EXPLANATION OF CHARACTERS

The letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H denote the generations beginning with Robert (A1).

The large figures indicate the heads of families, or those especially mentioned in their generation.

Each generation begins with 1 and continues in regular sequence.

The small figures show number, according to birth, in each particular family.

Children dying in infancy or early youth are not mentioned again in line with their brothers and sisters.

As the work progressed, new material was received, which, in some measure, interfered with the plan above outlined.

Many families named in the early generations have been lost in subsequent tracing, no information being available.

By a little examination or study of the system, it will be found possible to trace the lineage of any person named in the book, through all generations back to Robert (A1).
PREFACE

For a number of years I have been collecting data concerning the Wardlaw and allied families. The work was undertaken for my own satisfaction and pleasure, without thought of publication, but others learning of the material in my hands have urged that it be put into book form. I have had access to MSS. of my father and his brothers, Lewis, Frank and Robert, all practically one account, and presumably obtained from their father, James Wardlaw, who in turn doubtless received it from his father, Hugh.

Judge D. L. Wardlaw’s manuscript was put into print some years after his death, and is a valuable epitome of family affairs up to about 1885. Recent investigation of official records, and histories of Augusta and Rockbridge Counties, in Virginia, has enabled me to furnish additional information concerning our early ancestors who settled in Augusta, subsequently Rockbridge, County, Virginia, about 1740.

Libraries, court records, church rolls, histories, manuscripts, old letters, voluminous correspondence, and personal visits to cemeteries, and old home sites have all contributed to the historical accuracy of what is written.

Little satisfying information could be gathered from a visit to England and Scotland—from whence our forbears came—but Mr. Alexander Wardlaw, Bank President of Glasgow, gave us a list of books bearing on the subject, and which proved most interesting and helpful in an attempt to unravel the intricacies of foreign ancestry.

There is, perhaps, no special merit in the arrangement of material in this book; indeed, there are recognized objections to the plan adopted; and there is certainly no claim for literary merit in the production; it is simply the effort of a busy man to preserve, in permanent form, some account of his family.

Kinsmen have, in most instances, responded to requests for details concerning their immediate families—Clayton J. Wardlaw, a lawyer of Columbus, Ohio, furnished the account of the Western branch—Judge Thomas P. Cothran’s publication, “The Perrin Family,” has been helpful. Indeed, it would be impossible to enumerate all of the sources from which facts have been secured. I have traveled miles in order to verify certain information, and yet there are statements that cannot be guaranteed as being absolutely correct.

Whatever may be the views of others, I have thought the family genealogy of sufficient importance to spend “time, money and attention” in its preparation.

I am aware of its imperfections—there are, doubtless, some errors and many omissions—but it is offered to those concerned with the hope that it may prove of interest, and that the compilation will, at least, serve as a nucleus for a more complete and perfect genealogistic endeavor.

JOSEPH G. WARDLAW.

York, S. C., October, 1929.
An interesting note is found in Judge Wardlaw's book, which is worthy of preservation, and is, therefore, presented here as sound doctrine.

He says, "I believe firmly in hereditary influence, not only upon bodily form, movements, appetites, and other physical qualities, but upon the moral propensities and feelings connected with these qualities, and upon all the mental faculties.

"I believe that inherited qualities often disappear for one generation or more, and then reappear; so that often a descendant resembles as much an uncle or granduncle as a father or grandfather.

"Further, I believe that by free and judicious selection, the human race might be so improved that a man of the new species would be as far above one of the present, as a Caucasian is now above a gorilla.

COAT-OF-ARMS

Various publications confirm the statement that the Wardlaws of Scotland were for long years owners of well recognized, registered and authenticated Coats-of Arms, and if the American branch is the same as the Scottish family, then ours is more than an “assumptive” right to the armorial insignia of the Wardlaws of Petreavie and Balmule. There is much similarity in the Arms of the Wardlaws of Wilton and Torrie, of Raccarton, of Warriston, and of Petreavie and Balmule; however, only a slight change in color or character of metals, etc., is sufficient to cause a distinct difference in armorial bearings. I imagine that the good old Scotchmen, Robert and William Wardlaw, who first came to America, were not greatly concerned about the intricacies of heraldry.

Burke’s Peerage, Baronetage and Knightage, in several editions, says, “Sir Henry Wardlaw, 1st Knight Baronet of Balmule and Baron of Petreavie, County Fife, created March 5, 1630.”

It is hoped that the colors of the Coat-of-Arms in my pos­session will be sufficiently developed in the cut representing the arms. The shield or field is blue (AZ); the mascles Or lozenges are gold (Or); three water bougets Or.

The crest is a golden star (estoile Or).

The motto commends itself and I believe has not lost its meaning for the family of today.
The first Secession meeting was held at Abbeville, and the last Cabinet meeting, or Council of War, four or five members being present, was held at the residence of Major Burt, while President Davis was on his way to Georgia and the Trans-Mississippi.

Judge Edward McIver told me that he had frequently heard his father, Chief Justice McIver, who was a member of the Secession Convention, say that there was no doubt that Chancellor Francis H. Wardlaw was the author of the original draft of the Ordinance of Secession, and that this fact was acknowledged by Chancellor Inglis, Chairman of the Committee.

I have heard that Uncle Robert Wardlaw, Mr. Charles Haskell, and two other old gentlemen, whose names are not recalled, met on the streets of Abbeville, and, counting up, found that the four had thirty-two sons in the Confederate States Army.

As an instance of unusual tenure of office, it is worthy of mention that James Wardlaw was Clerk of Court for thirty-eight years, having previously been Deputy Clerk for four years. For forty-nine years he served as Secretary of the Long Cane Society, being succeeded by his son, Robert, who was Secretary for forty-five years; father and son filling the office for ninety-four years. An elderly lady told me she had heard men say that “Old man Jimmie Wardlaw would hold office until Gabriel blew his trumpet.”

Mr. George Syfan was another man who served long and well; he was an engineer on the old “Abbeville Branch,” now Southern Railway, from Hodges to Abbeville, for about fifty years; his faithfulness being recognized by a life pension granted by the railroad authorities. Referring to the Scotch-Irish ancestors of Judge Wardlaw, Major Burt said: “They were distinguished by the love of liberty, appreciation of education, decorum of life, and deep religious sentiment which so distinctly characterize these stout champions of the freedom of conscience.”

It is written that John Ewing Calhoun (nephew of Patrick) was the first person in the up country to receive a college education, he having been graduated from Princeton.

McCrady says that to the good "Dr. John de la Howe was given the privilege of naming Abbeville County, which he did in compliment to the French Colony."

History records the activities of the men of the district by saying that a fight was had at Ninety-Six in 1775 about eight months before the Declaration of Independence.

The Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education, in Circular No. 24, speaks of the "Lethe Foundation," or Dr. de la Howe's Industrial School, as the oldest manual training school in America.

ABBEVILLE

The attempt to present some account of the Wardlaw and allied families would be incomplete without some reference to Abbeville District or County, where hundreds of the descendants of the original settlers were born.

Abbeville, Edgefield, Laurens and contiguous sections appear to have been rapidly settled after 1755, when the Cherokee Indians ceded a large territory in the upper part of the State. John, Hugh and Joseph Wardlaw, sons of William, left Rockbridge County, Virginia, about 1766 to 67, and, as far as can be determined, came direct to Abbeville County, without stopping or tarrying at Waxhaw—where many other settlers moving to South Carolina had halted for a time. The three Wardlaw brothers were granted lands on the Saluda River and Long Cane Creek. I have traced business transactions of the brothers in Virginia as late as 1765, and it is almost certain that they settled in Abbeville County, near the streams mentioned, in 1766 to 67. The prospect was pleasing; the climate was less rigorous than in Virginia; the land was good; the cost was small; and after Governor Glen's treaty, there was but little trouble with the Indians, all of which lured these settlers to the Long Cane section. These Virginians—originally from Scotland—were not connected with the splendid colony of Huguenots, headed by Rev. Gibert. These Frenchmen established homes in the southern part of the county about 1764 to 1765. They named the new district
"Abbeville," in remembrance of their former home, a manufacturing town in France. Mills and others say that the first important settlement in the county was made in 1756 when Patrick Calhoun, with four families from Scotland, by way of Pennsylvania, settled on Long Cane Creek. Calhoun is reported to have found only two white families, one named Gowdy and the other Edwards. Dr. H. T. Cook, educator and author, says in his "Hard Labor Section" that some immigrants reached the neighborhood of Ninety-Six as early as 1748. He also says that a colony of German Palatines settled a few miles south of Ninety-Six in 1765. It is probable that the Perrins, Chiles, Cothrans, Hearsts and others found homes in the lower part of the county from 1766 to '70. In many respects, the citizenship of Abbeville County was superior to that of some other sections of the State. Few counties have produced more men of outstanding intelligence, prominence and usefulness. They were God-fearing, church-going people, but they have never been noted as pacifists, for we find them fighting in the Indian Wars; in the Revolution; and they were members of the Palmetto Regiment in Mexico—where Lieutenant Selleck won the honor of having inscribed on his tombstone in old Long Cane Cemetery, "The hero of Garita de Belen." In the War Between the States, hundreds of the "flower of the land" laid down their lives in a valiant effort to uphold the principle of State sovereignty. Splendid companies engaged in the Spanish-American War and the World War, all willing to make the supreme sacrifice in order to maintain the integrity of the Stars and Stripes. Education has always been an obsession with the people, an unusual number having graduated with first honor from the higher institutions of learning. A writer says, "This county may be regarded as the original seat of learning in the up country." Dr. John de la Howe, who probably came with the Gibert party, or soon after their arrival, of his own means, and by definite instructions in his will, made possible the establishment of one of the very earliest, if not the first, agricultural and industrial school for indigent boys and girls. This school has been of great usefulness for many years. Erskine College has been maintained by the worthy Associate Reformed Presbyterians for nearly a century, and has turned out many splendid men of ripe scholarship. The Conference School at Cokesbury filled an important place in educational affairs. The school, taught by Judge Benet, also at Cokesbury, was remarkable for the subsequent prominence of its pupils.

Rev. O. T. Porcher, J. L. Lesley, Capt. Edw. Parker, Rev. Edw. Miles, Daniel Webb and others conducted schools of great usefulness in their time. Dr. Moses Waddel's classical school was of itself a monument to the best in preparatory education. Its pupils being men who shed lustre on the most exalted affairs of State. Private schools flourished from the earliest times. The town of Abbeville has always been noted for the culture and refinement of its citizens. We venture the assertion that no county in South Carolina sent out more prominent men. A few names are mentioned in order to justify the statement. These men were either natives or long time residents of the District, closely identified with its history; some of them attaining distinction in other localities, but always claimed as Abbevillians.

United States Senators: John Ewing Calhoun, John C. Calhoun (also Vice-President), George McDuffie, A. C. Latimer, Frank B. Gary, Christie Benet.

United States Congressmen: Andrew Pickens, Joseph Calhoun, Langdon Cheves (Speaker), Armstead Burt, D. Wyatt Aiken, J. S. Cothran, D. W. Aiken, Jr., E. C. Mann.

Governors: George McDuffie, Patrick Noble, John Gary Evans.

Justices: Eugene B. Gary, Chief; Associate Justices Samuel McGowan, A. C. Haskell, Thomas P. Cothran.

Revolutionary Officers: General Andrew Pickens, General Robert Anderson, Colonel Andrew Williams, Major John Bowie, Colonel Maryson, Major Hamilton, Major Reid.

Lawyers: James Louis Petegru, B. C. Yancy, George Bowie, James L. Orr, Jr.

Ministers and College Professors: Rev. Doctors Wilson, Dickson, Hoyt, Turner, Martin, J. L. Wilson, Grier, Patton, Pressley, Kennedy, Moffett, Hemphill, Johnson, DuBose, Miles, Kershaw; Dr. John McBride, president University of South Carolina. These were all men of more than ordinary ability.

Doctors: Archer, Benson, Branch, Gary, Mabry, Hearst, Calhoun, Logan, Pressley, Parker, Richmond, Maxwell. Livingston, Wardlaw, were old time physicians, who faithfully ministered to suffering humanity. Doctor Norwood gained national note by the discovery of veratum viride.

