.

"Well do I remember the overflow of the river when brothers Bryant and St. Clair barely escaped drowning in their efforts to rescue the live stock. It rose and surged madly, flowing down the pasture towards the barn and house but did not reach them because of the low hills in the rear. The frenzied sheep sought higher ground for protection, but one by one they fell into the surging waves and were drowned. On the west side of the road our land extended north nearly a half-mile where the landscape effects were beautiful, the various tints of blue grass varied with the lovely white and red clover. Beyond this, in the distance, were trees; one, with its mammoth dignity, lingers in my memory. It was large, well proportioned, and commanding in appearance. South of this was a meadow, rolling gradually downward in front and away from the house, in front of which was a beautiful grove of trees. A mile distant was the little schoolhouse where we were given six months schooling each year. Later my education was continued at Wyandot and Springfield, Ohio.

"In the spring of 1856 we moved to Wyandot, where we had a large home with fruit and flowers in abundance. I was favored with two loyal, kind, and attentive brothers, George and John, who were always ready to take me to places of enjoyment. About this time in my life, my sympathies were drawn to the one whom I afterwards married, Captain John Stuckey, who lost a limb in the service of his country in the Union Army in the Civil War. I had known him early in life through the intermarriage of the two families, but it was after he came home from the Civil War that I cared particularly for him. Sympathy ripened into love and we were married October 18, 1866, in Wyandot, Ohio. In 1872 my husband sold the farm and his interest in the old home, took a soldier’s homestead near the little town of Plum Creek, Dawson County, Nebraska (now Lexington), on the Union Pacific Railroad.

“In this great western country I was always in great fear of the Indians but was not a coward, as the following incident will show:

“One warm afternoon a Pawnee Indian wearing a red turban and a red blanket unceremoniously stepped into the room where I was working. In blunt speech he asked me for goods wherewith to line an unfinished cap and insisted I could give him the goods. Thinking to frighten me he walked to the table where I was standing, and picked up a butcher knife; I immediately picked up a sharper one. He drew his finger along the blade, at the same time looking at me with a cynical smile. I said, ‘That knife is worthless, this is the sharp knife,’—holding up the one I held. With a look that showed defeat he sullenly departed.”

A friend of Mrs. Stuckey says of her, that her artistic ability is of the most excellent quality. Now, at the age of seventy, as a pleasant pastime, her work in china painting and fine embroidery would be a credit to one half her age.

486. IV. Frances Welsh, b. Aug. 15, 1889.

487. V. Daniel Ralph Welsh, b. Oct. 4, 1891.
He is a man of bright intellect and remarkable memory. The first years of their married life were spent on the Isaac Bryant farm near Upper Sandusky, Ohio. Then, after living for a time near Bucyrus, they removed in 1883 to Lathrop, Missouri, and later to Caldwell County, same state. In 1901 he took a homestead of one hundred and sixty acres ten miles from Woodward, Oklahoma. In 1902 they took up residence there.

Grace Welsh was educated at the Kirksville Normal School. In 1901 she filed on one hundred and sixty acres of land in Oklahoma which joins her father’s fine homestead, their house being located so as to hold both claims, and with her father she uses her land for farming and grazing purposes. She has fenced her land and improved it, using her school money. She is energetic and persevering and very successful as a teacher.

531. II. Caryl Hubert Bryant, b. Aug. 29, 1878; d. Jan. 12, 1879.

Ross Leroy Bryant was educated in the home school, and at Purdue University, where he took a course of study in civil, mechanical, and electrical engineering. On leaving school he found work in the West, where he has been successful, working at different times in all of these lines. Since 1903 he has been employed in California. He has the same quiet, retiring disposition that characterized both his father and grandfather. He finds his chief diversion in out-of-door sports and in music.

William Alfred when only 17 entered his father's drug-store and continued in the drug business until his death. Although he spent two years in Chicago as bookkeeper in a commission house he still retained his drug business at home. He was regarded by those who best knew him as a man whose word and business integrity were never questioned. Retiring, quiet and studious by nature, he was a man of deeds rather than words. He was true and loyal to those who proved themselves worthy of his friendship. Thus endowed with natural gifts and attainments he seemed only entering upon a useful life when death claimed its own. In politics he was a Democrat; in religion, a Presbyterian.

Martha Frances Bryant (Jacob [99], Samuel, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Mar. 21, 1855, at Crown Point, Ind.; m. Dec. 9, 1872, William H. Samuel Tyler Bryant (Jacob [99], Samuel, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Oct. 9, 1858; d. Nov. 19, 1880, as the result of an accident occurring at Rudd, Iowa, while he was in the employ of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Ry. He was buried at New Hampton, Chickasaw Co., Iowa.

His untimely death occasioned the writing of "Down Brakes," by John B. Kaye, and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons in their collection of poems, "Songs of Lake Geneva." Permission to publish it in this volume has been granted by Vashti Bayshaw Kaye, son of John B. Kaye, the author, and by G. P. Putnam's Sons, publishers.

DOWN BRAKES

By John B. Kaye

The night was dark, a lurid gleam
Lit up the trailing cloud of smoke,
And whirling sparks and 'scaping steam,
Which from the black-mouthed engine broke
In fleecy masses murky-gray,
As rolling o'er the iron way
The heavy freight train, like a flood,
Swept down the steep grade nearing Rudd.

Down brakes! the iron-hinged monster screamed;
Down brakes! and starting to his feet,
While hot sparks fall like burning sleet,
The brakeman quick his lantern takes,
And mounting to the frosty deck
Of the first car, turns on the brakes
The downward thundering train to check,
While the long, smoky banner streamed
About him, and the fire-box's glare
Broke fitful on the wintry air.

Down brakes! and hast'ning toward the rear
He leaps each moving chasm that yawned,
Like gaping death 'twixt car and car,
And musing as he onward strode
He mutely thanked his lucky star,
Which thus far brought him safe and clear,
For he had planned to leave the road,
    And this was his last run,
And ere another morning dawned,
    As promised to his mother dear,
His braking would be done.

    Down brakes! the iron cyclop shrieked,
His one great eye's malignant gleam
    Darting ahead a ruddy beam,
While throbbing jets of vapor reeked
    Along his palpitating sides,
As on a trestle bridge he glides,—
    A bridge with cross beams overhead.

Down brakes! The brakeman deftly mounts
    The tall deck of a "foreign" car —
A crushing blow! his lucky star
    Sank like a falling meteor.
Ah! surely he had truly said
    'Twas his last run! The man who counts
His chain of life off into links
    Oftimes counts truer than he thinks,
Though nothing in his mind forecast
    The link he's counting is the last.

Down brakes! He's silent now, and still.
    No more those stentor signal tones
The brakeman's rugged frame shall thrill
    With action. On his face, laid prone,
They found him on the car that night,
    Beneath the cold and clouded skies,
His lantern on his arm still burning,
    But all the glow of life and light
Had faded from the brakeman's eyes,
    And crimson streamers of his blood
(Life's offering and Nature's mourning)
    Draped the tall car that entered Rudd
An altar and its sacrifice.

Nye. Mrs. Gormley has in her possession a mahogany bureau brought from Ohio by her grandparents in 1835. Res., Lowell, Ind.

