The numerals in brackets, following the name of a descendant of the Founder, indicate the line of descent. Each person named has a distinctive number which does not change.

The Founder is No. 1, his first wife No. 2, his second No. 3, his eldest child No. 4, etc.

For example, see No. 190. The numbers in the bracket are (79, 21, 5, 1). This means that No. 190's parent was No. 79, grandparent No. 21, great-grandparent No. 5, and great-great-grandparent No. 1.
M\textsc{y} father, Oliver Christian Bosbyshell, second son of Christian and Elizabeth (Oliver) Bosbyshell, settled in Vicksburg, Mississippi, in the year 1838, where he engaged in the commission business. During the year his warehouse was destroyed by fire, at which fire he contracted a severe cold, causing bronchitis. By the advice of his physician, he went by water from New Orleans to New York, in the hopes of benefiting his health. Arriving at New York very much the worse, he took the train for Philadelphia. The trouble had become so aggravated that he died, 9 November, 1838, on the train before reaching his destination.

I was born in Vicksburg, Mississippi, on the 3d January, 1839, two months after my father's death. Eight months thereafter, my mother, with her three boys, journeyed by steamboat, canal boat and trains to Schuylkill County, Pennsylvania, where she rejoined her parents' family.

Thus my father's branch of the Bosbyshell family became separated from their paternal kin—little was known of each other, all communications having ceased. With my brothers I became thoroughly identified with the Whitney family, my mother's father, brothers and sisters caring and looking after us.

At the age of twenty-two I entered the service of the United States, for the suppression of the "War of the Rebellion," reaching the capital of the nation, a private soldier in the Washington Artillerist of Pottsville, Pa., on the 18th of April, 1861, being one of the 530 Pennsylvanians who were the first troops to do so. At the close of the three months' campaign, I re-entered the service as Second Lieutenant of "G" Company, 48th Pennsylvania Volunteers, Infantry, and rose to the rank of First Lieutenant, Captain and Major, being in the campaigns of the regiment until mustered out of the service on the first of October, 1864.

It has been my good fortune to have served the government in civil life as clerk and officer in the Mint of the United States at Philadelphia, having reached the superintendency of that institution in November, 1888, and serving as such until April, 1893.

Removing from Pottsville to the City of Philadelphia in 1869, I gradually became acquainted with members of my father's family—the Gauls, Krusens and Duffields. I wanted to know more of them, having been separated for so long a time—it seemed like making new acquaintances and friends, and I am glad to say that all whom I have met have impressed me most favorably. The desire to become yet better and more widely acquainted, induced me to compile this record of the descendants of my grandfather—no other reason prompted the task.

I believe the work will commend itself to all who are noted herein—if so, I shall be content with my labor. It is the record of a plain, honest family, the members of which have been good citizens of the commonwealth and nation.

I have thus taken you all into my confidence, told something of my own life, not in a boasting way, but so you may know me, and by reason of the compilation, we may all know each other the better.

My research has been a pleasant one—it has compelled the writing of many letters to the various members of the family for information, especially dates, and I thank one and all for the cheerful and intelligent manner in which the responses have been made.

O.B. Rosbyshere
The name of Bosbyshell is of Bohemian origin, and is spelled in many different ways in Bohemia, where it is said to be quite common. The American Consul in Prague wrote the compiler, "I have caused inquiries to be made in the matter you wrote about, and was informed by the Registry Office here that there are several hundred people in this city and suburbs of the name of Pospisil or Pospischil, which is the nearest equivalent of the spelling of your name."

The founder of the family in America, whose descendants are recorded in this book, spelled the name Bosbyschell, but dropped the c in the last syllable. To many it appears difficult of pronunciation, although it is simple when divided into its three syllables, Bos-by-shell—each syllable pronounced as it is spelled.

It has been supposed that Christian Bosbyshell was a native of Frankfort-on-Main, but inquiry made in that city brought forth the following letter, under date of 15 August, 1910, from Karl Kiefer, a noted genealogist, viz:

"The name of (Edward) Christian Bosbyshell is not found in the parish registers and also not his birth on 11 Dec., 1772. The name had not and has not existed in our city and does not exist to-day.