CARDINAL WALTER WARDLAW

Cardinal Walter Wardlaw was a younger son of Sir Henry Wardlaw, first lord of Wilton, and --- Stewart, daughter of Sir James Stewart of Durisdeer, and niece of Walter, the High Steward. He was born about 1317; about 1336-7 he was a distinguished student at the University of Paris, graduating in 1340. He was Rector and Professor of the University. He filled many important ecclesiastical positions until finally, in 1383, he was made Cardinal by Pope Clement VII, being the first Scottish Cardinal ever created. He had previously been secretary to King David II, and had been employed in the highest affairs of Church and State. As principal plenipotentiary for Scotland, he treated with the English for the redemption of King David, after the battle of Durham in 1346. He appears to have been in high favor with David and also with his successor, Robert II. His name is first among those who signed the treaty between Scotland and Charles V of France in 1371, while he was Bishop of Glasgow.
He was also a favorite of Charles VI of France, who used his influence with the Pope to have him appointed Cardinal. From the Rotuli Scotiae we see that he had many safe conducts to England, France, and Rome to travel with brilliant retinues of knights and gentlemen. He was the author of a genealogy of the family, written about 1345. The Cardinal died in September, 1387, and was buried in the Cathedral at Glasgow. His coat-of-arms, placed near the middle of the choir, is said to have been painted by the herald of the King of France. Wynton says of his private character: "Famous of vertue, a theologue solemm was he, kend, and known of great bounty, and syne was he the Priest Cardinal." Referring to the Cardinal, and to Bishop Wardlaw, Gibson says: "For nearly a century these two men figured prominently in the history of Scotland, and also made their influence felt in England and France." Neither of them was contented to sit down under the shadow of an ancient name, but acted on the principle of the truth embodied in Goethe's verse: "What from thy fathers thou hast inherited, be sure thou earn it, that so it may be thine."

BISHOP HENRY WARDLAW

Henry Wardlaw, according to Mr. Gibson, who has written an account of this prelate, "was almost certainly a younger son of Henry Wardlaw II, lord of Wilton, but he is hardly ever designated otherwise than as the nephew of Cardinal Wardlaw." He thinks that Henry could not have been the son of Andrew of Wilton and Christian de Valoniis, heiress of Torrie. A roll of the University of Avignon and Papal letters point to his having been of noble birth, and was almost undoubtedly a son of the laird of Wilton. His arms and seal were of the Wardlaws of Wilton. He was born about 1365. Henry and his brother, Alexander, had a safe conduct from Richard II of England in 1380, wherein they are described as scholars going into England for the purpose of studying at Cambridge or Oxford, with horses, valets, etc. In 1383 their names appear among the "determinates" in the University of Paris. Henry's name appears among the nobles at the University of Avignon in 1394. He is styled at various times, "Licentiate in Arts, precentor of Glasgow, of noble birth, Bachelor and Doctor of Canon Law." He rose rapidly in the Church. Clement VII and Benedict VIII both heaped benefices on him. Richard II granted a safe conduct for "Master Henry of Warدلawe" and others, with horsemen, to come into the King's presence. He was appointed Bishop of St. Andrew's in September, 1403. When he returned to his native country as Papal Legate for Scotland, "he tried to reform the lives of the clergy, which had become notoriously profligate." His residence was the old Castle of St. Andrew's. It is said that James I owed his literary tastes to the training of this "good and cultured Bishop." He subsequently crowned James and his Queen. "He was frequently employed in important affairs of State, and in 1411 he went to England to arrange a truce; but his imperishable work was the founding of the University of St. Andrew's, where teaching began in 1410." It is said of him, "that his positive qualities were many and good." Boece quotes a "great speech" made by the Bishop before the King at the Parliament held in Perth in 1430. It was a strong condemnation of luxury and effeminate habits. Martine tells us that he was “ane excellent man,” repressing many disorders among the clergy, and “extremely addicted to hospitality.” He died at the Castle of St. Andrew’s, April 6, 1440, and was buried in the wall of his Cathedral between the Choir and Lady Chapel, “more honorable than his predecessors.” Sibbald says, “Scotland will keep his memory fresh for his love of letters and of his King and country.” Gibson says his long life was “crowded with great deeds, and with the highest reputation for scholarship, statesmanship and Christian virtues and graces.” “The Wardlaws in Scotland,” by J. C. Gibson, is dedicated to “The University of St. Andrew’s, whose founder, Bishop Henry Wardlaw, was the most distinguished bearer of his name.”
NOTES ON SCOTCH FAMILIES

Referring to the table showing the descent of the Lords of Wilton and Torrie, Mr. Gibson gives many interesting facts concerning their families, some extracts from which are here chronicled. In 1436 Bower mentions that Sir Henry Wardlaw, Knight, fifth lord of Wilton and Torrie, accompanied Lady Margaret, daughter of King James I, to France, when she went to marry the Dauphin. His seal attached to legal papers, bears the quartered coat of Wardlaw and Valoniis. He is mentioned in 1439 as “Knight, Sheriff Depute.” In 1454 he seems to be styled “Justis and steward” and held court at St. Andrew’s. A curious statement is made of John Wardlaw VIII of Torrie, in a supplication to King James V, in which it is said, “Not having power nor with a gyde himself bot furious and furth of his mind,” he signs an agreement “wit my hand to ye pen.” Alexander Wardlaw was a Protestant minister about 1560, but seems to have been of a violent disposition, and on account of “inobedience” to the Superintendent of Fife, was made to confess his sins, &c. IX. Henry Wardlaw of Torrie sat in Parliament in 1560. He appears to have taken the side of Queen Mary in her trouble, and his name is found among those “forfeited for treason,” in 1571; his brother, James, took part in the escape of Queen Mary from Lochleven Castle in 1568. The young lairds began to pay special attention to education about 1575, and we find many of their names among the graduates from St. Andrew’s and Edinburgh Universities. We also find their names among the list of Barons, members of Parliament, and on church registers. In 1640 Sir Henry Wardlaw of Pitreavie, Nicolas Wardlaw and “Mr.” William Wardlaw were elders in the Dumfermline Church. “Mr.” James Wardlaw of Wester Luscar was licensed by the Presbytery of Dunfermline in 1709, with the celebrated Ralph Erskine as his associate applicant for licensure. A grandson of James, Rev. James Muir, was a minister at Alexandria, Va. Sir Henry Wardlaw IV, Knight Baronet of Balmule and Pitreavie, had many honors heaped upon him by King James VI, and also by Charles I. Letters, etc., from these sovereigns testify to his worth, integrity, intelligence and loyalty. He died in 1637 and was buried in a handsome vault in the Abbey Church of Dunfermline, the Norman doorway of which was recently discovered.

In Glasgow, the names James, John, Joseph and Alexander, were frequently encountered. Most of these Wardlaws seemed to be merchants. Mr. Alexander Wardlaw, president or manager of a bank in Glasgow, was very helpful in referring me to various publications, and our correspondence continued for some time. No pretense is made to trace a direct line from the titled personages to the immigrants coming to America, but they were evidently of the same family; and it is, at least, comfortable to feel that the name was revered in Scotland, even if the kinship be quite remote.

The following reasons are assigned for the emigration of many families from Scotland to America:

"To avoid oppression and cruel bondage; to shun persecution and designed ruin; to withdraw from the communion of idolaters; to have opportunity to worship God according to the dictates of conscience and the rules of the Word." (Morton's History of Rockbridge County, Va.)

Much effort has been made to determine just when these Scotch immigrants landed in America; but the date of arrival of the Wardlaws, their names, and where they first settled is uncertain. As far as can be ascertained, Robert Wardlaw and his son, William, landed in Pennsylvania or Delaware about 1720, and subsequently made their way to Virginia, in which latter State they can be traced with comparative accuracy and certainty, based on documentary evidence. Virginia history states that a "Proclamation was issued in 1738, granting freedom of religious opinion and worship to immigrants who would move to the Valley of Virginia and protect its Western frontier against incursions of Indians, and this caused many to settle in Augusta County."
WARDLAW

"The name Wardlaw is of great antiquity as a place name in the north of England, and is mentioned in the records of the priory of Hexham in the year 883, when Alfred the Great was King. It occurs in historical documents as a place name in Scotland in the year 1210, when there was a parish of the name in Inverness-shire. The name is also found in several of the southern counties. As a surname it is not found earlier than the latter half of the thirteenth century. The first reference to it in historical documents in Scotland is in the reign of King Robert the Bruce, who granted a charter under the Great Seal—probably about the year 1306—of half of the barony of Wilton in Roxburgshire, to Henrico de Wardlaw dilecto et fidele nostro pro homagio et servicio suo. From the family of Wardlaw of Wilton, which became more generally known about a century and a half later by the territorial designation of Wardlaw of Torrie in Fife, probably descended all the families of the Wardlaws in Scotland." The above is from John C. Gibson, of Glasgow, author of "Bishop Wardlaw," "The Lands and Lairds of Larbert and Dunipace Parishes," etc. D. Beveridge, of Tarryburn, author of several historical works, says in his "Between the Ochils and the Forth: "The other principal estate in the parish of Torryburn is that of Torrie, which in days long gone by belonged to the family of Wardlaw, who appear to have originally come to and settled in the western district of Fife from Dumfries-shire, from an eminence in which they probably derived their name. They are believed, moreover, to have been originally Anglo-Saxon refugees from England, who at the time of the Conquest escaped into Scotland and received kindness and benefactions from Malcolm Canmore. They rose to great wealth and influence, and at one period seem to have owned almost the whole region from the Cullalo Hills and Lochgelly to the western limit of Fifeshire. What was known as Lochoreshire, in the parishes of Ballengry and Auchterderran, belong to them; and the Castle of Lochore was one of their principal seats. A junior branch also held the lands of Pitreavie to the south of Dunfermline, which at a later period gave its name to a baronetcy conferred on the family by Charles I. The Wardlaws were likewise proprietors of Logie, of Balmule, and of Luscar; and they are unquestionably the very oldest family belonging to the neighborhood of Dunfermline. Not an acre of these ancestral domains does any member of the house now retain, though the baronetcy still exists, and is enjoyed by Sir Henry Wardlaw, residing in Tillicoultry (1881). The famous Cardinal Henry Wardlaw, founder of St. Andrew’s University, the earliest in Scotland, was a cadet of the Wardlaws of Torrie, whom we find taking part in all the prominent incidents of the time in which they lived. Thus the “Cronica Scotiae” informs us that among the train of nobles and ladies who accompanied Princess Margaret, daughter of James I, to France in 1435, to be wedded to the Dauphin Louis, son of Charles VII, was “Henricus Wardelau de Torry.” And in another record, a “Sir Henry Wardlaw, Lord of Torry, Knight,” is mentioned, as one of the witnesses to an act of homage by Sir John Kennedy and his son, on 2 July, 1444.” The Wardlaws continued Lairds of Torrie at least down to 1619, but not long after that period they ceased to hold that estate.” This seems to fix the time of the first appearance of the Wardlaws in Scotland, at about 1068 to ’70, while Malcolm III was King. It is said that Cardinal Wardlaw compiled a genealogistic account of the family, from the beginning of the sixth century, when some of its members came from Saxony into England, down to his own time. A copy of this paper was in the Royal Library of France until the Revolution, and it is thought the Wardlaws of Torrie also have a copy, which was continued by Sir Henry Wardlaw to about the close of the fifteenth century. Mr John C. Gibson of North Berwick, Scotland, has (1912) just published a large volume, “The Wardlaws in Scotland,” from which I make copious extracts. He says, “The various printed accounts of this family claim for it a very high antiquity, stating that it came from Saxony early in the sixth century.” He quotes Boece as saying that “The Wardlaws were among the English exiles on whom Malcolm Canmore conferred large estates in Scotland,” and names them among “our most distinguished families,” and those “particularly remarkable.” From the time of Sir Henry Wardlaw, fifth lord of Wilton, till the time of the ninth lord,—over a century—the Wardlaws ranked among the principal free barons of Scotland. The Wardlaw lands are said to have been in Galloway, bordering on Dumfries and named for themselves. In the competition for the crown the Wardlaws seem to have taken sides with Baliol. A chief of the name is said to have married a McDowall, related to both the Bliols and Comyns. It appears that the Wardlaws gave their allegiance to Bruce on Baliol's abdication, and as previously mentioned, were amply rewarded. The marriage of Andrew Wardlaw, Fourth Lord of Wilton, to the daughter of Sir James de Valoniis of Torrie seems to have strengthened and added to the power and influence of the family. The name Wardlawbank occurs in Berwickshire; Wardlawcraig in Selkirkshire; Wardlawhill near Caerlaverock in Dumfriesshire; Wardlawshope in Roxburgshire; and there are lands in Linlithgowshire called Wardlaw. A beacon was to be lighted at Wardlaw in Nithsdale, in order to give warning of the appearance of the English in 1448. This hill became the gathering place of the Maxwells, wardens of the western marches, whose slogan was “Bide Wardlaw.” Sir Thomas Craig names the Wardlaws among the chief families in Scotland, and “those reputed most noble.” Gibson says they have at times moved in the “highest positions of culture, rank, influence and wealth; at other times, perhaps oftener, occupied the humblest positions, battling with poverty, etc.” The name is found in one or two of Scott’s novels, and in Marmion as “Wardilaw.”

