UNTIL the compilers of this Record were ready to print the "Genealogy of the Kemper Family," they had not intended to put anything historical into the work, but in the search for purely genealogical matter, so many interesting historical facts relative to the Germanna colony were revealed, which shed light upon the history of our ancestor, John Kemper, that it was thought best to print the historical sketch of the Germanna colony, which follows.
The starting of the colony is given in full, with all that is known of it subsequently, for the reason that the history of this colony is the history of our ancestor, and almost all that is known of his life is what can be gathered from the story of this colony. Its history is his history. That a just estimate can be formed of his life and character is the main reason for quoting so largely from records relating to this colony. But the writer believes that new light is there given upon a very interesting period of the later Colonial history of Virginia, viz.: The beginning of the German immigration to that colony. This episode in her history seems to have been almost entirely ignored by Virginia historians, down to the present time. It certainly needs more study, and there is no doubt that further research in this direction will bring to light many interesting facts. Virginia owes a great deal to the German immigration, and not a little to the Germanna colony. It is hoped that the facts given and authorities quoted will stimulate additional research in this direction.

The Genealogical Record is just what it claims to be; not a history, but a genealogy. No attempt has been made to write historical sketches, however interesting they might have been, of the various members of the family, because it would have so largely added to the bulk and cost of the book. It is a genealogy pure and simple. If another edition should seem to be warranted, possibly much can be done in that direction. The arrangement of the work is apparent. The names are given by generations; all the members of one generation being given before the next begins. Every person is numbered and the numbering runs straight through from the beginning to the end. It will be seen that there are two columns of figures on every page, the outside column refers back to the previous generation, the inside one forward to the succeeding generation. To follow the record of any person, take his number as given in the inside column and turn to the succeeding generation, where it appears in the outside column. Thus on page 56, John Peter Kemper, the eldest son of the emigrant, is No. 14. Turn to page 59 where 14 appears in the outside column, and John Peter Kemper's record is given. Should you wish to follow the line of James Kemper, the sixth child of John Peter, whose number on this same page is 53, turn to the next generation on page 66 where 53 appears in the outside column, and you will find James Kemper's record in full; and so on. Aid is given by following each name by the character, ‡ if it appears in the next generation.

There are, no doubt, many errors to be found in this Record. The greatest effort has been made to avoid them, but from the character of the work, they are almost inevitable. The compilers will be under obligations to any one who will report to them errors in the "Record."

SKETCH OF THE KEMPER FAMILY OF VIRGINIA AND OF THE GERMANNIA COLONY.

The word Kemper can be traced a long way back among the dialects of the Germanic people. The German word Kemp or Cämp, perhaps akin to the Latin Campus, means a field, a place where an army is encamped. The old German verb kempen means to contend, to fight; a kemper was one who contended, a fighter, a warrior, a champion. Down to the middle ages the word was used even among the Saxons in England; with them "a kemper old man," meant, a hale, vigorous old man, one able to fight. The word is in occasional use among the Lowland Scotch to this day, in the sense of one who contends. They speak of "kempery men" as of mowers contending in a field.* In a Latin note to the ballad "King Estmere" in Percy's Reliques of English Poetry, vol. 1, p. 74, the name Kemper seems to be identified with the ancient German tribe, the Cimbri. Whether the Cimbri were so called because they were recognized par excellence as "the warriors" among the Germanic tribes; or whether after this tribe, celebrated for its fighting qualities, all brave, good fighting men were called Cimber, Kimber, Kemper, the note leaves it uncertain.† Whatever the truth may be, the word Kemper seemed to be in common use, under a variety of spellings, as Kempfer, Kempher, Kimber or Kemper, depending upon the tribe, but with the same meaning, in many of the ancient German dialects.

The modern German form of the verb is kämpen or cämpen, and of the noun Kämper or Cämper. If our name had originated in modern times, the correct spelling would be Cämper, because K is seldom used in modern German, C hard taking its place; and usually after C hard the A has an umlaut. A present-day native German, unfamiliar with the name will invariably write it Cämper.

†This note is as follows: Kempe = a soldier. Kempery man, soldier, warrior, fighting man.

NOTE: Germanis Camp, exercitum, aut locum ubi exercitus castrametur, significat: inde ipsis vir castrensis et militaris, Kempfer et Kampher et Kemper et Kimber et Kamper pro varietate dialectorum vocatur; vocabulum hoc nostro sermone nondum penitus exolevit. Norfolciensis enim plebio et roletario sermone dicunt: "He is a kemper old man," i.e. senex vegetus estp. Hinc Cimbri suum nomen Kimber enim homo bellicosus, pugil, robustus miles, etc., significat." Sheringham, de Anglor gentis orig., pag. 57.

The name Kemper does not seem to be a very common one in Germany at the present time. There were only two persons of the name in the Berlin directory of the year 1892, one of whom came from Cologne. There were only six in the Siegen directory of the same year. A look into the directories of the large cities of this country for the year 1898, shows comparatively few persons of the name. There seem to be more in Cincinnati than in all the others, about one hundred, of whom about twenty belong to our family. The others have come to this country within the past 40 or 50 years. Occasionally the name is spelled Camper. Nearly every one of these people with whom the writer has conversed or corresponded, came, either himself or his ancestors, from the Rhine country, from Essen to Mannheim, seeming to point to some common origin.

The proper spelling of our family name is Kemper. In the records of the Reformed Church at Müsen, every time the family is mentioned, the name is spelled Kemper, but once, when it is spelled Kempfer. This is an evident mistake, the records showing there was a Kempfer family in Müsen at this same time. The earliest document in this country now known, containing the name, is a lease dated 4 March, 1726, from the proprietors of the Northern Neck to John Peter and Hermon Kemper for 264 acres of land on Great Run, said to be in King George County, Virginia, now in the possession of Charles H. Kemper, of Cedar Grove. There is a similar conveyance to John Peter Kemper, dated 2 June, 1777, for 70 acres, two and one-half miles from Fauquier Court House. There is a similar conveyance to John and Jacob Kemper, of Stafford County, for 327 acres, in Stafford County, dated February 10th, 1729.†

There is a further grant to “Henri, Catharine and Mary, sons and daughters of John Kemper, of Prince William County,” for a tract of land on both sides of a branch of Rappahannock, commonly called Great Run, containing 362 acres in Prince William County, dated January 22nd, 1749.‡

These persons are all children of the emigrant, and the name in the grants is spelled Kemper every time.

In addition to the spelling of the name, these grants show the thrift and energy of John Kemper, for by 1729 he had acquired a large amount of land, and was evidently farming it. The taking of these grants in the name of his children, then quite young; in all probability was because he had not been naturalized. The last grant, from its wording seems to show that John Kemper was certainly still living in 1749.

The earliest known signature of our ancestor in Virginia is as a witness to the will of Henry Hager, dated April 10th, 1733. The original of this will is now lost, but in the order book where the will is copied the name appears as Johannes Camper. In the next year he is named as an executor in the will of John Fishback, and in the body of the will, as it appears copied in the order book, he is called John Kamper. The original of this will is also lost. The bond of the executors of this Fishback estate is still preserved in Prince William County, with the signature of our ancestor attached to it, and the name is spelled Kamper. This signature is in a round, beautiful hand, indicating a man of education, intelligence and natural refinement of character.

There was some diversity in the spelling of the name so far as the records in Virginia show, down to the beginning of the present century, and one branch of the family in Virginia to-day is spelling the name Camper; everyone else, everywhere, is spelling it Kemper. The Pennsylvania branch of the family has always spelled it Kemper. Our ancestor did not keep up the spelling: Kamper; for on a carved poplar plank, in 1754, which will be described later, he spelled it Kemper. His eldest son John Peter Kemper, in his family record commenced 1738, spelled his name Kemper. The beginning of this record is so unique that it is here given.

"ANO f 1738, den 7th September habe ich Johan Peter Kemper, mich mit Elizabet Fishbackin verehlichet."
"In the year, 1738, September 7, have I, John Peter Kemper, myself, with Elizabet Fishback, married."

He seems to have done it all. This may be the German way of doing, but the writer thinks this has not been the experience of John Peter’s male descendants.

On the plank, still in existence over the door of the Cedar Grove house, built in 1745, John Peter Kemper spelled his name and the name of his wife, Kemper, yet this same John Peter Kemper in giving his consent to the marriage of his daughter Elizabeth, to Benjamin Morgan, in 1782, signs it Camper. The above are the only two genuine signatures of any member of the family, where the name is spelled Kamper or Camper, and other members of the family at the same time were putting their names on record as Kemper. On most of the other early occasions when the name appears on record, it was written by the County Clerks, and sometimes it is Kemper and sometimes Kamper. The latter spelling is apparently an attempt to modernize or anglicise the name. Apparently when the name was written for use among themselves it was invariably spelled Kemper.

In this connection the following advertisement which appeared in the newspapers of Southern Ohio, is interesting, and in point:

"The changes of language having introduced improperly, early in the last century, the letter A instead of E in spelling the ancient name of Kemper, the public are informed that by common consent, the original spelling will be resumed after the present date by the subscriber and that branch of the family issuing from him.

Hamilton County, State of Ohio. March 4th, 1809.

James Kemper, Senr."

Why for a time the name was spelled Kamper cannot now be determined with certainty, but they soon returned to the old way, Kemper. This very spelling proves that the family originated before modern German, with its missing K and its umlaut was invented.

The first that is known of our family, so far as our present information extends, is that it was living about the year 1650 in the little German village called Müslen, about fifteen miles north east of the city of Siegen, in the then principality of Nassau-Siegen, the present Prussian province of Westphalia. Our knowledge of the family in these early times, is obtained wholly from the records of the little Reformed Church in that village. The church is a very ancient one, no one can tell just when it was founded. A note on the first page of the new records states that the church with all its records was destroyed some time during the thirty years war, which ended with the Peace of Westphalia in 1648. The new records of the church begin with January 4th, 1649. The church was rebuilt about 1675 when all the gravestones about it were removed. The tower, however, which dates from 1625 still stands. Siegen, Müslen and the surrounding territory, belonged at that time to the House of Nassau; there is still in the church a slab of black marble about six feet long and two and one-half feet wide, forming the top of the communion table, which was presented to the church by one of the princes of the Nassau-Orange family, so long ago, no one knows when.

Somewhere about the year 1650 there was living in this village of Müslen one Johann Kemper, together with Anna his wife, whose maiden name was Löw. The marriage record of this couple cannot be found in the present records of the Müslen church. Perhaps the bride came from another parish. On August 5, 1657, O. S., a child named Belshaser was born to them. This is the earliest record...
KEMPER FAMILY.

in existence so far as is now known relating to our family. This child died Aug. 12th, 1657. On Sept. 19th, 1658, a daughter, Anna Margaret, was born to this couple. Her subsequent history is unknown. On January 4th, 1663, their third child, Hans Jørgen or John George was baptised at Müsen. He is our ancestor. The father Johann died Dec. 6th, 1670, and it would seem that he died comparatively young, for the church records show that his widow in 1673 married Hans Paul Ricard and moved out of the parish. Whether John George left the village at the time of his mother's second marriage, for he was yet a child, or whether he remained in Müsen with some of his father's relatives, for there seem to have been at least two other Kemper families in this village at that time, cannot now be determined. Certain it is he was married in this little church April 30th, 1691, O. S., to Agnesa Kleb. On July 8th, 1692, to this couple a child was born, and named Johannes or John. He is the ancestor of the Virginia branch of the family. On March 23d, 1696, a second son was born, and named John Heinrich or Henry, and he is the ancestor of the Pennsylvania branch of the family. John George Kemper lived in Müsen all his life, all his children were baptized in this little church, and in Müsen he died, after starting two sons to the New World. He must have been a prominent man in the village; he was an elder in this little church.

Siegen is the centre of one of the most noted iron producing and manufacturing districts of Germany. At Müsen is situated one of the most famous iron mines in Germany; it was well known and worked in 1303, and is yet. To-day almost everyone in the village is connected with this mine in some capacity. John George Kemper was a skilled mechanic, and employed about the mine in some way. He was a worker in iron, a blacksmith by trade, and perhaps had charge of the tools about the mine. His sons John and Henry followed their father's trade and were employed about the mine. John especially, was evidently a skilled miner, and it was this that brought about his emigration to America.

In 1710 Alexander Spottswood was appointed Governor of Virginia. He was only 34 years of age, had been a soldier in many campaigns, and was of a bold and adventurous disposition. He had the good of Virginia greatly at heart, and was very anxious to increase the wealth and prosperity of the colony, as well as to add to his own fortune. It was not long until he discovered evidences of iron ore in the districts toward the Blue Ridge. In a letter to the Council of Trade, in England, dated Oct. 24th, 1710, he outlines a project, which he says he intends to submit to the next General Assembly, for working and improving the iron mines lately dis-
Subsequent letters of Spottswood tell how the Assembly failed to take up his project; and show that he was continually urging the council to persuade the Queen (Anne) to take it up, down to July of 1712. This was just at the time when Christopher, Baron de Graffenried was having his troubles with the Swiss and Palatine settlement he had made in North Carolina. This nobleman conceived it his duty to better the condition of his Swiss compatriots and make a fortune for himself, by having them emigrate to America. He purchased a large tract of land from the Lords Proprietors of North Carolina, and in January, 1710, sent a large number of Swiss over to take possession of it. They founded Newberne, calling the place after de Graffenried’s native town. The Baron soon followed, and the English government also sent over a large number of Palatines, from the Palatinate emigration, that was just then inundating England. The colony never prospered, and in September, 1711, was attacked by the Tuscarora Indians, a large number of the colonists massacred; de Graffenried and John Lawson, the Surveyor General, were carried into captivity. Lawson was burned at the stake, but de Graffenried persuaded the Indians to release him, and he abandoned his colony, and came to Virginia, where Spottswood assisted him all he could. De Graffenried at Spottswood’s request examined Virginia, with a view to locating mines, and in a letter to the Council of July 26th, 1712, Spottswood says de Graffenried feels sure there are mines in the colony, that he was familiar with mines in Switzerland, and has still relations interested there in mines, “and by their interest he can procure skillful workmen out of Germany for carrying on the work.” Spottswood was all this time trying to persuade the Queen to undertake the project, but he failed and subsequent events will show he took it up on his own account.

