PREFACE.

The compiling of this work has been a pleasure. Every moment that has been spent upon it, has been an enjoyment. The task however has been no easy one, obstacles arose at the start which seemed insurmountable. The first one hundred years of the Virginia colony [1620-1720] as far as family history was concerned, appeared to have passed into oblivion. No printed work was found which threw light upon family history during that period. Families had not to any extent moved from original homesteads, the generations had lived and died in the same neighborhood, and each generation seemed to have borne the same names, of William, Thomas, and Peter, of Elizabeth, Catherine and Frances. It seemed impossible to separate one from the other. Even when all the records of all the counties were in hand, it was found impossible to form from them a connected pedigree. It was only when copies of the few vestry books of Christ Church, Middlesex, were used in connection with the various Co. records, that light began to appear, and the early branches began to assume the places they occupy in this work. And the record of them here given, however imperfect it may be considered, can only be regarded as facts snatched from the very verge of oblivion. The church records that have been saved from fire and war are few, and it has been impossible in some cases to obtain the full maiden name of the wives of the Montagues. The wills on Co. records give only the christian name, and the surname is in some cases lost. This is to be regretted, especially in the case of Cicely, the wife of the emigrant Peter Montague.

Printed works of a genealogical character, that relate to Virginia families appear to be rare; a few there are, which, although written for other objects, contain fragmentary notices of family history; of such are the 13 Vols. of Hening’s Va. law statutes, and Bishop Meades old churches and families of Va. Both of these works have been carefully collated page by page and the latter extensively quoted in this work. A more recent work, and by far the best ever published is "Va. Genealogies" by Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden, Wilkes Barre, Pa., 1891, a noble work, that ought to be in the library of every person in the country who is of Va. extraction, or interested in her people. By permission of Mr. Hayden, his work has been quoted, wherever it referred to any person in these pages; and has been found specially valuable on the line of the Balls, Daniel and other families. The origin of family surnames has been taken from "Patronimica Britannica" by M. A. Lower, a standard English authority. The blazon of ancient coats of arms is principally from Edmondson's Heraldry, also a standard English work. The record of arrivals by ship, and early emigrants in the Va. colony is from "Hottens Emigrant Lists." The historical account of the early settlements in Va., is taken from various authors and from Hists. of Va. both English and American.

The Introduction, and also all that relates to different families in this work in ancient times in England, has been compiled from many hundred old, and rare books, and is the result of great labor covering years of time and search. With the exception of the name of Montague, perhaps no name occurs so often in this book as the name of Latané. The mode of spelling used, is from the signature of Rev. Lewis Latané to his last will and testament, and the same spelling is used by Bishop Meade in his "old families of Va." The accent is upon the final "e" which has the sound of a. The name "Currie" has been perpetuated in many branches, and descendants have written it, both "Curry" and "Cirney."

The dates of birth and marriage of the children and grand-children of the emigrant Peter Montague, and of other early branches, against which is the word "about" are only approximate. No claim is made for their correctness except as qualified by the word "about." Every possible effort has been made to avoid error, and yet no doubt errors will be found. A portion of the work consists of ground never before gone over with no guide except Co. records, and but few of them. Sources from which to seek information were few and uncertain. Parties written to were, in some cases slow to reply; and the replies of different members of the same branch were sometimes contradictory. Those who discover errors, while they criticize, should remember that if the work serves no other purpose, it will be a foundation and guide to some historian of the family in the far distant future who may issue a second and more perfect edition, and correct the errors made in this.

Many thanks are due to all those who aided the compiler by sending valuable records and other information. It is found that they are too numerous for special mention by name, but particular mention should be made in this connection of Hon. Wm. M. Flanagan [699], Miss M. Ellen Brown [2411], Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caine [3376], Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daniel and family [1103], the venerable Judge B. J. Peters, Judge of the court of Appeals, Mount Sterling, Ky. and Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden of Wilkes Barre, Pa., the latter of whom has been a faithful friend during its entire compilation. Special thanks are tendered to all those who so nobly responded to the call for a fund in advance, to aid its publication, without which it could not have been issued. Many thanks are hereby tendered to all those who have furnished the beautiful portraits with which the work is embellished, and to the artists who made them Mr. W. P. Allen of Gardner, Mass., and the Suffolk Engraving Co. of Boston. Special thanks are due the venerable Dr. J. Packard, D. D., of Theological seminary, Fairfax Co., Va., for records of ancient Christ Church. Special thanks are due the various Co. clerks for Court House records and prompt attention to letters sent to them, of whom, special mention should be made, of Mr. Harrison Southworth of Essex, Mr. Samuel P. Gresham of Lancaster and Mr. B. B. Chowning of Middlesex, who generously gave both his office room, and his own time, for my use and benefit. Special thanks are tendered to Dr. Edmund J. Lee of Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. R. B. Lee of Richmond and Mr. J. Henry Lea of Fairhaven, Mass. for valuable Lee records. The descendants of Mickelborough Montague, No. 58 in this work was compiled by his grandson Mr. A. M. McClenny in 1884 and was published in 1886 in the work called "The Montague Family of America." It has been revised and brought down to date for this work, as perfectly as has been possible.

Finally, the compiler wishes to express his thanks to Messrs. Carpenter & Morehouse and their corps of able assistants, who printed the work, all of whom seemed to be inspired with an interest in the undertaking almost equal to that of the compiler himself.

EXPLANATION.

The index refers to the numbers, not to the pages. Thus, against the name of Joseph S. Montague in the index is the number 2658. Turn to small number 2658 in the book and it will be seen that he was the son of Archibald P., number 1253, who was the son of Samuel 396. Turn to small number 396 and it will be seen that Samuel 396 was the son of Young 117, who was the son of Latané 34. Now turn to small number 34 and it will be seen that Latané was the son of Abraham 14 who was the son of William 10. Turn to small number 10 and it will be seen that William was the son of Peter 4, who was the son of Peter No. 1. By following this plan, any name can be traced forward, or back, at pleasure. To find the relationship existing between any two persons, trace the line of each back until they unite at the same ancestor.

EXPLANATION OF FRONTPRICE.

The beautiful plate of Arms which faces the title page is a copy of an oil painting in original colors made by Tiffany & Co., New York and owned by Mr. Henry Montague Robertson of New York City, who kindly permitted it to be copied for this work. It is not a fancy sketch prepared to please the eye, but it is the correct paternal coat of arms of every Montague descended from Peter No. 1, and can be used by all of the female line [or collateral branches] by placing it as a quartering only upon their shield to indicate their descent from Montague.

The word blazon in Armory means a written description so precise as to enable the reader to depict the escutcheon without other assistance. The blazon of these arms is as follows:

Quarterly—first, argent, three fusils in fess gules between three pellets, for Peter Montague, No. 1; the same being the paternal arms of his father Peter Montague of Boveney, Eng. Second—Azure, a griffin segreant, or. for original Montague arms. Thus borne by the first eight generations in England [A. D. 1066 to 1300]. Third—Gules, three legs, armed proper, with banded mail of the 13th century, conjoined in the centre at the upper part of the thighs, flexiden, a triangle, garnished and spurred, or. for Fergus, King of the isle of Man. These arms are a Heraldic curiosity, and are inherited by Va. Montagues from their great ancestress Aufrícia, wife of Sir Simon Montague [No. 8, in Introduction] and dau. of Fergus, King of Man. Fourth—Argent, three fusils in fess gules, for Sir Simon Montague of A. D. 1300, being the same as the first quarter without the pellets which were added for difference of families. The combination of these quarters, as here represented, is well known and is not new. See plate of the coat of arms of the Duke of Manchester, see quarterings of Anthony Browne, Viscount Montagu, and quarterings of Hastings, Earl of Huntingdon, all in Edmondsons Peerage. See plate of Arms of Anne, wife of King Richard III, in Planche's Pursuivant of Arms.

Crest.—"The head and wings erased of a griffin, segreant, or. placed over the helmet of an Esquire." From the shield of Drogo-de-Montacuto, and dating from the time of William the Conqueror, also similar to the crest found on the garter plate of the first Earl of Salisbury. It is the most ancient Montagu crest known.

Supporters.—No degree below that of a Baron was in England entitled to bear Supporters, and although Peter No. 1, was descended from a Baron, yet it was through younger sons and Supporters were borne only by titled elder sons. But it has been considered appropriate that a purely American family may in America adopt the Segreant griffin of their first English ancestor Drogo, to uphold their shield, though usually if the sinister Supporter be a griffin, the dexter is composed of some other device.

Motto.—It is not known what the motto of the Boveney family was; probably the family flourished in England at so early a date, that mottos had not come into general use; but it may be said that “Disponendo me, non mutando me” dates back to the time of Henry VIII, and is the most ancient of all the Montagu mottos. It is used in England by the Dukes of Manchester, and is said to have originated with Sir Edward Montagu, the executor of the will of Henry VIII. He was lord chief justice of England. He was removed from that position by Queen Mary, who also imprisoned him in the Tower of London. After his release, it is said that he added the motto to his Arms in Latin, a free translation of which is, “You may displace me but you cannot change me.”

INTRODUCTION.

MONTAGUES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

In the old Chronicles of France, mention is made of forty-seven different incursions by various Scandinavian bands called Northmen. The most important of these, under the command of Rollo the Dane, resulted in the permanent occupation of a large province which was subsequently called Normandy. "It was thus the settlement of these northern pirates," says Freeman, "which finally made Gaul French in the modern sense. It was at the same time the alliance with Romanic France which brought the Northmen fully under the influence of French language, law and custom, which made them Normans, the foremost Apostles alike of French chivalry and Latin Christianity."

In this province and of this people was born on the 14th of October 1024, William, Duke of Normandy, the bold leader in the Norman conquest of England "the great turning point in the history of the English nation."

In this province also flourished, one thousand years ago, the Norman family of Montagu. They were seated probably at Montagu-les-Bois in the district of Coutances of which place it was said "Its ancient lords were famous in the middle ages." The name and family of Montagu was probably prominent and distinguished at that time, for we find mountains, castles, fortresses and towns bearing their name.

History has at least recorded the name of one of the family who held at that time an important position of trust and honor.

I. Drogo de Montagu (or as it was written in Latin, de Montecuto, and Montacute) was born about the year 1040. He became the trusted companion, follower, and intimate friend of Robert, earl of Moriton (or Mortain), the favorite brother of William, Duke of Normandy.
Drogo and the earl of Moriton were of the same age and both entered heartily into the plans of William in his proposed expedition against England.

This expedition was in active preparation in the summer of 1066 and was composed of sixty thousand men and over three hundred ships. Drogo de Monte-acuto accompanied the expedition in the immediate retinue of Robert, Earl of Mortain.

They landed at Pevensey upon the coast of Sussex, late in September, 1066, and immediately burned and scuttled their ships, that their only hope might lie in their courage and resolution, their only safety in victory.

This marked the advent of the first Montague upon the shores of England, and as he marches on toward the plain near Hastings (where, upon the 14th of October, the battle of Hastings was fought and won), we note that he bears the kite-shaped shield of the Norman invador, its color is cerulean blue, and upon it is the full length figure of a Griffin, segreant (rampant with wings spread), and painted a bright golden hue. This was the original Coat of Arms of the Montagues in England.*

William having conquered England and ascended the throne his followers were rewarded with large grants of land.

Both his favorite brother the Earl of Moriton and his trusty follower Drogo de Monte-acuto received large possessions.

Drogo obtained the grant of several Manors, particularly in the county of Somerset. The original castle or seat of Drogo was at Montacute, an eminence and parish in Tintinhull Hundred, Somersetshire, four miles south from Ilchester. Its ancient name appears to have been Logoresburg and was also called Bishopston. Here the Earl of Mortain built a castle and named it after his friend Drogo de Monte-acuto. (Cappers Topog. Dict.).

Camden says of this place that "the Castle has been quite destroyed these many years and the stones carried off to build the Religious houses and other things, afterward on the very top of the hill was a Chapel made and consecrated to St. Michael, the arch and roof curiously built of hard stone and the ascent to it is around the mountain up stone stairs for near half a mile."

* A gryphon (or griffin) was an imaginary animal devised by the ancients and consisted of the body and tail of a lion with the head and claws (or talons) of an eagle, thus denoting great strength united with great swiftness.
The Arms of Drogo de Monte-acuto, A.D. 1066.

"A griffin of gold, sable, upon a shield of blue."
A later writer has this graphic description of this spot. "Adjacent to the churchyard rises that noble mount called Montacute, the base of which contains near twenty acres. Its form is conical and its ascent very steep, the top terminating in a flat of half an acre whereon stands a round tower sixty feet in height and crowned with an open ballustrade. On this tower is a flag-staff fifty feet high, on which a flag is occasionally displayed floating fifty-six yards in the air and exhibiting a grand and picturesque appearance.

The summit of this tower, being so highly elevated above the level of the central part of the country, affords a rich and extensive prospect extending westward to the hills below Minehead and Blackdown in Devonshire and north eastward over Taunton, Quantock Hills, Bridgewater bay, the Channel, and coast of Wales.

To the north, Brent-Knoll, the whole range of Mendip, the city of Wells and Glastonbury-Torr. Eastward, Creeche. Southward over the Dorsetshire Hills to Lamberts Castle near Lyme, the whole a circle of above 300 miles in which on a clear day 80 churches are distinguished.

This hill is planted from bottom to top with oaks, elms, firs and sycamores the intermingled foliage of which (especially in the autumnal season) forms a rich and beautifully tinted scenery."

While this was the original home of the Montagues, the seat of their barony was at Shepton Montacute a villa at no great distance from Montacute. This parish contains the hamlets of upper and lower Shepton, * Knolle, and Stoney Stoke, and was held by Drogo de Monte-acuto and his direct descendants until the time of King Henry VIII. when Sir Thomas Montacute leaving no male issue, this estate was divided between three sisters.

Drogo de Monte-acute also held of Robert Earl of Moriton, the following Manors. The manor of Yarlinton. (For description see at Sir Simon Montacute, 8th generation). Sutton Montacute, a small parish six miles east from Ivelchester, lying in a fruitful woody vale under the south west brow of Cadbury castle, with other high hills toward the east. It contains thirty houses which compose a long street in the turnpike road from Ivelchester to Castle Cary.

Thulbeer, (ancient name Torlaberie).

* In Drogo’s time, in demesne are two carucates, 8 servants, 8 Villanes (farmers), 5 cottagers, 3 ploughs, 2 mills, one not rated, the other pays seven shillings and sixpence. There are 39 acres of meadow, and wood ten furlongs long and four furlongs broad.
Drogo held this manor from the Earl of Moriton and it descended through a long line of ancestry together with the manor of Chidzoy, to the unfortunate Edward, son of George Duke of Clarence.

Drogo also held of the said Earl one hide of land in Montagud in this county. Revd John Collinson says, "it is altogether probable that the Earl of Mortain—if he had any other reason than that of a Latin definition—imposed on his demesnes at Bishopton (Logoresburg) the appellation of Montagud in compliment to this Drogo, his favorite and confidential friend."

But waving this matter, we find the said Drogo-de-Monte-acuto in possession of these estates until his death, which took place about the latter end of the reign of King Henry I. (about 1125).

A curious fact may be here recorded, that upon the spot where the battle of Hastings was fought, William the Conqueror founded an Abbey which was called Battle Abbey, and in the words of his charter, "Instituted a market to be kept there on the Lord's day free from all toll—" and that Anthony Viscount Mountague, a lineal descendant of Drogo, about the year 1575 or 1600, built a fine house there and obtained authority of Parliament to have the market changed to another day.

Drogo was succeeded by his son and heir—

II. William Montacute, who erected a Monastery at Montacute Mountain and endowed it with the borough and Market of Montacute. An ancient record written about 1538 states, that—"within the ruins of the Castle at Montacute is now a mean house for a farmer, the town hath a poor market and is builded of stone as commonly all towns thereabout be"—(Leland's Itinerary, Vol. I, Oxford, 1710.)

But little is known with regard to this William Montacute except that, one author says—"he was an only son"—and that he took care of the estate left him by his father, and died leaving it entire to an only son.

III. Richard de Montacuto, probably the first Richard Montague who ever lived.

It is recorded of him, that in the second year of Henry II. (1156) he paid £20 into the King's exchequer for the ancient pleas; and

A hide of land was supposed to consist of 160 acres and was made up of the following parts, viz.—ten acres make a ferundel, or fardingdeal, four ferundels make a yard land, and four yard lands make a hide, so four hides it is said, or 640 acres, make a Knight's fee.
INTRODUCTION.

7th of Henry II. (1161) upon the collection of the scutage then levied, he paid 20 marks for the Knight's fees (a yard land of 40 acres paid two shillings and sixpence tax) which he at that time held, soon after which he died, leaving issue his son Drue, who was called "Drogo Juvenis"—or Young Drue.

IV. Drue de Montacute, upon the assessment of the aid for marrying the King's daughter, 12th Henry II. (1167) certified his Knight's fees to be in number—nine, a half and a third part of the old feoment and one of the new* (640 acres made a Knight's fee).

He married Aliva, dau. of Alan Basset, baron of Wiccomb in County of Buckingham. After his death she married second, Richard son of Gilbert Talbot, ancestor to the Earls of Shrewsbury.

His eldest son, also named Drue, died during his father's lifetime, he married, however, and left two sons,—John and William de Montacute. The younger, William, had no male issue, and but two daughters, namely, Margaret, married to William de Echingham; and Isabel, married to Thomas de Audham†.

The elder son, John‡, was seated at Marsh, in County Buckingham, a manor situated northwest from Alesbury and near the Oxford County line—he m. Lucy ——— and had a daughter Katherine, who married Warine Basset.

Drue de Montacute and his wife Aliva (Basset) had an only daughter who became a nun at Shaftsbury, and a second son,—

V. William de Montacute, who succeeded to the barony, and in the sixth year of Richard I. (1196) paid £6—1s.—6d for his estates in the County of Somerset as scutage for the King's ransom.

He was sheriff of Dorsetshire and Somersetshire in the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth years of King John (1205—1209); which fully proves his importance at that time, when none but persons of the greatest rank and property were admitted to that office. For the first of these years he had under him Osbert, the clerk, his deputy. Being one of the great barons of that reign who stood up for the liberties of their country, and being found (17th John) in arms with the rebellious barons against the King, he was stripped of all his lands in Counties of Somerset and Dorset, which were seized by the King and given to Ralph de Ralegh. He died 18th of King John (1218). He married Isabel, dau. of * * * * and left an only son and heir who succeeded to the estate.

VI. William Montacute. This son recovered all of the lands which his father had lost. But in the 17th of Henry III. (1233) he also had his lands distrained by Virtue of the King's precept for omitting to repair to Court at the feast of Whitsuntide, there to receive the dignity of Knighthood, as was required by law. But the next year on doing his homage he was by the Sheriff of Somerset and Dorset reinstated in his possessions. He died 31st of Henry III. (1247) leaving issue William his son and heir.

VII. William de Montacute, (son of William No. VI.), had summons to attend the King into Gascony, against Alphonse 10th, King of Castile, who had usurped the province. The 41st of Henry III. (1257) he was summoned to be with the King at Chester on the feast day of St. Peter, ad vincula—well furnished with horse and arms, thence to march against Llewellyn ap Griffith prince of Wales. 42d of Henry III. he had a similar citation. By Berta his wife he left issue his son and heir, Simon.

VIII. Sir Simon de Montacute (son of William No. VII.) was in several expeditions into Wales, particularly in that of 10th of Edward I. (1286) when Llewellyn lost his territory and life. He obtained from Edward I. confirmation of the manor of Shipton Montague in Somersetshire with the woods thereunto belonging in the forest of Selwood and a grant of several other manors in the same county and in those of Dorset, Devon, and Oxford.

The same lord Montacute made several campaigns with reputation both in France and Scotland, in the reign of Edw 4th I., in which he was also Governor of Corfe Castle in Devonshire. In the Reign of Edward II. he again served in Scotland and was governor of the Castle of Beaumaris in the isle of Anglesey, and Admiral of the King's fleet. In that reign he also obtained a grant for a weekly market on Tuesday at his Manor of Yardlington, County of Somerset, and a fair on the eve day and morrow after the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin. The 7th of Edw4 II. (1314) he obtained a license of the King to fortify his Manor house at Yardlington. This Manor was very beautifully situated in a picturesque locality upon a very fine lawn, and remained in this family through many descents until, through the last Countess of Salisbury (who was beheaded at the age of 70 years by Henry VIII.), it passed to the Poles and thence to Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham. Sir Simon Montacute also owned the Manor of Goat-hill, granted to him by Edw4 I., and it descended to Gen. Thomas Montacute 4th Earl of Salisbury, thence to Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, and to John Neville, Marquis of Montacute. He also owned the Manor of Laymore in Somerset. This Sir Simon Montacute bore as his Coat of Arms the original shield of his ancestor Drogo First, (Azure—a Gryphon Segreant, or, [gold] as also did his father and each of his ancestors. However, this Sir Simon changed the Arms to “Argent (white) three fusils* in fess gules (red).” See plate.

It is however recorded that Sir Simon used both Coats of Arms, the one which he had made and the other which he received by inheritance. Fortunately we are not left in doubt as to what Arms he really bore, for the Pope had at that time made unwarranted pretentions with regard to Scotland and had issued an insolent bull, to which all the barons of England had made reply in a letter which was signed by all the Barons, who affixed to their names, as their seals, their Coat of Arms. This letter to Pope Boniface VIII. was written A. D. 1301, and was signed by Sir Simon de Montacute, with the other barons. A duplicate of this letter is preserved in the British Museum, and the plate of the Coat of Arms of Sir Simon Montague, appended to this work, is copied from his Seal to that letter. These Arms, with some modification for differences in families, have been the arms of all the succeeding English families of Montague. Sir Simon married Aufricia, dau. of Fergusius, King of the isle of Man, descended from Orry, King of Denmark. The Historian records that Aufricia, dau. of Fergus, King of Man, having fled to King Edward, when dispossessed by Alexander III. King of Scots, Edward bestowed her in marriage upon Simon lord Montague, baron of Shipton Montague, who by the King’s assistance recovered the Island and enjoyed it in her right many years. (Camden says it was Simon's son William who recovered the Island.)

He had been summoned to parliament from the 28th of Edward I. to the 8th of Edwd II. (1315), soon after which he died. Their issue was William and Simon de Montacute, the former succeeded his father and continued the line, the latter was married to Hawise, daughter of Almeric lord St. Amand.

Almeric de St. Amand was a great baron of that age whose chief seat was at Grendon Underwood, a parish in the hundred of Ashendon in Buckinghamshire ten miles west N. W. from Aylesbury. The male line became extinct and the property passed (through daughters) to other families. It would seem that Simon Montacute and Hawise de St. Amand, his wife, probably had a son whose name was William Montacute from the following passage taken from a very rare and ancient work.* "From thence he (the King) passeth on to the Castle of Salisbury which Castle belonged to William Montacute Earl of Salisbury in right of his wife but himself being then prisoner in France, onely his Countesse, and one William Montacute, a cousin of his was in the Castle." This William Montacute, who is called a cousin of the first Earl of Salisbury, was therefore a son of Simon and Hawise (Amand) Montacute, as it is recorded that the Earl's father had only two sons. As this Simon Montacute was the younger son, his subsequent history (and that of his son William) is unrecorded.

IX. William, lord of Montacute, eldest son of Sir Simon de Montacute (No. VIII.), served in several expeditions into Scotland, both before and after his father's death, in the reigns of Edward I. and II. In the former he also received the honor of Knighthood, along with Edward prince of Wales; and in the second year of the latter, he obtained the royal charter for free warren at his manor of Aston Clinton in Buckinghamshire, as he did afterward for those of Saxlingham, in the County of Norfolk, Knolle in the County of Somerset, and Woneford in the County of Devon. In the same reign he was governor of Berhamstead Castle and steward of the King's household; and had a grant of the bodies and ransoms of Rene ap Grenon, Madock ap Vaughan and Audoen ap Madock, Welsh barons who had rebelled and been taken prisoners.

Moreover, he obtained from the King a special license to make a Castle of his house at Kensington in the County of Oxford, and was appointed Seneschal of the duchy of Aquitain and at last in 1318 of Gascony. In the 11th and 12th of that reign he had summons to parliament and died in 1320 in Gascony, but was interred at St. Frideswide, now Christ Church Oxon.*

By Elizabeth, dau. of Peter lord Montfort of Beaufort in the County of Warwick, he had issue four sons and seven daughters.

Of his four sons the eldest died in the life time of his father, the second succeeded him, Simon the 3d son in the 8th of Edward III. was made Bishop of Worcester and in 1336 was translated to Ely. He was a great benefactor to the University of Cambridge and laid out a large sum on the fine Lady Chapel, on the north side of the Cathedral of Ely, though he did not live to finish it.

Sir Edward Montacute, the 4th son, was governor of the Castle of Werk. He served afterward in the French wars with great reputation. In the 23d of Edward III. (1339), he had livery of all those lands which descended to his wife Alice, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, fifth son of Edward I., and Marshal of England. He died in 1342.

"Alexander III., King of Scots, had invaded Man also, and entirely subdued it, and set a King over the isle. However, Mary, the daughter of Reginald King of Man, addressed her self to the King of England for justice in her case. Answer was made that the King of Scots was then possessed of the Island and she ought to apply herself to him. Her grandchild, John Waldebeoff, notwithstanding this, sued again for his right in Parliament, held 32d of Edward I., urging it there before the King of England as Lord Paramount of Scotland, yet all the answer he could have was that he might prosecute his title before the Justices of the King's Bench; let it be heard there and let justice be done. But what he could not effect by law his kinsman Sir William Montacute (for he was of the royal family of Man) soon did by force of arms. For having raised a body of English, he drove the Scots out of the Isle with these raw soldiers. But, having plunged himself into debt by the great expense of this war, and become insolvent, he was forced to mortgage the Island to Anthony Be, Bishop of Durham and Patriarch of Jerusalem; and make over all the profits thereof to him for seven years, and quickly after, the King gave the Island to the said Anthony for term of life. Afterward King Edward II. gave it to his great favorite Peter de Caveston. Soon after this the Scots recovered it again under the Conduct of Robert Bras. Afterward, about the year 1340, William Montacute, the younger (Earl of Salisbury), rescued it by force of Arms from the Scots and in the year of our Lord 1393 sold Man, and the Crown thereof, to William Scrope for a great sum of money."—Camden's Britannia.
X. William Montacute, eldest surviving son of William lord Montague (No. IX.), was made a banneret in the end of the reign of Edward II. In the first of Edward III. (1327) he was present at the expedition then made into Scotland, and in the 3d of same reign attended the King when he was summoned to do homage to the King of France for his duchy of Aquitaine. In the 4th year of same reign he again attended the King to France, and had also the honor to wait on his holiness the Pope with Bartholomew de Burgherth, as Edward's ambassador, to thank him for confirming a bull of his predecessor Honorius, in favor of the Monks of Westminster. But the best service, perhaps, which this brave man ever performed for his master, was his bringing the famous Mortimer Earl of March the Queen's gallant, to punishment.* A parliament being held the same year it was enacted that William lord Montacute and all others with him, at the apprehension of the Earl of March and others, since what they did was authorized by the King's command, should be—"wholly acquitted thereof and of all murders and felonies they have done." This act of indemnity was not only passed in his behalf, but many manors and lands forfeited, by the attainder of the Earl of March and others, were bestowed upon him.

In the same year (1330) he was also appointed governor of Sherbourne Castle in the County of Dorset, and of the Castle of Corffe with the Chace of Purbeck.

In the 5th of Edward III. he had a charter of free warren in all his lordships of Cookham in County of Berkshire, Swyneston in County of Southampton, Fulmere in County of Bucks and of Catsound and Lewisham in Kent. Likewise wreck, waif, stray goods of felons and fugitives, with fines and forfeitures of his tenants in his manors of Christ-church, Twyneham, Ringwood, and Swyneston, in the Isle of Wight and County of Southampton. Next year he

* The lord Montacute, having laid before the young King the infamy which the course of the life of the Queen, his mother, had brought upon his family, and the dangers which Mortimer's greatness threatened to the Crown, met with a favorable hearing from his Majesty, who ordered him to associate himself with such of the nobility as he could trust, and then apply to Sir William Eland, Constable of the Castle of Nottingham, in which the Queen and Mortimer had shut themselves up for defence. As the Keys of the Castle were brought every night to the Queen and nobody permitted to come in or go out without her knowledge, Sir William Eland directed Montacute and his associates to a private passage, by which they entered the Castle and marched directly to Mortimer's apartment, where the lord Montacute before he could seize his prisoner, was forced to kill Sir Hugh Turpplington, steward of the household, and Sir John Monmouth. Mortimer was then made prisoner and carried before the King, and a short time after he was with his chief friends and abettors put to death.

obtained for John, his son-in-law, a grant of the Castle of Werk, on condition of his fortifying it and keeping it in repair; and for himself a release of all his Majesty's claim, right and title, in the isle of Man, and its appurtenances for him and his heirs forever. In 1335 he was constituted governor of the Isles Guernsey, Jersey, Sark, Alderney, and Seul. In 1336 he was made Constable of the Tower of London, and in consideration of his great expenses in divers services obtained a grant of the forest of Selkirk and Ellerick, with the town and County of Selkirk in Scotland to hold in farm to him and his heirs. In the same year he also obtained a grant in fee of several manors, lands, and hundreds lying in the Counties Somerset, Dorset, Wilts, and Buckingham.

In 1337 he was constituted Admiral of the King's fleet, from the mouth of the Thames westward, and the following year in consideration of his faithful services in the Scottish wars, and otherwise, he was advanced to the title and dignity of Earl of Salisbury, with a grant of the annual rent of £20 out of the profits of that County.

The same year he was one of the Commissioners that were sent to the duke of Bavaria to engage him on behalf of Edward against Philip, King of France. Upon his return he was immediately joined with Richard, Earl of Arundel, in the command of a body of troops designed for Scotland, in consequence of which he was present at the memorable siege of the Castle of Dunbar. The same year he attended the King to Brabant and obtained several more grants of lands, castles, fairs and advowsons in the Counties of Oxford, Wilts, Dorset, Somerset, Chester, Norfolk, Suffolk and Lincoln.

In 1339 he obtained the King's precept to the lord treasurer and barons of the exchequer for an allowance of five marks each day while he was abroad on his service, and for the reimbursement of all the expenses he was put to thereby. The same year, in consideration of his services both in the field and cabinet, he obtained a grant of the office of Earl Marshal of England.

In 1340 he had the command of the army jointly with the Earl of Suffolk. These two commanders having laid siege to Lisle, then in possession of the French, were both unfortunately made prisoners by the besieged, who sallied out and drew them after them into the town. During their captivity they suffered great indignities; and upon their arrival at Paris would certainly have been put to death, had not the King of Bohemia (possibly a relative of his wife) interposed in their behalf. Upon a conclusion of a truce with France they were exchanged for the Earl of Murray and £3000 in addition.

The Earl of Salisbury, immediately after his release, went with many other English Knights into Spain and joined the army of Alphonsus against the Saracens.

In 1341 he was again in Flanders, and in 1342 in France. In 1343 he served upon the borders of Scotland with the Earl of Ulster. And about this time he conquered the isle of Man, when King Edward (having before given him the inheritance thereof) crowned him King of Man.

In conjunction with Robert of Artois, he had the command of the forces sent to France in aid of the Countess of Montfort, by sea and land; where, after defeating the French fleet, they took Vannes, but a truce having been concluded for three years the Earl returned to England, where he exercised himself so immoderately, in justs and tournaments, that he fell into a fever of which he died in the forty-third year of his age, January 30, 1344, and was buried at the White Friars in London* (Vol. I, p. 51, Edmondson’s Heraldry). He was possessed at his death of a vast estate and bore the titles of Earl of Salisbury, King of Man, and lord of Denbigh.

Vol. I, p. 51, Glover’s ordinary of Arms, Edmondson’s Heraldry, says, this earl owned Fulmere in Buckinghamshire. Lipscombe’s Hist. of Bucks says, he sold it, in or before 1335. This was a hamlet and Chapelry of Datchet in Stoke Hund. Bucks, near Stoke Poges and not far from Boveney.

This great man, who died so young and who also accomplished so much in his busy career, also found time to establish at Bisham in Berkshire, on the banks of the Thames 4 miles from Maidenhead, a Monastery, and he also founded a priory (in 1338) for Canons of the order of St. Augustine, in the words of his charter, “dedicated to Our Lord and the Virgin.” This priory was re-founded by Henry VIII. for an abbot and 13 Benedictine Monks. Here Henry VIII.

* Some authors state, that this great man was buried at Bisham priory which he had founded. This error probably was caused by the fact that his son built a magnificent monument to his memory, in that Abbey, which was however demolished by Henry VIII. at the dissolution. Not only Edmondson’s Heraldry but Glover’s Ordinary of Arms, and also the very high authority of Dugdale, assert that he was buried at White Friars, London. Edmondson’s Heraldry, Vol. I, 51, states that he became 21 years old in the 9th of Edward II., which would place his birth A. D. 1304; the same authority also states, that he owned the Manor of Cookham in Berkshire. Lipscombe’s Bucks states that the hamlet of Boveney ancietly belonged to Cookham in Berkshire, and the inference is that this Earl of Salisbury may have been possessed of Boveney also.
confined one of his wives; afterward, it was a favorite resort of Queen Elizabeth; here was buried the wife of the founder, Katherine de Grandison, the Countess of Salisbury, and the inscription upon her tomb stated, that her father was “descended out of Burgundy, cousin german to the Emperor of Constantinople, the King of Hungary and Duke of Bavaria.”

Here William Montacute, the 2d Earl of Salisbury (son of the founder), was interred. By his will he directed that a monument should there be erected to the memory of his father, which was done upon a magnificent scale.*

His wife Catherine was daughter of William (and sister and heir to Otho) lord Grandison by Sibylla, dau. and heir of John de Tregoz, a great Baron. She was a brave woman, worthy of such a brave and noble man as was her husband the Earl of Salisbury. She† nobly defended and aided with heroic valor the defence of the castle of Werk, with her husband’s brother, Sir Edward Montacute, who was its Governor, and also bravely defended her own Castle of Salisbury from King David of Scotland, with the aid of William Montacute, her husband’s cousin, while her husband was a prisoner of war in France as before mentioned in the history of Sir Simon No. IX.

They had seven children, three sons and four daughters. Of the sons, William, the eldest, succeeded his father and became the second Earl of Salisbury, but was killed in a tilting match at Windsor.

Sir John Montacute, the second son, m. Margaret Monthermer, grand-dau. of Ralph and Joan of Acres, dau. of King Edward I, and his son became 3d Earl of Salisbury.

Of Robert Montacute, the third and youngest son, the records give no history.

* "The bones of John Montacute, 3d Earl of Salisbury, who was beheaded, were brought from Cirencester, (by order of his widow) and re-interred at Bisham Priory." Crosse’s Antiquities. Here also were laid the “mortal parts” of the 4th and last Earl of Salisbury, Gen. Thomas Montacute, killed at the siege of Orleans (1428). Here also rest the remains of John, Marquis of Montacute, killed at the battle of Barnet in 1470, and also his brother Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, called the “king maker.” Here also sleeps that unfortunate youth Edward Plantaganet, son of the Duke of Clarence, beheaded in 1499 for attempting an escape from confinement.

† It was this countess of Salisbury who, while dancing with King Edward, lost her garter, which gave rise to the founding of the order of the garter, (and not Joan Plantaganet, the Fair Maid of Kent, as was stated in the “Montagues at Hadley.”) See History of the Orders of Brit. Knighthood by Sir N. Nicholas. Rambles about Eton and Harrow, by Alfred Rimmer, London, 1882, et al.
XI. William Montacute, second Earl of Salisbury, eldest son of William the first Earl, was born in June, 1328. Before he was of age he was Knighted when Edward landed at La Hague. He afterward served at the siege of Caen, and at the glorious battle of Crécy. When the Order of the Garter was instituted he was the seventh of its original knights, and when the Black Prince obtained Aquitaine he attended him to France and served under him in all his excursions and expeditions. At the battle of Poitiers he commanded the rear of the English army, and was highly instrumental in gaining that famous victory. In short, almost his whole life was a perpetual campaign under Edward III. and his son, the Black Prince.

In the succeeding reign, he was continued in all his posts and preferments, and also made governor of Calais, whence he harassed the French with continual excursions. In the fifth of that reign he convoyed to England the King’s intended Consort, daughter of Charles, King of the Romans, and in the seventh and eighth he served against the Scots. In the ninth, a grant was made to him during life, of the custody of the Isle of Wight and Castle of Carisbrook. In the twentieth, the year 1397, he departed this life, having ordered by his will, that every day until his corpse should be interred at Bisham, distribution should be made of one pound five shillings to three hundred poor people; likewise that twenty poor men should bear torches on the day of his funeral, each torch eight pounds weight, and each of them wearing a gown of black cloth with a red hood; also, that there should be nine wax lights about his corpse, and upon every pillar of the church there should be fixed banners of his arms; moreover that £30 should be given to the religious, to sing trentals and pray for his soul.

He first married Joan, who by way of distinction was called Fair Maid of Kent, daughter to Edmund Plantagenet, Earl of Kent, but having been separated from her upon a petition from Sir Thomas Holland to the Pope, in which he alleged that she had been pre-contracted to him, his lordship married second, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of John lord Mohun, one of the original Knights of the Garter by whom he had a son who died without issue, having been accidentally killed by his father in a tilting at Windsor in the year 1383. This son was named Sir William Montague and married Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Fitz Alan, Earl of Arundel. His widow married in 1388 Thomas lord Mowbray, Earl Marshal of England.
Sir John Montacute, the brother of this Earl, married Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Montemer son of Joan of Acres, dau. of King Edward I., in whose right he had summons to Parliament from the 31st of Edward to the 13th year of Richard II., when he died. He had three sons, John his heir (who became 3d Earl of Salisbury), Thomas Montague, Dean of Salisbury, and Richard Montague, of whose issue there is no trace. This Richard lived about the year 1400. None of the English genealogies make any further mention of him except to state his name. It is claimed that there was also a fourth son, whose name was Simon Montague, and from him the nobility of England of this name claim descent. Collins' Peerage, however, states that there is no evidence that this Simon ever lived, and is inclined to the belief that the nobility are descended from James Montague, a natural son of Gen'l Thomas Montacute, 4th Earl of Salisbury. This James Montague had large possessions in County Kent, where he was a man of distinction, and is buried in the Church of Ludsdown in Kent. Sir John Montacute had also three daughters, Sybil, Catherine and Margaret.

XII. Sir John Montacute, third Earl of Salisbury (and eldest son of Sir John), was thirty-nine years of age at his father's decease, and forty when his uncle died. He was early engaged in a military life and had been in most of the memorable battles during the reign of Edward III. In the 15th year of Richard II. he obtained leave to serve in Prussia and from the 16th year until he became Earl of Salisbury, was summoned to parliament as a baron, after which he not only had livery of all the lands of which his Uncle died possessed (as he had before of those of his mother, dau. and heir of Thomas lord Montemer), but also obtained a grant to himself and his heirs, of several Manors in the Counties of Worcester and Norfolk.

This Earl of Salisbury was the only temporal Nobleman, who remained firm to King Richard's interest after the invasion of the duke of Lancaster, and even when Richard was deposed, and the duke had mounted the throne, he joined in a plan for the murder of the latter, which being discovered, he and the earl of Kent were pursued to a village near Cirencester where the rabble struck off their heads and sent them to London. His body was buried at Bisham Abbey (which his ancestor the first Earl had founded) by the side of the second Earl of Salisbury, having been removed thither by order of his widow.
INTRODUCTION.

He married Maude, dau. of Sir Adam Francis, Knight (she was the widow, first of John Aubrey, second of Sir Allan Boxhull, Knight of the Garter). Their children were, Thomas, the eldest son, who was afterward 4th Earl of Salisbury, Richard, who died without issue, and three daughters, Anne, (3 times married) Margaret, and Elizabeth.

XIII. SIR THOMAS MONTAGUE, Fourth Earl of Salisbury and eldest son of the 3d Earl, was only twelve years of age at his father's death. Though the great estate, of which the last earl had been possessed, was now forfeited, yet a considerable part of it was recovered before his son became of age and at last, in the reign of Henry V., he retained a reversion of his father's attainder and was restored in blood.

This noble Earl was concerned in so many military exploits, that to give an account of them all, would be to write the history of the reign of Henry V. Suffice to say, that as he lived so he died in the service of his Country, for, having been mortally wounded by a stone, shot from a cannon at the siege of Orleans, he was carried to Meun on the Loire where he departed this life in November, 1428. He was twice married. First to Eleanor, dau. of Thomas Holland, sister of Edmond, Earl of Kent. Second to Alice, dau. of Thomas Chaucer. He had but one child, a daughter Alice. His body was brought to England and interred by the side of his ancestors in the Abbey at Bisham.

XIV. ALICE MONTAGUE, dau. of General Thomas above mentioned, became at his death Countess of Salisbury.

She m. Sir Richard Nevil, who in her right became Earl of Salisbury. He was the eldest son of Ralph, first Earl of Westmoreland. He followed the York party, was taken prisoner in a battle at Wakefield and beheaded. At his death, their eldest son, Richard Nevil, succeeded to the title of Earl of Salisbury, and, in right of his father, Earl of Warwick.