545. IV. Edward Loraine Dinwiddie, b. Nov. 17, 1882.

Child:

The Dinwiddie clan has records of the family for several generations. There were five Davids in succession. Our data begins with the fourth David, who died in 1744. David, fifth, born 1724 in Ulster, Ireland, married December 17, 1745, Jean McClure, who died June 22, 1781; married (second) November 20, 1783, Elizabeth Kerr. He died 1802, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Thomas, son of David, was born March 27, 1787; married October 20, 1808, Mary Ann Wilson. Thomas died September 17, 1862. He and his wife are buried near Hebron, Indiana. John Wilson, son of Thomas, born October 1, 1813, in Trumbull County, Ohio. The day he was born his father Thomas killed fifteen turkeys, four deer, and one bear. John W. came with his father to Porter County, Indiana, in 1836, while the Pottawatomie tribe of Indians still lived near Hebron, on land now owned by Charles Bryant. Thomas and John each bought one hundred acres of land of the Indian reservation. Mary Janette Perkins went May 5, 1818, from Rome, New York, her native place, to Grundy County, Illinois, to teach school. Here she met Mr. John W. Dinwiddie, whom she afterward married. Mr. Dinwiddie had a contract to construct two sections of the Illinois and Michigan Canal near Morris, Illinois. After finishing his contract he with his young wife went to Crown Point, Indiana, to live, where he engaged in merchantile business. Having purchased one thousand acres of land in Eagle Creek Township, he moved in 1852 onto the land, and adding more land until he had thirty-seven hundred acres, he entered into extensive farming. Among his enterprises he dug a ditch two miles long to change the channel of Eagle Creek. He engineered another ditch twenty-five feet deep, to drain the Cady Marsh into the Calumet River. This ditch is now (1913) nearly fifty feet deep. Oscar Dinwiddie, son of John W., possesses the sturdy character and enterprising spirit of his ancestors. He and his wife are staunch Presbyterians, as were the ancestors. The esteem in which Mr. Dinwiddie is held by his friends and neighbors is shown in the offices of trust with which they have honored him. Mrs. Dinwiddie is of the class of wives and mothers who fill a part in making this nation which we are proud to call great — modest, quiet, but with the fortitude of the pioneer and the dignity of Christian womanhood. They have both traveled extensively.

Eva Rosella Bryant³ (Harvey W.⁷ [101], Samuel,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Feb. 20, 1861, near Orchard Grove, Ind.

Her early childhood was spent on the farm five miles southwest of Hebron, where she attended the Eagle Creek country school, but later was student in Hebron, where the family resided after 1876. A year later, under the influence of the “tent meeting,” she became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. To her, Christianity is nothing visionary, but a reality of part of her daily life. Her interest in missions has led her to have her life insured for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal Foreign Missionary Society. The winter of 1891-2, accompanied by her mother, who was in poor health, she spent in Colorado. After her return she became engrossed with duties in the Bryant, Dowd & Company store, from which she did not release herself for sixteen years, with the exception of a winter spent in Mississippi and one in California. Since 1908 she has been in and a part of the home of her father.

Children:

559. II. Leland Dowd Bryant, b. Feb. 2, 1888.

560. III. Bernard Ross Bryant, b. Nov. 13, 1890.

561. IV. Edith Miriam Bryant, b. Mar. 27, 1900.

562. V. John Harvey Bryant, b. May 14, 1906.

His early education began when, as a bashful boy, accompanied by his mother and hired by his grandfather, he entered the Eagle Creek country school. After the family moved to Hebron he attended the town school for a time, but the routine of the work, especially that of a literary nature, did not appeal to him. In 1884 he was sent to Troy, Missouri, to sell out a stock of goods in which his father had an interest. Though there for less than a year, he learned to mingle with different classes of people, thus gaining a needed experience in his development. After his marriage in 1886 he settled in Hebron, where he soon built a home. In 1889 he, with his wife, entered into relations with the Methodist Episcopal Church. For a number of years he was engaged with Bryant, Dowd & Company, later giving his attention almost entirely to the selling of farm machinery. However, the need of some one to look after the interests of the Bryant, Dowd & Company farm gave the desired opportunity to develop his instinct for farming and stock-raising. Persevering, practical, and up-to-date in his methods, with the aid of his two sons he is making improvements that stamp the present-day successful farmer. He possesses a dry humor, broad sympathy, and unquestionable honesty that make for him many and lasting friends.

ORA VIOLA BRYANT (Harvey [101], Samuel, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. June 9, 1872, in Eagle Creek Twp., Lake Co., Ind.

As a girl of thirteen, she became identified with the Methodist Episcopal Church of Hebron. She was a member of the first class to graduate from the Hebron High School in 1890. After a year’s experience teaching school, she attended at different times the normal school at Valparaiso, devoting part of the time to the study of music. She gained a practical knowledge of this subject at the Chicago Musical College, but on account of a nervous temperament she was unable to make a musical education practical. In 1900 she suffered a nervous collapse, which was counteracted to some extent by a winter spent in the South. Home-loving, she devotes much of her time to the needs of her father’s home, while at other times she finds employment in the store, for the most part doing clerical work. Whether a duty is pleasant or disagreeable, she is faithful in its performance.

Ada Luella Bryant⁸ (Harvey W.⁷ [101], Samuel,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. July 7, 1874, at Eagle Creek, Lake Co., Ind.; m. Sept. 12, 1893, at Crown Point, Ind., Joseph Ross Wilson, who was born Dec. 23, 1867, near LeRoy, Ind., son of Joseph Wilson and Jane McCay.

Delicate as a child she aroused the sympathy of parents and grandparents and won many a point in her favor. She was a favorite among her playmates, but not because they dominated her. In 1885 she united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Her education was obtained at the Hebron school. Because of ill health she did not finish the prescribed course of study. In 1893 she became a partner in a millinery concern in Hebron of Sweet, Bryant & Company, but disposed of her interest immediately after her marriage in September, 1893. Dr. Joseph Ross Wilson is a practicing physician and has an extensive practice in Hebron and surrounding vicinity.

Nettie Ladora Bryant⁸ (Harvey W.⁷ [101], Samuel,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Apr. 3, 1877, Hebron, Ind.

After her graduation from high school in 1894 she attended the normal school at Valparaiso, Indiana, for two terms, preparatory to entering Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois. Previous to this time she had united with the Methodist Church. After her graduation from college in 1900, she spent five and one half years teaching high school subjects, the last four being spent in the home school at Hebron. Any success in teaching that she possessed was due more to her love of, and sympathy for, the pupils than to mere scholarship. Since 1907 she has been with Bryant, Dowd & Company, engaged in store duties of a general nature and especially as wholesale buyer of dry-goods.

A sketch of the life of Linnie Cooper Mount, born in a humble cottage in the little village of Mount Sterling, Iowa: While still young, her parents emigrated to a farm near Memphis, Missouri. Being the seventh of a family of ten children, she was not basked in the luxuries of fortune, nor favored with surroundings of beauty, but acting upon the principle that every inheritance has a purpose, she sought opportunities; and with the guidance of wise and sympathizing parents she secured a good education in the public school and in a private seminary, and acquired many accomplishments which embellish her character, giving her a nobility worthy of her aspirations. While her goal may not have been attained, she looks back over the years, inspired with the feeling that notwithstanding the privations her pathway has been strewn with flowers and overarched with the beauties of heaven. She found much happiness in the panorama of the farm and in the association of father, mother, five brothers and four sisters. Residence, Memphis, Missouri.

In religion Mr. and Mrs. Lindly are Presbyterian. Mr. Lindly has served as an elder in the Presbyterian Church of Winfield, Iowa, for twenty-five years. He was a surveyor and farmer in early life; was admitted to the bar in Henry County, Iowa, in 1884, established the Bank of Winfield in 1885, which he still owns, and in addition has been in the drug business since 1879; is a member of the Iowa State Pharmaceutical Association, a member of the Iowa Bankers Association; served several terms as mayor of Winfield, Iowa.