De Graffenried tried to return to England from Virginia, but as he was in debt to inhabitants of the colony, and as the Colonial laws forbade any ship captain, under heavy penalties, to take from the colony anyone in debt, the Baron left Williamsburg, Easter, 1713, went on horse back to New York, and after remaining a fortnight in New York, sailed for Bristol, and thence went to London, where he arrived sometime in the fall of the year 1713.

Spottswood’s letters do not say so, but it is apparent that he entered into some negotiations with de Graffenried, and authorized the latter to procure “skilled workmen out of Germany to open mines in Virginia,” for when the first colony came, Spottswood in his letter to the Commissioners of Trade, says: “These Germans were invited some years ago by the Baron de Graffenried,” and de Graffenried’s account tells of having written to the miners from America. When de Graffenried’s relatives and agents were looking for “skilled miners out of Germany,” to work Spottwood’s iron mines, where were they more likely to go than to the mining district about Siegen, near to, and on the way from Switzerland to America? And when there, what is more likely than that they should go to the then most celebrated mine in the district, to Müsen, and when there what is more likely than that they should seek to induce the eldest son of the man who had charge of the tools about this mine to go with the colony?

The colony was formed evidently largely from the neighborhood of Siegen, and started for America in the late summer or fall of the year 1713. It seems the colonists thought they had a contract with de Graffenried, by which he was to provide for them, and transport them to America, and evidently were poorly provided with money. When de Graffenried reached London he found them there, stranded and all but starving. But it will be better to permit de Graffenried to tell of their stay in London, and of their start for the New World, in his own language. This account is taken from his autobiography, which is in manuscript, in the French language, and to be found in the public library of Berne, Switzerland.

An accurate translation follows:

FROM THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF CHRISTOPHER VON GRAFFENRIED.

“On my arrival at London I was extremely surprised to learn that the master miner had arrived with 40 other miners. This caused me much trouble, care, concern and expense, since these people came so inconsiderately, without orders, in the opinion of finding everything necessary for their maintenance as well as work in the mines, but there was nothing for them to do, and my purse was so empty that it was with difficulty that I could supply my most urgent necessities, having used all my money in America, and being as yet without a bill of exchange from Berne. Thus it was impossible to assist so large a number, and the reader can easily conjecture what care and embarrassment all this caused me, since these people were persuaded that according to the agreement, I was compelled to assist them. This would have been so, had they come at my order. I theretofore wrote them several letters from America, in German, of which they received some, in which I had advised that the master miner should not come until new orders were received and saying that there was nothing for them to do as yet by reason of the unexpected Indian war in Carolina, and that M. (Michael) had not yet indicated the place, but that if the master miner nevertheless wished to come alone or in company with one or two he could do so but merely to see the place. But without paying attention to what I had just written him he made preparations and came to London with his company and all their baggage.

But what was there to do here? I could not give them better advice than to return home. This displeased them very much, so much so that they preferred to serve for four years as servants in America. However, there was no vessel ready to sail for America and it was therefore necessary for them to remain in London all winter, but where to obtain subsistence? This gave me an inconceivable amount of trouble, so that finally I was moved to apply to several Lords for work and bread for these people. They were then employed to make or repair a large dyke (or dam) but a heavy rain set in and all was overturned. This made it necessary to devise new expedients for their subsistence. I found a place for one party but not for all. In the meantime I was anxious to hurry home, fearing to travel in winter, and already feeling an attack of gout, which could ill accommodate itself to the cold.

Finally I found two wealthy merchants doing business in Virginia to whom I stated and recommended this affair as best I could. With that I also consulted a noted Lord, to whom I was honestly recommended by the Governor of Virginia, concerning the miners, to the end that he was able to serve me and render for me his good offices at court. We concluded that these people should put their money together, taking account of the same proportionately, and that one of the above mentioned merchants should procure the remainder necessary for the transportation and maintenance of the miners, and that the Governor of Virginia should receive and care for them on their arrival at Williamsburg, and pay the captain of the vessel, who in turn should return to the merchants of London the money advanced by them. On this subject I wrote a long letter to Gov. Spottswood, to whom I represented as best I could both affairs, saying that if the mines did not turn out as desired, these good people should be sent as a colony to the land, which we con-jointly own in Virginia, situated not far from the place where we found raw minerals (by which we presumed we had silver mines there) where they would be able to locate through the good offices and care of the Governor, but in case there was not sufficient indications to show silver mines, to look elsewhere. And since there are no iron or copper forges in Virginia, although there are quantities of such minerals, one will be able to trade in these, for which no royal patents are needed, as in the case with those of silver.
In the hope that this will succeed I recommended these good people to the Almighty, wishing them also a happy voyage. Thus they departed in the beginning of the year 1714."

It seems there is a manuscript almost the same as the above in the Public Library at Yverdon, Switzerland. It has been translated, and will be found in the Colonial Records of North Carolina.* There are a few differences in the two manuscripts. Just before the last sentence the North Carolina manuscript has "Note by the author. They are actually settled on the Governor's land where they have started a small colony." And after the last sentence this appears, "A whole year has elapsed without my receiving any news from the Governor, or from them, and I feel very anxious."

The first sentence of the Yverdon manuscript reads, "I cannot but mention that when I arrived in London, I was surprised to hear that the head miner, T. Tusties Albrecht, had arrived with 70 other miners."

From present information it cannot be told whether there were two different manuscripts left by de Graffenried, or whether one is a copy from the other; notes by the author having at some time been added to the Yverdon manuscript. The discrepancy in the number of miners given by the two manuscripts is so striking and the identification of the colony described in them, with the colony which afterwards arrived in Virginia, would be so complete, if the number given in the manuscripts were the same, that Rev. Wm. J. Hinke wrote to his friend, Dr. Jas. I. Good, who was traveling in Switzerland, in the summer of 1899, requesting him to go to Yverdon and make an exact copy of the manuscript there. Dr. Good was not informed of Mr. Hinke's purpose in this. The result is so important that the original French as taken from Dr. Good's letter is given in full.

"Cependant je ne puis m'empêcher de dire que lorsque j'arriverai à Londres j'appris avec atonement que le maître mineur J. Justus Albrecht était arrivé avec 40 autres mineurs, ce qui me causa beaucoup de peines, soins, chagrins et frais."

The translator for the North Carolina Records seems to have been reckless in making his copy of the Yverdon manuscript. He must have drawn on his imagination for the name "T. Tusties," and very carelessly took the 4 for a 7. As the Berne and Yverdon manuscripts, and Spottswood, all say there were forty people in this colony, the identification seems complete.

It is not easy to account for the name of the head miner being given in the Yverdon manuscript, and not in the one at Berne. A man with such a name and the head of the colony would certainly have been heard of again had he reached America. But after diligent search everywhere the writer can learn nothing of him.

His name is not one of the twelve mentioned by James Kemper.
Perhaps Albrecht became discouraged over the hard time the colonists had in London, and the prospect before him; perhaps he found good employment in London and remained there, or had good prospects at home, and returned to his native land; or quite likely he died on the long and perilous voyage to America, as thousands of emigrants died in those days—certain it is he has completely disappeared.

Just here the writer desires to have it noted, that this colony was not a Palatinate colony as it has been so often called. It was not a part of the emigration that took place from that unfortunate country a few years before, and perhaps was still going on. Müsen-Siegen were not in the Palatinate. The members of “Our Colony” did not leave their homes not knowing where they were going, nor because they were compelled to. They were engaged to go, and knew where they were going, and what they were to do. No doubt they went to better their condition, but they were not indigent or homeless. They came from one of the thriftiest and most intelligent provinces of Germany; they were master mechanics, and were an intelligent, progressive set of people.

The Journal of the English Board of Trade, under date of March 12th, 1714, contains a reference to a colony of miners, that must be the above colony. It says that Col. Blakiston, (the agent of Virginia in London), attended, to give some information in answer to a memorial of the Earl of Orkney relating to some miners in Virginia. “He represented that several miners had already been sent from hence at a great charge and that the undertakers must be at considerable expense before they could hope for any return of advantage from this project.” The sequel will show how this fits “our colony.”

Let us now turn to Virginia, and watch the arrival of the colony.

On March 15th, 1713 (1714)* Spottswood writes: To Col.
Blakiston: “S’R: About the beginning of Jan. I received y’rs of 3rd July, 20th September and 10th October, w’ch gave me an account of y’r proceedings in relation to the mines, as well as y’r sentiments of w’ch ye Baron had propos’d about transporting his miners, and by y’r letter of ye 9th December, which I rec’d the other day, I perceive you have altered y’r opinion by sending over these people partly at my charge.” And then goes on finding fault, because the miners have been sent over before the Queen had settled what the royal share would be in iron mines, and urging a speedy determination of this question, so the miners could go to work. The royal share in gold and silver was one fifth, and Spottswood had been making great efforts to have this reduced on iron, so that the profits of himself and associates would be greater.

He writes again:

"To the Lords Commissioners of Trade, July 21st, 1714.

My Lords * * * I continue, all resolved to settle out our tributary Indians, as a guard to ye frontiers, and in order to supply that part which was to have been covered by the Tuscaruros, I have placed here a number of Protestant Germans, built them a fort and furnished it with 2 pieces of canon and some ammunition which will awe the straggling partys of Northern Indians and be a good barrier for all that part of the country. These Germans were invited some years ago by the Baron de Graffenried, who has Majesy's letters to ye Governor of Virginia to furnish them with land upon their arrival. They are generally such as have been employed in their own country as miners." And then goes on to urge a determination of what the crown's share was to be.*

So that according to de Graffenried's account the colony left London in the early part of the year 1714; it had not arrived in Virginia on March 15th, 1714, but by July 21st, it had arrived, and been placed in a fort on the frontier.

One other of Spottswood's letters refers to the colony.

To Col. Blakiston, December ye 1st, 1714.† He returns thanks for "his endeavors in relation to the affair of the mines." Hopes B. will renew his endeavors to his present Majesty, "to obtain as moderate terms as ye adventurers in his own territories of Germany had," says it may be some consideration to the King that the mines are to be worked by persons of the same nation and religion, "that they will be a vast charge without any prospect of benefit till they can be set to work. I have obtained for them from the Assembly an exemption of all taxes for seven years, which may be an encouragement to others of the same country to come over, but I hope their passage will be at their own charge."

The miners were not yet at work, plainly because the royal share had not yet been determined, and the Governor was trying to drive as hard a bargain as he could, because he and his associates were going to carry on this mining enterprise themselves.

This will be seen from the next letter.*

To ye Lords Commissioners of Trade, January 27, 1714, (1715.)

My Lords: (Sends copies of the Assembly Journals.)*

"The act for exempting certain German protestants from ye payment of levys, and is made in favor of several families of that nation, who upon the encouragement of the Baron de Graffenried came over hither in hopes to find out mines, but the Baron's misfortunes obliged him to leave the country before their arrival. They have been settled in ye frontiers of Rappa, and subsisted since chiefly at my charge and the contributions of some gentlemen that have a prospect of being reimbursed by their labor, whenever His Majesty shall be pleased, by ascertaining his share, to give encouragement for working these mines, and I hope the kind reception they have found here will invite more of the same nation to transport themselves to this colony."

It is apparent from these two letters, that but one colony of Germans had as yet come to Virginia. And it is further apparent from de Graffenried's manuscript, and from the letters above given that this colony came direct from London to Virginia. Dr. Philip Slaughter in his valuable "History of St. Marks Parish," suggests, although he frankly admits it is a conjecture only, that the Germanna colony was a remnant of the Newberne, N. C. colony, that had escaped from the Indian massacre, and this has been since repeated as a positive statement. This is clearly a mistake, for de Graffenried had engaged this colony; he had written them from America; he met them in London, in the fall of 1713; they had sailed from London in the early part of the year 1714; Spottswood was expecting them, and was expecting to pay their passage, and did so, and the colony arrived between March 15th, and July 21st, 1714. As the massacre at Newberne took place in Sept., 1711, it was impossible for our colony to have been at Newberne at the time of the massacre. The letters also dispose of Dr. Slaughter's story, that this Germanna colony became involved in a dispute with the captain of the ship on their arrival in Virginia, and the Governor happening along, agreed to pay their passage if they would work for him. This might have happened with some later arriving German colony, but the coming of the Germanna colony was expected, and it had been arranged before the colony left England, that the Governor was to pay their passage, and he did pay it, as arranged for, as he says, in what is about to be quoted.

It seems Gov. Spottswood had made enemies since he came to Virginia, and one of these men filed written charges against him, with the Board of Trade in London. The Board returned these charges to the Governor, directing him to answer them. He did so, under date of Feb. 7th, 1715 (1716.) That part of it pertaining to our colony is as follows:

Query 3. Whether ye Governor under pretense of guarding the frontiers by building two forts, one at the head of the James River, the other of Rappahanock River, at the great charge and expense of the country, and only to support two private interests in both of which he is principally concerned, is not guilty of a high misdemeanor and breach of his oath, and of his Majesty’s royal instructions, against his being concerned in trade.

