James Larimore—Susannah Bonheim

Genealogy of James Larimore, Senior and Susannah Bonheim Larimore. The following is drawn largely from a history of the Larimore family written by Caroline Larimore Williams of Wheeling, W. Va., granddaughter of James Larimore, Senior and Susannah Bonheim Larimore.

James, William and Hugh Larimore, brothers, of Ulster, Ireland emigrated to the United States in 1760, landed in New Jersey. James settled in Hampshire County, Virginia, now W. Va. Hugh located in North Carolina and William in Pennsylvania near Pittsburgh. Our forebear, James Larimore, Senior was born in Ireland (1740) came to this country when twenty years of age, mingled with foreigners from other lands, in New Jersey (the melting pot) clad in the home spun linen of his native heath, and not more than 50 cents in his pocket. A Protestant of the Presbyterian faith, his veins charged, with Scotch-Irish blood, inherited by seven ex-presidents, he came seeking a better country.

What were his emotions, when he drifted southward in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, through historic Baltimore, Frederic and the great natural opening through the Blue Ridge for the Potomac River. He has reached Harper’s Ferry and can go up the Shenandoah River and Valley to Winchester, Va., or ascend the Potomac River to Cumberland, Md., either route will take him to his destination, Hampshire County, Va. He is attracted hither by the rich lands of Lord Fairfax, who at one time owned all the land in Hampshire County, now confiscated by the State of Virginia and open for settlement. The wilderness is before him, he discovers a spring, the strong perpetual flow of sparkling water, on its bank pitches his tent. Tomahawk in hand he deadens a few trees, cuts his name with his Jack-knife in the bark of trees, and thus lays claim to four hundred acres of Virginia land. “Tomahawk Right” this carries with it a pre-emption right to one thousand acres of adjoining land, provided he builds a log cabin on the claim, and raise a crop of corn in a reasonable time. The greatest asset of our prospective grandfather is his pocket Bible. In it he learns that “It is not good that man should be alone.” In New Jersey or Virginia he met Susannah Bonheim and some day she will be our grandmother. His newly acquired earthly possessions are situated on the Little Capon Stream, on a plateau of rich limestone land, densely covered with one hundred and three varieties of forest trees, an aviary of songsters, a woods full of wild animals for meat and fur. Climate—winter 35.8, spring 55.3, summer 75.4. Grandfather called it Jersey Mountain. Three Churches, Post office, West Virginia. Nor is this all. He lived in the richest and largest valley of all the Virginias, the Shenandoah Valley, situated between the Blue Ridge on the east and the Alleghenies on the west, ten miles from Romney, the county seat; and thirty miles from Winchester, Va. Just over the hills and the Opequan River and to Harpers Ferry. He could hear the guns of the Revolution (1763-1789). Conclusion of the French and Indian War 1754-1763, nine years. Had two sons in the war of 1812, my father and Uncle Sam.
father saw a light in the East August 24, 1814, the burning of Washington City by General Ross of the British Army. The ancestral home was just two miles north of the "Old Northwest Pike," running from Winchester, Va., to Parkersburg, W. Va., a distance of two hundred and fifty miles, a lane of artery leading to the great North-West Territory and traveled by all of my people to Ohio and Illinois. It was surveyed by an engineer of Napoleon, who came to this country after the disastrous Napoleonic wars in Europe (1815).

James Larimore is buried at Three Churches, near Romney, on top of Jersey Mountain. He was a weaver by trade.

Susannah Bonhein was born in the Rhenish Palatinate of Germany. At 18 years of age she emigrated with her parents to this country on account of religious persecution, landed in New Jersey and settled in Hampshire County, Va., a Protestant of the Lutheran faith. Grandfather Larimore left Ireland for the same reason. The lass and lassie met each other in New Jersey or Virginia. Both were deeply religious, carried their Bibles, and from it had learned lessons on their Mother's knee. Mutual sympathy led them to the hymenal altar. Construction of a log hut and all the perils of a pioneer and wilderness life confronted them. A hoe and other home-made instruments were all they could command in tilling the land. The farmer would never leave his hut with a farm implement in hand without taking his gun to meet a concealed treacherous Indian, or bring home some wild game for meals. One cow, one horse, one ox or one mule could be indulged at a time in primitive farming, patch farming. Jimmy and Susan would go to Sunday school and church taken on the back of one animal. Tradition records that Grandfather was a great tease, coming in the hopping around Harry Lauder fashion, claiming that he had been bitten by a rattlesnake, keeping grandmother in a constant state of fear. Finally she met these Irish bluffs with contempt. Sad to relate that at sixty years of age this denizen of the forest while climbing over a log was bitten by a rattler, hastened home. His wife regarded his story with credulity, but he swelled up and died.