John Milton Lindly, born November 17, 1864; early education obtained in public schools; graduated from the State University of Iowa in 1889 with the degree of Ph. G.; from the National Institute of Pharmacy of Chicago in 1892; from the four years’ course in the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle in 1898 with admission to the order of the White Seal; elected without opposition mayor of Winfield, Iowa, in 1900, but declined the office; town clerk of Winfield, 1904–06; secretary of board of education of Winfield, 1898–; trustee and treasurer of Presbyterian Church of Winfield, 1898–; secretary of the Iowa State Pharmaceutical Association, 1905–11, and treasurer of same 1911–. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, of the Sons of the American Revolution, of Colonial Governors, of the Old Northwest Genealogical Society, of the National Geographic Society, Iowa Academy of Science, State Historical Society of Iowa, Iowa Park and Forestry Association, Iowa State and American Pharmaceutical Association, Iowa Bankers’ and American Bankers’ Association. At a recent state druggists convention Mr. Lindly was re-elected treasurer. At the Democratic state election held in July, 1912, at Cedar Rapids, he had the honor of nominating the successful candidate, Mr. John E. Craig, for judge of the supreme court on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Lindly is a reliable genealogist. We are indebted to him for assistance in furnishing data for the Bryant Genealogy. He has compiled and published a genealogy of the Lindly family, from which the following is copied:

“The Lindly ancestry dates to two emigrants, John and Francis, brothers, who came to Connecticut in 1639. Francis married Susanna Culpepper, June 24, 1655. Their children were: Deborah, b. 1656; Ruth, b. 1658; Ebenezer, b. 1660; John, b. 1666 or 1667; Benjamin, Joseph, Jonathan. The first three were born in Bradford, Connecticut, the last four in Newark, New Jersey. John and Jonathan lived at Morristown, New Jersey. John\(^1\) had sons John\(^2\) and Daniel. John\(^2\) had following children: Stephen, Junia, Caleb (who served in Revolutionary War with New Jersey troops), John (captain in Revolutionary War), Levi, b. 1731 (d. 1801), Demas, Phillip (served in Revolutionary War), Phoebe, and Hannah. Caleb, Levi, Demas, and Phillip went in an early day to Washington, Pennsylvania. The name has had various spellings; as, Linde, Lindsley, Lindsly, Linsly, Lindley, etc. Mr. Bayard B. Lindly descends from Levi, of 1731. Mr. John M. Lindly has a copy of the will of John, the father of Levi.”

Mr. J. M. Lindly compiled an enumeration of the wild flowers of Story County, Iowa, from the herbarium of V. C. Gambell, which makes a valuable addition to the Iowa Academy of Science.

Mary Jane Vankirk* (Sarah⁷ [110], Mary,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Oct. 10, 1846; m. George Washington McElree, Sept. 8, 1869, at the home of her parents in Washington, Pa. Mr. McElree was the son of James McElree and Martha Boyd. Resided in Washington, Pa., and in Crafton, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Children:

686. I. Hiram Winnett McElree, b. Mar. 11, 1873. He was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in 1901. Since that time he has been engaged in educational work. He was principal of the Eighth Ward Schools, Washington, Pennsylvania, for eight years, principal of the Ingram Schools, in the suburbs of Pittsburgh, for four years. He is now superintendent-principal of three of the leading schools of Pittsburgh — the Bane, Brashaer, and Jefferson schools.

687. II. Helen Brown McElree, b. Nov. 13, 1885; was graduated from the Washington Female Seminary in 1905. She was a successful teacher in the public schools of Washington, Pennsylvania, for six years, and is now a teacher in the Pittsburgh schools.

307 Morris Reverdy Day⁸ (Elizabeth⁷ [112], Mary⁶ David, Simeon⁴, Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Aug. 11, 1846, in Morris Twp., Green Co., Pa.; m. 187—, Dora Elder, dau. of G. W. Elder and Emily Bonsell. She was b. Aug. 11, 1852; d. Nov. 27, 1885, Klemme, Iowa.

Children:

691. III. Ida Alice Day, b. Apr. 30, 1877; m. John Baumgartner+

Mr. Day was a large land owner and banker; in politics, a Democrat; in religion, a Methodist. He enlisted in the Civil War, in Company K, Third Illinois Cavalry, as a private in 1865, under Lieutenant Danley (General Wilson, Division Commander) and was promoted to the office of Sergeant. He enlisted at Dixon, Illinois, and was honorably discharged October 10, 1865, at the age of eighteen years.

Mary Elizabeth Vaile (Caroline [113], Mary, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Apr. 28, 1849, near Washington, Pa., removing with her parents to Lane (now Rochelle), Ill., in the fall of 1853.

Mary, as she is called by a large and appreciative circle of friends, has led a quiet life of usefulness in deeds of kindness for others, living in quiet dignity in the parental home, an ever-ready assistant with loving care and sympathy. She is an extensive reader. Society has but little charm for her. Not an unkind word is ever spoken by her of anyone. She is an exemplification of a true Christian character; ever zealous in her Master's cause. She has been for several years treasurer of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church of Rochelle, Illinois, of which she is a member. She is a charter member of the Rochelle Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Children:

I. Roscoe Vaile Braiden, b. May 7, 1888; m. Anna Geraldine Allen+

II. Bryant Fletcher Braiden, b. Aug. 13, 1893; graduate of Rochelle High School; completed sophomore year at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill.
Clara Vaile was educated in the public schools. Her father came from a long line of educators, and appreciated educational advantages. He was usually a member of the school board, and secured the best available instructors, sometimes supplementing personally the necessary funds to secure the best teachers. Clara was sent to Rockford College, Rockford, Illinois. In the fall of 1870, after leaving seminary, as it was then termed, she entered the Rochelle public school as a teacher, making a specialty of primary work "for which she was eminently fitted, receiving state recognition for best methods and best results." A specimen of this primary work was sent to the World's Centennial Exhibition held at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in 1876, and received third highest award in the United States. The Lakeland-Auburndale Herald of February, 1912, in a sketch written on the occasion of a visit of Mrs. Braiden to Lakeland, Florida, mentions in part as follows: "Mrs. Clara V. Braiden is one of the best known club women in the state of Illinois. She was instrumental in organizing the Woman's Club of Rochelle, Illinois, now consisting of one hundred and fifty members, and was its president for three terms. She was district president of the Federated Clubs of northern Illinois." In 1890 Mrs. C. V. Braiden organized a Chautauqua Reading Circle in Rochelle, which organization has since had a continuous flourishing existence, graduating students, which formed an alumni of sixty-three members. Mrs. Braiden has acted in the capacity of president of both organizations. She graduated from the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle in class of 1904, with White Seal honors. She is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, having verified the military record of five Revolutionary ancestors. She is a charter member of the Rochelle Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which chapter she served two terms as regent. She represented the Illinois chapters at the Conservation Congress held in Kansas City, Kansas, in 1911, and the American Peace Congress held in St. Louis, May, 1913, one of three Daughters of the American Revolution to represent Illinois. If Mrs. Braiden were asked in what way she had best served the interests of the community in which she lives it would, we believe, be instruction in the Sabbath school. Always having had a fondness and fitness for teaching she began with a class in the Sunday school at the age of seventeen, and has been continuously in that work for more than forty years, counting many scores who have received bible instruction from her.

She was thirteen years secretary of the Woman’s Foreign Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church of Rochelle, and was twice president of the Ladies’ Aid Society of that church. As a manager of business affairs, she deserves special mention. The Lakeland-Auburndale Herald says: “She ranks as one of the most successful business women of the State of Illinois.” She has had the management of an estate for the past ten years, and owns a lumber and coal business established by her husband in 1871, which is conducted by a competent manager under her supervision. She has been equally successful in managing her real estate interests, which include more than eleven hundred acres of farming land. As busy as she has always been she has found time to search out Bryants in nearly every state in the Union and arrange their records in genealogical form. While traveling in America and in Europe she has ever been on the lookout for genealogical data. Mrs. Braiden is a member of the Salome Chapter of the order of the Eastern Star.