The Governor says: "As to the other settlement, named Germanna, there are about forty Germans, men, women and children, who having quitted their native country upon the invitation of the Herr. Graffenried and being grievedly disappointed by his failure to perform his engagements to them, and they arriving also here at a time when the Tuscaruro Indians departed from the treaty they had made with this government to settle in its northern frontiers, I did both in compassion to those poor strangers and in regard to the safety of the country place them together upon a piece of land several miles without the inhabitants, where I have built them habitations and subsisted them until they were able by their own labor to provide for themselves, and I presume I may without a crime or a misdemeanor endeavor to put them in an honest way of paying their just debts.

Query 15 Whether the Gov’r denying to his Majesty’s subjects to take up land, and at the same time give leave or order to another person to take up 12,000 acres to be patented in the name of
Wm. Robertson, to his own private use, and leasing the same to ye Germans (not permitting them to take ye same up to their own use) at such rents as shall be agreed on between the said Governor and ye Germans, is not arbitrary, illegal and oppressing his Majesty’s subjects, and a breach of his Majesty’s royal instructions?

The Governor answers. I have frequently mentioned how the Germans came to be settled on this land, and ’tis well known that when they arrived in this country, they were so far from being able to undergo the charge of taking the land for themselves that they had not wherewithall to subsist, so that besides the expense of £150 for their transportation, they are still indebted for near two years charge of subsisting them. I cannot, therefore imagine myself guilty of any oppression by placing them as tenants on my own land, when if I had pursued the common methods of the country, instead of being my tenants they might have been my servants for five years. Nor are the Germans insensible of the favor I have done them. * * * The terms upon which the Germans are settled will not appear very like oppression, seeing they have lived for two years upon this land, without paying any rent at all, and that all which is demanded of them for the future is no more than twelve days work a year for each household, which is not so much as rent of their houses, without any land, would have cost in any other part of the country. * * * There are not 12,000 acres, but 1,200."

Whatever we may think of the candor of these answers, we nevertheless learn a good many things about "our colony" from them. This colony at Germanna consisted of forty persons; this is the exact number mentioned in both de Graffenried's autobiographies. They were the very people de Graffenried had invited over; this is the colony of Germans whose passage he (Spottswood) had agreed with de Graffenried to pay, and he had paid it. They had been at Germanna nearly two years, when this answer was written, Feb'y., 1716, and we have seen "our colony" reached Virginia between March 15th, and July 24, 1714, and we will shortly see it was in April, 1714, that they came. Again these people had not been sold as servants, as it has often been stated; they were tenants on the Governor's lands at Germanna; he says if he had wished, he could have made them his servants for five years, because he had paid their passage money; implying that they were not his servants, but were his tenants, rendering a rent of twelve days labor a year, for each household, for their habitations which he had built them. It undoubtedly is true that some of the after-coming German colonies to Virginia were sold as servants, but the Germanna colony—the first German colony that came to Virginia—was always free, and always had the Governor's care and assistance.

But where is Germanna? Or rather, where was it? For this famous town of Gov. Spottswood—the first German settlement in Virginia; the first county town of Spottsylvania County; where St. George's Parish was organized; where the first iron furnace in America was built, and the first pig iron made as Spottswood claims; the place from which the famous expedition of "the Knights of the Golden Horseshoe" started; where the first German Reformed Congregation in the U. S. was organized, its first pastor settled, and its first services held—is no more. It is now only a ford in the river. Take your map of Virginia, and in the extreme northeastern corner of what is now Orange County, on a remarkable horseshoe peninsula of about 400 acres, with the Rapidan to the north, west and east of it, was the site of this famous town. Gov.
Spottswood had a very large tract of land here; he had discovered iron on this tract; he brought these Germans over to work this body of ore; he built a furnace near the tract, the ruins of which have lately been discovered, crumbling to dust, and over-grown with vegetation; the Governor built himself a handsome residence on this tract, to which he retired in 1723, after he ceased to be Governor.
Here “our colony” was located in the summer of 1714, ostensibly to protect the frontiers from the Indians, in reality to work the Governor's iron mines, and build this iron furnace, and make iron for him.

Germanna is exactly located by Col. Wm. Byrd, in 1732, in his in the form of a horseshoe about Germanna, making it a peninsula, containing about 400 acres. Rappahanock forks about fourteen miles below this place.” Both branches of the river were originally called Rappahanock, the southern fork is now called Rapidan.

The earliest description of Germanna that has been found is in the diary of John Fountain. He with John Clayton and perhaps several friends, visited the settlement on November 20 and 21, 1715. He says: “About 5 p. m. we crossed a bridge that was made by the Germans, and about 6 we arrived at the German settlement. We went immediately to the minister’s house; we found nothing to eat, but lived upon our small provisions, and lay upon good straw. Our beds not being very easy, as soon as it was day we got up. It rained hard, notwithstanding we walked about the town, which is palisaded with stakes stuck in the ground, and laid close the one to the other, and of substance to bear out a musket shot. There are but nine families, and they have nine houses built all in a line, and before every house, about twenty feet distant from it, they have small sheds built for their hogs and hens; so that hog styes and houses make a street. The place that is paled in is a pentagon very regularly laid out, and in the very center there is a block house made with five sides which answer to the five sides of the great inclosure; there are loop holes through it, from which you may see all the inside of the inclosure. This was intended for a retreat for the people, in case they were not able to defend the palisades if attacked by the Indians. They make use of this block house for divine service.
They go to prayers constantly once a day and have two sermons on Sunday. We went to hear them perform their service, which was done in their own language, which we did not understand, but they seemed very devout, and sang the Psalms very well.

This town or settlement lies upon the Rappahanock River, thirty miles above the falls and thirty miles from any inhabitants. The Germans live very miserably. We would tarry here some time, but for want of provisions we are obliged to go. We got from the minister a bit of smoked beef and cabbage, which was very ordinary. We made a collection between us three, of about thirty shillings, for the minister, and about twelve of the clock we took our leave, and set out to return."

This is the earliest recorded description of a German Reformed Congregation, and the services carried on by it in the United States. At Germanna was preached the first sermon to a German Reformed Congregation in the United States, it was preached by the old pastor described in the above extract, Henry Hager, who was certainly the first German Reformed pastor in the United States.

It will be remembered that Spottswood's letter of January 27th, 1715, to the Commissioners of Trade, says he sends them copies of the assembly journals and refers to an act for exempting certain Germans from parish levies. This act is not to be found in Hening's and although diligent search was made for it, it was only recently discovered in an old volume in the Pennsylvania Historical Society, by Rev. Wm. J. Hinke, and sent to the writer. As it is the first reference in the public records, to "Our Colony," and is not easy of access, it is here given in full.

It will be noted that at the time of the passage of this act not later than the Fall of the year, 1714, the Germans are said to number 42. It will be also noticed that St. George's parish existed prior to 1720, while Germanna was in Essex County and was created expressly for our German colony. It seems to have been formed on a model of its own, and was quite limited in extent. This is the only reference to be found to this German parish of St. George and it seems to have been quietly ignored and wiped out of existence by the act of 1720, creating the English parish of St. George, coterminous with Spottsylvania county, created by the same act.

From Acts of Assembly passed in the colony of Virginia from 1662 to 1715. London 1727; page 379.

"At a General Assembly begun at the capitol, the 22nd day of October, in the eleventh year of the reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne and in the year of our Lord, 1712; and thrice continued by several prorogations to the 16th day of November in the 1st year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George. Anno Domini, 1714."
No. 2. Act to exempt certain German protestants from the payment of levies for seven years and for erecting the Parish of St. George. A. D. 1714.

Whereas, certain German protestants, to the number of forty-two persons or thereabouts, have been settled above the falls of the River Rappahanock, on the southern branch of the said river, called Rapidan, at a place named Germanna, in the county of Essex and have there begun to build and make improvements for their cohabitation, to the great advantage of this colony and the security of the frontiers in those parts from the intrusions of the Indians; for the encouragement therefore of the said Germans in their infant settlement, be it enacted by the Lieutenant Governor, council and burgesses of this present General Assembly, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, that all and every of the Germans now seated at Germanna, shall be and are hereby declared to be free and discharged from the payment of all and all manner of public or county levies or assessments whatsoever, for and during the term of seven years from and after the end of this session of assembly; and if any other German or other foreign protestants shall within said term of seven years settle themselves at Germanna aforesaid, such German and Germans and other foreign protestants shall be free and discharged from the payment of all such levies for the term of seven years from the time of their settling at Germanna respectively, provided such Germans or foreigners, who now are, or who, within the said term of seven years, shall be and continue for so long time to cohabit at Germanna. And if any of the said Germans or others shall depart from the said settlement at Germanna and inhabit any other part of this colony, such German and Germans and other foreign protestants leaving the said settlement, shall be assessed and pay all such levies and taxes as his Majesty's subjects of this dominion shall and do pay.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the place called Germanna, together with a precinct of land thereunto next adjoining, extending five miles on each side of the said town or settlement of Germanna, is and shall be from henceforth a distinct parish of itself, and shall be called by the name of the Parish of St. George, and is and shall be divided and exempt from the parish of St. Mary, in said county of Essex, and from all dependencies, offices, charges and contributions, for and in respect thereof, and from the cure of the minister of said parish of St. Mary, and his successors, and also is and shall be discharged of all levies, oblations, obventions and all other parochial duties whatsoever, relating to the said parish of St. Mary.

Provided always that the parishioners of St. George shall not be obliged to pay any minister or ministers of their said parish the salary allowed by law to the ministers of other parishes of this colony, until such time as there shall be the number of 400 tithable persons in the said parish of St. George; but the said parishioners are and shall be at liberty in the meantime to agree with their minister and ministers to serve the cure of their said parish upon such terms as by the Lieutenant Governor or the Governor or Commander in Chief of this Dominion for the time being with the advice of council shall be thought reasonable, any law, statute or custom to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding."

We know nothing of the history of the colony for the next four years; doubtless they were working for the governor, building his furnace, and getting ready to make iron for him. The next reference to the colony comes from England. In the year 1701 there had been founded in London a missionary society, whose name was "The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts." The society is still in existence, and from its letter book it appears that on October 2nd, 1719, the following petition was laid before the society:

"The case of thirty-two protestant German families settled in Virginia humbly showeth; that twelve protestant German families, consisting of about fifty persons, arrived April 1714 in Virginia, and were therein settled near the Rappahanock River. That in 1717, seventeen protestant German families, consisting of about four score persons came and set down near their countrymen, and many more both German and Swiss families, are likely to come there and settle likewise. That for the enjoyment of the ministries of religion there will be the necessity of building a small church in the place of their settlement, and of maintaining a minister who shall catechise, read and perform divine offices among them in the German tongue, which is the only language they do yet understand. That there went indeed with the first twelve German families, one minister named Henry Haeger, a very sober, honest man, of about 75 years of age, but he being likely to be past service in a short time, they have empowered Mr. Jacob Christopher Zollicoffer, of St. Gall, in Switzerland, to go into Europe, and there obtain, if possible, some contributions from pious and charitable christians, towards the building of their church and bringing over with him a young German minister, to assist the said Mr. Haeger in the ministry of religion, and to succeed him when he shall die; to get him ordained in England by the Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of London; and to bring over with him the liturgy of the Church of England, translated into high Dutch, which they are desirous to use in their public worship. But the new settlement consisting of but mean persons, being utterly unable of themselves to build a church, and to make up a salary sufficient to maintain such assisting minister, they humbly implore the countenance and encouragement of the Lord Bishop of London, and others, the Lords and Bishops, and also the venerable society for the propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts; that they would take their case under their pious consideration, and grant their usual allowance, for the support of a minister, and if it may be, to contribute something towards the building of their church. And they shall ever pray that God may reward their beneficence both here and hereafter."

A letter received from the secretary of the society, in the summer of 1898, says: "The letter book containing this petition is still in existence, although the original petition has been lost; no signatures appear to the petition in the letter book."

The secretary also writes that this petition was referred to a committee which reported March 20th, 1720, as the minutes show "that they had read the case of the German families in Virginia and agreed as their opinion that Virginia not being under the immediate care of the society they cannot properly send a missionary thither, but are of the opinion that twenty-five copies of the common prayer, in the German language be given them by the society." Which report was agreed to by the society.

It is apparent from the language that the above petition was not written by a German; it was certainly penned by some zealous member of the Church of England, who was aiming to convert these Germans to his own church. The sequel will show that he did not succeed with either element of the colony as it was then constituted. Pastor Hager held the Reformed and Pastor Stover the Lutheran Germans to their own religious beliefs.

Mr. Zollicoffer, the agent of the congregation named in the petition, did go to Germany, and when he reached there he put advertisements in the German papers asking for help. One of these has been recently discovered in a newspaper at Frankfort-on-the-Main by Mr. H. S. Dotterer, the historian of the First Reformed Church of Philadelphia, and kindly communicated to the writer by Mr. Hinke. It is printed in the issue of June 15th, 1720, of the "Extraordinaire-Kaiserliche-Reichs Post-Zeitung." It is entitled, "Truthful Report of a High German Evangelical Colony at Germantown, in North America."*
Virginia, in America.” The most important part of this petition reads as follows:

“It will be well remembered by everybody how some years ago several thousand people, of both sexes and different religions, emigrated from the Palatinate and neighboring places, to be transported to America. Although a part of this people died and a part returned to Germany, yet 700 persons were sent to Carolina, and 300 families to New York. But 72 families came to Virginia, the largest part of them, however, had to pay the passage, according to the custom of the country, with several years of servitude among the Englishmen there. The rest, being free, consist of thirty-two families, of whom twelve are Evangelical Reformed and twenty are Evangelical Lutherans. They, together with an old Reformed minister, Henry Hager, 76 years of age, have established a colony in the year 1714 in the said Virginia, called Germantown, on the Rappenheck (Rappahanock). Here at a well situated place, under the sovereignty of Great Britain, they support themselves in all quietness by agriculture and the raising of cattle, hoping that they will increase and prosper more and more, especially when within the next year the remaining German families, scattered through their servitude, will obtain their freedom and settle at Germantown and thus strengthen the colony.”