He was that Earl of Warwick, to whom the House of York owe their ascent to the throne. He also bore the titles of lord Monthermer, great chamberlain and High Admiral of England, lord Warden of the north marches toward Scotland and High Steward of the Duchy of Lancaster, and among his many titles, was also known as "the King maker." He was a man of invincible courage and took delight in dangers, engaged his country in a fresh civil war in which he lost his life. He was slain at the battle of Barnet, 14th April, 1471, though some authors affirm that he was murdered by his own party.

John Nevil, the younger of the two sons of Richard and Alice (Montague) Nevil, Earl of Salisbury, was 1st of Edward IV. created Baron Nevil of Montague, and 10th of the same reign, Marquis of Montague.

He was slain at the battle of Barnet, (some say murdered) 1471, while endeavoring to succor his brother Richard, Earl of Warwick.

They were both laid in state at Westminster, London, and afterward were carried to Bisham Abbey and buried among their ancestors.

Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury and Warwick, had two daughters, namely, Isabel, married to George, Duke of Clarence, and Anne, married first to Edward, Prince of Wales, son of Henry VI.; second to King Richard III.

George, Duke of Clarence, was murdered in a hogshead of wine, leaving his wife Isabel with an only son Edward who was beheaded on Tower hill at the age of fifteen by order of Henry VII., and an only daughter Margaret who became Countess of Salisbury in right of her mother. She was the last Countess of Salisbury and with her death the title became extinct until revived in the person of Cecil, in the year 1605 by King James.

The title of Countess of Salisbury had been restored to Margaret by Henry VIII. in full parliament about the fifth year of his reign.

Both George, Duke of Clarence, (who was a brother of both King Richard III. and Edward IV.) and his unfortunate son, the young Edward, were taken to Bisham Abbey and buried among their ancestors. Margaret the last Countess of Salisbury, married Sir Richard Pole (also often spelled Poole), and had four sons and one daughter. Ursula, married Henry Stafford, son of the Duke of Buckingham. She was beheaded 27th of May, 23d of Henry VIII. The sons were, Henry Pole, created Baron Montague, Sir Arthur, Sir Jeffray, and Reginald Pole who was Dean of Winburne, then made a Cardinal by Pope Paul III., and afterward Archbishop of Canterbury. He was, for his religion, banished from England by King Henry VIII. He went to Rome and became eminent with Pope Paul III., at whose death he was unanimously chosen Pope, as his successor. This he refused to accept. "Thereupon, one night

the Cardinals came unto him, being in bed, and sent him word they came to adore him (which is one special kinde of electing the Pope) but he being awakened and made acquainted with it was firm in his refusal.”—(Baker’s Chronicles). The Cardinals remained with him all night.

Her son, Henry Pole, was made Baron Montague in 1504 by King Henry VII. He married Jane, dau. of Sir George Nevil, lord of Abergeveney. Being connected with a plot to re-instate his brother, Reginald, Cardinal Pole, he was beheaded upon Tower hill in 1538, together with his co-plotters and relatives, Henry Courtney, Marquis of Exeter, and Sir Edward Nevil. Sir Jeffry Pole was concerned in the same plot but gained his pardon by becoming informer. Sir Reginald the Cardinal was chosen to become the husband of Queen Mary (Bloody Mary) to whom he was much attached. He died the 18th November, 1558, on the next day after the death of Queen Mary.
The mother, Margaret Pole, Countess of Salisbury, now at the age of seventy years, was beheaded by Henry VIII. in the year 1541.

Anne, the other daughter of Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury, and Warwick, married as before stated King Richard III. They had one only son Edward whom his uncle, King Edward IV., in the 17th year of his reign created Earl of Salisbury, and Richard his father, usurping the Kingdom, made Prince of Wales. He died young and his mother soon after died, not without suspicion of poison. While King Richard himself perished upon the field of Bosworth.

Thus in darkness and blood, and in a violent manner, upon the scaffold, perished the descendants of Alice Montague the gentle and only daughter of General Thomas Montague, fourth and last Earl of Salisbury of the name of Montague, and this branch so prolific in great men, who bathed all England in blood during the dissensions of the Houses of York and Lancaster, became extinct.

Their lineage has thus been traced to its final ending, not because it is supposed the American family were lineally descended from any of these personages who are so well known in history, but because they all lived previous to the year 1550, at which date the will of William Montague, from whom it is known that the American family are descended, was proved, and therefore it would not be out of place to mention their history as descendants of the Earls of Salisbury.

Attention will now be directed to the immediate branch of Montagues, whose descendants peopled America, and whose names will be found in the body of this work.
INTRODUCTION.

From the year 1500 to the year 1550, two brothers lived in the County of Buckingham and Parish of Burnham, England.

Their names were

William Montague, and

John Montague.

The younger brother John Montague married Cecily ,, his will was proved Dec. 26, 1552. His children were Thomas, Edmund, Ursula. Thomas the eldest, called Thomas of Phalley, married Elizabeth ,. His will was dated Jan. 14, 1599. His sons were Abraham, John of Penn (who married Katty) and Thomas. Abraham the eldest was Vicar of Stokes Poges, Buckinghamshire, in 1620. His will was dated in 1629. He had a daughter Elizabeth, m. to Robert Foord, a son Abraham baptized 29 Jan., 1627, buried 4th Jan., 1628. John of Penn had a son William, who married Agnes, and a daughter Ann, who was married in 1617.

The elder brother,

I. William Montague, was the ancestor of the Virginia family.

He resided at Boveney, parish of Burnham, Buckinghamshire, a hamlet on the Thames, just above Eton college and twenty-three miles from London.

He married Joan __.

His will was proved March 21, 1550.

His children were

(1.) William Montague (of Bray), whose son was William Montague of Waldeston, Bucks,

(2.) Robert,

(3.) Alice,

(4.) Katherine.

II. Robert Montague, the second son, married Margaret, dau. of Roger Cotton of Wardville (probably Warfield), Berkshire. He was buried Jan. 10, 1575. He left two sons,

(1.) Lawrence, and

(2.) William.

Lawrence Montague, the elder, was Vicar of Dorney,* Buckinghamshire. He m. Joan, dau. of __ Radcliffe of Wycombe, Bucks.

* Dorney is 2½ miles west of Eton, and was an adjoining manor to Boveney, both of these manors seemed to have been owned by the "Girrard family, and afterward by Charles H. Palmer, whose ancestor, Sir James Palmer, Knight, married the daughter of Sir William Garrard who died in 1607." Lysons Magna Brit. Vol. 1, 530. The parish of Burnham was His son, Richard Montague, was born about 1578 at Dorney, educated at Eton and King’s college, Cambridge. Having entered into holy orders he was presented to the living of Wotten Courtney in Somerset, afterward became rector of Stamford Rivers in Essex. In 1616 he was made Dean of Hereford. In 1628 he was consecrated Bishop of Chichester, and translated in 1638 to the See of Norwich, "Together with his fellowship at Eaton, he held by dispensation a Canonry of Windsor. In the Chapel there, he preached the theological lectures for eight years successively." Wood’s Ath. Oxe. He was also for a time Parson of Petworth. He was chaplain to King James I., who remained his firm friend. His published works were numerous. As a churchman, he opposed both Puritans and Roman Catholics.

In one of his controversies he wrote a book “Appello Caesarem,” for which he was summoned before the House of Commons on a charge of maintaining Arminean and popish errors. He was censured by the Speaker and was obliged to give bail of £2000, for his appearance. His books were ordered to be burned by the common hangman. His bail bond was signed by the Duke of Buckingham and his sister. Though prosecuted by parliament, the King (James) remained his friend and patron and continued to advance him to higher preferments.

At Eton college he assisted Sir Henry Savile and in 1610 edited several orations of St. Gregory Nazianzen which were published that year. The history of Eton college says of him, “that he was admitted Fellow in 1613, was connected with the Greek press at Eton, and revised the proof sheets of St. Chrysostom.”

Laud describes him as a “very good scholar and a right honest man, a man every way able to do God, his Majesty, and the church of England great service.” James I., no mean judge, considered him competent to enter the lists against such formidable opponents as Cardinal Baronius and John Selden, at different times.

The last years of Montague’s life were spent in what he describes divided into five districts called “liberties,” namely Brightwell, Chippenham, Boveney, Wood and East Burnham. After the dissolution of Monasteries by Henry VIII., Boveney was united to the Paules of Braywick. It appears to have been well wooded with trees as it is recorded that much of the timber for building Eton College mostly Elm was obtained there, and at a later date, Lipscombe says, “The woods of Boveney were sufficient for 60 hogs, there was land for one team which was kept there, with one Villekin (farmer) and a caracate of pasture which was estimated always at 10 shillings.”
as the effort "to stand in the gappe against Puritanisme and Popery, the Scilla and Charybdis of ancient piety."

A sermon preached by him as Canon of Windsor, before the King in 1621, aroused the suspicions of the Puritan party who accused him of supporting the Invocation of Saints. His vindication of the sermon showed that he was not to be daunted by threats, and he wrote to his friend Cosin: "Me temerarium, that provokes enimyes on all sides, Puritans, Papists, Lawyers, hell and all. 'Dulichii Samiique et quos tulit alta Zacynthus, Turba ruunt in me.'

So you heare, so you say . . . . I am redy not only to be bound but §uv Θεω to dye for the church. I shall never faile the church of England but usque ad aras do my best to uphold the doctrine and discipline ther."

Three years later Montague fell into controversy with the Romanists, in consequence of his having found some of their emissaries attempting to make proselytes in his county parish. Fuller says of him, that "his great parts were attended with a tartness of writing; very sharp the nib of his pen, and much gall mingled in his ink, against such as opposed him. However such the equability of the sharpness of his style, he was impartial therein; be he ancient or modern writer, papist or protestant, that stood in his way, they should all equally taste thereof." In speaking of the Roman "Gag for the new Gospel," Montague says, "answere it I have, bitterly and tartly I confesse, which I did purposely, because the asse deserved so to be rub'd." It so happened however that his mode of conducting the controversy infuriated the Puritans even more than his Romanist antagonists, as he surrendered, without a blow, many positions which had hitherto been warmly contested. Like the earlier English Reformers, he appealed to Holy Scripture as interpreted by the Primitive church and General Councils, but he did so with a wider knowledge of Patristic theology than any of them had possessed. He refused to brand the Pope as Antichrist; he defended the use of the sign of the cross, of images, and of auricular confession; and he maintained high views as to the efficacy of the Sacraments.

Montague was protected from his enemies by the influence of the King and by the dissolution of Parliament. His utter repudiation of Calvanism would at one time, have got him into trouble at Court, but, such is the irony of fate, he was appointed Bishop of Chichester in 1628, on the death of Carleton. This was four years after his resignation of the Eton Fellowship."

INTRODUCTION.

It will be noticed that the arms of the Boveney family are the same as the arms of Sir Simon Montacuthe who signed the Baron's letter (compare plates of both arms), except that to the former there have been added three ogresses.

The ogresses may have been added for difference in family, or they may (as it has been expressed by a gentleman in London who bears the name) have been added to mark some deed done at some time, such as a large donation of land to the church, as the church at Boveney bears such a record.

Perhaps they may have been added as a part of the maternal arms of William Montague, son of Robert, for his mother was Margaret, dau. of Roger Cotton. And the Arms of one family of Cotton were, "Argent a bend Sable between three ogresses."

Whatever may have been the origin of these pellets, the fact still remains, that the Boveney family bear the Arms of Sir Simon Montague of A. D. 1300, which Arms were also borne by his son lord William Montacute and by his grandson the first Earl of Salisbury.

Heraldry, or more properly Armory, is the short hand of History, its purpose was to identify persons and property and to record descent and alliance. Hundreds of persons may be entitled to the same initials, may possess precisely the same names; but only the members of a particular family can lawfully bear certain armorial ensigns, and the various branches of even that family have their separate differences to distinguish one from the other.

The Boveney family bear the same name as the descendants of Drogo.

They were residing in A. D. 1500 in the same locality and county of England where the descendants of Drogo had held possession and manors in A. D. 1400 and for centuries before.

They bear the same Arms which alone would seem to silently but surely denote that they are a branch of the same family. Where and when the separation took place is not known, but it would seem whose will was proved A. D. 1550, down to Richard and Peter who went to America, was obtained by Mr. William H. Montague of Boston—one of the founders, and for many years Secretary of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, to whose early labors, in behalf of this work, which date back as far as 1847, the American family must ever be indebted. For he employed at considerable expense H. G. Somerby, Esq., an eminent genealogist, and an American resident in London, who made verbatim copy of the Pedigree of this family from 1550 from the Records in the Herald's College, London, and also went to Boveney, Buckinghamshire, and compared and copied the Parish Records, thus bringing the pedigree down to the year 1634.

probable that the Boveney branch left the main stem, after the year 1300 and before the year 1400, or between those dates, for their Coat of Arms was not in existence until adopted by Sir Simon Montacute A. D. 1300, and had they separated previous to that date, their Arms should have been "Azure a griffin segreant, Or." Again the Arms of the Montagues, after A. D. 1400, who were descended from the 3d Earl of Salisbury, have been quartered with those of the Montermers, which were "an eagle displayed, vert," while the Boveney branch retains the ancient shield of Sir Simon Montacute (1301).

There are several places where such separation seems possible.

At Simon (9th generation from Drogo), who married Hawise de St. Amand and had a son William Montague.

Again at the third and youngest son of the first Earl of Salisbury, namely Robert Montague, of whose history nothing has been found.

The pedigree is clear and perfect from the American branch (1634) back to A. D. 1500 and lacks (from there) two generations, possibly three, to make a perfect record back to the conquest of England, A. D. 1066.

Montagu, a Royal Name.

Many branches of the Montagues in America, have the tradition that the name Montague is a "royal" name. There is some truth in the tradition. The name in England, however, has not only been descended from royalty, but it has a higher and more lofty significance, for the Montagues were the parents and ancestors of Kings.

As it may be of interest to many of the name and blood, to know exactly how the name has been connected with royalty in ancient times, the following has been carefully compiled, and will be found sufficiently complete to justify the tradition.

Sir Simon Montagu, the 8th in lineal descent from Drogo, (the first, of the name in England) married Aufricia, dau. of Fergus, King of the Isle of Man, descended from Orry, King of Denmark. He became in her right King of Man, and both the isle, and the title as King of the isle, descended to his son and grandson.

Sir Edward Montagu, one of the grandsons of Sir Simon, was a great warrior of his day, was Governor of the Castle of Werk, when that Castle endured a memorable siege by King David of Scotland in 1342. He married Alice, dau. of Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Norfolk, son of King Edward I. by his second Queen, Margaret, dau. of Philip III., or the Hardy, of France. He was called Thomas of Brotherton, because he was born at Brotherton in Yorkshire. Having received, with his title of Earl of Norfolk, the Vast Estates of Roger Bigod the last Earl of Norfolk, he was one of the richest men in England, and his Estates were divided at his death between his two daughters [his only children] Margaret and Alice. He was the founder of Reddenhall church, Earsham Hundred, Co. Norfolk, built of free stone, which in 1770 had the finest Tower of any Co. Parish church in England. His younger daughter, Alice, was born in 1323 and married Sir Edward Montagu in 1344. She brought as her marriage portion to Sir Edward, (among other manors) the manors of Reddenhall, and also Ditchingham Hall, Lodden Hund, Norfolk. Their issue was Edward Montague who held Reddenhall Manor in 1360, but died in 1365, and Etheldred his sister possessed the manor. She married in 1390 Sir Hugh Strauley, Kt. The eldest dau. of Edward and Alice Montagu was Joan. In 1360 she was the wife of William de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk. He was the son of Robert Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, who was the son of Robert steward of the King's House under Edward II. by Cecillia de Valoniis, Lady of Orford. William and Joan had four sons, all died by an untimely death, and William de Ufford himself, in 1381, as he was going to report the opinion of the House of Commons in Parliament, suddenly fell down dead as he was going up stairs to the Upper House.

Margaret, the other dau. of Thomas of Brotherton, and sister of the Lady Alice Montagu, was called Lady Marshall and Countess of Norfolk, she was created Duchess of Norfolk for life, by King Richard II. She married John, lord Segrave, with whom she lived unhappily and traveled all the way to Rome to see the Pope and obtain a divorce. She married (2) Sir Walter Manney, Knight of the Garter, and died March 24, 1399. By her first marriage, Thomas, lord Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk in 1401, was her grandson; he was beheaded at York, with Richard Scrope Archbishop of Canterbury in 1405, but from him was descended the Lady Anne Bolin, wife of King Henry VIII. and mother of Queen Elizabeth. Anne Bolin was thus lineally descended from King Edward I. She was also a Montagu, by the following line of descent: Anne, dau. of Sir John Montagu, 3d Earl of Salisbury, married Sir Richard Hankford and had a dau. Anne, who married Thomas Butler, 7th Earl of Ormond, whose dau. Margaret became the wife of William Bolin, and the mother of Sir Thomas Bolin who was the father of Anne Bolin wife of King Henry VIII. and mother of Queen Elizabeth. This Queen was then of Montague blood both through her father Henry VIII. and also through her mother Anne Bolin. The following is from Hasted's Hist. of Co. Kent, Vol. XI., p. 92: "Queen Elizabeth was in 1561 presented with a pair of silk stockings by her silk woman, Mrs. Montague, and afterward she never wore cloth ones again." Who this Mrs. Montague was it is difficult to say but it is known that Sir Edward Montagu, Chief Justice of the King's Bench and Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, was one of the Executors of the will of King Henry VIII. and also guardian of his son Edward who succeeded him as King Edward VI. This Edward Montague was three times married, and the father of seventeen children.

The elder brother of Sir Edward Montagu (who married Alice) was Sir William Montagu, Ambassador to the Pope, Baron of Denbeigh, Governor of Sherburn and Corfe Castles, Governor of the isles of Guernsey, Jersey, Sark and Alderney, Constable of the Tower of London, and had his crest of an eagle given him by the King*. See Note. Admiral of the fleet, Earl of Salisbury, Ambassador to the Duke of Bavaria, Appointed Earl Marshall of England for life, King of Man, Member of Parliament, and one of the founders of the Royal Order of Knights of the Garter. This great man married Catherine, dau. of William, lord Grandison, descended out of Burgundy, cousin german to the Emperor of Constantinople, the King of Hungary and Duke of Bavaria. She was a lady of great beauty, and history records that she was as good as she was beautiful. Upon one occasion while attending a feast at Windsor Castle she was dancing with King Edward III. and lost her garter which the King took up from the floor. Some of the Nobles that stood around were seen to smile, whereupon the King remarked "that the time should shortly come

* The crest of Edward III. was a lion, which has remained the Royal Crest to the present day. The Eagle was a crest which Edward III. distinguishes as his own personal decoration and the granting of it to William Montague was a neat compliment, and kind expression of regard and royal favor, on the part of the King.

The Earl Montague, with that delicate sense of honor and the fitness of things which has distinguished the Montagues from that period to the present, immediately re-granted the Eagle crest with great form, to the Young Prince Lionel, his godson, son of the King, and afterward, that Duke of Clarence whose daughter married the Earl Montague's grandson.
when the greatest honor imaginable should be paid to that Garter.”

Thus originated the Royal order of the Knights of the Garter with its motto in French “Honi soit que mal y pense.” This order consisted of 26 Knights, and the mightiest Princes of Christendom have reputed it a very great honor to be chosen as a member.

Lady Sibyl Montagu, eldest dau. of this great Earl of Salisbury, married Edmund, son of Edmund Earl of Arundel. He was of royal blood being descended through Hamlyn Plantagenet and thence from William the Conquerer through his dau. Gundred.

Lady Philippa Montagu, second dau. and sister of Sibyl, married Roger Mortimer Earl of March. He was son of Edmund, and grandson of that Roger Mortimer Earl of March who was put to death by Edward III. as related in another part of this introduction. The son of Lady Philippa Montague by this marriage, also named Edmund Earl of March, married Philippa, only daughter of Lionel, Duke of Clarence, [third son of King Edward III.] by Lady Elizabeth de Burgh, dau. of William Earl of Ulster. Their son Roger Mortimer Earl of March was direct heir to the Crown of England and was designed by King Richard as his successor, but he died before the King, leaving issue Edmund and Anne. Edmund was thrown into prison by King Henry IV. who had usurped the Government, and feared Edmund’s title to the Crown, where he died of grief and discontent, leaving his sister Anne to inherit the Crown. Lady Anne Mortimer married Richard Plantagenet, Earl of Cambridge son of Edmund of Langley who was the fifth son of King Edward III. They had an only son, Richard Plantagenet, Duke of York, Protector of England, who fell at the battle of Wakefield 1460, leaving the following children (all of Montagu blood) by his wife Cicily, dau. of Ralph Nevill, Earl of Westmoreland, viz.: Edward IV. King of England; Edmund Earl of Rutland, slain at Wakefield when only 12 years old; George Duke of Clarence who married Isabel, grand dau. of Alice Montague [dau. of Gen’l Thomas Montagu] and was drowned in a barrel of wine; Richard III., King of England; Anne, married to the Duke of Exeter; Margaret, married to Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy; and Elizabeth, married to John De-La-Pole, Duke of Suffolk, who had by her, two sons; John, Earl of Lincoln, Lord Lieut. of Ireland, who was declared heir to the Crown by King Richard III. but lost his life in the battle of Stoke, 1487; Edmund Delapole who succeeded his father as Duke of Suffolk in 1491. He being an heir to the Crown was artfully secured in the Tower by King Henry VII. and at last was beheaded in 1513 by Henry VIII.

The Princess Elizabeth, dau of King Edward IV., of Montagu blood as above stated, married Henry Tudor, Earl of Richmond, who became Henry VII., King of England, thus uniting the Houses of Lancaster and York, the red rose and the white. She became the mother of King Henry VIII.; also the mother of Margaret, married to King James, IV. of Scotland, who became the grandmother of Mary Queen of Scots; and also the mother of Elizabeth, married to Lewis the XII, King of France. Thus from the marriage of Philippa Montagu to the Earl of March, there was descended a long line of royal personages that includes the Kings and Queens of England more remote of course, to the present day.

Sir William Montagu, eldest son of the great Earl of Salisbury, became the second Earl of Salisbury at the death of his father. He married Joan, dau. of Edmund Plantagenet Earl of Kent, 3d son of King Edward I. This great Earl of Kent, and son of a King, was beheaded at Winchester in 1380, after he had remained upon the scaffold from noon until five o'clock in the evening, waiting for an executioner; he was so loved by the people that no one was willing to undertake the horrid office, till a malefactor from the Marshalsea was procured to perform it. His daughter Joan was a lady of incomparable beauty, and on account of her extraordinary beauty was styled "the Fair Maid of Kent." She did not long remain the wife of William Montagu, however, for Sir Thomas Holland sent a petition to Pope Clement VI. alleging that he had a prior contract from her, and that the Earl of Salisbury unjustly withheld her from him, whereupon the Pope gave judgment against the Earl, and the "Fair Maid of Kent" was transferred to Sir Thomas Holland who was soon after beheaded, and she became the wife of that immortal hero Edward the Black Prince, eldest son of King Edward III. and by him she became the mother of King Richard II. William Montagu, after his divorce from the "Fair Maid of Kent," married Elizabeth, dau. of John Lord Mohun, one of the Founders of the Knights of the Garter. She was sister of Philippa de Mohun who married Edward Plantagenet, 2d Duke of York, son of Edmund of Langley, 5th son of Edward III. The Lady Mohun, mother of the above Elizabeth, obtained from her husband so much good ground for the common, or park, of the town of Dunstoe, as she could in one day compass about, going on her naked feet.

Sir John Montagu, [brother of Philippa Montagu who married the Earl of March], was Steward of the Household of King Richard II. He was buried in Salisbury Cathedral. He married Margaret, dau. of Thomas Monthermer, grand dau. of Joan of Acres, dau. of King Edward I. Joan of Acres was so called because she was born at Acon in the Holy Land. She was the dau. of Edward I. by Eleanor, dau. of Ferdinand III. of Spain. There is a romance connected with the marriage of Joan of Acres. She married first, Gilbert de Claire the red Earl of Gloucester, after his death she secretly married Ralph de Mont-Hermer who occupied an inferior position in the King's household. The King, her father, was very angry, threw Ralph into prison, but finally forgave him and made him Earl of Gloucester. Their son Thomas was slain in a sea fight in 1340, leaving one only dau. Margaret who became the wife of Sir John Montagu as above stated. Margaret died March 24, 1394, leaving three sons and four daughters. Two of the daughters became nuns; of the third son Richard Montagu no record has been found. The second son Thomas became Dean of Salisbury and was buried in the Chapel of the Virgin Mary in Salisbury Cathedral. The eldest son Sir John Montagu, became the 3d Earl of Salisbury, and was Earl Marshall of England but at last beheaded. His eldest son Sir Thomas Montagu, Knight of the Garter, became the greatest General of his age. He was the 4th and last Earl of Salisbury and he became such a terror to the French that upon one occasion the entire French army, including the King of France, were put to flight by the mere cry being raised that "Le-Salisbury is coming!" He married Eleanor dau. of Thomas Holland, Earl of Kent, she was a grand-daughter of the "Fair Maid of Kent." By this marriage he had an only child, a daughter Alice Montagu who married Richard Nevill Earl of Salisbury in her right, and she became the mother of that great Earl of Warwick called the "King-maker" and "Whirlwind of England," also of John Nevill Marquis of Montagu. She was the grandmother of Isabel, wife of George Duke of Clarence, and of Anne, wife first of Edward son of Henry VI., second, of King Richard III. From her also was descended Edward Earl of Warwick, beheaded at the age of 15 by Henry VII.; Margaret Countess of Salisbury, beheaded at the age of 70 by Henry VIII., Cardinal Reginald Poole, who was.

...elected Pope at Rome, and others. Among the descendants of Philippa Montagu not mentioned above, were the two young Princes, sons of King Edward IV., smothered in the Tower of London by order of their Uncle King Richard III. They were Edward, born in the Sanctuary at Westminster and proclaimed King Edward V. [but never crowned] at the death of his father, though only eleven years old; and Richard Duke of York, born at Shrewsbury.

Various branches of the Montagues in America have the name in their families of "Mary Wortley" or the name "Wortley" among some of their children. It is derived from the celebrated literary lady in England—the lady Mary Wortley Montagu. It becomes of interest, in connection with this work, to know something of this lady, to what family of Montague she was a member, and in what way the Wortleys were connected with the Montagues. On the river Don, in the West-riding of Yorkshire is the town of Wortley, the ancient seat of that family; the male issue of which expired in Sir Francis Wortley, who devised the greatest part of his estate to Anne Newcomen, supposed to be his natural daughter, [Camden p. 723.] She married Sidney Montagu, second son of Edward first Earl of Sandwich, and brother of Edward Montagu the second Earl of Sandwich. In right of his wife he became lord of Wortley and took the name of Wortley. They had only one son (who lived to manhood) whose name was Edward Wortley Montagu; he was lord of the Treasury in 1714, also was Ambassador in Turkey and died in 1762. He was a gentleman of great political knowledge and influence, and distinguished not only as an eloquent and upright member of parliament, but as a friend of Addison. He married in 1712 Lady Mary, eldest dau. of Evelyn Pierrepont, Earl and Duke of Kingston. This lady became the celebrated lady Mary Wortley Montagu. Her mother was Mary dau. of William Fielding 3d Earl of Denbigh by a dau. of Sir Robert King, widow of Sir William Meredith. She was not of Montagu descent as far as can be traced. She was born in 1690, received a very learned education in the Greek and Latin classics. In 1716 she accompanied her husband in his embassy to Constantinople. To her discernment, Europe is indebted for the introduction of smallpox by inoculation, but before she recommended it she made the first experiment upon her own son, and its success proved the means of disseminating the blessings and the continuation of life to thousands. Upon her return to England she became a great friend of the poet Pope. The letters of Lady Montagu appeared before the public in 1763. She possessed great talent, and inexhaustible powers of language. She died in 1762, leaving one dau. Mary Montagu, Baroness Mountstuart, married to John Stuart, Earl of Bute; and one only son Edward Wortley Montagu. He was remarkable for his eccentricities. He ran away from school and became a chimney sweep, was restored by accident to his parents, but again he left them to join himself to a fisherman, after which he embarked as a cabin boy for Spain, and hired himself there as a servant to a muleteer. Here he was discovered and prevailed upon to return to his friends, who placed him under the care of a tutor, and with him he visited many foreign countries. On his return he was elected member of parliament, and conducted himself with a propriety becoming his birth and fortune. But soon he again embarked for the East. At Constantinople, he adopted the dress and the manners of the Turks; he kept a numerous seraglio of wives, he sat cross-legged, he wore a long beard, and behaved with all the pomp of oriental consequence. He died in Italy in 1776 aged about 62. He was an author of books of merit—among them, An Examination into the Causes of Earthquakes—Observations on the Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire—Account of the Mountains of Arabia—besides some interesting papers inserted in the Philosophical transactions.

Origin and Antiquity of the Name Montague.

The name came into England in the year 1066 from Normandy, and originated in the Latin de monte acuto, meaning "of or from a sharp or pointed mountain" [a mountain peak]. It has been written in various forms as de Monte Acuto, Monteacuto, Montacute, Montagute, Montaigut, Montagu, Montagu, Mountagu, Mountage, Montague. There is a mountain in the Pyrenees of considerable height called Montacuto. In the Department of Aisne, in France, may be seen the ruins of an old feudal Castle, named Montaigu, situated in a town of the same name. This castle was an important fortress in the tenth century. It was besieged and taken by Louis d'Outre-mer in 948, was twice captured by the English, once in 1375 and again in 1424, and was finally taken by Charles VI. in 1444. There was also a strong fortress of the name of Montaigu, in Vendee, that was twice besieged in the uprising of 1793. There are several other places in France bearing the name of Montaigu; but that from which the English family sprang was Montagu-les-Bois, in the district of Coutances, in Normandy. Of this place one writer says, “Its ancient lords were famous in the middle ages.” In France there were Lords of Montagu, Counts of Chalon, and Eudes; there was Pierre Guerin de Montaigu, Grand Master of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem in 1208; there was Gilles Aycelin de-Montaigut, Archbishop of Rouen, and the founder of the college of Montagu at Paris, which existed from 1314 till about 1850. Two brothers of the family of this Archbishop attained the dignity of Cardinals. The name Montagu is a word of three syllables, pronounced Mont-a-gue, and has no connection with the name of two syllables Mon-Tague, which is a corruption of the Irish name of Mac Teague, meaning the son of Teague. Montague, a thousand years ago in Normandy was spelled Montagu. In the Doomsday book of William the Conqueror (1066) it is spelled Montagud, the “d” silent. The early generations in England spelled the name in Latin, Montacute. This was caused Camden says, on account of continuous wars with France, there was a hatred of anything that was French. In English records of the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries, the name is often printed Mountague. In early records in America and upon tombstones it is spelled Mountague. Co. records of Spotts and Orange Va., have the name Mountague and Montecue. The name of Peter Montague on the Va. Muster roll of 1624 is spelled Petter Montecue. [Montecue and Montigue are simply a mis-spell.] The old Peerages in England have the name variously, Mountague, Montague and Montagu. The titled families however have invariably spelled the name Montagu. This includes the Viscounts Montagu, the Dukes of Montagu, the Earls of Halifax and Sandwich and the Dukes of Manchester, and they undoubtedly have the most ancient way of spelling it. The final “e,” as the name is commonly spelled, adds nothing to it, though from long usage one may be as correct as the other.
INTRODUCTION.

BOVENEY CHURCHYARD.

The following beautiful description of the Ancient Church at Boveney, where the ancestors of Peter Montague worshiped, and of the ancient graveyard where their remains repose, is taken from "The Book of the Thames," by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Hall, London, 1859, and is appropriate in this place as well as worthy of preservation.

"Before we reach Windsor, however, we pass through Boveney Lock. There was a fishery here from a very early period; and it is recorded in the annals of Windsor that, in 1201, William, the son of Richard de Windsor, gave two marks to the king, in order that the pool and fishery in Boveney might be in the state it was wont to be during the reign of Henry II. The men of this, and all other villages near Windsor, were accustomed to give toll at Windsor of all their merchandise. When Eton College was building, Boveney and Maidenhead contributed their share of elm-tree wood for its construction. The village is still but a small group of cottages, retaining very primitive features. Let us step ashore for a brief while, to visit yon 'wee' church, half hidden among lofty trees; it is the CHURCH OF BOVENEY, and is the last of its class we shall encounter; for, although we may meet some more aged and many more picturesque, there will be none along the banks of the great river that so thoroughly represent the homely and unadorned fanes where the simple villagers have been taught to worship. It is very small, and of the most primitive construction, consisting of four walls merely, the chancel end being railed off by wood-work. The font is large and simple in character, and there are traces of early mediaeval work in the external walls; the pulpit is Elizabethan, but the open seats of oak may be much earlier; the roof is arched, but has originally been supported by open timber-work,—the cross-beams now alone remain. We have engraved the interior as an example of one of our sacred edifices, where, through many ages, sate

"The rude forefathers of the hamlet."

After inspecting the interior, and wondering why so small a church was ever built, we returned to the churchyard, and stood for some little time beneath the shadow of a glorious old tree, whose boughs and foliage formed a protection against rain or sunshine. The old withered woman who had opened the church-door followed, and regretted the gentry should be disappointed, as there was 'nothing to see.’ We differed from her, saying there was a great deal that interested us,—could anything be more picturesque or beautiful than the churchyard? She shook her head. ‘The churchyard was thick with graves, some with stones and some without, like any other place of the sort—a poor, melancholy place it was. She thought it so lonely and miserable, and yet sketchers were always making pictures of it; and she had seen a printed book once with a picture of it, and its history all done into print. She could not but think the gentry had very little to write about. Yes, there were stories about those who lay there—many stories. There was a story of two brothers—wicked men, she called them—who died, she could not well tell how; and as to the things cut upon tombstones, she set no count by such grand words—she knew her own know! People could get anything they liked cut on stones if they paid for it. There was a cold, proud man who lived at the Hall when she was a child—a bad, cruel man; his shadow would wither up the young grass, and the look of his eye was as bad as a curse. He died, as he had lived, full up of bitter riches: he was not buried in this churchyard—it was not grand enough for him—but in a fine new one, where so much was put on his tomb about his charity—he who would steal a halfpenny out of a blind man’s hat—about his justice, who would rob a foot off the highway to add to his own field—about his being a meek Christian!’ the woman laughed, scornfully; ‘meek! meek! the haughty reprobate! Well, a poor little lad, who had but too good reason to know the falsity of the whole, from first to last, wrote under it, ‘It’s all lies!’ and though every one in the place said the lad was a true lad, and a brave lad, yet he lost his situation, and not one in the place dared give him food or shelter, so he left the neighborhood did the lad; but as sure as that sun is shining above us, so sure is there One who sifts the tares from the wheat—yes, indeed, the tares from the wheat. And I forget how it was, for I married out of the village, and just came back ten years ago, like a crow to the old nest—only he grew rich, through honest labour; and his son is in the Hall now; and the great tombstone was cleared away, and nothing to be seen now but a broad slab, with never a word on it, over the bad man’s dust and ashes.’

She was a strange, weird-looking old creature, with odds and ends of information: like an artist who can paint a distance, but not a foreground, the past was with her light and bright enough, but the present was already her grave—she could tell us nothing of the present. She still leant against the old tree, and we were so soothed by the silence and tranquility of the scene, that we lingered among the tombs, when suddenly we heard a quick, light step behind us, and before we could turn around to ascertain whence it came, a thin hand rested on our arm, and a pale face, the lips parted over white and glittering teeth, and the eyes, deep sunk and restless, were advanced so close to our own that we started back almost in terror. 'Can you tell me the grave?' she inquired eagerly, but in a low voice: 'oh! if you know it, do tell me! I know he is buried here—they all own that, but they will not tell me where; do tell me—I am sure you will—come, make haste!'

The lady was dressed in faded mourning, the crape was drawn and crumpled, and the widow's cap beneath her bonnet did not conceal a quantity of fair hair, which looked the fairer from being streaked with grey.

'What grave?' we inquired of the pale, panting little creature, who wrung her hands impatiently, 'what grave?'

'Oh! you know—my husband's! Round and round, across, along—from the first tap of the reveillé to the last drum-roll at night, I seek his grave. I throw myself down and talk to the dead and buried, but they tell me to let them alone: and they say he is not here, but I know he is. We went out in the same ship and returned in the same ship, so we must be both here, you know. We went out in the same ship,' she repeated, mournfully, 'and they buried him here. Oh! have pity—have pity, and help me to find his grave!' She hurried us on, pointing to each green mound we passed—'It is not that, nor that, nor that—no, no! do not look at the tombstones, there was no time to put one up—the enemy was too fast on us for that!' She cast herself on her knees beside a grave close to a bank, murmuring 'Charles!' into the long grass, and holding up her finger to indicate that we should keep silence, expecting an answer.

At the instant a tall, venerable gentleman entered the lonely graveyard—'Jane, my child—my darling,' he said, tenderly, 'here again! Come, my child, we can look for the grave to-morrow.' The old man's eyes were filled with tears; but she did not heed him, murmuring amid the grass. 'Forgive her,' he said, 'my poor child's mind wanders: her husband was killed at Inkerman, and she fancies he is buried where they were married!' It required some little force to raise her from the sward, and then, after a little struggle, he raised her in his arms, her head resting quietly on his shoulder—the large tree the next moment hid them from our sight.”

The Grave of Peter Montague.

In the year 1849 William Henry Montague of Boston, one of the founders of the N. E. Historical Genealogical Society of Boston, being much interested in Montague family history, held a lengthy correspondence with two representative Virginia Montague gentlemen namely, the late Judge Robert L. Montague of Middlesex and the late Col. E. T. Montague, then of the Treasury Dept. at Washington. Judge R. L. Montague was at that time residing in Lancaster Co. on the road that leads from Monaskon wharf to Lancaster C. H. and in one of his letters to Wm. H. Montague, he stated that he had visited the grave of Peter Montague which was situated on the north bank of the river Rappahannock in Lancaster, that the tombstone was standing, though much defaced by the hand of time. And he added that other tombstones there indicated the marriage of the Montagues with the Balls and it was possible that Washington may have been of Montague descent as such a tradition existed in his family. Miss Mary Montague of Granby, Mass., was at that time compiling a history of the Montague family and Wm. H. Montague of Boston sent to her copies of his correspondence with these Southern Montague gentlemen. She died in 1880 leaving her work unfinished and her manuscript was sent to the compiler of the present work by her executor. He thus obtained the knowledge of Peter Montague’s grave. His subsequent searches into the Va. Montague records of the past, assured him that only one marriage had taken place between the Montagues and Balls, and he felt confident that if a tombstone could be found indicating such marriage, the grave of Peter Montague would also be found near by, on the testimony of Judge Montague who said it was near a stone that indicated a Montague and Ball marriage. Therefore on his visit to Lancaster in June, 1893, he made an effort to find such a spot. After inquiry, the compiler of this work learned that there was but one spot known to any one now living in the Co. where there were Montague graves. In company with Mr. Walter Gresham, the postmaster of Lancaster, he went to that spot, situated in what appeared to be a primeval forest. On arrival he first saw the well defined outline of the foundation ruins of an old colonial dwelling house. This foundation is of brick, and the bricks are twice as large as modern bricks, showing that they were the kind made by the first settlers. Knowing the custom [which still exists in Va.] of burying their dead in the rear of their dwelling and not in a general graveyard, he began a search of the ground in the rear of the ruins of the old colonial house, and soon found lying on the ground, broken into fragments, (some of the pieces missing) the headstone with the inscription, "Here lies the body of Mrs. Hannah Montague wife of William Montague and daughter of Capt. Richard and Sarah Ball." Near by were the headstones of Capt. Richard Ball, 1726; of Sarah Selden, dau. of Capt. Richard Ball [and sister of Hannah Montague]; and of John Selden her husband. All of these stones were dark slate color, and lay upon the ground broken in pieces. Here then was a stone indicating a Montague and Ball marriage, the grave of Peter OUGHT to be near here. After a further search a well defined grave was found some yards distant, heavily bricked with a solid cube of colonial bricks extending apparently deep in the ground, but not above it, and laid in mortar. Deeply imbedded in this masonry there had originally been an upright stone, which was now broken off close to the foundation, and lay face down upon the ground, while on top of it, covering it up was a large fallen tree much decayed but heavy. This stone was white or gray, showed great age, had become decayed through age, so that it had in places crumbled into small flakes, that lay about it. It was so aged, that with a little handling it would crumble all to pieces, and from its position imbedded in colonial bricks it is beyond all doubt the grave of a first settler. It is different in material from the stones of 1726 and at first sight of it, the mind is convinced of its antiquity. Mr. Eugene George of Lancaster, a most kind and courteous young gentleman, kindly volunteered to get horses and a man and have that large log removed from the stone, which was done, but it was found that any inscription upon it had been entirely obliterated, and the stone had cleaved off in flakes from extreme old age. Nothing whatever was upon it to identify it. There are no other graves in that locality. The writer learned that when
INTRODUCTION.