From Ogle County History: “Miles J. Braiden was for many years prominent among the energetic, far-seeing and successful business men of Rochelle. His life history most happily illustrates what may be attained by faithful and continued effort in carrying out an honest purpose. Integrity, activity, and energy have been the crowning points of his success, and his connection with various business enterprises and industries have been of decided advantage to his community, promoting its material welfare in no uncertain manner. He came from Wyoming County, New York, to Waukegan, Illinois, in 1850, where he attended the Waukegan Academy. He went to Rochelle, Illinois, in 1856, and embarked in the grocery and grain business. In 1860 he purchased six hundred and forty acres of land in Lee County, Illinois. For a term of years he devoted his time and attention to the occupation of farming. In 1868 he purchased two farms, upon which he platted additions to the city of Rochelle. In 1871 he began dealing in lumber, coal, ice and building stone from the quarries on his own land within the limits of the city, from which thousands of cords of excellent building stone have been taken and an inexhaustible supply yet remains. In this quarry abound exhaustless and never-failing springs of the purest water from which each year the ice crop is taken for the city supply. Mr. Braiden has been instrumental in having built a large number of houses in Rochelle by reason of his progressiveness and by offering such inducements as would enable almost any one to secure a home, thus adding to the welfare of the city. No one has had a higher place in the estimation of the people than he.” The Chicago Evening Journal of February 9, 1877, gives as follows upon the occasion of the completion of the branch of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad through Rochelle: “Rochelle owes its success and prosperity mainly to a few public-spirited individuals, foremost among whom is M. J. Braiden, who has laid out four additions to the town, and built in all nearly one hundred dwellings, which have either been sold or rented.”

In political sentiment he was a stanch Republican, and took a prominent and influential part in public affairs. He was treasurer of school funds of Reynolds Township, Lee County, for twelve years during his entire residence there. He was elected supervisor of the township; held that office six years; the last two elections he received every vote cast for the office. He also served six years as supervisor of Flagg Township, Ogle County. In 1870 he was elected to the General Assembly of Illinois, and most ably represented his district in that body. He served in the city offices of Rochelle. He has been characterized as a man of enterprise, indomitable energy, liberal views, positive character, and very generally known for his kindness to those in need. His father, Roger Ascham Braiden, was of Scotch-English descent; born in New York City. Roger Braiden was the son of Joseph Braiden and Nancy Gillespie, a descendant of the Campbell clan of Scotland. Miles J. Braiden was the son of Sophia Fletcher Braiden, who was the daughter of Isaac G. Fletcher, who served in the War of the Revolution; married Ruth Pierce. Isaac G. Fletcher was the son of Joshua Fletcher of Westford, Massachusetts; born 1731; married Elizabeth Raymond. Joshua was the son of Joseph Fletcher, born 1689, Chelmsford, Massachusetts; married Sarah Adams of Concord, Massachusetts, a descendant of the President John Adams and Samuel Adams family — ancestry: Ap.
Adam of Early Scotland. Joseph Fletcher was the son of Joshua Fletcher, born 1648; married Sarah Willy. Joshua was the son of William Fletcher, born in England, 1622; came with his parents to Concord, Massachusetts, in 1630; married Lydia Bates. He was the son of Robert Fletcher, who was born in England in 1592; emigrated to Concord, Massachusetts, in 1630. The name Fletcher is from the French Fleche, an arrow. Rev. W. G. Dymock Fletcher, of Oxford, England, who is well versed in the genealogy of the Fletcher family in England, remarks: "There can be no doubt but that the family is one of great antiquity, as is apparent from its ancient arms—sable, a cross flory between four scallop shells argent; this coat of arms would indicate that one or more of the members of the family took part in the crusades." Bentham, in his "Baronetage of England," says: "The Fletchers are supposed to be of Norman descent, and to have come over with William the Conqueror." He gave quotations to prove the assertion.

Mr. Braiden has the following Pierce ancestry: Ruth Pierce, an aunt of President Franklin Pierce, was the daughter of Jonathan Pierce of Groton, Massachusetts; born 1727; married 1750, Ruth Gilson, born 1728. Jonathan was the son of Stephen Pierce, born 1678; married Rachel Harrod. He was the son of Jacob Pierce, who was the son of Steven Pierce, born 1651; married Tabitha Parker. Steven was the son of Thomas Pierce, born 1608; married Elizabeth Cole. He was the son of the emigrant ancestor Thomas Pierce, who came from England in 1633-4 with his wife Elizabeth, who was born in England in 1595. Thomas was born 1583. "The name Pierce is from Piercy or Percy. The renowned family of Percy of Northumberland, England, derived their name from the Percy forest in the province of Maen, Normandy, from whence they came, which signifies a stony place, from Pierre, the ancient fief of the family who settled in Normandy before the cession of the province to Rollo (Wm. Arthur's Etymological Dictionary). The name de Perci is in the Doomsday Book, land owner. William de Perci and brother Serlo assisted in the Conquest of England, 1066.

Susan Maria Vaile (Caroline [113], Mary, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Aug. 8, 1852, Washington Co., Penna.; m. Feb 10, 1876, CHARLES EDWIN CORT, who was b. Mar. 1, 1841, in Monogahela City, Pa.; d. Aug. 3, 1903. He was the son of Jacob Cort and Jane Mary Carson, dau. of Andrew Carson and Ruth Clayton.

Children:

698. I. Belle Cort, b. Aug. 6, 1877; m. Abner Shirk+

700. III. Jane Mary Cort, b. Mar. 14, 1883; m. Harry Lenthart+

701. IV. Edwin Gallatin Cort, b. Sept. 2, 1885; graduated from Huron High School, also graduated in 1911 from the State Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa. He is a professor in college at Browns Valley, Minn.

702. V. Joseph Clayton Cort, b. Dec. 3, 1887; graduated at Huron High School, is now (1913) a senior at Iowa State College at Ames, Iowa. He remained from college long enough to preempt a homestead near Caton, S. D.

703. VI. Ruth Helen Cort, b. June 10, 1892, in Huron, S. D.

Mrs. Cort was educated in the common schools. She is a person of much energy and decision of character. Having been left a widow while her children were still young, she used to the best possible advantage the means at her command to educate five of her six children through high school and college. She is very active and efficient in the duties of her church.

Charles Edwin Cort, fourth child and second son of Jacob and Jane M. Cort, was educated in the public schools of Monongahela City, Pennsylvania, and went to Illinois with the family and was one of the lads who made it possible to go on a farm, care for and provide for the family. He was on the farm until August of 1862, when, at the call of the President for 600,000 men, he went to the front and joined Company H, of the Ninty-second Illinois Volunteers, under Colonel Smith D. Atkins. They crossed the Ohio River at Covington, Kentucky, and came home by way of Baltimore, Maryland, having been through Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Virginia. The regiment was mounted when out eighteen months and they were "From Atlanta to the Sea" with General Kilpatrick. Charles Edwin was in constant and continuous service, having never been in the hospital or off duty. The regiment reached Chicago July 2, 1865, and the boys arrived at home for the Fourth. They were mustered out the latter part of July at Chicago, and Charles, like a large majority of the regiment, returned to the farm. The family, who had lived in Lee County, Illinois, from March, 1855, removed in 1867 to Ogle County, near Rochelle.

Captain Cort, besides his career as a soldier in the Civil War, had charge of Company F, Second Regiment, Illinois National Guards. He was an early settler in Dakota before it was a state, and was a member of the convention that framed its constitution. He was elected on the issue of a prohibitory clause, in the new constitution, helped to adopt it, and also to accept it at the polls. He was active in local affairs of the new state, especially in organizing churches and schools, being called the father of the first Presbyterian Church in St. Lawrence, South Dakota, and was one of its first elders. He was an able, fearless, and upright man, and died full of faith and hope.

Anna Eliza Vaile (Caroline [113], Mary, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Apr. 13, 1854; d. May 23, 1911, of paralysis, living only two days; m. May 2, 1903, at Portland, Ore., David Byron Hall, who was b. May 28, 1852, at Bridgetown, Nova Scotia; son of Edward Fellows Hall and Hannah Tupper.

Mrs. Hall was for many years a successful primary teacher, holding a state certificate. She was also a teacher of physical culture. She lectured on Psychology in several of the cities on the Pacific Coast, and is the author of several booklets on Physical Culture and kindred subjects. She was assistant editor of a magazine entitled "We." She traveled extensively. Residence, Los Angeles, California.

Emma Caroline Vaile (Caroline [113], Mary, David, Simeon, Cornelius, Pieter Cornelisse, Cornelis), b. Mar. 13, 1864; m. Feb. 9, 1884, EUGENE L. COLE, son of Van Rensellaer Cole, who was the son of Abraham Cole. The mother of Eugene L. was Abigail Wilson, dau. of Kady Wilson, who was son of Peter Wilson of Horseneck, Conn., a soldier of the War of the Revolution.

Children:

705. II. Frederick Gallatin Cole, b. Aug. 26, 1890; in clothing house, Centralia, Ill.

Mrs. Emma Vaile Cole possesses more than ordinary artistic ability. She is not only an expert amateur with the brush, but this rare ability is shown in the industry of the home. Her needlework is of the finest, she having received an Illinois state diploma for fancy embroidery. The artistic quality of her literary talent is shown in her productions for the local clubs. Mrs. Cole is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Rochelle and served as president of the Woman’s Aid Society of the church. She is a member of the order of Eastern Star and, a charter member of the Rochelle Chapter of the society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Residence, Rochelle, Illinois. Cole, also Colle, is an ancient family name — found in Doomsday Book as holding land in England in time of William the Conqueror.

Dr. Charles Bryant Cooper was educated at Wallkill Academy, Middletown, New York, and Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Massachusetts; received his degree of Doctor of Medicine from the University of Missouri in 1889. Was president of the Hawaiian Territorial Medical Society and of the Hawaiian Territorial Board of Health; surgeon general of the Territory of Hawaii, U. G. H.; commissioner of public health, Territory of Hawaii. He was the first delegate in that capacity to attend the American Medical Association. He has also been attending physician to the Queen’s Hospital, Honolulu, and chief surgeon of the Oahu Railroad. He was the first Exalted Ruler and District Deputy B. P. O. E. appointed in the new possessions in 1900. He belongs to the Masonic order, Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Masons, Commandery, Shrine, Sons of American Revolution. He is a great-great-grandson of General Andrew McMeyers, who was killed at the battle of Germantown. The following resolution adopted by the Territorial Board of Health in reference to Dr. Cooper’s services will not be amiss in this place:

"We miss among our members to-day Dr. C. B. Cooper. I believe I state the unanimous sentiment of the board in expressing our regret that he decided to retire from a position where he has been for years an active and positive factor in public health matters. His record in quietly, economically, and effectively handling epidemic disease will stand to his lasting credit. His record in promoting the welfare of the lepers and effective work in enlisting the practical aid of the federal government in their behalf can not be forgotten. The support he has given the present president of the Board of Health is gratefully acknowledged.

"Dr. Mayo made the following statement concerning the work of Dr. C. B. Cooper, who resigned as a member of the Board of Health last week after being again confirmed in office by the Hawaiian Senate:

"We all agree, I am sure, with the remarks of the president appreciative of Dr. Cooper on his retirement from this board. Dr. Cooper has been so long identified with the conduct of the health affairs of the territory that the board cannot but suffer a distinct loss by the withdrawal of his ripe experience from our deliberations and counsels.

"A year and a half ago Dr. Cooper went East on a mission connected with the leprosy question which is already bearing fruit. He appeared before the American Medical Association, the great representative body of our profession, and enlisted their sympathies. He laid the matter before the United States public health authorities and gained their active co-operation. By his energy and personal force he made friends for the measure everywhere, who carried it forward in Congress until a substantial amount was secured for the endowment of a hospital on Molokai for the study of this disease, with especial reference to its prevention, melioration, and cure. Whatever benefits may accrue from this measure — and I am one of those who believe the benefits will be great and lasting, both to the unfortunates at the Settlement and to the American people at large — the credit belongs to Dr. Cooper."

791. V. Clarence Minor Post, b. Dec. 7, 1892.

Samuel A. Post was a leading citizen of German Township for many years, a substantial farmer and a representative man. He was reared on his father’s farm and attended the local schools, where he prepared for college, subsequently entering the Ohio Normal University at Ada. He spent but one term there on account of delicate health, returning to farm work, the outdoor life suiting him better than the confinement of the schoolroom. The passing away of Mr. Post in early middle life occurred very suddenly. He was striken with spinal meningitis and survived the attack only four days. He was buried in the Allentown Cemetery. He was the kind of a man to be much missed, both in his household and in his neighborhood. Honest and upright in all his dealings with others, he secured friendships and esteem. He was intelligently interested in all public matters in his township and served for a long time as school director. In politics he was a Republican, and at the time of his death was his party’s candidate for township treasurer.

Mr. Bryant has followed photography for twenty-five years in Nevada and Bucyrus, Ohio.

Lulu Bryant⁸ (Edmund R.⁷ [153], Jacob,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Dec. 3, 1859, at Bucyrus, Ohio, and moved with her parents to Hebron, Ind., 1878; m. June 15, 1881, Harry J. Sheldon, of Hebron, Ind., who was engaged in the lumber business for several years; now is a builder and contractor.

Children:

827. I. Ruby Sheldon, b. Mar. 15, 1882; m. Hal O. Binyon+
828. II. Berta Sheldon, b. May 30, 1883; m. Jay Baldwin+
828a. III. Walter Bryant Sheldon, b. Feb. 27, 1892; graduated from high school in class of 1909, Hebron, Ind. He is employed as bookkeeper in Marshall Field & Co.'s wholesale house.

Children:

829. I. Earl Basil Welsh, b. May 12, 1881; m. Garnet Varner.

830. II. Dana Eugene Welsh, b. Aug. 15, 1882, owner of a drug-store in Ada, Ohio.

831. III. Rhea Madonna Welsh, b. Nov. 17, 1885; for five years a teacher in Ada public school.

832. IV. Opal Muriel Welsh, b. Oct. 1, 1889; m. Dec. 27, 1911, A. Frank Hixon of Columbus, Ohio; teacher.

833. V. Margaret Agnew Welsh, b. Feb. 9, 1895; graduated class of 1912, from Ada, Ohio, High School, with honors of highest grade of her class.

Mr. Welsh received his early education in the country schools of his vicinity, and in May, 1875, he went to Mount Union College, Ohio. He spent the following two years in the normal school of Ada, Ohio. He taught during the summer vacation one term. In 1877 he spent nine months as clerk in a clothing house. Early in 1878 he purchased a bookstore in Ada, Ohio, which he conducted until July, 1881, when he sold it, and purchased the Ada Record, a local newspaper, which enterprise he has conducted for more than thirty years. Since early manhood he has been a member of the Disciple Church, in which faith his mother was baptized on July 7, 1850. That rite was performed by her uncle, Joseph Bryant, who married Dorothy Campbell, sister of Alexander Campbell, founder of the Disciple Church or Church of Christ. Mr. Welsh has been solicited a number of times to run for a county office but never cared to jeopardize his newspaper, which represents his life-work, by neglecting it for outside work. He has, however, served as a member and clerk of the board of education of Ada for twenty years.

In politics he is a Republican and a “Standpatter” at that; in religion himself and all his family save one are members of the Disciple Church. He is a member of the Masonic, Eastern Star, and Maccabee orders and enjoys life to the fullest. He has a good home, has traveled from ocean to ocean and from the lakes to the gulf, and has visited every exposition of note from and including that at Chicago and ending at Seattle, his family accompanying him to a majority of them.