FIRST GENERATION—A

1. Robert Wardlaw, from all that can now be determined, was born, probably, near Glasgow, or Dunfermline, Scotland, about 1670. It is possible that he came to America, settling in Pennsylvania, about 1720-25. He had at least one son, William; but after earnest effort, I am unable to discover any further information concerning this ancient father. My great desire has been to determine accurately the name of the Wardlaw who came to America; when he landed and where he settled; and also to connect him with the Scotch family nearest of kin, but after investigation in Scotland; visiting libraries in the United States; and examining various records, etc, I am compelled to acknowledge inability to furnish unquestioned authority concerning the original settlers in America. Since writing the foregoing, I have received a letter dated Brainerd, Minn., January 18, 1926, addressed to Mr. Clayton J. Wardlaw, of Columbus, Ohio, quoting letters from George M. Greer, of Bushville, Ill., February 27, 1896; also from Mrs. Minerva E. Polk, Brainerd, Minn., from all of which the following is deduced, without any special authority or proof: "Robert born in Scotland, 1650, married a daughter of Hugh Hutson; their children were James, John, William (the only one known to reach America), Hugh, Joseph, Margaret." This is given for what it is worth, and with doubt as to its correctness. In an effort to furnish accurate details, we encounter exasperating contradictions in dates and facts. It must be understood that this record was written during a period of many years, and that subsequent or later information is set down as received, hence the connection is not always as close as it might be if all the data were in hand at one time. This "progressive" information sometimes causes repetition, and occasionally appears to contradict previous data.

SECOND GENERATION—B

1. William, son of Robert, was born about 1700, probably in Scotland or Ireland. It is thought that he came to America with his father and settled in Pennsylvania about 1725-29. There were large numbers of Scotch-Irish leaving Ireland for America in the years 1718, 1728 and 1729, many of whom landed at Philadelphia, and it is possible that he was among the number. It is said that the Pennsylvania Quakers especially disliked Dissenters, or Presbyterians, and William, with others, removed from Pennsylvania to Virginia in 1735-40, locating in the extensive region subsequently known as Augusta County, establishing his home in the Northeastern portion of this county. He is said to have stammered. About 1728-30 he married Jane Harper, doubtless a sister of the grandfather of Chancellor Harper. Robert Goodloe Harper seems to have been a kinsman, and lived for sometime with John Wardlaw. Another account speaks of his wife as being a daughter of Hugh Hutson; at all events, Harper and Hutson are both family names. William died near the present site of Washington, D. C., and his widow and children moved to that part of Augusta County now called Rockbridge County, perhaps, in the immediate neighborhood where New Providence Church was afterwards established. In opposition to the statement of my elders that William died near Washington, I have a letter from Mr. T. M. Smiley, Clerk of the Session of New Providence Church, dated August 30, 1909, in which he says that in 1753 a call was made to the Rev. John Brown, and among the signers was William Wardlaw, John Moore, James Coalter, Andrew Steele, Joseph Kennedy, John Wardlaw and Alexander Moore. This William Wardlaw must be the subject of this sketch, and was evidently a resident within the bounds of New Providence Church, Va., some distance from Washington. It is true that William (B1) had two sons, William and John, but they were scarcely old enough to sign the call; however, this theory does not dispose of the John, named as one of the signers of the call for a preacher, and the first account as to the place of sepulcher may yet be correct. Augusta County had but few white inhabitants prior to 1732, and Rockbridge County was not cut off from Augusta until 1777, but the Rev. Samuel Housto

The children of William and Jane Harper were: (Probably not in the correct order.)

1. James born in Virginia about 1735, died March 2, 1816, near Lexington, Ky.
2. John born in Virginia about 1737, died —, Abbeville County, S. C.

5. Joseph born in Virginia 1742, died October 5, 1795, in Abbeville County, S. C.

7. Margaret born in Virginia 1747 to 50, died ——, in Virginia.

Quoting from “Chronicles of the Scotch-Irish Settlement in Virginia,” being extracts from original court records of Augusta County (Chalkley), William Wardlaw’s (B1) will is recorded in Vol. III, page 131; is dated October 1, 1761. Proved May 18, 1762. Estate appraised August 12, 1762, by Andrew Steele, John Logan and John Moore. It stated that he was a planter and lived in Borden’s Tract. His wife, Jeannette, and son, John, were named as Executors, who qualified, with James and Hugh Wardlaw as bondsmen. His children are named in the following order: John, James, Hugh, Joseph, William, Margaret, Robert. Joseph and William are given “the plantation testator lives on.” Robert is given “the plantation of woodland lying beside Samuel Buchanan.” Witnesses or “tests” were Robert Weer, James and John Wardlaw. No. 37, page 304, Vol. III, shows deed from “Borden, &c., to William Wardlaw, planter, 343 acres, Joseph Kennedy’s line, Mill Creek, June 17, 1752.” William signs petition for a road, 1751-52, Vol. I, page 437. There can be little doubt that he died in Augusta County, May, 1762, after a residence of about thirty years in that section of Virginia. The extensive region, about one hundred thousand acres, called “Borden’s Tract,” was granted to Benjamin Borden in 1737. It embraced, practically, what is now Rockbridge County; in which section William settled, probably about 1740. The records show that he and his sons bought and sold various tracts of land in Rockbridge County. The religious activities of the Wardlaws centered around “New Providence Church” and “Timber Ridge Church,” and William is named as a communicant of the latter congregation in 1753. New Providence was organized 1746. “Accepted as a house of worship by the Court of Augusta, 1748.” (Morton’s History of Rockbridge County, Va.). William signed a call for Rev. John Brown to become the first pastor of New Providence in 1753. In July, 1928, I visited New Providence Church, a handsome old building; I also found the will of William recorded at Staunton, as referred to in foregoing note. Will Book No. 3, page 131, October 1, 1761. This definitely refutes the statement about his dying near Washington, D. C., and shows that John, who signed the call for a pastor,, was William’s son.

THIRD GENERATION—C

1. James son of WilliamVI, son of RobertA1, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, about 1734. He married, about 1760, Martha Steele, daughter of Andrew Steele. She was a sister of Robert Steele, Nancy Coalter’s husband. He moved to Fayette, or Woodford, County, Ky., where some of his family resided, in 1843. “The Pisgah Book,” written by Rev. W. O. Shewmaker, says that James was one of the original elders of Pisgah Church in Woodford County, organized about 1784. His name is found in minutes of the Session as late as 1808. Died March 2, 1816. Before leaving Virginia he and his wife, Martha, conveyed to the “Elders of the Congregation of Dissenters of New Providence” the original tract of land upon which the church now stands. The deed is dated November 14, 1771, and recorded in Court of Augusta County, May 20, 1772. New Providence Church was organized 1746, and I presume the title to the land was not made until just about the time that James left for Kentucky. I have made great effort to learn more of his family, but can only find mention of one son, James, whose name appears on the roll of members of Pisgah Church, as being received in the year 1841. Rev. Shewmaker mentions the Steeles and Wardlaws as living in the Pisgah community about 1780. A letter from Dr. R. S. Hart, clerk of session, dated Pisgah, Ky., March 30, 1911, says that the Wardlaws lived about five or six miles out from Lexington; that James died March 2, 1816, leaving two sons, John and James. Dr. Hart says James, Jr., died May 1, 1853, and was held in high esteem; that he does not know what became of John. "James Wardlaw deposes, 2nd April, 1806, aged 60, came to Augusta County in 1745, when he was about eleven years old." An execution, September, 1776, speaks of "John and James, Jr., as inhabitants of Kentucky from Rockbridge." Morton's History of Rockbridge says Joseph Kennedy deeded 3 59.84 acres to Trustees of Providence Church, August 1, 1754.

1. John No further information except above; probably unmarried.
2. James Jr. born May 6, 1776, died May 2, 1853, buried at Pisgah.
3. William H. Possibly the same who made affidavit in 1806 in Virginia, mentions that his father was James.
4. Andrew married in Augusta County, Virginia, July 31, 1792, to Margaret Fulton. Moved to Kentucky. The record shows that Joseph Kennedy sold large tracts of land to James Wardlaw in 1761 and 1765; and that he also bought 341 acres from Andrew Steele in 1765. Named in list of Virginia taxpayers in 1782. Marriage register shows a John Wardlaw married Mary Fulton in Virginia, August 5, 1792.

In July, 1928, I found the original deed of conveyance of the 8 1/2 acres to the officers of the New Providence Church; it was dated November 14, 1761 (not 71). This old paper was in the hands of Mrs. Richard Hogshead, a well informed genealogist and historian, living about 15 miles from Staunton, and a few miles from New Providence Church. Just as a matter of interest to old Abbevillians, I noticed that one of the witnesses was "George Weir."

2. John, son of William B¹, son of Robert A¹, born in Augusta County, Virginia, about 1737. The name appears in the first census, 1790, and says his family consisted of two persons over sixteen, one under that age, two females, and that he owned six slaves. He married in Virginia, Miss Peggy Moore, daughter of John and Mary Ann Moore, and sister of the gallant Captain Sam Moore, who was killed by Bill Cunningham's party during the Revolutionary War. He moved to Abbeville County, South Carolina, about 1768, settling on Long Cane Creek, near Reid's, Douglass-Cochran Mills, west of Hugh's old place. His land grant for 100 acres, is dated November, 1769, and is recorded in Vol. 21, page 306, in Secretary of State's office at Columbia, S. C. He was a Whig Lieutenant in the Revolutionary War, see Revolutionary Records, Vol. V, page 477. He married second time, his wife being Mrs. John Heard, nee Logan, by whom he had three children. Issue by first marriage:

2. William (Chunky), born in Virginia 176—, died .
4. James born in Virginia 1766, died in Anderson County about 1852.
5. Mary born in South Carolina 1770, died ——.
6. Jane born in South Carolina 177—, died ——.
7. Isabel born in South Carolina 177—, died ——.
8. Hugh born in South Carolina 177—, died ——.

Issue by second marriage:

9. Margaret born in South Carolina 1784.
10. Elizabeth born in South Carolina 1786.
11. Hannah born in South Carolina 1788.

His second wife subsequently married Thomas Brightman, then a widower.

John's will is of record in the Probate Judge's office at Abbeville.

In the office of the Historical Commission at Columbia may be found stub for pay warrant "No. 107 Lib S., issued the 6th of June, 1785, to Mr. John Wardlaw, for 84£ 1|9 stlg. for militia duty before and since the reduction of Charleston, and for a horse lost in 1780." John owned land in Augusta County, Virginia. Mentioned in various legal papers, as witness, and as buying and conveying land, as late as 1765 and as early as 1757; also received grants in Abbeville County, South Carolina, for a large number of acres. See records in Secretary of State's office.

3. William son of William III, son of Robert A1, born in Augusta County, Virginia, in 1745, and died at Brownsburg, Va., February 7, 1819, aged 73 years and 8 months. He married Mary Coalter, daughter of James and Peggy Hutson Coalter, of Virginia. She was born 1751 and died May 13, 1808. He was an elder at New Providence Church. His wife and himself are buried in the cemetery at New Providence. He deposed in 1806 that he was 60 years old; had lived near Samuel Steele's, Borden's grant, since birth (Chalkley No. 16, page 273, Vol. II). Graves visited by me in July, 1928. Suitable stones marked their graves.

1. Robert
2. Joseph
3. Margaret
5. James born —, died 1814.
6. Hugh Hutson born August 21, 1790, in Rockbridge County, died 1868, January 21, in Missouri.
7. Elizabeth married David McMaster in 1818.

(Children evidently not in correct order.) Note that Coalter is spelled with an a, not u.

Note: William must have been younger than his brothers, Hugh and Joseph, and should probably be number 5, instead of 3. Epitaph on stone says he died February 7, 1819, aged 73 years and 8 months; this would make his birth about June, 1745. He is mentioned in land deals, &c., in Rockbridge County, and as a taxpayer in 1782.

Morton's History of Rockbridge County says: Elizabeth Wardlaw married Wm. McPheeters in 1795; children, Joseph, Timothy, Betsy, Margaret, Hugh. Another, Elizabeth, married David McMaster, 1818. Jenny Wardlaw married John Temple 1794, probably the widow of John Stuart, who married a “Jenny Wardlaw” in 1790. I cannot unravel the foregoing. See addenda.

Left property appraised at $30,000, will dated 1818, proved May 3, 1819, recorded at Lexington.