Judge Montague wrote that letter in 1849, he was residing in the Co. of Lancaster only seven miles from this very spot, and that the road from his house to the village of Lancaster ran within 300 yards of this spot, and that every time he visited the centre he passed within 300 yards of it. Taking this fact in connection with the fact that no other ancient Montague graves are known in the Co. and that this spot agrees with what he wrote about Montague and Ball marriage, and that one grave and only one of a first settler is there, there seems to be no room for doubt that this is the place he visited in 1849, and that upon his testimony, the old grave is that of Peter Montague, because he was at that time able to read the inscription, though he then said it was much defaced by time. The probability that this is Peter’s grave is as strong as anything can be without the actual inscription on the stone to prove it. The evidence is convincing when it is remembered that there was only one marriage between the Montagues and Balls, namely that of this Hannah, dau. of Capt. Richard Ball, and when Judge Montague wrote in 1849 that he visited Peter’s grave, found the headstone standing but defaced by time and referred to another stone there which proved a marriage between Montague and Ball, this is the place he visited, if it was not, how could he have mentioned the Montague and Ball tombstone? In other words, the identification of Hannah (Ball) Montague’s grave also identifies Peter’s grave, although the headstone has become so obliterated it cannot be read. Some doubter may say, how do you account for the burial of Peter Montague on a Ball plantation? The opinion of the compiler is that the spot was a plantation of Capt. Richard Ball, but not an original Ball homestead. The following is the evidence to support it. Capt. Richard Ball in his will, bequeaths as follows: “To my dau. Sarah Selden I give the plantation where I now live and all the land below the road from Col. Wm. Ball’s to Cundiff’s; to my dau. Margaret Ball I give my plantation and land at the mouth of Carotoman river; to my dau. Hannah [Montague] I give my old plantation and all the land above the road from Col. Wm. Ball’s to Cundiff’s.” Here we have three estates, the plantation at Carotoman, the old plantation, and the new one, where he lived when he made his will and where he died. This new plantation was evidently a purchase, the old Ball homesteads were at Carotoman 17 miles distant. Records also prove, that as early as 1700 the two sons of Peter had left Lancaster and were living on, or near Mon-
INTRODUCTION.

...and the evidence is that they had sold the Lancaster property and that Capt. Richard Ball had become the subsequent owner of it. This explains why Peter's grave and the grave of Capt. Ball are on the same plantation. This purchase now contains the graves of Capt. Richard Ball, his daughters Sarah Selden and Hannah Montague, John Selden husband of Sarah, and the tomb of Peter Montague, and was the place where Peter Montague lived, died, and was buried 67 years before. Capt. Richard Ball's tomb is accounted for there because it is the place where he lived at the time of his death. John and Sarah Selden's graves are accounted for there because Capt. Richard gave the place to them in his will and it was their home. Peter Montague's grave is accounted for there, because either Capt. Richard Ball (or his father) had purchased the place where Peter Montague lived, died, and was buried. Hannah [Ball] Montague's grave is accounted for there because she was buried by the side of her father Capt. Ball. Her own plantation given her by her father was not far distant and, as this compiler understands it, was separated from that of her sister Sarah, only by the road which now passes from Lancaster to Heathville [vide the will]. The compiler takes no credit to himself in this matter beyond identifying the spot visited by Judge Montague in 1849. All the honor of finding the grave of Peter, the English Emigrant, belongs to the late Judge Montague of Middlesex, and to his honored memory which is revered by us all. He not only found it, but left a record by which it was possible to identify it. The spot is located half a mile from Lancaster, C. H. Take the road to Heathville [Co. seat of Northumberland] for half a mile, then turn into an old wood road on your left, which follow for 300 yards into the woods and you will reach the place. Merry Point on the Rappahannock is the nearest point for Lancaster C. H. The Weems line of steamers from Baltimore and Fredericksburg stop at Merry Point, where there is a conveyance to Lancaster, C. H., five miles distant. The old grave is only a pleasant walk or ride of half a mile from the hotel. The locality is one of great historical interest to the antiquary. Only a pleasant ride in one direction to ancient Christ Church built by King Carter, and in another direction to the White Chapel Church, with old gravestones around about, and both relics of a bygone age.
A tradition has existed for fifty years or more, that George Washington was of Montague descent, through his mother Mary Ball. It probably originated from the fact that William Montague married, 1727, a dau. of Capt. Richard Ball, who was Mary Ball’s cousin [their fathers were brothers]. This subject has been thoroughly investigated by Rev. Horace E. Hayden in his Va. Genealogies, published Wilkes-Barre, Pa., 1891. The compiler also has made a thorough search, and left no means untried to obtain the truth. The result is, that the only place where such descent could be possible, was through Mary Ball’s mother who was, before Col. Ball married her, a Mrs. Mary Johnson, a widow, of Lancaster Co., Va. A tradition exists in the Ball family that Mrs. Mary Johnson was born in England. This tradition has been traced to Mrs. Ann Shearman, whose mother was Esther Ball, the half sister of Mary Ball. If it is true, that she was born in England, then—any descent from Peter Montague was impossible. No record has been found to show the maiden name of Mrs. Mary Johnson, or who she was before her marriage to Johnson. If she was a Miss Montague, she would have to be a daughter of one of the sons of the emigrant Peter Montague. One of his sons did have a daughter whose name was Mary Montague, but church records prove that she married, Oct. 24, 1682, Thomas Payne, and no record exists to show that she ever afterward married any one else. Records of that time and locality are lost, and the maiden name of Mrs. Mary Johnson [Washington’s grandmother] will probably never be known.
PETER MONTAGUE

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

FIRST GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

I.

Peter Montague, was the son of Peter and Eleanor Montague of Boveney, in parish of Burnham, Buckinghamshire, England. His mother, Eleanor, was the daughter of William Allen of Burnham in the same parish. Peter was born in 1603. He was an elder brother of Richard Montague, the ancestor of the New England Montagues. [See pedigree chart in the Introduction, where the pedigree of Peter’s family in England will be found in full.] Boveney, the place where Peter was born, is a small hamlet, picturesquely situated on the river Thames, twenty-three miles above London, three miles from Eton college, that was founded in 1440 by Henry VI., while on the opposite side of the river in Berkshire is Windsor Castle, the residence of the Kings and Queens of England for the past 900 years. In this vicinity the ancestors of Peter had resided, probably for 200 years before his birth. Here his childhood and youth were passed, and here he probably obtained a fair education, though there is no record that he was ever a member of Eton college. His uncle William Montague was a fellow of Kings college, Cambridge, and also of Eton. Richard Montague, the celebrated divine, and bishop of Norwich, was his father’s cousin. Peter’s family consisted of his parents, an elder brother William, two, younger than himself—Richard and Robert—and three sisters, Elizabeth, Anne and Margaret. His father was an agriculturist, or was engaged in raising sheep, cattle, hogs, &c. This County was celebrated at that time for its beech trees, the nuts of which were said to be very nutritious for the feeding of swine, that roamed through the woods at will. At the age of 18 years Peter emigrated to Virginia, in America. What motive led him to this step is not known. The oppressions of royalty, which at a later date sent so many to America, had not then begun. The Kingdom was at peace with all the world, and the King was loved by his people. There is a tradition* in one branch of Peter's descendants which can be traced back as far as 1730, to the effect that "Peter was 'rather wild,' that he ran away from home, went to America, and not being 'in funds' had not the cash to pay for his passage and was sold for his passage money. The first half-day's work he did ruined his hands so that he had to rest. To pass the time he began to read his master's books, who caught him reading Latin, and soon obtained for him the position of a school teacher." The record of Peter's life in Va. rather precludes the idea that he

* This tradition is traced to Latané Montague, son of Abraham of Essex Co., who was born about 1731, and if he received it from his father it would carry the date of it to A. D. 1700. It was a custom in the early settlement of America to sell political prisoners from England for a term of years by auction. There seems to be an impression that Virginia was settled by convicts from England. No tradition ever existed which has so little foundation in fact. It has been stated that Hotten's Emigrant Lists were responsible for the tradition. We have examined Hotten's lists but do not find a single record showing that prisoners of any kind were sent there from England. The English used the Island of Barbadoes in the West Indies for the safe keeping of political prisoners, just as St. Helena was selected for Bonaparte. There is a difference between a convict and a political offender such as Hotten calls "convicted rebels." Charles I., Anne Bolin, Mary Queen of Scots, the first Napoleon, and hundreds of other royal personages have been political prisoners. At the time of the Monmouth rebellion, 1685, England sent a large number of "rebels" convicted of being concerned in that rebellion, to Barbadoes, men and women alike, many were the gentry, or persons brought up and nurtured in refinement and wealth. On the arrival of each ship these unfortunate prisoners were sold by auction for a term of years varying from five to ten years and the miseries inflicted upon them have never been half told, delicately reared ladies often were made to work in the fields. Those who lived to serve their time out were granted a ticket to go where they pleased. A few such went to Virginia and New England but the greater proportion of them went to St. Christopher, and other islands, and back to England. Every such record in Hotten's lists has been copied, with the result that "convicted rebels" who served their time out, who went to New England, [mostly to Boston] were 94; those who went to Virginia were 59; those who went to Carolina were 36. Thus as many went to New England as to both Va. and Carolina combined.

A study of the various Co. histories of England, and of the early emigration to both Va. and New England, will show that the early emigrants of Virginia and New England, for the most part bore the same names, came from the same English Counties, and that the ancestry of both will meet in those English Counties. Surely no people can have a stronger claim to the same ancestry.

Most, if not all of the early Va. settlers left England in a legal manner, that is they took the oath of allegiance to the King and brought certificates from their ministers that they were loyal to the Church of England. After the accession of Charles I. to the throne, there was a large emigration, mostly to New England, caused by excessive and unjust taxation. The "Ship Money" tax drove thousands to New England. They were "subsidy men" that is, men liable to the payment of a subsidy to the Crown, and of this the "ship money" was the most hateful. These men would not take the oath of allegiance and supremacy, and must have left secretly, and of such no record of departure would exist. It has not been found that any of this emigration went to Va. Hotten's Lists record only those who came legally and the larger part of the work is a record of St. Christopher, Barbadoes, and Virginia.
was “wild” to any alarming extent. If he ran away, records at least show that he was among those who came to America openly and in a legal manner. The record is that he was “duly examined by the Minister at Gravesend [Eng.] touching his conformitie to the orders and discipline of the Church of England and took the oath of allegiance and supremicie to the King.” It is true he was under age, being only 18, and it is also true that no schools were founded until the arrival of the company with whom he came. It is quite possible that he may have been one of the founders of the first school established in Virginia.

The ancient name of Virginia appears to have been Wingandacoa, it received the name of Virginia in honor of England’s Virgin Queen—Elizabeth. She died March 24, 1602-3 which was the same year that Peter Montague was born. This Queen was of Montague descent through her grandmother Elizabeth, dau. of Edward IV. On the same day and year of her death James the VI. of Scotland was proclaimed James the First, King of England. He too was of Montague descent through both his mother, Mary Queen of Scots, and his father, Henry lord Dernly*. It was during the reign of this King James, and under his special care and protection, that the first Colony was established in Virginia.

Little could even the most sanguine of the early emigrants to America have contemplated the subsequent effect which their action would work upon the world’s history. Many of them were men of small means but they possessed large hearts and consciences. They were the seed grains from which the mighty Republic has sprung. Virginia was first visited by Sir Walter Raleigh in the year 1584; to whom the first Letters Patent were granted for making a Plantation there. But no Colony was sent thither till the year 1606. The first to any purpose was in the year 1607, under the conduct of Capt. Gosnoll, John Smith, and Mr. Edward Maria Wingfield who carried a colony thither of 100 persons, but of these many died of sickness, or were slain by the savages. A new supply came in the year 1608, of a hundred and twenty persons under the conduct of Captain Nelson. After which was sent another supply of three score and ten persons, and in the year 1609,* a third supply came, of five hundred persons under a Patent granted to Sir Thomas West, lord Delaware, but conducted thither by Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Summers, and others. In the year 1611 was a fourth supply of three hundred men under the conduct of Sir Thomas Gates. In the year 1612 two other supplies were sent of forty men in each. In the year 1618 Lord Delaware came, with a supply of two hundred people and soon after he died there. In 1620 eleven ships were sent over with twelve hundred and sixteen persons, and now they founded themselves into Corporations. In the year 1621 Sir Francis Wyatt came over as Governor of the Colony, in company with thirteen hundred men, women and children, and now they founded schools and courts of justice; and the plantation was extended 140 miles up, on both sides of the James river. With this company was Peter Montague. He came in the ship “Charles” and landed in Virginia in the month of November, 1621. The following persons came in the same ship at the same time and were his fellow passengers: Randall Crew age 17, John Hely age 21, Robert Manuell [or Mannell] age 22, William Lusam age 24, William Field age 20, Roger Ruce age —, Adam Thorogood age 15, Niccolas Browne age 15. Three years later two of these persons, William Lusam and William Field are found to be engaged upon the same plantation with Peter.

* Edmund Mortimer Earl of March, grandson of William Montague, by his dau. Philippa married Philippa, dau. of Lionel Duke of Clarence, son of King Edward III. From this marriage was descended Edward IV. King of England and a long line of royal personages. Mary Queen of Scots and her husband lord Dernly were cousins. She was of Montague descent through her grandmother Margaret, the aunt of Queen Elizabeth and sister of Henry VIII. who was married to James IV. of Scotland. He was slain at Flodden Field, and Margaret re-married Archibald Douglas Earl of Angus and their dau. Margaret was the mother of Henry lord Dernly by her marriage with Mathew Stewart Earl of Lennox.—[See Peerage of Scotland p. 335, and Camden’s Brit. p. 918, and Chronicles of the Kings by Sir R. Baker p. 269, also Burke’s Royal Families.]

Where he went, or what he did for the first two years, no record has been found to say. In a list of the living and dead in Va., taken Feb’y 16, 1623, his name does not appear. He may have visited the Bermudas during this time, or the list itself may be at fault. In the Muster Roll of the inhabitants of Va., taken Jan’y 23, 1624, his name is found as residing on the plantation of Capt. Samuel Mathews at James City. This Samuel Mathews was afterward Governor of the Colony [1656].† This muster roll of 1624 gives Peter’s age as 21, and states that he came in the “Charles” in 1621.

* The 2d Charter of Va. Co. in England under date of May 23d, 1609, contains the name of James Montague. [Hen. Va. Stat. p. 31, VI. 1.] The James Montague here mentioned was son of Sir Edward Montagu and brother of Henry, the first Earl of Manchester. He was first, master of Sidney College, Cambridge, where he was educated, afterward dean of the Chapel Royal, and then of Worcester. In 1653 he was made Bishop of Bath and Wells, and in 1661 Bishop of Winchester. He did not come to America.

† Capt. Samuel Mathews, upon whose plantation Peter Montague resided, came from England in the ship “Southampton” in 1622, in the same ship came Robert Mathews, who was No further record of him has been found until the year 1637. The State Land Registry Office of Va. at Richmond, has these entries, Book 1, p. 463, "Peter Montague was granted, Aug't 22, 1637, 150* acres of land in the upper County of New Norfolk." Book 1, p. 610, "50 acres in the same county, Feb'y 25, 1638." Book 2, p. 73, "150 acres in the same County, Dec. 18, 1645." From 1624 to 1637, thirteen years! he had reached the age of thirty-four—had probably married, and from his continuing to enter land in Upper Norfolk, no doubt can exist that he had removed his residence to that County.

probably his younger brother. Associated with him was David Sands the minister. Their plant was at James City. Campbell's Hist. of Va., p. 209, says, "Capt. Samuel Mathews was one of the Council in 1643, he had a fine house, sowed much hemp and flax and had it spun. He kept weavers, and had a tannery, where leather was dressed, and had eight shoemakers at work, had forty negro servants whom he brought up to mechanical trades. He sowed large crops of wheat and barley. He also supplied vessels trading with Va. with beef. He had plenty of cows, a fine dairy, a large number of hogs and poultry. In 1656 he was governor of the Colony." He married a dau. of Sir Thomas Hinton. Capt. Mathews went to England on business for the Colony in 1657 and died there. Lord Amherst was Governor in 1658.—[See Blake's Biog. Dict. N. Y., 1835.] The following from Mr. Alex. Brown, Norfolk, Va., author of "Genesis of U. S.": Col. Samuel Mathews was sent to England as agent for Va. in 1652. He returned to Virginia in 1657. On March 13, 1657-8 he was chosen by the Assembly to act as Governor until the next Assembly, or until "the further pleasure of the supreme power of England shall be known." On March 7, 1658-9 the Assembly elected him Governor for two years. He died during his term of office in Jan'y. 1659-60, and at the next meeting of the Assembly, in March, 1659-60, Berkeley was chosen to succeed him. His second wife, the widow of Abraham Percy was when Percy married her the widow of Capt. Francis West. Mathews left two sons (Thomas and Samuel) by his first wife and very probably other sons and daughters. "Founders of Maryland," by Rev. E. D. Neill, p. 49, says Sam'l Mathews came to Va., 1622, in ship "Southampton," lived at Blunts Point, a little distance above Newport News. The following from Mr. Paul Caine, Louisville, Ky.: Capt. Sam'l Mathews came to Va., 1622; was commissioner to examine into the condition of the Colony, 1623; Commissioner of Warwick Co. 1631, Member of the Council 1624-44, elected to the Council April, 1652, elected Governor Dec., 1656, and held the place until his death, 1658. He m. 1, a dau. of Sir Thomas Hinton of Chilton Foliot Eng. [who at one time lived in Va. and was member of the Council], m. 2, before 1638-9, the widow of Abraham Percy of Va. Two sons were certainly the issue of the first marriage, namely Thomas Mathews of Stafford Co., Member of House of Burgesses, 1676, supposed to be author of T. M.'s account of Bacon's rebellion, and Lieut. Col. Samuel Mathews of Warwick Co., Member of House of Burgesses, April, 1652-1653-1654, Member of Council, 1655, d. 1670, leaving a son John then under age. Hen. Va. Stat., Vol. 1, p. 528, says "Col. Samuel Mathews died Jan'y, 1659-60." The quotation seems to infer that he d. in Va.

* Peter received this patent of 150 acres in consideration of having induced three persons to emigrate to Virginia, 50 acres for each person so induced, their names were William Jones, Thomas Redbye, and Mary Harford. "In Hotten's emigrant lists, there is a William Jones, age 17, and another William Jones, age 21, both came in the same ship, the " Thomas and John," in June, 1635, also William Jones, age 25, came in the ship "Constance," Oct. 24, 1635. The names Redbye and Harford do not appear. This was called "Head Rights." By an ordinance of the Virginia Company of London, every person removing to Va. at his own expense, with the intention to settle and remain there was entitled to 50 acres of land for himself, with the same number for his wife and each of his children. Every person who brought others into the Colony at his own expense was entitled to 50 acres for each person so-imported. [H.]
Upper Norfolk consisted in what is now known as Nansemond County, and the present Norfolk and Princess Anne Counties were called lower Norfolk until 1691. The Clerk's office and all the records of Nansemond were destroyed by fire in 1736 [Hening's Statutes, Vol. 4, p. 526], and all the records were again destroyed by fire in February, 1866, and the history of Peter Montague during these years is entirely and irrevocably lost. It is known, however, that he resided in Nansemond in 1652 and 1653. He represented that Co. in the House of Burgesses under dates of Nov. 25, 1652, and July 5, 1653, and Col. Samuel Mathews was a member from Co. of Warwick during the same time [Hen. Va. Stat. Vol. 1, pp. 373–379]. His children were probably born in this Co. That his mind often reverted to his family in England is evidenced by the fact that his children are named after his brothers and sisters in his native country, and the names of William, Peter, Ann, Margaret and Elizabeth are perpetuated in the new world. Having still another daughter he named her after his mother,—Ellen (or Eleanor). This is regarded as corroborative evidence of the correctness of his pedigree as stated in the Introduction. Of the exact date of the birth of his children no record exists. There is no doubt that they were faithfully recorded in the church records of that County, but those records have shared the fate of other early church records of Va. No church records exist back of Nov. 30, 1743. Nansemond was divided into two parishes, Lower or Suffolk parish, and the Upper parish in which was the town of Suffolk. In the Lower parish were two old brick churches, one on the left and the other on the right bank of the Nansemond river, each about ten miles from Suffolk. On a hill one mile back of Suffolk was an old graveyard, a very beautiful spot. But it too has disappeared, having long since been plowed up. On the 3d of November, 1647, Peter bought one hundred acres of land in County Nansemond [Va. Land Office, Book 2, p. 130]. This makes a total of 450 acres of land which he owned in that County, the purchase of which extended from 1637 to 1647—a space of ten years. This land is not mentioned in his will and probably he gave it to his son Peter, as we find Peter disposing of land in that Co. after his father's death. Probably before the year 1654 he had removed his family from Nansemond to Lancaster Co. and made a home on the north bank of the river Rappahannock, probably not far from the present county seat of Lancaster. That he owned considerable land along the river in Lancaster as early as 1651 or 2 can scarcely admit of a doubt, though the records that are preserved at Lancaster do not show it. Jan'y 16, 1658, he was granted 200 acres on the Rappahannock river [Va. Land Office Book 4, p. 340] and this is the last recorded purchase he ever made. He had now become a large land owner and a leading citizen of the Colony, a man of intelligence, of moral worth and of influence. He represented the County of Lancaster in the Assembly [House of Burgesses] from 1651 to 1658. [See Hist. of Va. by R. R. Howson, p. 309-310.] “In 1657-58, he represented the County of Lancaster in the House of Burgesses at James City.”—See Hen. Stat., Vol. 1, p. 431. Failing health at this time no doubt was the cause of his resigning his official duties in that capacity.

In his will, dated March, 1659, he says he is "weak of body but of perfect memory." He was a member of the Established Church, and the absence of church records will not prevent the fact being recorded here—that he was a leading member, prominent in all good works, one of the founders of the church in Virginia. "There were two parishes in Lancaster on the north side of the river, St. Marys and Christ Church. The White Chapel Church was in the parish of St. Marys. These two parishes were afterward united into that of Christ Church, Lancaster. The first vestry book known was dated 1654. The church was completed in 1670 under the direction of Mr. John Carter, the great ancestor of many bearing that name in Va. The present church, built upon the same spot by Mr. Robert Carter [known as King Carter] son of John and was completed in 1732. In 1654 Rev. Samuel Cole was the minister of this church, [the same who was minister in Middlesex in 1664] he was at that time the minister for the whole Co. both sides of the river. After him the Rev. Andrew Jackson was minister, and he was succeeded by Rev. John Bell, who was minister from 1713 to 1743. Rev. David Currie succeeded him until his death in 1791, nearly fifty years. From 1796 to 1805 Rev. Daniel McNaughton was minister and James Ball, William Montague, and Martin Shearman were lay delegates. In 1732 a new church was built upon the site of the old one and was standing in 1857 in good state of preservation, being very solidly built, the walls three feet thick. The first White Chapel church was torn down, the present one was built in 1740. In 1724, Mr. Bell, who had been their minister for twelve years, informs the Bishop of London that there were three hundred families in the parish. The name of John Washington of Westmoreland appears on the records of this church. The graveyard is full of the family of Balls.” [Bishop Meades old churches of Va.] Having digressed for the purpose of recording this brief history of the old church which Peter Montague attended, and probably was one of the founders, his own history will be continued.

The occupation of Peter was that of a planter. His crops consisting of wheat, barley and tobacco, which was exported to England. There was much in this spot, upon this broad and grandly flowing river, to remind Peter of his old home upon the Thames in England, and here his last days were passed, among the solitudes of a new world. Here he peacefully passed away, surrounded by his wife, his children and neighbors, and with full and firm trust in his Redeemer and Saviour. He died the last of April or the first of May, 1659, and was buried on the north bank of the Rappahannock, near his home. His tombstone was standing as late as 1849, but much defaced by the hand of time.

He married, probably in the spring of 1633, Cicely ——. Effort has been made to discover the maiden name of his wife and something of the family to which she belonged.* They were no doubt married some where in the vicinity of James City, for there it was that the first years of Peter’s life in the new world were passed. Tradition says she was a daughter of Samuel Mathews, who was Governor of the Colony in 1656. It is true that Peter lived upon the plantation of Capt. Mathews during these early years, and that Capt. Mathews and Peter Montague were life-long associates and friends. No record of such marriage however has been found. All of the records of James City Co. were destroyed during the late war and no record there dates back of 1865. His wife outlived him and was the executor of his estate jointly with her eldest son Peter. No record of her death has been found.

The records of Lancaster have an inventory of the estate of

* The Muster Roll of 1624 contains the names of but two persons of the name of Cicily. One was Cicily Greene at the plantation of Capt. Ralph Hamor at James City. The other was Mrs. Cicily Jordan, of Jordans Jorney Charles City. She was a young widow, age 24 years, who came in the ship “Swan,” in August, 1610, when she was but ten years of age. She owned the Plant. at Jordans Jorney, and William Ferrar was the manager. Her husband had recently died (1624). She had two children, Mary aged three years, and Margaret aged one year, both born in Va. Robert Manuell and John Hely, who came with Peter Montague in 1621, were both located on Mrs. Jordan’s plant. Their names appear in both lists, that of Feb’y, 1623, and Jan’y, 1624.
Hannah Montague, taken Nov. 28, 1659, returned to court, Nov. 30, 1659. It has been found impossible to state who she was. Perhaps she was the first wife of Peter Montague the emigrant and the mother of his children, the said Cicely being his second wife. His will was proved in May, 1659, and this inventory coming so soon afterward would seem to indicate that it related to a part of his estate. Possibly said Hannah was a deceased wife of either one of the sons of Peter, but as it was the year Peter died it does not seem probable, if it was so she certainly died childless, as the will of Peter proves.

A copy of the will of Peter Montague, dated 27th March, 1659, and proved 25th May, the same year, is given below:

In the name of God amen, I Peter Montague being weak in body and perfect memory do make this my last will and testament, this the 27th of March 1659 in name and form following,

First I bequeath my soul into the hands of my redeemer Jesus Christ, and my body to be buried.

Item, my debts being first paid I give to my loving wife Cicely one third part of all my real and personal estate according to law.

Item, I give to my two sons Peter and Will. Mountague all my land lying on Rappahannock river to them and their heirs forever, and the land being divided it is my will, that the elder is to have the first choice, and in case of want of heirs of either, the survivor to enjoy all the land, and in case both of them shall depart this life without heirs, lawfully begotten, then my will is that the said land be sold by the commissioners of this county after public notice given either at an outcry, or by an inch of candle* and the produce thereof to be equally divided between my three daughters, Ellen, Margaret, and Elizabeth, and the child of Ann late wife of John Jadwin, and in case of any of these shall die without issue, then the produce of the said land to be divided between the survivors.

Item, I give the other two thirds of my personal estate to my four children Peter, Will, Margaret, and Elizabeth to be equally divided among them.

Item, I give to my daughter Ellen, the wife of Will Thompson, one thousand pounds of tobacco, and cask to be deducted, of a bill of thirteen hundred pounds of tobacco now due to me by the said Will Thompson. Lastly I ordain my loving wife Cicely and my son Peter jointly Executrix and Executor of this my last will and testament. In witness of the previous I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and year above written 1659 interlined before the signing and sealing hereof.

(Signed) PETER MONTAGUE.

On the list of living in Va., 1623, are the names of Nicholas and Ann Tompson, George Thomson, William and Paul Thomson. On a list of the dead, 1623, is William Thomson. On the muster roll of 1624 are the following, Roger Thomson, age 40, came in “London Merchant,” 1620, and Ann his wife. Nicholas Tompson came in the “George,” 1622, George, age 17; Paul, age 14; William Thomson, age 11, came on the “George,” 1623. William Tomson, age 22, came on the “Swan.” Hather Tomson, age 18, came on the “Ambrose” in 1623. Morris Thomson had a patent granted him for 150 acres, below Blunts Point in 1626. Edward Thomson, age 24, came to Va. from London on ship “Transport,” July 4, 1635. William Thomson, age 22, came on the “George,” Aug. 21, 1635.
THE BRANCH OF PETER MONTAGUE,
SON OF PETER NO. 1.

SECOND GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

Peter Montague, son of Peter [1], b. in Nansemond Co., Va.
He was at least 21 years of age in 1659, because at that date he was an executor of his father's will. The patent for 1000 acres of land in Middlesex, issued to Peter, the son of this Peter, and grandson of Peter 1, states that said land was granted to the father of said Peter Dec., 1652, by patent from George Ludlow, Esq. Such patent would not have been granted to a minor, which appears to establish that Peter was at least 21 in 1652—and 28 years old at the death of his father, in 1659. This would place his birth in 1631 or 2. The wording of his father's will seems to render it certain that he was not married and had no children in 1659, when his father died. He was at that time between 21 and 28 years of age.

On the 2d of June, 1662, Peter purchased from James Bolter and wife of Nansemond Co., 200 acres of land. [L. records.] Nov., 1665 Peter purchased from Minor Doods and his wife Mary Doods, 200 acres of land, on east side of Deep Creek, and in the same year he leased said land for fifty-four years to said Minor Doods [L. records.]
In 1668 there is a deed from Peter Montague to Thomas Banks.
Feb'y 15, 1668, there is an assignment, made by Peter Montague, to Thomas Banks and John Hawkins, of all his lands in Nansemond Co.
[L. records.] In Essex Co. records there is a deed Feb'y 10, 1703, for 100 acres of land sold by William Montague, Jr., son of William Montague, Sr., of Middlesex, to William Montague, son of Peter Montague late of Middlesex Co., for £30 sterling.
Among the records of Christ Church, Middlesex, is the following:

"John Montague the son of Peter and Mary Montague was baptized 21st May, 1682."  "Thomas Paine and Mary Montague were married 24th Oct., 1682."  M. Co. records have a deed.  "Dec. 5, 1682, from Peter Montague to his god-daughter Elizabeth Long for one heifer calf."

Peter [1] by his will, in 1659, gave all his land lying along the Rappahannock river to his two sons, Peter and William. The elder son, Peter, to have the first choice. When that will was made, Lancaster included all that is now Lancaster, Middlesex, Essex and Richmond Co.* In 1665 Middlesex was cut off from Lancaster. The land which was willed to the two sons, or some of it, lay in what is now Middlesex Co. and included Montague Island, which is situated near what is now known as Bay Port wharf, in Middlesex. This island was known as Montague Island as early as 1686 and probably bore that name in 1660. Christ church records have the date of the birth Sept. 9, 1686, of Henry, son of Henry and Ann Davis of Montague Island, and of his baptism Sept. 19, 1686, also of the burial, in January, 1686, of Mrs. Mary Minor, a widow, of Montague Island. It was probably her son, Garrett Minor, who was presented by the Grand Jury of Middlesex, with William Montague, in 1704, for bringing oysters ashore on the Sabbath day. The tradition that Peter and William Montague lived upon this island is probably correct. One, or both of them, certainly owned it, and it remained in possession of the Montagues for many generations. Latané Montague [322] brother of Lewis B., owned it, it came to him through his wife Catherine Montague, dau. of Thomas. The island is now divided into three farms, and upon that part formerly owned by Mr. Robert Daniel, was a large tree upon which was cut in large letters, the name of William Montague, with the date, which was previous to 1760. The early church and parishes of Middlesex were called Lancaster, and Piankatank. In 1666 they became one, under the name of Christ church, and in that year it was agreed by the Vestry to build a mother church by the name of Christ church, which was built at a place about midway between Brandon and Rosegill, the seats of the Wormleys and the Grimeses, not far from the Rappahannock river. It was used until 1712, when a new one was built upon the same place. Rev. Mr. Cole was the minister in 1657. Rev. Mr. Morris was minister previous to the re-union in 1666, and then the Vestry wrote to England for a minister, and in the meanwhile, in 1668, employed Rev. Mr. Shephard who continued the minister until his death in 1683. Rev. Duell Read [from England] then became minister for seven years when he returned to England. In 1692, Rev. Mathew Lidford was chosen, but soon died. In 1699, Rev. Robert Yates was minister until 1704, when he returned to England. His son, Rev. Bartholomew Yates succeeded, until his death in 1734. Then his son, Rev. Bartholomew Yates, was minister until 1767. He (or his father) was Professor of Divinity in William and Mary College. William Yates was President of the college until 1764. “The old mother church! the great church, as she is styled in her Journal, standing in view of the wide Rappahannock! More than 80 years ago it was deserted. Its roof decayed and fallen it. Everything within it returned to its native dust. A sycamore tree sprung up within its walls. In 1840 it was a huge, overspreading tree, and was removed piecemeal from the house. The rich mould of fifty years’ accumulation to the depth of two feet was dug up before the Chancel floor and the stone aisles could be reached. The walls were uninjured and may still remain while generations of frail modern structures pass away. The graves of our ancestors are all around it. In scattered fragments some of the tombstones lie.” [Bishop Meade.]

Peter Montague was a member of this church, and from his position in the Co.—a prominent member, even as his father had been in Lancaster. It is not improbable that his wife Elizabeth Morris was the daughter of the minister, Rev. Mr. Morris. Certainly so if the minister’s name was Thomas. The almost total destruction of church records prevents a more extended record of him. The marriage of his dau. Mary to Thomas Paine in 1682, indicates that he married first, as early as 1663, [which is probably not far from the correct date] Mary, dau. of ——. She probably died soon after the birth of her son John in 1682, and he soon after married (2) Elizabeth Morris, dau. of Thomas Morris.* This marriage is evidenced by a deed of M. Co. records, dated March 1, 1702, made by Thomas Morris, “for one negro, to his dau. Elizabeth Montague relict of Peter Montague, and increase at her death, to go to his grandson Peter Montague, and if Peter died before he was 21, it was to go to his brother Thomas Montague. He also gives to each of these, his grandsons, a Colt, and a black horse.” His second wife Elizabeth, outlived him, and was the administrator of his estate jointly with William Montague [probably his brother William] and Richard Kemp who gave bond dated March 1, 1702.

He died Jan’y or Feb’y, 1702, aged from 65 to 70 years. He left no will. The inventory of his estate was filed, or recorded, May 3, 1703. If there were other daughters, trace of them is lost by destruction of early records.

* Payne, Paine. This family name is derived from the Norman Paganus. Thomas Payne age 23, came to Va. from London on ship “Transport,” July 4, 1633; Elizabeth Payne, age 21, came on the “Assurance” from London, July 24, 1633; John Paine was living in Va. in 1623. We find in a note, foot of p. 654 of “H.” that Sir Robert Payne purchased land in Va. and located thereon his two brothers William and John Payne who with Sir Robert were among the “Adventurers of Va., 1620.” The arms of this family were “Gn. on a fess between two lions pass. ar.” Crest, “a lion’s gamb, couped ar. grasping a broken tilting lance, the spear end pendent gu.” Motto, “Malo mori quam foedari.” William Payne settled near Lynchburg; John Payne near Leedstown, in the Northern Neck. i. John Paine had—2, Richard, North’d Co. b. 1633 who had 3, John, Lancaster Co. b. 1670. Oct. 6, 1653, Mr. John Paine had a grant of 60 acres, north side of Rapahannock river; head rights, John Paine, Jr., Margaret Paine, Raleigh, Travers, &c.[H.] Christ Church Mdd. vestry book, has the “burial of a certain Mary Paine, Feb’y 17, 1687, also the following: Nicholas Payne of London and Mary Hackney, native, m. Dec. 17, 1687; Elizabeth, dau. of Nicholas and Mabel Payne, born March 3, 1688; Ann, dau. of Nicholas and Mabel Payne, bapt. has been found, to know that he resided in Middlesex, married, and enjoyed average prosperity. Soon after his father's death in 1702 it is found that 1000 acres of land was granted to him in Middlesex, Oct. 24, 1702 [Land office, Richmond], which land up to that time stood in the name of his father, and the transfer was thus made, probably because his father left no will. This land extended along the river from a marked white oak on the southward side of the mouth of Sandy Point Creek, 500 rods on the main river side to a marked white oak on the southward side of Pius [or Pins?] Creek, and extended west by south 320 rods. He probably married as early as 1693, as he had a son who was married in 1717. March 1, 1702, M. records have a deed of gift, from William Montague, Jr., [by request of his father, William Sr.], to Thomas Montague, the eldest son of this Peter, for one horse colt. This deed could not have referred to any other Thomas at that date. The deed specifies "Thomas, eldest son of Peter." The same records have a deed from Thomas Morris [already alluded to, see Peter 4] by which the children of a certain servant were to go to Peter's grandson Peter, the date being 1702. It provides that if said grandson Peter died before he was 21, they were to go to his brother Thomas. No daughters, or other children are mentioned. No will has been found.

William Montague, son of Peter [4], b. about 1670 to 1674, in Lancaster or Middlesex Co., Va.

He resided in Middlesex Co., near his brother Peter and was a member of Christ church, Middlesex—his name has been found on those records together with that of his wife and some of his children. There is also a deed on Essex Co. records, Feb'y 10, 1703, for 100 acres land which he purchased for £30 sterling, from William Montague, Jr., in which deed he is styled William Montague, son of Peter Montague, late of Middlesex Co. The word late in that connection, refers to the fact that his father Peter had recently died, as has already been shown. There were three William Montagues living in the same vicinity at this time [1703]. First, there was William the son of Peter the emigrant, who was then an old man and was styled William, Sr.; the next was his son William, called William, Jr.; the third was this William, styled William son of Peter. He was a cousin of William, Jr., and a nephew of William, Sr. There is a deed on M. Co. records in 1746 between Richard Corbin and William Montague for land connecting with the land of Peter Montague, Sr., and William Montague, Sr., said deed witnessed by Lewis Montague. It is thought the William here mentioned is this William, at any rate it is known that Lewis Montague was his grandson. There is no positive record of his death, but on Aug't 4, 1761, William Montague was the administrator of the estate of William Montague deceased. No will. If this refers to him, he had lived to be over 80 years old. He married Lettice, dau. of ———.

His name does not occur upon any record from that of his birth until his death which occurred in Essex Co. in 1733. The appraisement of his estate was recorded in Essex, March 6, 1733.

Thomas Montague, Jr., son of Peter [9], b. about 1694, in Middlesex Co., Va.

He was called Thomas, Jr., to distinguish him from his father's cousin Thomas, son of William, Sr., who was styled Thomas, Sr.
The first mention there is of him upon the records is in the gift of the negro woman in 1702 to his grandmother Mrs. Elizabeth Montague and increase, to him in case his brother Peter died before he reached the age of 21, as has already been mentioned, and again the same year a gift of one horse colt to him from William Montague, Sr. He resided in Middlesex during his entire life, and the records of Christ church show that he was a member of that church.

He m. (1) in 1717, Grace, dau. of ——. She lived his wife nine years and died March 20, and was buried March 23, 1726. He m. (2) Nov., 1727, Penelope, dau. of ——. She outlived him and died about 1767. She left a will which was recorded Dec. 1, 1767, in which are mentioned her children Philip and Catherine, and grandsons Thomas and William Montague. He died in 1756. His will was dated Feb'y 14, 1755, and recorded Nov. 2, 1756, in which he mentions his wife Penelope, and children Thomas, Clement, William, Philip, Catherine, and John, grand children Sarah and Elizabeth, daughters of his son Peter.

† The Will of Mrs. Penelope Montague.—"In the name of God, amen. I Penelope Montague of the parish of Christ Church and Co. of Middlesex being weak in body but of sound and perfect mind and memory, thanks be to God for the same, do make and ordain this to be my last will and testament in manner following. First and principally I bequeath my soul unto God who gave it to me, trusting on Him for pardon of all my past sins and offences through the merits and intercession of my blessed saviour Jesus Christ, and my body to be buried at the discretion of my executor hereinafter named. And as for my worldly estate I give and dispose of in manner following. Item, my will and desire is that all debts and funeral expenses be first paid. Item, I give and bequeath unto my son Philip Montague one-third part of the crop of tobacco which may be already made or on hand at the time of my death, also I give unto my said son my whole crop of corn which may be made at the same time. Item, I give and bequeath to my daughter Catherine Montague, two-thirds of the above crops of tobacco also I give unto my said daughter all my wearing apparel and my walnut oval table and cubbard and what new goods I may happen to have in the house at the time of my death. Item, I desire all the remaining part of my estate to be divided into three parts, Peter Montague,* son of Peter [9], b. about 1696, in Middlesex Co., Va.

He grew to manhood in this Co. and m. before 1728, Elizabeth, dau of ———. Soon after the death of their first born son in 1730 they removed from Middlesex to Spotts Co. At that time Spotts Co. included what is now known as Orange. The partition of the Co.* was made in 1734, the line between the two Co.* was very near where Peter had settled, but it brought him over the line into Orange Co. He thus became a first settler of that Co. The nearest town at that time was Fredericksburg. The first mention of his name on Spotts Co. was a deed for land, 228 acres purchased from P. Curtis, dated June 3, 1735 [Book C, p. 123]. June 2, 1741, Peter and wife Elizabeth sold 242 acres to John Blake [Book C, p. 462]. Nov. 4, 1745, they sold 100 acres to John Long [Book D, p. 252]. In Orange records there is a deed dated June 10, 1745, recorded July 25, 1745, from Abraham Mayfield to Peter Montague [Book 10, 171] also a deed from Malachi Chiles to Peter Montague, also dated June 10, 1745, recorded July 25, 1745, for 49 acres lying in one part of which I give to my son Philip Montague, and another part to my daughter Catherine, and the other part I give to be equally divided between my two grandsons Thomas and William Montague to them and their heirs forever. Lastly I do appoint my son Philip and my daughter Catherine Montague, executors of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this day of [the day and year left blank].

Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of (the word Executor interlined before assigned)

JAMES MACEN,
John Lee,
Sarah Sagar.

At a court held for Middlesex Co. at the Court House in Urbanna on Tuesday the first day of December, 1767, this last will of Penelope Montague deceased was presented in court by Philip Montague one of the executors therein named. Whereupon the same was proved by the oaths of John Lee and Sarah Sagar, two of the witnesses thereto and ordered to be recorded. And on motion of the said executor who made oath according to law, certificate is granted them for obtaining letters of Probate thereof in due form, giving security, on which he, with William Roane his surity entered into and acknowledged their bond in penalty of one hundred pounds conditioned required by law.

were two churches in the parish, Upper and Lower Piscataway. No records of the parish have been found.* Nov. 21, 1738, Abraham Montague was appointed by the court, constable for Essex Co. April 16, 1739, he was appointed court surveyor of roads. He was an active member of the church of which his wife's father was the pastor and he was a vestryman of that church. He d. in June or July, 1740, in Essex. His will was dated May 3, 1740, and was proved Sept. 16, 1740, and mentions his wife Charlotte, his brother William Montague, and his children in the order as given below. His wife, Mrs. Charlotte Montague, d. in 1746 or 1747. She left a will, dated Jan' y 25, 1746, proved July 22, 1747, in which she mentions the names of her children as given below. The Co. records of Middlesex have "a bond dated June 22, 1754, from Abraham Montague, Latane Montague and Frances Montague to Lewis Montague eldest son and heir at law of his mother Charlotte Montague, for the delivery of certain negroes devised by Rev. Lewis Latane to his daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Montague to descend to the said Lewis." Also Feb. 19, 1755, "an acknowledgement to Lewis Montague of having received certain negroes devised by Rev. Lewis Latane to his daughter Mrs. Charlotte Montague, signed by Henry Vass, William Montague, Abraham and Latane Montague.

* * * Rev. Lewis Latane was the first minister of this parish of whom there is any record. He was a Huguenot, and fled from France to England, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, Oct., 1685, where he remained until the year 1700. He arrived in Va. March 5, 1701, and was installed as pastor of the Essex church April 5, 1701. He was a member of the convention of the clergy of Va., held in the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, April 8, 1709. After he had ministered to the parish for 16 years, an attempt was made on the part of the Vestry to displace him, and for no reason, except that he could not speak English plainly. Mr. Latane seems to have been a quiet man, moving on in the even tenor of his way, but feeling keenly the injustice done him by the Vestry. He felt aggrieved that after preaching for them so many years, the objection should be made at so late a day. He was on one occasion riding with one of his parishioners, when the subject of his removal was talked over by them. The other expressed his sorrow but thought it better, on the ground that Mr. Latane's sermons were rendered unintelligible by his foreign brogue. Before separating, they came to the minister's gate. "Go by," he said, "and get something to drink," which was readily agreed to. This he said to prove him. "Now," said the minister, "you can readily understand me when I tempt you to do wrong, but you cannot understand me when I counsel you to do right." He was three times married. Of his first two wives no records exist. His third was Mary Dean, a relative and protege of William Beverley of Blandfield, Essex. He died in 1732, leaving one son John, and five daughters. In his will three daughters are mentioned as "C," "P," and "S." Perhaps there is no instance to be found in Va. where a whole family have been more remarkable for truth and fidelity in all their dealings and character. John, his only surviving son, married a Miss Mary Allen; William, his only surviving son married Miss Ann Waring, leaving a large number of sons and daughters. His daughter Lucy, third in descent from Rev. Mr. Latane, married Mr. Payne Waring of Essex. His daughter Mary married Mr. John Temple, one of whose soffs was the minister of South Farnham, Essex, in 1857."—[Bishop Meade.] Of the church

WILLIAM MONTAGUE, son of William [10], b. about 1706, in Middlesex Co., Va. He resided during his whole life in the Co. and was a member of Christ church of that Co., the records of which have preserved the births of his children.

He married, 1728, Jane, daughter of ——. From the fact that after he and his wife were both deceased, the eldest son William was appointed guardian of his sister Margaret, in the place of Thomas Price deceased, [Co. records, April 7, 1761], it is thought that his wife Jane was daughter of said Thomas Price. He died in 1754, his will bearing date Dec. 14, 1753, proved May 7, 1754. After his death his wife married [2], Aug. 7, 1757 [Middlesex records] Vincent Vass. She died —— and in the division of her dower the following of her children are mentioned as still living at that time, William, John, James, Samuel, Peter, Jane, Catherine, Margaret and Elizabeth, records of Essex, the same author says, "The destruction was complete. The bricks (of the church) are nowhere to be found, except in other buildings, the flagstones from the aisles may be seen in walks and hearths. The monuments of the dead were dragged from their resting places and made into grindstones, and may still be identified by parts of the original inscriptions. The churches were burned up to get the bricks and nails."

Willoughby Allerton of Va., who in his will (1739) names his wife Ann, and two sisters in law Jane and Alice Currie, daughters of Mr. David Currie." [H.] Rev. John Currie is mentioned in records of the year 1739, and was probably son of Rev. David."—See H. p. 106.
The same children only are mentioned in his will in 1753, indicating that at the date Dec., 1753, his children Thomas and Robert had died. Oct. 5, 1742, William Montague and Charles Wortham settled the estate of Curtis Perrott deceased. On Jan’y 3, 1743, William Montague, Thomas Montague and James Jones appraised the estate of Charles Wortham, deceased.

FIFTH GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

When he was about 21 years of age he removed to Orange Co., Va., and settled near the present post-office of Pine Top. A portion of his old homestead was still standing in 1890, and was at that time occupied by a grand dau. of his daughter Sarah, Mrs. Dr. J. Minor Goodwin, who was at that time over 80 years old. In a deed of Spotts Co., Aug. 6, 1744, he is called Peter Junior. It was to distinguish him from his uncle Peter, the brother of his father, who was also in Orange Co. He married, 1738, An thorit, dau. of —. He d. in 1745 or the spring of 1746. His wife was the administrator of his estate. Co. records of Orange, Va., show an appraisement of the personal property of Peter, deceased, dated July 24, 1746, made by An thorit Mountague, his administrator, amounting in value in the aggregate to £97, [Book 2, p. 89 of book of wills]. A division of his personal property was recorded Oct. 28, 1756 [Book 2, p. 236] by which Reuben Daniel, who married the deceased widow, became possessed of the household goods and stock valued at £38, 12s, 7d. John Stevens who married Sarah, one of the daughters of deceased, took a servant man and bed valued at £30, 9s, 7d, and Elizabeth Mountague, the orphan of the deceased, took a servant woman valued at £30, 7s, 4d. By a division of the real estate made Oct. 25, 1759, John Stevens in right of his wife Sarah, came into possession of 120½ acres of land, and Elizabeth Mountague 90½ acres including the dwelling house, out houses and peach orchard. After his death his wife Anhorit, sometime before 1756, married 2, Reuben Daniel. His two children Sarah and Elizabeth are mentioned in the will of their grandfather, Thomas Montague, Jr. He had no sons.

THOMAS MONTAGUE, son of Thomas, Jr., [12], b. Feb'y 20, 1719, in Middlesex Co., Va., bapt. in Christ church, Feb'y 28, 1719.

At the age of 21 he went to Spotts* Co., Va., near where others of his relatives had preceded him. On July 26, 1740, he purchased 182 acres of land in that Co. from Rice Curtis [Book C, p. 394]. His age at this time was 21 years, 6 months, 6 days. He had learned the trade of a carpenter, and he followed the occupation of a contractor and builder of houses. May 24, 1750, he purchased 100 acres of land in Orange Co., from John Collins [Book 11, p. 193]. Perhaps he lived on this land for the next two years. The act establishing the Co. of Louisa passed the House of Burgesses in May, 1742, and went into effect Dec. 1, following [Hen. 5, p. 208]. The contract for building the Louisa Co. Court House was awarded to Thomas Montague, and while he was engaged upon that building he met Mr. Charles Daniel, Sr., (who lived a short distance north of the Court House site) whose dau. he afterward married.

* Spottsylvania was established in 1720, being taken from Essex, King William, and King and Queen counties. It extended westward to the river beyond the high mountain, [the Shenandoah]. Fredericksburgh was founded by law in 1727. In 1732 it contained only Col. Willis, and one merchant, one tailor, one smith, an ordinary-keeper, and a lady who acted as a doctoress and coffee woman.—Bishop Meade, Vol. 2, p. 68.
The records of Louisa Co. have the following, under date of Feb'y 25, 1752, Indenture between Thomas Montague of Orange Co., house carpenter and joiner, and Davenport Kennydy, in which said Kennydy bound himself as an apprentice unto Thomas Montague for four years. This record proves that Mr. Montague resided in Orange Co. in 1752, as he is so described in the indenture. He m. about 1753 or 4, Miss Jane Daniel, dau. of Charles Daniel, Sr.,* of Louisa Co. She was b. Aug. 18, 1733, bapt. Sept. 9, 1733. Records of Louisa Co. have a deed dated Nov., 1796, from Charles Daniel, Sr., to his daughter Jane Montague. Her father, Mr. Daniel, Sr., was noted for his honesty and piety. It is said that the late Judge William Daniel and Major John W. Daniel of Lynchburgh, Va., were of the same family. Mr. Montague secured the contract for building the old Turkey Cock church in Cumberland Co.,† and while engaged

* See record of Daniel at Elizabeth Montague [51].
† Through the kindness of Hon. William M. Flanagan of Powhatan, extracts have been received from the county records of Cumberland, as follows: Deed of Charles Daniel of Louisa, of the first part, Jane Montague late of Louisa now of Cumberland, of the second part, and Thomas Montague of the third part, dated Dec. 27, 1798, conveys slave Sanny. Charles calls himself father of Jane Montague, and deed provides that Thomas is to care for mother [Jane] and for grandfather [Charles].—Deed Book 8, p. 259. Deed Oct. 4, 1777, from Clement Montague of Spotts Co. to Edward Walton conveys 212 acres for £106. Witness, John Montague.—[Book 5, 516.] While this witness may have been John of Caroline, brother of Thomas and Clement, it more probably was John, son of Thomas and nephew of Clement. Deed Sept. 12, 1772, (recorded Sept. 28) from Anne Hill, Henry Tappcott and Winifred his wife and Isaac Hill to Thomas Montague conveys 200 acres on both sides of Carter's Ferry road and on both sides of the church road—witnessed by James Daniel. The church here alluded to was Turkey Cock church built by Thomas Montague. The Cross roads was also the site of Montague's tavern or "Ornary," the Montague homestead. Here Thomas was buried, and remains of the graveyard and old settlement still exist at this date (1893). James Daniel who witnessed the deed was probably the brother of Mrs. Jane Montague who had married Elizabeth Montague, dau. of Peter and niece of Thomas and Jane Montague. The records indicate that Thomas Montague was living in May, 1778, and that one James Daniel lived near him. If this James Daniel was husband of Elizabeth Montague dau. of Peter, he did not long live there, as the records of his children are in Louisa Co. He may have been the James Daniel, brother of Charles, Sr., and uncle of Jane Montague, though records indicate that he lived in Orange. Thomas Montague died at some date between May and July, 1778. Mrs. Jane Montague [his widow] was appointed administrator of his estate, July 27, 1778. The appraisement of his estate was made Aug. 22, 1778.—[Will Book 2, 246.] Whole amount £1264, 18, 6d. Loom, one still, 2 juggs, two cotton wheels, one fiddle, three deer skins, one currying knife, one Reap Hook, negro men Jack and Peter, women Jane and Cate. Also in Will Book 2, 261, Jane Montague's account as administrator paid Thomas Montague £22, pd John Montague £29, 12s, 8d. Also Will Book 2, 419. Estate of Thomas Montague with John Montague administrat, de-bonis-non. July 23, 1787, Suit of Smith and wife against John Montague heir of Thomas of Cumberland, May, 1783, shows that John was his oldest son, heir at law and took his estate under primogeniture. Lawrence Smith and Catherine his wife, plfs, recovered 100 acres land a part of the "Ornary." They state that they came up from — County at request of Thomas, father of Catherine to live near him, under promise to give her 100 acres and that he died suddenly of small pox, intestate. The county left blank is Essex, according to a deposition filed.

upon this, he purchased a tract of land embracing the crossing of the road leading from Cartersville to Cumberland C. H., and the road running east from Turkey Cock church, and some time after 1752 he moved there from Orange and built right in the angle of the two roads, an old-fashioned tavern, which was for many years known as Montague's old "Ornary" [Ordinary]. He was living at that place when the war of the revolution occurred; it is said that he joined the army and served until 1777 or 8, when he died in camp of small pox. He was buried at the old "Ornary," on the old stage road from Cumberland C. H. and about five miles from Cartersville. His wife d. in 1811 or 12.

When he was three years old his mother died, March 20, 1726. He moved from Middlesex Co. to Spotts Co. probably soon after he was 21 years old. The first mention of him in Spotts is on a deed of gift dated Sept. 1, 1747, for 56 acres of land, a gift from his father-in-law, William Bartlett, he having married Ann, daughter of William Bartlett.* On Feb. 2, 1761, Mr. Montague purchased 300 acres of land from Lewis Fielding, and on April 2, 1764 he purchased 73 acres from Thomas Colsom, and the same day sold to Thos. Colsom 85 acres. On Oct. 21, 1770, he made a deed of gift for 70 acres to his son Thomas. Sept. 14, 1778, he purchased 200 acres from Wm. Chiles. June 16, 1779, he sold 25 acres to Thomas Colsom. Sept. 16, 1779, he sold — acres to Lewis Fielding and others. Sept. 21, 1780, he purchased 19 acres from James Pritchett. Aug. 16, 1781, he sold 200 acres to Michael Blunt. Sept. 18, 1783, he deeded 150 acres to his son Thomas. March 7, 1785, he made a deed of gift of a negro girl to his grandson Thomas C. June 7, 1785, he made deed of gift of negro boy named "Stephen" to his son-in-law John Estes. Oct. 24, 1791, he sold negro girl "Mina" to James Ballard, who married his daughter Isabella. She was probably many years younger than her former husband, Clement Montague, for the marriage settlement with Isaac Herin provides for the support

He served in the war of the Revolution, where he obtained the title of Colonel. He resided in the upper part of Middlesex. A tradition exists in one branch of his descendants, that his father's family lived in the Northern Neck of Va., probably meaning Lancaster or that part of it which is now Richmond Co., and that Colonel Philip moved from there to Middlesex, bought land near Montague island, and built a house which was still standing in 1891. However this may be, the family record of his father, Thomas, Jr., is recorded in the vestry books of Christ Church, Middlesex. The house above alluded to was afterward owned by Col. Edmond H. Montague [242] after his death it was purchased by Mr. Mortimer Evans [805]. It is near the Rappahannock and joins "Nesting" farm. It has two rooms with a hallway through, and with a wing added on. Rooms above stairs were low pitched. It was a fine farm.

* Calendar Papers, Vol. 3, p. 216, under date of July 13, 1782, concerning Middlesex Co. has the following: "Philip Montague, commanding officer, writes to the Governor that—'having received two orders from the Commissioner of War to hold in perfect readiness one-fourth of the militia and one-sixth properly accoutred and officered to march to Yorktown, he takes the liberty to inform his Excellency of the peculiar situation of that county, and he believes that instead of drawing men from them, assistance should be sent to defend the Co. against the barges and privateers of the enemy, and from the ravages of a plundering set whose cruelties no man can judge of who has not felt them.' He begs that two posts be established, one at Pine Top at the end of the peninsular toward the Chesapeake bay, the other at Urbanna, which alone could give security to the people. He gives an instance of a privateer schooner and two barges that had been for several days in and about the mouth of the Rappahannock and Pianakitank rivers capturing by water, and landing and robbing the inhabitants of their 'all.'" He adds "'that during the past year when the army was in that neighborhood 50 or 60 guns were impressed from the inhabitants, thus depriving them of the means of defense, and begs that the Co. may be supplied with public arms in place of those, as soon as convenient.'" Vol. 8, p. 91, has the following: "Proceedings of the District Committee of Essex and Middlesex Cos. for choice of officers for a Company of Regulars Feb. 20, 1776. The committee of Middlesex appointed James Montague, Lewis Montague, Thomas Segar, and Philip Montague, or any three of them, to act as their members on said District Committee. Pg. 175—May 8, 1776, warrants were issued for £4 to James Montague, and £9-15-2 to Philip Montague for services rendered in Middlesex militia.
He m., May 3, 1763, Frances Montague, youngest dau. of Abraham [14]. His marriage bond was dated May 3, 1763. Lewis Montague signed the bond with him. [M. records.] No record of her death has been found, the will of her brother Abraham Montague, dated Dec., 1777, mentions his brothers-in-law Philip Montague and John Currie. He d. 1810, the settlement of his estate began 1810 and was finally settled by his son Philip, Sept. 27, 1819. Both Col. Philip and his wife were members of the Episcopal Church of Essex.

Her mother, Mrs. Penelope Montague, in her will, dated 1767, mentions this daughter as simply Catherine, which seems to indicate

*Segar. There are several derivations for this name. 1st. Anglo Saxon Segora, a conqueror, written in Domesday "Segor." 2d, from Anglo Saxon Saga, a saw. 3d, an eminent surname in Poitou "De Segur." The family arms in England were "Az. a cross moline at. a chief or." Crest "on a mount Vert, an eagle regardant rising proper."
that she was unmarried at that date. On the other hand, the persons selected in 1760 to settle the estate of John Montague were, Capt. Lewis Montague, Charles Lee, William Montague and William Segar. Capt. Lewis was the second cousin of this Catherine, their fathers being first cousins. John Montague, whose estate was being settled, was also her second cousin. William Montague being the brother of John deceased, was also her second cousin. While William Segar was the husband of her niece, the husband of her brother Philip's daughter. The name of Charles Lee on this list, indicates that he also may have been a connection, but the marriage of this Catherine has not been discovered. The vestry book of Christ Church records the marriage, Nov. 3, 1777, of Catherine Montague to Charles Howerton, may have referred to this Catherine but probably not.

Peter Montague, son of Peter [13], b. 1732 in Orange Co., Va.

He was a Revolutionary soldier under Gen. Washington. Va. Cal. papers have the following: "Peter Montague age 87 in 1820 was private in Va. Line 1776–83 drew pension Orange Co. Va. 1818 suspended in 1820 because he was not indigent or needy, received $96.00 per annum." William H. Grady* letter says "Peter enlisted in the army of the Revolution at its beginning; when his time expired he re-enlisted as a substitute and served during the war. He was also elected as a representative from his Co." Orange Co. has a deed dated April 4, 1795, for 94 acres land on the head branches of Terry's Run from Peter Montague to his son Andrew Montague, recorded April 28, 1795 [book 20, p. 443]. This land lay near the post-offices of Locust Grove and Mine Run. M. Elizabeth Henderson of Orange Co. She d. of old age about 1824, at the home of her dau. Hannah, Mrs. Richmond Grady. 32.

Capt. Lewis Montague, son of Abraham [14], b. about 1725 or 6 in Essex Co., Va.

After the death of his mother, his father having died several years before, he was appointed [Nov. 17, 1747] guardian of his brothers Abraham and Latané. He resided in Essex and Middlesex Co.
during his entire life. A deed for land, recorded in Essex, May 16, 1763, mentions Abraham and his brother Lewis; they are also both mentioned in a deed for land in Essex Co., recorded May 21, 1764. April 2, 1760, he was appointed Justice of the Peace, and Justice of Chancery in Middlesex Co. June 3, 1760, he was appointed to take the list of titheables, in the upper precinct of Middlesex. On Aug. 3, 1762, he was appointed Sheriff, by the Hon. Francis Fauquier, Lieut.-Gov. Lewis Montague was one of the executors of the will of Henry Daniel of Middlesex, that was proved July 7, 1767. Henry Daniel’s wife Bettie, was the other executor. Daniel children mentioned in the will were, George, Robert, Henry, Mary who m. Henry Daniel Shepard, and Rachel.—(H.) Perhaps Lewis Montague’s wife Bettie, was one of this Daniel family, possibly a sister of above Henry Daniel.

M. about 1746, Bettie, dau. of ——. The date of his will is not given, it was recorded Aug. 24, 1778. He mentions only his children Lewis, Catherine, and Ann. The executors were his wife and James Mickelborough. He probably died in the spring of 1778. His wife outlived him but died soon after. Her will was dated Dec. 12, 1778, was recorded Jan. 25, 1779. She mentions only, children—Elizabeth, Ann, Catherine, Lewis, Frances, Susannah, William and Jack. "Lewis, Frances, Susanna and Jack, children take the crop of corn, under the will—Mary, Elizabeth, Ann, and Catherine the other children, remainder of property equally divided among them all." She died about Jan. 1, 1779. A large part of the estate went to his son Lewis. Both wills were administered on by his son-in-law William Brooke.

BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER.

Abraham Montague, son of Abraham [14], b. about 1728 in Essex Co., Va.

His parents died when he was but a youth, and his elder brother Lewis was appointed his guardian by the court Nov. 17, 1747. He became a man of property and of influence in Essex. His name occurs upon a recorded deed for land, April 19, 1757. Recorded deeds for land bearing dates of Nov. 21, 1758; Aug. 21, 1760; May 28, 1761, mention Abraham Montague and Elizabeth his wife. Deeds for land May 16, 1763, and May 21, 1764, bear the names of Abraham and his brother Lewis Montague. The signature of this Abraham Montague appears on the list of resolutions signed by the patriots of the Northern Neck of Va. in 1765, after the passage of the Stamp Act, and the first public association in the land for the resistance of that Act. On the same list are the names of Spencer M. Ball, William Ball, John Ballentine, Jr., Richard Henry Lee, Samuel, Charles, Lawrence and John Augustus Washington.

M. previous to 1758, probably as early as 1750, Miss Elizabeth —. He d. early in the year 1778. His will was dated Dec. 17, 1777, proved May 18, 1778, in which he mentions his wife Elizabeth, his children in the order as given below, and his brothers-in-law John Corrie and Philip Montague.

William Montague, son of William [16], b. 1729, in Middlesex Co. Va.

April 7, 1761, he was appointed guardian of his sister Margaret, who was then a girl of about twelve years of age. He also received one-ninth part of the dower of his mother, she having remarried Mr. Vincent Vass. He was also, in 1760, one of the administrators of the estate of his brother John, deceased. Will Book 1760 to 1772, p. 82, has the appraisal of the estate of Massey Yarrington, Sept. 2, 1760, appraised by William Montague, Philip Montague and Charles Lee. All the books of Middlesex records from 1748 to 1760 [12 years] were carried off by the Federals during the war of 1861.

* "In 1562 the great Huguenot leader Jean Ribalt founded a short-lived and ill-fated colony at Port Royal and named the county "Carolina,* in honor of the wretched Charles IX., a king deserving little respect from any one, least of all from Huguenots. So far as paying compliments to an unworthy king goes, the name served the purpose of the English colonists equally well and it was retained."—Maryland and the Far South by John Fiske. The first permanent settlement in North Carolina was made on the eastern bank of the Chowan, and called Albemarle, by emigrants who fled from religious persecution, from Nansemond in Virginia, about 1653. Several previous attempts to settle it had failed. It had been granted to different proprietors at different times; but in 1663, it was transferred to Lord Clarendon, and some others who procured a Constitution of Government to be prepared for it by the celebrated John Locke. The chief magistrate was called the Palatine, and there was a hereditary nobility. The Legislature was called a Parliament. This Constitution was so defective that in 1693 it was abolished. In 1729 the Crown purchased the whole of the Carolinas for £17,500 sterling; and the king immediately divided it into two provinces, North and South Carolina.—U. S. Gazetteer.

John Montague, son of William [16], b. Feb. 25, bapt. March 10, 1733, in Middlesex Co. [Christ Church records.]
He m. Charlotte, dau. of ———. He d. Nov., 1759. Will Book 760 has the appraisal of his estate made Dec. 4, 1759, by William Montague, William Segar, George Fearn and Charles Lee. His wife Charlotte Montague was the administrator. Nov. 4, 1760, "on notion of Wm. Montague it is ordered that Lewis Montague, Charles Lee, Wm. Montague, and Wm. Segar do settle the account of the administration of the estate of John Montague deceased, and also lott to the widow her dower of the slaves held by death of deceased." March 3, 1760, [marriage bond, Co. records] his widow Charlotte m. 2) Henry Washington. In 1762 she, Mrs. Washington, sells to the rother of her late husband, James Montague, her right of dower in the land of her late husband John Montague. No children.

In the settlement of the estate of Wm. Montague mention is made of certain amounts to Wm. Montague by Jane Ivison under which are the names of the following legatees, each one of whom were to have 1-8 part of the decree, each one bearing the name of Montague, to wit, Catherine, Samuel, James, Peter, John, nd Margaret Montague"—evidently referring to the brothers and sisters of Jane Montague [41].

Catherine Montague, dau. of William [16], b. May 24, 1739, in Middlesex, Va.
Descendants of Peter Montague.

She inherited a portion of the dower of her mother, and also property in servants from her sister Jane, at her (Jane’s) death. The vestry book of Christ Church records the marriage of Catherine Montague, Nov. 3, 1777, to Charles Howerton. No trace has been found of any Howertons descended from Montague, and it has not been found possible to identify this marriage, or to say that this was the Catherine who m. Mr. Howerton.

He became a distinguished member of the early church in Virginia and was a man of position, influence and wealth. The land he purchased of Mrs. Henry Washington [the widow of his late brother John] was a tract of 700 acres. He also held large property in Richmond Co. He was the owner of a mill, at least records show that on “Oct. 4, 1763, James Montague petitioned for a mill.” This was soon after he was 21. His name is mentioned in colonial histories of Va. [See Semple’s Hist. Va. Baptists.] He was a delegate to the Episcopal Convention held in Williamsburg, Va., May 6, 1776. He was a member of the House of Burgesses 1774 from Middlesex. He was also a Magistrate of the Colony of Va. and is historically reported as enforcing the rigid acts of Parliament, for crushing out the Baptists and non-conformists of Va.

He m., June 20, 1760, [his marriage bond bears that date] Mary Eliza Chinn, dau. of Joseph Chinn of Lancaster Co. Joseph Chinn

* James Montague was a member of the District Committee of Essex and Middlesex for choice of officers for a company of Regulars, Feb. 20, 1776. [Cal. Papers, Vol. 8, p. 91.] A warrant for £4 was issued, May 8, 1776, to James Montague for services rendered in Va. militia [p. 173]. “A warrant was issued to James Montague, June 22, 1776, for £17-5-9 in payment of a guard of militia at Urbanna and for guarding prisoners to Williamsburg.” [p. 215, vol. 8.] Letter of John Waller to “Dear Bro. in the Lord.” “Urbanna [Middlesex prison, Aug. 12, 1771.” “At a meeting at Bro. McCains, held last Saturday, while bro. William Webber was addressing the congregation, from James ii, 18, there came running toward him in a most furious manner Capt. James Montague, a magistrate of the Co., followed by the parson of the parish and several others who seemed greatly exasperated, the magistrate and another took hold of Bro. Webber and dragging him from the stage, delivered him with bro. Wafford, Robert Ware, Richard Falkner, James Greenwood and myself into custody and commanded that we should be brought before him for trial. They were examined and searched. Wafford was severely scourged and Henry Street received one lash.”—[Lives of Va. Baptists by J. B. Taylor.] The Church of England was the only legalized form of worship in Va. at that time, and great opposition was manifested toward the Baptists. Many of the early settlers of North Carolina were persons who had emigrated there from Va. on account of the persecutions of the old mother church [compiler].
BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER.

...a vestryman of St. Marys parish, Lancaster, and his name appears in a list with the names of Col. Ball, Major Ball, Wm. Ball, Joseph Ball, Jesse Ball, Wm. Montague, Raleigh Chinn, Thomas Chinn, and John Chinn. He d. in 1781 or 1782. His will is dated Oct. 16, 1781. His wife had died previously, and his will mentions only one child, Thomas. The names of Winifred, Harriet, and Jean occur as his children in the settlement of the estate. M. records the account of sales from the estate of Col. James Montague in Richmond Co. The account is rendered June 12, 1782, by Holland Haynie. The same records have an account of sales made at the dwelling house, in Middlesex Co., of Col. James Montague, May 18, 1782, and rendered by John Montague, executor. Among the names of those who were present at the sale, and were bidders, or purchasers, [the sale was probably by auction] occur the names of Capt. Wm. Montague, Henry B. Yates, Col. Philip Montague, Capt. Holland Haynie, James Wortham, Col. John Tarplay and Mrs. Winifred G. Montague, this latter bought one Vol. of Harvey's Meditations, also two books and one Bible. Mrs. Winifred G. Montague also bought the entire crop of tobacco.

Among the records of Essex, in an injunction suit, the name of John Montague appears June 17, 1793, as executor of James Montague deceased, also as plaintiff in a chancery suit May 16, 1797, is the name of "James Montague an infant by his guardian Wm. Montague." This probably refers to James, son of Samuel. Col. James Montague in his will gives his son Thomas "the land and plantation here he now lives." His executors were John Chinn of Lancaster and John Montague of Essex. John Montague presented the will to court in 1782, was granted a probate and settled the estate. The witnesses were Philip and Peter Montague.

He appears to have resided in Essex, certainly he owned estate in that Co. The records of Essex have the appraisement of his estate recorded March 21, 1785. Peter Montague was the administrator, no doubt his brother, but if so Peter died before the estate was settled, for the account of settlement made by Peter was not confirmed and recorded until Oct. 15, 1792, while the appraisement of the estate of Peter Montague was recorded July 20, 1789, some two and one-half years before the settlement of Samuel's estate. Oct. 15, 1792, the court of Essex appointed a guardian for Samuel Montague, orphan of Samuel Montague deceased. And the same date, the sheriff was appointed to settle the estates of Samuel Montague deceased and of Lucy Montague deceased, widow of said Samuel Montague. May 16, 1797, Samuel Montague—an infant, by his guardian ——, appears as plaintiff in a Chancery suit. In the same suit appears the name of John Montague, an infant, by his guardian John Montague, and James Montague, an infant, by his guardian Wm. Montague. "Oct. 15, 1798, William Montague, son of Samuel, gave bond as a tavern keeper at his house in Essex Co."

Elizabeth Montague, dau. of William [16], b. Aug. 26, 1750, or 752, in Middlesex Co.

The record of her birth in the vestry book of Christ Church was so torn with age that it was impossible to say if the date was 1750 or 2, but it was one or the other. She was the youngest daughter and first child. Christ Church records have the marriage, March 23, 1769, of Elizabeth Montague to Howard Williams. The will of Howard Williams has been searched for but not found and his wife has not been identified as this Elizabeth. Capt. Lewis Montague had a dau. Elizabeth, b. Aug. 28, 1750. Which one married Howard Williams has not been determined. No further record known.

John Montague, son of Thomas [18], b. about 1755, in Orange, r Spotts. Co., Va. Removed to Cumberland Co. with his parents where he grew to manhood.

He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and received a wound in his arm and forehead while defending Washington from the sabre of a British soldier, the scars from which he carried through life. In personal appearance he was tall, straight, very commanding, and imposing. He m. Jan. 7, 1774, Miss Rebecca Brown,† a sister of the wife of his brother Thomas. He moved from Cumberland Co.,

was deputy governor of South Carolina. The Hist. of the reign of Queen Anne by Boyer, London, 1722, has the following: "Early in 1783 Col. Robert Daniel arrived at Port Royal, Carolina, and brought an account that Col. Moor, governor of that plantation marched from Charles Town in Carolina with 300 men in order to attack a colony of Spaniards about 300 miles distant, called St. Augustine, near the gulf of Florida. That he soon possessed himself of the town, but the inhabitants had retired into a strong castle surrounded with a very deep and broad moat. Col. Moor had sent Col. Daniel to Port Royal to borrow a mortar and some shells to bombard it." The Hist. of the Grass Creek Baptist Church of North Carolina mentions Elder Robert T. Daniel who was born June 10, 1773, in Middlesex Co., Va., whose family had settled in Chatham Co., N. C. In 1796, he married Miss Penelope C. Flowers. He was pastor at Mt. Pisgah, Mays Chapel, Grass Creek, N. C., also pastor of churches in Southampton and Greenville Cos., Va. He died in 1830 in Paris, Tenn. The name has been distinguished in Virginia, the Carolinas and in Kentucky, That honored son of Va., Peter V. Daniel, Judge of the Supreme Court of the U. S., was a son of Travers Daniel and Frances Moncur. Travers Daniel was the son of Peter Daniel and Sarah Travers who was a daughter of Raleigh Travers and Hannah Ball the half-sister of Mary Ball the mother of Gen. George Washington. Peter Daniel was a brother of Charles Daniel of, of Louisa Co., Va. The name Daniel is derived from the baptismal name, dating back to the Bible. The name is the parent of Daniels, Dunn, Danielson, etc. There are 18 different coats of arms belonging to Daniel. The arms of Daniel of Wiltshire, Yorkshire, and of Wiggin in Lancashire were "Arg., a pale fusil sable." Crest, "An Unicorns head erased, Arg. armed, or." The will of Travers Daniel is on Middlesex records dated April 1, 1805, and was witnessed by John Montague, mentions his wife Peggy and sons Robert and Christopher.

† Brown originates from the name of the color brown. More than 50 coats of Arms have been assigned to Brown.
Va., to Abbeville Co., S. C., about 1808.* All of his children accompanied him except his two sons William L. and Henry B. He settled near old fort Ninety-six. Here he resided for more than twenty years, and lived to be very aged. He was a consistent, zealous and pious member of the Episcopal church. A grand daughter who lived with him in his old age thus relates her remembrance of him when she was a child, "when my father [his son Philip] died in 1828, and the body was borne to the graveyard, the grave was not finished, and the bearers set the coffin down. Grandfather used a long cane, the top finished with a marble head, just long enough to rest his chin on. He walked around with tears streaming down his aged cheeks, raised his trembling hands, and with a trembling voice thus apostrophized the body of his son—"There lies virtue and honesty personified." He died Sept. 20, 1831, aged about 80, at the residence of his daughter Mrs. Charlotte (Moseley) McGhee. His wife died in Abbeville before her husband.

* Vaughan. This ancient family is from Wales and derives its descent from Colwyn-ap-Tagne, one of the fifteen tribes of Gwynedd. He lived in the time of Prince Anarawd, about the year of our Lord 875; was Lord of Ardudwy, now a part of Merionethshire, and of Ewioneth, one of the hundreds of Caermarvon, and also a Part of Glyw; his posterity at this day possess most of the lands in those countries. His grandsons Asser, Merion and Gwgan, the sons of Merwydd-ap-Colwyn were grown up to man's estate in the beginning of the reign of Prince Griffith-ap-Conan, and lived in Glyw about the year 1085, when Griffith first laid claim to the Principality of Wales. Their ancient seat Caer-Colwyn is now called Harleigh Castle. The family have been Earls of Lisburne in Ireland. The ancient family arms were "Sable, a chevron between three fleurs-de-lis, argent." The name Vaughan means "little in stature." A personal name of great antiquity. The Vaughans of Burton Hall Co., Salop, were from the renowned Tudor-Trevor the common patriarch of so many noble and gentle families in the principality. The arms of Vaughan of Wales, Hertfordshire and Yorkshire were "Sa, a chev. between three boys' heads, couped at the shoulders ermi, crined or, enwrapped about the necks with as many snakes, proper." Crest, "a boy's head as in the arms." More than twenty coats have been granted to the name mostly in Wales. Rowland Vaughan, age 19, came to Va. on the "Alice," July, 1635; Joseph Vaughan, age 17, on the "Elizabeth," Aug., 1635; Davie Vaughan, age 19, on the "Globe," Aug., 1635; John Vaughan age 23, was living at Elizabeth City in 1624, came on the "Bona-Nova," 1619.
He entered the war of 1812, but furnished a substitute and came home. He was sheriff of Cumberland Co. for a number of years, was baptized by the Episcopalians, but never was confirmed a member of that church. He was an honest, upright man, never used tobacco or ardent spirits of any kind. Was respected and loved by all who knew him. He m. in 1799, Judith Street, dau. of Dudley and Judith [Miller] Street. [Mr. Street was b. in Powhatan Co., Va. and d. in 1816.] She d. Oct. 16, 1853 in Cumberland Co., aged 72 years. Mr. Montague d. in the same Co., Aug. 19, 1865, aged 90 years.

* Ellis. This name is derived from the scripture name of Elias, but some say from the old British for Elles, meaning a "son-in-law." The arms of Ellis of Lincolnshire and Yorkshire were, "Or, on a cross sable five crescents of the field." Thirteen coats have been assigned to the name. Richard Ellis, age 25, came to Va. on ship "Bonaventure," Jan. 2, 1634; Robert Ellis, age 22, came on ship "Constance," Oct. 24, 1635; David Ellis and his wife Mrs. Ellis, and David Ellis (perhaps their son) are on the list of the living in Va. in 1623. 66.

Thomas Montague, son of William [22], b. about 1755 in Middlesex Co.

M. March 23, 1780 Ann Batchelder [records Christ Church].

* The origin of the name Ballard is from the old baptismal name of Ballard. The family were ancintly seated in England, in Cos. Sussex, Wilts, and Leicester; their coat of arms was, “Sable, a griffin segreant erm. armed and gorged with a crown, or.” The family were early in America. We find in Hen. Stat. Va. Vol. 2, p. 225, Thomas Ballard was a member of House of Burgesses in June, 1666, from James Co. He was one of his Majesties Council in 1674.
BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER. 99

The bond in M. records bears date March 20, 1780. Henry Yass signed the Marriage Bond. He d. 1789. His will was proved Oct. 26, 1789. He mentions his wife Ann, son Thomas, aus. Catherine and Sarah, with bequests when they arrive at lawful age. Mentions his brother William, sister Charlotte and Uncle Philip Montague. The executors were his wife Ann, and bro. William. His father left him "his land on Montague Island where he then lived." That land reverted or descended to his cousin Thomas, on of his father's bro. Col. Philip. There is an Inventory of the Estate of Thomas Montague dated July, 1810, signed by Lewis Jackson, Latane Montague and Robert Tunstall, with Philip Montague as administrator. Latane Montague had married the sister of this Thomas. Philip Montague was his second cousin, and as they are both concerned in the settlement of this Estate if it does not mean the estate of this Thomas we do not know to whom it could refer.

34. Catherine, b. ——. " " " " " "
36. Clarissa, b. ——; m. Mr. Lee of Essex Co., probably Charles Ludwell Lee, son of Philip Lee [106].

* Valentine originated from a baptismal name. It has sometimes been corrupted to Hollington, in England. The ancient arms of the family were "Sable, on a chevron argent, three lions' heads erased of the field." Crest, "a demi-pegasus, salient and erased ermine, maned on the body with a ducal coronet or."

M. (1) Dec. 22, 1787 [Ch. ch. record], Catherine Vass. *The marriage bond on M. records was dated Dec. 20, 1787. Richard Montague signed the bond with him. After her death he m. (2) Jan., 1795, [date of bond on M. records] Ann Healy [pronounced Haley]. "In settlement of the estate of Catherine Vass, divided Oct. 22, 1798, settled May 1, 1802, three-fourths of the estate were equally divided between the children of Philip Montague, viz.: Charlotte, Catherine, Frances, Penelope; Philip, Elizabeth, William Latané and Martha. The remaining one-fourth to be equally divided between William and Charlotte Montague and the children of Thomas Montague deceased, viz.: Catherine and Sarah S. Montague." He resided in Middlesex Co. and the property at Montague Island seems to have descended to him. Probably died before Sept., 1810 as "Thomas Montague was the administrator of the Estate of Thomas Montague 'of the island' Sept. 5, 1810." He was for many years sheriff of the County. On Middlesex Will book 1794-1810 is found under date of 1799 Dec., recorded April 26, 1802, the Estate of Thomas Montague deceased in account with Thomas Montague administrator. It is inferred from this that he died before Dec., 1799. The settlement was not completed until March, 1808, recorded in 1810.

242. Edmund Healy, b. ——.
243. Nancy, b. ——; d. unmarried, aged 18 years.

* Vass. The name Vass-Vaus is derived from Vaux-de-Vallibus. In the 12th century this great Anglo-Norman family obtained a footing in Scotland, and from thence sprung the Vauses lords of Dirleton. Vaux is from a district in Normandy. The arms of Vaux or Vaus were "Ar. on an inescutcheon within an orle of eight Martletts gu. a wolf's head erased of the field." Robert Vass, age 19, came to Va. from London on the "Globe" in Aug., 1625. Ezekiah Vass was Capt. of ship "Dymond," May, 1659, in the Va. trade. Richard Vause, age 20, in the "Jonathan," May. 1660, was settled in the neck of land Charles City in 1624.
Rev. Philip Montague,* son of Col. Philip [24], b. June 19, 1776. He was one of the most distinguished ministers of the gospel of the Baptist church that Virginia has produced. Of fervent, ardent piety, of persuasive and convincing eloquence, he was loved, honored and revered through the entire state and through Maryland. He resided on the farm called "Fountain Run" in Essex, near the church of which he was pastor, and where he d, March 9, 1857. His mother was Elizabeth Montague [49] or [96]; it has been found impossible to say which one of them. Attention is called to the old letter written by him, given below, copied by the compiler from the original letter and here preserved in memory of him.