The advertisement then asks for contributions for a church and a school house to be used by the colony “which is served by the above named minister in common,” and further states that the credentials of Mr. Zollicoffer were signed by Henry Haeger, “minister of the Germans in Virginia; John Jost Merdten (now Martin) and John Jacob Rechtor (now Rector), elders of the congregation.”

The petition to the missionary society shows the colony of twelve families was the first German colony to come to Virginia; it fixes the date of the coming of this colony as April, 1714; it says the colony consisted of “about fifty persons.” True de Graffenried and Spottswood say the colony consisted of forty persons, but it may have increased since it first came by births; and if it numbered more than forty-five in October, 1719 it was natural to call it fifty in round numbers. Above all Hager was the pastor of this colony and the above quoted advertisement, together with what will hereinafter be given, makes the identification complete.

And the advertisement confirms many things. “Our colony” was free—had not been sold as servants. This is also true of the colony that came in 1717. “Our colony” came in 1714. It consisted of members of the Evangelical Reformed church, the others, by far the larger in numbers, were Lutherans. The advertisement calls their settlement Germantown, but this is certainly a mistake, and Germanna is meant for Germantown, Stafford, was not on the Rappahannock and was hardly settled in the summer or fall of 1719, the time Zollicoffer must have started for Europe. The remarkable thing is that these Reformed and Lutheran brethren were dwelling together in harmony, and Pastor Hager was "ministering to them in common." This did not long last, as will soon be seen.

This man Hager deserves more than a passing notice. He organized the first congregation of the German Reformed church in the United States and was its pastor until his death in 1734. As a large number of persons in our record are descended from him, all that at present is known of his early history is here given. This information is obtained from the records of the City of Siegen, Germany, and from the records of the old Latin school of that city. In these records he is called John Henry Hager. He was the son of Henry Hager, and was born about 1644, at Antshausen, a village in the principality of Nassau, about five miles east of Siegen. On September 25th, 1678, he became teacher of the third class of the Latin school at Siegen. On December 3rd, 1678, he was married to Anna Catherine Friesenhagen, daughter of Jacob Friesenhagen, the Mayor of Freudenburg. The church records show that eleven children were born to them, as follows: I. John Henry, B. 1680; died soon. II. Jacob, B. 1682. III. John Frederick, B. 1684. IV. Elizabeth, B. 1687. V. John, B. 1689; died soon. VI. Anna Maria, B. 6 November, 1692. VII. John Maurice, B. 17 March, 1695. VIII. John, B. 12 August, 1696. IX. Agnes, B. 26 November, 1697. X. John Henry, B. 27 April, 1700. XI. Anna Catharine, B. 15 May, 1702. The third son, John Frederick, went to London was ordained as a minister of the Church of England by the Bishop of London, and was sent by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, with the Palatinate emigration to New York, in 1710, as its missionary. He did not long survive the hardships endured by those German emigrants, and soon died, leaving a widow and two young children, who resided in Albany, New York, after his death.

The father, John Henry Haeger, continued in his position as teacher in the Latin school at Siegen, until the summer of 1689. The oldest record book of the school, beginning July, 1668, says: "During the summer term of this year (1689) the corrector, Rev. Tileman, exchanged his position with the pastorate, and having been called to Langsdorf, in the Waterau district, he bade us farewell. He was succeeded by Rev. Haeger and the latter by Rev. John Philip Otterbein, of Nassau, Dellenburg." The record of the year 1703 says "that on the 21st of January, 1703, Rev. Schmid was appointed as conrector in place of Rev. Haeger, whom the most noble prince wished to transfer to the pastorate of Fishbach." Cuno, the Reformed Historian of Germany, in his history of the City of Siegen, says that "Haeger resigned his position as pastor at Ober-fischbach in 1711 and went to America." It is stated in American Church History, Series, Vol. 8, p. 244, that Henry Haeger went with de Graffenried to New Berne in 1710. This is surely a mistake. He was in London (or at least in Europe) on October 2, 1713. The Journal of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel on that date has the following entry: "Reported from the committee that they had taken into consideration the petition of Mr. Haeger, father of the Society's missionary among the Palatines, in the province of New York, to them referred, and they agreed in their opinion that the case of said Mr. Haeger does not properly lie before the Society." The Journal previously shows that Haeger had petitioned the Society to be sent to America. De Graffenried's autobiography (p. 25) further shows that he had no minister with him at New Berne, and had obtained permission himself to perform baptisms and marriages. The petition cited from Bishop Parry says that Haeger came with the colony of twelve families in 1714, and it is possible he came in a little later than the colony, as will presently be shown. All that is known of the further life of this venerable patriarch will then be told.

It has been claimed in some quarters that John Henry Hager was ordained a minister of the Church of England, in London. But Rev. W. H. Hinke informs the writer that the records of the London Society, which he carefully examined in the summer of 1898, contain no record of such an ordination, nor does his name appear in the lists of those ordained under the auspices of the society and the society refused to send him to America when he applied to it for this purpose; further he was recognized in Virginia, as a pastor of the Reformed Church, and the congregation to which he ministered was a Reformed Congregation, and so recognized by the church authorities in Holland; moreover the first German colony was relieved from tithes and county levies because "they maintained a minister of their own." If Hager had been a Church of England minister this would not have been done. It may be said with certainty, that Henry Haeger was the first German Reformed pastor in the United States, and the Germanna congregation was the first of that denomination in this country.

The first German colony to Virginia, the Germanna colony, or colony of twelve families, "our colony," seemed to enjoy the favor of the Governor and the ruling powers, from the beginning, and were granted exceptional privileges; although some, if not all, of the later German colonies to that province seem to have been treated with considerable hardship. The difficulties and trials of these later colonies are vividly set forth in a report printed at Weimer, Germany, in 1739, part of which is as follows: "In the year 1717, (this must be one of the later German colonies referred to in the petition copied from Bishop Parry's collection supra) some Evangelical Lutherans from the Alsace, the Palatinate and neighboring places, emigrated on account of the severe oppressions and went to England with the intention of going to Pennsylvania. But as the captain who had taken them on board was detained in prison at London several weeks, shortly before their departure, because of his debts, a part of their victuals was consumed before they left, and as a result many people died, because of hunger during the journey, the rest the captain sold to Englishmen to pay for their passage. Said Evangelical Lutheran congregation has been treated very harshly by the then Gov. Spottswood, and has been settled by him in Virginia, in the county named Spottsylvania, at the most extreme boundary of this province, twelve German miles from the ocean. Here they passed through great difficulties for eight years, but now they are well provided by God with temporal things, although they cannot sell anything on account of the distance from the ocean, except their tobacco, which they exchange for the necessary clothing."

A petition lately found among the Virginia State archives, is also in point here.† It says, the petitioners have desired Col. Spottswood to give them a copy of the covenant made with them when they arrived; but he has refused and the justices of Spottsylvania have refused to aid them; that Spottswood had arrested about twenty-five of them without giving a reason, and they ask if it is proper to petition the house of burgesses to appoint some one to plead for them; petitioners say they desire to go to Germany to bring in a minister "for us high Germans," and want to know if it is proper to desire the Governor to give them passports, and it is signed, Michael Cook, and Zerachus Flishman. The date of this petition is not given, but as it was after Spottsylvania County was formed, it was later than 1721, but it was not sent by "our colony," because no such persons belonged to our colony as will presently be seen, and Michael Cook was one of the first trustees of the Hebron Church in Madison County.

"Our colony" was apparently always well treated. The Governor in his letter "of December ye 1st, 1714," supra says: "I have obtained for them (the Germans) an exemption of all taxes for seven years," and in his next letter sends a copy of the act. It has been given in full above, and could only refer to "our colony," for at that time no other colony had arrived. "Our colony" came in April, 1714. Seven years would carry them to April, 1721. The act organizing Spotsylvania county passed November 20th, 1720,* to take effect May 1, 1721, contains the following: "Because foreign Protestants may not understand English readily, if any such shall entertain a minister of their own, they and their tithables shall be free for ten years from said 1st day of May, 1721." This act could, of course, apply to both "our colony" and the colony of 1717, if the latter was then still in Spotsylvania county, and maintained a "minister of their own," which is uncertain; but it is likely that it referred to "our colony" only, for the reason that just at the time the above ten years expired, this privilege was extended to a colony that was certainly "our colony" for ten years longer. It will presently be shown that "our colony" moved to Germantown, then in Stafford, afterwards Prince William, now Fauquier county, not later than 1724, and was living there in May, 1730. Prince William county was organized from Stafford by act of May, 1730, to take effect March 25th, 1731.† At this same session of the House of Burgesses‡ there was passed "an act to exempt certain German Protestants in the county of Stafford from the payment of parish levies." The text of this act is unfortunately not given and diligent search has not revealed it, but as the Germantown colony was the only German colony in Stafford at that time—and as these successive dates are certainly more than coincidences—it seems certain that these acts referred to "our colony." So that "our colony" paid no taxes from May, 1714 to beyond May, 1730, showing they had the favor of the governing powers, however harshly some of their German brethren may have been treated.

But now we come to the dividing of the waters. There is some evidence that the Germans, even including our favored colony, were chafing at the treatment of the governor. Perhaps too many Germans had come to Germanna, for it will be remembered "our colony" of twelve families came in April, 1714, another colony of twenty families came in 1717, and by the time Zollicoffer went to Europe a third, of forty families, had come in. Perhaps these sturdy Germans wanted to own their own lands and the governor would not sell them to them, they might dig ore and compete with his own industry.

Perhaps the antagonism between Reformed and Lutheran broke out; whatever the reasons, certain it is the Germans left Germanna and the members of the Reformed faith, "our colony" of twelve families, went north about twenty miles into the Northern Neck, into Stafford county, and engaged in agriculture; while the larger body, the Lutherans, soon after went west, also into the Northern Neck, on Robinson's river, into what is now Madison county. The latter seemed to have held on to the contributions from Europe. They built Hebron church, still in existence, and still have an organ and a communion service, contributed by their European friends.

With the going of the Germans the glory of Germanna departed. The Rev. Hugh Jones, in his "Present State of Virginia," published about 1724, thus describes Germanna: "Beyond Gov. Spotswood's furnace, within view of the vast mountains, he has founded a town called Germanna, from the Germans sent over by Queen Ann, who are now removed up further. Gov. Spotswood has servants and workmen of most handicraft trades, and he is building a church, court house, and dwelling house for himself and has cleared plantations about it, encouraging people to come and settle in that uninhabited part of the country, lately erected into a county. Beyond this is seated the colony of the Germans Palatine."

But now listen to that famous traveler and inimitable humorist, Colonel Byrd, of Westover, who visited Germanna in 1732, and says: "The famous town of Germanna consists of Col. Spotswood's enchanted castle on one side and a baker's dozen of ruinous tenements on the other, where so many German families had dwelt some years ago, but are now removed ten miles higher, in the forks of the Rappahanock, to land of their own."

"Some pious people," he continues, "burnt the church the governor had built, so that it could be rebuilt nearer their own homes."

The iron project, with the Germans furnishing the power, was not successful; the seat of government was removed to Fredericksburg in 1732, the town dwindled, and soon Germanna became but a name. The land on which Germanna was located, as well as that where Gov. Spotswood's mansion stood, is now owned by Mr. J. M. Harris. The mansion stood north of the road running to Germanna Ford, and Germanna was just at the Ford, both in Orange county. Mr. Harris writes: "There are remains of the old mansion, the fort, said to have been connected with the mansion by a tunnel, the fountain spring and the village settled by twelve German families."

21 Hen. 364.
It will perhaps be interesting to describe the iron furnace at Germanna, which, no doubt, our ancestor helped to build, as it appeared in 1732 and as it appears now. This same Col. Byrd visited the various iron furnaces and mines in Virginia and describes them in "A Progress to the Mines in 1732." He says this (Germanna) furnace was directly controlled by Spottswood, it was situated in Spottsylvania County, about ten miles northwest of Fredericksburg and about ten miles east of the small town of Germanna. This last place was situated in Orange County, on the south side of the Rapidan, about ten miles above its junction with the Rappahanock. It had been settled by Germans and afterwards abandoned for another location on land of their own ten miles higher up in the forks of the Rappahanock (still ignoring the reformed colony). The furnace was built of rough stones, Spottswood claiming it was the first of the kind erected in the country. (Swank's History of the Manufacture of Iron in all Ages, p. 259). In the same volume, p. 252, is a description by W. H. Adams, of Mineral City, Va., of the furnace as it appeared about 1890. He calls it the Rappahanock furnace, and says: "It stands close to the fords of Rappahanock and on the almost precipitous banks of a small stream which was relied on for the necessary power. Considerable grading was done to provide for the operation of the furnace, the storage of charcoal, limestone, ore, etc. Protected by its isolated position the structures remained in an excellent state of preservation. The furnace is almost intact, its cleanly cut stone work and auxilliary walls, race and chambers being almost as they were left by the last workman 160 years ago. A giant black walnut tree is growing from the mouth of the furnace, binding with its roots the heavy walls in place and closing every aperture against the ravages of time. The slag pile, fluxes, coal and considerable amounts of pig iron found in odd shapes in the cinder beds, and the bed of the brook, the dam of generous extent but faulty construction, the race-way, tail-race, etc., are interesting evidences of this early enterprise."

Byrd's description is quite suggestive. A "baker's dozen (13) tenements," likely means what it says. When John Fontaine visited Germanna in 1715, there were but nine houses, indicating nine families, but at least two of the colonists, John Kemper and John Fishbach, perhaps others, were married after that time. Twelve families likely means men, heads of families. If there were twelve such, with Pastor Hager's family, just thirteen houses would be required. If there were only thirteen houses at Germanna in 1732, it would seem as if "Our Colony" was the only one that lived just at Germanna—the others may have lived in the neighborhood—thus keeping up the separation from the favored people. Byrd, too, has made the same mistake that all the later writers, including Bishop Meade and Dr. Slaughter, have made, to-wit: that all the Germans went to “the forks of the Rappahanock.” None of them except Dr. Slaughter mentions Germantown, Fauquier. None of them know anything about the difference in religious faith, which undoubtedly was the cause of the separation. As the larger part of the Germans were Lutherans, and went to “the Forks of the Rappahanock” (now Madison county) these writers all seem to have taken it for granted that all the Germans went there. This is a great mistake, as we shall soon see, and the error should be corrected.

Some time between the early part of the year 1720 and 1724, that part of the Germans professing the Reformed faith,—“Our Colony”—removed to what was then Stafford county. The exact date of this removal cannot be given, but the writer is of the opinion, reasons being given later, that it was in the spring of 1720.

Light is thrown on this removal and the manner of it, by the records of Fauquier, from which after long and painstaking search the following has been gleaned:

Among the earliest suits brought in the new county of Fauquier was one filed September 27, 1759, by Jacob Spillman against Mary Gent. Before this suit came to trial Jacob Spillman died, and an amended bill was filed by John Spillman, a minor, the heir of said Jacob. The suit was brought to enjoin Mary Gent, the mother of John Spillman, from conveying land which Jacob and his son John claimed as heir of John Spillman, the father of Jacob. The bill recites that “in 1718 Jacob Holtzclaw, John Hoffman, John Fishback, Peter Hitt, Harman Fishback, Tillman Weaver, John Spillman, and several other Germans made an entry of a large tract of land known as Germantown,” in Fauquier County; that said Germans entered into an agreement with each other that they would be at equal expense in perfecting the title to the land, and that the lands should be divided equally “by lot among us, who were Germans born beyond sea out of the allegiance of our sovereign lord the king;” that only Hoffman, Fishback and Holtzclaw were naturalized, and it was agreed that the patent should be issued in the name of these three, and that they should make leases for 99 years to each partner, with covenants to renew; that the patent was issued in 1724 to these three men and the leases made; that John Spillman paid his share of the expenses and his share was 150 acres. It seems that John Spillman died before the lease was made, and the patentees made the lease to Mary, his wife, who by this time had married a man named Gent who “had been runaway from this colony” for many years before the suit was brought. Mary Gent was threatening to sell this land, and the plaintiff claimed it was his as heir of John Spillman. The answer admitted the making of the agreement. It alleged that the several Germans had "agreed to appropriate a certain quantity of land for the use of a minister, in doing which they took ten acres of John Spillman’s 150 acre tract," and alleges she has her deed in her possession.

The agreement above referred to was in writing, and the writer is assured by one who saw it, that about twenty years ago it was among the papers, signed by the twelve Germans. It would be a most interesting document for this sketch, but after the most diligent search among the Fauquier County records it cannot now be found.

The following deposition is, however, among the papers of this case, and it is given in full:

"By virtue of a commission issuing out of the worshipful court of Fauquier, dated the 29th day of October, 1759, to us directed to take the depositions of Tillman Weaver, Harman Fishback and Peter Hitt."

"We have proceeded to take the depositions of Tillman Weaver, Harman Fishback and Peter Hitt, who, being all of full age, sworn on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, deposeth and saith: That the land now in dispute between Jacob Spillman, Plff., and Mary Gent, deft., is part of a tract of land taken up by a percell of Germans, about 31 years since, of which percell of Germans, Jacob Spillman, father of the said plaintiff, was a party; and the said Germans, not being all naturalized, it was agreed on by the general consent of the parties that the patent for the said tract of land should be granted by the proprietor’s agent to three of those said Germans in trust, to wit: John Hoffman, John Fishback and Jacob Holtzclaw, who by agreement was to divide the said tract equally by lot among all the parties concerned in taking up the same, and that the said trustee was by agreement to acknowledge to each man his part of the said tract as fell to him by lot to his satisfaction; and these deponents farther saith that John Spillman, father to the said plaintiff, paid his full proportion in taking up and dividing the said tract, and the land now in dispute between the said plaintiff and defendant fell to the lot of the said John Spillman, father to the said plaintiff in the partition of the above said tract; and that John Spillman lived on and held the said lot as his property during his life; but, dying before the said lot of land was acknowledged, the right of the same was passed to Mary Gent, deft., who was then widow of the said John Spillman and mother to the plaintiff. And these deponents further saith that there is one other lot of land of fifty acres or thereabouts now in dispute between the said pltff. and deft., being part of the said tract which fell by lot in the above said partition to the said John Spillman, the right of which was never passed to the said John Spillman or the present deft., Mary Gent, which said last mentioned lot the said defendant sold her rights of to Jacob Rector, and further these deponents saith not.

Two things will be noticed: These documents recite that the Germans entered this land in 1718. It does not say they removed to it in 1718, and the writer is still of opinion that they, or at least all of them, did not move to the land until a year or two later. Further it is said that John Spillman was one of the twelve Germans entitled to the land. This does not agree with the names of the twelve families as given by James Kemper, as will hereafter be seen. Jacob Rector was also at Germantown in its early years, and he is not mentioned by James Kemper. This discrepancy cannot be satisfactorily explained at this time. A possible explanation is that James Kemper gives the names of the twelve original colonists, and that in the removal to Germantown Spillman and Rector, who had possibly come with the colony of 1717, had taken the places of two of the members of the original colony. Or, perhaps, Spillman and Rector bought out two of the Germantown shares.

These papers in Spillman vs. Gent are undoubtedly what is referred to by Dr. Slaughter when he says: “The records of Fauquier develop the fact that in 1718 Jacob Hoffman, John and Harman Fishback, Peter Hitt, Jacob Holtzclaw and William Weaver not finding room at Germanna, removed to Germantown. Only three, Hoffman, Fishback and Weaver having been naturalized they were sent to enter lands at Germantown. The title was in these three, and they were to make leases for 99 years. Copies of the leases are on record.”*

It will be noticed that Dr. Slaughter makes the mistake of giving Tillman Weaver’s name as William; and the further mistake of giving Weaver as one of the trustees, when the trustees were Hoffman, Fishback and Holtzclaw, as the patent shows. He also says copies of the leases are on record. Diligent search fails to find the leases on record. They were no doubt on record at one time, in either Stafford or Prince William Co. The early records of these two counties were destroyed during the civil war. They are not among the deed records of Fauquier. The only other explanation of Dr. Slaughter's statement is that a copy or the original of the Spillman lease was on file among the papers in Spillman vs. Gent.

The writer is assured by a member of the Hitt family who saw these papers twenty years ago, that the lease to Mary Gent was among the papers; that it had been recorded; that it was signed by the three trustees, and provided that Mary Spillman should pay yearly at the feast of St. Michael the Arch-Angel one ear of Indian corn, if demanded, and also pay yearly to the lord of the fee such rents and services as should become due, and that at the end of 99 years the lease should be renewed on the payment of ten shillings if demanded. This lease is not now among the papers and cannot be found. No doubt the other leases were substantially on the same terms.

The patent so frequently referred to above has lately been found in Richmond, and as it is the foundation of the Germantown settlement it is here given in full.

This tract was about 1 1-6 miles in width and over 2 1-3 miles long. As will be seen it ran from southeast to northwest, and lay along Licking Run. It came about as far south as the line of the Southern Railroad in Fauquier county. It is almost certain that the present station of Midland on that railroad is in the Germantown tract. It was the earliest settlement in all this region, and became quite a well-known place. John Marshall, the great Chief Justice of the United States, was born at Germantown, September 24th, 1753. But in later years the Germans again went west and Germantown dwindled, and is no longer even a village—is only known of as the Germantown neighborhood; there is no postoffice by the name; the people get their mail at Midland.

At the present time there are descendants of but one of the twelve families living on the Germantown tract. A Miss Weaver and her brother still own about 130 acres of this tract, and it is evidently a part of the tract that was originally set off to Tillman Weaver. The original Weaver house, built of logs, now weather-boarded with poplar, still stands. It was built in 1721, as a poplar board over the door with this date carved on it shows. No doubt John Kemper and his wife were often in this house. Quite likely their second son John was married in it to Tillman Weaver’s daughter Ann. What a history of the men and women of the colony, their joys and sorrows, the logs of this building could tell us if they could only speak. The present members of the Weaver family say that their ancestor Tillman or his immediate descendants gradually acquired the larger part of the land covered by the patent, and they say that certain parts of it have always been known as the Hitt tract, the Utterbach tract, etc., and that remains of the old houses are occasionally plowed up in the fields to this day.

Although John Kemper’s name is not given in the petition in Spillman vs. Gent, it certainly was signed to the agreement. He was one of the partners. This is proved by the fact that there are now on record in Fauquier two deeds, one from Henry Kemper (the youngest son of the emigrant) and Lettis (Whitesides), his wife, to Jeremiah Darnall, for land described as follows: “That parcel of land containing forty acres, more or less, situate, lying and being in the county of Fauquier, being part of a tract of land taken up by John Fishback, John Hoffman and Jacob Holtzclaw, by patent from the proprietor’s office, bearing date the 21st day of August, in the year 1724, and conveyed from the above persons to John Kemper, father of the said Henry Kemper, and bounded as follows: Beginning at a white oak, running thence N. 50°, E. 160 poles to Licking Run to a maple; thence up the meanders of the said run 70 poles to a white oak on the east side of the run; thence S. 50°, W. 160 poles to two Spanish oaks in Mountjoys line; and thence with his line 40 poles to the beginning."

There is also a lease on record about this same time from Harman Kemper (son of the emigrant) and wife to Jacob Holtzclaw for 40 acres on Licking Run, with the same recitals as above.

So it is plain that John Kemper owned at least 80 acres of the Germantown patent, and was one of the partners referred to in Spillman vs. Gent.

"Life's Review" (referred to later) says: "My father kept up the example given him in settling his sons but not his daughters on land of their own." No doubt the two tracts mentioned above were given by John Kemper to his two sons on their marriage. Cedar Grove was in the name of the eldest son, John Peter. The patents already noticed from the land office, in the name of his children, show the above quotation from "Life's Review" to be correct.

In spite of the fact that our colony had such a hard time in London that Spottswood paid their passage, and that when Fontaine records that when he visited Germanna, "they lived very miserably," it must not be supposed that they were an illiterate, ignorant, impecunious, shiftless set of people. Reformed Calvanistic communities, even in those days, were not composed of that kind of people, and the Westphalian peasantry have ever been the most thrifty in Germany. By their industry they soon made the good lands about Germantown to blossom as the rose. The Germantown settlement was known far and wide for the thrift and comfortable living of its inhabitants. The community was an intelligent one. Nearly every man of them could read and write. Parson Hager we have seen answered the description of "a man of profound learning;" Holtzclaw was a good scholar. John Kemper's handwriting shows him a man of good education. He owned a small landed property in Müsen. The gun sent from Germany to John Peter Kemper is of fine workmanship, and must have cost considerable money in 1729. John Kemper was a man of intelligence; he invented the first shovel plow, and it is not at all surprising that he accumulated considerable property. It is greatly to be regretted that it has been impossible to find any will of his or any administration on his estate. The destruction of the records of Prince William no doubt accounts for this. As no record either of the appointment of an executor or administrator appears in the records of Fauquier, organized 1759, and as the plank hereinafter mentioned shows he was alive in 1754, he seems to have died between these two dates.

And now to confirm the information contained in all the foregoing documents, gathered together from Europe and America—the writers unknown to each other—and certainly all of them unheard of by the author of the following document, the autobiography of Rev. James Kemper, hitherto unpublished, and that has remained in the hands of a few of his descendants for 60 years, will be largely quoted from. James Kemper, a grandson of John Kemper, the emigrant, was born at Cedar Grove, Fauquier County, Va., Nov. 23d, 1753. In November, 1783, he migrated with his family to what is now East Tennessee, going thence to Kentucky in April, 1785, at the instance of his cousin, Jacob Fishback, already there, for the purpose of studying theology under Rev. David Rice, D.D., the pioneer Presbyterian missionary of Kentucky. He continued his studies under Dr. Rice until he was licensed by the Presbytery of Transylvania at a meeting held in the Forks of Dick's River Church, Kentucky, on April 27th, 1791. In the fall of 1790 he had come to the then straggling village of Cincinnati and in May, 1791, he moved to Cincinnati with his family, and began to preach to the congregation afterwards known as the First Presbyterian Church in that city, to which he was called as pastor in October, 1792. He continued the pastor of this church for several years. He organized all the early Presbyterian churches in the neighborhood of that city, and was the pastor of the 1st Presbyterian Church, Walnut Hills, from its organization in 1818 till his death in 1834. During the last four years of his life "Life's Review" was written, really an autobiography. It confirms so many things already referred to that the part of it relating to the early history of his family in America is given in full. "Life's Review," in his own handwriting, is still in the possession of his descendants, the children of James Kemper, Jr. The writer quotes from an exact copy made by himself:

"My ancestors:—My grandfather, John Kemper, was born in the County of Nassau Siegen, on the river Sieg, but how near the town of Siegen I have no documents to show. But he owned a small landed property there and also carried on the blacksmiths business. He was a man of some learning, serious piety and a penetrating mind, with a most amiable disposition and temper.