4. Hugh son of William, son of Robert, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, about 1740. He probably removed to a point near New Providence Church, in what is now Rockbridge County, Virginia. He married first in Virginia, on September 22, 1763, Miss Elizabeth Coalter, and a few years after his marriage moved to Ninety-Six District, subsequently Abbeville County, South Carolina. His land grant, of 100 acres, is of record in the Secretary of State’s office at Columbia, in Vol. 21, page 310, and is dated November, 1769. The first settlement was on the Saluda River, near Smith’s Bridge, and from thence he moved to the Long Cane Creek, near Reid’s Mill, called Douglas’ Mill in 1843, and Cochran’s in 1892. Here he lived, greatly respected, and in good circumstances, until his death at four A. M. on Sunday, November 14, 1802; being buried at Greenville Meeting House, near his residence. He was a Captain of Whig Militia in the Southern Army during the Revolutionary War. “History of Presbyterian Church in South Carolina, by Dr. George Howe,” page 550, Vol. II, says, Hugh Wardlaw was an Elder in Greenville or Saluda Church, organized in 1772 to 1775. Says further, on same page, “Among the names in these two congregations (Lower Long Cane and Greenville) were those of Shain, Reid, Lessly, Bowie, Pickens, Campbell, Jones, Watts, Rosamond, Seawright, Wardlaw, &c., a considerable number of whom were settlers before the Indian War, and the greater part actively sustained the cause of American Independence. Among these were General Pickens, Colonel Reid, Major Bowie, Major Hamilton, with the Captains Wardlaw, Rosamond, Watts, Jones, &c.” “Greenville Congregation is situated on the head-waters of Long Cane Creek, in Abbeville District, and from the residence of many of its members near the river of that name was formerly called Saluda.” Logan’s History of Upper Carolina, page 325, speaks of Capt. Hugh Wardlaw being one of three men appointed to survey a road from Reed's Mill to Ninety-Six (1785). He was a Judge of the County Court for Abbeville from 1797 to 1800. His commission being recorded in the office of the Secretary of State at Columbia, in book, "Acts 3 G," page 403, and is dated March 3, 1797, signed by Governor Charles Pinckney.

Heitman's Register of Officers of Continental Army gives the name of "Hugh Wardlaw of S. C., Captain of S. C. Militia, 1776. Revolutionary Rolls, published in the State newspaper, mentions his name and rank as Captain, and refers to Vol. S, page 100, Revolutionary Records. His name appears in the first U. S. Census, Ninety-Six District, Abbeville County, S. C., 1790, and says his family consisted of three males over sixteen, three under sixteen, four females, with eight slaves. His first wife, Elizabeth, died at home at 12 o'clock, Saturday night, December 11, 1790. He afterwards married Miss Mary Logan, widow of —— Logan and daughter of —— Miller. She died, without issue, on October 24, 1832, at his home, which place was subsequently owned by D. R. Caldwell, the ardent Nullifier, then by Col Dickson. Both of his wives were buried at the Greenville Church cemetery, where the family attended services. We find the following notice of the death of his second wife: "Died on 24th October, 1832, in the 78th year of her age, Mrs. Mary Wardlaw, relict of Hugh Wardlaw, Esq. This lady was a member of the Presbyterian Church upwards of half a century, during which period she adorned her profession by a most consistent and exemplary conversation and deportment. The universal esteem and harmony which subsisted during many years, between her own and her husband's children and grandchildren furnish a pleasing evidence of her prudence and piety, most honorable to her character as a woman, and as a follower of Jesus Christ." In the office of the Historical Commission of S. C., at Columbia, in "Stub Entries to Index Book S," there is recorded a pay warrant reading, "No. 106, Lib. S, issued the 6th of June, 1785, to Mr. Hugh Wardlaw, for Ninety-Six Pounds, 13s 1-4 stlg., militia duty as Captain and Quarter Master before and since the reduction of Charleston." Marriage indexed in court records Augusta County, "No. 17, page 277, Vol. II," (Chalkley), September 22, 1763. He owned land in Borden's Tract in Augusta County (later Rockbridge County), Virginia. Witnessed papers in Virginia as late as 1764. In December, 1928, I visited the Greenville, or Greenvale, Cemetery, about four miles from Donalds, but I could not find the graves of Hugh and wives, there being no stones to indicate their location. Owen Morton's History of Rockbridge County, page 346, shows deed of 282 acres from George Henderson to Hugh Wardlaw in 1762. Virginia records show other land transactions; and he was granted various parcels of land in Abbeville County, S. C. (then 96 District). Records in Historical Commission's office, Columbia, show that he served as Captain and Quartermaster under Colonel Anderson and General Pickens. Book L, page 294, April 17 to July, 1781, shows pay as Brigade Quartermaster. The children of Hugh, all by his first wife, Elizabeth Coalter, were:

1. William  born in Virginia, Sept. 2, 1764, died in Harris County, Ga., October, 1839 or 40.
2. Infant   born in Virginia March 22, 1766, died in Virginia (probably), April 18, 1767.
5. David    born in Abbeville Dist., December 2, 1771, died in Wilcox County, Ala., June 3, 1840.
9. Jane born in Abbeville Dist., November 26, 1781, died in Abbeville Dist., S. C., April 16, 1826

11. Elizabeth born in Abbeville Dist., ——, 1787, died in Abbeville Dist., S. C., December 1, 1807.

His will is recorded in the Probate Judge’s office at Abbeville; his son, James, and Rev. Hugh Dickson being two of the executors. Deed recorded at Lexington for 284 acres of land in Rockbridge County, sold to Logan in 1784, while living in Abbeville County.

5. Joseph, son of William, son of Robert, was born in Augusta County, Va., in 1742. He married Nancy Moore of Virginia. Moved to Cambridge, Ninety-Six District, Abbeville County, now Greenwood County, where he lived until his death on Monday night, October 5, 1795. His will is recorded in the office of the Probate Judge of Abbeville County. He was an active Whig Lieutenant under Capt. Sam Moore, his brother-in-law. Gibbes’ Documentary History, 1776-82, page 109, quotes a letter from Andrew Pickens to Capt. John Irvine, saying, “Bring Lieutenant Joseph Wardlaw and others of your company that were prisoners.” See Revolutionary Records in Columbia, Book V, page 478, where he is mentioned as a private and as a lieutenant; and in Book I, page 112, as a Spy in 1779. First U. S. Census, 1790, for Ninety-Six District, Abbeville County, gives his family as three males over sixteen, two under sixteen and four females. Mentioned in legal papers, deeds, &c., recorded in Augusta, County, Virginia, as late as 1765. Named in father’s will, given land. He was given land grants of many acres in Abbeville County.
1. William (Long Bill).
2. John.
3. James (Little).
4. Eliab.
5. Jane.
6. Elizabeth.
7. Margaret.

C
6. Robert, son of William, son of Robert, born in Augusta County, Virginia, about 1748. He was a soldier under Washington, and was at the surrender of Cornwallis, at Yorktown. He moved to Ohio, and I cannot find any further trace of him. More recent information indicates that he married Janet Downey and moved to Kentucky about 1790, thence to Ohio about 1800. See Addenda, showing his line, furnished by Clayton J. Wardlaw, of Columbus, Ohio. He was named in land transactions in Virginia in 1762 to 1774, and as a taxpayer in 1782. C. J. Wardlaw, of Columbus, Ohio, has been of great assistance in tracing the descendants of his progenitor, Robert.

1. William.
2. Samuel.
3. Martha.
5. James.

C
7. Margaret, daughter of William, son of Robert, was born in Augusta County, Virginia, about 1750. She was married to Robert Kennedy of Virginia. A letter from Hugh Hutson, son of William, dated Brownsburg, Va., February 18, 1819, addressed to my grandfather, James Wardlaw, speaks of "Aunt Margaret Kennedy and Uncle Robert, her husband, as still alive." First Census mentions a Robert Kennedy of Norfolk County, Virginia, and says his family consisted of "four souls." She is named as one of the legatees.
of her father's will, proved May, 1762, receiving land in the Borden Tract, of what was then Augusta County, Virginia. At this writing, I am unable to secure further information concerning Margaret, who seems to have been the only daughter of William B1.

1. James born 1776, died 1851, married Margaret Wardlaw D14.

1. James Coalter, born in Virginia, and lived on Walker's Creek, Augusta County, Virginia. He married Margaret, or Peggy, Hutson, daughter of Hugh Hutson, of Virginia. Their children were: Michael, Elizabeth, Nancy, Mary, Jane, Sallie, James. James Coalter probably (A1) signed a call to Rev. John Brown, first pastor New Providence, in 1753. He seems to have received land from John Coalter, probably his father, about 1753. His will is recorded at Lexington, Va., proved November 13, 1783.

B

1. Michael, married Elizabeth, daughter of James Moore and Jane Walker, daughter of John Walker. He was born 1735 to 40, and died in 1801. Was a Revolutionary soldier in Capt. McDowell's Company, Col. Line's Regiment. His wife died about 1783 or 84, leaving eight children. He married, second, in 1795—without issue. Children, all by first wife, were: David, James, Elizabeth, John, Jane, Margaret, Micajah, Mary. Michael received 212 acres of land on Hays Creek from his father, James, in 1766.

3. Nancy or Agnes, married Robert Steele, brother of the wife of James Wardlaw, and also of the wife of William Moore. She moved to Kentucky.

4. Mary, married William Wardlaw. She was born 1751 and died May 13, 1808, being interred by the side of her husband at "New Providence" Cemetery. See page 21.

5. Jane, married Samuel Logan in Virginia.

6. Sallie, married Samuel Paxton in Virginia. She had a son, John W. Paxton.

7. James, married Miss Steele, sister of the Steele who married Nancy. This is probably an error. Mr. Onward Bates says he died early.

1. David Coalter, son of Michael, son of James, born September 24, 1764, in Rockbridge County, Virginia. On December 29, 1791, he was married to Miss Anne Carmichael, daughter of James Carmichael and Catherine Shields, or Shieder, of Orangeburg, S. C. She was born June 1, 1772, and died in St. Louis, Mo., June 27, 1825. David was a merchant and planter in South Carolina, moved to Missouri in 1818, and died in Washington County, Virginia, August 25, 1821. Children were:

   Maria, married Hon. William C. Preston, U. S. Senator. They had one daughter, Sallie Campbell, who died unmarried, about 1845.

   Catherine, married Chancellor Wm. D. Harper. Issue: Anne C, who married Dr. James A. McPheeters, and was the mother of Maria, Catherine, Frances, Wesley, Henrietta and Ann, all of whom are now (1919) dead, except Miss Annie. Catherine married Rev. Henry R. Dickson in 1860; she died in 1869, leaving James, Howard, Catherine, Nettie, Andrew Flynn, all dead except Catherine. Howard left a family in Boston. Dr. McPheeters first married a Miss Dunbar of Mississippi, and their children were Gabriel, Dr. William, Martha and James.

John David, married Miss Mary A. Means and moved to Missouri. He died early. An infant son died soon after birth.

James, who died unmarried.

D

Frances Margaret, born —, died September 15, 1868. She married January 12, 1817, Dr. David Harper Means, who died March 29, 1840. He was a member of the Legislature from Fairfield County, S. C.; also member of the Nullification Convention. Their children were: Thomas, David C., Edward J., Isaac Hugh, Robert H., Beverly, Maria, Caroline, Sarah M., Fanny C.

1. Thomas, born 1821, who in 1853 married his cousin, Mary Hart Means, and died in 1859 without issue.

2. David (M. D.), born 1825, died 1876, married Elizabeth Mobley. Issue: Robert, who married Minnie Pettigrew; David, unmarried; Marian, unmarried.

3. Edward, 1831-1877, married Martha McPheeters, 1860; Issue: Fanny Augusta, Maria, died 1887; Martha Willis, Sarah Trotti, married James Curry, in Louisiana; John D. C., druggist, died 1900; Annie H., died early; Gabriella McP., married Alex. Lee Bondurant of Virginia.

4. Isaac Hugh Means, born September 15, 1826, died February 25, 1898. Lived in Fairfield until 1886, when he moved to Columbia. Secretary of State 1858 to 1862. Captain A. Q. M., 17th S. C. Regt., C. S. A.; Commissioner in Equity for Fairfield County, Librarian S. C. College, 1886 to 1898. Married Alice Hagood, daughter of Dr. J. O. Hagood of Barnwell, sister of Governor Johnson Hagood. Children were: David Harper, James Hagood, Maria Cornelia, Eloise Butler, Carrie Jane Nott and eight children, who died early.

6. Beverly W. (Means), born 1833, son of Frances Margaret Coalter and Dr. David Harper Means; married, 1861, Jane Porcher DuBose. He was killed at Seven Pines, 1862, leaving one daughter, Beverly, who married Dr. Theodore M. DuBose of Columbia. Their children were Dr. T. M., Jr., James Bratton, Janie P., Beverly, William David.