* The following very interesting letter was sent to the compiler, after this work was in press, by Mrs. Buskirk [3307] wife of Judge Edward C. Buskirk of Indianapolis. The letter was written by Rev. Philip Montague of Va., to Elder William Montague [No. 318 in this volume] of Ky. Mrs. Buskirk is the grand dau. of Elder William Montague. The letter was found among the papers of her father after his death and has been preserved by Mrs. Buskirk as a precious relic of her father and grandfather.

Addressed to Elder William Montague, Sand Run Baptist Church, North Bend Association, Kentucky.

Very Dear Brother and I Expect Cousin:

I received the minutes of your Association some time last summer by Bro. A. Lewis and was gratified, not only to find my relations were following the dear Redeemer, but that pretty high in the Church of which you are a member, as also in the Association. This may be a little pride in me, and very likely is. It is enough, my dear brother, if we are the children of God, that will entitle us to a seat at His right hand, where there are pleasures forever more. I concluded on the reception of the minutes, to write you immediately. But while thy servant was busy here and there, it went out of my head and probably should not have thought of it again, but accidently coming across the minutes I determined to sit down immediately and scribble something to you. My father was named Philip, after whom I was named. He had ten children, viz.: Charlotte, Thomas, Frances, Catherine, Penelope, Philip who died when an infant, myself, William Latane, Elizabeth and Martha. Thomas, Philip, and Elizabeth are dead, all the rest are alive and, am happy to inform you, are all Baptists. My father and mother were Episcopalians, and when I can first remember, were much opposed to the Baptists, and unwilling for their children to attend Baptist meetings. Consequently I do not remember to have heard a baptist preach until I was pretty much grown. My convictions at the first were but moderate, and by leaving my friends and living among young, wild persons I seemed to have forgotten it. And strange to state never returned until I became a married man and 25 years old. Oh how good God was to bear so long with me. But when He attacked me the second time, it was very powerful. I became a wretched and miserable alarmed for two or three months. I ate no pleasant bread and finally came near despair, when reading the Bible my mind became somewhat composed and I lost the weight of guilt which seemed to have bound me down so long. Yet I could not believe in the dear Redeemer. And I was kept in a state of suspense for near two months longer, in which time I had full confidence in the Christian religion, but I could not believe for myself. But God was good, He who had begun the good work did carry it on, unto the day of Jesus Christ. One evening a little after dark I went to prayer as usual, and while thus...

engaged, this text was applied with much force, "You hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sin." Yet this did not satisfy, and when I came in the house I opened the Bible and while reading, my mind became quite tranquil, there was a thrill of joy seemed to run through my whole soul, and strange to tell I immediately believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, and two days after, on Feb. 14th, 1805, I was baptized. For several months my mind was troubled about preaching. I could get no rest, and finally I became persuaded, if I did not preach the Lord would kill me and I thought it would be by lightning. I began to preach the latter part of the same year [1805]. I was then living in Middlesex on a plantation left me by my father. A cousin of mine by the same name as myself commenced preaching a little before me and we frequently held meetings together. [He alludes to Rev. Philip T. Montague, [112].—Compiler.] In the year 1811 I had a call to the care of the church in Essex called Piscataway which I accepted, in which bounds I have lived ever since. I have gone through much labor, and traveled a good deal. I traveled four or five years as a missionary to the state of Maryland, during these years I traveled about 4000 miles a year. I have baptized since my ordination 1393 persons. I have the care of two churches. To one of them I preach three Sundays in the month, to wit, Mount Zion, Howertons and Tappahannock; to the other, which is forty miles from me, I preach one Sunday and the Saturday preceding. Yet, my dear brother, although I have been so active, I feel unworthy of the name of preacher I am a poor sinner, yet believing in Him who came to save sinners. I am now 54 years of age, I have had ten children, two are dead [the compiler has no record of the two who died]. My wife and oldest daughter are Baptists, and as the greater part of the rest are nearly grown, they lay with much weight on my mind. I should be much gratified to receive a letter from you. Do write to me. Wishing you grace, mercy and peace, both you and yours I remain in love, yours in the dear Redeemer. Philip Montague."

From the words at the beginning of the letter "and I expect cousin" it is evident that they had heard of each other through their church association, and that neither knew what degree of kinship existed between them. They were four cousins, because their fathers Col. Philip [24] and Thomas [3175] were third cousins. The fathers of the last, Thomas Jr. [12] and William [3172] were second cousins; the fathers of these, Peter [9] and William [3176] were first cousins, and the fathers of these last, Peter [4] and William [6] were brothers.

† Williams. The name is derived from the baptismal name of William. The name of Edward Williams who came to Va. in ship "William and John," age 26 years, is on the muster roll of 1624, at James City. David Williams among the dead. The same list has Roland Williams, age 20, in the "Jonathan," 1623, living at Robert Thrashers, Elizabeth City. Also Roger Williams on the plant of Capt. Sam'l Mathews, came in the "Southampton," 1622, age 20. At Jordans Jorney, Charles City, 1623, is the name of Henry Williams who came in the "Treasour" in 1613, and his wife, Susan Williams, who came in the "William and Thomas," in 1618. Also Pierce Williams, age 23, in the "Southampton," 1623, located at the plant of Abram Peirseys. The will of Howard Williams is not found on Middlesex records.

Lieut. Richard Montague, son of Abraham [33], b. about 1758 in Essex Co., Va.

* There are two derivations for the name Street as applied to a family. 1st, from parish of the name; 2d, from a public road or highway. The arms of Street were “Azure three Catherine wheels Ar. a canton of the last.”
He served in the Revolutionary war as Lieutenant in the navy, while thus engaged he was captured and imprisoned in the isle of Uba. There it became known that he was a member of the order of the Masons and on exchanging the customary signals with some members of that fraternity who came to see him, they learned that he was Grand Master of that order, and eventually secured his release. His name appears in a list of officers receiving military land warrants issued prior to Dec. 31, 1784. Two land grants were awarded him by Congress for his services, the first of which was secured by his and children; from the second they derived no benefit, as it was obtained by some other party by forgery. He was also entitled to a share in the French Spoliation claims, but loss of papers rendered it unavailable. M. March 19, 1786 [Ch. ch. record], Charlotte Montague [68], dau. of William [22]. His marriage bond in M. records was dated Feb. 27, 1786. He d. 1790. His will was dated Sept. 3, 1789, proved in Essex Co., Jan. 17, 1791, in which he mentions his wife Charlotte and his brothers William Montague and Rev. Philip Unshall Montague.

2. Abraham, b. 1787 or 1788.

ANN MONTAGUE, dau. of Abraham [33], b. 1756, m. Philip Lee.* He was probably the son of Charles Lee of Middlesex, whose will was dated May 31, 1791, and proved Oct. 25, 1791, and mentions Charles and Philip, daughters “Penny Daniel,” “Fanny McIntire” of Lancaster, and grandson Lewis Lee. Charles Lee was executor. Some of Philip Lee’s descendants say he was son of Lewis Lee and that Philip was a colonel in the war of 1812. Middlesex Co. and church records have the will of Henry Daniel, July, 1767, who had son Robert. His wife and Lewis Montague were executors. Also Robert Daniel, Jr., m. Dec. 29, 1768, Penelope Lee. [H. p. 329.] Penny Daniel above mentioned was probably Penelope Lee, and the will indicates a connection with Ann Montague Lee’s family.

“Philip Lee was a good man, honest to a fault, kind, affectionate husband and indulgent father, and stood high wherever known.”—Letter of Thos. Healy Montague.

*Lee. This name in England is much older than the Norman Conquest and is anciently derived from the Anglo-Saxon leah, equivalent to the German loh and the Latin lucus. The modern English word Lea, means a meadow. The name has been variously spelled, Lee, Lea, Legh, Leghe, Leigh, Ley, Leye, all having a common origin. In England it was a large family, and in 1620 there was scarcely a Co. in England which did not contain from one to six Lee seats, manors, or mansions, while the various Counties were dotted over with Lee villages, towns and rivers. Through the early history of England the Lees have been noted for chivalry, bravery, and courage united with amiability and nobility of character. In the church of St. Albans, in Hertfordshire was a very noble font of solid brass wherein the children of the kings of Scotland were wont to be baptized; which font Sir Richard Lee brought, among spoils taken in the Scotch wars, and gave to this church. It bears the following inscription in Latin: "When Leith, a town of good account in Scotland, and Edinburgh, the principal city of that nation, were on fire, Sir Richard Lee, Knight, saved me out of the flames and brought me
BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER.

In gratitude to him for his kindness, I, who heretofore served only at the baptism of the children of Kings, do now most willingly offer the same service even to the meanest of the English nation. Lee, the conqueror hath so commanded. Adieu A. D. 1543 in the 36th year of King Henry VIII.” Camden mentions Lee, in Co. Chester, near the Mersey river “from whence is a family of the same name famous not only for its gentile race, but for the number of its branches.”

In a Parochial chapel at Maclesfield in Co. Chester, on a brass plate, is the following:

“Here lyeth the body of Perkin A. Lee
That for King Richard, the death did dye Betrayed for righteousness.
And the bones of Sir Peers his sonne
That with King Henry the fifth did wonne
In Paris.”

“This Perkin served King Edward III. and the Black Prince his son, in all their wars in France, and was at the battle of Cressie, and had Lyme given him for that service. And after their deaths, served King Richard II. and left him not in his troubles, but was taken with him and beheaded at Chester, by King Henry IV. And the said Sir Peers his sonne, served King Henry V. and was slain at the battle of Agencourt. In their memory Sir Peter Lee of Lyme, Knight, descended from them, finding the said old verses written upon a stone in this chapel did re-edifie this place An. Dom. 1626.”

Sir Thomas Lee, mayor of London 1588, was descended from this Perkin A. Lee; and the father of Perkin, who was Robert Lee of Adlington, Co. Chester, A. D. 1369, bore on his shield, “a bend, cheque, compony, gules and or,” very similar to the fess, as shown on the arms of Col. Richard Lee of Va. Near Westbury in Wiltshire is the village of Lee, which Camden says is the place where King Alfred encamped the night before he set upon the Danes at Eddington. In the Vale of Alesbury in Co. Buckingham, was Quarendon, the seat of Sir Robert Lee, Baronet.

Sir Edward Henry Lee, who was created Earl of Litchfield in 1674, had his chief seat at Ditchley in Oxfordshire. He derived his pedigree from Sir Walter Lee of Wyburnbury, Co. Chester, who derived his name from the lordship of Lee in the said parish, where they resided in the reign of Edward III. [1327, 1377]. Sir Henry Lee, a descendant of Sir Walter of Co. Chester, was of the privy council of Henry VII. and VIII. and a Knight of the Garter. He also served Edward VI., Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, and was very eminent for his abilities, both as a statesman and a soldier. The ancient arms of these Lees were “Argent, a fess, between three crescents, sable.” Their motto was “Fide et Constantia” [by fidelity and constancy]. Col. Richard Lee, whom Bishop Meade mentions as the first Lee settler in Va., had a mansion called “Cobbs,” situated in the parish of great Wycome, in Co. Northumberland in Va. Near to Cobbs and in sight of the Chesapeake bay, Hancock Lee, one of the sons of Col. Richard, had an estate named “Ditchley.” This name would seem at first sight to connect Col. Richard Lee with the Earl of Litchfield family in England, but the coat of arms of Col. Richard Lee, if there was no other reason, would forever bar the way to any such connection. But there is another reason. There was no Earl of Litchfield in England until 1674, at which date Col. Richard Lee had been dead ten years. Sir Edward Henry Lee was the first Earl, and was so created by King Charles II. in 1674. He married Charlotte Fitzroy, illegitimate dau. of Charles II. by the notorious Barbara Villiers. Charlotte was the second dau. of Barbara Villiers and was born Sept. 5, 1664. Col. Richard Lee’s will was proved in court Jan., 1665, he therefore died just about the date that Charlotte was born and she could not have been his mother. He had been dead many years when she married the Earl of Litchfield. The tombstone of Richard, son of Col. Richard Lee, who d. in Westmoreland, Va., 1714, aged 68, states that he was of the ancient family of Lees of Merton Regis in Shropshire. It seems best to believe that this tombstone was correct until the contrary is proved. Merton is from the Saxon word mere, meaning large standing water. Merton Regis means the Kings-mere or mere-royal. Regis was a common affix sometimes used, sometimes omitted. Probably it originated from the fact that titles to land were, from various causes, so often in the Crown. Merton was variously spelled Merriton, Meriton, Meertown, Meritane, Meretuna, Moreton, Morton, Marton, and Martin, and there are few counties in England which had not a locality spelled one way or the other. The Saxon mor means a pool or lake, about the same meaning as mere. The Merton-Regis alluded to on the tombstone has not been located; without a doubt, the place existed in early times, and fully identified the family from which Col.
Lee was descended. Camden says that "at Langley in Shropshire, one mile from the castle of Acton-Burnel, lowly situated in a woody park, is the seat of the Lees, one of the most ancient and honorable families in these parts." A note states that the family is extinct. It is wise to look in America for a family said to be extinct in England in 1650, unless such family were in the peerage. Langley was south of the city of Shrewsbury near Condover. Within the hundred of Shrewsbury, and a few miles north of the city, was the parish of Merton, spelled Merriton on Camden's map of 1695. In this parish of Merton was an ancient seat of the Lees named Lee-Hall, situated a mile or so from Merton parish church. At the present day the railroad from Shrewsbury to Chester passes near the ancient Merton and the station there is named "Leaton," which appears to be another way of spelling Lee-town. Another railroad running north from Shrewsbury to Manchester, and nearly parallel to the Chester railroad, perhaps three miles from the station of Leaton, appears to pass directly over the site of Lee-Hall as it was located on the ancient map. Thomas Lee of London descended from the Lees of Lee-Hall in Shropshire was living about the year 1600. He married Ann, a sister of Dr. John Warner, Bishop of Rochester who died 1666. His son John Lee was the Bishop's heir, and in 1650 was lord of Wormegay in Co. Norfolk. He took the name of Warner and became the distinguished John Lee Warner, D. D., Archdeacon and Prebendary of Rochester. His eldest son Henry Lee Warner was in 1680 lord of Walsingham Manor in Norfolk, Eng. There was an ancient seat of the Lees at Lee on the river Rodan south of the town of Wem. There was another seat at Lee-Hall on the river Dee, south of the city of Chester. Besides the parochial seat of Merriton, near Shrewsbury, there was a Meer-town near Newport in Co. Salop. The name Moreton also appears in that Co. "Col. Richard Lee of Va," says Bishop Meade, "had many children. Hancock Lee was his seventh son. John and Richard were the two eldest. John died before his father. Richard married Lettuce, dau. of Henry Corbyin of Stafford, he had five sons and one dau. who m. Wm. Fitzhugh of Eagle's Nest, King George Co. The sons were Richard, Philip, Francis, Thomas and Henry. Richard settled in London, but his children George, Lettuce, and Martha returned to Va. George left three sons. Philip settled in Maryland, many of his descendants returned to Va. Francis died unmarried. From Thomas was descended Richard Henry Lee, Francis Lightfoot Lee, and others renowned in the Revolution. Henry Lee married a Miss Bland, and from him were descended many who were bright ornaments in the church, the state and the army." It may be added that from this last-mentioned Henry Lee and Miss Bland was descended Gen'l Robert E. Lee.

"Ditchley" the Lee seat in Va. seems to have passed to the Ball family. In 1891, James F. Ball resided there, aged 75 and infirm. His father, Joseph Ball who d. 1851, was the same Joseph Ball who visited William Montague, near Richmond, in his old-fashioned gig in Dec., 1826. Joseph was son of James Ball and grandson of Col. James Ball of Bewdley. Col. Richard Lee, in his will describes himself as of Virginia but late of Stratford, Langdon, Essex. This place was on the east bank of the Lee river, and was a suburb of the city of London. There were a number of places called Leigh in Essex, including a Leigh Priory. There were Lee families seated in that Co. and Col. Richard undoubtedly owned property at Stratford, but his ancestry should be sought for in the Co. of Salop.

On a list of Baronets, printed 1738, is the name of Sir Humphrey Lee of Langley in Shropshire, title extinct May 3, 1620. His arms were the same as those of Col. Richard Lee of Va. which proves that he belonged to a branch of the same family. Sir Humphrey Lee was the son of Richard Lee of Langley, Shropshire. [See Burke's Royal Fam. ped. CLXV.] Mary Lee, dau. of Richard Lee of Langley and sister of Sir Humphrey Lee, married Sir Henry Viner, Kt., who died 1627. Their dau. Mary Viner married Thomas, son of Sir Thomas Bromley, Lord Chancellor of England. Sir Henry Viner was of Montague descent through the Earl of March, son of the Lady Philippa Montagu.

Effort has been made to connect the Va. Lees with what is sometimes called the "Quarendon" [Co. Bucks] family of Lees. The Quarendon family were of the same stock as the Earls of Litchfield, and derive their descent from the same Sir Walter Lee of Co. Chester. The first Lee who ever settled at Quarendon was Benedict Lee and his wife Elizabeth, dau. of John Wood. From his eldest brother Thomas were descended the Earls of Litchfield, two brothers, John and Robert, were seated at Aston in Co. Stafford; another brother, William, was seated in Co. Essex. Said Benedict was the son of John Lee and Margaret Hocknell. He was a great-great-grandson of Sir Walter of Wyburnbury, Co. Chester. The original arms of all these Lees was "three leopards' heads sable, between a chevron sable." These arms were altered by Richard Lee, a nephew of said Benedict, to "three crescents sable, between a fess sable," which have remained the family arms through the generations since that time. This Richard Lee married Anne, dau. of William Saunders of Co. Oxford. The Va. line of Lees should be looked for among the families who bore the fess compony and the billets, and traced themselves to Co. Salop.

In the time of King Henry II. [1155] there was a certain Hamon Lee, seated at High Lee, Co. Chester. His great-great-great-grandson Robert Lee, who died 1369, was seated at Adlington, Co. Chester. He bore on his shield "a bend counter-compory [or cheque] red and yellow" [gules et or]. From this fact, it seems possible that the Lees of Salop may have originally come from Co. Chester, at least, the fess, cheque, or compony on their arms, seems to indicate it.

There were, on the ancient map, many places suggestive of Lee, in Co. Chester. Two Lea Manors; two Lee-Halls; two Morton Manors, and a Morton Priory; Moreton-Hall; and Mere-Manor; Marton Manor, near the lake of Marten-Mere. Manors of Wayleigh; Fernly-Leigh; Matte-Leigh and Leighton; and a river Lee. Besides High-Leigh and Lea chapel.

Col. Richard Lee came to Va. 1641. His will was made in London, Eng., Feb. 6, 1663, proved in London Jan., 1665. In it he mentions his wife Anna, children John, Francis, Richard, William, Hancock, Betsey, Anne, Elizabeth and Charles.

The College of Arms has the following coat of arms: "Lee—Gules a fess chequy, or and azure, between eight billets argent. Col. Richard Lee, Secretary of State in Va. A. D. 1659, descended from the Lees in Shropshire [who sometimes bore eight billets and sometimes ten, and sometimes ye fesse counter-compone]." These arms are found cut or engraved over the door of Col. Lee's house, "Cobbs," on the Chesapeake Bay in Va. except that there are ten billets instead of eight. Queens College, Oxford, has a silver pint cup, presented to the College 1658 by John Lee, son of Col. Richard, which has the Lee family arms engraved upon it [with eight billets], with the following inscription in Latin:
The Merton-Regis on the tombstone in Va. is here called Morton-Regis. Both were correct at the time. The mode of spelling was a matter of no significance provided the initial letter of the word remained unchanged. One way was as correct as another. Camden in his preface, 1623, says about spelling, that “in the memory of one man one place has been spelled five different ways.” The N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg. says, “Morton-Regis is a locality which cannot be identified now if correctly spelled, but if, as seems most probable, it is an error for Norton Regis, all becomes clear at once, that being a common form for writing Nordley Regis, one of the seats of the Lees in Co. Salop.” Nordley Regis was located on the border line between Salop and Stafford. It is sometimes put down on the maps with the affix “Regis” and sometimes without such affix, and sometimes is printed “Norley.” “It came into the Langley Lee family by marriage of Robert Lee to Margaret Astley in 1385” [Dr. E. J. Lee, Phila., Pa.], but the ancient Lee seat was at Lea-Hall, north of Shrewsbury. “Lea-Hall was the cradle of the Salop Lees.” [J. Henry Lea, Cedarhurst, Mass.]

Edmondson’s Heraldry gives the arms of Lee, of Cotton and Langley in Shropshire, as “Gules, a fess compony, or and azure, between eight billets, argent.” Crest, “on a staff raguly, a squirell cracking a nut, from dexter end of staff an oak branch fructed, all proper.” Hist. of John Lee of Farmington, Conn., by Sarah Nash Lee, Norwich, Conn., 1878, says “Richard Lee was third son of Launcelot Lee of Cotton in Shropshire. Came to Va. 1640-1 as secretary of the Colonial Governor Lord Fairfax, finally settled at York on James river, 1647. He was of the family of Lee of Cotton, near Bridgenorth the seat of Launcelot Lee, and he became the ancestor of the Lees of Va.” This pedigree has since been disputed.

Since the above was written the following has been received from Rev. J. Mackay, Vicar of Leaton, Salop, Eng., whose vicarage is within three miles of Lea Hall. “The present owner of Lee Hall is Sir Raymond Tyrwhitt whose grandfather bought the estate from descendants of the Lee family as the paper below relates,” to wit, pedigree—John de Lee Lord of Biriton, Edward I. and others. Richard Lee of Langley, sheriff of Salop 1387; Rudulphus de Lee; Richard de Langley, sheriff of Salop 1479; Fulco Lee de Langley; Thomas Lee de Langley married Jane, dau. of Rob. Corbet of Morton, Kt., and had 1, Richard Lee of Langley, Jervinmas, Thomas and seven daughters. Richard 1, above mentioned, m. Eleanor, dau. of Walter Wrottesley of Wrottesley, Co. Stafford, and had 2, Humphrey Lee of Langley, Walter, Francis, Edward, and six daughters. Humphrey Lee 2, above mentioned, sheriff 1600, Baronet 1620, m. Margaret, dau. of Reg Corbet, Judge of King’s Bench, and had 3, Richard Lee and four daughters. Richard Lee 3, above mentioned, was alderman of London, he m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Allen, Kt., and had Mary Lee, co-heir, who m. Edward Smythe; Humphrey Lee; Elizabeth; Rachel, co-heir, who m. Ralph Cleaton, she had Lea Hall; Richard, Francis. Sir Humphrey Lee of Lee Hall, Langley, and Acton Burnell was 4th in descent from Richard Lee, sheriff in 1479. His son, Sir Richard Lee 2d Baronet, was an eminent sufferer for Charles I., compounded for his estates for £3719, £, one month before the Restoration having had five sons and four dau.” [See Sheriffs of Shropshire, pp. 97-98.]

Camden says the Langley branch of Lee was extinct at death of Sir Humphrey, but evidently he referred to the branch of eldest sons who in England succeeded to title and estate. It is probable that Col. Richard Lee of Va. was descended from some one of the younger sons mentioned on above pedigree. The Meriton mentioned on Camden’s map of 1695 as parochial and which was near Lea Hall, now bears the name of Merrington, and is, with Lee Hall, in the parish of Preston-Gubbals according to Eyton’s Antiq. Salop.

Rev. Mr. Mackay, the Vicar of Leaton who resides near Lee Hall, says, “from the road it looks a most picturesque old mansion house which everyone admires, both on account of its ancient appearance and fine situation.”

From Dr. Edmund J. Lee [Phila., Pa.]

Extract from letter of L. G. Tyler, President’s office, William and Mary College, Williamsburg, Jan. 29, 1893. “The York Co. records show that at the time Col. Richard Lee was a magistrate of York Co. a Dr. Henry Lee sat upon the bench with him. In 1646 they sign a bond together and in this bond Mrs. Sibella Felgate, wife of Capt. Robert Felgate gentleman of Felgate's Creek, York Co., is described as the mother of John Adkins the brother of Marah, wife of Henry Lee. This Henry Lee married Marah Adkins. The wills, etc., of Dr. Henry Lee's family are in the records of York and the family is pretty distinctly traced. Major Baker P. Lee was of this family. The old Lee residence is still standing in York Co., not far from 'Lee Hall,' on the C. & O. railroad."

Mr. Alexander Brown of Norwood, Va., author of "Genesis of U. S.," under date Feb. 6, 1893, says, "I have extracts from York Co. records showing that Henry Lee was there in 1642, Richard in 1652, and William in 1660." Also he encloses a list of eight names of Lees who were in old Albermarle Co. prior to 1761, when there were only 1344 white tithables in the County, to wit: Ambrose Lee, James Lee, John Lee, Richard Lee, Robert Lee, Thomas Lee, Timothy Lee, William Lee, and George Lee soon after 1761.

Also soldiers from old Amherst [now Nelson and Amherst] who were in the Revolution 1776, Francis Lee, Richard Lee.

*Owen was a personal name in Wales; a few may be of Saxon blood for there is an Owine in the Domesday, Yorkshire, and a still earlier Owine occurs in the "Codex Diplomaticus." It was one of the most common Welsh surnames. The Owens of Tedsmore Hall in Denbighshire are descended from Howell Dha, and the Kings of South Wales, but the first of the family who wrote himself Owen was Roland Owen, sheriff of Montgomeryshire in 1610. The Owens of Glymason descend from Llwarch-ap-Bran, lord of Menai in Anglesea, founder of the second noble tribe of North Wales and Powys. The Owens of Orielton, Co. Pembroke, Barts, spring from Hova-ap-Kundhelw, a nobleman of North Wales who lived about the year 1130, and was one of the fifteen peers. Fourteen coats of arms are mentioned two are here given: "Gules, a chevron between three lions, rampant, or," and Owen [Wales] "Argent, three ravens' legs erased, sable, meeting in the fess point, talons extended into the three acute corners of the escutcheon."

JANE MONTAGUE, dau. of Col. James [44], b. about 1767, m., Feb. 27, 1783, Harry Beverly Yates.* [Ch. ch. records.]

The marriage bond on M. records bears date, Feb. 24, 1783. Thomas Segar signed marriage bond. In the settlement of the estate of Col. James Montague, her name is mentioned as his dau. inheriting certain negroes bequeathed by her grandfather Joseph Chinn. The witnesses were Philip and Peter Montague. There is also an entry of cash from Harry B. Yates toward his wife's part of her father's debts. Mr. Harry B. Yates was a relative of Rev. Bartholomew Yates who was pastor of Christ church, Middlesex. He was a brother of Catherine Yates, who m. Capt. John Montague. Miss Mary Yates, whose will mentions Elizabeth Montague, was also his sister. The estate was settled in 1769, and was divided among

In London in 1616, aged 103. From him the Gloucester Graves derive their pedigree. Their arms were "Gu. an eagle displayed; or, beaked, membered and ducally crowned, ar. eight cross-crosslets of the second." The arms of the Salop family were "Or, a trefoil flapped, vert." In Va., Middlesex Will Book for 1740, p. 4, has the will of Alexander Graves, he mentions wife Mary, youngest dau. Amy Tyler, and grandchild Mary Philips. Thomas Graves, also George Graves and his wife Mrs. Graves are on the list of living in Va., 1692. On the muster roll of 1624 we find the names of Robert Graves, came on the "Southampton," 1623; another George Graves came on the "Sea Venture" and Elinor his wife came on the "Susan," and John Graves "their sonne aged 10 yeres." Also the name of Capt. Thomas Graves who came in the "Mary and Margrett" in 1607.

Yates. This name is derived from "Yate-Stoop" in the dialect of North of England, meaning a gate-post. Gates is another form of the name. Sometimes Yate appears to signify a goat. The ancient arms of the family were "Per chevron, or and gu, three gates countercharged two and one." Again, Yates of Cos. Wilts, Bucks, Oxford, Berks, etc., "Per fesse crenelée, or and gu, three gates countercharged," Katherine Yates, age 19, came to Va. in ship "Boneventure," in Jan., 1624; John Yates, age 20, came in the "America," June 23, 1635; Robert Yates, age 25, came in ship "Globe," Aug. 7, 1635; Mr. Yates is mentioned on list of the living in Va. in 1623. And the muster roll of 1624 has the name of Edward Yates, age 18, came in the "Duty," 1609, and living at Sir George Yeardleys on Hogg Island. See full pedigree of Yates in "Va. Genealogies," by Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden, Wilkes Barre, Pa., 1891.
the children 1799, and is the place now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daniel, Church View, Middlesex Co. Mr. Harry B. Yates m. (1) Lucy Murray, whose mother was Mrs. Rachel Murray. Mrs. Rachel Murray in her will in 1781, mentions her dau. Lucy, wife of Harry B. Yates, but mentions no children. She soon died as Mr. Yates m. (2) Miss Montague, in 1783. Sally Yates is mentioned as the child of Harry Beverly Yates in the settlement of his estate. [Middlesex will book 1810, p. 159]. The will of Mary Yates is dated (or recorded) Jan. 15, 1794.

SAMUEL MONTAGUE, son of Samuel [46], b. about 1776, in Middlesex or Essex Co., Va.

_M_, July 11, 1799, [Ch. ch. record] Elizabeth Stanard Montague [3191]. She was b. about 1777, and d. before 1810, leaving him a widower with three children. It is believed that he did not marry again. He owned land within a mile or two of Montague Village. The will of his wife's father, Capt. John Montague of Mt. Prospect, Essex, mentions by name his three grand-daughters, children of his dau. Elizabeth, deceased, wife of Samuel Montague, and gives to them six slaves, waiting-man George, old Sam, Levinia, Burgess, Lewis, and Rose, with their present and future increase. A deed dated June 11, 1811, states that this Samuel Montague was deceased at that date.

JAMES MONTAGUE, son of Samuel [46], b. about 1780 in Middlesex Co., Va.

In the court proceedings of Essex Co., May 16, 1797, the following are named as plaintiffs in a Chancery suit. "John Montague, an infant, by his guardian John Montague; Samuel Montague, an infant, by his guardian; and James Montague, an infant, by his guardian William Montague." These were children of Samuel and Lucy Montague, both of whom were deceased in 1797. Samuel had died in 1785, and Lucy his widow in 1792, as appears from Essex court records. The guardian of John was probably Capt. John Montague of Essex; the guardian of James, was probably his brother William. He was named after his uncle, Col. James Montague. James grew to manhood probably in Essex or Middlesex, and married, in Virginia, Miss Elizabeth Edmonson. She d. in Elizabethtown, Ky., between the years 1847–1850. Dec. 17, 1751, and was buried in St. Nicholas church, South Yarmouth, near his mother and other relatives. His tombstone says “he was the only Gov. abroad against whom inhabitant or merchant never once complained.” In 1738 William Anne, Earl of Albemarle was Governor and Major William Gooch was Lieut.-Governor of Va. On the “Temple Farm,” the seat of Gov. Spottswood, at Yorktown, was found buried under ground an old tombstone. “Major William Gooch of this parish died Oct. 29, 1655.”

“Within this tomb, there doth interred lie,
No shape, but substance, true nobility,
Itself though young in years, just twenty-nine,
Yet graced with virtues moral and divine;
The church from him did good participate,
In counsel rare, fit to adorn a state.”

In the mansion house on this farm Lord Cornwallis met Washington and signed the articles of capitulation. Dr. Thomas Gooch was Bishop of Bristol, and Prebendary of Canterbury in 1738. He married Penelope, daughter of Compton, Earl of Northampton. On the list of the living in Va. in 1623 and 1624 the name is not mentioned.

Thomas Nelson was the founder of Yorktown, he was the son of Hugh and Sarah Nelson of Penrith, County Cumberland, Eng. He was b. Feb. 20, 1677, d. Oct. 7, 1745. His son, Hon. William Nelson was President of his Majesty's Council in Va. and President of the Colony, and he laid the corner stone, when an infant, of that venerable relic—the old York House. He was held by his nurse and the brick laid in his apron and passed through little hands. Thomas had two sons [Thomas and William] and one dau. who m. Col. Berkeley of Middlesex. The sons settled in York. Thomas Nelson was President of Va. Council, 1774. The Nelsons were distinguished in the war of the Revolution, and there are numerous descendants all over Virginia. Thomas Nelson, Jr., was Burgess from York Co., 1774. Capt. George Montague was Capt. of the "Fowey" man-of-war at Port, York, July 13, 1775. [Va. Hist. Coll. Vol. 6, p. 190.] "Just at the opening of the war of the revolution, on a certain occasion, a Capt. Montagu drew up a ship-of-war before the town of York and threatened that in a certain event he would fire upon the town. Though full of helpless women and children, the committee of the place, on meeting to receive his message, resolved unanimously that Mr. Montague had manifested a spirit of cruelty unprecedented at the annals of civilized times and that it be recommended to the inhabitants of the town, ye of the country in general, that they do not entertain or show any other mark of civility to Capt. Montagu, besides what common decency and absolute necessity requires."—[Bishop Seade, Vol. 1, p. 210.] This Capt. George Montagu was an Englishman in the service of King George III. He belonged to some one of the various Montagu families of England. He was not a Virginian, nor a descendant of Peter, nor was he in any way connected with any American Montague. On a list of ships and vessels of the royal navy of England, the name of the "Fowey" is found, and is entered as a fifth-rate vessel, with 190 men and 40 guns.

He came to Ky. with his brother Jesse in 1795, when he was a youth. He studied law under Hon. Henry Clay, for whom he had a deep respect, but they never agreed in politics after Mr. Clay voted for Mr. John Quincy Adams. After Capt. Daniel obtained his license to practice law, he settled in Mount Sterling, Montgomery Co., Ky., and became a distinguished lawyer and politician. In 1812 he raised a company, was elected captain of it, and joined the Northwestern Army and acquitted himself very honorably. He was then States attorney for several years. He was several times elected to the legislature of Ky. and in 1827 was elected to Congress. He was elected a member of Congress three times consecutively; but in the arrears between Gen. Jackson [then President] and Mr. Calhoun, Capt. Daniel took sides with Mr. Calhoun, and the popularity of President Jackson was too much for him to encounter, and he clinched the race in 1833. He then retired from politics, removed to Fayette Co. on a farm, and engaged to a limited extent in rearing and breeding horses, breeding and raising a mare that he called “Maria Louisa” which became very distinguished among racers. After being elected to the Legislature from Fayette Co. he returned to Montgomery Co. and resumed the practice of law. “He was Presidential Elector in 1837, voting for President Harrison.”—H. He served as a member of Congress from 1827 to 1833 inclusive. [Rollin’s Hist. of Ky.]

the Va. Legislature. He was one of five members who founded the Presbyterian church in Christiansburgh, namely, Dr. Joseph S. Eddie, Mr. William Wade, Rice D. Montague, Mrs. Nancy Bowyer, and her sister Mary, Mrs. Creed Taylor, both daughters of James Craig, one of the first settlers of Montgomery Co. Mrs. Craig was sister of Gen. Montgomery who was killed at the storming of Quebec (Canada). The above three men were the first ruling elders chosen, and served as such until their death. Mr. Montague was a promoter of all good works calculated to build up the town; liberal in giving money to erect churches, schools, etc. From his long experience as county clerk, his legal opinion and advice was much sought after and often accepted, thus saving to many parties useless costs and loss of time in suits at law. A famous Judge of the court of appeals stated that records prepared by him were the neatest and most correct of any furnished by any clerk in the state.

* The mother of Mary McClanahan was a descendant of Gen'l Andrew Lewis, whose memory is preserved by a statue in bronze, at Richmond, Va. This Gen'l Andrew Lewis was the son of John Lewis, who is mentioned in Howes' Hist. of Va. as having slain an Irish lord, which fact is engraved on his tombstone in Augusta Co. John Lewis married Margaret Lynn, dau. of the Laird of Loch Lynn, Scotland. He took her to Ireland, rented an estate of Lord Mungo Campbell. The lord tired of his bargain, requested Lewis to give up the lease, which he refused to do, whereupon his lordship fired his gun at Lewis, missed him, but wounded Lewis's sister who was sick in bed. Lewis rushed upon the lord with his sword and slew him. £500 was offered for his capture, but the Kyles and their numerous kin, the McAleers, McDowells, McKelveys, Gilsons, Henrys, etc., wealthy and powerful citizens, believing that Lewis was right, concealed him and shipped him and his family to America. The matter was afterward investigated, and George III. sent Mr. Lewis a pardon and a grant of 10,000 acres of land in Augusta Co., Va. The Lewis family were from France, originally Huguenots, settled in Wales, three of them—William, Samuel, and Andrew. Andrew married a Miss Calhoun. One of his sons was Col. John, who married Margaret Lynn. They had six children in Augusta Co., of whom were three sons; Thomas, John, and Gen'l Andrew Lewis who married a Miss Givins of Staunton. He commanded at Point Pleasant, and with 100 men, after an all-day, hard-fought battle, whipped the great Indian chief Comstalk, and Virginia honored him with a statue in bronze. He had six children, the fourth, Col. Andrew Lewis married Eliza Madison (sister of Bishop Madison) of Montgomery Co.; the fifth,

She m. (1) 1824, Dr. Peter Field Archer, who d. shortly after their marriage. She m. (2) March 17, 1834, William Deans McClenny of Suffolk, Va., son of Elijah McClenny of Va. by his marriage with Mary Deans. He was for half a century engaged in mercantile life in Suffolk, Va., was a leading member of the Baptist church, was leader of the church choir, church clerk, deacon, and superintendent of the Sunday school. He was a good, honest and just man. As he had lived the life, he died the death of the Christian, Oct. 8, 1874, having closely followed his faithful companion, with whom he had lived forty years of their lives in perfect unity of feeling. She d. Jan. 9, 1873, a devoted member of the Suffolk, Va., Baptist church, and a teacher in the Sunday school from early life to the time of her last sickness. Both passed away as quietly as the going out of a candle, without apparently a single pain on the last bed of sickness. In devotion to the memory and in contemplation of the virtues of loved ones who have passed to the other shore, led by the hand of the loving Father, where no storm ever beats, we may pause in meditation for we touch almost the borders of hallowed land.
As memory crowds upon memory, we recall here and there the kind word and the kind deed which have served to soften a pang of woe or relieve a suffering want. We cannot forget the tear of sympathy that has been shed in the house of mourning, where sorrow reigned supreme, nor the strong arm to help that has been extended to the humble abode of the poor, in want. We recall how heart and head combined to fill the sphere marked out by Heaven. Such reflections cluster around the memory of Martha McClenny. Her social life was a beautiful exemplification of her Christian character. There was nothing of icy coldness about her, for a warm heart beat within her bosom and the fire of religious zeal was kept burning brightly on the altar of the heart. She had a strong emotional nature and all her kin were loved with a warmth of love. Her cultivated and refined taste made her well-ordered home the abode of comfort, happiness and hospitality. The passing stranger that called in, working in her Master's vineyard, knew that a hospitable reception was found under her roof, and there are many to attest the kind services rendered them. An affectionate wife, a devoted mother, a constant friend, a kind and generous neighbor, a devout Christian, she peacefully rests beneath the sod awaiting the time of the redeemed in Christ.

MARY WORTLEY MONTAGUE, dau. of Mickelborough [58], b. June 8, 1808, in Powhatan Co., Va., m., Dec. 1, 1825, John Townes Moseley of Powhatan Co., Va.

In the year 1835 they moved to Kemper Co., Miss., where Mr. Moseley engaged in planting and merchandizing. She d. Sept. 21, 1883, at her home in Noxubee Co., Miss., at the age of 71 years.
She was a member of the Baptist church. He survived her less than three months, and d. at the advanced age of 85 years, Dec. 11, 1883, leaving a large family. In this family there was a decidedly marked characteristic in the exalted love and esteem one bore for the other. It was pre-eminently a happy family, where wrongs never invaded the sacred precincts of the happy home. The pleasing spectacle of devoted love of parents to child, and the requital of respect and devotion, attracted the admiration of the visitor. Mrs. Moseley was an estimable woman, well fitted to rear her large family, of which, with her bright, cheerful, and joyous nature, she was the central figure. She had traveled the journey of life with her devoted husband, hand in hand and heart in heart, for nearly half a century of their lives. Their feelings, tastes, desires, had become almost one, and in writing of one it is difficult to separate the pair for "they twain" had "become one flesh." The unity of love and feeling between mother and father impressed itself upon the child. Both were endowed by nature with a fine order of mind and had cultivated literary tastes. They were both great readers to the time of their death, and in neither was there perceptible impairment of mental vigor. Mrs. Moseley in her old age could repeat with striking effect in her animated conversation long stanzas from Scott's Marmion, which she had learned in childhood. Both were good and true people, such as are not met every day. Mr. Moseley, while a strict business man and an independent thinker, was as kind and tender in his emotions as a child. He was a great lover of truth and justice and abhorred wrong. Just before his death, he remarked to a friend that he desired to be remembered only as one "who had dealt justly, loved mercy, and walked humbly before God." What a legacy to his children are these last words of a dying father, than which no prince- or potentate could leave a greater.

