EXPLANATIONS.

The serial number precedes the name, and when it is followed by a * indicates that further information, regarding person numbered, will be found elsewhere in this record. As an illustration

3.* Frances Siggins; when next found it will be enclosed thus: (3), and whenever found enclosed it denotes that 3 is her original serial number.

The Roman numerals refer to the number of children in one family.

The small figure following the name is the generation number.

Abreviations—b. born; d. died; m. married; dau. daughter; s. succeeded by; unm. unmarried; abst. about; C. W. Civil War; R. W. Revolutionary War.

The children of John and Sarah (Hood) Siggins, and their descendants, are traced separately, beginning with the eldest child.

When a name is enclosed in parentheses, it is the maiden name of person specified.

In many instances family names are herein spelled in several different ways. Not being certain which was correct, we have kept to the spelling found in manuscripts as they were received.

The numbers indicating names of the Siggins family in Ireland are preceded by the letter A, as this material was obtained after the record of the family of John Siggins, the emigrant, was written and numbered.

The names of other authors appear where data is quoted.
The search for material for this, my third family history, covers a period of over fifteen years of conscientious research work in this country, and in Ireland and Scotland. Much valuable data was accumulated thereby and, as I never expect to publish another genealogical work, in order to preserve the material so laboriously collected, I decided to include in this volume all the records compiled by me not contained in my former works. While it represents several seemingly distinct families, they are all related, either by blood or marriage, to some branch of the Siggins family.

The records herein contained will be found useful in establishing the American origin of many Pennsylvania families, as the information given is substantiated by the appended list of reference works consulted. The most trustworthy proof of the relationship of our emigrant ancestress, Sarah Hood Siggins to Admiral Samuel Hood is contained in letters left by Judge John Siggins, of Tidioute, Pennsylvania, and Francis Siggins Baird, a daughter of Sarah Hood, elsewhere published in the present work.

Mrs. E. Harriet Howe, born in 1844, distinctly remembers hearing her uncle Isaac Siggins tell of the same incidents related in John Siggins’ letter. John B. White of Kansas City, born in 1847, often heard Henry Kinnear tell the same story of Sarah Hood’s relationship to Admiral Hood. Mrs. Sarah Hood Siggins lived for a number of years before her death, in the home of her son Alexander Siggins who had married Henry Kinnear’s sister, Margaret. The Kinnear and Siggins families owned adjoining farms in Brokenstraw Township, Pennsylvania.

John Siggins, born in 1839, says, “When I was a boy Aunt Mary Siggins (born in 1805) a maiden sister of my father, talked a great deal to me about her relatives across the water. She said that her grandmother (Sarah Hood, wife of John Siggins) claimed that Admiral Samuel Hood, who was born Dec. 12, 1724, and died at Bath England, Jan. 27, 1816, was her brother and he told her that in his early life as a sailor he at one time cut with his knife in a door of the barn or out-building an exact cut of the ship that he had sailed on, showing the ship under full sail, and that he would tell his folks at home of the West Indies and other wonderful lands he had visited. When returning from these trips he always brought gifts to the family from the different countries he had visited.

Another convincing proof of Sarah Hood's close relationship to Admiral Hood's family is the fact of her giving several of her children the same names that appear in every generation of this branch of the Hood family and had not until this time been found in the Siggins' family. Another significant fact bearing on this relationship is that when John Siggins started to America with several of his neighbors and relatives, his objective point was to the same locality in Pennsylvania where Richard Hoskins' family owned a large tract of land, part of which he willed to his daughter Mary who married Reverend Samuel Hood. A portion of this property evidently reverted to her daughter, Sarah, and was evidently the primary cause of the emigration of John and Sarah Hood Siggins to America.

In 1895 the representatives of several branches of the Siggins family held a Reunion at Irvineton. The leading spirits in this movement were John Siggins of Tidioute, Sabina Siggins Parker, of Jamestown, and Benjamin B. Siggins of Youngsville, Pa. Three hundred of the clan attended. They spent the day in exchanging reminiscences of "Auld Lang Syne" and listening to an interesting programme. Miss Justina Siggins of Hickory, gave a most excellent sketch of the family from the time of their landing in America down to the present day.

The second reunion was held in Irvineton in 1896; John W. Siggins was secretary and general manager. The third was held in 1897 in Youngsville, Pa., at which time Mrs. O. F. Chase of Jamestown, read an interesting and humorous paper describing some of the leading characteristics of the Siggins' clan. She said, "None of them have accumulated vast fortunes, but as a whole, they are rich in kindness and feelings of good fellowship for their neighbors and friends, and fair in their dealings. There is a refreshing strain of wit and humor to be found in most of those of the Siggins' blood which makes them entertaining conversationalists. As to the professions, they are all represented in our family. Right here, excuse a little moralizing 'to point a moral to adorn my tale';—may the lawyers never stir up strife and always read the law along the lines of justice; may the doctors be faithful to their trust and their bills not longer than the lives of their patients; as to the ministers, may they preach less of creed and more of the Brotherhood of Christ and all deal fairly with their fellow man."

Eight of these gatherings were held and much good resulted therefrom, chief of which was the historical matter gleaned from those thus brought together,—old letters were brought to light; family records read, compared and corrected; old legends revived and a new interest fostered in family history and genealogy,—all of which has been carefully searched and every important item, event and date recorded in the present work. The meetings were held in June to commemorate the season of the year in which the ancestors of the family made their journey across the Atlantic in their search for a new abiding place.

I have tried to avoid the traditional, confining my statements to the facts as they were given to me by the different members of the family to whom I am indebted for their hearty cooperation. Where collateral names appear, I have digressed and given something of the history of that family prior to their marriage into the Siggins Family. In doing this, I had two objects in mind,—the benefit of such records to future generations in that particular line; then as a reference work on genealogy, its value would be greatly increased by the introduction of this collateral data. It is to be greatly regretted that we were not able to give a more definite report of the family prior to the time of their emigration to America. I have been at considerable expense to have a search made of the public records in the counties of Ireland where our ancestors were known to have resided. The results are herewith appended.

The names of those who have been especially helpful are:
John Barber White, Kansas City, Missouri.
Mrs. E. Harriet Howe, Kansas City, Mo.
Mrs. Laura E. Messerly, Warren, Pennsylvania.
Judge John Siggins, Tidioute, Pa.
Mrs. Charles E. Rose, Cleveland Ohio.

(Burke's Peerage.)
EARLY DAYS.

Most of the families herein spoken of claim Scotch-Irish origin. The title originated about the time of James II of England when some of the Irish Earls conspired against the Government and became outlaws. Their lands consisting of thousands of acres were seized by the Crown and offered to Scotch peasants if they would go to Ireland and reside on these lands permanently. A second similar insurrection caused another large forfeiture and resulted in the seizure of nearly six counties in the province of Ulster. The King had primarily in mind by this procedure the voting out of the Latin Irish who were Catholics and hostile to his Government and replacing them with loyal subjects. Being protected by the Government and naturally frugal and industrious they prospered and soon gained the ascendency over their less thrifty neighbors and have maintained it up to the present time for they never intermarried with the native Irish but remained Saxon in blood and Protestant in religion.

Scotch Irish is purely an American term applying to these Protestant emigrants whose ancestors had come over from Scotland as above described and made their home in Ireland and then moved by a desire to better their condition, emigrated to the New World. We find their descendants in every state in the Union. Many of them came just prior to the breaking out of the Revolution and they almost to a man espoused the cause of the Colonists. Many of them were military leaders and prominent law-makers during and after that long struggle for human rights. They have furnished Presidents, Senators, Congressmen, Judges and patriots in many and various walks of life.

With such a heritage as theirs it might be expected that the Youngs, Simpsons, Bairds and Siggins emigrants were no laggards in the business of home making and citizen building. (The first to invade the lonely forests and prepare the way for civilization were in many instances the missionaries, sent out by different religious societies.)

The first of the Siggins family to come to America for permanent settlement was John, son of William Siggins who lived in Drumcliffe Parish County, Sligo, Ireland, on land probably granted him by the Crown for military services. His son, John, had the title of esquire, and an income of two hundred pounds a year.

Through the solicitation of the Holland Land Company, a number of the family went to America. On the journey, Alexander, son of John and Sarah Hood, was born,—this was in 1793.

The family first settled near Philadelphia and later went to Center County, Pennsylvania.

John had married Sarah Hood in Ireland. She was the sister of Admiral Hood. Among the choice possessions of Sarah Hood Siggins was a little book called “History of the Bible” written in story form, from which she read in the long evenings to her small children. She carried it with her carefully guarded on the journey to America. Her children and grandchildren never tired of listening to the sacred stories. When she no longer had need of it, her gr-daughter Mary became its custodian and read its stories to the children of the household. It is now in the possession of Harriet Howe of Kansas City, Missouri, a great grand daughter of Sarah Hood. It bears no date but must have been one of the very first books in which wood engravings were used. Sarah Hood Siggins died in Youngsville, Pennsylvania, in 1833, aged 85 years.

Some of the family went from Center County, Pa., to Stewart’s Run. Here lived the Siggins, Dawsons, Allenders, Kinnears and Middletons. They were all Methodists and held meetings from house to house,—George Siggins being the class leader.
William, the father of George, and wife Mary, lived and died in the parish of Drumcliffe, Ireland, where his forefathers had dwelt before him. He was brought up in the Church of England but was most friendly with the Methodists and often went to hear John Wesley preach.

Frances (Siggins) Baird says of her grandfather, William Siggins: "He was a farmer in Drumcliffe where his ancestors had lived for many years; he was much esteemed by the nobility of the place; was a yeoman and always fought for his King and country and was brought up in the Church of England. He was a very pious man and would often 'pray loud in secret'". He was very friendly to the Methodists and frequently entertained them and often went to hear John Wesley preach.

Through John Siggins of Bena, Australia, we learn that the crest of the family in Scotland was a sheaf of wheat,—this would accord with the traditions of the family that they were farmers.

Among the pious laymen who did so much for early Methodism, George Siggins was one of the foremost; he attended the Quarterly meetings and always assisted at the services.

His mother, Sarah Hood Siggins was a devout follower of John Wesley. She often went to hear him preach, taking her children with her. She was tall and handsome, with dark sparkling eyes—was an adept at story telling; of even temper and gentle manners. She spent the last days of her life at the home of her son Alexander in Youngsville.

John, the second son of John and Sarah H. Siggins left home when about twenty-five years old for a trip down the Alleghany River, fell a victim to yellow fever and died and was buried at Letart Island in the Ohio River.

Their eldest daughter, Frances, married Benjamin Baird of Center Co. Their home was in Lock Haven, Pa. She died at the home of her daughter Mary, in Lock Haven, aged three score and ten years. She was a woman of sterling qualities of mind and heart and greatly beloved by all who knew her.

George Siggins came to the section of the Alleghany Valley now known as Hickory, in 1818. Here he built a two story log house and began clearing his farm. Later he built a frame addition which is still standing but moved to another foundation. Many of his methods of farming and irrigation were far in advance of his times. A church and school house were built also of logs with the windows of oiled paper and slab benches for seats. There were no stores nearer than Erie or Pittsburg and from these towns supplies were brought in once or twice a year,—sometimes by boat but oftener by wagon load.

The Indian villages where Zeisberger established his first missions were situated in the heart of the present rich oil fields. The presence of oil in this region was known to the Indians long before its discovery by the white settlers. It was gathered by them in various crude ways and put to many household and medicinal uses.

Later, when the settlers found it could be procured in large quantities shipped to all parts of the world, it ushered in a new era of commercial activity and became the source of immense revenue.

It is a well established fact that the Christian world today owes much to Peter Bohler, the Moravian missionary whose spiritual exhortations led to John Wesley's conversion in 1738. His, Wesley's, open air sermons soon started a wave of spiritual awakening which had a wonderful influence on the people of England and Ireland and no doubt hastened the tide of emigration to the American shores, which set in toward the end of the eighteenth century.

And it was another Moravian disciple, David Zeisberger, who dedicated his life to the reclaiming of the Aborigenes and spent his life in missionary work in the wilderness of Western Pennsylvania. His labors began about 1767 when he established a camp at the mouth of Tionesta Creek, accompanied by two Delaware Indians, Anthony and Papunhank. He was, so far as history shows, the first white man to visit the upper Allegheny country. The character of his work, and its influence for good over the wild tribes of Indians among whom he labored, was soon felt. He acted as mediator between them and the early white settlers.

John Penn, grandson of William Penn, governor of Pennsylvania, recognized the importance of the work of the Moravians among the Indians. Governor Hamilton, also Dr. Benjamin Franklin, Postmaster General of the British Colonies and member of the Colonial Assembly, as well as Joseph Galloway, an eminent lawyer and William Logan, a member of the Governor's Council, all expressed faith in Penn's idea of dealing with the Indians as carried out by Zeisberger. He was recognized as a valuable factor in reconciling and adjusting the differences that arose from time to time between the Indians and the white settlers. The Pennsylvania Historical Commission in cooperation with the Allegewe D A R Society has erected a huge boulder in the Court House Square at Goudersport to the memory of Daniel Zeisberger, the well beloved Moravian Missionary and there hangs in the Forest County Commissioner's office a picture of Zeisberger preaching to the Indians. William Penn bought his lands from the Indians which was an unaccustomed procedure; he tried to please rather than to force them and in so doing, won their confidence. In the Council meetings he called them brothers and they called him Big Brother. The Iroquois controlled all of what is now Pennsylvania and with them Penn had to deal. Later, when the Delawares came from farther west and tried to settle in Eastern Pennsylvania, Penn helped keep peace between the two tribes. The Delawares trusted him implicitly and permitted him to make his settlements unmolested. They granted him large tracts of land. All went well until the Walking Purchase, whereby the Indians lost much valuable land. This was the beginning of the Indian troubles in Pennsylvania.

In November 1682 the Great Treaty between Penn and the Indians of Western Pennsylvania was signed under an elm tree which has since been known as the "Treaty Tree" at which at least three tribes of Indians were present, the Delawares, the Shawnees and the Mingos. This tree was carefully preserved and guarded with almost superstitious care. It stood until blown down by a storm in 1810 and was discovered to be nearly three hundred years old. Previous to this treaty, Penn considered that he had no right to any of these lands, holding that the Indians were the rightful possessors.

In his early purchases it was provided that the tract "shall extend back from a given point as far as a man can walk in three days." Penn himself often going with the contracting parties to see that no advantage was taken of the owners of the land.

A part of the purchase being walked out in a day and a half, Penn decided that what they had covered would include land enough to meet their present needs. The remainder to be walked out when it was needed. They had walked only about thirty miles, but later when the purchase was concluded, some time in the year 1733, the walkers contrived to make it appear that they had gone nearly three times the distance covered by Penn and his men in the same given time, thereby gaining possession, by unfair methods, of a large tract of land and giving to the Indians just cause for the lack of confidence which they began to feel in the settlers that were pouring into their territory.

A little later, during the French supremacy, trading posts were established at Niagara, Venango (now Franklin), Le Boeuf (now Waterford) and other posts in northwestern Pennsylvania, where all kinds of trinkets and ammunition were exchanged with the Indians for valuable furs, which were shipped to Europe and sold at an immense profit. The English and French were contending for supremacy in this region,—secret instructions were given by each to their emissaries to make every effort to strengthen their own power in these colonies.
Going back nearly two centuries the valley around Tidioute would present in many respects much the same appearance as it does to-day,—but the forests which crept down to the very water's edge at that time have disappeared and given place to unsightly oil derricks. The squalid log cabins and bark wigwams of the Indians have been replaced by homes and factories; and the fields that were cultivated by the Indians are now growing corn and other grains for the white man's consumption. On the river bank birch bark canoes were upturned ready for the use of the redman. Most of the cabins were built entirely of bark, held together by willow withes fastened to a rudely constructed log frame, a small hole being left in the roof whence the smoke escaped,—the Indians knowing nothing about the construction or use of chimneys.

Every village had what was called a Council House where the feasts and ceremonies were held. During the summer, the fires were built outside of the cabins; for safety, they were usually surrounded by a ring of stones. These rings are often found by farmers when they are ploughing their fields.

It was thus that George Siggins discovered that the Indians had at one time resided on Cullen's Flats. Jackson Siggins has made a valuable collection of Indian Relics consisting of arrow heads, mortars in which they ground their corn, necklaces, earrings, stone knives, tips of spears, Indian pipes and other quaintly fashioned tokens of the existence of a tribe of the Delaware Indians in the vicinity of the present town of Tidioute.

In the interests of the French came in 1749 de Celeron with a large party and followed the southern shores of Lakes Ontario and Erie to a point opposite Lake Chautauqua where they made portage over the dividing bridge and thence down the Lake and on down the Conewango to Warren where they buried a leaden plate setting forth a renewal of the French possessions treaty on the banks of the Ohio and Kanaougon (Allegheny) rivers. A plate bearing the arms of France was then affixed to a nearby tree. There was another plate buried near Franklin and four others on their journey to Fort Frontenac on Lake Ontario.

The following is a copy of the inscription which appeared on one of these plates that was originally written in French:

In the year 1749 of the reign of Louis XV, King of France, we were Commander of a detachment sent by Monsieur le (mis) de la Calissoniere, General Commandant of New France, to re-establish order in a few villages (uncivilized) of these cantons. We buried this plaque (or slab) at the entrance of the River Chinodahichetha (?) 18 of August near the Ohio river, beautiful river, as a monument of the renewal of possession that we had taken of said Ohio river and of all those that empty into it, and of all the land on the two banks to the source of the aforesaid rivers, such as belong to the present and preceding kings of France and which they have maintained by force of arms or by treaties, especially those of Ryswick, Dordrecht and Aix-la-Chapelle.

It was well for these early settlers that Zeisberger had preceded them into this region and prepared the way for the great number of emigrants that flocked to this fertile valley. As a whole they were generous and hospitable and ever ready to help the latest comer to hew the logs and erect a shelter for his family. At first these huts were crude and bare of any furnishings except the necessities but the privations were bravely borne and in course of time the serious business of making for themselves a permanent abiding place was successfully carried out.

A short time previous to their coming to this valley the Holland Land Company had appropriated lands north and west of the Allegheny River previously known as Allegheny Co. Eight counties including Warren were formed from this tract by act of the legislature. This included the present Erie, Crawford and Venango counties with the County Seat at Meadville. One of the commissioners appointed by the Governor to lay out the town in Warren was John McKinney, a young and vigorous adventurer fresh from the Emerald Isle. He married Susan Arthur in 1842 and settled on a farm within the lines of the present village of Youngsville where he lived to a good old age.

Robert Andrews, Mathew Young, Hugh Wilson, Joseph Gray and Darius and Joseph Mead were among the early settlers of the Broken Straw valley—also Judge William Siggins who served in the war of 1812, was constable, Justice of the Peace and Associate Judge. Later came the Kinnears, Goodwins, Littlefields and others. One of the moving spirits of the new settlement was Henry P. Kinnear who served the public in many capacities. His sister Margaret married Alexander Siggins, one of the substantial men of the town and a most enthusiastic supporter of the doctrines of the Methodist Church. His word was law in all matters pertaining to Church discipline. Some of the younger members thinking to add to the musical entertainment of the congregation, brought a big bass viol into the choir which occupied a place in the gallery directly opposite the pulpit. All went well until Grandfather Siggins appeared. He marched straight to the pulpit which was elevated several feet above the floor, mounted the stairs and pointing his finger at the instrument exclaimed in tones not easily misunderstood “Take that ungodly fiddle out of this Church and keep it out”. Needless to say it was removed.

Warren County was named for General Joseph Warren, a distinguished and gallant soldier who lost his life at Bunker Hill while boldly defending his country’s rights. His Grandfather was Peter Warren and his son Joseph was the father of General Joseph who was born at Roxbury, Mass., in 1741. The Daughters of the Revolution have erected a monument to General Warren in the Public Square in Warren, Penn. This section of the County owes much to the foresight and labors of General William Irvine, one of the early settlers of the valley. He obtained a warrant for a large tract of land on the banks of the Allegheny River. His son Callender Irvine perfected title to the same as required by law by actually living on and improving the lands. Much of the original tract is still owned by the descendants of old General Irvine. The splendid forests of Pine and Hemlock which covered the hills were one of the chief attractions which brought settlers and speculators to this valley. Small mills were erected and their products carried by water to distant markets,—some going as far away as New Orleans and this started an enterprise which laid the foundation of much of the wealth of the population of Warren County.

WARREN BOROUGH.

Warren Borough was laid out by General William Irvine and Andrew Ellicott about 1795 and incorporated April April 3, 1882. Stephen Gilson, son of Gideon, was the first white child born in the town. Another of the first settlers was David Jackson, a native of Connecticut, but he came from Ithaca, N. Y., to this place in 1797 and settled on what was later known as the Wetmore Farm; he came by way of Buffalo and Erie to Waterford and thence by canoe down French Creek to the Allegheny River. He built the first frame house in the town. Here he kept an Inn for a number of years.

Archibald Tanner erected a brick block on this same lot in 1849-50. In 1800 Jackson completed one of the first saw mills in the county, from which the first raft of pine timber was floated down the Allegheny River and safely landed at Pittsburgh between the years 1799 and 1801. It contained about thirty thousand feet of lumber and was guided by sitting-poles instead of oars. The saw mill built by the Meads on the Brokenstraw was erected about the same time and was thought by some of the old settlers to take precedence of the Jackson mill. David Jackson died June 20, 1830; his children were Daniel, Rachel, David, Jr., Ethan Ebenezer and Sylvia.

John King another early settler, married Betsy, daughter of John Gilson, Sr., in 1811. She died in 1873. Their children were J. born 1812; George W.; Rufus P.; Mrs. Harmon of Warren; J. E. King, M. D. of Buffalo; Mrs. Evelyn Mead (wife of John Mead of Youngsville) who later married Thomas W. Jackson—their sons were John A., Byron J., Gilson A., and a daughter Sarah who married Mr. Davis; Mrs. Betsy Hunter and Mrs. Malvina Cowan of Warren.

John King served as County Treasurer in 1827-28. Rufus P. King filled the same office 1843-47 and also served as Associate Judge of Warren County.

George W. Fenton, father of Hon. Reuben E. Fenton, taught the first school in a room of Daniel Jackson's house. He married Elsey Owen of Carroll, a niece of John King's wife.

Thomas Beaty of Beaver County, was another of the substantial pioneer farmers of Western Pennsylvania who became one of the best of patriotic citizens. He tilled the soil and taught habits of frugality and industry to his children. When the call came for troops in 1812, he offered his services and was stationed with the Penna. troops at Fort Erie.

David, one of his fourteen children, was born in Beaver County in 1811. He was also a farmer, by industry and frugality he accumulated considerable property in Forest and Warren Counties. He engaged in the lumber business and later when oil was discovered in Warren County, he began operations in that industry. He made his home in Warren where his two sons also lived. The older O. W. Beaty became a partner of his father in the oil business; and from 1889 until the time of his death, he served as Vice President of the Warren Savings Bank.

Northwestern Pennsylvania including Armstrong, Butler, Beaver Lawrence, Mercer, Crawford, Warren, Forest, Venango, Clarion, Jefferson, McKean, Elk, Cameron, Potter and Tioga Counties, was acquired by treaty between the State and the Indians,—the Six Nations confirmed this treaty at Ft. Stanwix, Oct. 23, 1758, the great waterways furnishing the only means of entering or traversing this great wilderness territory. Later the white men learned the Indian trails and paths; gradually they began to use them in their journeys to and from the different settlements, especially in the mountain districts;—later they were the ones used for military purposes and are now the acknowledged national highways. The most noted of these was the old Catawba or Cherokee trail, leading from the Carolinas through Virginia and Western Pennsylvania to Canada. This was intersected by the “Warrior” Trail, which started in Kentucky and joined the Cherokee path in Fayette Co.

The French built the first forts which afterwards were taken by the English and later became the sites of the present towns and villages; Franklin occupies one of these—it was first known as the Village of the Wolf. In 1887 the United States Troops built Fort Franklin on this site and named it for Benjamin Franklin. The town of Franklin situated at the confluence of the French Creek and the Allegheny River, was laid out in 1795 by William Irvine and Andrew Ellicott. The Indian name for the town was Weningo. Fort Le Bouf was built about 1754. Allegheny County at first embraced about all of the Western part of the state, and was occupied successively by the French, English and Americans. The name comes from the Allegewe tribe of Indians that occupied this section of the county prior to the coming of the Iroquois or Six Nations the “Romans of America”.

CORNPLANTER

John O'Bail alias Cornplanter was a distinguished chief of the Seneca Tribe of Indians, one of the powerful “Six Nations.” He was a half breed who fought valiantly with the French and later with the British. After the defeat and surrender of Cornwallis he accepted the situation philosophically and made friends with the Colonists and heroically maintained his allegiance thereto during the remainder of his life, rendering valuable assistance during the Indian Wars of 1790-94. He gave valuable aid by protecting the western frontiers. For these and other services he was given large tracts of land—he selected for himself a farm about fourteen miles north of Warren, Pennsylvania, where he lived until March 17th, 1836, when he died aged upwards of a hundred years. The Pennsyl-
Virginia Legislature passed an act by which a monument was erected to his memory in grateful recognition of his long and faithful services to the state of his adoption.

Many interesting stories are told of Cornplanter. Mrs. Harriett Howe well remembers hearing her uncle, Isaac Siggins, relate many reminiscences of this old Indian warrior; he frequently spoke of his great interest in the welfare of his Tribal Brothers, the Senecas. He was a strong advocate of Temperance and bitterly opposed the sale of "Fire Water" to the Indians. In order to lay this matter before the Governor and ask his co-operation in protecting them against this evil, he journeyed all the way on foot from his home on the Allegheny just below Hickory Town to the State Capital and back again. Perhaps if the Governor had taken the advice of this wise old chief, the History of Pennsylvania from that time on might have been quite different reading from the story as it stands recorded to-day. Certain it is that the settlers would have fared better and been far safer if they had heeded the advice of men like Cornplanter and Penn.

Six miles below Franklin, Pennsylvania, on the East side of the Allegheny River stands the "Indian God Rock" keeping guard over the secrets of the Red man, as enacted there when they were the sole possessors of the soil and monarchs of all they beheld. It stands near the shore and is fully twenty feet in length; its upper end rests on the bank but its huge bulk stands out in bold relief; its upper side is completely covered with Indian hieroglyphics and symbols, such as turtles, snakes and other animals, arrows, representations of the sun, etc., etc. It was the superstitious belief of the early Indian inhabitants that any one who could walk its length unaided would live a hundred years. Cornplanter it was said performed this feat although it would seem impossible of accomplishment so nearly perpendicular does it stand; for reward he claimed his full quota of years which nature generously granted with some eight or ten to spare.

The progress of the twentieth century is playing havoc with the old land marks of Warren County. One of these, the Cornplanter Hotel, was built by Dr. William A. Irvine on the flat near the town of Irvineton. It was built of native slate stone; was massive in appearance and far surpassed the other buildings of the neighborhood. It is rapidly becoming demolished and will soon exist only in memory. It stood on the East side of the road near the River and was built about 1843. A man by the name of Foreman kept the hotel for many years.

Few names are more distinguished in the frontier history of Pennsylvania than that of Cornplanter. His Indian name was Ga-nio-di-euh, or Handsome Lake. He was born at Conewangus on the Genessee River: being a half breed, the son of a white man, named John O'Bail, a trader from the Mohawk Valley. In 1779 in one of the Indian raids in which Cornplanter participated, one of the prisoners taken chanced to be his father. He said to him, "I am your son; you are my father—you are my prisoner and subject to the customs of Indian warfare but your life shall be spared if you choose to follow the fortunes of your son. I will cherish and protect thee, but if you wish to return to your white friends, I will send a party of my trusted young men to conduct you hence." O'Bail preferred to return and was taken safely back to Albany.

Notwithstanding his bitter hostility while the war continued, once the hatchet was buried, he at once became the friend and ally of the Colonists and through his influence with the Indians brought about amicable settlement of many of their differences. He entertained the highest respect for Washington, "the Great Counsellor of the Thirteen Fires" and often visited him during his presidency on business for his tribe.

His speeches on these occasions exhibit both his talent in composition and his adroitness in diplomacy. Washington fully reciprocated his respect and friendship. They had fought against each other on the disastrous day of Braddock's field. Both were then young men. More than 40 years afterwards, when Washington was about retiring from the presidency, Cornplanter made a special visit to Philadelphia to take an affectionate leave of the great benefactor of the white man and the red.

After peace was permanently established between the Indians and the United States, Cornplanter retired from public life and devoted his labors to his own people. He deplored the evils of intemperance and exerted himself to suppress it. The benevolent efforts of missionaries among his tribe always received his encouragement, and at one time his own heart seemed to be softened by the words of truth. Yet he preserved in his later years, many of the peculiar notions of the Indian faith.

In the war of 1812-14, when the Senecas took up the hatchet in alliance with the United States, Cornplanter appears to have taken no active part; but his son, Major Henry O'Bail, and his intimate neighbor, Halftown, were conspicuous in several engagements on the Niagara frontier.

Rev. Timothy Allen, then president of Allegheny college, who visited Cornplanter in 1816, thus describes the chief and his village:

"Jennesedaga, Cornplanter's village, is on a handsome piece of bottom land and comprises about a dozen buildings. It was grateful to notice the agricultural habits of the place, and the numerous enclosures of buckwheat, corn and oats. We also saw a number of oxen, cows and horses and many logs designed for the saw mill and Pittsburg market. Last year, 1815, the Western Missionary society established a school in the village under Mr. Samuel Oldham. Cornplanter, as soon as apprised of our arrival, came over to see us and took charge of our horses. Though having many around him to obey his commands, yet, in the ancient patriarchal style, he chose to serve us himself, and actually went into the field, cut the oats and fed our beasts. He appears to be about 68 years of age and 5 feet 10 inches in height. His countenance is strongly marked with intelligence and reflection. Contrary to the aboriginal custom, his chin is covered with a beard three or four inches in length. His house is of princely dimensions, compared with most Indian huts and has a piazza in front. He is owner of 1,300 acres of excellent land, 600 of which encircle the ground plot of his little town. He receives an annual stipend from the United States of $250. Cornplanter's brother, lately deceased, called the prophet, was known by the high-sounding name of Goskukewanna Konnedin, or Large Beautiful Lake. Kinzuquade, the name of another chief, signified the place of many fishes, hence probably the name of Kinzua.'

In 1821-22, the commissioners of Warren county assumed the right to tax the private property of Cornplanter and proceeded to enforce its collection. The old chief resisted it, conceiving it not only unlawful, but a personal indignity. The sheriff again appeared with a small posse of armed men. Cornplanter took the deputation to a room around which were ranged about 100 rifles, and with the sententious brevity of an Indian, intimated that for each rifle a warrior would appear at his call. The sheriff and his men speedily withdrew, determined, however, to call out the militia. Several prudent citizens, fearing a sanguinary collision, sent for the old chief, in a friendly way, to come to Warren and compromise the matter. He came and after some persuasion, gave his note for the tax, amounting to $43.79. He addressed, however, a remonstrance to the governor of Pennsylvania, soliciting a return of his money, and an exemption from such demands against land that the State itself had given him. The Legislature annulled the tax and sent two commissioners to explain the affair to him. He met them at the court house in Warren, on which occasion he delivered the following speech, eminently characteristic of him and his race:

"Brothers—Yesterday was appointed for us all to meet here. The talk which the governor sent us pleased us very much. I think that the Great Spirit is very much pleased that the white people have been induced so to assist the Indians as they have done, and that he is pleased also to see great men of this State and of the United States so friendly to us. We are much pleased with what has been done.

"The Great Spirit first made the world, and next the flying animals, and found all things good and prosperous. He is immortal and everlasting. After finishing the flying animals, he came down on earth and there stood. Then he made different kinds of trees, and weeds of all sorts and people of every kind. He made the spring and other seasons, and the weather suitable for planting. These he did make. But stills to make whisky to be given to the Indians, he did not make. The Great Spirit bids me tell the white people not to give Indians this kind of liquor. When the Great Spirit had made the earth and its animals, he went into the great lakes, where he breathed as easily as anywhere else, and then made all the different kinds of fish. The Great Spirit looked back on all that he had made. The different kinds he made to be separate and not to mix with and disturb the other. But the white people have broken his command by mixing their color with the Indians. The Indians have done better by not doing so. The Great Spirit wishes that all fighting and wars should cease.

"I have now to thank the Governor for what he has done. I have informed him what the Great Spirit has ordered me to cease from and I wish the Governor to inform others of what I have communicated. This is all I have at present to say."

Cornplanter's gr. son is evidently following in the footsteps of his illustrious gr. father as the following story clipped from a recent paper will show:

"A few years ago, Cornplanter, one of the Seneca chiefs, toured Germany. Before he went he said he hoped to see the kaiser and preach the Indian religion to him. He came back disappointed in not being able to talk to the kaiser, but more than this he came back to his family with a tale that Germany was a country of warriors getting ready to fight somebody. A month ago a letter from the reservation told that Jesse Cornplanter, son of this chief, had enlisted in the United States army and was going over to Germany with another sort of message for the kaiser. Young Cornplanter will find himself in good company and with a couple of million men ready to carry a pretty potent message over the top to Berlin."

MEAD FAMILY.

"In 1793 Darius Mead, with his sons David, John, Darius, and Joseph and two daughters emigrated from the Susquehannah River in what is now known as Lycoming county, to the tract of land now embracing Meadville, Pa., from whom it took its name. By reason of the hostile demonstrations of the Indians they removed to Franklin, where there was a fort and United States garrison. The following spring while the father was ploughing in a field in the vicinity, a party of Indians came suddenly upon him, and seized and bound him hand and foot. They took him twenty miles into the woods westerly from Franklin, where they stopped to encamp for the night. While the Indians were cutting wood for their camp fire Mead succeeded in extricating one of his hands. As one of the Indians came up with an armful of wood, and was bending over in the act of kindling the fire, Mead stepped up and drawing a large hunting knife from the Indian's belt, plunged it into his heart. The other two came up at that moment, and a desperate encounter at once commenced. It is supposed Mead succeeded in mortally wounding one of his antagonists, but he was finally overpowered and brutally murdered, and cut to pieces with a tomahawk. After the subsidence of the Indian troubles, David and John Mead returned to Meadville. In the spring 1799 Joseph and Darius removed to Warren county with their families, the former settling on the Big Brokenstraw, where Meads mill now stands, about a mile west of Youngsville. Darius located on the farm more recently owned and occupied by Captain James Bonner. In a year or two, however he joined his brother, and with him built a grist mill and two saw mills. This was the first grist mill in Warren county, there being at that time no mill within a radius of thirty miles. To the mill at Union and that belonging to the Holland Land Company at Titusville, many grists were borne from this county on the backs of their owners or of the patient oxen guided through the trackless forests only by Indian Trails. Meads Mill, it has been said, was the Mecca to which the population of a large district made their regular pilgrimages for supplies. It is said in dry times some grists came forty miles. The inhabitants of Columbus brought their grist to this mill in canoes. Darius Mead was an acting justice for several years, and was hospitable and sociable in his habits. Darius Mead died in 1813, and was buried in the cemetery on the original John Andrews farm. In 1813 Joseph removed to a farm on the Allegheny River, three miles below Warren including the island which still bears his name, and passed the remainder of his life there, dying March, 1864. His wife Hannah, died on the 25th of February, 1856 at the age of seventy-seven years and four months. They were parents of fourteen children, eleven of whom were living at the time of their mother's death. Many of the descendants of these hardy brothers are now living in Brokenstraw township, and are worthy descendants of their brave ancestors. After the death of Darius Mead the mills came into the hands of his nephew John Mead, who had labored in them since 1807. John Mead, Jr. was born near Sunbury, Pa., on the 28th of August, 1786. While he was yet a mere child his father John, Sr., removed to the valley of French Creek at Meadville as before stated. In the spring of 1807 John, Jr. came to the valley of Brokenstraw in company with his brother William to labor in the mills of his uncles, Joseph and Darius. He married Sallie Hoffman on the 12th of October, 1809, and built his house on a piece of land which his father-in-law gave him. In 1814 he and John Garner bought the Matthew Young tract of 400 acres for $2,500 dollars—the tract containing nearly all the land now within the limits of the borough of Youngsville. He rebuilt the Mead mills several times. He died on the 4th of November, 1870. Before his death his son Darius operated the mills for some time and finally sold the saw mill to Madison Alger and the grist mill to H. T. Marshall. In connection with this mill it is well to mention ingenious John Gregg, who came in the early part of this century and settled about two miles north of Youngsville. He ground the corn for the Mead mill and also preached the gospel according to the Methodist persuasion, made hickory splint cables for the lumbermen at three dollars apiece, and educated two sons for the ministry.