The Larimores are above the average in height, and weight, dark complected and bear a strong family resemblance to each other. This family resemblance was noted by Abraham Lincoln in early part of the 19th century. John, William, Nancy and Susan Larimore, children of James and Susannah Larimore, made a new home in Tazewell County, Illinois. Pekin, the county seat. Lincoln practiced law in this county and met the Larimores. Uncles Tom and Sam from Knox County, Ohio attended the first inaugural of Abraham Lincoln in March, 1861. They were in the procession and shook hands with the President. Lincoln held them up and said, "See here, did you have brothers in Tazewell County, Illinois?" "We did," and a colloquy followed. Uncle Tom and Uncle Sam never ceased to tell how President Lincoln knew them and held them up. James Larimore and Susannah Bonhein Larimore had eleven children—John, William, Susan, Nancy, James, Junior, Samuel, Robert, Sarah, Peggy, Joseph and Thomas. James Junior and Joseph remained in Virginia. All the others found their way west, five to Ohio and four to Illinois.

He hauled shelled corn in two-horse and four-horse wagons to the distilleries to make corn whisky and glucose. Abraham Lincoln, according to Aunt Mary Hawkins, frequently was in Tazewell County in lawsuits. It is believed John Larimore was one of his clients.

Frank Carter Larimore was born in Columbus, O., April 12, 1846. His father was a contractor, and was engaged in building the Ohio canal. When he was ten years of age the death of his father brought about the sending of Frank Carter to the home of his uncle, Thomas Larimore, a farmer in Knox county, near Lock.

Frank enlisted in Company G, Twentieth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in October, 1861. At the battle of Pittsburg Landing in April, 1862, he was wounded and was discharged. Upon recovery, he enlisted in Company B, 142d Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was made a sergeant and served four months.

After the war he attended school at Utica. On March 20, 1865, he rode horseback to Mt. Vernon, from the farm of his uncle, starting at 4 o'clock in the morning. That same day he began the study of medicine with Drs. Matthew Thompson and Smith, and later with Dr. John W. Russell. His first course of lectures was at Ann Arbor, and he was graduated from Bellvue Hospital Medical College in New York, March 29, 1869. That same year he began practicing medicine in Mt. Vernon. In 1872 he went to Europe where he made a study of hospital conditions, and took a post graduate course in Vienna, studying with Joseph Lister, father of aseptic surgery. Dr. Larimore was the first man in Knox county to use the hypodermic needle and cocaine as a local anaesthetic. He gained more than statewide reputation as a surgeon. One of his positions was that of a member of the faculty of Columbus Medical College. He also was, at different periods, surgeon for the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads.

Dr. Larimore was a member and past president of the Knox County Medical Society, and member and past president of the Ohio Medical Society. He also was active in the affairs of the American Medical Association and almost never missed one of its sessions. He also attended all the Mayo clinics for many years, and frequently was present at the Johns Hopkins clinics. No new book on surgery was written which he did not read with avidity, and he never lost an opportunity to obtain knowledge that would help him in his profession. He was a frequent contributor to medical journals, and a wide traveler. He practiced surgery until he was 80 years of age. In his later years he was occupied principally in consultation.

At the time of his death, Dr. Larimore was at work on his autobiography, and also in getting material for his Larimore Hawkins loose leaf biography. He died at his home in Mt. Vernon on Friday, April 18, 1930, and on April 21, was buried in Mt. Vernon cemetery.