His benevolence was unbounded, and few men have lived, more esteemed and who have done more real good, than he. His life was devoted principally to teaching, of which he was professionally fond. He was a noted educator in the South, and at the time of his death was President of Keachie College, La. His wife d. in 1886. It is thought best to let the beautiful tribute to her [which is printed below] remain as written in 1885; by her relative, Mr. A. M. McClenny and printed in the work "Montagues of America," 1886, while she was still living. Mrs. Crawford still survives him [1885] and is the only remaining member of her father's family. She is now 70 years of age and though feeble in health, her mind is as clear and vigorous as in the prime of life. She is a woman of a high degree of culture and intelligence. Amiable in disposition and the very embodiment of loveliness of character. Conscientious in the discharge of duty to her God, her husband, her children, and society, she passes the evening of life in the consciousness of duty well performed. Like the fully ripened grain awaiting the hand of the harvester, she lives and waits, with her Christian faith, the calm sunshine of her soul, not as one who "feels a thousand deaths in fearing one." She is a member of the Baptist church. She spends

* Crawford is derived from a parish of Lanarkshire. Tradition says that the first bearer of this name was one Macornock, "who signalized himself at an engagement by the water of Cree in Galloway by discovering of a food which gave great advantage to his party." Hence he got the name of Cree-foord or Crawford. The family arms were, "Ar. a chief dauncettee az."

At the age of fourteen he entered a store, where he remained until it became necessary to wind up the business, although he was yet quite young he was employed in setting up the business. After this time his health became poor and he was prevailed upon to try a mountain climate, and on April 19, 1827, he went to Bath Co., Va., where he engaged in teaching. He soon established a reputation as a teacher and remained there until the spring of 1841, when he moved to Allegheny Co. and engaged in farming until 1844. In that year he became deputy sheriff, which office he filled until the adoption of the constitution of 1849–50. Under that the people elected the sheriff, and he was the first sheriff elected in the Co. of Alleghany. He remained connected with the sheriffalty until shortly before the late civil war began. He was appointed collector of the Confederate tax for Bath and Alleghany Cos., which he held until the close of the war. Since the war he has held several County offices with great credit to himself and Co. But with the advance of old age he resigned them all, except that of Justice of the Peace. M. Capt. Madison Flanagan, who d. March, 1893. Resided at Flanagan's Mills, Cumberland Co., Va. She d. Friday, March 27, 1891. The following is copied from the Richmond Christian Advocate of May 14, 1891: "She died in the house in which she was born, and in the neighborhood in which she spent the whole of her useful life. For several years she had been the victim of the distressing disease of dropsy of the heart, and the intense pain she underwent for weary months and years was a source of deepest distress to friends and dear ones who witnessed her suffering. Amidst all, her faith never faltered, and she frequently reminded those who attended her that she was ready for the final summons. She had been a member of the M. E. church, South, from her early years and was one of its ardent lovers. She practiced the precepts and religion that it teaches, and in all of the relations of daughter, wife, sister, mother, and friend, their results were attested. Husband and children mourn her loss. Friends weep that she is no more. The hand that bestowed its charities, with a lavishness seldom seen, is extended no more, and deserving objects that miss its kindly deeds are bowed in sorrow. An unselfish life is ended. Its efforts and industry were united and exercised solely for the good and comfort of others and the blotting out of such a life is a sad, sad, loss. But suffering with her is ended. In the shadow of the Tree of Life she rests, sweetly rests from her labors, and her works do follow her."
The following is from the pen of Rev. W. C. Hall, a pious, good man who resided in Cumberland many years, and is copied from the Columbia Bulletin of April 23, 1891: "The death of Mrs. Flanagan has brought to my mind many pleasing memories of her childhood, my own youthful days and intimate association with her parents and the older members of the family. Mrs. Flanagan was the youngest child of Captain William Montague, an old and esteemed citizen of Cumberland county. Living all his days within a few miles of Columbia, and members of his family being citizens from time to time, together with the old gentleman's frequent visits and business engagements in our town, made him to a great extent identified with us as a citizen. I desire to speak of him as an old and honored friend and can say in behalf of all who knew him, that he was regarded in that light by all his neighbors and acquaintances, and well deserved their esteem. Captain Montague married early in life and settled about four miles from Columbia, where he built up for himself and family a plain but comfortable home, in which he raised up a large family of children and lived out his own days in peace and quietness. He was remarkably industrious and domestic in his habits, and even when he had become so old and feeble as to be almost helpless, would still manage to do some little jobs about the house or yard for the comfort of his family to whose interest he was most affectionately devoted. He was for many years a Justice of the Peace in his Co. and few men ever performed the duties of the office more faithfully and conscientiously. He obeyed the scripture injunction to 'Study the things that make for peace,' and his counsels led the way to settle many questions in dispute without litigation. He trained up his family by precept and example, to walk in the ways of peace. His wife was one of the best of women and a true and faithful helpmate to him through a long life, which they spent lovingly together. Never have I known two people more like-minded in all the peaceful and quiet walks of life. Both lived far beyond the time allotted to man on earth, and now they rest side by side in the garden of the home that was their only one from youth to the end of a long life. Mrs. F. was a worthy daughter of parents deserving all honor, and has doubtless joined them and other loved ones in the 'Better Land.' Most of the family have been gathered there and those who are living may claim a heritage far above all the distinctions that wealth or worldly honors can give, the descendants of 'parents passed into the skies.'"

* Ford is derived from a shallow place in a river. Their arms were "Gu, two bends Vairé, on a canton, or, an anchor sable." Eleven coats have been granted to the name. Adrian Ford, age 26, came to Va. on ship "Paule," July 7, 1635, Charles Ford, age 33, came in same ship.

† The origin of the name Todd was from Tod, an archaic and provincial name of the fox. "Willy Tod" occurs in the writings of Wicliffe. Hunters of foxes were called "Tod-hunters." The arms of the Todds of Essex, Eng., was "Three wolves' heads couped, gules." Crest, "a wolf segant, proper." William Todd, the father of George Todd, was a brother of Judge Thomas Todd, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the U. S. Charles S. Todd, a son of Judge Thomas Todd was appointed Minister to Russia by President William H. Harrison, and remained there four years. Both William and Thomas Todd were sons of Richard Todd, and were born in King and Queen Co., Va., on the York river. Their mother [the wife of Richard Todd] was Elizabeth Richards. Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, [Mary Todd] was the dau. of Hon. Robert S. Todd, and he was a son of Levi Todd, one of the few survivors of the battle of Blue Licks in 1782. Levi Todd was a native of Pennsylvania, and a brother of Col. John Todd who was educated in Va. at his Uncle's, the Rev. John Todd. Col. John came to Ky. in 1775 to Boonesborough, was member of the Legislature. He was the great-uncle of Mrs. Lincoln. In Dec. 1778, he was appointed by Patrick Henry, Gov. of Va., to be lieutenant of the Co. of Illinois, then a part of Va. He was one of the original proprietors of the town of Lexington, Ky. While encamped on the site of the present city, he heard of the opening battle of the Revolution, and named his infant settlement Lexington in its honor. He was killed at the battle of Blue Licks. Levi Todd, the brother of Col. John first located at Harrodsburg, Ky., settled a station in Fayette Co., ten miles southwest from Lexington in 1779. Afterward moved to Lexington and became distinguished among the early settlers. [See Collins' Hist. Ky., Arnold's Life of Lincoln, p. 68. The Century Magazine, Jan., 1887, p. 578.] Richard Todd of King and Queen Co., Va., Rev. John Todd, also of Va., and his brother in Penn. [father of Levi and Col. John] were all no doubt branches of the same family of Todds. Thomas Todd of Gloucester Co., Va., had sons Richard, William, Philip, and Christopher Todd. Richard had sons Bernard, and William Todd. He was a distinguished Baptist minister of King and Queen Co., Va. Perhaps the mantle of his father had descended upon him. A noble, consecrated minister of the Gospel, his life was truly a blameless one. Zealous and devoted ever to the cause of Christ, no obstacle however great, would prevent him from keeping an appointment to preach the gospel. One of his churches was forty miles distant from his home in Essex Co., and he rode through winter's intense cold and summer's scorching heat to attend it. He had a number of other churches during his ministry. One who knew him well says, "he was one of the loveliest characters I ever knew, amiable and affectionate in the family relation, earnest, zealous and conscientious in the discharge of his ministerial duties, he was beloved and esteemed by all."

He d. June 9, 1876, at Fountain Run, Essex Co., Va. He m., Oct. 23, 1838, Mildred Columbia Broaddus, dau. of Rev. Andrew Broaddus,* one of the greatest pulpit orators the Baptists have ever had. "The talents of Rev. Andrew Broaddus have been seldom equalled and never excelled by any member of the Baptist denomination in the state of Va., yet the brilliant powers of his mind were eclipsed by the qualities of his heart. While he captivated by his eloquence, and convinced by his power of argument, he won all hearts by his gentleness, kindness and benevolence.” His daughter, Mrs. M. Columbia Montague, the devoted wife, was in every respect the counterpart her husband needed to round up his life for usefulness in his Master’s cause. She still survives, and were the calls made on his medical skill from neighbors for miles around him. He was a man of sound nerve, of sterling integrity, of strong moral courage, strong in his faith, he stood almost alone in the Baptist Association of Va. against the doctrine of close communion. He m. Jane Lee [334], dau. of Philip Lee [106], sister of Frances Lee [339] who m. Philip Montague [237], also sister of Penelope Lee [335] who m. William L. Montague [77], also sister of Nancy Ann Lee [340] who m. Rev. John Currie Montague [345]. She was a most excellent woman, well fitted to round out her husband's life in ministerial duties. They were both drowned at the same time, about the year 1825, while on their way to attend an evening meeting, in crossing Moratico Creek, which divides Richmond Co. from Lancaster Co., just north from Montague Island. They were crossing the creek in a boat which proved to be too heavily loaded. The boat capsized. Mr. Montague was an expert swimmer and could have saved himself and wife, but she frantically seized and clung to him, rendering it impossible for him to use his arms. They were both buried in the same coffin.

"Still one in life and one in death,
One in their hope of rest above;
One in their joy, their trust, their faith,
One in each other's faithful love."

Joined the militia of that city and in 1837 went with his regiment to Florida to fight the Seminoles. After the treaty of 1839, while on his way home from Tampa Bay to New Orleans, he was killed by the fly wheel of the steamer. He was observing its mechanism, and being naturally near-sighted, stood too close to it and was instantly killed. He was of a gay and lively disposition, yet tender and gentle-hearted as a woman. He was greatly loved by his comrades in arms and deeply lamented by all who knew him.

*In Co. Salop, Eng., on the river Rodan, a few miles from Lee-Hall, was in 1620 the Castle of Morton-Corbet, an ancient seat of the Corbet family, and still more anciently, a seat of the Turet family. That there was any connection between Morton-Corbet and Morton-Regis is not known, but a search of parish records at Merrington, and other places round about Lee-Hall might bring good results, as Morton-Regis seems to be the key to the pedigree of Col. Richard Lee, perhaps when one is found the other may not be far off.

Thomas Montague, son of William [115], b. Dec. 18, 1795, in Granville Co., N. C.

Moved first to Breckinridge Co., Ky.; thence to Maury Co., Tenn. From thence to Wayne Co., Tenn., where he settled first on Hardin's Creek, about 1823, where he resided until the death of his first wife [1833]. He then moved to Beech Creek in the same Co. He was a member of the Predestinarian faction of the Baptist church; was fond of discussing doctrinal points, and one who knew him well says of him, "he was the fairest man I ever knew in a chimney corner argument." He was a man of strict honesty, and, at his death he is said to have owed but fifteen cents, which was for horse-shoeing. He was a just, honorable and upright man, a good provider for his family, with epicurian tastes, his table was always supplied with luxuries. The "prohibition" of later times was unknown then, but his tastes and habits were under the strict discipline of clear judgment, and he was always a very temperate man. In his prime he weighed 160 lbs. and was remarkable for his agility and muscular strength. He once jumped the chasm in the "Sand Knob," Ky., which was only twelve inches narrower than his best jump, and upon another occasion he leaped clear over a pole which was held upon the heads of two men. He died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Wayne Co., Feb. 1, 1860. He was thoroughly prepared for the summons at any time and was expecting it in the near future. He m. * March 16, 1849, Head Rights for 550 acres of land were granted to Mr. William Moseley for transporting into the colony of Va. himself, wife Susanna, William and Arthur, his sons, Susan Robinson, alias Cocker, and six other persons. Mr. William Moseley, merchant, and family came to Va. from Rotterdam, and he seems to have at once taken a prominent position in the affairs of the colony, being elected one of the Co. Commissioners at the same session of court, at which the above land certificate was granted. We have record of a very splendid set of jewels sold by him to Capt. Francis Yardley in 1632, and which his wife Susan states that she had herself purchased at The Hague. His will, dated June 29, proved Aug. 15, 1655, names in it, cousin Wm. Cockroft, grandchild Corker, wife Susan, sons William and Arthur. His widow could have survived him but a very brief period, as administration was granted on her estate to her son William the same day as the probate of her husband's will. This son, William Moseley, married Mary, dau. and heiress of Capt. John Gookin, [See Daniel Gookines, Moseley note, p. 133, this work] and died 1672; his widow re-married Lt.-Col. Anthony Lawson; he left issue. Arthur, the second son, had wife Ann, and numerous children. In 1666, he had license to keep a tavern. He died 1703.—[J. Henry Lea in N. E. Gen. Reg.]

BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER.

Mr. Parker resides in Columbia. Mrs. Parker, though of a retiring disposition, was a woman of rare social qualities, enjoying at all times and in a marked degree, the society of her friends. Naturally ardent in her affections, she lavished upon her family and kindred the unalloyed love of her heart. Of a self-sacrificing disposition her thoughtful kindness to her friends, and those in need, was a conspicuous characteristic in her outer life. Her piety was of a type too seldom seen among the professed followers of our Lord. Though for some time prevented by failing health from regular attendance upon public worship, she enjoyed private communion with her Saviour and realized an ever increasing appreciation of her Bible as the "man of her counsel." She united with the Methodist church in early life and continued in its communion until translated to the church triumphant in Heaven. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

Dr. William H. Montague, son of Philip [151], b. 1820, in Abbeville Co., S. C.
He was a physician of great celebrity and skill for one of his age. Was small of stature, as were all the members of his family. He d. Oct. 8, 1854, of yellow fever at Blackville, S. C., preferring death at his post rather than to leave his patients, and he remained administering to their wants until stricken down with the fatal scourge. He was unmarried. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. The Springtown Troop (military) of which he was a member, passed the following resolutions at Blackville, Oct. 27, 1854:

"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in the wise dispensation of His Providence to remove from our midst Dr. William H. Montague: His actions were ever remarkable for their strict integrity and their purity of motive; as a friend he was an example that might be happily imitated, and as such he has gone down to the tomb with the lamentations of his associates and friends, as the best eulogy of his character, regretted with agony and sorrow; tears of grief will bedew the fresh dust of his new-made grave, and sighs of unrestrained anguish usher his spirit to the mansions of his God;—

'Where no dark clouds of grief may lower,
Or sadness break the requiem.'

Therefore be it resolved, that in the loss of Dr. Wm. H. Montague the Springtown Troop deeply sympathize with his afflicted family and friends. Resolved, that we wear the usual badge of mourning for six months, and a blank page be dedicated to his memory on the Company's book. Resolved, that these proceedings be published in the Charleston (S. C.) Mercury, Barnwell Sentinel, and Edisto Clarion, and a copy be sent to the relatives of the deceased."

James W. Reed, Chairman.

Samuel J. Hartzog, Secretary.

His kinsman, Mr. Wm. M. Reed of Tyler, Texas, has sent the following tribute to his memory: "No one could say enough to cover even his short stay on earth. He was dignified, accomplished, the soul of honor, intellectual, most social and genial, and profound in his profession. Graduated with the highest honors of his class in both literary and medical schools, with a large practice, widely known and praised for his ability and bravery for remaining at his post during the terrible scourge of yellow fever at Blackville, S. C., where he attended the many who died of that dreaded disease until he at last was stricken down."

"The tossings of the night,
The frettings of the day,
All end, and like a cloud of dawn,
Melt from thy skies away,
Soon shall the trump of God
Give out the welcome sound,
That shakes thy silent chamber-walls
And breaks the turf-sealed ground."

John Philip Montague, son of Philip [151], b. April 1, 1822, in Abbeville Co., S. C.

He went to Montgomery Co., Ala., and taught school. He was a very remarkable man, small of stature, with a large, finely-formed and intellectual head and most intelligent face, florid complexion with blue eyes. He graduated at Greenwood Institute, Abbeville Co., S. C., and became a noted teacher, taught for many years in Greenwood Academy, Montgomery Co., Ala., which he named, and at which place he married, lived and died. He was elected and presided as Justice of the Peace until after the war, and until his death. He was an accomplished gentleman in all the relations of life. Everybody was his friend and appreciated him for his bright, social, genial disposition and honorable deportment. His wife is a noble woman with domestic habits and great parental ability. She has raised four bright, intellectual children, three of whom have married and are well to do in the enjoyment of this world’s goods. The youngest, John F., died on the threshold of manhood. He m., Feb. 12, 1856, Mary Orum, dau. of Jonathan Orum of Montgomery Co., Ala. He d. March 13, 1871, of pneumonia and was buried in the cemetery of Greenwood. His wife's mother went with them. Mrs. Reed was a teacher in the Tuskegee Female College for many years, where all four of her daughters were educated, graduated and received diplomas. The family moved to Tyler, Smith Co., Texas, Dec. 25, 1869, and Mrs. Reed taught for several years. She d. June 23, 1873. She was a zealous and faithful member of the Presbyterian Church nearly all her life, a devoted wife and mother. She died in a full assurance of a blessed immortality.

IN MEMORIAM.

[By her daughter, Mrs. Emma P. Brooks.]

"A remarkably useful life bears record to her worth. Devoted, unselfish and true; faithful in the discharge of the manifold duties of wife, mother, friend and teacher. God called her to Him in the midst of usefulness rarely paralleled. As the glorious light of immortality streams upon her enraptured vision, her dying lips gave expression to her last words, 'Praise the Lord.' In the beauty of the early summer time she has gone to the unfading glories of the Eternal Summer Land. As dew drops flash back the gleaming sunshine, so our hearts hold brightest memories of our dead."

Her husband, Mr. W. M. Reed, has been for years past Clerk of the U. S. District Court at Tyler, Texas. A gentleman of excellent ability, fine education and a Christian.

* The origin of the name Robertson was from Robert, a Teutonic personal name of great antiquity, introduced into England about the time of the conquest. The Robertsons of Struan, Co. Perth, are unquestionably one of the oldest families in Scotland, descending both from the MacDonalds, Lords of the Isles, and from the ancient Earls of Athol. The surname is derived from Robert, son of Duncan [de-Athol] who arrested the murderers of James I. and for that service received a royal charter erecting his lands into a free barony A. D. 1451. Alexander his son adopted the surname of Robertson which became persistent.

† Proby was an old English family. One branch was long seated at Elton Hall in Co. of Huntingdon. John Proby of this family was in 1759 Earl Carysfort in the Peerage of Ireland. Their arms were "Erm. on a fess, gules, a lion passant, or." Motto, "Manus haec inimica tyrannis." This hand is inimical to tyrants.

* Commodore Arthur Sinclair, C.S.N., when war was declared, while he greatly deplored it, did not hesitate but was true to the Sinclair motto, "Fight." He cheerfully gave his all to the cause of Southern Independence, even his life. He was in many battles, among others at New Orleans when it fell. He was in command of various vessels, and met his death in taking the "Lelia," a new Blockade Runner out of the port of Liverpool. He was drowned in the fearful storm that night. He was one of the noblest men that ever lived, and a true and loyal southerner. His sons Arthur and George Terry, were Lieuts. on board of the Florida and Alabama. Arthur, Jr., was on board the Merrimac during her fight with the Monitor. The name Sinclair is derived from Saint Clair, is of French origin, and springs from the great family of De Sancto Claro in France. The noble Scottish families of this surname are descended from Sir Wm. St. Clair or Sinclair, who was Lord of Rosslyn in Mid-lothian by grant of King Alexander I. The widely-spread importance of this family is shown by the fact that about twenty coats of arms are assigned to the name. The arms of Sinclair, Earl of Caithness, were, "Quarterly first, azure, a ship at anchor, within a double tressure, or, her oars erect in Saltire; second and third, or, a lion rampant gules; fourth, a ship under sail, or, and over all a cross enbrailed, dividing the four quarters, sable." Crest, "on a wreath, a cock, proper." Motto, "Commit thy works to God." William Sinclair, eldest son of the tenth Earl of Caithness, d. at New York, Dec., 1776. The Sinclairs in England have been prominent in the Navy. Sir John Gordon Sinclair was rear-admiral of the blue in 1849. Was also captain of the port of Gibraltar, greatly distinguished himself at Morgion and again at Cassis in 1813.

Removed with his parents in 1836 to Marion, Ala. Educated at Howard College, Marion, Ala.; occupation, a merchant. He was an honest and upright man of sterling qualities; true to his principles, kind and affectionate in his family, beloved and esteemed by all. He died while in the confederate army, April 13, 1862, at Rienzi, Miss., of typhoid fever. The following obituary is from the letter of a friend, April 30, 1862: "The deceased was a citizen of Marion,

* Gilmer is derived from the Gaelic "Gille-mohr," great servant. The armor bearer of a Highland chief was so called. The arms of Gilmer of Sussex were "Az. a chev. erm. between three talbots passant ar." Crest, "Unicorn's head ar. couped gu. attired or."
and by his upright, honest, and consistent traits of character, combined with true manly virtue and nobility of soul, endeared himself to all around him and won the love and esteem of all who knew him. At the call of his country he left home and friends and went forth to meet a soldier's fate. Though he died not upon the battle field, he is none the less a martyr to his country's cause. For a few short weeks he lingered, and then calmly yielded his spirit to the God who gave it. Kind messmates and friends watched beside his couch, whose sympathising hearts anticipated his wants."

The following is from the Marion Commonwealth: "It is our melancholy duty to chronicle the death of our esteemed townsmen, Thomas J. Montague, who died about two weeks ago at Rienzi, Miss. He left here in December last with the Curry Dragoons, and to all appearances bid fair to win many laurels on the battlefield and return to enjoy the liberty his valor helped to win, but before that noble spirit had an opportunity of meeting the enemy in deadly conflict he sank down in death. Dying in a hospital instead of on the field of strife makes him no less the hero or martyr. He was buried in this place on Saturday last, with military honors, and many a heart breathed a sigh as the arms sounded to him a last farewell; many an eye was moist at the thought that he, who was so much beloved could be seen no more. Tom. was a noble boy; and well may all of us sympathize with his widowed mother, for in him she offered a sacrifice well worthy the cause for which he died."

Two of his comrades, John K. White and Amji Godden, wrote to his mother from Rienzi: "We, his comrades, have lost one of our favorites, a comrade and brother in arms whom we all loved. We did all in our power to save him. Rev. Mr. Howell visited him often. He was cheerful and did not complain; he told Mr. Howell that he had a hope in Christ and was not afraid to die. He gradually grew more feeble and died imperceptibly, even as a fire would cease to burn. All his intimate friends join with us in tendering to you and family our earnest and heartfelt sympathy."

"Here sleeps the martyr's weary head,
Here moulders holy dust,
With the wild wood moss overspread,
Resting in silent trust.
Rest, weary dust, lie here an hour.
Ere long like blossom from the sod,
Thou shalt come forth a glorious flower Fit for the eye of God."
Dr. John F. Montague, son of Thomas [180], b. April 8, 1838, in Marion, Ala.

He was a surgeon in the confederate army, and died April 28, 1863, at Tullahoma, Tenn. The following notice of his death was sent to the Marion Commonwealth: "Headquarters, 9th Ala. Battalion, Cummings Brigade, Tullahoma, Tenn., May 2, 1863. Death has been in our midst and taken from us one of our most worthy soldiers, one that every man of our battalion dearly loved, and many were the tears of bitter grief shed over his grave. Dr. John F. Montague has passed from our midst. He was taken with congestive chill and died on the 28th ult. and was buried the next day with military honors. Chaplain McVay of the 38th performed the funeral service. John was the last son of a widowed mother, his other brother having fallen in this contest for liberty. We mourn his loss for we loved him much. His form was the perfection of manly beauty, strength and vigor, combined with grace and dignity. His high, pale forehead was shaded with locks of a darker hue. A smile of sweetness and gentleness ever played over his fine features. His manners were pleasing and polished, his language chaste, pure and beautiful, and had ambition found a resting place within his breast, his were talents that would have given him a lofty standing among the military spirits of the age. But he dedicated his brilliant gifts to medicine and was in the medical department [with Dr. Kirksey] when he died. He was kind and courteous to all, and at all hours of the night and day he was ever ready to give aid and comfort to the sick soldiers. He loved his aged mother and his sisters, and often spoke of them and expressed a hope that he might live to go through this contest and return to them. But such was not the will of Providence. He was no laggard in this struggle, but freely gave his life as a high and holy sacrifice upon our country's liberty, and fell at his post, discharging his whole duty. Though he died away from home, on the tented field, kind friends administered to his wants, and the best medical aid was given to him. Lieut. A. S. Hinton commanded the funeral escort, and marked the place of his last rest on earth. We shed our tears over his new-made grave."

"A sky without a cloud,
A sea without a wave,
These are but shadows of thy rest
In this thy peaceful grave."
'Twas sown in weakness here;
'Twill then be raised in power.
That which was sown an earthly seed,
Shall rise a heavenly flower.'

He m., Aug. 18, 1840, at Gainsville, Ala., Ann Maria Watts,* dau. of Henry W. and Eliza Watts of Amherst Co., Va. Shortly after his marriage he removed to St. Louis, Mo., and established himself in the practice of his profession, which he successfully continued for a period of nearly twenty years. At the death of his father he was called upon to take charge of the large estate left by him; this and other private interests demanding his entire attention, he resigned the practice of his profession. He is a man of sound integrity, an evenly-balanced judgment, and careful in manipulating his business interests. He was an active member of the St. Louis board of public schools for the years 1879 and 1880, and in the year 1881 was the nominee of the democratic party for the responsible position of treasurer of the city of St. Louis. He moved with his father's family to Missouri in 1839, and engaged in merchandizing for a number of years at St. Louis. Retiring from mercantile life he directed his attention to the insurance business and became a large stockholder in several of the local fire and marine insurance companies of the city. In 1858 he became president of the Commercial Fire and Marine Ins. Co. of St. Louis, and in '1863 reorganized the company with an increased capital, placing it on a firm basis among the leading companies of the city. He subsequently organized the “Mississippi Valley Fire and Marine Ins. Co.” and the “Mound City Life Ins. Co.” of St. Louis, and became president of both. He is a member of the Christian church, and possessed the splendid error of excessive charity of feeling which was but injustice to himself. Benevolence, his weakness, was prostituted by those he thought worthy of his confidence, nearly sweeping away his splendid fortune and rendering himself the slave to good intentions. His easiness of disposition, always inclined to-right, sprung from his own honest impulses. He could never conceive that the recipient of a kindness could wrong a benefactor. He m. He had not reached the age of eighteen and was thus cut down in the flower of his youth and at an age when life is the brightest.

"Where a blasted world shall brighten Underneath a bluer sphere,
And a softer, gentler sunshine
Shed its healing splendor here:
Where earth’s barren vales shall blossom,
Putting on their robes of green,
And a purer, fairer Eden
Be where only wastes have been:
Where a King in kingly glory,
Such as Earth has never known,"
Shall assume the righteous sceptre,
Claim and wear the holy crown:
Brother, we shall meet and rest,
"Mid the holy and the blest."

George Randolph Montague, son of Edward F. [194], b. 1851.

This gifted and noble young man was suddenly cut down in the prime of useful and promising manhood. The idol of a widowed mother’s heart, and her only son. Uncommonly handsome, his prepossessing manners and address, correct deportment, bright, cheerful and charming companionship, genial disposition, and attention to business, drew around him a large circle of intimate friends, and won for him the esteem and confidence of the community in which he had lived, in business life, for nine years. He d. suddenly of heart disease in Huntsville, Ala., April 18, 1884, and was buried in Auburn, Ala., the home of his mother. He knew not a moment’s sickness and had retired to peaceful sleep which passed into the sleep of death. So gently did the messenger of death beckon him to the other shore, there was no struggle nor death agony. The deep sympathy and strong attachment of friends and acquaintances was manifested by a memorial service, held for him in the Presbyterian church, by a large audience, on the Sunday evening following his death. He was a christian, and soon to become a member of the Presbyterian church. An editorial notice of his death in a Huntsville paper, says of him: “Many and long years will come and go, ere Huntsville will again know a more noble gentleman, and tears will for a long while come unbidden to many eyes at the memory of him, or the mention of his name. He was universally esteemed, a model young man.”

JOHN B. MONTAGUE, son of Dudley S. [195], b. Feb. 16, 1823.

For several years he followed the river as mate. He afterward learned the river from Cincinnati to St. Louis with his brother William J., and for about five years before his death he was a pilot. Shortly after the war of 1861 began, he enlisted in the Miss. Gunboat service, and served as pilot, and d. in said service April 17, 1863. He was buried on Papan Island, but afterward his remains were removed to Red House, W. Va., and laid by the side of his sister in the family burial ground, a spot belonging to Wm. J. Montague. He never married.

For many years he was Co. clerk. At the time of his death he was clerk of the Circuit Court for Putnam Co., recorder and clerk of the Board of Supervisors of said Co. The following tribute to his memory is from the Charleston [W. Va.] paper:

"Mr. Montague removed with his parents from Bath Co. to Kanawha Valley in 1838, to what is now Putnam Co., and it was here that he received his education. During his early manhood he was engaged for some time in the steamboat business, and afterward in mercantile pursuits; for both of which he was well qualified by his urbane and courteous manners, and by the honest and honorable principles which always governed his conduct. When the war came, in 1861, he promptly ranged himself among the friends of the union; and his health not permitting him to take the field, he received from Gov. Pierpoint, under the re-organized government of Va., Sept. 5, 1861, the appointment of clerk of courts of Putnam Co., and was elected to the same position by the people, May 28, 1863. After the organization of the new state of West Va. he was also recorder of the Co. and clerk of the board of supervisors. His official duties were always discharged with unusual promptness and fidelity, and rarely does a public officer receive as great a share of the confidence of the people, as was most deservedly given him. He was endowed with a kind and genial disposition, a frank and confiding heart. Generous to a fault, he gave according to his ability to relieve the wants of the poor, and his ear was never deaf to the appeals of charity. Universally beloved, Mr. Montague had not perhaps a personal enemy in the world, and his memory will long be cherished by the community in which he dwelt. For several years his health had been delicate, but it was only during the last six months of his life that it became apparent that his days were numbered, and that the fell scourge—consumption—would claim him among its victims. He bore his long and painful illness with heroic fortitude, and at last his spirit gently passed away from earth to seek its eternal home beyond the skies."

"So fades a summer cloud away,
So sinks the gale, when storms are o'er,
So gently shuts the eye of day,
So dies a wave along the shore."

He was pilot of the steamer "Fashion," and lost his life at the burning of the vessel in 1867, preferring death rather than desertion of his post. This noble sacrifice of life to duty is best told in the following poetry, from the Natchez (Miss.) Courier, dedicated to his memory:

The pilot bravely holds the wheel;
Of flames beneath he hears the roar,
Yet still he guides her burning keel—
"I'll hold her till she strikes the shore."

Around him fly like shooting stars,
A thousand sparks eddying soar,
And yet he stands mid falling spars,
"I'll hold her till she strikes the shore."

Above the din of shouts and shrieks,
His comrade warns him o'er and o'er,
He calmly to that comrade speaks
"I'll hold her till she strikes the shore."

The goodly ship's a burning wreck,
But she has touched the shore;
Ah! Where's the hero of the deck?
Alas! We'll see him nevermore!

His gallant form is wrapt in flame:
Lost in the craft he loved so well;
His be the award, a hero's fame,
Who at the post of duty fell.
BRANCH OF HIS SON PETER.

He's lost. She drifts without control;
But ere the bark went down,
Angels, we trust, caught up his soul,
And wreathed it with a martyr's crown.

Raise to his memory the cenotaph,
Let poets chant his praises o'er,
And let his words be his epitaph,
"I'll hold her till she strikes the shore."

The following tribute to her memory appeared in the Point Pleasant Register soon after her death: "When we first knew her, three years ago, she was a lively, sprightly, intelligent, amiable girl, just blooming into womanhood, the pride of her parents and the delight of her companions, and had every appearance of living a long life of usefulness and pleasure. But how vain are all our expectations! How fruitless all our hopes! In a few short months she was attacked with scrofula, and from that time until her dissolution, lived a lingering death; yet during that long period of her sickness she bore her afflictions with a fortitude that we never saw equalled. She was remarkable for her industry, and during her protracted illness she did not relax her exertions, as long as her weak frame would permit her to do anything. But what was of more value than all, she was a christian in the true sense of that term. Two years previous to her death she made a profession of religion and united with the Methodist church. In her, the church has lost one of its brightest ornaments."

"Thy day has come, not gone,
Thy sun has risen, not set,
Thy life is now beyond
The reach of death or change;
Not ended but begun."

For many years he resided near Winfield, West Va., receiving such education as the common schools afforded. At the age of eighteen he went to St. Louis, Mo., and engaged in the clothing business until Jan., 1861, when he removed to Milwaukee, Wis. But being in ill health he returned to West Va., and in the fall of 1861 became deputy clerk of Putnam Co., in the office of his brother George B., where he remained until June, 1863. He then entered the Quartermaster's Dept., under Capt. H. S. Dewey, Ass't Q. M. of the U. S. Army, at Charleston, West Va., until Aug., 1865, when he again entered the clerk's office of Putnam Co. until Jan., 1867. In the fall of 1872 he began teaching school near Coalsburg, West Va., and there remained until 1874, when he entered the office of Stuart M. Buck, coal operator at Hampton, West Va., and remained with Mr. Buck until 1888. Was elected Justice of the Peace for the District of Cabin Creek, Kanawha Co., West Va., which he is now holding. He is also secretary of the Cedar Grove Loan Association and secretary of the Board of Education of Cabin Creek District, the latter office he has held since July, 1881. He m. April 1, 1871, Betty H. He was raised on a farm until the age of nineteen years. Then for several years engaged in the butcher and stock business in Catlettsburgh, Ky., until he was burned out in the great fire of 1878. Then he engaged in the railroad business, and has for the past eight years been a passenger conductor on the Ky. Central and Ohio and Big Sandy railroad. The following is copied from the daily newspaper at Ashland, Ky.: "Mr. Phil. Montague, conductor of trains No. 2 and 4 on the Ohio and Big Sandy R. R., completed his seventh year on that line last Wednesday. Phil. is one of the most efficient employees on the road and is very popular with both the management and the patrons of the line. In relating his experiences as a railroad man to the news man, he said that in the seven years he had carried, on an average, thirty-five passengers each trip and during all that time his train had not met with a single accident. None of his crew had ever been injured, and the first time the train had hurt any one was when they struck young Jacobs, a few days ago, and he was only slightly injured. Very few railroad men can show such a record as this, and the O. & B. S. management are to be commended for retaining such a valuable man in their employment.” He m., Jan. 17, 1878, in Catlettsburg, Ky., Miss Nannie J. Dicken, dau. of Capt. J. L. N. James Robert Montague, son of James M. [198], b. Aug. 29, 1842.

He was a member of Carpenter’s Battery attached to “Stonewall Brigade,” Confederate army, during the war. He participated in all the hard battles in which that celebrated brigade was engaged. He bore the reputation of being a very superior gunner. Was three times severely wounded, first at Manassas, then at Gettysburgh, and at Winchester. He followed Gen. Jackson from Harpers Ferry to Chancellorsville, and Gen. Lee throughout the war. After the war, as a student at Washington and Lee University, he enjoyed the personal friendship of Gen. Lee. He m., Jan. 6, 1875, Fannie St. Bernard Preston, dau. of Dr. O. P. Preston who was also major of cavalry in Confederate army [Western Division]. Two of Dr. Pres-

she became principal of a boarding school near Covington, Va., where she continued pleasantly until 1881, when she went to Covin-ton and built up an excellent school of which she became principal and founder. A position involving much anxiety and responsibility.
To such a degree was this a fact that her health gave way after a year and she spent the ensuing winter in Florida. Returned much benefited, and resumed her school labors at Covington from 1883 to 1889, when she was again obliged to rest. In 1891 she had charge of a school at Princeton, W. Va. Many of her pupils have been women of usefulness and influence, some occupying places of prominence and responsibility. Miss Montague is a lady of rare literary attainment and merit. Her home is with her father at Covington, Va.

CHILDREN.

—[Some of above from Geo. A. Lewis, Frankfort, and some from Va. Gen. H.] Charles Lewis was a member of House of Burgesses from Augusta Co., Va., 1774. Andrew Lewis represented Botetourt Co., 1774.—[Richmond paper.]

Roger Lewis, age 19 years (1624), came to Va. from London in May, 1647. On the list of 1624 he was on the plant of Mrs. Mary Madison, widow, of West and Sherlow hundred (island), Charles City. The following arrivals are noted from the port of London: John Lewis, age 33, in the “Bonaventure,” Jan. 2, 1634; Robert Lewis, age 33, in the “Plaine Joan,” May 15, 1635; Robert Lewis, age 38, in the “Transport,” July 4, 1635; William Lewis age 25, and Edward Lewis, in the “Globe,” Aug. 16, 1635; Joseph Lewis, age 16, in the “Thomas,” Aug. 21, 1635. The Lewis family of eastern Va. is of Welsh origin. Their ancestor Gen. Robert Lewis came from Wales to Gloucester Co. in the latter part of the 17th century, and there lived and died. His son John, also of Gloucester, had three sons, Fielding, John and Charles. Of the last two no mention is made. Mr. Fielding Lewis of Wyanoke, Charles City Co., is thought to be a descendant of one of them. Col. Fielding Lewis, son of John, moved to Fredericksburg early in life. He was twice married. His first wife was a cousin, and his second a sister of Gen. Washington. One child only, out of three by his first wife, lived to any considerable age. His name was John Lewis, he moved to Kentucky, and left posterity there.—[Bishop Meade, Vol. 2, p. 232.]

From Mr. Paul Caine [3576]: Col. John Lewis of “Warner Hall,” Gloucester, m. Elizabeth Warner, dau. of Col. Augustine Warner, and had nine children, five of whom only have been traced, namely, John, Charles, Col. Robert of Belvoir, Isabella who m. Dr. Clayton, and Elizabeth first wife of Col. John Bolling of Cobbs. Of these children, Col. Robert of Belvoir was b. 1724, m., 1727, Jane Meriwether, dau. of Nicholas Meriwether and Elizabeth Crawford, and had John, m. Annie —; Nicholas, m. Mary, dau. Thomas Walker; William m. Lucy Meriwether; Jane, m. (1) Mr. Meriwether, (2) John Lewis of the “Byrd”; Mary, m. Samuel Cobbs of Georgia; Mildred, m. Major John Lewis; Anne, m. John Lewis of Spottsylvania; Elizabeth, m. Mr. Barret, d. 1747; Charles, m. his cousin Mary Lewis; Sarah m. Waller Lewis, M. D., and Robert, m. Miss Fauntleroy. John Lewis, the eldest son [brother of Robert of Belvoir] m. Frances Fielding, and were the parents of Col. Fielding Lewis, who m. (1) Catherine Washington, a cousin of Gen. George Washington, and m. (2) Elizabeth Washington, a sister of Gen. Washington.

Educated in Fredericksburgh, Va. Occupation, a farmer. In 1862 he was exempted from military service for disability. In 1864 he was conscripted and joined Co. E, 9th Va. Cavalry. In the following winter he was taken sick, and again discharged from service, but too late. He lingered for a few weeks, and died before he could reach home, Feb. 28, 1865, at Hicksford, Greensville Co., Va., at the house of Mrs. Bettie Walker, a lady who was very kind to him in his last illness and who had his body decently interred in their family burial ground. The last letter his friends received from him gave a thrilling account of his sufferings for food and raiment. His comrade in arms Mr. Richard C. Decker, attended his bedside in his last illness as only a brother could have done. In his last hours he was surrounded by friends, though strangers, and all was done for him that willing hands could do. Before he died he gave strong evidence of having made peace with his Maker, and died trusting in the merits of his Saviour.

He was a good citizen, inherited many of his father’s characteristics, a member of the Christian church, and what has been said of his father can also be said of him. Personally, a large, fine man, resembling his father in appearance and in general views upon most every subject. His home was in Lexington for nearly thirty years, and most of the time in the same line of business. He built and owned a large livery stable, known as “Horseman’s Headquarters,” and handled much fine stock. He was also proprietor of the Omnibus Transfer Co. of Lexington. He m. Oct. 27, 1857, Joanna E. Wolverton, of Lexington, who was b. there Dec. 20, 1835. He d. Oct. 3, 1893, in Lexington. He had been in ill health for the last two years, but able to be about, until a short period before his death. During the last two months that he lived, his dau. Mrs. Farnsworth, and his wife were with him constantly. He was a good man, kind and indulgent to his family and friends. He was well known in Lexington, and was loved and esteemed by all. His commanding figure and presence always attracted attention, and his business brought him in contact with all classes of men. He was kind and affable to all. His loss is deeply felt by a large circle of friends and relatives.