7. Maria (Means), married, 1843-1868, John English of Columbia; children: Frank, killed at Seven Pines, 1861; James, died young; Joseph M., married Annie Russell (Annie and Joseph); Beverly M., married Elise Doby (children, Maria and Beverly); Harriet F., married Sadler Gillespie (children, English, Sadler, Harriet, Fanny Coalter).

8. Caroline H. (Means), born 1820, died 1845; married Preston S. Brooks, 1841, member of Congress from South Carolina; no children.

9. Sarah Frances (Means), born 1818, died 1883; married Samuel Wilds Trotti, 1845; no children.

Caroline Jane, daughter of David Coalter; married Hamilton Rowan Gamble, Governor of Missouri; children: Hamilton R., Jr., a lawyer, who married Sally Minor and died, leaving three daughters; Mary Coalter, born March 31, 1843, married November 28, 1865, to Edgar Meller, and had five daughters; David Coalter, a physician, married Flora Matthews and had thirteen children.

Julia Davenport, daughter of David Coalter, married May 29, 1823, to Judge Edwin Bates. He was born September 4, 1793, died in St. Louis March 25, 1869. He was Attorney General of the United States, member of Congress, Judge, Elder. She was the mother of seventeen children, one of whom was Barton, who married, March 19, 1849, Caroline M. Hatcher and had ten children, as follows:

1. Onward, born February 24, 1850, married Virginia C. Breckenridge; no issue.
4. Tarlton, died early.
5. Fanny, unmarried.
6. Margaret, born May 5, 1861, married Seth Singleton; no issue.
7. Hatcher, died unmarried.
8. Eads, born November 19, 1865.

Beverly Tucker (Coalter), son of David Coalter. He was an M. D.; married Elizabeth McQueen.

John David, married Dolly Hempstead and had three children.

Julia Frances, married Dr. James D. Davis, and had two children.

Carolina Gamble, married W. A. Jordan, and had two sons and one daughter.

Fleming Bates, son of Julia D. Coalter and Judge E. Bates, born April 2, 1834, died December 8, 1871; in C. S. Army. Married Nannie T. Wilson, May 15, 1857. Issue: Allen Cumberland, born October 17, 1858, died February 14, 1906, married, no children; Benjamin, born June 29, 1863, died December 8, 1870; Nannie Fa, born October 31, 1869.

Charles Woodson Bates, son of Julia &c., born November 4, 1844, died —. Married Alice Frink. Ellen Coalter, born February 7, 1876; Bertha, born April 29, 1877; Caroline W., born —.

2. James Coalter, son of Michael[1], married ——, a granddaughter married Col. Lewis Merchant at Staunton, died at Sweet Springs.

3. Elizabeth Coalter, daughter of Michael[1], born 1768, married Dr. James McPheeters; he died 1799. Sophinia died unmarried, Philander died unmarried, Theophilus, David, James Augustus.

4. John Coalter, son of Michael[2], born August 20, 1771, in Rockbridge County Va.; William and Mary College; Bar 1791; Clerk of Court 1793; Judge General Court and promoted to Judge Supreme Court Appeals, 1811. Died

5. Jane Coalter, daughter of Michael B1, married John Naylor of Kentucky. Issue: Caroline, who married Dr. W. B. Nott and had Fanny, married James Curry (Sophia, Fanny, Nott, William, Edward), Maria, Sophrena, Thomas, James, Eliza, John, William; Jane, daughter of Dr. W. B. Nott, died unmarried. Dr. Julius Nott, son of Dr. W. B. Nott, died unmarried, Dr. Thomas Edward Nott, married Julia Wallace (Dr. T. E., Jr., Dr. W. B., Jr., Helen); Dr. T. E. Nott, Sr., married second Wallace.

6. Margaret Coalter, daughter of Michael B1, married Joseph Dard of Kentucky. She died October 18, 1814; he died April, 1825.

7. Micajah Coalter, son of Michael B1, died 1808. Succeeded his brother, John, as Clerk of Augusta County, Virginia.

NOTE—It is said that John David Coalter, son of David (C1), left $100,000 in trust to his nephew, Barton Bates, "to be used to make no man rich, but to relieve the necessities of his Southern kin (mostly of South Carolina) incident to the War."
GENEALOGY OF THE WARDLAW FAMILY

MOORE

It will be observed that the Moores, Coalters and Steeles furnished wives for several of the Virginia Wardlaws, sons of William; they all lived near one another in Rockbridge County; and some of them joined in the removal to Abbeville County, S. C. (Then Ninety-Six District).

John and Mary Ann (Ellett) Moore came to Ninety-Six District, S. C., about 1767. One of their daughters, Isabel, had married, and remained in Virginia. John Moore died in Abbeville County about 1795. Their children were:

1. William, who married in South Carolina, first, Miss Edmundson, by whom he had one son, who married Miss Ramsey; he married, second, Miss Steele, mother of John and other children. William returned to Virginia and settled near Abingdon; he lost a leg, while serving in the Revolutionary War, under Col. Campbell of Kings Mountain fame.

2. Eliab, married Miss Bryant; was Senator from old Pendleton District, and died near Anderson, S. C., 1830. Captain of a Company in Revolutionary War. Left a number of useful descendants in Anderson County.

3. Samuel was first Captain of the Company, raised largely by the efforts of the Moore brothers, said to have been a very gallant man; killed by “Bloody Bill” Cunningham’s party in 1782.

4. Peggy married John Wardlaw (C2).

5. Nancy married Joseph Wardlaw (C5).

James Moore, born in Ireland, came to Chester County, Pa., with his brother, Joseph, about 1726, he finally settled on Walker’s Creek, near Jump Mountain, now in Rockbridge County, Virginia, where he died in 1795. He married in 1734, Jane Walker, born 1712, died 1793. She was the daughter of John Walker and Catherine Rutherford and his wife, a daughter of Rev. Joseph Alliene, author of “The Alarm.” This John Rutherford was either a nephew or cousin of the noted divine and author, Rev. Samuel Rutherford of Scotland. Jane Walker is said to have remarked that she would have “a bonny easy death” and did simply go to sleep about 1796. James was the father of John (1) mentioned above, and a number of other children, some of whom were:

1. John, who married Mary Ann Ellett.
2. Mary, born about 1736. She married first Paxton and had one son, Samuel; married, second, Major Alexander Stuart, born 1735, by whom she had a son, Alexander, who was a Superior Court Judge of Virginia. Major Stuart had a son by a former wife named Archibald, who was also Judge of the Superior Court of Virginia. They lived near Brownsburg, Va.
3. Rachel, born about 1737, in Chester County, Pa., moved to Virginia about 1739, and died June 30, 1826. She married William McPheeters, who was born in Pennsylvania, 1739-40, and died October 28, 1807. He was a Magistrate and Elder in Virginia. (a) Jane, (b) David, (c) daughter married William Campbell, (d) James, a doctor, (e) Rebecca, who married John Gamble, brother of Col. Robt. Gamble of Richmond, Va. (f) Rachel, married J. Logan in 1797, (g) William, born September 28, 1788, who became the father of the well-known Rev. Dr. Samuel B. McPheeters.
4. Elizabeth married Michael Coalter, son of James and Margaret (Hutson) Coalter. She died in Augusta County, Va., 1783-84. (a) David, who married a Miss Carmichael of Orangeburg, S. C., (b) James, (c) Elizabeth, (d) John, (e) Jane, (f) Margaret, (g) Micajah, (h) Mary.
5. James married Martha Poag. He, his wife and six children were all killed by the Indians in Virginia in 1786. He was a Captain, lived near Natural Bridge. Issue (a) Joseph, who was at school and escaped, (b) James, taken prisoner by two Indians, rescued by some Frenchmen, (c) Rebecca, (d) Alexander, (e) William, (f) John (g) Jane, (i) and Margaret, all killed by Indians, (h) Mary. James and his sister Mary and a Miss Evans, who had fallen into the hands of the Indians, were finally located by Miss Evans' brother and eventually returned to their friends. See "Cap­tives of Abb's Valley." Mary was born 1777 and died 1824. She married Rev. Samuel Brown in 1798; he was born 1766 and died 1818. She was the mother of five sons, all of whom were preachers, and her daughter married a preacher, Rev. James Morrison, who succeeded Rev. Brown as pastor at New Providence. I recently viewed, with great interest, the mon­ument erected to Mary Moore (Brown) at New Providence Church, in Rockbridge County, Va.

6. Margaret.
10. Samuel.

FOURTH GENERATION—D

See Addenda for Children of James (C1), son of William (B1), son of Robert (A1).

D

1. John, son of John\textsuperscript{c2}, son of William\textsuperscript{H1}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{A1}, born probably in Virginia about 1760, came to Abbeville District, S. C., with father's family. He was a young Whig soldier in the command of his uncle, Captain Samuel Moore, and was present at the siege of Savannah. His name is mentioned in the Revolutionary Records, Vol. S, page 107, in the office of the Secretary of State, Columbia. He married Jane Bowman, daughter of William Bowman. She is named in the First Census. John died about 1800.

1. Margaret, born ——; died ——.
2. Sallie, born ——; died ——.
3. Samuel, born ——; died in childhood.
4. John, born ——; died ——.
5. Wm. Bowman, born ——; died ——.

D

2. William (Chunky Bill), son of John\textsuperscript{c2}, son of William\textsuperscript{H1}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{1}, born in Virginia about 1762. Came with father's family to Abbeville District. Name is found in First Census, and he is probably the William Wardlaw who wrote to Col. Williamson concerning Indians and Tories. This letter is published in "Gibbes' Documentary History, 1776-82," and is dated "Long Cane, December 7, 1778." See Revolutionary Records, Book S, page 105. If this be the same William, he must have been born before 1762. He married Miss — Heard of old Cambridge, and moved with his family to Alabama, where he died.

1. William.
2. Margaret Only.
3. Isaac.
4. Thomas.
5. Zachary, died ——, 1850.
6. Lewis.

D

3. Samuel, son of John\textsuperscript{2}, son of William\textsuperscript{11}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{1}, born about 176—, came with father's family to Abbeville District. He married Miss —— Reid. He died——.

2. Elizabeth.

D

4. James, son of John\textsuperscript{2}, son of William\textsuperscript{11}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{1}, born about 1768, probably in Abbeville District. He married about 1792, his cousin, Margaret\textsuperscript{24}, daughter of Hugh\textsuperscript{4}, she was born in 1773, and died March 29, 1853. He moved to Hen Cross Creek in Anderson District, where he farmed, being much respected, and where he died, July 20, 1854. Mrs. Vandiver's History of Anderson County says he was an early settler in the locality of "Broadway Creek."

1. Eliab Allen.
2. John Moore, died in Anderson about 1873.
3. Hugh Hutson, died in Anderson about 1869.
4. Margaret.
5. Elizabeth, died in Anderson about 1851.
6. Polly.

D
5. Mary, daughter of John\(^c2\), son of William\(^b1\), son of Robert\(^a1\), born in Abbeville District about 1770. She married about 1795, her cousin, John Wardlaw\(^d2\), son of Hugh\(^c4\). She lived near Abbeville Court House for a long time, but in 1837 moved with her husband and family to Pontotoc, Miss. See John\(^b2\).

D
6. Jane, daughter of John\(^c2\), son of William\(^b1\), son of Robert\(^a1\), born in Abbeville District about 1772. She married first John Bowman, and brother of Jane, wife of John\(^b2\). Issue:
1. William (Bowman) married Miss Rawlins, leaving a son and daughter (Peggy).

Jane married second James Caldwell, who lived three miles below Abbeville Court House. Their children were:
2. John H. (Caldwell) died unmarried.

Jane married third, John Glover, a widower, with many children. These step-children moved to Alabama after the death of their father and step-mother. It is presumed that her own children remained in South Carolina.

D
7. Isabel, daughter of John\(^c2\), son of William\(^b1\), son of Robert\(^a1\), born in Abbeville District about 1774. She married William Heard, Jr., and died Tuesday, September 22, 1795, without issue.

D
8. Hugh, son of John\(^c3\), son of William\(^b1\), son of Robert\(^a1\), born in Abbeville District, about 1778. He was a talior, and lived near Abbeville Court House. Married Lydia Calvert, daughter of John Calvert, and had one daughter. Lydia died early, and Hugh married second, Miss Jane McClesky.

1. Mahala, by first wife, born 1808; died ——.
2. David Moore, by second wife, born January 15, 1815, June 17, 1887.

9. Margaret, daughter of John, son of William, born in Abbeville District, 1784. She married first, George Brightman, son of Thomas Brightman, her stepfather. He died early without children, and Margaret then married Alexander Stuart, a widower with children; among them were: Rev. Thomas Stuart, Mrs. Hutson Calvert and others. Her children by Alexander Stuart were:
   1. John A.
   2. Mary Ann.
   3. Margaret, died —, 183—.