His brother Samuel Gregg, a bachelor, hired out to Judge Siggins, and cleared for him a place now occupied by his son, William F. Siggins."

YOUNGSVILLE BOROUGH.
Youngsville Borough is the largest town in Brokenstraw township, and is located about the center of the township, which was organized as "Number Four" March 8, 1821. The name Brokenstraw it seems is taken from the Indian word—Cushanadauga—bestowed upon this region from the fact that the flats along the creek once bore a grass which in the fall would break and bend over.

Youngsville is located on what was the site of a big Indian village known as Buckaloon, from here the Indians floated down the creek to the river in their canoes and committed many depredations on the settlements along the Allegheny river.

In 1781 they were overpowered by an expedition under Col. Broadhead and the village of Buckaloon destroyed, to fortify his position and enable him to keep the Indians away, Col. Broadhead built a Fort on the hillside between Irvine and Youngsville, the ruins of which may still be seen.

Robert Andrews was the pioneer settler in the Brokenstraw Valley, coming a short time before John W. McKinney; McKinney was an importation from Ireland, he was married in Lancaster to a Miss Arthur who returned to the Brokenstraw region with him and their home was a place of welcome for all wayfarers and a general gathering place for the settlers of the vicinity.

In 1796 Matthew Young, a Scotchman and a bachelor settled on the site of the town that was afterward named for him—Youngsville, he made his home with John McKinney, teaching the children in the evenings in return for his board, he was well educated and a favorite with the children, he also taught several terms of school in the neighborhood—was the second county treasurer 1821-23—built the first saw-mill in 1807—died in Deerfield Township in 1825. He was buried in Youngsville. He is described as being tall, slender and erect, and of very light complexion—he was simple in his character, earnest in his purposes and eccentric in his habits with a kind heart for all and an integrity that was never tarnished.

Matthew Young laid out many of the streets of Youngsville and seemed to have a prophetic vision of its relative importance in the county, in 1849 it had grown to be quite a village and was incorporated September 4, 1849, it was organized on the 15th of February, following by the election of Archibald Alexander as burgess; William Siggins and John Hull as councilmen; Philip Mead as treasurer; Henry P. Kinnear as clerk; John Siggins as tax collector. James Davis is quoted as authority for the statement that as early as 1800, Matthew Young carved the quaint word “YUNGVAL” on a large flat stone which stood for many years turned upright so that all who ran might read.

The first merchant was Henry Kinnear, Sr., and the next was Henry McCullough who started a store in 1830.

The first tavern in town was the unpretentious hostelry of John McKinney. Matthew Young built the next hotel. This was replaced by the Wade House. The Fairmount House first saw the light in 1851 being built by John Siggins.

The first resident physician in Brokenstraw township was Dr. John W. Irvine who settled at Irvineton, and the first physician in Youngsville was Dr. James A. Alexander who came in 1826 and was in active practice until 1853.

Youngsville Borough, is located on the site of the big Indian Village—Buckaloon, from which the Indians floated down the creek in their canoes and committed depredations all along the Valley until 1781 when they were met and overpowered by Col. Broadhead who destroyed the Village of Buckaloon and built for the protection of the settlers a Fort between the present villages of Youngsville and Irvine, the ruins of which may still be seen.

Matthew Young for whom the town of Youngsville was named, pitched his tent on the present site of Youngsville in 1796, he laid out the town and prophesied that it would one day be a large town.

He was a well educated man and taught school several years. In 1807 he built the first saw-mill in the Borough, and erected a log-cabin on the banks of the Brokenstraw.

In 1849 when the town was organized the following officers were elected: Archibald Alexander, Burgess; William Siggins and John Hall, Councilmen; Philip Mead, Treasurer; Henry P. Kinnear, Clerk; John Siggins, Tax-collector.

In 1800 Matthew Young carved the word "Yungval" on a large flat stone which stood in a conspicuous place, the site of the present brick hardware store, and served its purpose—that of giving the Village its present name.

Matthew Young died August 4, 1825.

John Siggins built the Fairmount House in 1851; Henry Kinnear, Sr., was the first Post-Master and presided over the Brokenstraw office, as it was then called.

Until the year 1819 the inhabitants of all the vicinity about Youngsville obtained their mail from the earlier office at Pittsfield, but in that year Henry Kinnear, Sr., was appointed postmaster and opened what was known as the Brokenstraw office at Youngsville."

The story of the Methodist church in Youngsville starts back in 1806 when a few families had located along the Brokenstraw creek and were engaged in lumbering and farming, they felt the need of churches and longed to have the privilege of religious services. Prayer meetings were held at various homes. In 1800 the first ministers regularly appointed by the Genesee Conference, preached occasionally in the Brokenstraw valley and children born of the few families were regularly baptized and communion services were held. Honest John Gregg was an itinerant preacher holding services according to the Methodist persuasion evenings and on the Sabbath. Other early settlers were William Arthur, William Carpenter, William Cochran, David Carr, Abraham and William Davis, Barnabas McKinney, James and Elijah Davis, Judge William Siggins, John Crawford, John Long and Joseph Gray. Among the earliest pastors of the church may be mentioned John McMahon, 1813; Burrows Westlake, 1814; Lemuel Lane, 1815; Daniel D. Davidson, 1816; Curtis Goddard, 1817; John Summerville, 1818; Philetus Parkus and David Smith, 1819-20; Parker Buel and Sylvester Carey, 1821; Parker Buel and John W. Hill, 1822; Nathaniel Reader and John Scott, 1823-24; Peter D. Horton and Joseph H. Barris, 1825; Joseph H. Barris and Dow Prosser, 1826; John Chandler and John Johnson, 1827; Hiram Kinsley and John Johnson, 1828; John P. Kent and L. L. Hamlin, 1829; James Gilmore and John J. Swazey, 1830; John C. Ayers, Samuel E. Babcock and Gideon Draper Kinnear, 1831.

In 1812 the first quarterly meeting was held with the Rev. William Connelly in charge. Presiding Elder Jacob Young and Bishop McKendree were present and assisted in the revival services. This was the first record of a Bishop of the Methodist faith being in Youngsville, and through the impetus gained by this revival the first class was organized."

(Warren Evening Mirror, Friday, August 22, 1913.)
The first church organized in Brokenstraw Township was the Methodist. Rev. William Connelly, the first preacher, held services near the site of the present town of Youngsville in 1809. At this time the salary of an itinerant preacher being Eighty Dollars a year and traveling expenses; an additional Eighty Dollars being allowed for the care of his wife and sixteen dollars for each of his children.

The first class was formed in 1812 by Rev. Jacob Young with the following eleven members—John Gregg and wife, Jacob Goodwin and wife, William Arthur and wife, Anna Mead and her son, Philip Mead, Betsy Ford, Polly Campbell and Polly Arther. From the beginning until 1818 the meetings were held in private houses or school houses. In 1817 the first church building in Youngsville was erected and replaced in 1827 by a better building which served as a meeting place until 1882 when the present commodious structure was built on a lot situated in another part of the town near the High School building.

The first settlement on the West side of Tidioute Creek was made by William Kinnear who moved from the mouth of Oil Creek and built a saw mill and later with the aid of his sons, he built a grist mill. The Kinnear farm was sold to an oil company in 1864. Later the town of Tidioute as it appears to-day, occupied the site. John Elder's residence was near the mouth of Gordon Run. After him Samuel Parshall, then James Magill lived there; Samuel Gran-din next occupied and owned the Elder farm. He built a saw mill in 1840 and opened a general merchandise store to accommodate his lumber camp and the nearby neighbors. His business prospered. The river banks were converted into wharves and landing places for the boats which carried the lumber to distant markets. Most of the heavy round and square timber was rafted down to the river markets. Tidioute landing was a busy place. The surrounding hills rich in natural resources furnished commodities far exceeding the needs of the settlers. Those frugal and industrious pioneers through their lumber and oil activities soon became well known in commercial and financial circles. The imprint of their useful lives will long be felt, not only in the Valley of the Allegheny where they labored long and well but in many places where to-day are flourishing philanthropies fostered by their generosity and business activities of a far reaching and beneficial character.

From the Warren Chronicle, April, 1918, we clip the following interesting items:

The Tidioute Weekly News which has run continuously for the past 44 years has been discontinued indefinitely. The first issue was printed on October 31, 1874.

For our readers who would like to know a little past record of Tidioute:—

On June 2, 1826, Tidioute borough was organized and the first borough election was held on June 27, of the same year.

The first well struck Oct. 4, 1866 on Triumph Hill was 250 bbls.

Jan. 1, 1870, Grandin Bros. Bank was opened and on Oct. 24, 1871 the People's Savings Bank which was followed the next day, Oct. 25, 1871, by the opening of the Tidioute Savings Bank. The latter being the only one doing business at the present time. The first bank in Tidioute was run under the title of Wadsworth, Baum & Co., afterwards was changed to Grandin & Baum and then to Grandin Brothers.

The winter of '76 was a remarkably open winter. New Years day the thermometer registered 66 in the shade and Feb. 21, 44 degrees, with no ice stored and only a few days of sleighing. Ploughing was done the first 25 days in January.

Nathan Park Morrison was born in Deerfield township, in what is called Morrison Hill, Jan. 17, 1835. He died April 3rd, 1918. Mr. Morrison's father was one of the first settlers in these parts, coming here before there was a wagon road and taking his goods on horse-back up an old Indian trail to this farm, where he settled. On this farm Nathan was born and lived all his life. He was one of a family of nine, five brothers and four sisters, of whom all have passed away before him with the exception of one sister, Mrs. M. M. Osborne, of Janesville, Wisconsin.

Mr. Morrison was united in marriage to Miss Mary Ellen Gillespie, who died about 30 years ago. A number of years later he married again. Besides his wife, Sarah A., Mr. Morrison leaves two sons, G. Clyde Morrison, of Tidioute, and Claude P., who resides on the home farm.

TIDIOUTE BOROUGH.

Tidioute Borough was incorporated June 7, 1826; Peter Smith who lived there wrote the following interesting facts in 1847 concerning the settlement along the Allegheny river from Brokenstraw Creek to the county line, he writes:

I was born in Crawford County, about four miles west of Titusville, in what is now called Hydetown, in the year 1802, July 25. My father, with myself and others of his family moved into Warren County, about four miles north east of Tidioute, (then Brokenstraw Township) on the north side of the Allegheny river in the spring of 1807, and I remained at or near the same place till the fall of 1865, when I moved into Tidioute, where I now reside.

When my father moved into the above mentioned place, it had first been occupied by a Thomas Coulter, and then came into the possession of a John Crawford, and afterwards to my father, Charles Smith. The next neighbor north was William Adams, who settled at a place known as Connely Run; and next after Adams, my brother James, His son, Madison M. J. Smith now resides on the place, and at the mouth of what is now called Conklin Run, a man by the name of Rider then lived; next a man by the name of Conklin; then by James McGee, and it is now in the possession of an oil company.

What is now known as Thompson Station was in 1807 occupied by Samuel Welch; next by John Elder; next by Robt. Thompson, and in 1864 passed into the possession of an oil company whose name I have forgotten. The next place north at what is now known as Dunn's Eddy, was occupied by a widow McIntyre in 1807. The place next came into the possession of Jeremiah Dunn, and some of the members of the Dunn family now reside there.

The next place now owned by W. A. Irvine, was, at that time in the possession of a John Adams, then it passed into the hands of Jacob Goodwin; then to Adam Schutts, a Philadelphia farmer sent out here by Callender Irvine. At what is now known as McGee Run, James Elder resided; then after him a George Berry; next Samuel McGee, J. A. McGee and J. P. McGee. It is now owned by John Fuellhart. The next place west toward Tidioute, was owned and occupied by George Heterborn; next by Thomas McGee, and in 1865 passed into the hands of an oil company. And at the present time James Middleton resides there, and is the owner of one or two acres thereof with a house and barn on it.

On the next place west, there lived a Hildebrand; then a Christopher Young; then a John Thompson. The heirs of Thompson next sold it to James Magill, and he to an oil company, whose name has passed from my recollection, but situate thereon at present is my friend, Barney A. Snow.

The next place west, (now Tidioute borough) was occupied by Isaac Rhinehart; next by John Gilson; next by John McGee; next by Anthony Courson; now by Clark Benner, John T. Courson, and other heirs of Anthony Courson, besides hosts of others.

The next place, which is now known as Maguire Run, was owned and occupied by two brothers, by the name of Levi and John Hicks. Levi occupied the east side of the run and in 1810 was sold and occupied by Samuel Maguire. In 1862 Maguire sold to Josiah Hall and C. B. Curtis of Warren, and in 1864 the place was sold to the Maguire Run Oil Co. Maguire lived on his old place until removed by death.
in 1865, and the farm is at present divided into building lots.

Among the early settlers on the Upper Allegheny was Jesse Dale and his wife Mary Lamb Dale. They owned a homestead a short distance above Tionesta. They were the parents of ten children. Their daughter Nancy was born Oct. 25, 1813. She married James Guest Dawson, a son of Thomas and Hannah Connelly Dawson. Another daughter, Sarah A. was born in the old Homestead May 17, 1817. She is said to have been the first regularly hired school teacher in Tionesta. She also taught in Tidioute and at Allender Run. She was a life long consistent member of the Methodist Church. She went with other members of her family to the little log church on Jameson Flatts. She made her home at Jacob S. Hood's where she died August 1, 1901. Of her immediate family, a brother, Marion W., of Brown's Valley, Minnesota, a sister Mrs. Margery Walters, of Winona, Minn., and Mrs. Emily Gorman of Endeavor, Penna., survived her.

J. A. Caldwell in his history of Venango Co., has this to say of William Dawson, who belonged to one of the pioneer families of the Allegheny Valley:

"The organization of the M. E. Church at Pleasantville dates back to 1821. Old class books fix the date. Zachariah Paddock of the French Creek Circuit, was the preacher, and Glenzen Fillmore, of the Erie District, the presiding Elder. The place of worship was a school house west of Pleasantville, popularly known as the 'Methodist School House,' in distinction from another east of the town where the Baptists worshipped. A church was built in 1846, mainly through the efforts of David Henderson and William Dawson. Among the men concerned with the early history of the Church at Pleasantville, William Dawson stands preeminent. He died in the prime of manhood, but not before he had contributed largely of his time and money to the building of this church. He was a man of energy, enterprise, ability and, above all, public spirited."
During the year 1859 Col. D. L. Drake made the important discovery in Oil Creek that there were to be found in seemingly large quantities extensive deposits of petroleum beneath the earth’s surface. In 1860 the people of Tidioute and vicinity began drilling for oil. So energetically was the business carried on that at the end of six months, there were over sixty oil wells in operation. Other towns in the county were equally fortunate in obtaining producing wells,—many of them are still yielding a paying output. In the same year that oil was discovered in the county, a railroad was completed from Erie to Warren and was hailed as an event of the utmost importance.

John H. Galey who died in Joplin, Missouri, April 9, 1918, aged 78 years, is said to have drilled the first oil well in the Pennsylvania fields. He owned and operated the far famed “Beaumont Gusher” called the greatest oil well ever known. His activities in the oil fields covered a period of half a century.

Judge Shippen had in his possession a draft of old Fort Venango made by his uncle about 1758. The ruins of this fort are still to be seen; the picture of the ancient Blockhouse appears in this volume,—it stood in the center of the fort which was about 100 feet square, and was surrounded by a deep ditch connected with the nearby stream by a subterranean passage—the benefits of such an arrangement are apparent.

John S. McCalmont and James L. Connelly also Robert Lamberton, were Judges of Venango County. Samuel P. McCalmont, who was born in 1823, was a prominent member of the Bar and an ardent advocate of Prohibition, was also a member of the Legislature. He was a cousin of General Alfred McCalmont.

Sometime in 1804, Rev. Andrew Hemphill with William Connelly as guide, travelled from Titusville to Franklin along the old Trail holding religious meetings and organizing classes at Pithole, Pioneer, Franklin and other river settlements; the Dawsons, Kinnears, Siggins, Greggs, and others were among the attendants at these meetings. Rev. Timothy Alden came to Western Pennsylvania in 1815 and became the first President of Meadville College. He was also missionary to the Indians. Alden and Levi Dodd and John Martin, William Parker, William Raymond, Nancy Kinnear, who married William Raymond, and Robert McCalmont were all instrumental in organizing and conducting a Union Sunday School. The first one started in Venango County was about 1824. The first newspaper was edited and published by Alexander McCalmont and John Evans.
SIGGINS GENEALOGY.

The Norman origin of the Siggins family has been established. The first of the name of whom we have record, Chief Seguin, was with William the Conqueror at Battle Hastings in 1066. See Duchess of Cleveland's Battle Abbey Roll Vol. 3, P. 134.

This patriotic Norman chief left loyal descendants to carry on the name down to James Siggins, who was born about 1300; his sons were Richard and Phillip. Phillip of Wexford Co. was born in 1350. Richard Siggins, Mayor of Cork, was given license in October 1386 to buy oats, wheat and barley in Wexford for transportation to Cork to relieve that famine stricken city.

In December of the same year he went to England bearing general letters of attorney. In 1432, September 6, we find listed Maurice Siggins, Smythe; Walter Siggins, Convysyn; John Siggins, Convysyn and Richard Siggins. Convysyn. Probably these men were brothers and descendants of Richard Siggins, Mayor of Cork or of one of his brothers. The first of the family from whom we have the direct descent was

A 1. THOMAS SIGGINS¹, of Walshgrange, county Wexford, gent. by Chancery Decree dated 8 May, 7 Edward VI., recovered against Robert Roche of Tamon, gent. the reversion of Walshgrange, Corbally, Knockbrake, Ballyronan alias Mageston, the church of Culstonse, and Tamon. Children:

A 2. i. THOMAS Siggins², Died 20 September 1596, leaving a son: Jasper Siggins³, then of full age, who was of Ferns and Cloghteskin, county Wexford, in 1621.
Other Families

A 3.* ii. MATTHEW Siggins, held Ecclestown, Sigginstown, Corbally, alias Sigginshaggard, alias Walshgrange and Knockbrake, alias Ballyronan, he married:

A 5. i. PHILIP Siggins, eldest son and heir, aged 12 at the time of his father's death, was a ward of the king and died between 1634 and 1641, without issue.

A 6. ii. ELIZABETH Siggins.

A 7.* iii. EDWARD Siggins, of Balla, inherited the above named lands at the death of his brother Philip.

He was attainted of high treason for participation in the rebellion of 1641, and was transplanted to county Mayo, 1654, where he had a grant (in lieu of his Wexford estates, which were confiscated) of the lands of Shanvallymore, Rathredmond and Lissawollhan in the parish of Balla. He filed a bill in Chancery, June 11, 1690, for the recovery of the Wexford estates, but apparently did not succeed in recovering them.

The Sigginses of Wexford, had been seated in that county from the time of the conquest according to his bill of complaint, and were of Norman blood, and as such refrained from the intermarriage with the "mere Irish" their origin and unmixed blood thus agrees with the traditional origin and type of the later Sigginses of county Sligo, who not only affirm the tradition of Norman descent, but assert their derivation from Edward Siggins of Balla, through one of his sons who settled in Sligo,—the neighboring Sigginses of county Roscommon being descended, according to them from another son who settled in that county, these Siggins families settled in Sligo and Roscommon counties about 1700.

Edward Siggins left no will, and the date of his death and the name of his wife is unknown, but there is every reason to believe that he had several sons, among them:

A 8.* i. EDWARD Siggins, a merchant of Dublin, married, perhaps as his second wife. January 31, 1739;
Elizabeth Calbeck, to whom administration of his estate was granted January 31, 1742-3, "for use of herself and an only son John Siggins, a minor. She died leaving a will dated January 18, proved July 5, 1787.

Mrs. J. B. White,
Bemus Point, N. Y., U. S. A.

Dear Mrs. White:

I hope you will pardon me for not answering your letter sooner.

I would be happy to assist you in any way in your laudable work, but alas, in olden times people kept no records of their ancestors.

Well, “Old Jack Siggins” who lived in the latter part of the 17th century, had a family of five sons and two daughters:

John Robert, William, Thomas and George, this John is the person you are connected with.

George remained in the homestead, Thomas was a Chief Boatsman in the Royal Navy, I cannot say anything about William.

The daughters were Margaret and Ann, Ann (is No. 25), was my mother, Margaret was married to a Mr. Young, of Ballesdare in the county Sligo, they had a son the Revd. Mr. Young, who emigrated to Canada, who paid a visit to Ireland about the year 1884.

Yes, I know the Hoods, they have lived at Mount Edward, which is near the Siggins place, for many years, there was always a close friendship between them and the Siggins.

I cannot say where the Siggins came from, but I know there are no people in Ireland of the name only this family.

George Siggins, the present occupant of the old homestead, could give you more information than I can, his address is George Siggins, Newtown, Ballinfull, county Sligo, and the Hoods is Mount Edward Grange, county Sligo. Yours truly, George Adams.”

“I am a son of George Siggins and of the fourth generation in the old homestead.
Should you ever visit Ireland you would be welcome to see the old Home.
An Irish “Cead Mile Failte*,” would await you.”

CEAD MILE FAILTE* ELIM!
Song from the Invasion.
“Cead Mile Failte! child of the Ithian!
Cead Mile Failte, Elim!

Aisneach, thy temple in ruins is lying,
In Druim na Druid the dark blast is sighing,
Lonely we shelter in grief and in danger,
Yet have we welcome and cheer for the stranger.
Cead Mile Failte! child of the Ithian!
Cead Mile Failte, Elim!

Woe for the weapons that guarded our slumbers,
Temreach, they said, was too small for our numbers;
Little is left for our sons to inherit,
Yet what we have, thou art welcome to share it.
Cead Mile Failte! child of the Ithian!
Cead Mile Failte, Elim!”

Gerald Griffin.

Dear Cousin Siggins:

I am more disappointed than my dear relatives can be at my inability to fulfill my engagement at the reunion on the 24th, 1896. Having visited the Erin cradle of the Siggins clan, and having learned of the Highland home of our ancestors, I was more than anxious this year to participate in the festivities, in the hope of acquiring more definite information concerning our descent. I hope the following description of “Drumcliff” will convey some idea of the romantic spot left by Grandpa John Siggins and his family of stalwart sons and daughters, when they emigrated to the virgin wilderness of America.

Drumcliff, a parish of the county of Sligo, is a most romantic spot. Looking toward the west you behold the dashing waves of the broad Atlantic, on whose bosom floats the commerce of nations and whose waters wash the eastern coast of this western continent, whose billows our ancestors braved in search of freedom and independence. Behind the observer's back are three mountains similar in contour, shape and direction, so that in coming out north from Sligo town, these three mountains named “Ben Bulbin” look like one, and to the delight of the traveller or tourist open out revealing most verdant glens, containing lovely lakes and dotted with houses of nearly the same build, plan and white color covered with a straw covering, but containing inmates such as the Norman general declared should be called “angels,” hospitable in the extreme, and the abode of a moral pious race principally the followers of John Wesley. Looking towards the left or South is seen Sligo Bay, a sea-port of considerable importance as a shipping port for the farmers’ produce and cattle to the English market. The streams are small but numerous and full of trout. On the crest of a hill are seen one of the old stone crosses with its sculpture and symbols, and a well preserved round tower, whose history is almost pre-Adamic, and whose age is only a conjecture. Here in this romantic locality dotted with stone fenced and hedge-fenced farms of moderate size surrounding the large domain and castle of Lord Gore, a most beautiful nook, whose roads are like the asphalt roads of America in smoothness without requiring the care necessary to bestow on the asphalt. Its edges lined with oleanders, and other flowering shrubs, the boxwood, palm, hazel, cedar and pine, ash, oak and beach, furrowed and peopled with rabbits, pheasants, and all kinds of wild game. Across the Sligo Bay may be seen a large sugar loaf mound three hundred feet high having in the center of its broad summit a large aggregation of stones said to have been accumulated by the heathen practice of throwing a stone on the grave of a chief. Still farther south may be seen the Ox (S) mountains across the channel that opens into Ballasadan Bay, at whose head I lived my boyish days and in whose waters I learned to crest its waves. Still southeast is another range of mountains, all of these around are green to nearly their summits which are of bare rock, grey and solemn in the distance. No wonder we love the green fields, the nutting nooks in the cool woods, and the rollicking companionship of the sons of Erin. This description of the resting place of the Siggins clan in Ireland is too lengthy and cannot be presented in a pen picture but must be seen to be appreciated.

I will now endeavor to give as far as I could learn of our common ancestry and the Irish branch of the family. I may premise that there are no records of the older branches of the family to be found in any archives of the nation, and not till some time in 1800 was any systematic effort made to make such a genealogical record. These have now to be reported yearly to the record office held in the Four Courts of Dublin.

Samuel Siggins, Charles and John, a nephew, were brothers and nephews of the Mr. John Siggins who married Miss Sarah Hood, and with his family emigrated to America. John (the nephew) died without issue. Charles had four sons, Robert, John, George and Charles. Robert never married, John had one daughter, who became the wife of William Siggins grandson of Samuel; George married a Miss Shaw and emigrated to America leaving no family. Charles went to America with his brother George and wife and they settled in Toronto, Can. I have not been able to trace them yet. Charles had four daughters, Jane, Margaret, Ann and Mary. Mary married a Robinson, and had a fine family of sons, when they left Ireland. Ann married a Mr. Moor, and they emigrated also to America. Jane and Margaret married in Ireland.

John, the eldest brother of Samuel, went to America, enlisted as a sergeant, wrote a few letters home, then correspondence ceased. He was spoken of as the finest specimen of a man one could wish to look at.

Samuel had five sons George, John, Tom, William and Robert, and two daughters, Margaret and Ann. Margaret married William Young, father of the writer. Tom entered the navy, became a coast guard and lived to be 96 years old. He had four sons, William, George, John and James and four daughters, all of whom emigrated to Australia and settled in Milburn. William married and settled in Quebec. His sons three in number, are in Queen's Printing Office and two daughters who married and returned to England. Robert, son of Samuel, was a fine scholar, came to Quebec and traded between Quebec and Savannah. He died of yellow fever. George, eldest son of Samuel, had five sons, William, John, Thomas, Middleton and George. George and John live on the homestead and are married. William also lives a stone's throw off and has four sons, Thomas, George, Robert and William John. George and Tom are in Belfast. Robert is in Boston, 84 W. Newton St. William John is at home going to school. Four daughters, Henrietta in London, Mary Emma in Belfast, Elizabeth Jane at home in Newton Co. Sligo, and Anna Matilda married to Mr. McKim of Dublin. Tom spent seven years in Australia returned, then married a Miss Barber, and left two sons, William George and Thomas Fred, very excellent Methodist young men; class leaders. Middleton is in Australia and intends returning home, though having been away eleven years.

(This letter was written to me by Mr. Young of Trenton, Can., June 22d, 1896, and as this sheet is not signed it would seem that there must have been part of the letter missing. This letter was written shortly after visiting Ireland, where he tried to look up the Siggins ancestors.

Hood, early in 1782, made the first attack on Count de Grasse's fleet, and he commanded the van division under Sir George Rodney, on the 12th of August, 1782, when the Count de Grasse and his fleet were so memorably defeated. In 1793, Hood, commanding the Mediterranean fleet, signalized himself by his victorious attack on Toulon, and his capture of the island of Corsica.

His capture of two French vessels of war in action in Hyeres Bay, in 1757, and his retaking of the "Warwick" in 1761, won distinction; and his conduct as rear-admiral under Lord Howe, at the relief of Gibraltar, 1782, gained for him the Order of the Bath. Hood, as second in command (his flag was hoisted on board the "Royal George," which encountered the hottest of the fire), contributed no little to the ever-memorable victory of 1st June, 1794; he was created Baron Bridport of Cricket St. Thomas, in Ireland, 14th of November following. On 23d June, 1795, his lordship, with an inferior force (for half his ships had been separated from him), daringly attacked the French fleet of twelve ships of the line and ten frigates, close to port l'Orient, and defeated them, with, on his side, little loss and signal and splendid success; he was in consequence elevated to the peerage of Great Britain, 13th June, 1796, as Baron Bridport, of Cricket St. Thomas, Somerset.

After scattering a French fleet which had landed some troops in Wales in 1796, and after aiding in appeasing the mutiny in the Nore, in 1797, Lord Bridport succeeded Earl Howe as vice-admiral of Great Britain, and on 16th June, 1800, he was further advanced to the dignity of Viscount Bridport, being then also a general of marines. (A125). Alexander Hood⁸, Captain Royal Navy, who accompanied Capt. Cook in one of his voyages round the world, and after a long series of services, was slain on board his ship, the "Mars," in the successful action with "L' Hercule," April 21, 1796; b. Knt. of St. Ferdinand and of Merit, K. G. C. of the Sword, returned to Parliament for the city of Westminster, and created a Baronet April 13, 1809, with remainder in default of male issue, to his nephew, Alexander Hood, who succeeded him; b. Hon. Frederica Elizabeth Mackenzie, who d. November 28, 1862; eldest dau. of Francis, Lord Seaforth.

HOOD.

It is surely one of the most romantic passages of our naval history, that from the family of a Dorsetshire yeoman of the seventeenth century should spring a brilliant group of naval commanders, two of whom—brothers—became peers of the United Kingdom, and a third—a cousin—a baronet. In this present generation, a third peerage has been conferred on the family in the person of Lord Hood of Avalon.

In the reign of Charles II, Alexander Hood of Mosterton married Elizabeth Beach, daughter of a neighboring clergyman, and had three sons—Alexander, Arthur and Samuel. Of these Alexander married in the adjoining parish of Netherbury, where he inherited the lease of the farm held by his father in law, and had a large family of sons and daughters; amongst them Samuel (two others of this name died in infancy) bap. 14 Aug., 1715. Arthur, the second son, b. 1678; matriculated in Trinity College, Oxford, in 1694; graduated 1697, and in 1709 was appointed to the rectory of Dowlish Wake in Somersetshire. The third son, Samuel, b. 1695; matriculated at Lincoln College, Oxford, 1711; graduated B. A. in 1714, and M. A. in 1717; he was ordained; was for some time master of the grammar school in Beamster, where he married Mary, daughter of Richard Hoskins. In 1723 he was appointed to the vicarage of Butleigh in Somersetshire, where in 1724 his eldest son, Samuel, was born and three years later a second son, Alexander. These were the two brothers afterwards known to fame as VISCOUNT HOOD and VISCOUNT BRIDPORT.

HOSKYNs.

Lineage.—This family has been settled in Herefordshire for more than 400 years. John Hoskyns, Serjeant-at-law from 1623, M. P., for Hereford 1604-29, educated at Westminster and Winchester (being related to the family of William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester and founder of the college), M. A., Fellow of New Coll. Oxon., b. 1566 (3d son of John Hoskyns, M. P., for Hereford and Margery, his wife, dau. of Thomas Jones, of Llanwarne); m. 1 Aug., 1601, Benedicta, dau. of Robert Moyle, of Buckwell Kent, by whom he had one son and a daughter. Mr. Serjeant Hoskyns was at one time committed to the Tower for alluding, in his place in Parliament, to mercenary or Scottish favourites. He was the intimate companion of Sir Walter Raleigh and Ben Johnson, whose works he reviewed. He was a man of sarcastic wit, considerable talents, and much humor. At an entertainment which he gave to James the I., at Morehampton Park he amused his majesty with a morris-dance by ten persons whose united ages are said to have exceeded a thousand years—"a nest of nestors," as they were termed. His brother (?) Rev. John Hoskyns, D. C. L., Fellow of New Coll, Oxon., Rector of Ledbury 1612-
31, who d. 30 Aug. 1631, was a distinguished preacher and chaplain to James I. The learned serjeant died 27 Aug., 1638, and was s. in his estate by his only son, SIR BENNET HOSKYN. (Burke’s Peerage.)

THE METHODIST CHURCH.

Methodism was first introduced into Philadelphia in the year 1769, by the late Rev. Dr. Joseph Pilmore of St. Paul's Church, he having then as a young man arrived here on a mission from Rev. John Wesley. Among the novelties of his day, he was occasionally aided in preaching by Capt. Webb, the British barrack-master at Albany, who being a Boanerges in declamation, and a one-eyed officer in military costume, caused attraction enough to bring many to hear from mere curiosity, who soon became proselytes to Methodism. The first church owned by the Methodists was St. George's, in Fourth near New street. It was an unfinished building which they bought from the Germans. It was then customary with the female worshipers to carry with them small wooden stoves for the feet. The front door was in the center; and about 20 feet from the east end. Inside there stood a square thing not unlike a watch box, with the top sawed off, which in that day served as their "pulpit of wood," from whence the Rev. Mr. Willis used to read prayers to the sermon, from Mr. Wesley's Liturgy and JOHN HOOD raised the hymn standing on the floor. In the Presbyterian and Baptist and Methodist churches, the singing was lead by one good singer standing below the pulpit, and bearing the appellation of "the setter of tunes" such were "Josey Eastburn" and "Johnny HOOD," names long endeared to many. The "sweet singer" of that church, familiarly called Johnny HOOD, was himself a singer wholly for nature's sake, one who had never learned one note of gamut-music, and yet he never jarred or failed. His sweet smiling face too, whilst he sang was only equalled by the charm of his clear melliflous voice."

Dear Mrs. White.

As our family are now residing for such a long period in this Country it is only natural to expect that they have long since ceased to correspond with the family in Scotland. It is highly probable that the late Admiral Hood was descended from the same ancestor as ourselves. The Hood family here can justly claim to have been one of the leading families in this Country, not one of whom has ever been implicated in any wrongdoing.

Yours truly

Alexander Hood.

OTHER FAMILIES

SIFFINS.

"The name "Siggins" has been variously written. In the "British Family Names Their Origin and Meaning" by Rev. Henry Barber, M. D., F. S. A. we find "Segoin-Anglo Saxon-Segen, Segwin, Sigen. Sigewine; Flemish-Seghin; p. n (Victorious friend). Seguin, Hugenot. n. London 1688."

SIFFINS MARRIAGE RECORD.

"In O'Hart's Irish Pedigrees, Vol. 2. p. 96 we find the name of Siggins mentioned as among the principal families in Ireland at the close of the 17th Century."

This genealogy of the Siggins Family would be incomplete without mention of the Rev. David Kinnear (whose number in the genealogy of the "Kinnear's and their Kin" is —135.)

He is justly styled "Historian of the Kinnear Family". He surely deserves the same appelation in the Siggins Family, as we are indebted to him for many of our early records.

The Rev. David Kinnear, was born June 1, 1802, in Allegheny Township, Venango County, Pennsylvania, married March 10, 1840, at the Indian Manual Training School, Indian Territory, Elizabeth Lee, who was born in the state of New York.

He was a son of Rev. Andrew and Dinah (Young) Kinnear, his mother was a daughter of Rev. William and Jane (Simpson) Young.

He was a grandson of Andrew and Mary (Delmar) Kinnear and great-grandson of James Kinnear, of Leitrim County, Ireland.
Rev. David Kinnear was a most devout and faithful member of the Wesleyan Methodist Church and in his manuscript there are many quaint expressions showing his devotion to that faith.

It is a matter of deep regret that we have no likeness of him and that he left no children to inherit his noble characteristics, but I am sure we all revere his memory and appreciate the interest he has taken in the posterity of our emigrant ancestors, the records he so faithfully preserved constitute the foundation of "The Kinnear's and their Kin" and the early Pennsylvania Siggins family and their descendants mentioned in the following pages.

Rev. David Kinnear traced the ancestry of the immigrant John Siggins, who came to Pennsylvania in 1793 no farther back than his father and mother William and Mary (Taylor) Siggins, and the following records will commence with:

William Siggins who is descended from Thomas Siggins of Walsingrange as follows:

Thomas Siggins of Walsingrange, county Wexford his son
  Matthew Siggins, m. Margaret Codd their son
  Richard Siggins, m. Margaret Sinot their son
  Edward Siggins, of Balla, m. ———— their son
  William Siggins, m. Mary Taylor

He married in county Sligo, Ireland, about 1776:

Sarah Hood, (See Hood ancestry), in 1793, they, with their children emigrated to America, settling first near Philadelphia, from there to Centre County, after the death of John Siggins his widow with her family removed to Youngsville, Warren County, Pennsylvania, where the widow died September 30, 1835, aged 85 years. "Soon after their marriage, both John and Sarah Siggins experienced religion through the instrumentality of the Methodist preaching and united with that church."

Of Sarah Siggins the Rev. William Todd says:

"Sister Siggins came to Youngsville in 1816 united with the Methodist church of that place, and for more than fifty years she was a methodist and walked consistently—in every situation she was sustained, she was loved, her end was peace".

COPY OF A LETTER ADDRESSED TO MR. GEORGE SIGGINS, HICKORY TOWN, VENANGO CO.

In Care of Mr. Alexander Siggins. Written from Lockhaven, Clinton Co. July 21, 1847, by Frances Baird.

"Dear Brother and Sister:

I wish to let you know that I am still on the land of the living but know not whether you are or not, it is so long since I have heard from you.

My health is tolerable for my age, and am still able to be around and attend the house of God where my delight still is. I have accomplished my three score years and ten and am now waiting the coming of my Lord and Master to receive me to himself for I feel assured that where he is, there I shall be also, and there also I hope to meet with my dear brother and sisters from whom I have so long been separated. The Lord has been very good to me and I have had very kind children."
I have always lived on the old place till last spring. I lived with Benjamin three years after he was married and intended to stay there while I lived. But I have now left there and Mary and I live together in Lockhaven.

I want you to let Sally see this letter and tell her to write to me and let me know how things are and how they are coming on, and I will then write to her. We are looking for them with Alex, and Mary to pay us a visit this summer. I would be glad to see any or all of you. A great many years have passed away since you wrote to me. I hope you will answer this. My children are all in usual health. They all live within a few miles of me except William. He has been traveling in Maryland the three last years. He was married last spring. We expect them to visit us this summer. He was home last fall. I remain as ever your affectionate sister,

Signed FRANCES BAIRD.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM FRANCES BAIRD.

My grandfather, William Siggins, lived in the county of Sligo, seven miles from Sligo, Ireland, where his forefathers had lived. He was a farmer, a churchman, as pious as any in his day—worshipped at Drumcliff—would pray aloud in secret—was very much esteemed by the nobility. His wife's name was Mary; her maiden name, Taylor.

They had twelve children. They all died in infancy, but two—my father and one of his sisters.

He adhered to the Church, but when the Methodists came round he took them in. One I recollect, old Mr. Graham. He loved them and frequently went to hear Mr. Wesley.

After the death of his parents and sister, father and mother came to America with six children. We landed in Philadelphia the first year the yellow fever raged—left soon and went to Carlisle—attached themselves to the M. E.
Church, stayed a year and then went to Penn's Valley, Center Co. There I was married and left home. Father died about eighteen hundred, very happy, praising the Lord, and talking while he had breath. A rich man in the place said he would give all he had to die like him.

My mother's maiden name was Sarah Hood. She had three brothers—one lived in England. She was a woman of strong mind and good judgment. Lived and died a christian at the age of 85.

I was born in 1777 in the county of Sligo,—was 15 when I came to America. The Lord put it into the heart of my father to come to this country. There were but few who came from those parts of Ireland. Many discouraged him. I loved him dearly—he had such a Christian spirit. All who knew him loved him.

I am firm of the opinion that the Lord will have a people among the Bairds while they live, according to the promise of God to your father—"I will bless thy numerous race and they shall be a seed for me," when as yet he had no children.

They took the first Methodist preachers in that ever visited this part of the country, notwithstanding their wicked neighbors said they were impostors, and would eat them out of house and home. Yet they treated them kindly and the Lord has blessed them and their posterity for it.

(Signed) FRANCES BAIRD.

GEORGE SIGGINS.

George Siggins, eldest son of John Siggins, was born in the parish of Drumcliff, County Sligo, Ireland, in the year 1778. When fifteen years of age, his father emigrated to America. Having been a well to do land holder, he possessed means enough to engage in business, but having lost money by going security for a friend, he finally leased a farm in Centre county, Pennsylvania, at a place called Spring Creek. Here in 1800 George was married by the Rev. David Stephens, to Jean, eldest daughter of the Rev. William and Jean Young of the same place. She was a beautiful child, being but sixteen years of age, was converted at the age of fourteen years, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. We have very interesting notes, dates, and incidents relating to her family. Her father was a man of unusual talent and spirituality. He was converted when twenty years of age under the labors of Rev. Charles Graham, one of the first Methodist preachers sent by Mr. Wesley to the north of Ireland. Mr. Graham is spoken of by Frances Baird who was a sister of George Siggins, as the first one she, as a young girl, remembered as a Wesleyan preacher. William Young was born in County Sligo, Ireland, May 1, 1755. He was joined in holy wedlock to Miss Jane Simpson in 1780. She was born in County Sligo in August, 1752. Her father was John Simpson. He and all his family were members of the established Church. One of his brothers came to this country about the year 1748 and settled in Bucks county about twenty miles from Philadelphia. The father of William and John Simpson was the great-great-grand father alike of Gen. Ulyssus Simpson Grant, of Jefferson Davis, and of my father—George Simpson Siggins. In 1801, after his father's death, George Siggins moved to Pithole, Venango county, Pa., where he bought a tract of land from the Holland Land Co. Here after many discouragements, and having learned the advantage of living near the river, he chose a farm in Warren Co., Pa., below Tidioute. He retained possession long enough to build a home, improve the land, plant an orchard, and leaving the stamp of the genuine pioneer, he gives the evidence of yet superior judgment, by making a final move to what is now known as West Hickory, Forest county, Pa. He bought several hundred acres of land facing the Allegheny, and extending back to Hickory Creek. Upon the high bank of the Allegheny and gently sloping fields, which he and his sturdy sons had cleared, George Siggins built another home. The first was of hewn logs, and which I remember having seen. Here the brave wife of the pioneer must have found hope springing up in her heart. The unwritten annals of her life might well form the theme of romance, the pathos of which would touch every heart to the depths. Her children of whom there were now eight, were all living. Her eldest son was eighteen years of age, and with a daughter perhaps twelve, she, with boys of all ages around her might well hope to one day see her toil repaid by a home of comfort and plenty. Here her husband planted orchards again, the land was fertile, and the location full of beauty. The river with its crystal flow, the islands, and the hills, where the dark shadow of the evergreen trees cast a veil of tenderness over the June verdure of the other trees, that growing among the pines and hemlocks must have charmed the woman whose poetic nature has been a rich heritage to her children, and her children's children. Grandfather was a religious man. He was a true disciple of the Reformer and philanthropist, John Wesley. One of his first radical stands was for total abstinence in regard to whiskey, which was so commonly indulged in at that day. Neither would he provide it for men who worked for him, nor for the "loggings", or "raisings", where it was at all times so freely provided elsewhere. The same year that he came to Hickorytown, on June 22, 1818, Jane, second daughter and eighth child was born. Though in reality, in good circumstances yet a pioneer life, of necessity in these early days, must have entailed many hardships, and deprivations of the comforts of life. Once when I was arranging the pillows for her daughter, my aunt Mary who was an invalid, said in thanking me, "I am very comfortable. I often think of my dear mother. When sister Jane was born she lay with her sad-die for a pillow. She was so proud spirited; she spun flax and wool, she sewed, knit, wove and cooked that her children might be well provided for. She entertained company, sang hymns, prayed for her children, and taught them that the fear of the Lord was the beginning of wisdom.” One of the sweet memories of our family is the legacy of love and respect with which her children kept green the hallowed records of her patient life. In 1821, another daughter, Rebecca, was born, and worn with the many years of toil this tired mother slipped away from earth into eternal rest. Small wonder it was that the proud spirit and weary body so soon parted company. Her last resting place is in the green and quiet family burying ground at West Hickory. Rev. David Kinnear, her nephew, in writing of her says: “She was a woman of a remarkable religious nature, sensitive, gentle yet full of spirit. Was very handsome, tall, fair, with abundance of waving light curling hair of a peculiar sunny tint, so unusual, that the beauty of her hair and her handsome blue eyes were always mentioned.” Jane Young Barnes, June Siggins Wheeler, and a number of others of her grand children have inherited these characteristic features. Her son George who was twelve years of age at the time of her death retained such vivid memories of her beauty and spirituality, that he always spoke of her as “My Angel Mother,” or “My Sainted Mother”, and nothing pleasing him or his brothers more than to trace in their daughters a likeness to their mother. Here is a copy of her Church letter sent her eight years after her removal to Western Pennsylvania:
Siggins and

“This is to certify that the bearer, Jean Siggins, is an acceptable member of the Methodist Society, Northumberland Circuit, August 27, 1808.”

JOHNSTON DUNHAM.

Your chronicler must of necessity use the personal pronoun, as the material for what is to follow is largely drawn, not only from the recollections of others but from her own personal memories. Realizing that such knowledge with the passing of this generation would be lost, not only to the family but to the church and world, I have tried to present a true picture of a man, the nobility of whose character, his assembled descendents may well emulate. I can hardly realize that at my first memory of my honored grandfather, which began as early as two years of age, that he must have then been seventy years of age, but it is so.
Among my first memories of him is one of the family sitting before the great fireplace, where huge logs fed the flames that were roaring up the black throat of the chimney; and of step-grandmother cooking, and baking before the fire, where on the ample hearth she had drawn the glowing coals. There was a cooking stove in the same room, but habit is strong, and the old way seemed best. Here they would gather when the day's work was done, where we heard him tell of the early times, and hear the Bible read, night and morning, he, after the manner of the patriarch offered prayer. His son, my uncle Isaac, who lived at home used to sing grand old hymns for him.

Mrs. Jane Ferry has furnished some notes that are fit-thing here—she says—"My first recollection of grandfather is when having family prayers, they all stood and sang,
"Lord in the morning Thou shalt hear my voice ascending high." And so they began the day. At this time the family consisted of grand-father, grandmother (his second wife) aunt Mary, aunt Jane, uncles Isaac and James. I have heard him say he remembered sitting on his mother's knee to hear John Wesley preach." Her sister Mary says that once when grandfather was with his father at one of Mr.
Wesley's meetings, being frightened at the noise, he ran to his father who was at the altar, and clung to him crying, when John Wesley laid his hand on his little head saying,
"See the little lad lays hold of the altar." In old Asbury Chapel grandfather always began his testimony, or exhortations with, "My dear children," and always said "I am glad I am a Methodist" I also remember his goodness to me as a child, and that neither he nor grandmother ever spoke an unkind word to me, nor do I remember of ever hearing him speak unkindly to any person. He used to tell that when their Catholic neighbors in Ireland used to quarrel, they called his father in as peace maker. They were Episcopalians until they heard Mr. Wesley preach. Grandfather was a born aristocrat, and had fine ideas of society, and displayed good taste in all his belongings and in the planning of all his buildings. Grandfather Siggins was married the second time to Pheobe Dawson, a woman considerably older than himself, who is the grandmother I recollect. If the elasticity, vivacity, and devotion of her later years are an index to her younger days, I would say she was at the time of her marriage a very handsome little lady. She died at the age of ninety four years, and then her face scarcely showed a wrinkle. She was a most devoted wife; her love and respect for her husband were most marked, and in all things where he was concerned, she was most unselfish. His comfort and wishes were the law of her life. They were very gentle and kindly in their manner to each other; and in my memory I see them sitting each by their window in the old home,—On Sunday he with the big red Bible, she with Baxter's Saint's Rest, the sanctity of the Sabbath was to him so reasonable a service, that he read no secular papers on that day. At Hickorytown he was instrumental in having a little meeting house built, and also a school house. "He organized debating clubs, and encouraged his sons to take part thus training them to that which was to them a most useful acquirement." He built for himself at the place in Hickory sometime in 1830, a home which had the distinction of being one of the first and best frame houses built in the country, containing six rooms, with many windows, and a wide porch the whole length of the house facing the river and the east. Here on summer evenings, the family rested with the river and hills to keep them company. The river was then the great highway. Steamboats, rafts, keelboats and other craft, held an unfailing source of interest for all. During the spring and summer freshets, thousands of families floated by to new homes further west. It was considered a fitting courtesy demanded by the interest of the occasion for those on shore to call and ask them where they were bound; the answer varied between "Western Reserve" "Indiana", "Ohio" or "Illinois". Household goods, cows, horses, wagons and other possessions were distributed over the rafts until they looked like a section of a farm afloat. Grandfather could tell us wonderful stories of Ireland, and sang songs, part of which were Irish words. He often held two of us upon his knees while he told us stories of the famine in Ireland and of the cruel officers who came for the rent, taking their property, the pig, or cow to the anguish of the poor cottagers. I do not remember of hearing him speak of any want among his friends, but always of their being comfortable. George Siggins was a tall noble looking man, one whose face bore the imprint of a strong and kindly soul. He had dark eyes, his head was bald, but with a circle of soft curling gray hair that hung around his neck. His grandson, John Siggins of Tidioute contributes his estimate and recollections, saying—"George Siggins was a large, strong, muscular man about six feet tall, and well proportioned. He had some of the Irish accent with his speech. He was very much devoted to the Church. I hold the original license given him in Centre county, about 1800, to exhort and conduct religious meetings in the Methodist Episcopal church. I have his old saddlebags that he used when he traveled as he did by horse back. In later years he had a horse and buggy and he and his wife would drive on Friday to Asbury Chapel, Tionesta, or starting earlier in the week, would drive to Franklin, Warren, or Youngsville, or some other place, when they would attend Quarterly meeting and enjoy the hospitality of their friends and relatives. Grandfather was a man who enjoyed the pursuit of a farmer his father before him desired all his sons to possess a farm, and he in turn had the same ambition. He has the credit of planting four orchards, the last, at Hickory, was a very large one. Many of the trees remain standing and bear fruit at the present time. The tree planting is inherited by the writer (John Siggins) as well as by some others in the family. Grandfather had a silk hat for state occasions, and a curly maple cane turned with a knob, and painted a dark red. One he used every day was a "staff", a natural crook that he used for years. The following is a copy of the license spoken of which however bears date 1810: "Eyre" Circuit—which is I presume the old style of spelling Erie Circuit.

"Know all men by these presents that George Siggins is authorized to exhort in the Methodist Episcopal church so long as his walk and conversation corresponds with the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Given under my hand this sixth day of October, in the year A. D. 1810.

JOSHUA MONROE.

Minister in Charge.

George Siggins was a great reader, so was uncle Isaac. Uncle took the "New York Tribune" and the "Philadelphia Post". They also had the National Magazine, issued by the Methodist publishing house. It was a work of genuine literary worth. The great galaxy of literary stars that shone for us in the central years of this century were contributors. It is a treat to read a number of it to day. Grandfather had the "New York Advocate" from the first copy issued. He subscribed for the history of Methodism written by the Rev. Dr. Abel Stevens who passed away in December —97 having lived more than four score years. As the different volumes came from the press—there were five of them—he read them with absorbing interest. The last volume came out the year grandfather died, but was read by him with great interest and delight. Each day he would read up the news of the world. The Crimean war and the Civil war were followed by him with deep interest. Uncle Isaac, uncle William or my father enjoyed a visit with so well informed a man, and the news of the day was always faithfully reviewed by them. The library in grandfather's house was a priceless treasure to us all. There were Biographies, Histories, Travels, Philosophy, Poetry, Romance, Fairy Stories and a book of Bible Stories, all by standard authors, purchased from those early benefactors of our country, the Methodist preachers, who, following the example and plan of John Wesley, furnished good books to the people, carrying them in their saddle bags on their long and perilous journeys; books so well bound that they are well preserved to day. I have several books myself that my father bought from these saddle bags. George Siggins and Thomas Dawson both early representatives of Methodism divided between them the privilege for many years of entertaining the preachers, after their toilsome circuit of hundreds of miles, making the trip perhaps once in six or seven weeks. Mr. Henry Kinnear, one of the first Methodists, met the Rev. Noah Fiddler of the Erie Circuit, Baltimore Conference, (the first conference), and requested him to visit the converts in Venango county, Pa., which he did in 1801, preaching in William Kinnears house and organizing the first class composed of George and Jane Siggins, James Dawson, Sr., and his wife Elizabeth, Thomas and Hannah Dawson, James Dawson, Jr., Pheobe Dawson, William and Mary Kinnear and the widow Allender. George Siggins was their leader. This was the first class organized in Venango county, and where the Methodist church was first established in the county. The first quarterly meeting in this region was held in Crawford county in a barn. I have some items of interest given by my aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Allender, a daughter of my grandfather Thomas Dawson. "This meeting was held at Gravel Run near Waterford in 1802—George Siggins and Isaac Conelly his brother-in-law walked all the way there to attend the meeting". Andrew Kinnear was present at this meeting. He had married a daughter of Rev. William Young. David was the son of Andrew Kinnear, is the one to whom we are indebted for the chronicles of the family so carefully gathered more than fifty years ago. Sarah Hood Siggins, mother of George Siggins, lived with him when his wife died and for a year or two after he married his second wife. Mrs. Allender, who lived about three and a half miles from Hickorytown, says that at the age of seventy years this woman would "spin her dozen a day", and so active at that age that she would walk to her place in the morning, spend the day and return to Hickorytown in the evening. She was born in 1750, died in 1835, in her 86th year. She possessed a strong christian character. I have the remnant of a book of Bible stories from which she read to her grandchildren as they sat around her. I remember often of hearing my father speak of the teachings of this good woman, and of her reading to them from this book. She stood a faithful representative for the church and the religion of her choice, bringing as she did the teaching of John Wesley in all its scriptural simplicity and power into her pioneer home. Her life and that of her pure spirited husband are like ointment poured forth, the fragrance of which comes to us today as we recall this precious heritage of their lives.

George Siggins never seemed to tire of his grand children. They visited him by the score. Usually there was one or more of them living in his family. He welcomed all who came, and his table was always surrounded by some of them. He was appreciative of every little service. If we unfastened his shoes and put on his slippers, as grandmother had taught us, or beat up the big feather cushion of his chair, he called us "proper fine girls". The hire of the laborer was fully paid and the poor shared in his plenty. He had large orchards. I believe he never sold a bushel of fruit in his life. The whole country came and carried off apples by the wagon load. His peaches and grapes he shared generously with his friends each year. He loved to see his fruit grow and had very choice trees.

I remember Elder Chapin, who when I was a little girl, visited my father. He was one of the first pioneers who travelled the circuit. I had the pleasure once of being entertained in the home of this old minister and his wife in Westfield, N. Y. They told me many episodes of the early days, and of the kindness of my two grandfathers and their families, and especially of my own father and mother in their old home as young people. The first preacher, as has been stated, was Noah Fiddler in 1810. Then came Joshua Monroe, whose authority vested George Siggins with the right to exhort and teach the divine ideals of Christian life. Then there was Jacob Gruber, an eccentric German, of whom many stories are told. Once when coming to my grandfather Dawsons, arriving a day or so ahead of their expectations, he found the family sitting down to supper, small in variety, but excellent in quality. He asked to return thanks, which he did by saying, "Lord bless the good mush, Amen". About fifty years ago, I remember seeing my grandfather reading "Uncle Tom's Cabin". The book was written in 1852, and was lent to him to read, by Mrs. Hamilton Stowe, whose friendship to him and all his family was a source of pleasure and comfort. I do not remember seeing my grandmother reading the book, which she undoubtedly did, but do remember hearing my mother and him discuss the principals set forth in the book. They both grasped the truth of the divine right of souls to liberty, and the wrong of human slavery. Out of the pathos of the book they saw what lead them and many of their grand-daughters to rejoice in the hope that some day the blot of slavery would be taken from our country. Being brought up at the feet of such a man, we were advance guards for the abolition of slavery and prohibition of strong drink.

Grandfather was contemporary with the history of the Church, and lived to see it number more than two million members with almost a century of his country's growth with the Indians, with pioneer life, and advanced civilization, and progress of this mid-century-yea, to see his country victorious in the contest for human freedom, honored by all the world, and undivided, in which his loyal soul rejoiced. He was a true patriot and gave his voice for every reform that he believed would lead his country on to its great mission. In 1812, he and his three brothers responded to the call, and the early close of the war permitted their safe return to their families. George Siggins was a firm friend and admirer of Abraham Lincoln. He grasped the greatness of the character in this hero in our crisis for human liberty and gave honor to him, the great Emancipator, far in advance of the day. Grandfather died a few weeks before the awful tragedy on the 14th day of April, when the land was shadowed with the message "Lincoln is dead," and we all rejoiced that he had been spared a sorrow.

George Siggins owned a sawmill on West Hickory Creek, which he ran for two years, when he sold it to Mr. Ball. James Y. Siggins, his son, afterwards married this man's daughter, Sarah. Mr. Ball soon after sold this property and built a mill on Tionesta creek at the place since known as Balltown. At this mill on Hickory Creek George Siggins planted another orchard. Trees planted seventy years ago are still living and bearing fruit. At Stewart's Run, or Pithole, as it was then called, the first place that this pioneer settled, as well as at others where he lived, these marks of his benevolence, thrift and enterprise remain. The query arises, "where did he find the apple trees to plant?" There is an authentic account of an early benefactor of our pioneer days known as "Johnny Apple-Seed," who went about like John the Baptist, clothed in coarse garments, living on wild honey, and the products of the forest, who travelled thru the wilderness, stopping at intervals, when he would cut the saplings from a small patch of ground, fencing it with the same, then spading the ground he would plant a liberal amount of apple seeds which he carried in a large sack on his back. This he did in different portions of Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. The early pioneers used to look for and carefully transplant these trees.

ISAAC CONNELY SIGGINS

(54) Isaac Connely Siggins son of George and Jane Young Siggins, was born September 17th, 1812 on the farm settled by his father which was situated on the west bank of the Allegheny River in Harmony Township. From his father he inherited many sterling qualities. In those early days schools were almost unknown—the few that existed were poorly equipped, hence the Siggins boys, William, George S., Isaac and James, depended almost wholly on their parents for instruction. But their advancement was rapid and no opportunity for mental improvement was neglected. Isaac was possessed of unusually fine intellectual perceptions and was an inveterate reader; he was well posted on all topics of the day. His judgment was rarely at fault. It was ever a delight to talk with "Uncle Isaac" as he was called by the neighbors for there was always instruction as well as entertainment in these conversations. His reminiscences of early days when the country was a wilderness and the Indians still lingered on the outskirts of the settlements were clear and full of interest. He was a good representative of this family of sturdy pioneers whose name was closely identified with the progress and upbuilding of this section of the country. He often told his nieces and nephews that his grandmother, Sarah Hood, was near of kin to Admiral Hood. They were hardy and intelligent and left a lasting imprint on the younger generation as they grew up around them. He will long be remembered and honored as one of the foremost of the sturdy pioneers of the Upper Allegheny Valley. He died on the Siggins farm at West Hickory, Pennsylvania, where most of his life had been spent, Saturday evening, February 24, 1883.

Ripley, the Methodist presiding Bishop. The young couple made a trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls and came home by train as far as Irvington where they expected to take a boat down the Allegheny River to Tidioute, there being no terminal railroad between these two points at that time and it was so late in the season that no boats were running, in order to reach home that night they procured a skiff and made the trip safely in spite of the wind and a heavy snow storm, which made the journey an extremely hazardous one. The huge ice cakes which filled the river so hindered their travel that they were five hours in making the trip, reaching home just at dark. Most of their married life has been spent in Tidioute. On the occasion of their Golden Wedding Anniversary, fifty of their friends assembled and celebrated the event by speech making, singing and reviewing the happenings of their fifty useful years of life together.

And live ever more;
May the fruit that it groweth
Be good to the core.

And thus shall we see

JOSEPH HALL

Joseph Hall was born in Smithfield, Ohio, March 18, 1827, he was a son of Clarkson Hall, his mother was a native of Ireland and came to America in 1808; his grand father Reuben Hall, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War and in the war of 1812. Joseph Hall was two years of age when his parents settled at Wintersville, where he lived until 1863, at the age of nineteen he was a school teacher, but learning the carpenters trade with his father, he followed this vocation during early manhood, he served two terms as Clerk of Cross Creek Township. In 1855 he was elected Justice of the Peace, and served three years. In 1858, for the purpose of fitting himself for the duties of United States Claim Attorney, he studied law, was licensed as an Attorney in 1861, and acted in that capacity up to the time of his death, he was the oldest claim attorney in the country and certainly the most successful. He located in Steubenville, Ohio, in 1863, in 1872 was elected a member of the School Board, serving seven years, during four of which he acted as clerk, he took much pride in the school property and it was during his term of office that shade trees were planted and beautiful lawns were cultivated on the school grounds, he taking the lead in this work which stands to-day a monument to his taste. He married November 19, 1852, Rachel McGrew, a native of Wayne Township, a daughter of Joseph B. McGrew, a former prominent citizen. Three children were born to them: Homer S. Hall, of Pittsburg, Pa., Jennie Hall, wife of Dr. James Buchanan Siggins, of Oil City, Pa., and Mary Alice Hall, wife of Mr. Orion Siggins, of West Hickory, Pa. Mr. Hall enjoyed a lucrative practice and obtained pensions for more old soldiers, perhaps, than any other attorney in Eastern Ohio. By his strict integrity he won the confidence of his clients and through his energetic effort many old soldiers received government bounty who otherwise would have been destitute. Everybody knew Joseph Hall, he was liked by the people for his kindly disposition and companionable nature, he was also intelligent and entertaining in conversation, was devoted to his family and felt keenly the separation from his daughters. At the time of his death he was making arrangements to move to Tidioute, Pa., to be near them. He and his wife were looking forward with much pleasure to the time they would be with their daughters. They were regular attendants and supporters of the Hamlin Methodist Episcopal Church. Joseph Hall will be greatly missed in this community where he was so well known and respected. (d. 1896).

Mrs. Rachel E. Hall died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orion Siggins, (No. 182), of West Hickory, Pa., at 5 o'clock Saturday morning. She was born May 27, 1833, at Smithfield, Ohio, and has a birthright at the Friends Meeting House of that place. Much of her life was spent at Steubenville, Ohio, where the death of her husband took place twenty-one years ago. The funeral took place at West Hickory, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock and interment was held at Steubenville.
JUDGE JOHN SIGGINS

(74) Hon. John Siggins², son of William and Jane (Hunter) Siggins, was born February 1st, 1839, at the home farm in Harmony Township, Forest County, Pennsylvania, which is now owned and farmed by his brother, A. Jackson Siggins.

He was the eldest child of a family of eight boys and three girls; his father being in poor health, he at the age of fourteen was doing a man's work, and was practically in charge of the farm.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, he and his brother William P., were the only sons who were old enough to enlist, and as William P. did enlist as a volunteer, it was necessary that he remain at home to look after the welfare of the family; he was twice drafted but rejected on account of an ankle he had fractured in his younger days; he early realized that his education was not sufficient to enable him to meet the battles of life. He obtained his father's consent to leave the farm for a time, and attend the Select school taught by A. J. Fleming and the District School taught by Samuel Fertig, at Stewart's Run.

On January 1st, 1864, he first became engaged in the mercantile business in the village of Steam Mill and in the fall of that year removed to a store building he had bought at West Hickory, in 1871 he removed to Tidioute where he continued in the mercantile business until 1895 when he retired to engage in other pursuits.

While at Steam Mill he met Miss Clarissa Carter, who afterward became his wife; she was a daughter of Joseph Trumbull and Olive (Fuller) Carter, and was born April 29, 1845, at Olean, N. Y. They were married at the home of her brother, Almond F. Carter, December 6th, 1865, by the Rev. A. P. Ripley, the Presiding Elder of the Methodist Church in that district, they are the parents of two sons and four daughters.

Mr. Siggins filled many local offices until 1905 when he was elected Associate Judge of Warren county which office he has held during the last twelve years; he is an active member of the Methodist church and is at this time president of the Board of Trustees of the church at Tidioute; he is a member of Temple Lodge Number 412, F. & A. M., having joined the order while living in West Hickory.

Upon the occasion of the retirement of Judge John Siggins from the Warren County Bench, Jan. 7, 1917, after twelve years of active service, having served with three Presidents, and five Associate Judges, in behalf of his associate members of the bar, Judge Edward S. Lindsay presented him with a handsome silver service. The presentation remarks were highly complimentary and voiced the great esteem in which the recipient was held by his friends and fellow Judges.

John Siggins, Jr., (No. 105), of Tidioute, Pa., County solicitor, has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican assembly nomination, subject to the May primaries. So far Mr. Siggins is the only candidate on either ticket to make his intentions known, although it is probable he will be opposed for the nomination since he has given out an interview stating that he is for the "Dry" forces. In this he says if elected he will aid in every possible way to further the passage of the local option law that was before the last legislature and will probably be presented again."

From the following it will be seen he was a successful candidate:

"John Siggins, Jr., Warren County's representative in the General Assembly, was assigned to seat No. 13 in the Assembly room. This is located in the first row and being almost directly in front of the speaker's desk, is one of the best in the House. 'Aren't you a little superstitious regarding the hodoo number?' was asked of Mr. Siggins. 'No, sir,' came the reply, 'I took out my marriage license on Friday the 13th, and I've never regretted it,' he answered with a laugh."

He is now (in 1918) a candidate for State Senator from the 48th District. He was appointed in 1917 as agent for the United States Government in matters pertaining to exemptions.

Their son Ralph Curtis Siggins, Jr., was born October 31, 1913, in Russell, Pa.
CARTER FAMILY.

"The early Carters, like most pioneer builders of a commonwealth, were farmers.

They were kind-hearted and public-spirited, because they were often compelled to ask favors, and they realized that there was strength in union.

The early records show the Carters of those days to have been prominent in all matters of public interest; the division of land, and laying out of roads, the building of meeting houses, the founding of churches, and the establishment of schools were entrusted to them. Many also were active in military organizations."

He came ostensibly as a servant of George Giddings, because of the difficulty of obtaining leave to emigrate.

On his arrival in this country he was admitted an inhabitant of Dedham, Mass., in September, 1636. He was then a student for the ministry. Subsequently he removed to Watertown, Mass., and was ordained the first minister of the church at Woburn, Mass., November 22, 1642. His death occurred September 5, 1684. He preached his first sermon there December 4, 1641, and upon his ordination was presented with a house built for his use.

His salary was fixed at eighty pounds annually, one-fourth in silver and the remainder in the necessaries of life.
at the current price. In 1674 twenty cords of wood were given him annually in addition. He performed all the duties of his office as pastor for thirty-six years unaided. Afterwards Rev. Jabez Fox became his assistant and remained with Dr. Carter until the end of his life.

Prior to 1640, he married Mary Dalton, who died March 28, 1687. His children were:

Samuel, b. August 8, 1640; m. 1672, Eunice Brooks, and d. at Groton, Mass., 1693. Judith, Theophilus, Abigail, Deborah, Timothy and Thomas.

(74) JUDGE JOHN Siggins, of Tidioute, Pa.
THE GOLDEN WEDDING OF WILLIAM PARKER SIGGINS AND ELIZABETH WALTERS, HIS WIFE.

On November 9th, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Siggins, of West Hickory, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, on which happy occasion there were present nearly a hundred guests, among them were seven of their sons and daughters, and twelve grandchildren. The generous and cordial hospitality of the home put everyone in the happiest humor, and the occasion was one of exceptional pleasure. A poem entitled "Our Golden Wedding Day," and written for the occasion by Rev. G. W. Fuller, was read, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. McIntosh. Much interest was shown in Mr. Siggins' mementoes of war time, among them was his honorable war record. Two pictures of him as a brave young soldier hung on the walls, but what aroused the warmest interest was a miniature of the girl he left behind him when he went into the army, and which he had carried with him during all three years service. In a tangible way both guests and hosts fared well. The former were served a generous dinner garnished with lovely gold colored roses, while the latter were made happy by gifts ranging from golden chrysanthemums to gold of the realm, and a fine kitchen cabinet presented by the seven children. Many other gifts gave evidence of the kind regard of friends and neighbors. Of the children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Siggins the following were present: Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Agnew, Miss Ethel Agnew, Clarence Agnew, Mrs. W. W. Siggins and son Floyd, of West Hickory; Mr. Isaac Siggins and son Leon, of Kellettville, Pa.; F. E. Siggins of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. J. K. Young and children, Anna, Floyd W. and John Kay, of Conneautville, Pa.; Mrs. F. W. Shaw and son Paul Willard, of McKeesport, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Carson and children, Goldie, Lewis and Josephine, of Brownsville, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Siggins, of Homestead, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kennedy and two sons, Edward and Willard, great grandchildren, of West Hickory, Pa. The out of town guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hood, Mrs. R. L. Haslet, of Tionesta; Miss Ida Siggins, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Siggins, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turner, Mrs. John Myers, Miss Mary Hastings, of Tidioute; Mrs. W. H. Ravenscroft, Denver, Col.; Mrs. W. S. Ravenscroft, Ridgway, Pa.; Mrs. Jane Y. Siggins Barnes, Ripley, N. Y.; Miss Eliza McCrea, Eagle Rock, Pa.; Mrs. E. Harriet Howe, Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. John Siggins, Warren, Pa.; Dr. Jas. B. Siggins, Miss Mary Alice Siggins, Oil City, Pa. Five of those present on Monday also witnessed the first wedding, they were Mrs. Jane Siggins Barnes, Mr. John Siggins, Mr. A. J. Siggins and Mrs. John Myers. Everyone remarked the spirit of sincerity and good feeling which prevailed. The pleasure of old and young in greeting each other, and the joy of old friends reunited, was good to see. But best of all was the happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Siggins surviving so many years of wedded life, and the pleasant satisfaction of a united family.

William P. Siggins, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Forest county, died suddenly at his home in West Hickory at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, Oct. 15, 1917, of heart disease, aged 77 years and 5 months. Mr. Siggins was born on May 15, 1840, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Siggins, and has been a life-long resident of this county. On Aug. 6, 1861, he enlisted in the United States service and was discharged at the expiration of his term on Sept. 20, 1864, after three years of gallant and noble service. Following is the war record of Mr. Siggins:

He enlisted August 6, 1861, from Forest county, Pa., and was mustered into the United States service at Harrisburg, as a private to serve for three years in Company G, 83rd Regiment, Pa., Volunteer Infantry, under Captains D. S. Knox, Geo. Stowe, and M. G. Corey; Colonels John W. McClane, S. Vincent, and S. Woodard. The regiment left the state for Washington, D. C., on Sept. 18, of the same year, and was on duty at Washington, D. C., until March, 1862, moved to the Virginia Peninsula March 10, 1862, attached to the 3rd brigade, 1st Division, 3rd Corps, Army of the Potomac till May, 1862, then the 5th corps, Army of the Potomac. He participated in the following engagements: Reconnoissance to Big Bethel, Va., March 30, 1862; Warwick Road, April 5, 1862; Siege of Yorktown, April 5th to May 1st, 1862; Hanover Court House May 26, 1862; wounded in chest, Seven Days Battle, June 25 to July 1st, 1862; Battle of Mechanicsville, June 26, 1862; Gainesville, June 27, '62; Savage Station June 29, '62; Malvern Cliff, June 30, '62; Malvern Hill, July 1st, '62; Bull Run, August 30, '62; Antietam, Md., September 17, '62; Shepherd's town Ford, September 19, '62; Fredricksburg, December 13, '62; Mud March, January 20-24, '63; Chancellorsville, Va., May 1-4, '63; Gettysburg, July 1-3, '63; Rappahannock Station, November 7, '63; Mine Run, November 26-28, '63; Wilderness, Va., May 5-7, '64; Laurel Hill, May 8, '64; Spottsylvania, May 8-21, '64: Assault on the Bloody Angle, May 12, '64; North Anna River, May 23-26, '64; Toppotomby, May 28-31, '64; Bethesda Church, May 30 to June 6, '64; Cold Harbor, June 1-12, '64; Petersburg, June 15-18, '64; Weldon Railroad, June 20-23, '64; Mine Explosion at Petersburg, Va., July 30, '64; Weldon Railroad, August 18-21, '64. Honorably discharged September 20th, 1864, at Harrisburg, Pa., at expiration of term of service. He was promoted to corporal. He never missed a roll call; was slightly wounded twice but able after each battle to report and stack arms.

At the close of the war Mr. Siggins returned to farm life and later engaged as a producer when oil was discovered in this section. On November 9, 1864, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Walters, of East Hickory, and by this union nine children were born, all of whom survive, with the exception of William, who died in 1912. Until the time of his death Mr. Siggins was unusually active for one of his years attending personally to all his affairs. On Sunday before his death he, with his wife and grandson, visited his sister, Mrs. Jane Barnes, of Ripley, N. Y., making the trip by automobile. On Monday he was visited by his brother, Dr. J. B. Siggins, of Oil City, who invited him to walk over to an oil lease in that vicinity. Mr. Siggins declined, not because of his physical condition, but because he desired to make some repairs to his motor car. He died a few hours later. Business was suspended and schools closed throughout the afternoon and hundreds of persons from the surrounding towns visited the home to pay their last tribute to a very dear friend. Among those from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Smith of Ridgway. Services were conducted at the grave by members of the G. A. R., of whom only nine remain. Interment was in the Siggins family cemetery.

(52). Nathaniel Hood Siggins, of Forest, Co., Pennsylvania, was one of the early pioneers of the old Siggins stock,—an exhorter and a born leader of men. He married Emmaline Harriett Range, who was a most estimable woman, a helpmate in the truest sense of the word, at all times.

Four of his sons grew to manhood. Nathaniel Simpson, his fourth son, was one of the first to enlist when the call came for volunteers for the Civil War; he served his country well for three years; he was serving in the capacity of a musician, having a decided talent for the use of the fife and drum and he loved martial music and folk songs, and was always ready to do his part in caring for his wounded companions. He carried his brother James from the battlefield on one occasion at the risk of his own life. He did much to keep up the spirits of his comrades; his fund of wit and humor seemed inexhaustible. His letters to his betrothed, Amanda M. Switzer, whom he married at the close of the war, were models of poetic composition, portraying the pathetic and tragic incidents of his daily life at the front. His stories and poems written for the local papers were of genuine literary merit.
Nathaniel Hood Siggins was a good neighbor and true friend and will be greatly missed in the community where he had lived so many years. He died in 1874, in Harmony, New York.

His wife Harriett, belonged to a staunch Puritan New England family and was noble and self-sacrificing to a remarkable degree, continuing in good works until she was called home, March 9, 1852.
LIEUTENANT JOHN RANGE.

The Daughters of the American Revolution are endeavoring to place metal markers at the graves of every Revolutionary soldier in the country.

On Saturday Mr. John Siggins of Tidioute, came here and placed one of these markers at the grave of the only soldier of the Revolutionary War, buried in Riverside Cemetery (Tionesta, Pa.).

The marker bears the following inscriptions:
"John Range, 1st Lieutenant, commissioned April 5, 1778."

Mr. Siggins is a great-grandson of the deceased. The marker is about the size of a dinner plate, circular in form, and around the edge are thirteen stars representing the original thirteen states, for whose independence thousands of patriots, like Mr. Range, suffered great privations and gave up their lives, that future generations might enjoy the blessings of a free country.

Mr. S. D. Irwin furnishes the following additional particulars concerning Lieutenant Range:

For his services in the Revolution he secured a land warrant taken out in the name of his eldest son, Shallas Range. The lottery warrant for the land was number 511, dated May 15th, 1785, included 258 acres. In 1808 he examined the land with other soldiers, and in 1816, located with his family at Tionesta. He came from Adams Co., Pa.

He selected the land now occupied by Tionesta Borough, called Sa-qua-lin-get, which is interpreted "Place of Council," being just above the mouth of Tubbs Run, and running thence as declared in the final survey and patent, "by the base of Mount Ararat." This piece so selected embraced all of the bottom land, from above Tubbs Run to the south line of what is now known as the Lawrence farm, crossing of course Tionesta creek. Although the warrant and survey was to John Range, the patent was for some reason issued to his son Shallos Range, but Shallos dying a young man and unmarried, he received the land as Shallos' heir.

John Range then did the first draining ever done on the place, and on quite an extensive scale, too; he cut a heavy ditch from a swamp which started on what is now Williams street, just below where it crosses Helen street. The head of the swamp was filled up by Jacob M. Kepler a few years ago, he graded the small bluff on the back end of his lots off and that obliterated every trace of the swamp, but the Range ditch, which extended from the swamp mentioned down the flat to the back channel, near Canfield's, is traceable in many places to this day, and but a few years ago, near the upper end of it, wild cherry trees had grown up that were about 12 to 18 inches in diameter, just back of where Harvey M. Foreman now lives. This ditch was a fine piece of engineering and cut through three small swamps and emptied their contents for the most part into the back channel of the river as stated. It is said that Lieutenant Range got some of his ideas of draining while with the Revolutionary army on duty at Yorktown, Va., where he assisted in draining the low lands and marshes about that place, when Washington's army occupied the same. It is evident no better nor easier ground could have been selected, and the lower end of this ditch is easily traced to-day, and is utilized. Range before his death divided his farm, Sa-qua-lin-get, into two nearly equal parts, by a line beginning on the river at the old red oak tree, near the Shriver place, and extending easterly to his east line on the hill. The north half went to his son John, Jr., and the lower part to his son James. James in his lifetime sold out to various parties, and some relatives, while John sold his entire part to Rev. Hezekiah May, who died possessed of the same July 4, 1843. It should here be mentioned that Lieutenant Range selected a place for his grave and that of his wife, just back of what is now F. C.
Proper's barn, on a little knoll, and in his deed to May, John Range, Jr., reserves "one rod square where the parents of first party lies buried." A barn being erected, it became an unsightly place for the burial of a revolutionary patriot and his wife, and so arrangements were made by H. M. Foreman, who had purchased a lot which included the square rod reserve, with the numerous relatives and descendents of the patriot, to purchase a beautiful lot on a knoll in Riverside Cemetery, and their dust was removed there at the expense of Mr. Foreman, with the consent of the wide circle of relatives. John Range in his early days, was a miller near Gettysburg, Adams Co., Pa., and John and William P. Siggins, two of his descendents, went on a pilgrimage to the mill of their eminent ancestor, and it was with great joy that they found old settlers who had traditions of him, but what delighted them more was to find the old mill itself with his name cut in the stone undoubtedly by his own hand.

John Range served through the great struggle for independence, was commissioned First Lieutenant of 5th company of 4th battalion, York County, Pa., militia, April 5th, 1778. He is justly called the first white settler east of the Allegheny in the present bounds of Forest County, Pa. He first came out prospecting to view this land, establishing a farm at what is now Tionesta, this was in the year 1816. He was a native of Pennsylvania; after the war was over he settled in Adams County, where being successful in his business he acquired considerable property.

In Hon. S. D. Irvin's History of Forest County, he says: "Jacob Shriner says that Lieut. John Range was born in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, in 1746, and died in Tionesta in 1826, aged 80 years." You will find reference in the Pennsylvania Archives, Second Series, Volume 14, page 513.

This land is located on Little Conewago Creek near New Oxford, Adams County, Pa., so says John Siggins, who visited the property with his brother, William P. Siggins, about 1900.
The old Grist Mill was built by Theobalt Shallos in 1747.

The above is a copy of the inscription that I found cut in large letters in a large stone placed over the main entrance to the Mill. The Mill was originally built of stone, but had burned down in Sept., 1888, and was rebuilt in Oct., 1888, and the old stone tablet had been replaced over the door of the rebuilt Mill as the fire had not injured the inscription. On the corner stone of the old Saw-Mill I found this date and letters: "1795. I. R." On the one hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Tionesta the Range family held a Reunion, at which time a bronze tablet to the memory of John Range was dedicated.

CAPTAIN PETER GRACE.
ANNIE M. (SIGGINS) GRACE.
(156)
Captain Peter Grace was born in Ireland, March 18, 1845 and came to America when three years of age. Like many others of our foreign born citizens, when the life of the nation was threatened, he answered the call to arms of his adopted country and in 1861, when a mere boy, enlisted in Company E, of the 83rd Pennsylvania Volunteers as a private, and received his honorable discharge in July, 1865, as the captain of his company.

In this service he participated in all the battles and hardships in which his regiment engaged and suffered during the four years of enlistment, and by valor and bravery on the field of action, won advancement until he reached the command of his company.

At the "Battle of the Wilderness," May 5, 1864, his conduct was distinguished by special acts of bravery and valor, for which, thirty years later, Congress by special act awarded him a Medal of Honor. Those who knew Captain Grace say no such tribute was ever more worthily bestowed.

After the war he located at Pitthole, Vanango County, Pennsylvania, where he, as one of the pioneers of a new industry, engaged in the oil business which he continued until his death. He had the reputation of discovering more new oil fields and expending more money in their development than any other man. At least two of the fields opened by him were record breakers for that time. These were the Murdock, Pa. field, and the Cherry Grove, Pa. field, which was opened with a big gusher on Sec. 646, which figures are remembered by every pioneer oil man in the county.

Captain Grace was a generous, big hearted, true and honorable man. He was ever ready to extend a helping hand to those in need and was ever thinking of good he could do to others. Few men came nearer living to the Golden Rule as their life principle. He was a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, and was a thirty-second degree Mason.

The death of Captain Grace occurred at 6:20 a. m., Friday, March 17th, 1914, after a brief illness of pneumonia.

He is survived by a widow, one son, Charles Grace, of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. R. E. Dwight, of New York City. Mr. Dwight was a law partner of ex-Governor Hughes of New York.

Funeral services were conducted at the family residence, 108 N. Robb Street, at 3 p. m., Saturday, by Rev. J. D. Shaddrick of the M. E. Church. Most magnificent floral offerings were contributed by friends and orders to which he belonged, as tokens of their esteem. A cortege of over five hundred men, mostly old soldiers, oil operators and oil workers, accompanied the body to the train whence it was taken to Washington, D. C., for interment in the National Cemetery at Arlington, where it was laid to rest with military honors.

The history of the Congressional Medal of Honor dates from 1862, when it was apparent that the civil war was bound to call forth many instances of extreme bravery which deserved extraordinary and lasting reward. The idea of such a decoration, however, originated with Gen. George Washington, who in 1782 established the honorary badge of military merit as a mark for distinguished conduct in the Revolution.

The original resolution of Congress relative to medals approved in 1862 authorized the President to cause to be prepared a large number of medals and to direct that they be presented in the name of Congress "to such non-commissioned officers and privates as shall most distinguish themselves by their gallantry in action during the present Insurrection."

In the following year provision was made to extend the award of the medal to officers.

It was not until 1897 that regulations definitely enun-(154) WAR MEDAL OF CAPTAIN PETER GRACE.
ciating the conditions under which the medal should be awarded were promulgated. They emphasized the difficulty of winning the decoration and the great honor attaching to its possession.

In order that the Congressional Medal of Honor may be deserved, service must have been performed in action of such conspicuous character as to clearly distinguish the man for gallantry and intrepidity above his comrades, service that involved extreme jeopardy of life or the performance of extraordinarily hazardous duty. In other words, the Medal of Honor is a medal for super-heroes, for men who not only risk their lives in some extraordinary way, but who display such intelligence in the action that it stands out as something apart from conduct in the line of duty. Executive orders prescribe the way in which the medal may be gained. Recommendations for the medal will be judged by this standard of extraordinary merit, and incontestible proof of performance of the service will be exacted.

LIEUTENANT HENRY NEELEY, father of Anna Neeley (Mrs. John S. Churchill), was a lieut. in the Orange County Militia, in the Revolutionary War. N. Y. in the Rev. War. p-161.

The history of the Churchill family of England dates back to the time of the Norman Conquest. The name is derived from the town Courcil, in Lorraine, France. The surname has been spelled Coucelle, Council, Cuchell, Cercile, Churchil, Churchall, Churchell, and Churchill, the last being the one generally accepted for many generations in England and America. The Churchill coat-of-arms is: Sable a lion rampant argent debruised with a bendlet gules. Eight generations of the Churchill family have been Dukes of Marlborough. The first Duke was John Churchill, born May 24, 1650, at Ase, Devonshire, son of Sir Winston Churchill, of Wiltshire whose mother was a Winston. The present Duke, the eighth, Richard John Churchill, married Consuelo Vanderbilt, of New York City. Winston Churchill, an author and member of parliament, is grand-son of the seventh duke, and son of Sir Randolph Churchill. It is likely that the American Pioneers of the seventeenth century were of the same stock. Colonel William Churchill came to Virginia about 1672 from Wilton, Middlesex county; was a member of the Virginia council in 1705; died 1710; and from his son Armistead is descended the Churchills of Virginia. It is of interest to note that the daughter of Colonel William married Thomas Randolph, in 1710. This and further records of the Churchill family of New England will be found in the second volume of "Historic Homes and Places and Genealogical and Personal Memoirs relating to the families of Middlesex county, Massachusetts, prepared under the supervision of William Richard Cutter A. M."

GEORGE SIMPSON SIGGINS

DIED.

"At his home in Harmony Township, Forest Co., Pa., at 10 o'clock p. m. on Friday the 20th day of August, 1875  George Simpson Siggins, aged 66 years.

Deceased was the father of nine children, one son and eight daughters, these and his wife survive him. We are unable to do justice to our friend, and will not attempt it.
In the language of the lines he knew so well, and which are descriptive of his character:

“A wit’s a feather, and a chief’s a rod;
An honest man’s the work of God.”

He was a lover of bees; Huber himself could not have been more delighted with their kingdom; he was as much a naturalist as Audubon or Lord Byron, “With nature’s self he seemed an old acquaintance, free to jest.” He fulfilled in his life the imaginary good man of the poet Pope.

“Who noble ends by noble means attains,
That man is great, in exile or in chains;
Like good Aurelius, let him reign or bleed—
Like Socrates, that man is great indeed.”

There is no doubt that he knew more of Scotland’s great poet, Burns, than any other man in this section. He revelled over the quaintness of “Tam o’ Shanter,” he was contemplative over “Man Was Made to Mourn.”

“He was a man, take him for all in all,
We ne’er shall look upon his like again.”
“He was the noblest Roman of them all.”

In brief, he had a heart overflowing with all the elements of human kindness. His countenance and manner denoted one of nature’s true noblemen. The blood of his ancestors spoke through his countenance as it were. He used Anglo Saxon with great power. Vice he handled without gloves. Yet he was true and right, just and generous. The poor marked him as their friend, they mourn the loss of their benefactor.

May his sleep be sweet. His memory is fragrant as the flowers of spring time, and the calm consideration is left to his stricken friends that he died in the summer, full of hope.
"Truth, Love and Mercy, in triumph descending,
While nature all glowing like Eden's first bloom,
On the cold cheek of death smiles and roses are blending,
And Beauty immortal awakes from the tomb."

He was a passionate lover of Nature and saw God in the woods, in the fields, and flowers. He noticed all the curious little things that many pass by, always coming in from his walks, with curious plants, specimens, Indian relics, etc., many of which are now in museums, given to them by him. He was a good man, one who enjoyed the felicity of this world with all his heart, and we know that he has entered into an ever-abiding City of Rest, where we are sure he will be happy forever. He was a type of Leigh Hunt's, 'Abou Ben Adhem,' for he loved his fellow men."

From the "Forest Press," Saturday, August 28, 1875.

THE FOLLOWING SKETCH OF GEORGE SIMPSON SIGGINS WAS WRITTEN BY HIS DAUGHTER HARRIETT HOWE.

In 1858, June 7th to 11th, there came upon the fields of heading wheat, rye, corn and potatoes, the clover fields, gardens and forests, a blighting freeze; every green growing thing was killed, ice was frozen on all vegetation, each clover leaf had a film of ice; the sun came out in full radiance on the morning of the 11th, that was the freeze that struck the river valleys; when the ice melted every green thing wilted down, as though scalded.

I remember the woe that was expressed on my fathers face as he saw the result of his labor all destroyed; there was no rebellion against the providence he could not understand. He said: Alas! Alas! a few times and then the Lord gave him courage to plan for himself and his neighbors; Mother was his wise and patient counsellor; this was the year of the discovery of oil by drilling. Father had bought two tracts of land; he still had a few payments to make, that year he leased to the oil men and had a plentiful income; in a few days he decided to plow up his ruined grain fields, and sow buckwheat, plant corn, and gardens which matured—the farms back from the river had the greatest losses, in many cases they had no seed to replant. Father sold them buckwheat and other seed they desired at the selling price before the frost, and those with no money, he gave or trusted them for pay—and he and mother generously gave them garden seeds.

My father and his brothers were loyal union men during the civil war; he and mother had nine nephews and three young cousins who enlisted and went to the war—all but one of them were intimate visitors at our home, that was Porter Siggins, of Youngsville. I will give the names of the soldier boys:

Those who died in the war were: Capt. Benjamin A. Smith, Porter Siggins, Fletcher Dawson, Charles Connely and William Dawson.

Father, his brothers and his Scotch friends were all readers of the New York Tribune, Philadelphia and Pittsburg papers, many of father's friends who were not so fortunate, came often to him for the news; he was cast in the prophetic mold; one thing that I well remember, though but a little child, was his recital of the Crimean war news, and enlightenment of its problems; later the project to build the railway across the continent which seemed an impossibility to them, the rocky mountains were a barrier they could not pass—so father explained that the genius of man could tunnel the mountains; I remember a man said "well if they build the road, no one can afford to take the journey over it." I recall fathers assurance that the road would be a great investment and that multitudes would go at a reasonable price. The Civil war put a stop to the construction, and the news of President Lincoln's death was carried to California over the Santa Fe Trail by Pony Express, making the fastest time on record.

When Secretary Seward made the purchase of Alaska for the United States, father was eloquent in his defense; "what folly to pay seven millions of dollars for a waste of ice, snow and impassible mountains"; father had been reading the reports of Lewis and Clark, sent out by the government to explore the Pacific coast—after reading of the mineral, animal and timber treasures of the northwestern territory, he reasoned with the remarkable ocean currents that the purchase was a wise and valuable acquisition—so clear and emphatic was he that I became interested and began to read everything I found on Alaska and have continued to do so ever since. I sent to Washington for literature on that wonderful country and they sent me a rich supply, and five great maps that I had to spread over the piano to study them. I have Dr. Hall Young's books, and have heard him three times lecture and show his marvelous views. Have read John Muir's books and articles, and Frank Carpenter's reports. Dr. Young says Frank Carpenter gives a correct account in every letter regarding that great country. Dr. Young has been a missionary in Alaska thirty-eight years.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW CHURCH AT WEST HICKORY, PA.

Sunday July 30, 1904, was a day of happiness and rejoicing for the congregation of the Methodist church of West Hickory, for it witnessed the dedication and final turning over to them of the beautiful new church building presented through the generosity of Messrs. Orion Siggins, of West Hickory, and T. D. Collins, of Nebraska, Pa. The dedicatory services were conducted by Bishop C. C. McCabe, assisted by the pastor, Rev. E. D. Mowrey, Rev. W. O. Calhoun, of Tionesta, Rev. J. K. Whipple, of Stockton, N. Y., Rev. S. B. Torry of Erie, Pa., and Rev. H. K. Steele, of Townville, Pa., the last three being former pastors of that charge.

The sermon was delivered by Bishop McCabe, from the text as found in Exodus 25:8: "And let them make me a sanctuary; that I may dwell among them". It was an eloquent discourse suited to the occasion and it was evident that this grand old servant of the Master had lost none of his power to sway the minds of men. At the conclusion of the sermon the trustees, Messrs, Orion Siggins, T. D. Collins, and J. G. Carson, were called to the chancel rail and the edifice was formally dedicated by the Bishop to the service and worship of Almighty God.

The church stands in the centre of the town, on South Main St. on a lot donated by Mr. Orion Siggins. Three hundred people can be seated comfortably in the new edifice. The total cost of the building will be about $8000.00 which was borne equally by Messrs, Siggins and Collins, and it was presented to the congregation without a dollar of indebtedness." Mr. Siggins also donated the lot on which the new parsonage now stands."

HOWE.

The Howe family traces its pedigree back to the time of the Crusaders, if Alexander de Hoo, who wore the cross, may be counted as a progenitor. He married Devorgilda, daughter of King Alexander II of Scotland. The name next appears as de Huse, a John de Huse receiving a grant of land in 1066 in Berkshire, England. Other variations of the orthography are Huys, Howys, Howes and finally the present form, Howe. As evidence of honorable service the Howe banner hangs high in the chapel of Henry VII. Oliver Cromwell's chaplain, who was given the office on account of a sermon the Protector happened to hear, was the learned and devout John Howe. Among the emigrant ancestors were Edward Howe, who came over in the Truelove in 1636. John Howe, who came a few years earlier, and Thomas Howe. The record of the family is a patriotic one. Many representatives fought in the Colonial wars and in the Revolution. Baxter Howe was Captain of artillery in the Revolution; Jaazaniah Howe was sergeant, and Dr. Estes Howe was a surgeon, then there was Lieutenant Bezaleel Howe who served through the Revolution, and was an auxiliary lieutenant in Washington's own guard for the last six months of the war. The old sword carried by Colonel Ezekiel Howe in the Concord fight is one of the relics treasured by his descendants, The arms are described as gules, a chevron argent between three cross-crosslets, or and three wolves heads. Crest, a wyvern or dragon pierced through the mouth with an arrow. These arms are supposed to have been brought from England by John Howe in 1630. The arms of Lord Chedworth, Henry Howe, are similar. The crest however, is a dexter arm and the motto is, "Justus et Propositi Tenax." The coat of arms, gold upon a blue ribbon, is the badge worn by the Howes when they gather for the family reunion. The first of these meetings took place in 1871, at Harmony Grove, South Framingham, Mass: 5,000 Howes were invited and 3,000 answered the roll call. "We spent the day" said one "telling one another how we loved the good old name of Howe." Julia Ward Howe wrote a poem on the name which was sung to the tune of "Do They Miss Me at Home?" "I particularly admire two Howes", one of the speakers of the day said. "One was Jemima Howe, who was captured by the Indians, and the other was Samuel G. Howe who was captured by Julia Ward. I admire Jemima because she escaped, and Dr. Howe because he didn't. Tribute was paid, of course, to Elias Howe, who worked out the problem of the sewing machine, and to the martyr of the family, Mrs. Elizabeth Howe, of Ipswich, hung for witch-craft in 1692, "whose virtues sanctified the altar and made her name illustrious".

(179) EMELINE HARRIET (SIGGINS) HOWE:

The subject of this sketch, Emeline Harriet Howe, eldest daughter of Rachel Dawson and George Simpson Siggins, was born in West Hickory, Forest Co., Pa., in 1844. Her grandparents were among the early race of hardy pioneers of the best type who helped to mould and fashion, after the most substantial pattern, the civilization, the society and the religion of the new world. The family were Methodists from the days of John Wesley, whom they have ever esteemed as a true spiritual descendent of the apostles, and were co-laborers with him. She remembered with pleasure a visit of Bishop Matthew Simpson to her father's home. The Bishop was a relative of the family—when, in answer to his inquiries, she related with girlish confidence her religious experience, the good man placed his hands upon her head and prayed that the blessing of the Father might rest upon her.

Educated in the midst of the romantic scenery of the banks of the Allegheny, she early acquired a love for nature in all her beautiful attire which developed into a sanctified passion. The Book of Nature with its broad open pages speaking to her heart and pointing to that God who is the author of all beauty, all grandeur and all sublimity. She acquired such an education as the schools of the time afforded; but not content with this, she became a life-long and continual student—graduating in 1882—in the first class of the C. L. S. C., "The Pioneers," completing several courses in Normal and Bible Class work, and reading with delight many of the choicest works of our best English authors. Her poetic nature and manifest talent found early exercise in frequent and appreciated contributions to Peterson's, Godey's and other magazines and periodicals. Her interpretation of nature, if not deep, was always true, and her "verses", as she persisted in modestly calling them, showed genuine poetic feeling.

At twenty-three years of age she was married to Captain Wesley C. Howe, who served his country gallantly during the Great Rebellion, shared with Chaplain C. C. McCabe the experiences of prison life, and left a splendid record for distinguished military service.

She is the mother of five sons, who show a wonderful affection for this gifted mother, and are receiving the ineffaceable impress of her beautiful Christian life and character. When the cares of a family and the varied experiences connectd with the large business enterprises in which her husband was engaged, had developed and matured the graces of Christian motherhood and womanhood, her poems assumed a decided religious tone; and when at a still later period she had received a fullness of the divine blessing many of her productions became rich in religious sentiment, experience, and comfort. Her poems grow out of her own experience or her tender sympathy with others. They are written with a purpose—the highest and the best. They present redeemed human nature without error, exaggeration, or awkwardness. She has found what others have also found to be true, that to pen down the language of the heart brings submission, relief, comfort and joy.

"The Christian Advocate," "Gospel in All Lands," "Divine Life", "Magazine of Poetry" and other journals have been enriched from her fertile pen. It is to be hoped that she may be induced to select from her writings a volume for early publication.

Mrs. Howe is a thorough and constant Bible student. Her Bible is her one book above all others, and the vast multitude of marked and annotated passages shows how fully she has made the blessed volume her study. She seems to have an intuitive perception of the spiritual meaning of the word, so that she finds in every part of this store-house an inexhaustible supply of food for the soul. This explains her interest and activity, and her pronounced success, in all religious and reformatory work. She was a member of the first organized Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and has filled with great efficiency many of the county and state offices. The Woman's Foreign and Home missionary societies have found in her a powerful friend and ardent supporter. She is a ready speaker and graceful writer and both voice and pen are in constant demand to assist in Christian and philanthropic work.

No person can be more truly humble than the subject of this sketch. She knows and freely declares that whatever of worth is found in her character is due to the grace of God, and her rich intellectual endowment and womanly grace and culture are joyfully consecrated to the good of men, and the greater glory of her Divine Friend. Though often appearing in public, in her presence and utterances, she ever adorns, with her reserve and modesty, and divinest type of womanhood. True to herself, to her family, to her friends, to her church and to her God, a genuine, active, talented, consecrated, Christian. The benediction of many friends abide with her.

REV. J. N. FRADENBURGH, Ph. D. L. L. D.

Mrs. Wesley Curtis Howe, (Emeline Harriet Siggins) was the first President of the Ladies Circle of the Grand Army of the Republic known as the Lincoln Circle No. 19, of Kansas City, Missouri. She was a graduate of the first class of C. L. S. C., and in a competitive examination at Chautauqua, N. Y. after a series of studies and lectures on "The New Education in the Church", of these only twenty-four finished their papers, Mrs. Howe being one among the number. Her poem, "From Height to Height" written on her Class motto was read at Chautauqua. Her work done as a student covered a period of many years beginning as a normal student about 1876, she was graduated from this department with honor; also with the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, Pioneer class in 1882. Won the Bishop John H. Vincent gold medal, for passing the best examination in a class of over two-hundred, which included ministers, professors, and others ranking high in the educational world. She has been for many years a consistent member of the Methodist Church, and has been a life long contributor to the "Union Signal," "Christian Advocate," and other religious publications. The Class poem "From Height to Height" follows:

FROM HEIGHT TO HEIGHT.

It is ever by sunny foot hills,
Our gladsome feet have trod,
That we reach the clearer uplands
That lead to the Mount of God.
We climb not the glittering icy peaks,
Of earth's mountains clad in snow,
WALTER SIMPSON HOWE.
(196)
With the crash and roar of avalanche
   And where cruel winds do blow;

But the hills that our Lord hath builted;
   Where the breath of his tender love
Is the wind that moveth the palm tree,
   That lifts to his skies above.
And the spirit that leads us upward
   Touches our lips with a song,
And the Hope, as each height appeareth,
   Beareth our feet along.

But the bounds of our earthly vision,
   Mark not the souls clear sight;
And the limits that hold the body,
   Are naught to the spirit's flight.
Where the glorious hills are lifted,
   Climbing height on height, we rise,
We scale them, and lo in the distance,
   Inwrought in the heavenly skies,

Is the gateway whose open portal,
   One saw who on Nebo trod,
And the light of its city forever,
   Gleams far o'er the city of God.
They stand unattained in their splendor,
   Reaching far in Shekinahs of bliss,
The peaks we may reach in that country,
   By climbing the foothills in this.

COPY OF LETTER TO MRS. JAMES Y. SIGGINS.

Hon. James L. Connelly who was born in 1827 and was a son of James Connelly of Franklin, Pa., writes from Atlantic City, June 4, 1894, to Mrs. James Y. Siggins regarding her husband.

"I had known your husband since about 1844; during that long stretch of time, our friendship had never been broken or disturbed in any way. The most cordial relations always existed between us; we never differed either in business or political matters but lived as neighbors in peace and harmony."
When I was a boy about 15 years of age, residing at Franklin, I often heard my father speak of grand-father George Siggins and Thomas Dawson of Allegheny township, Venango County, in terms of admiration and respect; as model men; as good citizens of irreproachable character, fine morals and high standing. I heard so much in their praise so often spoken that I was anxious to meet them and make their acquaintance. My father always taught me to honor and respect the names of Siggins and Dawson. In the year 1844 I was 17 years old, and began to clerk in the Prothonotary's office of Venango County, under my father, who was Prothonotary and residing in Franklin, and I occupied that position over five years, and during which time I met grand-father George Siggins and his six sons, viz: William, George, Isaac C., Nathanial H., John and James Y., who often served as jurors. They frequently called at my father's home in court week, and no one in the county was more welcome or more hospitably received than they were. They were all men of good character, good citizens, men of intelligence and influence and of good morals and believed in doing right and showing justice to others and stood up boldly and manfully for the right in all things. They enjoyed the respect and esteem of their fellow citizens in a high degree, and when they departed this life were sincerely mourned, not only by relatives, but by hosts of admiring friends and neighbors.

Grand-father George Siggins was one of the early pioneers of Allegheny township, Venango County. He went when a young man into the wilderness and with energy, industry and perserverance for his capital, cut down the forest and cleared up a farm, erected buildings, built fences, made roads and assisted in building churches and school houses and reared a family of six sons, educated them as best he could and assisted each of them in procuring farms when they were married. Such a man I consider a public benefactor, a philanthropist, a friend to his race and as useful to the public and entitled to as great honor and praise as the successful general, the eminent statesman, or the great lawyer or distinguished jurists who have served their country well. I often enjoyed the pleasure of hearing Grand-father Siggins speak in class-meeting at Asbury Chapel and also in Pleasantville. He was a man of deep piety and strong religious conviction and his voice gave no uncertain sound and it was easy to tell upon what foundation he stood. He was a christian gentleman, good citizen and the worthy father of a noble family. It is no wonder the sons of such a man made good citizens.

After becoming acquainted with your late husband fifty years ago at Franklin, when I was married in 1852, and settled on a farm in Allegheny township, Venango County, I became better acquainted with him and our acquaintance ripened into close friendship; and when I moved to Pleasantville in the fall of 1861 and was elected Justice of the Peace in 1864 and served as such for 4 years, Mr. Siggins practiced law before me, and as attorney tried many lawsuits before me, with skill and ability. He always advocated the cause of his clients ably and eloquently. Then it was that I came to know him better. In 1867 I was elected Associate Judge of Venango County and Mr. Siggins was elected Commissioner of the county. He performed his official duties as Commissioner with signal ability and fidelity to the satisfaction of the public. After my long acquaintance of 50 fifty years with Mr. Siggins, the highest and most truthful eulogy that I can pronounce upon his life and character, without the slightest exaggeration, would be to say, that he was a kind husband, a loving and affectionate father, a good citizen, loyal to his country and always loyal to his friends a man of integrity and honesty and good morals, he always gave good advice and set a good example to others, a patriotic and public spirited citizen, who always in official life performed his duties fearlessly, for the public good; and that in all his relations in life he acted the part of a true gentleman to and with everybody. The record of such a life will ever remain a bright memory and be a pleasure to his surviving children and grandchildren.

While I am speaking of the Siggins family I wish to mention the names of two sons of Nathaniel H. Siggins, viz: Pat and Sim, both young men working on their father's farm at Stewarts Run, Venango County, when the war of the rebellion broke out. They laid down their farming implements and offered their services in defence of their country, by enlisting in a Pennsylvania regiment of which John M. McLain of Erie, Pa., was Colonel, and Mr. Strong Vincent of Erie, was Lieut. Colonel. In 1862 the late M. C. Beebe and I started from Harrisburg to Virginia to visit the soldier boys of Pleasantville and Allegheny Township. We found them in Camp at Hall's hill, near the Potomac River, above the city of Alexandria, where eighty thousand soldiers were in camp. We slept in the tent with the boys at night and took breakfast with them and the next day Colonel McLain invited Mr. Beebe and I to take dinner with him, and we asked the Colonel about the boys—what kind of soldiers they made. He said they were among the best and bravest in the regiment and that W. F. House, Frank Nolen, Morrison and others, whose names I cannot recall, were brave and obedient and always ready and willing to face the enemy by day or night, and Col. McLain said that Pat and Sim Siggins were first-class soldiers, brave, courageous, always ready to march, ever obedient to orders, never sick and ever ready to do their duty on all occasions and in every emergency.

(55) James Young Siggins, brother of Isaac Connelly Siggins, lived more than half his life in Pleasantville, Pennsylvania, where he had many warm friends who ever found him a thoughtful and deliberate adviser. He was most positive in his opinions of right and wrong and handled questions of vice and immorality "without gloves". In Politics he was a Republican but he often denounced his party when he did not approve of their methods.

By inheritance and education he was a Methodist. In childhood his father had taken him to hear John Wesley preach and he was proud of the fact that his maternal grandfather had been a close friend of John Wesley and went about with him and assisted him in his work of establishing and maintaining churches in Ireland.

JUDGE WILLIAM SIGGINS

(5) "Judge William Siggins⁶, born in Ireland, May 12, 1789; son of John Siggins, who died in 1801; came about two years later with his brother George, to Pithole, in Venango County, Pa., then an almost uninhabited wilderness.

It is related that, when the few settlers were holding an old fashioned revival meeting, William Siggins was converted; that he received the power and the pious impulse which did not forsake him through all his active life.

In 1807 he settled in Brokenstraw, on the present site of Youngsville, at the place now occupied by his son William Findlay Siggins.

There was no house of worship in the neighborhood then, and four years elapsed with little opportunity for religious services.

In 1811, however, he had the privilege of going to Meadville, to attend the first camp-meeting ever held in this part of Pennsylvania.

He married in 1812, and at that time built a grist-mill at Pithole; in 1815 he returned to Youngsville and remained until his death on the 15th of July, 1875. His wife died in 1855.

Judge Siggins, was a life-long, fervent Christian. He had not only "a sound mind in a sound body" but a powerful mind in a powerful body, and it was a pity he had not had the advantages of a thorough academic training, which would have made him more skilled in the use of the weapons nature had put in his hands.

He bore an active part in the War of 1812, and was with Commodore Perry at Lake Erie.

His mind was admirably adapted for judicial labors, a fact sufficiently attested by his long service as a justice of the peace, and his long list of decisions (of which it is recorded there were four thousand), not one of which, it is said, was ever reversed.

He was decidedly impulsive in disposition, though his strong sense of justice usually checked him from making an obverse use of his natural force; his parents were from the "North of Ireland" and were of Scotch-Irish blood."

He was but four years of age when his parents emigrated to America. There were few books to be obtained when he went to school—Webster's spelling book and The Testament were about all he had to use when he attended school.

He served the courts of Warren and Venango Counties in all about sixty years. He served as Constable for twelve years. Then he was made High Constable, an office which carried with it very little power until the Judge had a law passed by the State Legislature giving the High Constable the right to transact all business heretofore delegated to the regular constable. It resulted in the business all falling to Judge Siggins as he had foreseen, and the profits of the same falling to him. That law is still in force at the present time.

He lived for a while on Stewarts Run where he and Judge Connely operated a saw mill in partnership. He was a member of the Jury when the first court in Warren County was held.
WILLIAM FINDLEY SIGGINS.

EDITH DIENNIE (NELSON) SIGGINS.
(267)
Judge Siggins married in Centre County, Pa., May 8, 1812, Polly Wilson; they were the parents of thirteen children, eight sons and four daughters. Two of the sons, Nathaniel and William Findlay reside in Youngsville; their youngest son, Porter Siggins, served during the late war in the III Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, and rendered distinguished assistance to the northern cause, taking part in nineteen engagements; he was killed at Antietam July 20, 1864, by a bullet which passed through a pocket Testament, to his heart, causing instant death. The Testament is now in the possession of his brother Nathaniel Siggins of Youngsville.

Judge Siggins made his home for many years with his son William Findlay, in Youngsville, and it was from this home that his spirit took its flight Thursday, July 15, 1875, at the age of 86 years, 2 months and 3 days. A short time previous to his death, he made all arrangements for his funeral and burial. He wished Henry P. Kinnear to take charge and Elder Norton to preach his funeral sermon, but as he was unable to be present, the Rev. Mr. Clark officiated; he had also selected the text from which he wished the sermon preached; it was from Matthew, eighth chapter, 11th and 12th verses; he named the following: John McKinney, Joshua F. Currie, W. D. Belnap, J. Phillips, W. J. Davis and David Bowman, to act as pall bearers at his funeral.

Of his son, William Findlay, John B. White of Kansas City, Missouri, writes the following:

(267) William Findlay Siggins was born in Youngsville, Pa., in 1822. He married September 4, 1850, Edith D. Nelson, born in Busti, Chautauqua County, N. Y. They had a family of three sons—Clarence, Ernest and Frank Morris. Clarence is a graduate of the Randolph Institute; Ernest is a physician and surgeon, was graduated from Cincinnatti Medical College in 1877; and F. Morris is a prescription and drug clerk. Mrs. Edith Siggins was a daughter of Normandus and Prudence (Bushnell) Nelson.
They were born and married in Herkimer County, N. Y., and settled in Busti, N. Y., in January, 1823, where they died. "Squire" W. F. Siggins had held all the town offices and served as school director twelve years, burgess two terms, justice of the peace two years, also held other minor offices and was for a time Deputy Sheriff and served as constable for several years. He was a teacher for twenty years during his early life and taught the first graded school in Youngsville; he was postmaster under James K. Polk. He was engaged in the lumber business in 1873. His wife, Edith Diana, was also an early school teacher. He was a son of Judge William and Polly (Wilson) Siggins, who were both born in Ireland of Scotch and Irish parentage. He was born in 1789 and came to Centre County in 1793, where his parents died. Judge William and Polly were married in 1812. He settled in Broken-straw township in 1807, and after his marriage resided at Pithole until 1815, when they returned to Youngsville. They had thirteen children, five of whom were living in 1887.

Judge William Siggins was a leading and influential man; was a justice of the peace for many years and was elected Associate Justice of Warren County in 1842. Squire W. F. Siggins inherited a legal and analytical mind. He was a great reader, a close student and was possessed of a very retentive memory. He was an eloquent speaker and as he had ready command of language, he always proved a formidable opponent in debate. In politics he was a Democrat. He was a man of firm opinions, as would be expected from his Scotch-Irish ancestry. He was practical and fair and consistent in his judgment and was a loyal and good citizen, respected and loved by those who knew him best. He was ever loyal to his country and tried to enter the service of the United States during the Civil War but was prevented by ill health. He was frequently called upon to lecture on educational subjects. He with several of his brothers, made a trip to California in the early days of the gold excitement. They went by boat around Cape Horn—returning by the Isthmus of Panama.
I think it was in July, 1875, that I assisted in getting up a Fourth of July celebration. It proved to be a great and enthusiastic event for the village in Youngsville and the Valley of the Brokenstraw. The attendance was unusually large; everybody came and we had all kinds of races, including the tub races on the Brokenstraw Creek; we had the greased pig and the climbing of the greased pole; we had perfect order and it was probably the largest Fourth of July celebration ever held in Youngsville. W. F. Siggins was the orator of the day and the large attentive audience helped to inspire him to make one of the most appropriate and eloquent addresses I ever heard on any occasion. He characterized Uncle Sam in dress from hat to shoes and features. I had the great pleasure of introducing this Uncle Sam to this large assembly. His make up was perfect and his address most inspiring.

He spoke of his sons, the original thirteen states, as a father would speak of his boys. The early history of the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Mexican War and on down to the Civil War and of the sons that had up to that time been added to his family. Like a father, he mourned because he had to use force in thrashing his rebellious sons, and in a very unique manner, he feelingly spoke of these recalcitrant boys—now giving him hope and joy in laying down their arms and coming back to the old home. It was a speech never to be forgotten by those who heard it.

Mr. Siggins had a wonderfully good and talented wife; she was a typical wife, mother and home maker, and was loved by all the neighbors and by all who were fortunate in having her friendship and acquaintance. She was of a superior family, and inherited rare virtues from the Nelson and the Bushnell families. Herself a great student, she fully realized the value of a good practical education for her children and employed every means in her power for their advancement. She died in Youngsville.

The late B. F. Morris, once editor and publisher of the Warren Ledger recently wrote the following letter regarding the subject of this sketch:

"Your letter—of April 24th, ult., asking if I would write a sketch of your father and his acquirements, to be incorporated in a book now in contemplation by Mrs. J. B. White, bearing upon the Siggins Family, is at hand.

"While past the age of writing for publication, I cannot deny your request to make an attempt to portray your father's qualities as friend, father, citizen and thinker. Of course, he was human and possessed qualities belonging thereto, as is the case of all who bear the human form.

"One of his strong points was that of personal friendship. He would sacrifice much for a real friend. W. F. Siggins was too much of a Celt in blood to bear physical or mental punishment without giving resistance. He could topple down the cob-houses of his opponents when his ire was up, to the discomfiture of the opposing force, and then smile at their confusion. Physically, he was not a strong man, but mentally he could summon up a power which tipped over whole "Skillets of minnies" and there was nothing left on the table for the sustenance of the hungry aggressor.

"W. F. Siggins needed no 'preparedness' for his intellectual battles, but seemed always prepared for emergencies, as he was not only a reader, but a thinker. Beware of a thinker!

"W. F. Siggins was undoubtedly indebted to his father, the late Judge William Siggins, for his natural legal cast of mind, for he did understand the fundamental principles of the law. It was said of Judge William Siggins, who for years had served as Justice of the Peace, that never one of his decisions was reversed by the Higher Court. W. F. Siggins was Justice of the Peace for many years to the entire satisfaction of the Youngsville community, and Youngsville was and is known for its mental acquirements. They measured his judicial ability and by their votes pronounced him a judicial success."
"I wish to say further that W. F. Siggins, had he been called upon, was fitted to serve the public in any grade, from Justice of the Peace to that of Member of Congress, better than many who go to Congress from many districts in the several states. He had quickness of perception and possessed a natural legal talent which the most crafty could not compass. He was independent in thinking and fearless in action. It is a truth that often the best fitted are not awarded the honors in politics. Too many times party rules instead of Justice. Your father was fitted for public service, an original thinker and an honest man."

"I will add that I well knew Mr. W. F. Siggins and prized his friendship. He was my friend and I was his friend and I am glad to pay him this just tribute. One of his last acts was to draw the will of Joshua Currie whereby he left a bequest to build the Industrial Department of the Youngsville School, which Mr. Currie had confidentially promised me he would provide for."

(Signed) J. B. WHITE.
On the 15th day of June 1869, a number of the surviving soldiers of the war of 1812-15 met in Warren, Pennsylvania. Hon. William Siggins was chosen president of the meeting and Robert Mills, secretary. They passed resolutions regarding the granting of pensions to soldiers of the last war with England, and were hospitably entertained by L. L. Lowry, Esq., at the Carver House, with a dinner sumptuous in its appointments. The veterans present were as follows: Zachary Eddy, of Warren, aged ninety eight years; John Geer of Glade township, aged seventy-eight years; Emanuel Crull, of Tidioute, aged eighty years; Caleb Thompson, of Pine Grove township, aged eighty-four years; Isaac Davis, of Brokenstraw township, aged seventy-seven years; John Brown of Brokenstraw township, aged seventy-three years. WILLIAM SIGGINS, of Youngsville, aged eighty years; Isaac Lopus, of Pittsfield, aged seventy-seven years; Elisha Sterling of Limestone, aged eighty-one years. Ira Badger, of Pine Grove, aged seventy-four years, and Joseph Ackley, of the same township, aged seventy-nine years, were also veterans of the same war, and living at that time, but were unable to attend the meeting.

"F. M. Siggins, at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association, held at Forest Park, has just been awarded the prize offered for the best paper on 'Commercial Pharmacy.' This was the paper on the use of coal tar derivatives in medicine, such as headache powders and pain remedies, and was largely copied in the medical and pharmaceutical papers. The paper dealt with the subject at length, and served as a timely warning against the too free use of these remedies, with valuable explanations of their danger to health. Mr. Siggins is a member of the drug firm of Ballinger and Siggins, of Meadville, Pa., and is considered one of the best pharmacists in the state. 'Meadville's popular druggist' is a term of one meaning when applied to a man who can, like Mr. Siggins, land the nomination for school director on both Republican and Democratic tickets on the same day."

In 1878 he engaged in the mercantile trade, later purchasing a drug store and combining these in the present store building which was erected in 1886. He was appointed Postmaster in 1884. He continued in active business up to the time when his failing health compelled him to retire. Mr. Agrelius was President of the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Church for over thirty years. BUSHNELL FAMILY.

332. "Ye Elder Francis Bushnell, the progenitor of the Bushnell family in America; married Rebekah Holmes; they were of Horsted in Surrey, Eng.

They sailed from London in 1639, in the company of Rev. Henry Whitfield. During the voyage the passengers formulated the plantation covenant and Francis Bushnell was among the twenty-five signers. The company reached New Haven in July, purchased lands from the Indians, and established a plantation which remained independent until 1643, when it was admitted to the New Haven Colony and named Guildford. Frances Bushnell died 1646; his will was the first probated at Guildford, Conn. One of the sons of Francis Bushnell was Richard, who removed from Guildford to Saybrook probably immediately after the burning of Saybrook Fort in 1647, when his services as a carpenter were in great demand. He married Oct. 11, 1648, Mary Marvin, daughter of Matthew and Elizabeth Marvin of Hartford who came from England in 1635. He died at Saybrook in 1658, leaving a widow and four small children. She subsequently married Deacon Thomas Adgate and removed with the company; then going from Saybrook founded Norwich in 1660, where she died Mar. 29, 1713. The four children of her first marriage were also removed to Norwich, but whether they continued to live with their mother and step-father or were cared for by her sister is not clear. The two sons, Joseph and Richard, though minors at the time of the settlement, are reckoned among the original or first class planters. Of the two sons, Richard was for more than half a century a prominent figure in Connecticut. He was town clerk for thirty years and member of the General Assembly for thirty-eight sessions. He was also constable, schoolmaster, captain of the train band, town agent, Justice of the Peace and speaker of the House for many years. The other son, Joseph, born May, 1651, was less prominent in public life. He married Nov. 28, 1673, Mary Leffingwell, daughter of Thomas Leffingwell, one of the proprietors and first settlers of Norwich, and prominent in the region for many years. Joseph died Dec. 23, 1746, and his wife Mar. 31, 1745. Nathan Bushnell, the seventh child and fourth son of Joseph, was born at Norwich, Feb. 22, 1686, and died Oct. 7, 1770. He married (1) Dec. 2, 1713, Anne Cary, and (2) Sept. 12, 1715, Mehitable Allen. Of the eight children by the second marriage, Joseph Bushnell was the oldest, born July 20, 1716. He married (1) in 1785, Hannah Kirkland, and (2) Sarah Smith. In 1811, with his wife Sarah and four of his ten children he removed to Rome, N. Y., where he lived as a farmer for many years. In 1845, he and his wife removed to Cincinnatti, Ohio, where he lived with one of his sons until his death in 1847, his wife having died in 1846. Daniel Bushnell, the fifth son of Jason, born in Lisbon, Conn., Feb. 17, 1800, died Oct. 1884, in Ohio; married March 9, 1825. Asa Smith Bushnell, their son, was in 1895 elected Governor of Ohio. Governor Bushnell, like every member of the Bushnell family from early Connecticut, was brought up a Congregationalist, but after his marriage he was an adherent of the Episcopal Church of which his wife was a member. He was a member of the Society of the Colonial Wars, and one of the founders of the Ohio Society of the Sons of the Revolution. He was also an enthusiastic member of the Loyal Legion; also of the Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society. He became a member of the "Old
Other Families

Northwest” Genealogical Society on Oct. 4, 1879. He was made a thirty-third degree Mason September 17, 1857.

MORGAN FAMILY.

JAMES MORGAN—Immigrant Ancestor, was born in Wales, probably at Llandaff, Glamorgan county, but the family appears to have removed to Bristol, England, before 1636. The name of his father is unknown, but there is some traditionary evidence that it was William. In March, 1636, he and two brothers, John and Miles, sailed from Bristol and arrived in Boston, Massachusetts, in April. John Morgan, who appears to have been a high churchman, soon left Boston for the more congenial society of Virginia. Miles Morgan settled in Springfield. James Morgan settled at Roxbury before 1640 and lived there for ten years or more. He was admitted a freeman May 10, 1643. Early in 1650 he was granted land at Pequot, later called New London, Connecticut, and soon occupied by him as a homestead on the path to New Street (now Ashcraft Street) near the present burial grounds in the western suburbs of the city. He continued to occupy this homestead on the path to New Street or Cape Ann Lane, as it was called, in honor of the Cape Ann Company, who chiefly settled there, until March, 1657. He was one of the townsmen or selectmen of New London and one of the first deputies of the general court at Hartford (May, 1657), and was nine times afterward elected a deputy. The spot where he built his house in Groton in 1657 and afterward resided and where he died, is a few rods southeast the Groton ferry, on the road to Pocuonoco bridge, and this homestead has descended down to the present generation by inheritance. He died in 1685, aged seventy-eight years, and his estate was soon afterward divided among his four surviving children. He married Aug. 6, 1640, Margery Hill of Roxbury. Children born in Roxbury, except the youngest child:
i. HANNAH Morgan, b. May 18, 1642; m. Nov. 20, 1660. Henehiam Royce.

ii. JAMES Morgan, b. March 3, 1644; m. Nov., 1666, Mary Vine.

I well remember grandmother Siggins, Uncle George and Uncle William and our dear good father, also Uncle John who left home when I was a small child, he must have been twenty-five or thirty years old at that time. (8) ALEXANDER SIGGINS was a son of John and Sarah (Hood) Siggins, who were born and married in County Sligo, Ireland. He was born May 1, 1793, on board the ship in which the family came from Ireland to America; his father died in 1801, in Center County, Pennsylvania, in 1816 his mother with her family came to Youngsville, where she died in 1835; he was married in Venango County, November 1, 1816, to Margaret Kinnear and settled at Youngsville. Alexander Siggins was a blacksmith, and expert in that business; he owned a large farm extending from "York Hill" to near the center of Youngsville Borough; he built the house now occupied (in 1912) by Mrs. M. B. Davis; "it was the best house in the county, in fact there are few, if any today, that are better, and although now nearly one hundred years old, it is still in a good state of preservation." He joined the Methodist church while a young man and was a leader in all church matters throughout his long life in Youngsville.
"He lived a quiet and honest Christian life, with nothing to make a lengthy biography, but Youngsville lost one of its best citizens when he was called home.

His farm contained a fine tract of timber; later this was divided among his children, all except Benjamin receiving their share. Benjamin had asked that he might be allowed to use his portion of the estate in obtaining an education. His wish was granted. Alexander Siggins and his wife joined the church in 1820. "Uncle Aleck," as he was familiarly called, organized a Sunday School of which he was Superintendent.

MARGARET KINNEAR SIGGINS, wife of Alexander Siggins, was born in Venango County, Pa., December 1, 1801; she was a daughter of Henry Kinnear, Sr., who was born in Ireland, on Easter Sunday about the year 1764; son of Robert and Elizabeth (Verow) Kinnear. He was an officer in the English Army and was sent in 1790 to America to buy horses for the army; after buying and shipping the horses, he resigned, and settled in Centre County, Pa., where he married in 1797 Margaret Kinnear, b. 1779, in Leitrim County, Ireland, a daughter of Thomas and Margaret Kinnear. This Margaret Kinnear was a daughter of William and Jane (Simpson) Kinnear, who lived near Carrick, on the Shannon River, in Connaught Parish, Leitrim County, Ireland. Soon after his marriage he removed to Youngsville, and was the first merchant in the town; he died March 6, 1826; during his residence in Youngsville he held many offices of public trust. For a more extensive history of this family see "The Kinnear Family and their Kin," by Emma Siggins White, Kansas City, Missouri, 1916.

KINNEAR.

In the year 1165, King William granted to one William De Kyner, a tract of land in St. Andrews Parish, County of Fife, Scotland, known as Kyner, or "Kyner Place," the first transfer of this land was to Symon De Kyner, in 1213 and the next to his son of the same name, in 1234; it was next transferred to John Kenner in 1286, and next to his son of the same name; he held it until 1390. One David Kenneir was the owner in 1534; he appears to have been a man of considerable prominence in Scotland and was elected to Parliament in 1560; he died June 21, 1584, aged 63 years.

The next in line comes John Kenneir, and then David who died in 1632, then John again becomes heir to the estate, and his son David was next; he was living and registered arms in 1672; his motto was: "I live in hope." His son David succeeded him, and after his death, the date of which is not given, his son, James Kennear (this appears to be the first time the name was spelled as it is now, Kinnear) succeeded to the estate.

About the year 1680, the family had trouble with the Catholic Church, and James Kinnear was excommunicated; in 1682 he removed with his family to Londonderry, Ireland, where he died in 1700; his son James was father of two sons, James and Charles Kinnear; Charles married in 1772 and had a son, Charles, who married in 1792; of this branch of the family we have no further record.

The other son, James Kinnear, married and had a son, William, who was his only heir and from him descend the Kinnears of this history.

William Kinnear was married twice; by his first wife, whose name is unknown, he had one son, James Kinnear, who married in Ireland, Nancy Atchison, and came to America before the Revolutionary War.

William Kinnear married second Jane Simpson; they lived near Carrick, on the Shannon River, in Connaught Parish, Leitrim County, Ireland; the eldest son, William Kinnear, married Eleanor Carney; they both died in Ireland; they had two children, Ann and William, who emigrated in 1791, with their uncle Alexander Kinnear and his family to America.
Between the years 1791 and 1795 the children of William and Jane (Simpson) Kinnear with their families emigrated to America, and settled first in Pennsylvania; from there their descendants have scattered to all parts of the United States.

JACKSON FAMILY.

J1. DANIEL JACKSON, a native of Connecticut, came in 1797, from near Ithica, New York, to Warren County, Pennsylvania, was the progenitor of the Jackson family of western Pennsylvania; was the first settler in what later became known as Conawango township, locating on Jackson run, about a half mile from its mouth, this run still bears his name.

He built the first saw mill and later the first grist mill in the county. The saw mill was completed in 1800, and the first raft of pine lumber, about 30,000 feet, to seek a market down the river from Warren County, was manufactured at this mill and landed in Pittsburgh in the spring of 1801.

To illustrate the isolation of the place and the difficulties of communication, it is related that on one occasion, a trip was made on snow shoes to Waterford, a distance of fifty miles, to obtain salt.

The first preaching in the county was by Rev. Jacob Cram, a missionary of the Congregational church, at the Jackson home; the first quarterly meeting of the Methodist's was held at the Jackson homestead in Conewango township, then occupied by Daniel Jackson's son. There were present at this meeting Bishop McKendree, Rev. Jacob Young, the presiding elder of the Ohio District, Rev. John P. Kent, of Chatauqua county, New York, and Rev. William Connely, of Venango county.

In 1805, Daniel Jackson removed to what is now Warren Borough, and erected from lumber sawed at his mill, the first frame building in Warren, on the lot at the corner of Water and Hickory streets now occupied by the Citizens' National Bank; the building was known for years as Jackson's Tavern. In 1806 he was licensed to keep an inn, having been recommended by the court of Venango county, "as a suitable person for that purpose, and being a temperate landlord."

He was the first constable of his township, being appointed in 1807; and was commissioned a justice of the peace by Governor Snyder on May 31st, 1817, who states in the deed that he reposes "especial trust and confidence in your integrity, judgment and abilities." A copy of this deed is in the possession of his descendants.

The Wetmore farm, adjoining and immediately south of the village of North Warren, was the location chosen by Daniel Jackson for his homestead in 1797, this property consisting of nearly six hundred acres, he deeded May 4, 1814, to William Hodges, the consideration being $1,600, one hundred and ninety-two acres of this land now known as the Wetmore farm, was deeded by William Hodges October 5, 1816, to Asa Winter and Harvey Conant, and by them September 16, 1835, to L. Wetmore.

J1. DANIEL JACKSON, born in Connecticut 1750-51, died June 20, 1830, in the seventy-ninth year of his age, and is said to have been buried on his old homestead, the name of his wife is unknown; his children were:

BEATY FAMILY.

The family is of Scotch origin, at a very early date the surname is found in Dumfries, Aberdeenshire, and Kincardinshire, Scotland. A branch of the family went early to the north of Ireland and the birth records of 1890 in Ireland indicate that in the Scotch provinces of Antrim, Downs, Armagh and Tyrone there were about 3000 of the name of Beaty or Beatty.

Most of the American families of the surname of Beaty, Beatty or Beattie trace their ancestry to the Scotch-Irish pioneers who came to this country in 1728.

John, James and Christiana Beatty came from the north of Ireland, sailing May 20, and landing in New York October 4, 1728, after a terrible voyage. Among those who succumbed to the hardships of the voyage were John Beatty and his wife and five children; those surviving the voyage settled at Little Britian, New Windsor, New York.

Christiana Beaty, widow of John Beaty, Sr., of Antrim, Ireland, was a daughter of James Clinton, grandson of Henry Clinton, second Earl of Lincoln; she married second James Scott and died in New York City in 1776-7, aged ninety.

J25. ROBERT BEATY, probably a descendant of the above, had sons: Robert and Thomas, Robert, Jr., died in 1779, in Newburg, New York, leaving wife Mary and children: Thomas, John, Robert, Francis, Ann, Elizabeth and Mary.

J28. DAVID BEATY, son of William, was born in Beaver Co., October 26, 1811; was a farmer until 1834, then engaged in lumbering in Forest and Warren counties, until oil was discovered, when he began operations on Oil Creek, eight miles south of Titusville, and was successful from the start; he continued in this business until he amassed a fortune; in 1873 he erected a handsome home in Warren, Pa., where he resided until his death in October, 1889; he owned 500 acres of land in Warren county and a tract of 4000 acres in North Dakota. 778a. CAPTAIN WILLIAM TRASK, the immigrant ancestor, was born in England in 1587-8. He was a very early settler of Salem, Massachusetts, probably coming in 1626 before Governor Endicott. He was a member of the Salem Church August 6, 1629, and made his application to become a freeman October 19, 1630. He was appointed commissioner of the general court in 1632 and was captain of his militia company that year in the East Regiment and was muster master.

After the Pequot war he was granted two large tracts of land for his services, one of four hundred acres, the other of two hundred and fifty acres.

Before 1640 he had set up a water mill for grinding corn and also a fulling mill. His date of birth is fixed from two statements on the court records, one giving his age April 22, 1657, as about sixty-nine, another November 29, 1664, giving his age as seventy-seven. When about to Delft, Holland, he made an affidavit in London, England, January 15, 1623, that he was thirty-four years old. He died May 15, 1666.

His will, dated May 15, 1666, was proved June 24, 1666. BENJAMIN BAIRD SIGGINS.

Benjamin Baird son of Alexander and Margaret Kinnear Siggins, was born in Youngsville, Pa. He attended Meadville College, studied law and practiced awhile in Chariton, Iowa; then went to Colorado near Central City, Gilpin Co., where he engaged for a number of years in gold mining. Became Judge of the Probate Court. While the family were on a visit in Warren County, the mother sickened and died at the home of Kinnear Siggins at Cobham, Pa., near Tidioute. He then married Druzilla E. Belnap of Youngsville and went to Philadelphia, where they lived three years. After which they returned to Warren County, Pa. He was always interested in educational matters, served as member of the School Board in Youngsville for six years. While on a visit to his daughter, Emma S. White, in Kansas City, Missouri, in 1895 or 1896, he wrote the following:

"After I left college, I read a course of law in the office of George B. Delamater; afterwards I taught school for three or four years. I was considered quite a traveler for those days for I had been twice to the adjoining county of Crawford and had also visited New York state. In the Spring of 1851, I made the trip from Brokenstraw to St. Paul going all the way by water to Pittsburg on a raft. From there I went down the Ohio River to St. Louis and from there to St. Paul, Minnesota. While there I visited St. Anthony's Falls, which was the head of navigation for the Mississippi boats. While in St. Paul I worked in the office of the Secretary of State; here I met Irvine Siggins, son of my uncle William.

From St. Paul I went to Iowa and worked with a government surveying party laying out township sites. I soon contracted fever and ague and was ill for some weeks. I fortunately fell in with a man who took the best of care of me and stayed with me until I had recovered. I then left the Coon River district near Ft. Des Moines for the more healthful locality on the Redbank River,—here I met an attorney Mr. Allen, who made arrangements for me to call upon a judge in Des Moines before whom I appeared for a verbal examination which resulted in my being turned over to a committee who finally after a lengthy questioning on their part, gave me a certificate which formally admitted me to the Bar at the next term of the District Court of Lucas Co.

I settled in Chariton in July 1852, and lived with a man named Henry Allen. The court house was a small two story log structure, the lower floor being used for public meetings, post office, court room, etc. Rev. Searcy, the postmaster, had a method all his own for delivering the mail. Untying the hemp mail sack, he scattered the contents on the floor and shouted 'Pick out your mail', all that was left he carried in his pockets as he went about town delivering them to the parties to whom they were addressed.” His daughter tells the following:

In the summer of 1861 my father, Benjamin B. Siggins with his family was journeying overland from Iowa to Colorado, somewhere in Nebraska we became separated from our friends who were making the journey with us. We stopped one evening to make camp and were just sitting down to our evening meal when an old Indian chief of the Pawnee Tribe walked into the tent. Father gave him a generous helping of warm biscuits, after eating them he went outside and soon returned with a sharp stick in his hand, this he proceeded to fill with the biscuits which remained on the table. After his departure mother made more biscuits, when we were about to resume our interrupted meal our Indian visitor returned bringing several members of his tribe with him. These were fed as the others had been, departing almost immediately thereafter. When the old chief again returned with still other hungry men father was obliged to refuse to feed them fearing his supply of flour would not last until we reached the next town. This angered the Indians and they withdrew to some distance to hold a council to determine what should be done with us. At the end of about an hour they returned and pointing off across the prairie motioned us to be off—we were not long in taking our departure. It was a very dark night and not until nearly morning did the stars appear revealing to us the fact that we had turned completely around and were driving directly toward the camp we had quitted so hurriedly the night before. This timely discovery probably averted what might have easily been a tragic encounter to say the least.

Erma Walker who married Benjamin Baird Siggins, was seventh in descent from John Walker of Wigton, Scotland.

Katheryn Rutherford was either a niece or full first cousin of Rev. Samuel Rutherford, the non-conformist Divine of Scotland, who was imprisoned for his religious belief and practices. This same Katheryn Rutherford was the grand daughter of Rev. Joseph Allein, author of "Allein's Alarm" and many other religious works. He was silenced and deprived of his position for non-conformity. Katheryn's great grandfather Richard Allein was rector of Batcombe, in Devizes, for upwards of fifty years, and author of a "Shorter Catechism" and numerous other works of like character. Another ancestor of Katheryn Rutherford, Edward Northie, was mayor of Devizes from 1612 to 1635. Elizabeth Erma Walker's great grandfather, Malcum Allen, served in the French and Indian War under Captain John Maxwell.—Also Captain Neville's Company from Albermarle County, Virginia. His journalistic work began on the Erie Dispatch, the Cleveland Plain Dealer and Buffalo Morning Review. While on the staff of the latter, he did some very creditable special work in connection with the Pan-American Exposition. As an eye witness of the assassination of President McKinley, his exclusive stories brought instant recognition in the newspaper field. His story of the tragedy was published in Colliers, Harpers and other well known magazines. In 1902 Mr. Wells became associated with the Buffalo Evening News where he is at present occupying the position of Managing Editor. His column "From Grave to Gay" in this publication has brought Mr. Wells much fame as a verse writer and fun maker. He is generally designated as the logical successor of the Hoosier Poet. His popularity on the lecture platform would seem to predict that he may one day wear the mantle of Riley. The American Press Association honored him by electing him as their president.

WHEN THE FLAG GOES BY.

(Thus speaks Private Thompkins, veteran of foreign service.)

Love of the flag? Well, what do you know of it?—
What do the men of your kind ever show of it,
But stand on your legs when the colors go by
And yelp with the others and never know why?
What do you know, who dodge all the wars
And don't know the colors except at bazaars?
Love of the flag? Well, what do you know of it?—
Men of your kind who ne'er saw the glow of it
Against the black sky at the end of the day
When crimson and daylight were ebbing away?
What do you know, who never surmise
How easy a soldier can smile when he dies?
Love of the flag? Well, what can you tell of it?
Never saw a battle, and don't know the smell of it!
And yet you will boast of your love for the flag,
And don't know the cost of the starry old rag!—
Don’t know the cost in death and in woe,
And don't stop to think of the debt that you owe!
Love of the flag? Well, if you would know of it,
Out on the skirmish line men make a show of it;
It's not the bright colors you see at bazaars,
But tattered and frazzled by heathenish wars!
Hark while the sergeant is checking the "Lost"—
That's love of the flag and the price that it cost!

Jared, who came with Robert to America in the latter part of the 18th century; they with three of their neighbors, named Gilson, Broadfoot and Henderson, with their families sailed from the port of Londonderry, Ireland, and landed at Philadelphia; the Gilsons, Broadfoots and Hendersons settled in Titusville; Robert and Jared Hunter settled in the western part of Pennsylvania in a wilderness, now Centre County; each “located” 100 acres of land near what is now Enterprise, Warren County; in 1808, Robert Hunter sold his land and bought a farm on the east side of the Allegheny, about two miles below Tidioute creek, which is still in the possession of the Hunter family; here he built a log house, cleared and cultivated the land, went to Pittsburg in a canoe for supplies, and he and his wife reared a family of ten children.

JAHU HUNTER.

The Hunter family are from Scotch-Irish ancestry—a race in which the Scotch stability, shrewdness, mental vigor, physical energy and endurance, blended with the geniality, the warm heartedness, the versality of the Irish blood has given us a people whose physical, mental and moral qualities have made them leaders and powerful promoters in every industry and in every profession, and enriched our history with an almost endless roll of distinguished men.

Robert and Elizabeth (Park) Hunter who were born in Ireland in 1758 and 1762 respectively, were ancestors of Jahu Hunter.

About 1808 Robert removed with his family to a farm upon the east side of the Allegheny River and built his house, a rude log cabin, about two miles below the mouth of Tidioute Creek, and this farm was his home until the end of his days. He was a quiet, industrious man, it is said, devoting himself closely to the care of his family and the clearing up and cultivation of his farm. Matthew Hunter, son of Robert and Elizabeth (Park) Hunter, married Sarah Magill and they were the parents of ten children of whom Jahu Hunter was the eldest son and upon him fell a large share of the work and responsibility of the family. Very early in life he became a valuable helper in the work of his father and an important factor in earning for the family their daily bread. In the practical affairs of the time and the region he was an advanced student and in his seventeenth year he began jobbing and getting out and banking square timber. Later he did much work in getting out and rafting lumber and running it to Pittsburg and points below. From these trips he usually returned on foot across country, sometimes securing passage on steamboats for part of the way. In this work he acquired that knowledge of timber lands and the lumber business that made his judgment in such matters so good and brought him so much success in lumbering. On January 1, 1860, he married Margaret R. Magee, daughter of Alexander and Nancy (Smith) Magee. In 1868 he became a Mason and advanced in this order to the thirty-second degree, Scottish Rite. The partnership of Mabie and Hunter, consisting of his brother-in-law and himself, was formed in 1868 and conducted a large business in general merchandising and lumber until 1882. In 1871 he joined with others in organizing the Tidioute Savings Bank, of which he gradually became the chief owner, and of which he was President since 1883. In 1873 he formed a partnership with H. H. Cummings in the oil business. They were also associated in various other enterprises, in the Tidioute Savings Bank, in wheat lands in North Dakota, as members of the Missouri Lumber and Mining Company, in pine lands and lumbering in Missouri. The exhaustion of the oil fields about Tidioute left the borough stagnant, and to bring employment to the idle and prosperity to the community he aided in establishing the Tidioute Chair Co. and became its President and so continued until his death. Jahu Hunter was a man of unusual ability and strong individuality. Simple in his tastes, unpretentious and modest in manner and feeling, helpful to those in distress, seeking always to increase the sum of human happiness and morality and to promote the general well being of his associates. He died March 15, 1897, and is buried in Tidioute.

Livingston Legrand Hunter, only son of Jahu and Margaret R. Hunter, was born in Tidioute, Pa., Jan. 10th, 1861. He attended the home schools and later, the Pennsylvania Military Academy at West Chester, and Oberlin College, graduating from the latter institution in 1882. His business education was obtained from his association with his father and he proved an efficient teacher, as his son was an apt pupil. Gradually the large business interests of the father were delegated to the son and when the elder Mr. Hunter died in 1897, his son easily assumed the entire responsibility and discharged with great credit the many duties pertaining to a large and growing business, carrying out with conscientious fidelity every idea and plan both in business and charitable enterprises originated by his father. After his death his wife and mother followed the same plan in trying to fulfill the wishes of the elder Mr. Hunter. Thus we see the generous impulses of one good man continuing to bear fruit for many years.

The fine high school building erected by Mrs. Jahu Hunter and Mrs. L. L. Hunter to the memory of their loved ones is most typical of the men it was built to honor.
Livingston Hunter was married January 6, 1887, to Lillian Acomb, daughter of Dr. James L. Acomb of Tidioute. He met a most tragic death on April 20, 1902, when the steamer “Pittsburg” was destroyed by fire near Cairo, on the Mississippi River.

Many of Mr. Hunter’s qualities were inherited from his capable mother who was a woman of unusual strength of character and sterling worth. She will long be remembered and honored. In her death the remaining members of her family lost a wise counsellor and friend.

GENERAL WILLIAM IRVINE.

William Irvine was born at Fermanagh, Ireland, November 3, 1741. Educated at the University of Dublin, he studied medicine, and was sometime surgeon in the English Navy. After the peace of 1763, he removed to Pennsylvania and settled at Carlisle. He was a member from Cumberland county of the Convention which met at Philadelphia on the 15th of July, 1774, and recommended a general Congress. He was a representative in the succeeding conferences of the Province. In 1776 he raised and commanded the Sixth Penn'a regiment, and was captured at Trois Rivieres, Canada. On the 3d of August was released on parole; exchanged May 6, 1778. The same year he was appointed Colonel of the Second Penna. regiment, and the 12th of May, 1779, a brigadier general. He served under Wayne during that and the following year. In the autumn of 1781 he was stationed at Fort Pitt, intrusted with the defense of the northwestern frontier. In 1784 he served as a member of the council of censors. In 1785 he was appointed by the governor of Penn'a an agent to examine the public lands of the state, and suggested the purchase of the "Triangle," thus giving Penn'a an outlet upon Lake Erie. He was member of the old Congress of 1786-8, and of the Constitutional Convention of 1790. In 1794 Gov. Mifflin appointed him, with chief Justice McKean, a commissioner to go to the western counties. He served as member of Congress from 1793 to 1795. He was president of the Penn'a Society of the Cincinnati. He died at Philadelphia on 29th of July, 1804.

(Pa. Ar. 2d S. Vol. IV. p. 142.)

The ancestors of General William Irvine (1741-1804), came from Scotland, and settled at a little village called Irvinestown, also called Loutherstown, on the banks Lough Eine, a few miles from Enniskillen, county Fermanagh, Ireland, here he was born.

He emigrated to America in 1763, and settled at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, where he practiced his profession of physician and surgeon with success until 1774, when he was appointed one of the representatives to the provincial convention which met in Philadelphia in that year, he later joined the Revolutionary army and served as mentioned above; he was also commander-in-chief of the Pennsylvania troops during the "whisky insurrection."

His brothers, Captain Andrew Irvine, and Dr. Matthew Irvine, were also distinguished soldiers in the Revolution; from one of these brothers is descended the Irvine and Andrews families of Bradford Pennsylvania.

General Warren Chapter, Daughters of the American revolution, of Warren, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Silas Elsworth Walker, regent, has developed and beautified 800 feet of Crescent Park, fronting on the Allegheny River at Warren.

This park was given to Warren by the gr-granddaughters of Gen. William Irvine (Mrs. Newbold and Mrs. Biddle), daughters of Dr. Wm. A. Irvine.

Gen. Irvine was a soldier of the Revolution and a trusted friend of Washington.

The especial feature of historic interest was the erection of a granite bowlder and tablet to the early pioneers of Warren prior to the year 1820.

The unveiling exercises were held October 4, 1912; the plat of ground named "Pioneer Circle."

Inscription of the granite bowlder bronze tablet:

"In honor of general William Irvine, born near Enniskillen, Ireland, 1740, died in Philadelphia, July, 1804—Who served with distinction in the war of the Revolution, who surveyed and laid out the town of Warren in the year 1795 and whose descendants presented Crescent Park to the town of Warren.”

Also a bowlder and bronze tablet with the names of thirty-eight pioneers (many of them of Revolutionary ancestry); on the reverse side of this bowlder was placed a chapter tablet, with insignia and watchword, and names of the committee and regent having the work in charge.

WAR RECORDS OF DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND SARAH (HOOD) SIGGINS.

Twice within the period of this history did our country call for soldiers. The first time was in the war of 1812, when men were needed to reinforce Commodore Perry, at Erie, in 1813. There were then the four sons of John Siggins to respond. They were William Siggins, who was first Sergeant, George, John, and Alexander. They marched to Erie but were not called upon for active service. In the late war there was a good representation of the family, notwithstanding their deserts as brave soldiers to a full account of their heroism, it is only possible to give a brief mention of each one, and it is hoped that none are here omitted. Of the grand-sons of George Siggins, there were Nathaniel Simpson Siggins, James Patterson Siggins, who was wounded, Isaac Wilson Siggins, William Young Siggins, and William Parker Siggins, a soldier honored for his dauntless courage. Sarah Connelly's grand-sons, Isaac and Wilber McGee also served in the war. Judge Siggins had two sons, Nathaniel and Irvine, and two grand-sons Irvine and Walter Mead. Alexander Siggins' son John and his grand-son Vincent Trask also. Of those who married into the family are Captain Ferry, and Captain Peter Grace, of Jamestown, Colonel W. C. Howe of Montpelier, Ind., Clinton Smith, John Gilfillan and Cyrus Richardson.

But there are other names which though no more often on the tongues of men, are yet above all deserving of tender memory: They are August Trask, killed at White Mountain; Isaac Richardson, killed in the battle of the wilderness; George Siggins, died in the hospital of wounds received at Dallas, Georgia; Captain Benjamin Smith, killed at Hatches Run; Jefferson McGee, and Porter Siggins, killed at Atlanta, Georgia, the bible in his pocket not being sufficient to stop the fatal bullet on its way to that young heart. At present the descendants of John Siggins are scattered from Canada to Mexico, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, while Ireland seems well supplied with those of other branches of the family.

REUNION OF VETERANS OF THE WAR OF 1812.

"On the 12th of June 1869, a number of the surviving soldiers of the War of 1812-15 met in Warren, Pennsylvania.

Hon. William Siggins, was chosen president of the meeting and Robert Miles secretary.

They passed resolutions regarding the granting of pensions to soldiers of the last war with England, and were hospitably entertained by L. L. Lowrey, Esq., at the Carver House with a dinner sumptuous in its appointments.

The veterans present were as follows:

Zachariah Eddy, of Warren, aged ninety years; Robert Miles, of Warren, aged seventy-six years; Stephen Olney, of Warren, aged seventy-eight years; John Geer, of Glade Township, aged seventy-eight years; Emanuel Crull, of Tidioute, aged eighty years; Caleb Thompson, of Pine Grove Township, aged seventy-seven; John Brown, of Brokenstraw Township, aged seventy-three years; William Siggins, of Youngsville, aged eighty years; Isaac Lopus, of Pittsfield, aged seventy-seven years; Elisha Sterling, of Limestone, aged eighty-one years.—Ira Badger, of Pine Grove, aged seventy-four years; and Joseph Ackley, of Pine Grove, aged seventy-nine years; were also veterans of the same war but were unable to attend."

History of Warren County, Pa., p—137.
When men were needed to reinforce Commodore Perry, at Erie, in 1813, the four sons of John Siggins responded; they were:

WILLIAM Siggins⁷, who was first sergeant.
GEORGE Siggins⁴.
JOHN Siggins⁷.
ALEXANDER Siggins⁸.

They marched to Erie, but were not called upon for active service.

CIVIL WAR RECORD.

The 83d regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers contained more members of the Siggins family and its connections than any other military organization on record. You need not be told that the 83d was one of the fighting regiments of the war.

It participated in 20 battles and was present at, but not actively engaged in 14 more, a total of 34. It encountered more fighting and lost more in battle than any other Pennsylvania regiment, and in fact more than any other in the Union army. The number of killed and wounded was 971, more than one-half its total enrollment. None of its losses was caused by blunders nor did any of them occur in disastrous routs. Its dead always laid with their faces to the enemy. It had the honor, at Gettysburg, in participating in the maneuvers of its brigade, Vincent, one of its colonels, in seiging Little Round Top at a critical moment helped materially to save the honors of the day. At Spottsylvania its casualties amounted to 21, killed, 119 wounded, and 24 missing, a total of 164. General McClellan once publicly announced the 83d, “one of the very best regiments of the army”. In this organization seven members of the Siggins family and its immediate connections were honored members”.

He was wounded at Spotsylvania but never left his company and was killed in command of his company at Hatcher's Run, Feb. 6, 1865. He was a veteran as the term was understood then, and obtained a furlough early in 1865, during which he visited his home and was married to Marianne Siggins. He returned to the army and in about two weeks after his marriage he was killed. Captain Smith was a polished scholar and gentleman, a sterling and valorous soldier.

L. B. R. Address:

Record and Pension Office, War Department, Washington City, Dec. 27, 1894. Captain Peter Grace, late of Company E, Eighty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers, 144 Chandler Street Jamestown, N. Y.

Sir:—I have the honor to inform you that, by direction of the president, and in accordance with the act of Congress approved March 2, 1863, providing for the presentation of medals of honor to such officers, non-commissioned officers and privates as have most distinguished themselves in action, the secretary of war has awarded you a medal of honor for gallantry at the battle of the Wilderness, Virginia, May 5, 1864. The medal has been forwarded to you by registered mail. Upon receipt of the medal please advise this office thereof.

Very respectfully
F. C. AINSWORTH.
Colonel, U. S. Army.
Chief Record and Pension Office.

CAPTAIN W. C. HOWE, a son-in-law of George Simpson Siggins, enlisted in February 1863, as a private in Company M, California Cavalry Battalion. He was engaged in the battles of Ashby’s Gap, Poolsville, Drainsville, Dinwoody Court House, Opequaw, Halltown, Wilderness, South End Bridge, Five Forks, Winchester, Sailors Creek and several minor ones, and finally Appomattox. A special order was issued to the regiment complimenting him for gallant and meritorious conduct on the field of battle September 19 1864. Private Howe was promoted to sergeant, 2nd lieutenant, 1st lieutenant, and captain during his term of service, and afterwards was given a lieutenant colonel’s commission as division inspector in the national guard of Pennsylvania.
(75. WILLIAM PARKER SIGGINS, son of William and grandson of George Siggins, enlisted August 6, 1861, as corporal in Company G, and was discharged September 20, 1864, by reason of the expiration of his term of service. He was with the regiment in every engagement in which it was engaged during his term and was one of its most courageous and efficient members.

(146). JAMES P. SIGGINS, cousin of William P., went out in the same company in August, 1861, as corporal and was discharged as an orderly sergeant Sept. 20, 1864, on the expiration of his term of service. Up to that time he was with his company continuously and never missed a battle nor skirmish. He was wounded at Hanover Court House, but not so badly as to be obliged to leave his company for the hospital. He limped along as best he could, rather than give up and return to the rear.

(148.) NATHANIEL SIMPSON SIGGINS, brother of James P., (sons of Nathaniel Hood Siggins) enlisted at the same time but in Company C, of the same regiment, as a musician, in which capacity he served until the expiration of his term, in September 1864. While he carried neither gun nor sword, as a rule, his service was none the less conspicuous and efficient. He enjoyed the distinction of being the best known man, personally, in the regiment, except the colonel. In battle he slipped the fife into his pocket and shouldered and fired his gun with the best of them. He died at Bradford on January 26, 1893.

(152). ISAAC W. SIGGINS, a brother of James P., and Nathaniel S., and the youngest of the family, was too young to enlist in 1861, but did get there in 1864, nearly at the tail end of the war. He was accepted as one of Uncle Sam's recruits on March 24th of that year and assigned to Company G, as a private and served with more or less distinction and honor to himself until July 3d, when he was mustered out because there were no more rebellions to put down.
Of the military records of Wilbur and Isaac Magee, Irvine Siggins and of Irvine and Walter Mead, all blood relations, I have no trace. Nor those of Clinton Smith, and John Gilfillan, relatives by marriage, have I been able to hear anything. No doubt they were all excellent soldiers.

An now in conclusion let us do honor to all the volunteer soldiers of the Siggins family—to all the living, to all the dead, to those whose scars give even modesty a tongue; who belonged to the mightiest host that was ever brought together in the same length of time by a Republic; who, when the war was over drifted back to their homes, to their loving wives and to the girls they loved; to their workshops and their farms, with nothing to distinguish them from the rest of their countrymen; only proud in the satisfaction that they had fought for and saved their country from destruction; that they had secured that blessed inheritance for their children and their children's children, that they might stand under the waving folds of the starry banner of their country and say like the Spartans of old: "Float on, float on! This land of Liberty."
CONNELY FAMILY.

Isaac Connely, (No.—949). His name appears in the list of taxibles in the Middle Ward, city of Philadelphia, 1780; value of estates: $28,000.00, (I suppose in Continental money), a. Archives, 3d., Series, Vol. XV. p. 112. Also in 1782; value $1,150.00, Vol. XVI. p. 344; also 1783; Vol. XVI. p. 7930.

He kept the “Black Horse” Inn, on Market Street between 4th and 5th streets, Pa., Archives, 3d Series, Vol. II, p. 966. This was the street on which George Washington lived and he knew him well. Washington presented him with a cane and a picture, painted in Ireland; these are now in the possession of his gr. gr. granddaughter, Mrs. E. F. Kerwick, of Portland, New York.

In all deeds signed by him he wrote his name Connely, but many of his descendants spell it Connelly.

Rebecca Robinson, who married Isaac Connely, was widow of Henry Robinson, and had four children. She was a daughter of Samuel Garruges, a merchant of Philadelphia, but so pronounced a Tory that he was imprisoned. She died in Philadelphia.

The above record omits Isaac Connely, who married Sarah Siggins, makes Rebecca Robinson his first wife and gives his second wife as Margaret Robinson; that Judge Isaac Connely who married Sarah Siggins, was not a son of Isaac Connely is shown by the following from the manuscript of Rev. David Kinnear.

"WILLIAM CONNELLY, came to America long before the Revolutionary War, he lived in Berks County, Pennsylvania; he had two sons; Robert and Isaac; he died in peace in Venango County in 1823; in the seventy-seventh years of his age.

This Isaac Connely, married Sarah Siggins, daughter of John and Sarah Siggins and sister of George Siggins; they lived in Warren County."

From Manuscript of Rev. David Kinnear.

The following news paper clipping, which is without date, was probably printed about 1864, at which time Judge Isaac Connely died, seems to confirm the above statement:

"Rev. William Connely, father of Judge Isaac Connely, was a Methodist minister and preached the first sermon in Franklin, on the "Diamond" under the shade of an old chestnut tree, his congregation consisted of seven Indians and five white men, this tree was long a land-mark and was blown down only a few years ago".

Rev. Kinnear's manuscript also contains the following:

"William Connely, was a son of Isaac and Rebecca Connely, "he was born in Philadelphia County, Pa., July 22, 1777".

The Kinnear manuscript above referred to, is a history of the Kinnear-Siggins-Young-and kindred families who lived in Center, Venango, Warren and adjacent counties in Pennsylvania, this material was gathered by him during the years of 1830 to 1847, when most of the older members of these families were alive and he knew them personally, and visited with them for the purpose of securing names, dates and facts concerning all who were in any way related, many of the dates of birth, marriage and death of Siggins-Young-Dawson-Allender-Connelly and other families contained in this genealogy are taken from this manuscript and when compared with family records have been found to be correct in every way. (Ed.)

William Connely 1746-1823, may have been and probably was, a brother of Isaac Connelly 1747-1823. (Ed.)

William Connely, No.—950). “Died in Franklin, Pennsylvania, May 23, 1871; in the ninety fourth year of his age. He was born in Philadelphia, Pa., July 22, 1777; at the close of the Revolutionary War he was living in Philadelphia and had frequent opportunities of seeing and hearing the distinguished men of that day; among others George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams.

In 1795 Mr. Connely with his uncle Rees came with a party to survey the triangle at Erie, the incidents of that trip were always fresh in his recollection.

During his long life he was wonderfully exempt from sickness, last autumn his bodily powers began to fail as the result of an accident in which he injured his hip joint, but, he retained to a remarkable degree the faculties of his mind and good humor, he was very happy in spirit and apparently saw but few, if any gloomy moments, he sank slowly to his rest. For over sixty years Mr. Connely had been a respected and useful citizen of this city.”

YARD OF THE BLACK HORSE INN, PHILADELPHIA

Kept by Isaac Connely (949) during the Revolutionary War.
(Vol. V., Journal of American History.)
CONNELLY REUNIONS.

The Connely family held a reunion at Ludlow, Pennsylvania, August 31, 1912, at the home of James Connely, assisted by his father William A. Connely and his brother Wales.

A ledger kept by their ancestor Isaac Connely was exhibited, and showed accounts kept by him in 1793; the entries were made in pounds-shillings and pence, and showed the retail price of wheat was fifty-four cents a bushel and buck-wheat twenty-eight cents a bushel.

Officers elected were: Martin Connely of Stow, N. Y., President; Lyman Shattuck of Pleasantville, Pa., Vice-President; Mrs. Margaret Shattuck of Pleasantville, Secretary; Claude Field, Treasurer; O. F. Chase of Jamestown, N. Y., Historian.

The committee arranged for a meeting to be held August 11, 1913, on Lake Chautauqua, near Stow, N. Y., where the history of the family from 1747 to 1826 will be reviewed.

Among those present at Stowe, N. Y., August 23, 1913, were: Mr. and Mrs. James A. Connely, Luella, Ethelyn, Burnall, Mr. and Mrs. Wales Connely and William Connely of Ludlow; Dr. and Mrs. H. P. Copeland and daughter, Phylis, of Cumberland, Md.; Mrs. Pearl Bowers and three children, of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Margaret Shattuck and daughter, of Pleasantville; Mr. and Mrs. Claud Fields, of South Wales, N. Y.; Max Field, of Guthrie, Okla.; Miss Genevieve Getty, of Cumberland, Md.; Mrs. Ralph Copeland, of Blaine, W. Va.; Mrs. Amelia Connely, of Pleasantville; Charles Brant, of Titusville, and Orlin Connely, of Lima, Ohio.
OTHER FAMILIES

ADDRESS BY O. F. CHASE AT SYLVAN PARK,
Aug., 1913.

Relatives and Friends:

We had the pleasure of attending the Connelly Reunion last year on August 31 at Ludlow and participating in the unbounded hospitality of James Wales and Wm. Connelly, assisted by their wives and families. We wrote a short account at the time which was published in the Jamestown Journal. The report did not have to be put on ice to keep over one year, historic matters unlike perishable fruit but like wine, the longer they are kept over, the better they become. For the benefit of some who may not have seen it—and at the risk of repetition of what may be offered by the secretary or others—I will read:

From the report you will observe that I was chosen historian for this occasion. I am frank to confess that the material I may have had to offer for your entertainment as history or genealogy would have been sadly lacking had it not been for some items furnished me by Mrs. Ettie Smith, daughter of Melissa Knight and grand-daughter of my Aunt Susan McGee Smith, who was the daughter of Isaac Connelly 2d. These records were given her by her grandmother Susan Connelly McGee Smith, excerpts of which I take pleasure in giving to you. I have the same picture here of Isaac Connelly, 1st which was exhibited at the reunion one year ago. Of his ancestors I have no record—I am sure there is no Connelly here that is not more than willing to claim the original of the handsome benign face exhibited in this picture as their far away progenitor. On the tombstone of Isaac Connelly 1st, buried at Stewarts Run, there is engraved the following:

"Tribute of respect," to the memory of Isaac Connelly who departed this life July 4th, 1823, aged 76 years, an Israelite indeed, in whom there was no guile. From the above record we learn that he was born in 1747. The biography continues, he was married three times; the first wife had one child which lived only to be a young woman. The second wife, whose name was Rebecca Robinson, had three girls and two boys, namely: William, Rebecca, Isaac, Susan and HANNAH. William married Elizabeth Allender. Rebecca married James Allender. Isaac married Sarah Siggins. Susan married John Hunter and Hannah married Thomas Dawson. His third wife was Rachel Hughey; they had six children: Eliza, Jane, Robert, Sarah, Nancy, Mary and George. Eliza married Parkhurst Cope- land and Jane was a maiden lady—Robert married Miss Coffingwood. George Married Margaret Lourie. Sarah married William Aldrich. She had two children: Cordelia and Isaac. Sarah married again to George McAuley. Hannah Dawson had thirteen children, namely: Hemphill, John, William, Isaac, James, Asbury, Rebecca, Susan, Rachael, Harriet, Hannah and Caroline. Hemphill married Maria Grandin. John married Emiline Ross. Isaac married Irene Ross. Rebecca married John Siggins. Susan married Thomas Haworth. Betsy married Joseph Allender. Rachael married George Siggins. Hannah and Caroline were maiden ladies. I now copy the biography of Isaac Connelly 2d who was the brother as before mentioned of William, Rebecca, Susan and Hannah and whose half bro- thers and sisters were Eliza, Jane, Robert, Nancy, Mary, George and Sarah.

My grandfather, Isaac Connelly, was born near Phila- delphia (as his father Isaac was the original of the pic- ture.) He was in business at Bellefonte, Center County, as indicated by the ledger exhibited by Mrs. DeRocher last year is probably at that place.) He had little educa- tion; what he did have he received from his brother, Wil- liam. He married at the age of 27 years Sarah Siggins, Oct. 1st, 1807, and settled at Pithole. From there he moved to Youngsville. He was a devoted Christian and member of the M. E. Church. He lived at Youngsville 21 years. From there he moved to Cobham. He was associate Judge of Warren County for 23 years. He was a very good look- ing man, rather robust, had dark hair and eyes—I might add to this a little personal remembrance of my own.
Shortly after my father moved to a farm near Kiantone I think it was about 1854, I rode down to Cobham on a cold winter day with James Clark, a runaway slave who claimed to be the Harris of Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin—Isaac Connelly who was an abolitionist entertained him and Clark gave a lecture at Tidioute, Pa. He had eleven children—Sarah, Susan, Rebecca, Fletcher, Polly, Rachael and Whitfield. Sarah married Erastus Rouse. Susan married Perry McGee—afterward Peter Smith. Rebecca married Edward Patterson. Fletcher married Aurelia Trask. Rachael married Luke Smith, afterward James Russell. Polly married Oliver Chase. Whitfield married Lucy Rowley. All of this family are not now living. I have not sufficient data to continue the history of Isaac Connely's family. No doubt the various members might be able to furnish it.

I regret that I have not been able to get as complete a record of the other members of the family of Isaac 1st as I have given of Isaac the 2nd.

No doubt there are many of the descendants of William Connelly present. Rev. William Connelly, as you knew, lived at Franklin and was a very eloquent pioneer Methodist minister. We copy from the letter of Rev. J. H. Vance, which we read at last year's reunion which will bear repetition, he said: "When I knew the Rev. Mr. Connelly he was a very old man but a very interesting talker; he held the attention of the whole company an hour at a time with reminiscences of early experiences as a Methodist preacher. We learn that he died at the home of his grand daughter, Mrs. John S. McCalmont, at Franklin in 1872, aged 97 years.

Looking upon the portrait of our extraordinarily handsome ancestor and then upon the face of his male descendants, we are almost persuaded to believe that the Darwinian theory of evolution has slipped a cog, but then the only alternative for us to believe is that his good looks and gentility are descended to the female side and the ladies are his inheritors, but this involves a philosophic question not pertinent to this occasion. At all events we are all proud of this ancestor.
THE CONNELLY FAMILY.

"The Connelly family, we are told, is descended from Milesius, King of Spain, through the line of his son Hercules. The founder of the family was Eogan, ancestor of the Northern Hy Nial of the Nine Hostages, King of Ireland, A. D. 379. The ancient name was Conally and signifies "A Light." The name is derived from the ancient Milesian name O'CONGHALAIGH. The Connelley family is a southern one in America. It has been our boast and pride that it was one of the first families in the ancient and honorable commonwealth of South Carolina. Thomas Connelly and his brother Edmund, and perhaps two other brothers, John and Henry, came from County Armagh, Ireland, and settled at Old Albemarle Point about the year 1689. This settlement was moved later, to become Charleston in the colony of South Carolina; it is now the metropolis of the state of South Carolina, and the name is written Charleston. These brothers were men of fortune and affairs, and they obtained large grants of land from the proprietors of the colonies, one such grant embracing, it is said, a portion of the present site of the city of Charleston. It is said, too, that they never parted with the title to this tract. They engaged in town building and the purchase, subdivision and sale of large tracts of land in various colonies, but principally in Virginia and the Carolinas. They induced many Germans to move from Pennsylvania to the Carolinas, so the tradition in our family says, a colony of whom they settled on their lands near the present site of Camden, South Carolina. In this business their descendants were also engaged, and it became necessary for them to send members of the family to live in different parts of the country, especially in Pennsylvania and Virginia, to prevail on persons to migrate to the lands and towns in the Carolinas. And they engaged largely in traffic and merchandising by sea, owning vessels that plied between the different colonies and which visited the West India Islands. They also traded with the Creek and Cherokee Indians. In the Revolution the Connelleys fought in the patriot armies of Virginia, the Carolinas, and Pennsylvania. They served under Washington, Green, Morgan, Gates, Howard (of Maryland), Lincoln, and Charles Cotesworth Pickney. At the close of the Revolution many of them moved to the West, and the family became still more widely scattered. There is a belt of them extending across Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Central Missouri. Some members of the family settled at a very early day in the wilderness of Northwestern Pennsylvania, and many of their descendants are found there.

by William Elsey Connelley.”

“To which is affixed a brief account of the Connelly family and some of its collateral and related families in America.”

Mr. Connelly states that: “The Clan MacAlpine is one of the oldest families in the world with an authentic history. A daughter of this old clan—Edith MacAlpine—is the maternal ancestor of all the Connellys, and many other eastern Kentucky families. Captain Henry Connelly married Ann MacGregor probably as early as 1774, and therefore claim descent from the most famous clan in Scotland, that of MacGregor. The clan have a society, which was formed in Charlottesville, Virginia, in June, 1909, and an invitation to “All in America who have the MacGregor blood in their veins” to meet at the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., Oct. 8 and 9, 1909, to effect a permanent organization of MacGregor descendants, and doubtless the name of Connelly, in its various spelling, may be found many times repeated upon the list of members.

“While there’s leaves in the forest, and foam on the river, MacGregor, despite them, shall flourish forever.”

“The Connelley family was founded by emigrants from County Armagh, Ireland, who settled in South Carolina in 1689, being among the founders of Charleston. They were in all the patriotic movements to secure the independence of America, Henry Connelley having been a captain of cavalry in the War of the Revolution in North Carolina. He was appointed by Governor Burke to raise a special company to keep down Fanning, the Tory, and served five years. He was in the battle of Cowpens, Charlotte, Guilford Courthouse, and with General Greene in his masterly retreat beyond the Dan River. At the close of the Revolution he moved to Eastern Kentucky with his family. His descendants write their name in various forms, as is the case with many Colonial families. He was the great-great-grandfather of William Elsey Connelly. William Elsey Connelly was born in Johnson County, Kentucky, March 15, 1855. His parents were Constantine Conley, Jr., and Rebecca J. (McCarty) Conley. He came to Kansas, arriving in Wyandotte County, April 22, 1881. Constantine Conley, Jr., was a soldier in the Union Army in the Civil War, volunteering from Magoffin County, Kentucky. He was in the Fourteenth Kentucky Mounted Infantry. William Elsey Connelley was the eldest child, a short sketch of whom may be found in Mackenzie's "Colonial Families of America."

"The Connelly family is a southern one in America. It has been their boast and our pride that it was one of the first families in the ancient and honorable Commonwealth of South Carolina.

THOMAS CONNELLY and his brother, Edmund, and perhaps two other brothers, John and Henry, came from County Armagh, Ireland, and settled at Old Albermarl Point about the year 1689. This settlement was moved later to become Charlestown, in the colony of South Carolina, it is now the metropolis of the state of South Carolina and the name is written Charleston"

Thomas Connelly followed in the steps of his forefathers and dealt in lands and town sites. In this business he was often in Pennsylvania where, it seems he must have settled, as others of his family had done. Whom he married is not known, but in the light of recent reliable information, it must have been a Pennsylvania Dutch woman,

Their son, Captain Henry Connelly, married Ann MacGregor, dau. of Archibald and Edith (MacAlpine) McGregor. He was born May 2, 1752; she was born Feb. 14, 1756.

Their son, Thomas Connelley was born Jan. 25, 1777; married Susan Joynes.

Their son, Henry Connelley; married 1830, Rebecca Blair.

Their son, Constantine Connelley; born December 5, 1831; married June 9, 1854, Rebecca Jane McCarty.

Their son, William Elsey Connelley, was born on the Wolf Pen Branch, Johnson County, Kentucky, March 15, 1855.

For further data regarding this Connelley Family, see "The founding of Harman's Station," by William Elsy Connelly, to which is affixed a brief account of the Connelley family and some of its collateral and related families in America.

THE CLAN Mac ALPINE.

"The Clan Mac Alpine is believed to be the most ancient clan of the Highlands of Scotland. There is an old Gaelic tradition which says the origin of the clan was contemporary with the formation of hillocks and streams. The McAlpines are descended from the ancient people whose successors became kings of Scotland for twenty-five generations. The war cry of the clan is "Remember the death of Alpin," alluding to the murder of King Alpin by Brudus after the Picts defeated the Scots near Dundee in the year 735. The seat of the ancient clan was in Argyllshire. The Clan Mac Alpine is one of the oldest families in the world with an authentic history. A daughter of this old clan—EDITH MacALPINE—is the maternal ancestor of all the Connelys, Conleys, Connelleys and many other Eastern Kentucky families."

(The Founding of Harman's Station," by Wm. Elsey Connelley.)

THE CLAN Mac GREGOR.

"Archibald Mac Gregor, of the Clan Mac Gregor, Highlands of Scotland, espoused the cause of Charles Edward, the young Pretender, in 1745, as did his clan and his country. He was a young man of fine stature and immense physical strength. His clan was not in the battle of Culloden Moore, having been stationed at another point, so it is said in family traditions, but he had been sent to the commander of the Pretender forces with despatches, and so was on that disastrous field. There he was dreadfully wounded, being left on the gory field for dead and his body stripped by the Royalist looters. He, however, revived and with great difficulty and much suffering reached his own country. There he was concealed until he had recovered somewhat from his wounds, when he succeeded in escaping to the Colony of North Carolina, where so many of his countrymen were then living. There he married Edith MacAlpine, the daughter of a Highlander who had been in the battle of Culloden Moore, and who had with great difficulty escaped with his family to America. McGregor never fully recovered from his wounds. His daughter Ann was born February 14, 1756, and some two years later he died. His widow married a Scotchman named Langley. Captain Henry Connelly married Ann MacGregor.

DARIUS MEAD.

(1211) Darius Mead, b. in Greenwich, Conn., March 28, 1728; was killed by the Indians, in Warren County, Pa., in 1794. The following account is from the History of Warren County.

"In 1793 Darius Mead, with his sons, David, John, Darius and Joseph, and two daughters, emigrated from the Susquehanna River in what is now known as Lycoming County, to the tract of land now embracing Meadville, from whom it took its name.

By reason of the hostile demonstrations of the Indians they removed to Franklin, where was a fort and United States garrison.

The following spring while the father was plowing a field, a party of three indians came stealthily and suddenly upon him, seized and bound him hand and foot. They took him about twenty miles westerly into the woods, where they stopped to encamp for the night. While the Indians were getting wood, Mead succeeded in extricating one of his hands, and as one of the Indians was bending over kindling the fire, Mead stepped up and drawing a large hunting knife from the Indian’s belt, plunged it into the Indian’s heart, the other two coming up a desperate encounter ensued, in which Mr. Mead was finally overpowered, brutally murdered, and cut to pieces with tomahawks.

After the subsidence of the Indian troubles, David and John Mead returned to Meadville; and in the spring of 1799, Joseph and Darius removed to Warren county with their families, the former settling on Big Brokenstraw, where Mead’s Mill now stands about one mile west of Youngsville; Darius located the farm more recently owned by Capt. James Bonner; in a year or two, however, he joined his brother, and with him built a grist-mill and two saw-mills; this was the first gristmill in Warren county, there being at that time no mill within a radius of thirty miles.

Mead's mill, it has been said, was the Mecca to which the population of a large district made regular pilgrimages for supplies, in dry times many grists were brought forty miles to this mill; the inhabitants of Columbus brought their grists in canoes.

Darius Mead⁶, was an acting justice for several years, and was hospitable and social in his habits; he died in 1813, and was buried in the cemetery on the original John Andrews farm; after his death the mill came into the hands of John Mead⁷, a nephew of Darius, who, with his brother William came in 1807, to work in the mills of their uncles Joseph and Darius.

In 1813, Joseph Mead removed to a farm on the Allegheny River, three miles below Warren, including the island which still bears his name, and passed the remainder of his life there; he died in March, 1846; his widow, Hannah, died on the 25th of February, 1856, at the age of seventy-seven years and four months.

They were the parents of fourteen children, eleven of whom were living at the time of the mother's death; many of the descendants of these hardy brothers are now living in Brokenstraw Township, and are worthy of their noble ancestry.

MEAD FAMILY.

"The Mead Family is among the oldest in England. It dates back to the time when surnames were first used in the Mother Country, immediately after the Norman Conquest. The origin of the name is doubtless found in the old Saxon word meaning meadow. The name of the family under consideration appears in various forms of Mede, Meades, and Meade, as well as Mead, and the use of the final "e" is still common with some branches of the family in America.

Gabriel Mead, the immigrant ancestor, born in England in 1589, was an early settler at Dorchester, Massachusetts, where he was living when he was admitted a freeman May 2, 1638. In the adjoining town of Roxby settled William and Richard Mead, known to be brothers. William Mead was very wealthy for his day and made a liberal bequest to the Roxby Free School. There was another William Mead at Gloucester before 1639, and a Joseph Mead at Stamford, Connecticut. Gabriel Mead died at Dorchester May 12, 1666, in his seventy-ninth year. His wife Joanna became a member of the Dorchester Church about 1638. In his will which was proved July 17, 1667, he bequeathed to his wife Joanna and to his children, Lydia, Experience, Sarah and Patience, minors, not mentioning by name the elder children.

KIMBALL COAT OF ARMS.
KIMBALL FAMILY.

The English forebears of the Kimbals were an ancient family of the county of Suffolk. The original orthography was probably Kymbolde, and several other forms of spelling appear in the English records, as: Kembold, Kembould, Kembolis, Kembolde, and Kemball. The American Kimballs are the progeny of two brothers, Richard from whom are descended the Kimballs of Connecticut, and Henry, who spelled his name Kemball. The coat-of-arms given in the family genealogy is: Argent, a lion rampant, gules, upon a chief sable, three crescents of gold. Crest: a lion rampant holding in the dexter paw a dagger au propre.

Richard Kimball, of Rattlesden, County Suffolk, who on account of the religious upheaval which was then at its height in the mother country, sought a home in New England, was among the passengers on the ship “Elizabeth” which sailed from Ipswich, England, for Boston, April 10, 1634. He was accompanied by his large family, and as he was a wheelwright by trade and a skillful mechanic, he proved a most welcome addition to the infant colony. Going first to Watertown, Massachusetts, he was made a freeman there, May 6, 1635, and the following year became a landed proprietor. In response to a demand for a competent wheelwright by the settlers of Ipswich, Massachusetts, he subsequently removed to that town, and there spent the remainder of his life, plying his calling with energy and contributing largely to the welfare of the community. His death occurred June 22, 1675. His first wife whom he married in England, was Ursula Scott, of Rattlesden, daughter of Henry Scott accompanied him to America and died prior to October 23, 1661 on which date he married (second) Mrs. Margaret Dowe, of Hampton, New Hampshire. She died March 1, 1676. Richard Kimball was the father of eleven children, all of his first union and eight of them were natives of England.

"WILL OF HENRY SKOTT of Rattlesden, Suffolk, yeoman, 24 September 1623, proved 10 January 1624. To my wife MARTHA the house where in I dwell &c. during term of her natural life; after that to my son Roger Skoot and his heirs forever. To Abigail Kemball my grandchild forty shillings at her age of one and twenty years. To my grand child Henry Kemball twenty shillings at age of one and twenty and the same sum each to grandchildren Elizabeth and Richard Kemball at same age. To son Thomas Skott five pounds within one year after my decease. To Mr. Peter Devereau, minister of Rattlesden, ten shillings. Wife Martha to be executrix.

(Bury Wills, Book Pearle, L. 117)

"It was this very Martha Scott who, with her son Thomas Scott and her daughter Ursula Kembold or Kemball and the latter's husband, Richard Kemball, took passage the last of April 1634, in the—Elizabeth,—William Andrews master, from the port of Ipswich in old England, and settled in Ipswich, New England."

1429. "RICHARD KEMBALL came to this country in the ship Elizabeth, William Andrews, master, in 1634. He appears to have gone, soon after landing, to Watertown, Mass. Richard is said on the shipping list to be thirty-nine years old, but he was probably somewhat older. He was however, in the prime of life, and soon became a prominent and active man in the new settlement. He first settled in Watertown and his home lot is thus given by Dr. Henry Bond: Richard Kimball, six acres, bounded on the north by Cambridge, east by land of W. Hamlet, south by the highway, and west by the land of Edward White. This lot was situated a long way from the center of the town it is now in Cambridge, which many years ago annexed the eastern part of Watertown. He was proclaimed freeman in 1635 May 6; was a proprietor in 1636-7. Soon after this date he was invited to remove to Ipswich, where they were in need of a competent man to act as wheelwright to the new settlement. Here he spent the remainder of his days. He was also granted at the same time "40 acres beyond the North River, near the land of Robert Scott—His brother-in-law, Thomas Scott died Feb. 1653-4 and he was joint executor, with Edmund Bridges of his will. On May 25, 1645, their official position was recognized by Thomas Scott, Jr., then a resident of Stamford, Conn.

Richard Kimball was of the parish of Rattlesden, county of Suffolk, England, as is shown by the following entry on the parish register: "Henry Kimball ye son of Richard and Vrsula his wife baptized 1615 12 of August."

Richard Kimball married second, Oct. 23, 1661 Margaret Dow, widow of Henry Dow of Hampton, N. H."

In the will of Richard Kemball—dated 5, March 1674-5, is found mention of his daughter Sarah—"To my daughter Sarah I give forty pounds to be payed the yeare & halfe after my decease and the rest five pound a yeare till it be all payd, also to her children I give seaven pounds ten shillings to be payd to them as they come of age or at day of marriage; if any dye before, that part to be equally divyded to the rest. And to my daughter Sarah above ss.; I also give the bed I lye on with the furniture after one years use of it by my wife". &c&c.

SOME EARLY ALLEN ANCESTORS

ARTHUR ALLEN, the emigrant, was in 1667, as stated by himself to be sixty-five years. He died in 1670. He calls Daniel Tucker (aged fifty-five in 1667) "brother". As Tucker was the younger of the two, Allen's wife Alice was probably Alice Tucker. This view is confirmed by a grant dated March 13, 1649 to Arthur Allen, of 200 acres, between Lawne's Creek and Chippoakes Creek, for importing into the colony, four persons viz., Alice Tucker, Wm. Eyers, Wm. Moss, and Thomas Rastell (Land register). Daniel Tucker of York County, died before 1664, leaving a daughter Dorothy, who married, first, Capt. Brian Smith; secondly, Hugh Owen. His widow Margaret married Major Joseph Croshaw, of York County, whose daughter, Unity, married John West, of West Point, Virginia.

(William and Mary Quarterly, 6. p. 130.)

MATTHEW ALLEN, born in England—was in Cambridge, Mass., 1632; d. 1670 in Windsor. In Mr. Henry Water's "Genealogical Gleanings in England, Vol. II. p. 932, is the will of William Thorne of Eastdown, Devon, 17 February 1637; which reads in part" All these legacies to be paid out of the lands and "demeneaes" which I lately bought of one Mr. Matthew Allyn. To William Allyn my godson, son of Edward Allyn" &c &c. "I have little doubt that the Mr. Matthew Allyn here referred to as having sold lands to William Thorne, was our Mr. Matthew Allyn of Cambridge, Mass., and afterwards of Hartford and Windsor, Connecticut. He and (his kinsman) Thomas Allyn (or Allen) of Barnstable, Massachusetts, are frequently referred to in Lechford's Note-Book, and especially in connection with Devonshire and west of England men. On page 416 of that Note-Book (as printed) Mr.
Matthew Allyn (or Allen) is described as lately of Bramtom in com. Devon. &c. I have no doubt by Bramton is meant Braunton, near Barnstable Devon. East-Down (Eastdowne, as above) is very near both places. On page 418 of the Note-Book (as printed) appears Thomas Allyn (or Allen of Barnstable N. E., conveying to John Eells of Dorchester, N. E., one house and garden in Barnston, Devon, and referring to father-in-law, John Marke, of Bramton in Devon and brother, Richard Allen, of Branton, aforesaid. Here then we may look for the home of Matthew and Thomas Allyn.