JUDGE ROBERT LATANE MONTAGUE, son of Lewis B. [324], b. May 23, 1819, at Ellaslee, Middlesex Co., Va.

At the age of sixteen he was a clerk for a short time in a country store. In 1838 he entered Fleetwood Academy, in King and Queen Co., and remained two sessions. He then studied law under Judge Lomax of Fredericksburgh. In 1841 he entered William and Mary College. Graduated July 2, 1842, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Law. In 1842 he took the post-graduate course of study at William and Mary College. In the Polk and Dallas campaign of 1844, Mr. Montague took an active part, warmly espousing the cause of the democratic standard-bearers. He acquired the reputation of being one of the most brilliant and polished speakers of his state. He was several times presidential elector on the democratic ticket. He was also elected commonwealth attorney of Middlesex Co., which position he held for many years, and until his election as lieutenant governor of Virginia, on the ticket with Hon. John Letcher. So great was his popularity that he led his ticket by five thousand votes. He represented the counties of Mathews and Middlesex in the Legislatures of 1850-1-2. While he was lieutenant governor and ex-officio president of the Va. senate, he was elected president of the Va. convention of 1861, and was in the chair when the ordinance of secession was passed, thus presenting the rare spectacle of one man presiding over two deliberative bodies in session at the same time. Without his solicitation he was chosen a member of the executive council, which had power to organize the army and make appointments to office. He was elected a member of the Confederate congress. In this body he was one of the most conspicuous of the younger members. In 1872 Gov. Montague was elected to the House of Delegates, from Middlesex Co., though the county was largely republican. In 1875 he was elected Judge of the 8th Judicial District of Va. In December, 1878, re-elected for eight years, and he was worthily filling this position at the time of his death, which occurred March 2, 1880, at Inglewood, Middlesex Co., Va.

Judge Montague was adroit as a practitioner of law. As a jurist, a popular speaker, and a debater, he was a star of the first magnitude. He was a brilliant orator, bold, and sometimes almost violent in advocacy of his convictions, but always courteous in his deportment to his opponents. Few men ever enjoyed more personal popularity. He was an earnest christian, and a zealous member of the Baptist church. He was devoted to his church and filled many positions of honor; he was often moderator of the Baptist Association, and for many years moderator of the Va. Baptist General Association. He was just, generous, kind, and devoted to his family. He died surrounded by his family and friends and his former slaves, March 2, 1880 [date on monument in cemetery]. M., Dec. 14, 1852, Cordelia Gay Eubank, dau. of Joseph C. Eubank. She was b. Nov. 15, 1835* at Mount Prospect, Essex Co. His devoted and invalid wife d. Sept. 25. 1884,* at the residence of Dr. William Hoskins, in the Co. of King and Queen. Her remains were interred in the family burying ground, by the side of her husband, near the banks of the Rappahannock.

A district that is out-ranked by but few in the Union in the amount of work required to be done. He m., Dec. 11, 1889, Betsie Lyne Hoskins, dau. of Dr. Wm. and Janette Carter [Roy] Hoskins. They have one child, Matilda Gay, b. June 27, 1891. She is a rare and radiant flower of the sweetest fragrance.

Educated at Va. Military Institute, and William and Mary College. At the latter school he took the degree of Bachelor of Law. He m., Oct. 28, 1858, at Nesting, Middlesex, Miss Virginia Eubank, dau. of Mr. Joseph C. Eubank, and sister of the wife of his brother, the late Judge Robert L. Montague. Soon after his marriage he purchased his estate, called "Afton," in King and Queen Co., where he resided and practiced his profession, that of law, until the breaking out of the war between the states, when he at once gave his services to the Confederate cause, raised a battalion of men and entered the southern army as Major of Montague's Battalion. He commanded this battalion at the battle of Bethel, and there acquitted himself with such valor, ability and credit that he was promoted to Lieut. Col. of the 53d regiment of Va. infantry, and afterward was again promoted to Col. of the 32d regiment of Va. infantry. His regiment formed a part of Corse's Brigade, Pickett's Division, [Maj. Gen. George E. Pickett commanding], first corps, army of Northern Va. As a member of that famous division, Col. Montague participated in many of the bloody battles of the late war, and was always found with the foremost in the heat and danger of the fight. In his official report to Gen. Lee, Gen. Pickett says, "To the commanding officers of regiments, my thanks and those of our state are due for their maintenance of discipline in their regiments, their continual and unswerving confidence in the cause, and their personal activity on the many battlefields, in leading on their men to victory, or sustaining them under their various hardships. Such names as those of Montague [and others of his officers] should not be forgotten in Virginia's history." Col. Montague served throughout the entire war. After the surrender at Appomattox he returned to his home and resumed the practice of his profession.

He was a fine lawyer, an eloquent debater and speaker, enjoyed as lucrative a practice as his section of the state afforded. He was for many years commonwealth attorney for his county, and always filled the office with ability, credit and justice. He was a gentleman of the highest type; to a magnificent personal appearance and bearing he added courtly manners and a delicacy and refinement of feeling that is rarely ever seen. He had many warm friends and was generally beloved by those who knew him. After an illness of about six weeks he d., Feb. 21, 1885, at Afton, King and Queen Co., and was interred at Inglewood, Middlesex Co., the late home of his brother, Judge Robert L. Montague.

Mary Jesse Montague, dau. of Lewis B. [324], b. June 26, 1835. She m. (1), March 19, 1858, Mr. Robert Logan Fleet, who was killed at the battle of Chancellorsville. The following account of his death and tribute to his memory was written by Col. Edgar B. Montague, and published in the Richmond papers:

"Messrs. Editors:—Allow me a short space to offer a tribute to the memory of one of the truest and bravest men who has fallen in this terrible struggle, Lieut. Robert Logan Fleet of the 55th Va. Reg't, who was killed on the bloody field of Chancellorsville. Without waiting for place or position, Lieut. Fleet entered the first company from his county, as a private. He was promoted to a Lieut. on the field by his commanding officer for distinguished gallantry at the battle of Gaines Mills, where he received a terrible wound through the shoulder, which for nearly nine months detained him from his command. Against the advice and protest of his friends, and even his officers, with his right arm paralyzed, and his wound suppurating, he reported for duty about a month before the fatal battle. He fell while leading his men in one of the charges of the gallant 55th. Thus perished one of the truest, noblest, and most unselfish spirits in the army. The only son of a widowed mother, the idol of his young wife and three little children, respected and loved by a large circle of friends and relatives, his fate was indeed a sad one, but yet the grief of his widow and friends is soothed by the reflection that he lived as a true Christian should live, and died a martyr to his firm and consistent patriotism."

"Another battle fought, and oh, not lost—
Tells of the ending of this fight and thrall,
Another ridge of time's lone moorland crossed,
Gives nearer prospect of the jasper wall."

"A heritage which death
Shall seal to thee for aye,
A resurrection—heritage
When all things pass away.
A home of endless peace,
Beyond these hills of strife;
When these old rocks give up their dead,
And death shall end in life."

She m. (2), Jan. 12, 1869, at Ellaslee, Middlesex, Mr. Robert Daniel, Jr., son of Mr. Robert Daniel, Sr., of Middlesex Co. She was his second wife. He m. (1), 1858, Lucy B. Daniel, his cousin, dau. of his Uncle William H. and Martha A. [Montague 358] Daniel, of Middlesex. See at Lucy B. Daniel [358]. Mr. Daniel served through the war in the cavalry arm of the service. Was a member of the King and Queen cavalry commanded by Capt. Fox. He was in most of the battles fought by the 5th Reg't of cavalry under Fitz Lee and Stuart. Was at home on a furlough at the time of the surrender at Appomattox C. H. They reside at Ellaslee, Church View P. O., Middlesex Co.

To the above sketch, the compiler here adds the following tribute to Mrs. Mary Jesse Daniel. This work will ever be indebted to this noble Montague lady for many records, and much and valuable information nowhere else obtainable. Her interest in this great work has been indefatigable and unceasing, and her aid cheerfully given. The help given by her and her noble daughter, Miss Gay Montague Daniel,—has rendered the work a success, and came in the darkest hour of its compilation. Without the records of the county of Middlesex this work could not have been written; the compiler could find no one to undertake that work, after a lengthy search extending over nearly two years, and found it impossible to go himself to search the records. When he was nearly discouraged, Mrs. Daniel and her dau. Gay, came nobly to the rescue. By permission of Mr. T. Phil. Woodworth, the Co. clerk (now deceased) they were enabled to take the old, moth-eaten, unindexed records from the court house at Saluda, and carry them to their home at Church View, often too, at considerable inconvenience to themselves and to Mr. Daniel, by whose aid they were obtained. Here, at their leisure, they brought to light the ancient records which have enabled the compiler to connect the various branches with Peter Montague No. 1. Besides this valuable aid rendered, Mrs. Daniel has furnished many records relating to Middlesex Co. families, whose records were hitherto obscure and difficult to obtain. The kindest thanks of the entire Montague family are due to this estimable lady for her labors, often arduous, in their behalf.

(By Mr. Daniel.)

2346. Mary Jesse, b. April 28, 1870. Her interest in this work has been unceasing.
2348. Gay Montague, b. July 21, 1874. The very best thanks and most hearty admiration of the entire Montague family both now living and of posterity hereafter, are due to this noble young lady for valuable service rendered this work. The ancient records of the county dating back to 1680, were brought (as stated above) from Saluda C. H. by her father, who expected with the aid of his wife to copy them for this work. Some of these records are worm-eaten and obscure from age, and it was found difficult to read them. Although obtained at considerable trouble, they bid fair to remain a "sealed book" until Miss Gay, coming in from school (though scarcely sixteen years of age), took the matter in hand, successfully read and copied them, and triumphantly sent them to the compiler.

Dr. Lewis Brooke Montague, son of Lewis B. [324], b. Sept. 17, 1837, in Middlesex Co., Va.
Educated at Centerville and Fleetwood Academies; graduated in medicine at the medical college of Va. Has been a practicing physician for many years. He is a devoted Baptist. He served in hospitals of Richmond during the war. Resided at Mathews C. H., Va., in 1886, but has since removed to Atlantic City, Norfolk, Va., m., Dec. 21, 1864, in Clarksville, Va., Rosa Mordecai Young, dau. of Col. John W. and Mary [Wimbish] Young of Mecklenburg Co. She was educated at Richmond and shared with her cousin, Miss Pindexter [afterward the wife of Rev. J. B. Taylor, Jr.] the affectionate training of her uncle by marriage, Rev. Dr. A. M. Pindexter and his accomplished wife. She d. March 14, 1890. She was a noble Christian, one of the very best of women, universally loved and esteemed. At the age of fifteen she entered the Richmond Female Institute. While there a revival was held in the Grace Street Baptist church, in which Dr. John A. Broaddus did the preaching. It was in this meeting that she gave her young heart to Christ. She was baptized into the fellowship of the above church by Dr. Jeter, and lived a consistent Christian life to the end.

ANDREW JACKSON MONTAGUE, son of Lewis B. [324], b. July 4, 1842, d. in Richmond, July, 1862.

The youngest of ten children. Born when his parents were getting on in life, he was peculiarly dear. From infancy to early manhood he exhibited the most devoted love for those of his own blood, while he was the idol of his father, brothers, and sister. His mother dying when he was only seven years of age, strengthened the tender ties. He was specially entrusted to his elder brother by his mother, who nobly fulfilled the trust, educating and treating him in all respects as a son. He was at the Virginia Military Institute when the war broke out, was for some time at Lee Camp, Richmond, with other cadets, drilling new companies in military tactics as they were mustered in. In the spring of 1862, when not quite eighteen years of age, he joined Co. C, 55th Reg't Va. Vols. and was in the first of the engagements of the seven days' battles around Richmond. Received a slight wound through the arm on the second or third day. The wound was not considered dangerous, but in a week typhoid fever set in, he was dangerously ill for some days, grew worse, his brain became affected, the doctor said from the concussion of shot and shell in the battles he had passed through. In spite of the tenderest care his young life went out. He was at the home of Mr. Austin Turner, where he received every attention. His brother, Dr. L. B. Montague, never left his side, every effort was made to save him that kindness and care could suggest, but in vain. He had some hours free from delirium, and during that time professed sorrow for sin, and trust in the merits of a crucified Redeemer. Dr. Lansing Burboughs of the Baptist church prayed with and for him, also his brother Hon. Robert L. Montague, who with all an elder brother's anguish watched over and prayed for him. His last words to his sister, as she bent over and kissed the dear lips soon to be cold in death, were, "don't be afraid, I am sure to meet you there, yes, sure to meet you there." He was buried in the Shackoe Hill burying ground at Richmond, July, 1862.

"Where the faded flower shall freshen,— Freshen never more to fade;
Where the shaded sky shall brighten,— Brighten never more to shade:
Where the sun blaze never scorches;
Where the star beams cease to chill;
Where no tempest stirs the echoes
Of the wood, or wave, or hill:
Where the morn shall wake in gladness,
And the moon the joy prolong,
'Mid the burst of holy song:
Brother, we shall meet and rest
'Mid the holy and the blest!"

He was a firm and consistent Christian. After the death of his last wife it devolved upon him to teach his infant son the prayer so generally lisped at the mother’s knee, and he impressed upon his youthful mind the importance of growing up in the love and fear of the God whom his father worshiped. The lessons thus impressed bore fruit, and the son remembers with thankfulness and gratitude, lessons so early taught and reveres and honors the memory of his father so early lost to him.

He m. Oct. 1, 1838, Sophia Frost Rowland, dau. of William Tighman Rowland of Greenville, S. C., where she was b. in 1820. Her mother was niece of Maria Edgeworth,* the authoress. Major Earle became a member of the Baptist church in 1838, and was a consistent christian for nearly sixty years. Greenville at that time was a small village of 700 people. He was a farmer of great ability, and an accomplished writer on agricultural subjects. Resided near Green-

* William Edgeworth, the brother of Maria Edgeworth the authoress, married a very beautiful Irish lady whose name was Bridget Ryan. They came to Charleston, S. C., he having been engaged in the Hampden Sidney Rebellion. They had one dau. Emily, who m. (1), Mr. John Hamlin, and had children. After his death she m. (2) Mr. William Tighman Rowland, of Greenville Co., S. C., and their dau. Sophia m. Major Henry M. Earle as above stated.
ville, S. C. He d. April 19, 1893. Major Earle had an unbounded love for the Montagues, one of the dearest wishes of his heart was to live to see this work printed. The work is indebted to him for many records, and other information, on the branch of Henry Montague. The following tribute to his memory is taken from a Greenville, S. C., paper:

"In the death of Major Henry Montague Earle, another of Greenville's oldest citizens has passed away. Early in life Mr. Earle removed to Greenville Co. where he has since lived, universally liked and respected by those with whom he was thrown. He was deeply interested in farming, to which pursuit he had devoted his whole life and energies. Intellectually active, he had acquired a great deal by experience, and his readiness in conversation combined with his courteous and gentle manners made him a pleasant companion, while his consistent life commended the profession of religion he had made. Although wide awake to matters about him, his quiet tastes kept him away from the stir of public life, and he never held any public office. So active had been his life and so strong was his constitution until within the past few years of his life, that his more than fourscore years seemed to sit very lightly upon him, and few looking at him would have classed him among the octogenarians. He resided on his plantation, not far from Greenville, and it was while on a visit to the city that he stopped on last Sunday week at the home of his daughter, Mrs. McAllister. He intended to remain there only a few hours, but feeling unwell lay down to rest, before returning to his farm. But he steadily lost strength and at noon on Wednesday died from heart failure."

On the 18th of Feb., 1893, only two months before his death, he wrote the following to the compiler of this work: "My dear friend and much esteemed relative; I again attempt to write you a short letter. I feel the despondency of age increasing so surely upon my energies, and the love of life wanes with the lethargy of the mind. I have passed my eighty-fourth year, and still keep my power to exercise on foot without the use of a walking-cane. I do mount on horseback when the animal will be still, though I use a buggy when going on business for six miles or more. In the providence of God my mind is being gradually prepared for the final resignation of mortal life. How much longer will you be likely to pursue the tracing out of the Montague Genealogy? I do wish you great success, and do hope that you may realize your fullest expectations in all you have anticipated in this laudable undertaking. I feel that we are blood kin and one of the same family, and close friends. May the blessed Lord God preserve and keep you through all time to come.

Affectionately,

Henry Montague Earle."

Soon after the death of Mr. Earle, his wife's health began to fail. She lingered through the summer and, though her death was expected she died suddenly on the 11th of December, 1893.

She was a member of the Baptist church, and was a christian whose every thought and word was in perfect harmony with her profession. She was a very lovely lady, educated in the best schools, and highly accomplished. In person she was of exceeding great beauty. All who are living that remember her, say "she had the most beautiful face they ever saw. Her face and her life, short and lovely, reminded one of the beauty and delicate fragrance of a violet one had enjoyed when young and happy and the skies were blue." Her health never recovered from the shock of the death of her husband, as his death from heart disease was sudden and unexpected. Life had lost its charm for her in his death, and she went cheerfully when the time came. She d. Feb. 23, 1863, in Rome, Ga.

Jan. 27, 1846. She was b. June 3, 1825, in Wayne Co. He made a profession of religion in early life, was an active member of Philadelphia Baptist church (which he joined in 1853) until his death. He was a minister of the Missionary Baptist church. When the civil war came, he went into the Confederate service in the place of a brother-in-law whose wife was very sick and required his attention. He became a member of the 9th Tenn. battalion of cavalry, and at the fall of Fort Donaldson he was captured and taken to the prison of Camp Butler, at Alton, Ill., where he died from exposure, May 15 or 16, 1862. Thus ended the career of one of God's noblemen. He was reconciled to die, but expressed a regret that he could not die at home with his family. His widow married twice after his death. She lived a faithful, consistent, christian life. In August, 1886, she was stricken with paralysis, and d. Aug. 10, at her home between Clifton and Waynesboro, Tenn.

He was a Confederate soldier; was killed in the battle of Thompson's Station, March 5, 1863. His remains were brought home one stormy night when the driver could only see his way by the lightning flash, and were interred in an old family graveyard about three miles from Clifton. The following was written soon after his death, to his friends: "He was possessed of the most pleasing and winning manners, ever kind, amiable, and manly, he was known only to be loved, and among his intimate friends his memory will ever be cherished. The Lord hath given, and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

"Softly within that peaceful resting place
We lay his wearied limbs, and bid the clay Press lightly on them till the night be passed,
And the far east give note of coming day.
Short death and darkness! endless life and light!
Short dimming; endless shining in yon sphere,
Where all is incorruptible and pure;—
The joy without the pain, the smile without the tear."

Nathaniel Washington Johnson, son of Nathaniel F. and

* Dillon. The first of the name known was Henry Dillon, who settled in Ireland in 1185. Had large tracts of land known as "Dillon's Country," nothing is known of the origin of the name, it is lost in antiquity. The arms of Dillon of Devonshire were, “Ar, on a lion rampant between four estoiles issuing from as many crescents gu. a bar az.” The Viscounts Dillon of Co. Mayo, Ireland, are said to derive their origin from Lochan, or Logan, son of the Monarch O’Neile, which Logan lived about the year 595. Dilune or Dillion signifies brave, valiant. Henry Dillon of this family was sent into Ireland (1855) as secretary to John Earl of Morton. King John granted him the land called "Dillon’s Country." The family Arms were, “a lion passant between three crescents, gules.”

† Moore. This name is derived from a residence at a boggy heath or moor. The medieval forms are Atte-Mor or More, De-Mora, Ad. Moram, etc. Edmondson’s Heraldry mentions over 70 coats of arms borne by various families of the name of Moore.

He was a devoted minister of the Baptist church, and did much valuable work for the Master, both in Virginia and North Carolina. He was educated at Wake Forest College, N. C., and continued to be a close student of the Bible, and other good books, all his life. He was remarkable for his independence, and did not shrink to express his views on any subject, however they might differ from those of his nearest and best friends. But he was not arrogant or self-important. He was a very fluent speaker, always stuck very closely to the Bible, and interlarded his preaching with personal incidents of the sick and dying, enough of which he could easily gather together from his extensive visiting of the same. He loved to do his duty. He never missed an appointment when it was in his power to meet it. In revival meetings few could stir the people as quick as he could. He was an earnest, God-fearing, Bible preacher, always popular with the masses. There was a power in the shake of his hand, a warm Christian salutation that sent its influence all through the body immediately and said in unmistakable accents, that there was a man of God.
is congregations always loved him very dearly, and whenever it came necessary for him to sever his connection with any church as pastor, it was hard to give him up. He was often called back to each at funerals, etc. He preached fourteen years at the Fork church, some seven or eight years at Musterfield, and fifteen or twenty at Aarons Creek, all in Halifax Co., Va. He served fourteen years as pastor of Buffalo church in Mecklenburg Co., Va. In North Carolina he served Mill Creek as pastor for about forty years, Olive Ranch some fifteen or twenty, and Bethel Hill some thirty or thirty-five years. He was also pastor of Antioch, in Person Co., where he was. He was a life-long friend of the late Rev. Thos. King of Halifax Co., Va., and was very highly esteemed by him. He was always held in very high esteem by such men as J. C. Averett, John Ardon, Alfred Blanks, Wm. Arnold, Dr. E. F. P. Pool, and Robert Overby. Mr. Montague was a good singer, and this in no small gree added to his worth as a preacher.

He m., Nov. 18, 1838, Miss Barsheba Pittard, of Granville, N. C., who was, in every respect, the counterpart he needed to round up his life for usefulness in his Master’s cause. She was b. Jan. 31, 1816, Granville Co. He died at his home at Bethel Hill, Person Co., N. C., on Sunday morning, May 7 (or 17?), 1887, of typhoid pneuonia, a disease he always dreaded. “He had an abundant entrance to the new Jerusalem.” His wife survives, and resides at Bethel Hill, N. C.

Thomas Fleetwood Montague, son of Samuel [396], b. July 17, 1834, in Granville Co., N. C.

He m., 1857 or 8, Betsey Olmstead, who d. about 1870, near Flat River Bridge, N. C. He was a Confederate soldier, member of the 56th N. C. Reg't; was shot in the bowels June 20, 1864; d. June 25, having lain six or eight hours on the battlefield where he fell, on the lines below Petersburg. He was a brave soldier, a promising young man, popular, not vain, but understood the law of kindness.

"No sun had e'er dawned on
So fearful a day,
No trumpet had marshalled
So dread an array.
As if earth in her frenzy
From each region afar,
Had poured forth her nations
For the shock of that war.
In the flush of their manhood,
In the bud of their prime,
In veteran ripeness,—
The men of each clime
Came thronging and rushing,
Like rivers in flood."

"'Tis first the night,—stern night of storm and war,
Long nights of heavy clouds and veiled skies;
Then the far sparkle of the Morning-star,
That bids the saints awake, and dawn arise."
"The dew-drop dies not, when it leaves the flower,
And passes upward on the beam of morn;
It does but hide itself in light on high,
To its loved flower at twilight to return.

The fine gold has not perished, when the flame
Seizes upon it with consuming glow;
In freshened splendor it comes forth anew,
To sparkle on the monarch's throne or brow.

Thus in the quiet joy of kindly trust,
We bid each parting saint a brief farewell;
Weeping, yet smiling, we commit their dust
To the safe keeping of the silent cell."

REV. JAMES POPE MONTAGUE, son of Lewis [399], b. May 12, 1821, in Granville Co., N. C.

He was raised on the farm and educated at the country schools until the year 1839, when he professed religion and was baptized by Rev. Zachariah Allen, and received into the fellowship of the Baptist church at Corinth, in Granville Co., the same year. He was strongly impressed with a call to preach the gospel of peace, and in the year 1840 he entered Wake Forest college, where he remained three years. He then spent several years teaching and preaching in Warren, Randolph, and Granville Co. In 1851 he was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry, devoted several years to missionary work, building up the waste places, until his naturally feeble health failed. He then came home, settled on a farm and m. Miss J. E. Burnett of Oxford, N. C. As his health permitted, he preached and taught whenever he found an open field, until June 26, 1886, when from failure of the heart, he rested from his labor and sleeps in Jesus. His wife survives him. No children.

James Lawrence Daniel, son of James Henry [448], b. 1840. He enlisted 1861, in Co. B., 19th Va. Reg. Armstead’s Brigade, Pickett’s Div., A. P. Hill’s Corps. He was killed at the battle of Malvern Hill. He was Lieutenant in charge of his company, the battle had been fierce and his men had almost become demoralized, when he mounted the breastworks with the colors in his hand, attempting to rally his men, and leading the charge he fell mortally wounded and died the same day. He was universally loved by his men, and was as brave a man as ever drew a sword in defence of what he conceived to be right. His remains were taken to Charlottesville and interred in the cemetery there.

“Earthquakes, whirlwinds, tempests,
   Tear the quivering ground;
Voices, trumpets, thunders,
   Fill the air around.
Roar of raging battle;
    Shout, and shriek, and wail,
Startle even the bravest,
    Turn the fresh cheek pale.”
"Peace! Earth's last battle has been won;
Its days of conflict now are o'er;
The Prince of Peace ascends the throne,
And war has ceased from shore to shore."

"Dust receive thy kindred!
Earth take now thine own!
To thee this trust is rendered;
In thee this seed is sown.
Guard the precious treasure,
Ever faithful tomb!
Keep it all unripled,
Till the Master come."

d. Aug. 7, 1894 in Spartanburg, S. C.

The Darlington Herald of Aug. 10, 1894 has the following: "The members of the Methodist church and the community generally were very much grieved on Wednesday by the receipt of a telegram announcing the death of this estimable lady, which sad event occurred in Spartanburg on Tuesday night. About two months ago she left Darlington to spend the summer with relatives in Spartanburg and was with them at the time of her death. About 18 years ago she married Rev. J. E. Carlisle, and during all these years she has been the counsellor and sustainer of her husband, in the arduous work of the ministry, and met with cheerful and uncomplaining spirit the changes and vicissitudes incident to the life of an itinerant minister.
She possessed a bright and active mind and had received a thorough and careful education under the guidance of her cultured father. She was well posted in literature and the current questions of the times, and this combined with her graceful manners made her strikingly entertaining within the social circle. She always identified herself with the people among whom her husband's work lay, and was universally popular with all classes of people. At an early age she connected herself with the church and during all the years of her after life illustrated the teachings of Christianity both in her walk and conversation. She accepted with perfect faith the sublime teachings of Christianity in their truest and most liberal sense and neither sectarianism or bigotry ever found lodgment in her mind. Our whole community will sympathize most deeply with her afflicted family and friends and especially with the one on whom the bereavement falls so heavily. The remains were interred at Spartanburg on Wednesday, Aug. 8, 1894." Just as the above is being printed, the sad news reaches us of another and deep affliction which has, in the Prov-dince of God come to the family of Mrs. Carlisle, by the death of her father, Rev. Samuel B. Jones, D.D., of Columbia, S. C., who passed from earth to heaven, Sept. 1, 1894. He had been in feeble health for several months, but it was thought that the bracing air of the mountains at Saluda, N. C., where he was passing the summer,

would restore him. He never rallied after his daughter’s death and in less than a month he has followed her to the mansions above, prepared for the people of God.

Hampshire and Kent, and were also in other counties. One of the chief seats of the Cobbs was Ingoldisthorpe Manor in Co. Norfolk. This Manor has been held by the family of the Cobbs since the time of Queen Elizabeth. The beautiful mansion house, which stands in a most inviting situation, commanding the sea, and the Lincolnshire coast is distinguished by the name of Cobb Hall. This property in 1780 was owned by Edward Cobb, Esq., Collector of the customs at Wisbeck in the isle of Ely. His ancestor Martin Cobb, Esq., purchased it of Roger Townsend in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. In the year 1691 there was a Manor near Cobb Hall called Paradise. It is possible that Col. Richard Lee may have obtained the names of his estates in Va. from these places especially as his estate of “Cobb’s” on Dividing Creek, an inlet from the Chesapeake bay was in situation similar to the English Cobb Hall, which looked across a bay toward the Lincolnshire coast. Neither of these English Manors however were ever in the Lee family, though it is found that Margaret dau. of William Cobbe married Richard Lee of Norwich. [Dr. E. J. L., March, 1893.] Camden, in his Brit. says the fishermen along the English coast call a sheltered harbor well secured from winds by rocks and lofty trees, “the Cobb.” Joseph Cobb had a plantation at Elizabeth City, Va. in 1624, his age was 25 and he came from England in the ship “Treasorer” in 1613. His wife Elizabeth Cobb, age 25, came in the “Bone Bes,” in 1623. The Manor of Wood Hall in Sandringham Norfolk was a very ancient seat of the Cobbs, certainly dating back to the time of King Edward III. The last of the Cobbe family in possession was Jeffrey Cobbe son of William and Mary Cobbe, who was the daughter of Sir Henry Bedingfield of Oxborah. Jeffrey Cobbe married a daughter of Isaac Astley of Melton Constable and died July 14, 1625, William Cobbe, one of Jeffrey’s sons, born 1613, distinguished himself in the civil war, being a colonel in the army of King Charles 1. The arms of this family, copied from a brass plate in the church of Sandringham were : “Pur chevron, sable and gules, in chief, two swans proper, repeatant, and in base a berring Cobb, naiant, or.” In the year 1580 there was a mansion of the Cobbs near the village of Longdon, north of Lichfield in Stafford, and in the same vicinity was the Manor of “Mount Pleasant” which latter name was also the name of another estate of Col. Richard Lee in Va. In this vicinity in Stafford, near the ruins of Chartley Castle there were in 1690 a number of places or mansions evidently in the Lee family, such as Leigh, Lee’s Hill, Lea, Lea Lane, Lea Croft, etc. These places are scarcely twenty miles from Nardley Regis in Shropshire, said to be an old seat of the Lees.

2053. Philip Henry Montague, son of William V. [819], b. Feb. 2, 1853. He went to Texas when quite young, where he has since resided. Attended school near Alexander, Erath Co. For two years from 1886 to 1888 he was Justice of the Peace for Hamilton Co. Has been a school teacher; also follows the profession of song writer, and composer and teacher of music. He possesses an ancient violin, an heirloom, said to have been brought from England by his first American ancestor. As a composer, he is quite proficient, there is only room for one of his hymns which is given below. Residence, Jonesboro, Coryell Co., Texas, recently removed to Crawford, McLennan Co., Texas.

Send the blessed Bible to the heathen's land;
Send it o'er to China, send it to Japan;
Tell the love of Jesus all the world around,
Tell the glorious Gospel news wherever man is found.

CHORUS:

Send the blessed Bible all the world around,
Send the glorious Gospel to the earth's remotest bound;
Tell the love of Jesus, tell it o'er and o'er,
Till the knowledge of our Lord is known from shore to shore.

Jesus, loving Savior, came from heaven above,
Brought to thee salvation and a Father's love;
And wilt thou not send it to the foreign clime?
For the Savior's great salvation is for all mankind.—Chorus.

"Go, ye, to all nations," is our Lord's command;
High and lowly stations, over all the land;
Tell the grand old story, tell it o'er and o'er,
Till the blessed Savior's love is known from shore to shore.—Chorus.

She m., May 9, 1876, Robert Emmette Dunaway, son of Jarvis and Mary Jane [Hacock] Dunaway of Chesterfield Co., Va. He was b. July 19, 1843, nine miles south of Richmond. He was left an orphan in early youth, and at the age of 14 was apprenticed to James Walsh at the gun and locksmith business in Richmond. Here he remained working at his trade until March, 1862, when he volunteered in Confederate service, though under age and exempt also by reason of his trade as gunsmith. He entered camp for instruction drill under Dr. Wm. W. Parker, Capt. of the boy Co. He saw the stars and stripes taken down from the capital and the palmetto flag hoisted in its stead, and heard Pres. Davis’ address at the foot of the Washington monument. He went to the front and was placed with the corps of Gen. Longstreet and remained with that General, from that time until the end, sharing in all the battles, including Gettysburg and the Tennessee campaign. Was captured at a fight at Saylors Creek, Prince Edward Co., Va., and was taken to prison at Point Lookout, Md., on the eventful night of April 14, 1865, where he, with twenty-two others of his Co., (three having made their escape) were kept until released by the amnesty pardon of Pres. Andrew Johnson, June 11, 1865. He next entered the hardware store of John T. Sublet & Bro., Richmond, until Jan., 1866, when he went to Logan Co., Ohio, until 1874. He then removed to Carey, Ohio and took charge of a large steam mill, where he still resides. He also has the business of general auctioneer.

* Mr. John Tyler was son of Mr. John H. Tyler of Richmond. Davis' Hist. of Wallingford, Conn., says that John Tyler was in Wallingford previous to 1679. This John Tyler was grandfather of John Tyler the preacher, who was b. 1742, educated at Yale, taking there in 1765 the degree of A.M. In 1768 he went to London and was ordained by Richard Fennick, Bishop of London, to the office of Priest in the Church of England, returned the same year to Norwich, Ct., where he became Rector of Christ Church. It is said that the original Tyler emigrant came from Devonshire, Eng., of Welsh descent, and landed in Newport, R. I., in 1638. Savage's Gen'l Dict. of N. E. states that John Tyler of Wallingford, was son of William of Milford, and that William Tyler of Milford was from New Haven, 1657; m. Abigail, dau. of Roger Terrell. Job Tyler of Andover may have had children before the town was settled, as Hope or Moses, and Dr. Stiles found his name (though I doubt a mistake in his vision) on the roll of administrators at Aquedneck or Portsmouth, R. I., 1639. Certain at Providence was a widow Joan Tyler in 1638, at that point called Tockwotton. Possibly she was mother of Job, who was b. 1619. Nathaniel Tyler was at Lynn 1649. Peter Tyler was at Branford 1668. Abraham Tyler was at Haverhill 1640. George Tyler was at Branford 1674, and by wife Hannah had Isaac, b. 1682; Samuel, b. 1683. By second wife Mary, had John, b. 1696; Roger, b. 1698; Ebenezer, b. 1703. Hope Tyler was at Mendon 1662, probably eldest son of Job, moved to Roxbury, had Mathew, b. April 9, 1670; John, b. 1678; moved to Andover, where Hopestill, perhaps his son, lived in 1691. He there had James, b. 1683. His wife Mary, and two daus. were charged with witchcraft, imprisoned at Salem, but afterward released.

Educated at the University of Va. Served in the Confederate army from 1861 to the surrender of Johnston's army at Greensboro, N. C., 1865, having entered the service in Aug., 1861, as Lieut. of Inf.; commanded Earle's Light Battery at 21, and at 22 declined a commission as Major of artillery tendered him by President Davis for special services. He m. (1), Dec. 19, 1865, Bettie Price of Charlottesville, Va. She d. June 7, 1878, in Greenville, S. C.; m. (2), Jan. 13, 1881, Mary, second dau. of Gov. James Lawrence Orr of S. C. Prior to his second marriage he moved to Washington, D. C., where he practices in the Court of Claims and the Supreme Court of the U. S.

The printing press had nearly reached this page of this book when the sad news reached us that William E. Earle, the subject of the above sketch, had entered into rest. Deeply religious he died as he had lived, a loyal gentleman, a brave soldier of Christ. He was deeply interested in this work, but like his father he has not lived to see it completed. He d. Monday Aug. 13, 1894, in Portland, Maine. He had been in ill health for some time, but had been to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., where he had gained strength. He was returning to Washington, but was urged to go to Portland where Mrs. Earle was visiting friends. There he became ill and never rallied. His remains were taken to Greenville, S. C., where he was born, and the funeral was held in Christ church. The court adjourned and the court officers attended the funeral in a body. A number of the survivors of Earle's Battery were present and for the last time followed their old commander as his body was borne to the grave. They expressed sincere respect and affection for his memory and testified that he was a gallant officer, fearless in battle, kind, gentle and thoughtful in his treatment of the men under him, and that his first thought was always for their comfort and welfare. Mr. Earle became a republican soon after the war and remained consistently faithful to the political creed of that party until the end. He was appointed by President Grant assistant United States district attorney. He held this place until 1878 when he resigned. He was appointed by the Gov. of S. C., a commissioner to represent the State in the claims against the government for the recovery of land seized and sold for direct taxes. He was successful in this, both in the court of claims and in the U. S. supreme court. He became very much interested also in the French spoliation claims. In these two causes he did an enormous quantity of work and accomplished very important results. His death is attributed to overwork on these cases and some others.

"Upward where the sky is brightest,
Upward where the blue is lightest,
Now has gone his longing soul.
Far above that arch of gladness,
Far beyond these clouds of sadness,
Are the many mansions fair.
Far from warring and suffering
In the palace of the king,—
He has found a mansion there!
Where the glory brightly dwelleth,
Where the new song sweetly swelleth,
And the discord never comes;
Where life's stream is ever laving,
And the palm is ever waving:—
He has found the home of homes."

CHILDREN.

3446. Frances, b. 1823. She was a sweet, attractive girl, and at the age of 20 was affianced to a prominent young Virginian, but d. before the marriage took place.

She possessed rare beauty and grace of person and wonderful endowment of mind, added to this was the charm of a sweet, loving disposition, which gave her the power of drawing around her a large circle of friends. By the death of her parents and only sister she was left alone, and was invited by Dr. Watt Tyler of Warsaw, Richmond Co., a nephew of ex-President John Tyler, to make her home with his family until her marriage which was shortly to take place. From this home she m., Oct., 1845, Richard Henry Donnahaw, who was b. Feb. 22, 1820, in Westmoreland Co., Va. He was of sturdy Scotch stock and a man of sterling integrity. Their bridal tour consisted of a journey by private conveyance to their new and future home in Marengo Co., Ala., where Mr. Donnahaw was remarkably successful and accumulated a large property. He d. 1863 in Union-town, Ala. He had been for many years a member of the Baptist church of Uniontown. His life throughout was marked with a stern sense of justice and a love of truth and uprightness. He gave largely to benevolent and philanthropic objects. The needy always found him a ready helper, and the weak a strong defence. He lived largely "pro bono publico." Churches, schools, roads, indeed everything of interest to the community were of the first importance to him, and the whole community suffered at his death. His wife was a model of industry and thrift, noted for fine housekeeping. At the time of her marriage she was a member of the Episcopal church, but upon going to Ala. she united with the Baptist church at Uniontown of which her husband was a member and she retained her membership there until her death. She was active in all of the church work. She was strongly opposed to the system of slavery and gathered as many of the servants as would come, into the large dining room every Sabbath afternoon, that she might teach them the way of eternal life. This, and other missionary work among them, she kept up as long as her health permitted. After her husband's death she with her children moved back to Va. in July, 1865 and settled at Spencis Point on the Potomac river in Westmoreland, a place which her husband had purchased before his death. The trip was by private conveyance and occupied seven weeks. Here she resided until her death in June, 1870. She had lived a life of holy consecration to the Lord, and self sacrificing devotion to her family. Many homes were saddened by her death, as she had been an angel of mercy in the broadest sense. These lines might have been very appropriately written of her:

"O star on the breast of the river,
O marvel of bloom and grace,
Did you fall straight down from heaven,
Out of the sweetest place?
Nay! Nay! I fell not out of heaven,
None gave me my saintly white,
It slowly grew from the blackness
Down in the dreary night,
White souls fall not, O my poet,
They rise to the sweetest place."

THE BRANCH OF WILLIAM MONTAGUE,

SON OF PETER NO. 1.

William Montague, son of Peter [1], b. about 1635 to 1642 in Nansemond Co., Va. The record of his brother Peter states that Peter was certainly 21 years of age when his father died [1659] and probably was 21 in 1652. William being younger would be at least 21 in 1656 which places his birth in 1635. This is no doubt near the correct date, and is further corroborated by his father's will which makes an equal distribution of his land between them and immediate possession at his death, only reserving the first choice to Peter who was the eldest. Had William been under age in 1659, the will would have held his share in trust until he had reached legal age. All the records of Nansemond Co., where he was born have been destroyed. The first mention of him on any record, occurs in the will of his father the emigrant, [1659]. The next mention of him, comes from Essex Co. records, where under date of 1699, his son William is described as "William, Jr., son of William, Sr. of Middlesex." His name appears on M. records Oct. 7, 1700, together with the name of his brother Peter, and fifteen others of the freeholders of Middlesex, upon a petition to the House of Burgesses; Nov. 4, 1701, his name is found on court records, as appointing his son William his attorney to acknowledge a deed of gift of one horse colt to Thomas Montague, eldest son of Peter (the grandson of his brother Peter); March 1, 1702 he was one of the administrators of the estate of his bro. Peter; June 10, 1706 his name is on a deed of gift, (in Essex Co.) for land deeded by him to his son Thomas and to Katherine the wife BRANCH OF HIS SON WILLIAM.

f his son Thomas. The few remaining records of Christ church do not mention him, except to record his death, as follows: "Mr. William Montague, Sr., died the 7th and was buried the 10th of Dec., 1713." His will has been found, dated Oct. 1, 1713, proved June 1, 1714 and a copy in full is given below. In his will he describes himself as "of Middlesex." All these records agree, that he resided in Middlesex Co. from the year 1699 to his death 1713. At the date of 700, he was about 65 years of age, his children were grown, married and settled, his wife appears to have been deceased, and he was residing on his plantation, on or near Montague Island, in Middlesex. How the land on the Rappahannock was divided between these two sons of the emigrant, there is no way to determine, except that Peter had the first choice; but all records agree that both Peter and William had moved from Lancaster, before the year 1700 and were living in Middlesex, on or near Montague island, which island they owned. Such is the tradition, and the records corroborate it. No record has been found which states that they had sold the homestead in Lancaster where their father died, all mention of them however ceases on the records of Lancaster in 1668 and it seems safe to say that they had sold it. [The name of Montague ceases in L. records in 1668 and is not again mentioned until the Hannah Ball marriage in 1727. The earliest mention of the name in Middlesex, is in the year 1682 which seems to settle that between 1668 and 1682, these two brothers had moved to the south side of the Rappahannock river.]

This William Montague lived more than ten years after the death of his brother Peter. Peter left no will, but it is probable that in the settlement of the estate, some of the island land came to William, or perhaps it was his by the original division under the will of his father. This land he must have given to his eldest son William, during his own life time, as he leaves him none in his will. Certain it is that his eldest son William owned 500 acres of the island or near it in 1733 [see the will of William Montague 3170]. He had evidently provided for his eldest son William before the making of the will, as he will itself is in favor of the youngest son Thomas. The wording of the will of Peter No. 1, renders it certain that William was not married at that time [1659]. No record has been found of the date of his marriage or name of his wife, who died before him as she is not mentioned in his will.

William Montague, Jr., son of William Montague, Sr. [6], b. about 1673.

The loss of records in both Lancaster and Middlesex envelops his childhood and youth in obscurity. The first record there is of him appears in Essex Co., where he is called William, Jr., son of William, Sr., of Middlesex under date of 1699 at which time he was married and his father was quite aged living near Montague island as can be seen in his father’s record. The following records, all from Essex and Lancaster, show that from 1699 to the time of his death in 1733 his home was in Essex. The Essex court record of June 20, 1699, is: “ordered that the suit of Wm. Montague and Elizabeth his wife plaintiffs and Henry Webb and Katherine his wife, be dismissed for want of prosecution.” The Va. Land office, book 424 under date of May 24, 1701 grants him 250 acres of land in Essex. Feb. 10, 1703, he sold to his cousin William Montague, son of his uncle Peter Montague, 100 acres of land for 30 L Sterling Essex records.

The following is from the records of Lancaster:

A marriage bond Oct. 16, 1727, William Montague and Hannah all. William Montague was living in Essex Co. and was under age certificate from his father William Montague was filed with marriage bond.”

He m., before 1699, Elizabeth, dau. of ——. If they had other children besides the one son William, all record of them is lost and they are supposed to have died in infancy or youth. Certainly none of the other Montague names that are on the records preserved from that time, could have been his children. His wife died before him, so she is not mentioned in his will. A copy of his will is given below.

THE WILL OF WILLIAM MONTAGUE [3170].

In the name of God amen. I William Montague Senior* of South Farnum

*He signs his name as William, Sr., this is correct. He is named on records of 1699 as William, Jr., son of William, Sr., of Middlesex. But in 1733 he was William, Sr., and his son William, Jr.
parish in Essex County being very weak but in perfect memory, thanks be to God for it, have thought fit to make this my last will and testament, revoking and making void all other wills by me heretofore made. First and principally I recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God hoping for salvation through the merits of my blessed saviour and redeemer Christ Jesus; and as to my temporall estate after the due payment of all my just debts, legacies, and funeral expenses; I dispose thereof in manner and form as followeth. Imprimis I give and bequeath to my beloved son William Moun tague five hundred acres of land in Middlesex County at the place called Mountagues Island, to him and his heirs.

Item. I lend to my beloved son William Mountague my plantation whereon I now live and the land thereto adjoining during his natural life, and after his decease I give it to my grandson William Mountague he being the eldest son of my son William Mountague: to him and his heirs forever lawfully begotten, and in case he should die without such heir lawfully begotten then my will is that the said land shall return to my son William Mountague to him and his disposal.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son William Mountague one negro man called Sam, one negro man called Will, one negro man called Degoe, one negro man called Peter, one negro woman called Jenney.

Item. I give to my grandson William Mountague four hundred acres of land which I have at the Dragon* to him and his heirs lawfully begotten and in case he should die without such heir lawfully begotten then my will is that the said land shall return to my son William Mountague to him and his disposal.

Item. I give and bequeath to my grandson William Mountague one negro girl called Nanny, one negro boy called Jimmy, one negro boy called Sampson, one negro boy called Harry, one negro boy called George, with all the stock belonging to the plantation, and in case my grandson William Mountague should die without heirs lawfully begotten, then the said negroes to return to my son William Mountague to dispose of them as he may see fit.

Item. I give to my grandson Thomas Mountague one hundred acres of land, being more or less, adjoining to my land which I have on the Dragon, lying on the lower side of a tract of land which belongeth to my son William Mountague, next to the main road, to him and his heirs lawfully begotten, and for want of such heirs to return to my son William Mountague and to his disposal.

Item. I give and bequeath to my grandson Thomas Mountague one negro girl called Frank, one negro girl called Clorinda, one negro girl called Lucy, one negro girl called Hannah, one negro boy called Mintus.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son William Mountague one negro woman called Judy and my desire is that the increase of the two negro women which I have given to my son William Mountague should be equally divided between my two aforesaid grand children William and Thomas Mountague as before mentioned.

Item. I leave to my beloved son William Mountague all the stock which is on the plantation whereon I now live and all the Tobacco and corn that I have on all my plantations and one boat.

Item. I give to my beloved son one feather bed and new suit of Curtains and Vallians head cloth and teaster and a new quilt.

Item. I give to my grandson William Mountague two feather beds, one Rug, a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, two pillows, Curtains and vallians, with all my pewther and Iron pots and pot-racks.

*Dragon. Oldmixons Hist. Brit. Empire in America, London, 1741, Vol. 1, p. 411. SAYS. "The Dragon was a great swamp or bog lying partly in Middlesex and partly in Essex, nearly sixty miles long, overrun with briars, thorns and wild beasts."
BRANCH OF HIS SON WILLIAM.

I Item. I give to my grandson Thomas Mountague one feather bed, one mattress, one blanket, and one pair of sheets.

II Item. I give to my beloved son William Mountague all the remainder of my household furniture and furthermore I constitute and appoint my beloved son William Mountague whole and sole executor of this my last will and testament for the true performance thereof. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this thirty-first day of March one thousand seven hundred thirty three and three.

Thomas Mountague, Sr., son of William [6], b. about 1675 in the Co. of Lancaster, or in Middlesex, Va. He was named Thomas Junior on the records to distinguish him from the son of his cousin, who was known as Thomas Junior. [See No. 12.]

He removed to Essex Co. and probably lived near his brother, where he remained until his death. He m., before 1702, Katharine Young*, probably a widow with two small children. The records of Essex Co. have a deed of gift for land, recorded June 10, 1706 from his father (Wm., Sr.) to Thomas Mountague and his wife Katharine.

* The name Young has its origin in the youth of the first bearer of the name when it was first used. "Le Jeune" was one of the most common of French family names. The arms of Young of Staffordshire were, "Azure, a buck's head couped ar. attired or. between two annulets in bend, sinister of the last." There were thirty coats granted. Richard Young, age 31, came to Va. from London in ship "America," June 22, 1635. Samuel Young, age 14, came in ship "Plaine Joan," May 15, 1635. Marmaduke Young, age 21, came in the "Thomas and John," in June, 1635. Francis Young, age 21, came in the "George," Aug. 21, 1635. Nathaniel Young, age 20, came in ship "Constance," Oct., 1635. "In the 9th year of the Charles I. a special commission was granted to Thomas Young, Gent., to discover, find out, and search what arts are not yet inhabited in Virginia and America and other parts thereunto adjoining," Richard Young, his wife Mrs. Young, and Jone Young are on the list of the living in Va. in 1623. On the muster roll of 1624 are the names of Richard Young, age 31, came in the "George," 1616; Joane Young, age 26, came in the "Guiste," 1618; Joane Young, age 2, born in Va.; Susan, age 12, came in the "Swan," 1624.
His will was made two days before his death from which it is inferred that he died suddenly from some acute disease. The will bears date Feb. 7, 1720, proved May 16, 1721 and mentions only his wife Katharine and William Montague the son of his brother William, and step-son William Young and step-dau. Elizabeth Young.

The vestry book of Christ church has this record: "Thomas Montague, Sr., died Feb. 9, and was buried Feb. 14, 1720." From the lapse of time between his death and his burial it is thought that his remains may have been brought to Middlesex, to be laid by the side of his father in the family burial place. He left his estate to William [3172] the son of his brother William Montague. His wife lived but two months after he was buried. She d. April 19, and was buried April 21, 1720*.

*Ch. Ch. vestry book.

† Capt. Richard Ball [the father of Hannah] was son of William Ball, Jr. His mother was probably Miss Harris of "Bay View," Northumberland Co. William, Jr., was son of Col. William Ball, Sr., and a brother of Joseph Ball who was the father of Mary, the mother of Washington. Hence Richard Ball and Mary, the mother of George Washington were first cousins, because their fathers were brothers. Hannah [Ball] Montague and Gen. Washington were second cousins. They were both great grandchildren of Col. William Ball, Sr. It is possible that this Montague relationship with Washington gave rise to the tradition that Washington was of Montague descent. This cannot be determined until the maiden name of Mrs. Mary Johnson, who became the mother of Mary Ball, is discovered. Tradition says she was a Montague, but no record has been found to support it. Ball was a nickname of Baldwin, a west of England provincialism for bald. Baldwin was from a baptismal name. Several chief tenants in Domesday Book are called Baldwinus and Baldvinus. The arms of the Va. Balls were "Arg. a lion passant sable, on a chief of the second three mullets of the first." Crest, "Out of the clouds proper, a demi lion rampant sable, powdered with estoiles arg. holding a globe, or." Motto, "Coelumque tueri." Capt. Richard Ball was ound at the court house of Lancaster, and it states that he resided in Essex and was under age. His father was his surety and certificate that effect was filed with the marriage bond. He appears to have been an only child as far as records go. Capt. Richard Ball died Oct. 26, 1626 and had been deceased a year when this marriage took place. Hannah had received by her father's will, the "OLD Ball plantation," which probably was situated within a mile of the present court house, on the opposite side of the Heathville road from the plantation where Capt. R. Ball died. Here they probably removed soon after their marriage and thus resided in Lancaster, near Hannah's mother, Mrs. Sarah Ball. This plantation may have been a part of the original plantation of his ancestor Peter No. 1, the emigrant. At the time of his marriage he owned an estate left to him by the will of his uncle Thomas [3171]. In the summer of 1733 he came into possession by will of his father, of 500 acres of land at Montague land in Middlesex with also considerable personal property. By his will he also held for life, the plantation of his father in Essex where he was born and raised. He also owned a tract of land "on the Dragon." Thus he owned plantations in Lancaster, Essex and

The following from Va. Gen. H.—Capt. Richard Ball m., about 1700, Sarah Young, who 1742. Her will, dated Aug. 6, 1742, was proved Sept. 10, 1742. By this will she leaves one-tenth of her estate to her grandson William Montague [son of her dau. Hannah], when of age. Whence he received his title is not known, but he is named as "Capt." on the records of Lancaster Co. He d. 1726. His will was proved Feb. 3, 1726. By this will he gives "to my dau. Hannah Ball my old plantation and all the land above the road that leads from Col. William Balls mill to Cundiffs, and all the land on the east side of the said road from the corner history, that stands between the two nill paths and from thence running a straight course to Dennis Conarse's, to her and her heirs," etc. Their children were, Sarah, who m., Oct. 13, 1725. John Selden of Elizabeth City; Margaret, who m., Feb. 17, 1723-4, Capt. Wm. Ball; Hannah, who m., Oct. 16, 1727, Wm. Montague; and Esther, who m., May 10, 1728, Capt. Wm. Glasscock.—"H."
Middlesex. It is probable he resided both at his Essex homestead and his Lancaster plantation at different times. Records show that he was living in Lancaster in 1739, for he was a vestryman of St. Mary’s church in that year, and his Lancaster plantation was situated in the parish of St. Marys. On the vestry list with his name, are the names of Col. Ball, Major Ball, William Ball, Jr., Joseph Ball, Joseph Chinn, Raleigh Chinn, Thomas Chinn and John Chinn. In 1728 [probably] his first child [a son William] was born, and in 1730 or 31, his second child [also a son, Thomas] was born and in two hours after this birth his wife died [her tombstone] and he was left a widower at the early age of about 24 years. The next mention there is of him is in his father’s will in 1733, and again in 1739 and 1743 as vestryman of the Lancaster church. His wife Hannah was buried on the plantation of her mother Mrs. Sarah Ball and by the side of her father, Capt. Richard Ball. Her tombstone lies on the ground there at this date [1894] broken into fragments and the piece bearing the dates is missing. There is no record of him after 1743. It is not known if he married again. No record of his death, no will, nor any appraisement of estate has been found either upon Lancaster, Essex or Middlesex records. Perhaps books were carried off, from court houses during the late war, and were lost. His father’s will, renders it certain that he had two sons.

FIFTH GENERATION AND CHILDREN.

Capt. William Montague, son of William [3172], b. about 1728 in Lancaster.

He was born probably on the old Ball plantation which his mother brought to his father at the time of their marriage, and this, may have been a part of the estate of his ancestor Peter 1, the emigrant. The place is near Lancaster Court House. When he was two or three years old his mother died, and when he was about five years old his grandfather [William Montague] died leaving him a large property by his will consisting of his grandfather's plantation in Essex Co., and another plantation of 400 acres at the " Dragon " [supposed also to be in Essex], six negro servants and all the stock upon the Dragon plantation, two feather beds, one rug, a pair of blankets, sheets, two pillows, curtains and valance, all the pewter and iron pots and pot-acks. Thus he became a wealthy planter [of nearly 1000 acres] at the early age of five years. When he was 14 years old his estate was further augmented by his grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Ball, who left him one-fifth of her entire estate. At a later date he must have also received a large property by will of his father but as the records are lost, it cannot be enumerated. He also inherited property from his mother, to what extent is not known. L. records have a deed in 1749 from this William Montague to George Haile for " 12½ acres of and which the said William heired from his mother who before marriage was Hanah Ball dau. of Richard Ball." The word "heired" means inherited. Owning property both in Essex and Lancaster, he probably resided in both Co.s at different times, and was as much at home in one as in the other. His will is recorded in Lancaster, but both of his daughters at their marriage are described as "of Essex Co." His eldest son was of Lancaster and his son John was of Essex. His Essex homestead which he received from his grandfather has not been located but the compiler of this work thinks that it may have been the same that was known as "Mount Prospect" where his Capt. John Montague resided at a later date.

He m. (1), Jan. 27, 1749, Hannah Ballendine* of Lancaster [L. records] after her death he m. (2), Dec. 11, 1772, [L. records] widow Mary Lucy Smith, whose maiden name was Lucy Lee, descendants say she was a relative of Light Horse Harry Lee. Mrs. Smith at her marriage with William Montague had two daughters, namely Mildred Smith and Judith Leland. They are named in the records as the "step-children" of Wm. Montague. Mildred Smith, m., a Mr. Peachy, a lawyer of Petersburg, but is thought died childless. In the year 1750 Mr. Montague was the administrator of the estate of

Crest, "a demi-griffin, sable, wings undorsed ermineos, in the dexter claw a sword erect as in the arms."

These dates are from a memorial gold ring, which belonged to her, and is now owned by her descendant Charles C. Montague [3281]. The ring has plaited hair in front, L. M. in gold letters on hair and a glass top to hold letters and hair in place. Upon the side of the ring is engraved "L. M. ob. Mar. 30, 1806, A.E. 71 yrs." He died in Sept., 1784. His son Thomas was the executor of his estate which was situated both in Essex and in Lancaster. The names of his children as given, are from his will.

‡ Campbell. The common derivation from the Norman De-campo-Bello is probably false. The name is Gaelic, from Cam-beul [pronounced Campall] which means "Crooked mouth." The Highlanders called the clan "Clan Duine" and their chiefs have always been styled "Mac-Calean-Mohr." They were the most numerous and powerful clan in the Highlands of Scotland. The ancient arms were, "Gyrmonn of eight, or. and sable."

All of the dates are missing. The locality is described in the introduction, see "Grave of Peter 1." When Thomas was about two years old he became possessed of a large estate by the will of his grandfather William Montague in 1733 consisting of land, located at the Dragon, in Essex; Five young negro servants, and the increase of two more besides a quantity of personal estate. Thomas must have received a large share of the estate of his father by will as his father was wealthy, and his brother William already well provided for. The C. H. books however which contained such records are lost and the division of the estate between the two brothers as not been determined.

Mrs. Hannah Montague was a sister of Col. Robert Johnson*, a prominent and distinguished pioneer of Kentucky, who went from Orange Co., during the stormy period of the Revolution, [1779]. Descendants say that Mr. Montague and Col. Johnson came to Ky. together in 1779 and brought their families. A great-grand-dau. of Mr. Montague writes, that "Mr. Montague was a gentleman of large property in land and servants, belonging to one of the old time, wealthy, aristocratic families of Va." On arriving in Ky. he settled first at Bryant's Station where there was a fort. This was a frontier post, five miles north east of Lexington, and was greatly exposed to the hostilities of the Indians. It was settled in 1779 by the four Bryant brothers, from N. C. one of whom, William Bryant had married a sister of Col. Daniel Boone. Mr. Montague resided at Bryant's Station a few years and then moved to Boone Co. and bought a large tract of land and built a log house. Here he resided until his death. Sometime after his death his wife m. (2), Robert Bradley and moved to Scott Co., Ky., where she had several children, among them two sons, Stephen and Johnson Bradley, who moved from Scott to Boone Co., where they both married but died childless. The Johnson Genealogy says she left numerous children and grandchildren. Mr. Montague was buried in Boone Co., in his family grave yard. No will is recorded in Boone Co.

*The descendants of Thomas and Winifred G. Montague have not been found sufficiently to communicate with them directly. A tradition exists in a branch of Middlesex Montagues that Thomas Tarplay Montague was the son of an Englishman. No evidence is given to support it, except in the sense that before 1776 all were subjects of Great Britain. Co. records prove conclusively that he was a descendant of Peter No. 1. The middle name of Griffin in Mrs. Montague's name indicates that her mother was a Griffin, or that some one of her ancestors had married into that family. The Griffins were an old Lancaster family, and the Co. of Richmond was originally a part of Lancaster. Charles Griffin was a missionary school-teacher among the Saponi Indians in Nansemond Co. in 1728, "a man of good family, who by the innocence of his life and sweetness of his temper was well qualified for that pious undertaking." He was afterward a professor in William and Mary College. Col. Leroy Griffin was a justice for Richmond and Essex Cos. from 1686 to 1695. In 1786 Cyrus Griffin was appointed to attend the Episcopal convention held in Richmond City. In 1743 the names of Thomas Griffin and William Montague both appear on the same list at the same time, as vestrymen of Christ church, Lancaster [the church on the north bank of the river]. This church was a union of the parish of St. Marys and that of Christ church, and included the White Chapel church which was in the parish of St. Marys, all located within Lancaster, on the north bank of the river. Among the old families mentioned by Bishop Meade as living in Farnham and Lunenburg parishes, Richmond Co., from 1692 to 1776, are the names of Griffin and Tarplay. The name of Dr. Thomas Tarplay, "a well educated and highly polished man," is mentioned in connection with the Farnham church, Richmond Co. John Tarplay was foreman of grand jury for Richmond Co. in May, 1742. Travers Tarplay was one of the jurymen, 1739. [Cal. Papers, Vol. 1, p. 254.] Col. John Tarplay and Mrs. Winifred G. Montague were both present at the sale of the personal estate of Col. James Montague in 1782, probably Col. Tarplay was her father or brother.
Tarplay) and either moved to a plantation in the Co. of Richmond or else his wife moved there soon after his death. No record of his death is found but it is believed that he died soon after 1784. Frequent mention is made on court records after that date, of Mrs. Winifred G. Montague, but none of her husband. He died before 1801. Records of Lancaster have the following: "At a court of quarterly sessions held on Thursday, Aug. 19, 1801, Present James Ball, Wm. Chowning, Wm. Kirk, Wm. Yerbury and Wm. Montague. The cause tried was Mrs. Winifred G. Montague vs. John M. Smith. Wm. Montague not sitting in this case." The William Montague here mentioned was probably her husband's half brother [Capt. William 3180]. "At a monthly court held Monday, Dec. 21, 1801, present, James Ball, Wm. Chowning, Wm. Gibson and William Montague; the case called was Wm. Montague vs. Thomas T. Montague, upon a motion for the amt. of an execution. Wm. Montague did not sit in this case." The will of Mrs. Winifred Griffin Montague is found in Richmond Co., dated May 13, 1804, admitted to probate, July 7, 1806. She mentions her daughter Willamira W. Haynie, her daughter Harriet Montague and her son Thomas Tarplay Montague and appoints James Williams executor and her dau. Mrs. Haynie, executrix. She probably died in 1806.

† There are several derivations for the name of Wallace. From "Gwallog," a British name, and from "Wallis," meaning Welsh, or a native of Wales. One only is here given, "Gules, a cross masculy botonee or, voided of the field." That the name has been illustrious in the history of Scotland is as well known as that the name of Washington is in America. The progenitor of the Wallace family, Eimerus Galeus, appears among the witnesses to the charter of the Abbey of Kelso founded by David I., in 1128. He was great-great-grandfather of Adam Wallace of Ricarton, the father of 1, Richard; 2, Malcolm, who was the father of that immortal hero Sir William Wallace. Herbert Wallace, a native of Scotland, claimed lineal descent from Malcolm Wallace, brother of the Great Sir William Wallace, m. Miss [or Mrs.] Douglass, and came to Maryland. ard*, of Richmond or Spotts, she was perhaps sister of Beverley Chew Stanard and of Judge Robert Stanard of Va. court of appeals. He resided at Mount Prospect in Essex, on the Rappahannock, the house, a large building, was standing in 1891. Essex records have a deed, Sept. 18, 1797 for land from John Montague and wife Mary of Essex, to William Montague of Lancaster. Descendants say that Capt. John and his brother William were granted a large tract of land in Essex and Middlesex. He was called "English John Montague" either on account of his aristocratic ways or to distinguish him from other John Montagues living at the same time. A tradition without foundation says he was an Englishman. The will of Mary Yates dated Jan. 15, 1794 and recorded M. records, July 22, 1799, devises large property to her niece Elizabeth Stanard Montague, dau. of Catherine Yates, first wife of John Montague. The executors of Mary Yates not qualifying it was presented to court by Samuel Montague, the very month that he (Samuel) married Elizabeth Stanard Montague. Capt. Montague died and was buried at Mount Prospect, between Feb. and May, 1810. His will was dated Feb. 8, 1810, proved May 21, 1810. The children as given below are all mentioned in his will.

His name is frequently on the county court records from 1796 to 1805 as being present at court of quarterly sessions. "He was one of the sponsors, at the baptism of Henry Chinn Downman, April 9, 1797."—H. p. 126. He studied law and was admitted to the bar. He also served as a captain in the war of 1812 and was stationed on the James river below Richmond.

He m. (1), March 1, 1801, by Rev. Daniel McNaughton, rector of Christ church, Lancaster, at the residence of her father, Frances Downman, dau. of Joseph Ball Downman* and his wife Olivia Payne. She was b. Nov. 7, 1782 at Miles End, Middlesex Co., England. (She was sister of Olivia Downman, the wife of Joseph Ball of "Ditchley,"—H. p. 123.) After her death he m. (2), by Rev. John D. Blair, Sarah Minn Hughes. They were married in old St. Johns Episcopal church, situated at 25th and Broad Sts., Richmond. About this time he had removed from Lancaster to his plantation called "Paradise" in Henrico Co., three miles below Richmond where he resided until his death which occurred July 27, 1827.

She d. in Feb., 1864 in Gloucester Co., near the town of Boteourt, at "Charlestown Hope," the residence of her son Charles Wortley Montague, aged about 90 years. A remarkable incident is connected with her death. To wit, her two sons Col. Thomas Ball Montague and Major Charles Wortley Montague were both in service in the Confederate army at the time of her death. The northern army had invaded that section of Virginia, and while her body was being conveyed to the family burying ground the coffin was opened by a squad of Union soldiers for the purpose of learning whether the coffin contained ammunition or other valuable property. At least this was the only reason assigned by them. The following letters

Removed with his parents in 1779 to Ky. stopping first at Bryant’s Station at the fort near Lexington. It being at that time a wilderness and inconvenient to procure the necessaries of life, they removed to North Bend, in Boone Co., Ky. Here he resided in the house his father had built, and here his children were born. Mr. Montague studied for, and became a Baptist minister and attained high standing in his profession. He was connected with the Sand Run Baptist church, North Bend association, and stood very high in the association. The letter that is printed on page 101 of this work, written by Rev. Philip Montague, was addressed to the subject of this sketch, and had been preserved by his son Thomas during his whole life and was found among his papers, and has been since kept by his dau. Mrs. Buskirk, who kindly furnished a copy for this work. Elder Montague was sincerely beloved by the old citizens, many of whom he united in marriage. It became an old saying in those days “Oh! when I get married, I want ‘Uncle Billy Montague’ to perform the ceremony.” He m. March 24, 1800, Polly Robinson, she was b. Jan. 7, 1784. About 1833 he purchased 300 acres of land in the suburbs of Covington, Kenton Co., Ky., now known as West Covington, and moved his family there, where he resided until his death, July 12, 1842.

Willamira W. Montague, dau. of Thomas [3176], b. about 1773; m., Capt. John Haynie*. He probably d. Aug., 1796. A letter from Mrs. Winifred G. Montague to John M. Smith dated Farnham, Aug. 5, 1796, she says Capt. Haynie is to be buried on Tuesday. She speaks of his widow as "Myra" no doubt referring to her dau. Willamira. She also speaks of sending Holland to school. From the connection on the records of the names John Haynie, Capt. Holland Haynie and another Holland who was to be sent to school, it is believed that John Haynie (the husband of Willamira W. Montague) was the son or brother of Capt. Holland Haynie and that she had a son also named Holland. Effort has been made to trace this Haynie family but without success. See note at Col. James Montague [44].

Thomas Tarplay Montague, son of Thomas [3176], b. about 1777 in Lancaster Co., Va.; m., Oct. 27, 1801, Elizabeth Montague [76] dau. of Col. Philip [24]. The marriage bond on M. records bears the above date. Samuel Montague signed the bond with Thomas T. It is said that they resided in Richmond Co., where their children were born, married and lived. No trace of them can be found on the Co. records of Richmond, or Essex, or Middlesex. Effort has been made to trace their children, but without success. His wife Elizabeth Montague died before 1830. See letter of Rev. Philip Montague on p. 101, note. The family probably moved west or south and trace of them is lost.

* Haynie. On the list of the living in Va. 1623, occurs the name of John Haynie at Bucke-Row, Elizabeth City. On the muster roll of 1624 is the name of Elizabeth Haynie on the plant. of Robert Thrasher, Elizabeth City. She came in the "Abigall," in 1622. On the same plant. is the name of John Haynie, age 27, came in the "Margett and John," in 1621. Richard Haynie was Burgess in 1697 in Va.; he was married at that time. [Cal. L. records have a bill of John M. Smith against Mrs. Winifred G. Montague dated Dec. 25, 1792, “for board of your dau. Winifred £5 and cash for Harriet 12s.” A letter from Mrs. Winifred G. Montague to John M. Smith dated Farnham, Aug. 5, 1796, (Richmond Co. in 1732 was divided into two parishes Lunenburg and North Farnham, Hen. vol. 4 p. 367), she mentions her dau. “Winnie.” In another letter to the same, she speaks of “sending ‘Winnie’ down to see if she can get anything,” (collecting a debt is referred to). In all her letters to John M. Smith she signs herself “your aff. aunt,” and a letter written by John Haynie to Mrs. Winifred G. Montague, he addresses her as “dear mother.” As Winifred is not mentioned in the will of her mother in 1804, and no record of her found anywhere else, it is supposed that she died before 1804, probably unmarried. The above mentioned letters are on file at Lancaster C. H.

This William Montague's father, (Samuel) was a brother of Col. James Montague [44], the distinguished Va. magistrate. This William Montague was the founder of the settlement known as Montague Post-office in Essex Co., Va. The place received its name from him. He was a merchant, had a country store there, and in Oct., 1798 he opened a tavern perhaps the first that was established in the place, using his house for the purpose, (Co. records). There were so many "William Montagues" in Essex, Middlesex and Lancaster, that he was always mentioned, in records and deeds, as "William son of Samuel" which establishes his identity beyond any and all doubt. An agreement copied from Co. records between him and his wife Amelia on the one part, and the three dau. of his bro. Samuel (deceased) on the other part, fully identifies him. After his death his wife Amelía m. (2), Thomas Jesse, a cousin of Mrs. Lewis B. Montague.

Col. Thomas Ball Montague, son of Capt. William [3180], b. Feb. 3, 1818 at "Paradise" the plantation of his father in the Co. of Henrico, about four miles below Richmond, on the Williamsburgh road. Grad. at William and Mary college in 1836. He was mustered in Confederate service in Gloucester Co., as Captain Co. A, 34th Va. artillery, May, 1861. This company went to Gloucester Point, taking with them two cannon which belonged to the Botetourt Guards, a volunteer Co. prior to the war of which he was Capt. He served through the war. Fought in battles around Richmond, and of Seven Pines. Was afterwards stationed on John's island near Charleston, S. C. After heavy fighting, he was sent back to Va. and stationed near Petersburg in the battery of heavy artillery known as "Montague's battery." In the battle of the Crater he was severely shocked, but continued at his post by giving signs, not being able to talk. He was Col. of Montague's battery and so served until the surrender at Appomattox.

He m. (1), Miss Sarah Ann Jones, at Queen's Creek on the York river by Rev. William Servient Jones, her uncle and adopted father. 3276. John Jones, b. April 12, 1853, d. June 29, 1869, at the tender age of sixteen, from a congestive chill, after being sick only six hours. She was a most beautiful girl and a most lovable and amiable young lady. Her sudden death cast a gloom over her entire family. At one time during the late war, when the Union soldiers had surrounded her father's house, she appeared at the front door and told the officer that her father was not at home but absent in the Confederate army, and she begged him to leave them in peace. The officer immediately withdrew his men and they were not molested.

"Softly, softly returneth the ripple
To its rest on the sand of yon green-margined bay,
Sadly, sadly recedeth the ripple
To mingle again with the sea's drifting spray."

"Till the day break, and the shadows flee away."

He was mustered into Confederate service May, 1861, with rank of Captain, by forming a company of artillery, but guns being scarce, the company was made one of infantry. He soon resigned his position as Capt. and was made sergeant of the Ordnance Dept. at Gloucester Point, as aid to Col. Crump, with the rank of Major. On the day of the battle of Seven Pines he resigned the above position, and fought as an independent in his brother's [T. B. M.] company. Afterward he joined Gen. Fitzhugh Lee's cavalry and fought through many hard battles. It was his delight to lead in a charge. He was captured once, but liberated very soon, through the influence of Masonic brethren. Soon after his capture, his family were so informed by a Union officer, who was a Mason, who stated that he would soon be back home, and that they would see that the family were protected. His family was not molested. He surrendered with Gen. Robert E. Lee. Brave and good men were both these brothers and though they lost their fortunes by the war, they were never heard to murmur.

In 1869 he moved to Augusta, Woodruff Co., Arkansas. He was a graduate of William and Mary college, and a lawyer by profession. Practiced in Gloucester Co., Va., prior to the war, and in his new home, up to his death. He was a prominent and enthusiastic Mason.

* The origin of the name Hill was from a residence on a hill. Its medieval form was Hillte-Hill, “de-la-Hulle” is the same. This noble family in England, was of Norman extraction, and was anciently called De-la-Montagne, and in succeeding times Hill. They resided in counties Devon and Stafford. Among the principal ornaments of this family was Sir John Hill of “Hill-Court,” near Exeter, who was one of the Judges of the Kings Bench in 150; his relation and co-temporary, Sir Robert Hill, was a Judge in the Court of Common Pleas during the reign of Henry V. and VI. His grandson, Thomas Hill, was sheriff of London in 1474, and lord mayor in 1484. His descendant Sir Moyses Hill was distinguished Charles Wortley Montague, son of Col. Thomas B. [3205], b. March 9, 1849, in Botetourt, Gloucester Co., Va. This place is now known as Gloucester C. H. It was settled about 1700. The Masonic lodge at this place is known as Botetourt Lodge No. 7, and was organized under a dispensation from Lord John Montague of England, (probably John the 2d and last Duke of Montague). Mr. Montague attended school in Gloucester Co. The late war swept away all of his property and seriously interfered with his education. He was twice captured by Union soldiers during the war but released on account of being of tender years. He is a merchant in the city of Richmond, Va. He m., April 29, 1885, in Richmond, Lillie Mary Billups, dau. of William Avery Billups.

in the O'Neil rebellion, 1598, under the Earl of Essex to suppress it. The Hills were among the titled nobility for centuries, bearing titles, Marquis of Downshire, Earl and Viscount Hillsborough, Viscount and Baron Kilwarling, Baron of Harwich, Viscount Fairford in Gloucestershire, and Lord of Berwick. Of this family was Rowland Hill, who suffered in the cause of Charles I. The ancient arms of the Hills were, "Sable, on a fess, argent, between three leopards passant, guardant, or, as many escallop shells, gules." Their motto was "Ne tentes aut perfice," Either attempt not, or accomplish. The Hills were early in Va. On the list of inhabitants, Feb. 16, 1623, are the names of John Hill, Edward Hill, Hannah Hill, William Hill, Elizabeth Hill, Frances Hill, and Thomas Hill. On muster roll of 1624 the following are found, all at Elizabeth City. On the plantation of Rebecca Rose, widow, are Marmaduke Hill, age 11, Jane Hill, age 14, came in ship "Marygold," in May, 1669. *Caine, Cane, Cayne, Cana, or Canus. A baptismal name in the Domesday of Sussex, and as a surname is still found in that Co. [Lowers Surnames.] The ancient arms of the family were "Azure, an eagle displayed, argent." The following from Mrs. Caine [3376]. The name has been spelled Cain, Kane, and Cahan. The Gaelic original of these forms was O'Cathain, the surname of a chief family of powerful subdivision of the Kinel Owen branch of the Northern Ul-Neill Frasach, who was the founder of the O'Cahans, who became the ruling race in the present Co. of Londonderry under the supremacy of the kindred race of O'Neill. The chief of the O'Cahans held this rank down to the plantation of Ulster under James I. of England. From this family Cornelius Caine claimed descent, who was b. in Md. removed to Va., commanded a company from Rockingham Co., 1776-81 [See Lieut. Neil Caine, Va. Hist. Mag. pp. 499-501.] He was of fine stature, six feet two inches, fair hair, dark blue eyes; m., Aug. 19, 1790, by Rev. Archibald Scott of Presbyterian church of which he was a member, Sarah Hyatt, of the Hyatt family of Md. She d. 1897. Cornelius Caine d. 1812. from disease contracted during the revolution. John Caine, second son of above, b. 1793, was in war 1812, wounded in battle of New Orleans; m., March 2, 1814, Katherine Frankham, dau. of Maj. John Frankham, who was b. in England, settled in N. C., d. at Mt. Sidney, Augusta Co., Va., about 1795, age 65. John Frankham m. Alsie Eleanor Muhlenburg. She was b. in Reading, Pa., and d. soon after her husband, age 53, buried at Mt. Sidney. The second child of above John and Katherine [Frankham] Caine was John Strange Caine [3317].
and Matthews Counties, and later a preparatory school in Albemarle Co. Afterward attended the University of Va. and Richmond college, being a B. C. L. of the latter institution. He was licensed to practice law in Jan., 1888, at the early age of 21 years and began the practice of his profession in Richmond, Va. In 1891 he formed a partnership with Hon. James Lyons, the firm being Lyons & Montague. Since that time he has taken Marion L. Dawson into partnership, the present firm being Montague & Dawson. Mr. Montague is a young gentleman of great promise and ability, and a rising star in the profession which he has chosen; m., June 26, 1894 in the Chapel of Richmond college by Rev. Prof. Edmund Harrison of Richmond college, Miss Mary Meade Winston, dau. of Prof. Charles H. Winston of the chair of Physics and Astronomy in Richmond college. Her mother is Mrs. Nannie Steger Winston. Mrs. Montague has been distinguished for high scholarship. Several years ago, after graduating elsewhere, she attended her father's classes in physics at the college and passed all the examinations given to other members of the classes, receiving almost perfect marks, since then she has aided her father in his physical and astronomical work, exhibiting great mathematical and scientific ability. She has also done some literary work, both in poetry and prose. Her style as a writer is marked by the same simple ease and grace which characterize her in the household and in the social circle.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES OF FAMILIES BY NAME OF MONTAGUE WHO HAVE NOT BEEN TRACED TO PETER MONTAGUE No. 1.

Stephen Mountague. The records of Charles County, Maryland, have a deed dated 1667 for 200 acres of land sold by John Dobson to Stephen Montague. The early archives of the colony of Maryland state that one of the delegates from Charles Co. to the Colonial General Assembly of 1669 was Mr. Stephen Mountague. In the journal of later proceedings the name "Mr. Mountague" is twice mentioned. The Colonial Council of Maryland on May 15, 1662, ordered 50 pounds of tobacco paid to Mr. Mountague "for the aid which he rendered in seizing and securing the Barcke expedition of Piscataway in New England, for a supposed violation of the act for navigation and increase of shipping." No record has been found connecting this Stephen Montague with Peter Montague or his family in England or America. No records exist that Stephen ever married or left children or descendants in Maryland or elsewhere. The name "Stephen" does not occur on the Boveney or Dorney pedigree of Montague, nor has it been found in any of the various Montagu pedigrees connected with the English peerage, and we must conclude that he belonged to a family unknown to us. His will has been preserved among colonial records at Annapolis, Md. It bears date June 21, 1672, proved Oct. 4, 1672, signed Stephen Mountague, witnessed by Nicholas Solby and John Hanson; he wills that his 300 acres of land at Gingoamuxon, also all his goods, cattle and chattels be sold to pay his debts. He gives to Mary Emanson dau. of Nicholas and Elizabeth Emanson one hundred acres, lately surveyed for him by Richard Edelen, and situated at Mata Woman joining upon a tract of land called Howland. He gives all of the remainder of his property to George Godfrey whom he makes his sole executor and general heir. Robert Ridgeley was the clerk of the court and Benj. Rozer, deputy.

Charles Montague, son of Hugh [3395], b. Sept. 25, 1800, in County Tyrone, Ireland. During the struggle between Charles I, and Parliament, his ancestors adhered to the Catholic church and the house of Stuart, and were ruined by Cromwell, their lands taken from them, and bestowed upon English and Scotch adventurers. The family was to a great extent scattered. Those that remained in Ulster, became tenants upon land that they formerly owned. Upon one of these farms Charles was born. He was educated for a surveyor, and at the age of 22 left Ireland for America. He landed in Boston, from whence he went to Wilmington, N. C., and commenced teaching school. He soon after began surveying.

About 1833, he m., in New Hanover Co., N. C., Sarah Ann Newton, whose father was an Englishman, but whose mother was a Bordeaux descended from one of the Huguenot families, that after the edict of Nantes had been repealed, emigrated from France to the Carolinas. He resided for many years on his plantation on the Cape Fear river in Cumberland Co., N. C., at which place most of his children were born. In 1855 he removed to Columbia, S. C. In 1858 he purchased a stock ranch in Bandera, Texas, where he removed after the close of the late war and resumed surveying. His wife d. in 1862. He d. June 14, 1889.

Educated at Spring Hill college near Mobile, Ala. Removed in 1859 to his father's ranch in Bandera Co., Texas, which was then a small frontier settlement subject to Indian raids. In July, 1861, he enlisted in Co. B, 2d Texas mounted riflemen, and served in that regiment until August, 1862, when at the reorganization of the command, being under age he received his discharge. He then crossed the Mississippi at Vicksburg and returned to S. C. He joined Co. C, 6th S. C. Cavalry, afterward in M. C. Butler's brigade, Hampton's division of Stuart's cavalry, army of Northern Virginia. He remained in this Co. until April 27, 1865, the surrender by Gen. J. E. Johnston in N. C. It is worthy of record that while he was in the army nearly four years, he was never absent a single day, from his command, without leave. For 18 months after the war he was engaged in a store in Columbia, S. C., he then went to New York, where he became commercial salesman for the firm of Early & Lane. He remained with them nearly two years, when owing to ill health he returned to Texas. In 1872 he was elected Co. and District Clerk for Bandera Co. and has been re-elected every term since. He married Sept. 25, 1871, Laura Lytte in Medina Co., Tex. Resides in Bandera, Tex.