10. Elizabeth, daughter of John, son of William, born in Abbeville District, S. C., about 1786. She married Jesse Beazley and moved to Barnwell County, S. C.

   1. Wardlaw.

14. Margaret, daughter of William\textsuperscript{03}, &c., married her cousin, James Kennedy, son of Margaret\textsuperscript{07}.

16. James, son of William\textsuperscript{03}, &c., died in early youth, about 1814. See addenda.

17. Hugh Hutson, son of William\textsuperscript{03}, son of William\textsuperscript{151}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{1}, born in Rockbridge County, Va., August 25, 1790. Married April, 1812, Miss Nancy B. Fulton of Kentucky. Moved to St. Charles, Mo., in 1832. He was a Judge. Died in Hannibal, Mo., January 21, 1868. From a letter written by Prof. A. H. Foreman of Hannibal, dated October 24, 1910, I learn the following as to his family:

1. Benjamin R., Chief Engineer of the Hannibal and St. Joseph R. R., 1853-57; he moved to California, where he was still living, unmarried, a few years ago. Educated at Washington and Lee University, Va.

2. Levi, moved to Oregon in the seventies; died unmarried.

3. Daughter, married Mr. — Boone, near relative of Daniel, and moved to St. Louis in the late sixties.

4. Daughter, married George V. Poague, she died leaving a son, Hutson, in St. Louis.

5. Virginia, married Rev. Aaron B. Foreman in 1854. She died at the home of Mrs. Poague in St. Louis, 1878. Mr. Foreman died 1875.

6. Daughter, married Dr. J. B. Larance, moved to Alabama, no issue.

7. Daughter, married Thomas Miller, both dead, buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Hannibal, Mo.
Mr. and Mrs. Boone moved to Texas; they had one daughter, Martha, who married Henry Bourne of Hannibal, and died without issue.

D

Note: Judge Hugh Hutson (D17) wrote to his uncle, Robert (C6), from Rockbridge County, Va., telling him of the death of his father, William (C3), which occurred on February 7, 1819.

D
19. William, son of William, son of William, son of Robert, born in Rockbridge County, Va. It is evidently an error in recording William as the youngest son; he was almost certainly the eldest child of his parents. Born 1764-66. In 1788 he was studying medicine under Dr. Alexander Humphries of Staunton, Va., as stated in Waddell's Annals of Augusta County. He attended Augusta Academy in 1789. He is said to have been a prominent physician in Richmond. He married Sarah, born 1776, and who died April 22, 1808, aged 32 years. Dr. Wardlaw's grave, and that of his wife and several children, may be found in the cemetery of old St. John's Church, near the fence on 25th Street. St. John's Church is made historic as the place where Patrick Henry uttered his memorable words. The inscription on the slab at William's grave reads, "Died in 1819. aged 53," or 55 (figures are obscure), on October 12.

1. Mary M., born —— 1793, died in Richmond, Va., March 15, 1829, aged 36.
2. Nancy, born ——, 1793, died in Richmond, aged 4 yrs.

Note
There is confusion in the dates at this point. According to the epitaph at St. John's Church, Dr. William was born 1764-66, but at New Providence, his mother is put down as born 1751, an incongruity. Again, his brother, Hugh Hutson's, birth appears as 1790, 26 years after William's, which is improbable. There are so many Williams in the family that I fear there have been some errors in placing them.

Since writing the above, information has been received which almost conclusively proves that Dr. William Wardlaw of Richmond, Va., was the son of James (C1) and not of William (C3).

D
20. William, son of Hugh^{C1}, son of William^{P1}, son of Robert^{A1}, born probably in Virginia, between 12 and 1 o'clock, Sunday, September 2, 1764, and moved with father’s family to Abbeville District, S. C., about 1767. He was an active soldier and petty officer in the Whig militia during the Revolutionary War, see Revolutionary Records in office of Secretary of State, Columbia, S. C., Vol. S, page 105. It is said that he was a great hunter. He married first, Miss Margaret Hall. She died about 1805, leaving six children:

1. Hugh Cornwall, born in Abbeville County.
2. Alexander, born in Abbeville County.
3. James, born in Abbeville County in 1786; died at Lawrenceville, Ga., 1835.
4. Elizabeth, born in Abbeville County.
5. Frances, born in Abbeville County.
6. Temperance, born in Abbeville County.

He moved to Georgia, where he married Miss Margaret McCully, by whom he had twelve children. She died April 19, 1838. He died in Harris County, Georgia, in October, 1839. Children by second marriage were:

7. Mary, born in Georgia.
8. Absolom.
10. David Lewis, died in Roswell, Cobb County, Ga., September 30, 1870.
16. John Baptist, born 1816; died May 9, 1896.
17. Joseph.
18. Francis Marion, died 1895 in Opelika, Ala.

Record of Pensions granted in Georgia, page 514, Congres­sional Library, shows that William Wardlaw received a pension July 31, 1833, as a private in South Carolina Militia.

21. James, son of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born December 6, 1767, on Saluda River, near Smith's Bridge, in Ninety-Six District, subsequently Abbeville County, South Carolina, where his father first settled on his removal from Virginia. He moved with his parents to Long Cane Creek, in Abbeville County, near Reid's, afterwards Douglass' and later Cochran's Mill. Here he grew to manhood, attending the country schools, and gaining as fair an education as the limited advantages of that stormy period, during the Revolutionary War, afforded the youths of the day. He taught school for a short while at the "Old Artillery Muster Ground," and did a good deal of surveying. Some time about 1795 to 1800 he took up his residence at Abbeville Court House. He is said to have been a large, stout, fine-looking man, a devout Christian, noted for honesty and reliability; of a fine mind, and greatly respected for uprightness and right living. He became Deputy to Major John Bowie, Clerk of Court, about 1796, continuing in this capacity until 1800, when he was elected Clerk of Court for Abbeville District, which office he held for nearly forty years, or until his resignation in 1838. He early became connected with the history of Long Cane Church (Upper), and was for 49 years Secretary of the Upper Long Cane Society, being elected at its organization in 1793, and serving until his death in 1842. He was a Trustee of Long Cane Church, 1813 to 1819, and a member of the first Board of Trustees of the projected Theological Seminary in 1825. He was married by the Rev. Robert Wilson, pastor of Upper Long Cane Church, on Thursday, June 9, 1796, to Hannah Clarke, daughter of Francis and Alice (Rice) Clarke, the ceremony taking place at her stepfather's home, two miles from the Court House, near R. C. Gordon's, on a plantation afterwards owned by Major Bowie. Hannah Clarke was born in, or near, Philadelphia, Pa., on June 28, 1778. See page 43. My grandparents first lived near the village, in a house about where Uncle Thomas Perrin subsequently resided, afterwards owned by Judge Cothran and his son, Wade S. Cothran. In a few years he bought the Quay house, near the Episcopal Church, which many years later became the home of Major William Alfred Wardlaw, and later still was owned by Judge Thomas Thomson. Here most of the children of James Wardlaw and Hannah Clarke were born, and where the old couple died.

His wife, Hannah, died November 11, 1825, and he died at 7 o'clock, Tuesday morning, April 12, 1842, both being interred at Upper Long Cane Cemetery. On the marble slabs over the graves are the following words:

"Here lies the body of Hannah Wardlaw. Born 26 June, 1778. Died November 11, 1825. She lived a pattern of domestic excellence, and was suddenly cut off in the midst of quiet usefulness and deserved enjoyment. A husband and nine children, besides numerous relatives and friends, were left to mourn their bereavement of her affection and worth, but not without the consolation of well-founded hope that her piety here has secured her eternal happiness in a better world."

"JAMES WARDLAW

"Born December 6, 1767. Died 12 April, 1842. He was for nearly forty years Clerk of the Court of this District, and from his youth upwards a member of this Church in full communion; with a pure heart and sound head earnestly he endeavored to discharge the duties of life: worldly success and the esteem of his neighbors followed his efforts: God's Word and his own conscience guided them. He was a good and useful man, just, firm, kind, meek, cheerful, liberal and temperate. Truth and charity marked his whole career, and these with other virtues were so happily combined that towards him respect and love rose together and together with constant growth increased. A numerous offspring revere his memory."

His sons, D. L. and R. H., were appointed executors of his will. It is probable that Uncle Lewis wrote these epitaphs, which show great reverence for his parents; or maybe they were written by the pastor of Long Cane.

1. Elizabeth Alice, born July 7, 1797, died October 11, 1804.
2. David Lewis, born May 28, 1799, died June 8, 1873.
3. Francis Hugh, born December 16, 1800, died May 29, 1861.
5. Elizabeth Amanda, born May 23, 1805, died June 3, 1854.
6. Robert Henry, born April 28, 1807, died July 18, 1887.
7. Mary Caroline, born August 6, 1809, died September 8, 1843.
8. Jane Eliza, born December 26, 1811, died September 3, 1883.
9. Joseph James, born October 29, 1814, died July 2, 1873.
10. William Alfred, born November 6, 1816, died November 11, 1876.
11. Ann Louisa, born February 22, 1819, died October 12, 1821.
12. Hannah Margaret, born October 7, 1821, died September 18, 1879.

CLARKE

I have the most meagre information as to this family. From all that can be determined at this time, —— ClarkeAl married Hannah ———, probably in Ireland; their children, perhaps, born in Philadelphia, Pa., were as follows:
1. Francis, born ———, died in Charleston, S. C., August 22, 1786.
2. Jeremiah, born ———.
3. Sampson, born ———.
4. Mary, born ———.

B1
1. Francis Clarke, born, probably, in Philadelphia, where he lived for some years and until his removal, with his brothers, Jesse and Sampson, to Charleston, S. C., where he carried on the business of a merchant until his death, August 22, 1786. He was married about 1776 to Mrs. Alice Rice, nee Rice, their children being:

Alice Rice was born in Ireland, from which country she emigrated to Pennsylvania, in company with a brother and two sisters—she first married her cousin, ——— Rice, with whom she lived six or eight years without issue; after his death, she married Francis Clarke. She married third, John Quay, and moved with him, and her Clarke children, to Abbeville, where she died November 9, 1796, being buried at Long Cane Cemetery.

John Quay married second, Hannah Brown, on August 8, 1797. She died October 7, 1797. He then moved to New Jersey, and married third, Mrs. Remson, daughter of Col. John Conover, on June 6, 1799. He merchandised at Abbeville, the store being at the old Quay house.

2. Jeremiah Clarke, born, presumably, in Philadelphia, moved to Charleston, S. C., thence to Abbeville. Married first, Miss Margaret Gray, by whom he had two children:
1. Margaret.
2. Francis Sweeny.

B
3. Sampson Clarke, who accompanied his brothers and sister to Charleston and Abbeville, married ——, without issue.

B
4. Mary Clarke, sister of above, married —— Gray, and had four children:
1. Mary.
2. Eliza.
3. Priscilla.
She married second, James Sweeny, issue:
5. Thomas.
7. Maria, who married Stokes of Columbia.

C
1. Hannah, daughter of Francis Clarke and Alice Rice, born June 26, 1778, died November 11, 1825. Married James Wardlaw, see pages 43 to 46.

C
2. William, son of Francis Clarke and Alice Rice, born, probably, in Philadelphia, Pa., August 6, 1779. He married and moved to Kentucky.

C
3. Mary, daughter of Francis Clarke and Alice Rice, born, probably, in Philadelphia, August 8, 1781, and died 1830. She married Francis Rose, and lived on Long Cane Creek, in Abbeville County, and on Hog Skin Creek, Laurens County. They had a number of children, some of whom were:

1. Ravenna, who married and moved to Miss. and Texas.
2. Robert.
3. Louise.
4. Margaret, who married James Conn, lived in Mississippi.