My grandfather in his reflections on the severity of the government of his country, and the vast difference between that and the liberties enjoyed in America, he finally resolved to embark for the New World, and did so with a company of about twelve families, who were, perhaps, all related by consanguinity or affinity. They touched on England and made a short stay there just at the time when Queen Anne died and George the First ascended the throne of England, and about 107 years after the first settlement of Virginia, about the year 1714. From thence they sailed to Virginia, I think at the time Governor Spottswood administered the government of the State.

By the governor's advice or recommendation they made a temporary settlement in what is now, I think, Orange county, and named the place Germanna. But they were on lands belonging to the governor, or under his control, and within about two years they saw or believed that the governor was disposed to impose on them, and they determined on removing to Prince William county, out of which Fauquier county was afterwards taken. They did so and purchased or perhaps entered, vacant land, each 200 acres, on a small stream called Licking Run, and called the place Germantown; and so it is called to this day. I have seen in Orange county the remains of hewn stone, which some of them had cut for the governor. They were mostly mechanics and master workmen in their several trades. Germantown lies about eight miles below Warrenton, the present county town of Fauquier county. Each man's land was surveyed in an oblong square, the run or creek passing through the middle of each tract. They had now obtained the height of their ambition, or they might nearly as well have owned 2,000 acres each as 200. Speculation was not their object, yet as my grandfather's family grew up he furnished each of his sons, and daughters, too, with a small farm. Their names, in the order of their birth, were John Peter, who was my father, Catharine, John, Jacob, Mary, Dorothy, Harmon, Henry and Elizabeth. Perhaps the above order may not be perfectly exact, but if I err it is only, I think, in not naming Harmon before Mary.

The first year at Germantown they packed all their provisions from Fredericksburg on their heads, and raised their first crop with their hoes, in both which their women bore a part. My grandfather invented the first shovel plow, and in a few years they had large stocks of tame and very large cattle. I recollect well when my father had many horses nearly or quite wild in the woods, about the year 1760.

Holtzclaw was their schoolmaster, and a good scholar. Their minister in Germany, who, though he did not come with them, soon followed; his name was Haeger, and he was my great-grandfather by my mother, and a man of profound learning, but he was old and died soon. They were Presbyterians, and soon raised a house for public worship, and in which, after the death of their minister, they constantly held worship by reading the scriptures, singing psalms, prayer and reading sermons. They were well provided with books. My eldest brother has had of my father's estate, besides Pool's An-notations, a German Bible of the most durable binding and paper, new sound and good, and weighing, I think, 53 pounds. It is swelled to this prodigious size by the most excellent and copious explanations, notes, tables, etc. This book is now in the hands of some connections on Robison's river, Virginia. They kept up their worship, both public and private, in the German language, and their schools also, till being, as it were, lost in the crowd, the first generation removed by death and all their public political matters transacted in English their language was gradually lost in the second generation. I spoke a dialect of the German language as used in my father's house fluently, till I was ten or twelve years old, but have now almost entirely lost it. * * * My mother was Elizabeth Fishback, the daughter of John Fishback, who was one of the original emigrants from Nassau Siegen. She was born on the 13th of February, 1723, at Germantown, and was married to my father the 7th of December, in the year 1738, under 16 years of age. She was rather below the middle stature and of a fair complexion. The features of her face were good, an innocent eye, fair or light-yellow hair—a fine suit of it—and the law of kindness was on her tongue."

In a letter written June 24th, 1814, to his relative John Kemper, of Lititz, Pennsylvania, a copy of which, in his own handwriting, is still preserved among the papers of James Kemper, he makes the following statement: "Twelve families settled on Licking Run, each on their own farm, about the year 1719, when my father was two years old. Their names were (John) Kemper, (Jacob) Holtzclaw, two Fishbacks (John and Harmon), (John) Hoffman, (Harmon) Utterbach, (Tillman) Weaver, (John Joseph) Martin, and perhaps (Jacob) Coons—Wayrnan—Handback, and (Peter) Hitt. (The names in parentheses are the writer's.) They first settled at Germanna, about twenty miles south of Licking Run, where their place was called Germantown, and is so to this day. My great-grandfather by my mother came in after them, and was their minister several years, and until his death. He was of the Reformed Calvinistic Presbyterian church, and is stated to have been a man of great learning. His name was Hager."

These two extracts are so plain, and so confirmatory of all the records above quoted, that but little comment is necessary. It will be noted that "Life's Review" says Henry Hager "although he did not come with them soon followed." The other documents quoted say he came with the colony of 12. The matter is of little moment, and which is correct cannot now be determined. Hager was certainly with the colony in 1715, when Fontaine visited Germanna, the description fits him plainly. Two slightly different dates are given in "Life's Review," and in the extract from the letter for the removal to Germantown. John Peter Kemper was born December 25th, 1717. If the colony went to Germantown when he was two years old, about the year 1719, they likely started in the spring of 1720, and this seems the most likely time. "Life's Review" says within about two years after the settlement at Germanna the removal took place. The language here is somewhat obscure, but giving it its literal effect, the date would be the summer or fall of 1716. As the act creating Spottsylvania county, in which the exemption to certain German Protestants is contained, was passed in November, 1719, it would seem that the colony with their minister was still at Germanna at the passage of this act, so the spring of 1720 seems rather to be the date. This is confirmed by the advertisement in the Frankfort newspaper, which appeared June 15th, 1720. Perhaps Mr. Zollicoffer left America at the same time the petition to the London Society was sent in the summer of 1719, or shortly afterwards, and the advertisement no doubt stated the facts as they were when he left Virginia, and at that time the Reformed Colony was still at Germanna, for the Reformed and Lutherans "were then served by the above named minister (Haeger) in common." Perhaps the truth is the colony did not all go at once. It is plain from the patent that the colony was there before the patent was issued. The Fishback family was there February 13th, 1723, when their daughter Elizabeth was born, and the papers in Spillman vs. Gent show they had been preparing to go since 1718 when they entered the land.

The colony began soon to purchase lands outside the patent, and nearly all its members owned large tracts. We have seen that John Kemper early took leases of large tracts. These early leases were for the present Cedar Grove land and adjoining it. It is supposed that John Kemper lived on the Cedar Grove tract in the latter part of his life. Soon after his marriage John Peter Kemper built a brick house on this Cedar Grove tract (which is about 2½ miles southwest of Warrenton) where he lived the remainder of his life. The house is built of brick and must have been a fine one for those days. Over the door of this house, carved on a popular plank in German text, is the following—Glaube an den Herrn Jusum Christum so wirst du und dein haus selich.—Act 16, V. 31, ◊ 1745. Johann Peter Kemper und Elizabeth Kemperin. (Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and then thou shalt be saved and thine house.)

We have two later references to Germantown. When the German Reformed Synod was organized at Philadelphia, September 29, 1747, this resolution was passed: "It was also resolved to mention most urgently in our letters to Holland the congregations in Mono-cassy and Conogocheague, in Maryland, and Shanandoah, South Branch Potomac and Lyken Run or Germantown in Virginia, and to intercede for them that they may get a minister of their own.”—Minutes 147, Sess. VI. And in the next year Rev. Michael Schlatter, the missionary, visited Germantown. His Journal says: “On, the 12th of May we continued our journey toward the southwest, not without weariness and danger from wild beasts, 42 miles further to New Germantown. Here I preached on the 13 and spoke with the good congregation, promising them that by the help of God I would visit them again at some other time and remain longer with them. (Journal, p. 175). The congregation does not appear afterwards in the records of the Synod. It seems to disappear from history. The descendants of the early settlers were lost in the crowd of English settlers, that fast took up the good lands in the Northern Neck. Good pastor Hager had long since been gathered to his fathers. He died in the spring of 1738, and his will was probated March 28th of that year. It is a unique document and as it is of interest to so many whose names appear in the “Record,” and as it is the first written document in America, so far as now known, to which the signature John Kemper appears, it is given in full:

“In the name of God, Amen, I, Henry Haeger, minister of the Word of God among the Germans at Licking Run, in Prince William County, being very sick and weak, but of perfect and sound memory, praised be God for the same, do nominate, constitute and appoint this my last will and testament in manner and form following:

Imprimis: I give unto my loving wife Anna Catharina all my estate, goods and chattels whatsoever, to her during her natural life.

Item: After the decease of my wife Anna Catharina I will and ordain that all my estate, goods and chattels whatever, be then divided amongst my seven grandchildren, Anna Catharina Fishback, John Frederick Fishback, Elizabeth Fishback, Henry Fishback, Agnes Hoffman, Anna Catharina Hoffman and John Hoffman.

Item: I do hereby revoke and make void all other and all former wills and testaments by me heretofore made. In testimony that this is my last will and testament, I hereunto set my hand and affix my seal this Die 10 Aprilis, Anno Domini, 1733.

H. HAEGER, Verbi Dei Minister. [SEAL.]

Signed, sealed and acknowledged by the testator in the presence of

JACOB HOLTZCLAW,
JOHANN JOST. MARTIN,
JOHANNES CAMPER.
At a court held for Prince William County, Mch. 28, 1738, this will was proved by the oaths of Jacob Holtzclaw and John Joseph Martin, two of the witnesses thereto, and it was admitted to record and there being no executors therein named, on the motion of John Hoffman and his giving security, certificate was granted him for obtaining letters of administration with the will annexed in due form.

Teste. CATESBY COCKE, Clerk.

Henry Hager's wife was living in 1733, whether she survived him or not is unknown. Strangely enough no bequests are made to any of his children. Can it be that the only two that came with him to Virginia were the wives of John Hoffman and John Fishback, and that they were both dead? We know that Agnes, the daughter of Hager, who was the wife of John Fishback, was dead at that time, for Fishback's will, dated March, 1733, names his wife Mary and four children besides these named in the Hager will. Quite likely John Hoffman married the youngest daughter of Hager, Anna Catharina, b. 1702, as that name appears among Hagers Hoffman grandchildren. As she is not mentioned in Hager's will, she quite likely, like her sister, was dead. No further information can at present be given about this family, and like Moses of old, no man knoweth the sepulcher of this leader of his people to this day.

The original will is not in existence, and whether our ancestor really spelled his name with a C, or whether the English clerk spelled it that way because he thought that was the way it ought to be spelled, cannot now be determined. It and the consent of John Peter Kemper to the marriage of his daughter are the only two documents known where the name is spelled with a C.

In this same year John Fishback made his will. He had a wife Mary living at the time, so that his first wife Agnes Hager was then dead. He makes bequests to his sons John, Henry, Harman, John Jacob, John Philip and Joseph; to his cousin Jacob Fishback; to his daughter, Catherine Rector, "50 acres of land on which Henry Hager doth live;" to his daughter Elizabeth Fishback, 100 acres. About 1500 acres of land are disposed of by the will. "Lastly, I do constitute John Kamper, and nominate and appoint Harman Fishback to be my whole and sole executors of this my last will." The witnesses are George Gent, Jacob Holtzclaw, Joseph Martin and John Rector. The will was probated March 19th, 1734 in Prince William County, and John Kamper and Harman Fishback are appointed executors. Signed to the executor's bond in this estate is where the beautiful signature of John Kamper (so spelled) is still in existence.

At the present writing the date of the death of John Kemper cannot be given, nor the place of his burial. And it is even somewhat uncertain who was his wife. Two copies of the original "Record" are in existence. (See page 55.) Susanna Turnbull's (Mrs. Isaac Kemper No. 769) original record is still in existence in the family of her descendants, in her own handwriting. It starts out thus: "The descendants of John Kemper and Alce his wife." The copy of the record kept by Mrs. Kemper's colleague, Rev. Jacob Kemper, still in existence among his family at Lebanon, Ohio, puts the name "Utterback" after Alce. It is certain her name was Alce. The record will show this was a favorite name during the second and third generations. The Utterback family was one of the twelve, and it is just as likely that John Kemper married an Utterback as any one else. The only other testimony on this subject at present attainable is the statement of an old Mr. Fishback, now 79 years old, and living in upper Fauquier, that he had heard the old folks say in early times that the Kemper family married into the Utterback family.

A great deal of time and considerable expense has been devoted to finding some record of this marriage, but thus far without results. The records of the Utterback family do not go back so far by one generation. It seems strange that James Kemper in "Life's Review," although he gives his own pedigree through his mother in both lines, and carries his wife's pedigree back three generations in several lines, does not once mention his grandmother Kemper. Considerable uncertainty has recently been thrown round this subject by the finding in the attic of an old house in upper Fauquier, formerly belonging to the Carter family, of a poplar plank, similar to the one over the door of the Cedar Grove house, with this inscription: "Johannes Kemper und Gertraud, ♦ eled 1754." This is followed by a verse of Scripture. The word "eled" shows that Gertraud was the wife of Johannes Kemper. The previous history of this plank is wholly unknown. There can be no doubt that this board refers to the emigrant. The only other John Kemper at that time old enough to be married was John, the son of the emigrant, and we know his wife was Ann Weaver, because the will of Tillman Weaver, dated December 14th, 1759, probated in Fauquier, in 1760, gives property to "his daughter Anne Kemper" (sic), "wife of John Kemper," (sic). We seem to be driven to one of two conclusions: either John Kemper's wife was not Alce Utterback, or Alce at all, but Gertrude; or after the death of his first wife, Alice, he married some one named Gertrude. No record of this later marriage has as yet been found. It is hoped that further research will throw more light on this subject so interesting to all of us.

One thing more remains to be discussed. It has all the time been assumed that the John Kemper the record of whose birth is still to be found in the records of the little Reformed church at Müsn, is the John Kemper who came to Virginia with Governor Spottswood's colony of miners, in April, 1714. As has been said, nothing is more likely than that when de Graffenried's agents or relatives in Switzerland started out to find miners for him they should go to the neighborhood of Siegen on the way down the Rhine, towards America, and Müsn only nine miles from Siegen, was at the mouth of what was then one of the most celebrated iron mines of Germany. It is certain that Henry Hager had lived in Siegen, and just about this time was pastor of a church in Fishback, and that he left that place in 1711 to go to America. The colony of twelve was in London in the fall of 1713, and Henry Hager at that same time was petitioning the London Missionary Society to be sent to America. While we have at present no positive proof of it, there can hardly be a doubt that the two Fishbacks in the colony came from Fishback or its neighborhood.

It is true that we have no written evidence that can be traced either to John Kemper or to any of his children that John Kemper came from Müsen. But by this same line of proof it could be established that John Kemper did not come from Europe at all. We have no statement from him or his children that he came from any other place. The fact that we have no written evidence at all of these two generations is undoubtedly the reason that we cannot prove by them that he came from Müsen. He knew from whence he came and so did his children. He undoubtedly came from Germany; his name shows that; and there is still in existence at the Cedar Grove house a gun of fine workmanship, the tradition concerning which is that it was sent by relatives in Germany to John Peter Kemper when he was twelve years old. In the absence of written evidence traceable to the first and second generations, evidence on this subject furnished by the third generation is the best attainable. And we have two positive statements of two members of the third generation. James Kemper, in "Life's Review," says: "My grandfather, John Kemper, was born in the county of Nassau Siegen (on the river Sieg), in Germany, but how near the town of Siegen I have no documents to show." This was written about the year 1828, for the next to the last entry in "Life's Review" is dated June 7th, 1830, and begins: "It is now more than two years since I began and wrote my narrative thus far." James Kemper was born 1753. John Kemper, the emigrant, was surely alive after the birth of James. John Peter Kemper lived until 1788. James Kemper constantly saw him until he (James) started west with his family in 1783, and James at this time was thirty years old. Certainly James Kemper knew his grandfather's birthplace. Would he make any such deliberate statement as the above if he did not know! Charles Kemper (the younger brother of James), born 1756, who lived with his father in the same house, Cedar Grove (and inherited it), until the death of John Peter Kemper, in his own family record, still in existence, and which was begun not later than the birth of his first child in 1787, as the writing in the record and the color of the ink plainly show, and which is plainly all through, a record made contemporaneously with the events, says: "John Peter Kemper, son of John Kemper, of the town of Müsen, near the city of Siegen, in the state or county of Nassau, in Germany, was born in Germanna, in Virginia, December 25th, 1717. Elizabeth Kemper, the daughter of John Fishback, of the town of Truback, near the said city of Siegen, in the State of Nassau, in Germany, was born at Germantown, Virginia, February 13th, 1723. John Fishback's wife was Agnes Hager." In the absence of any contradictory statements by the first and second generations, and in the absence of any written or oral declarations to the contrary, by any Kemper of any generation or any one else, one would think these statements conclusive. But there is other proof. There cannot be the slightest doubt that John Henry Kemper, who came to Pennsylvania in 1738, came from Müsen, as will presently be shown. His son John Kemper, born 1741, corresponded with James Kemper in 1814. A letter from him to James Kemper, dated January 28th of that year, is still in existence. This letter says: "The name of our family, to the best of my knowledge, was originally wrote K-e-m-p-e-r. My grandfather's christian name was John George. He was twice married. By his first wife he had four children; the eldest was John, the second John Henry, who was my father. By his second wife he had a son and a daughter—John George and Juliana—the mother of Mrs. Hiestand. There were none of the children came to this country except John and John Henry of his first wife and his daughter Juliana of the second. * * * My grandfather lived in a village called Missa, three leagues from the city or town of Seigen (the river or creek Sieg runs near the town), in the circle or principality of Nassau Siegen, about twenty leagues or sixty English miles from Cologne, on the river Rhine. * * * John left Germany upwards of twelve years before my father left his father's house."
James Kemper obtained the name and address of this John Kemper from Abraham Hiestand, then living in Fairfield county, Ohio, in a letter still in existence, written by the latter to James Kemper in 1813. It says, “My mother being now 77 years old, and her memory fails her very much. * * * Her grandfather’s Christian name she doth not recollect, but he was a blacksmith by trade, and lived in Nassau Siegen, in a village called Meisen, about nine English miles, she thinks, west of the town of Siegen. Her mother had three brothers besides your grandfather—(and then gives the names exactly as they were found at Müsen in 1892)—Juliana, my grandmother, and Thomas or George were from the second wife * * * My mother was only 13 years old when she left Germany. * * * You have some cousins in this county. One of them is a physician named Daniel Kemper. He has two brothers also living here, namely, Isaac and I think Jacob.”

James Kemper recognized these people as his relatives. In his answer to the letter of John Kemper of Pennsylvania, after giving a list of his own grandfather’s children and their descendants, he says to John Kemper of Pennsylvania, “Thus you have a list of your Uncle John Kemper’s posterity.” John Kemper of Pennsylvania, in his letter says, “I do not believe that any of our relatives ever moved to the East Indies, unless it was lately, as before the French Revolution I frequently corresponded with those in Germany, and no mention was ever made of it. They often inquired about your father’s family, but as you never sent us any information, I never could tell what was become of you till I received your letter.” James Kemper copies this letter at the end of “Life’s Review” and makes this comment on the last paragraph: “He must have forgotten, for I recollect well hearing my father say that one visit was made by those in Virginia to their Pennsylvania relatives, but I know not whether it was ever reciprocated.” It is evident that these people all recognized the fact that they were related, that they had a common ancestor, who came from the village of Müsen near the city of Siegen, in Germany.

The only way to escape this conclusion is to assert that James Kemper took it for granted that he and the Hiestands and John Kemper of Pennsylvania were all related, and simply copied into “Life’s Review” the statements of John Kemper’s letter. Is it likely that James Kemper would write down for the benefit of his posterity, for whom, and whom only, he says he writes, a statement on such an important subject that he did not know was true? And if James Kemper was copying from John Kemper’s letter, why did he not copy it exactly? It was before him and the name of the village from which John Henry Kemper came is given; yet James Kemper does not give the name of the village at all. Charles Kemper's family record, which was certainly commenced twenty-five years before John Kemper's letter was written, could not be written from information in that letter, yet he gives the name of the village from whence he says John Kemper came, and spells it Meisen, not Missa; and states other facts not stated in John Kemper's letter at all, showing he had other sources of information. The Hiestands never saw John Kemper's letter. Abraham Hiestand's letter to James Kemper was written six months before John Kemper's letter was written, and he spells the name of the village Meisen. It is clear these documents are not copied one from the other, and it is equally clear they are all referring to the same village; they must have had common sources of information. "Life's Review" contains many statements about things referred to in John Kemper's letter. It might as well be said that James Kemper knew nothing about the truth of these statements, and simply copied them all. If one of the statements made by James Kemper regarding his ancestors, and their coming to America is to be rejected, where will you stop? They might as well all be rejected.
To insinuate that these statements were deliberately copied, and stated as facts, without knowledge of their truth is an insult to as able and intelligent a man as James Kemper. The writer is of the opinon that there is no evidence to show that the statements of James Kemper and Charles Kemper as to whence their ancestor came is untrue, but that all the evidence goes to show that John Kemper came from Müsen; and that the John Kemper who came to Virginia in 1714 is the same John Kemper whose baptism appears in the records of the Müsen church.

This discussion would not be entered into here but for the fact that in the last dozen years or more an attempt has been made to connect our family with a Johann Kemper who was hereditary commander of the Castle of Bacharach on the west bank of the Rhine, between Bingen and Coblentz who had one son, John (whose descendants it is claimed we are); another, Henry, who came to Pennsylvania in 1746 and who is the ancestor of the Pennsylvania family and a third, Jacob, who came to America and landed in Philadelphia in 1741. This Jacob was the ancestor of the Episcopal Bishop Kemper of Wisconsin, and another of his descendants married Dr. David Jackson of Philadelphia, a man who was of great service to the country during the Revolution; and still another descendant of Jacob Kemper married Josiah Quincy of Boston. The writer of this sketch would be very glad to have such eminently respectable people closely connected with "Our Family," but the truth of history as herein above given compels him to say that the John Kemper of Virginia was not the "long lost son" of the old warrior of Bacharach, but that he was the grandson of the Johann Kemper whose son John George was an Elder in the Reformed Church at Müsen. Siegen and Bingen, Müsen and Bacharach, are not widely separated—and the writer would not be at all surprised—in fact, thinks it quite likely, that the two Johanns were related, but if the two families were related, the relationship antedates any knowledge we have of either family.

It would also seem to the eye of a critic that the records lately found in the Müsen church utterly destroy the story of the three brothers. The authors of this story admit that John Henry Kemper of Pennsylvania was a brother of John of Virginia, but claim they had a brother Jacob. John Henry Kemper's son in writing in 1814, to James Kemper, proves conclusively that his father came from Müsen, and he gives the names of all his father's brothers and sisters, and there is a John among them, but no Jacob. The Müsen records found in 1892 show the exact names and dates as given by John Henry Kemper's son—show he had a brother John, but no brother Jacob. If John Henry Kemper of Pennsylvania was a brother of John Kemper of Virginia, neither of them can be related to the family of Bishop Kemper (descended from Jacob), for they had no brother Jacob.

The career of John Henry Kemper, the second son of John George Kemper of Müsen is yet to be sketched. All that is known about his history is contained in the letter from his son John to James Kemper in 1814. John Kemper says: "John Kemper left Germany upwards of twelve years before my father. My father first went to Groenigen in West Friesland, and lived there 9 years. There he married Catherine, the daughter of David Reichen. He worked at his trade awhile, then went to farming, sold his farm and came to America in 1738." This is confirmed by reference to "Rupp's 30,000 Names," where John Heinrich Kemper is given as arriving in Philadelphia, Sept. 20th, 1738. (See Rupp, p. 124.) He settled at Lititz, near Lancaster, Pennsylvania, and his descendants are numerous in that section of the country to this day. This family kept up communication with their relations in Germany until the beginning of the French Revolution. The last letter from Müsen said the Kemper name was extinct in that village. All were dead or had emigrated. The Record will show the accuracy of this statement. In fact, very accurate information of the Müsen family was in possession of the Pennsylvania branch of the family in regard to births, deaths and marriages in the family of John George Kemper. They had the names of all the children of John George Kemper, with dates of births exactly as they were found in the records of the Muesen church in Sept., 1892. No such information so far as has yet been discovered was in the possession of the Virginia branch of the family, at least it is not now known to be extant.

The Virginia family commenced to go west shortly after the Revolution. So far as is now known, James Kemper was the first to go, starting in 1783, as has been related, reaching Kentucky in 1785. His cousins the Fishbacks were already there. It was, no doubt, the glowing reports of the blue grass region sent back to Virginia by these two pioneers that made the hive swarm. It is related that Tillman Kemper at the close of the Revolution re-enlisted in the United States army, and was sent with a detachment to garrison the then frontier town of Vincennes. When his three years enlistment expired he went back to Virginia through Kentucky, and was so pleased with the country that he took unto himself a wife in Germantown, Virginia, and emigrated at once to Kentucky. His descendants are legion in Owen Co., Ky., to-day, and from thence have scattered all over the west and south. James Kemper soon induced his elder brother John to move to Kentucky, and after James reached Cincinnati he induced his brother Peter and his family to go there about the beginning of the century. Two of Peter's sons remained in Virginia, and they have numerous descendants in Fauquier to-day. Three of Peter's sons went on south to New Orleans, where they were very prominent in all the attempts to drive the Spaniards out of Florida and Texas. There are numerous descendants of Nathan, one of these brothers, in Louisiana and Texas.

Henry Kemper, the youngest son of the emigrant, and his family were living in Kentucky in 1814. Some are still there, but most have gone farther west. Jacob and Harman Kemper's families mostly went to Ohio, many are to be found about Lima, but they also have largely gone on west. Some of John II. Kemper's family remained in Virginia or West Virginia, but many are in Illinois, Kentucky and Missouri.

Not one of the children of this man has failed of descendants to this day, although the fortunes of the youngest, the Turnbull family, have been united with that of Jacob, as the record will show. As James Kemper says: "The posterity of John Kemper are a race of honest, industrious and rather unambitious people, and are numerous."

It would be exceedingly interesting to trace the history of each of these twelve families; to know how far they have wandered from their early home; what success they have achieved in life's battle; what part they have taken in their country's history; and how many citizens of the United States have descended from these twelve sturdy Germans—for they are nearly all our relatives, Kempers having married into all the families but Harman Fishback, Handback, Wayman, Hoffman and Hagar, and through the John Fishback family are related to the Hagers, Rectors and Hoffmans. But such a task would far exceed the limits of this sketch. A few words may be said, however, on these topics.

There is hardly a state or territory in the Union, from New York south and west, but furnishes a home for some member of the Kemper family. One Simeon Van Deventer Kemper has wandered to far away Montana and is a prosperous merchant of Butte. There are several states that to-day shelter more members of our family than Virginia. From what information the writer has the other families are as widely scattered. Something seemed to impel them all to go west about the end of the Revolution. More than one descendant of these families has written his name upon the pages of his country's history. James L. Kemper was four years governor of the Old Dominion. The name of Reuben Kemper was a household word in the Southwest for the first twenty-five years of the century, and no one man did more than he to win Florida and Texas for the United States. The name of James Kemper will always be associated with Presbyterianism in the west. The late governor of Arkansaw, Hon. Wm. M. Fishback, is a descendant of John Fishback, as through his mother is Hon. Peter B. Swing, for more than ten years one of the judges of the Circuit Court of Hamilton County, Ohio. The present able and efficient member of Congress from Illinois, Hon. R. R. Hitt, is a descendant of Peter Hitt. Doubtless this list could be extended.

Descendants of nearly all of these twelve families are still to be found in Fauquier, Culpepper and Madison Counties, Virginia. There are Kempers, Holtzclaws, Fishbacks, Martins, Weavers, Spillmans, and Rectors in Fauquier. Utterbacks, Hoffmans, Waymans and Coons are honored residents of Culpepper. The present efficient clerk of Culpepper, Mr. Warren E. Coons, belongs to the latter family. The Hitt family is also to be found in various counties of the state. The only two names that the writer has not been able to find are Hager and Handback. Parson Hagar has left numerous descendants through his daughters, but nothing is known of his sons. Of the Handback family the writer has been able to find no trace at this time.

It may be of interest to know something about the deaths of the heads of these families. As has been told, no will of John Kemper can be found, and the date of his death is not known. So far as is at present known the same is true of John Joseph Martin, Harman Utterback, Harman Fishback, Jacob Coons, John Spillman and Jacob Rector. Harman Fishback was living in October, 1759. (See his deposition.) The will of Jacob Handback was probated in Culpepper in 1785. It seems doubtful from the date that this was the immigrant. This Jacob left three sons and four daughters. Two of the daughters married members of the Coons family. This will refers to Joseph Wayman as living near the testator.

John Fishback seems to have been the first of the leaders of the colony to die. His will, probated in Prince William, March 19th, 1734, has already been referred to. He was twice married, his first wife being Agnes Hager, and left two sons and two daughters by his first wife and four sons by the second. The daughters married into the Kemper and Rector families. The Hagar will has been given in full.

Jacob Holtzclaw’s will was probated in Fauquier, 29 February, 1760. He seems to have had ten children, and they married Hitts and Fishbacks. In the next generation four Holtzclaws married Kempers.

Tillman Weaver’s will was probated in Fauquier, 27 March, 1760. He left nine children. They married Hitts and Kempers.

The will of Peter Hitt (b. 1682) is probated in Fauquier 1771. He left five children. They intermarried with Rectors, Coons and Kempers.

John Hoffman seems to have been the patriarch of the colony. His will is probated in Culpepper August 17th, 1772. He was twice married, his first wife being Anna Catherine Hager, by whom he had three children. His second wife survived him. Over 3,500 acres of land are disposed of in his will, besides a large amount of personal property. Fourteen children are mentioned in his will, and as one of his children mentioned in the Hager will is not mentioned in the Hoffman will, he was the father of at least fifteen children. One daughter married a Spillman.

One comment can be truthfully made upon these twelve families. “They were numerous.” No wonder when they commenced to emigrate that the west soon had a teeming population.

As to our own family the Record will show many gaps in the descent, although diligent effort has been made to gather them all in. The writer believes that if all the descendants of John Kemper could be gathered together they would number nearer 5,000 than 3,100 as given. It is hoped that the publication of the Record will stimulate the missing members to send in their names. It is also hoped that the publication of the documents in this sketch will stimulate investigation into the early history of the Germanna Colony—the first German colony to come to Virginia. The German element in the Old Dominion can no longer be ignored, and this immigration had its beginning at Germanna.

In conclusion, the writer acknowledges himself under many obligations in the preparation of this sketch to Rev. W. H. Hinke of Ursinus Seminary, Philadelphia, for copies of records and documents from London, Berne, Siegen, Frankfort and elsewhere, and for much assistance and many suggestions relating to the history of the Germanna Colony; to Mr. Warren E. Coons, clerk of Culpepper Co., Virginia, for copies of numerous documents from the records of his county, and to Mr. Charles E. Kemper of Washington, D. C., for his indefatigable perseverance and painstaking researches among the records of the various Virginia counties, and relating to the location of Germantown. To the kindly assistance of all of whom the foregoing sketch owes much of its interest.

HEREWITH IS GIVEN THE AUTHORITY FOR THE RECORDS CONTAINED IN THIS BOOK.

In the year 1838, Mrs. Isaac Kemper, born Susanah Turnbull (No. 112), assisted by Rev. David Kemper (No. 769), commenced the collection of these records. They gathered together considerable data, and Mrs. Kemper kept adding to it during her life. Her original manuscript is still in existence in the family of (No. 861). That is the foundation of this record, and from it the later manuscripts have been corrected.

In the year 1848, Rev. Frederick A. Kemper (No. 167) copied Mrs. Isaac Kemper's manuscript in full, and during his life considerably added to the record.

In the year 1869, Mrs. Dr. A. C. Kemper (No. 548) copied Rev. F. A. Kemper's record in full from the original manuscript, then in possession of his son, Rev. Augustus S. Kemper (No. 558) and then took up the work, and by great labor and diligent corresponding, very largely added to the record.

The records of the Pennsylvania branch of the family were furnished Mr. Willis M. Kemper (No. 1377) by Mr. Jacob Kemper (No. 1001) of Akron, Pa. The manuscript written by his son, George A. Kemper (No. 2030) is now in Willis M. Kemper's possession.

The names and dates of the 1st and 2nd generations were obtained by Rev. Kemper Fullerton (No. 1,402) from the records of the protestant church in Müsen, while on a trip to Germany in the fall of 1890. Transcripts of the church records over the pastor's signature are now in Mr. Willis M. Kemper's possession.

In March, 1892, Harry L. Wright (No. 1,257) took Mrs. Dr. Kemper's scattered records, as well as the others above mentioned, and reduced them to the system found in this book.

From March, 1892, by diligent corresponding, Mr. Willis M. Kemper and Mr. H. L. Wright have added about 2,000 names to the record. Mr. Wright's system and manuscript was copied in full, adding to it the data since obtained, the only change being the renumbering necessitated by the additional names obtained and inserted. Mr. Chas. Edward Kemper (1561) has also been instrumental in securing many names and copies of valuable documents from court house records in Virginia.

JAMES KEMPER, after his marriage in 1772, settled on a farm near his father's "Cedar Grove," place, where he lived until 1783.
His health had been impaired by over work and he taught school for about a year. Partly through the persuasion of a friend, Rev.
Hezekiah Balch, and also of his cousin, Jacob Fishback, and partly with the expectation of bettering his fortunes, Mr. Kemper and his family, then consisting of his wife and six children, moved in 1783 to Western North Carolina, south of the Cumberland Mountains, on Richland Creek. The locality was known as Nolachucky. He had procured a commission as Deputy Surveyor of a large and valuable tract of country, which made it easy for him to secure lands of the best quality. His friend and his cousin had previously located there, but soon after James Kemper arrived the latter removed to Mercer Co., Ky. Mr. Kemper had for a long time been deeply interested in religious matters and had a desire to fit himself for the ministry. His cousin arranged to have him come to Ky., to study with Rev. David Rice, D. D., and accordingly he made the removal in April, 1785. Here he had a hard struggle to support himself and family, but managed to accomplish his purpose of preparing himself for the ministry, through the kind assistance of Dr. Rice, and of his cousin. In addition to his farm work and his studies, he taught school and acted as public chatechist, the first one west of the Allegheny Mountains. He was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Transylvania, on 7 Oct., 1790. In Dec. of that year, through the friendly offices of Dr. Rice, he first visited Cincinnati, where there was no Presbyterian minister. As a result of this visit and of a second one made in the following spring, he removed his family to Cincinnati, reaching there Oct. 25, 1791; just nine days before the defeat of Gen’l St. Clair by the Indians. During the first year his congregation raised a good frame house of worship 30 x 40 feet, two stories high, which became in due course of time the First Presbyterian Church of Cincinnati. The congregation used to bring their fire arms to the services on account of the Indians. The Indian war was raging and the church was reduced to one member. In 1792 he was regularly called as pastor for a term of three years; Presbytery attended at Cincinnati, in October, 1792, under a guard, and ordained Rev. James Kemper, pastor. Soon after this he purchased 130 acres of land about two miles from his church, on Walnut Hills, and in 1793 removed there, to a high block house, which he occupied until 1804, when a more commodious house was built, which is still standing and in good preservation. Almost simultaneously with the close of his three years pastorate the Indian war came to an end and a large part of his congregation scattered to their farms. From 1795 to 1810 he preached regularly, but in widely scattered settlements between the Little Miami and the Great Miami Rivers, and made many missionary tours, through Kentucky and Virginia, by the appointment of the General Assembly. In 1810 he received a call to the church at Flemingsburg, Ky., which he accepted, and moved there in May, 1810. He remained there four years and left because the congregation would not build what he considered a suitable house of worship—but he says of this later: “In this I erred capitally.” He returned to his former home on Walnut Hills and resumed occasional preaching services in the country around there, until the formation of a church on Walnut Hills. He and his sons and neighbors built a stone church on the hill in 1818, and there Mr. Kemper performed his ministerial duties uninterruptedly until his death. In a historical paper prepared for the Cincinnati Presbytery, by Rev. Joseph G. Monfort, D. D., he says: “Perhaps no man in the valley of the Mississippi has been a first pioneer in so many places and departments as James Kemper. He was the first Catechist ever appointed west of the Alleghenies and south of Virginia; the first student of theology; the first licentiate of the First Presbytery, the first supply north of the Ohio, in answer to the first request for preaching. He preached the first sermon in Ohio that was preached by a representative of the Presbyterian Church. He was the first minister ordained on the north side of the Ohio. He preached the first sermon at the first meeting of the first Presbytery that met in Ohio, it being his own ordination sermon. He received the first call and was installed the first pastor on the north side of the Ohio. Moreover, he preached the first sermon at the first meeting of the Presbytery of Cincinnati, and of the Synod of Cincinnati in 1829, and was elected the first moderator of that Presbytery and Synod.”

The Hathaway family has been prominent in Lancaster County, Virginia, for more than two hundred years. So far as now known, the first of the name in Virginia was William Hathaway, born near Stratford, England, 1636, died 1692. Members of the family now living tell of a letter written from London by the family solicitor to the above William relative to his portion of the family estates in Stratfordshire. The deed for William's plantation in Lancaster county, near the mouth of the Rappahanock, called "Enon," from William Downing, is dated 1666. "Enon" is still in the possession of his descendants. The line of descent to Judith Hathaway runs as follows: William Hathaway II, b. 1666, d. 1725; William Hathaway III, b. 1695, d. 1772; John Hathaway, b. 17 May, 1733, d. 19 Apr., 1786. John was the eldest son of William III, and after his marriage on Dec. 26, 1754, to Sarah Timberlake of Northumberland county he removed about 1760 to Fauquier county. He held a commission as captain in the Fauquier county militia during the Revolution and saw considerable service. After the war he was an associate justice of the Court of Common Pleas until his death.

The Timberlake family was well known in the adjoining county of Northumberland from early times. Sarah Timberlake was born 21 Apr., 1739; her mother was Judith Lawson, who was married to Francis Timberlake, 9 Mch., 1730.

The descendants of James and Judith (Hathaway) Kemper are doubly descended from the Lawson family, for the wife of William Hathaway III was "Sarah Lawson," the daughter of Henry Lawson. Whether or not Judith and Sarah Lawson were sisters is at present unknown.

The Lawson family had been in Virginia from the earliest times. According to a note by Mr. W. G. Stanard to his "Virginia Land Patents" (see Virg. Hist. Mag. Vol. 4, pp. 202 and 213,) the earliest grant is to Epaphroditus Lawson, Nov. 25, 1635. These men were all related, perhaps were all brothers; the first three certainly were brothers. Rowland Lawson received a grant of 1,300 acres in Lancaster county, June 20, 1651. This grant on Lawson’s Bay adjoins “Enon,” the Hathaway place, and is still owned by the Lawson family. Rowland Lawson’s will is probated in Lancaster, 8 May, 1661. His wife’s name was Lettice, and his children were Rowland II, Elizabeth, John, Henry I and Letitia; all but the first were minors in 1668. The will of Rowland II is probated in Lancaster, 7 Sept., 1706; he had at least two sons, Henry II and Rowland. Whether the Henry Lawson, who was the father of Sarah Lawson was this Henry II or was Henry I, is not now known. Mr. Stanard’s note says: “The seal on the will of Rowland II bears a chevron between three martlets. Burke ascribes these arms to Lawson of Burgh Hall, County Yorke, Bart. of Crawlington and of Langhorst in Northumberland.” There are numerous prominent persons of this name in England to-day, the best known of whom is, perhaps, Sir Wilfred Lawson. William Lawson, Mercer, and Thomas Lawson, Gentleman, were members of the Second Virginia Company. Hen., Vol. I, pp. 83-87.

The papers of the Virginia Lawsons have been completely lost, the mansion house having been burned with its contents during the Revolution, during the war of 1812, and during the civil war. The Hathaways and Lawsons have frequently intermarried, and each family has often held office, in both church and state, ever since Lancaster county was organized.