The compiler of this Bryant Family History finds the following compliments upon the Ada Record on the occasion of its thirty-ninth birthday:

Nevada News: With its last issue the Ada Record celebrated its thirty-ninth anniversary. During the greater portion of its existence the Record has been under the efficient management of that veteran publisher, Mr. Agnew Welsh, recognized as one of the ablest editors in this part of Ohio. Mr. Welsh publishes a splendid paper — a journal of both literary and news merit — and by token of many evidences of success we are led to infer that the good people of Ada appreciate Bro. Welsh’s honest efforts to give them a paper of which they may well be proud.

Findlay Courier: The Ada Record has entered upon the 39th year of its existence. It is and always has been an exceptionally good weekly paper. The editor of the Record, Agnew Welsh, is a good newspaper man, enterprising and progressive, and he gives his patrons a clean and wholesome paper.

The Arlingtonian: Last week the Ada Record began its 39th year of publication, having been under its present management nearly 29 years. To those who know the Record words of praise are superfluous. No journal in the state shows more painstaking care both in its literary and mechanical features than the Record. Mr. Welsh has already reared a worthy monument to his memory when the time shall come to him to be gathered to his fathers, which time we hope is far in the future.

Bucyrus News-Forum: The Ada Record is bright and lively as a youngster in its earlier years, together with the wisdom and judgment born of experience. For nearly twenty-nine years the paper has been under the management of the present proprietor, Agnew Welsh, who has been the right man in the right place and has achieved well deserved success in his venture.

Child:

Mr. Stuckey at an early age commenced business in his father's bank at Lexington, Nebraska, and soon became assistant cashier. He afterwards was cashier of the bank at Eddyville, in the same state, and later was appointed administrator to settle his father's estate, assuming the entire management of the bank at Eddyville. The cares of business weighed heavily upon him. While on a trip to Denver, Colorado, where he had gone with others on business, he was taken ill. An operation was performed; he rallied, smiled, then sank into unconsciousness and died, July 29, 1898.

The Lexington paper said in part: "Madison Stuckey was a good husband, a kind father, and one of our best citizens. He had a bright future before him. He had the training and ability which made him a successful man in business. Warm-hearted and generous and genial qualities which made him friends wherever he went."
RUBY STUCKEY EVES

Child:

Anna Stuckey attended school at Lexington and Clinton colleges in Missouri, also at Hastings, Nebraska. Her education included music and painting, and was completed at Clinton. Her husband was reporter for the Kansas City Times, later assistant cashier in a bank at Eddyville, Nebraska. He was also private secretary for Governor Silas A. Holcomb of Nebraska, and held the office for two terms with Governor Holcomb. He is now manager of the Automatic Telephone Company at Lincoln, Nebraska.

SYLVANUS COOPER GAMBELL⁹ (John,⁸ [280], Catherine,⁷ Mary,⁶ David,⁵ Simeon,⁴ Cornelius,³ Pieter Cornelisse,² Cornelis¹), b. Mar. 8, 1863, near Winfield, Iowa; d. May 22, 1898; m. NELLIE WEBSTER of Rhodes, Iowa.

Child:
897. I. Margaret Gambell, b. Apr. 13, 1897, on St. Lawrence Island; d. May 22, 1898.

Sylvanus Gambell was a student at Ames, Iowa, during the early part of the decade of 1880–1890. He received his B. S. degree in 1886 from Iowa Agricultural College. R. L. Kirkpatrick, of the faculty, stated that he was considered one of the best bontanists in the state. He took an active part in the religious activities of the college; was also interested in military drill, having taken extra work in that line, and at the time of graduation was captain of cadets.

Mr. Gambell was sent out accompanied by his wife in 1894 as a missionary to the native Eskimos at St. Lawrence Island, Alaska. This school was then the farthest west of any over which the American flag floated. The island lies almost within the Arctic Circle, and is nearly destitute of vegetation. In the fall of 1897 they returned to their home in Iowa. In January of 1898 Mr. Gambell was sent by the United States government to take charge of the school for white children at Juneau. Two months later came back to Iowa for his wife and child. They took passage on the Jane Grey, and sailed from Seattle, ninety miles off Cape Flattery, a heavy gale was encountered during which the schooner sprung aleak and sank early Sabbath morning May 22, 1898. Thirty-two of the passengers including Mr. and Mrs. Gambell and child were lost. The crew offered an opportunity to Mrs. Gambell to be rescued, but she preferred to share her husband’s fate. The Youth’s Companion published a series of articles in 1900 relating the adventures of these missionaries who were the first to carry the gospel to these far-away people.

NEW JERSEY BRYANTS

The following data was collected by W. B. Stout, of Newark, New Jersey, from New Jersey records of Bryants who from names and places of residences seem to have a common ancestry with David, 1756 (37). We publish this data hoping that the other branches will take up at once the collecting and preserving of much valuable data which will otherwise be lost.

[From the Newark News of Dec. 4, 1912.]

WILLIAM H. BRIANT

"Summit, N. J., Dec. 4.—William H. Briant, who was one of the early settlers of the city and had held several official positions, died late yesterday afternoon at his home, 84 Springfield Avenue, in the Huntly section. He had lived in that part of the city all his life.

"The cause of death was hardening of the arteries and the infirmities of age. Briant's Pond took its name from Mr. Briant.

"The funeral will be held at his home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. William S. Coeyman, pastor of the East Summit Chapel, will officiate. Interment will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Springfield.

"Mr. Briant was eighty-five years old. Fifteen years ago he was acting road master of the city and he held the position of freeholder sixteen years, retiring twelve years ago. For many years he was a justice of the peace.

"For many years, too, he had been superintendent of the Springfield Methodist Sunday school and was actively connected with the church of that denomination.

"Mr. Briant leaves a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson, of Newark, and Mrs. Harriet A. Smith, of New York, as well as two stepsons, George F. Vreeland, a former mayor of the city, and Harry Vreeland, of the firm of Vreeland & Vought. He also leaves five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. He was the last to survive of a family of eight."

THE WALING-VAN WINKLE ANCESTRY

The coat of arms of Pier Walichs appears on a document dated July 8, 1455, the original copy being on file in the manuscript division of the Konenklijke Bibliotheek at The Hague, a copy being in the Raabhuis at Winkel. Arms: Of gold, a chevron of red, accompanied with three leaves of holly sinister, with stems downward.

On June 3, 1621, the great Dutch West India Company was incorporated, subject to the States General of Holland. Trading posts were established on Manhattan Island and along the Hudson River for traffic with the Indians in furs and peltry. For the purpose of forming permanent settlements a charter was granted by the company, giving special privileges "to such as should within four years plant a colony of fifty adults in any part of New Netherland other than Manhattan Island." They were to be recognized and acknowledged as patroons and were to have absolute title in perpetuity to the lands within their grants. These grants might extend sixteen miles along one bank of a navigable stream, or half that distance on each side, reaching back indefinitely, “so far into the country as the situation of the occupiers will permit.” Under this offer of patronage, Killian Van Rensalaer in 1629 secured a tract above and below Fort Orange (Albany) on both sides of the Hudson River called Rensalaerwyk. In 1630 ten settlers sailed for his colony. In 1634 Jacob Albertz Planck was made schout and he at once began the distribution of farms among the new colonists. Of those who came early to Rensalaerwyk were Symon Walichs and Cornelius Maessen. Symon’s farm was located on Papscanee Island which he occupied until May 1, 1647. On October 3, 1636, Van Rensalaer wrote: “These two farmers who have been very helpful to me, namely Cornelius Maessen and Symon Walichs, you will give a fair choice of the men who are coming.” From the numerous allusions made in the Rensalaer papers to those who had been employed by Symon Walichs, we must esteem him to have been a personage of considerable importance in the new colony. On October 7, 1648, he agreed to buy Pieter Van Derlinden’s plantation on Manhattan Island, but was killed by the Indians near Paulis Hook at Pavonia (now Jersey City), March, 1649.

Jacob Waligh or Walingen (from whom the Van Winkle family is descended) made at least two voyages between Holland and this country before he settled permanently here, for the Dutch church at Hoorn, Holland, disclosed, that between September 25 and December 18, 1633, the following “have come over with certificate from other churches to our congregation: Symon Walingen of New Netherland, Jacob Walingen of New Netherland,” proving that they must have resided in New Netherland long enough to have become established; to have united with the church and to be entitled to a certificate of dismissal, accorded only to members in good and regular standing. Jacob again sailed from Hoorn in 1634, arriving at New Amsterdam in June, 1635, in ship King David. The family of Jacob Waligh were residents of that part of North Holland, at or near the town of Winkle. This town is located one and a half miles southwest of Medenblick, eleven miles northeast of Alkmaar and about fifteen miles northwest of Hoorn.

Among the early inhabitants of this village of Winkle was the family of Walich. They were extensive land owners, as in 1326
one section of the dykes was designated as Walichsdyke, the custom being to give to the dykes the names of the owners of the lands they bounded. Records of 1610 show that the church of Winkle had acquired a tract of land of Peter Walig. The names Waligs, Walichs, Walinghs and Walighs appear interchangeably in the records at Winkle apparently as the transcriber chose to write it. The records show that the Walings were property owners in Winkle in the twelfth century and were residents there in the fourteenth and seventeenth centuries, which fact fully explains and verifies the origin of the name “Van Winkle” according to the system of nomenclature in vogue at that time. “Van” signifies “from” or “of” Winkle (place of residence); as, “Jacob Van Winkle,” Jacob from Winkel (Holland). In early times a person might have, in addition to his given name, a name determined upon because of some physical or personal characteristic of the individual, or occupation, place of birth or residence. After a time an affix or suffix to the father’s name became the custom and a generally adopted system in Holland. The terminations “s,” “se,” “sen,” were added to the father’s name and became the patronymic, thus indicating the line of descent. These different suffixes have the same meaning, signifying “child of;” thus Symon Jacobse would indicate Symon son of Jacob, Cornelisse son of Cornelis. This custom was not continued in America except in the early days, but the native place, or place from whence they came, gave the surname to many emigrants from Holland, as “Van Hoorn” from Hoorn, a town in Holland, “Van Ripen,” from Ripen, “Van Winkle,” etc. In the female line the given name of the daughters was that of a near relative with je added, meaning diminutive.

Jacob Waligh or Walingen (from whom the Bryants trace their descent) came to America prior to 1633; the exact date of his first arrival is not known; he, however, was among the first settlers of New Netherlands. He settled in 1636 on a farm at Rensalaerwyk. He returned to Manhattan October 1, 1650. He was elected one of “The Twelve Men,” the first representative official body within the limits of New York and New Jersey. He led a movement to establish a settlement on the Connecticut River, but abandoned the project because of opposition of the English. On October 23, 1654, he secured a grant of land at Pavonia (now Jersey City, New Jersey). In 1664 Carteret issued a deed confirming all existing property rights. The deed in confirmation of the Walingen grant describes the property as follows: "Beginning at a stake on the edge of New York Bay and from said stake running north 27°, 27' west, 64 chains, 74 links to a stake between two cedar bushes at the edge of Newark Bay, thence south 46° 30' west, 10 chains and 30 links along said Bay to a stake, thence south 27° 30' east, 60 chains and 20 links to a stake standing by the edge of York Bay, on the easterly side of a small creek and thence northeasterly along said York Bay as it runs to the place of beginning."

In 1655 the inhabitants of Pavonia were driven from their homes and their property destroyed by the Indians. Through the efforts of Governor Stuyvesant peace was finally secured and some of the colonists returned to their ruined homes, among whom was Jacob Walingen. No record of date of marriage of Jacob Walingen has been found, although in the old Dutch church records of New Amsterdam of 1647 appear the names of Jacob Walingen and wife Trintje. Jacob Walingen died in the early part of the year 1657, leaving a widow, "Trintje Jacobs," and six minor children, three boys and three girls, as follows:

Maritje Jacobs, married Pieter Jansen Slot, February 2, 1663.

Waling Jacobse, baptized October 10, 1650; married Catharina Michelse (Vreeland), March 15, 1671.

Grietje Jacobse, married Elias Michelse (Vreeland), August 30, 1665.

Jacob Jacobse, baptized October 10, 1650; married Adeltje Daniels, November 14, 1675; married (2nd) Grietje Hendrickse Hellingh, March 26, 1693.

The name of Van Winkle had now become attached to the family (although some branches retained the name of Waling or Walling).

Symon Jacobse Van Winkle, son of Jacob Walingen and Trintje Jacobs, who was born 1653, and had wife Annatje Arianse Sip, had daughter Marguerite, born Nov. 4, 1676, who married (1st) Martin Winne, Oct. 30, 1697; (2nd) Cornelius Breyant, Dec. 7, 1700. This Cornelius Breyant was the son of Pieter Cornelisse Breyant,² son of Cornelis.¹ He was the father of Simeon Bryant,⁴ who was the father of David Bryant⁵, born 1756 (No. 37). Although we have some knowledge of the Walings from the fourteenth century, we can give a connected line only from Jacob Walingen as follows: Jacob Walingen¹ and Trintje Jacobs, Symon Jacobse Van Winkle² and Annatje Arianse Sip, Marguerite Van Winkle³ and Cornelius Breyant, Simeon Bryant⁴ and Hannah Searing, David Bryant⁵ and Catherine Woolley.

Bergen or Pavonia (now Jersey City and vicinity) as it was originally called, where our ancestor Jacob Walingen lived, was the first permanent organized settlement in New Jersey. His sons Waling and Symon settled upon the Acquackenonck grant (now Hackensack, Passaic, Paterson and vicinity). Jacob the second son remained at Bergen, where some of the descendants still reside.

We are indebted to Mr. Daniel Van Winkle of Jersey City, New Jersey, for this history of the Van Winkle family. Mr. Van Winkle was exceedingly generous in giving the correspondent information that he had spent many years in procuring and we extend to him our sincere gratitude.

The Bryant family probably were among those who sought refuge from religious persecution by emigrating to Holland and while sojourning there were united in marriage with the Wallinghs and Van Winkels, who became ancestors of the American family. We believe this infusion of Holland ancestry is shown in the characteristics of the descendants, for the American Bryant family has ever been ready to lead in the van of civilization; fearless in the face of danger, and exhibiting the sturdy qualities which led them to break the soil and till the broad acres which came into their possession. Holding the love of God pre-eminent, they established and maintained houses of worship wherever their lot was cast. The term Dutch, from the Anglo-Saxon “Theod,” means people or “folks.” They are described by John Fiske in his “The Dutch and Quaker Colonies in America,” published in 1900, as “men of stalwart frame, indomitable in fight, at home upon the wave, venturesome, fond of good cheer, fierce sticklers for liberty, of strong individuality, and prone to do their own thinking.”

Before the end of the eighth century the Hollanders were a Christian people. At the close of the Middle Ages the civilization of the Netherlands had assumed a more modern type than in any other part of Europe. The great Florentine historian, Guicciardini, whose testimony is of the highest value, assures us that in his day, or before 1540, even the peasants in Holland could commonly read and write their own language. State archives of Holland show that free schools supported by public taxes were the subject of legislation at various times during the sixteenth century. Erasmus, born in Rotterdam, 1467, through his translation of the scriptures made The Netherlands a center of biblical scholarship. During the sixteenth century the bible was nowhere else so generally read by the common people.

The Adjutant General.

WOOLLEY AND WOODRUFF ANCESTRY

Catherine Woolley, the wife of David Bryant, number 37, page 31, was the daughter of Abraham Woolley of Springfield, N. J., and Catherine Woodruff, his wife, whose children, so far as known to us, were:

I. Abraham Woolley, born 1755, married Rhoda Mary Roll, parents of Maj. Abram Roll Woolley (Note 1) and grandparents of Mr. Charles Woodruff Woolley of Buffalo, New York, who has made extensive research on the Woolley family.

II. Jacob Woolley, born 1757, married Hannah Thompson.

III. Sarah Woolley, born 1759; died 1823; married Joseph Denman (who died 1819) as his fourth wife.

IV. Catherine Woolley, born about 1761; married David Bryant.

Abraham Woolley, Sr., was the son of Jacob Woolley, who served in the war of Revolution. (See record.) Grandson of Abraham, great grandson of John, and great great grandson of Robert Woolley (Note 2), who married Anne Woodruff, a daughter of our emigrant ancestor John Woodruff of Lynn, Massachusetts, and Southampton, Long Island. John Woodruff “the elder,” in September, 1665, recorded the sale of his house to Robert Woolley, husband of his sister Anne, page 30 (Note 3).
Catherine Woodruff, wife of Abraham Woolley, who was the mother of Catherine Woolley, wife of David Bryant, died at the home of her grandson Joseph Bryant at Owl Creek near Claysville, Washington County, Pennsylvania (probably buried at Claysville). She is said by descendants to have lived to be 106 years old. We have been unable to obtain the exact date of her birth or death. We leave it to be verified later. (See Foreword.) The David Bryant number 37 and Catherine Woolley Bryant descendants have the following Woodruff line of ancestry:

Thomas Woodrove,¹ whose name appears 1508 on the records of the town of Fordwich, Eng., was the "trusted envoy of the town" of Fordwich. In 1539 he was Jurat (Judge and Legislator or Magistrate and Municipal Councillor) and sat with his brother Magistrates in the Court at Fordwich to arrange for conveying to some favored friends of the king a portion of the possessions and estates captured in the wars. He died 1552. His son,

William Woodroffe,² is recorded as a Jurat of Fordwich in 1579 and was also a "Key Keeper of the Town Chest, a very honorable office conferred upon the two best men of the Liberty" (Borough). He died in 1587. The eldest son of William Woodroffe was

Robert Woodroffe³ of Fordwich who married in 1573 Alice Russell of Northgate. He is on record as a Jurat, and a Churchwarden in 1584; and died in 1611. His eldest son was John Woodroffe,⁴ born in 1574 at Fordwich, "On reaching Man's estate took up his residence at Northgate where his uncle William Russell was Churchwarden." In 1601 he married Elizabeth Cartwright. His will dated September, 1611, was proved in October, 1611, mentions his wife Elizabeth and his young and only son John. The will was witnessed by "John Gozmur," evidently a friend of the family and who, as the times were so stormy, very shortly became the legal protector of the widow and son, for on October 21, 1611, Elizabeth Woodruffe, and John Gosmore, both of the parish of St. Mary, Northgate, were married, page 9 (Note 3). In 1639 or 1640 they were among the settlers of Southampton, Long Island, as was also the son,

John Woodruff,⁵ "The Emigrant," born in 1604 at Northgate, England, with his wife Anne whom he married in England, and their baby John were living in the Gosmer household. This John⁶ (b. 1637), the first American ancestor of the New Jersey Woodruffs, page 20 (Note 3), was the father of Anne who married Robert Woolley as mentioned in Woolley record page 235, Elizabeth, who married a Mr. Dayton, and what has proved a most complicated genealogical problem, two sons named John, both of whom lived to manhood and added to the complication by giving to their children duplicate names. John⁵ "The Emigrant," being "weak in body," page 23 (see Note 3), made his will May 4, 1670, which was proved on the first day of the following month, in which he names his "wife Anne Woodruff," "eldest son John of Elizabeth Town," daughters Anne, and Elizabeth, and "My youngest son John Woodruff." The inventory of his estate shows that for the times he was a man of wealth and refinement, and from the requirements at that time of the important and difficult post of Impounder to which he was elected, it may be inferred that he was upright, of sound judgment, and, generally of a character and standing that commanded the confidence and respect of all in the community. The unusual proceeding of giving a second son the name borne by an elder brother who was still living seems to be accounted for by the fact that John Gosmer having lost his only son Richard in 1649–50, page 31 (Note 3), legally adopted his stepson John Woodruff, born 1604, "who hath lived with me from a child," and the parents in appreciation and love they bore for the adopted father, John Gosmer, who was as well the stepfather, named the second son John after John Gosmer. The Bryants derive their descent from John "the elder," who was baptized in 1637, in the Parish of Sturry, in Kent, England. He doubtless accompanied his parents from Fordwich to Southampton, Long Island, in 1639 or 1640. At twenty years of age he was on record as one of the arms-bearing men. He is mentioned as a landowner in 1659–60; and about the same time he married Mary, a daughter of Mr. John Ogden of Southampton. In 1664 his father-in-law gave him the "house and home lot" on Main Street which Mr. Ogden had bought from his nephew (or cousin) John Ogden on the latter's departure from Southampton. Between August 29 and September 7, 1665, he recorded the sale of his house to Robert Woolley, the husband of his sister Anne, and his land to other fellow towns- men. He joined his father-in-law, Mr. Ogden, in the emigration to New Jersey. He owned a large tract of land in Essex County, New Jersey, near Elizabethtown, which is still known as Woodruff's Farms. He was a man of distinction in several important offices as Ensign, High Sheriff, Magistrate. He held the office of Chief Ranger by appointment of the General Assembly, December, 1683. He was styled "gent." At Elizabethtown, New Jersey, on April 27, 1691, when only fifty-four years old but "in hazard of life," he made his will and on May 25 it was proved. Following are the children of John Woodruff and Mary Ogden: John Woodruff, Jonathan Woodruff, Sarah Woodruff, born January 4, 1600, Hannah Woodruff, David Woodruff, Joseph Woodruff, Benjamin Woodruff, Elizabeth Woodruff, Daniel Woodruff. Mr. John M. Lindly of Winfield, Iowa, and Mr. Charles Woodruff Woolley of Buffalo, New York, both of whom have diligently searched the records, make the Catherine Woodruff Woolley line of descent through Joseph, son of John "the elder," and next Thomas, son of Joseph, and this Thomas as the father of Catherine Woodruff Woolley, who was the mother of Catherine Woolley who married David Bryant (No. 37). This Thomas, however, must not be mistaken for the Thomas who married first Mary Cory, and second Rebecca Merry, for he was the grandson of John "the younger."

Chamber's Encyclopedia states that a reeve in the Saxon period in England represents the lord of a district, at the folk-mote (meeting or assembly) of the county; and within his district he levied his lord's dues, and performed some of his judicial functions. A "wood-reeve" was presumably reeve for his lord's woodlands. Woodruff has had various spellings: Woodreeve, Woodreefe, Woodrove, Woodroffe, Woodrow, Woodrufe, Woodruffe; Woodruff.

Note 1. Abram Roll Woolley, who was stationed at Fort Pitt, has the following record: "War Department, Washington, D. C. Abram R. Woolley of New Jersey was appointed Captain and Deputy Commissary of Ordinance, Dec. 24, 1812, and Major of Ordinance Department Feb. 9, 1815; transferred to the 7th U. S. Infantry June 1, 1821, and to the 6th U. S. Infantry March 11, 1823; that he was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel December 16, 1825, and that he was dismissed the service May 1, 1829."

Note 2. Robert Woolley was the brother of Emanuel Woolley, whose descendants lived in East New Jersey. These brothers, Robert and Emanuel, probably came to Lynn, Massachusetts, in 1838 and to Connecticut in 1653; from there Robert went to South Hampton, Long Island, where he is mentioned on the list of 1657.