ALLEN—This is one of the names most frequently met in the United States, and is represented by many distinct families. Several immigrants came to New England. One of the earliest

GEORGE ALLEN¹, born in England about 1568, under the reign of Queen Elizabeth, came to America with his family in 1635, and settled in Sagus (Lynn) Massachusetts. He had ten children, some of whom had proceeded to this country and settled in the vicinity of Boston. In 1637 George Allen joined with Edmund Freeman and others in the purchase of the township of Sandwich. When this town was incorporated Mr. Allen was chosen deputy—the first officer in town—and served in that capacity for several years. He was a conscientious Puritan, and a member of the Baptist Church. After the purchase of Sandwich several of his sons moved to that town with their families. George Allen died in Sandwich, May 2, 1648, aged eighty years. In his will he named five sons: Matthew, Henry, Samuel, George and William; and also made provision for his "five last children" without naming them. From the fact that settlers of the name came from Baintree, Essex England about the same time, it is inferred that he came from the same locality. In 1632 Samuel and Matthew Allen and their brother Thomas Allyn (as he spelled it) came from Braintree and located at Cambridge, whence all of them subsequently moved to Connecticut.

(New Hampshire Genealogy. IV. p. 1997.)

Lieutenant Josiah Standish, son of Miles Standish, married Sarah Allen, daughter of Samuel and Ann and grand daughter of George Allen.

SAMUEL ALLEN, from Braintree, Essex County, England, (some authorities say from Dorchester); came to Cambridge in 1632; removed to Windsor, 1635; d. April 1648, a. 60. He m. Ann; she m. 2d, William Hulburt of Nhn., and d. Nov. 13, 1687. This is the ancestor of the famous General Ethan Allen of Vermont.

THOMAS ALLEN (Dea), brother of Samuel Allen and Col. Matthew Allyn, came first to Cambridge, Mass., from England, in 1632; was freeman in 1635. He removed to Hartford with his bro. Matthew in 1635; he was twice married; his first wife was Isabella who died about 1678; he m. second, Martha Gipson (or Gibson), widow of Roger Gipson, of Saybrook, Conn., about 1680-1; he removed from Hartford, Conn., in 1650, with the first planters of Mattabeseck (Middletown), where he became a prominent man of the town, was chosen deacon of the First Church, 16 March, 1670; was a representative to the General Court, selectman, etc. Having no children, he adopted his nephew, Obediah, fourth son of his then deceased brother, Samuel Allen, of Windsor, Conn., who lived with him during his minority and received a large share of his estate. Deacon Thomas Allyn, died at Middletown, Conn., 16 Oct. 1688; his will is dated 15 Oct. 1688; and proved' Feb. 1689. His widow Martha, died at Middletown, Conn., November 1702, her will was dated 30 April, 1690.

Deacon THOMAS Allen, is supposed to have been a son of Samuel Allen, of Chelmsford, Essex Co., England; he emigrated with the original Braintree Company, 1632, to Charlestown, Mass".

(From Ancient Windsor, p.—27.)

MATTHEW ALLEN was here (Cambridge, Mass.), in 1632, and in 1635, he owned an estate at the N. W. corner of Winthrop and Dunster Streets. He also owned the opposite corner south of Winthrop Street. He was a deputy in the General Court 3 Mar. 1635-6; removed to Connecticut with Hooker and settled in Windsor, where he died 1670, having had ch. John, Thomas and Mary. Mr. Allen sustained a high rank among his fellow colonists; held several town offices; served as juror, deputy magistrate, and assistant, in the Colony government. He was appointed by the Colony, in 1660 and 1664, one of the "Commissioners of the United Colonies", and office fully equal in dignity and importance to that of Senator in the Congress of the United States.—Hinman and Hazzard.

"The name of Allen, being a Christian name, converted, in process of time into a family name, may have been borne originally by several individuals, nowise related to each other; but it indicates in all its spelling (such as Alain, Alein, Alleyn, &c.), a Norman origin. An Alain did in fact, come in with the conqueror, having commanded the rear guard at the battle of Hastings. Of the fifty families of the name, mentioned as still extant in the books of heraldry, many have arms of very ancient date. The Alleyns of Essex, in particular, bear the arms of an ancient crusader, viz: on a sable shield, a cross potent or; with the crest, a demi-lion azure, holding in the two paws the rudder of a vessel or. Motto: Fortiter gerit Crucem. These arms are mentioned as born, amongst others by Sir Thomas Alleyn bart., of Thaxted Grange, and Samuel Alleyn, Esq., of Chelmsford, both in Essex.

When Mr. Hooker of Chelmsford came to New England, in 1632, and a few years later (1636) to Windrso, Conn., he was accompanied by one of his congregation, MATHEW Allen whose name appears frequently and prominently on the early records of the town and colony. Later appears the name of Samuel and Thomas Allen brothers. Samuel died in 1648, leaving three sons, Samuel, Nehemiah, and John. Nehemiah died in 1684. One of his sons Samuel, born in 1665, removed to Deerfield, then to Coventry, Conn. One of Samuel's sons Joseph was born in Deerfield in 1708, and died at Coventry in 1755. Joseph was the father of GEN. ETHAN ALLEN, who was born at Woodbury, Conn., Jan. 10, 1737, and died at Colchester, Vt., Feb. 13, 1789. Heman Allen, of Chili was a nephew of Ethan Allen's. Now the diligence and sagacity of the Rev. Dr. Allen have for the first time established the fact that Ethan Allen's progenitor, Samuel, was a brother of Mathew Allen, and therefore of the Essex family of Alleyns.
III. Samuel Allen, uncle of Heman Allen of Milton and Burlington, the Indian captive and Revolutionary soldier—who lived to be past ninety—preserved the traditional history of this branch of the Allens, which, with some help from records, may be given as follows: An officer of Cromwell's by the name of Allen (whose Christian name has been lost) emigrated to New England coming directly to Connecticut—landing probably at New Haven. The date of his arrival cannot be placed much later than that of Mathew, Samuel, and Thomas at Windsor. He married in this country and had seven sons and one daughter. Of these Samuel and Mary migrated to Elizabethtown, N. J. John purchased a right in Deerfield, in 1671, although he may not have settled there at once. Edward joining at first, in the migration to Elizabeth, there married Mercy Painter, who used to relate, that in her early years, she had seen the head of King Philip, as it was borne through her native town. After his marriage Edward returned to New England, and settled with his brother John, in Deerfield at The Bars, in 1668. He died in 1740. Samuel, son of Edward (born 1702 killed by the Indians August 25, 1746), was father of Caleb, Samuel, Eunice Lamberton, (Note. A family name. The mother of Mercy Painter, Edward Allen's wife was a Lamberton—a name which stands forth in the early history of New Haven.) and Enoch. Caleb, lived and died at The Bars. Samuel was the Indian captive, afterwards a lieutenant in the Revolutionary army. Lamberton was the settler of Grand Isle. Enoch was the father of Heman Allen of Milton and Burlington. IV. Abishai Allen, (an older brother of Heman Allen of Milton) who lived in the family of his Uncle Caleb at The Bars from 1787 to 1795, preserved the following incident, which occurred within his knowledge. Gen. Ethan Allen made a visit to Caleb Allen for the purpose of comparing genealogies—in consequence most probably, of a tradition of relationship current in both branches, and known to Ethan Allen through his father, who was born in Deerfield. The result of this session of the two old gentlemen—who undoubtedly, like most seniors of that day, carried in their heads an inexhaustible store of genealogical facts—was that the tradition of relationship was fully confirmed. There is nothing in what we do not know to invalidate this decision; and it was based on much, without a doubt which we do know. It must therefore, I think, be taken as conclusive. If so when the progenitor of the Deerfield (N. H.) branch must have been another brother of Matthew—one who (like Samuel and Thomas) came to Connecticut later and in no direct association with him. If so again the two Heman Allens were, as I have said probably related by blood, and both of the Essex family and descendants of that stout Christain warrior "who bravely bore the cross".

In the Vermont Gazetteer, published 1876 Volume I. page 606 there is found very interesting genealogical information regarding the Allen Family; written by George Allen, Professor in the University of Pennsylvania. We take the liberty of inserting it here, with the above sketch, namely the "Genealogical Appendix" which follows the record of his family.

DAVID ALLEN.

In the Journal of American History, Vol. 3, 1909, p. 297, is an interesting article by Col. Ethan Allen, former Deputy District Attorney in New York, grandson of Captain Samuel Allen, of the American Revolution—Recruiting Colonel for the army during the Civil War—President of the Cuban League during the Spanish War, regarding his grandfather, Captan Samuel Allen, in which he states: “Samuel Allen was born in 1757 in Monmouth County, New Jersey, and was only eighteen years old when the “shot fired round the world” was fired at Lexington, and re-echoed at Bunker’s Hill. He was one of an old and honored family who had crossed the seas and made a home in New England at a period almost as remote as when the Pilgrim Fathers landed, and a descendant of which family DAVID by name went over into New Jersey and settled on Manna-Squan, or Squan River, Monmouth County, about the year 1740, and here, in a then wild and unsettled territory, obtained possession of vast tracts of land.
One son of DAVID, named Adam, long before the Revolution, left New Jersey and located in Virginia, on the James River, and a large family of Allens in the Old Dominion is left to represent him. Another son, Samuel Allen, a Quaker by religious profession, and lame from his birth, father of Captain Samuel Allen, of whom I write, inherited from his father DAVID, on the north shore of Squan River a tract of land miles in extent, which, being by this time extensively under cultivation, placed the owner among the richest landed proprietors of the country. When the Revolution became rampant it found Captain Samuel Allen a youth of eighteen and feudal lord among his people because of his vast estate in land—burning with all the fire of adventure which had brought his remote ancestors from England to the weird coast of Massachusetts, and those less remote from New England to New Jersey.” * * *

“Captain (Samuel) Allen, in 1776, married Elizabeth Fleming, of a family of ancient Scotch renown, she died 1800, and he in 1830, and was placed to rest under a favorite tree upon his own farm.”

“Stephen Fleming and Jacob Fleming (brothers of Elizabeth (Fleming) Allen, were captains in the United States troops, and served through the entire war. Stephen Fleming settled in Kentucky.”

CARY ALLEN.

“In the congregation of Rev. Samuel Davies, in Honover Co. (Va.), were five brothers of the name of Allen. Soon after Mr. Davies left Virginia these brothers with others of the congregation, sought locations in the more fertile lands along the frontiers, and made their homes on Great Guinea, in Cumberland. Four of these brothers successively became Elders in the church in Cumberland County of which they were in part founders. DANIEL ALLEN.
by his wife, Miss Harrison, had ten children, of which Cary Allen was the eighth, b. 1767. For his second wife he married the widow of Joseph Hill, with five children, Mrs. Joanna Hill. Her fourth child was William, from whom, through Dr. Hill of Winchester, very many of these circumstances concerning the life of Cary Allen have been preserved to the public. * * * The first tour of missionary service in that part of Virginia now embraced in the State of Kentucky, was performed by Mr. Allen and Robert Marshall, under the commission in 1791. In the spring of 1794, Mr. Allen removed to Kentucky in preparation for a permanent residence west of the Alleghenys. He was married to a daughter of Col. Fleming of Botetourt. Early in the spring, having accepted the call from Silver Creek and Paint Creek, Mr. Allen removed to Kentucky. On the 5th of August, 1795, he breathed his last, being in his twenty-ninth year, leaving a wife and one child, a daughter. His grave is in a burying ground near Danville, marked by head and foot stones, erected in 1823 by the Presbytery of Transylvania.

Edward Allen was among the earliest of those who renewed the settlement of Deerfield after the close of King Philip's War. His name on the proprietors records, as the purchaser of a right, in 1686. The purchase of his older brother entered as John Allen, Gent., had been made before the war in 1671. The family has won a place in local history, by the large share it bore in the calamities inflicted on Deerfield in Indian Warfare. In 1704 John Allen and his wife were shot down near their own home. LAMBERTON.

Lamberton is a very ancient name, and is found as far back as the eleventh century. It occurs in Scotland, among the land holders of Ayrshire and Berwick-On-Tweed, 1097-1107, in the reign of King Edgar. John de Lamberton, was sheriff of Sterling from 1263 to 1265. The arms of the Lambert family are: Arms: Argent, three escalloped sheels, sable. Crest: a stag's head at gaze, St. Andrew's cross between the attires. Motto: Volonte de Dieu. As the arms would indicate, the early members of the family probably took part in the crusades. During the religious persecution under the Stuarts, the Covenanters were maltreated and harrassed until they were obliged to leave their own country and seek homes in Ireland. Among those to seek refuge in Ireland it is said, were three brothers by the name of Lamberton. One of these settled at the Giant's Causeway, the second near Londonderry, and the third in the same county. The Lambertons of Pennsylvania trace their lineage from the second of these whose name is said to have been James.

In the Spring of 1641, George Lamberton, a merchant of New Haven sent a party under Robert Cogswell to buy property and form two settlements, one on the Schuylkill, and the other near where Salem now stands. After many difficulties with the Swedes, Lamberton was finally commissioned by Governor Winthrop to treat with Printz touching the rights of each; matters were finally settled amicably. Savage says of him "George Lamberton, New Haven, 1641, probably merchant from London, was one of the chief inhabitants employed, 1643, in projecting a settlement at Delaware, but (was) resisted by Swedes who vindicated their rights. Hayden in his "Virginia Genealogies" p. 457, says: "About the year 1735 William Hoge removed from Pennsylvania and settled upon the Opeckon 3 miles S. of Winchester, Virginia (Frederick Co.). Opekon meeting house stands on his tract of land. The families of Glass, Vance, ALLEN, Colvin and White and others soon joined him and formed the Opecon congregation, the oldest west of the Blue Ridge."

(1574) Hugh Allen 5 and John Allen 5 were born in Virginia, John Allen, it is said, was a lieutenant at Braddock's defeat, and was "lost" in that disaster. He participated in the battle of Point Pleasant, saw his brother Hugh killed, and placed a stone to mark his grave. He died in 1810, ninety-four years of age, having been an elder of Augusta Stone Church for sixty-four years.

In the charter of Philadelphia he was appointed by

(Boogher, p. 46.)

"When the Henrys came to Augusta no one can tell. A William Henry was living in the country in 1750 when he became guardian of one James McCord. This is the very earliest mention of the name Henry in the records of the county. James Henry resided here in 1759, and in that year conveyed 200 acres of land in Borden's tract to Robert Telford. There is no deed on record to show when he acquired the land"

TILFORD.

Andrew Wiley ———— Rockridge ———— Died in Rockridge, ———— 1832. Born in Rockridge July 1756. Drafted by Thomas Vance in 1777 to drive cattle to Point Pleasant. Went as far as mouth of Elk where the company met a detachment from the fort to receive the cattle. Discharged after forty-two days. About March 1, 1778, entered the Continental service in the Virginia Line. Marched under Captain Robert Sawyers to White Plains, N. Y., where the command joined Gen. Morgan, and applicant remained with him during the remainder of his term of twelve months, being discharged at Noland Ferry on the Potomac about May 10, 1779. Captain Sawyer soon returned home, and Captain Andrew Wallace was killed in battle at hanging rock in the Carolinas. For this service he received $6.00. In 1780-81, he served as substitute under Capt. James Hall and marched with two companies under Captain Campbell and CAPTAIN DAVID GRAY and at Deep run Church near Richmond joined Gen. Muhlenberg. Thence they marched down the north side of James River above a battery near a British encampment opposite Norfolk, thence by Portsmouth to Richmond where he was discharged. Was in no skirmish. Again drafted three months about April 1, 1781, under Capt. Hoyd (Lloyd), then of Botetourt, and joined Green's army at Guilford. Was in the battle there, the Carolina militia forming the first line, the Virginia militia the second, and the Continentals the third. The Carolina men broke and ran at the outset. The riflemen to which applicant belonged were on the left, and when the Carolina men retreated the British forces came down on a ridge between the riflemen of the left wing and the command of Col. Campbell, who as applicant believes brought on the action. The enemy were swept off by the Virginia riflemen, but formed again and again, until finally they came down upon the ridge in columns, twelve and sixteen men deep, and were compelled (which party?) to ground their arms. Gen. Stephens was wounded and CAPT. TILFORD killed.

POAGE FAMILY

1688. "ROBERT POAGE', with many other settlers in the Valley, appeared at Orange court, May 22, 1740, to "prove his importation," with the view of taking up public lands. The record sets forth that he and his wife Elizabeth, and nine children, named, came from Ireland to Philadelphia, "and from thence to this colony," at his own expense. He may have come some years earlier than the date mentioned, but we find no trace of him before that time. Alexander Breckenridge proved his importation on the same day, and very likely the two families came over in the same ship. Mr. Poage settled on a plantation three miles north of Staunton, which he must have purchased from William Beverly, as the land was in Beverly's Manor. The tract contained originally seven hundred and seventy-two acres. It was there, no doubt, that the young preacher, McAden, obtained his first dinner in Virginia on Saturday, June 21, 1755. But he acquired other lands from the government. There is a patent on parchment, executed by Governor Gooch, July 30, 1742, granting Robert Poage three hundred and six acres of land "in the county of Orange, on the west side of the Blue Ridge," to be held "in free and common soccage, and not in capite or by Knight's service," in consideration of thirty-five shillings; provided the grantee should pay a fee rent of one shilling for every fifty acres, annually," on the feast of St. Michaels the Archangel," &c. The seal attached to the patent has on it an impression of the royal crown of Great Britain. The will of Robert Poage, dated October 20, 1773, was proved in court March 6, 1774. The executors were William Lewis and testator's son John. The testator mentions his sons John, Thomas, Robert, George and William, and his daughters Martha Woods, Elizabeth Crawford and Margaret Robertson. To the last six he gave only "one pistole" each, having provided for them otherwise. The son Thomas is not named in the Orange county court record and the presumption is that he was born after the family came to America. The record referred to mentions, however, two daughters, Mary and Sarah, who are not named in the will. Both had probably died before the will. One of these, it is supposed, was the first wife of Major Robert Breckenridge (son of Alexander), who died while quite young, leaving two sons, Robert and Alexander Breckenridge, who became prominent citizens of Kentucky.

Children of Robert and Elizabeth (——) Poage:

1689. i. JOHN Poage; qualified as assistant to Thomas Lewis, Surveyor of Augusta county, May 20, 1760. In 1763, he was vestryman of Augusta Parish. On March 17, 1778, he became high sheriff, and on the next day qualified as county surveyor. His will dated February 16, 1789, and proved in court April 22, 1789, mentions his wife Mary, and children, Robert, George, James, John, Elizabeth and Ann. His son Robert qualified as assistant county surveyor, June 16, 1778.

1690.* ii. THOMAS Poage; inherited and lived on his father's homestead. His wife was Polly McClanahan. His will was proved in court January 24, 1803, mentions children Elija, Robert, John, William, Elizabeth, Ann, Polly and Agnes.

1692. iv. GEORGE Poage².

After the death of the latter she married Joseph Lindsey who was killed at the battle of Blue Licks, in 1782, and finally she married James McGinty. She was a woman of rare energy and ingenuity. Collins says she brought the first spinning wheel to Kentucky, and made the first linen manufactured in that county from the line of nettles and the first linsey from nettle-line and buffalo wool. They were the parents of General Robert Poage of Mason county, Kentucky.

He married LILIAS CUNNINGHAM, daughter of WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM, of Craigends, Renfrew, and his wife Christian Colquohoun of Luss. Her father was elected in 1689, by the freeholders of Renfrew, then Commissioner to the Convention of Estates, where, in subsequent sessions of Parliament, he was distinguished by his great fidelity and honor. He was lineally descended from Sir William CUNNINGHAM the 2d son of Alexander, 1st Earl of Glencairn who received the lands of Craigends from his father before the end of the 15th Cent. (For Colquhoun of Luss v. Burke's Peerage, Hayden's Va. Gen. p. 689).
The family of Cunningham is of Scotch origin, the home of the clan bearing that name being in Ayrshire, where they were established and prominent as early as 1200. They possess the earldom of Carrick and Glencairn and the lordship of Cunningham. From Ayreshire are descended all known branches of the family in England, Scotland and Ireland. According to family tradition the first settlers in Ireland were two of six brothers who won distinction under King James of Scotland, who later became James I. of England. The records show that among the first grantees of King James, in Ireland, were several of this name. In the precinct of Portlough, County of Donegal, John Cunningham of Crawfield, Ayrshire, Scotland, received a grant of one thousand acres in 1610. At the same time James Cunningham, Laird of Glangarnocke, Ayrshire, received two grants, one of one thousand acres and the other of two thousand acres, in the same precinct, and Cuthbert Cunningham, of Glangarnocke, received one thousand acres. Alexander Conningham, of Powton, Gentleman, of Sorbie, Wigtonshire, Scotland, had a grant of one thousand acres in the precinct of Boylagh, County of Donegal. There is reason to believe that Glangarnocke, Ayrshire, was the home of the family. History relates that Sir James Cunningham took possession of his grant of two thousand acres but returned to Scotland. His agent Robert Young built one Irish barn of coples; he had forty-four head of cattle, one plow of garrons, and some tillage at last harvest. Three families of British resident on his portion, preparing to build; as yet no estate passed to them "John Cunningham of Crawfield" the Carew manuscript just quoted says, "one thousand acres; resident with one family of British; is building a barn, and preparing materials; hath a plow of garrons and thirty head of cattle. Cuthbert Cunningham, one thousand acres; resident with two families of British; built an Irish house of Coples, and prepared materials to re-edify the castle of Coole McEctrean; hath a plow of garrons, and eighty head of cattle in stock." This document is dated July 29, 1611, and refers to the land granted above. As Sir James returned to Scotland, we may assume that these two other Cunninghams, whose grants were evidently together in the records, were the two brothers traced in the tradition as the settlers from Scotland. Another Cunningham, Alexander, of Ponton Elder, had not appeared, and perhaps never did; and another James Cunningham, of Horomilne, returned to Scotland in the fall of 1611, leaving his herd of six cows and six servants, but had no preparations for a permanent stay. The next official report of the settlement, under date of 1619, shows progress in the settlements of Sir James Cunningham, John Cunningham and Cuthbert Cunningham.

THE CUNNINGHAMS.

"ROBERT CUNNINGHAM, a native of north Ireland, settled on a farm called Rock Springs, in Augusta County, about the year 1735. He was one of the first set of justices of the peace appointed in 1775, and afterwards, it is said, a member of the House of Burgesses. His wife was a widow Hamilton and the mother of several children at the time of her second marriage. One of her daughters, Mary Hamilton, married David Campbell, and was mother of John and Arthur Campbell, and others. Two of the daughters of Robert Cunningham also married Campbells. He had no son. His daughter, Martha (Cunningham), about the year 1750, married Walter Davis, who became the owner of Rock Spring farm. Mr. Davis never held civil office, but was an Elder of Tinkling Spring Church and a man of much influence. His daughter Margaret (Davis) married John Smith, and was mother of Judge Daniel Smith of Rockingham. His son William Davis, born in 1765, married Annie Caldwell, and died about 1851, aged eighty-six. He was a man of high standing in the community, a justice of the peace, high sheriff, &c. Walter Davis, Jr., son of William born in 1791, was for many years one of the two commissioners of the revenue in Augusta County and noted for his faithful and intelligent discharge of the duties of his office. His wife was Rebecca VanLear. William C. Davis a brother of Walter Davis, Jr., removed to Missouri in 1836 or 1837. Dr. Thomas Parks, of Missouri, is the only surviving grandchild of Walter Davis, Sr.

John Cunningham, believed to have been a brother of Robert, lived in Staunton; his residence being on Lot No. 1, southwest corner of Augusta Street and Spring Lane. He had three daughters and one son. His oldest daughter, Mrs. Margaret Reed (Mrs. Reed afterwards, while a widow, became the second wife of Col. George Mathews, from whom she was divorced. She lived to extreme old age in the low frame house which formerly stood on Beverly Street; she was baptized by Mr. Craig in 1747, and died in 1827. Another daughter, Isabella, married Major Robert Burns, and was mother of Mrs. Waterman and Mrs. Gambill, of Rockingham. The third daughter of John Cunningham, Elizabeth, married Captain Thomas Smith. According to family tradition, Captain Smith commanded the only troop of cavalry that went into the Continental service from Augusta during the Revolutionary War. His daughters were Mrs. Michael Garber, Mrs. Moses McCue, and Mrs. John Jones. Captain Walter Cunningham, only son of John, removed to Kentucky, and thus the name disappeared from the county. We are indebted to Major James B. Dorman, a grandson of Mrs. Moses McCue for most of the above facts.”

DAVID CAMPBELL, son of John Campbell of Lancaster Co., Pennsylvania, married in Augusta Co., Va. Mary Hamilton and had seven sons and six daus. namely: John, Arthur, James, William, David Robert Patrick, Margaret, Mary, Martha, Sarah, Ann and a dau. not named.

ETHAN ALLEN AND FAMILY

(1759) "I have no doubt that many interesting and important facts and incidents in the early history of Ethan Allen, might yet be rescued from oblivion. A few of those which have never appeared in print I am happy in having it in my power to supply. Having instituted a careful inquiry with regard to the time and place of his birth, I succeeded several years ago in obtaining from the town clerk of Litchfield in the state of Connecticut a certified copy of records in the town clerk's office in that town, from which I derive the following facts, viz. That Joseph Allen, father of Ethan Allen, resided in that town in 1728, with his mother, Mercy Allen, who was then a widow; that on the 11th day of March, 1736, he was married to Mary Baker, by the Rev. Anthony Stoddard, of Woodbury. Succeeding these facts in the records of the town of Litchfield, we have the following statements, "verbatim et litteratim."

"Ethan Allen ye son of Joseph Allen and Mary his wife was born January ye 10th, 1737." Litchfield, Cornwall, Salisbury, Roxbury and, I think, Woodbury have all been honored as the birthplace of Ethan Allen. But the records of the town of Litchfield which I have cited make it certain that he was born there. Joseph Allen, the father of Ethan, removed with his family to Cornwall, Ct., about the year 1740, and in that town were most of his children born, and there he died on the 4th of April, 1755. Soon after Joseph Allens' death, Heman, his second son, engaged in mercantile business in Salisbury, and after that period his house became the home of the family.

Joseph Allen had six sons, of whom Ethan was the oldest, their names were as follows: I. Ethan, b. Jan. 10, 1737-8; Heman, b. Oct. 15, 1740; Lydia, b. April 6, 1741;
Heber, b. Oct. 4, 1743; Levi, b. Jan. 16, 1745; Lucy, b. April 2, 1747; Zimri, b. Dec. 10, 1748; Ira, b. 1751. Lydia married a Mr. Finch, and lived and died in Goshen, Ct.; Lucy married a Dr. Bebee and lived and died in Sheffield, Mass.; Heber and Zimri, unlike their brothers never made themselves conspicuous in connection with political affairs. Heber died many years ago in Poultney, Vt. He had two sons, Heber and Heman. Heber went into the western country and I know nothing further of his history. He- man, Hon. Heman Allen, of Highgate, after the death of his father was adopted into the family of his uncle, Ira. Zimri, died at Sheffield, Mass. He came to Vermont (then the New Hampshire grants) about the year 1766, leaving his family at Sheffield, and from that time he regarded this state as his home. At the time Ethan Allen came to New Hampshire grants, the controversy between the settlers and the claimants under New York had already commenced, and several actions had been brought in the courts at Albany, for the ejectment of the settlers under New Hampshire titles."

"The time will not allow me to go into particulars in relation to the controversy between the first settlers of Vermont, and the colony of New York in which Ethan Allen acted so conspicuous a part. Nor is it necessary, since these particulars are fully detailed in the published histories of the state, and probably familiar to most of you.

While Ethan Allen was defending the rights of the settlers on the New Hampshire grants, as their acknowledged champion he was not indifferent to the conduct of the mother country towards her American colonies; and after the bloody affair at Lexington, he felt himself called upon to engage in the cause of liberty and right, on a larger scale. In accordance, therefore, with a request from Connecticut, he undertook to surprise and capture the fortress of Ticonderoga. Having collected 230 Green Mountain boys, he arrived with 180 of them at the lake, in Shoreham, opposite the fort, on the evening of the 9th of May, 1775. It was with great difficulty that boats could be procured to cross the lake, and with all diligence, only 83 men had been able to cross over the land near the fort, before daylight the next morning. As any farther delay would inevitably defeat their object, Allen placed himself at the head of these, inspired them with confidence by one of his laconic speeches, and then led them through a wicket-gate into the fort. The garrison (except the sentries, who were too much frightened to give the alarm) were in a profound sleep, from which they were first awakened by three hearty cheers from the Green Mountain boys, who were drawn up in regular order within the fort. Allen having ascertained the lodging place of the commander, Capt. De Place, commanded him to come forth instantly and surrender the fort, or he would sacrifice the whole garrison. De Place soon appeared at the door and inquired by what authority the surrender was demanded? "I demand it," says Allen "in the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." These were authorities which, with Allen's sword over his head, De Place did not think it prudent to dispute. He therefore surrendered the garrison at discretion.

From the time of the capture of the garrison at Ticonderoga, Ethan Allen considered himself enlisted in the cause of American freedom. And, although he held no commission from congress, he lent his willing service to Gens. Schuyler and Montgomery, who were ordered to advance into Canada in the fall of 1775, and by whom he was entrusted with the command of certain detachments of the army, and sent forward for the purpose of ascertaining the feelings of the French settlers, and engaging them, if possible, in the American cause. In one of these excursions between Longueuil and LaPrarie, he met Maj. Brown, with about 200 men, and it was agreed between them, that they would attempt the capture of Montreal. Brown was to cross the river during the night, a little above the city, with his 200 men, and Allen, with 110 men, was to land a little below the city, and in the morning at a concerted signal, to assure each other that both were in readiness, they were to rush in on opposite sides, and take possession of the city. With a few canoes and much labor, Allen succeeded in getting his men over in the course of the night, and choosing his position. Here he waited with much impatience, for a signal from Brown, that he had passed over and was ready for an advance upon the city, but he waited in vain. Brown did not pass over, Allen's position and numbers soon became known in the city, and all the forces that could be mustered were sent out to assault them, and an obstinate battle ensued. Allen, deserted by most of his Canadians, overwhelmed by numbers, and unable to retreat, was at length obliged to surrender at discretion. This event took place on the 25th of September, 1775, and for the space of 2 years and 8 months, Allen was a prisoner in the hands of the British. He was loaded with Irons and sent to England, and was treated with the greatest cruelty, and indignity, but in all situations, whether chained down in the hold of the vessel, or walking upon the deck, whether confined in the filthy and gloomy prison on shore, or abroad on his parole, he was, in all places, he was ETHAN ALLEN and no one else. Ethan Allen was exchanged for Lieut. John Campbell, on the 6th of May, 1778. After waiting on Gen. Washington, at Valley Forge, he returned to Vermont, where he unexpectedly, but to the great joy of his friends, arrived on the 31st of May. The news of his arrival was spread throughout the country. The Green Mountain boys flocked around him, and gave him a hearty welcome, cannons were fired in token of gladness and there was a general rejoicing. As Washington was a terror to the enemies of American Independence, so Ethan Allen was a terror to the enemies of Vermont. He died the 11th of February, 1789, and on the 16th, his remains were interred with the honors of war. His military friends from Bennington and parts adjacent attended and the procession was truly solemn and numerous. He was buried in the graveyard at Winooski Falls."

North, and had issue, Sir John Spencer, Kt., and by Margaret, his wife, daughter of Robert Catline, Lord Chief Justice, Robert, his son.

Which Robert, being a person of great estate, and for other his deserts, was, in the first of Jac. I. advanced to the dignity of a Baron of this Realm by the title of Lord Spencer of Wormleighton; shortly after, he was sent to the Duke of Wirtemberg with the Ensign of the most noble Order of the Garter. And by Margaret, his wife, daughter to Sir Francis Willoughby of Woolaton, had issue, had four sons: John, William, Richard, and Edward; also two daughters MARY and Elizabeth." (Colling Peerage, pub. 1709).

"This was a branch issuing from the stock of the noble house of Marlborough and Spencer. From an illustrious line of progenitors arose WILLIAM SPENCER, Esq., of Redburn, in the county of Warwick, anno. I. Henry VII. Knt., denominated of Snittersfield, in Warwickshire, which estate he acquired with his wife, Isabel, daughter and co-heir of Walter Grant.

(Burke's Extinct and Dormant Baronets.)

"SIR JOHN SPENCER, KNT., of Wormleighton Co., Warwick, purchased that estate 3 Sept., 1506, and soon after began the structure of the manor house there. He was knighted by Henry VIII, and appears to have possessed a large property in the counties of Warwick and Northampton; he was a notable housekeeper, liberal to his poor neighbors and bountiful to his tenants and servants, rebuilt the church of Wormleighton, as well as those of Brington and Staunton, Co. Northampton, and also bestowed vestments and chalices on them. Sir John married Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Walter Grant, of Snittersfield Co., Warwick, and d. April 14, 1522, when he was survived by his eldest son.

SIR WILLIAM SPENCER, KNT, of Wormleighton and Althorp, Northampton, high sheriff of the latter co. 23 & 24 Henry VIII., knighted 1529. He married Susan, dau. of Richard Knightley, Knt. of Fawsley, Northampton, and d. 22 June, 1532, leaving (with six daus.) an only son

Sir John Spencer, Knt. of Wormleighton and Althorp, high sheriff Northampton 5 Edward VI., and M. P. for the co., 1 Mary I. and 13 Queen Elizabeth; m. Katherine, dau. of Sir Thomas Kitson, Knt. of Hengrave, Suffolk, and had (with six daus.) five sons.

Sir John his heir.

SIR JOHN SPENCER, Knt. of Wormleighton and Althorp, who was knighted 1588, and m. Mary, only dau. and heir of Sir Robert Catlyn, Knt. of Berne, Dorset, Chief Justice of the King's Bench by whom (who m. 2ndly, Edward Glascock, of Castle Hedingham, Essex), he had an only son Robert (Sir) his heir. Sir John d. 9 Jan. 1599, and was survived by his son

SIR ROBERT SPENCER, 1st Lord Spencer of Wormleighton, Warwick, was elevated to the peerage 21 July 1603, by the title of Baron Spencer of Wormleighton. This nobleman appears to have been a very spirited member of parliament, as his reply to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel in a debate upon the royal prerogative, in 1621 evinces. "My Lord," said Howard, "when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep"—"When my ancestors were keeping sheep," replied Spencer, "your ancestors were plotting treason." This excited such irritation, at the moment, that Arundel, as the aggressor, was committed to the Tower; but soon after, acknowledging his fault, was discharged. His Lordship m. 15 Feb., 1587, Margaret, dau. and co-heir of Sir Frances Willoughby, of Woollaton. She d. 17 Aug., 1597. He d. 25 Oct., 1627, and was survived by his only living son

William, 2nd Baron Spencer, bapt. 4 Jan., 1591-2; m. 1617 Penelope, dau. of Henry Wriothesley, 3rd Earl of Southampton, by whom (who d. 16 July, 1667), he had (with other issue):

1. Henry, 1st Earl
2. Robert, created Viscount Teviot, in the peerage of Scotland, 1685, a dignity that expired with himself.

(From Burke's Peerage and Baronetage.)
LORD SPENCER.
LORD ROBERT SPENCER.

"Lord Robert Spencer, Sheriff of Northamptonshire in the forty-third year of Elizabeth, before which time he received the honor of knighthood, and when King James ascended the throne, was reputed to have by him the most money of any person in England. Ben Johnson alludes to him in these lines:

"Who since Thamyra did die
Hath not brook’d a lady’s eye
Not allow’d about his place
Any of the female race."

The grief of Sir Robert Spencer for the loss of his beloved consort, Margaret, daughter of Sir Francis Willoughby, thus beautifully alluded to, was no poetic fiction. He lost her in August, 1597; but though he survived her thirty years, he never made a second choice. He was created Baron Spencer of Wormleighton, July 21, 1603. The records of the times gave him a very high character, being spoken of as 'The old Roman chosen Dictator,' seldom leaving his farm save when called to the Senate. During the debates in Parliament, 1621, relating to the King's power and prerogative, this Lord Spencer, standing up boldly for the public liberty (with the Earls of Oxford, Southampton, Essex, and Warwick), made some allusion to the past, and the Earl of Arundel replying thereto said, 'My Lord, when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep,' to which this Lord Spencer, with a spirit and quickness of thought peculiar to him, immediately answered: 'When my ancestors were keeping sheep (as you say), your ancestors were plotting treason.' So says Wilson's Hist. of Great Britain, London, 1653, p. 163; but see the more correct account given at length in 'Gardner's

THE STARS AND STRIPES.