Dr. Larimore was married to Mary Frances Odbert, who died in March, 1927. Their children were the late Mrs. Elizabeth McKinley, who is survived by William and Frances, who have made their home with Dr. and Mrs. Larimore since infancy; Mary, who died in her youth; and Harriet, the wife of Francis W. Dickey.

A. at Harvard, 1909; worked a year in his father's factory; taught school; taught political science in a college at Ames, Iowa; taught in Western Reserve, Lafayette College; editorial writer for the Milwaukee Journal; economist for First Wisconsin National Bank; was president Milwaukee Harvard Club; president Milwaukee City Club, author of many articles published in financial and trade review magazines and newspapers.
A TRIBUTE

Dr. F. C. Larimore is essentially a student. Even as a boy, he was serious minded, eager for learning, and would stay in at recess to study, while his companions of the country school went to play. Later, when he began to study medicine, and found many of the terms in Latin, he obtained a tutor in that language,—so thorough-going were his methods of procedure. Not satisfied with the amount of medical and surgical knowledge required for the degree of M. D., he studied in Europe 1872-73, and all his life, made a practice of visiting the Hopkins clinics in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago, the Mayo Clinic, and of owning and reading the most authentic and up-to-date magazines and books published for his profession. He is large hearted and affectionate, not only toward his family, but also toward his patients, friends and the world in general. He is devoted to the interest of the Baptist Church, of which has been a member for over sixty years. He is a great traveler,—knows his country, East, West, North, South, and rejoices in her strength, for which he bled.

The keynote of Mary F. Odbert Larimore was “service.” She lived not for herself, but for others. In childhood, it was her habit to obey, without question, the bidding of her elders; and in maturity, to strive for the comfort and welfare of her nearest and dearest. With little formal education, she had a great admiration for those more fortunate in that respect than herself. She had a keen sense of values and the way to go about educating herself, to make up for the lack of early opportunity. She was arare combination of knowing what she wanted to get out of life, of keeping steadily to her goal, and of going about its attainment in a spirit of independence and cheerfulness.

Flora Emmaline Vanatta Forry, daughter of Samuel Thomas Vannatta and Lavina Hawkins Vannatta, was born June 25, 1874. Her birthplace was the Vanatta homestead three miles south of Brandon. She received a good educamon school education and attended Mt. Vernon High School. Her first training, no doubt, was received under the guidance and discipline of her mother and grandmother, Aunt Sarah Jane Vannatta (as she was known throughout the countryside) in the art of good housekeeping. Shemarried Calvin Wilson Forry June 28, 1899.

Calvin Wilson Forry, son of Jacob Wilson Forry and Malinda Letts Forry was born January 2, 1865. His birthplace was the 10th homestead one mile east of Hunts Station, which he now owns and manages. He attended the country school for his elementary education and attended Prof. Marsh's School in Mt. Vernon in 1884 and Oberlin College in 1885. In the following year he went west with a party of young men and took up a land claim in what was at the time Dakota Territory. At the end of the year the group broke up and the land claim dropped. The subject of this sketch remained another year and taught school in a little log hut with a mud roof. He received $45.00 per month which was considered to be a very high salary at that time. He returned to Ohio in 1887 and took up farming.

FAMILY TRIBUTE

Lavina Hawkins Vannatta, the eldest daughter of Ossaca Hawkins, was born October 24, 1841, died May 13, 1903.

She obtained a common school education which combined with strong personal characteristics made her an ideal to her family and neighbors. She married Samuel T. Vannatta January 29, 1864. I have always felt it a great loss never to have known my maternal grandmother, I was only two years old when she died May 13, 1903. This feeling has been created by the words of esteem I hear spoken everywhere by those who knew her.

Samuel Thomas Vannatta was born in Warren County, New Jersey, September 14, 1835. He was the son of Peter and Sarah Weller Vannatta who were natives of New Jersey. Peter Vannatta died in New Jersey in 1836 and Samuel T. came with his mother and her father and mother to Millers township in 1840. He had a common school education and unusual business ability. He was a member of the Masonic Order and served as Commissioner of Knox County two terms. Although he lived to be 86 years old, he never seemed that old because of his progressiveness.