"Yours respectfully,

"Frankfurter Blätter für Familiengeschichte.

so it is concluded that the statement of his oldest son William is correct, that he came from Bohemia.
Christian Bosbyshell was an only son; he had several sisters. In after life he often referred to his family, rather condemning his action in leaving his parents. The opportunities to get ahead in the new country were urged upon him, and his success proved the wisdom of the advice. His parents were quite well-to-do. Upon their death he was invited to return and get his share of the estate, but being, as he said, well enough provided for, he requested that his share be divided among his sisters.

About the year 1782, when ten years of age, accompanied by a cousin younger than himself, bearing the name of Bosbyshell, and another boy relative, all three boys in charge of an uncle named Acchternacht, he came down the Rhine to the City of Amsterdam, where he embarked for America. The party settled in Philadelphia; his Bosbyshell cousin died before he reached manhood.

The journey across the Atlantic was, of course, in a sailing vessel, and occupied three months in duration. As a youngster Christian was desirous of seeing and learning all he could during the journey. He particularly wished to see three things: a storm at sea, a burial in the ocean, and a whale; and his wish was gratified in each particular.

It seems that quite a number of friends and neighbors in the old country accompanied the Bosbyshells on the journey to America. William Bosbyshell, the oldest son of Christian Bosbyshell, relates that “during the passage Frederick Gaul, Crewson and Duffield agreed together that if they all succeeded in their future businesses, that they would marry their sons and daughters with each other’s families. This they eventually did, two Gaul brothers married Mary Ann and Elmira Bosbyshell; George W. Duffield married Matilda Clarissa Bosbyshell, and John Krusen married Elizabeth Bosbyshell.” This son adds: “I think that Christian Bosbyshell’s full name was Edward Christian Bosbyshell." If this was so, the "Edward" was not assumed after he became a business man, as the Directories and his own signature attest.

Of Christian Bosbyshell's early life but little is known—that he was industrious and painstaking is shown by his successful career in business in the City of Philadelphia. The entries in the Directories of the city are interesting, as showing his different pursuits. His name first appears in the Directory for the year 1800, and is given thus: "Bossby, Christian, tailor, corner of Water and Race Sts." In 1801, "Bosbyshil, Christian, tailor, 196 North Water St." In 1802 it is given "Bosbyshel, Christian, shopkeeper, 172 North Second;" the same in 1803, 1804 and 1805, except the number, is "120 North Second." In 1806 it is spelled "Boysbyshel," with same address. It is not in the Directories of 1807 to 1810 inclusive. In 1811 it reappears as "Bosbyshill, Christian, stonecutter, 120 N. Second," the occupation evidently being a mistake, as all the subsequent Directories from 1813 up to and including 1818 give it "storekeeper" at the same address, and give the name as it is now known, "Bosbyshell, Christian." His name appears but once again, in the Directory for the year 1857, and he is put down as "farmer, Bushetown tyk." He moved to Hatboro and Jenkintown, at which latter place he died in February, 1862, in the ninetieth year of his age. The compiler has had conversation with some of Christian Bosbyshell's cotemporaries—some who knew him well, and they bore the strongest testimony as to his strict integrity and fine reputation for all that goes to make up the straightforward business man and good citizen generally.

On the 4 July, 1799, Christian Bosbyshell was married to Elizabeth Oliver, of distinguished English ancestry. The record of this marriage as set down in the Pennsylvania Archives, 2nd Series, Vol. VIII, page 657, follows: "Marriage Record German Reform Church, Phila., 1799, July 4, Bobschel, Christian, and Elizabeth Alberry." His wife died in childbirth* on the 9 June, 1817.

Christian Bosbyshell married a second time, on the 15 October, 1829, Mary Fetter. No children.

APPENDIX A.

Copy of letter from William George Oliver, paternal grandfather of Dr. Charles A. Oliver, given to Col. Oliver C. Bosbyshell, of Philadelphia, by Dr. Oliver on the 8th October, 1907.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9th, 1817.

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

It becomes my task to record to bring to you and our Dear Father who was a Witness on the Occasion the unpleasant and sorrowful news of your Dear Sister Elizabeth Bosbyshell who was brought to bed this Evening about five O'clock and delivered of a fine Girl but how shall I find language to express what followed, at Nine O'clock she was no more. Sensible to the last moment, knew all her relations and friends that were around her bid them an everlasting farewell with hopes of meeting them in those Mansions of bliss where peace and happiness alone reign, a few moments before she expired she desired to be raised up by her husband then mentioned that all would soon be over with her as she felt herself going fast, she then desired that they would all pray with her and for her, it was done, she then requested to lay down, and without a groan or Struggle closed her Eyes as if going to Sleep and thus expired.—She was born the 6th Day of November 1781. Married the 4th day of July 1799, and Died the 9th day of June 1817. being the Mother of Nine Children, Buried June 11th. 1817 at 3 O'clock in the Afternoon.

Your ever Affectionate loving brother.

APPENDIX B.

From Poulson's American Daily Advertiser, Wednesday morning, June 11, 1817.

DIED—Last Monday evening, in the thirty-fifth year of her age, Mrs. Elizabeth Bosbyshell, late wife of Christian Bosbyshell. The friends of the deceased and family are particularly invited to attend her funeral, this afternoon at three o’clock from her late dwelling No. 120 north Second Street.
Mr. Freck, Ga veil.

My dear Son—I received your letter on the 19 Instant—I am sorry to learn the death of your son William—that he had his senses to the last, which is a great blessing and I believe is gone happy and that God Almighty has forgiven him his sin and taken him out of a sinful world—We all sorry with you. God’s will be done—See what our Saviour says about the Shepherd, if one of his Flock goes astray he will leave the 99 and go after the stray one and if he finds it he will carry to his heavenly Flock and there will be more rejoicing over one than over the 99 that did not go astray.

Let us pray for one another and give thanks to the Lord so that when he calls us to be ready to go in his heavenly Kingdom—May God Almighty bless you and us all—Amen.

Our love to you all. I remain your affectionate Father.

CHRISTIAN BOSHYSHELL.

APPENDIX D.

E DWARD CHRISTIAN BOSHYSHELL.

Edward C. Bosbyshell, a native of Philadelphia, cast his lot in the West. He settled in Southern Illinois. Losing much of his accumulations through floods, he moved to Iowa and was long a resident and leading spirit of Glenwood. He became a merchant, soon securing the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens, which he held through life. He was made an Associate Judge of the Court of his county, served as Mayor of the city, and was a founder and Vice-President of the first national bank organized in the county—the Mills County National Bank.

Upon his removal to Los Angeles, Cal., he was at once recognized as a man of affairs. He was one of the founders and a director during life of the Merchants’ National Bank of that city; a member of the City Councils and at all times ready and willing to advance the interests of the community. He was an active church worker, aided and abetted by his good wife, being among the principal supporters of the Congregational Church, both in Glenwood and Los Angeles—a man of a genial, happy disposition, he was greatly beloved by all who knew him.

APPENDIX E.

Colonel Philip Bond Fouke

Colonel Philip Bond Fouke held a prominent place among the men of his day. Though differing in politics (he was termed a War Democrat), he was the warm personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, with whom he served in the Legislature of Illinois. It was at Mr. Lincoln's home he first met the lady who became his wife, the occasion being a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln to the members of the Legislature, in Springfield. Miss Emma M. Bosbyshell was a visitor in Springfield at the time, and was one of the invited guests—she was thought a great beauty. Colonel Fouke used to tell with a merry twinkle in his eye, how, when he sought an introduction, he remarked, "I am going to marry that pretty girl if she will have me." Long years after when Mr. Lincoln was President, Colonel Fouke, then a member of Congress, and his wife paid a visit of two or three weeks at the White House. It was during this visit that Mrs. Fouke discovered that Mr. Lincoln frequently called his son Robert, "Bob-o-Link."

General Grant and Colonel Fouke were equally friendly. The former in his "Memoirs" (Vol. I, pp. 238-39) speaking of his work at Springfield, at the outbreak of the war, says, "The only members of Congress I knew were Washburne and Philip Fouke. . . . Fouke I had known in St. Louis when I was a citizen of that city." When General Grant was President, he and Mrs. Grant entertained Colonel and Mrs. Fouke, for some weeks, at Elberon, N. J. They were guests at Nellie Grant's wedding, and on the occasion of Colonel Fouke's funeral, beautiful floral tributes were sent from the White House conservatories.

Generals John A. Logan and John I. McClellan, with Colonel Fouke, were all members of Congress in 1861. They rented a house in common and lived together as one family, which resulted in a warm friendship between them. Mrs. Logan was especially near to Colonel Fouke's family. His daughter Martha was married to Mr. Robert E. Boyd from her house.

The three friends were commissioned colonels in Illinois regiments at the same time, Colonel Fouke's commission to rank from 28 August, 1861. He was assigned to the Thirtieth, a regiment raised and equipped largely at his own expense. Serving while he was still a member of Congress, he declined remuneration for his military service, often laughingly saying he "fought from patriotism and not for money."

Colonel Fouke was in a number of engagements and took a prominent part in the important battle of Belmont, his regiment being severely handled, going into the fight a thousand strong and only mustering at its close between two and three hundred men. From severe injuries received in this engagement he was obliged, on 22 April, 1862, to retire from the service.

As an instance of how the bitterness of the war seldom interrupted the friendships of those in the field, it is related that when the Confederate General, Joseph Wheeler, and Colonel Fouke parted in Washington, the two having served in the same Congress, they pledged each other their friendship, though differing so widely in opinion. At the battle of Belmont, the forces were fighting at close quarters. A company of Confederate sharpshooters were sent to a certain point to pick off the officers of the Thirtieth Regiment. Colonel Fouke rode out into the open, and was recognized by General Wheeler, who was scanning the ground with his field glasses. Wheeler immediately despatched an aide with an order directing them to withdraw and not fire on the colonel. This order, written in lead pencil, on what is now an old yellow scrap of paper, the lines almost obliterated, was sent to Colonel Fouke, after the war, by the man to whom it was directed by General Wheeler, and is a cherished relic of the family.

Colonel Fouke died on 30 October, 1876, and his body lies in the Congressional Cemetery, at Washington, D. C.

The small monument marking the spot, bears the following inscription, viz.:

PHILIP B. FOUKE
Born 1819
Died 1876
Member of Congress from the State of Illinois
Colonel of 30th Illinois Vols.
and Breveted General for gallant conduct

APPENDIX E.

JOSEPH BULLOCK COGHLAN.

Joseph Bullock Coghlan was born in Frankfort, Ky., of Cornelius and Lavinia (Fouke) Coghlan. His parents dying when he was a young lad, he became a member of the family of his uncle, Col. Philip B. Fouke, and entertained the greatest love and affection for them. He informed the compiler that he knew no difference between his own mother and his foster mother—that the latter had been a true mother to him. Appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis 27 Sept., 1860, he graduated 28 May, 1863, saw immediate service as an ensign on the “Sacramento;” master 10 Nov., 1865; lieutenant 10 Nov., 1866, becoming executive officer of the “Pawnee.” Transferred to the “Guerriere,” made lieutenant-commander 12 Mar., 1868. Served on the “Richmond,” the ironclad “Saugus,” the “Monongahela,” and the “Indiana.” Promoted commander 4 Feb., 1889, and captain 18 Nov., 1896. In 1897 he commanded the “Raleigh” on the Asiatic station, took part in the brilliant naval battle at Manila Bay, 1 May, 1898, displaying eminent and conspicuous conduct, for which he was advanced six numbers. With his vessel, the “Raleigh,” he returned to the United States, the first of Dewey’s fleet to get home, landing in New York, where he was accorded a cordial welcome. In an after-dinner speech, at a New York club, intimating that Dewey was on the point of sinking the German squadron at Manila as he did the Spanish ships, and the recitation of the verses “Hoch der Kaiser,” he attracted the attention of the country, his witticisms nearly involving international complications. He served as commandant of the naval station, Puget Sound, 1899-1900; Naval War College, 1901; captain of yard, Navy Yard, New York, 1901-2; second in command of North Atlantic fleet, 1902-4; commandant Navy Yard, New York, 1904-7; promoted Rear Admiral 11 Apr., 1902, and retired as such 9 Dec., 1906.

He died at New Rochelle, New York, 5 Dec., 1908.

APPENDIX G.

WILLIAM BOSBYSHELL

William Bosbyshell was a native of Philadelphia, Pa. At twelve years of age he was placed in the Moravian College, at Lititz, Lancaster County, Pa., where in the two years of his stay he acquired a fair knowledge of the English branches, mathematics, etc. His father reaping benefit from some Western investments, William journeyed to St. Louis in the fall of 1840, a lad of fourteen. He started on a farm in Jersey County, Ill., at six dollars per month, his work frequently taking him to the St. Louis markets with skiff loads of fish. Acquiring some means in 1847, he bought Roy Island for ninety dollars. Here he built houses for dwelling and storage purposes—carried on the business of cutting and selling cord wood to passing steamboats. Seven years of hard labor brought a saving of twenty-seven hundred dollars in gold, which he took back to Philadelphia, where he engaged in the retail coal business. Ten months in his old home sufficed—he returned to Jersey County, bought a good farm, made good bargains, was prudent and economical, so that in two years he was possessed of the snug sum of $10,000. He moved to St. Louis, and with a couple of partners built the "Platte Valley," a steamboat, of which he became the clerk. He subsequently sold his interest and went into the livery and sales stable business in St. Louis, in which he was very successful, retiring therefrom in 1874.

During the War of the Rebellion he was a strong Union man, speaking his sentiments fearlessly, and the general government entrusted to him many extensive and valuable contracts, which he carried out satisfactorily.

A pronounced Democrat, he yet held the respect and esteem of all his fellow-citizens, insomuch that in a strong Republican ward he was elected by a very flattering vote to the City Councils of St. Louis, of which body he became a leading member. Subsequently his Democratic friends sent him to the lower house of the Missouri Legislature. He was made chairman of the St. Louis delegation, as well as chairman of the Committee of Accounts of the Legislature. In the latter capacity he watched the people’s interest, guarding the treasury expenditures as carefully as if his own.

In 1887 he left St. Louis with his family and settled in Los Angeles, Cal., where he soon became one of its leading citizens.

An enthusiastic Mason, he received the thirty-second degree of that order.

APPENDIX II.

William Bosbyshell Oaks.

William Bosbyshell Oaks was born in Philadelphia, Pa. When he was fourteen years of age his family moved to Glenwood, Iowa. He attended the schools of his town during the winter months, working on a farm in summer. Having secured instructions in bookkeeping, he entered the store of his uncle, Edward C. Bosbyshell, as a bookkeeper.

In 1879, when the Wabash ran its first train through Silver City to Council Bluffs, Mr. Oaks became the manager of the general store of John Hanson & Co., in the former place, and thus became one of Silver City’s pioneer citizens, and remained a constant resident since that time: a leader in its business enterprises and prominently associated with all its history. He was the purchaser of the first town lot sold at auction. In the summer of 1881, when his firm established the first bank in Silver City, he was made its manager, and for two years he did the banking business of the community. He was an incorporator of the Silver City State Bank, became its cashier, continuing as such until March, 1908. He was President of the Silver City Fair Association—assisting in founding the Silver City Building and Loan Association, both very successful, and served one term as Mayor of the city. He organized the Treynor Savings Bank, became its President, holding the position until 27 March, 1908, when a stroke of paralysis obliged a retirement. An enthusiastic lover of music, he encouraged all efforts for its dissemination. At the time of his death, from a second stroke of paralysis, he was cashier of the Farmers' State Bank.

A charter member of Silver City Lodge, No. 403, I. O. O. F.; charter member of Wayside Encampment, No. 11, and a charter member of Silver Light Lodge, No. 400, A. F. and A. M.