D

22. John, son of Hugh C, son of William B, son of Robert A, born January 12, 1770, on Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C. About 1795 he married his cousin, Mary Wardlaw, daughter of John (C2), and lived for many years about three miles below Abbeville Court House, and until 1837, when he moved with his family to Pontotoc, Miss., where he died suddenly and apparently in perfect health, on July 3, 1848. Issue:

1. Margaret.
2. Elizabeth, died unmarried in Mississippi.
5. Vashti.
7. Lydia.
8. David.

D

23. David, son of Hugh C, son of William B, son of Robert A, born Monday or Tuesday morning, 2nd or 3rd of December, 1771. He lived in Abbeville County for long years, being connected with the sheriff’s office as deputy or clerk. On June 10, 1799, he was elected Sheriff of Abbeville District. He moved to Wilcox County, Alabama, about 1820, where he died unmarried and intestate on June 3, 1840, Rev. A. C. Ramsay being appointed Administrator of his estate. While in Abbeville he lived with his brother, James,
He is said to have been a remarkably popular man, of splendid character and noble impulses. Tradition has it that in his youth he was engaged to a young lady, who sickened and died, and that he never afterwards changed his affections. His epitaph reads thus: “Here lies the body of David Wardlaw. Born December 3, 1771. Died June 3, 1840. A native of Abbeville District, S. C., he there lived in distinguished respectability and usefulness until 1820, when he removed to this neighborhood, where he afterwards dwelt in ease and contentment. Industrious, cheerful, benevolent, successful, he lived and died without wife or children, but the current of his affections were never frozen; he was kind to everything and everything loved him. The regard which his amiable qualities attracted, his solid worth, sterling integrity, pure morals, stern principles, and humble piety, fixed and retained; he was an unusual favorite and deserved to be so.”

24. Margaret, daughter of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born December 4, 1773, on Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C. She married, about 1792, her cousin, James Wardlaw, son of John, and moved with him to Anderson District, S. C., near Hen Coop Creek, where she died March 29, 1853. See James, page 37.

25. Joseph, son of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born February 20, 1776, on Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C. He married Jane Waller, daughter of Rev. James Waller, and lived for long years on Scotch Cross Creek, near Greenwood, S. C., in Abbeville District, where he planted, and where he died May 30, 1852, his wife dying in 1845. Most of their children died young, and it is doubtful if the following list is correct. He is said to have owned one hundred slaves and large tracts of land. His will is recorded in office of Probate Judge at Abbeville.
1. Hugh Waller, died 1865.
3. Harriet.
4. Joseph Newton, died August 5, 1843.
5. Amanda Frances, died ———, 183—.
7. Dorothy.

D
26. Robert, son of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born Tuesday, April 28, 1778, on Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C. He lived with his stepmother on his father's old place. Married Lucy Hodges, daughter of Major John Hodges, who was one of twenty children; old Mrs. Hodges, it was said, living to see eighteen of her children married. He died April 6, 1812, his brother David being administrator of his estate. His wife, Lucy, was one of the children by Major Hodges' second wife, of whom there were born 18 children; there being two children by the Major's first wife. Robert's children were:
   3. Elizabeth Ann, born April 6, 1812.

His widow died soon after his death and these two children were left to the care of their step-grandmother, Mrs. Mary Wardlaw, second wife of Hugh, and a most excellent, pious woman. Their uncle, David, acted as guardian, until his removal to Alabama in 1825, when Judge D. L. Wardlaw was appointed in his stead.

D
27. Jane, daughter of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born November 26, 1781 (Monday morning), on Long Cane Creek, Abbeville District, S. C. Thomson, Esq., at Abbeville Court House, S. C. First white male child born in the embryonic town of Abbeville. Baptized by the Rev. Dr. Wilson. He was of medium height, of compact, square build, dark hair and blue eyes, and clean shaven face. After attending the schools of John Hamilton, Andrew Hamilton, Francis Walker, William Sadler, James Curry and William Robertson, Jr., in January, 1810, he entered the famous classical school of Dr. Moses Waddel at Willington, in the lower part of the county. In November, 1814, he entered the Junior Class of the South Carolina College, graduating therefrom in 1816, with the first honors of his class, in the 17th year of his age. He returned to Abbeville and read law with Governor Noble, being admitted to the Bar at Columbia in April, 1820. He practiced law in partnership with Patrick Noble, afterwards Governor, for some years. Was elected a member of the Legislature in October, 1826; Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1836; Law Judge in December, 1841; Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals in 1865. He was President of the State Convention of 1865; member of Philadelphia Convention of 1868; member of Secession Convention of 1860, signing the famous Ordinance; Trustee of South Carolina College for thirty years. After the Radical Governor, Scott, deprived him of the judicial office, which he had adorned for so many years, he was made Cashier of the Citizens Bank of Abbeville, 1869; resigning in 1872 on account of impaired health. He died at Abbeville June, 1873, of paralysis, and was buried at Upper Long Cane. He was noted for intelligence, firmness, dignity, integrity and justice. Francis Hugh, son of James, son of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born at the “Quay House,” his father’s home, Abbeville, S. C., December 11, 1800. Baptized by Rev. Dr. Wilson. Large, tall, fine looking man. Attended district schools of Francis Walker, James Curry, Thomas Fulton, Robertson, Sadler and others, and in 1812 entered the famous Waddel Academy, continuing his studies at Willington until 1814, when, on account of sickness, he returned home; and was then in his father’s office, and at school, until April 15, 1816, when he entered the Junior Class of South Carolina College, graduating therefrom December, 1818, like his brother, David Lewis, with the first honor of his class. He read law at Abbeville with Alex. Bowie, Esq., and was admitted to the Bar in Charleston, January, 1822, and in Equity at Columbia, April 26, 1822. He went to Edgefield in 1822, and formed a partnership with Whitfield Brooks, Esq. He edited the Edgefield paper, 1829 to 1832. He was a member of the State Conventions of 1832, 1852 and 1860, being one of only three or four men who were members of all these Conventions. He was elected Chancellor in Equity December 3, 1850, continuing in the office until December 2, 1859, when he was elected Judge of the Court of Appeals. He prepared the original draft of the Ordinance of Secession. He enjoyed a most enviable reputation for legal knowledge and general learning. His opinions were based on the soundest principles of law and equity and were models of rhetorical beauty; and today form an important and valuable part of the Court records. He died at the home of Major Theo. Stark, in Columbia, May 29, 1861, being buried at the Baptist Church Yard at Edgefield, there being at the time no Presbyterian Church in the town.

He was married at Airville, near Hamburg, S. C., by Rev. Henry Reed of Augusta, on April 22, 1835, to Ann Gresham, daughter of Thomas G. and Martha Leland (Curry) Lamar, who was born September 22, 1812, and died June 25, 1863.

63. Robert Henry, son of James, son of Hugh, son of William, son of Robert, born at his father's home at Abbeville, S. C., at 12 o'clock, Tuesday night, April 28, 1807. He attended schools of William Robertson, Jr., 1815-16; Saml. Houston, Jr., 1817-18. In father's office, 1819. At school of Alpheus Baker, 1820, then at J. H. Gay's school at Willington; Amos Moore in town, and at S. W. Doggett's school, 1822-23. In May, 1825, he entered the advanced Sophomore Class of the South Carolina College, a few days after Lafayette's arrival in Columbia; and left college while in Junior Class, 1826, being called home to become his father's Deputy Clerk of Court in October, 1826. He was baptized by Rev. Hugh Dickson, August 9, 1807. In June, 1828, he entered into partnership with his brother, Alfred, and conducted a large mercantile business at Abbeville until 1849, he then took in his son, James Alfred, as a partner, and this firm continued until 1858, when their store was destroyed by fire. He was elected an Elder in the Upper Long Cane Church, October 13, 1850, and continued in that office until April 22, 1868, when he became an Elder in the village church, serving as elder continuously for 37 years. He succeeded his father, James, as secretary or clerk of the Long Cane Society in 1842. This society was organized in 1793, and for 94 years—until 1887—it had only two secretaries—James Wardlaw and his son, Robert H. He was for years Clerk of the South Carolina Synod, and several times Commissioner to the General Assembly. In 1866 he was made District Judge for Abbeville. In 186— he was Cashier of the Abbeville branch of the State Bank. In person, he was of medium height, rather stout, with full white beard. Noted for his integrity, honesty, piety, punctuality and accuracy. Known by almost every one as "Uncle Robert." He had ten sons in the Confederate Service, nine in actual service and one, crippled, as Tax Collector for the Confederacy. He died July 18, 1887, and was buried at Long Cane; the last of his father's family. On Thursday, July 8, 1830, he was married by Dr. Barr to Eliza, daughter of Andrew and Rosey Ann (Watts) Bowie, at the home of her brother, Alex. Bowie, Esq. (house afterwards owned by Dr.
Archer). His wife, who was born June 3, 1808, and died August 9, 1883, was an unusually fine woman, of great firmness, kindness and piety. Her family, the Bowies, were among the first settlers of the District and numbered several distinguished members. Uncle Robert states that he and his wife were intimately associated from their earliest childhood, being baptized at the same time, attended same schools, and lived together as man and wife for over fifty years.

Their children were:

7. Robert Henry, born Nov. 6, 1840, died May 5, 1865.

65. Jane Eliza, daughter of James*21, son of Hugh*1, son of William*11, son of Robert*1, was born at Abbeville, December 11, 1811. Baptized by ———. Educated at schools of S. W. Doggett; in Greenville at Dr. Johnson's, 1825, and at Dr. Mark's in Columbia in 1826. She was short and stout in person; kind and given to hospitality; and greatly beloved and respected by her kindred and friends.
After the loss of her husband's handsome residence, by fire, on February 14, 1877, she lived in the old Nelson house, and subsequently with her daughter, Mrs. Judge Cothran, at the house where she first lived after marriage, and where all of her children were born. She died at Abbeville, September 9, 1881, and was buried at Long Cane. She was married by Dr.
Barr, January 19, 1830, to Thomas Chiles Perrin, son of Samuel Perrin, of the Hard Labor section of the District. He was born October 1, 1805, and died May 14, 1878, of heart disease. Colonel Perrin was a prominent lawyer, and held in very high esteem. He was graduated from the South Carolina College in 1826; admitted to the Bar in 1828; elected to the Legislature in 1842, and to the Senate in 1846. President of the G. and C. R. R., 1853 to 1866. President of Bible Society and Ruling Elder at Upper Long Cane and village Churches for 18 years. Was a member of the State Conventions of 1852, 1860 and 1863. Signed the Ordinance of Secession. Noted for uprightness and integrity. It is probable that his family was among the French Huguenots who came to America about 1700 to 20, and after a stay of some years in Virginia, finally settled in Abbeville and Edgefield Counties about 1765 to 70.

Their children, all born at Abbeville, were:

1. Amanda Elizabeth, born Nov. 9, 1830, died Sept. 13, 1831
2. Mary Eunice, born Feb. 16, 1832, died Apr. 23, 1874
3. James Wardlaw, born May 8, 1833, died Dec. 13, 1890
4. Emma Chiles, born Nov. 5, 1834, died Sept. 23, 1916
5. Hannah Clarke, born May 11, 1836, died Dec. 5, 1918
6. William Henry, born Feb. 13, 1838, died June 27, 1862
7. Lewis Wardlaw, born May 2, 1839, died June 25, 1907
8. Sarah Eliza, born Dec. 31, 1840, died Apr. 11, 1925
9. Thomas Samuel, born Mar. 10, 1845, died May 3, 1863
10. Francis Hugh, born Oct. 17, 1846, died Sept. 13, 1854
11. George Clopton, born Jan. 3, 1850, died Nov. 18, 1912
12. Robert Coalter, born Sept. 19, 1852, died Dec. 29, 1858
66. Joseph James, son of James D2, son of Hugh C4, son of William B1, son of Robert A1, was born at his father's home, called the Quay—Thomson house—at Abbeville, S. C., October 29, 1814. Baptized by Dr. Barr, January 1, 1815. Attended schools in the District taught by S. W. Doggett, A. W. Shellito, A. Moore, Fulton, Baker and others. Entered Junior Class, South Carolina College, October, 1831, and was graduated, A. B., therefrom December, 1833. Read medicine at Abbeville with Dr. Samson V. Caine, a surgeon of considerable note. Attended medical lectures at the South Carolina Medical College at Charleston, 1834 to 1835; and at Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, 1835 to 1836, graduating M. D. with distinction, from the latter college in 1836. Returned to Abbeville, May, 1836, and at once entered upon a large and lucrative practice. As a student he was industrious and bright; as a physician he was kind, painstaking, skillful, untiring; eminently successful and greatly beloved by his patients. As a man, he was endowed with fine sense and excellent judgment; exceedingly high toned, manly, brave and courteous; of deep piety and genuine kindness of heart and nobility of purpose; greatly respected for his integrity and for his skill as a physician and surgeon. My father was a large, tall man, standing full six feet, weighing about 175 pounds, with blue eyes and light brown hair. As I remember him, with full grey beard. In 1858-59 was elected a member of the Legislature, but declined re-election, preferring to devote his time to his profession. Was an active member of Medical Societies and other organizations. Consistent and useful member of the Presbyterian Church. In 1872, he moved with his family to Walhalla, hoping to regain his health in that fine climate, and to be with his son, Capt. J. C. Wardlaw. He died on July 2, 1873, the result of a fall which broke his thigh or hip bone, finally causing peritonitis. His body was carried to Abbeville and laid to rest by the side of his three sons and scores of relatives, in the Upper Long Cane Cemetery. On Wednesday evening, January 16, 1889, he was married by Dr. Barr, at Bolton, Abbeville District, S. C., to Miss Mary Ann, daughter of Col. James Hervey and Jane Donnom Witherspoon of Lancaster, S. C., who at that time lived with her father.
and step-mother at the latter's home at Bolton. My mother was born in the Waxhaw, Lancaster District, S. C., February 26, 1818, and died at the home of her son-in-law, Thomas S. Moorman, Esq., at Columbia, S. C., December 4, 1890. A record of her family is found in my "Witherspoon Genealogy." She was educated at schools at Lancaster, York and Camden. She had a fine mind, very retentative memory; unusually well read, and conversant with many subjects. Her character was a wonderful combination of gentleness and strength; of kindness and firmness. She loved everyone and was beloved in return; always bright and with much quiet humor.