We are indebted to a patriotic English gentleman, Edward W. Tuffley of Porthampton, England, for the most reliable and authentic history of the origin of our Stars and Stripes, who discovered our Stars and Stripes, who discovered our National Emblem to have been designed from the coat of arms of the Washington family. In the church at Brighton, England, which is the parish church for Althorp, the ancestors of the Spencer family lie buried. In this church is a memorial brass plate of the Washingtons, which shows the arms of the family to have been the Stars and Stripes. In the chancel is a monument to Lawrence Washington, which has a brass plate dated 1564, bearing the Stars and Stripes.

ANDERSON COAT OF ARMS.
ANDERSON FAMILY.

The Manor of Penley, which is partly within the parish of Tring and partly in the neighboring parish of Aldbury, but with its caput maneri, or manor house, in the former parish, held 10 Edward I., by John d'Aygel, and thence descending finally to the family of Verney, was sold by Sir Francis Verney to Richard Anderson, Esq., who held a court there, Anno 5 Jac. I., and was knighted two years afterwards. Sir Richard Anderson's wife, Mary, was daughter of Robert, Lord Spencer, Baron of Wormleighton, owner of the manor of Althorp in Northampton.

This Sir Richard Anderson seems to have been by far the most important parishoner then living in Tring, where he died 3 August, 1632, and was buried within the chancel rail of that parish church. His widow, dame Mary Anderson, afterwards lived in Richmond Surrey, but was buried at Tring, July, 1658. I examined the will of Sir Richard Anderson. It follows:

SIR RICHARD ANDERSON, of Penley in the county of Hertford knight, 5 October 1630, proved 27 August 1632. To poor of Bitterly in Shropshire, Norton in Glostershire, Corrimgham in Essex, Albury, Tring and Wigginton in Hertfordshire, to each parish five pounds. To town of Tring ten pounds to be added and employed, with that money already there in stock, to set the poor on work, which money of my own and some others given to that use is in ffeoffe's hands at this time thirty pounds. To my uncle Francis Garaway or if dead, amongst his children, twenty pounds; to my Uncle Mr. John Bowyer and my two cousins, his sons John and Francis, either of them, ten pounds. To my brother in law Thomas Cowly, now consul at Sante, twenty pounds.
Item I bequeath to Mr. Robinson's two sons, one of Pembroke College the other of Albourne Hall, and to my cousin Larance Washington of Brasenose and to Mr. Dagnall of Pembrock College, to each of them forty shillings.

To my wife (over and above her jointure) bedding and household stuff belonging in my father's time to a house he had in Chiswick, &c &c. My bigger diamond ring to my daughter Elizabeth. I will and bequeath to my dear and only surviving sister the Lady Spencer of Offley twenty pounds. To the Right Hon. the Lord Spencer, Robert Needham Esq., Richard Spencer Esq., Sir Edward Spencer knight and Sir Thomas Derham knight, my worthy brothers-in-law, ten pounds each. Provision made for second son ROBERT and third son JOHN, and two younger sons WILLIAM and RICHARD (under one and twenty). Eldest daughter ELIZABETH, second daughter MARY and third daughter FRANCES (all unmarried). To five younger daughters, MARGARET, KATHERINE, PENELope, ANN and BRIDGET, Son HENRY. My wife Dame Mary. The manor of Corringham in Essex.

(1795) RICHARD ANDERSON1, who on July 4th, 1635, took the oath of allegiance and supremacy and to that conformable to the discipline of the Church of England, and left England for Virginia, is the Richard Anderson, who is mentioned in the will of Sir Richard Anderson (1632) of Penley, County Hertfordshire, England, as "under one and twenty," who settled in Gloucester City, Virginia, owing to the destruction of many early records his immediate descendants cannot be positively traced, but, he is said to have been the ancestor of the Anderson's of "Goldmine" New Kent County, Va. (New Kent County was taken from York, in 1634, and Hanover County was taken from New Kent, in 1720, Goldmine when first established was in New Kent but after 1720 in Hanover County.)

1799. ROBERT ANDERSON\(^2\), son of Richard, was granted April 16, 1683, 727 acres in New Kent, for the importation of fifteen persons, he was the first Anderson of "Goldmine."

In the Parish Book of New Kent, 1686, he is shown to have been a vestryman of St. Peter's until the Parish of St. Paul was cut off in 1704, in which latter Parish he remained Vestryman until his death in 1712, aged about 72 years. He married Cecelia Massie (a descendant of the Massie's, who arrived in Virginia about 1635.) Children:

ANDERSON FAMILY OF VIRGINIA.

(1808) ROBERT ANDERSON, on October 23, 1690, as Robert Anderson, Jr., took over the 727 acres in New Kent, which was granted to his father for the importation of fifteen persons and on the same date received 1200 acres for the importation of twenty-four persons, and in 1702 appears as Robert Anderson, Jr., as vestryman of St. Peter’s Parish, New Kent.

In 1704 on the formation of St. Paul’s he appears as Capt. Robert Anderson, and his father as Robert Anderson, Sr..

At this time there were but two Robert Anderson’s in the vestries of St. Peter’s and St. Paul’s and in deeds.

This captaincy appears to have been of a parish militia, which originated in 1612 when the whole colony was an armed camp. At this time and long afterward the Andersons, Massies, Garlands and Overtons were regular members of the vestry of St. Paul’s.

He died in 1716 aged about 53 years; he married Mary ————. Children, as shown by parish records and deeds:

ANDERSON FAMILY.

“A supplication from the people of Beverly Manor, in the back parts of Virginia,” was laid before the Presbytery of Donegal, September 2nd, 1737—“requesting supplies. The Presbytery judged it not expedient for several reasons to supply them this winter; but ordered Mr. Anderson (James) to write an encouraging letter to the people to signify that the Presbytery resolves, if it be in their power to grant their request next spring.” Mr. Anderson was the bearer of the petition of the Synod of Philadelphia, to Governor Gooch of Virginia made at the request of John Caldwell and others, in 1738, to obtain protection in the exercise of their religious preferences. Having been kindly received, he visited the emigrants in the valley with assurances from the Governor, of protection in the exercise of their consciences in matters of religion, and encouragement to extend their settlement.

Foote's Sketches of Va., 2nd S., p. 27.

"Those first settlers in the valley were mostly Presbyterians, but those in New Providence, I believe wholly so, at least in name. Near the South Mountain were several families of the name of Moore—others of Steel near them M. Clung—and Fulton—and Beard——Toward the North Mountain, on Hays and Walker's Creek, were two families of Hays, three or four Walkers of the same stock, and their brother-in-law James Moore——In the midst were three of the Berry family, one of Tedford, one M. Campbell, two or three M. Croskys, and a Coalter family. In the course of a few years other families came and settled among them, their names were: M'Nutt, Weir, Campbell, Anderson, ———— Gray, Patterson and others.

SCOTT FAMILY

"The Scott Coat of Arms and Traditions that cluster around the Scott Family" from an article by Eleanor Lexington:

To trace one's ancestry back to the time of Moses is not given to every family. More than ordinarily full of interest, therefore, is the tradition regarding the family of Scott. One historian asserts that the name originated from Scotia, daughter of that Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who was drowned in the Red sea. Gathelus, son of the first king of Athens, was so troublesome that his family sent him to Egypt, where he married Scotia. To escape from the plagues of which we read in the Bible, Gathelus and Scotia, with a large number of Greeks and Egyptians, put to sea, and finally landed in what is now Scotland, thus named in honor of Pharaoh's daughter.

FIRST OF THE AMERICAN SCOTTS.

In this country the name is common in the southwest and northwest. Richard Scott is regarded in genealogical parlance as the "emigrant ancestor," or the "settler," "the pilgrim" or "Richard of the first generation." He and three brothers who came over in the seventeenth century, settling in Boston, Newport and Providence, are regarded as the progenitors of the American family of Scotts.

"The ancient family of Scott has been seated at Great Barr, in the Co. Stafford, from the reign of Edward I. In 1296 a member of this family who was detained a prisoner in London, and restrained with the rest of his countrymen from passing to the north of the river Trent under pain of losing their heads, fixed himself as near that stream..."
as the thick forest of Cannock (now stripped of its woods) would allow."
(Burke's Peerage).

SCOTT'S HALL

"Scott's Hall was in the parish of Sneath, near Ashford, in Kent, and long the residence of William Baliol le Scot, a brother of John Baliol, King of Scotland. The property was sold in 1784 to John Honeywood, and afterwards alienated to the late Sir Edward Knatchbull, who pulled down the house. Hasted says it was of the time of Henry VIII.; but from rough sketches of the building in the possession of one of the Scott family, who lived to be nearly ninety, it was conjectured to have been much more ancient."

"SIR GEORGE CARTERET'S daughter Caroline, married 1663, Thomas Scott, eldest son of Sir Thomas Scott of Scott's Hall, and his wife Catherine."

"1659-60. Thomas Scott made Intelligencer, M. P., Jan. 10, made Secretary of State to the Commonwealth, January 17th following."

"THOMAS SCOTT, recently made Secretary of State, had signed the King's death-warrant, for which he was executed at Charing Cross, 16th October, 1660. He and Luke Robinson were members of Parliament, and of the Council of State, and selected as firm adherents to the Rump, to watch Monk's proceedings; and never was a mission more signally unsuccessful. Scott, before his execution, desired to have it written on his tombstone "Thomas Scott, who adjudged to death the late King."

"LADY CAROLINE SCOTT, second daughter of Sir George Carteret, was wife of Sir Thomas Scott, of Scott's Hall, Kent. (July, 1665)."
(Diary of Samuel Pepys).
THE family of Baker was settled at Cranebroke, in Kent, so early as the reign of Edward III, and from one of its younger branches descended THOMAS BAKER, of Rushington, whose daughter and heiress Margaret, m. to John Selden, was mother of the learned John Selden.

THOMAS BAKER, of Sisinghurst, Canbrook, Kent, was father of

he was made chancellor of the Exchequer. HENRY VIII constituted him an assistant trustee for the minor successor, after whose accession his name is scarcely mentioned in history, except in one instance, which ought not to be forgotten: he was the only privy councillor who steadfastly denied his assent to the last will of that prince, by which Mary and Elizabeth were excluded from inheriting the crown. He was successively recorder of London, attorney and chancellor of the Exchequer. He was likewise a privy councillor to Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary and Elizabeth. Sir Richard m. Visitations of Kent—1663-8. For the early portion of this pedigree see Visitations of Kent, 1619. Harlean Soc. Pub. XLII. 127.

"The known members of the Scott family among the early emigrants to New England, were RICHARD SCOTT, of Providence, who landed at Boston in 1633-4; JOHN SCOTT, of Long Island fame, who came over in 1642-3; JUDGE EDWARD SCOTT, of Newport, R. I., and his cousin JAMES SCOTT, about 1710. The male line of each has become extinct, except that of Richard; unless as some suppose, John Scott, left a son John (as shown by a pedigree in the family of the late Dr. William Jenks, of Boston), who it is thought received a grant of land in East Jersey from Sir George Carteret, in consideration of the services rendered by his father, in procuring, from the Duke of York, the grant of East Jersey to Sir George and Lord Berkley. Richard, Edward and James Scott were from a younger branch of the Scotts of Scotts-Hall, seated at Glemsford Suffolk, since the sixteenth century. Richard Scott is regarded in genealogical parlance as "the emigrant ancestor," or "the pilgrim" or "Richard of the first generation." He and three brothers who came over in the seventeenth century settling in Boston, Newport and Providence, are regarded as the progenitors of the American family of Scotts. The pedigree of the duke of Buccleuch was traced through Richard le Scot of Murdiston, county Lanark, one of the Scotch barons, who swore fealty to Edward I. in 1296; being the same period at which the Bialiols acknowledged Edward as their lord-paramount; confirming the assertion of Philpot that the family of the duke and the Scotts of Scotts-Hall had a common ancestry in the Bialiols. There are grounds for the belief that the Scotts of Great Barr, Staffordshire, sprung from the Bialiols; a portion of their arms being three Catharine wheels, as in the arms of the Scotts of Scotts-Hall——. The Scotts of Scotts-Hall, Kent, trace their pedigree in an unbroken line through Der-vorgille, the mother of William Bialiol Scot, to Fergus, king of Scotland, in the time of Alexander the great; to Rollo first duke of Normandy; Baldwin first count of Flanders; Henry I, Emperor of Germany; Waldimere the Great of Russia; Romanus I., of the Greek Empire; Alfred the Great; William the Conqueror; and finally to Charlemagne; mainly through female branches; also to David I. of Scotland; and Siward, earl of Northumberland, by a different line. The old Norman church at Babourne, Kent, contains many monuments of the Scotts of Scotts-Hall; some of which date back to the thirteenth century.

RICHARD SCOTT of Providence, was son of EDWARD SCOTT of Glemsford, Suffolk, Eng.

Richard Scott came in the Griffin 1634, his wife Catherine was dau. of Rev. Francis Marbury of London and Bridget Dryden, sister of Sir Erasmus Dryden, grandfather of the poet Dryden.

“This will was made 24 Sept 1623, in 21st year of James of England, by Henry Scott of Rattlesden in the County of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, it was proved in the Court of the Arch deacon of Sudbury—10 January 1624-5.”

“Henry Scott was buried at Rattlesden December 24, 1624.”

(Parish Register).

“Thomas Scott came with his wife and children to this country in the same vessel as Richard (Kemball) and they brought Martha Scott with them. As Thomas Scott settled in Ipswich, this may have had some influence in causing Richard (Kimball’s) removal from Watertown.”

It is certain they were there on the 2d. and were organizing a force to bring off the garrison at Northfield. But on that day (Thursday, Sept. 2nd), while this expedition was in preparation, and the Northfield people were abroad in the fields at work, a large body of Indians suddenly fell upon that town, killed many of the people as they fled from their homes and fields towards the garrison, burned all their exposed houses and destroyed cattle and crops. There were sixteen families in the town. The English killed at this time, according to Russell's list were eight."

HUBBARD FAMILY.

WILLIAM HUBBARD of Ipswich, Suffolk, Eng., was born in 1594, and graduated at Cambridge University, Eng., in 1620. He sailed from London in the ship Defence in 1635, "Edmond Bostocke, master," and landed in Boston, Mass., Oct. 6, 1635, accompanied by his wife (probably his second wife) Judith (Bloose) Knapp, of Ipswich, Eng., and six children. The shipping list of passengers of the Defence reports him "husbandman" aged 40 years; Judith, 25; Martha, 22; Mary, 20; John, 15; William, 14; Nathaniel, 6; and Richard, 4 years. Chaucer defined "husbandman" as "the master of a family." Since his time it has lost that significance and now means a tiller of the ground. William Hubbard was undoubtedly a gentleman of easy circumstances and much landed estate in England, and left there because of a sense of irritation to his religious views caused by the unbearable interference and restrictions then placed upon freedom of worship in the old country. He bought land of Thomas Dudley, Esq., to whom it had been granted in Oct. this same year (1635). Mr. Dudley had erected a house upon it, &c., &c. Among "Old Norfolk County Deeds" is the following instrument recorded "May 22, 1657, William Hubbard, Senr. of Ipswich New England, in ye County of Essex, gent., and Judith, his wife, to Captain Thomas Wiggin, of Quamscooke, in New England" &c.—(Signed) WILLIAM HUBBARD, Judith Hubbard "Acknowledged May 22, 1657. One of the early ancestors of John Scott', whose name is also said to have been John Scott, was born in Scotland, went to Ireland where he lost an arm in the Irish Rebellion and later came to the United States and is said to have settled in Virginia.

MARTHA McCORKLE SCOTT

On the Fourth day of April, 1851, Martha McCorkle Scott appeared before the Montgomery County Court of Indiana and applied for a pension in recognition of the services of her husband, Samuel Scott, who was a private under Colonel Campbell and Capt. Dasey—Gen. Greene's Division. He enlisted in 1778 and served until the close of the war—was at the Battle of King's Mountain with his brothers Thomas and William.

She was married to Samuel Scott, in the Wolf Hill meeting house five miles below Abingdon, in Virginia, by Rev. Charles Cummings, notice of same being given three weeks in advance. They moved to Woodford Co., Kentucky, in 1784, taking with them Samuel Scott's mother, who was then a widow. Martha speaks of her husband being enlisted and subject to call at the time they were married. The above was sworn to by Martha Scott before I. Naylor, Presiding Judge and James W. Lynn, Clerk of Montgomery County Court House.

Thomas Scott, son of Samuel's brother, Thomas, made application for pension, the application was signed by James Carothers and Mrs. Frost and the leaf from the Bible which gives dates of marriage of John Scott and Margaret Thornton, death of Margaret Scott and marriage of Samuel Scott and Martha McCorkle, is preserved in the pension office at Washington, D. C., together with a copy of Martha Scott’s deposition.

On April 11th, 1851, Elijah Mahan appeared before Justice of the Peace, George Appleget of Montgomery County, and testified that he had known Samuel Scott and wife, Martha McCorkle, for many years; also that he personally knew it to be the fact that Samuel Scott served in the Revolutionary War from the time he was sixteen years old in 1778 until its close; that said Samuel was called out against the Indians and Tories many times after he and Martha were married, and that his brother Thomas obtained a pension for his Revolutionary service, in which Samuel also participated at King’s Mountain and other engagements. Rev. Charles Cummings, pastor of Wolf Hill church attested to the fact that Martha Scott and her son Samuel were members of his church and that her children were baptized by him.

Condensed from papers on file at the Government Pension Office at Washington, D. C., which were examined in the summer of 1917 and copies made of same. (E. S. W.)

Martha Scott at one time narrowly escaped being killed by the Indians. She went to the home of one of her friends to assist in the preparations for a wedding. Immediately after she left the house it was surrounded by Indians and burned to the ground. One of the members of the family, an old lady, was tied to a horse and carried away. The young lady who was preparing for her wedding was taken away by the Indians and tied to a tree for the night. In some way she made her escape. She said she saw one of the Indians put on her wedding bonnet and dance around the burning building.

Declaration of Thomas Davis of Woodford County, Ky.

"I was born in Spottsylvania County, Va., in 1761. I enlisted April 25, 1779, for 18 months in the war of the Revolution. I served under Capt. Alexander Parker in Col. Richard Parker's regiment. I also served for two months as a sub-alternate for my brother Benjamin in a company of militia commanded by Capt. William Mills (James Cunningham, first lieutenant) and marched to Williamsburg where I served until discharged. The day after my return home I was drafted, and served two months in the state, I marched to Yorktown and was present at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis. My total service was 18 months, for which I received $60. This declaration is supported by an affidavit of John McGrady, of Woodford County, who served in the same regiment with Thomas Davis. Thomas Davis was pensioned in Woodford County, Ky., Aug. 18, 1818, in the 57th year of his age. (Pub.)

ELIZABETH SCOTT WALKER.
Alexander Walker, was raised in Woodford County, Ky., as was also his wife Elizabeth Scott; soon after their marriage moved to Adair County, Ky., where they owned a farm of 300 acres and raised a great deal of tobacco.

Elizabeth (Scott) Walker, was the third child of Samuel and Martha (McCorkle) Scott, who were married and lived in Virginia; they moved to Kentucky in August 1796, encountering many privations on the way. At one time they were attacked by the Indians and several of their party were killed; Mrs. McClure was traveling with them and her young children were slain; one young girl was tomahawked, scalped and left for dead, but Martha Scott found and cared for her, insisting on carrying her back to the Fort, where she eventually recovered.

The children of Alexander and Elizabeth (Scott) Walker were:

His other sons were, James, John, and Moses, all except Moses lived and died in Adair County, Ky. William Allen served in the war of 1812, and died of yellow fever in New Orleans (or Memphis). Sarah Ann (Allen) Walker was born and raised in Adair Co., Ky. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a very strict temperance woman. She d. in Nov., 1882, in Cowley Co., Kans., at the home of her son Cyrus.

Samuel Scott Walker\textsuperscript{10} served as sheriff four years in Fairfield, Jefferson Co., Ia. He also served as postmaster in Columbia, Marion Co., Ia., for two years. A number of years after his going out of office, the government officials at Washington in checking up his accounts, found that there was $30 to his credit. This had been accumulating during the twenty years of his postmastership, as in making his returns to the government, he always preferred to give them the advantage, and favored them, rather than turn out a defaulter, never thinking that the amount thus overpaid, would be returned to him. His honesty and integrity was manifested in all his dealings with his fellowmen. He resigned in favor of William Oller. He made two trips to the Rocky Mountains in company with his son-in-law B. B. Siggins.

When Samuel Scott Walker removed to Jefferson Co., Ia., it was a wilderness occupied only by Indians. His farm occupied the place where Glasgow now stands. In 1840 Governor Dodge appointed him Colonel of the State Militia and by that title, he was known ever afterwards.

He removed to Kansas in 1880, and lived there until he went to Florida in the fall of 1890, where he died Jan. 22, 1892, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Melissa Smith.

(1950) WILLIAM THORNTON SCOTT\textsuperscript{9}, son of Samuel and Martha (McCorkle) Scott; was born April 3, 1812. His mother, Martha (McCorkle) Scott, was a sister of Joseph McCorkle. The father died when he was but eight years old, but the mother lived to be ninety-five. Many times she related to this her youngest child the stories of the trials and privations of her early life when her parents came as pioneers to Kentucky, and their narrow escape from the Indians at Boon Station. She also told him of his father's going with the volunteer forces raised to march against Ferguson in North Carolina. There is no record of Samuel Scott's service in this battle, but William Thornton Scott, who lived to be eighty-three years and ten months old (died Feb., 1896), left a written statement of the facts in the case, and upon this statement several descendants of Samuel Scott have joined the Revolutionary Society of this country. William T. Scott was a member of one of these and was invited by the Sons of the American Revolution to attend their meeting in Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 7, 1895. This meeting was held on North Carolina day of the Atlanta Exposition. There were many patriotic speeches, one by W. T. Scott, the only surviving son of the nine hundred patriots of that battle. When the civil war broke out he, being too old to go himself, sent three sons to fight for the Union. After the close of the war the family moved to Holton, Kansas. His daughter, Mrs. Martha A. Hand, served several years as State Regent for the Daughters of the Revolution in Kansas. She joined this society in recognition of her grandfather, Samuel Scott's service at King's Mountain. W. T. Scott was a member of the Presbyterian Church, serving as ruling elder for over fifty years. He attended three General Assemblies as delegate, an honor conferred on few elders. It was my good fortune to see and know this good man. He was an unusually good conversationalist, and being possessed of a remarkable memory, could relate many interesting and amusing incidents relating to early history of the family. He told of attending the wedding of Samuel Scott Walker (my grandfather) and Sarah Allen; "Scott Walker," as he was called, being a nephew of T. W. Scott's. He also mentioned the fact that his father's family of fifteen children were never at home at one time, some of the older ones being married and living in homes of their own before he, the youngest one, was born. NEW JERSEY SCOTTS

Elizabeth Morrison, daughter of Jonathan Morrison, was b. in Sanborn, New Hampshire, Nov. 2, 1804, married Feb. 19, 1837, George Roberts. Mrs. George M. Roberts is a lineal descendant on the paternal side of Henry Scott, one of the London ten commissioners who secured from the Crown ten thousand acres of soil on this side of the Atlantic Ocean in what is now Burlington county, New Jersey, being one of the early settlers of that region. The old homestead (now owned by Joseph Scott) stands near the present site of the Masonic Home of New Jersey, which was erected on a portion of the Scott farm. The early members of the Scott family were Quakers but later generations have become identified with leading other denominations.

John Scott, grandfather of Mrs. George M. Roberts, was a resident of Burlington, New Jersey, resided on the old homestead, was widely known, honored and respected as a good citizen and a man of strict integrity. He and his family were members of the Episcopal Church. He married Hannah Eldridge of Burlington, New Jersey, whose ancestors were among the first settlers of West New Jersey, coming from England.

HAMER OR HAMOR.

RALPH HAMER* the elder, merchant-tailor. Was an incorporator, and for a time a director of the East Indian Company. He died in 1615, leaving his widow, Susan executrix of his estate. Two of his sons went to Virginia; Ralph in 1609, and Thomas in 1617. Thomas was at Master Harrison’s house near Warrasoyack at the time of the massacre, March 22, 1622. On the 24th of January, 1623, George Harrison wrote from Jamestown that “Thomas Hamor was very sick”. He probably died before February, 1624.

“RALPH HAMER*, the younger, went to Virginia in 1609, and remained there until June 18, 1614. On the 8th of January, 1616, the company gave him eight shares in Virginia, and on the 15th of January “bills of adventure allowed to Capt. Raphe Hamor and the persons here under named for every man transported at their charge being 16, who were to have noe Bonds, vizth; one bill of 12 pounds 10 s. for Mr. Rob. Sturton; one bill of 25 pounds for Mr. Christo Martin; one bill of 12 pounds 10 s. for Mr. John Blackall; one bill of 50 pounds for Mr. Tho. Hamor; one bill of 62 pounds 10 s. for Mr. Raphe Hamor; one bill of 25 pounds for Mr. William Tucker; one bill of 12 pounds 10 s. for Mr. Elias Roberts.” He sailed from England about March and arrived in Virginia in May, 1617. He was a member of the council in Virginia, 1621 to 1628, and probably after.

HAMOR’S NARRATION.

October 20, 1614, there was entered at Stationers’ Hall for publication “A booke called ‘an Narracon of the present State of Virginia’ by Ralph Hammer.” It was published soon after with the following title: “A True Discourse of The Present Estate of Virginia, and the successe of affaires there till the 18. of June 1614. Together with a Relation of the Severall English Townes and Fortes, the assured hopes of that countrie and the peace concluded with the Indians. The christening of Powhatans daughter and her marriage with an English-man. “Written by Raphe Hamor the younger, late Secretarie in the Colony “Alget, qui non ardet. “Printed at London by John Beale for William Welby dwelling at the signe of the Swanne in Pauls church-yard 1615 (I. e., after Sept. 29, 1614).

Originals are preserved in the libraries of Mr. Charles Deane, Mr. Kalbfleisch. The Lenox, and the John Carter-Brown. An original in the Drake sale March 1883, fetched $345. Quaritch prices a copy at $500.

John Rolfe mentions this tract as having been “faithfully written by a gent of good merit, Mr. Ralph Hamor" thus indorsing the account of his marriage in his letter."

(Gen. of the U. S. Vol. II. p. 746.)

JANE HAMMER (or HUMMER) or Hamor, married Alexander Walker, son of John Walker of Wigton, Scotland and his wife Katherine Rutherford. It has been suggested that Jane (Hamor) Walker may have been a descendant of the above and this record is here recorded for future reference.

Alexander Walker was b. May 19, 1716; m. Jan. 8, 1747 Jane Hamer. He d. 1784-5 in Rockbridge co., Va. His wife d. 1798 in Woodford Co., Kentucky.

Editor.
GRAY FAMILY.

FRANCIS GRAY¹, was one of the first emigrants to Maryland, for in 1637, three years after the arrival of Leonard Calvert and his emigrants at St. Mary's, he was living at St. George's Hundred, which he represented that year in the General Assembly of Maryland. He continued to be elected annually till 1643, as the representative from St. George's. By trade he was a carpenter—a trade of importance in a new country. (See published archives of Maryland.) He married Alice Moorman who had been brought to Virginia in 1637 by Capt. Thomas Cornwallis, one of the Council of Maryland.

(Neill's Founders of Maryland, p. 78.)

Owing to the disturbances in Maryland occasioned by William Claybourne and the differences between Catholics and Protestants, several settlements were formed about 1638 on the south bank of the Potomac, at Machodoc and Chicacoan, under the government of Virginia. Francis Gray took an active part in these troubles against Lord Baltimore, and finally found it more agreeable to settle in Virginia. He sold his cattle in Maryland in 1647, and removing to Machodock, Westmoreland County, Va., died there in 1667. His will is on record in Westmoreland County, and was dated 7 June, 1667, and proved July 31, 1667. It names wife Alice, 2 son Francis, 3 daughter Rust, wife of William Rust; and mentions Ann Launcelot, daughter of John Launcelot. Witnesses John Ashton, Mary Gardner.

FRANCIS GRAY², son of Francis Gray¹, the emigrant, lived at Machodoc, in Westmoreland County, Va. He married Sarah, one of the three daughters of Nathaniel Jones, a justice of Westmoreland County, (see Land Grants and Westmoreland County Records). He died about 1687, when Thomas Kerton brought suit against Thomas Kitch-en “who married the relict of Francis Gray.” Francis Gray died without will, but Nathaniel was his eldest son, who married Mary ————. This is shown by a deed from Francis Gray to Thomas Butler, James Butler and Elizabeth Butler (the said James and Elizabeth being a son and daughter of said James Butler) for land “formerly leased to said Butler by Francis Gray, father to said Nathaniel Gray”, dated 27 April, 1707. The same day Mary Gray, wife of said Nathaniel made a deed to Nathaniel Pope.

NATHANIEL GRAY\(^5\), (Francis\(^2\), Francis\(^1\), made his will in Westmoreland County, March 26, 1743, and names children. 6 Nathaniel, 7 George, 8 Sarah; she married first Weedon, and had George Weedon; second William Strother 9 Francis Margaret. He mentions his grandson, George Weedon, daughter Sarah Strother, and leaves to his son, George Gray, land at Washington’s Mill for life, and then to his grandson, Nathaniel Gray.

There is a deed dated 1747, recorded in Westmoreland, from Francis Gray to William Strother for land in Wash-ington Parish, Westmoreland County bequeathed by Na-thaniel Gray, of Westmoreland, Gentleman, to his daugh-ter Sarah, wife of William Strother.

There is a deed recorded in Stafford County from Na-thaniel Gray, of Washington Parish, in the county of Westmoreland, yeoman, selling to Thomas Kitchen, of the Par-ish of St. Pauls King George County, 460 acres, once sold by Jarvis Dodson to Nathaniel Jones, Aug. 20, 1709. There is the will of James Strother proved in Stafford County, October 1766. It names brother, French Strother, sister, Mary, “wife of George Gray, of Stafford Co.,” whom he ap-points executor.

GEORGE GRAY\(^4\), (Nathaniel\(^3\), Francis\(^2\), Francis\(^1\), and Mary Strother had issue 10 GEORGE GRAY\(^5\), eldest son and heir at law, which is proved in this way.
In King George County there is a deed from Nathaniel Gray of the county of Caroline, to Henry Alexander Ashton, of the county of King George, which recites that Nathaniel Gray, late of the county of Stafford, now King George, father of the grantor, Nathaniel, his eldest son, and heir was seized of a tract of land on the north side of Machodoc Creek in Westmoreland County, as tenant in fee tail, and having executed a writ of Ad quod damnum, he sold the same to his brother George Gray, who died leaving George Gray his eldest son and heir.

GEORGE GRAY⁵, George⁴, Nathaniel³, Frances², Francis¹, married Mildred Thompson daughter of Rev. John Thompson and Elizabeth Rootes. (See Strother's St. Mark's Parish and Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, IV., p. 208.) Issue, John Thompson Gray⁶ who married Mary Ormsby. In Culpepper County there is a deed dated July 2, 1760, which recites that Daniel French, then in Fairfax County, and Margaret French, late of King George County who gave slaves to his said daughter Margaret in his will, of which he made his brother, Hugh French executor. The deed also states that Jane Strother, of Culpepper, French Strother, and Mary Gray, wife of George Gray, were children of the said James Slaughter and Margaret his wife, late Margaret French deceased, sister of Daniel French, party to the deed.

There is a deed recorded in Culpepper of Nathaniel Gray and Mary his wife, to Caroline, dated 1779.

There is a power of attorney from George Weedon recorded in Stafford county, to George Gray, to sell his lands, or, in case of his death, he devises it to his mother, and his sisters Margaret Strother, Sarah Strother and Patty Strother. Recorded in 1756, and witnessed by Nathaniel Gray and others.

(William and Mary Quarterly XII. p. 267.)

Alice Moreman,—married 1639 Francis Gray, carpenter, who was member of the Assembly 1638.
NOTE: We were not able to connect this Francis Gray with Margaret Gray who married James Walker, but they were undoubtedly near of kin.

Philadelphia, 5th Feb., 1776.

To the Honorable the Committee of Safety from the province of Pennsylvania:

The petition of the Committee of Privates of the association belonging to the City and Liberties of Philadelphia humbly sheweth: That as it is of the utmost consequence in the prosecution of our present most righteous opposition to Tyranny and Arbitrary Power, that none be commissioned as officers in the Continental Service but those who manifest the most sincere and warm attachment to the cause of Liberty, and, as the Honorable the Continental Congress has entrusted the appointment of all inferior and the recommendation of all superior officers for this honorable board.

Your petitioners do pray this honorable board to appoint or recommend none but such as have signed the articles of association given out by the honorable House of Representatives of the freeman of this province, seeing this ought at this time to be considered as the strongest mark of attachment to the cause which our present circumstance will admit of.
As your petitioners have the pleasure to assure this honorable board that the signing the articles aforesaid is become very general in the City and District, and like to be universal among those who have therefore associated, and as the association is principally composed of tradesmen and others who earn their living by their industry. They do further pray this honorable board that such of them as may be capable of performing such public works as this honorable board may have in charge to see executed, and have signed the Association aforesaid, may be employed in preference to all others, and that such works may be equally distributed amongst the signers of the Association as conveniently can.

The propriety of this application your petitioners humbly conceive will speak for itself, and as they assure themselves that this honorable board will consider the associators who sign the articles of association as better to be depended on and more worthy of encouragement than those who do not, they take the liberty to request this honorable board to shew them these marks of their favor and countenance and your petitioners will pray, etc.

Signed on behalf of the Committee of Privates.

SAMUEL SIMPSON, Chairman.

Indorsed:

The petition from the Committee of Privates being read, this board resolved that the matters therein prayed are reasonable and proper and the Committee will pay due regard to same.”

SIMPSON COAT OF ARMS.
(2336). BISHOP MATTHEW T. SIMPSON, was born in Cadiz, Ohio, June 21, 1811. He was a delegate to the British Wesleyan Conference, which met in Berlin. He was a close friend of President Lincoln, and was frequently sent for to go to Washington, where his opinions and advice were sought and often followed. Immediately after the assassination of President Lincoln, Bishop Simpson was summoned to Washington by Mrs. Lincoln to render such service as he could to the stricken family. Then when all was over and the remains of the Martyred President reached the final resting place in Springfield, he preached the last words over his friend. He was one of the Methodist pioneers, whose help in building up the country, and instilling into the settlers principles of patriotism, along with their tenets of Methodism, it would be hard to estimate. He has been lovingly referred to as "The Napoleon of Methodism". He was in England at the time of President Garfield's death, and was called upon to speak at the memorial meeting held in Exeter Hall, London. To this day his address is referred to as the greatest one ever delivered in England, by an American. He died June 18, 1884. Bishop Randolph S. Foster said of him in concluding his funeral address, "There never has been a Bishop of any Church who wielded so great an influence in National affairs as Bishop Simpson has exerted, nor do I believe there ever will be another who will exert so great an influence on the nation as he."

ADDENDA

Father W. J. Dalton, of Kansas City, Mo., was intimately acquainted with Frederick Siggins, of Sligo, Ireland. He evidently belonged to our family, but nothing further could be learned of him except that he was educated in a parochial school and occupied many positions of trust in the Catholic Church. His home until the war began was in Ballymote, Sligo County, Ireland. He had a brother who was a lawyer somewhere in Australia, and a sister living in Dublin. In 1917, Father Siggins was Superior of the Franciscan order in England, Ireland and Australia.

The First Quarterly Conference of the Erie Circuit of the Methodist Church was held at Meadville, Pa., August 15, 1812. The following minutes are of historic interest:

“A recommendation was received through Mr. Watts, from James Allender’s class in favor of Samuel Wilson, as a proper person to preach the gospel.

Signed by the following persons, viz.:

James Dawson,
Isaac Connely,
John Siggins,
William Siggins,
George Siggins,
William Middleton,
Alexander McElhany.

“The character and usefulness of the preachers, exhorters and class leaders were examined individually in conference, after which they adjourned.

Signed by order of conference,
William Connely, Secretary.”

“On Monday, the 17th day of August, 1812, William Connely was ordained a deacon in the M. E. Church, at the aforementioned camp meeting, by the Rev. Mr. William McKendree, Jr., Bishop of the said church in the presence of the congregation.

“At the general conference of the M. E. Church, in May, 1812, Erie Circuit becomes subject to the Western Conference, which commenced its session October 1st, the same year."

"On July 3, 1818, William Carroll was ordained deacon in the M. E. Church at Pithole, Venango Co., Pa., by Rev. Robert R. Roberts, of said church."

"In 1821 the Conference resolved:

"We, the members of this conference, abstain from the use of liquors in our homes as far as possible and on our farms, and absolutely refuse to use it at logging bees, raisings, public gatherings, or journeys, and to help carry out this resolution amongst our brethren and neighbors."

Rev. J. N. Fradenburg.