Soon after marriage, father bought a house from Mr. John S. Bowie, which was enlarged, and where all his children were reared. The home is now used as a manse (having undergone changes) by the Presbyterians of Abbeville. The handsome Church and several dwellings occupying the lot formerly owned by the family. The names of the ten children occur on the next page. Doctor Wardlaw was a Deacon in the Upper Long Cane Church and was elected an Elder in the Abbeville Church, but declined the office.

67. William Alfred, son of James\textsuperscript{D21}, son of Hugh\textsuperscript{C4}, son of William\textsuperscript{D1}, son of Robert\textsuperscript{A1}, born at Abbeville, S. C., in home of his father, afterwards owned by himself, on November 6, 1816. Baptized by Dr. Barr. Attended schools taught by Doggett, Means, Shellito, Baker and others at Abbeville, S. C., and McClintock at Pendleton. clerked for Bain and also for Carmichael, in Augusta, Ga. Then went to Charleston to engage in business with Kelsey and Halstead; thence with Wm. Keen in New York. From 1838 to 1849 was in partnership with his brother, Robert, in a large mercantile establishment at Abbeville. Moved to Charleston 1849 as a cotton factor, in partnership with S. G. Barker in 1850; Walker in 1852. Carew in 1863. In 1855 elected a director in Bank of Charleston. Master of Union Kilwining Lodge, A. F. M. Major in old militia. Secretary and treasurer Ancient Artillery. Amassed considerable property. Suffered by the war. Rather short, stout man; energetic, systematic and successful. Exceedingly courteous and refined. On April 23, 1840, he was married by Dr. Barr to Iwanona (Ivy), eldest daughter of Edward and Kittie (Calhoun) Tilman of Abbeville District, S. C. She was born November 15, 1820, and died January 28, 1863, being buried at Upper Long Cane. He died in Charleston, S. C., on November 11, 1876, of apoplexy, and alone; his remains were carried to Abbeville and buried by the side of his wife and son. His children were:

1. Edward Tilman, born March 13, 1841, died June 8, 1843.
2. James Joseph, born Sept. 22, 1842, died June 20, 1843
4. Edward Robert, born April 15, 1847, died June 24, 1854.
5. David Lewis, born Jan. 2, 1850, died —, 18—.

69. Hannah Margaret, daughter of James D21, &c., born at Abbeville, October 7, 1821. Baptized by Dr. Barr. Educated at Barhamville, Dr. Marks, near Columbia. Short and stout; quite pretty; kind, generous and hospitable; consistent member of Presbyterian Church. She died on September 18, 1879, of congestion of the brain, and was buried at Liberty Hill, S. C. On April 28, 1840, she was married by Dr. Barr, to Col. Lewis J. Patterson, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Collins) Patterson of Liberty Hill, Kershaw County, S. C. He was born May 19, 1810. Prepared for college at Mount Zion Institute at Winnsboro under Prof. Sam Stafford, and was graduated from the South Carolina College in 1830. Was a wealthy planter. Officer in Florida War, 1836. Member of Legislature, 1836 to 1842, and of the Senate, 1878 to 1882. He died April 23, 1892, and was buried at Liberty Hill. This couple were without children.

70. Margaret, daughter of John D23, son of Hugh D4, son of William D1, son of Robert A1.

ADDENDA

The following account of the Western branch of the family has been prepared by Mr. Clayton J. Wardlaw, Attorney, of Columbus, Ohio. He has been active and helpful in securing data, showing the descendants of his progenitor, ROBERT WARDLAW, a younger brother of John, Hugh and Joseph, who moved from Virginia to Abbeville, S. C. Robert moved to Kentucky and Ohio after the Revolutionary War. There are some repetitions in the addenda of matter already recorded in the main history, but it has been thought best to publish the material as written by our Ohio kinsman.

DESCENDANTS OF ROBERT WARDLAW

C-6. ROBERT WARDLAW, born about 1745, probably in Augusta County, Va., died August 3, 1820, in Brown County, Ohio. Married about 1768-70, to Janet Downey, daughter of Samuel Downey (Footnote: Samuel Downey's will showing his children's names is mentioned in Chalkley Records, III, page 130). Janet Downey Wardlaw died in Brown County, Ohio, October 4, 1817. Both are buried in a family burying ground on land once owned by Robert Wardlaw, on the bank of White Oak Creek, some distance from where the road now runs, but near the former site of their log cabin home, which long ago disappeared.

Nothing is known of Robert's youth or education. Chalkley (III, 68) mentions the will of his father, William Wardlaw, as follows: "Oct. 1, 1761. William Wardlaw's Will—to wife, Jeannet; to son, John; to James Wardlaw; to son, Hugh Wardlaw; to Joseph and William Wardlaw, the plantation testator lives on; to daughter, Margaret, to son, Robert Wardlaw, the plantation of woodland lying beside Samuel Buchanan. Proved 18th May, 1762, by Robert Weer, James and John Wardlaw." Chalkley states also that Robert was appointed road surveyor May 19, 1773.

Morton's "History of Rockbridge County" (p. 350) indicates that Robert bought 375 acres "corner to James Moore," in 1774 for 20 English pounds; the same author (p. 569) states that "Brownsburg, Va., was established on land of Robert Wardlaw and Samuel McChesney by Act of Assembly, Nov. 23, 1793."

In April, 1794, he sold his land to his brothers, James and William, taking their "bonds" in the sum of 336 English pounds. The bonds being left with his brother-in-law, Capt. Charles Campbell, for collection; receipt of Captain Campbell for these bonds is now in possession of Mr. Edward Robinson of New Hope, Ohio, along with numerous other old papers of Robert Wardlaw's. Mr. Robinson is a grandson of Henry Kimball (E-17); another of these papers is a receipt of the Harrisonburg County, Ky., Clerk, dated "Decr, 1794," for two shillings for "recording and advertising a heifer." This receipt, with the date of the "bonds," leads to the conclusion that Robert went from Virginia to Harrison County, Ky., in 1794.

Mr. Robinson has another receipt as follows: "Feb. 22, 1800. Rec'd of Mr. Robert Wardlaw fourteen pounds in cash agreeable to an original agreement which was lodged with Thomas Nailor, which is the balance of money part due me. James Coleman."

The "History of Brown County, Ohio," says that Robert Wardlaw was the first settler in what is now Scott Township, that county; that he came from Kentucky in the spring of 1800 with all his family, some of whom were grown and married. The region about the forks of White Oak Creek where they settled was then a part of Clermont County. Mr. Robinson's papers contain tax receipts issued to Robert February 2 and March 8, 1802, the latter for "$3 dimes" tax on 500 acres of land on White Oak Creek.
The deed records of Clermont County (Deed book C-2, pp. 332 and 334) show that on June 28, 1805, James Coleman and his wife Eliza, of Harrison County, Ky., deeded to Robert Wardlaw two tracts of land on White Oak Creek in Clermont County for $1,000 each; one tract contained 500 acres and the other 502 acres. That part of Clermont County became a part of Brown County in 1817. These records indicate that he went from Kentucky to Ohio in 1800. There is a tradition that he came to Ohio because he was opposed to slavery.

There is another tradition that he fought at the Battle of Guilford C. H. in the Revolution; this is confirmed by Foote's "Sketches of Virginia," second series, at page 145, where he is referred to as a member of a Rockbridge County militia company under Capt. John Tate; this company marched from Lexington, Va., February 26, 1781, and joined General Greene's forces in North Carolina in time to participate in the Battle of Guilford C. H., which occurred March 15, 1781; after the battle this company went back home and was disbanded. Captain Tate was killed at Guilford. Morton's "History" says the company fought so well as to extort a compliment from Cornwallis, the British General.

A "Genealogical Record," prepared by Judge D. L. Wardlaw of South Carolina, states that Robert "was under Washington at the taking of Cornwallis; went from Virginia to Ohio; nothing further known of him." Morton's "History of Rockbridge County" says that Charles Campbell, (who was Robert's brother-in-law) was Captain of a company which turned out to fight the British at Yorktown; this lends weight to Judge Wardlaw's statement that he was also at Yorktown. No roster of these militia companies has been found, and his name is not on any pension roll because the laws in effect up to his death in 1820 did not provide pensions for services so brief as his had been.

Mr. Robinson's papers contain letters written to Robert by his brother, William, from Brownsburg, Va., and by William's son, Hugh, who wrote of his father's death in 1819.

In 1813 William asked Robert to deed him "a small piece of ground two rods wide along the branch between Brownsburg and the place on which you lived, intended by you as a commons for the town."

Mr. Robinson has also a large book, hand covered with calfskin, entitled: "The Confession of Faith agreed upon at Westminster with the Assistance of Commissioners from the Church of Scotland. Approved by the General Assembly, 1647, and ratified and established by the Act of Parliament, 1649 and 1690, as the Publick and Avowed Confession of the Church of Scotland," this book has the name, "ROBERT WARDLAW," plainly written on the cover, and on a blank leaf is the statement: "This book was bought at Stanton in Virginia in the year 1768. Price eight shillings, by Robert Wardlaw." Stanton is the old way of spelling the present Staunton, Va.

All the old papers and histories mentioned above spell the name Wardlaw, as do the descendants of Robert's brothers in the South; several of Robert's descendants spelled their names Wardlow, which is clearly incorrect.

No record of the birth dates or date of marriage of Robert and his wife has been found.

The children of Robert and Janet Wardlaw were:

D-1. William Wardlaw, born Aug. 31, 1771, in Augusta Co., Va., died Aug. 6, 1812. m. Isabel Nesbitt in Rockbridge Co., Va.; she died Sept. 11, 1861, in Brown Co., O. It is presumed that William and his wife went with his father, Robert, from Virginia to Harrison Co., Ky., about 1794; it is certain that they came with the other members of Robert’s family to Ohio in 1800. Their residence was on White Oak Creek in Washington Township, this being a part of Clermont County until 1817, when it was included in the new county of Brown. William was a member of Capt. Boerstler’s Company of Williamsburg (Ohio) Riflemen in the War of 1812. This company was escorting provisions to Gen. Hull’s forces at Detroit when it was ambushed Aug. 6, 1812, by a party of British and Indians under Tecumseh at Brownstown, then a hamlet about a mile southwest of the present village of Gibraltar, Mich.; 17 of the men, including Capt. Boerstler and William Wardlaw, were killed, and 12 were wounded. William’s brother, Hugh, also Simon Kenton, the famous Kentucky scout and Indian fighter, were members of this company. William’s will is recorded in Clermont County. His name is misspelled Waidlaw in the Ohio Roster of Soldiers of 1812.

just below the present village of New Hope, the farm being known in recent years as the Kimball place. He was commissioned colonel of militia by Gov. Huntington in 1810; he entered the U. S. service in the War of 1812 as a Captain and was promoted to Colonel. Because of illness, he resigned his commission March 4, 1814 and returned home, dying March 24, 1814. He had no children. Martha Wardlaw Zumalt married, second, Major Benjamin Kimball, who had come to Ohio from Hopkintown, N. H. They were married March 5, 1816. Mr. Kimball had served with Col. Zumalt in the War of 1812, being a witness to the latter's will made at Detroit just before he left the army. Major Kimball had several children by his first wife, who died in 1815; of his union with Mrs. Zumalt, one child was born, viz:

E-17. Henry Kimball, b. Jan. 7, 1818. He inherited the Zumalt estate, married and had a large family; he was a good manager and his homestead was a well-known landmark in the county.

D-4. John Wardlaw, b. June 15, 1779; date of death not known. Married Elizabeth Lance in Brown Co., O., and lived near Taylorsville in Highland Co., O. After his death, all the members of his family except his daughter, Jane, moved to Missouri (in 1841). About 1849, the family, except David and his sister (who married a McCaskey), went to California; the mother is said to have died on the way. Nothing further is known of those who left Ohio. Issue, so far as known:
