DR. R. STANSBURY SUTTON, Pittsburgh, was born at Indiana, Pa., July 8, 1841. His father, James Sutton, was one of the most prominent business-men in that place, engaging in the manufacture of paper, and being interested in mercantile and banking enterprises. Dr. Sutton was the daughter of Dr. Stansbury, a surgeon on duty under Gen. William Henry Harrison at the siege of Fort Meigs. She was educated at Steubenville Seminary, Ohio, and was engaged in teaching at the time of her marriage. Dr. Sutton received his academic education at the excellent school then presided over by the present Judge Silas M. Clark, of Pennsylvania, and at the Tuscarora Academy in Juniata county, Pa., and entered the freshman class of Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, in 1859. He was graduated in 1862, and at once entered upon the study of medicine, as the private pupil of Dr. D. Hayes Agnew, of Philadelphia. He also attended lectures at the University of Pennsylvania, and was graduated from that institution with the degree of doctor of medicine in 1865. From that year until the fall of 1866 he was resident physician of Blockley hospital, and a private teacher of anatomy in Philadelphia. In November, 1866, he located in practice at Pittsburgh, and continued there until 1881, when he went to Europe, remaining nearly two years, pursuing special studies in Vienna, Berlin, Edinburgh and London. Upon his return he resumed his practice in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, where he is recognized as a leading practitioner. He pays special attention to the building up of invalid women by medical and surgical treatment, and during the past five years has maintained his own private hospital in Allegheny, where he is achieving most excellent results. In 1879 Dr. Sutton was appointed a lecturer on the diseases of women in Rush Medical College, Chicago, and delivered two courses of lecturers in 1880 and 1881, resigning to go abroad. In 1880 he was elected to the chair of operative surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, but declined. In 1884, and again in 1888, he was elected to the chair of diseases of women in the medical department of Wooster (Ohio) University, but declined each time. Upon the organization of Pittsburgh Medical College, he was offered the chair of diseases of women, but also declined that honor. Dr. Sutton received the degree of LL. D. from Wooster University in 1885. He has been a contributor to various medical journals, and more than a dozen books pertaining to the diseases of women. He was for many years a member of the Allegheny County Medical society, and of the state and national societies, serving as president of the American Academy of Medicine in 1887. He is an honorary member of the medical societies of Ohio and California; is a fellow of the American Gynecological society and British Gynecological society; member of the British Medical association; fellow-of the New York Medico-Legal society; associate-fellow of the Philadelphia Obstetrical society; founder of the Pittsburgh Obstetrical and Gynecological society, and is its president (1889).

Dr. Sutton's career in his profession has proven him to be possessed of executive ability above the average, as well as of surgical skill of the first order. His private hospital is a monument to both. On the one hand its government is carried on with military precision, while on the other hand its statistics stand unchallenged, being in this particular line of work equal to those of any other institution in this country. In the first five years of its existence it passed through a struggle only to be expected in a center where it was an innovation on all former precedent. But six years of work have proven that through this institution over five hundred years have been added to human life in tumor operations alone, and the mortality in those operations in this institution is the lowest that has ever been obtained in this community, and promises to be still lower. Singular as it may seem, it is Dr. Sutton's personal testimony that his institution owes its early patronage to other counties and other states. During his earlier efforts to extend his services as an operator to poor women, he was aided by Henry Philps, Jr., and John Walker, who frequently sent money to pay for the care and nursing of these women. In his specialty Dr. Sutton is accounted a pioneer in this community, and during the last five years his efforts have stimulated a number of young practitioners to qualify themselves for future usefulness in this branch. This has been one of the results of the founding of the obstetrical society and his private hospital, and there is reason to hope that it will not be long before a woman's hospital will be another outcome of his labors, and thus give him and others an institution in which to do their charity work.

Dr. Sutton was married, in 1867, to Josephine, daughter of Hon. James McCullough, of Cannonsburg, and they have two children: Stansbury, a student in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston, and Miss Eliza.
SAMUEL C. GRIER was born March 10, 1851, in Allegheny City, of Irish parentage, and was educated in the public schools of his native city. At the age of eleven he became an errand-boy in a store and then a clerk in a coal-office. At the age of eighteen he became a coal dealer on his own account, and continued in that business during ten years. In 1879 he was elected assessor of water-rents in the city of Allegheny. In 1885 he resigned this office to accept a position in the office of the clerk of courts in Allegheny county. In August, 1887, he was elected collector of delinquent taxes in the city of Allegheny, which office he still holds.

LEWIS PETERSON, Jr., retired, Allegheny, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 6, 1822. His father, Lewis Peterson, Sr., was born in Loudoun county, Va., in 1790, and quite early in life removed to Philadelphia, Pa., where he worked in a silk-store. In 1811 he came to Pittsburgh in the interest of the Pittsburgh Engine company, to manage their business here. In 1812 he formed a partnership with George P. Miltenburger, in the tin and copper business, but in a short time he bought Mr. Miltenburger's interest, and in 1822 took his brother, Peter Peterson, into partnership, the firm name being L. & P. Peterson. During this period Lewis Peterson, Sr., and George P. Miltenburger built the first double-decked steamboat ever floated on the river, and Mr. Peterson commanded her on her first trip to New Orleans. Freight at that time being scarce, he purchased five hundred barrels of flour at about one dollar per barrel, shipped it to New Orleans on his first trip, and sold it at a fair profit. He was afterward associated with Mr. McNickle in the manufacture of machinery for making cotton and woolen goods; was also with Robert Barkley in the manufacture of lead pipe under the old process. They made the first lead pipe ever manufactured west of the mountains. After the dissolution of the firm of Peterson & McNickle, in 1840, Mr. Peterson went into cotton-spinning and the manufacture of cotton-bating, candle-wick, etc. This establishment was destroyed by the great fire in Pittsburgh in 1845, and Mr. Peterson then, owning a farm near Tarentum, this county, commenced the manufacture of salt. It was upon this farm that oil was first discovered in the county, by Thomas M. Kier, who had obtained permission to drill a well on the premises. In this way Mr. Peterson became interested in oil as well as salt.

Lewis Peterson, Jr.'s, life, like his father's, has been one of great activity and usefulness. For many years he has been in the manufacture of salt, and in the oil business. After the war he built the Rose Dale foundry, and followed the iron industry, which he disposed of in 1878 to William H. Irwin, retiring from active business life. He was several years a member of the city council, and three years mayor of Allegheny City. From May, 1880, to May, 1886, he was a member of the state board of charities. In a historical sketch of the Allegheny General hospital we find the following: "On Dec. 15, 1881, a number of citizens of Allegheny met at the home of Mayor Peterson to consider the propriety of establishing a hospital in Allegheny City." Further along in the same sketch is the following: "Hon L. Peterson, Jr., a member of the state board of charities, without any official connection with the management, or compensation, has voluntarily rendered valuable service in the work of improving the building and grounds." Mr. Peterson is held in very high esteem by the citizens of Allegheny. Lewis Peterson, Sr., died in 1885, aged ninety-four years.

HERMAN HENRY NIEMANN, merchant-tailor, Pittsburgh, son of Rudolph and Jane (Hempes) Niemann, was born in the province of Osnabrück, Hanover, Prussia, Feb. 24, 1832. When Herman H. was eight years old his father died, and six years later his mother emigrated with her family to America, locating in Pittsburgh. Herman H. is the fourth in the family of six, and is the eldest now living. He was early apprenticed to a tailor, and in 1854 he opened a tailor-shop on Smithfield street, near his present location, where he has been for the last twelve years. Mr. Niemann was one of the original stockholders in the German National Bank, and has been thirteen years a director; he is also president of the Fifth Avenue Bank, and vice-president of the German-American Insurance company. He has served three terms, and is now a member of the common council of Pittsburgh. He is identified with the First German Lutheran Church of Pittsburgh, and is a republican. In 1861 Mr. Niemann married Martha, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Horing) Flowers, of Allegheny county, Pa., descendants of early German families. Adolphus Edward, eldest child of Mr. Niemann, is employed in the Manufacturers' Natural Gas company, and the other, Charles Franklin, is a jeweler.

MARTIN LAPPE, tanner, Allegheny, a son of John and Elizabeth Lappe, was born in Germany, Jan. 13, 1819, and came to America in 1840 with his parents, who located in Allegheny City, and afterward, in 1843, moved to where they now reside. They were blessed with a family of seven children: John C., Martin, Margaret (wife of Fred Gerwig), Elizabeth (wife of Charles Kiefer), Catherine (wife of Fred Bixler), Eleanor (wife of Henry Gerwig) and Mary (wife of Adam Weise). The father died Sept. 18, 1858, aged seventy years; the mother died April 21, 1859, aged seventy years. Both are buried in the U. P. Church. Martin Lappe was married, June 16, 1859, to Elizabeth, daughter of John P. and Elizabeth Hax, of Baltimore, and by this marriage there are five children: George J., Charles H., Alfred A., Norma B. and Edward W. Mr. Lappe learned the tanner's trade with his father, and in 1852 became a partner in the business. After the decease of his father he took his brother-in-law, Adam Weise, into partnership with him, and he remained a member of the firm eleven years. Since then his sons, George J. and Charles H., have become members of the firm. Mr. Lappe is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the Presbyterian Church.
FREDERICK LOUIS GROSS, secretary of the German Insurance company of Pittsburgh, son of John V. and Wilhelmina (Kurtz) Gross, was born in Korbach, principality of Waldecker, now belonging to Prussia, Aug. 27, 1818. His grandfather and father were dyers.
John V., having retired after the death of his wife, came to the United States in 1855, and died at an advanced age, in Somerset county, Pa., in 1889. F. L. Gross was highly educated in a college, but, not inclining to study, in 1834 he entered a store, in order to acquire a commercial training. For several years he was employed in different cities in Germany as bookkeeper and traveling agent, and at Hamburg as clerk in a large factory owned by H. C. Meyer, father-in-law of Carl Scherz, afterward a noted American politcian. In the summer of 1847 Mr. Gross came to Pittsburgh. Soon after he moved to Berlin, Pa., where he kept a store for over seven years. Returning to Pittsburgh, he was employed for some time as a bookkeeper, and on the organization of the German Fire Insurance company, in 1863, he was elected secretary, a position he has since filled. He is a member of the G. E. L. Church, and has always been a democrat. In 1850 Mr. Gross married Matilda Werner, of German birth, and they have three children living: August
J., Lena L., and Matilda, wife of William A.
McClurg, of Pittsburgh; the eldest is in Iowa; the second born, Edward L., is deceased.
In 1847 Mr. Kier was induced to take to compress the life of an important person into a few pages, we have a difficult task before us. In the following short sketch we can do no more than bring out the prominent points of character of Mr. Kier.
To tell the whole would require a volume;
we essayed no more than to present the prominent traits of character; how far we have succeeded must be left to the decision of those who were his immediate companions during his lifetime.
Samuel M. Kier (deceased) was born in Indiana county, Pa. His father, Thomas Kier, of American birth, of Scotch-Irish descent, was one of the early salt-manufacturers on the Kiskiminetas river, and his son became associated with him in this industry. About 1846 Mr. Kier was annoyed by the flow of a mineral oil from their salt-wells, which accumulated on the surface of the bolling-vats. This was skimmed off and thrown in the canal. One day someone threw a litdhted match on the "scum," when at once the surface of the canal for some distance appeared on fire. Attempts were then made to utilize the oil for fuel in evaporating salt water. Mr. Kier believed that this oil possessed medicinal properties, and after some experiments in purifying it, he placed it on the market as a curative agent under the name of Kier's Petroleum or Rock Oil. It was recommended by physicians, and had an extensive sale. Mr. Kier conceived the idea that it could be utilized in other ways, and experimented for a long time in refining.
He was the first producer by distillation of the refined oil which is now so universally used. The original wrought-iron still for refining petroleum is preserved by his sons as a valuable relic. His first refinery was located at the corner of Seventh avenue and Grant street, in Pittsburgh, and the process used was substantially the same as in the present operation. Had Mr. Kier protected his invention by patents, he would have become immensely wealthy. This was not his disposition, for he was known to be generous to his own pecuniary detriment. It was not without great expense in analysis and experiments that he succeeded in introducing his "rock oil." He devoted much study and large outlays to the perfection of a refining procress to fit the oil for a lubricant and an illuminant, in which he succeeded to an extent which has not been materially improved on to this day. Mr. Kier was a man who was always willing to reach forth a helping hand to others. With his brother, James M. Kier, he explored the oil-fields of the upper Allegheny, and with other Pitts-burghers as partners made considerable money in oil-production. He was very liberal with his means in perfecting a lamp similar to those now in use for burning the refined petroleum, which he manufactured and sold under the name of carbon oil. Through his instrumentality large refineries were erected at Freedom, Beaver county, and in Pittsburgh. As we have elsewhere shown, to extend a helping hand to others, he assisted others to start a pottery-works in New Jersey, and afterward to establish a factory for the fine class of pottery or chinaware, on Fifth avenue where Forbes street now is. This establishment proved unprofitable for the reason that the city of Pittsburgh ran a street through and destroyed the plant.
He was one of the originators of the now famous Crescent Steel-works, in which he reained a silent partner until his death. He became, in early life, a member of the M. E.
Church. No man ever lived closer to the rules of that church, or had a warmer heart for its prosperity. His heart and his purse were alike open to whatever was demanded of him.
Mr. Kier was a man of sterling integrity, which was clearly evinced by the payment of debts from which he was freed by the bankrupt laws which followed the fearful panic of 1837. His honor in this rose superior to the laws which were enacted as a relief for all those who were stripped of their all in the financial tornado of that year. We need not dwell on the liberality of the subject of this brief sketch. In brief, his heart, his hand and all his possessions were freely given to churches, hospitals, or whatever tended toward the moral or physical development of the city of his adoption. Mr. Kier could have amassed great wealth, but his "inclinations did not this way tend."

He regarded wealth as the means to further and develop the great resources of the country, and no man’s foresight was more thoroughly deepened with the reality of the future. On or about the year of 1898 he established the firm of Kier, Royer & Co., in a transportation line on the Pennsylvania canal. In 1847 the name of the firm was changed to Kier & Jones, the partner being B. F. Jones, who in 1884 was the chairman of the republican national committee in that exciting canvass. The selection of Mr. Jones shows the keen foresight of Mr. Kier, as Mr. Jones was selected by James G. Blaine as his adviser and confidant. The failure to elect Mr. Blaine was in no way due to any dereliction on the part of Mr. Jones. The after events which resulted in the election of Cleveland are now well known to the country, and it is needless to comment upon them.

In 1847 Samuel M. Kier, B. F. Jones and James Buchanan began the manufacture of firebrick at Bolivar. James Buchanan is the same man who was elected president of the United States in the canvass with John C. Fremont in 1856. About the year 1873, Mr. Kier established the same business, firebrick-making, at a place called Salina, to which his three sons succeeded. Mr. Kier was the sole owner of the coalworks at Ireland’s and Logan’s Ferry, and operated the works at Sandy creek, all of which were sold to the N. Y. & C. G. C. Co.

He died in 1874, at the age of sixty-one years; his widow survived him ten years, and died at the age of sixty-five. They left three children, William L., Jasper and a daughter, Mary B. Kier. Mrs. Nancy Kier was a daughter of Jacob Eicher, son of Peter Eicher, who came from the town of York, in York county, and settled near Greensburg before the Revolution. Jacob Eicher’s wife, Nancy, was a daughter of John Smith, a brother of James Smith, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. John Smith was in captivity among the Indians for five years, and was purchased from them by a humane Frenchman.

William Ward, real-estate dealer, Pittsburgh, is a great-grandson of George Harding, a native of Bristol, England, who once owned and operated a tannery on the site now occupied by Independence hall in Philadelphia. John Ward, father of the subject of this sketch, came from County Lerry, Ireland, to Philadelphia in 1787, being then some eighteen years old. He married Elizabeth, daughter of William Harding, and came to this county in 1809, where he engaged in farming on Bower hill and Robinson’s run, and retired on account of ill health, dying in Washington, D. C., in about 1840. His widow returned to Pittsburgh, where she passed away at the home of her son in 1875.

William Ward is the second of eight children, and was born in Philadelphia, Sept. 6, 1867. He remained on the farm till 1881, when he married Mary McCoy, a native of this county, and moved to Pittsburgh, where he took employment in a shipyard and became a competent shipwright. He formed a partnership with John Speer, and the firm of Speer & Ward built or purchased many of the steamers that plied the Allegheny and Ohio; among them was the Newcastle, the first to successfully navigate the Allegheny river, which they launched in 1896. Then followed the Forrest, Pauline, Avilene, Minstrel, Ohio Mail, Orphan Boy, Warren, Two-Pollys, etc. Captain Ward retired from the river in 1854, and has since given attention exclusively to his real-estate investments, which have been large and successful. Besides his large interests in lands and houses in Pittsburgh, he owns nearly 40,000 acres of land in Marquette county, Mich., on which is located very valuable gold mineral, and including the town of Clarksburg, with blast-furnace, mills, dwellings, etc. He also has large interests in the city of Marquette, and his estate of a million or more proves his foresight and ready business acumen.

Capt. Ward served twelve years in the city council, being eight years chairman of the street committee, and for a like period a member of the board of guardians of the poor; he was one of the delegates who organized the republican party in Pittsburgh. In religious faith he is a firm Universalist. Of his ten children, five were taken by death within a year, all having reached adult age. Their names were John, Madison, William, Blanche and Sally (Mrs. Thomas Fulton). The living all reside in Pittsburgh save the son; they are Louise (Mrs. George J. Land, and son of Jasper Lawman), Mary E. (Mrs. Thomas D. Hodkinson), Matilda (wife of Capt. Isaac Whitaker). George resides at Centerville, Iowa, that town being located on his farm.

John F. Beilstein, butcher, Allegheny, a son of Philip and Catherine (Walter) Beilstein, was born in Germany in 1833, and came with his parents to America in 1858, settling in Allegheny City, where they have resided ever since. Of six children born to the parents, only three are living: John F., Theodore and George. The father died in 1870; the mother is still living, at the age of seventy-eight years. J. F. Beilstein, the subject of this sketch, was married, in 1855, to Mary, daughter of Christian Beilstein, and by this union there were twelve children, seven now living: Sophia (wife of George J. Vogel), Charles Emma (wife of N. A. Voeghly), Edward, Frederick, Mamie and Bertha. Mr. Beilstein learned the butchering business for himself, and by close application, economy and industry has achieved success. He is a member of the Reserve Township Benefit association and the Butchers' Protective association of Allegheny county, of which he has been president since May, 1888; he is also a member of the Masonic fraternity, in which he has been advanced to the lodge of perfection, chapter and consistory.

David Kennedy McGunnegle was born July 3, 1849, at McKee's Rocks, a grandson of the late Alexander McKee, and a son of James McGunnegle. He was reared on a farm, educated in the public schools and at the Western University. He became an assistant clerk of the courts in Allegheny county in 1869, and was elected clerk of the courts, first in 1884, and again in 1887.

Samuel McKown (deceased) was born in Allegheny county April 1, 1813, the eldest son of Samuel McKown. He was born and reared on a farm, the pursuits of which he has followed all his life. He was married in 1853 to Esther Work, daughter of John Work, and by her has two sons: John W. and Samuel A. His second marriage occurred in 1872 with Martha, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth (Hanna) Alexander, and one child, Mary S., was born to this union. Mr. McKown died Dec. 27, 1888, of pneumonia and heart failure, after one week's illness. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church of Bridgeville, and in politics was a democrat.

John McKown, farmer, postoffice Bridgeville, was born in Collier township in 1817. His ancestors originally came from Wales, his grandfather settling in this county and purchasing a large tract of land. Samuel, father of John, was the second son born to his parents, and married Margaret Alexander, who bore him nine children all of whom are now living. Samuel died in 1870, aged eighty-four years; his wife died in 1851, aged sixty years. He was a miller by trade, and owned in connection with his farm a gristmill. John McKown was educated at the common schools. In 1871 he married Charlotte Victoria, daughter of George and Elizabeth Bryant, and three children have blessed their union: William Goodwin, Anna Elizabeth and George Bryant C. Mr. McKown purchased his farm, consisting of 180 acres, in 1842, which now contains fifty-six acres. Politically he is a democrat.

Byron Westley King, professor of elocution, Pittsburgh, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., a son of David Jacob and Mary Ann (Simpson) King. David King was a son of John and Elizabeth (Hartzell) King, and John King was son of Moses and Sarah King. Mrs. Mary Ann King was daughter of William and Phebe (Hutchison) Simpson.

The subject of this memoir attended the common schools until thirteen years of age, when he entered Mt. Pleasant College, graduating from there in 1877, and receiving the honors of the class. During the years prior to graduating he taught school a number of terms. After graduating he was professor of mathematics at Jefferson College, Washington county, part of a year, and then taught elocution in Washington College, and was professor of Greek and Latin one year at Mt. Pleasant Classical Institute. He then traveled for four years, teaching in sixty different schools in the central states. He perfected his education in elocution under private teachers at Boston, New York and Philadelphia. In the spring of 1883 he started his present school of elocution in connection with Curry University. During his early school days he stuttered so badly that he was obliged to write all his lessons, and a special course of study for his defective speech has developed into his wonderful success as an elocutionist and teacher. His school, therefore, is a "special course" for the cure of stammering and all defects of speech, as well as that of high dramatic culture, fencing and the higher grades of elocutionary work. From a small beginning his school has grown until he has more applications for admission than he can accommodate. Prof. King married, Nov. 29, 1888, Miss Inez E., daughter of Chester A. and Olive Todd, of Chautauqua county, N. Y., and they have one child, Olive May. Mrs. King is also highly educated in elocution and dramatic work; she is a member of the M. E. Church.

Mr. King's brother, David Bennett King, now a prominent attorney of New York City, was sent to Ireland by the Philadelphia Press to write up the Irish question. He also wrote a book upon Ireland which was published by Scribner & Co.; also a series of articles published by the same house, and he was for seventeen years a professor of Lafayette College. Prof. B. W. King's book on elocution, "Practice of Speech," published in 1888, has received many favorable comments from the press, and has met with a rapid sale.

Joseph Thompson Johnston, secretary of the Cash Insurance company, Pittsburgh, was born in South Fayette township, this county, March 6, 1830. His grandparents, Joseph and Mary (Hill) Johnston, settled in Fayette in 1790, the site being selected on account of a fine spring, and Joseph here carried on a distillery in connection with farming. He died there in 1835; his widow in 1840. They were of Irish birth and Scotch extraction. Their son Adam, the second of eight children, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1785, and grew up in Fayette. In December, 1818, he married Sarah, daughter of Daniel and Rachel Thompson. Daniel Thompson, who was a native of Scotland, served in Washington's army during the Revolution; settled in Washington county at an early day, on the farm where McDonald's Station now is, and died there in 1832; his wife was born in Chester county, Pa. Adam Johnston gave up farming, and kept a store at Noblestown several years; he died in Fayette in 1833, his widow in 1874. She was the mother of the late John H., Daniel T. (in Allegheny), Rachel Ann (widow of John DeHaven, in Somerville, Pa.). John Milton and Mary (deceased) and William G. (in Allegheny).

The subject of this memoir was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, and when twelve years old entered a dry-goods store, continuing in that line of business twelve years.

For many years he was clerk on vessels on the Ohio and Mississippi, and afterward commanded the Saranac, George Albree and others. For a time he engaged in manufacturing carriages with his brother; was elected secretary of the Cash Insurance company in 1865, and assumed charge of the office in 1866. He is also agent for James O'Connor, of New York. Mr. Johnston is unmarried; he attends the M. E. Church, and is a republican.

Capt. Hance M. Dunlap, retired, Allegheny, is a son of Hance and Ellen J. (McCllland) Dunlap, and was born in Ireland March 3, 1817. He came with his parents to America in 1818, and they first located in Washington county, Pa., where they remained four years; then moved to this county and settled in Allegheny City, where they resided until their decease; the father died in 1832, at the age of forty-four years; the mother in 1839, at the age of forty-nine years; they were members of the old Associate (now the U. P.) Church. Of their twelve children, H. M., the subject of this sketch, is the only one living. He was married, Dec. 5, 1859, to Sarah A., daughter of Richard and Martha Short, of Butler county, Pa., and by this union there were twelve children, of whom those living are: Thomas M., James M., Ellen J. (wife of George W. Snaman), Annetta (wife of John A. Gilland), Sarah A., Hince M., Jr., Kitty (wife of William C. Voight), and Harry G.; those deceased arc Martha J., Mary A., William and Robert C.

Mr. Dunlap's life has been spent chiefly in manufactory, steamboating, and in the business of steamboating, and was for some fifteen years a builder, owner and captain of steamboats. He has always been an earnest supporter of public schools; has served twenty-seven years on the Allegheny City school board, and five years as member of the common council. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and was one of its trustees for many years.

Capt. Dunlap is now retired from active life, enjoying the comforts of his home in Allegheny, surrounded by his devoted family.

Charles F. Stifel, tanner, Allegheny, was born in Wheeling, W. Va., in 1847, a son of J. Louis and Barbara Stifel, former of whom came from Germany in 1832, and located in Wheeling, where he was married in 1855 to Barbara Becht. To them were born eleven children, of whom the oldest is Louis C., William F., George E., Albert F., Emelie M. (Mrs. F. Linke), Matildas M. (Mrs. L. F. Demmier) and Charles F. The mother died in 1874, aged sixty-five years, the father in 1881, aged seventy-four years; they were members of the Lutheran Church. Charles F. Stifel came to Allegheny county in 1871.

He was married May 1, 1879, to Virginia S., daughter of Frederick and Caroline Hanny, of this county, and to them have been born three children: Walter H., Herbert L. and Clarence F. Mr. Stifel learned the tanning business in Virginia, and in 1872 established the firm of Kieler, Stifel & Co. (now Kieler & Stifel), tanners, in Allegheny City. This large establishment and their immense business bear marked evidence of the success and ability of the firm. Mr. Stifel is an elder in the Lutheran Church, and a teacher in the Sabbath-school. He is a director in the National Insurance company, of Allegheny; he is a republican.

John Clark Jamison, real-estate dealer, of the firm of Jamison & Dickie, Pittsburgh, was born in Conemaugh township, Indiana county, Pa., Jan. 9, 1840. Samuel Shryock Jamison, his father, was born in Martinsburg (now West Virginia), in September, 1797, and was a son of John Jamison, who came from Ireland in 1771. His mother was a daughter of John Shryock, of German parentage. When six weeks old S. S. Jamison was carried on horseback across the mountains to Greensburg. He was reared in Conemaugh, and became a prominent citizen of Indiana county. In 1853 he was elected to the state senate, and served with distinction. For six years he was brigade inspector of militia, with rank of major. He built a portion of the Pennsylvania canal, and was nine years supervisor of the western division. July 1, 1823, he married Sarah Ann Bell, also a native of Indiana county, Pa. John C., their son, was educated at Saltsburg Academy, and graduated at Duff's Commercial College in 1859. In the latter year he went to Des Moines, Iowa, where he engaged in teaching till the outbreak of the civil war. On the 4th of July, 1861, he joined the 4th Iowa Infantry, and served in southwestern Missouri under Fremont, Curtis and Siegel. For two years he was in the 15th U. S. inf. under Sherman, and took part in the battle of Pea Ridge, siege of Vicksburg and Sherman's march to the sea. His right arm was disabled by a gunshot, and he left the service at the expiration of his three years' enlistment. The following testimonial, signed by all the officers of the regiment and endorsed by Gen. Sherman, tells the story of his military service:

Camp 4th Iowa Infantry, Black River Bridge, near Vicksburg, Aug. 6, 1863. To his excellency Samuel J. Kirkwood, Governor of Iowa: The undersigned, commissioned officers of the 4th Iowa infantry, beg leave, respectfully, to recommend to the notice of your excellency, with a view to promotion, Private John C. Jamison, of Co. E. of said regiment. During a term of service dating with the organization of the regiment, over two years ago, he has upon all occasions proved himself a true and faithful soldier. Business ability of the first order, by causing his employment in the various offices of the regiment, where this quality was indispensable, he has operated to render it impossible for him to obtain promotion in his company. It has never prevented him, however, from shouldering his musket whenever the regiment has been called to meet the enemy. He has thus repeatedly proved himself to possess the requisites of a good officer—ability, coolness, courage and energy. The undersigned know of no instance in which,
By the force of circumstances, merit has been so signally neglected, that, if practicable, your excellency, by promoting Mr. Jamison to some position in a new regiment, may make him a just amends.

Since leaving the service Mr. Jamison has been nearly all the time in the real-estate business in Pittsburgh. He spent a winter on the island of San Domingo, where he took an active part in resenting the insult to the American flag at the consular office, Samana, which subsequently received the attention of the government and was apologized for. He also helped verify the location of the remains of Christopher Columbus at San Domingo City instead of at Havana, Cuba, as history gives it. Mr. Jamison is president of the board of trustees of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, and an active member of the G. A. R. and U. V. C. He is the only republican in his father's family. In 1867 he married Mary C. Houghton, of early New England stock, who died in 1881 leaving five children. He afterward married Sarah Ida Allen, a native of Rochester, N. Y. Following are the names of Mr. Jamison's offspring, in order of age: Hattie C., Sallie B., Wilson B., Mary C., Edgar, Pauline and Olive Elizabeth.

Andrew Purdy Thompson, Pittsburgh, was born in Hopewell township, York county, Pa., May 22, 1810, and first came to Pittsburgh in 1835. His grandfather, Archibald Thompson, a Scotch Covenanter, the ancestor of the Thompsons of York county, came from Scotland about the year 1735, and took up what was then known as the "Black run tract," in Lancaster county, near the Maryland line, now in Hopewell township, York county, which tract or farm, after the lapse of one hundred and fifty years, is still the home and in the possession of his grandson, Archibald Thompson, at this writing eighty-six years of age.

Archibald Thompson (the first) married Margaret Wallace, the daughter of Alexander Wallace, another Scotch Covenanter, who came to this country about 1730, and in whose log house "Old Guinston Church," one of the first Seceder congregations in America, was organized. Alexander, their first son, served in the revolutionary war in Capt. Maffit's company. Joseph, their second son, married Mary Purdy, daughter of Archibald Purdy, another Covenanter, from the north of Ireland, and to this couple were born ten children, the youngest of whom is the subject of this sketch.

Andrew P. Thompson spent his youth on his father's farm, with such slender opportunities of schooling as country districts afforded in the beginning of the present century. Books were not abundant, but the Bible, the Psalms (Rouse's version), the Shorter Catechism gave ample exercise for memorizing, and Pilgrim's Progress, Gospel Sonnets, Marrow of Modern Divinity and one or two others of like character in poetry and fiction comprised the library of that day.

The minister was always ready to help any boy who cared for his book, and before long we find our subject teaching school in his own county, and afterward in Newville, Cumberland county, where teaching and preparing himself, he came to Western Pennsylvania, and entered Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, teaching during his vacations. After one or two years spent at college he came to Allegheny City, where he became the principal of the Fourth ward public school, which was then in the base of a Seceder (now the Second U. P.) church. Here he began studying for the ministry, but lack of means to regularly prosecute his studies, and the necessities of his little family—he having married in the meantime—compelled him to give over this cherished hope. In 1847 he was sent by the church as a missionary to the island of Trinidad, West Indies, where he and his wife were stationed nearly three years. On their return he became the agent of the Young Men's Bible society of Allegheny county, a position he has filled almost without interruption ever since.

Originally a whig in politics, then an abolitionist, he was present in Lafayette hall at the birth of the republican party, from whose principles he never swerved except upon the candidacy of Horace Greeley for president. An United Presbyterian in faith, a prohibitionist from conviction after he has spent the last fifty years of his life in this community, respected by all men for his quiet, blameless integrity. In 1844 he married Elizabeth Donaldson, daughter of Andrew Donaldson and Jane McBurney, his wife, whose progenitors, Scotch and Scotch-Irish, first settled in Chester county, and coming west were among the early settlers of wasn't county. Jane McBurney's grandfather, John, the son of a justice of the peace in County Down, Ireland, came to this country when a young man, and, not finding employment quickly, enlisted in the British army and was present at Braddock's defeat, July 9, 1755.

Of the eight children of Andrew P. and Elizabeth (Donaldson) Thompson, seven grew to maturity; William Reed, Andrew D. (a physician, who died in Philadelphia), Joseph Alexander; James R., M. D., practicing in Pittsburgh; Jennie E. and Ella N. are unmarried; Anna M. is the wife of Otto G. Schultz, of C. J. Schultz & Sons, bridge-builders. Mrs. Thompson having died in 1872, in 1879 Mr. Thompson married Miss Lydia W. McKee, of Allegheny City. William Reed Thompson was born in Allegheny City, was taken when a child to the island of Trinidad, attended the public schools of Pittsburgh until twelve years old, was employed for five years in the U. P. board of publication under Rev. Dr. Rodgers. During this time he enlisted in the Union army, but was taken out by his father. In 1864 he entered the 100-days service in Knap's Independent Battery, and on his return was employed by Hart, Caughley & Co., bankers, where he remained for four years, meanwhile pursuing his studies and reciting after hours to Prof. Lewis Bradley, formerly in charge of the observatory. Failing to get to college, he entered the Mechanics' National Bank, where he served for fourteen years, beginning as bookkeeper and ending as president. Having bought the interest of John B. Jones, Esq., in the banking-house of Semple & Jones, which then took the name of Semple & Thompson, he resigned his position in the Mechanics' National Bank, devoting his attention to his own business. He is still a director in the Mechanics' National Bank, the treasurer of some of the most prominent charities of this city, a member of the Third Presbyterian Church, and a republican in politics. Mr. Thompson was married to Mary, daughter of William Thaw, a prominent and charitable citizen of Pittsburgh, and they have two children.

Rev. Morgan M. Sheedy, pastor of St. Mary of Mercy's Church, Pittsburgh, son of Michael and Mary (Madden) Sheedy, was born in Charleville, County Cork, Ireland, Oct. 8, 1853, being one of six brothers, three of whom are medical men. He attended the schools of his native town, and, after taking a three years' course of classical study, he entered St. Coleman's College, Fermoy, where he remained for three years, the then president of the college being the present Bishop Fitzgerald, of Ross, Ireland. From there he successfully passed a competitive examination entitling him to a free burse in Maynooth College, Dublin, entering at the beginning of the academical year of 1869-70, as senior freshman of the logic class. Here he received natural and moral philosophy for two years, and took a three years' course in divinity under learned teachers, his professors in theology being Drs. Murray and Crolly, the present Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, and Rev. Dr. Carr, now archbishop of Melbourne, Australia. Our subject graduated in 1876, and being too young for ordination accepted an appointment by the bishop of Pittsburgh to a professorship in St. Michael's Seminary, Pittsburgh. Arriving in that city, he was ordained in St. Paul's Cathedral Sept. 23, 1876. He taught theology and history until the seminary was closed, the following year. Father Sheedy was then one year past for pro temp. of St. Agnes' Church, Soho, Pittsburgh, and the following year was located at Parker City, Armstrong county, Pa., and the next two and one-half years at Altoona, Pa. March 4, 1881, he took charge of two missions, Canielton and Clinton, Beaver county, Pa., where he remained for four and one-half years. Oct. 15, 1885, he succeeded Rev. A. A. Lambing, LL. D., as pastor of St. Mary of Mercy's Church, Pittsburgh, his present charge.

While in Beaver county, and for some time thereafter, Father Sheedy was editor of the Pittsburgh Catholic, and at present is a contributor to the Catholic World, Donahoe's Magazine and other publications. He is the first vice-president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, and helped to organize and has since been one of the directors of the Columbs Club, of Pittsburgh, a society devoted to social and literary exercises.

Charles Frederick Dean, cashier Union National Bank, Pittsburgh, comes of Scotch-Irish lineage, and was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 8, 1849. His grandfather, John Dean, born in Huntingdon county, Pa., in 1778, went from Cumberland county to Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1801. His grandmother was Elizabeth, sister of Judge William Dock, of Harrisburg, and was a member of one of the earliest families of Cumberland county. John Dean built one of the first houses at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, where he died in 1855. His son, Alexander, was born in New Lisbon, Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1821. They came to Pittsburgh in 1838. He was a prominent steamboat owner and captain, but was obliged to retire from active life by a paralytic stroke in 1856; he died in 1886. He married Elizabeth Emily, daughter of William and Jerusha C. (nee McKinney) Johnston. Mrs. Elizabeth Dean's maternal grandfather, Roderick McKinney, a Scotchman, built one of the first half-dozen houses in Pittsburgh. Charles F. Dean was educated in the public schools and a private academy. On June 18, 1867, he entered the Union National Bank as discount clerk, and by gradual promotion became cashier Feb. 15, 1888. He is an elder in the Third U. P. Church of Pittsburgh, and is a republican with prohibition sympathies.

Frederick Rudolph Joachim Lorenz (deceased) was born June 10, 1798, in Dasselbruch Frersthenum. Lippe Detmold, Germany; he came to this country about the year 1809 a poor boy, and first engaged work in a sugar-house in New York city, but soon after came to Pittsburgh, and learned glass-blowing. August 16, 1831, he was married to Catharine Ihmsen, of Birmingham, this county, who was born in Frederick county, Md., Nov. 25, 1808, and to this union there were born five sons and nine daughters, three of the latter of whom died in childhood. The sons were William C., Frederick R., Moses A., Charles H. and Michael A. (all deceased). All of them were business men in Pittsburgh and vicinity. William C. married, Dec. 25, 1845, Mary E. Smith (now Mrs. William M. Grace). The daughters were Phebe (wife of Pascal P. Pratt, of Buffalo, N. Y.), Mary (wife of E. P. Beals, Buffalo, N. Y.), Annie (wife of B. F. Fox, Springfield, Ill.), Frances B. (wife of W. H. Gregg, Philadelphia, Pa.), Louisa (deceased), Sidney (deceased), and three others who died in childhood. F. R. Lorenz, the father, died Oct. 25, 1854, and his widow May 19, 1868. Mrs. Lorenz, as early as 1818, bought the O'Hara Glass-works, and some time after purchased the Edward Ensell Glass-works, at present owned by Mr. Culley; about 1838 he built the rolling-mill now owned by J. Painter & Sons, and established the firm of Lorenz & Cuddy, after which it became Lorenz, Zug, Linsey & Co. At the time of his death he was building the rolling-mill at Girty’s run. He was prominent among the projector of the Pennsylvania & Ohio railway; was for many years an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh. It is said of him that his characteristics were well expressed by the words integrity and energy. His educational advantages were excellent. Coming to America when the people of this country were just beginning to make some progress in manufacturing, and thus free themselves from the necessity of buying foreign wares, he bent all his energies in that direction, and soon became an acknowledged leader among the manufacturers of his day. Having early in life acquired a thirst for knowledge, he never relaxed his efforts for its acquisition, and in his latter years he was distinguished for his literary ability and fine conversational powers.

GEORGE A. COCHRANE, son of John and Mary (Alexander) Cochrane, was born in Franklin township, Allegheny county, Pa., Oct. 10, 1837. His father came from County Armagh, Ireland, in 1829, and settled near East Liberty, this county; his mother came from County Antrim, Ireland. They were married at East Liberty in 1835, and had ten children: Thomas (deceased in infancy), William A. (residing in Freedom, Pa.), John (living in Indiana county, Pa.), Eliza (wife of Robert Kennedy, in Pine township), Agnes (wife of Isaac Black adore, in this county), Ellen (widow of Thomas Reynolds), George A., Mary Ann (deceased wife of John Belford, of Butler county, Pa.), Fannie (wife of Henry Brant, in this county), and James H. The parents died—the mother Aug. 2, 1873, aged seventy years, the father Aug. 26, 1876, aged seventy-six years. George A. Cochrane was married Dec. 7, 1859, to Kate, daughter of James and Nancy Harkins, of Beaver county, Pa., and they have twelve children: Thomas G., James H., George A., John (deceased), William P., Louis H., Charles A. (deceased), Francis C. (deceased), Robert K., Mary A., Kate M. and an infant unnamed. Mr. Cochrane has been engaged in contracting and building in this county for over thirty years, and is regarded as an honorable and successful business-man. He is a member of the U. P. Church.

ALBERT ELLIS FROST, professor in the Western University of Pennsylvania, was born in St. Johnsbury, Vt., Aug. 9, 1831, eldest in the family of five children of Selim and Emily S. (Ellis) Frost, natives of Canada, whither their parents had immigrated from New Hampshire. The father of Albert E. Frost is deceased; the mother now dwells in St. Johnsbury. The subject of this biographical memoir was fitted for college at the academy in his native village, and was graduated from Dartmouth College with the degree of A. B. In 1872, coming to Pittsburgh within a few days after coming westward, in these years he was employed at the Allegheny observatory, and in 1875 was elected professor of physics in the Pittsburgh high-school. He filled the latter position ten years, at the end of which time he took the same chair in the Western University of Pennsylvania, which he now fills. Prof. Frost is a charter member of the Society of Engineers of Western Pennsylvania, and has been treasurer during six of the seven years of its existence. He is a member of Calvary P. E. Church, of the East End, and in politics he is independent. In July, 1882, he married Addie, daughter of Albert L. and Mary Dalbey, and they have one son, Ellis Mills.

WILLIAM PIPER DE ARMIT, president New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company, Pittsburgh, was born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., Aug. 24, 1850. His grandfather, John De Armitt, was of Pennsylvania birth, descended from the French Huguenots. He was killed by the explosion of a boiler in Wallace’s marble-yards, after having dwelt in Pittsburgh but a year or two. Alexander, son of John De Armitt, met his death while serving in the 16th P. C. (see sketch of T. B. DeArmit), having enlisted in Philadelphia. John Piper, father of Mrs. Alexander De Armitt, and of Scotch-Irish descent, born in Shippensburg, Pa., lived in Hollidaysburg, and was an extensive contractor for the transportation of mails, etc., in Western Pennsylvania. He died in 1870. One of his ancestors was wounded at the battle of Long Island, in the revolutionary war. William Piper, son of Alexander De Armitt, was reared in Hollidaysburg, and educated in the schools of that borough. When thirteen years old he entered the counting-room of the Blair Iron and Coal company, where he remained three years. He served the Pennsylvania railroad three years as assistant agent at Cresson, and for three years had charge of the “overcharge” department of the Union line in Pittsburgh. For the past seventeen years he has been associated with the New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company, beginning as bookkeeper, was thirteen years treasurer, and in 1887 became president. He is also a member of the Sterling Steel company (limited), and has stock in other institutions. He is married to Margaretta, daughter of Edward C. Dixon, of Hollidaysburg, Pa.

JOHN PEETER SCHNEIDER, president of the Birmingham Fire Insurance company, Pittsburgh, is the second of the eight children of John Adam and Elizabeth (Ziegler) Schneider, and was born at Neuengrauen, now in Prussia, Feb. 22, 1830. His grandfather, John George Schneider, and father were millwrights and millers; trades also followed by his eldest brother, Andrew. The only members of the family to come to the United States are John Peter and one brother, John Nicholas, a farmer residing near Yorkville, Ill. The subject of this memoir began to learn cabinet-making in his native land, and when seventeen years old came to Pittsburgh, where he finished the trade. For thirty years he was employed in a glass-factory as box-maker and packer. In 1864 he joined the 5th P. H. A., and served nearly a year in the defenses about Washington. He was one of the original stockholders of the Birmingham Insurance company, has been a director five years, and is now serving his third term as president. He is a member of the F. & A. M., G. A. R., A. O. U. W. and I. O. O. F. He has always been a republican, his first vote being cast for Gen. Fremont, and for two years he served in the borough council of Birmingham. He is a member of the First G. E. Church of Pittsburgh. In 1834 Mr. Schneider married Dorothea, daughter of George and Fredericka Maul, all natives of the same locality as himself, and their children are named, in order of birth, Elizabeth, Frederick, Mary (Mrs. Henry Liesfeld), Fredericka and Louis P., all living in Pittsburgh.

John Caldwell (deceased) was born at Newtownlinavady, County Londonderry, Ireland, in the spring of 1790, son of James and Sarah (Wilson) Caldwell, who were of Scotch ancestry. In 1804, his wife being deceased, James Caldwell came with his only child (the subject of this memoir) to Pittsburgh, where he engaged in the tanning business; he died within a year or two after, and the son was sent to Philadelphia, where he was apprenticed to a tanner and currier. Returning to Pittsburgh, he resumed his father's business, which he carried on till he retired, his last tannery being at the upper end of Allegheny; he also dealt in lumber. Mr. Caldwell was a stockholder in the first Allegheny bridge, and a director of the Monongahela Bridge company; he was also one of the first trustees of the Pittsburgh Gas company; and for many years was a director in the firm of Pittsburgh. In 1818 he was one of the five selectmen of the borough of Pittsburgh; was a member of the council after a city charter was secured, and was a director of the public schools of the First ward, where he lived. He was a stanch supporter of the Presbyterian Church, in politics a thorough Whig; afterward a republican.

In 1812 he married Letitia, daughter of William Anderson, who came from near Belfast, Ireland, and of their thirteen children ten reached adult age. Mary, Agnes, Kate, James and Nelly G. are deceased; Sarah Ann, William, John, Letitia (widow of James Holmes) and Charles L. are living. Of these William was born in Pittsburgh in 1824. Having finished his education at the Western University, at the age of eighteen years entered a wholesale grocery as clerk, where he remained eight years; then formed a partnership with Mr. Massey under the firm name Massey & Caldwell, ship-chandlers. Mr. Massey retiring from same after seven years. Mr. Caldwell continued in the business for ten years more. He then became president of the Monongahela Insurance company in 1867, which position he still retains. He is a director of the Bank of Pittsburgh, and has served as member of Pittsburgh common council. He is now a resident of Allegheny and attends the First Presbyterian Church.

Thomas Jefferson Stevenson, bookkeeper, Pittsburgh (see sketch of A. B. Stevenson), was born in Mifflin township, this county, in 1826. He attended the public schools in Pittsburgh, and when ten years old commenced work at grinding bark in a tanyard. In 1845 he began to learn carriage blacksmithing, but through lack of physical strength had to abandon the trade about a year after becoming a journeyman. In 1850 he entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Salt-Manufacturing company, at Natrona, as bookkeeper, a position he filled sixteen years. Removing to Pittsburgh, he took a similar position with A. M. Byers & Co., iron-manufacturers, which he still holds, having an interest in the profits. He is the principal shareholder in the glass business of Ripley & Co., and is also interested in a feed-cutter factory at Canton, Ohio. In 1854, Mr. Stevenson married Sarah Mary McKee, a native of Blairsville, Pa., of Scotch-Irish ancestry, and their children are Thomas F., a partner in the firm of Ripley & Co., of Pittsburgh; Mary Elizabeth (at home), Adaline (wife of W. F. Murdock, residing at Canton, Ohio), and William A. (at home). Mr. Stevenson is a republican.

Simon Bissell, an Englishman by birth, who came to this country in 1869, holds the most enviable position among the successful and leading musicians of the country. He comes of a musical family, several members of which are composers, and received his education in his chosen art in Norwich, England, a city widely famed for its culture of the "art divine" and its musical festivals. Mr. Bissell has filled some of the most important positions as composer, professor, and teacher of the several branches of music, his success has been evidenced by the large number of concert performers (both vocal and instrumental) who claim him as their instructor. He was for several years Director of the Conservatory of Music in connection with the Pittsburgh Female College, and succeeded in giving it the prominence it so long enjoyed; and in 1884 the educational management of the Currie University were fortunate in securing his services to organize and direct a conservatory of music which has now become widely known throughout all the central states. Of Mr. Bissell's compositions several have become deservedly popular, and manifest to a high degree not only his education but also superior talent and inspiration. Mr. Bissell was married in August, 1872, to Miss Ada L. McCabe, only daughter of Dr. John W. McCabe and granddaughter of William Mercer, Esq., one of the most prominent residents of Washington county. They have two chil-

A part from his professional work Mr.
Bissell has given much time and study to scientific subjects, especially to metallurgy, in which direction some of his discoveries have aroused a great deal of interest and speculation among metallurgists, who still hope for a successful issue to his labors.

Joseph Abel, glass-manufacturer, Pittsburgh, was born in Geisa, Saxe-Weimar, Germany, Jan. 9, 1831, and is a son of Ignatius and Josephina (Fleck) Abel. His education was completed at the College of Fulda, where he attended from 1844 to 1849. During the latter year he came to Pittsburgh, where he found employment in the drugstore of L. Wilcox, Jr. In 1854 Mr. Abel became the owner of the business. This he sold four years later, and established the drug business still carried on at the corner of Grant street and Fifth avenue, which he kept till 1880. He was one of the founders of the glass-house of Knox, Kim & Co., in 1867, and ten years later took an active part in its management. In 1876 he was made a partner, with Mr. Abel as manager, and since 1884 has been Abel, Smith & Co. Mr. Abel was one of the incorporators of the Germania Savings Bank, of which he is vice-president, and of the Allemania Insurance company, of which he is president. He was one of the organizers of the German and Third National Banks, and was many years president of the German Library association. He was also one of the organizers of the College of Pharmacy.

In religious opinions Mr. Abel is liberal and tolerant. He espoused the cause of Gen. Fremont in his presidential campaign, and has ever been an earnest republican. During the war of the rebellion Mr. Abel was active in inducing Gen. Schimmelpennig, a competent German military officer, to espouse the Union cause, and in interesting other influential German citizens. He aided in raising the 74th P. V., and in every way manifested allegiance to the country of his adoption. In 1870 Mr. Abel married Louisa, daughter of Frederic and Caroline Marchand, of Huguenot extraction. Mrs. Abel was born at Frankfort, Germany, and educated at Dieppe, France. She is the mother of two children: Hilda, aged seventeen, and William Fleming, aged sixteen. Mr. Abel's grandfather, Philip, operated a flour-, oil- and saw-mill, to which his son, Ignatius, succeeded; and John Adam, father of Joseph Fleck, kept a hotel at Geisa.

James Morton, retired, Allegheny, son of Andrew and Mary Morton, was born in Washington county, Pa., in 1822, and came with his parents to Pittsburgh in 1825. Here they resided until 1854, engaged in the lumber business from 1844. The parents had seven children, two only of whom survive, James and Nancy (widow of John Eaton). Andrew Morton died July 25, 1862, at his residence, Arch street, Allegheny, at the age of seventy-two years; his widow died July 10, 1887, at the age of eighty-eight years. They were of Scotch-Irish Presbyterian stock, and came from the north of Ireland. James Morton, the subject of this sketch, never married. He was for many years engaged with his father in the lumber business, and soon after the latter's decease, his stock of lumber being burned in Pittsburgh, he discontinued the business, and in 1849, since living a retired life at the family residence on Arch street, Allegheny, his only occupation being the care of the property of the estate.

Lawrence P. Hitchcock, retired, Allegheny, son of Dr. Aaron and Mileete (Mann) Hitchcock, was born April 8, 1811, in Burlington, Conn., and was among one of the old pioneer families of that state. Lawrence P. was twice married; first to Elizabeth Johnson, of Washington county, Pa., by which union there were two children: Ella, deceased, and Catherine, wife of J. D. Hancock, of Franklin, Pa. Mrs. Hitchcock died May 17, 1848, and in 1853 he married Sarah, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Liggett, one of the pioneer families of Allegheny county, mentioned elsewhere in this work. Mr. Hitchcock had a firm of his own, and was one of the firm of Hitchcock & McCreaey, grain-dealers of Pittsburgh. He was a very successful business-man, and is highly esteemed by all that know him. In consequence of failing health he retired from business some years since.

John P. Walker, grocer, Pittsburgh, is a native of Alsace, Germany, born at Three Fountains, Sept. 28, 1837. His father, Francis Walker, a son of Matthias Walker, a farmer, and for several years mayor of his native town, married Mary R., a daughter of Anthony Girard, a farmer. In 1842 Francis Walker immigrated with his family to America. For sixteen years he followed agricultural pursuits in Erie county, N. Y., and in 1860 came to Pittsburgh, where he died in 1872, at the age of seventy-two; his widow died in 1886, at the age of eighty-three. Of their eight children all are living except the eldest son, John P. being the fifth. In 1854 he went to learn the art of glass-blowing, and finished his apprenticeship at Pittsburgh, where he arrived in 1859, after spending two years at Wheeling, W. Va. In 1866 he became a member of the glassmaking firm of Stewart, Estep & Co., selling out seven years later. In 1874 he established a grocery business on the site he now occupies, where he built a fine brick building in 1885. He was one of the incorporators of the German Savings and Deposit Bank, and has been two years a director. He was one of the founders of St. Peter's R. C. Church, in which he was eight years a trustee; he has always been a democrat. Mr. Walker married, Nov. 11, 1882, Pauline, daughter of Peter and Mary R. (Belotte) Schlimm, natives of Dr. Charles F. McKenna, attorney at law, was born in the Fourth ward, city of Pittsburgh, Oct. 1, 1843. His grandparents emigrated from County Tyrone, Ireland, early in the century and settled in Pittsburgh. In the year of his birth his father, James McKenna, died, leaving to survive him his wife and six children. Mr. McKenna, on quitting the public schools of the Fourth ward, where he received his education, was apprenticed to learn the lithographic trade. In his sixteenth year he left this employment and enlisted as a private soldier in Co. F, 155th P. V. V., and served continuously in the field with the 5th corps, Army of the Potomac, for three years, until the end of the civil war. Among the prominent Pittsburghers who served in the same command were Col. E. Jay Allen, Gen. A. L. Pearson, Maj. E. A. Montooth, John H. Kerr, Esq., Maj. Samuel Kilgore and John F. Hunter.

On returning from the army Mr. McKenna read law in the city of Pittsburgh, and in 1869 was duly admitted to practice at the Allegheny county bar. He has applied himself ever since very closely to his chosen profession, and has built up a large general practice, having been connected with many very important and celebrated cases. He is a brother of Hon. B. McKenna, for some years past judge of the Second (police) district of the city of Pittsburgh. In 1873 Mr. McKenna was married to Miss Virginia White, daughter of the late Dr. N. W. Wuite, of Allegheny City.

Milton L. Myers, of the firm of Hostetler & Co., Pittsburgh, was born in Massillon, Ohio, May 30, 1842, son of Isaac and Margaret (Banks) Myers, former a native of Lancaster county, Pa., latter of Lancashire, England, a daughter of John and Annie Banks. Isaac Myers died in 1876, his widow two years later. They were the parents of one son and four daughters: Elizabeth, Anna, Maria, all married and living in Ohio; Milton L., and Maggie, who died in infancy.

Milton L. Myers was educated at Massillon and Mount Union, Ohio. When eighteen years old he enlisted in 1862, 155th P. V. V., but illness compelled him to return home. In 1863 he re-enlisted, this time in the 155th P. V. I., and remained in the service till close of the war, being promoted to sergeant and afterward transferred to the artillery service as quartermaster-sergeant of the brigade. He participated in all the battles of his regiment until the close of the war, and then returned home. Soon thereafter he accepted a position in Wood’s Iron and Rolling-mill at McKeesport; then for a time traveled for a wholesale tobacco-house. In 1866 he was united in marriage with Miss Virginia, daughter of Capt. John and Mary (Carson) McLaughlin, being two of the oldest and most respected families in Allegheny county, and born in Sewickley, this county. They were both of Irish birth. Children: Minnie H., Olive V. and E. Louise. After marriage Mr. Myers became cashier of the local freight department of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburgh. In 1872 he accepted the position of cashier for Hostetler & Smith, and on the death of latter became partner of Mr. Hostetler, firm name becoming Hostetler & Co. He is the surviving member of the firm, and still conducts the business. Mr. Myers is vice-president of the Monongahela Bridge company, director of the Pittsburgh Gas company and the Consolidated Gas company. He is a Knight Templar.

Capt. John W. Hague was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1859, a son of Stephen and Maria J. Hague. The father came from England in 1818, was married in 1819, and settled in Pittsburgh, where he resided until 1888, when he removed to Allegheny, and located where his son, Capt. John W., now resides. Of the six children born to Mr. and Mrs. Hague only two are living: Capt. J. W. and Anna (widow of D. W. Boss). Mr. Hague was a hatter by trade, which business he followed—until in 1846, when he retired. He and wife were members of the M. E. Church; the former died in 1878, aged eighty-four years, the latter in 1869, aged seventy-three years.

Capt. John W. has been twice married, first in 1845 to Eliza Miller, by which union there were six children: John W. (an attorney in Pittsburgh), Stephen (a farmer in Columbiana county, Ohio), Joseph P. (a carpenter), Annie (wife of James A. Malona, in Lawrence county, Pa.), Emma (wife of Dr. R. B. Faulkner, of Allegheny), Dollie (wife of Daniel F. Mulvey, of Allegheny, a member of select council). This wife dying in 1879, Capt. Hague’s second marriage occurred in 1884, with Callie, daughter of Charles and Charlotte Faulkner. J. W. Hague was engaged with his father in the hatter business, until in 1846, when he was commissioned lieutenant, and went to the Mexican war. After his return, in 1859 he settled on a farm in Lawrence county, Pa., where he remained until in about 1877, when he came back to the old homestead in Allegheny and retired from business.

Dr. Richard B. Faulkner, son of Charles and Charlotte Faulkner, was born in Allegheny City, June 6, 1853. His father was born in that city March 15, 1810, in a log house on the corner of Ohio and Federal streets, and was at the time of his death the oldest living white citizen born in Allegheny. The doctor’s mother’s maiden name was De Puy. Her ancestors were Huguenots, who, when they came from France, settled upon the banks of the Hudson river. Dr. Faulkner received a liberal education, and in 1875 graduated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Medical Department of Columbia College, New York city, and located in Allegheny, where he has succeeded in establishing an enviable reputation in the treatment of lung and throat diseases. He was married, in April, 1881, to Emma, daughter of Capt. John W. Hague, an old resident of this city. The doctor is held in very high esteem as a gentleman and physician.

 Homer J. McBride, druggist, Allegheny, a son of James and Elizabeth (Hobson) McBride, was born in Connellsville, Pa., March 24, 1863. His father was a prominent citizen of Connellsville, and sheriff of Fayette county, Pa.; he died in 1863. In 1872 the family moved to Allegheny county, and Mrs. McBride subsequently married J. B. Ingham, of Allegheny City. The subject of this sketch received a liberal education, and is a graduate of Pittsburgh College of Pharmacy. His and his brother, J. B., who is also a graduate of Pittsburgh College of Pharmacy, engaged in the drug business in Allegheny in 1879, and now have four drugstores, two in that city and two in Brooklyn, N. Y. The eastern stores are operated by J. S., and the Allegheny stores by Homer J.

Augustus Hoeveler (deceased), son of William and Clara (Hoey) Hoeveler, was born at Ankum, Germany, in 1830. He was the youngest of six children, and came with the family to Pittsburgh when seventeen years old. The eldest, William, and the second daughter, Louisa, had been a few years here. Clemence, the second son, was founder and president of the German Insurance company. Herman, the fifth child, died in Kansas. Clara, the second, was the wife of William Hane, and Louisa is the widow of Joseph Herman, president of the Workmen's Savings Bank, Allegheny. Augustus engaged in the grocery trade with his brothers, and they established several branch stores in the country. After the death of William the others separated, and Augustus established himself in the same line on the corner of Fourteenth street and Penn avenue. In 1848 he built a general store on Penn avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets. About 1850 he began the manufacture of glue, soap and candles, etc., in what is now the Twentieth ward, and sold out his grocery-store. About this time he married Elizabeth, second child of William O'Leary, a well-known glass-manufacturer, and took up his abode on Black Horse hill. As his business grew he formed a company with the present proprietors and John Miller, he established the Iron City brewery, and took an interest in numerous manufactories. He was one of the incorporators of the German National Bank, and continued as its president till his death, in 1888.

Mr. Hoeveler was a pioneer in laying out suburban property, and made it profitable in various quarters of the city. He was a considerable dealer, and never sold anyone out to satisfy claims. He donated the proceeds of a number of lots to St. Augustine Church, which secured to that parish its place of worship. He adhered to the R. C. Church, but could tolerate no bigotry. St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum and other charities received liberal aid from him. He was also a member of the benevolent society of Lawrenceville, and was elected to the city council after the absorption of that borough, but died before taking his seat. His widow passed away Jan. 9, 1888, aged sixty-one years. Of their eight children, three reached maturity: William A., Stella (Mrs. Roger S. Kennedy, of St. Paul, Minn.), and Joseph A. The elder in 1874 commenced building the Franklin Glue-works at Springdale and Boquet stations, W. P. R. R., and managed same to 1886. He is now engaged in the storage business, which he established in 1888. He married Katharine, daughter of James Hemphill, and has two children—Genevieve and James. The younger son, Joseph, is engaged in the pork and provision trade.

Sylvester Stephen Marvin, cracker-manufacturer and president of the Pittsburgh Exposition Society, was born in Ogden, Monroe county, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1841. In the colonial days three brothers of this name emigrated from England to Connecticut, and from one of them the subject of this sketch is descended. His grandfather, Stephen Marvin, was a farmer in Ogden and a man of sterling religious character. His influence was strongly impressed upon his children, and is still observed in his descendants. His son, Aaron Marvin, married Lucy Stephens, and moved to Lockport, N. Y., where he engaged in farming in 1848. He now resides in Beaver county, Pa.

Sylvester S. Marvin is the only son of Aaron, and remained on the Lockport farm, attending the country school, till thirteen years old. He then went to live with an uncle, Walter K. Marvin, who dealt in agricultural implements at Lockport, and with him began his commercial training. Here he attended an excellent private school. The family soon after moved to New York city, and Sylvester here found employment when out of school in the office of the Marvin Safe company. His business experience was further extended by a residence in St. Joseph, Mo., where he was employed in a store and as clerk on a ferryboat. Returning to Lockport in 1860, he enlisted in the following spring as a private in the 9th N. Y. K. for two years. Mr. Marvin was in the battles of Winchester, Ball's Bluff, Manassas and Cedar Mountain. In the latter Sergt. Marvin was wounded. Only six men of Co. K responded to roll call next morning, and all the field officers had been killed or maimed.

At the close of his term of enlistment, Mr. Marvin came to Pittsburgh to take charge of a cracker bakery. He at once set to work to master the practical workings of the establishment, and in a few months became the manager and owner. From a very insignificant institution, it has grown under his management to be the most extensive in the United States. Mr. Marvin has served as president of the grain and flour exchange, is a stockholder in several banks, a director in the Commercial National, director in the Union Bridge company and National Iron and Steel Publishing company, and member board of managers and charter member of Shadyside Academy. In 1885 he began to urge the importance to Pittsburgh of a permanent exposition. A society was formed, with J. J. Gillespie as president, and S. S. Marvin as vice-president. On the death of Mr. Gillespie in 1886, Mr. Marvin became president. He has been untiring and unselfish in his efforts to promote the enterprise, and to his labors is largely due its success.

In 1870, Mr. Marvin married Matilda Rumsey, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and they have two sons, Walter Rumsey and Earle Rumsey. The grandparents of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin lived on adjoining farms, but this couple never knew each other till they were grown up. The family is associated with Shadyside Presbyterian Church; Mr. Marvin is a member of Duquesne Post, G. A. R., and is a republican.

Rev. John Black, D. D., was born in County Antrim, Ireland, Oct. 2, 1788, and was a son of James and Margaret Black. His ancestors were among the heroic Covenanters of Scotland. Having received the rudiments of a solid education, he was sent at an early age to the University of Glasgow, where he graduated with the highest honors. He embarked in 1797 for America, as he was an ardent friend of republican institutions, and was involved in the movement of that year for the liberation of his native land from English rule. Arriving at Philadelphia, young Black was employed as a teacher of classics, and later in the university in that city. In June, 1799, he was licensed to preach, and in 1800 he was ordained and installed as pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh. The installation took place in the old courthouse, and was the beginning of nearly fifty years' continuous service with that society, ending only with his death, Oct. 25, 1849.

About 1829 Dr. Black became professor of languages in the University of Western Pennsylvania, and continued for twelve years to labor in that capacity. He is described by one of his students as a keen but kindly critic. With him teaching seemed to be a labor of love. He has been known to spend hours in teaching the alphabet to a little child, and again to sit up until a late hour at night in elucidating an abstruse theological point to a perplexed student. As a preacher Dr. Black was very impressive, at times rising to commanding eloquence. He had ready command of language, his argumentative powers were great, and his mind was so stored with scriptural knowledge that he needed no special preparation, and often delivered powerful discourses in emergencies where others failed to fill an appointment. He contributed largely to newspapers and periodicals in a graceful and instructive style.

In social life Dr. Black was genial and cheerful. He enjoyed fraternal relations with members of all religious denominations, including the Roman Catholic clergy. There was universal recognition of his ability and worth as a Christian and patriotic citizen. Dr. Black was married, Sept. 22, 1801, to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Andrew and Margaret Watson, of Pittsburgh. He was preceded in the journey to the other shore by his amiable consort, who passed over June 22, 1824. Of their ten children eight survived them. Three sons, John, Andrew Watson and Robert John, became preachers. The third son, Samuel W., a leading Pittsburgh attorney, was killed at the battle of Gaines' Mill while in command of a regiment. The fifth son was Dr. Alexander Black, a successful physician. All are now deceased. Of the daughters, Mrs. M. A. Rodman, widow of Gen. F. J. Rodman, United States ordinance, resides in Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. Margaret Wylie, in Washington, D. C. The third daughter, Elizabeth, wife of James H. McClellan, died about the same time as her husband—in 1879. Three of her sons are among the leading physicians of Pittsburgh.

August Ernst Succop, pork-packer, has been a member of the firm of E. H. Myers & Co., Pittsburgh, since 1878. Henry Herman Succop, his grandfather, born in 1800, came here with his son, John H., and died in 1876; his wife, who was born in 1791, died a year later. John Henry Succop was born in Hanover, Germany, Oct. 25, 1829, and came to Pittsburgh in 1840. He was engaged for many years in the grocery business here, and died May 15, 1888. He was married in Pittsburgh to Mary E. Kuhlman, a native of Germany, who survives him, and of their three sons, Henry H. is a German Lutheran clergyman in Chicago, and the youngest, Frank R., is in the grocery trade in Pittsburgh; August E. was born in Pittsburgh June 7, 1847, and was educated in the German Lutheran school. When thirteen years old he began business in his father's store, at Pittsburgh, and in 1872 engaged in the general merchandise business at Woodville, Ohio, where he continued till he became associated with Mr. Myers. In 1874, he married Louise F., daughter of Mr. Myers, and now resides in Pittsburgh. All his family and relatives are identified with the G. L. Church; politically he is a republican. His living children are Charles H. E., Irene A. and Louisa R. The third, a daughter, died in infancy.

Frank Rudolph Succop, grocer, was born in Pittsburgh, Nov. 2, 1852. His early training was the same as that of his brother (see sketch above), and he remained with his father until the latter retired from business. In the spring of 1881, he opened a store at his father's original stand and has made a success. Since his father's death his mother has remained with him. Mr. Succop married, Feb. 11, 1886, Mary Voskamp a native of Pittsburgh, and daughter of B. H. Voskamp, of German birth. Mr. and Mrs. Succop have three children: Frank Henry, Adaline Amelia and Eleanor Louisa.

John Boyd Duff, attorney, Pittsburgh, was born Aug. 4, 1858, in Birmingham (now Twenty-eighth ward, Pittsburgh), son of John F. and Mary J. (Buttr) Duff. He attended public school until in 1870, then entered the preparatory department at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa. There he remained until he passed the examination for the junior college class. He began to study law with Schoyer & McGill, attorneys at Pittsburgh, in December, 1889, passed his final examination and was admitted to Allegheny county bar in December, 1889; was admitted to the state supreme court in the fall of 1885, and in the following year was admitted to the United States district and circuit courts. He is now practicing law at Pittsburgh. He was married Feb. 8, 1888, to Miss Alice E. Vance, a schoolteacher of Allegheny.

George Breed was born at Norwich, Conn., March 27, 1799, and was descended from Allen Breed, who came over in 1639, in the company with John Winthrop, governor of Massachusetts. Allen Breed settled at Lynn, Mass., and from him are descended the large family connection of the name in various localities of the United States to-day.

George Breed, the subject of this sketch, was the third generation and descendant. He received the ordinary plain education of the times, and at fourteen years of age went from Norwich to Taunton, Mass., where he entered the store of a certain Capt. Ingalls as "boy" and clerk. He received a thorough training in method, accuracy and economy and cultivation of inherited qualities of honesty, thrift and application. In 1828 he came to Pittsburgh and established himself. In 1825 he returned to the east, and married, Sept. 23, 1828, Miss Anna Williams, of Providence, R. I. Shortly after this, in 1828, he gave up his business in Pittsburgh and went to Ravenna, Ohio, where he remained about two years, returning to Pittsburgh in 1830. He was from this time engaged in the dry-goods business and located on the north side of Market street, between the Pennsylvania and Fifth avenues. He had two children. The eldest died July 21, 1838. His wife, Anna Williams, died Aug. 6, 1838, and the second child died Nov. 7, 1830.

Thus left alone, he continued his business, from 1830 to 1833 boarding with a Mrs. Armstrong, at the corner of Water and Ferry streets, and sleeping at his store. Oct. 8, 1833, he was married to Miss Rhoda Ogden Edwards, a great-granddaughter of Rev. Jonathan Edwards, the eminent divine, and president of Princeton. In 1835 Mr. Breed sold out his dry-goods business and engaged in queensware and glass business, being located on Wood street just south of Diamond alley and later at old No. 100, where he continued until his death.

Mr. Breed lived through the "heroic age" of Pittsburgh's development and enterprise, before the day even of the palatial canal-boat, when the stagecoach and Conestoga wagon were the means of transit, and when weeks were consumed in passing from point to point, and a visit back to his New England home was an event of rare occurrence, and when even letters were sent by the hand of a traveling friend as more certain of delivery and safety than by mail. Mr. Breed was active in practical matters, though in no sense a public man. He was modest and unobtrusive, his interest in events manifest by quiet activity and solid results. He was deeply interested in the establishment and construction of the old Pennsylvania canal, and was a party to the idea of transporting canal-boats across the mountains in sections, over the inclined planes of the old Portage road.

He was the prime instrument in the establishment of Western Pennsylvania Hospital after numerous efforts to get a hospital enterprise started had failed; and when the charter was about to lapse by limitation he raised by individual effort a subscription which secured the grant, called a meeting of subscribers and organized a board, of which Thomas Bakewell was president. He was one of the original incorporators of the Third Presbyterian Church, of which he continued a member up to his death. In politics he was an old-line Whig, and threw no obstacles on the track of the "underground railroad" before the war. In 1842 he was one of a party who purchased the ground and settled at Oakland, now part of the Fourteenth ward, at that time known as the Third Church colony.

Mr. Breed will be remembered by the older and also by the now middle-aged men of his time for his size and proportions. He was six feet four inches high, and weighed about 275 pounds, but perfectly erect, of symmetrical build, and active and graceful in his movements. He belonged to the old school of merchant and gentleman.

Joseph Franklin Griggs, librarian Western University, Pittsburgh, was born at Sutton, Mass., April 24, 1892. His father, John Griggs, was a native of Boston, where his ancestors settled in the seventeenth century. Mary Thurston, who married John Griggs and became the mother of Joseph F., was descended from the Scotch clan Campbell, the London branch of which were the founders of Worcester, Mass. Joseph F. Griggs attended the common schools of Sutton and academies at Wilbraham and Leicester, entering Yale College in 1842, from which he graduated with the degree of A. B. four years later. In 1846 he entered Andover Theological Seminary, but owing to sickness had to abandon the course. In 1847 he taught a select school at Holden, and next year became principal of the Mechanic (public) school at Worcester. In 1849 Prof. Griggs came to Allegheny and opened a private classical school, which was combined two years later with the private school of Mr. Nicholas Veeder in Pittsburgh, and the next year with the school of Mr. William T. McDonald, in Pittsburgh. This school, continuing two years, became the nucleus of the Western University of Pennsylvania, on the completion of its buildings in 1855, Prof. Griggs taking the chair of ancient languages. For fifteen years he taught Latin and Greek, and for ten years longer taught Greek alone, when he became professor emeritus, and secretary and treasurer of the board of trustees, curator of museum, librarian and custodian of the property. He has been a member of the Presbyterian Church since he was seventeen years old, and for over twenty-five years an elder in the Third Church of Pittsburgh. He is a republican.

April 16, 1863, Prof. Griggs and Miss Eliza Buchanan, daughter of the late Dr. Jeremiah Brooks, of Pittsburgh, were united in marriage. Their children are: Martha Buchanan; Jeremiah Brooks, assistant secretary Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh; Thomas Campbell, assistant teller in the First National Bank of Pittsburgh, and Joseph Franklin, in freshman class of university.

PHILIP CHRISTIAN SCHOENECK, furniture-dealer, Pittsburgh, was born in the city of Worms, Germany, June 6, 1811. His father, who bore the same name, by trade a bookseller and bookbinder, died before the birth of his son Philip C. There is an elder son, Carl Wilhelm, who now lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., having retired from a successful stove and house-furnishing business. Their mother, Philippa Jungkenn Schoeneck, died in 1835. John Ludwig Schoeneck, grandfather of Carl W. and Philip C., was a book-dealer and merchant in Prague.

Philip C. Schoeneck was educated at the high-school of his native city, and in 1850 immigrated to New York, where he learned the trade of upholsterer. He came to Pittsburgh in 1855, when he became a member of the firm of Dauler, Close & Co., in 1869 of Close, Schoeneck & Co., and in 1876 Schoeneck & Close. In 1890 Mr. Schoeneck became sole proprietor, through the purchase of his partner’s interest, and the business is steadily growing under his management, occupying a fine, large store on Liberty avenue. He is a director of the German-American Insurance company, is a member of the German Library association, Froshinn society and Smithfield Street G. E. Church. He has always been identified with the republican party, his last vote being cast for General Grant.

In 1861 Mr. Schoeneck married Emilie Dauler, who was born in Pittsburgh, a daughter of George Dauler, a native of Germany. Mrs. Schoeneck died in 1865, leaving one son, also named Philip Christian, now assistant in his father’s business. After the death of his first wife M. Schoeneck married Louise, daughter of John H. Demmler, of Germany, and by her has three daughters, the Misses Julia Maria, Emma Elizabeth and Ida Christina.

John William Cooper, paper-dealer, Pittsburgh, was born at Gap Iron-works, Blair county, Pa., Nov. 30, 1852. His great-grandfather, John Cooper, immigrated to this country in 1750, settling in Mifflin county, Pa., and engaged in farming and distillery. Grandfather John Cooper was born in Mifflin county in 1787, and died in Hollidaysburg, Pa., in 1876, aged eighty-nine years; was of Scotch-Irish ancestry. The grandparents had seven children: James, John, Samuel, David, Nancy, Marguerite and Caroline. Grandfather served in the war of 1812–13, as captain. His children, now living, are Nancy, now Mrs. Samuel Thompson, and residing in Birmingham, Pa. (Her husband was a great abolitionist and before the emancipation proclamation often kept runaway slaves hidden in his cellar that their masters would not get them.) James has been most of his life in the coal and iron business, and is now seventy-three years of age, and retired. was out in the war of the rebellion. Samuel (father of John W.) has also spent most of his life in the coal and iron business, principally at the Juniata Iron-works, in Huntingdon county, and on the Alleghany mountains; has three children living: Jennie (married), John William (the subject of this sketch, married) and Anna M. (single, at home). The father of this family was born at Shiresburg, Huntingdon county, Jan. 4, 1823, and is now sixty-six years of age and retired.

John William Cooper is his only son and was reared at Juniata Iron-works; finished his education at Martinsburg, Pa.; at eighteen years of age went to Iowa, where he was engaged in mercantile pursuits for nearly two years. He then took a position as bookkeeper and manager of the store of Morrison, Bare & Co., at Roaring Springs, Pa., where he remained three years. He came to Pittsburgh in 1880 (when the firm opened an office and warehouse here for the sale of their paper-mill products), as correspondent, etc. In 1880 he become a partner in the firm, which is now Morrison, Cass & Co. He is a supporter of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church and is of republican principles. In 1881 he married Agnes Wright, daughter of J. S. Atterbury (see his sketch,) and has five children: J. S. Atterbury, John William, Jr., Lidé Bell, Marie Agnes and Marguerite. Residence at Shadyside.

W. C. Enskine, attorney, Pittsburgh, was born in the city of Belfast, Ireland, July 18, 1840, of Scotch-Irish parentage. He was educated in his native city, a place so famous for its schools that is often called “the Athens of the north.” He came to the United States in 1869, and during four years was engaged in various occupations and enterprises. In 1873 he married a daughter of Maj. Thomas McCready, a banker of Beaver, Pa. Mr. Erskine was admitted to the bar at St. Louis, in March, 1876. In the same year he came to Pittsburgh, where he has ever since been engaged in the successful practice of his profession.

Patrick Rice, retired, Allegheny, son of Charles and Mary (Magill) Rice, was born in Ireland, in 1809, and came with his widowed mother and four brothers to America in 1847, settling in this county. His father died in Ireland, March 18, 1845; his mother in this county, Aug. 7, 1873, aged seventy-three years. The brothers are John (living in Allegheny), James (deceased), Charles B. and Michael (deceased). James and Michael were both in the United States army during the late war. Patrick Rice was married Dec. 25, 1861, to Mary O'Neill, a native of County Donegal, Ireland, and to them were born five children: Mary J., Charles A., James L., Ellen and Joseph P. Mr. Rice had nothing to commence life with but a healthy body, a strong will and a vigorous mind, all of which he has used to good purpose. He learned the trade of brick-mason, which he followed until 1866, when he went to California and spent three years in mining. On his return to this county to resume his business, he soon became an extensive contractor and builder; this he has prosecuted until quite recently, when he retired from active business, and is taking his much-needed rest, with his appreciative family, in their pleasant home on Irwin avenue, Allegheny.

Andrew Milliken, late of Allegheny, was born in Ireland in 1811, a son of James Milliken, and came with William Haslett to America in 1830, settling in Pittsburgh, where he learned the cabinet-making trade with a Mr. McGrew. In 1836 he engaged in the wholesale and retail furniture business for himself on Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, in addition to which he had an extensive masonry business in Allegheny. He was married, Nov. 20, 1851, to Margaret, daughter of William and Isabella McCouch, and to them were born three children: Salie B. (wife of William L. Sloan), William M., and Florence (wife of John A. Sloan). Mr. Milliken died May 6, 1876, aged sixty-five years. By industry and excellent business ability he had risen from very humble circumstances and acquired a competency; he was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Mrs. Milliken's parents are both deceased; her father departed this life Aug. 14, 1855, and her mother Nov. 25, 1870.

David Macferron, treasurer of the city of Allegheny, was born Nov. 7, 1817, in Pittsburgh. His parents came to this part of Pennsylvania about the commencement of the present century, and from the day on which the solemn league and covenant was signed his ancestors have been, without a break in the line, Covenanters. His education was obtained by occasional attendance at such schools as existed during his boyhood. In politics Mr. Macferron was originally a whig. He was at the birth of the republican party in Lafayette hall, Pittsburgh, and has ever since been a republican; his first presidential vote, in 1840, was for Gen. W. H. Harrison, and his last (1888) for his grandson, Gen. B. Harrison. In January, 1854, he was elected clerk of the select council of the city of Allegheny, which office he held for fifteen years. In January, 1858, he was elected treasurer of Allegheny City, and he still holds the office; he was for seven years secretary of the board of school controllers. September 17, 1859, he was married to Mary Eleanor Campbell, and their children are Martha, Robert, Christiana, Mary, Eleanor and William.

Frederick M. Magee, lawyer, Pittsburgh, was born in that city in 1846. He was educated at Pittsburgh high-school and the Western University; studied law with Judges White and Slagle, was admitted to the bar in November, 1867, and has ever since been engaged in practice. His business has been chiefly with banks and other corporations. In 1877 he was a member of the municipal commission, the report of which, although not adopted by the legislature, has been the basis of nearly all the legislation relating to municipalities enacted since.

Joseph B. Grimes, physician, Pittsburgh, was born in Preston county, Va. Sept. 30, 1832, of English descent. His father, William Henry Grimes, was a native of Virginia, and was a prominent man in the region where he resided. His mother was of German ancestry, and was a member of the Wetzell family, who were distinguished Indian fighters. The doctor was educated in the schools and academies of his native county, and at the University of West Virginia. He studied medicine in Pittsburgh, and received the degree of M. D. from Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York. Since his graduation he has been engaged in the practice of his profession in Allegheny. He has long filled the positions of police surgeon, member of the board of health, surgeon to the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad; also to the Pittsburgh & Charleston and Pittsburgh Southern railroads. He is now a member of the select council of the city of Pittsburgh. He was married May 9, 1858, to Miss Mellie E. Caldwell, of Pittsburgh.

Cornelius Earle Rumsey, of S. S. Marvin & Co., Pittsburgh, is descended from early English residents of New York and New Jersey. Early in the present century, his grandfather, Cornelius Rumsey, moved from Dutchess county to Monroe county, N. Y., where he cleared up and improved a large farm. Thomas Osborne, son of the latter, went to New York city when a young man, and was engaged in the sperm-oil trade. He purchased a farm in East Chester, N. Y., on which he lived, and then moved to New Rochelle, N. Y., where he died in 1850, aged forty years. His wife, Matilda, was a daughter of Cornelius Earle, of New York city. They had two sons and four daughters, Cornelius E. being the fourth child, born at East Chester, New York. In 1869 he came to Pittsburgh, having an interest in his present business in connection with Mr. Marvin, and is also interested in the Cleveland Banking company and Wheeling Bakery company. Mr. Rumsey has a farm in Washington county, on which he has fine-bred Holsteins and Jerseys. He is a director of the Western Pennsylvania Agricultur- ral society, and life manager in the Western Pennsylvania hospital. He attends the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh and is a republican. His wife, Mary Elizabeth, is the only daughter of Walter K. Marvin, of New York.

JOHN S. FERGUSON, attorney, Pittsburgh, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24, 1842, son of Charles Ferguson, who followed the business of a contractor and builder in Pitts- burgh till his death in 1869. The subject of these lines was educated in the public schools of Pittsburgh, and at the Allegheny City College. He was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county, April 7, 1863, and has since been engaged in practice in Pittsburgh. He was married Sept. 10, 1863, to Miss Nancy A. Graham, of Pittsburgh, and they have five children: Edwin G., now a member of the bar in Allegheny county; Mary H., wife of H. Watts; Areta, John and Anna.

WILLIAM WETTACH, tanner, Allegheny, was born in Allegheny City, Pa., April 20, 1869, a son of Gottlieb and Barbara Wettach, who came from Switzerland to this county in 1851 and settled in Allegheny City, where they have resided ever since. They had a family of nine children, five of whom are living: William, John, Christian, Theodore and Emma (wife of Edward Bouthewell). The father died in January, 1888, aged seventy-two years; the mother is still living, in her seventy-third year. They were mem- bers of the Evangelical Association Church. William Wettach was married in 1865 to Sarah Bibb, daughter of John and Eliza Voeght- ley, and they have three children: Harry, Carl and Orlando. Mr. Wettach learned the tanner’s trade with his father, and has always followed that occupation. In 1868 he commenced the tanning business for himself, which he has continued with marked success. He has been a member of the common coun- cil fourteen years; is a member of the Ma- sonic fraternity, and of the G. E. Church.

SAMUEL GEORGE was born in Ireland in 1801, and came to America in 1819, his brother, Alexander, having preceded him to this country one year. They both remained in Baltimore until in or about 1822, when they came to Pittsburgh, and engaged in the wholesale grocery business, in which Samuel continued until 1858, when he retired to pri- vate life; he died Jan. 4, 1888, aged eighty-six years. Samuel George married, April 15, 1831, Ann, daughter of John and Mary Love, and to them were born seven children: John L. (in business in Pittsburgh), Mary (twice married, first to A. J. Angell, of Leavenworth, Kan., and next to A. A. Fenn), Archibald (deceased), Robert A. (deceased), Joseph, Anna and Samuel, Jr. (deceased). Samuel George, Jr., was president of the Farmers’ Deposit National Bank of Pittsburgh, and is said to have been the youngest bank presi- dent ever in this country; his father was a director in the same bank. Samuel, Sr., was also a very active and prominent member of the U. P. Church, a successful business-man, and a most highly esteemed citizen of Alle- gheny. John Love, father of Mrs. George, came to Washington county, Pa., in 1786, where he purchased a farm that has remained in the family ever since, and Mrs. George is now the only surviving heir to the old home- stead.

JOHN C. SHOEemaker, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born at Academia, Pa., April 7, 1857, and educated at Tuscarora Academy, Chambersburg Academy and La- fayette College, graduating in the class of 1877. He read law with Hon. J. McDowell Sharpe, and was admitted to the Franklin county bar Sept. 1, 1879, and to the Allegheny county bar in March, 1881. January 22, 1883, he was appointed deputy secretary of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania by Gov. Pattison, holding the office till Feb. 1, 1887.

SAMUEL DUNCAN CULBERTSON, railroad agent, Mauisfield Valley, is a grandson of Dr. Samuel D. Culbertson, who was one of seven brothers who came from Ireland and settled near Chambersburg, Pa., at a place still known as Culbertson’s Row. The doctor soon moved to Chambersburg, where he died in his ninetieth year. His death was caused by exposure after the burning of his residence at the time Chambersburg was destroyed by the confederates. His son, Albert, born in 1829, came to Pittsburgh when a youth and began life as a clerk in a store. For a time he kept books for a commission firm (Poundexter & Co.), and afterward engaged in the commission business on his own ac- count. In 1858 he went to Monongahela City and commenced the manufacture of paper, his mill being the first west of the Allegheny mountains and the second in the United States to use steam-rolls. He died there in 1879; his widow now resides in the city of Allegheny. Mrs. Culbertson was born in Allegheny, and is a daughter of James Brown, one of the early iron-manufacturers here, and who died in his ninety-fifth year. Emily Brow married Albert Culbertson when she was sixteen years old, and is the mother of three sons and four daughters.

Samuel D., the third of these, was born in the city of Allegheny Aug. 13, 1850, and was educated at Monongahela City and Tus- carora Academy. He early began to assist his father in the paper-mill, and is a skilled maker of straw-board. In 1882 he came to Pittsburgh and entered the employ of the B. & O. railroad. Has been employed by the P. & W. and Pittsburgh Junction roads, and is now commercial freight agent of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad. While a resident of Monongahela City he served as city auditor. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Mansfield, and of the Masonic fraternity, and is a republican. In September, 1874, Mr. Coburn married Annie Wallace, daughter of the late J. W. Cook (see his sketch), and their living children are Elvira Harshman, Lily Cook, Jacob Cook and Clara Walton. Emily C., the first born, is deceased.

CHARLES FREDERICK WELLS, white-lead manufacturer, Pittsburgh, was born at Zweilingen, near Ohringen, Württemberg, Germany, Sept. 24, 1833, and is the only child of Frederick and Rosa (Weiss) Wells. His father, who had charge of a school at Zweilingen, came to Pittsburgh in 1852, and here taught Lutheran parochial schools till his death, which occurred in 1861, when he was fifty-five years of age; his wife died three months previously. The father of Frederick Wells was also an educated man, and had charge of the parks and gardens of the prince of Hohenlohe. Charles F. attended Duff's Commercial College, and taught two years in that institution after completing the course. For some years he kept books for Graff, Bennett & Co. and B. L. Fahnestock & Co. In 1867 he became a partner in the Beymer-Bauman White Lead company, and in 1881 organized the Pennsylvania White Lead company, of which he is president and his eldest son secretary. He is a director of the Allemania Insurance company, Third National Bank, Dollar Savings Bank and Pittsburgh Bank for Savings. He is a K. T., has always been a republican, and his first vote was cast for Lincoln. Mr. Wells attends Grace Reformed Church. In 1860 he married Mary Ellen Fulton, of Pittsburgh birth and Scotch-Irish ancestry, and their children are Charles F., Jr., Clara, John A., Alice, Cora, Reuben and Bertha.

J. J. MILLER, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born near Somerset, in Somerset county, Pa., Jan. 22, 1837, of Pennsylvania-German descent. In his boyhood he labored on his father's farm, and attended the common schools of his neighborhood. He attended the Somerset Academy, and graduated from the State Normal College at Indiana, Pa., in 1879. From 1871 to 1884 he was engaged during a portion of each year in teaching common schools. During the last four years of his school-work he was principal and superintendent of one of the largest graded schools in Pittsburgh. He read law with Judge William J. Baer, of Somerset, and was admitted to the bar of Somerset county in 1881, and the bar of Allegheny county in July, 1884, since which time he has been engaged in practice in Pittsburgh.

JAMES SEAMAN ATTERBURY and THOMAS B. SEAMAN, glass-manufacturers, Pittsburgh, are the sons of Benjamin Atterbury, who was born in England, in 1792, and was brought by his father, Job Atterbury, to New York in 1794, where the latter was engaged in business, and died. Benjamin was reared in that city, becoming an auctioneer, and on arriving at Pittsburgh, in 1827, he took employment as a clerk at the Bakewell glassworks, dying seven years later, at the early age of forty-one. He married Eliza Seaman, a descendant of the early Knickerbockers; she died in 1851, at the age of eighty-four. They were the parents of two sons and three daughters.

James S. Atterbury was born in New York in 1827, the year the family came to Pittsburgh. At an early age he entered the employment of Bakewell, Pierce & Co., glass-manufacturers, and he has ever since given attention to that industry. In 1860 Atterbury Bros. established a glass-factory at the corner of Carsou and Tenth streets, which they removed twenty years later to the corner of First street. The establishment has steadily prospered, and is among the foremost of the city. Mr. Atterbury was one of the incorporators of the C., C. & N. Y. S. L. R. R., and continued as its president till its consolidation with the Pennsylvania railroad. He is a director of the Mechanics National Bank, Western Insurance company, and Monongaheala Bridge company, and is ready with means and influence to foster any enterprise that promises to benefit his city.

Thomas B. Atterbury was born in 1831. In 1854 he became a member of the firm of Warwick, Atterbury & Co., which carried on the manufacture of builders' hardware at the foot of Grant street, and which concern is still continued under the title of Nimick & Brittan Manufacturing company. Mr. Atterbury withdrew in 1860 from this to engage in glass-manufacturing, as above noted. He was the founder of the Iron and Glass Dollar Savings Bank in 1868, of which he has ever since been president. His means have also been invested in several other industries of the city; he is a director of the Monongaheala Water company, and of the South Side cemetery. He was several years a member of the Birmingham Masonic council, and two years chairman of the finance committee in the city council. Both the brothers are solid republicans, and supporters of the Presbyterian Church.

ROBERT STEWART SMITH, banker, Pittsburgh, was born in Allegheny City, Pa., in August, 1836. His grandfather, Rev. Thomas Smith, was born in Ireland in 1755, graduated at the University of Glasgow, and was licensed to preach by the A. R. Church in 1776. He was at once given charge of a parish at Ahaughal, County Antrim, Ireland, where he remained twenty-three years, and then came to America. In 1801 he became pastor of the Tuscarora Church, York county, Pa., and remained in connection with same till his death, in 1832. He left seven sons and five daughters, among them being Thomas, who was born Jan. 16, 1796, became a silversmith, and came to Pittsburgh about the year 1820. He married, in 1826, Margaret H., daughter of Robert Stewart, a sickle-manufacturer, who came to Pittsburgh in 1814. He was one of the fathers of the First
A. R. (now U. P.) Church of Allegheny; in politics a decided whig, abolitionist and republican. During his later years, becoming a party, he who retired from active life; he died in 1880, his widow three years later. The latter was born in June, 1796.

Of his six children five grew up, Robert S. being the fifth. He attended the public schools till fourteen years old, when he entered a hatstore. For some years he dwelt with his parents in Allegheny, and in November, 1839, he entered the Allegheny Savings Bank as clerk, afterward becoming bookkeeper and teller. On the opening up for business of the Union Banking company, Sept. 1, 1859, Mr. Smith became cashier, continuing under the national banking organization, Dec. 30, 1864, as cashier of the Union National Bank, till the death of the president, John R. McCune, in January, 1888, when he became president. This was the first change in the officers of the institution.

Mr. Smith is an elder in the First U. P. Church of Allegheny, and conducts the young people's bible-class in the Sabbath-school of the same; he is a republican. April 16, 1872, he married Mary Ann, daughter of Joseph and Rebecca Jean (Wilson) McCashin, of Venango county, Pa. Mr. Smith's first-born son, Roy, died when eight years old, a daughter, Helen, before reaching the age of one year. Those living are Artho H., Jessie C., Homer D. and Lloyd W.

WILLIAM J. CURRAN, lawyer, Pittsburgh, was born in that city March 6, 1851. His parents were Manas Curran, who came to this county in 1844, and Prudence P. (Scott), whose father was a farmer residing in Allegheny township, Westmoreland county, Pa. He was the second of a family of eight children, of whom, besides himself, the only survivors, Cecelia G. and John E., the latter now in his twenty-first year. When the subject of this memoir was less than a year old his parents moved from Pittsburgh to Freeport, Armstrong county, Pa., and he lived there and in that vicinity, in Westmoreland and Allegheny counties, but for the most part in Allegheny township, Westmoreland county, working on a farm, attending school and teaching until September, 1875. He was educated in the common schools and at St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pa. In January, 1875, he began the study of law with J. G. D. Findley, Esq., of Freeport, and in September of same year entered the office of Hon. H. H. McCormick, formerly speaker of the Pennsylvania house of representatives, and subsequently United States district attorney for the western district of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the bar April 14, 1877, and has since been constantly engaged in the practice of his profession. He is a member of the R. C. Church, and is a democrat.

JACOB WHEELER COOK (deceased), was born in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1819, descended on his paternal side from German ancestors, and on the maternal from Scotch-Irish. He was educated in his native city, and came to Pitts-adopted the profession of expert accountant, which he has since followed with success. He has been engaged in some of the largest cases in equity, such as David Hostetter vs. the Standard Oil company, Warden, Frew & Co. et al., the Harmony Savings Bank of Butler county, Phillip vs. the Allegheny Valley railroad, and others. He is connected with several religious and beneficial societies. In religion he is a Roman Catholic, in politics a democrat. He was married in May, 1863, and has now six children, all living.

CHARLES A. SULLIVAN. Peter O. Sullivan, a native of Ireland, and who immigrated to America in 1700, locating in Northumberland county, Va., was a great ancestor of Charles C. Sullivan, who was born on the "Partnership Farm," seven miles northwest of the town of Butler, Pa., March 10, 1807. He took rank as an able lawyer and a just legislator and a pronounced abolitionist in Western Pennsylvania; he died Feb. 28, 1860. His son, Charles A. Sullivan, was admitted to the law at Pittsburgh, Pa., March 10, 1870, and on motion of Hon. Thomas M. Marshall was admitted to the courts of Allegheny county April 10, 1886. He married Jan. 10, 1870, the youngest daughter of Gen. George W. Reed, of Butler, Pa., and they have one daughter and two sons living: Kathrine Gertrude, George Reed and Joseph Reed Sullivan.

Anson Pangman Norton, real-estate dealer, Pittsburgh, was born in Sangerfield, Oneida county, N. Y., March 11, 1818. His ancestry is traced in a direct line to an officer named Seignior de Norville and who served under William the Conqueror as a constable in the invasion of England in 1068. Constable Seignior de Norville married into the house Valois, which afterward became royal, so the Norton family just escaped royalty. This history, compiled by the late Lewis M. Norton, of Goshen, Conn., is now in the hands of his daughter, Mrs. Eliza Norton Gaylord, at the old Norton homestead in Goshen. Among the passengers in the Mayflower who landed on the coast of Massachusetts in December, 1620, were three brothers named Norton, from one of whom the subject of this sketch is descended. His great-grandfather and grandfather lived and died in Goshen, Litchfield county, Conn., at the old Norton homestead, where his father, Theron Norton, was born in 1789. The latter married Chloe Pangman, and settled early in the present century at Sangerfield, where he engaged in farming and kept a hotel. Here four of his six children were born—two daughters, two sons (twins) and two more daughters. Alexander C., the brother of Anson P., is now a resident of Boston. The last years of Theron Norton were passed at Auburn, where he died in 1866.

Anson P. Norton remained on the farm till he reached his majority, his education being finished at Clinton Liberal Institute. He began life as a mercantile traveler, visiting the extreme western frontier. Returning home in June, 1849, he lost his left eye and was otherwise injured by the explosion of some chemicals which he was compound ing. On recovering he purchased the patent of a barmilk, and engaged in the manufact ure and sale of the mills, and in 1849 he came to Pittsburgh, where he followed the same business for many years. In 1852 he, with a partner, bought Carlisle Sulphur Springs, and there they conducted a hotel five years. Mr. Norton then sold his interest in the hotel and carried on a mercantile agency at New York for thirteen years. In the meantime his real estate in Pittsburgh had increased considerably in value, and, returning there in 1867, he began selling off. Subsequently he laid out forty-three acres on Mount Washington in lots, followed with many sales and rapid improvements, and later on extending his operations to the Tenth ward of Allegheny City.

Mr. Norton accepts the religious teachings of Swedenborg, and has at times been a temperance advocate. Politically he has been a republican from the time of the elder Harrison presidential campaign. Mr. Norton has given much study to the homeopathic system of medicine, and often gives gratuitous treatment to the sick in his neighborhood. Jan. 1, 1853, he married Jane, daughter of Samuel Rowley. Mrs. Norton was born in Ohio, and died at Pittsburgh; her father was born in Rensselaer county, N. Y., and died at Lewiston, Fulton county, III., in 1888, at the age of ninety-four years. Mr. and Mrs. Norton were the parents of three sons and one daughter, latter of whom died in 1878, aged twenty-one years: the sons reside as follows: Perry C., in Chicago; Alex. A., in Kansas City, and Willshire C., in Pittsburgh.

Joseph Truman Colvin, president of the National Bank of Commerce, Pittsburgh, was born near Brownsville, Fayette county, Pa., Feb. 27, 1888. His great-grandfather, Levi Colvin, of Scotch ancestry, was among the earliest settlers of that county; and his grandfather, William, and father, Levi, were both born there. Eliza McDonald, wife of the latter, and mother of Joseph T., is a granddaughter of Christian Tarr, one of the first members of Congress from Pennsylvania. Levi Colvin built and operated one of the first paper-mills in Western Pennsylvania, and afterward engaged in mercantile business at Brownsville, where he died in 1868. His widow yet resides there.

J. T. Colvin, who is the eldest of her four children, attended Dunlap's Academy, and took a scientific course in Jefferson College at Cannonsburg. On reaching his majority, he became a partner in his father's store, continuing three years. In 1862 he came to Pittsburgh and became head of the grain and wool firm of Colvin & Mason. Four years later, he left this, and entered the wholesale grocery firm of Smith, Johnson & Colvin. In 1868, the senior partner retired, and the firm became Johnson & Colvin. In 1876, Mr. Colvin withdrew from this firm, and became head of the firm of Colvin, Atwell & Co., retiring in 1884. In the meantime, Mr. Colvin became a director in the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company, Union Insurance company (of which he was president from 1851 to 1884), and the National Bank of Commerce, being elected to his present position in 1884. He is interested in the Newsboys' Home, is a member of the Americus club, and of the Baptist Church. His wife, Elizabeth, is a daughter of the late William Searight, and a sister of Col. T. B. Searight, both prominent democrats of Fayette county.

James Madison Bailey, iron-manufacturer, Pittsburgh, is a native of Pittsburgh, born on what is now First avenue, in August, 1833. His father, Francis Bailey, was a member of a family which held a one-hundred-year lease on an estate on the River Baun, near Coleraine, Ireland; his sister was a member of the Livingston family. Francis Bailey came to Philadelphia in 1814, and to Pittsburgh about six years later. He was a prominent Freemason, and was the first commander of the K. T. Commandery of Pittsburgh, being instrumental in the revival of Masonry here; was an adherent of democratic principles, and served as alderman under gubernatorial appointment; he died in 1849, aged sixty-two years. His wife, Mary Aun, was a daughter of Jacob Beltzhoover, who came to Pittsburgh with his father, Melchior Beltzhoover, from Maryland, before the opening of the present century. Francis Bailey's children were six in number (only two are now living—Judge John H. Bailey and James M.), of whom James M. is the fifth. He was educated in private schools and the Western University, and when seventeen years old began dealing in coal, a business he continued many years. He was one of the incorporators of the Fourth National and Fort Pitt National Banks, being continuously a director of the former, and for the last two years its president. He was one of the incorporators of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot company, and is a director of the Cash Insurance company, Monongahela Bridge company; of the Pittsburgh & Castle Shannon, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny, and Lexington & Big Sandy Railroad companies. Since 1873 he has been a member of the firm of Phillips, Nimick & Co., owners and operators of the Sling rolling-mills.

Like his father, Mr. Bailey has always been a democrat, and served in the Pittsburgh select council four years, and has been for many years a school director. His religious associations are with the Presbyterian Church. In 1867 he married Martha, daughter of James Dalzell, a prominent Pittsburgh manufacturer. Mrs. Bailey died in 1886, leaving three children: Ruth, Mark and Fanny.

James II. Reed, attorney, Pittsburgh, is the son of the late Dr. Joseph A. Reed, who was for many years superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane. He was born Sept. 10, 1853, and graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania in 1873. He studied law with David Reed, Esq., was admitted to the bar in July, 1875, and has ever since been engaged in practice. He was married, in June, 1878, to Miss Kate J., daughter of David Aike, Jr., and their children were Joseph H. (deceased), David A., James H. and Katherine.

Robert B. Parkinson, attorney, Pittsburgh, a native of that city, is a grandson of John Parkinson, of Carlisle, who was an officer in the militia that defended Baltimore in the war of 1812; he was a master builder, in Carlisle, where he lived and died. His ancestors came from Ireland, but are supposed to have been Danes, passing through England. John Parkinson's son, John A., born in Carlisle in 1805, came to Pittsburgh in 1827, and engaged in building operations. He was elected a magistrate in 1845, and served until 1860. He died in 1870. He married Ann, daughter of John Cochran, who came to Pittsburgh in 1810, and was appointed a magistrate by Gov. Findlay in 1819, and served until his death, in 1832. John Cochran was one of the original members of the First U. P. Church. He was appointed, in 1819, by Gov. Findlay, a justice of the peace for life, His father, Moses Cochran, was a large linnen-manufacturer, near Belfast, Ireland, and left there for Scotland, about 1800. From there, with his son, he came to New York, and thence to Pittsburgh, as above noted, engaging in mercantile business. John A. Parkinson was twice married, and Robert B. is the fourth of five children by the first wife, Aun. R. B. Parkinson was born Dec. 22, 1857, and was educated at the public and high schools of the city. He read law with Francis C. Planegin, the first district attorney of this county, and also with Marshall Swartwelder. Was admitted to the bar in 1859, and with the exception of three years spent in military service has since followed his profession. He enlisted in 1862 in Co. G, 140th P. V. I., and served in all the battles of the Army of the Potomac, from Chancellorsville to the surrender at Appomattox. He was promoted, after two years' service as a private, to first lieutenant, and returned home as quartermaster at the end of the war. His full brothers, two in number, were also in the service. Mr. Parkinson has been twice the democratic candidate for Congress from this city, but was each time defeated. With his family he attends the Third Presbyterian Church. His wife, Annie, is a daughter of Benjamin Atterbury. (See his sketch.)

James McFadden Carpenter, attorney, Pittsburgh, was born in Murrysville, Pa., Jan. 30, 1850, a son of Jeremiah Murry Carpenter and Eleanor, daughter of James and Margaret (Stewart) McFadden. His mother died in March, 1851, and his father until his death, at the age of seventy-one. The paternal grandfather of our subject was John Carpenter, whose wife was Jane Murry, daughter of Jeremiah Murry, the founder of Murrysville, Westmoreland Co., Pa.

James McF. Carpenter was reared on a farm in Plum township, this county, and attended the common schools. Between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one he was a student in the Murrysville Academy at intervals, and taught school during four terms. In 1872 he came to Pittsburgh, where he practiced surveying and engineering with James H. McRoberts, and studied law, first with Hopkins & Lazear, then with Thomas C. Lazear, of the same firm. He was admitted to the bar in October, 1874, and has ever since been engaged in practice. He was married, June 21, 1876, to Mary H., daughter of John L. L. and Rebekah H. Knox, of Allegheny. Their children were Alice Lazear, Rebekah Knox (deceased in 1884) and Bertha Eleanor. Mr. Carpenter's success has been wholly due to his own energy and perseverance. He did not inherit a fortune, and he has held no official position. He is a democrat with decidedly independent views, and has been an elder in the Presbyterian Church since 1891.

John Philip Beech (deceased) was born Sept. 2, 1833, in New York city. His parents, Leonard and Catharine Beech, came from Heidelberg, Germany, to New York in same year, and a few days after the birth of John Philip proceeded to Butler county, Pa., where they engaged in farming. They afterward came to Pittsburgh, where the father died, in 1850, aged fifty years; the mother died in 1857. John P., their eldest child, was cashier of the First National Bank of Birmingham for twenty-eight years, a position for which he was well qualified. He died Feb. 17, 1889. In 1853 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Daniel Berg, for many years a justice of the peace in Pittsburgh. To Mr. and Mrs. Beech were born four children, all living: Daniel (cashier in the bank his father worked in); Charles E. (assistant bookkeeper in same institution as his brother) and Fred Bernard, at home. The family are identified with the E. P. Church. John P. Beech was a republican.

Frank Whitesell, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born in Allegheny City, Aug. 14, 1833, son of Jacob Whitesell, who became a resident of the borough of Sewickley in 1861, and died there on Feb. 2, 1855. Jacob Whitesell was for forty years a member of the Pittsburgh bar. George Whitesell, the grandfather of Frank, was a lineal descendant of Admiral Wurtz,—of Germany; was a lifelong resident of Hampton township, in this county, where he died in 1833, aged ninety five years.

The subject of this sketch was educated in the public schools of Allegheny and Sewickley, and received an academic education in the Sewickley and Episcopal academies in Sewickley, Pa. He read law in the office of his father, and was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county Nov. 19, 1876. He commenced practice in Pittsburgh, immediately after his admission, in partnership with his father, first under the firm of Whitesell & Son, afterward, on the admission of his brother, W. W. Whitesell, as Whitesell & Sons, by which name the firm is now known. The practice of this firm has been quite successful. Mr. Whitesell is a democrat in politics, and a member of the Sewickley Presbyterian Church, where he resides. He is a member of Allegheny Commandery, No. 35, Knights Templar, and other prominent orders stationed in Allegheny City. His mother, Anna Margaret Whitesell (formerly Neill), is the daughter of the late Thomas Neill, Esq., and resides at the family home stead, in Sewickley, Pa. The Whitesell family are well known in Western Pennsylvania, and rank high in musical, literary and social circles.

Charles Seibert, secretary and treasurer of the Germania Savings Bank, Pittsburgh, was born near Kreuznach, Prussia, April 2, 1845. His parents, Nicholas and Catherine (Mohr) Seibert, sailed for America from Bremen on the day he was three years of age. During the voyage of sixty days an infant brother died, and was consigned to the deep. The father took the family to Springville, Seneca county, Ohio, where he settled for a time, his wife and eldest daughter dying there. The fever and ague, for which Western Ohio was then noted, proved too much for him, and after remaining several years he removed to Allegheny City, where he died in 1858.

Charles is the seventh of eight children, of whom five are now living. Of these Christian M. was for a number of years assistant cashier of the Third National Bank of Pittsburgh, and was the predecessor of Charles in the position he now holds. He is now secretary of legation at Santiago, Chili. Two brothers are engaged in the furniture-manufacturing business in Allegheny City. Charles W. is on active duty until twelve years old, when he spent three years in the office of the Pittsburger Republikaner, learning the printers' trade. He then took a short course in one of the commercial colleges of Pittsburgh, after which he was employed for a time in the office of the Clarion Independent Banner, edited by Col. Samuel Young, then well known by the name of the "literary drayman." After the first battle of Bull run Charles got the war-fever, and succeeded, though but little over sixteen years of age, in enlisting as a private in Co. G, 62d P. V. (Col. Samuel W. Black), for three years. His regiment was attached to the 5th corps, Army of the Potomac, and saw hard and continuous service. In October, 1862, Private Seibert was appointed orderly sergeant, and came home at the expiration of three years' service as second lieutenant, commanding the company. He had the remarkable good fortune to never lose a day during the term of service through sickness, and was never wounded. On the day of his being mustered out he took the position of bookkeeper in the Third National Bank, which he held for four years, when he became cashier of the German Savings Bank, of Allegheny. He resigned this position, after about four years, to engage in the real-estate and insurance business. He was elected to his present position in February, 1878. He is also the secretary and treasurer of the Pittsburgh, A. & M. Passenger Railway company, which position he has held for eleven years. Mr. Seibert is a member of the G. A. R. and Veteran Legion, and in politics has been generally a republican. He has been twice married, and has three sons and one daughter: Henry E., secretary of the Manufacturers' Natural Gas Company, of Pittsburgh; Charles A., in the office of W. E. Schmerz & Co.; William, attending school, and Estella, at home.

Charles Meyran, president of the German Savings Bank, of Pittsburgh, was born Oct. 12, 1858, at Brunsche, Germany. His great-great-grandfather, John Charles Meyer-Arend (later called Meyran), born in the year 1697, entered the military service in his youth, and under Frederick the Great fought through the "Seven Years' War." After this war he was promoted to be adjutant to the king at the court, and lived to the remarkable age of one hundred and thirteen years.

The father of the subject of this sketch was C. Ludwig Meyran, a Tanner at Brunsche, and the mother was Minna Meyer (Woltermann); both died before he had completed his tenth year. He kept on with his studies, and at the age of fourteen was graduated at the high-school of his native place. He immediately emigrated to America, accompanied by a schoolmate, and they arrived in New York in September, 1848. Master Meyran proceeded to Pittsburgh, where he joined his uncle, G. H. Meyer, a jeweler, with whom he spent two years learning the trade; then served an apprenticeship of four years to the trade of watchmaking with Mr. Louis Reinemann. In 1854 he took charge of the commercial department of the house, and entered the firm as a partner, which then became Reinemann & Meyran. In 1862 he and others bought the Oakland & East Liberty & Pittsburgh & Minersville Passenger railroad. He became president of this corporation, but afterward sold his interest and resigned. The business of Reinemann & Meyran, with a few changes, continued successfully for twenty years, at the expiration of which time both partners retired from active connection with it.

In 1870 Mr. Meyran and others organized the Germania Savings Bank, of which he has since been president. In 1870 he became interested in a new enterprise at Delphos, Ohio, for the manufacture of material for sugar- and flour-barrels and nail-kegs. A company was formed, known as the Pittsburgh Hoop and Stave company, of which he became president. In 1888 the buildings of the works were destroyed by fire, and the property and material left from the conflagration were sold. Shortly afterward Mr. Meyran joined with his son, Louis A. Meyran, Col. John Ewing, H. S. Duncan and other well-known men, in founding the Cannonsburg Iron and Steel company at Cannonsburg, Pa. Mr. Meyran is president of this flourishing corporation, and his son is treasurer. In 1885 Mr. Meyran and his associates conceived the idea of drilling for gas on the ground of the mill. It proved a success, and has been the sole source of fuel for the iron and steel works, stamping-works, machine-shops, as well as the town of Cannonsburg and the buildings and grounds known as the Pennsylvania Reform School, at Morgantown.

Mr. Meyran took up about ten thousand acres of land in Washington county, which has since proved to be the best natural-gas field in that section of the state. Associating with himself several of the leading iron and steel manufacturers and business-men in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, he organized the Manufacturers' Natural Gas company of Pittsburgh, which speedily built a system of pipe-lines from these farms to the city of Pittsburgh. This enterprise involved an expense of over a million dollars. Mr. Meyran was chosen president of the company, a position he still holds.

Among the honors conferred on Mr. Meyran by his fellow-citizens of Pittsburgh may be mentioned the presidency of the German Library association, of the Frohsinn Singing society, and of the Immigrants' Aid society; chairmanship of the German-Franco Peace jubilee, also of the Humboldt Monument festival. In the business world of Pittsburgh he is a most important factor, holding many positions of trust and responsibility, notably in banking and insurance corporations. He is, and has been for the last twelve years, treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, and was chosen treasurer of the County Centennial festival, held in the year 1888.

Mr. Meyran married, in 1858, Miss Sophia Flowers, of Baldwin township, a descendant of one of the earliest pioneers of Western Pennsylvania. He has two children: one son, Louis A., who finished his education and graduated at Hanover, Germany, now married to Miss Marie, daughter of Charles F. Herrosee, Esq., secretary of the Allemania Insurance company, and one daughter, Emma, wife of W. A. Scott, Jr., firebrick manufacturer.

Mr. Meyran has many houses and stores in Pittsburgh, and has made extensive purchases in the suburbs of the city, which he has improved and disposed of as occasion occurred at great advantage. He has traveled extensively, having crossed the Atlantic a dozen times or more. He is a quiet but liberal friend of the poor and suffering, and has been a generous benefactor of many charitable institutions. Mr. Meyran has never been ambitious of political honors, but he has worthily served the city of Pittsburgh.
as a member of the councils and as school director, and also, in a semi-official way, in many capacities.

Algeo. About the year 1796 William and Margaret (Levens) Algeo came to Allegheny county from Letterkenny, County Donegal, Ireland. They had eight children, three sons and five daughters, and of these the eldest son, Robert, and a daughter, Jane, being married and comfortably settled, remained in Ireland. The eldest daughter, Rebecca, married a second cousin, William Algeo, of Rockhill, Ireland, and preceded her parents to this country some years. Her husband and she purchased a farm near Robinson's run, in the Chartier valley, Allegheny county. Her father, William Algeo, on coming to these shores located with his family near her, purchasing a farm in the same neighborhood. Here Margaret, daughter of William and Margaret (Levens) Algeo, married James Walker, brother of Gabriel and Isaac Walker, a family still well known in this neighborhood. Their daughter also married and located near Huntingdon, Pa. In a short time William Algeo died, leaving two sons, Thomas and John, and one daughter, Katherine, unmarried. The widow, disheartened by the death of her husband, and unused to the hardships of a new country, sold the farm and came to Pittsburgh about the year 1808. Thomas Algeo was a contracting painter, and he and his brother, John, did painting on the first and only ships built in Pittsburgh, also on the first county jail. In the year 1809, the brothers, Thomas and John, in connection with their nephews Gregg and William, sons of Rebecca Algeo, established a large store in Pittsburgh for the sale of general merchandise. They sent flour on flatboats to New Orleans, sold the boats and returned via New York with sugar and molasses. The family were among the first members of Rev. Dr. Black's church, the prayer-meeting in connection with which was held in the sitting-room in rear of the store on Market street for many years. Ministers attending meetings of the synod were often entertained by the family in those days, and their residence was often called "the ministers' home." In 1820 Margaret Levens, widow of William, died, highly respected by all who knew her, and beloved by her family. Katherine, the only remaining daughter unmarried, soon after her mother's death married Richard Jessup. She died in 1822. Thomas married Mary Laird, and after her death, which occurred in a few years, he married Mary Nesmith. John Algeo married Annabella, daughter of James McCague. The brothers Thomas and John Algeo owned some of the most valuable property in Pittsburgh on Fifth avenue and Wood and Liberty streets. Thomas Algeo, who died in 1832 without heirs, willed his property to his brother, some of which is still owned by the family. Their sister, Rebecca Algeo, owned the block on Liberty street at the corner of Seventh avenue now owned by McCance. She was the mother of Gregg and William Algeo. William was at one time commissioner for Allegheny county, was highly respected, and is still remembered by many in Pittsburgh. Gregg has a son William, who is living and engaged in active business at Beaver Falls. Rebecca was maternal grandmother to Gen. Thomas A. Rowley and the Lytle brothers, who are living and well known in Pittsburgh.

John and Annabella Algeo had six children who reached mature years. Their eldest son, Thomas, well known as a merchant on Liberty street, in the year 1839 established a gentleman's clothing and furnishing store, which was largely patronized by the young men of that time. He is now residing in St. Clair township. William J. Algeo was largely engaged in the coal and ice business, supplying large contracts in the south, and is at present living in Pittsburgh. Robert died in 1847. John died in 1856; he was associated with his brother, William J., in the coal and ice business. His widow married Capt. Greenlee, who with two sons and a daughter survives him. Sarah Ellen Algeo, daughter of John and Annabella, married, in 1847, Thomas M. Marshall, the well-known attorney, and died in 1857. She was much loved by all who knew her for her gentle Christian character. Catherine Algeo married Edward Oudry, and lives on Ridge avenue, Allegheny county. Another branch of the family, and worthy of note, is the family of John Algeo, a nephew of Rebecca. He married Miss Margaret Craig, of a highly respected family, and they had four sons, all worthy young men. Charles owned a jewelry establishment on Fifth avenue, and removed to Philadelphia. W. H. H. Algeo is an engraver and also an artist of some note. Wesley, who was engaged in real-estate business in the city of Allegheny, died in 1888, much beloved and much regretted by many friends. The widow of John still lives in Allegheny with her two sons, W. H. H. and John. Daniel McWilliams, county commissioner, Allegheny, a son of Daniel and Kate (McGrogan) McWilliams, was born in Allegheny county, Md., Dec. 31, 1843. His parents came from Scotland to America in 1811, first locating in Allegheny county, Md., and afterward, in 1846, settling in Pittsburgh, where they resided until their decease, Mrs. McWilliams dying in July, 1874, at the age of fifty-seven years, and Mr. McWilliams in January, 1875, at the age of fifty-eight years. Of their eleven children six are living: Daniel, Hugh, Kate, Mary, John and William. Dennis was in Co. D, 8th P. R., and after eighteen months' service was transferred to the 6th U. S. Cavalry, serving from Nov. 1, 1863, to May 9, 1865, when he died of wounds received. Hugh was also in the service for three years, 7th P. V. C.

Daniel McWilliams, the subject of this sketch, received his education in the public schools; when quite a young man he worked in the coal-mines as a miner, and afterward was a heaver in the iron-manufacturing establishments, April 17, 1861, he enlisted in Co. D, 8th P. R. C., or 35th P. V., and served with distinction until Sept. 14, 1862, when he was carried from the battlefield at South Mountain, with two severe wounds which crippled him for life and unfitted him for his usual avocation. In order to prepare himself for other duties he attended Duff’s Business College, where he graduated with credit. In 1881 he was elected county commissioner on the democratic ticket, and during his term of service the plans for the new courthouse and jail were prepared and adopted, contracts awarded and work begun. At the beginning of his official duties in 1882, by motion of himself and through the efforts of the county commissioners, about $400,000 was recovered from the state, being the amount of tax overpaid by the county in former years, and $30,000 annually has been, and will be saved since then by this action of the commissioners. Mr. McWilliams was again elected in 1887, and is now one of the efficient board of commissioners.

John L. Kennedy, grain and feed merchant, Allegheny, was born in that city in 1843. His father, John, was born in Pennsylvania, probably in Allegheny county, in 1809, and was a resident of the county until his decease, in 1854. He married Sarah Swiney, of Indiana township, near or what is now Harmarville, this county, and by her had four children: James B., John L., Susan (wife of Andrew Voegtley) and one that died in infancy. The father was a ropemaker, and for many years was a member of Henry Irwin’s rope factory. He was a member of the Baptist Church. His wife died in 1850, at the age of forty-one years. John L. Kennedy, the subject of this memoir, at the age of ten years went to live with his grandfather on a farm, where he remained seven years, and then enlisted in Co. K, 9th P. R., for three years, and in 1864 was honorably discharged, having served twelve years over his term of enlistment. Besides many minor engagements he participated in some ten important battles, among them being Antietam, Gettysburg, Frederickburg, South Mountain and Mine run. Since the war he has engaged at railroad, in oil business, as an officer in the Allegheny county workhouse, four years of the time as superintendent, since when he was for seven years engaged in the livery business in Allegheny, but recently he embarked in the grain, flour and feed trade. Mr. Kennedy was married December 10, 1866, to Anna C., daughter of John F. and Elizabeth Smith, and their children were James B., George C. John F. (deceased) and Lilian M. Mr. Kennedy is a F. & A. M. member of Veteran Legion and G. A. R., a member of the M. E. Church; in politics a republican.

Capt. John Rozena, retired, Allegheny, was born in Limerick street, in the borough, in 1815, a son of William and Martha Strahan, and has always resided in this county. His parents came from Ireland prior to the revolutionary war. Of their eight children Capt. John is the only one now living. The father died in 1859, and the mother, in 1864, aged eighty-four years. They were members of the Covenantant Church, and came to this country with Rev. Black, D. D., subsequently their pastor, in consequence of the rebellion in Ireland. Capt. John Rodgers was married May 11, 1843, to Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Jane (Elliott) Esler, and there were born to them eight children: Jane E., Martha, Sarah R., Elizabeth (deceased wife of William H. Bradley), Annie C., Mary P., (wife of William A. Davis), James McAuley and Thomas E. Mr. Rodgers has followed various avocations in life, first having learned the carpenter’s trade, which he followed until 1846, after which he followed raising sunken boats on the Ohio river. In 1850 he bought the steamer Arena, and became a river captain. He followed hoisting for seventeen years, for several years clearing out obstructions in the Ohio river under contract of the United States government. In 1872 he was engaged on the Allegheny Valley railroad as lost-car agent. During the late war he had charge of the transfer of specie between Pittsburgh and Cleveland, Ohio, and is said to have transferred about nine tons of gold and silver. He has passed his threescore years and ten, and has retired from the active duties of life, and with his affectionate wife is taking his much-needed rest, surrounded by his family of devoted children.

Sturley Cuthbert (deceased), son of Samuel and Mary Cuthbert, was born at Lynn Regis, county of Norfolk, England. Before reaching his majority he was the only survivor of his family. After serving an apprenticeship to a grocer, he came to Pittsburgh in 1818, walking over the mountains from Philadelphia. He took employment with Alex. McClurg in a foundry, and finally acquired an interest in the business. He established a dry-goods store on Market street, afterward removing to Liberty and Virgini alley and had the first large show-window in the city. He established the Union foundry at Bayardstown, now part of the city. He also established a foundry at Wheeling, W. Va., and built the machinery for the water-works of that city. While there he was very active in educating the colored people, but was forced to desist by the slave-owners. He suffered with others in the great fire of 1846, and began a very successful real-estate business immediately after that calamity, being the first in the city. He was a member of the first Pittsburgh hose company, and was among the most enterprising business-men of the young city. Soon after his arrival he began to attend Dr. Bruce’s Seceder Church, and there met Miss Margaret Miller, with whom he was united in marriage in 1850. Mr. Cuthbert was born in Carlisle, Pa., and was a daughter of William Miller, who left Ireland when five years old, and was a soldier in the Indian.
GENEALOGY AND BIOGRAPHY.

war, under Gen. William H. Harrison. Mr. Cuthbert was a trustee in Dr. Bruce's church, and was very active in organizing Sabbath-schools here and in Wheeling. He established a school on Mount Washington, and gave the ground for the present Presbyterian church, which he and his family have always sustained. His death, which occurred April 27, 1881, in his eighty-fifth year, was caused by exposure while visiting the old church, formerly Dr. Bruce's, on Seventh avenue.

Following are the names, with residence, of his children: Sturley L., Pittsburgh; Mrs. Margaret K. Browne (widow of Andrew Browne), Bellevue; Mrs. Mary J. Fetzer (widow of James A. Fetzer), Moon township; Samuel, died in his third year; William M., Pittsburgh; Mrs. Anna M., wife of W. C. Armstrong, is deceased; Miss Sarah W., Allegheny City, and Robert Bruce, Pittsburgh. S. L. Cuthbert became his father's partner in 1825, and has been more or less in the real-estate business ever since. He had previously been connected with the Pittsburgh Dispatch, as business-manager, from 1829 to 1852. He has resided with his family on Mount Washington for many years, and with the exception of two or three years has been identified with the Mount Washington Presbyterian Church and Sabbath-school, ever since their organization.

George HIRNING, painter, postoffice Allegheny, is a son of Jacob and Barbara Hirning, and was born in 1845 in Germany. The mother died in 1880, in Germany, where the father is yet living. George Hirning came in 1868 to the United States, and settled in Allegheny, where he has since resided. In October, 1871, he married Kate, daughter of Philip and Philippina Erb, of Allegheny, and by her has three children: Hiram John, Kate, and Mary. The mother of these children died Nov. 10, 1887, at the age of thirty-seven years, and in February, 1889, Mr. Hirning married his second wife, Barbara, widow of Ehrhard Lindauer, of Allegheny. Mr. Hirning learned the painter's trade, which for fifteen years he carried on successfully.

Ferdinand Malsch, butcher, Allegheny, is a son of G. Friedrich and Elizabeth Malsch, and was born in Germany in 1842. His father died in Germany in 1851, and in 1855 his mother, with her little family of three children, came to America, first settling in Cleveland, Ohio, where they remained two years, then came to Pittsburgh, where she still resides at the age of seventy-five years. Ferd. Malsch was married Aug. 29, 1863, to Margaret, daughter of Jacob Sadler, and six children have been born to this union: Frederick, Gustave, Alma, John, William and Henry. Mr. Malsch has followed the butchering business since he was sixteen years of age, first working for Philip Wilz, in Pittsburgh, afterward becoming his partner. In 1865 he severed his connection with Mr. Wilz, and moved to Allegheny, where he still follows his old business. He is a F. & A. M., and is a member and one of the founders of St. Peter's G. E. L. Church in Allegheny.

George Alfred Morrow (deceased) was born Sept. 6, 1859, in Allegheny City, a son of Samuel Morrow, who was born in Perrysville in 1818, and now resides in Allegheny City. Robert Morrow, grandfather of George Alfred, was a native of Ireland, came to America in an early day, and settled at Perrysville, Pa. George A. was educated in the public schools of his native city and in the Western University. In 1880 he embarked in the business of undertaking, which he carried on in the city of Pittsburgh until his decease. He was married April 17, 1884, to Clara Matilda Schwer, of Allegheny, and their children are Anna May and Sarah Edith.

William Zoller, pork-packer, Allegheny, was born in Allegheny City in 1850, the son of Henry and Sophia Zoller, who were born in Germany, came to America in 1839, and settled in this county, where they resided until their decease. The father died in 1869, the mother in 1888. Of their ten children the following named are living: Henry, Louis, Rachel (wife of Wendell Karp), William, Charles and Emma (wife of Benjamin Kalchthaler). Henry Zoller was a butcher by occupation; he was a member of the order of Druids, and of the Lutheran Church. William Zoller was married in October, 1872, to Henrietta, daughter of John Foercht, of Butler county, Pa., and they have had eight children: Matilda, Henry, Amelia, William (deceased), Minnie, Henrietta, Emma, and an infant named Rose L. William Zoller and his brother Charles took charge of their father's business after his decease, and remained partners until in 1892, when they dissolved partnership, William since conducting the business alone. He has purchased the old homestead on Spring Garden avenue, and by his industry, economy and business ability has become one of the substantial citizens of Allegheny. He is a member of the K. of P., Order of Solons, and of the Lutheran Church.

George W. Dean, insurance agent, Pittsburgh, is a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., the second son of William Dean, who was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, in 1811. William Dean first came to Pittsburgh in 1825, and found employment on a steamboat, continuing on the river till 1858, and rising to the position of pilot, commander and owner of different steamers. In 1859 he became general agent of the Allegheny Insurance company, having charge of its marine business. In this capacity he remained till 1885, when he retired from active business. In November, 1887, he married Aurelia, daughter of James Butler; both are now enjoying a happy age. The names of their children are William B., George W., John D., James B. (killed by accident while a child), Clara E. (wife of William L. Miller, of Beaver, Pa.), and Jennie D. (wife of J. P. Grissom), of whom William B., John D. and Jennie D. reside in St. Paul, Minu. George W. Dean was educated at Bolmers Academy, Westchapel, Pa. In May, 1857, he enlisted in the 9th P. R., Co. A, serving in the Army of the Potomac till the battle of Fredericksburg, when he was discharged to enter the naval service, with rank of acting ensign; was ordered to the Mississippi, and subsequently to the West Gulf squadron. He served on the gunboats Argosy, Key West, and iron- clad Cincinnatii, and was of the party detailed to receive the surrender of the Confederate gunboat Morgan, at Mobile, Ala. He resigned in May, 1865, and returned to Pittsburgh, where he entered the office of the internal revenue collector, as cashier. In 1868 he engaged in the fire and marine insurance business. Mr. Dean married, December, 1876, Mary C. Robertson, of Delaware City, Del., who died of consumption in 1884, and three years later he wedded Miss Jeanette A. Laird, of Pa. Fred Emrich, tanner, Allegheny, a son of Philip and Maria K. Emrich, was born in Rhenish Bavaria, Germany, in 1850, and came with his parents to America in 1865, settling in Allegheny, where he has resided ever since, with the exception of about two years spent in Columbus, Ohio. His father died in 1874, aged seventy-four years; his mother in December, 1888, aged eighty-two. They had nine children, of whom six are yet living: Philip, Philipena (widow of Henry Langner), Catherine (widow of Lewis Hebler), Caroline (wife of Frank Abt) and Henry. The subject of these lines commenced the tanning business in 1875, where he now resides, and is a dealer in hides and wool. He is a member of the K. of P.; ex-member of common council, having served as such four years, and is president of the Allegheny Turners' association. He was elected to select council of the city of Allegheny Feb. 19, 1889. Christian Unverzagt, general blacksmith, Pittsburgh, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1831. He learned his trade in his native land, and when nineteen years of age set up home and friends to make his fortune in America, locating in Pittsburgh, where he has since resided. He built his home on Forty-first street in 1857. In 1855 he married Caroline Matern, a native of the same locality as himself, and they have five children living, all resident in Pittsburgh, and named as follows: Louis J., William L., Jacob C. George L. and Kate C. E. Adolph, the third child, died when twenty-eight years old. Mr. Unverzagt has been with the Allegheny Valley railroad since November, 1869, in the capacity of spring-maker. He is a member of the Reformed Church; politically he has been a republican since Fremont's campaign.

John Seiling, butcher, Allegheny, son of Baltzer and Barbara Seiling, was born in Germany in 1838, and came to America in 1849, settling in this city in the same year, where he has resided ever since. His parents both died in Germany. In 1852 he married Caroline, daughter of Henry and Martha Feldbuch, and by this union there were five children; Emrich (wife of George Lenz), Frederick, Matilda and Minnie (deceased). Mr. Seiling learned the butcher's trade soon after coming to this country, and has been engaged in that business ever since; his son, William, is associated with him. Mr. Seiling has been placed in many positions of trust and honor by his fellow-citizens, having served eight years in the common council; was vice-president and treasurer of the Humboldt Fire Insurance company; is vice-president of the Enterprise Savings Bank. He has been a member of the poorboard, is a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the G. P. Church.

James Francis, bricklayer, contractor and builder, Allegheny City, son of John K. and Isabella (Wallace) Francis, was born in Scotland, Nov. 7, 1838, and came with his parents to America in 1839. They located in Pittsburgh, Pa., where they resided until 1865, when they moved to McKeesport, and here remained until the decease of the father, who died in February, 1888, at the advanced age of ninety years, his death resulting from injuries received by a fall; his widow is living at Homestead, this county, hale and hearty, at the age of eighty-six years. They were of old Scotch Presbyterian stock. Their family of ten children are all yet living, as follows: Isabella (wife of William Glass), Margaret (wife of Robert Sproat), John, Hugh, Catherine (wife of William Nicholl), Matilda (wife of John Lowery), William, James, Samuel and Elizabeth. The last-named is single and lives with her mother: Hugh resides in Wiscouf, from which state he enlisted as a soldier, for three years, in the army, serving until the close of the war, receiving an honorable discharge. Samuel Francis was born Oct. 31, 1838. He married Prudence McKnight, and their children were Belle W. (deceased), Jennie McKnight, William H., Edward S., Kate E., Anna R. and Edna L. Mr. Francis is a member of the firm of William & J. Franes & Co.

James Francis, the subject of this memoir, was married, Sept. 17, 1856, to Mary, daughter of John and 'Mary (Logan) Welsh, and by her has three children: Harvey H. (married to Bertha N., daughter of James Newland), John R. (married to Sarah E., daughter of William Richards) and Isabella (wife of Elmer E. Baldwin). Mr. Francis is a F. & A. M., and has attained the 32d degree. He has been a member of the firm of W. & J. Francis & Co., contractors and builders, since 1865, and since 1886 they have carried on brick-making in Pittsburgh, in connection with their other business.

William Greenawalt, tanner, Allegheny, is a son of Abraham and Rebeca Greenawalt, and was born in Hamburg, Mercer county, Pa., Oct. 22, 1844, one of a family of sixteen children, nine of whom are yet living. The mother died in 1865, at the age of sixty-two years, and the father in 1898. In 1875 he formed a partnership with David Beidler, and embarked in the tanning business in Reserve township, where the firm still carry on that business in connection with the buying and selling of wool. Mr. Greenawalt was married in December, 1871, to Annie, daughter of Christopher and Catherine Beidler, and by her had following-named children: Otto, Estella, and Edward and Arminia (both deceased). Mr. Greenawalt’s family are members of the G. L. Church.

Arch. H. Rowand, Jr., attorney at law, Pittsburgh, residence Verona, was born March 6, 1845, at Allegheny City, Pa. He is a great-great-grandson of John and Sarah (Matlack) Rowand, a great-grandson of John and Frances (Linnville) Rowand, a grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth (Sharp) Rowand, and a son of Archibald Hamilton and Catherine (Greer) Rowand, who were the parents of five children: Asaph Terry, Arch. Hamilton, Jr., Frank Parkhill, Thomas Arthur and Kate Fleming; all are living. The ancestors on the father’s side were Quakers; on the mother’s side Londonderry Protestant Irish.

The subject of this memoir was educated in the public schools in the city of Allegheny and by private tutors in the city of Pittsburgh. At the age of seventeen he enlisted for three years, or during the war, in Co. K, 1st W. V. C., and was at once placed in active service, and continued so until the close of the war. He served under Gen. Averill and Phil. H. Sheridan, and for gallant services received a medal of honor from the state of West Virginia; also one from Congress at the request of Gen. Sheridan. After his discharge, in 1865, he filled advanced positions in railroad offices till elected, in 1878, clerk of the courts of Allegheny county, to which position he was re-elected for additional three years in 1891. He was admitted to the Bar of Pa. in 1886, and now practices in all the county courts, the state supreme court, and the United States courts.

Mr. Rowand was married Oct. 17, 1867, to Sarah M. C., daughter of Richard C. and Mary Howard, of England, and by her had six children: Mary Kate, Harry, Sallie (deceased), Arch, Sheridan, Helen and Eliza Jeannette. The mother and family are members of the Methodist Church. Mr. Rowand is a straight republican.

John A. Verner, retired, Allegheny, a son of Benjamin and Sarah (Ainsworth) Verner, was born in Rutlandshire, England, Dec. 25, 1819. He came to America in 1842, landed in Pittsburgh June 16th of that year, and has resided in this county ever since. His father was a native of Ireland, and his mother of England, both of whom lived in the latter country. Mr. Verner was married, some two months after his arrival in this county, to Mary Palmer, a native of Ireland, and to them were born five children, three now living: John A., Mary and Anna, wife of John H. Purnell, of Allegheny county. Mr. Verner learned the tanner’s trade in this county, with J. H. Ralston, which occupation he followed about eight years. In 1853 he bought a farm in what is now Pinc township, on which he resided several years. He afterward became a contractor, and engaged in building streets and sewers. He has also been interested in various other enterprises, in all of which he has been eminently successful. Some years since he retired from active business, and is now enjoying the fruits of many years of earnest toil.

Jackman T. Stockdale, late of Allegheny, son of Joseph and Mary Stockdale, was born in Fredericktown, Columbiana county, Ohio, March 1, 1828, where he resided until in 1848, when he removed to Georgetown, Beaver county, Pa.; and in 1864 came to Allegheny, where he settled and resided until his decease, June 8, 1887. He was married August 3, 1848, to Mary J., daughter of William and Elizabeth Calhoun. Their children now living are Ida (wife of Homer S. Knowles), Willis D., Minnie (wife of Wells Dickson Webb), Mary B. (wife of John K. Ewing), Charles B., Jackman T., Jr., and Catherine M. Mr. Stockdale received a good common-school education, and during his seventeenth year taught school; he then engaged with Capt. Richard Calhoun as clerk on the steamboat American. He followed boating about eighteen years, during which period he built some fifteen boats, and became a well-known captain on the western and southern waters. After he settled in Allegheny City, he became interested in the oil-refining business, and held an interest in the Standard Oil company. He was also president of the Pittsburgh Savings Bank, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, secretary and treasurer of the Pleasant Valley Street railway, and secretary and treasurer of the People’s Street railway. He was a member of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and the latter church was changed to Allegheny. He left five children.

Barthel Erbe, retired, Pittsburgh, was born at Barchfeld, Hessen, Germany, May 23, 1834, a son of Henry and Anna Barbara (Funkart) Erbe. His grandfather, Peter Erbe, was a tanner, and his father was a locksmith. Having mastered his father’s trade, Barthel Erbe set out for America in 1848. After spending a few months in mining iron ore at Columbia, Pa., he came to Pittsburgh in August of that year, where he secured employment at the Novelty works, afterward at the Excelsior works. For more than twenty years after the name of the latter was changed to Variety he held the position of foreman of lock and scale department. Having made good investments in real estate, Mr. Erbe retired from active labor in 1873. He was one of the first stockholders of the German Savings and Deposit
HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Bank; was one of the incorporators of the Birmingham Fire Insurance company, in which he has been a director for three years, and is a trustee of the Odd-Fellows' Hall association. He is a member of the U. E. Church, of the I. O. F. and A. O. U. W., and is a republican. Mr. Erbe married Feb. 22, 1849, Maria Eichacher, who came from Bavaria the previous year. Mrs. Erbe died in January, 1889, leaving two sons, Henry and August Bernhardt, the latter of whom resides near Charles City, Iowa, on a farm of four hundred acres.

WILLIAM CARR, president Mechanics National Bank, Pittsburgh, was born in Killyleagh, County Down, Ireland, in 1817, and is the eldest child of Nathaniel and Catherine (Lowrey) Carr. His grandfather, John Carr, migrated from Scotland to Ireland, where he had been granted a large tract of land from the crown. His wife was Christina Fulton, who was also of Scottish extraction. William Carr was educated in the private schools of his native county, and in 1839 came to America. In 1846 he reached Pittsburgh on his way to Chicago. Here he met a merchant who knew his family, and was induced to take employment in his store. He eventually embarked in the wholesale trade with John Parker, and in 1852 became sole proprietor of the business, which he continued till 1871. He was also a partner for seven years in a Philadelphia wholesale grocery. In 1857 he became a director in the Mechanics' Bank, and was elected president in 1872. He is a member of Calvary P. E. Church; in politics is formerly a whig, but is now a democrat. Mr. Carr has been twice married, but has no children living.

WILSON McCANDLESS, president Allegheny National Bank, was born at Hanging Rock, Ohio, Aug. 22, 1840. His great-grandfather emigrated from England, and his grandfather, father, both named Wilson, were natives of this country. The latter came to Pittsburgh early in 1841, and was a prominent member of the Allegheny county bar. He died in 1858. Wilson received his education at the private schools of Dr. Black and Griggs & Veeder, and at the Western University. He began commercial life as a clerk for Alex. Gordon, a commission-merchant. (See sketch elsewhere.) In 1857 he entered the Allegheny National Bank as clerk, and has ever since been connected with that institution, in various capacities, having been president since 1883. Mr. McCandless attends Trinity P. E. Church, and is a republican. In 1863 he married Miss Aphia, daughter of Thomas Hamilton, a well-known Pittsburgh attorney, and they have two sons, Thomas Hamilton and Wilson.

JOSPEH LAURENT, cashier German National Bank, Pittsburgh, was born in Butler county, Pa., June 10, 1837. His grandfather, Martin Laurent, came from Germany to America in 1805, and settled on a farm in Butler county, when his son, Martin J., was twelve years old. The latter early took employment in a store, and later went into business on his own account. He married Teresa, daughter of Philip Bohn, who immigrated about the same time as the Laurent family, Teresa being then eight years old. Martin J. Laurent died of cholera in 1854, leaving nine children, of whom Joseph, who is the eldest, attended the public schools of Butler till twelve years old, when he came to Pittsburgh and found employment in a store. In 1859, when the German Bank was organized, Mr. Laurent was employed as bookkeeper, afterward becoming teller, then assistant cashier, and for twenty years has been cashier. He is a member of SS. Peter and Paul R. C. Church, East End. Politically, he is independent. In 1861 he married Mary Hume, of European birth and parentage, and of their children following are now living: Clara, Amelia, Emma, Florence A., Aloysius A., Rosa and Stella. The first-born died in infancy, and the second, Joseph Albert, a very promising youth, died at the age of nineteen, of heart disease.

HRY STAMM, banker, Pittsburgh, was born in the village of Ziegenheim, Westphalia, Germany, Feb. 11, 1832, and is a son of William and Mary (Riebeling) Stamm. His paternal ancestors had lived for many generations on an entailed estate, and enjoyed the exclusive privilege of keeping a hotel in the village. Henry Stamm was educated at public and private schools, and served three and one half years as scribe in the treasury department of his native province. When eighteen years old he set out for America, and after spending a few months in New York city came, in 1851, to Pittsburgh, where for eight years he was employed in a grocery-store, and afterward in the confectionery trade with William Rhodes. Selling out to the latter, he spent some time in salesmanship for wholesale grocers, and was a partner in the organization of the Iron and Glass Savings Bank he was elected secretary and treasurer, which position he now fills. He was active in the organization of the Frohsinn, is an adherent of the E. P. Church, and is a republican. In October, 1859, Mr. Stamm married Louise, daughter of Edward August and Johanna (Stamm) Moyle, all of German birth. Mr. and Mrs. Stamm had five children, only one of whom survives, a son named Edward Henry.

JOSHUA RHODES, president Pennsylvania Tube-works, Pittsburgh, was born in 1823, in London, England. Several years later his parents, Charles and Lucy (Kipps) Rhodes, came with their family of seven children to America and settled at Pittsburgh. The father, who was a lumber-dealer and lumber-merchant, died in 1840; the mother survived him forty-five years. Joshua Rhodes is the sixth child, and the only one living, save the youngest, a sister. When twelve years old he entered a grocery-store, and in 1838 he opened a similar establishment on his own account, but in following year was burned out. After a short trip to New Orleans he returned to Pittsburgh and engaged in the grocery trade with Joues & Gould. In 1843, he embarked in the confectionery trade, and soon after established the largest cracker-factory then in Pittsburgh, which he sold. He then engaged in the brewing business, as head of the firm of Rhodes & Verrier, who purchased the brewery of Tracy & Wilkinson. After building a large brewery and warehouse, Mr. Rhodes bought the interest of his partner, and afterward sold to Darlington & Co. He then leased a pipemill on Hale's Island, which he afterward bought; then formed a stock company with a capital of $1,200,000, of which he was made president, and purchased the Creston Tool-works at Soho, which is now the plant of the Pennsylvania Tube company. Mr. Rhodes, with others, secured the charter of the Union and Point bridges, and the Penn incline, and is president of the companies which operate them. He is a director in the Citizens' and Transverse Street railways, and in the Citizens' and Pittsburgh Traction companies; is a stockholder in the Pennsylvania Construction company. He was made a director in the Central National Bank, at its organization, and is now vice-president.

Mr. Rhodes married, in 1861, Eliza Hazlett, a native of Pittsburgh, of English descent, and they have four children: William, Joshua Walter, Mary and Annie. Mr. Rhodes voted for Henry Clay, and has always been a whig and republican. He and his wife attend the Presbyterian Church.

Joseph Frank Erny, bank cashier, Pittsburgh, was born in that city in 1859, and is a son of Frank A. and Elizabeth Erny. His grandfather, Michael Erny, and father came from Germany to Pittsburgh. The former was a locksmith, but retired from business soon after arriving here, and died, in 1873; the latter is a prominent undertaker and proprietor of livery on the South Side. Frank A. Erny here married Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Heisel, an old resident of the city. Joseph F. Erny was educated in the city schools and at St. Vincent's College in Westmoreland county, Pa.; graduated at Huff's Business College, and was employed four years in assisting his father. In 1879 he entered the German Savings and Deposit Bank as messenger, and by gradual promotions became cashier in 1885. He is a member of St. Michael's R. C. Church; in politics he is independent.

Henry C. Mehring, butcher, Allegheny, was born in Germany in 1856, a son of John and Ida Mehring, and came with his brother, Jacob Z., to America in 1870, settling in Allegheny City, where he has resided ever since. His parents came to this country in 1873, and settled in Harrisburg, Pa., where his father died in 1881, aged fifty-six years; his mother is still living in Harrisburg. They reared a family of seven children: Henry C., Jacob Z., John, John, Casper, William and Eliza. H. C. Mehring was married Jan. 10, 1883, to Catherine, daughter of Daniel and Margaret Lyon, of Allegheny, and to them have been born three children: Harry, Maggie and Ida. Mr. Mehring learned the butchering business in Allegheny, and has always followed same. In 1882 he commenced business for himself, dealing in meats, groceries and vegetables.

Rowland A. Balk, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born Jan. 1, 1851, in the city of Allegheny, Pa. He was educated in the public schools and by private tutors. He was admitted to the bar in April, 1874, and he has ever since been engaged in general civil practice.

Walter Lyon, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born in Shaler township, Allegheny county, Pa., April 27, 1853. He was admitted to the bar in January, 1877, and has ever since been engaged in active practice.

Thomas Fawcett, coal-operator, Pittsburgh, Pa., was born in Ravenstone, near Newcastle, England, May 6, 1827. The following year his parents, James and Elizabeth (Parker) Fawcett, came to Pittsburgh and settled on the South Side. James Fawcett was one of the pioneers in the coal business on the river, built many flatboats, mined coal at Green Springs, and supplied coal to steamers after the "floaters" or "broadhorns" were abandoned. He retired from business in 1849, and died in 1876; his wife died in 1874, aged seventy-one. James Fawcett was one of the incorporators of the First National Bank, and was its second president, holding that position at the time of his death. For more than forty years he was associated with the M. E. Church, and was a class-leader in a South Side congregation.

Thomas, the eldest of his seven children, was reared in the city, attending the public schools till thirteen years old, when he entered a select school, taught by Smith and Patch, on the site now occupied by the Monongahela House. In 1842 he took employment in a general boatstore, and three years later went into the grocery business on the South Side. After six years he sold out and commenced river trade, making his first trip to New Orleans with coal, in barges, in 1850. In 1858 he built the steamer Ormsby, in 1863 purchased the Jacob Painter, and two years later built the Painter No. 2. About the same time he bought the Bengal Tiger, and supplied coal to the government vessels on the lower Mississippi. Among the large steam-craft which he has built are the Lion, Boaz, Dart, Oakland, Acorn, Boaz No. 2, Maggie and Convoy, the last three of which are now in his service on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. In 1874 Mr. Fawcett bought the Green Springs coal-mines, from which he took ten million bushels of coal, the supply being exhausted in 1886. He has also mined on lands owned by others, having purchased the mineral, and owns three hundred acres of land, from which... he is mining, at Webster, on the Monongahela.

Mr. Fawcett was an incorporator of the Central Bank, of which he has been president from its organization; was three years director in the Citizens' Bank before it organized under the national system, and has been a director of the Birmingham Bridge company since its organization; is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and adheres to the religious creed of his father. Associating with the whigs on becoming a voter, he has continued on the same line with the republican party. In 1847 Mr. Fawcett married Margery Haughton, of English ancestry and American birth, and of their nine children six are living: James T., Thomas, Elizabeth (Mrs. Lambert Hartley, in Tarentum, Pa.), Clara Estella (wife of Henry Lloyd, Pittsburgh), Cora B. and Louis P. The deceased were the fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively, in order of age, viz.: Margaret Taylor (Mrs. H. Lloyd), Jennie Wilson and Florence Kramer. The oldest son has been a partner in the coal business since 1872, and the second since 1874.

Stewart S. D. Thompson, president Armenia Insurance company, Pittsburgh, was born in Manchester, now a part of Allegheny, September 4, 1841. His grandfather and father, both named Stewart Thompson, came from the north of Ireland to Allegheny county, and the father died when our subject was nine years old. Young Stewart then went to Penn township, where he was reared among relatives, his education being finished at Wilkinsburg Academy. When nineteen years old he returned to Allegheny and studied law for two and one-half years. His mother, Margaret Thompson, was a daughter of Maj. Thomas Sampson, who came from Ireland and served in the revolutionary army. John Sampson, son of Maj. Thomas, was a lieutenant in the war of 1812, and took part in the battle of Black Rock. He settled very early in Penn (then Wilkins) township, where he died in 1839. His son George died at Suffolke, Va., in 1863, while serving in the 101st P. V., in the Union army. In 1861 Mr. Thompson married Bella S., daughter of Andrew Scott, a native of Ireland. He soon after engaged in the fire-insurance business, and was made almost bankrupt by the losses of companies in which he held stock, through the Chicago fire of 1871. In 1872 he organized the Armenia Fire Insurance company, was elected its president, and has ever since held the position without having a vote cast against him. He was for nine years a member of the Allegheny City council, and has served several years as school director. He is a republican, and a member of the Sixth U. P. Church of Allegheny.

Philip Reymer, wholesale confectioner, Pittsburgh, was born in that city June 28, 1824. His grandfather, Peter Reymer, came from Germany when a boy, in 1766. He joined the continental army as a fifer, and served through the revolutionary war, being a member of the unhappy band that wintered at Valley Forge. When peace came, he settled at Greencastle, Franklin county, Pa., where he died. His son, Peter, born at Greencastle in 1798, married Maria Evans, a native of New York, and came, in 1816, to Pittsburgh, where he kept a shoeshop on Diamond alley, many years. During the latter part of his life, he was several years overseer of the penitentiary; he died in 1876, in religion a Baptist, in politics a republican, formerly an old-line whig. His wife died in her sixty-sixth year. They had ten children, eight of whom grew up: Philip, Griffith P., Jacob S., Harmer D., Sarah (Mrs. Morrison), James, Cornelia Ann (Mrs. Christian Suively) and George.

Philip Reymer was educated at the public schools of the city, and has been in the confectionery business since he was sixteen years old. In 1852 he began for himself, as head of the firm of Reymer & Anderson, which, in 1861, became Reymer & Brothers, and has continued so since, the business having been greatly enlarged. For a time he was a partner with Joshua Rhodes in the firm of Rhodes & Co. He is a director in the Mechanics' National Bank and Western Insurance company. In 1858 Mr. Reymer married Hannah C. Riter, a native of Chester county, Pa., daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Riter, of German ancestry, and by her has following-named children: Clement C., Ida B., Elizabeth A. and Philip.

Jacob Stottler Reymer, wholesale confectioner, Pittsburgh, was born in 1832, in Plum township, this county, where his parents lived for a few years. (See sketch of Philip Reymer.) He was educated in the city schools, and has supported himself since fourteen years of age. At that period of his life he went into a hotel and restaurant, where he was employed four years. For eleven years he was with Miller & Ricketson, well-known grocers, and in 1861 embarked in business with his elder brother. He has been a director of the Commercial National Bank since its organization. In 1859 Mr. Reymer married Lydia A., daughter of John Black, for many years a prominent grocer of Pittsburgh, of Scotch-Irish descent, and five children have blessed their union: Annie, Jennie B., Philip, Jacob and Samuel S. Like his father, Mr. Reymer is a republican; he attends the Presbyterian Church.

Frederick Linke, tanner, Allegheny, is the only son of Frederick and Henrietta Linke, and was born in Saxony, Germany, in 1836. He came with his mother and three sisters to America in 1854, his father having preceded them one year to provide a home for them on their arrival, which he did by purchasing a small farm in Saxonburg, Butler county, Pa. Frederick Linke, whose name heads this sketch, has three sisters, Laura (widow of August Kornalump), Minnie (wife of Fred Stemmler) and Amelia (wife of August Wagner, who was a soldier in the late war, and a long time in Andersonville prison). The father of these children returned to the old country in 1833, and died there at the age of eighty-three years; the mother died in Butler county, Pa., in June, 1883, aged seventy-two years.

Our subject graduated in the high-school of his native place at the age of fourteen years, and then commenced to learn the grocery and banking businesses, giving his services and $100 for four years' instruction. Soon afterward he came to this country, and set out to make his own way in the world, and for five years but few young men ever met with greater discouragements and hardships. He worked in mills, factories, and on canal-boats, with commendable courage and indomitable will, until 1859, when he obtained employment with Rennack, Hart & Co., at $2.50 per week. With that company and their successors he remained for twenty-three years, and was gradually promoted, until he found himself filling the most remunerative position of that firm. In 1882 Mr. Linke formed a partnership with Mr. Woelfel in the tanning business, and this firm is now ranked among the substantial firms of Allegheny City. Mr. Linke is a director in the German Fire Insurance company of Pittsburgh. He is a member of the G. E. Church.

He has been twice married: first in 1858, to Sophia, daughter of Conrad and Julia Mussler, and by her had one child, Laura. Mrs. Linke died in 1867, and Mr. Linke next married, in 1868, Amelia Steifel, of Wheeling, W. Va., a daughter of J. L. and Barbara Steifel, and by this marriage have been born three children: Norma, Frederick and Edgar.

Ernst Henry Myers, pork-packer, Pittsburgh, was born in Nov. 14, 1824, in Osnabrück, Hanover, Prussia, and was reared on a farm there, receiving an ordinary German education. After reaching maturity he came to America, and spent one year in Cumberland, Md., coming to Pittsburgh in 1847. In course of time he secured employment in a retail grocery, and in 1850 bought out a store, which he conducted for seven years. He then engaged in the wholesale grocery and flour trade. He soon bought the property he now occupies, at the corner of Seventh street, and in a few years turned his attention to the pork and provision trade. The organization of the German National Bank, and first meetings of its directors, took place in his office, and he has ever since been a member of the board. He was one of the organizers of the Concordia Orphans' home, of which he is treasurer; is treasurer of the Manufacturers' Natural Gas company, and a director of the People's Natural Gas & Pipe company, of Allegheny. Mr. Myers was nine years a trustee in the First G. L. Church, and was instrumental in securing its present location. In 1856 he married Amelia Fredericka Degan, of German birth, who died in 1863, leaving three children. Mr. Myers afterward married Amelia Sophia Landwehr, a native of Pittsburgh, who bore him six children. Following are the names of all Mr. Myers' children, in order of birth: Louisa Fredericka (wife of August E. Sack, partner with Mr. Myers), Charles Henry, Amelia Sophia (deceased wife of Theodore Siebert), Ernst Henry, Ada Sophia, Irene Margareta, John Henry Wilbert, Laura and Emma.

Charles H. Myers, born July 29, 1858, married, June 7, 1883, Rebecca Applegate, a native of Monongahela City. They have one son and one daughter: Ernst Charles and Amelia Emma. Charles H. Myers is a member of the firm of E. H. Myers & Co.

Thomas Edwards, machinist, Pittsburgh, was born in Baltimore, Md., May 20, 1826, a son of Thomas and Jane (Barr) Edwards, of Ireland. Thomas, Sr., who was a weaver, came to Pittsburgh in 1832. Both he and his wife were about sixty-nine years old when they died. Thomas Jr., attended the subscription schools and later the free schools, and when twenty-two years old began to learn blacksmithing and wagon-work, and was eighteen years in the Pennsylvania railroad machine-shops at Pittsburgh. Since 1870 he has been employed by the Allegheny Valley railroad company. He built his present residence on Penn avenue, near Forty-first street, in 1859. In 1849 he married Margaret Bradwell, who died of cholera in 1854. They had two children: Ann and Franklin Pierce, her children, reside in Pittsburgh. In 1857, Mr. Edwards married Mary Wilcock, who died in 1873, the mother of Edwin Thomas, Samuel, Emily and Lily.

Charles W. Lighthill, foreman in rolling-mill, Allegheny, is a son of John and Nancy (Kelso) Lighthill, former of whom was a native of this county, born in 1809, and resided here all his life, dying in November, 1883; his widow is still living at the age of seventy-seven years. They were parents of eleven children, six of whom are yet living: Sarah (wife of John Weir), Charles W., Mary, David (who served in the Union army and in navy during the war and is now wharfmaster), Hannah (wife of James H. Lindsay) and Adda. The parents were members of the First Christian Church of Allegheny; by occupation Mr. Lighthill was a gardener and farmer. The paternal great-grandfather of Charles W., a German by birth, came to America about 1780, settling in Pittsburgh, where he followed teaming over the mountains for many years, and his son George (grandfather of our subject), born in Pittsburgh in 1780, served in the American army, war of 1812, and died in 1867 at the age of eighty-seven years.

Charles W. Lighthill was united in marriage Feb. 28, 1859, to Caroline, daughter of James and Mary Ferguson, of Washington county, Pa., and the fruits of this union have been two children: Sallie (wife of J. H. Crawford) and Charles S. Mr. Lighthill learned the coachmaking trade in New Haven, Conn., and after completing same he returned to this county, where he followed
JOHN GEORGE KLAUSS, retired, Pittsburgh, was born in Bavaria, Germany, Nov. 16, 1829. His father, Leonard Klauss, was a shoemaker; his mother's maiden name was Wideman. He learned his father's trade, and came to Pittsburgh when of age. For about thirty-two years he engaged in the shoe business on Fifth avenue. He is a member of the firm of Whitmyre & Co., proprietors of the Iron City Flour-mills; a director in the German-American Insurance company, and stockholder in the Fifth Avenue Bank.

CHARLES WOODRUFF SCOVEL, Pittsburgh, was born Aug. 16, 1829, in Springfield, Ohio, son of Rev. Sylvester F. Scovel, D. D., now president of the University of Wooster, Ohio, who was nearly twenty years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh. The paternal grandfather of C. W. Scovel was Rev. Sylvester Scovel, D. D., president of Hanover College, Ohio. Charles came in 1866 to Pittsburgh, graduated from the Central high-school of that city in 1880, and from the Western University of Pennsylvania with first honors in 1883. He received his legal education in the office of William Scott, Esq., at the Columbia Law School, N. Y., and at the University of Berlin, Germany, and was admitted to practice in Allegheny county in July, 1886. He was married, June 24, 1886, to Sara Wilson Butler, and their children are Sylvester Butler and Sara Wilson Scovel. In addition to the active duties of his profession, Mr. Scovel finds time to fill the post of a church organist and to contribute a weekly musical article to the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

LEONARD KAUFMANN, roller, Pittsburgh, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, Sept. 29, 1839, and is the youngest of the six children of Peter and Elizabeth (Boch) Kaufmann. In 1848 the family came to America, and after sojourning in various parts of Ohio, settled at Columbus, in that state, in 1855. Here the father, who was a blacksmith, died in 1860, aged sixty-one; his widow passed away two years later, at the age of sixty. When ten years old, Leonhard Kaufmann commenced work, when out of school, at tobacco-stripping for a cigar-maker. At thirteen he entered a rolling-mill, and has followed the same employment ever since. In 1880 he came to Pittsburgh and has his charge of a set of rolls at the Republic Iron-works for several years. He has been a stockholder in the Birmingham Insurance company for twelve years, and for three years a director; is also a stockholder in the German Savings and Deposit Bank. He is liberal in religious views, and is a democrat. In 1865 Mr. Kaufmann married Carolina, daughter of Andrew and Katharina Decklar, all of Bavarian birth, latter of whom resides with the Kaufmanns. Eight children have been born to this union: Carolina (wife of Fred Dorzbacher), Charles, John (who died when a child), Louise, Amelia, Edward, Ida and Albert.

EDWARD ABEL, bookkeeper, Pittsburgh, was born in that city July 25, 1842. His father, Henry Abel, was born at Geiss, Saxe-Weimar, Germany, in 1801, and was a brother of Ignatius Abel (see sketch of Joseph Abel). He studied law at the University of Jena, from which he took the degree of LL. D. in 1829. In 1832 he came to Pittsburgh in company with some fellow-students, with the view of adopting a rural life, but soon found use for his talents in the city, and was appointed to the charge of foreign mails at Pittsburgh under President Jackson. This position he held for thirty-eight years, being remarkable for memory and scholastic ability. He died in 1884, aged eighty-three years, leaving four sons and two daughters. He married Elizabeth Schaffer, who was born in Lancaster, Pa., a daughter of Ambrose and Barbara Schaffer, of Baden, Germany. Following are the names of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Abel's children: Edward, Charles, Henry, Ferdinand, Josephine (Mrs. A. C. Kloman) and Tillie, all save Henry, who is in Denver, Colo., being residents of Pittsburgh. Edward Abel was educated in the city schools and at St. Vincent's College, Westmoreland county, Pa., and when nineteen years old he entered Pittsburgh post-office as mailing-clerk. In April, 1861, he enlisted for three years in Co. C, 8th P. R., serving two years in the Army of the Potomac; was a sergeant of the company and paymaster of the regiment. During the peninsular campaign he received an injury which caused his discharge. At Charleston City cross roads he was made a prisoner, and confined three months at Richmond and Belle Isle. On his return to Pittsburgh he was employed as bookkeeper in the office of the Commercial. In 1870 he was elected director and treasurer of the Commercial Printing company, in which he continued till the concern was sold to King, Reed & Co., being manager during the last four years. In 1877 he entered the German National Bank as bookkeeper, which position he held until 1881, for six years a member of the Bankers' and Bank Clerks' association for twelve years. Mr. Abel married, Jan. 9, 1861, Maria, daughter of James and Mary Ann Keegan, of Irish extraction, and they have two sons: Henry J. and Adelbert. Mr. Abel and family are associated with the Holy Trinity R. C. Church. He is the only republican in his father's family.

James F. Walker, marble-dealer, Allegheny, was born in England in 1831, a son of William and Harriet Walker, and came with his parents to America same year, settling in Pittsburgh. Of six children born to the parents only two are living: James T. and George J., latter of whom was in the United States army during the entire period of the civil war. William Walker was a contractor and builder; he died in 1841 at the age of thirty-one years; his widow died March 31, 1879. Their son, James T., married Nov. 5, 1856, to Mary, daughter of Samuel and Jane Lewis, and to them were born two children: Thomas M. and Edith M. Mr. Walker learned the marble trade, which he has always followed. In 1889 he and his son Thomas M. formed a partnership, and started the marble business under the firm name of Walker Marble company, which they still continue in the city of Allegheny.

Reuben F. Bauman (deceased), son of Dr. Jacob and Joseba (Fahnestock) Bauman, was born in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1821, and came to Allegheny county in 1846, settling in Pittsburgh. In 1848 he was married to Hannah, daughter of Andrew and Rachel (Howell) Davis, of Franklin county, Pa., and to them were born eight children, only three of whom are living: Bolivar A., Gerrett D., and Reuben F., Jr. Dr. Jacob Bauman, father of Reuben, Sr., died near Harrisburg, where for many years he had been a prominent physician; his widow died in Lancaster county. Reuben F. Bauman, Sr., died Dec. 29, 1885, at the age of sixty-five years; his widow is still living at the age of sixty-seven, and her sons, Bolivar A. and Gerrett D., reside with her. Reuben F., Jr., was married in 1877 to Annie Harper, of Allegheny, and they have one child, Battice.

Mr. Bauman, Sr., early in life learned the cabinet-maker's trade. He first came to Pittsburgh to clerk in the wholesale drugstore of B. A. Fahnestock & Co., subsequently becoming a member of the firm of B. L. Fahnestock & Co., wholesale druggists and white-lead manufacturers, of Pittsburgh. In after years and until his death he was a member of the firm of Beymer, Bauman & Co., white-lead manufacturers.

Henry Clay Bughman, coal-operator, Pittsburgh, was born in Allegheny City, March 22, 1848. He is the second child of Reuben Bughman, who was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., and came to Pittsburgh when a youth, about the year 1834, to enter the wholesale grocery-stores of his uncle, Jacob Painter, in which he became a partner and continued as such till his death, which occurred Sept. 22, 1865, when he was forty-seven years old. He was also interested in iron-manufacturing. He married Anne E., daughter of James H. and Mary Hays, latter of whom died Oct. 12, 1887, in her sixty-sixth year. Their eldest child, Anna H., died Sept. 22, 1879. The youngest, James Hays, is now a teller in the Citizens' National Bank. James Harden Hays, father of Mrs. Bughman, was of Scotch and French extraction. His immediate ancestors were settlers in Eastern Maryland, whence toward the close of the last century they moved across the mountains to Pennsylvania, and finally located near Pittsburgh. He was born in Mifflin township, in 1800, and died March 30, 1876. His wife survived him till 1892. Henry C. Bughman was reared in Allegheny, and graduated at the Pennsylvania Military Academy, Chester, as a civil engineer, in 1863. Next year he entered the Keystone Bank of Pittsburgh, as an assistant, and resigned as cashier in 1875. He soon entered the employ of his uncles, Henry B. & John S. Hays, who were engaged in mining and shipping coal. From 1878 to 1881, as vice-president, he represented the Waverly Coal & Coke company, in New York city and the east. In the latter year he became a director in the Citizens' National Bank and Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, and is now a vice-president of the last-named institution. After the death of H. B. Hays, in 1881, he became a trustee of the estate of James H. Hays, and since the death of J. S. Hays, in 1889, has been sole trustee. In 1871 he married Maria, daughter of George A. Berry, and they have four children, named George Berry, Virginia Frances, Genevieve and Henry Clay. Mr. Bughman has been an elder in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church since 1882, and in politics is a republican.

Frank Anton Erny, dealer in feed, Pittsburgh, Pa., was born within seven miles of Strassburg, Germany, in 1837, a son of Michael and Katharinc (Kertzinger) Erny. His grandfather was a magistrate of the province, and lost a large property during the aggressive campaigns of Napoleon I, afterward partially recovering his fortune by the manufacture of charcoal. Michael Erny was... a locksmith, and came to Pittsburgh about 1840, found employment in an Allegheny machine-shop, where he continued till his death, cooperating in his eighty-eighth year; Katharine, his second wife, died seven months previously, at the age of seventy. Frank A., her only son, was reared in Allegheny, and when twelve years old began work in the South Side Coal-mines, operated by his half-brother. At the end of twelve years, he acquired an interest in the mines, which he held for many years. He has been long established in the feed business at his present location on Carson street, and is also partner in a livery and undertaking business near by. July 8, 1858, he married Elizabeth Heisel, and has ten children: Joseph F. (see his sketch), Frank P., associated with his father in business; Margaret, Mrs. Frank Kleeber; Katharine, Mary, Stella, Xavier, Philip, Stella and Michael. The family is associated with St. Michael's R. C. Church.

Johnston Lecky, retired, Allegheny, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1809, son of William and Jean (Henderson) Lecky. His grandfather, Benson Lecky, came to this country at the beginning of the revolutionary war and served in the American army until peace was declared. He married Mary, daughter of Samuel Johnston (her brother was probably the first postmaster in Pittsburgh). Benson Lecky's son, William, was born in Pittsburgh, where he resided all his life. He was a wagon-maker by trade, but for many years he took an active part in politics; he was sheriff of Allegheny county three terms. He reared a family of two sons and eight daughters, only one of whom is living, Elizabeth. William Lecky died in 1853, aged seventy-two years; in his widow in 1866, aged eighty-three years. Johnston Lecky was married in 1830, to Jane, daughter of Hon. William and Mary (Davis) Cochran, and to them were born eight children: William (in oil business in Oil City), George, Eliza, Mary D., Jeannette H., Theodore J. (deceased), and two that died in infancy. Mr. Lecky was a painter by occupation. He died in California, Oct. 8, 1849, aged forty years. The Lecky family came of Presbyterian stock, and were members of their communion.

James M. Hemphill (deceased) was born in Ireland in 1830, a son of Robert and Martha Hemphill, and came with his parents to America in 1837, settling in this county. Robert Hemphill was twice married, and the following were his children: James M., Jane (twice married, first to John Campbell, next to William Taylor), Sarah (wife of Samuel Speer, both deceased), Nancy (deceased), James (deceased), John (deceased), and Margaret (Mrs. Trivet), who died leaving a daughter, now the wife of Charles Magore. Mrs. Robert Hemphill died in 1859, and Robert Hemphill in 1868. At the age of nine years James M. Hemphill went to live and farm with his cousin, William Morris, until the age of seventeen he was apprenticed to James Mondon to learn wagon-making; after mastering the trade, in 1858, he bought out Mr. Mondon, and continued in that business for about thirteen years, when he engaged in the Standard Oil Company; he extended this business until he employed about 150 men. He has the reputation among those who knew him of having been one of the most energetic, successful and honorablebusinessmen of Allegheny City. He was married March 6, 1852, to Ann Maria, daughter of James and Mary Carr, and to them were born children as follows: Anna C. (wife of Charles Herbert, both deceased), Mary E. (Mrs. Charles Lewis), Robert C., Martha V. (wife of Gilmore Evans), Luella W., James S. and Edna. Mr. Hemphill was a member of the F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F., and for twenty-six years of the M. E. Church, in which he was a steward and trustee.

Albert A. Porter, merchant, postoffice Shousetown, was born in Leet township, Allegheny county, Pa., Sept. 27, 1845, a son of Nathan and Julia (Anderson) Porter. Nathan, a son of Caleb, was born in Westmoreland county and his wife in Washington county, Pa. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a daughter of Robert Anderson. Nathan was first an engineer on a steamboat, but afterward established the shipyards at Shousetown, in partnership with his brother, Ezra, and Samuel Shouset. The Porter brothers afterward purchased Mr. Shouse's interest, and conducted the business alone until 1867, when Ezra Porter died. Nathan then conducted the business until 1870. Porter Brothers built many boats, the last being the Great Republic, the finest ship built in this part of the country. Nathan died in Jan., 1891. He and wife had two sons and one daughter: Albert A., Edmond H., on the homestead in Shousetown, and Clara E., wife of Ephraim Langfit, a farmer in Beaver county. Albert A. was educated in Shousetown and Pittsburgh, finishing his education in the latter place. He first worked a year in a boatyard with his father, when he accepted the position of clerk on his uncle's boat, the Glide No. 3. He also acted as clerk on the steamers Savannah and Gleaner, from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati and St. Louis, also two years on the boat Economist on the Arkansas river. In 1873 he opened a general store in Shousetown, which he still continues, and carries a stock valued at $5,000. He married at Pittsburgh, in October, 1873, Ada McKee, who was born in Pittsburgh, a daughter of John and Catherine (Van Hook) McKee. Her father was a glass-manufacturer of Pittsburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Porter have two sons: David Ross and Edwin Forrest. Mrs. Porter is a member of the M. E. Church; he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Dexter Lodge, 728.

Thomas Tate, merchant, Pittsburgh, was born in County Antrim, Ireland, April 15, 1855, a son of Samuel and Jane (Kooy) Tate, who were farmers in that county, where they died. Mr. Tate received a common-school education in Ireland, and Nov. 13, 1854, immigrated to Pittsburgh. For the first three years he labored at different kinds of work, then for six years was employed on a steamboat, and from 1861 to 1867 on the Pennsylvania railroad. After engaging in the gardening business for three years at the East End, he came into Pittsburgh in 1877, and commenced the produce business, under firm name of Steele, Tate & Co. Eighteen months later he bought out Mr. Steele, and the firm became Thomas Tate & Co., which continued until 1880. In 1882 he again embarked in the commission business, the style of the firm being the Pittsburgh Produce Commission company, Myers & Tate, proprietors. Mr. Tate was married in the old country when eighteen years old, but that wife and her children died several years ago. In 1880 he married Elizabeth Hibler, of Allegheny, who is the mother of one child, named Thomas. Mr. and Mrs. Tate are members of the U. P. Church; he is a republican.

Capt. Thomas H. Lapsly, superintendent of the railmill department at the Edgar Thomson Steel-works, Braddock, is a native of this county, born Dec. 23, 1821, to William and Sarah (Barr) Lapsly, who were the parents of eleven children, T. H. being the tenth in order of birth, and the only survivor except one—Robert Lapsly, of Missouri. The parents were natives of County Antrim, Ireland, and the father came to America when twenty-three years of age. He was a tailor by trade, but later in life engaged in farming. The subject of this sketch was educated at the public schools of Allegheny county, and at fifteen years of age commenced work in a sawmill, subsequently learning the trade of carpenter, which he followed for five years. In 1844 he entered the service of the Brady's Bend Iron company, and from there, in 1854, was called to the Cambria Iron-works at Johnstown, Pa., where he remained (except while in service at the front during the rebellion) until 1875, when he entered the service of the Edgar Thomson Steel-works company, at Braddock. In April, 1861, being captain of a military company, he responded promptly to a telegram from Gov. Curtin, by hastening to Harrisburg, where he marched into Camp Curtin at the head of his company, and bears the honor of being the first soldier to enter that historic camp. His command was mustered in as Co. G, 3d regiment P. V. I., and was in active service three months. Capt. Lapsly then organized Co. D, 54th regiment P. V. I., and enlisted for three years, remaining at the front until the expiration of his enlistment. Capt. Lapsly was married, Oct. 27, 1846, to Margaret, daughter of James Campbell, of Allegheny City, and six children were born to them: Sarah, James, William, Mary, John and Ida, all still living except Mary. The captain is a F. & A. M., a member of the I. O. O. F. and G. A. R., and is a republican.

John Rinard, superintendent of the converting department in the Edgar Thomson Steel-works, Braddock, was born in Bedford county, Pa., March 4, 1840, a son of George and Ann (Cogan) Rinard, the parents of thirteen children, of whom John is fourth in order of birth. George Rinard is a carpenter by trade, and is now a resident of Bedford county. Pa. John Rinard was educated at the common schools, and early in life commenced working in iron, being employed by King & Bolls, of Bedford county. In 1863 he entered the employ of the Cambria Iron-works, where he remained until 1875, in which year he accepted his present position. In 1861 Mr. Rinard enlisted in Co. G, 12th Reserves, serving three months, and then re-enlisted in Co. D, 79th P. V. I.; was wounded at Chaplin Hill, Ky., in October, 1862, and was honorably discharged from the service in 1863. He was married May 19, 1864, to Lucinda, daughter of Mathias Speigleinger, and four children were born to them, three now living: James M., William E. and Charles C. Mr. Rinard is a F. & A. M., and a member of the A. O. U. W. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

Robert Maxwell, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, is a native of Patton township, born in 1840. His parents, Hugh and Agnes Maxwell, came to America from County Down, Ireland, in 1850, and settled near Stewart's Station, in Patton township. Mrs. Maxwell was a sister of C. M. Graham, and died in 1870, aged seventy-two years; her husband died at the age of sixty, in 1890, and both were members of the U. P. Church. Two of their sons died in the service of their country; James was killed at the battle of Fair Oaks, and John died while a prisoner of war from the effects of a wound received at the battle of Sulphur Springs. Robert remained on the home farm, of which he became owner, until 1872, when he went away and built his home near Monroeville. In 1863 he enlisted in Co. G, 136th P. V. S., and served the term for which that body was enrolled (nine months) with the Army of the Potomac, taking part in the battle of Chancellorsville. He was sick when the regiment was at Fredericksburg, its only other engagement. In 1864 Mr. Maxwell married Mary M. Dougherty, and the names of their children are as follows: John Lobingier, Moffett Walkinshaw, Laura Etta Catherine, David Henry Hugh, Birdie May, William Haymaker, Jennie Elizabeth and George Park, all at home except the eldest, who is clerk in a store at Turtle Creek. Mr. Maxwell is a democrat. His family are connected with the Presbyterian Church.

Peter Chapelles Reniers, sculptor, postoffice Turtle Creek, a native of Antwerp, Belgium, is a son of Cornelius Joseph and Mary Reniers, and was born March 28, 1825. He was educated in his native city, Brussels and Paris, where he gave special attention to art. In 1848 he contracted to execute some John W. Ingalls, carpenter, postoffice McKee's Rocks, son of Barnard (a gardener) and Rebecca Ingalls, was born in Hancock county, Me., in 1856, and was brought by his parents to Stoew township, this county, in 1858, where they settled. They had two children: Thomas and John W. The father died in 1865 at the age of fifty-two years; the mother is now living with her son, John W., in Stoew township, at the age of sixty-two years. The subject of this memoir learned the trade of carpenter, which he still follows. He is a Royal Arch Mason, and a member of Lodge 24, I. O. O. F.; is also a member of the school board of Stoew township.

Thomas Sanders, farmer, Bakerstown, was born in Derbyshire, England, in 1820, son of John and Elizabeth (Kent) Sanders, former of whom was born fourteen miles north of here, at Duffield, and died Sept. 30, 1867, aged seventy-eight years; latter was born in Derbyshire, and died in 1859, aged sixty-six years. They immigrated to America in 1830, remaining from July until the following fall in Baltimore, Md., and came over the mountains in wagons, settling in Butler county. They lived on different farms near Bakerstown until 1849, when they purchased the place Thomas now lives on, and where his parents died. They were members of the M. P. Church, the present church at Bakers- town being organized by John Sanders in 1838; prior to that time Methodist meetings were held at his house. The paternal grandfather of our subject was William, and his grandfather was William; the latter lived to the age of one hundred and six years. Thomas says he was married in 1848 to Elizabeth, daughter of John and Amelia (Hoff) Pluchel, natives of Germany, and two children have blessed this union: Emma and Clarence. Mr. Pluchel is a baker. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

George Wilson Hazlett, farmer, Culmerville, was born May 7, 1843, in Harrison (then East Deer) township, son of George and Elizabeth (Kamins) Hazlett. Mr. Hazlett's sister was the wife of W. Ross Clenden-ing (see his sketch for parentage). Mr. Hazlett was educated at Tarentum, and commenced his career by enlisting in February, 1864, Battery F, I. L. A. The company was at once ordered to Washington, where it was held as a reserve. He was discharged June 26, 1865, and, returning home, began farming for himself, his father’s farm being divided between the three boys. He was married April 26, 1866, to Elizabeth Fleming, of West Deer township, daughter of James and Jane (Black) Fleming. Her father was born in Ireland, and came to America when very young; he died April 3, 1872, aged seventy-two years, and her mother died May 16, 1864, aged sixty-three years. Mr. and Mrs. Hazlett have five children: Alvin Arthur, Carrie Clyde, Emma Ellen, George Gilmore and Ira Irwin. The family are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Hazlett has been an auditor of the township, school director, and justice of the peace from 1881 to 1886; is a member of the G. A. R. He has a farm of sixty acres. In 1880 his house, with all its contents, was burned, the loss being partially covered by insurance.

James M. Stewart, mechanic, postoffice Etna, was born March 17, 1835, in Allegheny county, a son of George Stewart, a native of North Carolina, who died here. The mother of our subject, Ann (Flemming) Stewart, was a native of this county, and the mother of seven children. Of these James M. and William H. are residents of Etna, and the latter was a soldier in the civil war. At the age of nine years James M. went into the rolling-mill and worked for twenty-five cents a day, thus assisting his parents. He is now a heater in the same mill. In Etna he married Caroline, daughter of George and Elinor (Stewart) Taylor, and they have eight children: Melvin W., Mrs. Clara A. Bicker, Stanley J., Urban W., Emma M., Ella L., Lotta M. and Ralph E. T. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart are members of the First U. P. Church in Etna; he is a republican.

Valentine Scheide, gardener, postoffice West View, was born June 17, 1863, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of Valentine Scheide, Sr., who was born in Kirchen Holland, Bavaria, Germany. Valentine, Sr., was a shoemaker by trade, and lived several years in Switzerland, coming to America forty years ago. He followed his trade for many years on Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, but later removed to Squirrel Hill, where he operated a coalbank. He came to Ross township in 1870, where he purchased twenty acres of land, which is principally laid out in fruit and vegetable gardens. He married Miss Jacoby, a native of Saxony, and they had one son, Valentine. The father died July 19, 1888; the mother is still living. Our subject was educated at Curry Institute. He has been a practical gardener on a large scale, and is a very successful man. He married Emalia, daughter of John Knodler, and they have two children: Theodore Ernest, born May 29, 1886, and Anna Barbara, born July 7, 1888. Mr. Scheide is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and is a democrat.

Antone Henry, brick manufacturer, postoffice Hero, a son of John and Catherine (Greep) Henry, was born in Germany in 1848, and when a child of two years came to America with his parents, who located in Mifflin township, this county. His father at first engaged in mining, but afterward in farming, and died in 1884; his mother remains upon the farm. They were the parents of four children: Conrad H., Mary (deceased), Rosa and Antone. Antone married, in 1876, Margaret, daughter of Henry Zwinger, of Mifflin township. He engaged in farming on Thomson’s run until 1884, when he removed to Reynoldton, and became associated with J. C. Zwinger in the manufacture of brick. Mr. and Mrs. Henry have had following-named children: John, Philip C., Annie K., Henry, William A. (deceased) and Conrad Henry. The parents are members of the G. L. Church of Dravosburg.

Balthasar Jenny, Sr., manufacturer, postoffice West View, was born June 11, 1815, in Canton Glarus, Switzerland, the son of Balthasar and Barbara (Wild) Jenny. The parents immigrated to America in 1838, and settled in Allegheny City, where the father was a carpet-weaver, and died aged eighty-five years. They had three children: Fred, Jacob and Balthasar. Balthasar was educated in Switzerland, where he learned the engraver’s trade, which he followed a number of years, until engaging in the sale of cheese (which he received from Ohio) in Allegheny City. He married, in Switzerland, Susanna Blumer, who is the mother of sixteen children, eight living, viz.: Barbara, Argata, Susanna, Elsbeth, Emma, Maxcus, Balthasar and Frederick. Since 1871 Mr. Jenny has resided in Ross township, and is a successful man. He and Mrs. Jenny are members of the German Church in Allegheny, and he is a republican. Joseph F. D. Keating, hotel proprietor, postoffice West View, was born Sept. 19, 1832. His father, Hugh Keating, was a native of Queen’s county, Ireland, came to Pittsburgh in 1817, and was proprietor of a number of drays, teaming being his principal business. He was twice married, Mrs. Hester Griffith being the only surviving child by his first marriage. His second wife was Mary, daughter of Jacob Snyder, who came here in 1816. She was a native of Switzerland, and the mother of ten children, six of whom reached maturity: Joseph F. D., Barbara M., Anthony F., Jacob A., Thomas F. and Katherine E. Joseph F. D. was educated in Pittsburgh. He followed the Ohio river as pilot for many years, and was a well-known character among river-men. Afterward he went into the hotel business at Glenwood, and was owner of the first steamboat on the Ohio river there. He removed to Chicago, Elkton, Franklin, and finally to Pittsburgh. From 1861 to 1867 he kept the “White House” at Perrysville, and since then has been proprietor of the “Keating House,” which is famous from the gulf to the lakes for its spring chickens, waffles.
and good accommodations, and is a pleasure-resort for the better class of old Pittsburghers.
Mr. Keating married Theresa Kinn, a native of Switzerland, and four daughters blessed their union. The elder two, Mary M. and Mrs. Theresa M. Kramer, are deceased: Josophine F. and Mrs. Agnes V. Duffy still brighten the family circle.

Moses Chess, farmer, postoffice Green Tree, a son of John and Mary Chess (nee Middlesworth), was born in St. Clair township, now Thirty-fifth ward, Pittsburgh, Jan. 31, 1833. His grandfather, William Chess, came with his family from County Fermanagh, Ireland, settled in Allegheny county in 1877, and purchased land in what is now Green Tree borough, where he resided until his death. His son John was also born in Ireland, came with his parents to this county, and was reared on his father's place. John and Mary Chess had nine children: Eliza (deceased wife of Ross Foster), Jane (thrice married; first to T. C. Steele, second to William Foster, last time to Dr. Andrew Pierce), Moses, William, John (deceased). Mary A. (wife of John A. Petticord), Elizabeth (wife of Joseph McKown), Nancy E. (deceased) and Goodman Y. C. Mrs. Mary Chess was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Moses Chess married, Sept. 24, 1873, Amanda, daughter of Robert and Rachel Sterrett. Their children were: Robert S., Moses M., J. E. Park, Mary
M. (deceased), Norman F. and Walter K.
Mr. Chess has filled various offices in Chartiers township. During his early life he followed boating several years; has also engaged in farming, gardening, surveying and teaching, and is one of Chartiers township's most respected and substantial citizens.

James McCooaughy, dealer in notions, postoffice Putnam, was born in Montgomery county, Pa., Feb. 7, 1816, a son of Patrick McConaughy, a native of Ireland, and Margaret (McDonald) McConaughy, of Montreal, Canada. Patrick immigrated to America in 1832, and came to Allegheny county in 1853, where he remained until his death; he died in 1881, at the age of sixty-eight years. The subject of this sketch was educated at the public schools of Mansfield, and learned the trade of painter, which he successfully carried on until 1877, when he engaged in his present business. He married, in 1872, Catherine M. Rodgers, of Ohio, and four children have been born to them: Mary E., Thomas B., John R. and Margaret M. Mr. McConaughy has, by careful observance of the wants of his customers, built up a fine trade in his line, and carries an excellent stock of goods. He is a member of the Catholic Church, and is democrat.

W. S. Bell, photographer, postoffice Putnam, is a native of this county, born in 1832, the second son of John and Phiana (Arner) Bell, and at the age of nine years was left an orphan and thrown upon his own resources. He received his early education at the common schools, and worked on a farm until he was fifteen years of age; later was a student at the Linnaean Academy, and at sixteen years learned telegraphy, which he followed two years. He was then employed as clerk in a drugstore, which business he entered and followed for eleven years. In 1878, on account of ill health, he gave up the drug business and embarked in his present calling, his studio being located at 77 Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh. His practical knowledge of photography has made him successful, and he stands second to no one now engaged in that art. He married, in 1874, Alida, daughter of Martin and Margaret (Yeager) Frederick, of Mansfield, and they have four children: Winfield Frederick, Olive Grace, Lulu Bright and Gilbert Algeron.
Mr. Bell is past master in the Masonic fratenary. He has served as school director; is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

William Collingwood Ecker, brick-contractor, postoffice Hulton, was born in Pittsburgh, Feb. 27, 1848, son of Emmanuel and Mary (White) Ecker. His father was a brick-contractor, and settled in Pittsburgh in 1823, retiring from business several years before his death, which occurred in November, 1884, when he was seventy-three years old. Among the many good buildings he erected are the Monongahela House, city hall and the Eleventh ward schoolhouse. Our subject's department and maternal grandfathers were Baptist ministers. William C. has four brothers, all of whom are brick-contractors; also two sisters, both married. He received his education in Pittsburgh, and Feb. 22, 1863, he enlisted in Co. H, 1st battalion, 13th U. S. I., serving three years in the regular army. His company was consigned to the 15th army corps, under Gen. Sherman, and at the close of the war was sent to Jefferson Barracks, at St. Louis, then to Leavenworth, Kan., and to Fort Cook, M. T., at the time of the Sioux war. Mr. Ecker was discharged at Fort Benton, and returning to Pittsburgh he engaged with his father in bricklaying for eight years. He then began contracting alone, and has built many fine buildings in Verona and other places. He married, April 27, 1868, Jennie Blose, a daughter of Daniel and Martha (St. Clair) Blose, old settlers of Armstrong county.
They have seven children: Carrie Blose, Clifford St. Clair, Ada Rosamond, Samuel Ralph, Charles Stanley, William Collingwood and Martha St. Clair. Mrs. Ecker and Miss Carrie are members of the U. P. Church, where the latter is one of the leading singers in the choir.

Matthew Anderson, carpenter, postoffice
Hulton, is a native of Belfast, County Down, Ireland, born in the year 1822, a son of William and Mary (Fisher) Anderson. His father was a farmer, and died in Ireland in 1855, aged sixty-two years, and his mother in 1859, aged seventy-four. Mr. Anderson received his education in Ireland, came to Allegheny City in 1847, and began carpenter-work, having learned the trade in Ireland. In 1848 he commenced working for the Pattersons in Allegheny City, and remained with them two years, twenty-five as general foreman. With his son he started a planing-mill and box-factory, but the panic of 1873 badly crippled his finances; he then came to Verona, where he has since resided. Mr. Anderson was married in 1846 to Sarah Robinson, a native of Belfast, Ireland, and daughter of William and Sarah (Scott) Robinson. Five children were born to this union, as follows: William and James (whose sketches will be found elsewhere), John (in Pittsburgh), Sarah and Mary. The family are connected with the U. P. Church; in politics Mr. Anderson is a republican.

Henry Fricke, gardener, postoffice Carrick, was born Feb. 26, 1843, in Amt Auce, Hanover, Germany, son of C. Fricke and Dorothea (Morph of) Fricke, also natives of the above-named place. They came to America in 1870, and settled in Allegheny county. They were members of the Lutheran Church; had eleven children, of whom only three are now living: Mrs. Sophia Tilman, Henry and Ferdinand. The parents died here. Our subject was educated in Germany, and, coming to America in 1868, was a huckster for sixteen years, and very successful. He now owns a farm of twenty-five acres, also property in town, and is a self-made man in every respect. His wife is Louise Eiseberg, an old schoolmate of his, and they have two children: Willie J. and Maggie. Mr. and Mrs. Fricke are members of the Lutheran Church, in which he has filled several offices; he is a republican.

Ralph White, blacksmith, Green Tree, was born in 1838, in this county. His father, Thomas White, emigrated from England, and was married to Nancy Dawson, by whom he had five children, three of whom are living; he was a farmer, owning a farm on the Allegheny river, and died in 1876. Ralph White was educated at the public schools of his township, and at the age of eighteen learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed until 1891, when he enlisted in Co. E, 9th P. R.; he was in the service of the country for two years, and fell wounded at the battle of Dranesville, where the first victories were won on the Potomac. He was married, in 1892, to Miss Margaret D., daughter of Henry Fritch, of Allegheny county, and to them were born ten children, eight of whom are living. Mr. White is a republican; was deputy sheriff under Mr. Fife; has been a member of the school board, and is a justice of the peace. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and the G. A. R. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Phillip Simmons, farmer, postoffice Library, was born in Sussex county, N. J., June 4, 1819, a son of Peter and Margaret (Aramstrong) Simmons, also natives of the same county. Peter was born Feb. 3, 1785, and died July 30, 1851. His wife was born July 29, 1782, and died March 21, 1859. Philip's grandfather, John Simmons, a native of Germany, died here Feb. 29, 1812, and his grandmother, Elizabeth Simmons, died Nov. 22, 1811. Phillip received an education in the church schools. He sold out to his children, Peter, Sarah and Phillip, and at the death of Sarah the partnership continued between Peter and Phillip until Peter's death, Aug. 13, 1889, the partnership only lacking seventeen days of a forty years' existence. Mr. Simmons married, Dec. 24, 1863, Jane, daughter of Elder Thomas Kiddoo, and granddaughter of Rev. William Woods, second pastor of the Church. She was born in Jefferson township, May 14, 1835. Her mother was Jane Woods, born Sept. 2, 1798. Three sons and one daughter were born to Mr. and Mrs. Simmons: Kiddoo P., now at Washington and Jefferson College, and will graduate in the class of 1889; Sarah Jane, William P. and Orlando C., at home. Mr. Simmons is a republican, and a member of the school board. He was justice of the peace in 1870, but refused to serve longer. Mrs. Simmons is a member of the Bethel Church.

John Aggers, farmer, postoffice Broughton, was born Jan. 19, 1845, on the farm where he now resides, a son of Henry and Hannah (Temperwolf) Aggers, natives of Germany. When John was seven years old his father died, and he went to live with Joseph Phillips, of Snowden township, who shortly after moved to Washington county, where John lived seven years, and received most of his schooling. Returning to Snowden township, he lived with Mr. Joseph Miller, attended school one winter, and worked on the farm the following year. When nineteen he went to the oil-regions of Pennsylvania, remained sixteen years, and was concerned in the Pitt-hole excitement, where he lost between five and six thousand dollars. He also struck a dry hole on the Story farm, near Martinsburg, but met with success on the Blaney farm, and was interested in several places in the oil-regions. Returning to Snowden township, he married, Dec. 25, 1877, Sadie A., only daughter of Joseph and Sarah K. (Torence) Miller, who was born Sept. 30, 1859. Five children have blessed this union. viz.: Joseph Walter, Alice Bertha, Sarah Eliza, Ann Frances and Edna Grace. Joseph Miller was born on the Miller farm in Snowden township, April 8, 1796, a son of James and Mary (Smith) Miller. His father was born in the same place, and his grandfather, Oliver Miller, and two brothers took up several sections of land here in an early day. John Miller's granddaughter, Ethel B. Foster, born July 17, 1800, and died June 17, 1852, daughter of James and Jane Foster.
Mr. Miller’s second wife, whom he married Nov. 16, 1852, was Sarah K., daughter of Hugh and Hannah Torenc, born July 8, 1811. Her parents were natives of Jefferson township, and among the early settlers here. Mr. Miller was a prominent and highly respected citizen, and for many years justice of the peace. He passed away Feb. 7, 1873.

John A. Bell, clerk, postoffice Mansfield, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., in 1844, and is a descendant of Robert Bell, who, previous to 1765, came to Allegheny county from Virginia, on horseback, for the purpose of viewing the lands of Western Pennsylvania. What his opinion was respecting the land can not be determined, as he was thrown from his horse and killed within sight of his home. Soon after this, however, his two sons, James and John Bell, came to Allegheny county, and settled on Charles creek, the former purchasing some four hundred acres on the west and the latter some six hundred acres on the east side of the above-mentioned creek. Soon after this settlement the balance of Robert Bell’s family also came to Allegheny county, where they remained and died. John Bell, the elder of these two brothers, married Ellen Blackmore, a lady from Maryland, and by her had three children, of whom Samuel was the youngest. Samuel was born in September, 1793; was a farmer, and owned 150 acres of the land purchased by his father. He married Mary Hulings, of Venango county, and by her had seven children, two sons and five daughters. He died in 1879, aged eighty years. John Bell, the youngest of his seven children, was a shoemaker by trade, which he followed during life. He married Friana Arnor, daughter of John Arnor, of Clarion county, Pa., the result of this union being six children, three of whom are now living. John Bell died in 1859, and his widow in 1866. John A., the subject of this sketch, was but eight years of age when his father died, and he was thrown upon his own resources. He had but poor opportunities of receiving more than a common-school education, but has, however, been successful in business. He married, in 1877, Miss T. R. Foster, daughter of David and Elizabeth (Ross) Foster, and they have three children: Bessie, Mary and John. Mr. Bell is an elder in the U. P. Church; politically he is a republican.

Robert Bell, farmer, postoffice Mansfield, was born in Robinson township, in 1819, and is a direct descendant of James Bell, who married Mary Newkirk, of Dutch descent, and had by her nine children, seven sons and two daughters. James Bell when a boy of ten years was captured by the Indians and taken from his father’s home, and held until he was returned by a treaty with the whites. He died, aged eighty-five years, on the farm he purchased in this county, and the house which he erected, and in which he died, still remain natives of Jefferson township, Henry, in 1877, married Elizabeth Fairley, daughter of John Fairley, of Irish descent, and nine daughters and two sons were born to this marriage, Agnes M., now Mrs. John C. Morrow, being the eldest of this family. James followed his father’s history, and died in 1847, his wife in 1848. Robert Bell, the eldest son, received in youth a common-school education, and was reared to farming, which he followed until 1864, when he was employed by the Mansfield Coke & Coal company, as superintendent of their mines, a position he ably held for twenty-two years. He was married in 1842 to Susan Kearns, daughter of Thomas Kearns, of this county, who bore him one son, Washington Bell, and two daughters, Rebecca (now Mrs. McDowell) and Evaline (now Mrs. Hageman). Mrs. Bell died in 1859, and Mr. Bell married, for his second wife, Isa Bell McDowell, daughter of Robert and Fannie (Lee) McDowell, of this county. Four children, all living, were born to this union: Robert, William, Charles and George. Mr. Bell now resides on a farm of eighty-seven acres near the present town of Mansfield. He is a republican, and has been school director and town councilman; is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

William Bennett, florist, postoffice Carick, was born August 16, 1821, in Derbyshire, England. He and his brothers Daniel and Edwin immigrated to East Liverpool, Ohio, in 1841, where they joined their brother James, who several years previous had started the first pottery in that town. They remained there until 1844, then moved to Pittsburgh, and built another pottery. In 1847 Edwin and William sold out, and built another pottery in Baltimore, Md., which Edwin still carries on very extensively in making whiteware. William sold out his interest in 1856, and located where he now resides, Clinton, and the again united with his brother Daniel (who was the first manufacturer of whiteware west of the mountains), in the pottery in Pittsburgh. In 1869 they quit the pottery business, and formed the present “Crystal Glass company.” In 1874 the subject of this sketch built several greenhouses, which are still being carried on by him and his son, William Granville, under firm name of William Bennett & Son.

John Sylvester Burns, farmer, postoffice Clinton, was born in the house where he now resides, Feb. 22, 1847, a son of John and Margaret (Stewart) Burns, natives of Findlay township, and members of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church. They had three children: Samuel S., Mary J. (who married William Hood, and, after his death, William Marshall) and John S. The latter received his education in the township schools and at Linnaeus Academy, Clinton, and married, Feb. 23, 1869, Anna M. Guy, who was born in Moon township, a daughter of William H. and Mary J. (Duncan) Guy. Mr. and Mrs. Burns have had three children, only one of whom survives: Maude L., born Jan. 14, 1872. Three generations of the family now reside in the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Burns paternal grandparents were John and Jane (Crooks).
GENEALOGY AND BIOGRAPHY.

Burns, early settlers of Findlay township. His maternal grandparents were Samuel and Jane Stewart, old settlers of same township. Mr. Burns was possessed of considerable literary ability, and has received valuable prizes for his contributions written in competition with others for the National Stockman and Farmer. Among the prizes received by him were a Shorthorn bull, a Poland-China pig and a gold-mounted ivory buggy-whip. Mr. Burns owns a good farm of 120 acres, and raises grain and live stock. His grandfather, John Burns, was a relative of the poet Robert Burns.

Mrs. Rachel (Galbraith) Jones, postoffice Jones Station, was born at Pittsburgh in 1826, a daughter of Robert and Elizabeth (McPherson) Galbraith, former of whom was a native of this country, latter of County Tyrone, Ireland, born in 1804. Their children were Mary (now Mrs. Joseph Caldwell, of West Virginia), James, Eliza (deceased), Hugh (who died when a child), Sarah Jane, Elizabeth (deceased) and Rachel. The last named married George Jones (now deceased), and they settled at Point Perry, where he was engaged in the coal trade; later he purchased works near Saltsburg, and finally bought works near Jones Station, in Jefferson township, this county. Their children are Fanny (now Mrs. W. V. Mickey), Thomas M., Mary (now Mrs. Robert Donaldson), Jennie (now Mrs. M. G. Conlin), Eva (now Mrs. Payne), Kate, Will, Addie, George, Alice, Edward P., Annie, George and John, all living except the last two. Jones Station and Jones postoffice were named in honor of this family, and their property occupies a delightful site on the river.

James Carson, farmer, postoffice Harmanville. This family dates its connection with Allegheny county since 1829, at which time James Carson, with his wife, Catherine (Allingham), and their two children, emigrated from their native county in Ireland. He was a farmer by occupation, and for eight years followed it in Washington county, Pa. He then (1830) purchased 212 acres of land in Indiana township, now Harmar. Seven children were born to him, four of whom are now living. James, born in 1826, being the youngest. He was educated at the public schools in the township, and has followed farming and stock-raising, being very successful in both. He was married, in 1859, to Miss Jane Elizabeth Beatty, daughter of Francis Beatty, and four children were born to them, two of whom are living—Francis Beatty and Katherine. Mr. Carson purchased his present farm of two hundred acres, which is beautifully located and well adapted to farming. He is a republican, and was school director twelve years.

Samuel C. Alter, farmer, postoffice Freeport, son of Jacob and Jane Alter, was born in Plum township, this county, in 1833. His grandparents were from Westmoreland county, and settled in Plum township, where they lived and died. They had eleven children: Joseph, Nancy, Jacob, Samuel, John, David, Henry, Daniel, Jeremiah, Elias and Samson. Jacob married Jane Bratton, a native of this county, and they located in Plum township, where he worked at his trade, that of blacksmith. They also died in Plum township, leaving children as follows: George, Eliza, Samuel C., May, Sarah Jane, Nancy, Rebecca, Susan, Margaret A. Elvira (now deceased), Jacob and William. Samuel C., in 1854, married Nancy J., daughter of G. W. Beale, of Harrison township, and located on the farm now owned by them. They have five sons: George W. B., Samson J., William B., Elwood J. and Robert L. McCurdy. Mr. and Mrs. Alter are members of the Presbyterian Church of Freeport.

W. A. Young, Bennett, was born Dec. 15, 1850, in Pine township, this county, son of Henry and Catharine (Wyland) Young, former of whom was a native of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and came to America in 1837, and is now in the seventy-first year of his life, and highly respected. His wife was a native of Alsace, Germany, and came to America in 1837; they were married in 1840, and were the parents of nine children. W. A. Young was reared on a farm, received a common-school education, and when seventeen years old learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed in Millvale until 1890, when he was elected justice of the peace. Young has dealt largely in real estate, also in the insurance business, in all of which he has been very successful. He has always been a republican.

Ephraim Craig, miner, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in New York city, in 1849, the eldest of thirteen children, and only one in America, born to John and Martha (Keatt) Craig. His parents came from Ireland, spent a few years in New York, where three of their children were born, and then returned to their native land. There Ephraim was brought up on a farm, and received an ordinary education. When twenty years old he came to Allegheny county and engaged in driving team about Pittsburgh. In 1871 he came to Turtle Creek, and in 1894 purchased the farm of fifty acres on which he now resides. In the meantime he married Nancy E., daughter of Samuel and Margaret (Walten) Gray, of Scotch-Irish descent; she was born in Lectsburg, and by Mr. Craig had the following-named children: Mary Elizabeth, William John, Martha Jane, Margaret Ellen Matilda, Ephraim and Maria. Mr. and Mrs. Craig are members of the M. E. Church; he is a republican.

Robert Marion Holland, Braddock, is a native of Carroll county, Ohio, born Aug. 29, 1850, a son of William and Nancy (Thompson) Holland, former a native of Franklin county, Pa., the latter of Carroll county, Ohio, and both of Scotch-Irish descent. William Holland came to Braddock in 1852, and there died in 1878, at the age of seventy-seven years, leaving two daughters, all yet living. Robert M., who is the youngest, was educated at Pittsburgh and Braddock academy, and since 1870 has been a successful dealer in real estate, with offices in both Pittsburgh and Braddock. In 1885 Mr. Holland was elected vice-president of the First National Bank of Braddock, a position he is still filling with much acceptance. In 1880 he married Lizzie, daughter of J. N. Shallenberger, a member of an old and respected family of the place, and the result of the union is one child, Marie. Mr. Holland is a member of the F. & A. M. and the I. O. O. F. He is an adherent of the Disciples' Church, and is a democrat.

John Teemer, the renowned oarsman of America, was born in McKeesport, Pa., July 8, 1864, and received his education at the public and Catholic schools of McKeesport. He is a son of John Teemer, Sr., and Maggie (Choueaux) Teemer, the former a native of Germany, and the latter of Allegheny county. John Teemer, Sr., came to McKeesport at the age of seventeen, and engaged in coal-boating, carrying coal to New Orleans and points on the river, until retiring from active life; he and his wife now reside in McKeesport. They are the parents of six sons and three daughters, of whom six sons and one daughter are yet living: Fred, John (our subject), Jacob, Andrew, Willie, Lena and Sylvester. The subject of this sketch worked on his father's farm until fifteen years of age, when he entered the employ of the National Tube-works, where he remained until the spring of 1882, at which time the great strike occurred. Soon after this, in the same year, John began to train for boat racing. Mr. Teemer always loved the water, and when a small boy became an expert at rowing. In his races with other boys he found he could outrow them easily. After numerous victories in racing with the boys at home, he was anxious to participate in a regular stake contest, and he won his first professional race. Mr. Teemer has great power of endurance, is well muscled and of immense lung-power. Rowing as he has from boyhood, he is not overdeveloped. His first shell was given him by his friend Barney Norris, of McKeesport, who has always proved a warm personal friend. Our subject was united in marriage, April 22, 1884, at McKeesport, with Miss Isabella, a daughter of John and Mary Rodgers, and they have one son.

Capt. John J. Harrison, engineer, post-office Elizabeth, is a son of James and Jane Harrison, natives of England, and was born in Yorkshire, England, July 3, 1836. He came to America in 1840, with his parents, and settled in Brownsville, Fayette county, Pa., where his father died in 1863. The mother then moved to Elizabeth borough with her son, and died in 1885. Capt. Harrison is a machinist by trade, but when quite young commenced to work in the river, and has held an engineer's license for over twenty-five years, being engaged on the Enterprise, Dick Fulton, Belle McGowan, etc., and at present is engineer of the Joseph A. Stone. He was in the government service during the late war, on the boat Westmoreland, which plied between Cincinnati and New Orleans. He was married, in 1855, to Henrietta Wilkinson, of Fayette county, who died in 1867, leaving no children. He was next married, in 1870, to Mary Creider, of this county. They have three children: James, Bertha and Grace. Capt. Harrison has held the office of councilman; his family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

John J. Douglass, farmer, postoffice Blythendale, is a son of Thomas and Margaret (Johnston) Douglass. His grandfather was a native of Scotland, and settled in Adams county, Pa., where the father of our subject was born, and when seven years of age came to this county and settled in this township, where he lived until his death, in 1859. His family consisted of seven children, four of whom are still living: Maria, Mrs. George Weddle, of Versailles township; Sidney J., widow of Joseph Gillespie; James, of Buena Vista, and John J., who was born on the homestead in 1811, and lived there until 1840, when he removed to his present place and engaged in the milling business until 1865, and has since carried on his present farm. In 1839 he was married to Mary, daughter of John and Mary (Orr) Patterson, who died in 1871, leaving seven children, as follows: Robert P. and Thomas P., of Pittsburgh; John S., a physician in Columbus, Ohio; James E., a merchant at Douglass station; William L., a farmer of this township; Elijah R., of Bradford, Pa.; Margaret J., now Mrs. James H. McCune, of Alabama. Mr. Douglass was elected Justice of the peace of Elizabeth township in 1870, and has since held that office. Douglass station, on the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youngioghney railroad, was named in honor of him. Mr. Douglass is a member of the U. P. Church of Buena Vista.

Robert Henderson, boss roller, McKeesport, is a native of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, and is of Scotch parentage. He was reared and educated in his native land, and at the age of sixteen began work in a rolling-mill, and worked in the principal mills of England up to 1879. He then came to America, settled in McKeesport, and entered the employ of the National Rolling-mill company as a boss roller. Here he is still engaged and by his industry and frugality has accumulated a handsome property. He is a worthy and respected citizen of his adopted country; is a member of the R. A., and is a republican.

S. P. Waugaman, dentist, McKeesport, is a native of Penn township, Westmoreland county, Pa., where he was reared and educated. He began the study of dentistry in January, 1880, in the office of his brothers, Drs. Z. L. and I. S. Waugaman, of Greensburg, Pa.; entered Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery at Philadelphia the same year, and graduated in February, 1882. In May of that year he located in McKeesport, where he has since resided, and has a large and successful practice.

M. L. McClure, contractor and builder, postoffice Homestead, was born Dec. 24, 1841, in Homestead, and was educated in the country schools. He enlisted Sept. 28, 1862, in Co. H, 14th P. C., and fought under Generals Sheridan, Hunter and Crook until the close of the war. Before enlisting he had been in business with his father four years, and returning home was for three years interested in a planing-mill in Pittsburgh, and was four years in Erie county, where he was engaged in building. He was also a bookkeeper in Pittsburgh six years. He married Hannah Reed, and they have two children: Abdel R. and Florence L. Mr. McClure is an elder of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

George W. Giles, real-estate dealer, postoffice Homestead, was born Dec. 24, 1860, at Six-Mile Ferry, a son of George and Harriet B. (Daugherty) Giles, the former of whom, a native of England, learned the blacksmith's trade (which he followed all his life), and settled at Six-Mile Ferry, this county, in 1840. Here he was a trustee in the M. E. Church. To him and his wife were born nine children, of whom Charles C. is now superintendent of the Monongahela First Pool Coal company. George W. Giles was a clerk in a grocery-store at Six-Mile Ferry for nine years, and since June, 1889, he has been in the real-estate and insurance business; is also a notary public. He is secretary of the Security Building & Loan association and the Homestead Cemetery association.

F. Stevener, foundryman, Tarentum, son of Adam Stevener, was born at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1832. His father came from Bavaria, Germany, located in Pittsburgh, and assisted in the construction of the first bridge across the Monongahela river, receiving an injury from which he never recovered. F. Stevener learned his trade in Pittsburgh, and removed to Ohio, where he married Louisa Schaefer; in 1873 he came to Tarentum, where he purchased property and established a foundry, in which he is now doing a general jobbing trade. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Stevener are Charles W., Emma, Louisa, George, Lizzie, Magdalena, Clara and Elva. Mr. Stevener is a member of the K. of P., of Pittsburgh.

Peter Portman, farmer, postoffice Green Tree, was born in Switzerland in 1819, the second of eleven children born to Peter and Barbara (Stadleman) Portman. Peter, Sr., was engaged in dairying and stock-dealing in Switzerland. He came to America with his wife and six children in 1832, settling on a 100-acre farm in Reserve township, where he carried on the dairy business until his death, in 1848; his widow died in 1850. Peter, their son, lived on the farm until 1872, having in the meantime purchased the business from the heirs, and in 1872 came to Union township, now Green Tree borough, and purchased eighty acres of land known as the O'Brien tract. He was married in 1857 to Miss Mary Baker, and they have eleven children: Mary (Mrs. McDermott), Albert, Agnes, Clara, Edward, Thomas, Charley, William, Lewis, Frank and Joseph, all at home. Mr. Portman is one of the solid business-men and farmers of the borough; he and his family are members of the Catholic Church; he is a democrat.

John Lowen, gardener, Mt. Washington. George Lowen was a native of Kent, England, and in 1832 emigrated to Allegheny county, Pa., settling in Pittsburgh. He was a gas-fitter by trade, and was employed as fitter and gas-inspector for the city of Pittsburgh. He was the father of thirteen children, eight of whom were born in America, John being the oldest in the family. In his declining years Mr. Lowen moved to the country, where he purchased fifty acres of land, and there lived until he died, in 1885, aged seventy-eight years. John was but seven years of age when he came to America, and received his education in the schools of Pittsburgh. He learned the tinsmith, copper and sheet-iron business, which he followed for eight years. He then located at his present place, and has since been engaged in gardening and fruit-growing. He was married in 1860 to Sophia, daughter of Charles Vick, and four children were born to them, viz.: George W., Virginia L., Walter C. and Ida Blanch. The family are Episcopalians. Mr. Lowen is a republican.

Henry Donaldson, farmer, postoffice Library, was born in March, 1826, on the farm where he now resides, a son of William and Elizabeth (Morrison) Donaldson, born in Maryland in 1790, and Washington county, Pa., Jan. 18, 1795, respectively. His father moved on the place in 1819, having purchased it three or four years previously, and died thereon in 1833. Henry's mother still lives with him, and has reached the age of ninety-four years. Henry attended the common school at home and Bethel Academy, where he read Greek and Latin, etc. He lived at home until the death of his father, when he bought out the heirs, and continues to reside on the homestead. His paternal grandparents were David and Mary Lyons, former of whom was born in Ireland in 1760, and who came to Maryland in 1771, and to Washington county, Pa., in 1795, and participated in the whisky insurrection. Mr. Donaldson's maternal grandparents were Henry and Patience Sears (Morrison).

Thomas Donaldson Gladden, farmer, postoffice Cecil, Washington county, was born in Smith township, that county, in 1827, a son of Joseph Gladden. His grandfather, William Gladden, a native of Bucks county, married Mary Ann Woods. During early life he was a teamster, and served in that capacity during the Revolution. He came to Western Pennsylvania at an early day, and there followed the milling business. He was also a farmer, and purchased 321 acres of land near the present site of McDonald station, and there remained until his death.
To this pioneer and his wife were born five sons and three daughters, all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. Joseph, the second son, also a farmer, born in 1795, married Jane, daughter of James Donaldson, also an Eastern Pennsylvanian, and to them were born five children, four of whom are now living. Joseph came to Allegheny county from Washington county in 1842, purchased 212 acres of land on Miller's run, followed farming, and remained on this property until his death, which occurred in 1869, when he was seventy-one years old; his wife died at the age of seventy-two years. The subject of this sketch was educated at the public schools, and like his ancestors has followed farm life. At his father's death he came into possession of the property where he now resides. He was twice married; first, in 1869, to Mary Donaldson, and second, in 1882, to Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander Burkett, who has borne him two children. Edna Pearl and William Richard. Mr. and Mrs. Gladden are members of the U. P. Church; he is a strict democrat.

William James Phillips, gardener, Glenfield, was born in Mt. Oliver, Pa., Dec. 29, 1850, son of Robert and Eliza (Mackey) Phillips, natives of County Antrim, Ireland (a brother of John Phillips). Robert came to America about 1840, and settled at Manchester, now a part of the city of Allegheny, and shortly afterward moved to the old Clancy farm at Mt. Oliver, then to his present farm on Neville island. Here he started, with almost nothing, to follow the avocation of a gardener, and before his death he accumulated a fortune, owning a great deal of land. On one of his farms he built a brick residence overlooking the Ohio river, which is indeed a beautiful home costing $16,000. He left four sons and one daughter: John M., W. J., Charles J., R. A. and Anna J. (Mrs. Charles Purcell). He was a prominent democrat, and a member of the Episcopal Church; his wife was a Presbyterian. Mr. Phillips made a specialty of raising asparagus, and his place was fully equipped with all the latest improvements, having barges, pumps, etc. He died in 1884, his wife in 1879. William was married in 1874 to Clara C. Krugh, a native of South Side, Pittsburgh. Her parents, John A. and Albertinia (Forrister) Krugh, were natives of Germany. Three sons have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips: Ferdinand, Walter and Harry. Mr. Phillips is a democrat, and is one of the school directors.

Peter Von Stein, gardener, Cornopolis, was born in June, 1825, in Germany, son of Nicholas and Mary Ann (Stier) Von Stein, natives of the same country. He came to Pittsburgh when twenty-two years of age, and about a year later came to Neville island, where he rented a farm for about two years, and then bought his present place, which was then woodland. He was married to Margaret Arris, a native of Germany, and eight children have been born to them, only three of whom are living: Peter Von Stein, Jr.; John, living on a two-hundred-acre farm at South Forest, near and Jabez (Mr. and Mrs. Bletzinger); Maggie, Katie, Mary, Tilley and Amelia all died when young. Peter, Jr., is one of the Neville island active young business-men, and together with his father cultivates the farm. They are members of the Lutheran Church at Glenfield; he is a republican. Beginning upon a farm with but little improvement, they have been successful as gardeners.

Henry Wittmer, brick-manufacturer, Etna, was born June 3, 1856, in Shaler, a son of George Wittmer, a native of Baden, Germany, who immigrated to America in 1854, and followed various occupations. He commenced with steamboating, then became a stockman, a miner, a farmer, and then engaged in the ice business in 1870 in company with W. Krause. He remained in the ice business until 1872, when he retired to engage in the manufacture of brick, and the firm is known as the Wittmer Brick company (limited). Our subject is superintendent of the works, which employ about fifty hands and turn out seven million brick per annum. He graduated in 1875 at the Iron City Business College. He is also engaged in the ice-business with an uncle, Xavier Wittmer.

John Neune, gardener, postoffice West View, was born Jan. 26, 1826, near Frankfort, Ober-Hessen, Germany, a son of Louis and Kate Neune, who had two children, Conrad and John. The latter was reared and educated in his native land, came to America in 1855, settled in Allegheny City, and finally became gardener for the city poor-farm. After fifteen years, in 1867, he purchased a farm of six acres and commenced gardening for himself. In the course of a year the city poor-farm officials urgently requested him to return, which he did, and gardened for them five years longer, giving general satisfaction. He is a successful gardener and fruit-grower. Mr. Neune was married here, to Mrs. Mary Barne, née Amvoeg, a native of Switzerland, and they have one child, Louis, born Sept. 16, 1862. Mr. and Mrs. Neune are members of the G. L. Church; he is a republican.

Reinhard Danner, farmer and gardener, postoffice Bennett, was born July 12, 1840, in Hohenzollen, Germany. His parents, Luzia and Bernhardt (Stiefel) Danner, reared a family of four children: Mrs. Anna Kurtz, who remained in Germany; Luzia, deceased; Bernhard and Reinhard. They immigrated to America in 1853, resided for a short time in West Virginia and Westmoreland county, Pa., and then settled in this county. They purchased forty-two acres of land, where our subject now resides, which the father thoroughly improved. The parents were devout members of the Catholic Church of Millvale. The father died at the age of eighty-seven years; the mother is still living. Reinhard Danner here married Caroline Herber, a native of Germany, and they are the parents of the following-named children: Helena, Anna, Louisa, Joseph (deceased), Anton, John, Bernhard, Katie, and Caroline. They are all members of the Catholic Church; Mr. Danner is a democrat.

Capt. John W. McIntire, captain and pilot, postoffice Coraopolis, was born at McKeesport, Pa., April 26, 1836, a son of Robert S. and Jane (Dunseith) McIntire, natives of Allegheny county, Pa., and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Robert S. resides at McKeesport, and was a river-man when keelboats were in vogue. He is a son of Patrick McIntire, who came from Ireland with his parents to Westmoreland county, Pa., and later settled near Bucyrus. Robert S. returned to Pennsylvania, and settled in McKeesport. He and wife had two sons, Capt. John W., and Capt. Daniel, captain and pilot at McKeesport. Capt. John W. went on the river in 1853, and was a river-man eight years, but has been pilot and captain ever since. He married, March 17, 1857, Alice Yolton, daughter of William and Mary (Cool) Yolton. Mrs. McIntire died July 26, 1884, a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the mother of two children: Jennie, wife of Alvin Cornelius, Coraopolis; William W., learning piloting with his father. Thomas Dunseith, maternal grandfather of Capt. John McIntire, was born in New Jersey, married Jane Powell, and settled at Dowther's settlement, near McKeesport. They lived in a blockhouse for protection from the Indians. He was a pioneer flat-boater, and with others would float down from Pittsburgh to New Orleans, sell out and walk back.

William B. Junker, leather-dealer, McKeesport, was born in Saxony, Germany, May 24, 1827, a son of John A. and Teresa (Lasker) Junker. He was reared and educated in his native place, where he learned the tanner's trade; came to America in 1847, and located in Columbus, Ohio, where he worked at his trade as a journeyman three years. In 1850 he settled in McKeesport, started a tannery, and successfully conducted the same until 1878. In 1871 he embarked in the leather business at Pittsburgh, in which he is still engaged, his store being located at 152 First avenue. His three sons, Herman, Bernhart and Edward, are in business with him. Mr. Junker is a F. & A. M., a member of the German Reformed Church. He is a democrat, and has served one term as constable from his ward.

Jacob Ludwig, grocer, McKeesport, was born in Versailles township, Oct. 14, 1819, a son of John and Eliza (Curry) Ludwig. His paternal grandfather, Jacob Ludwig, of German parentage, was a pioneer of North Versailles township, Allegheny county, and his maternal grandfather, William Curry, a native of Ireland, was among the pioneers of Versailles township. Mr. Ludwig was reared in Versailles township, where he received a common-school education. He left home at the age of twenty, and learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed until 1849, when he went to California, and engaged in mining four years. He then followed mercantile pursuits at Stewarts ville, Westmoreland county, Pa., three years; then was engaged in the same business at Osceola, this county, four years, and at Alpville four years. In 1855 he embarked in the wholesale whisky and tobacco trade at Pittsburgh, and after four years in that line carried on a grocery business at Webster, Pa., three and a half years, and at Lynch's station, Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny railroad, seven years. In April, 1887, he again located in McKeesport, where he has since resided, engaged in the grocery business. In 1857 he married Rose A., daughter of Samuel and Hetty (Stewart) Daly, of Stewarts ville, Pa., and by her had two children: Hannah (Mrs. John Gabelhart) and Charles. Mr. Ludwig is a member of the retail grocers' association, and is a republican.

John C. Boggs, farmer and stock-raiser, postoffice Shoustown, was born Dec. 27, 1824, to Joseph and Elizabeth (Chisholm) Boggs, former of whom, a carpenter by trade, was born in Lancaster county, Pa., latter in Moon township, near where Sharon church now stands, a daughter of Thomas and Anna (Anderson) Chisholm. Thomas Chisholm was born and reared near Edinburgh, Scotland, and at the age of eighteen, soon after he had served his apprenticeship as a weaver, came to America and located in Moon township, prior to 1800. He purchased a farm near Sharon, in that township, where he died. Joseph Boggs was a son of Andrew and Rosanna Boggs, both members of the Presbyterian Church, who settled at Lashell's station. Andrew Boggs ran the ferry there, known as Boggs' ferry, many years, until his death in 1843. Joseph and Elizabeth (Chisholm) Boggs settled in Moon township, near Sharon, on the farm now owned by the Jennings heirs. They had a family of seven children, four living: John C., Ann E. (wife of Nathaniel P. Kerr, in Vanport, Beaver county), Clara (in Sewickley) and Minnie B. (wife of Perry Young, in Pittsburgh). The parents were members of the Presbyterian Church. John C. Boggs remained on the farm with his father, and worked at the carpenter's trade until twenty-two, when he moved to Shoustown, where he was employed in the shipyard. In 1857 or 1858 he was appointed superintend at the shipyard, and so continued until 1868. He had charge of the construction of the Great Republic, Continental and Commonwealth, and built the Glencoe. One of his boats, the James Whan, was captured by the confederates, and converted into a gunboat called the Little Rebel. In 1868 Mr. Boggs settled on the old homestead of his father, which he now owns, and where he was married to his wife. They were united in marriage April 16, 1849, with Margaret J. Worth, who was born in Moon township, a daughter of Ebenezer and Margaret (Perry) Worth; latter born on the Monongahela river, near Elizabeth, this county, Feb. 18, 1788; former of whom was a native of Chester county, Pa. The grandfather of Mrs. Margaret Worth was killed by Indians in that neighborhood. Mr. and Mrs. Boggs have two sons: Austin P. (who married Aggie Biggerstaff, and is a Sawyer and carpenter in Moon township) and Anderson C. (who married Rebecca McCutcheon), and is a tool-dresser on oil- and gas-wells, residing in Moon township.

J. M. Parkinson, postoffice West Elizabeth, is a son of Washington and Sarah (Kinner) Parkinson, and was born in Nottingham township, Washington county, Pa., in 1836. His family were of Scotch and Irish descent, and his grandfather, Benjamin, was a native of Virginia. He removed to Washington county, Pa., where he was engaged as a distiller, and where Washington, the father of our subject, was born. At the beginning of the whisky insurrection he expended the the price of one farm to escape from the army, and the soldiers made a critical examination of his promises to find him, but without success. Washington Parkinson married and settled in Nottingham township, where he was appointed justice of the peace for life, and was a stockholder, director and president of the Williamsport and Wheeling turnpike. His children were Eliza (now Mrs. Joseph Pollock, of Washington county), Rachel R. (now Mrs. H. H. McElhaney), Sarah (now Mrs. Henry Heath), Mary Jane, Washington (who died at the age of eighteen), John L. (now of Meigs county, Ohio) and J. M. (who remained with his parents until their decease). Previous to that event our subject married Lydia A., daughter of William Peterson, of Jeffers-town township, and they have nine children: Eveline, George W., Sarah R., Nancy A., W. Y. L. Belle, Sidney M., Margaret H. and Boyd M. Sarah R. is the wife of John Hunt, a merchant in Etna. Their son, Agnes, is merchant of Braddock. Mrs. Parkinson died Nov. 19, 1874. Mr. Parkinson sold to Mr. O'Neil a tract of land, and together they laid out what is now the town of Jefferson in or about 1871. Our subject began his career as a farmer, later engaged in mercantile pursuits, and at present is a merchant doing business on a part of the old farm.

Louis Stocker, merchant, postoffice West Elizabeth, son of John G. and Elizabeth Stocker, was born in Württemberg, Germany, in 1841. When between the ages of seven and eight years he was called to mourn the loss of both parents. In 1860 he immigrated to this country, and located in this county, where he worked at shoemaking. In 1872 he married Catharina, daughter of Adam Schantz, of Coat Valley, Allegheny county, Pa. They have received and reared children: Amanda E., Mary, Lizzie, Catharina, George, Louis F., William C. and Ernst H. Mr. and Mrs. Stocker are members of the Lutheran Church. On coming here he purchased his present residence and place of business, and embarked in the boot and shoe trade, which he still follows. He is a democrat.

John England, postoffice Bennett, was born May 31, 1801, near Sheffield, England, son of Edward and Catharine (Linley) England. John received his education and learned the trade of filemaking in his native home. He came to Pittsburgh in 1845, and started the first file-factory in that city. Encouraged by his success in his first enterprise, he opened a hardware-store, which was also successful. Mr. England was married in England to Mary Armatage; she died in Pittsburgh, leaving three children: Elizabeth, George and Mrs. Mariah England, the latter being the only one now living. Mr. England eventually retired from business, and now resides in Millvale. His son-in-law, Thomas England (husband of Mariah), conducted the business until his death, July 25, 1887, and his only son, John Edward, then succeeded him. John England and family are members of the Methodist Church; he is a republican.

J. M. Hammond, carpenter, Etna, was born Sept. 19, 1828, in Harrison county, Ohio, the son of David B. Hammond, who was a native of Washington county, Pa. He was reared and educated in Guernsey county, Ohio, came to the city of Allegheny in 1849, and learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for some time. He went to Kansas in May, 1855, where he was with John Brown and Lane, and participated in the border warfare. In February, 1862, he enlisted in Co. B, 3d Mo. Cav.; was wounded, and taken prisoner by the notorious Quantrrell, who treated him well, and set him at liberty. In May, 1863, he was discharged, for disability, at hospital. After the war Mr. Hammond returned to Pittsburgh, where he worked in a cork-factory, and later followed his trade, coming to Etna in 1867, where he now resides. In Ohio he married Margaret Glass, and they have four children: Emma J., Anna, Charles F. and Agnes. Mr. Hammond is a republican, and has been Burgess and Councilman for many years.

William Boden, miner, Turtle Creek, was born in Sedgley parish, Staffordshire, England, February 8, 1848, and is a son of John and Anna (Kempson) Boden. In 1860 the family came to America, and located for a time in Coultersville, this county. The father was a coal-miner all his life, and was employed at Saw-Mill Run and Turtle Creek, coming to the latter place in 1872. For a short time in 1880 he was employed in Clearfield county, and died in November of that year, at the age of fifty-six years, from injuries inflicted by a kicking mule. Mrs. Boden died in 1876, at the age of forty-five years. The eldest child, Thomas, was killed in January, 1870, by a fall of coal in the mine, at Alma, Wyo. The other children are William and Alida A. (Mrs. Charles Cupps) in Pittsburgh. William began mining coal when twelve years old, and managed to secure an ordinary education. He came to Turtle Creek in March, 1876, and six years later built his home. Mr. Boden married July 12, 1870, a daughter of Thomas and Mary Rolens, who was born in South Shields, Durham, England, and their children now living are John, George Thomas, Charles Alexander, William Henry and Elizabeth May; William Edward and Alida C. died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Boden are members of the M. E. Church; he is a republican.

Thomas Seddon, retired, Braddock, is a native of England, born in 1819, son of Richard and Ann (Entwistle) Seddon, former of whom died when Thomas was but seven months old. They had two children, Thomas being the only one to come to America, and the only one now living. In 1837 he married Jane Thompson, by whom he had ten children, six born in England and four in America. Those living, born in England, are Nancy, Mary, Ann and Jane; and born in America, Noah and Abel. In 1849 Mr. Seddon immigrated to America with his wife and children, first locating at McKeesport, where he remained fifteen years, engaged in coal-mining. In 1863 he came to Braddock, and here opened a hardware and tin-store, which he successfully carried on until his retirement from business in 1880, being succeeded by his sons. Mr. Seddon was twice married, his second wife being Mary, daughter of Maj. Snodgrass, a prominent citizen of Allegheny county. Mr. Seddon is a republican.

Isaac Mills, stationer, Braddock. In or about the year 1680 the ancestors of this family emigrated from England to America, landing on the Bermuda Islands, where they remained a short time. Stephen Mills, grandfather of the subject of this memoir, and a shoemaker by trade, married an Osborne, and became the father of two sons and three daughters, Isaac being among the oldest, born in 1801, in New York. Stephen came in about 1817, with his family, to the "Forks" of Allegheny county, and here settled on a farm, where he remained a few years. Isaac then leased 300 acres of land in 1836, and in 1827 he purchased the farm on the Monongahela river, and which is now known as the Third ward of Braddock. He was the successful business-man of the family. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Snodgrass, one of a very old family, of Scotch-Irish descent. Nine children, seven yet living, were born to Isaac Mills and his wife. viz.; Eliza, Isaac, Rachel (Mrs. Clay), Charles, J. K., Stephen and Isaac. The last named was born in 1859, educated at the State College, Centre county, and in 1861 enlisted in Co. A. 68th (Gen. Alex. Hays') regiment, and for three years was a defender of his country. In 1863 he married Mary E. Nichols, of Braddock, and six children have been born to them. Mr. Mills commenced his business career in 1827, when he became extensively engaged in line of merchandize, successfully operating same until 1880. Since then he has been engaged in his present business at Braddock. About one hundred acres of the original tract of land purchased by Isaac Mills is now owned by his descendants. Mr. Mills is a member of the G. A. R. and Veteran Union League. He is a republican; was burgess of Braddock in 1885, and has held other positions of trust.

Peter Fey, merchant, postoffice Homestead, was born Nov. 25, 1857, in Mifflin Township, Allegheny county, Pa. His father, Nicholas Fey, a native of Lorraine, France (now Germany), came to America about forty years ago, and became a farmer and miner in Mifflin township. His wife, Magdalena Decker, also a native of France, is the mother of the following-named children: Catherine, John, Casper, Anna, Nicholas, Peter and William. Peter Fey was a miner in early life, and later was employed in the steelmill. In 1889 he opened a general grocery-store, and has built up a good trade. He has a daughter, Lizzie, a daughter of John Rushe, and three children blessed this union; Anna, Gertrude and Estella M. Mr. and Mrs. Fey are members of the Catholic Church; he is a democrat.

William Anderson, manufacturer, postoffice Hulton, was born in Allegheny City, Oct. 13, 1850, and is the son of Matthew and Sarah (Robinson) Anderson, natives of County Down, Ireland, and who immigrated to Allegheny City in 1847. Here our subject received his education, and at twenty years of age started in the planing-mill business, locating on Liberty street, Pittsburgh. At the time of the Pittsburgh riot the mill was burned. He then moved to Verona, where he has built up a large business in contracting and the manufacture of mantels and moldings. In 1888 he began making a specialty of fine wood mantels for the trade, and his is the only mill in Western Pennsylvania making that work a specialty, employing from fifteen to twenty-five men. He was married Feb. 23, 1874, to Salinda Bright, a native of Verona, and daughter of the old pioneer, Peter Bright (of whom a sketch is given elsewhere). Three children have blessed this union: William F., May V. and James Wade. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Anderson has been a member of the council and school board several times.

Isaac Lindsay, merchant, Hulton, was born in County Down, Ireland, in August, 1829, a son of Isaac and Mary (Stewart) Lindsay (both deceased). Mr. Lindsay came to this country in 1849, having finished his education in Ireland. For seven years he was employed in a wholesale store in Pittsburgh, and ten months later moved to Allegheny City, where he did a good trade for ten years. He was then in business five years at Emsworth, and, selling out there, in 1876 came to Verona, where he has been very successful. He was married Sept. 4, 1858, to Charlotte Balmer, a daughter of Captain Balmer, a County Down, Ireland (coming to America in 1852), a daughter of Matthew and Mary (Mercer) Balmer, both deceased. Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay: Mary, who died aged fifteen months: Walter Mercer, who died aged five years; Stewart Washington, who died aged three years; Walter Mercer, who graduated at Westminster College, New Wilming-ton, Pa., in 1887, then studied law with Robb & Fitzsimmons, of Pittsburgh; and Isaac Stewart, who graduated at Duff's College, of Pittsburgh, in 1888, and is in his father's store. Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay are members of the U. P. Church, of which he is a trustee; he is a republican.

Peter Weddle, blacksmith and farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of George and Nancy (Nelson) Weddle. David, the grandson of Peter, was born in Philadelphia, and was brought to this county by his par-ents when an infant. He followed farming near Sutersville, where he resided until his death. He was a soldier in the war of 1812.

His family consisted of twelve children, five of whom are still living. George Weddle died in 1880. Peter Weddle was born on the homestead in 1818, and received the benefit of the schools of that period until he reached the age of fifteen, when he learned the blacksmith's trade, which he has since followed. In 1870 he located at his present place, and operated a small farm in connection with his trade. In 1841 he married Elizabeth, daugh-ter of John McClelland, of Mercer county. They have nine children living: Margaret, widow of Harvey Applegate, of Washington county; Eleanor, wife of James Kearney, of Washington county; Angelina, wife of William McMichael, of Washington county; John M., in Elizabeth township; George W., in Lovedale; Elvira, wife of E. P. Doughlass, of McKeepsport; Daniel W., at home; William F., at Buena Vista; Mary B., wife of James McCune, of this township. Mr. Weddle and his wife are members of the U. P. Church of Bethesda.

Thomas C. Douglass, farmer, postoffice Boston, is the eldest son of Col. William Douglass, and born on the homestead which he now owns, in 1838, and received the benefit of the public schools of that period. For three years he was engaged in manufacturing lumber, but with this exception has always followed farming. In 1856 he enlisted in Co. I, 63d P. V. I., and served until the close of the war. He was orderly-sergeant of his company, and was wounded at the battles of Spottsylvania and the Wilderness. In 1859 he married Mariada A., daughter of James and Eveline (West) Harrison, of this township. They have nine children living: Margaret E. (wife of David Coats, of Boston). Mrs. F. (wife of Philip D. Douglass, of Eliza-beth township), William C., Myrtle B., Jen-nie E., Thomas H., Daisy B., Alice F. and Kate M. (at home). Mr. Douglass has been assessor of his township three terms. He is a member of Youghiogheny Valley Lodge, No. 535, I. O. O. F.; Rankin Post, No. 127, G. A. R.; Vision City Lodge, No. 198, O. E. S., and Mrs. Douglass are members of Mt. Ver-non Presbyterian Church, of which he is one of the trustees.

Charles Matthew Johnston, carpenter, Wilkinsburg, was born in Wilkins township in October, 1822, and is a grandson of Charles Johnston (see biography of H. M. Johnston). His father, Andrew Johnston, was a farmer in Wilkins township, and built a gristmill, which he operated. He died when Charles was a child, and his widow, see Margret Robertson, went to Rock Island, Ill., where she died. He resided in her son in Decem-ber, 1883; both were members of the Beulah Church. They had seven children: Charles, James, Rebeeca, William, Archie, and two daughters who died in infancy. When eighteen years old Charles M. left the farm to learn the carpenter's trade. He spent two years at Freeport and nine in Salem, Westmoreland county, Pa., at millling. Nov. 8, 1846, he married Mary Trees, a native of Salem, and following are the names of their children: Thomas Trees (deceased), Emma Jane (wife of James Cruikshank, deceased, and mother of three children: Omar Trees, and Louisa and William Johnston, deceased), James Andrew, Joseph and Edward Riley (deceased), Charles M. (a bookkeeper in Pittsburgh), Oliver N. (in Wilkinsburg). Thomas Trees, Mrs. Johnston's father, came from England when twenty years old, and lived in Salem fifty-five years. His wife, see Elizabeth Hill, was also a native of Eu-gland. In 1873 Mr. Johnston came to Wilkins-burg, where he has followed his trade most of the time since. He is a member of Beulah Church; is a Freemason, a member of the I. O. O. F., and a republican.

William Andrew Kirk, conductor, Wilkinsburg, was born in Donegal township, Washington county, Pa., Feb. 18, 1849, son of Samuel and Bridget (Dougherty) Kirk, who were born in the same township, the father in 1816. John Kirk, the grandfather of William A., came from Scotland to Wash-ington county in the latter part of the eight-eenth century. Samuel Kirk served twelve consecutive years as assessor of his native township, and has also been collector of taxes, and his wife are now seventy-two years old. They have two sons and two daughters, W. A. being the eldest. John R., the third child, lost his left leg on the railroad, and is now resident here, being employed in the shops at Torrens. William A. Kirk remained on the home farm till twenty-four years of age, when he was employed as brakeman on what is now the B. & O. R. R. In 1867 he took a position as passenger-brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad, and three years later was running a train. He is now em-ployed on the fast through trains between Pittsburgh and Altoona. Since December, 1870, his home has been in Wilkinsburg. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and has been four years president of the Knights of the Punch; has been all his life a democrat. On May 7, 1867, he married Sarah I., daughter of Lewis and Agnes (Ingraham) Roberts, of Greene county. Mr. Roberts was murdered while postmaster at Clinton.
ill. in 1860. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kirk: Francis Ernest, Charles Boyd, Anna Blanchard and Fannie Hazel living; and Minnie Pearl and Harry Clifford, second and third in order of birth, who died when small.

ISAAC WEST, merchant-tailor, McKeesport, was born in Dorsetshire, England, in 1830, a son of William and Rhoda (Grimes) West. He was reared in Stalbridge, Dorsetshire, and there learned the tailor’s trade. In 1851 he immigrated to America, located in McKeesport and entered the employ of James P. White, with whom he worked as a journeyman two years. In 1853 he was promoted to the position of foreman of the shop, and remained as such, with the exception of one year, until 1869, when he embarked in business as a merchant-tailor, in which he has since been successfully engaged. In 1851 he married Peninannah, daughter of Samuel and Rhoda (Blod) Parsons, of Stalbridge, England, by whom he had twelve children: Rhoda A. (Mrs. Walter B. Clasper), William Elford, Kate (Mrs. Granville Forney), Walter L., Fred G., Carrie B., James, John and Frank (twins), Maggie, Isaac and George V. Mr. West is one of McKeesport’s representative citizens. He has been identified with every building and loan association organized in the place, and is treasurer of three at this writing. He is a F. & A. M., a member of the M. E. Church, and is a republican.

JAMES E. KARNS, carpenter, Tarentum, a son of Charles W. and Mary (Thomson) Karns, was born in what is now Harrison township, Allegheny county, Pa., in 1828. His grandfather, J. E. Karns, located in Westmoreland county, and in 1798 removed to Slippery Rock, where he took up a considerable tract of land; then moved to his Jones station, East Deer township. He soon experienced the perils of pioneer life, for in going through the woods one day, carrying as his only weapon of defense an ax, he was confronted by a full-grown bear, disposed to dispute his right of way; Mr. Karns, however, succeeded in making his escape. He and his wife both died in 1840. Their children were Charles W.; William, a hatter by trade, and who was for several years postmaster of Allegheny City; Matthew, a tanner by trade, who died when twenty years of age; James E., Francis, Eliza, who married George Hazlett; Margaret, who married James Potts, and died in Johnstown; Wilson, a soldier in the Florida war, and who died in the service; John, a salt-manufacturer at Karns station, and who died in 1872; Samuel D., captain of some of the river boats, later a sutler in the Mexican war, and who died at Parkersburg, W. Va. The birthplace of Charles W., father of James E., was Westmoreland county, Pa. He married and located at what is now Natrona, Allegheny county, followed the river as lumberman, and during the war of 1812 carried freight up the river in canoes for the army. He died at Natrona in 1894; his wife died in 1889. Their children were James E., Elizabeth T., the late Mrs. Edward McKee, of Natrona; Joseph C.; Francis W., who enlisted in the 9th P. R., Co. C, and who died after the seven days’ fight.

The subject of this memoir after his mother’s death moved to Plum township, where he remained until seventeen years of age, and then proceeded to Pittsburgh, where he learned the carpenter’s trade. In 1852 he went to California, leaving Tarentum January 29th; started from Panama on board the bark Ann Smith March 9th, and reached Acapulco after a tedious voyage of fifty-four days, in a shipwrecked condition. He worked in the mines there for six years, then returned home, and during the civil war enlisted in Co. I, 132d P. V. I.; he received a wound at the battle of Fredericksburg, but remained during his term of enlistment, at the expiration of which he returned home again. In 1864 Mr. Karns married Elizabeth, daughter of John L. Randolph, of Harmar township, this county. After marriage they settled in Tarentum, and here Mr. Karns resumed his former business. Mrs. Karns died in 1880. They reared a family of six children, viz.: Anna M., Mary A., Augusta E., Cornelia R., Charles W. (deceased) and Francis M. Mr. Karns is a member of the U. P. Church.

JOHN D. EVANS, of the firm of J. D. Evans & Son, merchant-tailors, McKeesport, is a native of North Wales, Great Britain, and was born July 12, 1838, to Daniel and Ellen (Roberts) Evans. He was reared and educated in his native country, where he served an apprenticeship of four years at the tailor’s trade, after which he worked as a journeyman in Liverpool, England, from 1860 to 1870. In 1862 he married Mary, a daughter of Edward and Mary (Parry) Jones, of North Wales, and by her had six children: Elias C., Harriet, Kate, Mamie, John D., Jr., and Lizzie O. In 1870 Mr. Evans came to America, and located in Pittsburgh, where he worked at his trade as a journeyman one year and a half. He then removed to Irwin station, where he was employed as a cutter one year; then embarked in business at the same place as a merchant-tailor, at which he continued five years. He then became cutter for Levi Gibson, of Sharpsburg, one year, and later at Natrona two and a half years. In September, 1881, he came to McKeesport, where he was employed as a cutter six years in the store of S. L. Goldman. In September, 1887, he embarked in the merchant-tailoring business, with his eldest son, Elias C., as a partner, and has already built up a large and remunerative trade. He is a member of the Heptasophs, I. O. O. F. Encampment, A. O. U. W. and K. of L. In politics he is a republican, in religion a Baptist.

FRED HAAS, roller-car painter, postoffice Pittsburgh, was born in Alsace, France, a son of Fred (a barber) and Mary M. Haas, and came to America with his parents in 1845, settling in Pittsburgh, Pa. His father reared a family of fourteen children, four of whom are living: Fred, Philip, Charles and Caroline (wife of Lewis Aurin, of this county). Fred, Sr., died in 1866, his widow in 1883, at the age of seventy-five years. Fred Haas, Jr., came to Pittsburgh Aug. 1, 1843, and on the 10th of the same month commenced work in a rolling-mill (which business he has since followed), and is a master-roller and roll-turner. He has been twice married, first to Mary H., daughter of William J. Hamilton, of Pittsburgh; she died in 1881, at the age of forty-two years, without issue. Mr. Haas next married, in 1882, Sophia, daughter of Philip and Catherine Gerst, of this county, and they have one child, Frederick P. Philip and Catherine Gerst were both born in Alsace, and came to this country in the year 1841. By a former marriage Mrs. Haas has three children: Elizabeth, Millie and Lenora. Mr. Haas is a member of the Masonic fraternity. Commencing life in very humble circumstances, by industry and perseverance he has acquired a beautiful home, and has just erected one of the best dwelling-houses in McKee's Rocks village.
HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

William Haas, hotel proprietor, post-office Fetterman, was born in Germany in 1840, and came to America when thirteen years of age with his parents, Charles Henry Haas (who was a coal-miner) and Mary Smith Haas. William was the oldest in a family of three children; he was educated in the county, and at an early day commenced work in the coal-mines, which he followed until 1875, when he commenced his present business. In 1862 he was married to Miss Louisa, daughter of Powell Wilhelm, and ten children were born to them, all yet living. For the past twenty-seven years Mr. Haas has been a member of the I. O. O. F., is a member of the Red Men, Encampment of Workmen and other beneficial associations. He has been school director for two terms, and mayor of the borough council for the same length of time; he is a member of the G. P. Church, and is a republican.

Uriah Kearns, farmer, Green Tree, was born in 1832, son of Thomas and Rebecca Kearns. He was educated at the public schools in his native township, and farming has been his occupation through life. He now owns thirty-three acres of land, a part of the tract purchased by his father. He was married in 1860 to Adaline, daughter of James Bell, and to them have been born nine children, all of whom are now living, viz.: Laura May, Missouri, Rebecca Jane, Emma Viola, Kate, Thomas, George, John and Noah. Mr. Kearns has always taken an active part in the interests of the township, having had many positions of honor, and is now Burgess of the borough. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

Jerome Kearns was born in this county in 1830, son of Thomas and Rebecca Kearns, and now resides at the old homestead, owning twenty acres of the original tract. He was married in 1862 to Miss Catharine Crawford, and to them were born three children: Rebecca, Josephine and Thomas. His second wife was Miss Sarah Ann, daughter of Charles Peacock, and they have had two children, one living, Jerome. Mr. Kearns is a republican.

Samuel John Brown, foreman, Verona, was born in Pittsburgh in 1847, a son of Thomas, Jr., and Elizabeth (McLain) Brown, of English and Irish extraction, former of whom now resides in Pittsburgh, being employed in the ironing department of the Pennsylvania railroad shops. Samuel was reared in the city, and attended school until eighteen years old, when he commenced to learn his trade of machinist at Feber's machine-shop, Pittsburgh. For ten years he was night foreman of the Pan Handle round-house in Pittsburgh, and came to Verona in 1879. For four years he was employed as forger at the Dexter Spring-works. He then entered the Allegheny Valley railroad shops, where he is foreman of the rod-gang. With his family he attends the Presbyterian Church; politically he supports the republican party. In 1873 he married Ida Porter, born in Pittsburgh, daughter of the late John Porter, of Penn township, and by her has five children: Ernest Robert, Alma Arthur, Ira, Ida and Porter. Mr. Brown enlisted April 4, 1863, in Pittsburgh, in Co. G, 110th P. V., 2d and 3d corps consolidated; was mustered out at Bailey's Cross Roads, Va., and discharged at Harrisburg July 3, 1865.

William Henry Snively, farmer, post-office Verona, was born in 1849 on the farm where he resides. His father, Joseph, the eldest son of Christopher Snively, was born on the farm now owned by Robert Black; Eliza (Barry), wife of Joseph Snively, died when her son, William H., was a year old, and he was reared by his grandfather. Joseph Snively was a member of the 9th P. R., and was killed at the battle of Antietam. William H. Snively was an only child, and inherited the farm, which includes about sixty acres. In 1884 he married Mrs. Elizabeth (McKely) Lee, daughter of David McKely, and widow of Robert Lee, by whom she had two children: Robert Lee and Caleb Lee; by Mr. Snively she has also had two children: Elizabeth Jane and William Henry. Mrs. Snively was born in Plum township. The family attend the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Snively is a republican, and has served as township assessor.

W. D. McLarn, merchant, postoffice Oakdale Station, is a son of Robert and Susan (Donaldson) McLarn, the former of whom, a farmer of Findlay township, died in 1891, aged seventy-five years; the latter died in 1855, aged fifty-five years. They had a family of six children, of whom W. D. is the only remaining member. He was born and reared on a farm, and received his education at the public schools and Pennsylvania Institute, Pittsburgh. In 1874 he engaged at his present place in mercantile business. He married, in 1870, Lizzie J. Miller, of North Fayette township, and five children yet living are the result of this union: Susan D., Maggie R., R. H., Mary and Ernest S. Mr. McMann was reared in the United Presbyterian faith, but is now a Presbyterian; he is a republican.

Morgan Elliott, retired, postoffice Sturgeon, was born in Beaver county, Pa., in 1811, a son of James Elliott, who came from Eastern Pennsylvania, was a tanner by trade, and later followed farming. He married Elizabeth Laughlin, of this county, and twelve children were born to them, five of whom are now living. James died in 1850, aged sixty years. Morgan was born and partially reared on a farm. At sixteen years of age he learned millwrighting, serving an apprenticeship of four years, and followed the trade twenty-five years. In 1857 he purchased one hundred acres of his present farm, which now contains 375. In 1841 he married Mary Walker, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Glenn) Walker, and to them seven children were born: Joseph W., Wilson L., James M., Isabella Glenn (Mrs. Dr. Fife), Hulda Ann (Mrs. A. Fife), Louisa Jane (Mrs. Patterson), and Elizabeth Mary, who died March 2, 1890. Mr. Elliott has retired from active labor, and for twenty years he has been engaged in the dairy business, his sons doing the work on the farm. He is a member of the U. P. Church and is a democrat.

Robert Neupert, harness-maker, postoffice McKee's Rocks, was born in Butler county, Pa., in 1859, a son of Christopher and Caroline (Heller) Neupert, former of whom came from Germany to this country in 1843 and settled in Butler county, Pa., where he farmed. There he married and became the father of eight children, viz.: Alvina (wife of John Sorg), Harmon (decessed), Robert, Mary (deceased), Lewis, William, Earnest and Charlie. Christopher died in 1879, aged sixty-four years, a member of the Saxonburg Church, in Butler county, of which his widow, who is still living in that county, is also a member. Robert Neupert came to this county in 1874, learned the harness-making trade, and in 1883 commenced business for himself at McKee's Rocks, Stowe township, where he is still successfully engaged. He married, in 1884, Callie Kenneweg, of this city, and two children were born to them: Cora (deceased) and Cornelia. Mr. Neupert's prudence and industry have enabled him to secure a very pleasant and comfortable home, and he has the reputation of being one of Stowe township's best citizens.

M. Wolf, merchant, West Elizabeth, is a son of Joseph and Walburga Wolf, and was born in Germany in 1844. He located in 1865 in Pittsburgh, where for a year he was employed in a bakery. He then went to Cincinnati, Ohio, but in 1867 returned to Pitts-bugh, where he married Johanna Schlaumeier. Three children were born to their union: Jacob and Melchor. After his marriage he moved to Elizabeth and established a bakery, which he later disposed of, and with his brother, Anton, started a brewery in West Elizabeth. This they afterward sold to John Werner, the present owner. After selling the brewery Mr. Wolf established a bakery in West Elizabeth, and also engaged in general merchandising. He married for his second wife Mrs. Evans, a widow, of Pittsburgh, who was the mother of three children by her former husband: Charles H. (now deceased), Lottie and James A. To this marriage seven children have been born: Maggie, Joseph, John, Mary, William, George and Anton (now deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Wolf are members of the Catholic Church.

Charles Percival, merchant, West Elizaabeth, son of Erastus and Sarah Percival, was born in West Elizabeth in 1854. His father was a native of Vermont and his mother of Washington county, Pa., her parents having removed from New Jersey. Our subject lived with his mother until his marriage, in 1879, with Catherine L., daughter of J. P. Wylie, of Jefferson township. He then became actively engaged in business in the borough of West Elizabeth, as a dealer in general merchandise, which he still continues. He has from time to time held various official positions, and at present is a member of the council. Mr. and Mrs. Percival have three children: Eugene, Edna and Mildred.

J. F. Hickman, farmer, postoffice Federal, was born in Allegheny county, in 1844. His grandfather, Peter, came to America about 1790, settled in this county, and purchased 200 acres of land in South Fayette township, Joseph, a son of this pioneer, married Elizabeth McCabe, and became the father of twelve children. He died in 1882, aged eighty-five years, and his wife in 1876, aged seventy-two years. Joseph F., the twelfth in the family, was born and reared on a farm, received a common-school education, and in 1879 married Elizabeth A., daughter of N. H. Plummer, of this county. Born to this marriage were seven children (three of whom are deceased): Charles Plummer, Cora Estella, Mary Elizabeth (deceased, Aug. 2, 1884), Agnes Mabel, Lilian Olivia and Violet Josephine (twins; Lilian O. died July 10, 1888), and Joseph Howard, who died March 8, 1888. Mr. Hickman is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

August Siebert, farmer, postoffice Ross, was born Jan. 11, 1844, in Sieferhausen, Kurhessen, Germany, a son of Barthel and Anna (Krause) Siebert, natives of the above-mentioned place, which is named for the family. The paternal grandfather was a fine scholar, and was in the employ of the government. Mr. Barthel Siebert was born Oct. 18, 1812; his wife, Mrs. Anna Siebert, was born Jan. 14, 1830, and with her husband immigrated to America in 1852. They settled in this county, where the father died in 1866. He had been engaged in the dairy business for twenty-six years, was an excel-Catherine
ine, August, Martha, Elizabeth, Henry, Sarah, Anna Rebecca and Anna Mary. The Siebert family are German Presbyterians, and helped to build the church of which the father was a member until he died.

STEPHAN AFFOLTER, farmer, postoffice Ross, was born Feb. 28, 1836, in Canton Berne, Switzerland, a son of John and Barbara (Strown) Affolter. He came to America when nineteen years of age, and for a time worked for the meager compensation of four dollars per month. By industry and perseverance he very soon improved his circumstances, and has been a successful businessman. He married Susan, daughter of John Thompson, and four children have blessed their union: Samuel, Maggie, Katie and Mary B. Mr. and Mrs. Affolter are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

ADALBERT MERZ, jeweler, postoffice Sewickley, was born Dec. 29, 1829, in Fulda, Kurschen, Germany, son of Valentine Merz, an attorney who held a government office. The Merz family of Fulda are among the best families in that part of the country. The ancestors have all held high positions in the church and state. The mother came to America several years before Adalbert; she died in Terre Haute, Ind., July 17, 1888, aged eighty-three years. Adalbert learned the trade of watchmaker with A. Vogel in his mother's city, and at the thirty-ninth year he entered the German army, serving eight years. In 1857 he came to Charleston, S. C., remaining there until February, 1892, when he came to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he worked at his trade. He was an exceedingly skillful workman, and in 1877 he bought out his employer, and has since conducted the business successfully. In 1865 he purchased a large farm in Ohio township, where he resides in summer, owning other property besides this. Mr. Merz was married in Augusta, Ga., to Miss Catherine Hett, of Cologne-on-the-Rhine, Germany. They have reared a family of nine children: Katic, Louise, Eleonora, Emma, Adalbert, Josephine, Adele, Sophia and Augusta.

HENRY WOLFE, farmer, postoffice Glenfield, was born Oct. 30, 1811, in East End, Pittsburgh, Pa. The paternal grandfather was a native of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, and when he was fifteen years of age his parents died at sea. He and two brothers came to America. One settled in Lebanon county, Pa., another in East Pennsylvania and the third in Ohio. The grandfather of Henry, a Lutheran minister, came to this country in 1796, and preached the gospel in Pittsburgh and vicinity till his death, which occurred when he had attained a good old age. He was the father of five children. Jacob, the father of Henry, was born in Lebanon county, where he was reared. He married Catherine Meyer, and to them were born children as follows: George, Samuel, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackerey, Mrs. Margaret Stoner, Henry and Joseph. Henry's father was a general and an able mechanic; he died in 1843, aged sixty-nine years. Henry was a merchant-tailor in Pittsburgh until 1862, when he purchased a farm of thirty-two acres. He was married twice, his first wife being Martha J. Marshall; his second wife was Margaret, daughter of Thomas Barnes and Jane Boyd. This marriage was blessed by seven children: Thomas B., Jennie, Milton, Charles, Sherman, William H., and Madison. Milton died by an accident Aug. 21, 1855, when aged twenty years. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe are members of the M. E. Church; he is a republican.

BREWER SCOTT, engineer, postoffice Bennett, was born May 24, 1827, in Pittsburgh, Pa. His father, Thomas Scott, was a native of Ireland, and came to Pittsburgh in the early part of the present century, with his father, brother and sister. He was a shoemaker, and followed the trade till his death, in 1849, when he was seventy-six years of age. He was a Covenanter. He married Mary Bainer, a native of Baltimore, of German descent, whose father, Henry Bainer, was a soldier in the war of 1812. Thomas Scott's sister's daughter was the noted Mrs. Swisshelm, whose memory so many soldiers bless. Brewer Scott was one of a family of ten children. He was educated in Allegheny, where he learned the engineer's trade, and was connected for seven years with the old rolling-mill of Allegheny, and five years with the Fahnemoll stock. For thirty-one years he has been connected with the mills at Bennett station, where he has been chief engineer twenty-five years. He has been twice married; his first wife, nee Mary Martin, died leaving five children, viz.: Winfield, Charlie, Mary E., Jennie and Anna. Mr. Scott's present wife, nee Martha Sample, is the mother of following-named children: Martha, William S., editor of the Bennett Star, Sallie C. and Daisy. Mr. Scott was burgess of Millvale borough six terms, has been school director thirty years, and councilman for many years.

GEORGE KREMML, gardener, postoffice Bennett, was born April 23, 1828, in Alsace, Germany, son of John and Bretteke (Stuckler) Kremmel. George was reared on a farm, married Catharine Christmann, in 1849, and came to America in 1850, settling in this county, where he purchased seven and one-half acres of land for $1,100, and began gardening on a small scale. He has been a very industrious and successful gardener; is now in possession of thirty acres of garden-land, and employs about ten men and women. Mr. and Mrs. Kremmel are the parents of five children, viz.: John, John J., Mary, Mrs. Ellen Simmor and Louise. Mr. Kremmel and family are members of the Catholic Church, in which he has filled the office of treasurer for nine years; he is a democrat.

WILLIAM MCFETRIDGE, merchant and brick-manufacturer, postoffice Hites, a son of George McFetridge, was born in County Derry, Ireland, in May, 1850. He came to Allegheny county, Pa., with his parents, in 1856, and in 1871 removed to East Deer township. In 1879 he went into business as a grocer, and later as dealer in general merchandise. In 1884 he built the brickworks above Hites, on Bailie's run, and began the manufacture of brick. His works now having a capacity of fifteen thousand. He also operates the coal mines there.

John B. Bailie, farmer, postoffice Hites, was born in East Deer township, Allegheny county, Pa. His father, Robert, a son of John, was born near Belfast, Ireland. The latter immigrated to America in 1816, his wife dying en route, and located on Big Deer creek, this county. In 1825 he came to East Deer township, and located on a farm now known as the Bailie farm. Robert Bailie is now the only person in East Deer township who was a resident there in 1825.

John left three children: William, Robert and Isabella. Robert married, in 1853, Martha Henderson, who died in 1878, leaving three children: Maggie, John B. and Mary. Robert Bailie is now eighty-three years of age, and is the only survivor of six who voted, on the abolition question, for Birney.

John B. Bailie married, April 27, 1887, Nannie B., daughter of James M. Thompson, of Springdale, and located on the old homestead. He is a republican, to which political faith his father has been a lifelong adherent. The family are members of the R. P. Church of Tarentum, New Side.

Isaac McMichael, farmer, postoffice Walker's Mills, was born in this county in 1836. Isaac McMichael, the pioneer of this family, and a farmer by occupation, came to Allegheny county from east of the mountains at an early date, and purchased a large tract of land in Robinson township. He married Mary Holtz, who bore him twelve children. His son, John McMichael, was born and reared on the property mentioned, and was always a farmer. He married Ann McMillen, and by her had five children, three of whom are now living. John McMichael died in 1853, aged fifty-seven years; his wife in 1845, aged thirty years. Their son, Isaac, the subject of this sketch, was born and reared on the farm which he now owns. He was educated at the common schools, and being left an orphan when quite young, and thrown among strangers, he early in life began to battle for himself. In 1854 he went to California, where he was engaged in mining for nine years, but returned to Allegheny county via Key West and New York. He inherited fifty-four acres of his father's land, and also purchased forty-six acres. Mr. McMichael married, in 1876, Ella, daughter of John McCoy, of this township, and they were born four children, three now living; George Clarence, Stella and Ralph Cleveland. Mr. McMichael is a democrat.

John Sinn, dairyman, postoffice McKeesport, a son of Johannes Sinn, was born in Germany in 1833, and was there reared and educated. In 1857 he went to Australia, where for some years he was engaged in the gold-mines, acquiring a competency. In 1879 he joined his parents in America, they having come here in 1867, and located in Lincoln township, this county. Here John purchased a large farm delightfully located on the Youghiogheny river, and has since been engaged in farming and dairying, finding a ready sale for his productions in McKeesport.

He is, as yet, unmarried, and is one of the well-to-do farmers of Lincoln. His father's family consisted of six children: Fredericka (Mrs. Klotz), John, Louisa (Mrs. Jacob Diehle), Caroline (the late Mrs. Lueckert), Gottlieb and Ludwig. They are members of the Presbyterian Church of McKeesport.

John Dale, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, was born Jan. 3, 1826, in Wales, where he was reared. In 1847 he married Hannah Williams, and in 1848 they came to America, locating east of the mountains, in Pennsylvania, where he was engaged in mining coal. In 1853 he came to Allegheny county; in 1872 he again removed to Lincoln township, and in 1879 he purchased the farm he now owns, opposite McKeesport, on the Youghiogheny river, where he has since resided. His wife Hannah died in 1874, leaving one child, John, who was married. Mr. Dale afterward married Mrs. Susanah M. Deo. John, his son, died in 1884, leaving a widow and five children: John William, George D., Charles Edmund, Hannah J. and Susanah M., all of whom are now living with Mrs. Dale on the farm; he also has one brother, Thomas Dale, residing in Loivedale.

William Miller, manufacturer, Rankin station, B. & O. R. R., was born in Scotland July 21, 1820. His father, John Miller, a shoemaker by trade, married Mary Ross, and they were parents of five children, William being the only one who grew to manhood. At the age of nine years he left school and sought employment in the cotton-mills; worked eight hours for nine cents, and so continued for six years. In 1835 he commenced work in the forgeshops, and has since been connected with that industry. He came to America in 1849, secured employment in West Point foundry, New York, where he remained five years. He learned the trade of hammersmen, and returned to Scotland in 1853, remained there two and one-half years, and again came to America, locating in Pittsburgh. He was employed at his trade until 1862, when the Duquesne Forge company was organized, this plant being situated at Duquesne way, and the partnership existed until 1892, Mr. Miller being a partner and manager. He then came to his present place and purchased a grand space of ten acres on the B. & O. R. R. at Rankin station, Pa., and formed a partnership known as Miller Forge company (limited). This plant is equal to any in the United States in the manufacture of its product. Mr. Miller was married in 1845 to Jane Stout, of Scotland, and eight children were born to this union, six living: William J., Humphries, Elizabeth, Jane S., Agnes D., Jennette. There were made at Mr. Miller's works during the war the first army plate for iron-sides and the first ten steel cannon in this country. Mr. Miller has always been a successful business-man. For twelve years he was director in the Merchants' & Manufacturers' Bank of Pittsburgh; has been a director of the Pittsburgh, Chartiers & Youghiogheny railroad; was president of the Pittsburgh exposition for two years, president of Pennsylvania Engineers' society one year, and is a member of American Merchant Engineers. He and family are members of the U. P. Church; he is a republican.

James Sanson Maguire (deceased) was born Aug. 5, 1833, in Indiana county, a son of Robert and Mary (Oster) Maguire, of Irish and German descent, respectively. He was employed in early life on the canal, and later became a coal-miner. He worked in Indiana and Westmoreland counties, and became a resident of Patton in 1874, finding occupation in the Oak Hill mines. He died Sept. 22, 1887. In religious faith he was a Universalist, but his family is connected with the Lutheran Church. He was always a republican, and was a member of the G. A. R. and Masonic fraternity. He enlisted in June, 1861, in Company E, 11th P. R., and served three years with the Army of the Potomac, sharing in many battles. On one occasion he was struck in the eye by a spent ball, which caused him a great deal of discomfort at times. He was in Libby prison forty days. He was twenty-six years of age when enrolled; six feet high; complexion dark; brown eyes; black hair. Mr. Maguire married, in 1855, Mary Ann Sylves, who bore him ten children, of whom the living are: Alexander Edward, Samuel Washington, Robert Getty, James Edgar, John Williamson, William Barclay, Flora Catharine, Laura May and Thomas Charles, with their mother. The first born, Adam, was drowned when eleven years old. The widow of James S. Maguire now lives at Turtle Creek.

James E. Dickson, real-estate agent, Swissvale. About the year 1810 one Thomas Dickson emigrated from his native county, Tyrone, Ireland, locating first in Allegheny county for a few years, and then, with his family, removing to Butler county, Pa., where he purchased some four hundred acres of land. This pioneer married Margaret Lucas, also a native of Ireland, by whom were born four sons and two daughters. Thomas, one of the elder children, born in Ireland in 1791, and the only male member of his father's family who remained in Allegheny county, was for many years identified with the manufacturing and mercantile business of Pittsburgh. In 1848 he purchased ninety acres of land in Wilkins township, whither he removed with his family, and died in 1870. He married Mary Jane, daughter of James and Jane (McNickel) Dickson, and to them were born eleven children, six of whom grew to manhood and womanhood, viz.: James E., Isabella, T. B. (now deceased), David, Susan and R. E. Mrs. Dickson's grandparents came to America some time previous to 1800. The entire family are identified with the Presbyterian Church or its branches. Mr. Dickson is a republican.

Lewallen M. Snowden, hardware-dealer, Elizabeth, was born Jan. 20, 1827, in Green county, Ky. His parents moved to Illinois when he was an infant. His mother died when he was five years old, and he was bound out to serve until his twenty-first birthday, but he ran away at the age of eighteen years and commenced for himself. In 1849 he went to California and engaged in mining, but this not proving lucrative he returned, and in 1853 settled in Pittsburgh, Pa., and learned the tinner's trade. This was his home until 1858, when he came to Elizabeth borough, opened a tinshop and remained until 1861. He then enlisted in Co. K, 79th Pennsylvania Zouaves, and served until his honorable discharge, in 1863, having been wounded at the battle of Poocotaligo, S. C. Returning to Elizabeth, he established his present business, and through strict attention has the largest store of the kind in this borough. In 1858 he was married to Lucinda, daughter of Charles Stewart Flemington, of Pittsburgh. They have five sons and one daughter, as follows: James Henry, a tinsmith; William W., a steward on one of the river boats; Charles S., also a steward; Annie M., Harry A., of McKeesport, and Lewallen M., Jr. Mr. Snowden has held the office of burgess of the borough. He is a member of J. W. Stevens Post, No. 111. G. A. R. The family are members of the M. E. Church.

Christian Kircher, contractor, postoffice McKee's Rocks, a son of Adam M. and Elizabeth Kircher, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., March 17, 1858. His parents were born in Germany, came to this country in 1855, and settled in Allegheny county. His father was a blacksmith in Anderson & Dupuy's steel-works from the time he came to this country until his death, which occurred in October, 1881, when he was aged fifty years; his widow is still living in Pittsburgh. Their children are Christian, George, Peter, Louis, Lizzie, Lotta and William (deceased). Christian commenced work in Anderson & Dupuy's rolling mill before he was thirteen years old, and has remained with the firm ever since. He holds the position of contractor for the agricultural shear department of the steel-works, takes the contracts of the firm, and furnishes his own men; he employs about thirty-five men. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and O. U. A. M. In June, 1883, he married Lulu, daughter of Joseph and Kate Stetler, of this county.

Alfred Smith, contractor, postoffice Hulton, was born in Armstrong county, Pa., March 1, 1848, son of John and Ellen (Min-ter) Smith, former of whom was a farmer, born at Deer Creek, this county, died in 1860, aged forty-four years; latter was born in Armstrong county, and now resides in Worthington; both members of the U. P. Church. Alfred Smith received a common-school education, and learned the carpenter's trade when he was eighteen years old. Ten years later he came to Verona, and for two years was employed in the Allegheny Valley railroad shops; he then began building, and in 1882, in partnership with Mr. Milligan, he began contracting, in which he has been very successful. Mr. Smith was married, March 4, 1873, to Charlotte Augusta, daughter of John and Charlotte (Dennison) Arnold, of Freeport, Pa., both now deceased. They had four children, two now living: Elsie Augusta and James Dennison; the deceased are Katie B. and Howard Arnold. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are members of the U. P. Church; he is a republican, and a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

WILLIAM LOGAN, bricklayer, postoffice Boston, is a son of Isaac and Diana (Morton) Logan. The father of our subject was born in Butler county, and came to this county when eighteen years old, and settled at Buena Vista. He subsequently removed to Boston, where he died in 1873. He was married three times, and was the father of eighteen children, eight of whom are now living. Our subject was the eldest son of the second wife, who died in 1848. He was born in Elizabeth township in 1839, was educated in the schools of his neighborhood, and afterward learned the trade of bricklayer, which he has since followed. In 1861 he enlisted in Co. I, 12th P. V., and served three months. Aug. 20, 1862, he enlisted in Co. I, 155th P. V., and served until the close of the war. He was married in 1866 to Lizzie, daughter of Isaac and Jane (Shaw) Rose, of Westmoreland county. They have no children. Mr. Logan is a member of Rankin Post, No. 127, G. A. R. He and Mrs. Logan are members of Mt. Vernon Presbyterian Church, of which he is trustee.

WILLIAM SHIELDS WATT, ice-dealer, Wilkinsburg, was born in Allegheny, Westmoreland county, Pa., Jan. 6, 1847. His father, Alex. W. Watt, was born on the same farm in 1819, and continues to reside there. William Watt, father of the latter, was a son of George Watt, a native of Ireland, and was born in Adams county, Pa. He settled in Westmoreland county some years previous to 1809, where he was married. A. W. Watt is an elder in the U. P. Church, and has been a republican since James Buchanan's time. His first wife, Martha McKee, bore him three sons and two daughters, and died in 1880, aged sixty-one years. In 1885 he married Bessie, daughter of Albert (whose sketch appears elsewhere). William S. Watt, the eldest child, remained on the home farm till of age, came to Sterrett in 1872, and three years later rented the farm on which he had been employed, and engaged in dairying. In 1882 he bought five acres of land, on which he erected icehouses, and is doing a successful trade in milk and ice. Since twenty years old he has been a member of the U. P. Church, and has always been a republican. In 1875 Mr. Watt married Anna Mary Hazlett, a native of Allegheny City, and daughter of Robert and Jane (Mckee) Hazlett, of Scotch-Irish descent.

EDWARD JAMES LLOYD, salesman, Pittsburg, was born at Chariton, Iowa, April 8, 1859. Eight years previous to this his grandfather, Stephen, and father, David W. Lloyd, emigrated from Wales to Allegheny county, Pa. The elder, a plasterer and slater by trade, soon after went to Iowa and engaged in farming. The son, David W., married, in 1838, Martha Byoun, also a native of Wales, and soon after joined his father in the west. D. W. Lloyd returned to Pittsburg in 1861, and now resides at Shadyside, where he contracts in plastering. Edward James Lloyd was reared in the city, and graduated from the high-school in 1877. Next year he was employed by the Bindley Hardware company, with which he has ever since been connected, and soon after turned his hand to selling to the city and suburban trade. In 1887 he completed his dwelling at Edgewood, and on the 15th of February, that year, was married to Alice A. Craig, a native of Pittsburg, daughter of Hamilton Craig, of Scotch-Irish descent. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd have one son, Edward Craig. Mr. Lloyd is organist of Christ M. E. Church, Pittsburgh; he is a republican.

THOMAS PETTY, coupling-maker, McKeesport, was born in County Mayo, Ireland, Dec. 18, 1844, son of Dominick and Elizabeth (Walsh) Petty. At the age of twelve years he went to Staffordshire, England, where he served an apprenticeship of three years to the gunsmith's trade, after which he worked as a journeyman till 1867, when he came to America, locating in Pittsburgh, and here worked as a coupling-maker up to 1874, then came to McKeesport and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company as a coupling-maker, where he has since been engaged. In 1871 he married Mary, daughter of James and Mary (Jennings) Walsh, of County Mayo, Ireland, and has four children living: George E., Charles R. V., Mary T. and Theodore B. U. Mr. Petty is a member of the Catholic Church, Catholic Knights, St. Joseph's society and C. M. B. A.; he is a director of and stockholder in the McKeesport Light company; he is a democrat.

SAMUEL SIMCOX, boiler-plate roller, McKeesport, is a native of Walheath, Staffordshire, England, where he was reared and educated, and served an apprenticeship of seven years at his trade. In March, 1870, he came to America to work for Nathaniel Rolins, of Philadelphia, who paid all his traveling expenses, and gave him fifteen dollars per day for three years' service. During that time Mr. Simcox operated and had charge of his own invention of oletum and exletum steel. From 1875 to 1877 he was night superintendent of the Bethlehem Steel-works at Bethlehem, Pa., and in the fall of 1877 he went to Peru, S. A., to superintend the erection of a large sugar-mill. Returning to Pennsylvania in the fall of 1878, he worked in the hoop department of the Bethlehem Rolling-mill one year, and in the fall of 1879 came to McKeesport, where for six months he had charge of the roll-turning in the National Rolling-mill. Since the spring of 1880 he has had charge of the boiler-plate-rolling department of the above mill. Mr. Simcox has large interests in blooded horses and cattle, the former of which are registered in the English and American studbooks, and the latter in the American herdbook. He owns a fine stock-farm of 4,518 acres in Maryland.

Harvey Floy C. Carroll, tinsmith, post-office Turtle Creek, comes of the same stock as Charles Carroll, the signer of the Declaration of Independence. His great-grandfather, Daniel, was a pioneer settler in what is now Jefferson township, this county. Thomas, son of Daniel, died at the age of thirty-five years. His son, Salathiel J., married Charlotte Peterson, and now resides in Turtle Creek. Mrs. Carroll's father, Harvey Heath Peterson, was for many years a justice of the peace in Jefferson. He was county commissioner, and was prothonotary three terms. He was born in 1796, and died at the age of fifty-three years. His parents, Gabriel and Margaret C., lived to the respective ages of ninety-four and ninety-six years. The Gabriel Peterson commanded a company under Braddock, participating in the unfortunate battle at Braddock's Field, and afterward joined Gen. Washington's troops in the Revolution. S. J. Carroll began to learn the cooper's trade when fifteen years old, and after working for some years at that took up carpenter-work. In 1855 he went to Fulton, Iowa, where he remained six years, and then returned to Beaver county, Allegheny county, and was for ten years later moved to his present farm, which was originally settled by his grandfather, consisting of more than two hundred acres. His people were among the early settlers here.

Augustus P. Cole, gardener, Emsworth, was born Feb. 5, 1836, in Allegheny City, son of George Washington and Dorcas W. (Bragdon) Cole, of whose family an account has been given in the sketch. Our subject was raised in Allegheny City, in Maine, in 1798, and died Dec. 28, 1879; latter was also born in Maine, and died April 25, 1881, aged seventy-one years. George Cole and his brothers, named Rufus, James, Ivery, George W. and William, came from Maine, settled in Allegheny City, and bought 150 acres upon Neville island; after paying for that they purchased 150 acres more, thus owning all of the upper end of Neville, which was heavy timber-land. They cleared away the timber, and sold the cordwood to steamboats on the Ohio river. George Cole then began gardening, and lived here until his death. He was the father of the following-named five children: Augustus P., Carrie (deceased), George H., Henrietta and Milton P. Augustus P. was educated in the common schools and at Mount Union College, Ohio. He remained at home until his father's death, and then began gardening for himself. He was married at Manchester Hill, this county, in 1870, to Mary, daughter of James Dickson. (See his sketch.) Two children have been born to them, James A. and Everson P., both at home. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Cole of the F. & A. M. He is a republican, and has held nearly all of the township offices. He enlisted in 1862 in Co. K, 123d P. V. I. (Col. Clark commanding), assigned to the 5th corps of the Army of the Potomac. He was in the battles of Fredericksburg, Antietam, South Mountain and Chancellorsville; was discharged at the end of nine months, returning to the island, where he has since been engaged in gardening.

GEORGE HENRY COLE, gardener, Emsworth, was born in Allegheny City, Feb. 25, 1858, son of George Washington and Dorcas W. (Braddock) Cole (see sketch above). He was the third oldest of five children, and was educated at the common schools of Neville island and at Duff's College, Pittsburgh. At the time of his father’s death the property was divided, and he began gardening. He was united in marriage Dec. 20, 1860, with Annie Mary McMicken of Sharon, Pa., daughter of Charles and Martha (Jeffery) McMicken; her father died in 1841; her stepfather was John Neely; her parents were both born in 1809; her grandfather was Charles McMicken. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Cole, five of whom are living: Minnie F., Nettie May, Sadie A., Harry E. and Elmer C. Nettie May was educated in Allegheny, and is cashier of St. George hotel, Evansville, Ind.; the remaining children are at home. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, with the exception of Mr. Cole, he being of the M. E. Church. After marriage Mr. Cole went to Oil City and Duck Creek, but at the request of his father he returned to the island, receiving his portion of the estate, and at once turned his attention to gardening, which he has since followed with success, building up a fine home with many improvements, outbuildings, etc., and is now adding a greenhouse having two acres covered with glass. He is a strong republican, and has held nearly all of the township offices. He is a member of the K. of H.

WILLIAM EYSTER WATTERS, gardener, Greenfield, was born March 27, 1857, in Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Joseph and Harriet (Eyster) Watters, latter of whom is still living, aged eighty-eight years. His grandfather, Joseph Watters, was born in England, came to America when about ten years of age, and subsequently married Margaret Morrow, who came from Ireland when she was twelve years old. Mr. Watters was on the survey with Gen. Pike between the United States and Mexico; he was in the artillery in the revolutionary war, and at the battle of New Orleans lost one of his eyes when discharged and given a land-grant, but died soon after reaching home. His wife lived for some time upon Davis’ island, and died at the age of seventy-five years. Joseph, the father of William, was born June 4, 1809, in Robinson township, this county; he moved to the island in 1849, and died Dec. 26, 1882. His wife was of German descent, born at Shippensburg, Pa., in 1807, and died in March, 1888. Mr. Watters began life on the island as a gardener without any capital; by industry and speculation in outside property he finally owned a fine farm of 110 acres. In 1888 the property was divided, his son William taking his share and beginning for himself; the farm is now well improved, with a fine house and good outbuildings; he has five lots in Glenfield, some in Emsworth, and fifteen hundred acres of timber, coal and mineral land in West Virginia. Mr. Watters enlisted Aug. 3, 1862, in Co. K, 123d P. V. I., Army of the Potomac; he participated in the battles of Bull run, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and was discharged May 13, 1863. Returning home, he married, Feb. 6, 1866, Ann Elizabeth Dunbar, of Washington county, daughter of James and Mary (Eyster) Dunbar. Her father died in 1878, aged seventy-eight years; her mother died in 1880, aged seventy-six. Her maternal great-grandfather was Col. McGeehan, from Scotland, who was in the French and Indian war. Her paternal grandfather was Rev. James and Mary (McConnell) Dunbar, also natives of Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Watters have one daughter, Minnie E. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

JOHN A. WATTERS, gardener, Dixmont, was born in Robinson township, this county, April 23, 1846, son of Joseph and Harriet (Eyster) Watters (see sketch above). He received his education on the island, and was married Jan. 30, 1872, to Josephine M. Lamm, of Lawrence county, Pa., daughter of Peter and Ellen (Court) Lamm, natives of the same place. Her father died in February, 1886, aged seventy-six years, and her mother July 5, 1883, aged seventy-three. Her grandfather was Phillip Lamm, of French and German descent, who settled in Lawrence county, where the family owned about five hundred acres of land. Five sons have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Watters: Joseph B., Harry L., Ebert D., Louis A. and William C. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Watters is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Jr. O. U. A. M. After marriage Mr. Watters went to Beaver county, but in two years came back to the island, exchanging his farm in Beaver county for his present place, where he has erected good buildings. He has been successful in business, and has twenty-five acres here, sixty-two in Westmoreland county, sixty-two acres in Lawrence county, and two lots in Glenfield.

HARMON DE HAVEN and Jane Magee, his wife, owners of a two-hundred-acre tract of land in Shaler township, were a conscientious, upright and industrious couple, and it is to be hoped the children they left behind them inherited from them these good qualities.

JOHN KAMMERER, shoemaker, Etna, was born Nov. 17, 1843, in Württemberg, Germany, a son of John G. and Anna M. (Herring) Kammerer. He learned his trade in Germany, and at the age of twenty-five came to America, followed his trade in Allegheny Pa., until July, 1873, when he removed to Etna, and now has the best shoe store in the town. He married Mary Alf, and they have seven children: William, August, Wilhelmina, Mary, John, Louise and Lillie. Mr. and Mrs. Kammerer are members of the G. L. Church of Etna; he is a democrat.

David King Yoder, engineer, post office Hulton, is a native of Westmoreland county, Pa., born Aug. 12, 1833. He married Hannah (Rhodes) Yoder, natives of Mifflin and Bedford counties, Pa., respectively. The father was born Aug. 17, 1807, and is living with our subject. The mother died Sept. 15, 1848, aged thirty-three years. Eli Yoder commenced wagoning in 1828. With his father's team he hauled goods and merchandise from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh for one year. At the end of this time he purchased the team from his father, and shortly afterward became owner of a second, also a third team. These were large covered wagons, and each one was hauled by six horses. In 1835 he sold his teams, and, working in the shops at Greensport until he understood taking care of machinery, he was placed on the Allegheny Portage railroad as engineer. He held this position until 1853, and then entered, as machinist, the Altoona shops, where he was soon after appointed engine inspector, a position he held for a long time. Mr. Yoder's grandfather was David Yoder, who married a Miss Riel; they were born in Berks and Chester counties, respectively. This grandfather was a farmer, and at the time of the revolutionary war volunteered his services, with four horses and wagons, for seven years. Our subject's father is a member of the Lutheran Church and of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. David K. Yoder received his education at Greensport, Blair county, Pa., and at fourteen years of age began firing an engine for his father, and at seventeen ran the engine during his father's sickness. He began his first run as engineer in 1853, on the western division of the Pennsylvania railroad, continuing until 1858, when he left and went on the Columbia & Philadelphia railroad. After running an engine on this road for a year he departed for the south, and after spending a few weeks there he returned to Greensport, his old home, and joined the Juniata Rifles, a military company commanded by Capt. A. M. Lloyd. Shortly after Fort Sumter was attacked, and a call for troops was made by the president, the captain offered the services of his company, which were accepted. On their arrival at Harrisburg they were consigned to the 3d Pa. Regt. to guard rail roads. At the expiration of three months they were discharged at Harrisburg; but still being anxious to serve his country longer, he went to Washington, D. C., where he enlisted in an independent company, called Putnam Rangers. Mr. Yoder volunteered as a second lieutenant, was appointed first lieutenant, and served out as scouts through Virginia with different army corps. When the order to disband independent companies was received, they were sent to Camp Carroll, at Baltimore, Md., and formed into the 1st Maryland regiment of cavalry. At the formation of the company Mr. Yoder was elected second sergeant, which position he held until 1863. At that time, while on picket duty near Culpeper Court House, he was taken ill. At sick-call he was ordered to field hospital, and afterward to general hospital, where he was compelled to remain several months, as the fever (typhoid) had taken a strong hold upon him. Returning again to the regiment, he was detailed as sergeant of the ambulance corps. This position he held until he enlisted as veteran in Co. G. He was transferred, however, to Co. L of same regiment, and was appointed, April 14, 1864, quarter master sergeant of company L, 1st Regt. Md. V. C., which was discharged Aug. 5, 1865, at Richmond, Va. On returning home, Mr. Yoder was employed as machinist at the Altoona shops for two years, and after a trip through the west worked for two years in the railroad shops at Pittsburgh. Jan. 1, 1867, he took an engine on the Allegheny Valley road, and April 1, 1868, took the run from Pittsburgh to Kittanning continuing on the run for twenty years.

Mr. Yoder was married March 21, 1864, to Katharine Elizabeth Niel, of Indiana county, a daughter of Thomas and Eliza (Mcclellan) Niel, also natives of Indiana county. Her father, who was a farmer, died in 1881, and her mother in 1865. Her grandfather McClellan, who was also a farmer, came from Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Yoder have two daughters: Carrie Lutiea and Lula May. All the family are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Yoder is a member of G. A. R., A. O. U. W., and is a K. T. In 1856, on the Pennsylvania railroad, he and two other engineers were snowed in near Horse Shoe Bend, with three engines, all night and the next day, suffering greatly with the cold. He lived seventeen years at Chartiers, and moved to his property in Verona in 1884. He is now erecting another fine residence on the corner of D and Fourth streets, besides his present home.

Washington Caldwell, carpenter, post office Verona, was born near Manor Station, Westmoreland county, Pa., March 11, 1842. His parents, Robert and Catherine (Kling smith) Caldwell, were native of Pennsylvania, of Scotch and German descent, respectively, and became residents of Penn township in 1848. Two years later Mr. Caldwell bought the farm on which his son now resides, meantime building the mill and a residence at Milltown. He continued to operate the mill until his death, which was caused by his being caught between two cog wheels, March 13, 1871. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, politically a republican. There were three children besides our subject: Sarah Jane (deceased, wife of Rev. Jacob Z. Cather) was in the employ of the United States pension-office) and Margaret (Mrs. Thomas Irwin), Leechburg. Washington Caldwell was chiefly educated in the Ninth ward school of Pittsburgh and Lecjeburg Academy. When nineteen years old he commenced work at his trade, and has been a contractor since twenty-two, employing from four to eight hands. Most of the buildings in Penn and Plum townships have been erected by him, also the Lutheran and Hebron churches in Penn. He is a republican, is now justice of the peace, and uses his best efforts to prevent litigation. The family is connected with Unity U. P. Church. In 1868 Mr. Caldwell married Emma Jane Longdon, a native of the city of Allegheny, a daughter of John and Mary Jane {Jackson} Longdon, of English and Irish blood. Mr. Caldwell’s children are Annie Elizabeth, William John, Harry, Howard, Clifford and Mary. Uriah Ryan, farmer, postoffice Verona, was born in 1840, on the Atlantic ocean, while his parents, George and Hannah Ryan, were en route from Ireland to Pennsylvania. They located in the city of Allegheny, and both died of fever, in one night, when Uriah was six years old. Two years later the child was taken from the Allegheny and Pittsburgh orphan asylum, and reared by Josiah Sample, on the farm where he now dwells. He received a common-school education, and has always been a farmer. June 3, 1863, he enlisted in the Ist P. C., known as "Negley’s Scouts," and after six months’ service was transferred to Battery H, 3d Artillery. With this body he served until the close of the war in the defenses about Washington and Baltimore. He purchased a farm adjoining Mr. Sample’s, and on the death of the latter inherited his present residence. Mr. Ryan is a member of the A. F. He is a republican, and has served as school director and assessor, and is now supervisor. He married, in 1866, Jane Sample, a native of Butler county, and to them seven children were born: Ella Sample, James, Josiah (died when ten years old), John, Charles Kelly, Uri and Malvern Hill. Mrs. Ryan’s parents were James and Catherine {Goehring} Sample, of German descent. Her great-grandfather, James Sample, of Irish blood, resided in Penn township in 1791. April 13th of that year several neighbors met at his house to arrange for the erection of a blockhouse to defend themselves against the Indians. His son, Thomas, married Jane Gordon, and their son, Josiah, uncle of Mrs. Ryan, was born on this farm, where he died. He never married. Robert Thom, farmer, postoffice North Star, is a son of Houston and Ann Thom. Some time previous to 1797 Robert Thom, a native of Lancaster county, Pa., born in 1764, of Irish ancestry, settled on a tract of land, containing 150 acres, which he afterward purchased, in 1797, from the heirs of Robert Worthington. This land, situated on the waters of Racoon creek, was a part of 2,000 acres owned by Robert Worthington, who, in 1774, received a grant from Right Hon. John Dunmore, then governor of Virginia. Robert married Anna Smiley, of Washington county, who bore him eleven children. One of these, Robert, eldest, was born in 1807, died in 1873. Robert Thom and his wife Anna died in 1849, on the same day, aged, respectively, eighty-five and seventy-six years, and were buried side by side in the same grave. Houston married Ann Aten, daughter of William Aten, of Washington county, and eight children blessed their marriage, four of whom are yet living. Robert, the namesake of his grand-father, being the only male member of the family surviving, He was educated at the public schools and Linnean Academy; has followed farming all his life, and owns the property purchased by his grandfather. He is, as were his parents and grandparents, a member of the U. P. Church. W. D. Thorncnun, clerk, postoffice Putnam, belongs to a family whose name has been prominent among those of Allegheny county for many years. Previous to the revolutionary war Thomas Thornburg came to America from Ireland, first proceeding to Allegheny county, afterward to Washington county, where he met one Jacob Peat, who showed him much kindness. Thomas had but a small amount of money, and his worldly possessions consisted of some yarn, which was woven into seventy yards of linen upon the loom of Jacob Peat. Thomas married Diana, a daughter of Jacob Peat, and she bore him seven children, whose names were Elizabeth, Jacob, Joseph, Rebecca, Samuel, Margaret and Benjamin. At the time of his death Thomas owned over one thousand acres of land; his children became scattered over the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Margaret (Mrs. Mitchell), residing at the old homestead, now over ninety years of age, is the only surviving member of the family. Samuel Thornburg, son of Jacob and Jane, was born in Robinson township in 1819. He remained on the farm where he was born until 1847, when he married Sarah, daughter of John and Sarah (Benny) Obey. They moved to Illinois and remained there and in the state of Ohio until 1881, when they returned to Mansfield, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Thornburg three children: David, Lucy and William. Mr. Thornburg died in 1886; his widow now resides at the homestead with her three children. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, except David, who is an Episcopalian. Mr. Thornburg was a republican. Samuel J. Heath, farmer, postoffice West Elizabeth, was born in Jefferson township, in 1838, and is a son of Samuel and Mary (Phillips) Heath; his mother died when he was but a child, and when he was nineteen years old his father died. His father was a native of Jefferson township, and his mother of Baldwin township; the grandfather was also a native of Jefferson township, and the family traces its lineage back to England and Ireland. The children of Samuel and Mary
HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Heath were Nancy J. (deceased), Henry W. (now of West Liberty, Iowa), Minerva (now Mrs. Henry Johnson, of Muscatine, Iowa), Asa P. (deceased), Elizabeth (deceased) and Samuel J. In January, 1864, the last named married Elizabeth E., daughter of James and Elizabeth (Thomson) McGurie, whose parents were natives of Ireland, and came here in 1840. After marriage Mr. and Mrs. Heath removed to the west, but returned to Allegheny county, where he engaged in farming, and purchased a portion of the old homestead once owned by his great-grandfather, Samuel Heath, and which has never been transferred to any but some member of the family. Their children are William S., Henry H., Mary M., Samuel J., Helen E., Robert M., Edmond P. and Stella M., all with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Heath are members of the U. P. Church.

William Bedell, farmer, postoffice West Elizabeth, is a son of Andrew and Rebecca (Ferree) Bedell, and was born in Jefferson township in 1831, on the farm now owned by him. His parents, who died respectively in 1854 and 1859, had a family of ten children: A. W., Mary J. (deceased), Joel, Calvin (deceased), Amanda, William, Sarah, Andrew (deceased), Rebecca (deceased), Melissa (deceased). July 1, 1858, William married Lydia A., daughter of Thomas and Annie (Stevens) Large, of one of the pioneer families of the county. They located on the farm on which Mr. Bedell was born, and engaged in agricultural pursuits. To them have been born children as follows: Andrew (deceased), Isaac, Milton, Maggie, Mary, Lizzie (deceased), William S., Annie R. (deceased), John H. (deceased), Leroy, Arminda V., Charles and Fanny. Mr. Bedell has been a member of the county committee and occupied several township offices. Mrs. Bedell is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Elizabeth.

Joseph Cowan Dougherty, carpenter, postoffice New Texas, was born April 11, 1837, at his present home in Plum township, a son of William John and Margaret (Cowan) Dougherty. His father was born in Ireland in 1812, came here when seven years of age, was a blacksmith, and died in 1884, aged seventy-three years. His wife was born at the present home of Mr. Dougherty, in 1808. Joseph’s grandfather, Archey, and his wife, Jane Warnic, settled in Patton township, and later on lived in New Texas, where they died.

Joseph C. Dougherty received his education at New Texas, and at the age of twenty-one learned the carpenter and blacksmith trades, following the former in this county most of the time. He married, May 8, 1866, Letitia J. Rowan, of Westmoreland county, Isaac and Edmond (Sheerer) Rowan, natives of Westmoreland and Armstrong counties. Two children were born to them, Maggie and Jimmie, both of whom are at home. The family are members of the R. P. Church. Mr. Dougherty enlisted Aug. 10, 1862, in Co. G, 136th P. V. I., for nine months; participated at the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and U. S. Ford, re-enlisted in January, 1863, in the 3d P. H. A., at Fortress Monroe, and sent from there to the light Battery H, detached for service at the defense of Baltimore. He was discharged in 1865. His father served in the old 11th Pa. Regt., during the war, and was shot through the right shoulder. Mr. Dougherty now owns one-half of the farm of 122 acres where his maternal grandfather, Joseph Cowan, settled when he came here from his native place, Lancaster county, Pa. His wife was Mary Thompson, who was born in Glasgow, Scotland.

James Davidson, farmer, postoffice New Texas, was born in Plum township Nov. 9, 1837, a son of Elias and Martha Davidson. He received a common-school education, and in 1854 began farming for himself on part of his mother’s farm; later bought out Samuel’s share, and now has 190 acres near New Texas. He married, in 1873, Margaret Ellen Crooks, of Westmoreland county, a daughter of David F. and Margaret (Cross) Crooks. His family of ten children: Arminda, John, Mary, William, David, Josiah, Sarah, Harry, Albert, and Ethel, are still living. They have lived in New Texas for many years, and have always owned land here. Mr. Davidson has been active in politics, is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is one of the prominent citizens of the community.

John W. Black, farmer, postoffice Swissvale, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1830, a son of Robert and Margaret (Black) Black, both natives of Ireland, former of County Tyrone. Robert Black, by occupation a white-lead manufacturer with the late P. A. Madarlee for twenty-five years, came to America about the year 1830, and in 1832 located in Pittsburgh, where he died, aged seventy-seven years; his widow survived him ten years. He had ten children, John W. being the fifth. He was educated at the public schools of Allegheny county, and for thirty years was engaged at the trade of glassblower, since when he has carried on farming. In 1851 he married Sarah, daughter of George and Elizabeth Jackson, and two children were born to them: Harry Winfield (who died from injuries received in a railroad collision at Twenty-eighth street, Pittsburgh, Oct. 9, 1880; he was an intelligent and promising young man), and George Jackson (also deceased, named for his grandfather). George Jackson was born Dec. 14, 1853. Enlisted at Smithfield in 1879, and served in the war, coming to Pittsburgh in 1880, where he carried on a grocery-store on the corner of Smithfield street and Virgin alley, where the Hotel Duquesne now stands; the property still belongs to his heirs; he died in 1854 of cholera; his widow died on Sept. 1, 1872. Mr. and Mrs. Black are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

McFeters, steamboat-captain. Braddock, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1839, a son of Hugh and Mary (Little) McFeters, former of whom, was a farmer in Ireland, but engaged in the foundry business in Pittsburgh for several years, died in Braddock in 1873. The family came to Pittsburgh in 1853, and to Braddock in 1872. J. L. was educated at the public schools of Pittsburgh, and learned the trade of molder, which he followed from 1853 to 1859; then commenced steamboating, which, with the exception of three years spent in the army, he has since been identified with. He enlisted, in 1861, in Co. M, 100th P. V. I. (known as the "Roundheads"), was promoted to sergeant, second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain, and served in the war three years and six months; was severely wounded in the head at second Bull run. Capt. McFeters was married, in 1869, to Florence V., daughter of David P. Allen, of this county, and two sons have been born to them, J. Allen and Guy Stanley. Our subject has been captain of the steamboat Ark for eleven years, and has made many successful runs on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to the Gulf of Mexico. He is a republican.

George McKee, farmer, Wilkinsburg, was born in the north of Ireland, Sept. 29, 1832. When very young he went to Scotland, and when twelve years old was put to farm labor. In 1854 he married Elizabeth McLaughlan, who was born near Paisley, Scotland. The next year, with his parents, George and Elizabeth (Jordan) McKee, he set out for America. They settled in Allegheny City, where the father was employed for many years. Keepers. The father died in 1880, aged eighty-six; his widow died two years later, at the age of seventy-eight. They had seven children, of whom George is the third; one daughter died in infancy; John is a resident of Indiana county; James is in Utah; Joseph in East Liberty; Jordan, in Parkersburg, W. Va.; and Elizabeth (Mrs. Jacob Cupps) is in Springdale, this county. George settled in Sterrett township, and engaged extensively in market-gardening. He owned a farm in Penn township, but sold and invested in borough property. He is now the owner of five houses in Wilkinsburg, a like number in Sterrett, and two in Pittsburgh. Mrs. McKee died in January, 1866, leaving seven children: George, Hugh, William, Mary, James, Robert and Margaret. Two died in infancy, named John and Jean. Mrs. McKee is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

R. D. Bryce, glass-manufacturer, Homestead, was born Dec. 22, 1838, in Pittsburgh, a son of John Bryce, the well-known glass-manufacturer. Mr. Bryce was educated in his native city, graduating at the Iron City Commercial Institute. He secured a position in the Farmers' Deposit National Bank, and for four years enjoyed the entire confidence of the concern. His integrity gained him the esteem and confidence of a large circle of friends, and his contact with business gave him a knowledge of commercial life that few men of his year possess. In 1879 he came to Homestead, where he is a stockholder in the Bryce, Higbee & Co. Glasshouse. He is a member of the Improved Order of Heptasophs and Knights of the Mystic Chain. Mr. Bryce married Mamie, a daughter of Capt. John Wolf. He is an active worker in the republican party.

John Ballingall Bissett, coal-dealer, Verona, was born in the north of Scotland, March 16, 1840, a son of David and Elizabeth (Ballingall) Bissett, who still live in Scotland, aged each about ninety years. John received his education in Edinburgh, Scotland, and for some years was foreman-stone-cutter in that country and in England. In 1868 he immigrated to New York, where he worked for a time at stonecutting, and in 1869 came to Pittsburgh, where he followed the same trade for a few months, and then worked on the building of the city hall, and as foreman on the erection of the jail in Armstrong county, Pa.; was then superintendent and foreman on the construction of the Allegheny Valley railroad shops at Verona, Pa., and continued as foreman for this railroad for several years. Locating in Verona, he engaged in the coal, lime and cement business, which still occupies his attention. Mr. Bissett was married, in 1864, to Mary Baugh, a native of England, and daughter of Matthew and Mary (Agnew) Baugh. Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bissett, seven of whom are living, viz.: Mary Elizabeth, Edith Ellis, William George, Jessie, Emma Margaret, Gertrude and Susan Paul. The deceased are David Matthew, Sarah Ann and John B. Mrs. Bissett died July 25, 1887. Mr. Bissett is a member of the Episcopal Church, is a member of the F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F.

George Teese, farmer, postoffice Hulton, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1841, a son of William and Eliza (Lippencott) Teese. William was born in Ireland, and coming to Pittsburgh carried on cooerping on Duquesne way; he died in 1856, aged sixty-five years; his wife was born in New Jersey, and died in 1887, aged eighty-five years. George Teese received his education at the Pittsburgh public schools and the Western University. In 1860 he began for himself, and learned the hardware trade with Logan & Gregg. In 1870 he opened a business of his own at Lawrenceville, continuing in same until Feb. 1, 1888, with good success. He sold out, and bought the Andrew Sands farm in Plum township. He enlisted in August, 1862, in Hampton's Pittsburgh battery, and following week participated in the second battle of Bull run, followed by Antietam, Chancellorsville, South Mountain and Gettysburg. After the battle of Chancellorsville the battery was so small that it was united with Thompson's Pittsburgh battery, and after the battle of Gettysburg Mr. Teese saw but little more active service; he was discharged in 1865. He married, in 1867, Fanny W. Young, who was born where the Allegheny cemetery is now located, the ground being a part of her father's farm. Her father was one of the firm of Young & McCune, leather-merchants of Pittsburgh, and her grandfather, James, was one of the first members of the peace in Pittsburgh. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Teese: Marion, Georgia L., George L. and Mary Francis, all at home. They are members of Verona Presbyterian Church. Mr. Teese is a republican, and a member of the Masonic Lodge and Chapter.

J. W. MARLATT, undertaker, Sewickley, was born April 23, 1830, in Allegheny, Pa., son of Joseph and Agnes (Harris) Marlatt, who were born near the old battle-ground of Monmouth. In 1888 they removed to Allegheny county, residing most of the time in Sewickley, where Joseph followed carpentering, and where both parents died. Of their children, ten attained maturity. J. W. learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked for many years. Eventually he engaged in the undertaker's business, and has been a very successful funeral director. He made, himself, the first hearses used in Sewickley. Mr. Marlatt is a self-made man, and merits a great deal of credit. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Bonham, and they have seven children: Rhoda E., John E., Walter S., Edith, Anna, Matilda and Audley H. Mr. Marlatt is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Heptasops; he is a republican.

James P. White was born June 29, 1826, in the little village of Clonoloy, County Meath, Ireland, about fifteen miles from the city of Dublin. He was the son of James and Elizabeth (Langdon) White, and was one of a family of five sons and two daughters. His father was a farmer in very moderate circumstances, and the only advantages of education the children received were at the village school. James P. White, longing for a more active life than the quiet and monotonous one of the farm, decided, when about sixteen years of age, to go to the neighboring city of Dublin and learn the trade of tailoring. This accomplished, he next looked about him for the best field in which to commence the battle of life, and, like so many of his countrymen, he turned to the great republic of the west as the fairest field for talent, and the country most likely to reward honest endeavor with success. Accordingly, in 1846, when about twenty years of age, he bade farewell to his relatives and to his well-loved Erin, and set sail for America. Landing in Philadelphia, he worked in that city for some time as a journeyman tailor, and then west as far as Pittsburgh, where he again worked at his trade; but, the cholera breaking out in that city in 1848 or 1849, he moved up the Monongahela river, with the intention of locating in Morgantown, but stopping off at McKeesport (then a very small town), he decided to locate there. Having by this time accumulated a little money, he decided to go in business for himself, and opened the first merchant-tailoring establishment in the town. By dint of unceasing perseverance and constant attention to business, he prospered beyond his fondest hopes, and in 1852, when he had become sufficiently established in business, he returned to Philadelphia, and there he was married at St. Paul's R. C. Church, to Miss Annie Dunlevy.

Returning to McKeesport with his young wife, in a few years his business prospered sufficiently to enable him to buy the lot at the corner of Third and Market streets, upon which he erected a large and commodious brick building, being storeroom and dwelling combined. There he carried on successfully the merchant-tailoring business up almost to the time of his death; though some few years before he died he purchased and moved his family into a more elegant residence farther up-town. From the many natural advantages of location and mineral resources possessed by the dull and sleepy town he found it, he foresaw the busy, thriving city of to-day, and, as his constantly increasing means permitted, he invested largely in real estate. His foresight in this respect was remarkable, and, as the town grew in size and importance, his purchases were always found to be the most desirable, and met with easy sale at largely advanced prices. The returns from these sales were invariably invested either in improving property already acquired or in making larger purchases of real estate, so that at the time of his death he was the largest individual real-estate owner in McKeesport. His prosperity was closely interwoven with the commercial history of the city, and he held many positions of honor and trust in the business world, being at one time president of the People's Bank of McKeesport, and at the time of his death was a director of the First National Bank of McKeesport. The work with which his name will probably be the longest associated was the building of the large and handsome opera-house, costing in the neighborhood of $75,000, and which he scarcely lived to see completed. Mr. White was fond of travel, and when time permitted he traveled considerably through his adopted country, as well as making several trips to his native land to visit his relatives, none of whom had ever emigrated. The last time he revisited his native country was in 1873, when he also made quite an extensive tour of the continent, attending the great exposition at Vienna. He became ill during the spring of 1888, from over-exertion and a cold contracted while superintending the erection of the opera-house, and, while no serious result was at first apprehended, his ailment gradually developed into enlargement of the liver, and in spite of the best medical attention he breathed his last about midnight, Aug. 19, 1888.

Mrs. James P. White, his widow, is the daughter of James and Annie (Green) Dunleavy, both natives of the County Cavan, Ireland, and was born April 11, 1826, in the city of New York. The marriage was a most happy one, and was blessed with six children: Thomas L., Ella, Annie, Katie, James E. and Millie, of whom Thomas L. and James E. survive their father. Thomas L. White was born Oct. 27, 1853, graduated with the degree of A. B. at Villanova College, near Philadelphia, 1871, and after receiving in medicine with the late Dr. John Dickson, of Pittsburgh, graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in March, 1875. He commenced the practice of his chosen profession in Pittsburgh, where he remained about a year. Since then he has practiced in McKeesport with the exception of a year passed in the hospitals of Vienna and London. The other son, James E. White, was born March 18, 1863, passed through a commercial course of studies at Villanova College, was latterly a student at the Pittsburgh College of Pharmacy, and is now engaged in the retail drug business in McKeesport.

James P. White was of a singularly happy disposition, and it was said of him that he had the heartiest laugh of anyone in the city. He was a great favorite with the children, and loved nothing better than a romp with the little ones. He was an upright, honorable man, and enjoyed the utmost confidence of the business world, so that it could be truly said of him that his “word was as good as his bond.” He was a strict and consistent member of the Roman Catholic Church, and the congregation of McKeesport is indebted to him for his good counsel and financial aid during his lifetime, and several magnificent bequests in his will showed how well he loved the church of his choice.

Thomas L. White, physician, McKeesport, was born in that city, Oct. 27, 1853, a son of James P. and Annie P. (Dunleavy) White. He was educated at Villanova College, Philadelphia; read medicine under the late Dr. Dickson, of Pittsburgh, and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, March 13, 1875. He afterward spent a couple of years in Europe, the greater part of which time he was engaged in making observations and experiments under Europe’s best medical instructors, at Guy’s hospital, London, and in the military hospital, Vienna. After availing himself of all the known modern advantages that might be desirable for a physician and surgeon, acquiring proficiency in all branches of science incidental thereto, and not neglecting the literature and philosophical congenial to a person of his tastes, he returned to his home in McKeesport, where in his profession he has had the respect and confidence of the people. He married, Oct. 26, 1879, Mabel R., daughter of Capt. George W. and Katherine (Brady) Hunter, of McKeesport, and by her has had four children: Hilda (deceased), James E., and Frank S. Dr. White is president of the McKeesport Light company and of the Black Oil company, limited, and is the owner of White’s opera-house. He is a member of the Catholic Church, the C. M. B. A., the American Medical association and the International Medical Congress. He is an active democrat, and was a candidate of his party for congressional honors in his district in 1888.

Robert E. Mercer, county commissioner, residing in the Twenty-fifth ward, Pittsburgh, was born in Fayette county, Pa., Jan. 17, 1843, and is a son of James M. and Rebecca (Winters) Mercer, former of whom, by trade a window-glass blower, was born in Greene county, Pa., June 6, 1817, and both of Presbyterian and revolutionary stock. They were married in Fayette county, Pa., Dec. 3, 1841, and in 1847 removed to what was then the borough of Birmingham, now the Twenty-eighth ward of Pittsburgh. Robert and Leah Mercer, parents of James M., were natives of Green county, Pa., both born about the year 1790, and came of a Scotch family, who immigrated to this country early in the eighteenth century, first settling in New York. Robert E. Mercer, whose name heads this memoir, received a limited education, his time being divided between attending private and public schools and working in a glass-factory and a rolling-mill until February, 1858, when he commenced clerking in a grocery-store, which continued until following November, when he entered the rolling-mill of Jones & Laughlin, in the nail department of which he worked until 1864. In that year he enlisted in Ind. Battery G. P. V., remaining in the service until the battery was mustered out; in June, 1865. Resuming work in the rolling-mill in July following, he continued in the same until July, 1872. In March of that year he was elected, on the republican ticket, alderman for the Second ward of East Birmingham, now Twenty-fifth ward, Pittsburgh, and in 1875 he tendered his resignation in order to secure the office under the new constitution adopted in 1873. He was almost unanimously re-elected, and held the position until 1878, in which year he was elected county commissioner, in which place he is now serving his fourth term, during all of which time he has been president of the board. Some of the most important public questions in the history of the county were brought before the board during his administration, including the 1877-riot claims, aggregating $4,000,000, which were settled for about $2,730,000, and the building of the new courthouse and jail, which cost, including furnishing, $3,300,000—the and all other transactions justly merit the unqualified appreciation of the ratepayers. Mr. Mercer was married, Jan. 3, 1888, to Martha Jones, of Pittsburg, Pa.

George A. Chalfant, superintendent for Spang, Chalfant & Co., Etna, was born March 3, 1841, on the old homestead in Turtle Creek, a section of McKeesport, Pa., near Philadelphia. He was educated in this county, and attended Jefferson College, from which he graduated in 1861. He was subsequently employed as clerk in the office of Spang, Chalfant & Co., and in the course of two years was promoted to the position of superintendent and general manager of the works. He is enterprising, and has made the mills a grand success. At the time he took charge the business employed three hundred men: at present it employs eight hundred.

Mr. Chalfant was the first to utilize natural gas in this county, and has used it in the factory for the past thirteen years. He married Margaret, daughter of George Bell, a well-known resident of Pittsburgh, and has four children. Politically Mr. Chalfant has always been identified with the republican party.

I. N. Laughlin, saddler, Elizabeth, is a son of Adam and Rebecca Laughlin, of Fayette county, Pa., where he (Adam) was born, and Rebecca was one of the "Jersey settlers" of that county. Adam was a shipbuilder, and was one of the first settlers of this borough. He was married in 1811, and in 1833 moved to Ohio, where he lived until 1868, and then moved to Iowa, where he spent the remainder of his life, and died Feb. 26, 1878. He joined the M. E. Church in 1827, and was a devout worker in the interests of religion. His widow survived him about a year, and died in 1874. They reared a family of ten children, seven of whom are still living, namely: Sarah (Mrs. Isaiah Thompson), William, Susan (Mrs. John Davis), Rebecca A. (Mrs. John Moody), David F. and Adam, all living in Iowa, and our subject, who is the fourth son, and was born July 19, 1821, in this borough, where he has always resided. At an early age he learned the saddler's trade, which he has since followed. In 1843 he was married to Mary, daughter of James and Jane Penny, of Versailles township, who died in 1848, leaving one child—Charles A., of Canton, Ohio. Mr. Laughlin next married, in 1851, Jane, daughter of William and Lydia Robinson, of Westmoreland county. They have two children—Eva (Mrs. George Weddel, of Elizabeth township), and Joseph A., who is now in Colorado. Mr. Laughlin has held many offices within the gift of the people of the borough, and has been an active worker in the cause of temperance, being a member of the Sons of Temperance. He and his wife are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Laughlin was a member of the Old Monongahela Lodge, No. 209, I. O. O. F.

George W. Howder, steamboat-captain, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of John and Mary (Morris) Howder, of Fayette county, where he was born Dec. 28, 1845. He was reared on a farm, and at the age of eighteen years started for himself as a general hand on the river boats. He has since followed the river trade, and has had control of several steamers, among them being the Leader. He served as pilot seventeen years, and has been employed by Joseph Walton & Co. for fourteen years, being engaged as captain of the Nellie Walton during that time. In 1870 he was married to Rachel M., daughter of W. R. and Lavina (Maines) Cooley, of Elizabeth borough, and they have four living children—Ida May, Mary L., John W. and George L. Capt. Howder is a member of the Old Monongahela Lodge, No. 209, I. O. O. F., and Stephen Baird Lodge, No. 526, F. & A. M. He moved to this county about twenty years ago, and has since resided here. The family are members of the M. E. Church.

Joseph Morgan McNair, grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., Pittsburgh, was born in Virginia, June 27, 1837, son of James and Mary (Krider) McNair. His father was born near Carlisle, Pa., in 1801, and died in 1869. He was a woolen-manufacturer in Virginia, and moved his family to Butler, Pa., in 1832, where he was for a number of years a justice of the peace. He was a lifelong democrat, a member of the M. E. Church. Joseph M. McNair attended school at Butler until sixteen years of age, and then learned the tailor's trade, which he followed at Butler and at New Castle, Pa., until 1875, being twelve years in the latter place. In 1875 he accepted his present position as grand recorder of the A. O. U. W. He is a Freemason, a member of Select Knights, A. O. U. W., Royal Arcanum, Knights of the Golden Eagle and Sovereigns of Industry. Mr. McNair was married May 8, 1851, to Martha Spencer, a native of Wales, of English parents, Charles and Mary (Jones) Spencer. Her father died at Harrisburg, Pa., six weeks after arriving from Wales. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. McNair: Mary Adrienne McNair, Gertrude Spencer, James Alexander, Thomas Charles, Addie Louise and Alice Flora, the three last named being deceased. The parents are members of the M. E. Church of Allegheny, where they reside.

Robert Wilson Cowan, engineer, Washington, son of Robert and Elizabeth (McMahan) Cowan, was born near Oakaville this county, in April, 1822. His father was born in Franklin county, Pa., in 1792, and died in 1854, having located in Pittsburgh prior to 1800. His mother died in 1834. His paternal grandparents, Joseph and Mary (Thompson) Cowan, were Scotch-Irish, and settled in Franklin county previous to 1771. His maternal grandparents were from Ireland. The subject of these lines received his education at Minersville, Pa., and the East End, and at the age of seventeen learned blacksmithing, which he followed for six years. In 1854 he began as engineer on the Ohio river, afterward buying an interest in a boat, of which he became captain in 1889. This vessel being sold in 1887, Mr. Cowan, after a year's work on the Bellevue railroad, returned to this vicinity. He was married in February, 1859, to Mary Jane Colvin, and five children have been born to them, viz.: Margaret Riddle, wife of Morrison Gilliland, and Frances M., Mary E., Sara Emma and Helen Hamilton, at home. The family are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Cowan moved to Emsworth in 1867, and has been one of the main supporters and builders of its public school.

Charles Lehmer Johnston, clerk, Wilkinsburg, is a grandson of George R. Johnston (see sketch of James L. Johnston), and was born in Wilkinsburg, Oct. 31, 1851. His father, George Johnston, was born in Wilkinsburg in March, 1829, and married Margaret Elder, who was born the same year at Ligonier. Mrs. Johnston's parents, Robert and Eliza Elder, were of Irish and German descent. George Johnston and wife now reside in Wilkinsburg, Mr. Johnston being employed as usher at the Pennsylvania railroad station in Pittsburgh. They had seven children, viz.: Charles L., Joseph W., Sarah Ann, James, George Harvey, Eida L. and Maggie J.; the third and fourth are deceased. Charles L. Johnston was educated in the common school and academy at Wilkinsburg, and when fifteen years old went into the store of David L. Johnston, his uncle, in Wilkinsburg. Three years later he entered the employ of A. Stoner, who is still in mercantile business there, and remained with him thirteen years, having charge of the postoffice as his deputy during a part of that time. In 1886 he entered the ticket-office of the Pennsylvania railroad in Pittsburgh, where he still remains. Next year he built the residence he occupies on Rebecca street. He is an attendant of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Johnston is a member, and in politics is a republican. Mr. Johnston married, Oct. 21, 1880, Miss Kate Howard, a native of Allegheny City, and a daughter of Samuel and Eliza Howard, of Ireland. Charles Bruce and Margaretta, the first and last of four children born to them, remain with the parents; Joseph Emerson and Albert Reed are deceased.

John Scott Buchanan Mercer, house and sign painter, Pittsburgh, was born in that city Aug. 18, 1848. His paternal grandparents were Scotch, and his maternal grandparents Irish. His parents, James (a painter by trade) and Margaret (Scott) Mercer, were also natives of Pittsburgh. The father died of cholera in 1854, the mother surviving him five years. John S. B. attended the city schools till the death of his mother, which occurred when he was eleven years of age, and he was then sent to the country to live with Alexander Stevenson (now deceased), in Moon township, this county. In 1866 he went to learn his trade in the city, and four years later engaged in business for himself. He is now located at 57 Ninth street, where he does an extensive business in house- and sign-painting and as maker of brass signs, being the only one between Philadelphia and Chicago who makes copper letters on brass. In 1884 he built his handsome home in Wilkinsburg corner Kenyon and Pigpen streets. He attends the M. E. Church, is a Royal Arch Mason and a stanch republican. In 1878 Mr. Mercer married Edith S., daughter of Richard and Priscilla Crawford, Quaker residents of Washington county, where Mrs. Mercer was born. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Mercer: Velma M., Edith Leila and Mabel.

Theresa Gensch, hotel-keeper at McKee's Rocks, was born in Germany in 1859, a daughter of Anthony and Theresa Spath, both of whom died in Germany. Theresa was married in Germany, in 1861, to John Spath, and they came to America in 1867; they had three children, viz.: Annie (now wife of Jacob Miller, of Pittsburgh, Pa.), Bertha (wife of Nicholas Nolte, of Moon township) and Edward, a promising lad of thirteen. Mr. Speth died in 1876, at the age of forty-five years, and his widow was married in 1878 to Albert Gensch, of this county. Mrs. Gensch has by industry and perseverance worked her way from very limited circumstances, and has built a hotel in McKee's Rocks that would be a credit to almost any city. It is a fine three-story brick structure, containing sixty-four rooms, heated and lighted by gas, and has all the modern improvements to be found in a city hotel.

Robert W. Lyon, assistant superintendent of steelworks, McKee's Rocks, was born in Butler county, Pa., in 1842, a son of John and Mary Lyon, the latter of whom departed this life in 1852, at the age of thirty-two years. John Lyon is a native of Butler county, and still resides there. Robert W. enlisted in 1861 as a private in the 13th P. V. I., served four years and two months, and advanced to the rank of major. In 1864 he married Harriet, daughter of Andrew and Eliza Barclay, of Butler county, formerly of this county. At the close of the war Maj. Lyon settled in the city of Allegheny, and in 1869 moved to Pittsburgh. In 1881 he was elected mayor of that city, which office he held for three years. Mr. Lyon has reared a family of eleven children, as follows: Mollie, Carrie, George B., John C., Hattie, Frank W., Emma, Robert E., Thomas W., Laura and Nellie. He accepted the position of assistant superintendent of the steelworks at McKee's Rocks in 1886, which he still holds. He is a Freemason and a member of the G. A. R.; in politics a democrat.

Philip Kirsch, gardener, postoffice West View, was born in 1828, in Erpolzheim, near Duerkheim, Neustadt-an-der-Hardt, Bavaria, Germany, a son of Lorenz and Elizabeth (Buechler) Kirsch. He came to America in 1849, settled in this county, and worked for five years in a blacksmith-shop. His love for the country induced him to engage in gardening, and he now has sixteen acres of garden-land in a high state of cultivation in Ross township. He started in life a poor man, but by industry and frugality he has secured a comfortable home, and is much respected. He married Minnie Hauck, and has a family of six children: Caroline, Philip, Kate, Mary, John and William. The oldest daughter, Louise, died in 1862, in her tenth year. Mr. and Mrs. Kirsch are members of the G. E. Church; he is a republican.

John F. Seville, fruit-grower, postoffice Bellevue, was born Oct. 18, 1806, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of John and Hannah (Williams) Seville. His paternal grandfather was a native of Manchester, England. Our subject's father was also born in Manchester, where he lived until his eleventh year, when he came to America with his parents and located in Philadelphia. Subsequently, in 1819, they removed to Pittsburgh. John Seville was a tailor by trade, but engaged in the furniture business. He removed to Ohio and embarked in grocery and canal business. During the civil war he was a soldier in Col. Clark's regiment, and was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg; his widow is yet living at the age of seventy-six years. They were the parents of nine children. Of these John F. was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, and learned the plumber's and gasfitter's trade, which he followed successfully until 1868. He then removed to Ross township, and engaged in fruit-growing. He married Eliza J. Crooks, a native of Ireland, and they are the parents of eight children. Mr. and Mrs. Seville are members of the U. P. Church, of which he has been a trustee; he is a republican.

Andrew Thompson, farmer, postoffice Ross, is a grandson of James Thompson, and was born on the old homestead Feb. 9, 1845. His father, Andrew G. Thompson, a native of Allegheny county, was a farmer, a very religious, trustworthy man, and a member of the Presbyterian Church, of which he was trustee for a number of years. He died Aug. 17, 1884, aged seventy-two years. His wife was Mary English, a native of Ireland and a daughter of James English, one of the old settlers, and they had four children: James, Mary, Andrew and Samuel. Of these Andrew was educated in this county, and inherited seventy acres of the homestead. He married Mary A. C., daughter of Henry B. Lyon, whose family were among the pioneers of Butler county. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is trustee; he is a republican, as was his father.

Robert Miller, farmer, Harrison township, postoffice Freeport, Armstrong county, was born Dec. 10, 1821, on the old homestead farm, on which his father lived from 1817 (when it was a wilderness) till his death. His parents, John and Isabella Miller, were natives of Ireland, former of County Tyrone, and latter of County Derry. They sailed for America in 1801, bringing with them their two children, William and Hannah, the former of whom died on shipboard. They first lived in Lancaster county, Pa., one year; then in Westmoreland county, near Salem; thence moved to the Frankstown road in Allegheny county, and in 1817 located on the farm above mentioned. Their children were Nathaniel, born Jan. 3, 1801, died Nov. 2, 1876 (he served as justice of the peace six terms, in all thirty years); William, born Dec. 22, 1803, died October 26, 1877; Isabella, born Jan. 18, 1805, died Dec. 14, 1859; Joseph B., born Oct. 28, 1806, died July 23, 1825; Elizabeth, born Oct. 5, 1808, married to D. McCall, died March 20, 1888; John, born Jan. 27, 1811; Margaret S., born Oct. 12, 1812; Mary J., born March 1, 1815, married to William Moorhead, now residing in Freeport, Pa.; Martha, born Feb. 1, 1817, and Robert. John Miller, Sr., died May 16, 1840, aged sixty-six; his widow, April 5, 1852, aged seventy-six. They were members of the Associate Church of Ireland, and connected with the Associate Church of Pittsburgh, under charge of Dr. Bruce; thence to Buffalo congregation of Armstrong county, under charge of Rev. John Dickey, and when the Freeport congregation was organized they were part of said organization, at which Nathaniel was chosen ruling elder, in which capacity he died. William Miller was a ruling elder in the Buffalo congregation for many years prior to his death. Our subject's brothers and sisters were all members of the U. P. Church from the union of the Associate and Associate Reformed. Robert now owns and resides on the old homestead on which he was born. He has filled many positions in the township; served ten months and eleven days in Co. I, 5th P. H. A.; was discharged July 5, 1863, at the close of the war, by general order of the war department.

Harvey Williby, miller and farmer, Perrysville, is a son of Jonas and Sarah (Penger ton) Williby. John, the great-grandfather of Harvey, was a native of New Jersey, and settled in this county over 150 years ago. James, the grandfather, was born on the place where he always lived, and died in 1841. Jonas, the father of Harvey, was born on same place, and always followed farming. He died in 1875; his widow survives him. She has seven living children: Jonas, Eliza, Robert, Sarah, Katie, Harvey and John. Harvey was born June 3, 1832, and has always remained on the homestead. He was married in 1880 to Henrietta, daughter of George and Sarah Wright, of Franklin township, and they have three children: Leonora M., Sarah Viola and Liza Belle. Mr. Williby and family are members of the M. E. Church of Franklin township.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Feilbach, proprietor of nursery, postoffice Bennett, was born Oct. 12, 1814, in Allegheny county, Pa., a daughter of Benjamin Herr. (See sketch.) The Herr family were of Swiss descent, and settled in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1709, where their descendants were ministers and bishops of the Mennonite Church. Benjamin Herr came to this county in 1780, while on his way to Kentucky; low water compelled him to remain a short time, and he finally established himself in a permanent business. He was a leading citizen, identified with every good cause, building schools and churches, and having stock in the first bridge across the Allegheny river. He was a millwright, and owned Herr's island and a large tract along the river. He married Magdalena Lichten, of Germany, who died in 1842, aged seventy-two years. They had seven children: Benjamin, Barbara, Henry, Daniel, John, Elizabeth and Magdalena. Of these, Elizabeth married Louis Feilbach, a native of Germany, who came to America while young, and was a horticulturist. He died April 11, 1886, aged seventy-five years. Six children were born to them: Esther, Elizabeth, Mary, Henrietta, Benjamin and Kate. These are all living and married, except Kate, who died April 14, 1874. The subject of this sketch was born in a hewed-log house on the property still occupied, and the log house was subsequently removed to the island (Herr's) opposite, to make way for the Pennsylvania state canal, and there remains in good condition, occupied—one of the few pioneer landmarks.

WILLIAM SPROAL, teamster, postoffice Mc Kee's Rocks, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., July 28, 1840, a son of Joseph and Margaret Sproal, former of whom came from Ireland in 1820, at the age of fourteen years; was a boatman, and followed the river all his life; he married, for his second wife, Margaret Getty, by whom he had fifteen children, two of whom are living: William and Isabella (wife of D. F. Graham, of Allegheny City). The father died in 1886, at the age of eighty years; his widow still resides in Allegheny City, at the age of seventy-two years. William Sproal was reared to river life, which he followed continuously (except while serving as teamster in the army during the civil war) until 1882, since when he has followed teaming. He married, in 1862, Amanda, daughter of Thomas and Margaret Woods, of this county, and the names and dates of birth of their children are: Joseph (1863), Margaret (1865), Annie (1869), George W. (1867, deceased), Isabella (1871, deceased), Mary (1877, deceased), Kate (1879, deceased), Thomas (1874), Lewella (1881), Bertha (1883) and William John (1888). Mr. Sproal is a member of the K. of P., the A. O. U. W. and the Heptasophs. He is a director in the Mc Kee's Rocks Loan and Building association, and owns a good house and twelve town lots.

HARRY DENNY, merchant, postoffice Hites, was born at Hites, this county, in 1859, a son of George Denny, a native of Germany, who, with his wife, latter of whom is now deceased, was among the pioneers of East Deer township. The children of George Denny are William, Jennie (Mrs. William McFetridge), Annie (Mrs. David Singleton), Harry and Mary (Mrs. John Armstrong). Harry embarked in business at Hites, as dealer in general merchandise, in 1882, the firm being McFetridge, Denny & Co. George Denny is still living, aged sixty-one years.

ELIZABETH CHRIST, farmer, postoffice Tarentum, was born in Germany, came to America, and in 1871 married Frederick Christ. His parents located in East Deer township in an early day, and there Frederick was born in 1841. After his marriage Frederick and his wife located at Hites station, East Deer township, but in 1874 removed to a farm now owned by Mr. Christ, by unceasing labor and constant effort, acquired a handsome competency and one of the most desirable properties in Fawn township; but continued work and exposure occasioned an attack of rheumatism, and, after long suffering, he died Dec. 23, 1887, a member of the Lutheran Church. His death is lamented by a host of friends and relatives, who find consolation in the knowledge that he who notes even the sparrow's fall must have some design in the fate of one like him. His children are Annie Margaret, Elizabeth, Anna Mary, Anna Clara and Frederica Lisetta. Mrs. Christ is a member of the G. L. Church. The widow and children offer the following tribute to the memory of the departed husband and father:

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled:
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God, in His wisdom, has placed
The boon his love had given;
And though the body molders here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

ARTHUR EHRENBERG was born in Petersnagen, Prussia, Sept. 14, 1890, a son of Arthur and Ellen Ehrenburg, of same place. He was educated at the military school at Berlin, and entered the Prussian army in 1848, served during the war, and then for political reasons came to America, locating in Chicago, where he served as engineer on the L. S. R. R. until 1853. He then removed to Pittsburgh, Pa., where his ability as an engineer caused him to be appointed superintendent of the erection of the first bridge across the Allegheny river, at Sixth and Federal streets, and later helped to build the suspension bridge across the Ohio at Cincinnati. In 1862 he answered the call of the president of the United States, and raised a company of volunteers at the latter place, chiefly composed of his comrades who served with him in the war of 1848 in Prussia. He was a first lieutenant in Simmons' battery, Ohio Light Artillery, and for gallant services was breveted captain. He made a most proficient artillerist, and lost his left leg at the battle of Antietam, in September, 1863. In 1873 he died from the effects of his wound, having suffered untold agonies in undergoing five amputations of said limb.

Capt. Ehrenburg was one of the noble old Prussian soldiers who freely offered and eventually delivered up their lives in the cause of their adopted country. In 1853 he married Sophia, daughter of Louis and Barbara Brecht, of Heidelberg, Germany. For a number of years previous to his death Capt. Ehrenburg and family resided in Mc Keesport, Pa. The flag of Simmons' battery, so nobly upheld during the conflict between north and south, and riddled by shot and shell, is now in possession of the family souvenir they value more highly than any others left by their husband and father.
Thomas C. Crawford was born at Hanover, Bedford county, Pa., March 7, 1838.

HISTORY

A. young, education. did call, time 602 during under I., this Fair turned who to mond, Crawford; being men Crawford there Harrisburg, of family, that Bedford; received that general, lines,

B. 1859 our subject came to Pennsylvania, and located in Crawford; where he followed the trade of iron-worker at Washington Iron-works, operated at that time by John Fallon. In 1861, at the first call, he enlisted for three months in Co. H. 2d P. V. I., Col. Stambaugh. This regiment did duty in Wyncoop's brigade, Banks' division, in the Shenandoah valley. After the expiration of his three months' service Mr. Crawford returned home, and re-enlisted under Capt. G. B. Shearer for three years or during the war, serving as orderly-sergeant, this company being assigned to the 93d P. V. I., then forming at Lebanon. The regiment joined the Army of the Potomac in November of the same year, and in the spring followed McClellan from Fortress Monroe to Fair Oaks, taking part in the battles of Williamsburg (where the captain was killed), Fair Oaks, Savage Station, White Oak Swamp and Malvern Hill, during which time both lieutenants had left the company, leaving our subject in command of thirteen men, all that was left of the one hundred and one who started from Washington city for Richmond, Va. At Harrison's Landing, Mr. Crawford, being seized with fever, was sent to New York city, where he lay in Park barracks for six weeks, after which he returned home, and from there was sent to the convalescent camp at Alexandria, Va., and was there detailed, by special order from the war department, to assist in classifying and organizing all convalescent troops reporting to that place. His health again failing, Mr. Crawford was mustered out of the service and sent home. When Lee invaded Pennsylvania he assisted in raising a company of men for the "emergency," and went with them as first lieutenant, after which critical period he again returned home. Troops being then called for for one year's service, Mr. Crawford and Charles B. Buffington, of Milesburg, enlisted fifty men, proceeded to Harrisburg, joined the 200th regiment, and were assigned to Co. F; captain, F. A. Hoffman; first lieutenant, Thomas C. Crawford; adjutant of regiment, Charles L. Buffington. They joined the Army of the Potomac at Bermuda Hundred, the one-year men composing a provisional division, Lieut. Crawford being detailed to serve as aid on the staff of the general, Charles K. Graham. In that capacity, one dark, rainy night, he rode into the enemy's lines, but, discovering his mistake after being challenged by the pickets in front of his home, and amid a storm of bullets escaped unhurt.

Some time after that all the one-year men were assigned to the 9th army corps; our subject's company and regiment, being assigned to the 1st brigade, 3d division, lay in winter-quarters in front of Petersburg, Va., preparing for the spring campaign. Previous to starting out on raid through North Carolina, the troops were all called out to witness the execution of two men who had deserted and joined the confederates. On the morning of the 25th of March, 1865, the rebels attacked Fort Steubenville, and the 200th regiment, lying immediately in front of the fort, were the first troops to meet the enemy, who had come over in full force. From three o'clock until eight the battle raged furiously, the 200th bearing the brunt of the fight at first, losing 130 men in killed and wounded, Mr. Crawford being among the latter, being struck by a piece of shell, which completely disabled him. This closed his active service in front, and afterward he took part with his regiment in the grand review at Washington, subsequently acting as adjutant of his regiment; was mustered out shortly afterward, and returned home; then for several years he followed railroading. In 1872 he came to McKeesport, and was engaged with W. D. Wood & Co. as a knobbler and hammerman until 1881, when he was given charge of the forge or producing department, in which capacity he is still acting. Mr. Crawford is a member of Post No. 59, G. A. R., of which he has been twice elected commander.

James Power, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of Dr. James and Nancy (Jack) Power. Dr. Power was a native of Chester county, and settled, in 1805, in this county, on the farm now owned by his son James. He enjoyed an extensive practice as a physician, and died in 1864. James Power is the eldest son, and was born July 9, 1821, on his present farm, where he has since resided. He was married, in 1865, to Mary V., daughter of James Humes, of this county, who died Jan. 18, 1881, without leaving any children. Mr. Power is a member of the Presbyterian Church of Round Hill.

Horace R. Rep, weighmaster National Tube-works, McKeesport, is a native of Jefferson county, Ohio, and was reared and educated in Edinburg, Lawrence county, Pa. He served an apprenticeship of one year at the carpenter's trade, settled in McKeesport in 1872, and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company as a millwright in their carpenter department. In November same year, he lost his right arm at the shoulder, by being caught in the mill-gearing. After recovering from his injuries he was appointed weighmaster in the above works, which position he has satisfactorily filled since. He is a member of the Y. M. C. A. and R. A., and is a staunch advocate of prohibition.

J. B. Ayres, foreman of finishing department National Rolling-mill, McKeesport, is a native of Philadelphia, was reared and educated. Subsequently he was employed in various mills in different sections of the state. He came to McKeesport.
in 1879, and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company, where he has since been engaged, having held his present position since 1881. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and the Heptasophs; he is a stanch advocate of prohibition.

Capt. J. G. Fairfield, pilot, postoffice Homestead, was born Sept. 3, 1838, in London, England, where he was educated. At the age of sixteen he came to America, and for a short time worked in Trenton, N. J. Soon thereafter he came to Pittsburgh, worked for a short time for Horner & Roberts, and, becoming imbued with a taste for life on the river, learned to be pilot on the steamer Juniata, Capt. Orr Lysle. Afterward he secured an interest in the steamers Alexander Foster, which he ran until 1882, when he sold out. Since then he has engaged in the coal business, and sometimes yet acts as pilot. Capt. Fairfield has been twice married. His first wife, Elizabeth E. Robison, died leaving three children: Edgar L., Harry W. and Mary E. His present wife is Mary E., daughter of John Hess, and they have two children, Alberta H. and Jessie A. Capt. Fairfield is a member of the M. E. Church, and of the Masonic fraternity, Henry M. Phillips Lodge, Monongahela City; he is a republican.

C. K. Bryce, superintendent, Homestead, was born Jan. 21, 1854, on the South Side, Pittsburgh. His father, John Bryce, a native of Pittsburgh, was of Scotch descent, was well known, and served an apprenticeship of seven years with Thomas Bakewell to learn the glassworker's trade. Subsequently he commenced the business for himself, under the firm name of Bryce, McKee & Co., and which was afterward changed to Bryce & Richards, and then to Bryce, Waken & Co. John Bryce was one of the originators of the Duquesne Fire company of Pittsburgh, and was its president at the time of the big fire in 1845. In May, 1879, the firm of Bryce, Higbee & Co. established a glasshouse in Homestead, where they have 190 hands employed, and were the first to use natural gas in the county. Our subject entered the glass-factory at the age of eleven years, mastered every detail, and soon became foreman of the mold department. He came to Homestead fourteen years ago, and has been manager of the glass-factory since it started. He married Emma, daughter of Joseph Doyle, an expert glassworker, and they have two children: Joe R. and Emma. Mr. and Mrs. Bryce are members of the E. L. Church; he is a republican.

John Hulton, carpenter, postoffice Hulton, was born at Hulton, March 17, 1853, a son of James and Susanna (Warwick) Hulton. James was born in Pittsburgh, and settled in Hulton when he was 21 years of age, with his father, whom he carried on a large farm, which his father, Jonathan Hulton, one of the first settlers, took up. James Hulton served one year in the civil war held many township offices, and died in 1869; his wife, Susanna, was a native of Belfast, Ireland. Jonathan Hulton owned a large tract of land, and the place was named for him. He lost most of it, however, contracting on the Allegheny Valley railroad. Our subject received his schooling at Hulton, and at the age of sixteen began for himself, working at gardening for two years. He then learned the carpenter's trade at Pittsburgh, and for the last ten years has been employed in the Verona railroad shops. He married, in 1879, Ida Virginia Stewart, of Springdale, daughter of Robert and Mary (Stodard) Stewart, former of whom was born in 1807, and followed carpentering, but is now a farmer in Springdale township; latter was born in Beaver county, and died when Ida Virginia was seven years old. Mrs. Hulton has three children: Harry, Mary and Warwick. They are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Hulton is a republican; is a member of Jr. O. U. A. M. and R. A.

John Alvin Householder, carpenter, Verona, was born Nov. 1, 1839, in Armstrong county, son of George and Catharine (Zeuver) Householder, both natives of Westmoreland county, and who live near Kittanning, former of whom is a millwright by trade, but follows barn-building; they are members of the Presbyterian Church. The grandfather of John Alvin was John Householder. Our subject received a common-school education, and at twenty-two years of age learned the carpenter's trade at Kittanning. In 1884 he came to Verona, where he has become a thorough mechanic. He was married Feb. 28, 1884, to Mary Elizabeth Shotts, of Armstrong county, daughter of Peter and Maria (Bush) Shotts, natives of the same county, former of whom died in 1876, aged fifty-one years. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Householder, viz.: Charles Howard. Laura Emma and Elmer H. The parents are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Householder is a republican, and member of the Carpenters' Union.

William Alexander Bryans, barber, Turtle Creek, was born in Fayette county, Pa., Dec. 16, 1845, a son of Richard and Elizabeth (Batch) Bryans, natives of Pennsylvania. Batch Williams, father of Elizabeth, had his name reversed by legislative enactment; his wife, Nancy, was a daughter of Dominick Bradley, who came from Ireland and took up land in Northumberland county, Pa., in 1772. When William A. Bryans was quite small his father died, and when he was twelve years old he was put on a farm with William Brisbane, in Westmoreland county. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. K, 127th U. S. C. T., and was attached to the Army of the James, serving in the battles of Deep Bottom, Hatcher's Run, and the fight for Petersburg and Richmond. After Lee's surrender the regiment went to Texas, and was there mustered out in September, 1865. Mr. Bryans' discharge bearing date 7th of that month. After mining coal for a time he commenced his present business at Elizabeth, this county, and, after keeping shop at Tarentum three years, came to Turtle Creek in 1873. In addition to tonsorial work he deals in newspapers, stationery and tobacco, and is very successful. In May, 1876, he married Minnie, daughter of Norman and Mary (Sarver) Bruce, all natives of this county, and of their three children only William Alexander is living. Mrs. Bryans died Jan. 14, 1880, aged twenty-three. Mr. Bryans is a member of the G. A. R., and is a K. T.; he is a republican.

Henry Taylor McCormick, locomotive engineer, Wilkinsburg, was born in Brush Valley, Indiana county, Pa., June 19, 1848, a son of William and Margaret (Taylor) McCormick, also natives of that county. His grandfather, a Lutheran Irishman, settled, early in the present century, in Pennsylvania. There being no church of his faith in his neighborhood, his son associated with the Presbyterians. Henry was reared on a farm, and when sixteen years old became a brakeman on the P. R. R. A year later he took the position of fireman, and after three years in this service was given an engine, and now pulls the fast passenger train between Pittsburgh and Altoona. He has been engineer for twenty-five years, and has never had an accident, though he has had some narrow escapes. In 1876, while pulling a train with six hundred people en route for the Centennial Exhibition, he saved the train from destruction at an open switch by staying on his engine, at the imminent risk of going over a high embankment. Mr. McCormick is a republican; a member of the Masonic fraternity; his family attends the M. E. Church. He married, June 18, 1867, Mary C. McIntyre, who was born at George's Station, Westmoreland county, a daughter of James and Annie (Funk) McIntyre, of Scotch and German descent, respectively. Mrs. McCormick is the mother of seven children: Edward Scott (fireman), James, William Devore, Mabel, Lottie, Henry and Mary.

Joseph E. Mullin, blacksmith, Verona, was born in New Brunswick, Canada, in 1856, son of Robert and Sarah (Shannon) Mullin. His father was a native of Ireland, and moved to Canada when he was seventeen years old; he was a farmer until 1873, in which year he came to the United States, where he died in 1883, aged seventy years. The mother of Joseph E. was born in Ireland and reared in Scotland, and she now resides in Mahoning county, Ohio. Joseph E. was the youngest of five girls and seven boys. He received his education in Canada, and at the age of seventeen came to Verona, where he learned the blacksmith's trade, and which he has since followed in the Allegheny Valley railroad shops. He was married Nov. 20, 1875, to Margaret Emily Taylor, a native of Indiana county, Pa., daughter of William B. and Elizabeth McManigal Taylor. Mr. Mullin resides in Verona. Mr. Mullin has been very successful in business, and built his home on Center avenue in 1883. He was elected a republican member of the council for 1887-88; is a member of the K. of P., and has been inspector of election. He and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

Joseph H. Moore, stonemason, Chartiers, was born in Ireland in 1846, a son of John and Catharine Moore, and came to this country in 1870, his parents remaining in the old country. They have eight children: Samuel, Joseph, Sarah, Hamilton, Euphemia, Margaret and William; the sons are all in this county with the exception of Hamilton, who resides in Colorado. Joseph H. has been twice married; first, in 1871, to Mary E. Comfort, who died in 1875, at the age of twenty-six years, leaving two children—Samuel and Sarah; and second, in 1875, to Jennie, daughter of Robert McCracken, of this county, and by her he has five children—Joseph J., John S., Chester H. and William J. and Jennie (twins). Mr. Moore is a trustee in the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

Moses Anderson, engineer, Wilkinsburg, was born in Allegheny City, Pa., Feb. 9, 1833. He remained at home till twenty-three years old, and then went on the Pennsylvania railroad as fireman. After three and one-half years in this service he was given charge of an engine, and now makes three round trips to Altoona each week, hauling freight. He built his present residence on Holmes street, near Pittsburgh, in 1885. Dec. 21, 1882, Mr. Anderson married Miss Catharine Dessa McManigal, who was born in Broad Top, Pa., a daughter of Jesse and Elizabeth (Van Newkirk) McManigal, of Irish and German families, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are members of the U. P. Church.

John Krauth, butcher, Tarentum, is a native of Rottenburg, Germany, born June 21, 1823, a son of Jacob and Ursula Krauth, former of whom died in Germany. The widow came to this country with her children, and settled, in 1843, at Louisville, Ky., where they remained four years; then removed to Pittsburgh, and thence to Tarentum in 1849, when John commenced business as a butcher. The names of the children are Jacob, of Louisville, Ky.; Maria, who died in Germany; Barbara, now Mrs. J. Boyer, of Pittsburgh; John and Fred. John married, in 1848, Barbara A. Fausa, of Pittsburgh, who was born July 18, 1822, and they located in Tarentum, where they still live. They have one child, John, who was born in Tarentum, Dec. 16, 1849, and married Mary Nicolas, who was born Aug. 4, 1847, at Gross-Baden, Germany, and they now have four children, all born at Tarentum: Anna Mary, June 16, 1875; Anna Barbara, July 16, 1877; Clare Mathilde, Sept. 5, 1883, and George John, Dec. 5, 1885. All are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Frederick Krauth, butcher, Tarentum, is a native of Germany, born Sept. 28, 1826, and is a son of Jacob and Ursula Krauth, former of whom died in Germany. The widow came with her children to this country, and located at Louisville, Ky. There Frederic followed the business of butcher for a time, and then removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, thence to Pittsburgh, Pa., and thence to Kittanning, Pa., and finally, Aug. 30, 1849, to Tarentum. In 1853 he married Miss Fass, and established himself in business in Tarentum, where he reared a family of nine children, of whom those living are Charles, Fred, George, Maggie, Matilda, now Mrs. James Bair, of Leechburg, Pa.; and those deceased are William H., Mary N., Kate and Benjamin F. Charles married Miss Correll, of Tarentum; Fred, Miss 'Welch, of Tarentum, and Maggie, Mr. Newt, Stewart, of Tarentum.

JACOB HUGO, proprietor of a restaurant and saloon, McKeesport, was born near Temperanceville, this county, Dec. 18, 1848, a son of John A. and Mary E. (Ellsesser) Hugo, natives of Bavaria, Germany, who settled, in 1845, in this county, where they reared a family of six children: Jacob, John (deceased), Michael, Lizzie, Mary and Annie. Jacob was reared in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, and for a number of years followed the occupation of a coal-miner. He embarked in his present business in McKeesport in 1878, and has had a prosperous trade. He has been twice married; first to Carrie Abrams, by whom he had five children, four living: Maggie, Celia, Agnes and Lawrence; his second wife is Sarah McDermott, by whom he has two children, Hilda and James V. Mr. Hugo is a democrat.

THOMAS GLEW, blacksmith, Monroeville was born in Pittsburgh, in June, 1837. His parents, John and Ann (Hough) Grew, were born in Derbyshire, England, came to this country about 1833, and, after spending a year in Philadelphia, located in Pittsburgh until 1838, when they settled in Patton township. John was a nailmaker; engaged in general blacksmithing; after he came here, for many years near Moss Side, and then bought a farm, where he died in 1883, aged seventy-two; his widow died three years later, at the age of sixty-nine. In 1862 he joined Col. Allen's regiment of volunteers, under Capt. A. L. Pierson, now of Pittsburgh, and after serving nine months, and sharing in the battle at Antietam, he was discharged for disability incurred by exposure on that battle field. When John left the shop he was succeeded by Thomas, who had been his assistant from youth, and who now owns the property, and also a farm of forty-four acres, where he resides and conducts a shop. In 1889 he married Rachel B., daughter of John and Catherine (Leasure) Dougherty, of Irish and Huguenot-Swiss descent. The Leasure family is a prominent one in Westmoreland county. Mr. and Mrs. Grew have: John W., William, Emma, Emma, Frank, William, Harry T., John Brinton, Millie Wilson and Maggie Beattie (twins) and Thomas Leasure. The two eldest born, Minnie and John, died of scarlet fever at an early age. The family is connected with the Presbyterian Church. John Grew left five sons and six daughters, of whom seven are living, Thomas being the eldest. The others are Sarah (Ramsay), at Homestead; Martha Elizabeth and Annie, unmarried, on the home farm; Jonathan Fulton, nearby; William W., working the farm; Susan (Morrison), the second child, died in Illinois; John died at the age of twenty-two, and George and Mary Ann died in infancy, the last named being the first born.

AUGUST BRAUM, butcher, West Elizabeth, was born in Ketdorf, Germany, Aug. 3, 1850, son of Joseph and Eva Braum. He came to America in 1872, settling in West Elizabeth, and in 1873 he married Mary Ann Fildo, who was born May 5, 1849, a daughter of Ziprion and Fredericka Fildo, of Morless, Greis, Hinfalt, Kurhessen, Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Braum have had eight children, all born in West Elizabeth: Mary Ann, May 12, 1875; Annie Fredericka. Sept. 22, 1876, died July 19, 1877; August Frank, May 3, 1878; Joseph Melcher, Aug. 23, 1879; Charles Williams, June 4, 1881; Catherine Augusta, Feb. 11, 1883, died November 20, 1883; William Henry, Aug. 27, 1886; Edward Adam, Feb. 16, 1887. Those living all reside with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Braum are members of the Catholic Church.

FRED HELD, barber, McKeesport, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 29, 1863, son of Louis and Catherine (Bangert) Held. He was reared in McKeesport, and educated in the common schools and Normal Academy. Learning the barber's trade in his father's shop, he worked as a journeyman for five years, and then succeeded his father in business (established in 1863) in July, 1887. It is the oldest and most successful business stand of the kind in the city, and enjoys a large and lucrative patronage. Mr. Held married, Feb. 12, 1888, Annie M., daughter of Alexander Dietrich, of McKeesport. Our subject is a prominent member of the Electric Musical and Social Club of McKeesport, of which he is treasurer; he is a republican.

WILLIAM HENRY PETERS, carriage-blacksmith, Verona, was born July 24, 1855, in Allegheny City, where he passed his life until 1878, when he removed to Verona. His parents, Christian and Mary Peters, were born in Germany, and now reside in Allegheny City, the father being employed in a planing-mill. When sixteen years old William began to learn his trade, and has since followed it. He is now in the employ of the Dexter Spring company; is a skillful mechanic, and enjoys a good salary. In 1878 he married Louise Zimmerman, who was born in Allegheny City, of German parents. Mr. Peters is a republican, and the family is associated with the G. L. Church. There are three children—Frances, William, Tillie Molline and Mamie Molline.

JOSHUA WILTSHIRE, blacksmith, Boston, was born in England in 1829. In 1872 he came to this country and settled in Pittsburgh. In April, 1873, he removed to Boston.
In July, 1884, he left Boston and went to Sampson's Mill, where he engaged in general blacksmithing and wagon-making. Here he remained until 1886, when he returned to Boston, where he bought property, and is now carrying on the blacksmithing business. When Mr. Wittshire removed from Sampson's Mill he left his son, Joshua C., to carry on the business there for himself. The latter has had a new house, shop, etc., built, at Christy Park, whither he removed in 1889, and where he is carrying on the old business. Mr. Wittshire was married, in England, to Miss Frances Collett, who died in 1871, leaving two children, Joshua C. and Emily H., now deceased. For his second wife Mr. Wittshire married Mrs. Sarah Ann Miller, of Boston, who died in 1884, without children. Mr. Wittshire married for the third time, taking as his partner Mary, daughter of John Miller, of the Pike. Mr. and Mrs. Wittshire are members of the M. E. Church of Boston.

Peter May, butcher, Verona, is a son of Johann and Elizabeth May, and was born in Reiffelbach, Germany, Jan. 14, 1846. When seventeen years old he left home and came to America. In 1864, having spent a year in Pittsburgh, he went to Dravosburg, and learned the butcher's trade, and in 1870 established business at Armstrong station, in Verona township, where he purchased and still owns property. On the 12th of May, 1885, his buildings were destroyed by fire, and he came to Verona and built the fine brick structure on James street, which he occupies as a residence and market. In 1874 he married Caroline Porr, who was born at the same place as himself. The family attend the Presbyterian Church, as the best accessible representative of the G. R. Church. Four of the children are dead, and five are living: Otto, Henry, Peter, Albert and Cora Helen. Mr. May is a republican.

Charles W. Bock, farmer, was born in this county in 1855, a son of Charles F. and Elizabeth (Haudenshield) Bock. He was educated at the public schools in this county, and owns the homestead farm, consisting of sixty-one acres. He was married, in 1878, to Elizabeth Klinzing, daughter of Henry and Catherine E. (Port) Klinzing, and four children have been born to them: Walter H., Amber E., Lynette C. and Ethel Margaret. Mr. Bock has always resided on the place since he was seven years of age, and as a farmer has been successful. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

Thomas Patterson, machinist, McKeesport, was born in Jedburgh, Roxburghshire, Scotland, March 5, 1845, a son of Peter and Isabella (Burn) Patterson. He was reared in his native town, where he served an apprenticeship of five years at the machinist's trade. He went to England in January, 1866, and June, 1867, to Paris, where, for three months, he was employed in the machine-shops of J. M. & P. Jackson. He then went to Boston, Mass., and, October 15th, engaged with the National Tube-works company, in whose employ he has since been. He came to McKeesport in 1873, and since 1882 has been foreman of machinery in the lap-weld mill. He married, Feb. 5, 1870, Isabella, daughter of David and Mary J. (Rosethorn) Lee, of Westmoreland, England, and has had ten children: Mary J., Isabella R., Peter, Thomas H. (deceased), Elizabeth E., John, David L., Jessie T., James G. and George A. Mr. Patterson is a member of the Masonic fraternity, K. of P., K. of H. and Caledonian Club; he is a republican.

Michael Henry Leonard, blacksmith, Turtle Creek, was born in Ashtabula, Ohio, Nov. 1, 1854. His parents, Matthew and Kate (Mason) Leonard, natives of Ireland, died at Irwin, Pa., the former in 1873, aged seventy-two years, and the latter in 1886, aged fifty-two. They came to America about 1853, and the father was employed as a laborer. Michael had little opportunity for acquiring an education, and went to his trade when sixteen years old. Of this he became master, and opened a shop at Turtle Creek in 1880. He has been successful, and now owns his shop and two dwellings in the village. He and his family are members of the Roman Catholic Church. In 1876 he married Maggie McCallum, a native of Port Perry, and a daughter of John and Hannah McCallum, of Irish birth. Following are the names of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard: Annie, John, Katie and Mary (twins).

John F. Bock, butcher, Green Tree, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., in 1846. He is a son of Charles F. Bock, who was born in 1818 in Saxony, and married Elizabeth Haudenshield, daughter of Samuel Haudenshield, of this county. Ten children were born to this union, of whom John F. is the eldest; five of these children are now living. The father died in 1863, the mother in 1879, aged fifty-seven years. John F. was educated at the public schools in this county, and reared a farmer. He resided in Columbiana county, Ohio, four years, and since 1884 has been successfully engaged in butchering. He married, in 1873, Minnie Wertz, daughter of Gottlieb Wertz, of this county, and they are the parents of seven children: Harrison, Charles G., Ella May, George Elmer, John C., Howard and Bessie. Mr. Bock is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a Mason, a member of the A. O. U. W., and a republican.

Zechariah Zacharias, machinist, Verona, was born in Nautyglo, Monmouthshire, Wales, in 1837, but lived in Pontypool from boyhood until he came to America. When eleven years old he was employed in an iron foundry, and has followed iron-work ever since, educating himself by private study. In 1861 he arrived in Pittsburgh, with about four sovereigns in his pocket, and soon found employment there. For the last twenty-four years he has been employed by the Allegheny Valley Railroad company. He is the owner of two lots, on which he built a house in 1879, and brought his family to Verona. He also owns a lot and two houses in Pittsburgh. The family are associated with the Welsh Congregational Church in Pittsburgh, and Mr. Zacharias is a republican. He was born in 1838, to William and Margaret Thomas, a native of Cardiganshire, Wales, and they have two children: Jesse Walker and Ellen Maud.

JAMES ALEXANDER DORAN, engineer, Wilkinsburg, was born at Wilmore (then Jefferson), Cambria county, Pa., Sept. 2, 1840, a son of James and Mary (Kennedy) Doran, of County Longford, Ireland. James Doran came to America and settled near Philadelphia when sixteen years old, the mother of the latter being deceased. When James attained manhood he was employed in the construction of state roads and canals, and eventually settled on a farm in Cambria county. He died there in February, 1888, at the age of eighty-two; his widow still resides there, aged seventy-nine. They had thirteen children, three being older than James and his twin brother Patrick. James A. remained on the farm until he was eighteen years old, when he secured a position as freight-brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad. He was rapidly promoted, being given charge of a train at the end of seven months, and three months later he became fireman. After firing for less than a year, he was promoted to engineer, and now runs the fast express from Pittsburgh to Altoona. He bought a house in Wilkinsburg, whither he moved in 1871, and in 1885 he built the handsome brick residence which he now occupies. He is a member of St. James' R. C. Church, and an active worker in the democratic party. In 1870 he married Mary, daughter of Richard and Theresa Sharp, descendants of the early German settlers at Lilly's station, on the Pennsylvania railroad. Mr. Doran's children are named, in order of birth: Maggie, Genevieve Theresa, William, Joseph, Paul, Louis and Legoria.

ROBERT LOGAN, bricklayer, McKeesport, was born in Elizabeth township, this county, Jan. 28, 1831, a son of Isaac and Rachel (Morton) Logan. His paternal and maternal grandparents, Robert Logan and James Morton, were both natives of Ireland, of Scotch ancestry, and were among the pioneers of the county. The grandmother of our subject, in the early days of the county, was captured and scalped by the Indians, and left for dead, but recovered, and lived to rear a family. Isaac Logan was a shoemaker, but followed the trade of stonemason most of his life in Elizabeth township, where he died in 1875, aged seventy-two years. He was three times married, and was the father of eighteen children. The son of this last marriage was reared and educated in Elizabeth township, served an apprenticeship of three years at the bricklayer's trade in McKeesport, and has been a resident of that borough since 1873. In 1853 he married Melinda, daughter of Benjamin and Susan (Campbell) Boyd, of Elizabeth township, and by her had eight children: Joseph, John, Susan, Edward, Benjamin, Robert, George and Effa. Mr. Logan is a member of the First M. E. Church, and is a prohibitionist.

JONAH MATTHEW, roller, McKeesport, was born at Runnem, South Wales, Jan. 4, 1835, a son of David and Margaret Mathias. He was reared in his native county, and first came to America in 1857, locating in Wheeling, Va., where he resided until 1860, and then returned to Wales. He came back to the United States in 1872, and located in Allegheny, where he worked as a heater until 1877. He then removed to McKeesport, where he has since been employed as a roller in the United States Tin-Plate works. Mr. Mathias is a thrifty and enterprising citizen, and has accumulated considerable property. He has contributed toward the growth and development of the city by erecting several dwelling-houses, besides the handsome residence in which he lives, on Mathias street, named in his honor. He is a member of the Welsh Congregational Church of Pittsburgh, and is a republican.

SAMUEL R. FRAZIER, heater, McKee's Rocks, is a son of Matthew P. and Sarah Frazier, and was born in Armstrong county, Pa., in 1855. His lifework thus far has been in the iron-mill. He came to this county in 1860, and still resides in Stowe township. Matthew P. died March 14, 1876, at the age of fifty years; his widow is living with her son, Samuel; they had five children, viz.: Mary (deceased), William J., Samuel R., Joseph and Harry. Samuel R. was married, Nov. 11, 1880, to Mary, daughter of James and Margaret Cole, and they had four children: James C. (deceased), Samuel R., Walter L. and Harry L. Mr. Frazier is a Freemason and a member of the Amalgamated association. He owns a beautiful home in Stowe township, adjoining the village of McKee's Rocks.

W. S. SMITH, liveryman, Elizabeth, is a son of Robert and Caroline (Black) Smith, natives of this county, and was born in 1836 in Forward township. He followed the occupation of a farmer until 1877, when he established his present livery business in Elizabeth borough, but has lived here since 1859. In 1893 he enlisted in the 14th P. V. C., and served until the close of the war, acting as sergeant of his company. He married, in 1859, Alvira McCune, daughter of James McCune, of this township, and they have five children living: Robert M., a commercial traveler, of St. Louis; James Edwin, Rose May, Caroline B. and Harry S., all at home. Mr. Smith is a member of Joseph Stevens Post, No. 111, G. A. R. Mrs. Smith is a member of the First M. E. Church.

ALEXANDER MADER, proprietor of restaurant, Verona, was born in Canton Schaffhausen, Switzerland, Aug. 23, 1888, son of Henry and Annie (Fletcher) Mader. His father died in 1895, aged fifty-nine years; his mother lives in Pittsburgh. Alexander Mader came to Sharpsburg, this county, in 1803, and worked upon a farm for one year. Aug. 12, 1864, he enlisted in Co. E, 3d regiment P. C., and after passing through a few engagements was seized with typhoid fever; was confined to the military hospital for some time, and discharged in July, 1865. He then worked for eleven years in the oil-works, and five years for A. Lions & Co., oil-refiners. He next opened a saloon in Sharpsburg, and one year later moved to Verona. He was married in 1866 to Maggie, daughter of Alexander and Annie Rusdenberger, and to them have been born three children: Annie, Christopher and Ada. The family are members of the P. Ev. Church. Mr. Mader is a republican; member of the I. O. O. F., G. A. R., the Orangemen and Swiss Relief society. He has a house and lot in Sharpsburg, and a business corner at Verona.

James M. McCUTCHEON, postmaster and merchant, Moon, was born on the old homestead in Findlay township, May 18, 1842, a son of Alexander and Rachel (McCoy) McCutcheon of whom the home farm was purchased in Ireland, Oct. 10, 1804. When a young man Alexander came to Findlay township, and soon after his marriage purchased the old farm there, where he died, and where his widow still resides. They had five sons and two daughters: James M., Claudius (deceased at age of twenty-one), Alexander (in Findlay township), Sarah (wife of Joseph McCleaster, in Moon township), Margaret (wife of Joseph A. Bedford, in Sharon, Moon township), John and Thomas (Findlay township). James M. farmed until 1886, when he purchased his present store at Moon, and March 1, 1886, was appointed postmaster. He married, June 9, 1862, Jennie Crane, who was born in Beaver county, Pa., a daughter of Daniel and Rebecca (McCarty) Crane. Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon are the parents of three children: Claudius, Stellas, both born July 9, 1872, died Jan. 12, 1888; she was an earnest Christian, and her death was a most beautiful and Christian-like revelation to many who witnessed it; just before her death, although too weak to hold up her head, she, with others, sang “Rock of Ages,” and “Jesus, Lover of my Soul,” her dying request was for her classmates to meet her in heaven), and Alexander G. Mr. McCutcheon is a member of the O. U. A. M. He and his wife are members of Sharon Presbyterian Church.

Louis STIPE, boatman, postoffice Charter- tians, son of August (a miner) and Augusta Stipe, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1855. August Stipe came to Pittsburgh from Germany in 1852. He was the father of three children, Julius P., Henrietta (deceased) and Louis, that died on the spot. Louis Louis was born in 1857. Adam Dewalt, a farmer of this county, and by this marriage there were four children: William, Adam J., Jacob and John (deceased). Louis Stipe commenced boating in 1872, which he has followed most of the time since, a part of the time engaged on a steamboat from Pittsburgh to New Orleans. Dec. 29, 1879, he met with a very serious accident on the towboat Smokey City, when he had both legs broken, and was otherwise injured. He was unable to work for more than a year, and has never fully recovered from the effects.

Daniel A. Farley, foreman welding depart- ment National Tube-works, McKeesport, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1851, a son of John and Sarah (Stuart) Farley. He was reared and educated in Boston, Mass., where he was engaged in pipemaking for several years, beginning at the age of fourteen. In 1870 he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company in Boston, Mass., as roll-hand and furnaceman, at which he continued in that city up to 1873. He then came to McKeesport, in the interest of the same firm, and followed the above occupation until 1878, from which time until 1887 he was assistant foreman in the welding department of their works. In May, 1887, he was appointed foreman of that depart- ment, which position he has since satisfactorily filled. In 1873 he married Sarah, daughter of John and Bridget (Mc- Devitt) Friel, of Boston, Mass., and has six children living: Sarah, John, Nicholas, William, Rose and Daniel. Mr. Farley and family are members of the Catholic Church; politically he is a democrat.

Finley McIntosh, merchant. Turtle Creek, was born near the famous battlefield of Culloden, Scotland, in 1815, a son of Alexander and Mary McIntosh. He was reared a farmer and shepherd, and worked for some time as a coal-miner. In the fall of 1871 he came to America, and the next spring settled in Allegheny county, where he mined coal until failing health compelled him to abandon that occupation. One year later he commenced peddling goods, and went in debt fifty-seven dollars for a horse for that purpose; his wife, at the time kept a little store to help along. They prospered, and in 1884 bought land, and erected the fine store-building, two stories and basement, and the dwelling which they now occupy in Newtown. The stock of general merchandise is valued at over $12,000. In 1874 Mr. McIntosh married Annie Anderson, who was born in Dunfermline, Scotland, and they have four living children: John Alexander, Annie May, Harry and Grace. David, the second child, died in infancy. The family is connected with the U. P. Church.

Robert Ralston, Wilkinsburg, was born in Salem township, Pa., in 1832. His grandfather, John Ralston, came from Ireland in or about 1789. James, son of the latter, was then three years old. He married Catharine Stewart, and settled in Ralston township, Allegheny county, in 1838. He died in 1861, aged seventy-five; his widow in 1865, both members of the Beulah Presbyterian Church; they had six children, of whom Robert is the youngest. He passed his early life on the farm, and received but little schooling. When of age he went to Fort Wayne, Ind. In 1858 he was in Central Iowa, where he engaged in farming, and on returning to Allegheny county was employed as watchman at Oakland for six years. He engaged in farming near Parnassus and Sandy Creek, and settled, in 1876, in Sterrett township, where he purchased his present home. He engaged in farming for some years, and is now watchman at the Phoenix Steel-works at Brushton station. In 1858 Mr. Ralston married Margaret Beatty, a native of Washington county, daughter of Jameson and Margaret (McIntyre) Beatty, of Scotch descent. Mr. Ralston is a republican, and has been supervisor of Sterrett two years.

Jacob Dewalt, farmer, postoffice Castle Shannon, was born in 1819, in Borgen, Germany, son of Jacob and Catherine (Shram) Dewalt, also natives of Germany. Their children were Peter, David, Adam, Jacob, Catherine, Caroline, Elizabeth and Mrs. Mary Heine (who is still living in Germany). Of these Jacob came to America in 1837, and for a time worked on the canals and rivers. Later he turned his attention to farming, was successful, and now owns eighty acres of land in Baldwin township; he married Catherine Kine, and their children are John and Peter (twins), William, George and Mrs. Mary Handenstein. Mr. and Mrs. Dewalt are members of the G. L. Church, in which he has held several offices. He is a democrat, and has filled various township offices.

Simon Vetter, farmer, postoffice Verona, was born in Kirche Ober-amt Geislingen, Stuttgart, Germany, in 1829, a son of Charles and Ursula (Schneider) Vetter. The father was a wagon-maker, and gave his son a fair education. When fifteen years old Simon was apprenticed to the blacksmith's trade, which he followed until he came to America, in 1849. For nearly twenty years he dug coal in this county, and in 1867 he bought his present farm of fifty acres. In 1854 Mr. Vetter married Elizabeth Vetter, who was born in the same city as himself, but is no relation, and they have five children, all at home: Jacob, Simon, Henry, Maria and John. Mr. Vetter is a republican: the family are associated with the Evangelical Church.

William Franklin Young, carpenter, Wilkinsburg, was born in Beaver township, Forest county, Pa., Aug. 25, 1859. His parents, Peter and Catharine (Wehat) Young, were born in Hesse-Cassel, Germany, married in this country, and in 1864 settled on the farm where they now live, in Forest county. There William F. was reared and educated as a farm-boy. When nineteen years old he went to learn his trade with J. A. Wilson, at Butler, and a year later moved with him to Wilkinsburg. When the firm of L. A. Raisig & Co. was established, in 1886, he became one of the members, and looks after the workshop. He is a member of Trinity Reformed Church, the Jr. O. U. A. M., K. of P., and is a democrat.

Christian Lampe, huckster and gardener, postoffice Pittsburgh. Thirty-fifth ward, was born in Prussia, in 1887, son of Christian and Amelia Lampe. Christian immigrated to America in 1854, and located in Butler county, Pa.; then came to Allegheny county and engaged in farming, afterward in huckstering, which he continued to follow for fourteen years. In 1884, he purchased his present place, originally the property of Mr. Halesmen, comprising eighteen acres. Mr. Lampe was married in 1878 to Mrs. Susan Burk, sister of Hon. Samuel Steel, and to them was born one son, named Samuel C. In 1886 Mr. Lampe enlisted in Co. D, 149th Pa. Regt., and for three years was in the service. He is a member of the G. L. Church; is a republican.

Jotham Whitlatch, tool-temperer, Verona, was born in Waynesburg, Pa., in 1848, son of David (a farmer) and Anna (Coen) Whitlatch, natives of the same place. They moved in 1852 to Wood county, W. Va., where the father now resides. They were the parents of ten children, viz.: Josephus, Margaret, Jotham, Mary, William, Anna, Moses, Doris, James and Ora. The mother died Nov. 20, 1884, a member of the Baptist Church, of which the father is also a member. Jotham Whitlatch received his education in the common schools of New England. At nineteen years of age he spent three months in the oil-regions, drilling. He then worked two years at Parkersburg, W. Va., at the cooper's trade; then went to Missouri and Kansas, and on steamer down the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Natchez, Miss. Upon coming to Verona he worked about seven months in the roundhouse, and then entered the toolworks, where he has since been. He is an active member of the I. O. O. F. and R. A. Mr. Whitlatch was married, May 8, 1879, to Robina Harvey, a native of the Orkney Islands, Scotland, born in 1856, a daughter of Robert and Amelia Harvey, who are still living in Scotland. Her grandfather was a Scotch farmer, and was captured by a French man-of-war, and kept a prisoner for eight years; he and three others were all that lived to get out of that prison. Mr. and Mrs. Whitlatch are members of the Baptist Church.

Patrick Doran, engineer, Wilkinsburg, is a twin brother of James A. Doran, whose sketch appears elsewhere. His youth was passed on the home farm, and when twenty years old he secured employment as fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad. After serving in this capacity a little over two years, he took charge of an engine, and for over twenty years has been running passenger-trains; at present the fast express-trains between Pittsburgh and Altoona. Only one accident has occurred in his career, but no loss of life. On a foggy night he ran into the rear of a freight-train of the Pacific Express, causing the demolition of a few cars. At one time the boiler of his engine exploded while on the track at Thirty-third street. In 1875 Mr. Doran married Miss Mary H. Williams, a native of Chester county, Pa., and daughter of David and Ellen Williams, of Ireland. Following year they took up their residence at Wilkinsburg, and later bought the house in which they reside. Their children are Edward Pius, Vincent Joseph, John Lawrence, Mary Eleanor, Thomas Basil, Ruth Christine and Agnes Patrice. Mr. and Mrs. Doran are communicants in the R. C. Church. Mr. Doran is a democrat.

FRANK H. HIEBER, blacksmith, McKee's Rocks, a son of John and Margaret Hieber, was born in 1860, in Beaver county, Pa. John, who is a farmer, came from Germany in 1832, and first located at Elma, this county, where he remained several years. He then moved to Beaver county, where he married Margaret Emeric, of that county, and to them were born thirteen children: Frank H., Sadie M., wife of Adolph Bauerman; Charles J., George W., David L., Elizabeth M., Hannah D., Albert D., Amelia A., Bertha C. M., Herman J. (deceased), Wilson B. and Amanda. The parents were members of the Lutheran church. Frank H. Hieber was married, May 14, 1885, to Lillie D., daughter of James and Maria Nichol, of this county. Mr. Hieber learned the trade of blacksmith, and set up business for himself in September, 1886. He owns a good property in Stoewe township, consisting of dwelling-house and a large blacksmith-shop. He is a member of the Heptasophs, the Jr. O. U. A. M. and the P. & A. M. He is a Presbyterian.

CHARLES RUFUS CHURCH, engineer, Turtle Creek, eldest son of C. R. Church, was born in Allegheny City, July 27, 1859. When thirteen years old he went into a store at Akron, Ohio, as errand-boy, and remained there five years, rising to the position of salesman. In 1878 he went on the P. R. R. as fireman, and for the past six years has held his position at Bessemer. He is one of the promising young men of Turtle Creek, and is associated with the Freemasons and Jr. O. U. A. M. On the 29th of February, 1888, he married Della J. Douds. Mrs. Church was born at Saltsburg, and is a daughter of James R. and Anna (Kuhns) Douds, of Irish and German descent.

JAMES HERRON ANDERSON, carpenter, Hulton, the second son of Matthew and Sarah (Robinson) Anderson (whose biography appears elsewhere), was born in Allegheny City, Dec. 15, 1832. He received his education there, and when eighteen years of age learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed until 1873. He came to Verona Dec. 1, 1874, and here kept store for one year; from 1880 until 1886 he worked in the Allegheny Valley Railroad camps; then began contracting in house-building, and has met with good success. He was married in 1881 to Margaret Jane McNickle, a niece of the Misses Bright, of Verona, and born at Hulton; her parents now reside in Beaver county.

Two children have blessed this union, viz.: Lucretia and Matthew Allen. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are members of the U. P. Church. He is a republican, a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and of the Carpenters' Union.

DAVID SPENCE, steel-roller, McKee's Rocks, son of William and Ann Spence, was born in Manchester, England, in 1832; came to this country in 1865, and to this county in 1866. In 1868 he brought his parents to Pittsburgh, where they died. The father in 1870, at the age of seventy-five years, and the mother in 1871, at the age of seventy-eight. They left three children: Mary, (widow of William Blumley, of England), David and Ann (widow of Samuel Wilson, of Ireland). David Spence was first married in England, in 1853, to Emma Rowland, and by her had two children, Thomas R. and Henry R. Mrs. Spence died in England, in 1895, aged twenty-nine years. His second marriage occurred in 1867, with Ann J. Heslip, who bore him four children: William D., Charles W., George K. and Blanche (deceased). This wife died in 1875, at the age of twenty-two years. Mr. Spence's third marriage occurred in 1879, with Prudence Heslip, sister of his second wife, and this union was blessed with four children: Annie B., Clarence G., Edgar T. and Olive P. Mr. Spence has followed steel-rolling for forty-four years, and has been in the employ of the Pittsburgh Steel-works twenty-two years. He rolled the wire for the cable for the New York and Brooklyn bridge, and is a master of his line of business. He is a member of the R. A.

AUGUST ROEDEL, butcher, West View, was born Nov. 3, 1832, in Saxony, Germany, a son of Christof and Johanna (Richter) Roedel. His parents reared a family of seven children, of whom Charles and August are living in America. August came here in 1854, settled in Allegheny City, and followed his trade in Butchertown. He is a member of the German church of his native country. In 1866 he removed to Ross township, where he bought land and engaged successfully in the butcher business. He here married Caroline, daughter of Daniel and Magdalena (Butz) Morgenstem, and they have four children: Mrs. Emma Booth, Mrs. Anna Eckert, Mrs. Minnie Kitcher and Clara. Mr. Roedel is a republican, and has been school director for fifteen years.

JAMES CLUBEINE MATES, brakeman, post-office Turtle Creek, was born in Wilkins township, Dec. 23, 1837. His grandfather, John Mates, of German descent, came from Berks county to Wilkins township at an early date. He had five sons and two daughters. John, the eldest, was born in Wilkins, and died there in 1848, aged thirty-seven. His widow, Mary, now resides in Turtle Creek, and is seventy-one years old. She was the daughter of John Clubeine, who came from Germany and settled in Sewickley, Westmoreland county, where Mrs. Mates was born. Her six children are all living in the vicinity, as follows: James Clubeine, Fanny (wife of Henry Linhart), John (in Patton township), Eliza (wife of John Cook, in Wilkins, George (in Patton), Lilah (wife of John West, in Plum township). James C. remained on the home farm until 1869, when he joined Co. A, 101st P. V., which was attached to the Eastern army. The regiment was stationed about a year at Rosnoke island, and Mr. Mates was about five months laid up in hospital at New Berne and Beaufort. He was taken prisoner at Plymouth, N. C., and lay eleven months in Andersonville prison. When finally paroled he was too much reduced for duty, and came home on furlough. By the time he had recovered, fighting had ceased, and he was discharged in June, 1865.

In January, 1866, he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Linhart. The son of Adam Linhart (Mrs. Mates' great-grandfather) settled in Wilkins before peace was made with the Indians, and his wife was often obliged to carry her two children through the woods to the blockhouse on the Monongahela, to escape the savages. Six children bless the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mates, viz.: George, James, Mary, Annie, Stella and Sidman. John, their sixth child, died when two years old. The family attend the Lutheran Church. Mr. Mates is a member of the G. A. R., association of prisoners of war, and politically a republican. In November, 1866, he became a brakeman on a coal-train on the Pennsylvania railroad, and has continued since in the same occupation. In 1887 he built the fine residence in Turtle Creek which he now occupies. He also owns a house in Wilkins township.

Luke L. May, gardener, postoffice Charter, son of Jacob and Theresa May, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., June 18, 1855, and was reared on his father's farm in Stowe township, Allegheny county. He married, Oct. 14, 1879, Emma T., daughter of Wolfgam and Victoria Martin, of this county. Mr. May resides on a part of the old Scully farm, now owned by himself, and is engaged in gardening.

Richard Jones, machinist, Verona, was born in Llanelly, Curmarthshire, Wales, Feb. 12, 1846, and is the eldest child of Thomas and Ann Jones. His parents now reside in Pittsburgh, where Mr. Jones is a carpenter-contractor. He came to America in 1868. His youngest son is in Detroit, and the others reside in and about Pittsburgh. Following are their names: Catharine (Evans), Tabitha (Robbin), Thomas, John J., Isaac, David and Hannah. Thomas Sr.'s father, Isaac, was a carpenter, and lived to the age of ninety-eight. His father, Thomas, farmer and poet, was a freeholder, and lived to be ninety. When Richard Jones was fifteen he went into a machine-shop, and has been an iron-worker ever since. From 1888 to 1893 he was employed in Allegheny and Pittsburgh, and came to Verona in the latter year, and built his present residence. He is employed in the Allegheny Valley shops. The family are associated with the Baptist Church in Pittsburgh; Mr. Jones is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and a steadfast republican. In 1878 he married Sarah Ann Williams, born in Bryn Mawr, Wales, and following are the names of their children: Richard Oliver, Corn Mabel. Alberta and Ireneus. Elmer, Oscar and William Howard are deceased.

George Washington Lonnerbaugh, butcher, Wilkinsburg, is the eldest child of Jacob Lonnerbaugh (now a resident of Indiana township, this county), by his first wife, Sarah Jane (McConaha) Lonnerbaugh. The latter died in 1856, when her second child, James Edmond, was two weeks old, and James followed her in 1872. George W. Lonnerbaugh was born in 1844. His grandfather came from Germany, and died in Philadelphia, where his son Jacob was born. Jacob became a butcher, and settled in Indiana township. In August, 1881, he entered Co. B, 63rd regiment, P. V. I., and served as assistant commissary-sergeant till the close of the war. He then went on a farm, and is now engaged in the wholesale stock business. Our subject early began to assist his father, and became an expert butcher. On reaching his majority he established a meat-market in Wilkinsburg, and has been almost continuously in the business since. In 1887 he built the shop he occupies, on Wood street, and he owns a residence on Ross street. He is associated with the S. of V., Jr. O. U. A. M., I. O. O. F., two insurance societies, and, with his wife, attends the services of the M. E. Church; politically he has always been a republican. Jan. 19, 1869, Mr. Lonnerbaugh married Miss Mary Fair, a native of Allegheny City, daughter of Samuel and Isabella Fair, of Ireland, and following are the names of their children: George Fair, Lawrence Washington (deceased) and Myrtle May. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., D. O. H. and I. O. of H.; politically he is identified with the republican party. Mr. Espe married Emelie Spreyer, a native of Ohio, and they have five children: Selma L., Elsie P., Albert C., Frederic B. and Ada E.

William Edwards, heater, National Rolling-mill, McKeesport, was born in Shropshire, England, March 30, 1848, a son of Thomas and Ann (Fletcher) Edwards. He was reared in his native country, and for eight years served an apprenticeship as a puddler and heater. At the age of eighteen he had become so proficient in the business as to be given charge of a furnace in Staffordshire, which he conducted two years, after which he worked at his trade in different parts of England up to 1878. He then came to America, located in McKeesport, and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company, as a heater in the rolling-mill, which position he has since held. He married, Dec. 29, 1868, Elizabeth, daughter of Jonathan and Ann (Turner) Cook, of Worcestershire, England, by whom he had ten children: Ann E., Rhoda J., Ellen, William (deceased), Florence, Lillic, Minnie, Percy, Frederick and Lizzie (deceased). Mr. Edwards is a member of St. George's society, Foresters and the Amalgamated association; he is a republican.

Henry Hammond, assistant foreman of threading department National Tube-works, McKeesport, was born in Germany, Oct. 11, 1846, a son of Christian and Anna (Meyers) Hammond. He was reared and educated in his native town, and for eleven years was a sailor. He came to America in 1870, and located in Boston, Mass., where he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company; came to McKeesport in 1872 in the ironworks of the company, and since 1877 has held his present position in their works here. He married, in 1878, Agnes, daughter of George and Agnes (Muirhead) Ramsay, of Dundee, Scotland, by whom he has three children living: Agnes, Harry and Mabel. He is a member of the C. P. Church, also a member of Iron Castle, No. 81, A. O. K. of the Mystic Chain, and is a republican.

William Jacob Trotter, florist, Verona, was born in Yorkshire, England, Sept. 16, 1827, a son of William and Anna (Bainbridge) Trotter. When fifteen years old he was employed in a press-shop (for pressing dress-goods), and continued in that occupation until he came to America, in 1854. He had contemplated this change for some years, and at once joined relatives in this vicinity. Here he took up farming, and has given his attention for many years to the propagation of useful and ornamental plants. He has still a small greenhouse at his residence on Centre avenue, in which are some rare plants. In 1858 Mr. Trotter married Isabella Parker, a native of Allegheny City. Her parents, William and Isabella (McCauley) Parker, came from Ireland, and engaged in farming at Verona. Mr. Trotter was one of the organizers of the U. P. Church here, and is a member of the Royal Arcanum. He has served as treasurer of the school board, member of the borough council and four years as street commissioner. Politically he is a republican. The six living children of this family all reside in Verona: Annie (Mrs. William Kennedy), Mary (wife of J. H. Dible), Sarah, Amy, William Featherstone and Velicia. Of these, the third child, died at the age of twenty-one.

D. R. McKee, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, was born in North Versailles, a son of David S. and Julia A. McKee, the latter a daughter of George Craig, who was born in Versailles township in 1821. David S. McKee was also a descendant of one of the old families of Allegheny county. They married Feb. 13, 1845, and located on the farm in North Versailles township. To them were born ten children: Matilda J. (now Mrs. McClintock, of South Versailles), David R., Mary E. (deceased), William A. (deceased), Joseph O. (a physician of note in McKeesport), James M., George T., Robert A. (deceased), John F. (deceased) and Annie M. Mr. McKee had been identified with the township in various official positions, and was collector for a number of years. He died in May, 1871, a member of the U. P. Church. Mrs. McKee is still living on the old homestead, also a member of the U. P. Church. The subject proper of this memoir is engaged as a farmer and dairymen, finding a market for his products at McKeesport.

John Story, postoffice Castle Shannon, was born June 7, 1829, in Greenock, Renfrewshire, Scotland, the son of John and Margaret (Lindsay) Story. The parents, who were natives of Edinburgh, Scotland, spelled the name Forrest, and the father was a glass cutter and an educated man. Our subject came to America in 1849; worked as a glass cutter and engraver in New York city and in Boston; was in business for himself seven years, and in 1867 came to Pittsburgh, where he followed his trade. He married, in Glasgow, in 1849, Helen, daughter of Moses and Minnie (Brown) Mitchell, and they have had six children, three of whom survive, viz.: Mrs. Elizabeth, Hurrell, Mrs. Margaret Miles and John W. Mr. Story is a very efficient workman; has followed his trade with considerable success, and has invented a number of useful articles. He and his wife are members of the Baptist Church.

When the village of Castle Shannon was laid out, Mr. Story bought the first two lots that were sold, and built the first house there. He is an A. F. & A. M., as well as a member of the United Order of Oddfellows.

A. G. Miller, farmer, postoffice Port Perry, a son of Col. W. L. and Jane T. Miller, was born in Fayette county, Pa., in 1836. Col. Miller was formerly one of the prominent men of Fayette county, an iron manufacturer, and received his title of colonel from the fact that he organized a company of soldiers during the war of 1812. He served as a delegate to the constitutional convention of 1838, and is said to have been the youngest member of that representative body. He was a gentleman of sterling worth and honesty in business relations. In 1837 he removed to what is now North Versailles township, this county, where he became owner of a large tract of land near what is now the town or village of Port Perry, and it was he who laid out Port Perry and made the village what it is. His purchase there consisted of a large tract of coal-land; he erected works, built railroads, but disposed of the coal early in life; was a contractor and builder, but devoted his last years to agriculture. The colonel was the father of nine children, four of whom are now living; George T., Mary P. (wife of William F. Knox, M. D., of McKeesport), Kate (deceased wife of Rev. John M. Hastings, of Westchester, Pa.), Phoebe A. (Mrs. Cooper, in McKeesport) and A. G. Col. Miller died in 1867, his wife in 1862.

Charles Bachman, clothier, McKeesport, is a native of Rhina, near Hesse-Cassel, Germany, where he was reared and educated. He came to America in 1881, when nineteen years of age, and located in Baltimore, Md., where he held the position of clerk in the leading clothing-stores of that city until 1885. He then engaged as traveling salesman for a prominent wholesale clothing-house of Cincinnati, Ohio, his field being Missouri, Arkansas and Kansas, in which he showed first-class ability, and with which house he was connected until Jan. 1, 1887. He then represented a prominent Baltimore firm in the same capacity, and in the same territory, for fourteen months. March 1, 1888, he located in McKeesport, and opened the Golden Eagle Clothing-house with a stock unequaled in Western Pennsylvania, and, though but recently established in the city, has already the reputation of being one of the leading merchants in his line in the city.

Robert Miller, blacksmith and liveryman, Tarentum, was born on Glade run, Butler county, Pa., in 1820, son of Silas and Elizabeth Miller, former of whom was a soldier in the war of 1812. They eventually came to Tarentum, where the parents died. Their children were Margaret, Abigail, Joseph, William, Silas and Robert. Our subject married, in 1849, Mary A., daughter of John Vance, of Tarentum, and engaged in business as blacksmith on the place now owned by him in Tarentum, and to which he has recently added a livery-stable. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Miller: John, who died when three years old, and Frank, who learned telegraphy, and at the time of his death, which occurred when he was twenty-seven years of age, was an operator. The parents are members of the R. P. Church.

James W. Moffitt, carpenter, Wilkinsburg, was born near Cootehill, County Cavan, Ireland, March 29, 1824. His father, Robert Moffitt, was a native of County Armagh, and his mother, Rebecca, a relative of her husband, of the same patronymic, was born in the same town-land as her son. The latter, reared on a farm, became a house-carpenter, and came to America in 1846. After living two years in Allegheny City, he moved to Philadelphia, and there remained till 1862. For over nineteen years he lived in one house in Allegheny. In the spring of 1886, with his sons, he built a house on the lot in Wilkinsburg purchased by William (the second), and since then the family have dwelt in one house, and two eldest sons are engaged in contracting and building. In June, 1883, Mr. Moffitt married Clarissa H. Taylor, a native of Allegheny, Pa., and a daughter of William and Jane Morton Taylor, who came from County Derry, Ireland, to Allegheny in 1833. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Moffitt are James, William, Emily, Mary, Clara and Samuel Renwick. The family attend the R. P. Church.

Daniel G. Donovan, shoe-merchant, McKeesport, was born at Latrobe, Pa., Sept. 6, 1859, a son of Michael and Sarah (Ryan) Donovan, natives of County Tipperary, Ireland, who came to America in 1850, and settled in Westmoreland county. Daniel G. was reared in Westmoreland county, and educated in the public schools and St. Vincent's College. From 1869 to 1874 he was employed in the rolling-mills of Jones & Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, and three years thereafter managed the farm owned by St. Xavier's Academy. In 1879 he came to McKeesport, and embarked in the shoe business, in which he has been very successful. He is a gentleman of sterling integrity, and is a wide-awake and enterprising citizen. He is a member of St. Peter's R. C. Church, and is president of Branch 26, C. M. B. A.; he is a democrat.

Jouxs N. Dersam, proprietor of hat and gents' furnishing-store, McKeesport, was born in Coal Valley, this county, Nov. 17, 1864, a son of William and Elizabeth (Egly) Dersam. His father, a native of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, settled in McKeesport in 1853, and was superintendent of Robert Blackburn's coalworks, in Coal Valley, sixteen years; he is now a resident of Pittsburgh. His children were William H., John N., Kate, George and Adam, all living but William H., who died June 16, 1881. John Egly, maternal grandfather of John N., and a native of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, settled in 1853 in Dravosburg, this county, where he was a coal-miner, and resided sixteen years. John N. was reared in McKeesport, was educated in the public schools of the city, and Iron City Business College, of Pittsburgh, and March 19, 1887, embarked in his present business in McKeesport. He married, Jan. 5, 1887, Kate, daughter of Louis and Elizabeth (Bangert) Nagle, of McKeesport, and they have one son, born Nov. 23, 1888. Mr. Dersam is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., P. O. S. of A., Order of Solon, Heptasophs, Electric M. & S. Club, and German Leiderkranz, and is a republican. He attends the service of the G. L. Church.

James McGlinchey, of McKee's Rocks, Pa., was born in Ireland in 1837, a son of Patrick and Hannah McGlinchey, and came to this country in 1839. He spent his first year in Massachusetts. Going to New York, he engaged on a vessel plying between New York and Richmond. He then engaged in a rolling-mill in Richmond, coming to Pittsburgh, March, 1858. He then went to St. Louis, Mo., where he remained till the war broke out. He enlisted in July, 1862, serving under Admiral Porter in the Mississippi squadron; after three years' service he was honorably discharged. Returning to Pittsburgh, he resumed work in the rolling-mill. In 1888 he married Elizabeth Clark, widow of John Clark. She had three children by her first husband: Mary, Elizabeth, and Elgie A. Mr. and Mrs. McGlinchey have had three children born to them—Robert E., Patrick T. and Isabella. Mr. and Mrs. McGlinchey own considerable property in Chartiers. The family belong to the Roman Catholic Church.

Nathaniel Montgomery, farmer, post-office Wilkinsburg, is descended from one of the early settlers of Allegheny county, Pa. His father, Nathaniel, came to McKeesport from Berks county, Pa., at an early day, and soon after took up a tract of land in what is now Patton township. Remaining there a short time, he moved to the place now owned by our subject, and settled on 160 acres of land, where he died. He married Elizabeth Young, a native of Ireland, and two sons and five daughters were born to them. Our subject, the youngest and only surviving member of the family, was educated at the common schools, and has followed farming. He married, in 1837, Mary McCully, daughter of Robert McCully, of this county, and six children, three living, were born to them: Eliza (Mrs. Johnson), Nancy (Mrs. Black) and Nathaniel. The last named married, in 1884, Mary T. Pitt, and one child born to them is now deceased. Mr. Montgomery is a highly respected citizen of Wilkins township, and has always been an industrious and upright man. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church; lic is a republican.

Charles Rischpeter, contractor and builder, McKeesport, was born in Wiehe, Prussia, April 29, 1831, a son of Christian and Mary (Seitenfaden) Rischpeter. He was reared and educated in his native town, and served an apprenticeship of three years at the carpenter's trade, after which he worked as a journeyman in his native country until 1856. He then immigrated to America, settled in Pittsburgh, and worked as journeyman in that city and Allegheny up to 1873, when he settled in McKeesport. Here he has since resided, and has been successful in business as a carpenter, contractor and builder. He married, in 1859, Charlotte, daughter of Gottlieb and Dorothea (Koch) Shenberger, of Germany, and they have three children living: Mary (Mrs. Adolph Hofman), Lizzie and Charley. Mr. Rischpeter is a member of the G. E. P. Church, and of the I. O. O. F.; he is a republican.

Matthew Hunter, mechanic, Etna, was born in March, 1837, in the old "blue house" in Augusta county, Va. He was the son of James Hunter. He was left an orphan at the age of nine years, and when fifteen he entered the rolling-mill, where he worked twelve years; then followed gardening for a period of eight years, when he returned to the mills, and is now a heater with Porter, Delworth & Co., South Side, Pittsburgh. Mr. Hunter here married Sarah, daughter of John Still, and they have eight children: Mary E., William B., Emma, Thomas S., Sadie E., Matthew H., Samuel J. and Bessie. Mr. and Mrs. Hunter are members of the Baptist Church. He is a republican, and has been councilman; he is a member of the I. O. O. F.

Charles Schmelz, butcher, Hope Church, was born March 6, 1847, in Elbersdorf, Bavaria, Germany, the son of Andrew Schmelz. He was educated in his native home, where he learned the butcher's and baker's trades, and, coming to America in 1866, worked at the baker's trade two years in Pittsburgh. He then removed to Six-Mile Ferry, where he engaged in the butcher business for himself (having previously been with C. Ross at that place), and has conducted the business successfully since 1870. He was married here to Caroline, daughter of Christian Abbott, and they have seven children: August, Emma, Edward, Albert, George, Earnest and Carrie. Mr. and Mrs. Schmelz are members of the G. P. Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., 486, South Side, and is a republican.

Andrew Walker, gardener, post-office Mansfield Valley, a son of John and Jane Walker, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1834, and came to this country in 1855. His occupation has been that of gardener and florist, and he had charge of Chartiers cemetery for twelve years. His parents came to this country in 1879, his father dying a few months after his arrival, at the age of sixty-six years. His mother is still living, hale and hearty, at the age of eighty-three years. They were parents of seven children: Sarah (widow of Alexander Lanaghan), Andrew, Mary Jane (wife of Samuel Calvin), Alexander, David, Annie (wife of William Moore) and Robert, all living in this county. Andrew Walker was married in 1857, in St. Jean's, Ireland, to Margaret (sister of James and Easter McClean, of County Antrim, Ireland. Mr. Walker has been in Chartiers township since 1862. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and the L. O. A.

Samuel Thomas Caves, blacksmith, Verona, was born in Harrison county, Ohio, May 28, 1839, and is the son of Joseph C. and Mary (Lyon) Caves, and grandson of Charles Wesley Caves, who came from England and settled on a farm near Deererville, Ohio. Samuel Caves was reared on a farm, and received a limited education, but, being an attentive reader, has gathered a great store of general information. When thirteen years old he was employed as water-boy on a construction-train on the Pan Handle railroad, and worked his way up till he became master of the blacksmith's shop. He has been in the railroad shops at Dennison, Ohio, and came to the Allegheny Valley, at Verona. Since June of the same year he has been employed at the Verona Tool-works, where he has a remunerative contract. He is a member of St. Thomas' P. E. Church, a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P., R. A., S. V., Jr. O. U. A. M., and in politics a republican. Mr. Caves believes in the protection of American labor, and his lecture, "Views of Life from a Workingman's Standpoint," is said to be very interesting. In 1887 he built a house costing $2,000, in the Second ward of Verona. In 1876 he married Martha Meredith, who was born in this county, of Welsh parents. They have three children: Henry Adams, Mary and John Merle.

HENRY MCLUSKEY, a native of Ireland, settled in Washington county, Pa., and afterward took up government land in Ohio. John, a son born to this pioneer, in 1797, and a prominent farmer, married Elizabeth Hall, by whom he had seven sons and one daughter, five of whom are now living. In 1851 John McCluskey was elected to the Pennsylvania legislature, and re-elected in 1852. He was a public-spirited citizen, and took an active part in the interests of the township. Henry was his third son, born in 1828, on the property where he now resides, and owns, and where he has always lived. At the death of his father, by buying the heirs out, he became possessor of 170 acres of valuable farm-land, one hundred of which his mother inherited from her father. Henry McCluskey was educated at the common schools, and in 1871 married Miss Ann Eilza, daughter of Joseph Stewart. They have no children. He is a republican. (Postoffice, Remington.)

JOHN INGRAM, watchmaker, was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, in 1854, a son of Martin and Nancy (Daugherty) Ingram, who removed to Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1849. Here Martin Ingram died in 1854. He left two surviving children: Sarah A., now Mrs. Davis, of Tarentum; and John, the subject of this sketch, who was born in 1872 and at his father's death and at an early age assumed a responsible place in the household. Besides becoming a skillful watchmaker, for which he early evinced a peculiar aptitude, as well as considerable inventive faculty, in youth he also occasionally taught school, and with success, too, as evidenced by a No. 1 county teacher's certificate; also, in 1886, he graduated from Duff's Mercantile College, at Pittsburgh. In 1873, he, with his mother and sister, removed to Tarentum, where he established himself as watchmaker and jeweler, which business he conducted very successfully until the conflagration occurred in Tarentum in 1885, since when he has erected a block of more pretentious size and appearance, on the site of his building destroyed at that time, but owing to impaired health he has not actively engaged business since. Mr. Ingram, in 1875, married E. J., a daughter of Robert Lardin, of Tarentum, and two children have been born to them, of whom Alice B. alone survives.

CHARLES ZUMPF, manufacturer, Sharpsburg, was born in Minden, Prussia, in 1847, the sixth child of August and Amelia (Blum) Zumpft, the former by occupation a railroad purchasing-agent in Germany. Charles was educated in his native land, and is a graduate of the gymnasium school of Prussia. In 1866 he immigrated to America, and located in Sharpsburg, where from 1866 to 1873 he was employed in the oil business. In 1873 he commenced his present business, manufacturing varnishes, japans, etc., in partnership with his brother. He married Mary, daughter of James Kay, a resident of Sharpsburg, and six children were born to them, three of whom are living: Mamie, Bessie and Charlie. Mr. Zumpft is a Freemason, and is a republican.

ALBERT ZUMPF, manufacturer, Sharpsburg, was born in Prussia, in 1841, the third child of August and Amelia (Blum) Zumpft. He was educated in the high schools of Prussia, came to America in 1865, and for ten years afterward was superintendent in oil-works. In 1874 he and his brother established a partnership for the manufacture of oils, varnishes, japans, etc., which partnership lasted seven years, at the expiration of which time Mr. Zumpft continued the business for himself, which he has since followed. He married, in 1879, Miss Dallmyer, who bore him one child, Minnie (now deceased). Mr. Zumpft has been successful in the manufacturing business. He is a Freemason, and is a republican.

SAMUEL MEYER, farmer, postoffice Sharpsburg, a well-to-do citizen of O'Hara township, was born in Switzerland in 1841, a son of Christian Meyer, who came to America with his wife and family in 1855, and soon after located in Sharpsburg, Allegheny county, Pa. Samuel received his education partly in Switzerland and partly in Sharpsburg, and has followed farming and gardening. He married, in 1867, Anna Stamm, and to them have been born six children. Mr. Meyer purchased his present farm of 128 acres in 1880. He has always taken an active part in public affairs, and for seven years was school director in his township, and also served on the tri-annual assessment of his township. He is a member of the Reformed Church, and is a republican.

GEORGE J. RIEGNER, grocer, McKeesport, was born in Pittsburgh, Oct. 2, 1861, a son of Josaph and Anna M. (Mangis) Riegner, both natives of Pittsburgh. His paternal grandfather, Barney Riegner, a native of France, and maternal grandfather, Frank Mangis, a native of Germany, were among the pioneers of Pittsburgh. George J. Riegner was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, and located in McKeesport, where he held the position of clerk in a grocery seven years. April 1, 1888, he embarked in business for himself, opened one of the finest groceries in Western Pennsylvania, and already has a large and successful business, which is daily increasing. He is an enterprising and pushing young business-man; is a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and C. M. B. A.; he is a democrat.

SAML. PERKINS KUHN, farmer, postoffice New Texas, was born in 1899 in the stone house where he now resides, a son of Harvy Michael and Margaret (Stottler) Kuhn, who were born in Plum township in 1812 and May 17, 1817, respectively. His father was a farmer, a member of the Presbyterian Church, and died in June, 1869. His mother was a member of the Presbyterian Church. His grandfather, Samuel, was a native of Pennsylvania, and served in the war of 1812. He bought four farms here about 1820, and in 1830 moved to near Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Kuhn received his schooling here, and at the death of his father began to operate the farm for himself. He married, in 1857, Anna E. Geisler, formerly of East End, Pittsburgh, a daughter of David Geisler, who died in 1884.

Two sons bless this union, Elmer P. and David Homer. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Kuhn is a Republican and was at one time deputy sheriff of the county.

ZEPHANIAH GLUNT, harness-maker, Turtle Creek, was born near Murrysville, Westmoreland county, Nov. 22, 1846, a grandson of Jacob Glunt, who was of German descent and reared in the eastern part of the state. Henry Glunt, son of Jacob, lived in Westmoreland county, and in Patton township followed farming. He died near Monroeville, Dec. 11, 1886, aged seventy-three. His widow, Catherine (Berkholder) Glunt, is still living in Westmoreland county. Henry Glunt was a democrat and a Presbyterian. His son, Zephaniah, was reared on a farm, and received a common-school education. When four years old he was permanently affected by scarlet fever, and has been compelled to use a crutch ever since. He taught school for a time, learned his present trade in 1851, and established a shop in Turtle Creek, where he is doing a satisfactory business. He is a member of the Reformed Church, in politics a prohibitionist. Mr. Glunt is unmarried.

WILLIAM MITCHELL, wagon-maker, Turtle Creek, was born in County Donegal, Ireland, May 1, 1851. His parents, William and Elizabeth (Elliott) Mitchell, now reside in Penn township, Allegheny county. The father was a laborer, employed at sixpence a day and board for twenty-three years by one farmer. On this meager pittance he reared a family of eight children, of whom William is the youngest. When the latter was twelve years old the family came to America and settled in this county, where he attended school for some time. When seventeen years old he began his trade in Pittsburgh, and on the day he was twenty years old opened a shop in Turtle Creek. By industry and prudence he has earned a nice property, including his shop and five tenement-houses, beside his residence. He is an active worker in the U. P. Church, having served six years as treasurer and four years as superintendent of Sabbath-school. He is a republican, although sympathizing strongly with the prohibition movement, and is now serving as tax-collector. In 1873 he married Mary Ann, daughter of Henry and Mary Lane, of Irish descent. Their children, in order of birth, are: Lenora May, Harry, William John, Frank Howard and Mary Elizabeth.

JOHN PAHLMANN, farmer, postoffice Negley, was born in Rosenheil, Brandenburg, Germany, Jan. 21, 1827, a son of John and Katrine Pahlmann, natives of Leppolt, Biern. He was reared on a farm and has always engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1850 he married Barbara Purncker, and with one child came to America in 1853. For four years he was employed as laborer in Pittsburgh, beginning at three dollars per week. Since 1856 he has been a resident of Penn township, and for one year he was employed on the farm which he now owns, at thirty-three cents per day and board; the second year he had forty cents. After the third year he rented a farm, and in 1877 bought his home. He has over 150 acres, which have been earned by hard labor. When he landed in Pittsburgh he had $2.50. Mr. Pahlmann is a republican, and has served as supervisor. The family is connected with the G. L. Church, and includes ten children: John, Christopher, Margaret (Stotler), Emma, Ellen, Albert, Andrew, Rudolph, Leudwig and Mary.

WILLIAM ALDERSON, farmer, postoffice Mt. Lebanon, was born at Mt. Washington, Pa., in 1837, a son of Thomas Alderson, who came from Yorkshire, England, to America about 1831. He married Jane Parker, who bore him eleven children, seven of whom are living, William being the eldest son. Thomas was a minister, an avocation he followed in America for a number of years. Later in life he was engaged in farming and hotel-keeping for thirty years on his present place, and on the whole had a successful business career. William Alderson has been a farmer all his life, and for the past thirty years has resided on his present place. He was married, in 1876, to Annie Vero, daughter of Joseph and Phebe E. Vero, and seven children (six of whom are living) were born to them: James William, Jane Lizzie, Margaret F., Thomas P., Harry Lawrence, Annie (deceased) and Edith Mabel. Mr. Alderson is a democrat, has held many positions of trust in Scott township, and has served as school director for several years, giving entire satisfaction.

JOHN STEINHILBER, hotel-keeper, McKeesport, was born in Württemberg, Germany, Jan. 10, 1828, a son of George and Anna Steinhilber. He came to America in 1852, and located at Port Perry, this county, where he worked as a coal-miner eleven years. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. K, 74th P. V., and served until July 3, 1865, when he was honorably discharged. After his return he again worked in a coal-mine, and in 1865 bought a property in Millin township, where he conducted a hotel until 1869; then purchased a plat of ground in Allegheny City, on which he erected a sheepskin-tannery, which he conducted six years. In 1875 he settled in McKeesport and embarked in the hotel business, in which he has since continued, and erected in 1896 the fine brick building he now occupies. In 1837 he married Elizabeth Körzdöeer, and has one son living, George. Mr. Steinhiber is a director of the Enterprise Building and Loan Association No. 2. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and G. A. R.; he is a republican.

William J. Sharples, grocer, McKeesport, was born in Bolton, England, and was educated at Bolton Church Institute. In early life he was a leather-dresser. He located in McKeesport in 1882, and purchased a half interest in the grocery of J. B. Shale, which reliable firm has since continued in business, under the firm name of Shale & Sharples, and is among the most prominent firms in that line of business in the city. Mr. Sharples' familiarity with every branch of the retail grocery business has secured for him the president's chair of the McKeesport Grocers' association, which position he has held since its organization, three years ago. He was recently elected president of the McKeesport Board of Trade.

Thomas Evans, Pittsburgh, a son of John and Jane Evans, was born in Birmingham, this county, in 1846. His occupation through life has been making iron, and he now holds the position of heater in Painter & Son's mill. He married, Dec. 26, 1873, Will Emma Robson, and by her has had two children: Stella (deceased) and Charles Oscar. Mr. Evans is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the Amalgamated Association and United Workmen, and the Heptasophs. Politically he is a republican. As a result of his industry and economy he owns a good property in the thirty-fifth ward, Pittsburgh, and three acres of valuable land in Chartiers township. Mrs. Evans' father was born in Staffordshire, England, and when one year old was brought to this country by his parents, who first located in New York, but soon came to Birmingham, this county, where the father followed the occupation of glass-blower. He married, in 1849, Keziah Mercer, of Westchester county, Pa., and by her had six children: Will Emma, Charles O. (deceased), Charles M. (deceased), Frank, Harry A. and William C. The parents are both living in this county, and the father was a soldier in the civil war. He is a member of the Amalgamated Association, and he and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

George W. Perkins, banker, Pittsburgh, a son of William and Catherine Perkins, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1841. His grandfather, Thomas Perkins, came from Wilmington, Del., in 1803, and settled in Pittsburgh, where he opened the first jewelry-store. He was one of the founders of the Bank of Pittsburgh, and one of the most prominent men of the city as early as 1810. He purchased considerable land in what is now Charleroi township, to which, after the big fire in 1845, he moved; here he resided until his death, in 1855, when he was seventy-three years old. He had been twice married; first to a Miss Barclay, by whom he had four children—two sons, William and Thomas, Jr., and two daughters, Eliza (who became the wife of Abraham Nicholson, of Pittsburgh), and Harriet (who became the wife of Owen Flanagan); and next to a Miss Fitzgerald, who died in 1853, by whom he had three sons and one daughter, viz.: James, Charles Quigley, David Jennings and Hannah Kitts (now Mrs. Addison Reno). William Perkins was born in Pittsburgh, in the year 1818, was reared to the jewelry and watchmaking trade, and subsequently became a partner in the business with his father. He married Catherine, daughter of George and Margaret Sorguis, of Waynesburg, Ohio, and their children were Mary (deceased), Thomas (taken prisoner and died in Salisbury prison, Dec. 1, 1864), George W., Harriet (wife of James A. Moore), Sarah, William, Catherine (wife of J. M. Mooney) and Henry C. William Perkins held many positions of trust in this county, among them that of county commissioner, as did also his father, Thomas Perkins, the same office in 1839; and though not regularly enlisted in the army during the civil war, was very active in his support of the Union forces, and was for some time one of Gov. Curtin's aids-de-camp. His last service was as mail-agent on the Ft. W. & C. R. R., and while still engaged in that service, in 1869, he was accidentally killed while out hunting at Lakeville, Ohio, at the age of forty-nine years.

George W. Perkins has been twice married; first in January, 1866, to Elizabeth, daughter of Robert and Susan Gillespie, and by this union there were six children. The living are Gracie Lincoln, Charles Norman and Irene. Their mother died in 1877, and Mr. Perkins next married, in 1882, Isabella M., daughter of Arthur and Margaret Hill. Their children are Lewis Blashford, George Allen and Mary Blashford. Mr. Perkins was a sergeant in an independent company of state militia when the civil war broke out, and in February, 1861, they tendered their services to the government, were accepted, and assigned to the 18th Pennsylvania regiment, three-months service. In 1862 he was appointed superintendent of the United States army telegraphic construction corps, but resigned in 1864 and accepted a position in the postoffice at Pittsburgh as stamp-clerk, under Postmaster Von Bonnhorst. Some eight months after, he took a position with the P. R. R. Co. as assistant chief clerk in the freight department. He also had an interest in the confectionery firm of Hill & Perkins, on Wood street, Pittsburgh, and is at present secretary of the Neuchatel Asphalt company, Pittsburgh. Mr. Perkins is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Adam Wagener, farmer and dairyman, postoffice Shaler, Ambridge, a native of Prussia, Germany, born in 1838. His father, Lawrence Wagener, who was a farmer in Germany, married Eliza Ludwick, of the same country, and they became the parents of two sons, of whom Adam is the elder. The latter remained with his father until 1850, at which time he immigrated to America, landing in Baltimore, Md., and later coming to Pittsburgh. He has been engaged in farming and the dairy business ever since coming to this county, and has lived in Shaler, Collins, Baldwin and O’Hara townships. In 1884 he purchased his present farm of 117 acres in O’Hara township, where he is now living. He also owns fifty-six acres in Baldwin township, two miles from Pittsburgh, on the Brownsville pike. He married, in Collins township, in 1855, Eliza Wilhelm, and nine children bless their union, viz.: Annie Margret, Mary Elizabeth, Frederick Henry, Elizabeth, Katie, Emma Louisa, Minnie Dortha Elizabeth, Louisa Matilda and Adam John, of whom three daughters and one son are married and one daughter is deceased. Mr. Wagener and family are members of St. John’s G. L. Church of Sharpsburg; he is a republican.

J. Stephen Ryan, of the firm of Burke & Ryan, plumbers, McKeensport, was born in that city May 7, 1867, a son of James F. and Mary (McCloskey) Ryan. He was reared and educated in his native city, where he embarked in business as a plumber and gas-fitter, Jan. 1, 1888, under the firm name of Burke & Ryan. They have the leading establishment of the kind in the city, and are doing a large and successful business.

Peter W. Boll, steamboat captain, post-office Turtle Creek, was born at Port Perry, May 21, 1854. His grandfather, Peter Boll, a native of Pennsylvania, was one of the early settlers in Franklin township, Allegheny county. He was a farmer, and died in 1881, in his eighty-ninth year. Philip, son of Peter Boll, was a steamboat engineer on the Ohio, and made his home at Port Perry. His wife, Keziah Carvey, was born in Allegheny county, and is now the mother of four sons, three of whom have been steamboat engineers. One has left the river and is now employed at the steelworks at Braddock. The fourth, whose name heads this sketch, was reared at Port Perry, went on the river when thirteen years old, and gradually worked his way up to his present position, commander of the steamboat Lioness. For ten years he was pilot on the Ohio, and has spent the last three years on the lower Mississippi. In 1881 he married Emma Wilkins, of Wilkins township, and settled at Turtle Creek in 1896, where he purchased a handsome home. Mrs. Boll’s great-grandfather, William Wilkins, was a captain in the revolutionary army, and one of the first settlers in Sewickley, this county. His son, James, was the father of William, father of Mrs. Boll. His mother, Rebecca McPherson, was born of Scotch parents. Mr. and Mrs. Boll have one son, William Wilkins, and one daughter, Enid. They are connected with the U. P. Church, at Turtle Creek.

William McClay Dinsmore, farmer, post-office Bridgeville, was born in Washington county, Pa., in 1843, a son of Robert and Margaret (McClay) Dinsmore. In 1785 a land patent was granted by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania to one James Dinsmore, a Scotch-Irishman. This land, called “land of Cannou,” contained about 292 acres, and was situated on Miller’s run, then in Washington county, now in South Fayette township, this county. This early pioneer was a farmer, and married a daughter of Squire Walker, who was the original settler of that family in this county. James, Jr., was born on this tract of land, and when twelve years of age moved with his people to Northwestern Pennsylvania. He married Hettie Hambleton, and to them were born five sons and four daughters. Robert, the eldest of this family, was born in 1806, and, coming to South Fayette township, purchased the land which was formerly owned by his grandfather, and there resided until his death, in 1880. He married Margaret McClay, of Washington county, and two sons and one daughter blessed their union. William McClay Dinsmore received his education at the public schools, and followed farming; he now owns 390 acres of land, all of which is included in the original purchase made by his great-grandfather, James, in 1785. Mr. Dinsmore was married, in 1884, to a daughter of Rev. Slater, of Washington county, and two children, William S. C. and Margaret, have been born to them. Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore are members of the Reformed Presbyterian, or Coventer, Church.

Joseph McCutcheon, painter, Verona, was born in Burrell township, Westmoreland county, July 11, 1847, and is the son of John Elder and Elizabeth (Anderson) McCutcheon, of the same county. His grandfather, Alexander McCutcheon, was also born in that county, and was an elder in Poke Run Presbyterian Church. James, the father, and Samuel, grandfather of Alexander, were born in Franklin county, of Scotch-Irish ancestry. James was a justice of the peace, and a Free-mason. He was a distiller, and purchased a large tract of land near McCutcheon’s mills, which is now in the possession of his descendants. For one tract of two hundred acres he paid three barrels of whisky, which were packed to east of the mountains on horseback. At one time he was driven by an Indian raid to seek refuge in the blockhouse at Murrysville, a distance of seven miles, and with the aid of his wife carried a wounded woman; the small children were placed on a feather bed on a horse, and Alexander, then seven years old, walked. Elder McCutcheon was for a time almost the only whig in his locality, and was almost ostracised for sentiments that afterward were adopted by a majority in the county. He was killed by a runaway team in 1856, at the age of thirty-seven. His widow died in 1872, in her fifty-second year. A daughter of theirs brought up a Presbyterian, and his wife a Coventer, and they both finally joined the U. P. Church. Joseph remained on the home farm until sixteen years of age, when he went to Pittsburgh and learned the painter's trade, eventually engaging in business there. The panik of 1873 took away his possessions, and he returned to his native county. In 1880 he established a paint and wall-paper store at Verona, and has built up a flourishing business. He is a republican; a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and Heptasohs. In 1867 he married Mary Ewing, who was born in Pittsburgh, daughter of James and Mary (Eiler) Ewing, of Irish and German descent. James Ewing and his father were born near Greensburg. Mr. McCutch- eon's family now includes ten children, as follows: Carrie B., James Ewing, William Elder, May Elizabeth, Jennie Josephine, Mary Edna and Joseph Pollock (twins), Paul Anderson, George Bruce and Lois Minerva.

Samuel Ream, coppersmith, Verona, was born at Pittsburgh, July 1, 1830, and is the son of Samuel Ream, of Swiss birth. The father was born about 1800, was a machinist and came to America about 1834, where he passed the remainder of his life, dying in 1880. He married, in the old post-office on Third avenue, Christina Habilitzel, a native of Germany, who died in 1865, aged fifty-eight years. Mr. Ream served nearly a year in the 74th regiment P. V. during the civil war. Samuel, Jr., was educated at the West Ward school, and when sixteen years old began work in a machine-shop. In 1854 he took up railroad coppersmithing in the Pt. W. R. shops, and has followed it since. Ten years later he was engaged as foreman of a tinshop of the A. V. R. R., and moved to Verona in 1876. Mr. Ream married Kate Torrence, who died five years later; no children survive her. His second wife is Mary Hester, widow of Harrison Trent, and daughter of Shadrach Phillips, of Welsh descent. Nancy and Austin, children of Mr. Trent, have adopted the name of Ream. Mr. Ream's children are Samuel Bosworth, Alice Douglas, Howard Oliver and Carrie Le Morse. In April, 1861, Mr. Ream enlisted in the 12th regiment, three-months men, and re-enlisted for three years in the 102d P. V. He was in the Army of the Potomac at the battles of Fair Oaks, Pines and Malvern Hill, and was discharged for disability in December, 1862. For twenty years he was a member of the Pittsburgh fire department, in which his brother, Frederick, was killed on the way to a fire on Third avenue in 1863. Samuel is the eldest of three sons; George, the youngest, died when ten years old. There are three of his sisters living: Caroline (Fair- field), Elizabeth (Duff) and Ella (Sweeney), residing respectively, in Allegheny City, Duluth, and St. Louis. Mr. Ream is a republic an, and served as school director three years. He and his family are members of the M. E. Church. He is a member of the G. A. R. and K. of M. Louis Held, retired, McKeesport, was born in Reichelsheim, Odenwald, Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, Oct. 28, 1836, and is a son of Fritz and Kate Held. He was reared and educated in his native land, where he learned the barber's trade. In 1852 he came to America, soon afterward located in Pitts- burg, and there and in Allegheny worked at his trade as a journeyman four years, and afterward in various parts of Pennsylvania up to 1858. He then located in McKeesport, and opened a shop, which he conducted two years; he then went back to Pittsburgh, and engaged in business two years; returned to McKeesport in 1863, and again opened a barber-shop, which he successfully conducted up to July, 1887, when he retired. In 1857 he married Kate Bangert, a native of Hesse- Darmstadt, by whom he had four children: Kate (Mrs. William Saeger), Emma (deceased), Anna and Fred. Mr. Held has had a successful business career, and has accumulated a competency by his industry and thrift, and is the owner of ten houses in Mc- Keesport, besides other property. He is a charter member, stockholder and director of the McKeesport Electric Light company, is a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of P., and is a republican. He is a member of the Lutheran Church.

James Pollock Churchfield, conductor, postoffice Turtle Creek, is a son of John R. and Margaret Ann (Pollock) Churchfield, of Welsh descent, and was born in New Bed- ford, Pa., March 24, 1836. His mother died when he was small, and he and his younger brother, William J., were brought up by their grandfather, John Churchfield. Their father was a carpenter and enlisted in 1861, in Co. B, 100th P. V., serving as a drummer through the war in the Army of the Potomac. After the war he dwelt in North Versailles, but his constitution had been broken by military service, and he died in 1888, in his sixtieth year. When about thirteen years old James began to earn his living, working at farm labor, and later spent three years with his father learning his trade. Since 1880 he has been employed by the railroad company most of the time as conductor, and is now doing good work for the P. R. R. Co. He is a member of the Conductors' Brother- hood, and a democrat, and he and wife are associated with the M. E. Church. Mr. Church- field married, Nov. 16, 1878, Mary M. Roberts, and they have three children living: John, Howard and Katy; Harry and Myrle, the eldest, died in infancy.

William C. McMillen, farmer, postoffice Woodville, was born in this county in 1842. Thomas McMillen, who came from Ireland to America about 1809, was twice married, his second wife being Mrs. Porter, by whom he had four children. He was a farmer and purchased seventy-five acres of land in Upper St. Clair township, where he remained until his death. William, a son of Thomas by his first wife, was born in 1811 at Perrysville. He was also a farmer, and purchased a tract of land of about seventy-five acres. He mar- ried Catherine Porter, a daughter of his step- mother, and by her had twelve children, seven of whom are living. This wife died at the age of forty-five years, and Mr. McMillen next married Mrs. Stephens, who bore him eight children. He died in 1887, aged seventy-six years, the father of twenty children. William C., the subject of this sketch, was the eldest son born to his father's first marriage. He was reared on a farm, and with the exception of three years has always followed agricultural pursuits. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Co. B, 155th Pennsylvania regiment, and served three years. He was at the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and Fredericksburg. He was married, in 1863, to Miss Mary, daughter of G. Newman, of this county, and nine children were born to them six now living: Alice May (a schoolteacher), Rosa Ella, Hudson, William H., Franklin and Walter S. Mr. McMillen purchased, in 1883, his present farm, containing ninety-eight acres. He has been a hard-working and industrious farmer, and has served his township officially. He is a member of the M. E. Church, and is a democrat.

FRANK BECKER, proprietor of the White House hotel and restaurant, McKeesport, was born in Versailles township, Allegheny county, Pa., Dec. 26, 1859. He is a son of Christopher Becker and Mary A. Richart, natives of Mainz, Germany. They settled in this country in 1837, in Versailles township, where he engaged in farming, and in 1868 they removed to McKeesport and purchased the property now occupied by Frank Becker (our subject), which the father conducted as a hotel until his death, in 1881. They raised a family of eight children: John (deceased), Lizzie, Frank, William J., Annie, Christopher L., Katie (deceased) and George C. Our subject has resided in McKeesport since he was nine years of age, and since 1881 has been engaged in his present business. March 2, 1886, he married Lizzie, daughter of Tems Beiter and Treso Witt, of Irwin, Pa. He is a member of the R. C. Church and St. Mary's Beneficial society; he is a democrat.

WILLIAM V. REEL, farmer, postoffice West View, was born Feb. 1, 1851, in Allegheny county, Pa. His father, David Reel, was born on the old homestead, Jan. 22, 1788. William V. was educated in his native county, where he is a farmer and gardener, owning 110 acres of the original Reel tract. He has been twice married, first to Elizabeth Spence, who died young, the mother of one child—Wiley G. His present wife, Elizabeth, is a daughter of Andrew Jackman, an old settler, and they have five children: John J., Mary E., Isabel E., Myrtle E. and Matilda J. Mr. Reel is a trustee of the M. E. Church, of which his family are members, as were also his parents.

JOHN WERNER, brewer, West Elizabeth, son of Albert and Sarah Werner, was born at Würtemberg, Germany, in 1842, and in 1857 he came to Pittsburgh. In 1861 he enlisted in Co. F, 6th U. S. C., and was captured near Georgetown, in the fight of July 11, and was confined in Libby and Belle Isle prisons until three months later, when he was paroled. In 1864 he was mustered out of the service, returned to Pittsburgh, and in the fall of 1865 married Anna Maria, daughter of Joshua Vogel, of West Newton, Westmoreland county, Pa. Their children are Maggie, Willie, John, Joshua and Annie. Mr. Werner was at one time engaged in mining coal, later as a mine boss, and in 1871 came to Jefferson township, where he purchased and rebuilt the brewery he now owns, which has a capacity of forty barrels per day, and where he is at present engaged in business. By not getting license under the Brooks law, in the spring of 1888 his property was almost all confiscated by the license court of Allegheny county.

FREDERICK HEIM, Sr., farmer, postoffice Perrysville, was born April 28, 1836, in Elpersheim, Württemberg, Germany, the son of George and Christine (Freidelin) Heim, former of whom is yet living at the age of ninety-two years. Their children are Louis, John, Johanna, Peter, Frederick and Michael. Frederick came to America at the age of fifteen years, worked on a farm, then rented one, and subsequently purchased ninety acres, where he now resides, engaged in farming and gardening. He also keeps a dairy. He married Sophia Simon, a native of Germany, and ten children have been born to them: Christine, Sophia, Anna, Frederick, John, Henry, Minna, Caroline, Christina and Willie. Mr. and Mrs. Heim are members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, at Perrysville, which he has been trustee of, was the first charter member, and was instrumental in building up.

ANDREW KIDD, restaurateur, Turtle Creek, was born in Dunfermline, Scotland, in 1836, a son of Hugh and Margaret (Christ) Kidd, who are now deceased, and all his people were seafarers. When eight years old Andrew went into the Elgin coal-mines, and has followed mining ever since. In 1857 he married Isabella Bowman, and their first child, Agnes, died in Scotland, at the age of three years. They have three daughters living, all married and residing at Turtle Creek, viz.: Margaret, wife of Joseph Roberts; Isabella, wife of James Peterson, and Mary, wife of August Krop. In 1864 Mr. Kidd came to America, and, after residing eight years at McKeesport, settled at Turtle Creek. For the past five years he has kept a restaurant on Broadway, which is managed by his wife. They began in the new world with only their health and hopes, and now have a comfortable property at Newtown. Mr. Kidd is an active member of the M. E. Church, and has led the choir for thirteen years. He was the first to vote the prohibition ticket in his township, and now has many supporters; he was formerly a republican.

PHILIP GOEDDEL, farmer, postoffice Castle Shannon, was born April 4, 1823, in Querbach, Rhein Phaltz, Bavaria, Germany, and came to this country in 1867. He was connected at Drums (Drum) Goeddel, both of whom died in Germany. Philip came to America in 1846, and, after working four years in this county, revisited his native land, returning to America in the following year. He married Elizabeth Drum, a native of the same village in Germany, and an old schoolmate of his. They had six children, four of whom are yet living: Caroline, wife of Fred Sanders; Charles, who is married to Catharine Abbott; Matilda, wife of Gottlieb Kinnelly, and Henry, Mr. Goeddel has been a successful farmer, and built the Castle Shannon hotel and also a store. He and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and A. F. & A. M., and is a republican.

Joseph C. Partridge, farmer, postoffice North Star, is a grandson of Thomas Partridge, a native of Maryland. Thomas married Almira Walker, of this county, who bore him five children. He was a farmer and purchased two hundred acres of land, a part of which is now owned by our subject. Joseph, the eldest son of Thomas, born in 1807, married Mary, daughter of George Morrison, of Washington county, Pa., and became the father of seven children, all of whom are living: Thomas (in Iowa), Mary, Anna, Rachel and Joseph C., William and Sarah. Joseph, at the death of his father, came into possession of the farm, which he owned at the time of his death. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and are democrats.

Samuel Briggs, McKeensport, brickmason and inspector threatening department Duquesne Tube-wrks, is a native of Staffordshire, near Birmingham, England, where he was reared and educated, and learned the brickmason's trade. In the spring of 1871 he came to America and located in Chicago, where he remained six months. He then went to Joliet, Ill., and here he laid the first brick for the furnace of the Joliet Steelworks. In 1873 he came to Braddock, this county, where he resided until 1876, when he removed to McKeensport, where he has since resided and worked at his trade, off and on. He was foreman of the furnace department National Tube-works company eight years; was one of the organizers of the Duquesne Tube-wrks company in 1887, of which he is a director and also inspector of the threatening department. He is a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, of which he was vestryman several years; is a F. & A. M., a member of the K. of H., of which he was trustee six years, and St. George's society, of which he was treasurer six years; he is a republican.

Robert M. Curry, farmer, postoffice Gill Hall, a son of Ebenezer D. and Jane (McGowen) Curry, was born at Coal Valley, Jefferson township, in 1853. His grandparents, Robert and Nancy, were both natives of Maryland, and located on Lick run, in Jefferson township, but soon after removed to Coal Valley, where they both died. Robert in 1849, and Nancy about 1854. Ebenezer D. was born on Lick run, Feb. 5, 1814, and Jane, his wife, daughter of John McGowen, was born at Coal Valley. After their marriage they remained in Coal Valley until 1848, when Ebenezer purchased a farm at Gill Hall and removed to it. Their children were William R. M., Lemuel, Ebenezer B., Joseph and Elizabeth J. Anna B. is now Mrs. George Sickman. Robert M., in 1874, married Nannie J., daughter of William Duff, of Jefferson township, and they have two children, Alvin E. and Cora B. Mr. and Mrs. Curry are members of the U. P. Church.

Jacob Miller, dairyman, postoffice Hope Church, was born April 8, 1841, in Allegheny county, Pa. His parents, Jacob and Catharine (Bender) Miller, natives of Württemberg, Germany, resided a short time in Maryland, and then came to this country, where they died. Our subject married here Christine Fulmer, a native of Germany, and who has largely promoted her husband's prosperity. Seven children bless this union, viz.: Mrs. Emma Wilds, Jacob, Elizabeth, Ida, Harry, John and Christine. Mr. Miller mined twelve years, and in April, 1881, came to Mifflin township, where he now owns one hundred acres, on which he keeps a large dairy, and supplies Homestead with excellent milk. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and R. A., and is a republican.

Smith W. Hill, druggist, postoffice Hope Church, was born Aug. 22, 1837, in Preston county, W. Va., the son of James and Susan (Mau) Hill, old pioneers of that county. Smith W. was educated in West Virginia and at Monongahela College, and taught six years in his native county. In 1881 he came to Six-Mile Ferry and bought a drugs store which was formerly owned by Dr. Blackburn, and has since conducted it successfully. He also owns several tenements. He is a member of the K. of P., No. 181, and is a republican.

James Davis, plasterer, postoffice McKee's Rocks, a son of William and Mary Davis, was born in South Wales in 1855, and came to this country with his parents in 1868, locating in Mansfield, this county. William's occupation was mining, which he followed until 1887, when he engaged with the Shultz Bridge company. He and his wife are still living in Mansfield. They have had nine children: John, James, Cecelia (wife of David Edmons), David, William (deceased), Robert, Thomas, Sarah A. and Daviel. James Davis follows the business of plastering and frescoing. He married, Aug. 15, 1872, Isabella Gildroy, of this county, and they have been blessed with nine children: George H., William J., Dennie M., John, Robert, Elizabeth, Annie B., Mary B. and Margaret J. (deceased). Mr. Davis is a member of the K. of P., is a Freemason, and a member of the M. E. Church.

David Herbertson, chief engineer National Tube-wrks, McKeensport, was born in Jedburgh, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Aug. 12, 1851, a son of Thomas and Margaret (Rutherford) Herbertson. He was reared and educated in his native land, and served an apprenticeship of five years at the mill-wheat's trade; also at engineering. For many years he was engineer on the Inman line of passenger steamers plying between New York and Liverpool. Mr. Herbertson settled in McKeesport in 1859, where for four years he worked as a machinist in the National Tube-works, and since 1884 he has held his present position with the same company. His wife was Agnes, daughter of James and Mary (Caven) McLean, of Duffriesshire, Scotland, and by her he has six children living: Mary, Thomas, James, Robert, David R. and Agnes I. Mr. Herbertson is a member of the First Presbyterian Church, of the K. of H., and Caledonia club; he is a republican.

James Patrick, farmer, Elkhorn, is a son of William and Ann (Jamison) Patrick. His father was a native of Ireland, and his mother of Scotland. They were married in Ireland, and immigrated to Somerset county, Pa., where James was born. The subject of this memoir married, Feb. 14, 1865, Mary Ann, daughter of Moses and Jane McClean, of Uniontown, Pa. Having purchased their property some time before, they removed here in 1872, and are now engaged in farming. Both are members of the M. E. Church.

William Seaman, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, was born near the city of Hanover, Germany, Jan. 21, 1858, a son of Henry and Sophie Seaman. In the spring of 1869 the family came to this county, and settled in Allegheny City, where the father worked at his trade, that of a tailor. He died in 1885, aged sixty-nine years; his widow still resides in Allegheny City, as do her children: Henry, Sophie (Ronkamp) and Frederick. Caroline, the youngest, died when eighteen years old. William received a fair German education, and secured a knowledge of English, which he reads and writes, by private study. For two years after his arrival in America he was employed in a Pittsburgh drugstore, and then began to peddle and deal in country produce. In this he was successful, and in 1885 he bought seventy-seven acres of land in Patton, wherein he erected a dwelling and store and made other improvements. In 1876 he married Caroline Schwartz, who was born same year and place as himself and came to America at the same age. They have three children: William, Harry and Maggie. Mr. Seaman attends the Lutheran Church; he is a republican.

August H. Woerner, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, was born in 1834, in Württemberg, Germany, where he was reared on a farm. When nineteen years old he came to America and spent some time in Ohio, Missouri and Illinois, and in 1860 returned to his native land, where he married Louise Woerner, his cousin. With his bride, and accompanied by his parents, he returned to this country, and settled on his present farm in Patton township. He owns 150 acres, and is engaged in farming and fruit culture. His family consists of his wife, Katrine, died at the age of sixty-five, and his mother, Karline, in 1883, aged seventy-seven. The family was formerly associated with the M. E. Church, but now attends the Presbyterian Church at Monroeville. Mr. Woerner is a supporter of the republican party. He has four children: Theodore H., Emilie, Agustian and John. Of these, T. H., now twenty-five years of age, who is now engaged in the machinist's trade, and has been for some years a resident of Pittsburgh, married a daughter of William Arthur, a well-to-do farmer of Larn-eb, Westmoreland county. Johanna, his wife's mother, was born in Nettenburg, Germany, in 1809, and came to America in 1867, and to Monroeville, this county, where she died, in 1873.

John C. Stonesipher, farmer, postoffice Beech Cliff, was born in Pittsburgh, this county, in 1850. His grandfather, John Stonesipher, came from Eastern Pennsylvania at an early date, purchased 147 acres of land in what is now North Fayette township, and married a Miss Shaffer. His son David was born in that township, and married Elizabeth Meloney, by whom he had nine children, seven of whom are now living. John C., the eldest child, since eight years of age has resided in the country. He was educated at the public schools in North Fayette township, and married Margaret Wilson, daughter of John Wilson, of Beaver county, Pa. Two children, both living, have been born to this union: Mary Ellen and Jessie A. Mr. Stonesipher is a republican.

Charles W. Wicks, farmer, postoffice Gill Hall, son of J. S. and Sarah Wicks, was born in Jefferson township, in 1856. In 1881 he married Mary J., daughter of Joseph and Susan Rafton, of Jefferson township. Her grandparents on her mother's side were James A. and Agnes Maria (Peterson) Stewart, and her mother was born in Jefferson township in 1827. Mrs. Wicks' mother was left an orphan when young, and in 1860 she married Joseph Rafton (who died in 1871), and they located in Jefferson township. Their children are Mary J. (now Mrs. Wicks), Hannah A. (now Mrs. Beam) and Joseph A. In 1892 Mr. and Mrs. Wicks bought a farm formerly owned by F. P. Shpeeler, in Jefferson township, and have since resided there, engaged in farming. Their children are Florella and Sarah J. Mr. and Mrs. Wicks are members of the M. E. Church, and he is identified with the prohibition party.

Peter J. Boss, upholsterer, McKeesport, was born in Marburg, Germany, Feb. 16, 1856, a son of Casper and Caroline (Sauer) Boss. His father, a tanner by trade, came to America in 1858, and located at St. Louis, Mo., where he worked at his trade until the war broke out. He then enlisted in the Union army; served three years and three months and was honorably discharged. In 1864 he settled in Allegheny, where his family joined him, and where he still resides and follows his trade. He has three children: Albert, Paul J. and Gustav. Peter J. was reared in Allegheny from eight years of age, and learned his trade there. In September, 1889, he came to McKeensport and embarked in business for himself, in which he has been very successful. In 1875 he married Mary daughter of Christian and Theresa (Meister) Schellhardt, formerly of Germany, and who settled in Pittsburgh in 1855. By this union there are four children: Jeanetta, Minnie, Oscar and Adolph. Mr. Boss is a prominent member of the Turner society; he is a republican.

Joseph Griffith, superintendent of coal-mining office Camden, was born April 1, 1834, in Blueford, Wales. His parents, John and Margaret (Williams) Griffith, came to Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1837; the father became a miner in Pitt township; he died in Mifflin township, aged seventy-eight years. The family consisted of ten children, five of whom are living, as follows: Joseph, Capt. Jabez, John, Martha and Lizzie. Our subject became connected with a coal-mine in early life, and is known far and wide as a practical miner. Since 1876 he has been superintendent of Lytle & Sons' coal-mines, where 240 men are employed, who turn out about seventeen thousand bushels of coal per day. Mr. Griffith here married Margaret, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Surver) Soles, and their children are: William, Annie E., Maggie J., Martha, Mary A., Joseph and Edward. Robert M. Raths, farmer, postoffice Cosgrove. Alexander Rath, the great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was a native of Ireland, of Scotch extraction. His son, Adam, married Mary Maceyal, and they had the following named children: Robert, James, Margaret, Mrs. Jane McElhenny, Mrs. Martha Heazlep, Mrs. Nancy McNulty, John and Adam (the last named was a member of the Hampton battery, killed at Gettysburg, in the peach orchard). The last named Robert Rath was born in December, 1812, in Country Antrim, Ireland, and immigrated to this country with his parents. He had to make his own way in the world, but became a successful farmer. He is a member of Mifflin U. P. Church; and of session; he is a democrat. He married Mary McFadden, and their children are Mrs. Mary J. Currie, James H., Samuel A., Robert M. (whose name heads this sketch), Mrs. Nancy B. Morton, Mrs. Ellen Brierly, Mrs. Caroline McClure and Emma.

William H. Allen, real-estate dealer, postoffice McKees' Rocks, son of Jacob and Adaline Allen, was born in Stowe township, this county, May 5, 1861. His paternal grandfather, William Allen, was born in Ireland, in 1782, and his wife in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1784. They settled in this county in 1811. The former died June 16, 1836, and the latter Aug. 11, 1871. Their children were Jacob, Thomas, Margaret, John, Rebecca, Susan, Alexander and Ella. Jacob Allen was born in Allegheny county, and became a farmer. In 1830 he married Adaline, daughter of Robert and Ella MacIntyre, of this county, and their children were Laura B., wife of David K. Ewing, Jr.; Rebecca J. (deceased); Katie (deceased); Elizabeth E., William H., Robert M. (deceased) and Adaline C. Jacob Allen was one of the successful gardeners of this county. Mrs. Jacob Allen departed this life in 1868, at the age of thirty-nine years, and Mr. Allen Oct. 20, 1876. William H. Allen is engaged in the real-estate business in McKees' Rocks, and is one of the enterprising young men of Stowe township.

Samuel E. Moody, grocer and baker, McKeensport, was born in Sweden, Sept. 28, 1850, a son of Charles G. and Christiana Moody. He was reared and educated at Halmstad, Sweden, came to America in 1871, settled in McKeensport in 1873, and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company, with whom he worked until 1882. He then embarked in the grocery business, in which he has since been successfully engaged. In the spring of 1888 he started a Swedish bakery for the manufacture of Swedish dyspeptic bread, and already has a large and growing trade in that line. Mr. Moody married, in 1875, Davida Holm, of Sweden, by whom he has four children living: Edward, Clarence, Victor and Stella. Mr. Moody is a member of the K. of P. and I. O. H.; he is a republican.

Jacques Bour, farmer, postoffice Carrick, was born May 14, 1837, in Department Moselle, Lorraine, France, the son of Anthony Bour and Otilia Fleck, also natives of the same place. Jacques came to America in 1846, bringing his aged parents with him, who lived with him until their death. He resided six months in New Jersey, then removed to Allegheny county, Pa., where he farmed, and during the last eighteen years has resided in Baldwin township, where he owns sixteen acres. He also farms 150 acres of the old Hays estate. He married Lizzie, daughter of Anton Bicker, also of French descent, and they are the parents of nine children, all living: Magdalena, Joseph, Peter, William, Alrons, Albert, Mary, Josephine and Apoline. Mr. and Mrs. Bour are members of the Catholic Church; he is a republican.

Thomas Murray Waddle, miner, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., Nov. 15, 1843, a son of James and Mary (Weldon) Waddle, of Pennsylvania, and of Irish and German descent, respectively. James Waddle was a farmer, and lived to the age of eighty-six years, being ill only one week before his death, which occurred in May, 1885. He was a democrat, in religion a Baptist. He was three times married; his first wife was the mother of ten children; his second of one, and his third. Mary Weldon, of five, of whom Thomas M. is the fourth. The mother of our subject was a member of the M. E. Church, and attained the same age as her husband, dying in November, 1886. Thomas M. was reared on the farm and had little opportunity for acquiring an education. At the age of fifteen he began mining, which he has followed ever since, except six years devoted to farming. He married, in 1861, Rachel Douds, who was born in Armstrong county, a daughter of James and Eliza (Johnson) Douds, natives of Washington county, of Scotch and Irish descent. Sept. 2, 1864, he enlisted in Co. E, Capt. William Walters, 211th P. V., for one year, or during the war, and was discharged June 2, 1865, at Alexandria, Va. In June, 1863, Mr. Waddle became a resident of Turtle Creek; and in 1881, built his present hotel. The name of the hotel was in the business. Jennie, the eldest child, came to this country with her parents, in 1868. Owen came to this country when William was a little child, and it is thought he was killed in the civil war, as he never returned. His widow is still living in the old country, and is seventy years of age.

William Lamb, hotel-keeper, McKee's Rocks, son of Owen and Catherine Lamb, was born in Ireland in 1847, and came to this country in 1868. Owen came to this country when William was a little child, and it is thought he was killed in the civil war, as he never returned. His widow is still living in the old country, and is seventy years of age. Patrick Lamb, the only brother, is in business in Allegheny County. William Lamb was married, in 1873, to Mary, daughter of Martin and Julia McGovern, and to them have been born three children, viz.: (deceased), Katie G., and William J. Two of their children were born in Fort Duquesne, in a room once occupied by Gen. Washington. Mr. Lamb for several years followed teaming, but in 1877 embarked in the grocery and saloon business on Penn avenue, Pittsburgh. In 1886 he came to McKee's Rocks, opened the Exchange hotel (now called the Lamb hotel), of which he is the present owner and proprietor. Of ten applicants on Chartiers avenue for license this year he is the only one to whom it was granted.

J. L. Campbell, West Elizabeth, a son of William and Emily (Robinson) Campbell, born in Beaver County, Pa., in 1846. In 1863 he left home, and in 1871 married Eva, daughter of Wilson and Martha Johnson. Their children are George, May, Clara, Jennie, Alberta and James L. In 1872 Mr. Campbell settled at West Elizabeth and continued the building of coal barges, which business he had previously followed. In 1878 he began the manufacture of incubators, and he now has a factory making twelve a day. He is also manufacturer of a bread-raiser, of which he has sold six thousand in this county. His incubators have a universal sale and reputation.

William Tweedy, butcher, West Elizabeth, a son of Robert and Mary (McCully) Tweedy, was born in what is now Patton township, this county, in 1825. His father, a native of Ireland, came to this country when about twenty-five years old, and eventually settled in Patton township. He reared a family consisting of Francis, Mary A., Susanna, Margaret (now deceased), Robert, Thomas, Elizabeth J., and William. The last named, after traveling through the west, returned, and in 1863 married Sarah, daughter of John and Matilda Ludwick, of Allegheny county, Pa., and removed to his present residence in Jefferson township. Here he is engaged in butchering. His family consists of the following-named children: Mary M., Anna, George, John, James, Edward and Sarah L., all at home.

John M. Ross, night watchman for the A. V. R. R., Logan's Ferry, was born in this county Jan. 19, 1851, a son of James and Margaret (Daugherty) Ross. James was born in Parnassus, June 24, 1801, was a boatman and lived for some time in Allegheny City and Pittsburgh, moving thence to Plum township, where John M. now lives. His wife was born in Millin county Jan. 12, 1803. They had a family of twelve children, of whom John M. and one sister, Mrs. Jane Lawson, are the only survivors. James Ross died Jan. 23, 1877, his wife March 27, 1869. William Ross, the grandfather of our subject, settled across the creek in Westmoreland country about the time of the Revolution, where he had about five hundred acres. He served in the Indian war, and died in 1847, a member of the M. E. Church. John M. remained with his father until the civil war opened. He enlisted June 15, 1861, in Co. H, 8th P. R.; was consigned to the Army of the Potomac, participated in the battles of Antietam, second Bull run, Cedar Mountain, South Mountain and others; was detailed under Gen. McDowell in an engineer corps at the battle of Fredericksburg. He was shot in the left eye, the ball passing out at the right side of the neck, back of the ear. He was confined to hospital one month, and discharged Jan. 22, 1863. The following summer he commenced work on a boat running from Oil City to Pittsburgh, and continued there until 1865. He was then elected supervisor of Plum township, and served four years. Soon after he bought his present home, and has been night watchman for the A. V. R. R. since that time.

Mr. Ross married, July 4, 1865, Mary Snowden, born Aug. 29, 1849, in Pittsburgh, a daughter of William and Bridget Snowden. Mr. Snowden was a butcher, a native of New York, and was drowned about 1862. Mrs. Snowden came from Ireland when twelve years of age. Mr. Ross has children as follows: Margaret Ellen (married Feb. 11, 1887, to Elmer E. Sproul, a native of Butler county, now in Alabama), Carrie May, Andrew Jackson and Charles Edward (in the glass-house at Verona), Nanny Florence, James, Samson S., Lula Pearl and Eliza Jane (at home). They are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Ross is a member of the I. O. O. F. and G. A. R.

S. W. Lea, farmer, postoffice Woodville, was born in Scott township, this county, in 1848. He is the son of Samuel Lea, who married Elizabeth Hall, and by her had six children, Samuel W. being the eldest. Samuel died in 1880, aged sixty-two years; his widow still survives him. Born to William Lea, the pioneer of this family, was a son, Samuel, grandfather of S. W., who had born to him seven children, of whom Samuel, the father of S. W., was the youngest. Our subject was educated at the public schools, was reared to farming and has always followed that occupation. In 1884 he was appointed, by the board of directors, superintendent of the farm on the county home, which position he still fills to the entire satisfaction of the public. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

GEORGE C. SMITH, farmer, postoffice Castle Shannon, was born Sept. 9, 1841, in Allegheny county, Pa. His grandfather, Robert Smith, came from east of the mountains, and reared a family of four boys and six girls. Of these William, the father of George C., was born in 1813, and is now a resident of Washington county, Pa. He married Sarah H., daughter of George Cun- ningham, and became the father of eleven children, only four of whom attained maturity, viz.: George C., Mrs. Adeline Bailey, Daniel W. and Anna B. George C. married Nancy A., daughter of John McRoberts, and they have six children: Richard L., Eleanor J., Sarah H., John P., Ida and Willie. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are members of the U. P. Church. He has been a successful farmer; he is a republican.

J. J. McCURDY, farmer, postoffice Remington, was born in Robinson township in 1824 to Joseph and Mary (Hall) McCurdy, the youngest of six children. His grandfather, Hugh, emigrated at an early day from Ireland and purchased three hundred acres of land in Robinson township, one hundred and twenty acres of which are now owned by J. J. The latter was reared on the farm, where he has always resided, and was educated at the common schools. He married, in 1856, Mary Ann, daughter of Samuel and Priseilla (McFadden) Phillips, and six children have been born to them: Laura J., Joseph A., Samuel P., R. Florence, Frank W. and George W. Mr. McCurdy is a highly respected citizen of Robinson township, and for many years has been school director. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

THOMAS ARMSTRONG HUNTER, nailer, Verona, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1855. His parents, James and Kate Hunter, died when he was small, and he was reared by his maternal grandfather, Arm- strong. When fifteen years old he came to America, and was employed as a son, Samuel, in a rolling-mill and nail-factory at Kittanning. In 1852 he went to Pittsburgh, and was employed for twenty years in the Duquesne Nail-works, during the last twelve years of which he was manager. In 1872 he went into the American Iron-works, where he has been foreman of the nail department for several years. In 1865 he bought a piece of ground near Verona, to which he moved his family four years later, and in 1872 he built the handsome residence he now occupies. He is a member of the Legion of Honor, and has always been a republican. In 1854 he married Sarah A. Porter, who was born in what is now Stoie township, daughter of James and Ann (Glover) Porter, natives of Ireland. Mr. Hunter has nine children: William James, in Pittsburgh; John P., in Verona; George E., in Pittsburgh; Frank Milton, studying music in Florence, Italy; Thomas A., Albert, Sarah Mabel, Harry Homer and Maud Eugenie, at home. Olive Marion (the second child) died when twenty-one years old, and Charles Edward and Norville died when less than a year old.

WILLIAM ZINKHAN, contractor, postoffice McKees Rocks, a son of John and Annie C. Zinkhan, was born in Beaver county, in 1849. His father was born in Germany, in 1824; came to America in 1843, and settled in Pittsburgh, Pa., where he followed blacksmithing. From there he moved to Beaver county, where he spent the remainder of his life. He married, in 1847, Annie C. Bosley, of this county, and their children were Will- iam, George, Annie E., wife of Henry Hill- burg; Mary M., wife of Rev. George Goetz, and John. Mrs. John Zinkhan died June 11, 1876, at the age of forty-nine years, and Mr. Zinkhan June 12, 1884, at the age of sixty years. William Zinkhan was reared in Beaver county, Pa. In 1863 he was employed on the Ft. Wayne railroad, after which he learned the cooper's and later the carpenter's trade, which has been his principal business through life, though from 1875 to 1878 he was engaged in the grain trade on the Ohio and Monongahela rivers, owning a boat named Zinkhan. Mr. Zinkhan came to McKee's Rocks in 1881, where he followed the business of contractor and builder. He married, in 1872, Dora L., daughter of John F. and Mary Hague, and their children are Laura E., Estella, John R., William B., Claybell, Dora L. and Rachel V. (deceased). Mr. Zinkhan is a Freemason and a member of the I. O. H.

JOHN McCHESNEY, farmer, postoffice Ve- rona, is a son of James and Mary (McClure) McChesney, and was born in Kilkalee, County Down, Ireland, April 15, 1824. His mother died in Ireland, and in 1851 he came to America, his father following him in 1853. He received an ordinary education in his native land, and has always followed farming. For three years after coming to this country he was employed as a laborer and mason in Pittsburgh, and was a short time in the Squirrel Hill Levee, in Honore; he settled on his present home, and works considerable land beside his own. He enlisted in 1864 in Co. D, 6th P. H. A., and did garrison duty until the close of the civil war. He has served as supervisor, and votes the republican ticket. In 1846 he married Agnes Kirk, who was born in the same parish as himself, and their living children are James and Agnes; Mary, wife of Peter Nell, died in 1888, aged forty; four children died in infancy. The family are members of the U. P. Church.

Thomas McKee, farmer, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Ireland, in 1824, a son of Thomas, who was a farmer in Ireland, and who married Nancy Dempster, by whom he had nine children, Thomas being the third child. The latter came to America in 1842, located in Allegheny county, and for two and a half years was employed on a farm. He married, in 1845, Martha Curry, daughter of Daniel Curry. In 1858 he purchased his present farm of fifty-six acres, nearly all of which was woodland. Starting in life poor, Mr. McKee has, by thrift and perseverance, been able to secure for himself and wife a pleasant home. They are members of the U. P. Church. He is a republican, and has served as school director six years; has also been supervisor and assessor.

James R. Johnston, broker, postoffice Hulton, was born in Armstrong county, Pa., March 16, 1846, a son of John (a farmer) and Susan (Wissinger) Johnston, natives of Armstrong and Cambria counties, respectively, and parents of six children, viz.: James R., Elias, A. Lewis, Mary, Margaret and Nancy. The family were members of the Presbyterian Church. Our subject commenced for himself when eighteen years of age, rolling oil-barrels for twenty-five cents per hour. In 1872 he entered the bank at Karns City, Butler county, Pa., remaining there until 1889; then spent a year in Colorado, mining. In 1881 he came to Pittsburgh, and entered the Oil Exchange as broker. In 1873 he was united in marriage with Mary Hollobaugh, a native of Brady's Bend, Armstrong county, Pa., born Oct. 23, 1848, and they have three children: Emma S., Cyrus Tabor and Ruth A. Mr. Johnston's oil and mining interests have taken him over all the United States, and in 1887 he and his wife made a pleasant visit to Europe. He was a republican, and now a prohibitionist; he is a Mason.

John A. Gould, an employe of Singer, Nimick & Co., postoffice Pittsburgh, was born in this county in 1842, a son of Adam and Rachel Gould. His grandfather Gould was born in Eastern Pennsylvania. Adam Gould was born in 1812, in Westmoreland county, Pa.; he there married, in 1837, Rachel Burkholder, and returned to McKeesport, Allegheny county, where he had formerly lived. There they remained until 1860, when they moved to Pittsburgh, but now reside in Chartiers township. They had ten children, of whom are living William H., Adam, John A., Samuel, Joseph and Jane. His father is a blacksmith, and a member of the A. O. U. W. John A. Gould married, in 1866, Rebecca, daughter of James and Rebecca Packer, and their children were William H. (deceased), Josephine (deceased), Walter C. (deceased), Cora (a teacher in this county). Bertha and Daisy. Mr. Gould enlisted in the P. V. Co. K. for six months, re-enlisting July 9, 1864, for three months, and was honorably discharged at the expiration of his term of service. He is a member of the G. A. R., A. O. U. W. and K. of P. He has a good home, and other valuable property.

William Stewart Hickman, farmer, postoffice Bridgeville. John Hickman, the second child of Peter Hickman, was born in 1798; married Sarah Park, of Washington county, and became the father of four children, of whom William Stewart is the youngest. He was a farmer and owned part of the tract of land purchased by his father. He died in 1887, aged eighty-eight years. His wife died in 1879, aged seventy-one years. William Stewart was educated at the public schools, has always followed farming, and now owns and resides on the property of 167 acres, where his grandfather, Peter, lived. He married, in 1873, Mary Lesnett, daughter of John and Mary (Smith) Lesnett, and eight children have been born to them: Izetta Bell, Rebecca Lewella (deceased), Maggie Orr, John Park, Abbie Lesnett and Annie Lois (twins). Mary Edna and Nelly Roberts. Mr. Hickman has always lived on his present farm, where he was born. He is a member of the M. E. Church, and is a republican.

Osman Lynn Eaton, Verona, was born at Shoutstown, Allegheny county, June 28, 1863, and is a brother of C. H. Eaton, of whom a sketch appears elsewhere in this volume. His early education was received in the public schools at various points, and an academy at Irwin's station. When seventeen years of age he went into the telegraph office of the A. V. R. R. in Pittsburgh, where he remained three years. For some time he had charge of Connellsville station, on the B. & O., and was train dispatcher for two years of that time, at Pittsburgh. Since 1876 he has been a resident of Verona, and is manager of the store established by Eaton Bros. in 1886. He is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and is an enthusiastic republican.

Harry Wellesley Armstrong, manufacturer, postoffice Verona, residence Oakland, was born in 1831, in Quebec, and is the son of Edmund M. and Emma Mary (Heales) Armstrong, natives, respectively, of Sorel, Canada, and Coventry, England. When about two years old his father removed to Chicago, where he engaged in the banking business; was also in the same business at Warren and Erie, Pa., but is now leading a retired life at Oakland, Cal. His grandfather, Jesse D. Armstrong, was harbor-master at Quebec for about twenty years, and among the early pioneers of the St. Lawrence river; he died in California in 1877, aged about seventy-six years. Harry W. attended school in Chicago, Warren and Erie, Pa. He began his business life by studying telegraphy, and was about nine years at Renovo. While there he served his time as machinist, and became draftsman and assistant master-mechanic of the P. R. R. shops, and became chief draftsman, and became general foreman of the A. V. R. R. shops. A year and a half later he became a draftsman for the Homestead & Crescent Steel-works. In 1881 he engaged as manager of the Verona Tool-works, becoming a partner one year later. Mr. Armstrong was united in marriage, in September, 1879, to Mary F., daughter of J. W. Paul. She was born Feb. 21, 1858, in Pittsburgh. Six children have blessed this union: Jacob Paul, Harry Howard, William Metcalf, Mary Ellen, Pauline and Ruth. Mr. Armstrong is a republican, and he and his wife are members of the Episcopal Church.

Owen Sheeky, postoffice Rankin Station, is a native of Ireland, born in 1843, and at twenty years of age immigrated to America. He was educated at the common schools in Ireland, and on coming to this country served three years' apprenticeship at the trade of tanner and currier in Pittsburgh. For seven years he owned and managed the Fayette tannery at Ohio Pyle, Fayette county, Pa. In the spring of 1884 he located at Rankin Station, Pa., and with John E. Downing, of Pittsburgh, he built the Fort Pitt tannery. Carried on under the name of John E. Downing & Co. until May, 1886, at which time the firm dissolved, continuing under the title of Owen Sheeky & Co. The tannery, which is located on the line of the B. & O. R. R., near Rankin Station, covers four acres, and the building proper is 100x185 feet, and the bark-shed 54x100, the machinery being propelled by a sixty-horse-power engine; two boilers; capacity one hundred hides a day; thirty men employed. Mr. Sheeky is a democrat.

SHARLIE CROWE, farmer, postoffice White Ash, was born in Brome township, Morgan county, Ohio, March 2, 1845, a son of Philip and Rebecca (Toler) Crowe, of Virginia. The family removed in 1858 to Pittsburgh, where the father died at the age of eighty-four, and the mother at seventy-two. Philip Crowe was a farmer, and his son has always followed agriculture. The latter had little opportunity for acquiring an education, attending the city schools during one winter. In 1888 he purchased a farm of thirty-five acres in Penn township, and settled thereon. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Annie McFarland, a native of Penn township, and a daughter of Alexander and Sarah (Walston) McFarland, of Scotch and Irish blood. Their children are Bessie Pearl, Homer Shartle, Edna Viola and Nancy Walston. Mr. Crowe entered his country's service in the 136th regiment, nine-months men, and participated in the battles of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. In October, 1864, he joined the 5th H. A., with which he did garrison duty until the close of the war. Mr. Crowe is a republican. His family attend the M. E. Church.

CHARLES HOMER EATON, clerk, Verona, was born in Georgetown, Pa., June 28, 1861, and is the third son of Matthias M. and Mary S. Eaton. Hugh, father of M. M. Eaton, was a farmer near East Palestine, Ohio, where the latter was born. The Eaton's are of Irish extraction. Thomas S. Jones, father of Mrs. Mary S. Eaton, was a prominent citizen of Doddridge county, W. Va., where she was born. M. M. Eaton was a clergyman of the M. E. Church, and was attached successively to the Western Ohio, West Virginia and Pittsburgh conferences. He died in 1879 at the age of sixty-two, and his widow is now aged sixty-four. Their eldest son, Theodore N., is presiding elder of the Pittsburgh conference. The other children are Charles Homer, Leonidas H. (who died aged thirty-two), Antoinette I. (Marsh, died aged twenty-three), Luella C. (died aged thirteen), Osman L. and Edgar E. The first, third and fourth sons are owners of a general hardware-store at Verona, which was established in January, 1886, and are doing a successful business, under the supervision of Osman. They erected the building now occupied, in April, 1888. Charles H. Eaton was educated chiefly at the public schools and the college at Scioto, Ohio, and when sixteen years old took his present position with the Dexter Spring company. In 1883 he built his residence on Parker street, and two years later married Anna B., daughter of David Yarnell. She was born in Allegheny City, and has one child, Ruth. Mr. Eaton is a trustee of the M. E. Church, and is a republican.

JOHN HODGES McNEILL, machinist, postoffice Verona, was born in Philadelphia March 28, 1861, and is the son of Irish parents, Robert and Martha (Hunter) Hodges. His father died in 1883, and he was adopted and reared by an uncle, John McNeill. In 1873 they came to Allegheny City, and when seventeen years of age our subject began to learn his trade in that city. For the last six years he has been employed in the A. V. R. R. shops. He is a member of the Jr.O. U. A. M. and R. A., and an independent republican. April 29, 1885, Mr. McNeill married Miss Mattie K. Cable, daughter of Edward and Sophia Magdalene Cable, for fifty years residents of O'Hara township, and Edward Cable is a native of England and Sophia M. Cable is a native of America, born in Allegheny county. Lily May is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. McNeill.

JOHN W. MILLIGAN, clerk, Swissvale, is a native of Allegheny county, born May 15, 1858. David Milligan, a son of Samuel and Susan Milligan, and a native of Pennsylvania, came from Perry county to this county in 1813 and purchased 150 acres of land near the Monongahela river, moving thereon with his family in 1814, where he remained till his death, in 1820. He married, in 1794, Sarah Wallace, who bore him five sons and four daughters, and of these Robert, the third child and second son, was born Oct. 29, 1800, in Perry county, Pa. He (Robert) married, in 1833 Mary, daughter of John and Margaret (Owen) Shortess, of Perry county, and four sons and two daughters were born to them: Alexander Shortess, Thomas A., Emeline Ellen, John Wesley (our subject), Mary Margaretta and Joseph Robert, of whom the youngest four are now living. Robert, the father of these children, a farmer by occupation, owned the property purchased by his father, David, up to his death; he died in 1867, aged eighty-eight years; his widow is now living at the age of eighty-eight years. John Wesley Milligan was born and reared on the farm purchased by his grandfather, and which he now owns. He was educated at the public schools and Wilkinsburg Academy, graduating from Dartmouth College, in New Hampshire, in 1862. He then commenced the study of law, was admitted to the bar at Pittsburgh in 1865, and followed his profession ten years. He then entered the employ of the Edgar Thomson Steelworks, at Bessemer, as a clerk, which position he now holds. He also superintends the work on his farm of 120 acres. Mr. Milligan was married, in 1867, to Mary E., daughter of Smith and Mary Agnew, of Cumberland county, Pa., and seven children have been born to them, five now living: Robert, Joseph F., Mary Graham, Matilda C., and James Carothers. Mr. Milligan is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a Republican.

B. P. Wallace, music-dealer, McKeesport, was born in Manchester, England, March 15, 1863, a son of John and Catherine (Dillon) Wallace, who came to America in 1864, locating in Maryland, and settling in McKeesport in 1871. He opened a music-store in McKeesport in 1886, handles instruments only of first-class makers, and by strict attention to business has already built up a large and successful trade that is daily increasing. He married, June 5, 1887, Catherine, daughter of John and Marie Wertencbach, of McKeesport, and has one son, Augustus. Mr. Wallace is a member of the German Catholic Church; in politics is independent.

Thomas J. E. Morrow, farmer, post-office Oak Dale Station, was born in Snowden township, this county, in 1849, a son of Thomas Morrow, who was the youngest of a family of ten children. The Morrows are of Scotch-Irish descent, and at an early day immigrated to America. Thomas married Ann Espey, daughter of James Espey, of this county, and five children were born to them. Thomas purchased, in 1852, one hundred acres of land now owned by our subject, and which was originally the property of David Herriott. There he resided until his death, which occurred in 1871, when he was sixty-three years old. Thomas J. E. has always resided on the farm, and at the death of his father inherited the property. He was educated in the public schools and in 1874 married Elizabeth A., daughter of Richard Moss, of this county. Three children—Lillian P., Jennie W. and Forbes Lee—have been born to this union. Mr. Morrow is an elder of Oak Dale Presbyterian Church. He is a republican, and is now serving as school director.

Samuel Webster Bragdon, gardener, Myler, was born on Neville island, June 28, 1847, son of Samuel C. and Frances (Morrow) Bragdon. His father was born in Maine, and came to this county in or about 1830, in a sleigh. He was born in 1806, son of Eliza-dair and Dorcas (Woodbridge) Bragdon. He was married in 1836, and four children were born to them: William Henry, Samuel Webster, John W. and Jennie Glass. Samuel’s grandfather was in the war of 1812. His maternal grandparents were John and Elizabeth (Morrow) Morrow, and his great-grandfather was David Morrow. Samuel received his education in the schools of the island, and at Mt. Union College, Ohio. He worked with his father until 1873, when he started for himself. His father died in July, 1881, aged seventy-five years, leaving two pieces of land on the island to Samuel and his brother, William H., Samuel taking his present place of fourteen acres, where he erected a fine house in 1885, drawing the plans and arranging the details himself. He was married, Dec. 25, 1873, to Rhoda Henderson, of Mercer county, Pa., daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Brown) Henderson, who now reside in that county. Two children have blessed this union—Berton and John. The family are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Bragdon is a Republican, and has held all the various offices of his township.

Thomas Towers, post-office West View, was born Dec. 21, 1815, in Lancashire, England, son of John and Elizabeth (Osfield) Towers. The family was one of the oldest in England, where they are traced back many generations of honorable people. Thomas came to America in 1842, and in this county followed farming and dairying. He owns a farm in Ross township, where he has accumulated a competency and made many friends. He is an intelligent New Churchman, and shows by his example a life style which he reveres. Politically he is a Republican, and has held different township offices. He married Elizabeth Winter, also a native of England, and by her had one child—John A., who is following in his father’s footsteps.

William E. Winter, dairymen, post-office West View, was born Nov. 5, 1839, in East End, Pittsburgh (formerly Pecies township), a son of Edward and Elizabeth (Jones) Winter, natives of England. They had three children: Rachel, William E. and Anna H. The father died, and the mother afterward married Thomas Towers, a native of England, and to them were born three children: Moses (deceased), Walter T. (deceased) and John A. William E. Winter received his education in this county, and at the age of nineteen entered the dairy business, which he has continued up to the present time with marked success, still retaining some of his first customers; he also cultivates a farm of sixty acres. Mr. Winter married Caroline Mohn, a native of this county, of German descent, and their union has been blessed with three children: Will-
E. Church, and died Sept. 15, 1888; his widow, Isabella (Wiley) Reel, died in 1875, aged sixty-five years. They had four children: William V., George W., David and Wiley. Wiley and George W. were soldiers in the civil war, suffered in the Southern prisons, and died before reaching home. David married Anna Redpath, and three sons blessed their union: Ellis, Watson A. and Casper. Mr. Reel is an extensive fruit-grower; has been trustee of the M. E. Church for many years; he has always been a republican, but latterly he is a prohibitionist.

Andrew Brethauer, gardener, postoffice Ross, was born March 8, 1810, in Hesse-Cassel, Germany, the son of Christopher and Mary (Schmidt) Brethauer, natives of same place. Christopher came to America in 1847, and followed gardening in this county, where he died, April 15, 1880, at the age of seventy-three years. He and his wife were members of the G. L. Church; they had four children: Andrew, John F., Lewis W. and Albert C. Andrew was educated in Allegheny county, and followed gardening, owning twenty-one acres of garden land; was also in the dairy business one year. He married Christine Seif, a native of Pittsburgh, and they have eight children: Mary M., Albert C., Elizabeth, Bertha, William L., Edward A., John F. and Clara. Mr. and Mrs. Brethauer are members of the G. L. Church; he is a republican.

Joseph Hodgson, farmer, postoffice Putnam, was born in the county of Westmoreland, England, in 1824. Thomas Hodgson came from England in 1822 to America, and settled in Birmingham, Allegheny county, Pa. In 1843 he purchased 160 acres of land in Collier township, part of which is now owned by the subject of this memoir. He married Mary Salkeld, and by her had twelve children, all born in England. He was a farmer all his life, and died in 1844; his widow passed away in 1895, aged eighty-four years. Joseph Hodgson attended the public schools of Allegheny county, and has always followed agricultural pursuits. He is a republican and has held many township offices; he is a member of the Methodist Church.

Miss Mary J. Hazlett, retired teacher, postoffice Bonney, is a daughter of Samuel and Mary Hazlett, and was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1830. Her father came from Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., about the year 1817 or 1818, and settled in this county. About 1840 he purchased forty-four acres of land in Chartiers township, upon which he resided until his death, in 1858, when he was sixty-one years of age. His widow survived him until 1890, when she departed this life at the age of ninety-one years. They had four children: James Wills (deceased), Sarah Laww, wife of Samuel Hodgson; Mary Jane, and Eliza McKay, wife of James Wilkinson. Miss Mary J. Hazlett followed teaching in this county for six years. She resides upon the old homestead of her parents, one-third of which she owns, and which is known as Hazel Wilde.
WASHINGTON GIBB, market-gardener, post-office Sewickley, was born Aug. 23, 1830, in Mount Pleasant, Westmoreland county, Pa. His paternal grandfather, who was a native of Scotland, came to America in 1742, and settled under Gen. Washington in the revolutionary war. His son David was bound out to Paul Warden, and worked as a farmer and miner. David was married to Margaret Sisney, and died at Elizabethtown. Our subject's father's family moved from Elizabeth to Neville Island in a canoe. Washington Gibb was reared in this county, and received a modest education. When a boy he worked at gardening, a vocation he has pursued more or less all his life. For several years he was a coalboatman on the Ohio river to Louisville; subsequently a pilot. Eventually he removed to Sewickley, where he began gardening on a small scale, and he is now the owner of twelve acres of choice garden-land, worth two thousand dollars per acre, shipping most of the produce to Allegheny. Mr. Gibb was married to Miss Mary Devillain, of Westmoreland county, and this union has been blessed with five children: David W., John F., William H., Walter P. and Ida M. Mr. and Mrs. Gibb are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

R. M. ERWIN, Sewickley, was born Jan. 6, 1834, near Carlisle, Mifflin township, in the Cumberland valley, Cumberland county, Pa., and is, as near as he knows, one of the eighth generation born in America of Scotch-Irish descent. He is the second child born to James B. and Isabella M. (McElwain) Erwin. His grandparents were early settlers in the Cumberland valley, and were represented in both the war of the Revolution and of 1812. The paternal grandfather, James Irwin (who changed the spelling to Erwin), was born in 1742, and died April 14, 1818, and the paternal grandmother, Oliva Bard, was born March 28, 1767, and died March 3, 1840. They had seven children, as follows: Elizabeth, Martha, Catharine P., Mary, John, Oliva B. and James B. (father of our subject). The parents of Oliva (Bard) Irwin were captured by Indians, and their eldest child killed by being taken by the feet and dashed against a tree; the mother was ransomed at Fort Duquesne. R. M. Erwin's maternal grandparents were Robert and Jane (Shannon) McElwain, former born in 1780, latter in 1790, and they lived to the age of seventy-five years or upward; they reared a family of eight children, viz.: Isabella M. (mother of our subject, and born in Mifflin township, Cumberland county), Elizabeth Ann, Mary, Andrew, Sarah Jane, Margaret E., Liberty M. and James Shannon.

R. M. Erwin had no early school advantages, and as soon as able worked to help support his parents. He followed carpentering, and did work by the day from 1855 to 1866 in Sewickley, except during his service in the army. He enlisted in Co. G, 28th P. V. I., served eighteen months, and was discharged on account of disability. Returning home, he engaged in storekeeping five years; subsequently he embarked in the coal trade, in which he continued sixteen years, and in 1885 he abandoned that line for the livery business, which he continued in the most extensive livery-stables in Sewickley. Mr. Erwin married Annecia, daughter of Bruce Tracy, and they have six children: Katie B., Anna M., William K., Robert M., Edward B. and June. He is a member of the G. A. R., of K. H. and the J. R. O. A. M.; he is a republican.

Capt. O. F. MERVIN, bookbinder, post-office Ross, was born April 28, 1837, in Brooke county, W. Va., son of Henry and Alizia (Thayer) Melvin, pioneers of that county, former of whom was a merchant in Ohio and Virginia, being a trader by occupation. Their son, O. F., was reared in Ohio and partly educated there. At the age of nineteen he went to Cincinnati, and there learned the bookbinder's business, at which he is still engaged, being foreman with Eichbaum & Co., of Pittsburgh, in whose employ he has been for twenty years. Mr. Melvin was in Wellsburg, W. Va., when the war-note sounded over the country, and Lincoln made his three-months call. In response he enlisted in Co. F, 1st W. V. R., remaining in same until the close of the war. He was first lieutenant in the three-months service, and captain in the three-years; participated in all the engagements of the regiment, and was wounded at the battle of Piedmont, Va. The captain married Hattie, daughter of Robert Nicholls, who was clerk of Brooke county, Va., for twenty-five years. Capt. and Mrs. Melvin have eight children: Allen W., William J., Hattie S., Thayer E., Joseph E., Edward C., Jessie W. and Robert Benton. Capt. Melvin is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and G. A. R.; he is a republican.

H. H. SCHULTE, grocer, Glenfield, was born Nov. 14, 1842, near Devillian, Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, son of Henry and Mary (Lobunite) Schulte, latter of French descent. The family came to America in 1851, and his family followed him in 1853, settling in Westmoreland county, Pa., where he worked in the coal-mines. They finally removed to this county, where the father died in Pittsburgh. H. H. Schulte was educated in Germany, and in Pittsburgh he learned the gunsmith's trade, which he followed till 1864, when he enlisted in the 212th P. V. I., Co. E, remaining in the army until the close of the war. He then returned to his trade, working for William Craig, of Pittsburgh, whom he bought out later. Mr. Schulte conducted the gun business successfully until the fall of 1879. In the spring of 1880 he embarked in the grocery business at St. Louis, Mo., in which he continued a short time, then returned to this county, and has since conducted a general grocery-store in Glenfield. Mr. Schulte was married in Pittsburgh to Kate, daughter of Casper Ransick, and they are the parents of seven children: Anna, Kate (deceased), Phillip, Herman, Robert, Eva and Louis. Mr. Schulte is a republican.
CHARLES COOKE RALPH, marine engineer, Emsworth, was born Oct. 3, 1843, in Pittsburgh, Pa., near where the present courthouse stands, youngest and only living child of Samuel H. and Mary (Spargo) Ralph, natives of England, who came to America when each was about nine years of age. His father, also an engineer, for a time followed the Hudson river on one of the first boats; at Pittsburgh he became part owner of the steamer Germantown, which he ran for several years; was also engaged in the construction of the Portage R. R., and ran the first train over that road. He died Nov.
17, 1886, aged seventy-nine years; his widow died when about thirty-eight years of age.
Charles C. Ralph received his education near Perryville and at Allegheny College, Meadville. He enlisted, in 1861, in Co. M, 102d
P. V. I. They camped near Washington that winter, and in the following spring joined McClellan's army and participated in all its battles for three years. His brother, Nelson Crooks Ralph, who was in the rebel army, was wounded at Vicksburg, and has not been heard of since. In 1866 Charles C. became an engineer striker on a boat, and afterward became an engineer. He married, in February, 1870, Isabella C. Ball, of this county, and they have four children, named as follows: Ella Isabella, Nelson C., Charles Ralph and Mary Ann. Mrs. Ralph is a member of the M. E. Church. Mr. Ralph is a member of the F. & A. M. and the U. V. L.
WILLIAM DEWART MCKELVEY, engineer, Wilkinsburg, named after Hon. William L.
Dewart, was born in Centreville, Pa., June 13, 1842. His grandfather, William McKelvey, came from Ireland and settled in Ligonier valley about the beginning of the nineteenth century. His wife was Mary Wallace; their son, Ephraim, married Sarah, daughter of Abner and Eliza (Richardson) Kelly. There were seven McKelvey brothers, including William, who came to America together.
They were of great stature, one being six feet eight inches tall and proportionately large of frame. Ephraim was born in 1813 and died in 1867; he was justice of the peace many years; was a democrat and a powerful debater and, having read medicine, was frequently called upon to bleed or vaccinate people of his locality. He was a successful merchant, but sinks most of his means in a construction contract on the P. R. R.
He was thrice married, his second wife being Eliza Anderson; his third wife, Sarah Croft, is now living in Allegheny.
William D. is the only living child of Sarah Kelly McKelvey, who died in 1847. He was educated in the public schools and El-der's Ridge Academy, and taught school in 1859. In 1860 he found employment as a brakeman on the P. R. R., afterward as fireman. Since 1864 he has been engineer, and now runs the fastest express trains between Pittsburgh and Al-tonsa. In 1862 he married Katharine B., doughter of James and Lavinia Gettany, of Ligonier valley. Mr. McKelvey moved to Wilkinsburg in 1876. The family were associated with the Presbyterian Church. He is a Freemason, a member of the A. O. U. W., R. A. and O. C. F., and is a republican.
ALBERT CARSON SMITH, carpenter, Wil-kinsburg, was born in Centre township, Indiana county, Pa., Jan. 25, 1838. His grandfather, James Smith, came from Ireland and settled in Indiana county early in this century. Samuel, a carpenter by trade, son of the latter, and born in Centre township, in 1829, married Susan Carson, and died in May, 1862. Both his father and he were active members of the U. P. Church, and republicans. William Carson, father of Susan, was also a native of Ireland, and lived in Juniata county, where she was born in 1832. She now resides in Indiana county.
This family were Presbyterians. A. C. Smith is the eldest of five children born to Samuel and Susan Smith. He was reared in his native town, and when seventeen years old went to learn the carpenter's trade with an uncle. For five years he was employed in the oil country, and came to Wilkinsburg in 1882. Four years later he became a member of the contracting firm of L. A. Raisig &
Co., and now looks after the lumber-yard.
Mr. Smith married, in June, 1881, Eliza
Peterman, a native of Indiana county, Pa., and daughter of Jeremiah and Mary (Clark) Peterman, of German descent. Two children were born to this union: Carl Edgar and Ernest Leroy, latter deceased in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is connected with the Jr. O. U.
A. M., and is a republican.
JAMES LOGAN, boss in rolling-mill, postoffice McKeensport, son of John and Elizabeth Logan, was born in Ireland in 1848, came to this country in 1865 and located in Pittsburgh, Pa. He married, in 1867, Katie, dughter of William and Margret Yard, of this county, and their children are Elizabeth, John H., Maggie, Eva B., Joseph D., James and Myrtle. Mr. Logan has been employed for many years in a rolling-mill, is now boss, and has charge of a number of men.
CAPT. D. M. COOLEY, river-pilot, McKeens-port, was born in Elizabeth township, this county, April 24, 1840, a son of William R. and Lovina (Mains) Cooley. His paternal grandparents, Frederick (a millwright by trade) and Jane Cooley, were among the pioneers of Elizabeth township. William R.
Cooley was a resident of Elizabeth township for many years; was a sawyer by occupation, and now resides in Elizabeth borough: he raised a family of twelve children.
D. M. was reared in Elizabeth township. He served in the war of the rebellion, enlisting in August, 1861, in Co. E, 105th P. V.; was wounded at Fredericksburg, Va., and honorably discharged on account of disability in May, 1863. After returning from the war he was married to Nancy J., daughter of Jonathan Householder, of Elizabeth township, and commenced in 1864 the occupation of steamboat captain and pilot; he located in 1880 on his present place, where he has since resided. The captain has eight children living. He is a prominent member of the G. A. R. and U. V. L. and is a stanch advocate of prohibition.

JAMES M. BROWN, contractor and builder, McKeesport, Pa., is a native of Stalbridge, Dorsetshire, England. He was born Dec. 29, 1850, was reared and educated in his native town, and served an apprenticeship of five years at the carpenter and joiner trade. He came to McKeesport in the spring of 1871, where he worked at his trade as a journeyman until 1876; he then embarked in business as a contractor and builder, in which he has been very successful. He is a member of the A. O. F., the K. of P. and the R. A.; he is a republican.

JACOB GILLILAND, mine boss, postoffice Homestead, was born Nov. 8, 1833, in Lower St. Clair township. His grandfather, David Gilliland, a native of Ireland, of Scotch descent, came to America after the Revolution, and settled in Ohio. He had a family of eight children, of whom Samuel, at the age of twenty years, came to Allegheny county, where he farmed. He died in Wyandot county, Ohio. His widow, Eliza (Brand) Gilliland, is still living in this county, aged seventy-eight years. Her children are Jacob, John, Alfred, Samuel, Mrs. Rebecca Horn, Mrs. Margaret Snee and Mrs. Mary J. Craig. Jacob was educated in Mifflin township, learned no special trade, but engaged at different occupations, and has worked about coal-mines thirty-five years, twenty-one years of that time as mine boss. He has distinguished himself as a practical and scientific man, and has been very successful. Mr. Gilliland has been twice married; his first wife, see Rebecca Kennedy, died, leaving seven children; James, Almarinda, Oliver, Ida M., Josephine, John and Alice. His second wife was Maria Davis. Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland are members of the M. E. Church; he is a republican. He built one of the first business houses in Homestead.

GEORGE LINDERMANN, superintendent, postoffice Homestead, was born March 28, 1838, in Pittsburgh, Pa. His parents, Philip and Catharine (Lambert) Linderman, natives of Württemberg, Germany, resided some years in Baltimore, Md., and in 1831 came to Pittsburgh, where the father was in business until his death, in 1857. He was well known among the residents of that city. His widow died in 1862, aged eighty-two years, the mother of the following named children: John, William, Caroline, Catharine, Daniel, George, Louise and Mary. George was educated in the city schools, and at the age of nine years began work in a brick-factory. At the age of fourteen he became a cabin-boy on a river steamer, and followed the river in the winter for many years, engaging in brick-making. In 1870, he was elected street commissioner, and filled the position for the unprecedented term of seventeen years. In February, 1887, he was elected to the position of superintendent of the city farm, where he has also proved his efficiency. He married Jane Sterling, and has three children; Mrs. Cora H. Hoagland, Charles B. and William S. Politically Mr. Linderman has always been a republican. He is a member of the F. & A. M., Pittsburgh Lodge, No. 484; Henry Lambert Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Bethel Lodge of Workmen, in which he has filled all the principal offices, and in the last named he was treasurer for twelve years. He has always taken a deep interest in educational matters, and for five years was president of the Sixth ward school board.

LOUIS SENGER, ice-dealer, postoffice Chartiers, a son of Christian (a farmer) and Catherine Senger, was born in Alsace, France (now Germany). In 1840, and came to this country in 1844, settling in this county. Christian died in 1861 at the age of fifty-eight years, his wife in 1850. They had eight children, three of whom are living: George, Louis and Antonius. Louis Senger was reared on a farm, and at the age of eighteen years learned blacksmithing, which he followed until 1874, when he engaged in his present ice business. He married April 9, 1861, Elizabeth, daughter of John and Mary A. Jackel, and they had following named children: Catherine (deceased); Magdalena, wife of John E. McKernan; Mary A., wife of Michael J. Beck; Philomena (deceased), Louis (deceased), Sophia E., William L., Joseph A., Andrew A., George C., Cecelia C. and one that died in infancy.

PHILIP P. JAGEMANN, grocer, Sharpsburg, is a native of Pittsburgh, born in 1843. His father, Philip, a native of Prussia, Germany, and a shoemaker by trade, immigrated to America in 1839. He was married to Margaret Drool, whose parents were natives of Bavaria, Germany, and immigrated to America in 1837. Mr. and Mrs. Jagemann are the parents of six children, two now deceased. Philip P. was educated at the public schools of his native city, and commenced his business career in the capacity of clerk, remaining as such nine years. He then engaged in the oil-refining trade, and, coming to Sharpsburg in 1873, established his present business. In 1865 he married Mary, daughter of Joseph and Mary Earney, and they have two children: Florenz John and Joseph Philip. Mr. Jagemann is a member of the G. C. Church, and is a democrat.

PULJer H. YOUNG, furniture-dealer, Sharpsburg, the youngest child of Jacob and Elizabeth (Dielki) Young, was born in Germany, in 1846. John Jacob, his father, was a worker of wood in Rhein, Bavaria, Germany. Philip H., when eighteen years of age, left his native country, where he had learned the cabinet-making business, immigrated to America, and for a number of years followed his trade in Pittsburgh. In 1871 he came to Etta, in which year he married Minnie C. Hieber, daughter of Daniel Hieber. Mrs. Young was the mother of six children, three of whom are living. She dying, Mr. Young next married, in 1883, Emma C. Boertzle, who has borne him three children. In 1890 he commenced his present business, which has steadily grown under his careful management, and he now enjoys a large and lucrative trade in his line. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and R. A. In religion he is a German Presbyterian, in politics a republican.

WILLIAM B. NEEL, carpenter, McKeesport, was born in Mifflin township, this county, Jan. 26, 1835, son of Samuel C. and Mary (Smiley) Neel. John Neel, his paternal grandfather, was a native of Ireland, and among the pioneers of Mifflin township, where he cleared and improved a farm, on which he lived and died. His children were John, Archibald, Thomas, William, Samuel C. and Tabitha (Mrs. Robert McElhaney). The maternal grandfather of our subject was a pioneer of what is now Allegheny City. Samuel C. Neel was a farmer, and lived in Mifflin township. His children were John, Thomas, William B., Samuel C., George W., Joseph, George and Dorcas. William B. was reared and educated in Mifflin township, and served an apprenticeship at the carpenter's trade, which he followed in Mifflin township in connection with farming until 1860, when he located in McKeesport, where he has worked at his trade ever since. In 1860 he married Nancy, daughter of Henry and Mary Robinson, Westmoreland county, Pa., and has four children: William, James F., Charles and Mary.

JACOB HOLTZMAN, cigar-manufacturer, McKeesport, was born in Alsace, then in France, May 10, 1857, and is a son of Jacob and Barbara Holtzman. He came to America in 1873 and located in Braddock, this county, where he worked a year in a coalbank during the summer, engaged in the wholesale and retail business in cigars and tobaccos, and by strict attention to the wants of his customers he has built up a flourishing trade. In 1881 he married Katie (Kohler) Miller, of McKeesport. Mr. Holtzman is a member of the K. of H., of the Heptasophs, the United States Benevolent fraternity, and the Knights of the Golden Eagle. He is a republican.

F. E. BALDWIN, nail-worker, Homestead, was born March 19, 1839, in Morgantown, W. Va. His grandfather, William Baldwin, came from Winchester, W. Va., where he was reckoned among the pioneers of that locality. His son, David, was born Oct. 22, 1813, near Morgantown, W. Va., was a carpenter by trade, and for thirty-five years has been a resident and politician of the Twenty-sixth ward of Pittsburgh, South Side. He held the office of assessor for twenty-five years, being the candidate of the republican party. He married Elizabeth Madera, of German descent, whose grandfather, when a drummer-boy, made several unsuccessful attempts to escape the vigilance of his parents in order to join Gen. Washington's army in the Revolution. The subject of this sketch is one of a family of two children, and at an early age found employment in the nail-factory of Chess, Cook & Co., where he worked his way up until to-day he has the best position in their factory, having been an employee for the unprecedented term of thirty-five years, which speaks volumes for Mr. Baldwin's integrity. He married Margaret Keogh, and they have two sons, David L. and Mark E. Since 1874 Mr. Baldwin has been a resident of Homestead. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.; he is a republican, casting his first vote for Abraham Lincoln.

ISAAC M. DICKSON, superintendent of boatyard, postoffice Dravosburg, was born Oct. 20, 1831, in this county, a son of Thomas Dickson, a weaver by occupation, and a native of England. Thomas followed his trade in the city of Allegheny, where he died. He married Nancy Guyton, a native of Maryland, and became the father of two sons and seven daughters. Isaac M. learned the wagon-maker's trade in Allegheny, and in 1859 came to Dravosburg, where he has since followed his trade: is at present superintendent of the J. C. Risher & Co. boatyards. He married Mary A. Scothorn, of Washington county, Pa., a daughter of John and Eleanor (Nixon) Scothorn, latter of whom was a daughter of George and Hannah (Wilson) Nixon. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson are the parents of Harry E., who married Katie, daughter of William and Margaret (McClnight) Scothorn, and have one son, Leonard V. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson are members of the First M. E. Church of McKeesport. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P., and Encampment; he is a republican.

CAPT. JAMES WILSON HALSTEAD, river-man, postoffice Verona, was born at Fairview, this county, in 1848, son of James and Rebecca (Lammon) Halstead. His father was a tailor and worked in Pittsburgh on the bench with Andrew Johnson (afterward president), and was one of Pittsburgh's early men. The postoffice at Fairview was named after him, and he served as postmaster until 1872, when he turned the office over to his daughter. James received his education at Fairview, and in 1864 went on a steamboat carrying oil from Warren and Oil City to Pittsburgh. After five years of this work he began farming in Westmoreland county, but continued in the oil business to some extent. In 1885 he engaged with the Chartiers Gas company, having charge of the laying of their pipes across the river. He was shore-boss for Huling Brothers, at Pittsburgh, but now has accepted a position with Moorhead & McClean, having charge of their river business. He was married in 1871 to Elizabeth Shannon, of Indiana township, daughter of James and Rebecca (Hickey) Shannon, old settlers of that township. Three sons were born to Capt. and Mrs. Halstead, viz.: William Boyd, Harry Edward and James Lemmon. Capt. Halstead's parents were members of the U. P. Church, and his wife of the M. E. Church.
He is past officer in the Knights of the Golden Eagle, representative to the Grand Lodge K. of P., and a very active member of the uniform rank K. of P., having organized H. S. Paul division, at Verona, and is one of the first officers; also a member Knights of Mystic Chain and of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

James McIntyre, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, was born Dec. 23, 1840, in County Derry, Ireland, son of Hercules and Mary Ann (Matthews) McIntyre, both of whom died in the old country. James came to this country in 1861. He attended the mountain schools in the winter, and worked on the farm during the summer. He has resided on his farm of ninety-six acres since 1866, building a fine house in 1876. He was married, in 1866, to Jane, daughter of Benjamin and Rachel (Love) Black, both of whom were natives of this country, former born in 1813, and died in 1864, latter born in 1818, and died in 1868. Her maternal grandparents were Alexander and Margaret (Matthews) Black, natives of Ireland, the former of whom died here at the age of one hundred years. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre:
Rachel, Harry B., Sarah Jane, Robert D., Eliza E. and James H. The family are members of Deer Creek U. P. Church. Mr. Mc-Intyre has been successful in business. He is a republican, and has been township supervisor.
His brother, David, served in Co. E, 63d P.
V. I., from 1861 to 1864, and came from the war a physical wreck. His brother John was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg.

Frederick Backhaus, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, was born March 21, 1833, in the city of Muhlhausen, Preussen, Germany, son of Andrew and Mary (Ginder) Backhaus.
Andrew was in the French-German war of 1812-18 with Napoleon Bonaparte, receiving a medal for bravery. In his later years he was one of the five only living members of Napoleon's army in that part of Germany, and the late Emperor William visited him, extending to him the honor of shaking his hand. Andrew Backhaus was a member of the Presbyterian Church. He died in 1879, aged ninety-three years; his wife was born in 1789, and died at the age of seventy-two years. Frederick was educated in Germany, and learned the locksmith's trade. After coming to Pittsburgh in 1852 he was engaged for some time in the Novelty works, and was employed for fifteen years in the Allegheny arsenal. He was drafted twice in the war of the rebellion, the first time paying three hundred dollars, and the second time was exempted through being a government employe.
He in 1879 bought his present farm of 240 acres, and erected good buildings. He was married, in 1863, to Julia Heer of Pittsburgh, daughter of G. and Mary (Halder) Heer, and they have four children: George, Freddie, Edward and Martha. Mr. and Mrs. Backhaus are members of the Presbyterian Church.

James Dickson, gardener, stands 56 and 57
Market street, Pittsburgh, was born in April, 1823, on Prince Edward island, son of William and Jane (Patterson) Dickson. His father was born in Scotland. He was a carpenter by trade and died Oct. 21, 1875, aged eighty-four years; his mother died Helen James was but six years old. James came to Pittsburgh with his parents in July, 1822, and when he was ten years of age he came to Neville island, where he has since resided, and became the heaviest shipper of garden-produce on the island. He was married, in 1842, to Mary, a daughter of David and Mary (Gibbs) Hamilton, natives of Pennsylvania, town of the mountains. Her father died in 1854, aged eighty-two years; her mother was born in Carlisle, Pa., in 1773, and died in 1855. Her grandparents were of Irish descent, and on coming to this county opened a farm where East Liberty now is. Eleven children have been born to Mr. and Mrs.
Dickson: William, David, John, Algernon
Bell, Finley Smith, Mary Ann (Mrs. A. P.
Cole), Jennie P. (Mrs. Robert Hayes), Elizabeth (Mrs. Alexander Phillips), Emma J.
(Mrs. William Parker), Maggie Lavina (at home) and Wilson Jay Carnahan. The eldest three boys are married. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Dickson is one of the principal leaders and supporters. He has twenty-five grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and a death has never occurred among his children or grandchildren. He is a member of the F. & A. M., of which he says he has attained the 42d degree, and all the degrees in I. O. O. F. He is a stanch republican, and has been nine years supervisor, six years school director; was treasurer and collector of the school board for twenty-six years, and still holds the same office. He was a supporter of William Henry Harrison. He has been successful in business and has a farm of thirty-two acres with two houses.

David Dickson, gardener, Myler, was born on Neville island, Oct. 13, 1852, son of James Dickson. He received his education in the schools at home, and at the age of twenty-one was employed by Hostetter & Smith, manufacturers of the Hostetter bitters. After remaining here four years he went as fireman on the Pan Handle R. R., with the expectation of becoming an engineer; about four months satisfied him of railroading, and returning to the island he purchased Rev. Hazlett's property, being a portion of his father's original farm. He has a stall in the market, where he ships to hotels and country stores the produce of his own farm and that of his father's. He was married at twenty-one years of age to Nellie Turley, of Linden, Pa., daughter of Enoch and Amanda (Shaffer) Turley. One child, Nellie Geneva, blessed this union. This wife died July 26, 1879, and Mr. Dickson afterward married Miss Isabella Kane Brown, April 13, 1882, a native of Pittsburgh, and a daughter of William and Mary Jane (Kane) Brown. Her father died in July, 1879. Her maternal grandparents were Samuel and Isabella Kane. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Dickson: Laura Bell, Edna Gertrude, Ethel Brown and Elsa Louise. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and the R. A. He is a republican, and has been school director and supervisor of the township.

Edward James Hulings, captain of the steamer Return, postoffice Verona, was born June 21, 1854, at Fairview, this county, son of James and Frances K. (Halstead) Hulings, former of whom was one of the best steamboat pilots on the Allegheny and Ohio rivers, and died about 1855. Edward J. Hulings is the oldest of a family of three children. He received his education at Fairview and in Westmoreland county, and in June, 1864, he began driving horses for the boats from Pittsburgh to Oil City, being one of the youngest drivers before there was as much as a towpath. He afterward ran steamboats and flatboats. He and his brother Harry now own two boats—the Return, which hecommanded, and the Two Brothers, commanded by Harry. One of their principal trades is the transportation of garden-stuff from Neville island to Pittsburgh. Mr. Hulings was married in September, 1882, to Ella J. Gumbert, who was born and reared on River avenue, Allegheny City, daughter of Jerry and Mary (Tranter) Gumbert. Capt. and Mrs. Hulings have two children living: Emma Jane and Mary Frances; Harry James died when he was eight months and fifteen days old. They have four children, and are members of the U. P. Church. He is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of Lawrenceville, and the K. of P., at Verona; he is a republican. He owns a house and several lots at Verona.

William Edward Ott, engineer, postoffice Verona, was born in Lebanon, Pa., in 1831, and his mother, Margaret Ann Wentz, was a native of the same place, daughter of Peter Wentz, of Germany. His father, David, was a son of John Ott, of German birth. William was the youngest of five children, and was reared by a guardian, his father having died when he was an infant. When thirteen years old he set out, barefooted and alone, on the canal towpath for Philadelphia, where he was employed for a time at the trade of his father and grandfather, shoemaking. He was a butcher-boy, and when about sixteen went to Harrisburg and entered the railroad machine-shops. When the shops were built at Altoona he went there, and a year later went to cone-maugh. After firing nine months he was given charge of an engine. For fourteen years he ran a shifter at Pittsburgh, the first shifter on Liberty street, and in 1863 enlisted for three years in Co. B, 46th P. V. He served with the western army from Lookout Mountain to Peach Tree creek, sharing in the battles of Big Sandy, Mission Ridge and Little and Big Kenesaw. Through the influence of Col. Thomas A. Scott he was detailed as locomotive engineer to haul troops from Nashville, and after serving in that capacity a year and a half was wounded by guerrillas, and was discharged from Cumberland hospital for disability. His train was captured and burned, and with the rest Mr. Ott was robbed of his watch and fifty-three dollars in money. Returning to Pittsburgh, he ran the first engine on the W. P. R., from Allegheny to Harmarville, and then returned to his locomotive on the P. R. He operated a shifter for Carnegie Bros. three years, and since 1873 has been with the A. V. R. R., twelve years of the time on an engine. He is now a member of the rodgang in the machine-shop. He is a member of the M. E. Church, A. O. U. W. and G. A. R., and is a republican. In 1851 he married Sarah A. Roadamel, born in Myerstown, Pa., daughter of Peter Roadamel, of England. She is now deceased, and was the mother of eleven children, of whom eight reached maturity: Margaret Ann McElroy, William A. Ott, Andealla W. (Bowden), Francis, D. R. Ott, Emma L. (Frey), Harry C. Ott and Edward Howard Ott.

James Mason, farmer, postoffice Wilkinsburg, son of William and Ellen (Hartley) Mason, was born in Haywood, Lancashire, England, in October, 1824. William was a cotton-manufacturer and surveyor, and gave his son a good common education. When seventeen years old the latter set out for America to learn a trade, and arriving at Pittsburgh took up shoemaking, at which he became a first-class journeyman. He has worked more or less continuously for twenty years, keeping a shop for some time in Pittsburgh. In 1849 he bought land in what is now Penn township, where his home has since been. He was engaged for some time in operating a coal-mine, but now gives his attention mainly to farming. He is liberal in religious ideas, and is a straight republican. In 1846 he married Mary, daughter of Thomas and Ann Davis, of Wales, and they have eight children: Ann (Mrs. Hugh H. Ireland), in Beechmont; Ellen (Mrs. John Mills), in East Liberty; Thomas Davis, in Wilkins; William, in Sandy Creek; James, in Oil City; Mary Jane (Mrs. John McCurdy), in Verona; Edward Joseph, in Mansfield, and Robert, at home.

John P. Mcade, toolmaker, postoffice Verona, was born Sept. 26, 1856, in Penn township, where he was reared and received a fair education. Until 1877 he was employed as a farm-laborer and about the coalworks, but at that time he entered the employ of the Verona Tool-works, where for two years he was helper, and has since had charge of a steam hammer. In 1879 Mr. McDade married Sarah A. Shotts, a native of Armstrong county, of German descent, and their children are: Frederick, Bertha, Annie, Robert and Frank. Mr. McDade has secured a comfortable home by his industry, his property including two acres of land, on which he built a house in 1884. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P. and R. A.; he is a Presbyterian and a republican.

T. L. HUGHES, steamboat-engineer, post-office Groveton. Since 1790 this family have been identified with Allegheny county. William Hughes, at that date, immigrated to this county from New Jersey, his native state, with his wife and children, and purchased nearly five hundred acres in Robinson township. He was remarkable for his great strength and physical endurance. Adam Hughes, his son, was born in 1789, and at the death of his father inherited two hundred of the five hundred acres. He married Margaret Logan, of Chambersburg, Franklin county, Pa., whose parents were of Scotch-Irish descent, and came to Western Pennsylvania in an early day. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hughes, four now living: T. L. (the subject of this memoir, born in 1828), Mary A., Sarah A. and Eliza Jane. T. L. is now the only male survivor of the family. He owns thirty-six acres of the original tract purchased by his grandfather. He was born and reared on a farm, but for the last thirty-five years has followed steamboat engineering on the waters of the Ohio and Mississippi. He married, in 1868, Theresa, daughter of William Jones. He is a Freemason and a republican.

JAMES COLE, gardener, post-office McKee's Rocks, was born Oct. 18, 1825, on Neville island, this county, a son of James Sr., and Elizabeth Cole. James, Sr., and his four brothers, Rufus, Ivery, George and William, came from Maine to this county in 1814, traveling from the lake by wagon, and first stopped in this county in the old stone tavern where the Park House now stands, in the Ninth ward of Allegheny City. These brothers (now deceased) purchased three hundred acres on Neville island, about one-third of the entire island. James, Sr., was a farmer on Neville island until 1832, when he purchased property in Allegheny City and resided until 1843, engaged in general merchandising. In that year his health failed and he returned to his old home on Neville island, where he spent the balance of his life, dying Dec. 6, 1845, at the age of seventy-four years. He was twice married; first to Elizabeth, daughter of Lewis and Eleanor Davis, and she died Jan. 16, 1839, aged thirty-four years, the mother of the following named children: James, Eleanor (wife of James Rafferty) and Lewis. In 1841 Mr. Cole married Mary W. Aubrey, of Allegheny City, who bore him one child. Dr. William D. Cole, is a promising physician in Allegheny City. The subject of this memoir was reared on the old homestead on Neville island. He married, Jan. 16, 1854, Margaret M., daughter of William and Mary Jackman, of Ohio township, this county, and by this union there were three children: Harry A., Mary L. (wife of Samuel Frazier) and Elizabeth D. Mrs. Cole died Aug. 27, 1882, at the age of fifty-six years. Mr. Cole came to Stowe township in 1866, where he purchased thirty acres of land adjoining McKee's Rocks village, and has fitted up a beautiful home. Like his father, he has passed an active, useful life. He was the first justice of the peace on the organization of Neville township.

H. R. LONG, farmer, post-office Mt. Lebanon, was born in Allegheny county, in 1841. James Long, the pioneer of this family, came from east of the Alleghany mountains at an early day and purchased a large tract of land. Born to this early settler were four sons and four daughters. Of these John was born in Allegheny county. He married Annie Gilkenson, who bore him three sons and two daughters. James, the eldest, was born in 1801. He was a blacksmith by trade, and in 1838 married Sarah Richardson, daughter of Hugh and Catherine Richardson, and to them were born two children, of whom our subject is the only survivor. James died in 1846, aged forty-five years. H. R. has always led a farmer's life. He received his education at the public schools and Mt. Lebanon Academy. He was married, in 1872, to Ella J. Lea, daughter of Robert Lea, of this county, and has a family of six children: John R., Sadie Bell, Robert Lea, Annie J., Ella Myrtle and Mary D. Mr. Long owns about 120 acres of land, under a good state of cultivation, which was formerly the James Martin property. He has served his township as auditor. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a democrat.

R. LEWIS ROLLER, manager, West Elizabeth, is a son of J. H. and Mary A. (Rhule) Roller, and was born in Williamsburg, Blair county, Pa., in 1837. He was educated at Lewisburg University, after which he studied law for a year, and then entered the railroad office at Altoona; afterward he was engaged as bookkeeper for the Hollidaysburg Iron and Nail company, of Hollidaysburg, and for Cavett & McKnight, of Pittsburgh. Close application to business having impaired his health, he traveled extensively through the west and south, and finally entered the employ of Joseph Walton & Co., at West Elizabeth, as bookkeeper, a position he held four years, when he was made manager of their immense stores at this place. He married, in 1887, Miss Ida H., daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Smith, of West Elizabeth. Mr. Roller is a member of the Pittsburgh Masonic lodge, and he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church of West Elizabeth, of which he is trustee.

JAMES A. EWING, merchant, post-office Walker's Fork, was born in this county in 1844, and is a direct descendant from Squire James Ewing, the pioneer of the name, who settled in Allegheny county. Alexander, the second of the five sons born to James Ewing, was a farmer, and married Martha Larimer, daughter of James Larimer, becoming the father of ten children. James, the second son, was born in 1803, near the present town of Mansfield, on the farm now owned by Mr. Hodgson. He was by trade a saddler, but on account of ill health abandoned that calling and worked on a farm given him by his father. He married Hannah, daughter of Thomas and Mary Hamminger, of this county, and they had seven children, three of whom are now living: Mary Ann (who died Sept. 14, 1888, in the fifty-fourth year of her age), Patterson (deceased), Martha Jane (now Mrs. Covey), John K. (a soldier, killed at Spottsylvania Court House), Hannah (Mrs. Cherry, now deceased), James A. and Elizabeth J. (now Mrs. Manion). The father of these children died Dec. 26, 1846; the mother Aug. 12, 1888, in the seventy-ninth year of her age. Up to the last she was remarkable for her intelligence and memory, and kind, loving disposition.

James A. was educated at the public schools, and has, since 1866, been engaged in the mercantile business at his present place. The postoffice has been at his store for twenty-two years, during seven of which he has been postmaster. Previous to engaging in his present business he resided with his mother on the farm. They now own one hundred acres, part of the first purchase made by Squire James Ewing. Mr. Ewing is a republican.

J. C. Zwingler, brick-manufacturer, Reynolds, postoffice Hero, son of Henry and Rachel (Hellman) Zwingler, was born in Dravosburg, this county, in 1858. His parents, natives of Germany, on coming to America located in Mifflin township, this county, but their present residence is at Reynolds. They have six children: Elizabeth, Margaret, Kate, Rachel, Conrad and J. C. The last named married, May 24, 1888, Ella A., daughter of William Gerhold, of Castle Shannon, Pa. In 1884 he established the first brick-manufactory in Lincoln township, the firm being Zwingler & Henry. In the beginning they afforded employment to but four men, but a constantly increasing demand for their brick has necessitated a gradual enlargement of their works from year to year, until now (1888) they employ fourteen men, and their works have a daily capacity of 8,000 brick. They have excellent facilities for shipping, both by rail and water.

Samuel W. Shaw, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, son of David and Mary J. (Muse) Shaw, was born in Versailles township, in 1857. Maj. William Shaw, a native of County Down, Ireland, settled on what is known as the Shaw homestead about one hundred years ago. He was married three times, and had a family of nineteen children. His last wife was Mary, daughter of Daniel, son of William, James. Samuel, David, Margaret, Martha, Ann, Nancy and Sarah, all deceased but the last two. David, father of S. W., married, in 1849, Mary J., daughter of Fauntly Muse, of Versailles township, and they located at Saltsburg, where he was engaged in the coal business, the firm being Shaw & Whigham. There they remained six or seven years, and then removed to the farm in Versailles and commenced farming. Their children were Cornelius N. (deceased, and formerly of the Dispatch), Martha C., Minard (deceased), Lizzie S. (now Mrs. John R. Cristy, of Versailles township), S. W., Bell R., Blanche M. and Jennie M. David Shaw died in 1880; his widow still has her residence on the old farm. Samuel W. is engaged in farming, his home being where his forefathers dwelt for one hundred years. He is a member of the U. P. Church of McKeesport.

B. S. Allen, farmer, postoffice Sunny Side, is a son of Bradford and Mary Allen, and a direct descendant of David Allen, one of the pioneers of Forward township, and was born in Washington county in 1848, on the Allen Grove farm. In 1877 he married Miss Mary E., daughter of William and Lucinda Manown, and settled on the place now owned by him in Forward township. They have but one child living, William Alvin. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Monongahela City. Mr. Allen is a democrat.

George W. Weddell, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, son of George and Nancy (Nelson) Weddell, was born in Elizabeth township, this county, in 1812. George Weddell, his great-grandfather, was a native of Germany. He came to America and settled in Elizabeth township in 1738, where he secured the title of four hundred acres of land, and then returned east of the mountains and effected a permanent settlement upon his farm the following spring. The nearest improvement was Rostraver, seven miles distant. The Indians were in force and unfriendly, and often he and his wife were compelled to seek protection in the blockhouse on the opposite side of the river, to reach which they both mounted a horse and swam the river. Their children were Daniel, James, Peter, John, George, Margaret (Mrs. Hammond). Mr. Weddell planned and named after himself a cemetery, in which he and his wife were first to find a burial. Daniel, grandfather of George, and a native of Elizabeth township, married Ella Matier, and their children were George, Peter, John, Daniel and May, who was married to William Cray, all now deceased. George, father of George W., was also a native of Elizabeth township; he married Nancy, daughter of George Nelson, and located on the old homestead; to them were born twelve children, viz.: Ellen (now a resident of West Newton), Daniel (deceased), Nelson (of West Newton), George W., Peter (of Elizabeth township), Jane Boyd, (deceased), John, J. S. (deceased), Mary (deceased), James (of Sewickley township, Westmoreland county), Elizabeth (now Mrs. Brown, of Aarsensburg, Westmoreland.
HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

county), Nancy (McCune) and Rebecca (both deceased). George and his wife died in Elizabeth, and were buried in the old family cemetery.

George W. Weddell was also a native of Elizabeth township, where he was reared and educated, and in 1844 married Maria, daughter of Thomas Douglas, of that town- ship. He was engaged as miller in the W. M. company until 1850, when he bought the old Weddell homestead in Elizabeth, remaining there until 1860, when he sold, and purchased the farm he now owns in Versailles township. He and his wife have a family of seven children, viz.: Thomas Douglas, Dr. Oliver S., David Henry, Sarah Margaret, James Nelson (deceased), Nancy E. Mary Jane (Mrs. Dr. James M. Campbell), and Isaac Jr. Mr. Weddell’s residence is on a prominent point, affording an extended view. He is a republican, and has from time to time been the recipient of political honors. He and his wife are members of the U. P. Church.

James McClintock, farmer, postoffice McKeensport, son of John and Margaret Mc- Clintock, was born in Ireland in 1817. His parents came to America, and located in Alle- geney City in 1822, at which time there was but one store and one hotel there. The first work of John McClintock was quarrying stone for the penitentiary. Later he bought a farm in Pine township, where he and his wife moved and engaged in farming. There they lived and died, his death occurring in 1873 and hers in 1886. Their children were Andrew, James, Margaret, Elizabeth, Aaron, George, Catherine and John (deceased). James McClintock was reared and educated in the common schools of the county, and in 1844 married Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. McConnell, of Bakerstown. They located on a farm in Pine, now Richland, township, remaining until 1864, when he purchased the very desirable farm he now owns in Versailles township. Their children were Andrew M., Elizabeth (deceased), Margaret, Cather- ine, Anna, Drusilla and Mary. Elizabeth was married to Samuel Lockhart, and lived in Pittsburgh until her decease, in October, 1877. Andrew M. married Tillie, daughter of David McKee, of North Versailles town- ship, and they reside on the home farm in Versailles. Mr. McClintock is a democrat, and has been twice supervisor and assessor. He and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

William Perry Owens, mine boss, post- office Turtle Creek, is a native of Wales, born in Caernarvonshire in 1828, and when less than two years old came to America with his parents, William and Eleanor Owens. His father was a stone-mason, and, after dwell- ing for a time in New York and Ohio, settled in this county in 1830. He died in 1857, aged sixty-two, and his wife in 1842, at the age of forty-eight. There were three children born to them. Catharine, the eldest, the widow of Robert Morris, resides at Home- stead, and John, the youngest, died in 1857, aged twenty-four years. William P. began work in a mine before he was ten years old, and is largely self-educated. He is now the possessor of a fine library, and is a progressive citizen. Since 1879 he has been employed by the N. Y. & C. G. C. Co., nearly all the time in his present capacity. In 1850 he married Ann E. Black, who died in 1870, leaving eight children: William, John, Isabella, Frank, Catharine, Eleanor, Sadie and Nettie, of whom are now living John, Sadie and Nettie. In 1871 Mr. Owens married Elizabeth Cramer, who bore him two children: Elizabeth, now living, and Nellie, deceased. The family is associated with the M. E. Church. Mr. Owens is a republican, with strong prohibition tend- encies.

John Decker, grocer, McKeensport, was born in Lorraine, then in France, March 10, 1822, a son of Christopher and Christiana (Buchler) Decker. In 1848 he came to America with his mother and four sisters—Lena, Annie, Catherine and Christiana—and located in Pittsburgh, where they resided sixteen years, and where our subject worked as a molder. In 1861 he entered Co. K, 5th P. V. I., served three years, and was honorably discharged. In 1864 he settled in McKeensport, and was employed in Wood’s rolling-mills until 1889; then embarked in the grocery business, which he has since successfully continued. His wife was Mary N., daughter of Martin Kim, of Pitts- burgh, by whom he has nine children living: Jacob, Frank, Mary, John, Albert, Charlie, Daniel, Joseph and William. Mr. Decker is a member of the German Catholic Church, of the G. A. R., and is a democrat.

I. G. Hickman, farmer and fruit-grower, postoffice McKeensport, was born near Cham- bersburg, Franklin county, Pa., July 13, 1821. His father, Peter Hickman, was born in Northumberland county, and his mother, Christina, in Chambersburg, where they were married in 1811. They reared a family of eleven children, four of whom are living. In 1824, when I. G. was less than three years old, the family removed, and located on a farm in North Versailles township, Allegheny county, his father dying Sept. 5, 1840, and his mother Sept. 28, 1884. After the death of his father. Mr. Hickman purchased the old homestead, on which he now resides; and, by industry, has acquired three other valuable tracts of land in the same neighbor- hood, and lying in the coal and gas belt. In 1844 Mr. Hickman was married to Eliza Jane Brown, of Pittsburgh. Their children num- ber eleven: I. G., of Nebraska; Eliza Jane, deceased; Margaret A., wife of Rev. S. E. Snider, P. E. of Helena district, Montana; Henry J., minister; Wesley C., deceased; Maria J., now Mrs. R. B. Miller; James E., deceased; Mary C., deceased; C. Wiltshire; Edward D., principal of Third ward schools, McKeensport; William Page, deceased, and Robert L., minister. Mr. Hickman is a man of very decided opinions, and has been called upon to represent the township and church in almost every capacity. He has long been a member of the Methodist Church, in which he has been an ardent worker. His first vote was cast in favor of the Republican party; he has voted with the Republican party from its organization until recently, when he became identified with the prohibition party, owing to convictions on the temperance question.

ALEXANDER E. TRICH, contractor, McKeesport, was born in Somerset, Pa., Oct. 9, 1820, a son of John and Elizabeth (Gordon) Trich, natives of Philadelphia, and early settlers of Somerset county. He came to McKeesport in 1836, and learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed twenty-five years, and for twenty-five years since has done business as a contractor and builder and a raiser and mover of buildings. He served in the civil war, enlisting in September, 1861, in Co. I, 63d P. V.; re-enlisted, and was transferred to the 105th regiment. He received a shell-wound in his right leg, below the knee, in front of Petersburg, and was honorably discharged in June, 1865, at Beverly hospital, near Philadelphia. He married, in 1840, Ann E., daughter of Vincent and Elizabeth (Kirkland) Neville, of McKeesport, by whom he had the following children: William (deceased), John, Lizzie (Mrs. William Small), Marion, Albert, Emma (Mrs. John Lanning) and Frank. Mr. Trich has been a member of the Baptist Church forty years; is a member of the G. A. R.; has served one term in McKeesport council, and is a republican.

J. W. GREAVES, merchant, Wilkinsburg, was born Oct. 14, 1868, near Oldham, England, to Cornelius and Ann (Butterworth) Greaives. When he was six years old his parents immigrated to America, and his father was employed in the coal-mines above McKeesport. At the public schools of that region our subject acquired the first rudiments of an English education, and when twelve years old he began work in the mines. By attending night schools he fitted himself for the transaction of business, and in 1880 was employed as salesman in a store at Dravosburg. In this and other general or "company" stores—being for three years employed by W. M. Scott & Co.—he acquired that practical mercantile knowledge which has made his own business a success. A trip to Europe in 1885 gave him a glimpse of the world, broadened his ideas, and made him acquainted with his native place. In March, 1888, he purchased a grocery business near Brushton, to which he is adding a dry-goods stock. Mr. Greaives is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Wilkinsburg; he is a republican.

JAMES GORMLEY, contractor, 194 Steuben street, Pittsburgh, was born in Ireland, in 1836, a son of Hugh and Stella Gormley. He immigrated to Canada in 1844, and in 1846 came to Allegheny county, Pa., where he has since resided. For many years he has followed teaming, which he has developed into an extensive business, taking large contracts for pipe-lines, railroads, etc. In 1852 he married Mary, daughter of John and Maria Barr, and by this union there are four children: Maria J. (wife of Robert Lockhart), Annie B. (wife of Albert Wettengale), James T. and Mary E. (deceased). Mr. Gormley started in life with an empty purse, having only ten cents in his pocket when he reached this county, but has gradually risen to be one of the most substantial men, financially, in Chartiers township.

JOSEPH B. LAWSON, merchant, postoffice Crafton, a son of Joseph and Nancy Lawson, was born in Delaware county, in 1834, and settled where he now resides, in Chartiers township. His father, Joseph Lawson, married, in Ireland, Nancy Calderswood, and came to this country in 1812. They have four children: Isabella (deceased), Thomas (deceased), Mary (wife of James McKnight) and Joseph B. The father died in 1836, at the age of eighty-nine years, and the mother in 1849, at the age of ninety-one years. They were members of the Presbyterian Church. Joseph B. Lawson followed farming until 1858, when he engaged in various other pursuits. He was assessor of Chartiers township, and during the war was three years in the revenue department as collector and assessor. In 1872 he took charge of a general store for his son, which he has managed ever since. He married, in 1846, Tamar Hodgson, daughter of Samuel and Mary Hodgson, and their children are Samuel (married to Mary E. Johnson), Mary (deceased) and Isabella (deceased).

ALBERT JOHN ENDSLEY WILSON, carpenter, Avalon, was born Sept. 18, 1838, in Franklin township, this county, a son of Robert and Martha A. (Roe) Wilson, natives of this county, former of whom was by trade a carpenter. The father died Sept. 2, 1860, aged thirty-two years, and the mother Nov. 7, 1881, aged forty-seven years. The family moved to the city of Allegheny about 1850, where Albert J. E. was given an education in the Sixth ward schools. At the age of seventeen he learned the trade of carpentering, and afterward that of broom-making, but has followed the former. He was married, Dec. 7, 1882, to Hannah Pace, a native of England, and daughter of George and Sarah Pace, former of whom died when she was young, and latter came to Pittsburgh. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Wilson: Albert John Endsley, Sadie May and Cyrus William. Mr. Wilson was reared in the M. E. Church, of which his parents were members; in politics he is an independent republican, and is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and Carpenters' Union. He lived in the city of Allegheny until October, 1888, when he removed to his new residence at West Bellevue.

JOHN SCHAFFER, gardener, Shaler township, was born Aug. 1, 1826, in Hessen-Nassau, Germany. He came to America at the age of twenty-four, worked four years in Collins township, now Eighteenth ward of Pittsburgh, where he married Elizabeth Richter, a native of Germany. He went into the gardening business in 1835, and occupied a vegetable-stand in Pittsburgh market for thirty-four years. Mr. and Mrs. Scharf have four children: John M. and Henry V., who are in the seed and implement business at No. 59 Ohio street, Allegheny, Pa., and Netty and Mary. The family are members of the G. E. Church.

John Siebert, broker, Etna, was born Oct. 28, 1842, in Hitzeroode, Kurhessen, Germany, a son of William and Catharine (Dietrich) Siebert. William was a native of Schollenhausen, and came to America when John was two years of age. He was a stonemason and contractor, a business he followed in Etna, where he lived for many years. He and his wife were parents of seven children, all living. Of these John was educated here, and in the west he learned engineering. After an absence of seven years he returned to Pennsylvania, where he was engaged in the oil business for fifteen years. He is now operating in the Oil Exchange, and resides in Etna. He married Bertha, daughter of John Eiseugart. Mr. Siebert is a member of the G. A. R., the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F. and K. of P. In 1861 he enlisted in Co. C, 10th P. R., and served three years. He participated in all the battles of the Potomac, serving the last eight months in Battery D, 5th U. S., on detached duty. He is a republican.

David George, farmer, postoffice Dixmont. His grandfather settled near Turtle Creek, this county, in an early day, and had many adventures with the Indians. His son, John, father of David, was born here in 1800, and died Sept. 11, 1885. In 1828 the father removed to Ohio township, and in 1837 purchased one hundred acres of land, on which he settled, and where David still resides. John George was married three times, his first wife being Sarah Marshall, the second Mary Clugston, who became the mother of six children: Joseph (deceased), David, Maggie, Rachel (deceased), Mary, and an infant (deceased). Maggie married W. H. Brown, and they have one child, Charles; Mary married Josiah Minnich, and they have one child, Mary H. The third wife of John George was Esther Little, by whom he had three children—an infant (deceased), Alexander and John (deceased). John George was a man of strong convictions, and exhibited many traits of the hardy pioneer.

Phillip Hassinger left Germany in 1819 and came to America with his wife and six children. They were the parents of twelve children, only six of whom, four sons and two daughters, grew to maturity. Phillip came to Pittsburgh, and resided on a farm where the town of Etna now is (which was formerly Indiana township), where he remained one year; then rented a farm from John Miller, Esq., of the same township, where he remained for six years. He next purchased from James Ross, at a dollar an acre, 240 acres of land situated in Indiana township. Phillip was a wagon-maker by trade. Phillip, the oldest son, never married; he inherited one hundred acres of his father's land, which, at his death, Sept. 30, 1870, reverted to his brothers and sister. Jacob, the second son, born in 1804, was a blacksmith by trade, and married Mary Richard, by whom he had ten children, six of whom are yet living. Jacob died in 1884, aged eighty years. George, the third son, a wagon-maker by trade, also a farmer, married Elizabeth Patton, who bore him six children, four of whom are living. Henry, the youngest son, married Eliza Marshal, who became the mother of ten children, three of whom are living. Henry died in 1886. He was by trade a blacksmith, and later a farmer. He owned forty-five acres of land, and resided on the old homestead; his widow survives him. Henry Hassinger is the oldest one of the name in the township. This family were members of the G. L. Church, and the men have all been democrats.

William H. Crider, watchman, postoffice Ross, was born Aug. 13, 1840, in Jefferson county, Pa. His grandfather, Henry Crider, a native of Lancaster county, Pa., of German descent, came to Allegheny county in an early day, and settled in Ross township, where he purchased 106 acres of land. He died aged seventy-eight years. He was twice married, and his children by his first wife were John, Joseph, Sarah and Mary. His second wife, see Rebecca McKnight, became the mother of eight children: David, Matilda, Jane, Rebecca, George, Alexander, Henry and Barbara. Of these, David, a blacksmith, married Jane Mahaffy, and their union was blessed with ten children, of whom William H. is the eldest. He learned the machinist's trade, but is now a watchman on the P. & N. R. R. During the civil war he was in Co. B, 56th Ill. V. I.; contracted a chronic disease while in the service, and now draws a pension. He married Ella B. Smith, of Pittsburgh, and they have six children: Harry P., Matilda, Harriet M., David H., R. Hays and David. Mr. Crider is a democrat.

C. F. Kentzel, gardener, postoffice West View, was born Dec. 12, 1851, in Ross township, a son of Charles and Christine (Razer) Kentzel, natives of Alsace, Germany. His parents emigrated to America in 1840, and settled in Allegheny, where the father worked on the canal. Later he bought thirty acres of land, to which C. F. (our subject) added, in 1887, twenty-five acres, and was engaged successfully in gardening. His wife disposed of their garden-produce in the Allegheny market for forty-six years. The father had been a soldier in Louis Philippe's chasseurs at Peronne, and was a very tall, powerful-looking man. He died in April, 1885, aged eighty-two years; his widow still survives him. The family were the first charter members of the Lutheran Church, and took an active interest in church work.
C. F. Kentzel married Christine L. Dietsch, a native of Allegheny, of German descent, and they have four children: Charles J., Harry M., Herbert F. and Clara C. Mr. and Mrs. Kentzel are Lutherans.

John Kenning, carpenter, Bellevue, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., in January, 1837, a son of Samuel and Margaret (White) Kenning, natives of County Derry, Ireland. His father moved to Allegheny in 1845, where he was boss in a rolling-mill; he died in 1859, aged forty-one years, a member of the First Christian Church. The mother resides in Allegheny City. At the age of thirteen years Mr. Kenning left school and learned the carpenter's trade, which he has since followed. Oct. 8, 1861, he enlisted in Hampton's battery, first known as the 1st Maryland battery, and afterward as the Pennsylvania battery. He served until Oct. 1864, and was in the battles of Winchester, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and second Bull Run. He was married in March, 1865, to Jennie Forrester, a native of Bellevue, and daughter of Hugh and Nancy (Ferguson) Forrester (see sketch). They have six living children: Nannie, Bert, Madge, Jessie, Elsie and Kate. The family are members of the U. P. Church; Mr. Kenning is a member of a Day Spring Lodge, No. 499, I. O. O. F., and is a republican.

John Grau, grocer, Sharpsburg, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., in 1860, a son of Conrad and Margaret (Polester) Grau, natives of Germany, who immigrated to America in 1854. He received a common-school education at Etna, and early in life commenced work in the iron-mills at that place, in which he continued until 1886, when he commenced his present business at corner of Middle and Thirteenth streets, Sharpsburg. Mr. Grau married, in 1884, Barbara, daughter of John Fug, of Allegheny county, and two children have been born to them: Bertha and Margaret. Mr. Grau is a member of the Mystic Chain, Jr. O. U. A. M., and of the Lutheran Church; he is a republican.

Lewis Walthour, watchman for the P., McK. & Y. R. R., McKeesport, was born in what is now Manor Station, Westmoreland county, Pa., Sept. 10, 1828, a son of Stofel and Catharine (Drum) Walthour. His paternal grandfather, Casper Walthour, was a native of Sweden, a farmer by occupation, and a pioneer of Westmoreland county. In 1785 he erected a gristmill on Brush creek, near Manor Station, which is still used for milling purposes, and is said to be the oldest gristmill in Western Pennsylvania; it has never been out of the Walthour family, and has changed owners but twice since its erection. Casper was a large land-owner, and received the first title from the government of a tract in Allegheny county reaching from the river's edge to the top of the ridge. Mr. Allegheny reared a large family, of whom Stofel, father of Lewis, and a Miller by trade, resided in Westmoreland county until his death. Our subject was reared in his native county, and began life as a brakeman on the P. R. R. He was for several years an engineer on the P. & C. R. R., and acted in the same capacity for the A. V. R. R. thirteen years. At present he is in the employ of the P., McK. & Y. R. R. Mr. Walthour first located in McKeesport in 1851; he returned in 1862, remained until 1865, and since 1880 has been a permanent resident of this city. He is the owner of valuable real estate, and has erected several substantial tenement-houses. His wife, E. J., is the daughter of John Probst, of Greensburg, Pa., and by her he has one son, William B. Walthour, now a resident of Verona. Mr. Walthour is a member of the C. P. Church; in politics he is a republican.

S. D. Monnus, photographer, Sharpsburg, was born in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1865, a son of Thomas Morris, who came to America when twenty-four years of age, from South Wales. Our subject came to Allegheny county when a mere child, and secured an education, partly by his own energy and by the hard work of his mother. At thirteen years of age he commenced the study of drawing, which he has since successfully followed, and has received instruction from prominent masters. He is skilled at all kinds of crayon and water-color work, and makes a specialty of photography and portraits. He married, in 1885, Emma, daughter of William Cooper. Mr. Morris is a member of the Mystic Chain, Jr. O. U. A. M. and I. O. of H. He attends Grace Church, of Sharpsburg, and is a republican.

Enoch T. Hunt, foreman National Tubeworks company, McKeesport, is a native of Baltimore, Md., where he was reared, educated, and learned the machinist's trade in the shops of Poole & Hunt. He afterward worked as journeyman in Philadelphia and Reading fourteen months, and in 1852 located in Pittsburgh. He worked nine years in the machine-shops of the P. R. R. Co., and for years held the position of foreman in their roundhouse. In 1865 he located in McKeesport, where he was manager of the Pittsburgh & McKeesport Car and Locomotive works for eleven years. During the years 1878, 1879 and 1880 he was employed in the foundry of R. J. May & Co., of McKeesport, and eight months was employed in Scottsdale. In 1881 he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company as machinist, in which capacity he served for two years. He was then appointed foreman of the boiler-shop, which position he has since filled.

Robert Patterson, farmer, postoffice Duquesne, was born Oct. 15, 1829, in Mifflin township, this county. His grandfather, Robert Patterson, a native of Ireland, settled first east of the mountains, and afterward in Mifflin township, where he followed the weaver's trade. He was also one of the pioneer schoolteachers. His wife, Isabella, was the daughter of Capt. Brisbin, a revolutionary hero. She had eight children: Mary, Elizabeth, Nancy, Jane, John, James, Samuel and William. Of these John was a farmer, and died near Pittsburgh, aged sixty years; his wife, née Mary Oldfield, was the mother of seven children: Eliza, Isabella, Robert, John, Mary, Nancy and George. The subject of this memoir was educated in his native county, where he has been a farmer all his life. The old farm consisted of 150 acres, of which he has yet one hundred, situated between the new steelworks and the glass-factory. He married Priscilla, daughter of John McCaslin, and she died Oct. 29, 1875, the mother of four children: Mrs. Mary Risher, Mrs. Sarah Ruth, Mrs. Fannie Risher and Bessie V. Mr. Patterson has taken an active interest in church work, and was formerly elder of the Presbyterian Church; politically he was a Whig, and since a Republican.

J. C. Crawford, farmer, postoffice Duquesne, was born Feb. 6, 1829, on the old Crawford homestead, in Millinn township, this county, which was formerly known as the John McKeen farm, and which was bought by grandfather George Crawford, who lived and died in Westmoreland county. George was born east of the mountains, of Scotch-Irish parentage, and willed the whole property to his son, John Crawford, who lived on the farm until 1831, when he died, aged twenty-nine years. His widow, Jane (Chambers) Crawford, the mother of our subject, returned to Westmoreland county, where she married Robert Paul. Her daughter, Mrs. Jane C. Orr, resides in Clarion county, Pa. J. C. Crawford was reared by his grandfather, William Chambers, of Westmoreland county, and subsequently came to this county. Nov. 9, 1859, he married Tillie J. Wigham, a woman of more than ordinary ability, daughter of Robert W. Wigham. She became the mother of seven children, viz.: John W., Tillie J., James S., George T., Annie E., Edwin R. and Jordan S. Mrs. Crawford died April 29, 1890, a devout wife and mother. The Crawford family were Presbyterians in religion, in politics democrats. Mr. Crawford yet owns ninety acres of the home place, having sold some land to the Howard Plate Glass works at Duquesne.

Joseph Kennedy, farmer and gardener, postoffice Duquesne, was born Sept. 9, 1830, in Indiana county, Pa., a son of David and Catharine (Snyder) Kennedy, of German descent. They reared four children: John (deceased), Mrs. Elizabeth Carson, Joseph and David. The last named served in the 103d P. V., under Gen. McClellan, and died in the service. The father was for many years superintendent of a coal-mine at Hanging Rock, Ohio, and died at Portsmouth, same state, aged over seventy years. The subject of this memoir married, in Pittsburgh, Priscilla, daughter of Joseph H. and they have eleven children: Joseph B., David W., Annie M., Catharine J., William H., Charles A., Lillie P., John C., Fannie B., Frank E. and Anirles W., of whom two have died. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy are members of the M. E. Church, of which he is trustee and steward, and superintendent of the Sunday-school. He is a republican. Mr. Kennedy has a farm of forty-seven acres, having sold twenty-nine acres to the new steel-mill, thus being the first to encourage the starting of that enterprise and the consequent founding of Duquesne.

William John Bartley, brick manufacturer, Verona, was born Nov. 27, 1835, in that part of Butler township now called Jefferson. His grandfather, James Bartley, came from Ireland and settled on a farm in Butler county, and his parents, Thomas and Margaret (Welsh) Bartley, were born in Pennsylvania. In 1846 Thomas Bartley moved to Allegheny City, and engaged in the manufacture of brick in and about Pittsburgh. During part of that time he lived on the farm. In 1871 he was struck by a locomotive on a crossing, and died from the effects of his injuries, aged sixty-two. His wife had died a year previously, at the same age. Four of their five children now reside near Pittsburgh, as follows: James C., W. J., Margaret A. (Hays) and Sarah J. (Wylie). Bethiah, the eldest, died when seventeen. W. J. Bartley received a fair education, and when out of school, at eleven years of age, began helping in his father's brickyard. In 1862 he joined Co. F, 139th P. V., and served with the Army of the Potomac from the battle of Antietam to the close of the war, including the Shenandoah campaign. He remained with his father until his death, and came to Verona in 1875, taking charge of his present yard, which he bought after the death of the owner, in 1874. He makes nearly a million of brick per year. Mr. Bartley is associated with the U. P. Church, G. A. R. and R. A., and is a republican; is at present a member of the borough school board. In 1869 he married Lida J., daughter of Thomas and Mary Hilliard, of Irish descent. The old couple have seven children: William M., Charles Edwin and Jennie Cochran. His present wife, Mollie Yarnell, is the mother of an infant daughter—Blanche E.

Charles Lockhart McVicker, machinist, postoffice Verona, is a grandson of James McVicker, who came from Ireland to this country about one hundred years ago. James, son of the latter, married Emily Boss, born in St. Louis. Daniel Boss, father of Emily, was of Irish descent, born in West Virginia, and served through the war of 1812 and the Mexican war. James McVicker, Jr., was the captain of a volunteer fire company in Allegheny City many years ago, operating the first hand engine there, known as the "Uncle Sam." He was also captain of the night-policeman for many years, and a candidate for the office of Superintendent of Public Works. He served three years in the 9th P. R., participating in all the hardships and engagements of the Army of the Potomac, going in as a private and rising to the rank of captain.
He was engaged in the battles of Gettysburg, Antietam, Bull Run, Fredericksburg, Gainsville, Lookout Mountain, the Seven Days' fight, and others. All of his sons who were old enough for service were also in the Union army: William B., in the three-months service; James, in the signal corps; George R., in Knapp's heavy artillery.

C. L. McVicker was born April 3, 1890, in Allegheny City. He attended the public school, and worked at plastering with his father. When eighteen years old he took up his present trade. For nine years he has been employed in the Allegheny Valley shops, during the last three years as foreman of erecting gang. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Hoboken; a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M. and K. of P. Politically he is a republican. In 1883 he married Lyda M. Dickson, who was born at Bakerstown. Her parents, John S. and Anna B., were born in Richland township and Allegheny City. Samuel Hazlett, father of Mrs. Dickson, was born in Ireland, and now resides in East Deer township, aged one hundred and three. He came to this country in 1808. Mr. McVicker's only child is named James West.

WALTER FOSTER, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, son of Samuel D. and Martha (McCollough) Foster, was born in Versailles township, in 1883, on the farm he now owns. His grandfather, Alexander D. Foster, a native of Ireland, immigrated to America, and settled in Allegheny, near the line of Washington county, in 1798. He had following-named children: Alexander (now of St. Anthony, Minn.), Samuel D. (deceased), John (deceased), Walter (now a resident of Pittsburgh), David (of Mansfield), Sarah (now Mrs. William Forsyth; her husband was formerly a deputy sheriff of the county). A. D. Foster died March 14, 1849, in his seventy-seventh year, and was buried in McKeesport and Versailles cemetery. Samuel D. Foster was reared and educated in Washington county. He married Martha McCollough, and located on the farm now owned by Walter, fifty-five years ago. They reared a family of five children: John (now in the lumber trade at Leavenworth, Kan.), Alexander (a resident of McKeesport), William (deceased), Walter, and Sarah (now Mrs. Samuel Stewart, of Versailles township). Walter Foster married, in 1882, Susan, daughter of Samuel Stewart, of Versailles township, and located on the old homestead. He engaged in farming and well-drilling, his father having opened a coal-mine, which he operated successfully, and Walter still pursues that business. Their children are A. D. (married and on the old homestead), Laura E. (now Mrs. Samuel McClure), and Harry (now studying medicine). Mr. and Mrs. Foster are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

JOHN HOFFMAN, farmer, postoffice Castle Shannon, was born June 8, 1894, on the Rhine, Bavaria, Germany, a son of John and Mary Ann (Kline) Hoffman, who had four sons and four daughters. Of these Daniel, Mrs. Barbara Klump and John immigrated to America, where Daniel was killed on the railroad. When John was only ten years of age his father died, and when older he became apprenticed to a damask-weaver (at that time the weaving was all done by hand and was considered quite an art, there being only three masters of it in the province of Rhein Phaltz). He worked eight years and became a skillful hand. During the revolution of 1848 he came to America, and in New Jersey worked on a farm a short time. The following year he came to Pittsburgh, and for twelve months operated a brewery, after which he turned his attention to teaming, carrying water to the people on the South Side at twelve and a half cents per hogshead. Subsequently he became a successful farmer, and at present is in possession of three farms containing 122 acres of land. He married, April 14, 1859, Catherine Fox, daughter of George Fox, and their children were Catherine (deceased), Mary M. (deceased), John D., Henry (deceased), Charlie, George, Mrs. Katie Mathew and Mrs. Carrie McAmuly. Of these John D. is married to Anna B., daughter of John Knapp, a shoe-dealer, of South Side; Charlie is married to Ettie, daughter of Henry Streng, farmer, of Baldwin township. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman are members of the G. P. Church; he is a democrat.

WILLIAM WILDS, gardener, postoffice Carrick, was born June 13, 1852, on the old homestead, a son of Michael and Margaret (Miller) Wilds, natives of Alsace, France. Shortly after their marriage his parents immigrated to America and settled in Allegheny county, where the father followed gardening, opposite the dam. Later he purchased a farm in Baldwin township, where he continued gardening, being among the first in that line of business in the suburbs of Pittsburgh. He and his wife died on the farm. They were active members of the Lutheran Church, and he was one of the leading factors in having the first church of that denomination erected on Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, and other churches. Their children were Jacob, Mrs. Caroline Graff and William. The subject of this memoir followed in his father's footsteps, and is a successful gardener; also carries on horticulture. He owns a farm of twenty acres. June 10, 1874, Mr. Wilds married Elizabeth, daughter of John May, and their children are Margetta B., Milvina, William, Royland, Charles F., Theodore, Carrieina. Mr. and Mrs. Wilds are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and is a republican.

ROBERT F. JOHNSON, farmer, postoffice Mansfield Valley, was born in this county in 1837. His father, Robert Johnson, was native of Ireland, born in 1794. He came to America July 7, 1818, landing in Baltimore, where he remained a short time. He was by trade a weaver, but did not follow that business long in America. He moved to Pittsburgh and thence to Cecil township, Washington county, where he opened a grocery-store, which he conducted for thirty-seven years, and was at the same time extensively engaged in the purchase of wool. He married Jane Moss, and by her had four children, three of whom are now living. After her death he married Jane Ledlie, daughter of Joshua and Lutricia (Manelye) Ledlie, and to them was born one child, Robert F., our subject. Mr. Johnson purchased the farm now owned by his son in 1859, on which was for many years a hotel; it contained 120 acres. He died in 1883; his widow, an estimable lady, aged seventy-six years, resides on the farm. Robert was educated at the public schools, and owns the property which he superintends, and resides with his mother. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

SAMUEL HAUSDENSHIELD, farmer, post-office Green Tree, was born in this county, a son of John Hausdenfield, who, when nine years of age, came with his parents from Switzerland to America. Samuel, the pioneer of this family, was an iron-worker, and later in life purchased a farm in Scott township, where he resided until his death, in 1868, when he was seventy-nine years of age. John was reared on a farm, and in 1854 purchased twenty-seven acres of land in Scott township, on which he resided and worked with profit until his death. He married Sabina Prager, of German birth, and by her had six children, five of whom are now living, and whose names and dates of birth are as follows: Samuel, 1859; John, 1861; Jacob, 1863; Charles, 1865, and William, 1868. The father of these children died June 10, 1882, aged sixty-two years. His wife died in 1887, aged forty-eight years. The family are members of the G. R. Church. Mr. Hausdenfield is a farmer.

ELIZA, MARGARET and WILLIAM WILSON, children of Samuel and Mary (Allison) Wilson, were born in Jefferson township, on the farm now owned by them. Their father, who was born in 1797, in Chambersburg, Franklin county, Pa., came to Allegheny county and married and settled on the farm now owned by their children. They are all living except an infant. Their grandfather and grandmother came from over the mountains; the latter was born in Dauphin county, which was probably the birthplace also of the former. They settled where the present owners enjoy a delightful residence, and their children were William, Elizabeth, Hannah, Mary and Susan (all now deceased).

MARY C. SCOTT, post-office Coal Valley, daughter of Adam Siple (a native of Germany), who was born in 1842, in McCandless township, where her father settled oncoming to this country. Adam Siple married Anna E. White, of Allegheny county, and they were the parents of three children: Lewis, Eva and Mary C. Mary C. in 1872, married Josiah Aber, of Jefferson township, and they settled on the farm she now owns. He died Feb. 14, 1881, leaving three children: Anna L., Mary E. and Ida May. Mrs. Mary C. Aber was married, in 1885, to David Scott, who is now engaged in farming, and they have one child.

JAMES PURDY, farmer, post-office Clinton, was born on the old homestead farm of his father and grandfather, adjoining his present farm, in Findlay township, this county, Sept. 28, 1836, a son of Thomas and Margaret (Cavit) Purdy. The latter was born in North Fayette, March 2, 1812, daughter of George and Nancy (Turner) Cavit. George Cavit was a son of Patrick Cavit, a native of Ireland, and a Scotch Presbyterian. James Purdy, grandfather of James, was born in Ireland, and came to Lancaster county, Pa., where he married, and in 1807 moved with his family to Robinson township, Allegheny county. About 1814 he came to Findlay township, where he and his wife lived and died. He was in the war of 1812, and died about 1822. He and his wife had six sons and four daughters: James, Archibald, Andrew, John, Farmer, Thomas, Jane (married to Henry Ewing), Isabelle (married to James Leiper), Elizabeth (married to William Sterling), and Mary (married to William Richmond). Of these Farmer and Mary are living. Thomas was born in May, 1808, and died in March, 1882. He and his wife had seven sons and four daughters, all living: Nancy (wife of James M. Ewing), James, George C., John, William F., Mary J. (married to Andrew McCleaster), Margaret E., Isabella, Thomas H., and Andrew J. and Samuel H. (twins). James married, Feb. 11, 1869, Elizabeth Burns, who was born in Hanover township, Washington county, Pa., daughter of William and Harriet (Saxon) Burns. In 1873 Mr. Purdy settled on his present farm. He and his wife have five children: Thomas B., William W., Joseph L., Mary J., and Margaret. Margaret was born Aug. 22, 1861, Mr. Purdy enlisted in Co. F, 46th P. V. I., and served three years. He was at Winchester, Va., Cedar Mountain, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Atlanta campaign, Peach Tree Creek, Dallas and Pumkin Vine creek, and after the war returned to his present farm, where he has since resided. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy are members of the U. B. Church at Clinton.

ARCHIBALD A. PURDY, farmer, post-office Clinton, was born on his farm in Findlay township in August, 1888, a son of Andrew and Anna (Leiper) Purdy, latter of whom was born in Beaver county, Pa., a daughter of James and Anna Leiper. Andrew Purdy was born in Lancaster county, Pa., and was a son of James and Mary (Farmer) Purdy, who came to Robinson township, Allegheny county, in 1807, and in 1814 to Findlay township. James Purdy was born in Ireland, and immigrated to Lancaster county, where he married. He was in the war of 1812, and died about 1822. Andrew Purdy and wife were members of the Seceders' Church, of which he was an elder. They had a family...
GENEALOGY AND BIOGRAPHY.

645.

of five sons and four daughters, viz.: Rev. James L. (deceased), Mary A., John, Agnes (widow of James Wilson), William, Andrew, Jane (wife of Alexander Eaton), Margaret (wife of Robert Andrews, M. D.) and Archibald M. The last named married, Dec. 31, 1867, Ella A. Withrow, who was born at Frankfort Springs, Beaver county, Pa., a daughter of Joseph and Phoebe (Floyd) Withrow. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy are members of the U. P. Church at Clinton, of which Mr. Purdy is an elder. He and his wife have seven children: Kate M., Anna L., Linnie J., Jessie A., Herbert B. K., Lella A. and Andrew Franklin. In August, 1882, Mr. Purdy enlisted in Co. K, 139th P. V. I.; was in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, St. Mary's Heights, the Wilderness and Peters burg; was with Sheridan in the Shenandoah valley, and afterward at the closing battles of Peters burg and Richmond; was in the forts in the defense of Washington, D. C., and at Gettysburg. He owns a fine farm of 186 acres, and ranks among the leading citizens.

S. E. Harrison, merchant, postoffice Bakerstown, is a son of John and Julia Harbison, of Butler county, where he was born in 1845. He was educated at the public schools; also at Duff's Commercial College, Pittsburgh, and for eleven years engaged in teaching school. He then followed farming until 1885, when he moved to Bakerstown, purchased a stock of general merchandise of F. B. McMillan, and built his present store. In 1873 he married Margaret S., daughter of John Caldwell, of West Deer township, and they now have five living children: Minnie, Belle, Frank, Clarence and George, all at home. Mr. Harbison is one of the school directors of the township. He and family are members of the U. P. Church of Glade Run, Butler county.

C. Baeuerlein, brewer, postoffice Bennett Station, was born Sept. 23, 1846, in the old Fifth ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Adam Baeuerlein, who was born July 5, 1815, in Bavaria, Germany, and died May 18, 1874. Adam was a son of Balzer and Margaretta Baeuerlein, and descended from an old family in his native home. He came to America with his widowed mother and her children—Balzer, Adam, John, Johanna, Elizabeth and Anna E.—and they settled in Pittsburgh in 1840. In 1845 Adam married Barbara Lentzner, a native of Saschen-Weinard, Germany, born March 29, 1821. They were members of the Smithfield G. P. Church, and he belonged to the I. O. O. F. In Germany he had learned the brewer's trade, and became prominently interested in that business in Pittsburgh, having erected several breweries, the first one in 1845. The fourth brewery was built in Shaler township, near Bennett Station. Since 1866 his sons and Fred Klussman have continued the business. In 1887 a stock company was formed, of which C. Baeuerlein (our subject) is treasurer. The brewery was formerly known as the Star Brewery; now it is popular as the C. Baeuerlein Brewing company, and is one of the best arranged in the county, its product being second to none. C. Baeuerlein was educated in Pittsburgh, learned the brewer's business with his father, and at present is general manager of the concern. He was married to Mary, daughter of William Bauer, a gardener, and two children—Alice L. and Nellie M.—have been born to them.

George W. Ewalt, farmer, postoffice Gibsonia, is a son of John and Mary (Woodrow) Ewalt. His father was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, and moved into this county about 1833 to live with Samuel, the great-grandfather of our subject. He settled in Lawrenceville in 1839, in which year he was married; he is now living with George W. The mother died in 1884. George W. is the only child, and was born in Lawrenceville, July 4, 1840, and was brought by his parents to his present farm in 1841. He was educated at the public schools, and has since been engaged in farming. In 1865 he married Mary E., daughter of Robert and Eliza Ross Cunningham, of West Deer township, and they have eight children living: Oliver Woodrow, Mary Abbie, Harris Cunningham, John Ross, Eliza E., Robert Cunningham, Adda Lorinda and Lucille Freeman. In 1862 Mr. Ewalt enlisted in Co. D, 139th P. V., serving until the close of the war. He is a member of Col. Clarke Post, No. 102, G. A. R., of Allegheny. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church at Bakerstown.

Franklin Poff, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, is a son of Jacob and Margaret (Wentzel) Poff, natives of Berks county, Pa., where Franklin was born in 1827; he moved to Butler county when nine years of age. In 1850 he came to Hampton township, and has since resided here. He married, in 1845, Barbara Ann Sloap, a native of Germany, who died Sept. 22, 1884, leaving twelve children: William; John; Margaret; wife of Henry McDonald, of Hampton township; Mary, wife of Casper Marks, of Glenshaw; John, of Hampton township; Charles, of Shaler township; Benjamin, of Hampton township; Robert, of Pittsburgh; Harriet, wife of Martin McAlenar, at McKee's Rocks; Thomas and Ellen, at home; Laura, wife of Allen Sheppard, of Allegheny, and Blanche, at home. Mr. Poff was married the second time in Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 20, 1886, to Mrs. Mary Rightmyer, of Reading, Pa., widow of the late Col. James Lawrence Rightmyer, who died June 7, 1867, in Baltimore, Md.; he was connected with the N. C. R. R. Co. for a number of years, up to the time of his death. Mr. Poff has held the office of school director of the township, and he and family are members of the Second Presbyterian Church, of which he was trustee for many years.

Edmund Nottall, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, is a son of Edmund and Lois (Tunstall) Nottall, natives of England, who immigrated to America in 1840, and located in Allegheny City, where the father died in 1846, and the mother in 1850. They left five children: Mary, widow of Joseph Newton, of Dennison, Ohio; Rachel, wife of Samuel Shaw, of Hardin county, Ohio; Richard, of Allegheny; Joshua, of Pittsburgh, and Edmund, who was born in England, April 8, 1837. He came to America with his parents, and was reared and educated in Allegheny. He learned the molder’s trade in the firm of Knapp & Wade, and helped to make the first Lincoln gun that was sent to Fortress Monroe. In 1861 he purchased his present farm, where he has since resided. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. H, 6th P. H. A., and served until the close of the war. In 1861 he married Sarah, daughter of Robert and Isabella (McDonald) Dunlap, of Hampton township, and they have eight living children: Isabella M.; Robert D., who married Lillie, daughter of John Phillips; William, Edmund E., Richard M., Alender P., Loyd C. and Lois, all at home. Mr. Nuttall has held the office of school director of the township for eighteen years, and has been supervisor two years. He and family are members of the U. P. Church at Talley Cavey. Robert Dunlap, father of Mrs. Nuttall, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1776, and in 1800 settled on the farm now owned by our subject. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and died in 1862. Isabella McDonald, who was his third wife, died in 1870. Joseph Dunlap, of Pittsburgh, was her son, and a brother to Mrs. Nuttall. William Dunlap, son of Robert by his first wife, was born on this farm in 1800, and now lives at Cincinnati, Ohio.

C. T. Peterson, J. K. Peterson and G. W. Peterson (firm known as John Peterson & Sons), sons of John and Mary Peterson, were born at Port Perry, this county. Their parents came from New Harrisburg, Ohio, about fifty years ago, and settled at Mineralville, near Pittsburgh; from there, in 1842, moved to Port Perry, and from there to Coal Bluff, Washington county, Pa., in 1853, removing to this place in 1862. Their children were James (now deceased), John (deceased), Elizabeth (now Mrs. Borland, of Monongahela City), William D., who resides near McKeesport; S. S., a resident of Monongahela City; also Charles T., Krcmar and G. W. Peterson, who are extensively engaged in lumber and coal trade, also farming, employing two hundred men. The mother still lives with them, the father having died five years ago.

John Ludwick, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1821, son of John and Eliza (Curry) Ludwick, former of whom was a native of Maryland and of German descent, latter a native of Alleghany, Pa. The paternal grandfather of our subject, was a native of Ireland, and he and his wife were among the pioneers of Versailles township, where they lived and died, and Jacob Ludwick, the paternal grandfather, was an early resident of North Versailles township, where he died; his widow made her home with John Ludwick, Sr., until her decease. Their children were George, Jacob, John, Abram, Adam, Catherine and Elizabeth. John Ludwick, Sr., married Eliza Curry, and located in Westmoreland county, but, having purchased a farm in Versailles township, they Emil both, it in 1828. There were born to them six children, of whom the subject of this sketch was the third. Mrs. Ludwick dying in 1832, Mr. Ludwick afterward married Matilda Craig, and to them were born nine children. Mrs. Ludwick died in 1848, and Mr. Ludwick lived but two years longer. John Ludwick, Jr., remained at home until the death of his parents, and in 1852 married Catherine, daughter of John J. Muse, of Versailles township. They located on the old homestead, where they still reside.

John T. Ludwick, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, son of Joseph and Nancy Jane (Lee) Ludwick, was born in Versailles township in 1856. Jacob Ludwick, his great-grandfather, was a native of Maryland, and his wife of Ireland. They located at an early time in Versailles township, where they lived until his death, after which his widow made her home with John Ludwick until her decease. John Ludwick (whose family record appears elsewhere), grandfather of John T., married and settled in Westmoreland county, and in Versailles township, Allegheny county, in 1828. Joseph, son of John Ludwick, remained with his parents until his father’s death, in 1850, and in 1852 he married Nancy J., daughter of Peter H. Lee, located in Allegheny county, Versailles township, and engaged in farming. They reared a family of seven children, viz.: Mary L., John T., Lizzie E., Maggie, Anthony W., Mira and Joseph. The latter died in 1863, and his widow, in 1868, married Thomas Perkins, to whom were born three children, viz.: Minnie, Ella and William (deceased). Mr. Perkins died Feb. 3, 1875. They were members of the Presbyterian Church. John T. Ludwick is a republican.

Thomas Cruikshank, blacksmith, Brin- ton, son of William Cruikshank, was born in Ireland in 1858. He was nine years old when the family came to America, and received his education in the public schools of this county, meantime learning his father’s trade. In 1861 he opened a shop in Moon township, and in the fall of the next year entered the military service as blacksmith for a brigade wagon-train, being enlisted as a member of Co. B, 4th P. C. He had two narrow escapes in battle; on one occasion his temple was blackened by the fragment of shell; at another time his mustache was cut off by a rifle-ball. He was discharged from service in July 8, 1865; thence he became a blacksmith in Pittsburgh and other places most of the time since. For the past two years he has been employed by his brother, Joel, at Brinon. In 1867 he married Rebecca Langfitt, a native of Hanover, Beaver county, who died in 1867. Her daughters are residents as follows: Sarah Jane (Mrs. William Bell, residing near Cumberland, W. Va.), Mary Hannah (wife of James Swearingen, in Hanover, Beaver county).

Joel M. Cruikshank, the youngest brother of Thomas, was born in Monroeville, Pa., June 8, 1849, and, like his brothers, learned his father's trade, which he has always followed. He is an ardent supporter of the republican party; a member, with his family, of the Lutheran Church. He entered the service of his country at a very early age, going on board the gunboat Gazelle, of the Mississippi squadron, as a marine, in 1864, and was discharged just after reaching the age of sixteen. The vessel was stationed much of the time during the service at the mouth of Red river, and was detailed to convey the rebel generals, Price and Buckner, to New Orleans after the capture. In 1872 Mr. Cruikshank rented a shop at Turtle Creek, and has occupied several different locations in Westmoreland and Armstrong counties. He bought ground at Brinton in 1883, and erected his present residence and shop. In 1871 he was married to Alda Peora Smith, a native of Lewistown, Mifflin county, and by her has the following-named children: Mary Jane, Alda Peora and Roswell Doty.

A. M. Gore, boss roller, postoffice Braddock, was born in Blair county, Pa., in 1839, the eldest of ten children born to John Gore, who for many years was an engineer for the Cambria Iron-works, and now resides in the state of Ohio. A. M. Gore was educated at the public schools in Pittsburgh, and for twenty-seven years has been engaged in the iron business, fifteen years as engineer, and has spent thirteen years at the Edgar Thomson Iron and Steel-works at Braddock. Mr. Gore married, in 1861, Amanda Kooken, and same year enlisted in Co. E, 54th P. V., and for three years two months and four days fought in the defense of his country. He is a republican.

David H. Cunningham, farmer, postoffice Perryville, was born March 10, 1817, on the old homestead in Huntington (now Blair) county, Pa. His father, George Cunningham, a native of Scotland, came to America in 1802, with his wife, Jane Moore, and two children. He took up 218 acres of land, which is still in possession of the family. He was the father of twelve children, all of whom attained maturity, but of the six sons only David H. is now living. Mr. and Mrs. George Cunningham were members of Lebanon Church; politically he was a republican. David H. came to Ross township in 1835, learned the blacksmith's trade with his brother William, and followed it thirty-four years. Subsequently he turned his attention to agriculture, and now owns a farm of 109 acres. He has been twice married, his first wife being Martha, daughter of Robert and Sarah (Hill) Hill of Conewango county, Pa., in 1798; latter was a daughter of William and Jane Dixon. Robert Hillard was a justice of the peace, an elder in the Presbyterian Church for many years, and was 104 years old when he died. To Mr. Cunningham's first marriage five children were born: Alfred, William, Robert, Sarah and Joseph. His present wife is Mary, daughter of William Givan. Mr. Cunningham has been trustee of the Presbyterian Church for twenty years.

Isaac Meanor, farmer, postoffice Imperial, was born in Moon township, Oct. 15, 1837, a son of William and Margaret (Smith) Meanor, natives of this county, and Presbyterians. His great-grandfather, William Bailey, was captured by the Indians near Candor, Washington county, Pa. In 1858 Isaac Meanor went to Henry county, Ill., and worked on and rented farms for five years; then purchased a farm in that county. At the first call for three-months men he enlisted in Co. F, 13th V. I., and later enlisted in Co. F, 99th I. V. I. He was at Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Mission Ridge, siege of Knoxville, Atlanta, and in the various battles in the surrounding of Hood, at Franklin and Nashville, Tenn., and at the close of the war returned to his farm in Henry county, Ill. In 1873 he sold out and came to Findlay township, where, in January, 1883, he purchased his present farm of 155 acres. He married, Feb. 1, 1866, Margaret McAdams, daughter of Alexander and Sarah (Russell) McAdams, former of whom was a son of David and Mary (Bailey) McAdams. David McAdams settled in Findlay township prior to the war of the Revolution, and was a man of prominence and means. Sarah (Russell) McAdams was a daughter of John and Margaret (Bailey) Russell, old settlers of Findlay township. Mr. and Mrs. Meanor have five children: Isaac Orris, Guy W., Frank B., Sam. C. and Karl Hugh. Mrs. Meanor is a Presbyterian. Mr. Meanor is a member of the G. A. R.

John F. Haslett, dairymen, Tarentum, was born in what is now the city of Allegheny, Dec. 18, 1827, son of Samuel and Eleanor (Stark) Haslett. His grandfather Stark was one of the early settlers of the county. Samuel Haslett was born in Ireland, and when a lad of ten years of age came with his parents to America, locating in Lancaster county, Pa.; thence moved to what is now Allegheny; here he was married. In 1837 he removed to West Deer township, where he resided until his death, which occurred Feb. 8, 1859, aged one hundred and three years and eleven months; Eleanor, his wife, died several years since. Their children were Robert, Samuel (deceased), Jane, Martha, Mary, Annie and John. In 1856 John F., our subject, married Miss R. A., daughter of Thomas Watt, of Trumbull county, Ohio; located in West Deer township, this county, and in 1868 removed to Harrison township, where he engaged in farming, and where he now resides. The children are E. J., Nancy G., Emily M., S. B., Bertha C. The family are members of the R. P. Church.
ROBERT GUYTON, farmer, postoffice Perrysville, is a son of John and Elizabeth J. (Hazelett) Guyton. John Guyton, Sr., grandfather of Robert, was a native of Maryland, and among the early settlers of Pine township, this county; he afterward removed to Forest county, where he died. John Guyton was born in what is now McCandless township, in 1810, where he was reared, and always followed farming. He died in 1886; his widow and five of his children survive him: John, in Allegheny; James, and William, on the homestead; Jennie E. (Mrs. Matthias Voegtly), in Ross township, and Robert, the eldest, who was born Feb. 14, 1839. He was educated at the schools of the township, and has always followed farming. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. F, 139th P. V. I., served until the close of the war, and was acting second lieutenant. Robert was married in 1865 to Miss Nancy A., daughter of William and Elizabeth (McBride) Robinson, of Ohio, and they have three living children: John Elmer, Lillie Belle and William R. Mrs. Guyton died in 1888. In 1889 Mr. Guyton was elected justice of the peace, and has since held that office; he has also been school director, and is a member of U. V. L Encampment, No. 6. He and family are members of Hiland Presbyterian Church of Perrysville, of which he is an elder.

W. B. MANOWN, farmer, postoffice Monongahela City, is a son of William and Lucinda (McVay) Manown. William, his grandfather, came from Ireland to this county, and William, the father of W. B., was born on the farm now owned and occupied by his widow, where W. B. was also born. The subject of this commemorative biography married N. J., daughter of Peter and Mary Darr, of Washington county. After marriage they settled on the farm now owned by him, where he still lives. They have three children: Willie, and Nora. Mr. Manown is a democrat.

JAMES N. FINNEY, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of William and Lucinda (Nicholls) Finney. His grandfather, Robert Finney, settled in Elizabeth township at a very early date. Our subject was reared and educated in Elizabeth township, where he resided until 1877, when he removed to Forward township. He married, Dec. 30, 1868, Mary E., daughter of James Wall. He has always engaged in farming: he is a member of the U. P. Church.

JACOB SULLINGER, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of John and Lavina (Judge) Sullinger, natives of York county, Pa., who settled in Little Sweety, Westmoreland county. Their family consisted of sixteen children, all of whom are dead except Jacob, who was born in that place in 1811, and subsequently removed to this county. He is now living with his niece, Mary Sullinger, who is a daughter of Daniel and Mary (Wall) Sullinger. Daniel was born in Westmoreland county, and removed to Forward township. He was proprietor of a fulling-mill for several years, and afterward devoted his attention to farming. He reared a family of four children, and was a member of the Baptist Church.

JOHN LYNCH, farmer, postoffice McKeensport, son of David and Catherine Lynch, was born in Allegheny township, this county, Dec. 17, 1817. Patrick Lynch, his grandfather, was born and married in Ireland, whence he and his wife immigrated to America, locating in Elizabeth township, where they both died. David Lynch, who was a farmer, was born in Elizabeth township, and married Catherine, daughter of John Tillbrook. He had six children, viz.: Ann (deceased), May (deceased), Rebecca (now Mrs. James Biddle), Martha (now Mrs. James Carroll), Eliza (now Mrs. William Biddle) and John. John was reared in Allegheny county, and with the exception of three years has always lived here. In 1852 he married Annie, daughter of Abram Leatherman, and after marriage they located on the farm they now own in Versailles township, where they have since lived. They have three children, as follows: Catherine (now Mrs. Charles Jones), David and Abram. David married Lizzie E., daughter of Joseph Ludwick, in 1882, and they have one child, John Howard. Abram, in 1886, married Myra W., daughter of Joseph Ludwick, and they have one child, Anna Lula; politically the voters in the Lynch family are all republicans.

ADAM SAAM JOHNSTON, carpenter, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in North Huntingdon, Westmoreland county, Pa., April 21, 1824. His parents, James and Mary Ann (Saam) Johnston, were natives of Westmoreland county, and of Irish and German descent. Adam S. was reared on a farm, and took up carpenter-work at the age of eighteen; later he learned the shoemaker’s trade, and alternated these with the changing seasons. In 1850 he married Mary Jane Wood, and bought property in Westmoreland county. In 1855 he sold out and removed to Gibson county, Ind., where his wife died in a few months. He then returned to Allegheny county with his five children. In 1861 Mr. Johnston joined Co. D, 79th P. V., which became a part of the Army of the Cumberland. At Perrysville, the first severe battle of the regiment, he was severely wounded in the left leg by a minieball; at Chickamauga he was made prisoner, and kept in the rebel prisons of Richmond and Danville for 224 days. In April, 1864, he was paroled for exchange, and, his term of enlistment having expired, he was discharged. At that time he was so reduced by the privations he endured that his constitution was permanently impaired. On his return home Mr. Johnston published his diary, kept through the Civil War. The first edition is nearly exhausted, and it should have a continued sale, as it gives a full account of the experiences which cost many a brave soldier his life.

Since the war Mr. Johnston has made his home in Turtle Creek, and built his present home in 1871. For a time he was employed as assistant superintendent of the Spring Hill coal-mine, and has since worked at his trade when his health permitted. In 1865 he married Annie E. Scott, who is the mother of five children, three now living, viz.: Harvey Scott, Anna Margaret and Jennie May; Emily Markle and Hattie died when small. Mr. Johnston's children by his first wife are Sarah (Means), a resident of McKeesport; Mary Ann (Reece), of Wilkins; John, David and Adam Wesley; two others died in infancy. Mr. Johnston served seven years as assessor and one year as supervisor; in politics he is a democrat. The family are associated with the M. E. Church.

Hugh Boyd, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, was born near Omagh, County Tyrone, Ireland, and is a son of James and Molly (Frazier) Boyd. His brother, Joseph, has been a teacher thirty-seven years, and still pursues his profession a few miles from Omagh. Hugh was reared on a farm and when eighteen years old immigrated to America. He was employed for three years in railroad-building near Philadelphia, and in 1855 came to Allegheny county, engaging for some time in farm-labor and gardening. In 1864 he enlisted as a soldier in Co. K, 100th P. V. At Spottsylvania Court House he received a gunshot through the left arm, and, after lying in hospital three months at Pittsburgh, was detailed in the invalid corps on guard duty at Washington. He was discharged in August, 1865, having served eighteen months. In 1869 Mr. Boyd came to Patton and purchased fifty-three acres of land. His present mansion was built in 1880. In 1870 he married Ann Ardray, who came from Ireland two years later than himself. They have an adopted child, Charles Wilson, whom they took from the Allegheny Protestant Orphan Asylum in 1888. Mrs. Boyd is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Boyd is a republican.

Joseph D. Williams, farmer, postoffice Boston, is a son of Rev. Matthew and Elizabeth P. (Parkhill) Williams, former of whom was a native of Ireland, and came to this country some time in the last century, settling on Muddy creek in this county. He afterward removed to Pine Creek, where he lived until his death, which occurred about fifty years ago. He was a Covenanter, and was pastor of that church for many years. Joseph D. was born at Pine Creek, in 1818, and received his education in the schools of that time. In 1858 he purchased the home where he now resides, in this township. He married Laura, daughter of John and Catherine (McClellah) Young, of this county, and they have one child, Henrietta K., who is at home. They are members of the U. P. Church of Boston, of which Mr. Williams is an elder.

R. S. P. McCall, special officer, Tarentum, son of James and Mary (Miller) McCall, was born in Freeport, Armstrong county, Pa., in 1839. His parents removed to Tarentum, where they died, the father Oct. 10, 1886, aged ninety-four years, and the mother in 1874. Their children were E. M. (deceased), Elizabeth (now Mrs. James Smith, of Fawn township), Margaret (now Mrs. John Borald, of Kansas), Rachel (now Mrs. Edward Bunchfield, of Fawn township), Nancy (the late Mrs. Carson Reed), James B. (of Oil City), R. S. P., Mary P. (deceased) and John T., of Tarentum. R. S. P. McCall married, in 1869, Rachel, daughter of John and Jane Ewuer, of East Deer township, where he was born, and at the commencement of the civil war he enlisted in Co. F, 133d regiment, P. V. I., and at the termination of his enlistment returned and located in Tarentum, and has been prominently identified with it since. He served as assistant doorkeeper of the state senate of Pennsylvania for two years: also as assistant sergeant-at-arms of the state senate of Pennsylvania for two years, and as United States storekeeper for five years. He was interested in the establishment of the bottling-works there; also in the Gas company, and in various enterprises. At present he is a special officer of Allegheny county, and has always been prominent in the politics of the state and county. The children of Mr. and Mrs. McCall are Mary; Lillie, now wife of William Stofield, city editor of the Pittsburgh Gazette; and John P., shipping-clerk of the plate-glass works.

Martin J. McMahon, merchant, postoffice Bonney, a son of Martin, Sr., and Margaret McMahon, was born in this county in 1841. His parents came from Ireland in 1849, and settled in this county. His father died (of cholera) in 1854, at the age of forty-five years, and his mother in 1879, aged fifty-seven years. They had two children: John, residing in Cass county, Iowa, and Martin, who was reared on a farm, learned telegraphy, and for fifteen years had charge of a railroad office as general agent and operator. In 1888 he emigrated in mercantile business, and now owns, at Ingram, a good business-house, where he carries a fine stock of general merchandise. He is also postmaster at Ingram. He married, in 1876, Mary, daughter of John and Ellen Driscoll, and they have two children, John and Ellen. Mr. McMahon is a member of the Catholic Church and of the C. M. B. A.

James L. Cravens, coal-merchant, postoffice Ingram, is a son of John R. and Dru sillia L. Cravens, and was born in Madison, Ind., in 1849. He came to this county in 1869, and settled in Pittsburgh. His father was an officer in the United States army, 1861 and still resides there, engaged in the practice of law. He reared a family of twelve children, of whom the living are Robert, James L., Alexander C., Charles L., Joseph M., Elizabeth G., Mary L., Dru silla L. and Franklin. James L. married, in 1872, Clara D., daughter of A. C. Duncan, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Cravens is engaged in the coal business, and is one of Chartiers township's successful men. He has recently built an elegant residence at Ingram.

W. McCLELLAN, farmer and dairymen, Siewickley, was born Nov. 21, 1823, in County Armagh, Ireland, son of William and Elizabeth (Walker) McCallen. The father immigrated to America in 1826, when John was about six months old, leaving him and his mother in Ireland. William McCallen remained in America until the autumn of 1839, when he returned to Ireland, and in the following spring, 1831, he brought his wife and son to America, and they located in Mercer, Mercer county, Pa., until the spring of 1847, in which year the family, then composed of the parents and seven children, removed, with the exception of our subject, to Allegheny City, Pa. During their stay about Mercer they followed farming most of the time. In the winter of 1845 the subject of this memoir got a situation as clerk in the store of Messrs. Lyon & Mix, in Mercer, who afterward went into the blast-furnace business, and Mr. McCallen remained with them until they wound up the concern in 1848, when he removed to Allegheny City and joined the rest of the family. For a number of years he clerked in some of the leading stores of Allegheny and Pittsburgh. In 1855 he was married to Miss Amanda Workman, of Allegheny City, who died in the autumn of 1861, leaving five children, viz: Jennie, Alice,
Frank, Amanda, Maria and Cora. Mr. Mc-
Callen married for his second wife, in 1869, Miss Annie J. McConway, and then removed to Siewickley, still retaining his position at clerking in Pittsburgh. During his residence in Siewickley he was several years a member of council and always an active member and officer of the M. E. Church of Siewickley, as well as the Sunday-school. In 1889 Mr.
McCallen purchased a farm of eighty-five acres in Aleppo township, about one and a half miles from Siewickley, and engaged in farming and dairying. He has in the past years been called to mourn the death of three of his children, viz.: Amanda, Maria (by his first wife), and Sadie and Edith Isabel (the two children by his present wife), and now has but four of his children living,
two married and two single. His cousin William McCullin, is the present mayor of Pittsburgh.

HYDE K. SAMPLE, postoffice Bennett, was born July 19, 1838, on the old Sample homestead at Gitry's Run. In early life Mr. Sample had charge of the muck-mill of Stewart, Lloyd & Co. As a republican he was elected, in 1872, to the legislature, serving five terms.
He was appointed to various committees, and served with ability; was re-elected time and again, served the last term on corporations, and was chairman of the committee of the geological survey. He is a man of great ability and integrity. He owns a farm of fifty acres of land adjoining Millvale. He married Margaret Ewart, of Cumberland county, Pa., and they have five children, of whom Harry E. is a farmer, born Nov. 90, 1864. The others are Margaret A., Mary S., Hyde G. and Clyde W. Mr. and Mrs. Sample
are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is trustee; he is a member of the R. A.

W. M. A. BELL, farmer, postoffice Buena Vista, is the son of Thomas and Mary (Mc-Calister) Bell, who came from Cumberland county and settled in Pittsburgh in 1810.
The father was a boat-builder, and died in 1835. Their family consisted of eight children. W. M. A. the fourth child, was born in 1813, in Pittsburgh. He learned the butter's trade, and in 1836 moved to Washington county, where he carried on the manufacture of hats for about two years; then returned to Pittsburgh and engaged in the lumber business until 1845. He then located in Westmoreland county, in the mercantile and coal business. In 1850 he went to Caliifornia and embarked in the steamboat business on the Sacramento river, and in 1855 settled on his present farm, where he has since resided. In 1859 he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of James and Margaret (Stewart) McFadden, of Washington county.
They have five living children: James M., a banker in Pittsburgh; Mary, now Mrs.
Caleb Greenwalt; Ella, now Mrs. James Secrist; Laura, now Mrs. Isaac McCalister; Thomas, at home. Mr. Bell and most of his family are members of Dravo M. E. Church; James M. and Laura are members of the Presbyterian Church.

LOUIS Koops, gardener, postoffice West
View, was born March 19, 1826, in Rhein
Phaltz, Bavaria, son of Jacob and Katharine
(M. Dietz) Koops. He came to America in 1854, and worked at various occupations in Allegheny county, until engaging in gardening, which proved a success. He has thirteen acres of garden-land in a high state of cultivation, and by economy and industry has accumulated a competency. He married, in this county, Caroline Weinkaup, a native of Rhein Phaltz, and three children were born to them: Louis, Caroline and Lizzie. The last named, a bright girl of twenty-one, died of typhoid fever. Mr. and Mrs. Koops are members of the G. P. Church; he is a republican.

HENRY ORVILLE HUKILL, assistant to purchasing-agent of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, Bellevue, was born at Steu-venville, Ohio, May 23, 1844, a son of Henry J. and Eliza (Lucas) Hukill. His father was born in Maryland in 1800, and died in Steu-venville in 1878; was a brickmaker and contractor, and was a prominent Mason, being high priest of the chapter for twenty-two years. Henry O. Hukill received a commonschool education, and began life as a mes-enger-boy in a railroad telegraph-office. He followed the telegraph business for some time, and by industry worked his way up to his present position as assistant to purchasing-agent for the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. He was married in Steuneville in 1863, to Kate Coble, daughter of Jacob and Jane (Sterling) Coble, and to them was born one child, James Layng. His wife dying in 1878, Mr. Hukill married, in 1880, Kate, daughter of Capt. James and Hannah (Gil- lott) Wilkins, of Allegheny. Her father was born in 1818 and died in 1871; was for many years connected with the steamboat com- merce of that city, and latterly was a very prominent oil-man. He was a son of David Wilkins, a commission-merchant of the city of Pittsburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Hukill have one child, Henry Orville, Jr. Mr. Hukill is a member of the M. P. Church; his wife was reared a Baptist. He is a republican, and a member of the F. & A. M.

WILLIAM KEOWN, hotel-keeper, postoffice Perrysville, was born Feb. 18, 1840, in Allegheny City, a son of John and Susan (Good) Keown. John was born in Ireland in 1800, and died in 1870. He came to America at the age of nineteen years, was a brick- manufacturer, and became quite a distin- guished man in his day; was the first coun- cilman in Allegheny City, and also held offices on the educational board. He owned a great deal of property in the Fourth ward, and was one of the early citizens there. He removed to Ross township in 1837, and kept the old Buck tavern, formerly conducted by the maternal grandfather of our subject, Mr. Good. The tavern was destroyed by fire Sept. 10, 1856, and rebuilt by John Keown. The hotel is probably the oldest in this county. He was postmaster during Buchanan’s administration. John Keown married Susan E., daughter of Balthazar Good, and she died in 1876, aged seventy-one years, the mother of seven children: Margaret J., John, William, Susan M., Eleanor, Elizabeth A. and Thomas F. D. (deceased). The subject of these lines has succeeded to the proprietorship of the hotel, and has been the postmaster under Cleveland’s administra- tion. He is a democrat, as was his father before him, and has filled several township offices.

S. B. ALLISON, farmer, postoffice Bakers- town, is a son of James and Elizabeth (Brickell) Allison. George Allison, grand- father of S. B., was a native of Chester county, Pa., and settled near Dehaven sta- tion, in Hampton township. James Allison was born in Chester county in 1794; came to this county with his parents, and about 1825 moved on the place now owned by S. B., where he engaged in farming until his death, in 1866; his wife died in 1867. Three of his children still live, viz.: Dr. J. A., of Sewick- ley; John M., of Richland township, and S. B. A., his son, who has been, and as both James and Robert, for many years, on the farm where he has now resided, and was educated at the public schools of Rich- land township. He married, in 1858, Mary A., daughter of Robert Gilland, of Middle- sylvania township, Butler county, and they have nine children living: James A., of Pitts- burgh; Robert G., of Richland; Hugh G., Leland M., W. B., at college; T. C. Mary, Sarah A. and Lydia Ainstedt, at home. Mr. Allison has held the offices of supervisor, school director and assessor of the township. He and family are members of the Presby- terian Church of Bakerstown. At present he is engaged in the undertaking business in connection with farming.

DAVID DAVIS, fruit-farmer, postoffice Mc- Kee’s Rocks, is a son of Lewis and Ellen Davis, and was born in this county, in 1810. Lewis Davis was born in Wales, and came to this country about 1800. He followed the trade of a carpenter until the war of 1812, then purchased Davis island, five miles be- low Pittsburgh, and turned his attention to farming. His first wife died on the ocean while coming to America; his second wife was Ellen, daughter of Lewis Enoch, of this county, and their children were Elizabeth, wife of James Cole, Sr.; David, John, Lewis, Ellen and James, and two others, only two of whom are now living, David and Lewis. David learned the trade of saddler, which he followed fourteen years; then settled on a part of his father’s estate, where he now resides, engaged in farming and fruit-culture. He was married, in 1868, to Maggie, daughter of Samuel and Elizabeth Burns, and their children’s names are John E. Parke, Lewis, Frank, David B., Laura A., Elizabeth B., Enoch and one deceased.

ENOS L. McMULLEN, merchant-tailor, Mc- Keesport, was born in Burlington, Ohio, June 8, 1843, a son of Lawrence J. and Margaret (Diek) McMullen, natives of Pennsylvania, and of Irish and German descent. His parents settled in Pittsburgh in 1847, where his father, who was a tailor by trade, worked as a cutter until 1851, then located in Mc- Keesport, and served in the same capacity for McClowey & Downing until 1855. He then purchased the business of his employers, which he conducted successfully until his death, in November, 1837. His children were Mary (Mrs. John McCloskey), Catherine (Mrs. John O’Reilly), James F. and Enos L. Our subject was reared in McKeesport from eight years of age; was educated in the public schools and St. Francis Xavier’s College, Loretta, Pa. In 1861 he took charge of the merchant-tailoring business of his brother, James, in McKeesport; from 1864 to 1879 was a partner with his brother, and since 1879 has been conducting an establishment of his own, in which he has been very successful. In 1875 he married Mary A., daughter of Pat- rick and Rebecca (Ivory) Carlin, of Pitts- burgh, by whom he has six children: May, Agnes, Joseph, Irene, Edmond and Bertille. Mr. McMullen is a member of St. Peter’s Catholic Church. His daughter, Mrs. C. A. Davis, is a deaconess.

CHARLES P. CARLSON, machinist and in- ventor. McKeesport, was born in Sweden, June 17, 1845, a son of Charles P. and Eva M. Carlson. He was reared in his native land, where he learned the machinist’s trade, came to America in 1867, and located in Boston, Mass., where he worked at his trade as a journeyman six years. In 1873 he came to McKeesport, where he has since been in the employed by the National Tube-works company. Mr. Carlson is a practical machinist, and of an inventive turn of mind. In 1884 he took out a patent for a driving-coupler for coupling rolls, and in 1886 a patent for a pump for pumping coalboats and barges. In 1888 he invented two machines for making wire nails and two for cutting nails off plates, the patents for which are now pending; they are self-feeders, and will make nails faster and better than any other machines. Mr. Carlson married, in 1853, Caroline Anderson, of Sweden, by whom he has three children: Eva, Gust and John. He is a member of the S. L. Church, of H., K. of P. and Mystic Chain; he is a republican.

John M. Allison, farmer, postoffice Bakerstown, is the third son of James and Elizabeth (Brickell) Allison, and was born on the homestead in 1830. He was educated at the schools of that period, and has always followed farming. He married, in 1855, Mary Agnes, daughter of John Magill, of West Deer township. She died in 1873, leaving seven children: George A., in Pittsburgh; John R., engineer on the A. V. R. R.; James L., a farmer at home; William H., in Pittsburgh; Harry B., in Allegheny; Sarah E., wife of William Donaldson, of Lenox, Iowa; and Mary L., at home. Mr. Allison next married Sarah Harbison, who died in 1875; and he then married, for his third wife, Elizabeth, daughter of James and Margaret Martin, of Butler county. Mr. Allison has held the offices of school director and supervisor of the township. He and family are members of the U. P. Church of Deer creek, of which he is an elder.

William Bauer, gardener, postoffice Bennett, was born Feb. 22, 1830, on Troy hill, this county, son of Jacob and Margaret (Wolf) Bauer, natives of Germany. They immigrated to America in or about 1829, and settled in Allegheny City, eventually purchasing property on Troy hill. Jacob Bauer was a coal-merchant for many years; he died aged seventy-six years. He and his wife were parents of seven children, viz.: Frederick, Mathias, William, John, Thomas, Mrs. Mary Rittman and Mrs. Hannah Dillman. William received his education in this county, where he was a coal-digger for eighteen years, and subsequently worked seven years in a rolling-mill. Since then he has been successfully engaged in gardening. He married, Nov. 15, 1851, Caroline Sauter, a native of Germany, and they are the parents of three children: Mrs. Mary Bauerlein, Mrs. Elizabeth Klussmann and Mrs. Anna Griffith. Mr. and Mrs. Bauer are charter members of the G. L. Church, which they helped to build; Mr. Bauer is a republican.

John M. Crawford, Sr., farmer, Ohio township, postoffice Emsworth, was born July 12, 1823. He was born of parents of Scotch-Irish descent. His son Edward married Margaret, daughter of John and Jane Moore, old settlers of Ohio township, this county, where the following-named children were born: Matilda, John M., Mary A., William, Margaret and Edward. Of these John M. married Jane, daughter of Alexander Morrow, and of their children three are now living: Alexander, Mrs. Mary F. Waits and John M. Mr. Crawford, through patient industry, has accumulated about two hundred acres of farm-land. He and his wife are Presbyterians. His parents were members of the Episcopal Church, and are remembered as charitable, Christian people.

Deborah Shaner is a daughter of Philip Snyder, a pioneer of Butler county, Pa., where she was born in 1840. In 1858 she married John Shaw, and located in Lawrence county, where he followed farming until his death, in 1861. In 1864 she married Cornelius Shaner, and located at Coultersville. Previous to their marriage Mr. Shaner had served a year in the army, and afterward enlisted, in 1864, in Co. F, 5th H. A., serving another year. After the war he worked at his trade, that of carpenter, until he lost two fingers, and then in 1878 he went into commercial business, becoming a successful merchant. He died March 25, 1883, leaving a widow and children as follows: Fannie (the late Mrs. F. Titball), Margaret, William George and Charles Cornelius. Mr. Shaner was a member of the Presbyterian Church, of which his widow is still a member; he was also a member of the K. of L. and the I. O. O. F.

Robert Hardy, farmer, postoffice Gibsonia, was born in Manchesster, England, in 1815, and immigrated to America July 4, 1827. He first located in Pittsburgh, and engaged in the manufacture of spool-cotton for five years. In 1832 he moved to his present farm, and the same year married Nancy, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Haefer) Stoup, of Hampton township. They have seven living children: Henrietta (wife of Samuel Campbell, of Shaler township), Esther (wife of Duncan C. White, of Pittsburgh), Harriet (widow of John Ekis, now at home), Jacob S. (a farmer in Richland township), Nancy J. (wife of Henry Jacobs, of Allegheny), Maggie E. (wife of Joseph H. Harper, of Tarentum) and Florence (at home). In 1860 Mr. Hardy was elected justice of the peace of Hampton township, and held that office twenty years; has also served as supervisor, overseer of the poor, school director, etc. Hardy Station, on the P. & W. R. R., was named after him. He voted for Gen. Jackson, and has always been a stanch democrat. His family are members of the Second Presbyterian Church of Pine Creek.

Mrs. Matilda Allison, postoffice Wildwood, is a daughter of Thomas and Ruth (Wright) Keenedy, of Maryland, and the widow of George Allison, son of George, Sr., and Susanna (McRoberts) Allison, also natives of Maryland. He died in 1819, settling on about 1819, settling on two hundred acres of land where Dehavan station now stands.
George, Sr., who was a soldier in the war of 1812, died in 1839, his widow in 1854. George Allison, Jr., was born in Maryland in 1810, and same year was brought to this county by his parents. He was a farmer, and during life held many township offices, and in his honor the name of Allisonville was first given to Dehavens station. He died in 1851, leaving his widow and four children: William H. Jr., (a farmer of Richland township, who married Mary, daughter of William Hare), Susanna (wife of Marion Collins, of Wildwood station, who has two children, Carrie E. and Fletcher Y.), Charles W. and John (at home). In 1887 Mrs. Allison rented her farm, and commenced general merchandising at Wildwood. Since that time the farm has been laid out in lots, and many houses are being erected; the place is called Allison Park. She and family are members of Allison Chapel, located on a part of her farm, and which she was instrumental in building. Her husband was a member of Herr's Chapel, U. B., being steward and class-leader.

Albert R. Good, heater, National Rolling-mill, McKeesport, was born in Pittsburgh, Oct. 29, 1838, a son of Louis N. and Kate (Kircher) Good, natives of Strasbourg, France, who settled in Allegheny City in 1836. He was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, and served an apprenticeship of nine years as a heater at Sligo, Pittsburgh, S. S. He came to McKeesport in 1877, and in 1878 entered the employ of the National Rolling-mill, and since 1881 has had charge of a furnace as a heater. Nov. 24, 1887, he married Mary, a daughter of Michael and Barbara O'Neill, of Cambria, Md., and they have one son, Robert Andrew, born Oct. 21, 1888. Mr. Good is a member of the Catholic Church, and is a democrat.

David Hardy, Jr., coal and ice-dealer, McKeesport, Pa., was born in Allegheny county, July 3, 1858. His parents were natives of Scotland, and came to America in 1857. He received his education in the common schools of the county, and worked at mining till he reached his majority. He then, during six years, worked in an iron-mill, after which he became an ice-dealer, to which business he has recently added that of coal. He was married Nov. 25, 1879, to Miss Frances Leathay, and they have three daughters; two sons have died.

Capt. Edward West, Homestead, was born May 1, 1839, on the old homestead in Mifflin township, the son of Joseph West. He was reared and educated in this county, where he farmed in early life, and at the age of sixteen floated coalboats during the winter for several years. Subsequently he was two years in the wholesale business in Pittsburgh, with the firm of Hill, West & Co., then sold out and bought stock in a steamboat, of which he became the captain. His first boat was the Boston, and he subsequently was captain of the Kangaroo and Willis Austen. In 1885 he sold his interest in the boats, and the following year made a trip west; thence to St. Andrew's Bay, Fla., where he merchandised, and he now resides in Homestead. Capt. West married here Maria A., daughter of Henry and Hannah (Clark) Noble. The great-grandfather of Mrs. West was Charley Clark, an English officer, who settled at Scotch Bottom, now Hazelwood, with Charles Duke, also a great-grandfather of Mrs. West. Capt. and Mrs. West reared a family of six children, viz.: Mrs. Sadie Race. Mrs. Flora Ackard, Joseph A., Hattie B., Edwin L. and Lillian. Capt. West is a member of the A. F. & A. M., of the I. O. O. F., and is a democrat.

Anthony H. Kenny, farmer, postoffice Braddock, was born Nov. 28, 1835, on the Kenny homestead, and is a son of Thomas J. Kenny. He assisted his father in his vast coal business, superintending the mines. He now superintends three farms, comprising three hundred acres, and is also connected with a coal business in Homestead. He married, July 6, 1871, Josephine, daughter of Dr. John Maginni, and they have seven children: Annie E., Mary J., Florence A., Albert A., Estella, Thomas J. and Marion Kenny.

George O. Fawcett, boat-builder, post-office Munhall, was born July 27, 1840, in Pittsburgh, a son of James Fawcett, a native of England. He and his wife and two children came to this county in 1832; he was a coal-miner, but by industry soon became a coal merchant and operator near Braddock. Subsequently he retired from the coal business, and became a director and then president of the First National Bank of Birmingham, which position he held until his death. His wife, Elizabeth, was a daughter of Abraham Parker, an old settler of Butler county, Pa. They had nine children, of whom only Thomas, George O. and Mrs. Mary Challinor survive. George O. is the superintendent of his brother's business at Fawcett's Landing, where he employs from twelve to twenty-five men, repairs barges and finishes coalboats. He graduated from the Iron City Business College in the class of 1859, and for seventeen years was in the lumber and sawmill business in Pittsburgh until he came to Fawcett's Landing. He married Mary, daughter of Peter and Margaret (Smith) Wilson, and they have four children: John B., Mrs. Flora B. Munhall, Walter C. and Harry A. Of these John B. married Mamie Thomas, and has one child, Flora. Mr. Fawcett is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and a republican.

Frederick W. Bealefeld, butcher, Verona, was born in Wilkinsburg, Pa., May 19, 1858. He is the son of August and Louisa Bealefeld, natives of Berlin, Prussia. When eleven years old Frederick went to work for a butcher; a year and a half later he was employed as a section-hand by the R. R. Co., and to better himself again went to work for a butcher, and has followed the business ever since. He began business for himself in Verona May 17, 1881. Two years later he built a market and residence on Railroad avenue, where he now resides. In 1888 he went into the real estate brokerage business in connection with the business and is very successful. In the same year, 1888, he met with a loss of over six thousand dollars by fire, by indorsements and otherwise, yet he is worth over fifteen thousand dollars. Jan. 8, 1888, he was married to Mary D. Heuggi, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Heuggi, of Germany. Two daughters bless the home of Mr. Bealsfied, named Hilda and Clara: two sons, Herbert and Raymond, died in infancy.

Thomas Westerman, machinist, post-office Hulton, was born in Allegheny City, Nov. 16, 1837, a son of Thomas and Hannah (Tennent) Westerman, natives of Leeds, England. Thomas, Sr., was a machinist, and, coming to Allegheny City in 1827, was employed by Arbuckle in the old cotton-mill. He moved to Butler county in 1846, where he died in September, 1885, his wife having passed away Nov. 29, 1871. Our subject attended school in Allegheny City and in Butler county. In 1856 he began the machinist's trade in Allegheny City. After finishing his trade he was engaged in the Fort Wayne shops and with Tomlinson & Son until he enlisted in Co. D, 12th P. V. I., for three months. He re-enlisted Aug. 28, 1861, in Co. K, 1st P. R. C., and one year later was promoted to corporal. He was in the battles of Dranesville, Cross Keys, Cedar Mountain, Gaines' Mill, Bull Run, Fredericksburg, Brandy Station, Gettysburg, and many others, but did not receive a wound. He was mustered out Sept. 9, 1864, and, returning to Allegheny City, worked at his trade until 1876, when he came to Verona, and has since been foreman of the nut-lock department of the Verona Tool-wright. Mr. Westerman married, in 1867, Jennie M. Brown, a native of Washington county, who died in 1868, the mother of one child, William M. He next married, March 1, 1872, Lizzie Bordorner, of Allegheny county, and six children bless their union: Edward, Mary, Harry, Eva, Raymond and Thomas (who died March 25, 1879, aged one year). The family are members of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church. Mr. Westerman is a republican, and a member of the F. & A. M., I. O. O. F. and R. A. He was one year a member of the Verona council.

William Fisher, mine superintendent, post-office White Ash, is a son of Thomas Fisher, and was born in Pitt township, this county, March 11, 1845. He was reared in Wilkinsburg, where he attended the public school and academy. When twelve years old he began work in a coal-mine, earning money to pay his way through Duff's Commercial College, at Pittsburgh, and has ever since supported himself. In 1876 he became superintendent of mines for Armstrong, Dickson & Co., at Armstrong, and when they sold continued with their successors; when the mines became the property of the N. Y. & C. G. C. Co. he still remained as superintendent. May 16, 1867, Mr. Fisher married Susan M. Yourd, born in Penn township, daughter of Samuel Yourd, of Mansfield, this county, and they have six children, of whom eight are now living: Samuel Yourd, Ralph Henderson, Margeret Dickson, Allen Clark, William Hamilton, Sarah Olive, Frederick Ashley and Grace Virginia; Benjamin G., Harry and Mabel died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher and family are connected with the Presbyterian Church. He is a F. & A. M., a member of the R. A., and is a republican; has served as auditor, and is enjoying his second term as justice of the peace.

William T. Cowan, farmer, postoffice Surgeon's Hall, was born Aug. 11, 1840, on the old homestead in Baldwin township. His grandfather, David Cowan, was born in 1777, in Chester county, Pa., of Scotch descent. He removed to Snowden township, and later to Baldwin, where he died in 1863. His wife, who was a Miss Margaret Thompson, died in 1843, at the age of fifty-three years. She was the mother of nine children: Thomas, William, Samuel, John, Robert, Mrs. Rachel Cunningham, Mrs. Mary Sickman, Mrs. Eliza Irwin and Jane. Of these William was born in 1805 in this county, and died in 1883. He was a blacksmith by trade, which he learned with Bittner, at Whitehall. His wife was Margaret Calhoon, daughter of Noble Calhoon, Esq., a popular gentleman, and died in 1854, aged forty-nine years. Their children were Jane, Margaret, Noble C., David A., William T. and Sarah E. The father was a whig and a republican, and was treasurer for many years. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church (liberal). The subject of this sketch married Anna M., daughter of Robert R. Bell, and their children are William R., Elizabeth C., Charles N., Anna, Amzi, Howard and Louis. Mr. Cowan has held the office of justice of the peace for the past six years.

Joseph Martin, Jr., farmer, postoffice Tailey Cavey, was born July 27, 1831, in Allegheny City, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Voeghty) Martin, former of whom was born in Elnass, France, April 28, 1805, and the latter in Basel, Switzerland, in November, 1804. They came to Pittsburgh in 1826 and 1822, respectively. Joseph, Sr., was a cooper, and after following that trade for some years he bought a farm of 140 acres in West Deer township, in 1850. Here his sons carried on the farm, and here he resided until 1884, when he moved to the city of Allegheny, where he now lives, the farm being divided between Joseph and his brother. Mr. Martin, Sr., and his sons are members of the Catholic Church; the wife and mother was a member of the Evangelical Church. Joseph, Jr., was educated at Allegheny City, and in 1858 he married Teresa Yehl, a native of France, who came to this country with her parents when she was a child. Mr. and Mrs. Martin have twelve children, all yet living: Joseph, Charles, Minn, Josephine, Allegheny the native H. a publican. and many, in which he is connected. Lewis, a native of Germany, daughter of John and Catherine Gumbert, both deceased. After marriage he continued farming, adding forty-nine acres to the thirty his father had, and in 1881 he bought forty-six acres more, making in all a fine farm. Mr. and Mrs. Snitzer have eight children: Annie Eliza (Mrs. Herman Dilner), Lewis, Mena (Mrs. Christ Baumgartel), Caroline (Mrs. John Pfarrmann), Martin (died in August, 1887, aged twenty-three years), Henry, Katie and John. The family are connected with the Lutheran Church. Mr. Snitzer was formerly a democrat, now a Republican.

George V. Sevin, farmer and lumber-dealer at Leettsdale, Sewickley township, was born Dec. 31, 1821, in Grossniedesheim, Canton Frankenthal, Rhein-Bavaria, Germany, and is the youngest son of George V. Sevin, and his lawful wife, Elizabeth Shulteheis, the latter a native of Zürich, Switzerland. They were parents of six children: David F., John G., Jacob, Karl, Magdalena, and George V., the subject of this memoir. He was reared in his native home and learned his trade, that of a mason and stone-cutter. He is a musician of ability, playing on several different instruments, and he served six years as musician in the 5th Cav. Regt. in his native home. On the 3d of July, 1849, he came to America and settled in Economy township, Beaver county, Pa., where he taught a German school for fourteen years in the same district; he also instructed a brass band for a number of years. In 1865 he purchased a farm of 182 acres of land in Sewickley township, Allegheny county, on which he moved in 1866, and has been living there ever since; he deals in lumber and operates a sawmill. Mr. Sevin was married in 1851 to Rachel Schaffer, daughter of John Schaffer and his lawful wife, Margaretha Honig, both natives of Württemberg, Germany, and they have a family of four children: John V., Anna, and Joseph C. Mr. and Mrs. Sevin are both members of the German Presbyterian Church.

John F. Marx, gardener and dairyman, postoffice Sewickley, was born May 24, 1834, in Baden, Germany, son of John and Euphrosina (Gemp) Marx, who had nine children, seven of whom attained maturity. The father was a physician, and served in the German army, but, on account of his revolutionary sentiments, in 1848 had to flee to Switzerland. In 1859 he immigrated to America with his family, locating in Allegheny, where he practiced his profession. Later he removed to Cleveland, Ohio, where he died in 1857, at the age of fifty-two; his widow died in 1881, aged seventy-two. Their son, John F., was educated in his native home, and became a "typo" in the office of the Freihetsfreund, of Pittsburgh. In 1860 he came to Sewickley, where he engaged in gardening and dairying, in which he has been very successful. Mr. Marx was married here to Miss Catharine Muni, a native of Baden, Germany. She is the mother of eight children: Charles, William, Emma, Eliza, Washington, Mary, Adolph and Sophia. Mr. Marx is a republican, and has filled several township offices, that of auditor for nine years.

J. H. Clatty, farmer, postoffice Mt. Lebanon, was born in Allegheny county in 1855. He is the only child of Christoffel Clatty, of Germany, who married Lucy M. Gear, and died in Germany. His widow came to America, located in Allegheny county, and married Henry Clinky. She died in 1864, aged about sixty years. The subject of this sketch received a common-school education. He married, in 1837, Caroline Haudenschild, daughter of Samuel and Mary Haudenschild, of this county, and nine children were born to them, of whom eight are now living: Charles, John, Albert, Harrison, Elmer, Walter, George and Clara. Mr. Clatty purchased his present property in 1868, consisting of fifty acres of land, whereon he has since resided, and which is the result of his own labor. He is respected by his neighbors as an upright farmer. He has been a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church since 1851; he is now a deacon.

M. C. Dunlevy, farmer, postoffice Mansfield Valley, was born in this county in 1849, to Moses and Jane (Ledley) Dunlevy, of Cannonsburg, Pa. They had five children, two of whom are now living, M. C. being the youngest. Moses was a farmer, and for many years kept a hotel on the Washington pike. The building, which is yet standing, was filled in early days "A Bird in the Hand is Worth Two in the Bush." Jeremiah Dunlevy, the pioneer of this family, came from Ireland to America about 1791. He settled in Allegheny county soon after landing, and was a farmer. He had born to him seven children, of whom Moses, father of M. C., was the youngest. Jeremiah died at the age of one hundred and one years. The subject of this sketch was born near the place of his ancestors, and educated at the common schools and Duff's College, graduating in January, 1869. He married, in 1872, Miss Letitia Ledlie, daughter of James Ledlie, of Sunbury, Ohio, and seven children were the result of this union, two of whom are living, Harry. and Paul. Mr. Dunlevy is a public-spirited citizen, and takes an active part in all progressive movements in his township. He is a republican, and has been school director fourteen years, justice of the peace two terms, and is now filling the latter office with satisfaction to the people.

AGNES A. LARGE, postoffice Coal Valley, daughter of Jacob and Sarah Harger, was born at Muttontown, near Coal Valley, Jefferson township, where her parents, who were from Beaver county, settled; they are now residents of Coal Valley. Their children were Emmeline, Adam, George, Agnes A., Sarah E., Mary Belle and Samuel. Nov. 1, 1876, Agnes A. married Samuel C. Large, a native of Jefferson township, and son of Thomas Large, and after marriage they settled on a farm now owned by Thomas Large, in that township, and engaged in farming. Here Mr. Large died Nov. 14, 1887, leaving four children: Thomas, Sarah E., Zella M. and Oscar F.

Zerah Hayden, miller, retired, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of Zerah and Martha (McClure) Hayden, and was born in Elizabeth township, June 10, 1811. His father was a native of New Jersey, and settled in Westmoreland county, with his parents, when a child. They removed to this county about 1807. The family consisted of twelve children, of whom only David and Cornelia are living, and they reside in this county. Mr. Hayden married Rebecca, daughter of Peter Bedsworth, and they have three living children: Leonitus, George W., Aurelius. Mr. Hayden was a sawyer and carpenter by trade, and later in life built the steam gristmill which is now operated by his sons. He has been officially identified with the county for a period of seventeen years as auditor and treasurer. Mr. Hayden is a member of the Baptist Church. In his old age he is enjoying the fruits of his early labors.

WILLIAM L. HUTCHESON, boatman, postoffice McKee's Rocks, is a son of William and Sarah Hutcheson, born in Allegheny City, Pa., in 1834, and has always lived in this county. His father came to Allegheny county about 1812. He married, in 1809, Mary A. Bell, by whom he had one child, Margaret A. His second marriage occurred in April, 1820, with Sarah Gillmore, and by this union there were fourteen children, of whom the living are David (unmarried), Ann S. (widow of Henry Storer), William L., and Jane (wife of Robert Knox). William L. married, Oct. 29, 1863, Rachel A., daughter of John and Elizabeth Glancy, of this county, and they have been blessed with three children: John (deceased), Ella M. and Eva K. Early in life Mr. Hutcheson embarked in boat business, which he has followed most of his life, and is well known by rivermen as Capt. Hutcheson. In 1862 he enlisted in the 86th P. V. M., for nine months, and participated in the battles of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and was honorably discharged at the expiration of his term of serv-

He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and J. O. H.

WILLIAM SHERADEN, farmer and grocer, postoffice Sheradenville, son of Thomas and Agnes Sheraden, was born in Mount Pleasant, Ohio, in 1819, and came with his mother to this county in 1829. His father died in Ohio in 1830, aged fifty-eight years; his mother died in 1855; both were members of the Presbyterian church. They had seven children, viz.: John, Mary, Jane, Thomas and James (all deceased), and Sarah (now the widow of the late William Logan) and William, the subject of this sketch, who was married in 1840 to Mary Ann, daughter of John and Mary A. Nielk, of this county, and to them were born six children: John Thomas (deceased), Anna Mary (widow of Dr. J. W. Smith), and William James. Margaret Jane (widow of Harry Boekstooe), Elizabeth Aveline (wife of George B. Moore) and Sarah Bailey (wife of John Hall, Jr.). His son and two widowed daughters and two grandsons, Willie and Harry Boekstooe, still reside with him. In 1858 Mr. Sheraden purchased the property where he now resides, 123 acres, with but little improvement, for $9,300, all of which he accumulated by his own industry and that of his worthy wife. His wife died Aug. 9, 1881, in her sixty-third year. Both were members of the Third U. P. Church, Pittsburgh, where Mr. Sheraden is still an elder.

The village of Sheraden is named for Mr. Sheraden, and is a flourishing town situated four and a half miles from Pittsburgh, on the P., C. & St. L. R. R.; it contains a handsome new school-building, one M. E. church and one Baptist church, and a number of stores doing good business. The location and site of Sheraden, while in itself exceptionally handsome, even among the many beautiful surroundings of these cities, has special convenience of access to the principal manufacturing and business centers in both Allegheny City and Pittsburgh.

GEORGE RITCHEY, engineer, postoffice Verona, was born in County Down, Ireland, Feb. 9, 1836, and in 1848 his parents, George and Mary (Cherry) Ritehey, embarked for America. They settled in Penn township, Allegheny county, where the grandfather, Thomas Cherry, had settled some time before. Here Mrs. Ritchey died, in May, 1886, the mother of five boys and five girls. Of these George is the third eldest. He attended the Round Hill school, Penn township, and worked with his father until he was twenty-two years of age. He then married Sarah A. Gray, a native of Penn township, and daughter of Samuel Gray. The following children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Ritchey: Elizabeth, Ella (Mrs. H. L. Hoelin), William, James, Watson, Belle (Mrs. Cyrus Shade), Murray and Samuel; Edward, Emma and George are at home. Mrs. Ritchey is a member of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Ritchey is a member of the I. O. O. F., Royal Arcanum and L. O. L., No. 33. Three years after marriage he sold his place to enter the army, but sickness in his family prevented his going. In 1874 he became engineer at the Verona Tool-works, which position he still holds. Jan. 28, 1885, he was caught in the engine drivewheel, and the side of his face, arms and limbs were ground to the bone. After eight months he recovered, though he has some very bad scars left to tell the terrible work of a few moments.

John Kletzly, carpenter, Verona, was born in Pittsburgh, in December, 1831, a son of Xavary and Katherine (Soland) Kletzly, natives of France and Switzerland, and who came to America when eleven and sixteen years of age, respectively. His father died in 1876, aged sixty-three years; his mother in 1882, aged seventy-five years. John Kletzly received his education in Pittsburgh, and when twenty-one years of age learned the cabinet-maker's trade; after working at same ten years his health failed, and he bought his present farm in Verona borough. In 1877 he was employed in the A. V. R. R. shops, where he has since continued. He was married, in May, 1854, to Elizabeth Martin, of Allegheny City, a daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Voegily) Martin. Her father was a native of France and her mother of Switzerland, and they came to this country in 1826 and 1819, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Kletzly have had nine children, as follows: Joseph, John Martin, Anna Elizabeth, Mary Katharine (deceased), William Charles, George Edward (deceased), Albert Leo, Oscar A. and Rose Josephine. The family are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Kletzly is a member of the Verona council, and is a democrat.

David Jarvis, mason, postoffice Surgeon's Hall, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. His father, Oliver J. Jarvis, a native of England, came to America with his wife and one child, Washington. The following named were born to him in Pittsburgh, Pa.: Phoebe A., William W., David and Mrs. Eliza J. Smith. He died June 29, 1887, aged eighty-three years; in politics a strong republican. The subject of this sketch was educated here, and learned the stone-mason's trade, which he followed all his life. He is in possession of thirty-two acres of land, and the Gentlemen's South Side Driving-park is located on his farm. Mr. Jarvis married Harriet, daughter of Samuel Cowan. They have an adopted daughter, named Jennie Jarvis. Mr. Jarvis is a republican.

David A. Cowan, farmer, postoffice Surgeon's Hall, was born March 5, 1838, in Jefferson township, this county, a son of William and Margaret (Calhoon) Cowan, the latter a daughter of Noble Calhoon. His grandfather, David Cowan, was born east of the mountains, was a farmer, of Scotch-Irish descent, and attained the age of ninety-one. His children were Thomas Samuel, William, John, Albert, Mrs. Rachel Cunningham and Mrs. Mary Sickman. William Cowan died in August, 1888, aged seventy-seven years; his wife in 1854, aged forty-nine years. They were Presbyterians. They had six children, viz.: Mrs. Jane Noble, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, Noble C., David A., William T. and Sarah E. Of these David A. is in possession of fifty acres of the old homestead, and follows farming. He married here Mary P., daughter of Charles and Emily (Hays) Gibbs, and they have six children: Mrs. Caroline E. Zerner, William G. and Amanda E. (twins), Ida M., David P. and Rachel. Mr. Cowan is a republican.

David Bryson, farmer, postoffice White Ash, was born in County Antrim, Ireland, and in 1830, when a child, was brought here by his parents, John and Mary (McCune) Bryson. His father died in 1836, aged seventy-two years, and his mother in 1839, aged seventy-nine years. David Bryson was educated in West Deer township, and attended on the first day of the first public school opened here, Jan. 6, 1836. He and his brother worked together until the place was divided, and he has resided on his present farm since October, 1830. He was married in 1847 to Margaret A. Huggins, a native of McCandless township, this county, and they have four living children, and two deceased. Those living are William H., John, Mary Isabella and Margaret Elizabeth J. The family are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Bryson has 190 acres of land; has been school director twelve years, and is now president of the board; was road commissioner three years, and member of sessions of the U. P. Church for twenty-five years. He has retained his health and vigor remarkably for a man of his years, and is one of the old settlers of the township; he is a republican.

Zadock Weston Dean, Jr., nailer, postoffice White Ash, was born in Pittsburgh, Sept. 1, 1848. His grandfather, Winslow Dean, was born near Plymouth, Mass. He descended from the early settlers of New England, and seems to have inherited somewhat of the Puritan principles, as he was a strict disciplinarian, and conservative in his manner of living. He had an aversion to the steam cars, and never rode in them, but this was of little disadvantage to him, as he was never farther from home than Boston (where he went with the products of his farm) and Plymouth Rock, which he visited once a year. He lived ninety-four years, and worked up to the time of his death, which resulted from a fall down stairs, in the house in which he was born and always lived. The father of our subject, now residing on his farm at Uniontown, Pa., came to Pittsburgh in 1843, and was one of the first nailers employed at David Chess' nail- and tack-works. He was actively engaged in making nails and tacks for fifty-six years. His kindly nature has gained for him many friends, and he is one of the most widely known nailers in the country. His wife, Martha, daughter of Peter Mowry, brother of Dr. R. B. Mowry, of Allegheny City. She died at Uniontown in 1887. From six to twelve years of age Zaddock W. lived on his father's farms at Chalk Hill and Farmington, Fayette county, Pa., but the rest of his life has been passed in Allegheny county. His school-days were spent in the county schools of these districts. After spending a year at school in Birmingham he went to work at Mulvaney's glasshouse, under the care of Jenkin Jones. Working at this place for a year, he went to Chicago to work for Wheeler Brothers in their glasshouse, which was the first one built in that city. Though making good wages for a boy not yet fifteen, he preferred to be a nailer, and, after working nine months for Wheeler Brothers, he entered a nail-factory and learned the trade under his father. For the last nineteen years he has been employed by Shoenerberger & Co., beginning as a nailer, and is now manager of their nailing department. In 1885 he built his present residence at White Ash, near Sandy Creek station, on the A. V. R. R. Aug. 11, 1867, he married Julia Eva Miller, who was born at Uniontown, a daughter of Thomas and Anna Miller. Ann Miller, nee Amos, is of English parentage, and was born in Baltimore, Md. The Miller family are of German descent, and one of the first in Fayette county. They were among the early slaveholders of the state, owning many slaves at that time. Mr. and Mrs. Dean have three sons: Thomas Norvella, William Henry Harrison and Fredrick Irving. Thomas Norvella is a student at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. Mr. Dean is a republican, and he and his family are associated with the Presbyterian Church.

J. Phillip Weber, mechanic, Etna, was born April 28, 1850, in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany. He came to America at the age of ten years with his uncle, Conrad Weber, and his paternal grandmother. He received his education at the public schools of Allegheny county, and was afterward apprenticed to Anna M., daughter of John and Anna M. (Eggers) Cook. This union has been blessed with four children: Elizabeth, John, Margaret and George. Mr. and Mrs. Weber have been active members of the Lutheran Church; he is a republican, and a member of the R. A. Mr. Weber has been an employé of the Spang Iron and Steel mill for many years, where he holds a good position, secured by his ability as a mechanic.

Jacob H. Walter, Springdale, was born in this county Jan. 7, 1885, son of Adam and Maria Walter, both deceased; they were members of the M. E. Church. Jacob H. was reared on a farm, and had only such educational advantages as the common schools afforded, but by earnest effort soon qualified himself to teach school, an occupation he followed for several years. He remained at home until twenty-two years of age, when he married Lillie Ann, daughter of John and Jane Euwer, and to them were born three children: John Grant (deceased), Maria L. (wife of R. A. Kennedy, attorney in Pittsburgh) and Lillie Lincoln (wife of W. H. Ellis, a Pittsburgh lawyer). After Mr. Walter's marriage he followed farming and teaching for two years; then merchandising three years; was then clerk a short time in the prothonotary's office; was elected and served as chief clerk in the county commissioners' office for three years, during which time he was elected prothonotary of Allegheny county, Pa., which office he filled for six years; since then he has been engaged in the oil-refining and producing business. Mr. Walter has a beautiful residence and ten acres in Springdale, where he resides; the family are members of the M. E. Church.

Jacob Dieterich, mechanic, Etna, was born Oct. 11, 1842, in Hitzerode Kurhessen, Germany, a son of John C. and Elizabeth (Rock) Dieterich, who came to America with three of their children, Catherine, John E. and Jacob, in 1856, their two elder children, John and Henry, having preceded them. They settled in Etna, Pa., where the parents died. Jacob entered the rolling-mill the same year he arrived in Etna. He was employed eight years at the mill, when the company removed to the Bennett mills. Subsequently he worked in the oil-refinery several years, and for Lewis, Dalzell & Co., as nail-shearer. From 1867 until 1870 he was manufacturer of matches and brushes; in 1871 he was employed in the wholesale and retail notion business; in September, 1871, he lost all by fire, and in the spring of 1872 he returned to Lewis, Dalzell & Co.'s rolling-mill, where he sheared nail-iron until the company retired from business; he then worked for John D. Morehead & Bros. as bricklayer and mason until 1883. He owns considerable real estate in Etna and Sharpsburg. Mr. Dieterich married Henrietta C., daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Hebler) Morlock. They had six children, only one living, Emma M. Mr. and Mrs. Dieterich are members of the United Church. Politically he is a republican. During the last nine years he has been a member of the city council.

John R. McKeck, baker, Etna, was born in September, 1832, in Shaler township, the son of James and Mary (Wyse) McKeck, who died in Etna. James McKeck was an Orange-man, a native of County Derry, Ireland, and of Scotch descent. He came to America in 1812, and entered the army under Gen. Wilkinson in the war of 1812. His comrade was David Anderson, the founder of Etna. Subsequently he followed the weaver's trade, and later became a merchant at Etna; politically he was a democrat. His wife was the daughter of John and Lucy (Lane) Wyse, latter of whom was the daughter of Henry Lane, a revolutionary soldier, and a popular athlete and fighter among the Wyse family. McKeck were the parents of seven children: Mrs. Lucinda Cook, Mrs. Sarah Johnson, Mrs. Susan Yates (deceased), John R., Thomas, Kennedy, Margaret (deceased). John R. McKeck was educated in this county, and here learned the baker's trade. He enlisted in Co. C, 9th P. R., and participated in all the engagements of the Army of the Potomac except the battle of the Wilderness. He married Martha Wyse, and they have four children: Lucy, William, Sarah and John. Mr. and Mrs. McKee are members of the M. E. Church. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., A. L. H. G. A. R., Y. M. C. A. and U. V. L.; he is a republican.

N. H. PLUMMER, bookkeeper, postoffice Mansfield Valley, was born in Allegheny county, in 1821. His great-grandfather, Nathaniel Plummer, came from Newburyport, Mass., settled in Westmoreland county, Pa., and there purchased a large tract of land. His son, Nathaniel, came to Allegheny county in 1796, and purchased 385 acres of land in what was then Scott (now Upper St. Clair) township, and married a Miss Walker, daughter of Rev. Walker. A son, Nathaniel, was born to them on this tract of land, became a farmer, and was styled major, being a militiaman. He married Mary, daughter of Ephraim Jones, and they had a family of eleven children. Of these Nathaniel H., our subject, is the youngest child, and was educated at Marion College, Missouri. For many years he was engaged in steamboating and merchandising, and was also general superintendent of the American Iron-works store. Since 1865 he has been engaged in bookkeeping. He married, in 1847, Mary, daughter of Capt. Silas Oviatt, of Milford, Conn., and eight children were born to them, six of whom are now living: Jones W., Mary, Marie, Frederick, Eliza and Elizabeth. Mr. Plummer is a leading man in Allegheny county, has held many prominent positions, and served as auditor of Scott township nine years. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and is a democrat.

C. F. MILHOLLAND, merchant, Mount Lebanon, Pa., was born in South Pittsburgh, in 1845, a son of James and Harriet (Foster) Milholland. James was by trade a carpenter and stonecutter. He was widower and his present wife is still living, married to Mr. R. Knowlson, of West Liberty borough. Our subject was educated in the common schools and reared to agricultural pursuits, which he followed for some time; was also engaged in brickmaking for four years. He married, in 1868, Maggie E., daughter of Dr. John Calahan, of Bridgeville, this county, and they are the parents of nine children: Hattie E., J. H., M. J., C. H. and M. E. (twins), M. C., L. H., A. L. and J. S. Since 1881 Mr. Milholland has been engaged in merchandising in his present location, at which he has been successful. He has been for six years postmaster at Mount Lebanon, for nineteen years a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

Mr. LUCIUS DEANE, train-master, Mansfield, is a native of Fitchburg, Mass., and was born in 1845. He is of English descent, his ancestors coming from England to America as early as 1630, and settled near Boston, Mass. His parents, Charles and Ann Fowell (Carter) Deane, had a family of nine children, and Mrs. Deane was also descended from an old family. Charles was a merchant, but later in life was a farmer, and is now retired from active life, at the age of eighty-two years, residing with his wife, aged seventy-seven, at Fitchburg, Mass., their native state. N. C. Deane was educated at the public schools of Fitchburg, and at the age of sixteen years enlisted in Co. D, 21st Massachusetts regiment, serving three years. He participated in many of the heaviest battles of the war, was with the 9th corps at Roanoke island, Newbern, the second battle of Bull run, South Mountain, Antietam, Wilderness, Spottsylvania C. H., and was wounded at Cold Harbor for the fifth time during his service. Mr. Deane was in the south for a few years in the employ of the government. He commenced his railroad career as a brakeman for the P. & E. R. R. and remained with the P. & E. division seven years, and was then transferred to the Pittsburgh division of P. & C. & St. L. R. R.; in 1872 came to this county, and since that date has been employed by P. & C. & St. L. R. R. Co. as train-master, and has his residence in Mansfield. He married, in 1872, Miss Kate, daughter of Dr. Klett, of Williamport, Pa., and four children were born to them, two now living, Marion and N. C. Jr. Mr. Deane is a Freemason, a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

Joseph Musgrave, farmer, postoffice Shoustown, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, Dec. 21, 1837, a son of Joseph and Mary (Hall) Musgrave, also natives of County Tyrone. They were Episcopalians, and descendants of Scotch people who in an early day immigrated to Ireland. They had a family of six sons and two daughters, viz.: John, a coal-merchant in Pittsburgh; Joseph; Robert, a tinner, with store at Pittsburgh; Samuel, in real-estate business in the same city; Simpson, in Chicago, III.; Jennie and Maria, unmarried, and residing in Pittsburgh, and William (deceased). The father died in the winter of 1851. The subject of our sketch was raised on his father's farm and attended school until the spring of 1848, when his parents came to Pittsburgh. He clerked for Lewis, Dallzell & Co., iron-manufacturers, Pittsburgh, until the spring of 1853, when he was seized with the gold fever, and went to California via the isthmus, and remained eight years, engaged in mining and prospecting. In 1860 he returned to Pittsburgh, remained a short time and then revisited Ireland, where he married, June 24, 1860, Mary A. Simpson, who was born in County Tyrone, a daughter of John Simpson, a farmer. Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave came to Pittsburgh in the fall, and in the spring following, 1861, they purchased his present farm, where he has since resided. He and his wife have eight children: Jennie, Maria, James, Lizzie, William, Josephine, Ella and John, all at home. Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave are members of the Presbyterian Church.
John Wagner, hardware-merchant, Mt. Oliver, was born April 5, 1851, in Hessen, Germany, son of Adam Wagner, also a native of Hessen, who was a well-known blacksmith in Mt. Oliver for over thirty years. John Wagner came to America when six years of age. He learned and followed successfully the blacksmith's trade until two years ago, when he engaged in the hardware business at Mt. Oliver. Politically Mr. Wagner is a republican, and well known in local political circles.

W. George Gibson, freight-agent, Allegheny, was born in 1836. The paternal grandfather, a native of Scotland and a farmer, came to America and settled in Butler county, Pa., at an early day. His son, William Gibson, was born and reared on the farm. He was clerk at the courthouse in an early day, and was an excellent penman and scholar, an elder in the Presbyterian Church. He died in 1884, aged eighty-eight years. He was married to Agnes Gilerist, by whom he had five children. Of these W. George was born and educated in Butler county. His mother dying when he was twelve years old, he left home, and came to Pittsburgh when fifteen years of age. In 1861 he entered the army, and was conductor on the military railroad, but, leaving the war department in 1862, he went into the oil-fields. Subsequently he returned to the railroad business, on the P., Ft. W. & C. R. R., and filled different positions with that company. At present he is freight-agent for the Allegheny Ft. Wayne depot.

M. G. Conlin, postoffice Jones's Station, is a son of Joseph and Sarah (Gibson) Conlin, and was born in Washington county, Pa., in 1857. His parents are now residents of West Elizabeth, and their children are W. J. (of Coal Bluff, Washington county), Annie, Delila (wife of William Campbell), Mary, Erdine, Johnnie (deceased) and M. G. Conlin. Mr. Conlin married Martha J. daughter of George and Rachel Jones, and settled near Jones's Station, Jefferson township, where he has become a merchant. His children are Joseph, George and John.

John W. Painter, distiller, Pittsburgh and Boston, was born in Westmoreland county, in 1839, and is a son of John and Harriet (Parks) Painter, of Lancaster county. His father was a native of New Jersey, settled in Westmoreland county about 1766, and followed farming as an occupation. William Parks, the father of Harriet Parks, was also an early settler in that county, and represented his county in the legislature for two terms. John W. Painter was educated at Beaver and Hayesville (Ohio) College. His wife is Isabellas Cornell, daughter of Robert and Martha (Neely) Cornell, of this county, a native of Scotland. In 1857 Mr. Painter entered the firm of Joseph S. Finch & Co., of Pittsburgh. Mr. Fineh died in 1884, and Mr. Painter purchased his interest in 1885. He associated with him J. G. Pontefract, the old firm name of Joseph S. Finch & Co. being retained. Mr. Painter established the famous brand of whisky known as "Golden Wedding Rye," and other famous brands. The distillery and warehouses belonging to this firm reach from Chestnut street to the Monongahela river, being 280 x 600 feet in dimensions. The warehouses have a capacity of forty thousand barrels. The daily output of the distillery averages about four thousand gallons. Mr. Painter holds the office of postmaster at Boston, having been appointed in 1887.

Alvey P. Culp, manufacturer, postoffice Dravosburg, was born March 17, 1832, on the banks of the Kiskiminetas river, Pennsylvania. There his father, Jacob Culp, had salt-works, but lost all the salt stored, by a flood. He went to Pittsburgh, thence to Ormsby, where he operated a coal-road, and at Blossomville superintended a coal-work for M. Dravo, with whom he was connected some years. He also superintended a coal-work for J. McCluskey, at Port Perry, and after that for his son, Alvey, at Rock run. He was well known among miners and river captains, and died in Reynoldsburg in 1886, aged eighty-four years. His widow, Mrs. Juliana Syford, survives him, aged eighty years. They had seven children: Oliver, Clara, Alvey P., Alfred, Margaret, Lizzie and Ellen. The subject of this memoir was raised in the mines, and became thoroughly familiar with the details of the work, soon becoming mine boss. In partnership with James Gamble he operated the mines at Rock run for twelve years, and since then has engaged in the lumber business. He married Eliza L. McCaughan, and eight children blessed this union: Benjamin Franklin, Harry Elmer, Rhoda Anna, Ruth Blanche, Roberta Beverly, Lulie Edna, Lidie Alma and Annetta May. The Culp family are members of the M. E. Church; politically Mr. Culp is a demoraet. In the summer of 1881 he had his right hand cut off in his lumber-mill.

Thomas Preston Henderson, postoffice Hulton, was born in Pittsburgh, Feb. 14, 1843, a son of James King and Eliza (Parsons) Henderson, both natives of Ireland, and members of the Episcopal Church. James K. came to Pittsburgh in 1818, where he was engaged in mercantile business. Mrs. Henderson's father was John Parsons, who operated a cutlery business in Pittsburgh. Thomas P. Henderson received his education at the public schools of Pittsburgh, and graduated from the high-school in 1861. He enlisted in August, 1862, in Young's battery, and was discharged June 8, 1865. He was then engaged as clerk in the freight department of the P. R. R. Co., and from 1870 to 1876 was engaged in general mercantile business. Since 1877 he has been connected with the treasury department of the Pennsylvania company. He has lately completed a beautiful home on B street, Verona. Mr. Henderson married, in 1871, Ida E. Masten, of Warren, Pa., a daughter of Cornelius and...
Lydia (Hackney) Masten, and of three children born to Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Rosse is the only surviving one. They are members of Verona Presbyterian Church. Mr. Henderson is a staunch Republican.

D. B. McConville, contractor, Tarentum, son of Peter and Bridget McConville, was born in Ireland in 1856. His parents immigrated to this country, and located in Brooke County, Va., where they lived twenty years, and then removed to Steubenville, Ohio. From the latter place they returned to their former home, where Peter McConville died, March 3, 1885. His widow is now a resident of East Liberty. Their children were James, Catharine and D. B. Our subject, when a child, came with his parents and a sister to what is now West Virginia, and there he learned the mason's trade. He afterward visited various sections of the country, and worked at his trade in Cleveland (Ohio), Toronto (Canada), St. Louis, Mobile, New Orleans, Chicago and Steubenville (Ohio), finally locating in Tarentum, Pa. In 1877 he married Miss Celia, daughter of John McCarty, of Steubenville, Ohio, and by her has one child, Daniel J. Mr. McConville has been a contractor in Tarentum during the rapid growth of the place, and is a successful business-man. He is a member of the Catholic Church.

John W. Hemphill, merchant-tailor, Tarentum, is a son of John and Ann (Longsdorf) Hemphill, and was born in Cumberland county, Pa., in 1840. His parents removed to Tarentum in 1846, where the father engaged in business as tailor until his decease, in June, 1859. His wife, Ann, died in 1879. Their children now living are Sarah (Mrs. Cox of Oil City, Pa.), Doreas (Mrs. Aker, of Westmoreland county, Pa.), James. Lydia Ann (Mrs. Rhine of Pittsburgh), Margaret (Mrs. E. Kennedy of Tarentum) and John W. Our subject learned his trade of his father, and continued the business here until the commencement of hostilities during the civil war, when he enlisted in Co. A, 74th N. Y. S. V., which was an independent company attached to Sickles' brigade. Mr. Hemphill was wounded at Bristow's Station, in the second battle of Bull run, but remained in the service until the expiration of his term of enlistment, June 22, 1864, when he received his discharge and returned to Tarentum. Aug. 17, 1864, he married Nancy, daughter of James Staley, Sr., of Tarentum, and in 1865 he went to the oil-field, where he remained a couple of years. Being reasonably successful, he returned to Tarentum and engaged in business as a merchant-tailor, which he still continues. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill are Elva John S., James W., Orland and Harry. The parents are members of the Methodist Church.

William H. Seaman, Leetsdale, was born June 22, 1855, in Darlington, Beaver county, Pa. His grandfather, John Seaman, was born in Reading county, Pa., of German descent. He came in an early day to Butler county, where he was a merchant. He was the father of eight children, of whom Elias, who was a saddler in Butler county, Pa., married Margaret, daughter of Charles Geor- ing, whose father was one of the first settlers in Butler county. William H. was educated in Pittsburgh, attended the Western University, and learned his trade, that of carpenter, in the same city, which he followed for many years. Eventually he went into the fruit business at Mt. Sewickley fruit-farm, in Leet township. He left this and returned to his trade, at which he is now employed. He was married, in Pittsburgh, to Miss Henrietta Cunningham, who is the mother of seven children: Andrew (a merchant in Leetsdale), Thomas (on the P., Ft. W. & C. R. R.), George M. (of the Tradesmen's Bank of Pittsburgh), Mrs. Mary Davis, Charlotte, and two sons who died. Mr. and Mrs. Seaman are members of the Presbyterian Church, of Leetsdale, of which he is an elder, and superintendent of the Sabbath school.

Gustavus A. Meyer, miller, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of John R. Meyer, who was a native of Prussia, and a captain in the Prussian army. He immigrated to this country in 1838 and settled in Cincinnati, working at his trade as a tailor. In 1846 he moved to Muskingum county, Ohio, and in 1854 to Pittsburgh. He was a soldier in the Civil war, and was killed at the battle of the Wilderness. He left six children, Gustavus A. being the eldest. He was born Jan. 27, 1838, on board the ship in which his parents were coming to this country, while in the Gulf of Mexico. He learned the trade of pattern-making, and worked at it for many years in Pittsburgh. In 1873 he went to Virginia, where he owned a saw and grist mill on Potomac run, and another on Acquia creek. After nine years he returned to Pittsburgh, and remained until July, 1887, when he purchased the Elizabeth flouring mills of Mr. T. H. Drennan, and is the head of the Meyer Milling company. Nov. 1, 1858, he was married to Anna M., daughter of William and Elizabeth (Gosman) Caseman, of Pittsburgh. They have five living children: Amelia (Mrs. Jacob Liese), of this borough; Minerva, Gustavus A., Jr., William R. and May, living at home. Mr. Meyer was captain of the pioneer corps of the S. W. army, which was raised in Pittsburgh. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, of William Tell Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Wheeling, W. Va., and A. O. U. W. of Millvale borough, Pa.

William Wiegel, boat-builder and grocer, Elizabeth, is a son of John and Ann (Redlingshafer) Wiegel, natives of Washington county, Pa., and now residents of this borough. He was born Dec. 22, 1852, at Fayette City, Fayette county, but was reared in Brownsville, and is a shipbuilder by trade. He moved to Elizabeth borough in 1874, and was employed by Joseph Walton & Co., as calker, for seven years. In 1882 he established his present grocery business, and in 1887, in connection with four of his brothers, leased the property known as the Large saw mills. They are extensive builders of barges and coalboats. In 1873 he was married to Anna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson Storey, of Elizabeth borough. They have four living children—George J., Blanche, Helen and Lillian. He is a member of the Old Monongahela Lodge, No. 299, I. O. O. F.; and he and family are members of the M. E. Church.

John Wallace Morrison, merchant, Pittsburgh, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 15, 1841, a son of John and Hannah (Wallace) Morrison, both of whom were born near Londonderry, Ireland, the latter of whom is a daughter of John Wallace, of Scotland, and a lineal descendant of Sir William Wallace; she now resides at Philadelphia, in her eighty-eighth year. The father of our subject came to America in or about 1837, and resided at Philadelphia until his death, which occurred in 1875, when he was eighty years of age. Mr. Morrison had three brothers and five sisters, he being the seventh child. He was educated at the public schools of Philadelphia, and at the age of thirteen began clerking in a country store in Mercer county, Pa., and after one year came to Pittsburgh and entered as errand-boy in the store of which he is now proprietor. In August, 1861, he and two brothers enlisted in the 100th (Roundheads) P. V. I., served till the close of the war, and was commissioned second lieutenant (see history of the regiment on page 442). At the close of the war he returned to work in the store, and in 1866 bought out the proprietor, continuing in the business ever since. In about 1870 he built his home at Belvue, where he has been a member of council and school director. He was republican representative from the Fifth district in 1870;登记 clerk of house of representatives 1885—97, and chief clerk of the house 1889—90. He was aid on Gen. Beaver's staff. N. G. P.; is a member of the Presbyterian Church, of the G. A. R., U. V. L. In 1866 he married Jerusha C., daughter of James C. and Mary B. Burchfield, of Allegheny, and four children were born to them: Mary B., Kate H., Alice T. and James B., all at home.

Elmer M. Soles, conductor B. & O. R. R., McKeesport, was born in that city Nov. 14, 1846, a son of Peter and Jane (Bell) Soles. His paternal grandfather, David Soles, a farmer of Wilkins township, this county, was a son of Peter Soles, a native of Germany, who was among the pioneers of this county, and settled in McKeesport in 1798. Jonathan Bell, the maternal grandfather of Elmer M., moved to McKee'sport in 1813 and Pittsburg between 1830 and 1840. Peter Soles, father of Elmer M., was a prominent coal-operator, and lived and died in McKeesport. His children were Melinda (Mrs. J. M. Dumm), Labana (deceased), Elmer M., Alfredetta (Mrs. Robert Kay), Lizzie (deceased) and David (deceased). Elmer M. was reared and educated in McKeesport, and began life as a newsboy, carrying the Commercial Gazette in McKeesport for three years. He was a soldier in the civil war, enlisting May 18, 1861, and was honorably discharged September 6th, same year. After returning home he entered the employ of the B. & O. R. R. Co. as brakeman; later filled the positions of fireman and baggageman, and in 1873 was promoted to passenger-conductor, which position he has since filled to the satisfaction of the railroad company and the public generally. He married, Nov. 20, 1867, Harriet, daughter of Thomas A. and Margaret (Young) Carnahan, of McKeesport, and by her had six children: Clarence E., William E. Lizzie, David (deceased), Madge and Thomas (deceased). Mr. Soles is a F. & A. M., a member of the M. E. Church, and is a republican.

Matthew B. Eyster, machinist, Emsworth, was born in 1856 in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of Matthew and Elizabeth (Robinson) Eyster. The father was born at Slippery Rock, Pa., where he was reared and educated; he came to Pittsburgh about 1830, and was foreman in the hat maufactory of McCord & King until his death, which occurred in 1845. The mother was born in County Derry, Ireland, and died in 1885. Matthew Eyster's paternal grandfather was born in Germany, and settled at Slippery Rock, Pa.; his maternal grandparents came from County Derry, Ireland. The subject of this memoir attended school at the old Green Tree tavern in Reserve township, this county, afterward at Butler's Run until the age of eleven years, when, owing to the sudden death of his father, he was compelled to leave school and begin work. He began life as cabin-boy on Allegheny river, and in 1854 commenced learning engine-making. A few years later he went to Mr. Thomas Eyster's shops where he remained until the war opened. When he enlisted, in 1862, in Co. E, 123d P. V. I. He was in the battles of second Bull run, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, and was discharged in 1863. Before the battle of Fredericksburg he was appointed bugler to Maj.-Gen. Humphrey, of the U. S. regular army. Returning to Pittsburgh, he followed his trade with different firms until 1882, when he took charge of the plumbing department of the Lucky Manufacturing company, which was succeeded by the Standard Manufacturing company. Mr. Eyster was married, April 7, 1864, to Emma Graham, a native of Allegheny, Pa., daughter of Nathan and Elizabeth Graham, who were born and lived in Chambersburg, Pa., until 1845, when they settled in Allegheny county. Four sons and two daughters have blessed this union: William (a bookkeeper), Nathan G. (a bookkeeper), John R. (a salesman), Charles, Elizabeth and Etta May, at home. Mr. Eyster moved to Emsworth in 1869, and in 1887 erected his present fine home. He was brought up in the M. E. Church, and his family are Presbyterians. He is a member of the Inley Lodge, F. & A. M., Allegheny.

CHARLES WIDNEY Eyster, machinist, Allegheny, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 28, 1839, son of Matthew and Elizabeth (Robinson) Eyster, whose sketch appears above. He received limited schooling in Reserve town-ship, and at the age of nine years left home, working for two years with a Mr. Davis, and at candle-making, etc., with a Mr. Sawyer, for about six years. He then began life on the river, on the steamer Chicago, as cabin-boy, from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, continuing at same until 1855, when he commenced to learn the machinist's trade of Robinson, Minnis & Miller. Here he remained until the breaking out of the war, when he was employed in a Mississippi squadron as engineer for nearly three years. Returning to Allegheny City, he married, in June, 1864, Henrietta Armstrong, of Allegheny, Pa., a sister of Thomas Armstrong (whose sketch appears elsewhere), and they have one child, named Mary. Mr. Eyster then became engineer on a steamer running from Pittsburgh to New Orleans and St. Louis, continuing as such for twenty years. In May, 1883, he abandoned the river and entered the Westinghouse air-brake factory, where he is still employed. In September, 1884, he removed to his home at Emsworth. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W., F. & A. M., and the Westinghouse Air-brake Beneficial association.

ALEXANDER M. Harbaugh, carpenter, postoffice McKee's Rocks, son of Jacob and Hannah Harbaugh, was born in Stowe town-ship, this county, in 1843. Jacob came from east of the mountains, settled in this county about 1832, and was married in 1834 to a widow whose maiden name was Hannah Kimberlin, and who died July 17, 1888, aged ninety years. By this marriage there were six children: Elizabeth (wife of Adam Shamer), Joseph L., James (deceased), Alexander M., Ellen H. (deceased) and George. Jacob Harbaugh for many years followed teaming over the Alleghany mountains, and died in 1853 at the age of fifty-six years; his widow is still living. Alexander M. married, in March, 1863, Mary E., daughter of Francis Harbaugh, of Washington county, Pa. Mr. Harbaugh enlisted, in 1862, in the state serv-ice, and was with the troops that captured Gen. Morgan in Ohio. In 1864 he enlisted in the United States service for one year in Co. B, 101st P. V. I., and was mustered out under general order mustering out troops, in 1865. He has been a carpenter by trade, and has by industry and economy secured a good home in Stowe township.

ALEXANDER Y. Shaw, farmer, McKee-port, was born in Versailles township, May 16, 1848, son of Samuel and Margaret (Samm) Shaw. His paternal grandfather, William Shaw, a native of Ireland, was among the pioneers of Versailles township; was a large land-owner, and reared a family of nineteen children. The subject of this sketch was reared and educated in Versailles township, and has always followed farming. He has been twice married; his first wife, Angenetta, daughter of Robert and Catherine (McCleary) Neel, of South Huntingdon township, Westmoreland county, Pa., bore him three chil-dren: Maggie E., Anna M. and Angenetta. His present wife was Mary A., daughter of Hamilton and Nancy (Dinsmore) Stewart, of McKeesport, by whom he has three children living: Nancy J., Julia S. and Alexander Hamilton. Mr. Shaw is a republican. He is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of McKeesport, and of the K. of H.

George Jacobs, baker, Homestead, was born Aug. 10, 1859, in Franklin county, Pa., a son of Adam Jacobs, a native of Germany. He was educated in Pennsylvania and Mary-land, and at the age of fourteen years came to Pittsburgh, where, with Peter Shaldecker, he learned his trade, which he followed for eight years on the South Side, that city. In 1882 he came to Homestead, where he has built up a good trade, and has been successful from the start, having a thorough knowl-edge of his business. Mr. Jacobs married, in Pittsburgh, Anna C. Germroth, and has two children, Ella C. and Florence E. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a member of the R. A., K. of H. and U. A. M., and is a democrat.

CAPT. JAMES D. Hays, postoffice Home-stead, was born Jan. 15, 1843, in Müfflin town-ship, and is a son of John D. Hays, a native of Butler county, Pa. The latter came to Alle-gheany early in life, pursued farming, and died in the service of his country in 1863, a member of Co. H, 93d P. V. I., Army of the Potomac, and was buried in the Soldiers' Home cemetery, Washington. He married Mary, daughter of Moses Cox, and had eight children, viz.: Mrs. Ann L. Gordon, James D., Louis A., Mrs. Sarah J. Moore, Henry, Mrs. Fannie Chamberlain, Charles and John. James D., at the age of sixteen, enlisted in Co. B, 46th P. V. I., and participated in the engagements of Resaca, Ga., Peach Tree Creek, Kennesaw Mountain and Dalton. He took part in the siege of Atlanta and in Sherman's march to the sea, and marched through Richmond, from Raleigh, N. C., to Washington, where he took part in the grand review, thence returning home. After the war he went on the river on the Jacob Painter, Veteran and Abe Hays, and on the latter was promoted to pilot, an occupation he followed for eighteen years. For the last ten years he has been captain of the Black River (McCleary). He married a daughter of Capt. Abyron D. Ackard, and they have four children: James, Cora, Flora and Charles. Captain Hays is a member of the G. A. R., and is a republican.

DAVID K. Murray, farmer, postoffice Herron, is a son of David and Jane (McMillan) Murray. David, Sr., grandfather of our subject, who was a native of Ireland, came to America some time in the last cen-ury; he married Nancy McCleland, Feb. 17, 1790, and moved from Washington county to Pine Creek, Allegheny county, in April, 1794, and located on four hundred acres of land in Hampton township, the farm where David K. now resides being part of the same. David Murray was born on the homestead in 1803, and died in 1882; his widow died in 1818. They had eleven children, seven of whom still survive: Martha, wife of Joseph Porter, of Omaha, Neb.; John S., a farmer of Hampton township; Andrew F., with our subject; Julia C., wife of James Wise, of Glenshaw; Vanelia, wife of George Newman, of Etna; Sarah, wife of John McGunagle, of East End, Pittsburgh, and David K., who was born in Glenshaw in 1843, and worked as a Sawyer in the city of Allegheny for twenty years. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Co. K, 123d P. V., serving nine months, when he re-enlisted in Co. I, 4th P. C., and served until the close of the war. In 1880 he engaged in general merchandising at Wildwood station, and in 1887 rented the store and returned to farming. In 1866 he married M., daughter of John and Elizabeth (Bonner) Woods, of Pittsburgh, and they have five children living: Edmund M., Harry W., James C., Robert B., and William C., all at home. Mr. Murray and family are members of the M. E. Church at Allisonville, he being superintendent of the Sunday-school, trustee and steward of the church.

His brother, Andrew F., enlisted in Co. B, 123d P. V., and served nine months; then re-enlisted in Co. C, 14th P. C.; was wounded June 10, 1864, at the battle of Lynchburg, Va.; was taken prisoner, and confined in Andersonville prison five months. He married Annie Pifer, daughter of George Pifer, of Allegheny. She died Jan. 28, 1879, leaving two children: Harry P., at Fort Riley, Kan., and Mary E., in Allegheny. Since her death Andrew F. has resided with his brother, David K.

S. SIMON, of the firm of Simon, Huber & Co. (limited), McKeesport, is a native of Russia, where he was reared and educated. He served an apprenticeship of eleven years at the jeweler's trade, and came to America in 1882, worked as a journeyman for Heeren Bros., Pittsburgh, one year, and in 1888 established himself in business in that city. In 1885 he settled in McKeesport, and opened a jewelry-store, which he conducted alone up to the spring of 1888, when he embarked in business with others under the firm name of Simon, Huber & Co., which ranks among the leading jewelry-houses of the country. Mr. Simon is a practical workman, and thoroughly understands every feature connected with his business. He has recently invented an attachment, which can be applied to any clock, which will give the exact time of all countries in the world, the difference in time of which can readily be seen at a glance. In January, 1888, he visited New York for the purpose of examining the Turkish and Russian bath establishments of that city and Brooklyn, with the view of erecting a bath-house in this city, the project meeting with the approval and hearty indorsement of the people. He at once erected a first-class Turkish and Russian bath-house, which was opened to the public June 1, 1888. Mr. Simon is an energetic business-man, speaks fluently six languages, and is a valuable acquisition to the business interests of McKeesport. He is a member of the K. of P. and Heptasophs, and Tree of Life (Hebrew) congregation; he is a republican.

Benjamin Herr, farmer, postoffice Lancelot, is a son of Benjamin, Sr., and Elizabeth (Smith) Herr, former of whom settled on the farm now occupied by his son, Benjamin, in 1859, and lived there until his death, in 1887. He left seven children: Sarah H. (wife of Joseph A. Spang, of Manchester), Elizabeth H. (wife of Samuel H. Sutter, of Sharpsburg), John (of Millvale), Mollie B. (wife of William Stevenson, of Ross township), Magdaline and Daniel at home, and Benjamin, who was born in 1857, and has always resided on the homestead. In 1888 he married Ellen Virginia, daughter of Theodore Rice, of this county, and has four children: Mabel F., Nellie P., Charles L. and Benjamin. In connection with his brother, Daniel, he purchased the interest of the other heirs of his father's property, and they conduct the farm together. Daniel Herr was born Oct. 30, 1861, and is unmarried. He is a member of the U. B. Church.

John W. Bower, merchant and tinsmith, Homestead, was born March 14, 1854, in Upper St. Clair township, where his grandfather, Alexander Bower, was one of the first pioneers. The latter had seven boys and seven girls, who were all born in this county. Of these David C., father of John W., married Jane Espey, whose grandfather Hickman came from Germany, and was a pioneer in North Fayette township. John W. Bower, who is one of a family of six boys and one girl, learned the tinner's trade at the age of sixteen, in Pittsburgh, and for five years followed it in Noblestown, Pa. In the spring of 1880 he came to Homestead, where he has since followed his trade successfully, also keeping a hardware-store. Mr. Bower married Anna L. Shaffer, and they have four children: Holmes, Harry, Stewart, and Elizabeth. He is a member of the R. A., I. O. H., K. of F. and S. O. A. M., and is a democrat.

D. F. Bair, contractor, Homestead, was born Feb. 27, 1844, in Greensburg, Westmoreland county, Pa., son of Benjamin and Catharine (Shuey) Bair, who were old settlers of the above county, and the parents of the following-named children: Isaac, Susan, David F., Hannah, Joseph, Katie and Emanuel. David F. Bair learned his trade thoroughly, and followed it in his native country until August, 1880, when he came to Homestead, where he has since been one of the leading contractors and builders. He married, Nov. 27, 1873, Maggie, daughter of Abner and Mary
A. (Kissler) Evans, old settlers of Westmoreland county. Mr. Bair is a member of the K. of H., O. U. A. M. and Jr. O. U. A. M., and is a republican. Mr. and Mrs. Bair are active members of the Presbyterian Church.

Perry Pence, blacksmith, postoffice West Elizabeth, son of William and Catherine Pence, was born in New Salem, Fayette county, Pa., in 1843. His parents were both natives of Pennsylvania. In 1867 he came to Allegheny county, and finally settled in West Elizabeth, where he engaged in business as a blacksmith, to which he subsequently added a machine-shop, and this he still carries on. Mr. Pence has never been married, and still clings to the state of single blessedness he has so long enjoyed.

Albert McGee, blacksmith, postoffice Hulton, was born in Clarion county, Pa., Jan. 36, 1832, a son of John L. and Hattie (Mahung) McGee. His father was born in Pennsylvania, Sept. 13, 1824, was a boatman all his life, and was killed at the railroad crossing in Verona, March 4, 1866. The mother of our subject was born Oct. 7, 1833, and died Sept. 24, 1866. Albert McGee received his education in Clarion county, and in 1869 commenced life as office-boy for a coal company. For some time he was employed at the Oil City water-works; from 1874 to 1878 he drove for Dan Stotler, and since latter year has been employed at the Verona Tool-works. He was married in August, 1877, to Mary A. Bright, who was born Feb. 14, 1832, daughter of Michael and Eliza (Walters) Bright, latter now residing with Mrs. McGee. Our subject and wife have four children: Maud J., Albert Meeds, Eliza May and Mary Ann. They are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. McGee was a republican candidate for councilman, and elected in February, 1888. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P. and O. U. A. M.

Henry Moor Wick, carpenter, Verona, was born in Armstrong county, Pa., in 1839, and is the second son of J. Farr Wick, who was born in Sugar Creek township, Armstrong county, in 1812, and died in 1882. Mary Ann, wife of the latter, and daughter of Joseph Brown (of Irish birth), was born in 1816, and is still living. Elijah Wick, father of J. Farr, came from New Jersey to Armstrong county early in the present century. J. Farr Wick filled many township offices in Sugar Creek. Henry M. was reared on the farm, and when twenty years old took up his present trade. In 1861 he joined Co. A, 8th P. R., and served three years with the Army of the Potomac. At Charles City Cross Roads he received a bullet in the right side, injuring the pelvic bone, so that the wound did not heal for a year, but he recovered in time to take part in the battles of the Wilderness, and was discharged at the expiration of his term, in 1864. For a time he was employed by the government at his trade, later organized and served with the A. V. R. R. Co., and was made foreman of engine-carpenters in 1882. Since coming to Verona, in 1876, he has built a house on Rail-road avenue, in the First ward. With his mother and youngest sister he resides near Iona station. He is a member of the K. of P. and G. A. R., and is a republican. Three brothers, younger than himself, Joseph C., John R. and Richard Brown, reside, respectively, in Bradford, Pa., California and Verona. Samuel died when twenty-four years old, and James, the fifth, at the age of nineteen. Of the sisters, Nancy Ann (McGregor) lives at Verona, and resides at Kittanning; Phoebe B. (Beasom), at Bradford; Eliza J., at Verona; Elvira (McNutt) is deceased.

Herman Meyers, painter, Verona, was born in Freedom, Beaver county, Pa., in 1837, a son of Christian Frederick and Mary (Smith) Meyers, natives of Germany, who came to America when young, former born in November, 1805, and both died in 1877. Herman Meyers received his education in Lawrenceville and Pittsburgh, and at the age of eighteen learned the trade of glasscutter; after four years at that work he began painting, and has followed that trade ever since. He enlisted, in 1862, in Co. A. 15th P. V. I., assigned to the Army of the Potomac, and was in all its engagements until the close of the war; he was discharged in June, 1865. Mr. Meyers was married Jan. 1, 1866, to Rose Odenwelder, of Lawrenceville, daughter of Charles and Kate (McGurk) Odenwelder, both natives of Pennsylvania. Her father died in 1873; her mother lives in West Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Meyers have had three children: Flora, Charles and Emma, latter of whom died when six years of age. Mr. Meyers has resided in Verona since 1878, and is employed as painter in the A. V. R. R. shops. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and G. A. R.

Michael O. Byrne was born in County Kerry, Ireland, in 1798. He married Eleanor O'Brien, and immigrated to America in 1823. They resided in Beaver county for some years; thence removed to Allegheny county, where they owned a tract of land known as "Glasgow," which was originally purchased by Thomas Jones, uncle of Mrs. Byrne. Mr. Byrne died in 1885, surviving his wife about ten years. Of their nine children, five survive them: John J., in Indiana; William, Margaret, Joanna, and Eleanor Depp, nee Byrne, who married Daniel Depp, of Robinson township, in 1895. They have one son, Thomas J., who was educated at the Pittsburgh Catholic College, and is now book-keeper. Their religion is Catholic, and in politics democratic.

John Fisher, farmer, postoffice White Ash, a son of Christian and Catharine (Nentstiel) Fisher, was born at Heimbolds-Hausen, Hessen-Cassel, Germany, Aug. 29, 1837. He attended school until fourteen years old, and then served six years at the weaver's trade. In 1850 he left his native land, and came to Pittsburgh, where he was apprenticed himself to a shoemaker rather than be idle. In 1861 he enlisted in Co. B, 9th P. R., and joined the Army of the Potomac. At the battle of Gaines' Mills he was shot through the right arm and taken prisoner. After four weeks' confinement in Richmond, he was paroled, went to Chester hospital for treatment, and was discharged for disability Oct. 23, 1862. Two years later he took up his residence in Penn township, and March 3, 1870, married Catherine Aber, and settled on the farm where he now resides. He is a republican, and with his wife is a member of the Presbyterian Church at East Liberty. Mrs. Fisher was born on the farm where she now lives, daughter of John and Rachel Aber, early residents. Her grandfather, James Beatty, was kept a prisoner for three years by Indians, who had murdered his father, and for two years was interpreter for the traders.

Frederick Elk, coal-operator, post-office East Liberty, was born near the city of Wurtemberg, Germany, Oct. 1, 1817, a son of Emanuel and Magdalene Elk. He was reared on a farm, and in 1839 set out for America, landing at Philadelphia. Here he joined the United States regular army, serving five years, and taking part in the Florida war, and traversing many of the southern states. He was discharged at Corpus Christi, Tex., in 1845, and, coming to this county, bought land in Penu township, also the coal underlying other lands, and has since carried on mining more or less extensively. He and his family are connected with the Lutheran Church at East Liberty; politically he is a democrat. In 1846 he married Caroline Johnson, born in Harrisburg, a daughter of William and Dorothea Johnson, of Holland and Germany, respectively. Their children are Emanuel and William (twins), in East Liberty; Catherine Isabel (Ferris), in Rochester; John Conrad and Adam, in East Liberty; Dorothea Caroline (Dale), in Brushtou; Rachel A. Beckett and Louis (twins), in Homewood; Lucy A. (Farufo), in Rochester; George (deceased) and Amanda Elizabeth (at home).

John R. Verner, farmer, post-office Groveton, was born in 1826 in Washington county, Pa., son of Adam and Margaret (Reed) Verner, and grandson of Jacob Verner, who immigrated to America in or about 1796; he was by trade a broumacker, and among the first men in this section engaged in that business. Adam Verner was born in 1788, and was among the eldest of the thirteen children born to his parents, eight of whom grew to maturity. He was a blacksmith by trade, and later in life followed farming. John R., our subject, was three years of age when he came to Robinson township, where he was reared, and educated at the common schools. He went on the river when young, which avocation he followed for thirty-eight years, purchasing his present farm of sixty-five acres in 1875. He was married in 1856 to Esther Young, daughter of Capt. John Young, and to them were born eight children: Rachel, Francis, Alfred, John, Andrew W., Oliver N., Samuel Young and Anna; six are now living. The mother of these children died, and Mr. Verner married her sister. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Verner is a republican.

Martha M. Taylor, post-office Gill Hall, is a daughter of Amos and Deborah (McKilips) Pierce, and was born in 1838 on the place she now owns. Her father was a farmer, and was known as cancer doctor, curing many of the worst cases, and with his wife settled in Jefferson township, where they both died. Their children were James McK., Lewis, Joseph, Jane, Andrew, Mary A. and Martha M., living; and Lewis, Jane, Mary and James, deceased. In 1857 the subject of this memoir was married to Joseph Taylor, son of Joseph and Hannah Taylor, former residents of Forward township. Joseph left Forward twenty years ago, and went to Monongahela City; from there he moved to Montana, and afterward to Florida, where he has an orange grove. Since his return to Jefferson township he has been engaged in farming, and intends to devote a portion of his time to his farm in Jefferson and the one in Florida. Mr. Taylor is a Methodist, and Mrs. Taylor a United Presbyterian.

John Gillespie, farmer, post-office Tarentum, is a son of Samuel Gillespie, and was born in Ireland. When twelve years old he came to America with his parents, who, in 1840, settled in East Deer township, Allegheny county, Pa., where they died. They reared a family of eleven children: Robert, Matthew (deceased), Richard (deceased), Susan (deceased), Jane, John, Rebecca (deceased), Agnes (deceased), Samuel (deceased), Andrew and Eleanor. John married, in 1833, Mary Jane, daughter of George Means, of West Deer township, and located in East Deer township, where he purchased a farm, and lived thereon until the year 1875, when he purchased the farm he now occupies; here he built a very handsome residence, and is engaged in farming, stock-raising and dairying. Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie have nine children: Jane I., Samuel R., George T., Robert J., Anna M., Mary O., Eleanor A., David B. and William M. Jane I., the eldest daughter, married, in 1874, Ephraim Norris, and they have five children: Ella, Nettie, Bertha, Leila and Charlie. Samuel R., the eldest son, married, in 1881, Emma Robinson, and lives on one of his father's farms in East Deer township. He has two children—Charles E. and Nella Eva. Mary O., third eldest daughter, married, in 1885, George Kirk, and she has one child. Mr. Gillespie and family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

James C. Bryant, farmer, post-office Herron, is a son of Samuel and Grace (Marsh) Bryant, natives of Stratford-on-Avon, England, who emigrated to America in 1839, and settled in Lycoming county, Pa., where the father died about one year afterward. The mother came to Pittsburgh and joined her son James C., who had preceded them to America about three years. He was born in Stratford-on-Avon, England, July 7, 1813, and received his education in that country. When seventeen years of age he came to Pittsburgh, and served an apprenticeship of three years in the charcoal refining of iron, and followed that business until 1840, starting many of the refineries of those days. In 1840 he purchased his present farm on the line of Hampton and Shaler townships, and has since improved it. In 1836 he married Rachel, daughter of Maj. John and Jane (Ewing) Street, the mother a native of Chester county, but residents of this county. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant have four children living: Jane L. (wife of Isaac Dehaven, of this township), William Cullen (merchant of Pittsburgh), Milton C. (merchant of Allegheny), James S. (a farmer of Hampton township). Mr. Bryant has been school director of the township twenty-nine years, and justice of the peace for the past five years; he is a member of the Episcopal Church of Allegheny. Bryant Station, on the P. & W. R. R., is named after him.

Ephraim Brunner, carpenter, postoffice New Texas, was born in North Huntingdon township, Westmoreland county, Pa., April 19, 1835, a son of Ephraim and Anna Margaret (Deeds) Brunner, natives of Bucks and Westmoreland counties, born Nov. 28, 1796, and Dec. 29, 1800, respectively. His father came to Westmoreland county in 1822 and located at Mt. Pleasant, where he followed the carpenter's trade until April, 1836. He then moved to Plum township, where he died April 14, 1867. His mother died Feb. 9, 1866. Mr. Brunner is of German descent on both sides. He received his education in Plum township, began the carpenter's trade in 1852, and has since followed it in this county, at times being in Pittsburgh, Turtle Creek and other places. He married, March 28, 1858, Lizzie S. Weaver, of Westmoreland county, born Nov. 28, 1833, daughter of John and Eliza (St. Clair) Weaver, natives of Westmoreland county, Pa. Her mother died July 25, 1826. Seven children have blessed this union: Ida May (Mrs. J. B. Patterson), James R., Thomas Homer, Ulysses, Frank, Harry H., John R., all carpenters at East End, and Anna Margaret at home. The family are members of the Plum Creek Presbyterian Church. Mr. Brunner enlisted Aug. 25, 1864, in Co. F, 5th H. A., and he, with forty others, was captured Oct. 5 of the same year. He was confined for two months in Libby prison, and for a like period in Pemberton prison. On returning to his command he was made drum-major, but being wholly unfit for duty from the effects of prison life, he was discharged June 15, 1865 at Alexandria hospital. He is a republican, and a member of the G. A. R.

Jeremiah Murry Carpenter, farmer, postoffice New Texas, was born at Hamilton's Mill, Westmoreland county, Pa., the son of John and Jane (Murry) Carpenter, his father being a native of Baltimore, Md., and his mother a native of Westmoreland county, Pa. His father, an attorney in Huntingdon county, Pa., came to this township, A. D, 1837, where he lived for a short time upon a farm, and died of consumption. His grandfather, Daniel, had a captain's commission in the Revolution. His great-grandfather was also Daniel, and his great-great-grandfather, Henry, immigrated to Lancaster county, Pa., from Switzerland in 1698. His maternal grandfather, Jeremiah Murry, who came from Ireland in 1784, founded the town of Murrysville, built the mill there and accumulated a large amount of land in Westmoreland and Allegheny counties. Mr. Murry's wife was Ann Montgomery, of Chester county, Pa. J. M. Carpenter received his education at Murrysville, and spent his youth there until he was seventeen years of age. He then went to Ohio, where he afterward engaged in the mercantile business, and also at Murrysville in the same business, until 1852, at which time he moved to his mother's farm, in Plum township, where he has since remained. He married, in December, 1842, Ellen McFadden, of West Middletown, Washington county, a daughter of James and Margaret (Stewart) McFadden. Mr. McF. was born in County Down, Ireland, and Mrs. McFadden at West Middletown, Washington county. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter: Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. James McJunkins, Sr.), John, James McFadden (an attorney at Pittsburgh), Jeremiah Murry (deceased), Samuel L. (attorney in Denver, Colo.) and Bertha Ellen. Mrs. Carpenter died March 22, 1869. Mr. Carpenter is an elder in the Presbyterian Church. He was five years justice of the peace in Westmoreland county, and five years here. Aside from his farm work, Mr. Carpenter has done considerable surveying in the neighborhood.

Joseph Price, steamboat captain, residence Braddock, was born in Putman county, Ohio, in 1845, a son of John S. Price and Elizabeth Goldsworth Price (a native of Wales), former by occupation a prospector. They had seven children, six of whom are still living, Joseph being the fifth son. He was educated at the public school, and since then has followed the river, for the past twenty-four years as captain and pilot. Capt. Price married Ella V., daughter of John V. and Mary (Hubbs) Layton, of Fayette City, Fayette county, Pa., and two children have been born to them: Harry L. and Joseph. The captain is a F. & A. M. member of the A. O. U. W., an adherent of the First Christian Church. He has been a democrat, but voted for Harrison in 1888.

W. B. Lucas, steamboat captain, Braddock, is a native of Greene county, Pa., born in 1835 to John and Elizabeth (Hughes) Lucas, former also a native of Greene county, latter a daughter of Thomas Hughes, of above-named county. The family lived from W. B. being the third in order of birth. The subject of this sketch was reared and educated in his native county; for thirty-five years has followed steamboating, having risen from cabin-boy to captain, and since nineteen years of age has been a pilot on the Monongahela and Ohio rivers, navigating between Morgantown, W. Va., and Louisville, Ky. In 1879 the captain came to Braddock, where he purchased a lot of ground on the banks of the Monongahela and erected a fine house, which he has since made his home. He was married, in 1869, to a daughter of Bailey, a well-known lawyer of Brownsville, Pa., and, she dying, he subsequently married Anna P., daughter of H. Johnson, of Allegheny county. The captain has no children. He is a F. A. M., and a republican.

Frederick Roads, farmer, postoffice West Elizabeth, son of Frederick and Elizabeth (Walter) Roads, was born in Versailles township, near McKeesport, Jan. 27, 1804. His father was a native of Dauphin county, and his mother of Bedford county, Pa. After marriage they settled in Versailles township, and following year moved to Elizabeth township. Their children were Catherine, Christian, Henry, Mary Ann, Elizabeth and Caroline (all deceased), and John, a farmer of Elizabeth township; David, a farmer, of Lincoln township; Louisa, now Mrs. Gibnor, of West Elizabeth, and our subject. In 1827 Frederick married Catherine, daughter of Henry and Charlotte Bridenthal, natives of Germany, and after marriage they lived in Pittsburgh for a time. Returning to what was then Elizabeth, he purchased a farm in Jefferson township, which he recently sold, and bought a property in West Elizabeth, where he now resides. Their children were David (deceased), Elizabeth (now Mrs. J. Q. A. Young, of Elizabeth), Charlotte (now Mrs. John Fairbanks, of McKeensport), Frederick (of Birmingham), S. O. Roas, in Elizabeth township, and Mary L., now Mrs. Henry L. Large, of Westmoreland county. Mr. Roads' father was drafted during the war of 1812, but obtained a substitute with one hundred dollars and a new rifle. Mr. and Mrs. Roads are both members of the Presbyterian Church of West Elizabeth, of which he has been an elder for forty-eight years, and was one of those who organized the church which he built, but which has since been torn down and a larger one erected, in the building of which he has also assisted. In 1894 he, with A. W. Bedell, attended the exposition at New Orleans, and had the most enjoyable trip of his life. Jan. 27, 1889, was Mr. Roads' eighty-fifth birthday, and on the 29th they had a family reunion of children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Andrew McFerin, farmer, postoffice Bennett, was born Aug. 26, 1836, in Shaler township, the son of John McFerin. Grandfather McFerin, who was a gardener, came from Ireland with his family, consisting of his wife and six children. James, John and two daughters—and located in Allegheny City, being among the early settlers of that place. John McFerin was a boss carpenter and an able workman. He married Susan, daughter of Andrew Wible, and she died, aged eighty-two years, the mother of two children: Mrs. Nancy J. Hatch, and Andrew, the subject of these lines, who was educated here. He is a farmer, and is in possession of fifty acres of land. He married Sarah B. Reynolds, and their children are Jane, Susan, Anna, Wilson, John, and Mrs. McFerin are members of the Presbyterian Church at Millvale, of which he is an elder. John Carnahan, farmer, Culmerville, was born July 31, 1814, on his present farm, son of John and Martha (Kissick) Carnahan, former of whom was born in Juniata county, Pa., and died in 1830, aged sixty-five years; latter born in County Derry, Ireland, and died in 1833, aged fifty-six years. The father settled here about 1796, and was closely identified with the U. P. Church, and with affairs of the township. Mr. Carnahan's half brother, George, was in the war of 1812. John received his education in West Deer township in the old log schoolhouse with paper windows. He was left alone at his father's death and took charge of the farm until it was divided between the three sons. He was married in 1836 to Eliza Catherwood, a half-sister to Robert Catherwood, and daughter of John and Susan (Hessen) Catherwood. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Carnahan: Susan, Samuel, Robert, Martha, Elizabeth, Jane, Mary, Nelson and Clark. Samuel and Robert were in the war of the rebellion, and both died in the hospital; the former was being educated for the ministry. Mrs. Carnahan died in 1855, and Mr. Carnahan was married in 1856 to Nancy Black, a native of West Deer township, her parents coming from Ireland. Six children blessed this union, viz.: Margaret, George (a minister in Kansas), Shafer, Sarah, Lawrence (deceased) and Blair. Mr. Carnahan is an old citizen of West Deer township, has been a ruling elder in the U. P. Church since 1836, and has been school director and superintendent. He is the only one of the children now living. He has 130 acres of land, which his two sons, Clark and Blair, cultivate.

Robert Black, farmer, postoffice Hulton, is the third born and one of the two surviving members of the family of seven children of John and Mary Ann (Euwer) Black, natives of Pennsylvania, and who died in 1831 and 1833, respectively. John, Robert's brother, lives in Woodford county, Ill. Mr. Black was born in Westmoreland county in 1830, and his brothers and sisters were John, Margaret, Mary, Thomas, Caroline and Maria (twins), all deceased. The twins were very small when their father died, and about two years old at the time of their mother's death. Their grandfather, John Black, a very early settler here, owned about three hundred acres where Robert lives. At the mother's death the children began to work their grandfather's farm, though all were very young, and their education was limited to that afforded by the schools of the township at that early day. In 1842 the grandfather died, and Robert moved to the part of the farm he now owns, while the others remained on the old homestead at the other end of the farm. In 1848 Robert married Jane Ann McLaughlin, a native of Penn township, daughter of Edward and Mary McLaughlin, both deceased. Although advanced in years Mr. Black still owns this farm, and is very active, the result of a strictly temperate life. He is a prohibitionist and a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Andrew Shephard, brick-manufacturer, Swissvale, was born in Cambria county, Pa., in 1835, a son of Joseph F. Shephard, a stonemason who came to Allegheny county about 1838, where he died. Andrew Shephard was reared in this county, and has here resided since boyhood. He has followed coal-mining and the manufacture of brick, which latter industry he has carried on at Swissvale since 1882, at the present turning out one million fine brick per year. Mr. Shephard married, in 1862, Sarah J. Oiler, and ten sons and three daughters have been born to them. He is a member of the Disciples' Church; in politics independent.

S. A. Seaman, merchant, Leetsdale, was born July 21, 1836, on the South Side of Pittsburgh, son of William H. Seaman. He was reared on the farm and educated in the county. In 1876 he bought a small store in Leetsdale, which he has conducted successfully to the present time, and has added to and improved it in every way. It is now a general store. Mr. Seaman was married to Miss Anna M., daughter of Phillip Creese, of Sewickley, and this union has been blessed with five children: Maud, Anna, Herbert, William and infant son. Mr. and Mrs. Seaman are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the R. A., and is a republican.

Joseph S. Reed, planing-mill, postoffice Hulton, was born in Bedford county, Pa., in 1833, a son of Michael and Elizabeth Reed, natives of Franklin county, Pa., the former of whom was a surveyor and justice of the peace in Bedford county for about thirty years, and died in 1878, at the age of eighty-four, and latter died in 1858, aged fifty-three years. Joseph S. Reed received his education in Bedford county, and remained with his father until he was thirty years old. When he was twenty-one he enlisted for the Mexican war, in Company L, 2nd Pennsylvania regiment, Capt. Taylor in command. They were attached to Gen. Pierce's division, and when at the City of Mexico Mr. Reed was seized with the yellow fever, and sent to New Orleans on the first train after the close of the war; two months later he was able to be sent home. Prior to his service in the Mexican war, he served his time at chair- and cabinet-making, and in that business in contracting and house-building, and later in the lumber business; he also operated a planing-mill at Altoona for two years, after-ward had large lumber-mills in Clearfield and Centre counties, and then started a large planing-mill and box-factory in Pittsburgh and Allegheny City. The panic of 1876 caused him to lose $250,000. He bought his present site at Verona in 1886, and is doing a good business. Mr. Reed was married, in 1849, to Charlotte, a daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Over, and four boys and five girls have been born to them, as follows: Elzabeth (Mrs. A. E. Morrison), Emma, William Worth, Robert B., Ella, Charles, Julia (deceased), Lucy and Jacob. Mr. Reed was reared in the G. R. Church, and is now a member of the Presbyterian Church; he is a member of I. O. O. F., F. & A. M., and a life member of his chapter.

Robert Emes Ballard, marine engineer, Emsworth, was born in Nashua, N. H., Oct. 8, 1836, son of Luther and Rebecca (Whitcomb) Ballard, former of whom came to Pittsburgh in 1840, bringing machinery for a bucket-factory and the first iron slide-lathe that was run in that city. He spent his later years in Ohio, where he died. Robert E. Ballard received most of his education in New Hampshire, finishing in Pittsburgh. He was married, in 1850, to Mary Ann Ralph (see sketch of her brother, C. C. Ralph), who died in 1885. Her father was an engineer on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and Mr. Ballard, in 1853, began engineering with him, a business he has since followed. Prior to 1853 he was a machinist and engine-builder, and for seventeen years was in the service of Joseph Walton & Co. In April, 1862, Mr. Ballard joined the service as first assistant engineer on the T. D. Horner, and served at the siege of Memphis, Vicksburg, and other places in the war. He is a member of the G. A. R., and Steamboat Officers' Protective association of Pittsburgh; politically he is a republican. His parents were Presbyterians, but he and family belong to the M. E. Church. Mr. Ballard is the father of eight children, viz.: Mary Ralph (Mrs. Albert McCaslin), Samuel Ralph, Sarah Amelie (Mrs. L. R. Porter), Adida Virginia (Mrs. Robert Palmer), Charles Robert, Elizabeth C., Martin N. and Hattle Alice.

William Orr, clerk, Pittsburgh, was born in Londonderry, Ireland, Aug. 17, 1832, and is a son of Hugh and Jemima (Hare) Orr, natives of County Derry, Ireland, farmers and Presbyterians, and who died in 1856. Mr. Orr had six brothers and sisters, five of whom grew up. In June, 1851, he came to America, where for three years he worked for farmers in Delaware county, Pa. In 1859 he came to Pittsburgh, but soon moved to Tennessee, where he was compelled to remain until 1862, owing to the war. Returning in that year, he has made his home here since. He is a republican, a member of the R. P. Church. Mr. Orr married, Feb. 1, 1879, Mrs. Martha A. Hacket, nee McKee, widow of James Hacket.

James Orr, their only son, was educated in Pittsburgh, and commenced life as a tel-graph messenger, and later he operated the first switchboard in the Union Telephone station. In July, 1882, he entered the employ of R. C. Patterson, where, by faithful labor, he worked himself up to his present position of head florist. He was married April 19, 1888, to Sadie, daughter of John and Mary J. Edenger.

Thomas Davison Turner, funeral director, Wilkinsburg, is a native of that town, born June 21, 1851. His grandfather, Adam Turner, the son of a Scotchman, was born in Pennsylvania. He married Mary Quigley, a native of what is now Penn township, this county, and settled very early on the present site of Wilkinsburg. Here was born their son, Hugh, on the last day of the year 1808, and died Dec. 26, 1888. The latter married Catharine, sister of James Duff (whose biography appears elsewhere), who was also born in Penn township, and is now living in Wilkinsburg, having reared seven of eight children, of whom Thomas is the eighth. Hugh, the sixth, died at the age of thirty, after serving three years in the Army of the Tennessee. He was a member of the 15th P. C. T. D. Turner attended the public schools till fifteen years old, worked two years at laboring-work, and then entered on a three years' apprenticeship as carpenter. After working as journeyman a like period, he engaged in the grocery trade for seven years. In 1881 he established the first undertaking business in Wilkinsburg, and a livery in connection, erecting a large building on Penn avenue, near Wood street, for the purpose. He is also owner of other property in the borough. Mr. Turner is an elder in the U. P. Church, president of the Wilkinsburg Building and Loan association, and treasurer of the borough. Politically he is a democrat, with strong prohibition sympathies. Jan. 8, 1878, he married Eliza Jane, daughter of Richard Davison, now a resident of Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Turner was born in Pittsburgh, and is the mother of three children: Mary Ella, Lauran Belle and Thomas Davison, Jr.

John A. McElhenny, farmer, postoffice Glenshaw, was born Aug. 8, 1834, on the old homestead. His grandfather, William McElhenny, a Scotchman, came from Adams county, Pa., and settled in Snowden township, this county, where he died. He was a farmer, and married a Miss King, by whom he had the following named children: Robert, William, Victor, Samuel, John, Hugh, Mrs. Torence, Mrs. Haru, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. King. Of these Samuel, Robert and John were sickle-makers by trade in Shaler township. John, our subject's father, learned his trade with Robert; worked for T. W. Shaw for some time, and had a factory on Little Lake creek, where he owned a farm of one hundred acres. He married Mary, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Hilands) Morrow, old settlers, and they had three children: Victor K., Mrs. Elizabeth Herst and John A. The last named married Sarah J. Griesmere, and they have seven children: John H.,

Robert H., Mary C., Caroline L., Thomas L. W., Oscar William C. and Le Roy. The McElhenny family have all been Presbyterians and republicans, and John McElhenny, our subject's father, served as justice of the peace twenty years. John A. McElhenny is now engaged in farming on the old homestead in Shaler township.

David Evans, heater, Pittsburgh, is a son of John and Jane Evans, and was born in Temperanceville in 1850. He learned the painting trade, which he followed until 1878, when he commenced work in the mill of J. Painter & Son, Pittsburgh, where he has since been employed. He married, in 1873, Rosa, daughter of William and Annie Adams, of this county, and their children are William M., Ada, Lucy E. and Mabel C. Mr. Evans is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the Amalgamated association. Mr. and Mrs. Evans are members of the M. E. Church; he is a republican.

Charles Seitz, blacksmith, Etna, was born Jan. 1, 1832, in Hessen, near Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, son of William and Margaret (Trout) Seitz, latter of whom died in Germany. Charles came to America in 1850 and settled in Shaler township, where he has been an employé in Spang's mill for nearly thirty years as blacksmith and machinist, and for fifteen years as foreman of the pipe mill. He is an excellent mechanic and workman. He was married to Sarah Sutter, daughter of Samuel Sutter, a native of Switzerland, and they have six sons now living: William, Albert, George, Louis, Ernest and Jacob. Mr. and Mrs. Seitz are members of the Lutheran Church; he is a republican.

Milton L. Woods, pilot, postoffice Bellevue, was born Sept. 7, 1838, in Greene township, Beaver county, Pa., where his parents, Joseph and Catharine (Barnes) Woods, were old residents of Wilkinsburg. Mr. Woods has received his early education in Georgetown, Pa., and at the age of fifteen years went on the river with Capt. Jacob Poe, on the steamer Belmont. At the age of eighteen years he was pilot of keelboats, and the following year he was pilot of the Wheel-tug packet Ionian. He was on the steamer Lake Erie No. 3 for ten years, and never had an accident nor met with a loss of any kind in the ten years, and has never missed a trip on account of ill health. He has been employed by W. H. Browu & Sons for the last fourteen years. Mr. Woods was married to Eliza Bradley, a native of Pittsburgh, and they are the parents of eight living children (three being deceased): Francis M. (carpenter and builder), Mrs. Katic Ford, Clara, George W. (a pilot on the river), John, Harry, Etta and Percy. Mr. and Mrs. Woods are members of the M. E. Church; he is a democrat.

John James Campbell, expressman, Wilkinsburg, was born near Midway, Washington county, Pa., Jan. 28, 1846. His grandfather, John Campbell, who was of Scotch descent, came from Virginia to Washington county in 1890, dying in Allegheny
City, in 1881; his son William C., a native of Virginia, married Margaret Symington, a native of Western Pennsylvania, and is now resident on a farm in Smith township. Our subject, their son, was engaged in farming till 1874, when he came to Swissvale, this county, and engaged in the coal and transportation business. Being frequently requested to do errands in the city, he started, in 1880, an express business, making one trip per week. This has so grown that he now employs six wagons and seven men, with an office in the city. In 1887 he built his present residence in Wilkinsburg, and is the owner of three other houses, besides his former dwelling at Swissvale. Dec. 10, 1868, Mr. Campbell married Rebecca, daughter of James and Martha Brimmer, of Washington county, and of Scotch-Irish ancestry, and to this union were born the following-named children: John Franklin, Cora Linda, William Thomas, Anna Louisa and Robert K. Mr. Campbell and family are identified with the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the J., U. &. M. and Garfield Council, Home Circle, of Allegheny. He is a Republican, and acted as school director for six years while a resident of the city.

Michael Herbst, gardener, postoffice McKee's Rocks, son of John and Laura Herbst, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1854. His father came to this country about 1849, settled in Pittsburgh, and followed farming and gardening. He married Laura Miller, and they had eleven children, of whom are Michael, John, Jacob, Matthew, Laura, Maggie (wife of Otto Bittner), Mary and Barbara. John Herbst died in 1871; his widow is still living. Michael Herbst was reared to gardening, which he still follows. He married, Jan. 15, 1878, Elizabeth, daughter of Ralph and Mary Heiser, of this county. Of their children are Laura, Joseph, Jacob, Mary and Bartholomew. Mr. Herbst came to Sowle township in 1866. He and his brother, Jacob, purchased two acres of land adjoining McKee's Rocks, which they laid out in town lots and are selling at very remunerative figures. Michael rents and works fifty acres, which is all in garden and in a very high state of cultivation. The family are members of the Catholic Church.

James M. Dumm, engineer National Tube-works company, McKeesport, was born in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, June 5, 1843, a son of E. W. and Mary (McLain) Dumm. He was reared and educated in West Newton and Pittsburgh, and at the age of sixteen entered the employ of the P. & C. R. Co. serving in the machinery department for five years, and in the transportation department about twelve years, as conductor, and engineer, and later as superintendent. Leaving the P. & C. R. Co. in 1875, he went to California, where he remained about two years, and on returning home entered the service of the National Tube-works company, of the transportation department of which he has been engineer for past nine years. He is a member of the K. of L. and I. O. O. F. He has served two terms as assessor of this city, and in politics is a Republican.

Henry Stewart, shipping-clerk for the National Rolling-mill, McKeesport, was born in Versailles township, Nov. 18, 1881, a son of Hamilton and Nancy S. (Dinsmore) Stewart. His paternal grandfather was Samuel Stewart, a native of County Derry, Ireland, and maternal grandfather, Henry Dinsmore, both of whom were pioneers of Allegheny county. Our subject was reared in Versailles township, and in early manhood taught school, an avocation he followed for ten years. In the war of the rebellion served in the 9th P. R., and was wounded in the right arm, at Gaines' Mills, June 27, 1862. He married, in 1864, Mary Hammond, a native of Ireland, who, with their seven children, died during the years 1873 and 1875. He has been in the employ of the National Tube-works company for seven years. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is an advocate of prohibition.

Joseph Baker, farmer, postoffice Ross, was born March 4, 1790, in Lexington, W. Va., a son of Joseph and Mary (Cridger) Baker. He married, June 29, 1820, Nancy Baker, a full cousin, and following year they came to Ross township, where he purchased one hundred acres, and moved into a log house, which is still standing, and in which all their children were born; in 1840 he built a brick house, where he now resides. His wife died March 21, 1888, aged eighty-nine years. They reared a family of eight children: Sally and John W. (deceased), Josiah, Sarah J., Mary J. and Amos D. (living), and Louis L. and Amanda W. (deceased). Mr. Baker is a member of the M. E. Church (of which his wife is also a member), and was class-leader and steward for many years. He has always been a man highly respected by his neighbors, and is well known, especially among the pioneers of Ross township. Josiah Baker married Barbara E., daughter of Ed. McCorkle, Esq., a soldier of the Revolution, well known on Deer Creek, this county. Mrs. Josiah Baker died at the age of twenty-three, leaving one child, Nancy V. E., who is now living with her maternal grandparents.

Jacob Oesterley, postoffice Ross, was born July 25, 1826, in Alsace, France, a son of Joseph Oesterley a native of Germany. He is a miller by trade, which he followed in his native land. He worked one year in a mill here, and was then engaged ten years as gardener and carriage-driver by Judge Lowry. During the war he bought twenty-four acres, of which one-half is laid out in garden, and he was engaged in building up the past twenty-five years. He married Mary A. Nicholson, a native of Wiirtemberg, Germany, who was born Dec. 4, 1836, and died Feb. 8, 1892, a devoted wife and fond mother. They had six children: Mrs. Genovefa Thomas, Joseph, Mary, Anna, Jacob and Freddie. Mr. Oesterley and family are devoted members of the Troy Hill church of the Most Holy Name. He has recently bought a fine home near Evergreen.

James Cook, farmer, postoffice Bakertown, is a son of William and Ann (Winters) Cook, of England, who came to America in 1834, and settled at Bayardstown. The father afterward moved to East Liberty, and engaged in farming; he died in 1886, at the home of our subject; his wife died in 1885, the father of two children: Hannah of township; Mary, wife of James, of Deer township. James, the son, was born at Union, Richland county, in 1867, educated in the public schools, and went to work in the office of his father, later to move to Dunlap's store, Dunlap, and later to work in the office of Mr. Dunlap. He is a farmer, still owning 160 acres in Ohio township, formerly purchased by his father. He has filled every office in Ohio township, acting as justice of the peace for twenty years; he is a member of the U. P. Church. David Duff married Miss Mary M., daughter of Thomas D. Hamilton, and four children have blessed them: James S., Olive B., Harry L. and Pearl A. Mr. and Mrs. Duff are members of the U. P. Church, of which he is trustee; they reside in Dunlap.

William Montgomery Dunlap, farmer, postoffice Valencia, son of John and Mary Ann (Bell) Dunlap, was born in County Antrim, Ireland, Oct. 29, 1820. The father died when William M. was three years of age, and the mother moved to New Jersey in 1829, where the family remained two years, and then came to this county, locating in Franklin township. Three years later Mr. Dunlap and his brother went to Athens, Ohio, where they each bought a farm in the woods, which they cleared up. After seven years they became tired of the woody country, and, selling out there, one went west and W. M. came to Pine township, this county. Two years later he purchased his present farm of 240 acres, and in 1885 erected a fine house thereon. He married, April 6, 1848, Margaret McClintock, sister of Aaron McClintock, of Pinetownship. (See his sketch for parentage.) Seven children were born to this union: Mary (Mrs. Robert Gibson, now residing at home), Margaret (Mrs. John Dickson, who lives on a farm near his father), McClintock (in Washington Territory) and Katie (Mrs. Harry Dickson). Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap are members of the M. E. Church, of which Mr. Dunlap has been steward three years. His paternal grandfather was John Dunlap.

Henry Davidson, farmer, postoffice Culmerville, was born Nov. 26, 1829, in County Armagh, Ireland, son of Henry and Jane (McClure) Davidson, former of whom died in March, 1856, aged sixty-six years; he was a farmer and administrator, taking an active part in county affairs; his wife was a cousin of Judge McClure, of the Pittsburgh bench. and she died in 1863, aged sixty years. Henry was the youngest of three sons, and came to Pittsburgh in June, 1853, where he followed teaming for a short time, and then for seven years had a safe-stable in Pittsburgh. He purchased his present farm of one hundred acres in 1866, and moved here in 1867. He has always dealt in fine horses, and purchased them for the army; also to ship east and south, many of them going to New York and Philadelphia. He was married, in 1867, to Mary Porter, of West Deer township, daughter of John and Margaret (Hazelett) Porter, both deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson had two children, Henry M. and John E., both of whom are students at the Normal College in Athens, Ohio. Mrs. Davidson died in December, 1877. They were members of the Bull Creek Presbyterian Church. Mr. Davidson has a farm of two hundred acres, with good buildings. Mr. Davidson brought from Ireland, in April, 1881, two of his sister's daughters, Agnes Jane Porter and Lizzie Holmes, both of Markethill, County Armagh; the first named remains with him still; also a nephew, Davidson Parks, of Hamiltonsbaum, County Armagh, Ireland, who is doing business for himself in the city of Allegheny.

John Fox was born in Hessen, Germany, in 1811. He was the son of John and Catherine (Smith) Fox. In 1831 the family emigrated to America, John Fox, Sr., purchasing eighty-eight acres of land in Indiana township, this county, where he remained until his death. John Fox, Jr., married Mary Cook, daughter of John Cook, and to them were born three children, Eliza (Mrs. Teats) being the only one now living. Mr. Fox was a lifelong farmer, and was among the most successful in Indiana township. His daughter, Eliza, was married, in 1866, to William Teats, a son of Jacob Teats, of Union county, Pa., and to them have been born six children: Lavina Mary (deceased), John Henry, William Franklin, Emma Esther, Charles Amos and Walter Jesse. Mr. Teats, after the death of Mr. Fox, assumed charge of the farm, which has been successfully operated under his superintendency.

George Weber, Dorseville, was born Jan. 29, 1831. His father, John Weber, was a native of Bavaria, Germany, and emigrated to America in 1796, when eighteen years of age. He was a weaver by trade, which he followed for a number of years after coming to America. He purchased forty-eight acres of land in Indiana township, and married Abigail Heinz, of Fayette county, Pa., and seven children have blessed this marriage, George being the youngest. He was educated at the public schools of the township, learned the trade of brick-molding, but has always followed farming. In 1859 he married Susan, daughter of Samuel Hodill, and to them were born seven children, six of whom are now living: Albert C., Maggie (Mrs. Miller), Emma C., Ida M., Eliza J. (deceased), Allie E. and G. M. Mr. Weber now owns one-half of the land purchased by his father. He is a highly respected citizen of Indiana township; was school director for twelve years, is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

Benjamin Ford, inspector of steam boilers, postoffice Green Tree, was born in Worcestershire, England, in 1882, son of John and Mary (Jenkins) Ford. About 1843 John Ford, with his wife and four children, came to America, and at once located in Allegheny City. John was a practical mechanic, and was for ten years employed at Bailey & Brown's rolling-mills as engineer. Having by industry and economy secured sufficient means, he purchased a property in Allegheny City, where he remained for a number of years, happily surrounded by his family. Eager to embark again in active life, he went to Wheeling, W. Va., and was for some time employed in the Belmont nailworks of that city; his family had gone to Wheeling, intending to make a home there, when he was seized with cholera and died; his son also died of the same disease.

Benjamin Ford was educated at the public schools in Allegheny county, and was also a student at the night schools in the city of Allegheny; at eighteen years of age he was engaged with his father at engineering, and remained in that line of work till the death of the latter. In 1855 he went on the river as an engineer, where he remained for fifteen years; was employed in the city as assistant boiler-inspector for four years, and was then appointed by Gov. Hartranft as chief boiler-inspector, which position he held for two terms of two years each. He then identified himself with the American Steam Boiler Insurance company, being their chief inspector for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and part of Ohio, which position he now holds. Mr. Ford was married, in 1857, to Miss McGinnis, daughter of Samuel McGinnis, who was a prominent lumber-merchant of Allegheny City. Seven children were born to them, of whom the following six are living: Mary R., John D., Maggie V., William J., Bessie M., Sadie E. The family of children are all at home. Mr. Ford is a republican, and has been a member of the school board and town council; the family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

James Ross Holmes is a son of John Holmes, who with his wife emigrated to this county, and settled in Temperanceville, Indiana. James was a mechanic by trade, and in 1852 married Mary Ann, daughter of James R. and Sarah (Harnett) Fleming. To them were born five children, four of whom are now living: John F., James R., Andrew Ross and David D. The father and husband died in 1879; his widow now resides on the old homestead, which was her father's property.

J. R. Fleming was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in March, 1801, and when five years of age came with his parents to America. His father died at sea, and his widowed mother finally located in Pittsburgh, where she died in 1845. He was married, March 28, 1828, to Susan Harnett, sister of Prof. Harnett of Allegheny College. Mr. Fleming's early religious life and training had been Calvinistic, but when a young man he was converted to the Methodist belief, and was a member of Wesley chapel, Green Tree; was also one of the originators of the church at Mansfield. He was a republican.

W. H. Bryson was born in December, 1849, in West Deer township, this county, and is a son of David and Margaret (Huggins) Bryson. In 1864 he went to Keystone Bridge-works, in Pittsburgh, and in the spring of 1867 one term to Ivy Green Academy. He commenced teaching public school in the autumn of the same year, and taught until spring of 1874, when he moved on the farm where he now resides. He was married, in 1873, to Eliza E., daughter of James and Jane (Roberts) Bakerstown. They have two sons: John and Thomas. They reside on the Bakerstown Mutual Fire Insurance Company farm in West Deer township, and to them was born one child, Florence Myrtle. The mother died in 1875, and Mr. Bryson was married, in 1880, to Sarah J., daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Scott) Carlisle. Four children were born to them: Wilson Carlisle, Robert Earle, Alice May and Wilbert Edwin. The family are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Bryson was agent for the Bakerstown Mutual Fire Insurance Company for three years, secretary for three years, and a member of the board of directors since 1880; was elected road commissioner in 1889; is a member of Patrons of Husbandry; has one of the largest libraries in the township, and keeps posted on the leading questions of the day, both in agriculture and politics. He is a republican.

WILLIAM HENRY MAGILL, farmer, postoffice Rural Ridge, was born in April, 1841, in this county, son of John and Sarah (Ross) Magill, former of whom was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1808, and latter in Westmoreland county in 1801. The father came to Pittsburgh when seventeen years of age. He married and settled on the Magill farm, West Deer township, in 1828. Four sons and four daughters were born to him: Thomas, M. D., in Freeport, Pa.; John Ross, in same place, where he has operated a foundry for sixteen years, and is now cashier of Freeport National Bank; Mary Agnes, Mrs. John Allison, and Martha, Mrs. John Given, both deceased; Sarah Elizabeth, Mrs. John Ralston, in Freeport; William Henry, Margaret Ann and George Chambers. John Magill was a leader in local affairs and county politics, and was county auditor for two terms; was several years assistant assessor of revenue, and held many local offices. He was many years school director, and took a great interest in education. He was a whig and then a republican. In his later days he lived in Freeport, where he carried on the manufacture of wooden goods. He was brought up a Seceder, was then a United Presbyterian, and one of the organizers of the East Union U. P. Church, in 1850. He died at his old home in West Deer township in September, 1875; his wife died in March, 1869.

W. H. Magill was named for William Henry Harrison, who died about the time of the birth of the former. Mr. Magill was educated in the common schools and at the academy at Rural Ridge. In September, 1861, he entered the army, in Co. E, 63d P. V. L., Army of the Potomac, serving until September 12, 1864. He was at the siege of York, Williamsburg and Fair Oaks, at the latter place contracting a fever. He was also at Gettysburg, Chancellorsville and the battle of the Wilderness, and was shot through the left hand May 7, 1864. In 1868 he married Phebe Jane Crawford, of Richland township, daughter of James Sample and Mary Jane (Wallace) Crawford, former of whom was born in Richland in 1813, and died in 1877. The latter born in 1817, died in 1886. Mrs. Magill's paternal grandparents were George and Jane (Reynolds) Wallace, natives of Pennsylvania. Her maternal grandparents were John and Mary (Sample) Crawford, born in this county at an early date. Mr. and Mrs. Magill have eight children: Jennie S., a teacher; Charles S. C., Annie M., William J. R., Howard Vincent, Lydia F., George H. Thomas and Rachel Elma. The family are members of the U. P. Church, and Mr. Magill is a member of sessions. He settled on the farm on account of his health, and his father divided the place between him and his brother George. In 1882 William had typhoid pneumonia, and he has been unable to work since. He is now holding his fourth commission as justice of the peace. He was elected at the age of twenty-eight, appointed, and resigned at the end of his second term, in 1877, to serve as representative in the state legislature, and was re-elected. He served the sessions of 1877-78-79, and was then re-elected justice of the peace, and has since held that position.

ARTHUR J. HOPPER, farmer, postoffice Lawrence. Washington county, was born in Lancaster county in 1816, a descendant of one of the oldest families of South Fayette township. Samuel Hopper, a native of Ireland, immigrated in an early day to America, and located for a few years in Lancaster county, Pa., where in 1811 he married Elizabeth Barkley. Soon after he bought a small tract of land in this county. The land was all woods at that time, but in a short time he had his land under cultivation. He was very successful in all his undertakings, and increased his wealth rapidly. He resided on this farm until his death, in 1876. His family consisted of six sons and three daughters. Robert Hopper, his eldest son, was born in 1812, and married Abigail, daughter of Peter Hickman, of South Fayette township. Fourteen children were born to this union, nine of whom are now living. He was a successful farmer, and at his death, in 1880, owned 450 acres of land. His eldest son, Samuel, married Margaret, daughter of Robert Fife, of Upper St. Clair, this county, and he had one child, Mamie. He resides on his farm, two miles west of Noblestown, Pa., and is in the milk business. John, his second son, married Elizabeth, daughter of Charles S. Van Kirk, of Washington county, Pa. He owns and resides on the old homestead, and is a successful farmer. Goodman C., the third son, married Idia McCune, of Oakdale, Pa.; he is a farmer. John, the fourth son, married Mary Jane, daughter of James Sample and Mary Jane (Wallace) Crawford, of Richland township, daughter of James Sample and Mary Jane (Wallace) Crawford, former of whom was born in Richland in 1813, and died in 1877. The latter born in 1817, died in 1886. Mrs. Magill's paternal grandparents were George and Jane (Reynolds) Wallace, natives of Pennsylvania. Her maternal grandparents were John and Mary (Sample) Crawford, born in this county at an early date. Mr. and Mrs. Magill have eight children: Jennie S., a teacher; Charles S. C., Annie M., William J. R., Howard Vincent, Lydia F., George H. Thomas and Rachel Elma. The family are members of the U. P. Church, and Mr. Magill is a member of sessions. He settled on the farm on account of his health, and his father divided the place between him and his brother George. In 1882 William had typhoid pneumonia, and he has been unable to work since. He is now holding his fourth commission as justice of the peace. He was elected at the age of twenty-eight, appointed, and resigned at the end of his second term, in 1877, to serve as representative in the state legislature, and was re-elected. He served the sessions of 1877-78-79, and was then re-elected justice of the peace, and has since held that position. Arthur J. Hopper, farmer, postoffice Lawrence. Washington county, was born in Lancaster county in 1816, a descendant of one of the oldest families of South Fayette township. Samuel Hopper, a native of Ireland, immigrated in an early day to America, and located for a few years in Lancaster county, Pa., where in 1811 he married Elizabeth Barkley. Soon after he bought a small tract of land in this county. The land was all woods at that time, but in a short time he had his land under cultivation. He was very successful in all his undertakings, and increased his wealth rapidly. He resided on this farm until his death, in 1876. His family consisted of six sons and three daughters. Robert Hopper, his eldest son, was born in 1812, and married Abigail, daughter of Peter Hickman, of South Fayette township. Fourteen children were born to this union, nine of whom are now living. He was a successful farmer, and at his death, in 1880, owned 450 acres of land. His eldest son, Samuel, married Margaret, daughter of Robert Fife, of Upper St. Clair, this county, and he had one child, Mamie. He resides on his farm, two miles west of Noblestown, Pa., and is in the milk business. John, his second son, married Elizabeth, daughter of Charles S. Van Kirk, of Washington county, Pa. He owns and resides on the old homestead, and is a successful farmer. Goodman C., the third son, married Idia McCune, of Oakdale, Pa.; he is a farmer. John, the fourth son, married Mary Jane, daughter of James Sample and Mary Jane (Wallace) Crawford, of Richland township, daughter of James Sample and Mary Jane (Wallace) Crawford, former of whom was born in Richland in 1813, and died in 1877. The latter born in 1817, died in 1886. Mrs. Magill's paternal grandparents were George and Jane (Reynolds) Wallace, natives of Pennsylvania. Her maternal grandparents were John and Mary (Sample) Crawford, born in this county at an early date. Mr. and Mrs. Magill have eight children: Jennie S., a teacher; Charles S. C., Annie M., William J. R., Howard Vincent, Lydia F., George H. Thomas and Rachel Elma. The family are members of the U. P. Church, and Mr. Magill is a member of sessions. He settled on the farm on account of his health, and his father divided the place between him and his brother George. In 1882 William had typhoid pneumonia, and he has been unable to work since. He is now holding his fourth commission as justice of the peace. He was elected at the age of twenty-eight, appointed, and resigned at the end of his second term, in 1877, to serve as representative in the state legislature, and was re-elected. He served the sessions of 1877-78-79, and was then re-elected justice of the peace, and has since held that position.
A., son of John Fife, of Upper St. Clair, this county; is in the dairy business, and resides on his farm, two miles north of Oakdale. Sarah married William H., son of William Young, of Washington county, Pa.; he is a carpenter, and resides on a small farm near Boyce's Station, on the C. V. R. R. Maggie J. married Samuel A., son of Lysander Foster, of Bridgeville, Pa.; he keeps a good general store in Bridgeville. Minnie L. Hopper is single, and resides with her sister, Mrs. Foster. Andrew, the second son of Samuel Hopper, married Sarah Anne, daughter of James McKown, and several children were born to them, of whom but one is now living; he was a farmer. Samuel, the third son, married Margaret Smith; his descendants were two sons and one daughter. Arthur J., the fourth son, and the subject proper of this sketch, is a retired farmer, and resides on his farm in Washington county, Pa. He was married, in 1841, to Elizabeth, daughter of Moses Middleworth, one of the original pioneers of South Fayette township. Five children were born to this union, two of whom are now living. Samuel N. is an intelligent farmer, married to Jennie, daughter of Joseph Caldwell, of Peters township, and by her had four children, of whom three are living; he resides on his father's farm, near Hill's Station, C. V. R. R. Viola Jane married James, son of Benjamin Hickman, and three children were born to them: he resides on his farm in Washington county. John Hopper, fifth son of Samuel, married Margaret, daughter of Hugh Morgan, an old pioneer of South Fayette township, and six sons and one daughter were born to them. Morgan S., the eldest son, married Etta J. Shane, and by her had three children, two now living; he resides on one of his father's farms, the old homestead of his grandparents. Annie married William McHenry, and two children were born to them; they reside in West Newton; he is in the agricultural business. Westley, James, Harry and Billingsley are single, and live with their father on his farm, near Bridgeville. James, the sixth son of Samuel, was killed by the kick of a horse. Nancy, first daughter, married Alexander Fitzpatrick, and five children were born to them, three of whom are now living; she was a farmer's wife, and resided on his farm in Jefferson county, Ohio. Elizabeth, second daughter, married Thomas Campbell, a farmer, and they have one child, Samuel John, residing with his mother on their farm, in South Fayette township. Mary Anne, third daughter, married James, son of Robert Wallace, and five children were born to them: Samuel, James, Arthur, Lizzie and Jennie. Jennie is living in a house which she owns in the village of Oakdale. This generation are all members of the Presbyterian Church, and are republicans.

JOHN NICHOLAS PAHLMAN, farmer, postoffice Negley, a son of John Pahlmann, was born in Germany, Dec. 6, 1850. He received his education in the common schools of Penn township, and has always been a farmer. In 1880 he married Martha Elizabeth Stotler, born in Penn, and they have four children: Alfred Alexander, Harry Logan, Annie Elizabeth and John Addison. The family is connected with the Unity U. P. Church. Mr. Pahlmann is a republican.

THOMPSON B. De ARMIT, superintendent, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., Sept. 10, 1856, a son of Alexander and Julia A. (Piper) De Armit, of Pennsylvania. Alexander De Armit enlisted in a Pennsylvania cavalry regiment in the civil war, and was killed in the service. The son moved to Pittsburgh in 1871, and engaged in the tobacco and gents' furnishing-goods business on Penn avenue: two years later he was employed by Dickson, Stewart & Co., coal-operators, as collector. He acquired a knowledge of telegraphy while employed with this firm, and was later on made paymaster at their three mines. In 1877 he engaged with the New York & Cleveland Gas Coal company as mine-clerk and telegraph-operator at the Plum Creek mine, which position he kept until the death of J. W. Doak, superintendent of the mine, in 1886, when he was promoted to that position. Two years later, upon the resignation of John McIntosh, superintendent of the Turtle Creek (Oak Hill) mines of the same company, he had added to his other position the superintendency of these mines. In 1881 Mr. De Armit married Theodosia, daughter of Emanuel and Nancy (Alter) Stotler, of Penn township, and they have four children: Ella May. Edith Gall, Eugene Stotler and Theodosia Ada. Mr. De Armit is a member of New Texas Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

R. W. JEFFREY, farmer, postoffice Cliff Mine, is a grandson of one of the early settlers of Fayette township. Samuel Jeffrey, who was born in Ireland, emigrated to America, locating first in Maryland, but later coming to Allegheny county, where he took up a tract of land from the government. He married Jane Hanna, who bore him nine children. John, the youngest child, born in 1796, became a farmer, married Maria Stoddard, and by her had ten children, six of whom are now living. John died in 1858. Of his children, R. W., the third child, was born and reared on a farm, the pursuits of which he has always followed, and he now has one hundred acres of land, formerly the property of Mr. Elliott. He married Martha, daughter of George Elliott, and she has borne him four children, all of whom are living: Anna, Lelia, Ella and George. Mr. Jeffrey and family are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

ANDREW W. CROOKS, farmer, postoffice North Star, was born in 1852, in Washington county, Pa., a son of Richard and Hannah (Walker) Crooks, and grandson of Henry and Catherine (Donaldson) Crooks. Richard, the eldest of three children, was born in 1822, and is now a prosperous farmer in Washington county. Hannah Walker is a daughter of John Walker, and grand-daughter of James and Mary (Cook) Walker. James Walker emigrated to Allegheny county from Ohio in about 1800. He was born in 1795, and died in 1876. His first purchase of land was one hundred acres, but at his death he owned a tract of 226 acres, all of which is valuable. Andrew W. Crooks was born and reared on a farm, and educated at Mansfield Academy and Washington and Jefferson College. He has followed farming as an occupation. He married, in 1876, Ida, daughter of A. D. and Martha (Ball) Burns, and three children bless their union: Frena Doreas, James Burns and Walker Donaldson. Our subject, at his grandfather's death, inherited one hundred acres of the homestead farm. Mr. and Mrs. Crooks are members of the Presbyterian Church; he is a republican.

Robert Campbell, barge- and boat-builder, West Elizabeth, son of William and Emily Campbell, was born in Beaver county, Pa., in 1842. Until 1861 his home was with his parents. He then enlisted in Co. F, 10th P. R.; was wounded June 27, 1862, at the battle of Gaine's Mills, near Richmond, Va.; was captured that time, and taken by way of Savage Station to Richmond, and confined in Castle Thudeler and Libby prison. After being detained six weeks he was paroled, afterward completed the term of his enlistment, and was mustered out of the service June 11, 1864, at Pittsburgh, and returned to his home in Beaver county. July 18, 1868, he married Sarah J., daughter of Benjamin and Sarah Todd, of Beaver county, and settled in what was then Birmingham, now a portion of the city of Pittsburgh. He then worked at barge-building, and the following year, when the reopening of his wound was the occasion of his return to Beaver county. Later he moved to Freeport, Armstrong county, thence to Pittsburgh, and in 1872 he located at West Elizabeth, pursuing his old business of barge- and boat-building. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are James (educated in Washington and Jefferson College, and now teaching in Jefferson township), Lacy, Bert, Leonora, Ivy C. and Nellie. The parents are members of the Methodist Church.

William Gamble was born in Londonderry, Ireland, about the year 1775. He came to America when seventeen years of age, and directly to Pittsburgh, where his friends were living. Pittsburgh being then in its infancy, he could count the houses, but he remained there until 1821. On Dec. 1, 1807, he was sent by Maj. Isaac Craig to carry money to the troops stationed at Detroit—the amount being sixty-five hundred dollars—which he carried safely, sewed up in a jacket worn under his clothing. December 30th Mr. Gamble returned to Pittsburgh, after a perilous journey through hostile Indian tribes. He had to employ a friendly Indian guide for a part of the distance, as there were no roads, not even a path to be found. He had to swim three rivers, and lay in the woods four cold nights. For this service he received $150. He afterward assisted by another man in the intended building of the garrison wall, and had contracts for paving some of the old streets in Pittsburgh. Dec. 14, 1815, he married Mary Sherrod. In 1821 he bought a farm in Buffalo township, Washington county, Pa., and moved there, but was dissatisfied with being so far from Pittsburgh. In 1829 he purchased a portion of "Bower Hill," Allegheny county (noted as the scene of the whisky insurrection), where he passed the remainder of his life. He had eight sons and three daughters, only three of whom are now living, viz.: George K., Thomas L. and Mary. William Gamble, the subject of this sketch, was reared an Episcopalian, and was identified with and helped build the "stone church," at Woodsville, Allegheny county, and while able to attend was one of the vestry. He died July 13, 1865, at the age of ninety years; his widow survived him five years.

Richard G. Smith, farmer, post-office Fairhaven, was born in Hamilton county, Ohio. His paternal grandfather, a native of Ireland, immigrated to America and located in Westmoreland county, Pa., where he farmed the land upon which, at a later period, was erected a handsome Catholic cathedral. He reared a large family. One son, David, was captain of a canal-boat on the Maumee canal. By trade he was a tanner, but on coming to this county, in March, 1851, he followed farming until his death, which occurred Dec. 5, 1880. His wife was Emily, daughter of William Boggs, an old settler; she died in 1877. Mr. and Mrs. David had two sons, Robert and William, and their children were William D., George W., Mrs. Mary E. Lafferty and Richard G. The last named married, in this county, Hannah Cherry, and three children have been born to them: Edna M., Walter H. and Howard C. Richard G. Smith has followed farming since early life. He is a republican, as was his father before him.

Ephraim Culp Mower, butcher, post-office Turtle Creek, was born in Philadelphia in 1844. His parents, Jacob and Mary Jane Mower, of German and English descent, respectively, died when he was young, and he was reared by an uncle, Ephraim Hollis. After the age of fourteen years young Mower cared for himself, under his uncle's kind tutelage. He spent three years on a farm, and before he was eighteen years of age enlisted in Co. I, 83d P. V. With this regiment he served until the close of the rebellion, re-enlisting at the end of the first three years, and, as a member of the Army of the Potomac, saw hard service at the battles of Bull run and Cold Harbor. During the greater part of his service Mr. Mower was detailed as teamster, his uncle, above mentioned, being also engaged in the same capacity. After the war Mr. Mower settled in Allegheny county, and was employed as a miner, and in various ways. In 1876 he opened a meat-market at Turtle Creek, and sold out two years later. In 1881 he again began the same business at Newtown, and has continued there since. He owns two dwellings and his place of business, and still keeps up association with military friends through the G. A. R. In June, 1877, Mr. Mower married Mary Jane, daughter of Jackson and Margaret Ann (Dobbins) Edwards. Mrs. Edwards died when her daughter was an infant. Mr. Edwards is now a resident of Newtown, engaged in mining coal. He was a soldier in an Illinois regiment during the civil war, in the southwest. Mrs. Mower was born in Carroll county, Mo., and is the mother of four children: Maggie Jane, Francis Edward, William Jackson and George Jacob.

Mathias Voegly, farmer, postoffice Ross, was born Oct. 28, 1844, in Allegheny City, Pa., the son of John J. Voegly. He was educated in this county, and is a successful farmer, owning fifty-eight acres of land. He has been twice married; first to Sarah B. Wible, and after her death to Jane E., daughter of John Guyton, an old settler of McCandless township. Mr. and Mrs. Voegly are members of the Hiland Presbyterian Church. Politically he is a republican.

Capt. Thomas McMasters (deceased) was born in Pittsburgh June 15, 1822. His parents, John and Rachel (Hughes) McMasters, were of Irish and American birth, respectively, settled, when Thomas was a child, on a farm near Turtle Creek village, where they died. Thomas inherited some city property and the farm on which he made his home all his life. He was an active worker in the republican party, but sought no office for himself. He was associated with the U. P. Church, and was widely known as the friend of the poor, and a generous contributor to all good objects. He was physically strong, but died from the effects of a carbuncle on his neck, in 1873. This occurred two months after the completion of his fine mansion, in which his widow and daughter now reside. In 1860 he married Margaret, daughter of Gen. C. P. and Sarah A. (Lippincott) Markle, of Westmoreland county. Gen. Markle was of German, and his wife of English extraction. The only child of Capt. and Mrs. McMasters, Rachel H., is the wife of M. C. Miller. Our subject was for several years captain of a militia company, which gave him his title.

John Chr. Klein, merchant, postoffice Carrick, was born Feb. 22, 1822, in Saxony, Germany, a son of Johan Cristoph and Amelia Klein, who had five children: John C., William, Frederick C., Carl C. and Mrs. Amalia T. Lanch. Of these John C. learned the machinist's trade, and traveled six years in Germany. He served three years in the German army with infantry and artillery, and in May, 1847, came to America, where he followed his trade, in Allegheny, one year. After working at same for eight years he embarked in the heavy hardware business in Birmingham, and of his firm he is yet the senior member. He married Louise Braekemiser, and their children were William B., Gustav A. and Frederick C., a bright young man, who died at the age of twenty-six. After the death of his first wife Mr. Klein married Rebecca Braun, and six children blessed their union: Frederick, Ida, Johan C., Emma, Bertha and Edward. Mr. and Mrs. Klein are members of the Protestant Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Turnverein.

August Goldstrohm, hotel-keeper, Brinton, was born near Darmstadt, Germany, Feb. 2, 1846, and is the youngest of nine children born to August and Kate Goldstrohm. The mother died soon after his birth, and in 1856 the father brought his family to America. Seven of the children are now living, and all except one, who is in Baltimore, reside in this vicinity. The father made his home with the eldest son, who is a butcher, and died at Elizabeth in 1882, contemporary with the century. Our subject began life as a butcher's assistant, and in 1860 went to Baltimore, where he learned the baker's trade. In 1872 he opened a bakery at Turtle Creek, and eight years later moved to Oak Hill, where he began his present business. He is now engaged in building a dwelling, and also owns the house he occupies. He is a member of the G. L. Church, at McKeesport, and was always known as a democrat. In 1886 he married Hannah Jenker, a native of Butler county, daughter of Henry and Christina Jenker, of Germany, and ten children have blessed their union: Conrad, August, Katie, Tillie, Elizabeth, Harry, George, William, James and Charles.

George Fisher, farmer, postoffice Bakerstown, is a son of John M. Fisher, a native of Germany, who came to America in 1845, and first located at Evergreen, in Ross township, resided ten years, and then moved to Hampton township, where he now resides. Mr. Fisher was born in Germany in 1844, was reared and educated in this county, and first engaged in farming near Gibsonia, and in 1875 purchased his present farm. In 1868 he married Catherine Pardoner, daughter of Peter Pardoner, of Ross township. They have five children: Henry, Clara, Eva, George and Ida. Mr. Fisher has held the office of school director of the township. He and his family are members of the G. L. Church of Little Pine Creek.

James Wilson, retired, postoffice Carrick, was born July 17, 1813, on the old Wilson homestead. John Wilson, his grandfather, was a native of England, and of Scotch descent, married a Scotch lady, and coming to America shortly after the Revolution, settled in Baldwin township, where our subject now resides on one hundred acres of land. They had three children: John, James and Samuel. Of these John, father of James, the subject of this memoir, was born here and was twice married; first to Sarah, daughter of James Kiddo. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were members of Concord Presbyterian Church, in which he was an elder for many years, his influence for good being far-reaching; they had two children, James and John. His second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of David Morrow, bore him five children: David, Mary J., Joseph F., William and Thomas M. Our subject married Eliza J. Rankin, and they had three children: Ursula H., Wilhelmina and Mary J.
(who died at the age of thirteen years). Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are Presbyterians. In city he was a wagon-maker, subsequently a merchant, and was postmaster of Carrick postoffice nineteen years.

William Gray, blacksmith, postoffice Turte Creek, was born June 28, 1817, on the place where he now resides. He learned his trade with his father and elder brother, and has since followed it. For ten years he kept shop at Turtle Creek, and then bought the parental home from his brother. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church in Braddock, and has been a republican since the administration of James Buchanan. New Mr. in 1889 he married Elizabeth Chalfant, who was born in what is now Patton township, a daughter of Ananias and Elizabeth (Hughey) Chalfant. Their children were George, in Cleveland, O.; Charles C., in Le Roy, Kan.; Annie, Mrs. Thomas Dobson, in Wilkinsburg; Jane Mary, wife of George Larimer, in Turtle Creek; Isabel, wife of David Weddell, in McKeesport; William Wells, in McKeesport; James O., in Dakota; Rachel, wife of John Bebout, in Wilkinsburg, and Laura, decerse wife of Cassius Larimer. Ananias and Thomas Addison died when small.
George served three years in the 62d P. V., and received a wound at the battle of Gaines' Mills, for which he draws a pension. Charles was in the 106th regiment for fifteen months.
John Miller, Jr., farmer, postoffice South
Sharon, is a son of John and Polly Miller, was born on the farm he now owns, in North Versailles township, in 1818. His grandfather, George Miller, of German descent, settled here at an early day, where he lived and died. John and Polly Miller were among the pioneers of North Versailles township, and reared a family of seven children: George (deceased), William S. deceased), Charles, Jacob, Levi (deceased), Jonathan and John, Jr. John and Polly Miller, after rearing and educating their children, died in North Versailles township.
John, Jr., married, in 1845, Eleanor Black, and located on the farm he now owns, and to them have been born five children: John S., R. B., Mary M., George and C. E. Mrs. Miller is a member of the Presbyterian Church; politically a democrat.

S. W. Morrow, farmer, postoffice Bakers-town, is the third son of Richard and Mary (Miller) Morrow, and was born on the homestead, in this township, Jan. 14, 1834. In 1861 he purchased his present farm, and has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits. He married, in 1858, Elizabeth Splane, daughter of George and Jane Ann (Russell) Splane, of Pittsburgh. They have four children living: Elmer E., Thomas, Richard and Mary Jane, all at home. Mr. Morrow has held the office of constable of the township for twenty years, and has also been supervisor.

Daniel W. Morrow, farmer, postoffice Bak-erstown, is the fifth son of Richard and Mary (Miller) Morrow, and was born on the homestead Oct. 6, 1842. He has always followed farming, moving on his present place in 1872. In 1870 he married Mary, daughter of Benjamin Seibert, a native of Switzerland. They have eight living children: Elizabeth, Emma J., Ephraim, Frederick, Mary, Thomas M., Katie and Grace.
Mr. Morrow has held the office of supervisor and school director of the township, and at present is assessor. The family attends the Presbyterian Church of Bakerstown.

Andrew Pierce (deceased). Some time about 1750 Andrew Pierce, a native of England, came to America, and located for a short time in New York. Later he moved to New Jersey, where he was married, and became the father of seven sons. Andrew came to Western Pennsylvania and purchased four thousand acres of land in what is now
Elizabeth township, Allegheny county.
There he remained until the outbreak of the Revolution, when, with his two sons, he came east and entered the service of his country.
At the close of that struggle he returned to Allegheny county, and continued farming until his death. Lewis was born in 1759.
He was a farmer, and married Cassandra Pemick, a native of England, and ten children were born to them. Andrew was born in 1809 in Elizabeth township, this county, where he resided until 1839. He then came to North Fayette township and purchased two hundred acres of land, where he resided till his death. He married, in 1839, his sec-daughter of Dr. Joseph Nicholson, and to them were born four children. His second wife was Jane, daughter of John and Mary (Middleswarth) Chess. Mr. Pierce was among the most prominent and successful farmers in North Fayette township, and was also engaged in dairying. He was a member of the M. E. Church, and was a republican.

Leopold Wigand, of the firm of Henderson & Wigand, City Bottling-works, Mc-Keesport, was born in Prussia, Nov. 15, 1852, a son of Andrew Wigand. He was reared and educated in his native country, and came to America in 1872, locating in McKeesport in 1873, where for five years he was clerk in a wholesale liquor-house. From 1878 to 1881 he was a resident of Michigan, but, returning to McKeesport in the latter year, he embarked in the liquor business, in which he was engaged five years. In 1886 he took a wholesale agency for a Wheeling brewery, with which he is still engaged, and in 1887 the City Bottling-works was established, under the firm name of Henderson & Wigand
Our subject married, in 1881, Elizabeth, daughter of Christopher Becker, of McKeesport, and by her have two children: Willie and Leo. Mr. Wigand is a member of the R. C. Church, and is a democrat.

Rev. William Aloisius Cunningham, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Allegheny City, Pa., Aug. 1, 1856, a son of Christopher and Sarah Cunningham, of Ireland. Up to twelve years of age he attended the Sisters' school in his native city, then the public schools nearly two years, and after three years in St. Michael's school, Pittsburgh, entered Mount St. Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md., and was ordained from there by Bishop Tulge, May 6, 1882. During the next two years he was engaged as assistant rector of St. John's congregation, on the South Side, Pittsburgh, and in 1884 was established as rector of St. Colman's Roman Catholic Church at Turtle Creek village, which congregation is thriving under his charge. Rev. Mr. Cunningham is one of the editors of the Catholic, published in Pittsburgh, and gives promise of much usefulness in the church.

William S. Fenton, gardener, postoffice Hero, a son of Thomas and Martha Fenton, was born June 10, 1855, in what is now Lincoln township. Thomas was a native of Washington county, Pa., where he married and reared a family of five children, only two of whom are now living: Martha J. (Mrs. McCoy), of Westmoreland county, and William S. The latter married, Aug. 6, 1887, Lizzie Jane, daughter of Samuel Shaler, of McKeesport, where they located and engaged in mercantile business. Seven years later they removed to their present residence in Reynoldsport, where Mr. Fenton is now engaged in gardening. His mother died in 1844, and his father now makes his home with him. Mr. and Mrs. Fenton have five children: John W. L., Ina A. (Mrs. H. I. K. of Altoona), Lizzie S. (Mrs. Malan E. Davis, of Duquesne), Thomas G. and Winnie R. The parents are members of the M. E. Church at Reynoldsport; he is a republican.

Jacob Wheeler Paul, manufacturer, postoffice Hulton, is the fourth child of Jacob and Mary (Wheeler) Paul, and was born at Germantown, Pa., in 1829. Jacob Wheeler, his maternal grandfather, was a native of Switzerland, who settled near Philadelphia. The Paul family is probably of Franco-German origin, but dates back for several generations in this country. Jacob Paul died in 1854, and next year his widow came with her children to Pittsburgh. Their present places of residence are as follows: Susan (McCandless), Verona; Thaddeus W., California; and Ruth A. (Mrs. Spitz), Mass. J. W. Paul had little opportunity for education, and began life early as steward's boy on an Ohio river steamboat. By steady advances he had become captain of a steamer when he left the river, at the age of twenty-two. For twenty-one years he engaged in the manufacture of glass in Birmingham, and in 1873 established the manufacture of steel railroad-tools at Verona, and became a resident there. The business has been successful, and he now employs 123 people, the goods finding market in Africa and South America, as well as throughout our country and Canada. Mr. Paul is an active member of the P. E. Church, being one of its standing committee, and has always been a republican. In 1850 he married his cousin, Miss Susan, daughter of Adam and Ann (Wheelor) Fries, born near Philadelphia, in 1830. Their living children are Henry S., Mary (Mrs. H. W. Armstrong), Jane (Mrs. Charles Baker), Ann (wife of Ethalbert Nevin), Ellen and Edwin. Adam, the first born, died at the age of twenty-one.

John Zollinger, brick-manufacturer, Wilkinsburg, was born Oct 7, 1844, in Westmoreland county, this state (see sketch of Louis Zollinger). His mother's ancestors came from Germany and settled in Lancaster county, and his maternal grandmother lived to be over ninety years old. At that age she frequently walked from her home, at East Liberty, to Wilkinsburg. John Zollinger attended the Pittsburgh schools till ten years of age, when he went to work in a brickyard. In 1864 he enlisted in an independent company which was mustered as part of the 97th P. V. I., and served on provost duty about Baltimore, under Capt. W. R. Jones, till the close of the war. After spending four years in Allegheny county, Mo., he located in Wilkinsburg. In 1880, with his brother Louis, he established the brick-manufacturing business, which they still continue near Brushton. In 1885 he built the handsome double brick residence in which he resides. Mr. Zollinger is a member of the G. A. R., Jr. O. U. A. M., and is now treasurer of Sterrett township. He has always affiliated with the republican party, and, with his wife, is a member of Wilkinsburg M. E. Church. In 1871 he married Mary E. Knapp, a native of Pittsburgh, and daughter of Thomas and Sarah Jane (Jones) Knapp, of Pittsburgh, Mass., of old New England families. Mr. and Mrs. Zollinger have one son, James Clifford.

William S. Ramsey, M. D., Coraopolis, was born at Frankfort Springs, Beaver county, Pa., Sept. 22, 1836. His father, James H. Ramsey, born near Frankfort Springs, is a practicing physician and surgeon at West Bridgewater, Beaver county. He is a son of John and Mary (Hay) Ramsey, Scotch Presbyterians. James H. Ramsey married Agnes Stuart, who was born at Hookstown, Pa., daughter of William and Nancy (Goshorn) Stuart, members of the U. P. Church. James H. and Agnes (Stuart) Ramsey are members of the U. P. Church. They have had seven children: William S., Mary E., Nina A., Laura O. (wife of Lewis Weinman), Myra B., J. Edgar and Hallie E. William S. attended Frankfort Springs Academy until the age of nineteen, and read medicine with his father. At nineteen he entered Cleveland (Ohio) Medical College, where he graduated in 1877. He first located at Clinton, Allegheny county, and after eighteen months removed to West Bridge water; two years later he formed a partnership with his father. In April, 1885, he located in Coraopolis, where he has since practiced his profession. He was a member of the Beaver County Medical Association. The doctor was united in marriage, Sept. 16, 1886, to Mary E. Stevenson, who was born at Frankfort Springs, Pa., a daughter of John and Jane (Ewing) Stevenson. Doctor and Mrs. Ramsey have two children, Edna J. and Wayne S. The parents are members of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Ramsey is a member of the I. O. O. F., Jr. O. U. A. M. and K. O. T. M. Coraopolis Lodges. Dr. Ramsey is highly esteemed in Coraopolis and vicinity, not only as a skillful physician and surgeon, but also as a representative citizen and Christian gentleman.

Joseph Wallace, retired, Oakdale, was born in Allegheny county in 1820. His parents, Robert and Elizabeth (Aikens) Wallace, of New Jersey, had a family of six children, four of whom are now living. Robert was a farmer, and came to Allegheny county in 1828. He was a son of Samuel Wallace, who came from Scotland at an early day. Robert died at the age of seventy-two years, and at the time of his death owned two hundred acres of land. Joseph was born and reared on a farm, and educated at the public schools. He married, in 1843, Mary, daughter of James Dunbar, of Washington county, Pa., and seven children were born to this marriage, two now living, John Harper and Ella Jane. Mr. Wallace has retired from active life, and now resides in his comfortable home at Oakdale. His son lives on the farm and cultivates it. Mr. Wallace is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

Jonathan H. Wood, steamboat captain, Pittsburgh, a son of Jonathan H., Sr., and Wilhemina Wood, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., in 1840. Like his brother, John A., he has followed boating from childhood to the present time, and for seventeen years was captain of a steamer plying between Louisville, Ky., and New Orleans. For fifteen years he was a member of the firm of D. B. Wood & Bros., coal-merchants, in New Orleans. He married, in 1865, Margaret, daughter of Jacob and Margaret Michael, and by her he had seven children: John, Stella H. (wife of William Philip), Jonathan H., George W., Edna M., Daniel T. and Joseph D.

James Wall, farmer, postoffice Sunny Side, is a descendant of Walter and Elsa (Applegate) Wall who were among the early settlers of Allegheny county, being the second family that located in what is now Forward township, coming from New Jersey. They had six children: James, Isaac, John, Rebecca, Hannah and Betsey, all deceased. John, the father of our subject, settled on the place now occupied by William Wall, it being the first frame house built in the township. He had three children: Orpha (deceased), Wilson (who resides in Forward township), and James, who was born in January, 1865, and was educated in the common schools of the county. He was married, April 30, 1829, to Mary, daughter of William Manown, and by their union they had five children: John, William M., Wilson, Stephen and Mary Elizabeth. Mrs. Wall's family are all living, except Wilson. Our subject has always been engaged in farming, and now, at the age of eighty, is reaping the reward of a successful life. He is a member of the Methodist Church.

John Dick Hardie, carpenter, postoffice Verona, was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, Feb. 22, 1844, a son of Robert and Isabella (Dick) Hardie. He received a good education, and when seventeen years old began to serve his apprenticeship of three and one-half years. For some time he followed house-building, and then became a joiner in ship-building. In 1869 he came to America, and the next year he located in Allegheny county. After spending six years in Pittsburgh, he came to Verona, in 1876. He purchased land here and has built three houses thereon. Since his residence here he has been a coach-builder in the A. V. R. R. shops. He is a communicant in the U. P. Church, and a republican with prohibition sympathies. In 1874 he married Sarah Steele, a native of Ireland. The children of the family are named, in order of age, respectively: Robert Steele, Margaret Isabella, Sarah Emma and Anna Dale.

Alexander Dietrich, butcher, McKeesport, was born in Lorraine, France (now Germany), Sept. 16, 1837, a son of John (Havener) Dietrich. He came to America in 1839, and located in Pittsburgh, where he served an apprenticeship of nine years at butchering. In 1861 he embarked in business for himself at Coutilersville, this county, remaining fifteen years, and in 1876 came to McKeesport, where he embarked in the same line of business. April 6, 1861, he married Lena, daughter of Messer and Anna Smith, of Bavaria, Germany, and has nine children: Lena (Mrs. John Lang), Joseph, Annie (Mrs. Fred Held), Susan, Katie, Mollie, Henry, Stephen and Frank. Mr. Dietrich carries life insurance to the amount of $23,000. He is a member of the R. C. Church and the C. M. B. A.; he is a democrat.

James R. Redman, hardwood manufacturer, postoffice Crafton, a son of John and Margaret (Dryden) Redman, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., in 1837. His father was born in England in 1813, and when about three years old came to this country with his parents, who settled in this county. John Redman's parents had six children, only one of whom, Jane, is now living. John Redman married, in 1858, Margaret, daughter of Arnot and Julia Dryden, and by this union there were nine children: John W., Harriet E. (Mrs. T. C. Ferine), Charles A., Laura V., George T., Laura V. (Mrs. M. D. Hays), Frank H., Charlotte and James R.
All of the above are deceased except James R. Their father in early life learned glassmaking, but he spent most of his life in building boats and in the lumber business. He was for many years a heavy operator in those lines along the Monongahela river, and was very successful, leaving a large estate to his family. His death occurred in 1871, when he was fifty-eight years old. His neighbors say of him that he was a Christian gentleman, with all that the term implies, and was a great loss to his town. Evergreen, of which he was a member and an earnest worker.

His son, James R., married, in October, 1881, Jennie J., daughter of Charles A. and Verlinda V. (English) Stevens, and two children have blessed their union: Norma S. and James C. Mr. Redman was reared to the lumber business and boat-building, and after the death of his father and brother became the proprietor and manager. Subsequently he disposed of that business and went west, became interested in stock and has now an interest in a large cattle-ranch in Kansas, and one in Wyoming. He is also engaged in the hardwood-manufacturing business in Pittsburgh. He is a director of the Castle Shannon railroad, secretary and treasurer of the Pine Tree Live Stock company, and secretary of the Duquesne Live Stock company.

John Hamilton Power, blacksmith, Verona, was born in Hamilton county, Ky., in 1826, son of Hiram Power, also native of that state. His mother, Hester (Parker) Power, was a native of Westmoreland county, this state. Hiram Power, grandfather of John, was a pioneer farmer in Kentucky, and was of Irish descent. The second Hiram died in Cincinnati on the first outbreak of the cholera there. J. H. Power spent the greater part of one-half years at his trade in Mount Vernon, Ohio, and became a journeyman at twenty. For fifteen years he was foreman of the L. S. & M. S. blacksmith-shop at Norwalk, Ohio, and has occupied the same position with the A. V. R. R. for a like period. He became a resident of Verona in 1876, and built his present residence at Oakmont Station. He has been a burgess, and is a Republican; also a member of the Pittsburgh Lodge, 484, F. & A. M., and, with his family, a member of the M.E. Church. In 1848 Mr. Power married Roxana N. Haskell, born in Junction township, Huron county, Ohio, daughter of Prince Haskell, of Vermont. Two daughters, twins, have blessed this union, and are now resident as follows: Helen Evaline (Mrs. Thompson Smith), Jackson, Mich.; Ellen Adeline (Mrs. John Weirs), Dayton, Ohio.

Robert F. Conkle, M. D., Coraopolis, was born on the old homestead, near Hooks-town, Beaver county, Pa., Nov. 28, 1848, a son of Henry (a farmer), and Catherine (Metts) Conkle, natives of Beaver county, and members of the Presbyterian Church. Henry was a son of Henry Conkle, a native of Germany, who settled on the old homestead in Greene township, Beaver county, some eighty-five years ago. Robert F. received his primary education at Hookstown Academy, and the literary course at the college at Wilmington, Ohio. During that time he began the study of medicine with Dr. R. H. Moon, of Hookstown; entered the Medical Reserve College, of Cleveland, Ohio, in 1861, and graduated May 13, 1871. He located at Summitville, Ohio, where he practiced medicine until the fall of 1878, when he located at Middletown, now Coraopolis borough. Dr. Conkle was united in marriage, Dec. 26, 1873, with Sarah Stevenson, who was born at Frankfort Springs, Beaver county, Pa., a daughter of John and Jane (Ewing) Stevenson, the former a miller and farmer. Dr. and Mrs. Conkle have one daughter, Mary Emma, born Sept. 1, 1875. The parents are members of the Presbyterian Church at Coraopolis. The doctor is a member of the I. O. O. F. and O. U. A. M. at Coraopolis; he is a member of the Allegheny County Medical society.

William Shannon, merchant, Boston, was born in Tennessee in 1843. At the age of fourteen he left his native place and engaged as cook on the boats on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, following that business for sixteen years. In 1872 he came to Boston and engaged in mining and also trading on the rivers between Pittsburgh and Monongahela City, having the only boat of its kind on the river since 1860. In 1879 he commenced mercantile business, which he now conducts. Mr. Shannon has been largely identified with the growth and development of his town, having built many of the houses and the gristmill now operated in connection with his store. He married Miss Amanda Reynolds, of West Virginia, and they have two children, Anson and Delenia. Mr. Shannon has been postmaster, is a member of Lone Star Lodge, No. 737, also of A. O. M. C., No. 87, and K. of L., 175. He is a member of the M. E. Church.

Daniel Stratton, contractor and builder, McKeesport, was born in County Down, Ireland, May 13, 1855, a son of James and Sarah (Grevy) Stratton. He came to America in 1868, and located in Allegheny City, where he finished his education in the public schools, and served an apprenticeship of three years with Eugene McGary, of that city. He worked as a journeyman carpenter until 1876, and then settled in McKeesport, where he commenced business as a contractor and builder. In 1881 Mr. Stratton married Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob and Ellen Yost, of McKeesport. He is a member of the R. C. Church, and is a Republican.

Alexander M. Stevenson, merchant and postmaster, Coraopolis, was born on the old homestead of his father in Moon township, Allegheny county, Pa., March 17, 1864. His parents, Alexander and Angelina (Weaver) Stevenson, were natives of Allegheny county, and had two children: Elizabeth S., who married John L., Person, M. D., of Pittsburgh, and Alexander M. The latter received his education in Pittsburgh Academy, Indiana county, Pa., and finished at the University of Wooster, Ohio. He returned home in April, 1888, formed a partnership with George W. McBrier, and they opened their present general store at Cornopolis. They carry a stock valued at three thousand dollars. Mr. Stevenson was appointed postmaster May 13, 1888. He is a grandson of Philip Stevenson, who built the first mill in Moon township, and was for many years postmaster and justice of the peace at that place. Mr. Stevenson is a representative of one of the old families of Allegheny county, and has the confidence and respect of all who know him.

Hiram M. Neel, farmer, postoffice Hope Church, was born April 30, 1832, on the place in Mill Hill township which his grandfather settled shortly after the Revolution, and on which, in 1788, he built a brick house which is yet standing. James H. Neel, the father of Hiram M., was four years old when he came to this county. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Robin Brierly, and both were nearly eighty years old when they died. The subject of this memoir married Agnes, daughter of Matthew H. West, and their children are Mrs. Elizabeth R. Rath, Harry J., Samuel W., Ralph A. and West. Mr. Neel is yet in possession of a part of the old homestead, which he farms. His uncle, Hiram Neel, worked on the first inclined railroad on the river, near Port Perry, and his uncle, Reuben, was one of the first to pilot a boat down the river, but on a trip to New Orleans he was lost. His uncle Thomas led a checkered life, having kept tavern, was a contractor on canals, etc.

John A. Shaw, McKeesport, was born in North Versailles township, Allegheny county, Pa., May 24, 1854, a son of Samuel and Margaret (Sands) Shaw. The paternal grandfather, a native of Ireland, was among the pioneers of this county, and reared a large family. The maternal grandfather, William Sands, of German descent, was a piovere of Westmoreland county, Pa. Samuel Shaw was a farmer of North Versailles township. He had six children who grew to maturity: Sarah J., Alexander, Martha, Anna, Julia and John A. The subject of these lines was reared in North Versailles township, and received a common-school education. He was engaged in farming until 1876, when he removed to McKeesport, where he carried on the grocery, flour, feed, and real-estate businesses, respectively. In 1876 he married Belle, daughter of William and Catherine (Francis) Nicol, formerly of Scotland, who settled in this county about 1832. The issue of this union has been two children: Clyde Nicol and Mr. Shaw is a member of the U. P. Church; is a republican, and a member of the council of McKeesport.

John Reilly, farmer, postoffice Hope Church, was born June 11, 1832, in Allegheny county, Pa., the son of Matthew Reilly, a native of Ireland, who came to America with his parents, Barnett and Mary (McShean) Reilly, and two brothers, Philip and Barnett. The grandfather of John Reilly participated in the war of 1812, after which struggle he became a contractor on canals and railroads, and was a man of considerable note in his day. Matthew Reilly, who was a farmer, married, in Pittsburgh, a daughter of James McPherson, an old settler, and eleven children, all of whom attained maturity, were born to them. The parents died on the South Side, Pittsburgh. They were members of the Catholic Church. The subject of this memoir owns 170 acres of the old homestead, which formerly consisted of four hundred acres. He married Isabella, daughter of John and Rebecca (Corelyn) Cody, and they have nine children: James, George, Mary A., Sarah, Matilda, Matthew, Daniel, Albert and Cecelia Bell; Mr. Reilly is a democrat.

George Evans, paper-carrier, Pittsburgh, a son of John and Jane Evans, was born in Temperanceville, this county, in 1858. John came from Wales to this country in 1843, and lived in Pittsburgh until his death; he died in 1865, at the age of forty-two years; his widow is still living, at the age of sixty-five years. He was a shoemaker by trade; a member of the I. O. O. F. He and wife were members of the M. E. Church. They had eight children: Thomas, Mary (wife of Abram Bineu), David, William, Emma (wife of Frank McGowen), John (deceased), George and Annie (wife of Albert Adams). George, at the age of twelve years, commenced work in the rolling-mills, which he followed until 1888, being what is known as a heater. In that year he engaged in the newspaper business, buying and selling, and employing men to assist him, and has made a grand success in that line. He married, in 1884, Mary E., daughter of James and Mary A. Obev, and they have one child. James Obev. Mr. Evans is a member of the I. O. O. F., the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers.

Alexander McAteer, transfer-agent, Wilkinsburg, son of James and Esther (Maxwell) McAteer, was born at Portglenone, County Antrim, Ireland, May 3, 1857. His father was a linen-manufacturer, and kept a store. Alexander was educated at the public schools, and on reaching his majority he set out for America, settling, in 1859, in Pittsburgh. He worked at gardening for two years, and was employed, in 1861, constructing telegraph for government use in Virginia. In the fall of 1861 he became baggage-man at the P. R. R. station, and five years later entered the service of the Adams Express company, his present position being that of assistant manager. In 1883 he married Sarah Moose, and next year took up his residence at Wilkinsburg. In 1888 he built the home he occupies, corner of Wood and Hill streets. Mrs. McAteer is a native of Youngstown, Pa., daughter of George and Sarah (Stout) Moose, the father a native of France, and the mother of English extraction. Mr.
McAteer and family are associated with the Presbyterian Church, and he is a republican-prohibitionist. The children are named in order of birth: Molly Richardson, William James, Howard Walter, Arthur Stewart and Kate Stewart (twins) and Mary.

PHILLIP BURKHARD, foreman of the car department on P. & L. E. R. R., postoffice McKee's Rocks, was born in Monroe county, in 1847, a son of John and Barbara Burkhard. His parents, who came to this county in 1888, had a family of twelve children: Adam, Philip, Maria (deceased), Mary (wife of Andrew Heinour), Joseph, John, Charlie, Frank, Philomena (deceased), Lena (wife of John Wisun), Teresa (deceased) and Benjamin. The father of this family has spent most of his life in the shoe business. Phillip passed his early life on a farm. He enlisted in April, 1863, in Battery A, 1st Va. Art., for three years, or during the war, and was always with the battery and ready for duty. He married, April 20, 1868, Philomena, daughter of Anthony and Rachel Babst, of this county, and their children were Clara, Albert A., Andrew P., John J., Frank F., William (deceased), Harmon M., Aggie, George S. and Bertie. Mr. Burkhard has followed various occupations, but for the past seven years has been in the employ of the P. & L. E. R. R.

AMOS FRYER, lumber-dealer, postoffice Bridgeville, was born in this county in 1847. Leonard Fryer, the pioneer of this family, and a farmer, came from County Down, Ireland, at an early period, and soon after located in Allegheny county. He married Ellen Porter, and by her had thirteen children. He was a soldier in the army, fought against the Indians, and was wounded at a noted battle near Cincinnati. At the expiration of his term of enlistment, he walked from Cincinnati to Ashington, Va., to get his pay. Somewhom Fryer was the seventh boy born to Leonard, and was a miller by trade, and also a farmer; he was born in 1803 and died in 1888; he married Julia Abbott, to whom were born seven children, six of whom grew to maturity. Of these Amos, whose name heads this sketch, was educated at the common schools in Upper St. Clair township, and at the business college of Pittsburgh. He was reared on a farm and has been engaged in various business pursuits. He purchased his present home in Bridgeville in 1888, and is successfully engaged in the lumber and undertaking business. He married, in 1885, Miss Annie, daughter of Philip Conrad, and two children, Samuel B. and Philip Blain, have been born to them. Mr. Fryer has served on the school board; is a member of the Presbyterian church, and is a member of the Masonic order.

JOHN WAMPLER, engineer, McKeesport, was born in Versailles township, Allegheny county, Feb. 7, 1827, a son of Joseph and Polly (Thompson) Wampler. His paternal grandfather was Jacob Wampler, a native of Germany, and a pioneer of Westmoreland county, Pa. Joseph was a native of Westmoreland county, a millwright by trade, and about 1820 settled in Versailles township, where he followed his trade for several years. In 1828 he located in McKeesport, and built the first sawmill there, which he conducted fourteen years. He was then elected justice of the peace, and filled that office thirty years. During his term of office he engaged in business as a watchmaker, and, being a natural mechanic, became quite an adept in the manufacture of telescopes and microscopes, and was always successful in accomplishing everything he attempted to do in that direction. He was awarded a silver medal at the Ohio state fair in 1882, being the first premium over all exhibits of telescopes from this and foreign countries. A fine telescope of his manufacture is now in possession of our subject. He was three times married, his first wife being Polly Thompson, by whom he had four children: Jackson, John, Joseph and David; his second wife was a Mrs. Owen, and his third wife, Mary Griggs, by whom there is one son living, William P. Joseph Wampler died April 14, 1885, honored and respected by all who knew him.

The subject of this sketch was reared in McKeesport, where he removed with his parents in 1832. For a number of years he conducted his father's sawmill, and afterward assisted in putting up the engine and machinery for the first planing-mill erected in McKeesport, of which he was manager for a short time; later he built the planing-mill of Neel & Wampler, in which he was a partner three years, and in 1872 erected another planing-mill in company with Bartley Rankin, in which he was interested until 1881. For past seven years he has been an engineer in the rolling-mill of W. D. Wood & Co. He was married twice; his first wife was Mary A., daughter of Dr. John Runkle, Allegheny county, and by her he had two children, Elizabeth and Elfner. His present wife is Ellen, daughter of Aaron Longshack, of Somerset county, Pa., and by her he has four children living: Richard, Anna, Olive and James. Mr. Wampler has served as member of the council of McKeesport three terms; is a member of the F. & A. M., and is a democrat.

JOHN CRESSON GLASS, master mechanic, Verona, was born in Allegheny City, in 1833, a son of George W. Glass, who was a master mechanic of the A. V. R. R. from 1868 to his death in 1884. The father of the latter came from Ireland, and was an early resident of Pittsburgh. George W. Glass was born in Pittsburgh, and became master mechanic of the O. & P. (now F. T. W. & C.) R. R. in 1850, and the first iron locomotive built west of the Alleghany mountains was made under his charge, the original drawings of which are now in possession of his son. He died at the age of sixty-four years, but his widow, Eliza (Walker) Glass, a native of Fayette county, still survives him. J. C. Glass received most of his education at the New Brighton public schools, and began his mechanical career in the railroad shops when fourteen years old. At the age of his father's death he was employed as machinist in the Verona shops, and was appointed to his present position in 1886. In 1873 he married Margaret Sorby, of Welsh and English descent, a native of Pittsburgh, and a daughter of William and Mary Sorby. Mr. Glass is a member of the Royal Arcanum and Masonic fraternity, and has always been a republican. His family includes three children: Mamie, Ella and Margaret.

John W. Edmundson, farmer, postoffice Buena Vista, is a son of John, Sr., and Nancy (Calhoun) Edmundson. Joseph Edmundson, grandfather of John W., was a native of York county, Pa., and settled in Millin township, this county, in 1802, and afterward purchased property in Elizabeth township, near McKeesport, where he resided until his death, in 1822. John, Sr., the father of John W., was born in York county in 1787, came to this county with his parents, and finally settled in what is now Lincoln township and followed farming. He died in 1863, his wife in 1862. They raised five children, two of whom are still living: John W. and Sarah, a maiden lady, who resides with him. The subject of this memoir was born on the homestead in 1825, and was educated at the public schools. In 1866 he purchased his present farm, where he has since resided. His wife was Cordelia, daughter of Joseph and Hannah (Lane) White, of this county, and they have seven living children: William A., a merchant of Bueua Vista and McKeesport; Nancy A.; Sarah J., now Mrs. John Calhoun, of Elizabethtown township; Mary M., Annie M., Olive, Josephine. Mr. Edmundson and family are members of Mount Vernon Presbyterian Church.

Theodore Smith, hotel-keeper, McKee's Rocks, son of John J. and Alena Smith, was born in Prussia, March 16, 1846. His parents had a family of four children: John, Hubert, Julia and Theodore. The father, who was a cooper by trade, resides with his children, and is now eighty-one years old; the mother died in 1885, aged sixty-seven years. Theodore was a puddler in the iron-works, an occupation he followed twenty-six years in the various mills of this county. Since then he has been engaged in hotel-keeping at McKee's Rocks, where he owns a good property. He married, May 5, 1868, Annie, daughter of Joseph and Hettie Shariff, of this county, and to them have been born Theodore (deceased), Hubert (deceased), Freddie and Joseph. Mr. Smith has been a member of the Amalgamated association since 1876.

Tom Shelton, mechanical engineer, McKeesport, was born at Abbotts Ripton, Huntingdonshire, England, Sept. 1, 1847. He was educated at Cowper's House School, Huntingdou, and was apprenticed, to learn mechanical engineering and drafting, to James Armitage, of Ramsey, England, with whom he served three years, and two years with James and Frederick Howard, Bedford, England. He came to America in 1863, and located in Cincinnati, where he filled the position of mechanical engineer of the Detroit Locomotive-works one year, and in the same capacity he served two years under I. H. Condon, of the U. P. R. R., at Omaha, Neb. In the winter of 1868-69 he returned to his home in England, and in 1872 superintended the erection of the steam cultivating machinery and Howard safety boilers for J. & T. Howard for the world's exposition at Vienna. In September, same year, he returned to England, and later sailed for New York to superintend the erection of cultivating and sugar machinery in Ascension county, La., for E. C. Palmer & Co., New Orleans, remaining there until April, 1874. He then went to Boston, Mass., and May 18, same year, engaged with the Howard Boiler Manufacturing company as mechanical engineer. June 1 he returned to England for his family, and arrived in New York city July 3, where he erected the Howard safety boilers in the Fifth avenue hotel and the American Institute. Being released by his firm for three months, he went to Cuba, as consulting engineer, to adjust some matters in regard to machinery that had been built in Scotland. He returned to New York in January, 1875, and resumed his position with the Howard Safety Boiler company.

In March, same year, he settled in McKeesport and began the erection of six fifty-horse power Howard safety boilers for the National Tube-works company, which were completed May 1, 1876. At the same time he built one fifty-horse power Howard boiler for exhibition at the centennial in Philadelphia, and also erected the exhibit of pipe, consisting of pipe from one-sixteenth to sixteen inches in diameter, and varying in length from one to twenty-seven feet, for the National Tube-works company, and which was pronounced by competent critics the best pipe display ever on exhibition. He then resigned his position as mechanical engineer for the Howard Safety Boiler company, and accepted that of chief engineer at the National Tube-works, which position he held ten years, and during that time, in 1883-84, he erected water-works at Duluth, Brainerd and Fergus Falls, Minn.; Corsicana and Dallas, Tex., Pueblo, Colo., and at Mamaroneck, N.Y., the last named being a private affair put up by prominent parties of New York to supply them pure water at their summer residences. In 1886 Mr. Shelton accepted a position with the National Tube-works company as consulting engineer and superintendent of their national gas-lines, and during the past three years has superintended the construction of upward of thirty different pipe-lines in Allegheny, Washington and Westmoreland counties, most of which lines center in Pittsburgh. He has also patented several devices of joints and safety-escapes for the different gas-lines running into Pittsburgh and McKeesport, Pa., Youngstown and Findlay, Ohio, and Indianapolis, Ind. The pipe-lines he has put in range from eight to twenty-four inches in diameter for natural-gas purposes, and exceed over eight hundred miles in different sizes. Mr. Shelton is a natural-gas expert, and has discovered and developed upward of a dozen wells in the Murrysville district.

Henry Berg, milk-keeper, Verona, is the only child of Henry and Anna Maria (Bayer) Berg, and was born at Kaiserslautern, Bavaria, in 1835. When twelve years old he came with his parents to the United States, the family landing at Pittsburgh on a Saturday night in 1866. The father was a blacksmith, and found employment with a coal company on the Monongahela. In 1868 he was engaged by the N. Y. & C. C. Co., and settled in Penn township. He was very industrious, and often, after digging coal all day, spent the evening fitting up tools for miners. His son labored in the mines and was his father's assistant at night. In June, 1873, Mr. Berg purchased two lots in Verona borough at a cost of $2,000, and at once erected thereon a hotel, at a cost of $3,800. This burned down on the 25th of July, 1875, and he at once rebuilt, at a cost of $13,000. April 5, 1876, the family occupied the building, and on Oct. 5 following Mr. Berg passed from earth. The business was continued by the widow and son, who paid off a debt of $6,200 incurred in building, and have added much to the property since. Our subject has now thirty-four lots on Railroad and Penn avenues, extending from the former to the river, on which he has built a three-story business block and three dwellings, icehouse, etc., and seven and a half acres near the railroad shops. The six lots on Railroad avenue were purchased at a cost of $5,500. The family is identified with the E. P. Church. Mr. Berg is a republican, and at present a member of the borough council.

Frederick Brethauer, gardener, postoffice Ross, was born Jan. 18, 1849, in Pittsburgh, a son of Christopher Brethauer. The latter came to America in 1847, settled in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, and became a well-known gardener. Frederick was reared and educated at the above-named place, where he also learned gardening, and has followed it successfully, having eight acres of land at "Gardener's Home." He married Bertha Krusi, a native of this county, of Swiss descent, and they have one child, Emma M. Mr. and Mrs. Brethauer are members of the G. L. Church at Girty's Run, of which he has been an officer. Politically he is a republican.

George Kuhlman, dealer in marble and granite, postoffice Mt. Lebanon, was born in Germany in 1828, eldest child of John Kuhlman, who came to America in 1838, and located in Butler county coming soon after to Franklin county, Pa. He was a stonemason by trade, and in 1837 moved to Pittsburgh, where he contracted until 1842. He then engaged in the grocery business in Allegheny City, and shortly after went to Beaver county, Pa., where he purchased twenty-five acres of land. He died there in 1880; his wife died in 1878. He married Mary Magdaline Schoolmyer, also of Germany, and by her had two children. Of these, George was educated at the public schools of Allegheny City, and until twenty years of age remained with his father on the farm and helped at the mason's trade, which he learned. He also learned the carpenter's trade, serving an apprenticeship of four years, and has been a contractor for twenty years. In 1880 he started his present business on South Side, Pittsburgh, where he furnishes anything in marble, granite and sandstone for cemetery or building purposes. In 1855 Mr. Kuhlman married Catharine P. Shuring, of this county, and thirteen children, eight of whom are living, were born to them. Mr. Kuhlman is a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the G. E. Church.

Homer H. Swaney, attorney, McKeesport, was born July 16, 1856, near Hookstown, Beaver county. His father, John Swaney, who died in 1876, was a prominent and successful farmer, and a strong republican. His eldest son, H. W. Swaney, left his academic studies at the breaking out of the rebellion, entered the 140th P. V. I., and at the battle of Spottsylvania Court House, May 12, 1863, he was killed. The subject of this sketch was thus trained up in the republican faith. He attended the public schools in Beaver county, receiving his preparatory education in the Hookstown Academy, and in the fall of 1877 entered the junior class at Monmouth College, Illinois. Young Swaney was appointed one of four to engage in an oratorical contest for the position of representative of Monmouth College in the Illinois Inter-Collegiate Oratorical association. This contest he won, and represented his college in the association. Eight colleges and universities were represented, and Mr. Swaney carried back to Monmouth College the honor of having won the first gold medal the college received in the association. Mr. Swaney went from Monmouth College to the University of Chicago (a member of the association), and graduated with the class of 1879. During the summer vacation of 1878 he crossed the Rocky mountains with a camping party, and spent several weeks in lower Colorado. The winter of 1879-80 was spent in New York city in the study of special branches. In the spring of 1880 he went to Washington city, D. C., entered the civil service of the United States government and also the law department of the National University. In June, 1882, he graduated and re-entered the law department on the post-graduate course, graduating from it in June, 1883, and was admitted to the bar in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. When in the National University the entire class were assigned as a subject for a graduating essay, "The Doctrine of Ultra Vires." Mr. Swaney's essay was pronounced by Judge Willoughby to be the best production, and is published.

Before Garfield's death, Mr. Swaney and a fellow-student in the National University composed the compilation, A life of James A. Garfield and Chester A. Arthur from the newspapers and other documentary sources, and shortly after Garfield's death published the volume. The spring of 1884 found him in Pittsburgh, admitted to the Allegheny county bar, and in an office awaiting developments. To the tariff and emigration questions Mr. Swaney has devoted much time and study, and has frequently stated his views upon these subjects from the stump. As an orator upon Decoration day he has received many high compliments, and he is always ready to lend a helping hand to the Grand Army.

James M. Porter, butcher, postoffice Woodville, was born in 1833, of Irish descent. His grandfather, Joseph, who was a farmer and stock-dealer, married Mary Corcoran, and became the father of four sons and three daughters. Andrew C., the second son, was born in 1801, in Pickaway county, Ohio, and became a farmer. He married Sarah McQuintie, and to them were born twelve children, of whom six sons and one daughter are now living. Andrew died in 1855, his wife in 1883. Since 1813 the family have been identified with Allegheny county, Andrew having come to the county when he was twelve years of age. James M., the second son, was educated in the common schools, and was reared a farmer. In 1868 he was appointed by the board of directors superintendent of the farm at the Allegheny County Home, which position he satisfactorily filled for twenty-one years. He followed carpentering from 1884 to 1886, at which time he purchased his present comfortable home, and is engaged in butchering. He married, in 1855, Nancy Tribrook, who bore him one child, Nannie. His second marriage was with Martha, daughter of Thomas and Jane Drennen, of this county, and two children were born to this union: Lizzie and Harry L. Mr. Porter has served as school director. He and family are members of the U. P. Church, and he is a republican.

John McKnight, Esq., farmer, was born Oct. 22, 1820, on the old homestead in Ross township, Allegheny county, Pa., where his father, Joseph McKnight, a native of Pennsylvania, of Scotch-Irish descent, settled in an early day. Joseph McKnight had a twin brother, John, and a sister, Mrs. Rebecca Crider. Joseph and John followed whip-sawing near Pittsburgh, but finally John took out a patent for 424 acres of land; of this he retained 140 acres, for which he paid one hundred dollars. He had sold 106 acres to Sam Scott for a calf. Joseph McKnight married Elizabeth Magogne, a native of this county. She was the mother of John, our subject, who is now the owner of the old farm. He married here Margaret, daughter of William Ross, and they have two children: John and Elizabeth. Politically Mr. McKnight is a republican. He is a justice of the peace, and has filled other township offices. His father was a democrat.

John Rev. E. Brennan, postoffice Mansfield Valley, is a native of County Donegal, Ireland, and was born in 1850. His father, E. Brennan, who was a merchant in the old country, married Mary Wallis, who bore him nine children, seven of whom are now living. The subject of these lines was educated at the public schools of his native land, and after coming to America, in 1871, became a student at St. Michael's Seminary, Glenwood, Allegheny county. He was ordained a clergyman in 1874, and in 1880 took charge of the congregation at this place. He was instrumental in building the present church, a fine brick edifice 125x60 feet. His mother, now quite an elderly lady, resides with him at Mansfield.

Alfred Andrew Quinette, butcher, Wilkinsburg, is a grandson of Francis Quinette, a native Frenchman, who settled on a farm in Indiana township, this county, about the beginning of the present century; was supervisor, and held other township offices, and died in 1859, aged seventy-nine years. He had nine sons and one daughter, all born in Indiana. Peter, the youngest, now resides on the homestead, where he has always lived with the exception of five years, during which he was engaged in the livery business at East Liberty. His wife, Pauline (Bell), is of German extraction, and Alfred Andrew was born to them Aug. 17, 1859. He attended the public schools of Indiana and East Liberty till sixteen years old, when he began to work at his present business. He was employed four years at Lincoln and other points in Nebraska, and came to Wilkinsburg in 1883, where he opened a meat-market, with a partner, whom he bought out at the end of the year. In 1884 he built the handsome brick building on Penn avenue which he occupies as shop and residence. June 10, 1885, he married a native of Wilkinsburg, Miss Ida May, daughter of Benjamin and Margaret Snyder, of German descent. Mr. Quinette is a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., is a democrat, and attends the M. E. Church with his family. His children are: Ethel Louisa and Charles Edward.

John Caughey, farmer, postoffice Chartiers, a son of John and Maria Caughey, was born in 1883, in County Down, Ireland. He came to this country in 1852, located same year in Allegheny county, and has been a resident of Stoew township ever since. For several years he deprived himself of many of the comforts of life to save money, in order to help sustain and finally bring his people to this country. In 1855 he brought two of his brothers and a sister to America, and in 1859 he brought his parents, a brother and two sisters. Of the eight members of the family who came to this country through his beneficence, three are living. His father died in 1879, at the age of eighty-eight years, and his mother in 1878, at the age of eighty. Our subject was first married, in 1855, to Jane Thompson, and by this union there were eight children: John, Joseph (deceased), Andrew, Margaret J. (wife of Joseph Heurnour), Joseph (second), Martha (deceased), William and Mollie. Mrs. Caughhey died in 1872, at the age of thirty-three years, and Mr. Caughhey’s second marriage occurred in 1874, with Sarah J., daughter of Joseph and Ellen Patterson, by which marriage there were seven children: Ellen (deceased), Robert, Benjamin, Annie B. (deceased), Sadie, Martha and Annie. Mr. Caughhey is a good citizen, and his property gives evidence of industry and good taste.

Daniel Dougherty, farmer, postoffice Green Tree, was born in Union township, Nov. 24, 1823, son of John Dougherty, who was born in Scott township, Allegheny county, Pa. John married Miss Mary Hager, and three sons and one daughter were born to them. Daniel is the only member of the family now living. He has always lived in the county, with the exception of the period spent in the army. He enlisted in 1861, in Co. E, 9th P. V., and for three years defended his country. He was married, in 1852, to Hannah, daughter of Samuel Haudenshield, and they have had three children, two living: Jacob and Mary Ann. Mr. Dougherty is a member of the G. A. R.; he has been a member of the town council, and is a republican.

George M. Wasmuth, grocer, McKeesport, was born in Robinson township, Allegheny county, March 9, 1883, son of William and Elizabeth (Vogler) Wasmuth, natives of Germany. His father, who was a shoemaker, settled in Pittsburgh in 1836, where he followed his trade several years. About 1848 he located in Robinson township, where, in connection with his trade, he carried on gardening a number of years. He came to McKeesport in 1886, and died there in April, same year, at the age of eighty years. He was twice married: his first wife, née Rosetta Gephart, bore him five children, of whom two are living: William and John; his second wife, née Elizabeth Vogler, bore him ten children, of whom three survive: Margaret, Sophia and George M. The last named came to McKeesport in 1889, was employed in the National Tube-works one year, and afterward in the National Rolling-mill five years. In 1897 he was weighmaster at the last-named mill, and Nov. 4, same year, he embarked in the grocery business, in which he has since been successfully engaged. He is a member of the G. L. Church and Leiderkranz, and is a democrat.

James Morgan, retired, postoffice Bridgeville, is a descendant of Samuel Morgan, a Scotchman, who immigrated to America in 1778, and located near Pittsburg on the Ohio, but later removed to Allegheny county, where he purchased three hundred acres of land on Miller’s run, now South Fayette township. There he remained until his death. He was the father of two sons and one daughter. Hugh, the younger son, married Margaret Billingsly, of West Virginia, and had a family of eleven children, of whom James is the only survivor. Hugh lived on the tract of land purchased by his father, following farming until his death. Of the three hundred acres purchased by Samuel Morgan but 185 are now owned by any of the name.

James was born, in 1809, on this farm, and educated in a log schoolhouse. Like his ancestors, he followed farming, but since 1870 has lived retired. He married Elizabeth, daughter of John Heitman, and to them were born eight children, seven of whom are living: H. H.; Sarah J. (Mrs. Herriott), S. W., Billingsly, William P., Margaret (Mrs. Fife) and John C. Mr. Morgan finds pleasure in visiting his children, but still mourns the loss of his faithful wife, who has long been dead. His son Billingsly was born in 1840, resides on the homestead, and is engaged in stock-dealing. He married, in 1873, Mary L. Farrer, daughter of John and Phoebe (White) Farrer, and five children have blessed their union: Bessie, Jennie, George, Edward and John. For two years and nine months he (Billingsly) served his country in the rebellion, and was present at the surrender of Gen. Lee. The Morgan family are members of the Presbyterian Church, and republicians.

H. H. Morgan, farmer, postoffice Oakland Station, was born in 1834, the eldest son of James and Elizabeth (Heitman) Morgan. He was born and reared on a farm, the pursuits of which he has since followed. He was married, in 1861, to Harriet Hickman, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (McCabe) Hickman, of this county, and granddaughter of Peter Hickman. Sept. 12, 1886, Mrs. Morgan departed this life, at the age of forty-seven years. She was an invalid for many years, and a highly respected lady. Mr. Morgan now resides at Oakdale. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and politically a republican.

Robert Woods (deceased) was a son of Stephen Woods, a native of Ireland, who by profession was a lawyer, and rose to distinction in Washington county, where he resided for many years. Thomas Woods, grandfather of Robert, was a well known resident of Lancaster county, and died in Philadelphia during the yellow fever. Robert was reared in Washington county, Pa., where his preliminary education was obtained at the public schools, and he afterward graduated at the Washington College in 1834. He at once took up the study of law with N. P. Hobert and Walter H. Lowrey; he was admitted to the bar in 1837, and the only political office he ever held was chief clerk in the postoffice. His first law-office was on Diamond street. Mr. Woods was married, in 1841, to Sarah, daughter of Robert Christy, and to them were born nineteen children, nine of whom are living. He was one of the principal projectors of the Pan Handle R. R., and was its president for five years. He purchased his country residence in Chartiers township in 1851, where he resided at the time of his death. He was a democrat in politics until the firing on Fort Sumter, and afterward became a republican. His widow now resides with four daughters at their beautiful home.

JOHN LOSEN TRENT, painter, postoffice Hulton, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., July 25, 1839, a son of Valentine and Sarah (McGarrihill) Trent. Valentine was a native of Pittsburgh, but died in Sharpsburg in 1850; his widow, a native of Allegheny City, resides at Wilkinsburg. James Trent, grandfather of John L., came from England at the time of the Revolution, and was a captain under Gen. Washington. Our subject was reared at Sharpsburg, educated at the common schools there, and was but eleven years of age when his father died. He served three and a half years at the tinner's trade, but, not being suited with that calling, served his time with John K. Hamilton, of Pittsburgh, at the painter's trade, and carried on the business at Sharpsburg until the breaking out of the war. His specialty is decorating and fancy work. He enlisted in Pittsburgh, Aug. 20, 1861, in Co. B, 63rd P. V. I., and was assigned to the Army of the Potomac. He was in the engagements of Yorktown, Williamsburg and Fair Oaks, where he was struck in the back with a shell, and had to undergo an operation before he could stand erect. After seven weeks of hospital life, he engaged in the seven days' fight in front of Richmond, second battle of Bull run, Fredericksburg, the Muddy March and Chancellorsville, where he was shot through both arms. Later he was at the battles of Gettysburg, Wapping Heights, Kelly's Ford and Locust Grove, and went into camp at Brandy Station. He then enlisted as a veteran volunteer, came home for twenty-five days, and married. Jan. 24, 1865, L. F. Bellalre, who was born in Allegheny, Pa., March 21, 1839, a daughter of Adam and Margaret Craft. Returning to his command Feb. 8, 1864, Mr. Trent remained at Brandy Station until the beginning of the Wilderness campaign, May 1, 1864. May 5, he led a skirmishing line, and was shot, first in the left and then in the right leg. He fell, and was shot twice again in the right leg. He lay on the field till the morning of the 8th, when he was carried two miles to the hospital; but the doctors would not amputate his leg, on account of the great loss of blood he had sustained, and he was laid out to die. Later he was sent in a wagon to Fredericksburg, and a long time after transferred to Washington. There he improved rapidly until July, when he was stricken with fever and gangrene. He obtained from the secretary of war special train to Pittsburgh, and was taken to his wife's home in California, Pa.; was discharged May 4, 1865, as unfit for veteran duty and pensioned at eight dollars per month, but now receives thirty-six dollars per month. On his recovery he began painting at California, and remained there eleven years. In 1868 he started a branch in Pittsburgh, and opened a paint-store there, but one year later his leg again troubled him and he closed the store. About March, 1887, his leg again gave out, and he has since been confined to his house, the bones having all been taken out of the limb between the ankle and the knee. Mr. Trent moved to Verona in 1873, and was seven years in the Dexter Carriage-works. Since then he has done contract and fine work in decorating, graining and marbleizing, having the sole right of the latter process. He and wife are members of the M. E. Church, and the parents of two children: Sarah Margaret, who died April, 1887, aged twenty-one years, and Charles Valentine, at home. Mr. Trent is a republican. He is the only survivor of his father's five children: Mary, John, Davidson, Caroline and Harrison. The last mentioned served in Knap's battery. On Decoration day, 1868, he was run over by a train of the A. V. R., of which he was engineer, and received injuries which resulted in his death.

D. A. STERRITT, David Sterritt (deceased), father of the subject of this sketch, was born Aug. 9, 1812, in Ross township. He was reared a farmer, and followed that as his avocation after he grew to manhood. In 1866 he laid his farm out into garden-lots of from four to seven acres each, and it is now called "Gardener's Home." He married Matilda B., daughter of Elijah and Sarah (Crider) Brooks, and became the father of three children: John E., Mary B. (deceased) and David A. Mr. Sterritt was educated in his native county, where he was highly esteemed as a man of business, honor and integrity; foremost in every good enterprise which would serve to promote the welfare of the community. He died Feb. 20, 1888. Politically Mr. Sterritt was a democrat, and he filled various offices with ability. He was a member of the board of trustees of Perryville, as is his family. His children's record is as follows: John E., a merchant in Bellaire, Ohio, married to Catherine Geyer, and became the father of five children. Mary B. married to Prof. Wettach, of Allegheny, and died leaving one daughter, Beulah, who lives at the old homestead. David A., the subject of this sketch, after receiving a liberal common-school education, attended an academy in Pittsburgh, then took a business course at Duff's College. In 1879 he moved to Bellaire, Ohio, and there spent nine years in the coal business. At the death of his father he returned to his old home, and is now superintendent of the plank-road, which is owned by the family. He married Mary L. King, a native of Mt. Pleasant, Ohio, who has borne him two children, fathered by Prof. Sterritt, and two by Alexander.

S U B F L.
ally by Mr. Campbell. John was a farmer, and died in 1883, aged eighty-eight years; his wife died in 1890, aged sixty-six years. They were parents of ten children, of whom five now remain. Samuel, the sixth child, was educated at the public schools of Ireland, and left his native land at the age of eighteen years. He first went to England and became a soldier in the British army; later immigrated to the West Indies, and arrived in America in 1856. Since coming here he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in 1871 purchased his present farm. Mr. Wallace married, in 1866, Susanna, daughter of John Stewart, of Allegheny county, and six children, four living, have been born to them: Jane (Mrs. Wallace), Lizzie, James and John, at home. In 1861 Mr. Wallace enlisted in Co. K, 1st P. C., and served six months. He is a worthy member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

Thomas Coates, retired, McKeesport, was born near Temperanceville, Allegheny county, Aug. 19, 1836, a son of James and Anna (Brown) Coates, natives of Newcastle upon Tyne, England. They came to this country about 1880 and settled in Pittsburgh, where the father for a time followed mining, later farming, and finally the hotel business, keeping the stone tavern on the Washington turnpike, in what is now the Thirty-sixth ward of Pittsburgh. He reared a family of four children: Joseph, Thomas, William and James. Thomas was reared and educated in this county, and began life as a coal-miner, which he followed twenty-five years. In September, 1863, he enlisted in Battery H, Ind. P. V., and served until June 19, 1865, when he was honorably discharged. In 1870 he embarked in the general merchandize business at Alipsville, Allegheny county, with C. M. Robinson, under the firm name of C. M. Robinson & Co. He continued and did well until he removed to Suter Station, Westmoreland county, and engaged in the same business there on his own account until he was burned out June 9, 1874. He then located at Broad Ford, Fayette county, and opened a general store, under firm name of Coates & Fritchman, remaining until the spring of 1878; then embarked in general merchandizing, continuing in business until his retirement in 1887. Mr. Coates married, in 1877, Caroline, daughter of John and Jane Arthur, of this county, and by her had two children: Ida M. (Mrs. Charles Pollock) and Anna (Mrs. John Logan, deceased). In 1888 Mr. Coates erected a large brick block on Walnut street, three stories high, with two elegant stores on ground floor, 20x80 each, which is a valuable improvement to the city. He is a member of the Masonic Order, and the Odd Fellows.

James A. Russell, furniture-dealer and undertaker, Braddock, is the seventh in the family of ten children of William Russell, a native of Scotland, who came to America in 1832. Our subject was born in 1840, received a common-school education, and at the age of fourteen (he was left an orphan at the age of thirteen) commenced learning cabinet-making, at which he served an apprenticeship of four and a half years. In 1866 he came to Braddock, and commenced in a small way in the furniture business near his present site, and in 1884 he erected the three-story 33x90 brick building which he now occupies. In 1863 he married Mercy Wilson, of Westmoreland county, and five children were born to them, of whom two survive: Robert and Helen. Mr. Russell has been justice of the peace two terms; has been auditor of the borough, and was one of the original founders of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is an elder. He is a F. & A. M., in politics a republican.

William Wilhelm, miner, and justice of the peace, postoffice Oakdale Station, was born in Prussia, Germany, in 1852, a son of Powell and Caroline (Spender) Wilhelm, who were parents of seven children. In 1853 William, in company with his father, left his native land, and, coming to America, located in Luzerne county, Pa., for a short time, but later removed to Pittsburgh. Powell Wilhelm was a practical coal-miner, having been a coal-operator in Germany. Mrs. Wilhelm, with the other children, joined her husband at Pittsburgh about a year after the latter's settlement there. Powell died in 1881, at the age of seventy-one years, and his wife at the age of seventy-eight. William, the eldest son of this family, was educated at the public schools and at the high school of his native country. He has worked at glass-manufacturing and at coal-operating all his life. In April, 1861, he enlisted in Co. B, 7th P. V., in the three-months service, but re-enlisted in August of the same year, this time in the 5th P. C., and served for three years and ten months. He was promoted to the lieutenancy of the regiment, and was mustered out, in July 1864. He was married, in 1858, to Bertha, daughter of Rev. Henry Roessing, also of Germany. Seven children have been born to them, five of whom are living: Anna (Mrs. Burns), Caroline, Helena, Lina and Albright Charles. Mr. Wilhelm was elected justice of the peace in 1877; later was re-elected and still fills that position. He is a Freemason, a grand master in the I. O. O. F., a member of the I. O. R. M., also of the G. A. R. and of the U. V. L. He is a republican.

Florian Smith, watch-repairer, McKeesport, was born in West Newton, Pa., April 16, 1837, a son of Andrew and Julia (Rotharmel) Smith. His father, who was a native of Alsace-Lorraine, served in the French army ten years, under Bonaparte, and participated in the battle of Leipzig. He came to America in 1847, and located at Alleghany, Pa., and later settled at West Newton, where he resided until his death. He died in 1880, at the age of eighty-eight years. He was a clockmaker by trade, at which he worked until within three weeks of his death. His wife's ancestors were of French descent, and came from Holland, settling in Franklin. county, Pa., in 1782. Mrs. Smith's maternal grandfather, Capt. Stenger, served through the Revolution. Andrew Smith had seven children: Peter, Catherine, Hannah, Florian, Sarah, Adelia and Samuel. Florian was reared and educated in West Newton, and learned his trade with his father. He settled in McKeesport in 1802, and embarked in business as a watch-repairer, in which he has successfully continued since. He married, in 1805, Nellie, daughter of William Coyan, of McKeesport, and has one son living, Andrew. Mr. Smith is an attendant of the Baptist Church, of which his wife is a member. He is a democrat, and has served a term of three years as school director.

AMZI M. WILSON, farmer, postoffice Carrick, was born Dec. 11, 1854, on the Wilson homestead, which his grandfather, John Wilson, settled, the stone mansion thereon being over one hundred years old. William R. Wilson, the father of Amzi M., was also born on the homestead, March 1, 1830. He was a steady farmer, a good citizen and neighbor, and died June 27, 1857. He married Margaret Cowan, Oct. 10, 1850. She survived her husband, and was the mother of three children: Joseph F., Amzi M. and William. William R. Wilson and wife were leading members of the Presbyterian Church; politically he was a whig. Amzi M. was educated in this county and Cannonsburg Academy. March 22, 1858, he married Ruth, daughter of Robert and Elizabeth Atkinson, and they have been blessed with three children: Margaret E., Ralph and Anna L. Mr. Wilson now owns the homestead.

GEORGE CHEESEMAN, M.D., postoffice Library, was born in 1839, in Washington county, Pa., a son of John and Mary (Barkley) Cheesman, natives, respectively, of New Jersey and Washington county, Pa. His father was a seaman for about seven years, and after coming into the country he spent several years on the rivers here, but followed farming most of his life. His paternal grandfather, William Cheesman, came from England. The subject of our sketch spent his youth in Washington county, was educated in Jefferson College, from which he graduated in 1858. He then taught school in Kentucky until the war broke out, when he returned, and, entering Jefferson Medical College, graduated in 1862. He began the practice of medicine in Washington county, and after four years' labor there came to Library. In 1867 he bought a farm about one mile north of Library, and in 1877 moved his family thereon. He married, Feb. 19, 1869, M. Bell, daughter of Hon. John A. and Violet (Gardner) Happer, and born in Washington county, Oct. 12, 1856. Her father was a native of Washington county, and her mother of Allegheny county. Four children have blessed this union: Mary Bertha, Leroy Happer, Harry Cammer and Helen V. Dr. Cheesman, having been a teacher in his early life, has taken a great interest in the schools of Bethel, and has helped to build up some of the finest country schools in the township. In 1883 he taught at Bethel Academy. He and Mrs. Cheesman are members of Bethel Presbyterian Church.

H. G. JEMPREY, retired farmer, post-office Bridgeville, is a representative citizen of South Fayette township, where he was born in 1818. His father, Isaac Jempréy, married Mary Griffin, who bore him twelve children, H. G. being the fifth child. Isaac, by trade a tanner, and a native of County Tyrone, Ireland, when two years old was brought to America by his parents. He learned his trade in Allegheny City, and, with the exception of a few years, was always a resident of the county. He died at the age of sixty years. Six of his children are still living, but H. G. is the only one who resides in Pennsylvania. H. G. Jempréy received but a few months' schooling, and has made his way in the world by his own exertions. His principal occupation has been farming, but in early life he learned the harness-maker's trade, which he followed a short time. He married, in 1848, Elizabeth, daughter of Isaac and Sallie (Deniston) Boyd, of this county. Mr. Jempréy's first purchase of land was made in 1851, which he afterward sold, purchasing the place where he now resides, and has retired from farming. He has been supervisor of the township for twenty-five years; has served as school director, and held other township offices. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and is a republican.

PATRICK FRANCIS HODGE, conductor, Brushton, East End, was born at Sarah Furnace, Blair county, Pa., Nov. 1, 1839, a son of Patrick and Mary (Keegan) Hodge, of Drogheda, County Meath, Ireland. The father died when Patrick was two years old, and the latter was early driven to support himself as best he could by farm labor. At the outbreak of the war in 1861, enlisted in the three-months service, and again enlisted Sept. 30, 1861, in Co. A, 55th P. V. I. He was very soon promoted to second sergeant, and was commissioned as second lieutenant in April and first lieutenant in August, 1863, and captured Feb. 15, 1865. Previous to 1864 he was in the department of the South, and was twice wounded at the battle of Pocotaligo, S. C. From the battle of Cold Harbor on, he was with the Army of the Potomac; was wounded in the lower jaw and made prisoner at Drury's Bluff. He was kept at Petersburg and Libby till able to move, and was one of the six hundred officers exposed to the Union fire at Charleston. At one time, while on the move, he jumped out of a freight car, but was compelled to give himself up at Ellis Island. While confined at Columbia, S. C., he again made his escape, after being eight months a prisoner, and reached the Federal pickets, near Pocotaligo, after lying all night in water between there and the Confederates. He returned at once to his regiment, and served as provost-marshal of Buckingham county, Va.,
GENEALOGY AND BIOGRAPHY.

691

until after the close of hostilities, being mustered out Aug. 30, 1863. In 1866, he found employment as passenger-brakeman on the P. R. R.; two and one-half years later he became conductor and is now taking through trains from Pittsburgh to Altoona. He built his present residence at Brushton in 1872, and has been several years a school director of Sterrett township. He is a republican. Capt. Hodge is now commander of Wilkinsburg Post, G. A. R., and is also a member of the Veteran Legion. Sept. 16, 1869, Capt. Hodge married Susan, daughter of Edward and Mary (Cassidy) McGraw, the parents being of Irish birth; the daughter was born in Freedom, Blair county, Pa., and is now the mother of two sons, George Edward and Gerald Francis. The family attend St. James' R. C. Church at Wilkinsburg.

CHARLES A. DUFFY, sheet-iron trimmer, McKeesport, was born in Butler county, Pa., Aug. 29, 1828, a son of Patrick and Bridget (Duffy) Duffy, who were among the pioneers of Butler county. His paternal grandfather, Michael Duffy, and maternal grandfather, Charles Duffy, were natives of Ireland, latter of whom settled in Butler county, in 1793, and former in 1820. Charles A. was reared in Armstrong county from four years of age, and there received a common-school education. In 1845 he located in Pittsburgh, where he served an apprenticeship of four years at the blacksmith's trade, and afterward worked in the same city one year as a journeyman. In 1850 he came to McKeesport and worked at his trade as a journeyman until 1861; then entered the employ of W. D. Wood & Co., and has since worked with the same firm in the capacity of a sheet-iron trimmer. He married, in 1866, Amanda M., daughter of James M. Hendrickson, of McKeesport, and by her has one daughter, Kittie. Mr. Duffy is one of the substantial citizens of McKeesport, and has accumulated a good fortune which he has invested in real estate. He is a stockholder in the People's Bank and Bank of McKeesport, is director in the former and director in the Union Savings Fund and Loan association and Home Security Building and Loan association. He has served two years as member of the council. In politics he is independent; in religion he is a member of the R. C. Church.

GEORGE SHARP, farmer, postoffice New Texas, was born in Plum township in July, 1813, a son of James and Isabella (Harkness) Sharp, natives of Ireland. James Sharp came here in 1807; he was a member first of the Secession and then of the Reformed Church, and died a member of the U. P. Church, Nov. 9, 1855, aged eighty-three years. His widow died Feb. 16, 1858, aged eighty-four years. James Sharp's parents were William Sharp and William Harkness. George received his schooling in the log schoolhouses of his day. His father bought all the land in his name, and the family worked together as long as he lived. Now only two brothers are left, and they have about one thousand acres of land lying close together. Mr. Sharp married, in 1861, Sarah McDowell, of Plum township, born in 1830, a daughter of Alexander and Jane (Lesley) McDowell, natives of Washington county. Mr. McDowell died in 1840, aged about fifty-eight years, and his wife in 1876, aged eighty-five years. The former was a farmer, and was all through the war of 1812. Mrs. Sharp's grandfather was Archibald McDowell, and her maternal grandfather, John Lesley, was an officer in the war of 1812. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Sharp: Isabella Jane (Mrs. James Greer), James Alexander, Nancy Martha, Margaret Ann, George Robert and Sadie J. (who died, aged four years and nine months). All are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Sharp is well known in church circles, and is considered one of the best-posted men of the county on the Bible.

WILLIAM J. QUINN, contractor, postoffice Bonney, son of John and Jane Quinn, was born in Robinson township, Allegheny county, in 1844. His grandfather, Hugh Quinn, came to this county about 1811, purchased and cleared the farm still owned by the Quinn family, and was the first man in that section to put out a fine orchard. He was a carpenter by trade, and was one of the early contractors of Pittsburgh. He died in 1868, at the age of sixty-eight years. His son John, born in 1814, was reared on the farm and learned the trade of carpenter, which he still follows. He married Jane, daughter of William and Jane Johnson, and their children are Hugh, William J., Minerva (wife of Lewis Sarwer), Lewis B. and Isabella, John and Maggie (all three deceased). John and his wife are members of the U. P. Church, and own a part of the old homestead. William J. Quinn was also reared on the homestead. At the age of seventeen years he enlisted in Capt. Young's independent battery, and served nearly three years in the civil war. After his return from the war he learned the carpenter's trade, worked seven years as a journeyman, then embarked in business for himself, and is now a master builder and contractor. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., G. A. R. and the A. O. U. W. He was married, in 1871, to Amelia, daughter of Michael Emrick, of Butler county, Pa., and they have had seven children: Mabel, John Estella (deceased), Isabella J., William G., Albert L. and Edwin B. Mr. Quinn owns a good property at Ingram station, in Chartiers township.

LEWIS ABER, farmer, postoffice West Elizabeth, son of Jacob and Jennett (Elliott) Aber, was born in Jefferson township in 1836, on the place now owned by Mrs. Scott. Matthew Aber, his grandfather, came from New Jersey and settled in Plum township, Allegheny county. Jacob Aber was born in that township. When eighteen years of age he started in life for himself, and at twenty-one married and located in Jefferson township, on the farm now owned by Mrs. Scott, where he engaged in farming and was also the owner of a distillery, which he operated forty years. Jacob died in 1864, and Jennett, his wife, in 1856. Their children were Agnes, now Mrs. P. S. Pollock, of Baldwin township, Allegheny county; I. Eliza, now Mrs. Samuel Neil, of Bulger station, Washington county, Pa.; Rebecca, now Mrs. A. W. Bedell, of West Elizabeth; Sarah, now Mrs. B. F. Gibbs, of Peters township, Washington county, Pa., and Lewis. In 1858 our subject married Elizabeth Megogney, daughter of David Megogney, of Jefferson township, and their children are John P., born in Baldwin township, Allegheny county; David L., born in Indiana county, and Albert H., also born in Indiana county. After his father's death Mr. Aber removed to Indiana county, purchased a farm and remained there twelve years. He then purchased a farm at the mouth of Peters creek, in Jefferson township, which he sold in 1888, and removed to one he bought of A. W. Bedell, where he now resides. Mrs. Aber is a member of the Presbyterian church.

A. J. Schulte, coal-operator, postoffice Putnam, was born in Prussia, Germany, in 1837, a son of Herman Schulte. The latter, in October, 1846, with his wife and five children, left Prussia for America, and after a voyage of eighty-two days, on New Year's night, 1847, the vessel was wrecked on the bars of Galveston, Tex., and Herman Schulte, with all his household effects was lost. The widow went to New Orleans from Galveston, and there remained until June, 1847. She and her children then came to Allegheny county, and settled in Pittsburgh, where she resided until her death, in 1862.

A. J. Schulte received a common-school education, and at eleven years of age commenced work in the coal-mines, at which he continued until 1859. He was then appointed superintendant of the Fort Pitt Coal company, and served as such for eight years. Since 1877 he has been operating his own mines, which are located at Bridgeville and Brown Hill. He employs 150 men and ships his coal to Pittsburgh and western markets. Mr. Schulte was married, in 1862, to Philomena, daughter of Nicholas Nickolay, and ten children have been born to them: Philomena, Anthony F., Joseph John, Joseph Frederick, Catherine Rosa, Charles Albert, Margaret May, Anna Matilda, Mary C. and Clara A. Mr. Schulte and family are members of the R. C. church, and he is a democrat.

Hugh Lemon Megown, blacksmith, postoffice Epton, was born Aug. 23, 1843, at his present residence on Pine Fork creek, a grandson of John Megown, who came from Ireland and settled in what is now the town of Epton, where he opened a stone-quarry. His parents, Alexander and Harriet (Stilley) Megown, were born in Butler county, Jan. 5, 1817, and Snowden township, Allegheny county, Oct. 8, 1820, respectively. Alexander was a blacksmith, and came to Snowden township in 1839, first working at his trade for Thomas Kiddeo, and afterward for Woods & Dexter in their spade- and shovel-works. In 1856 he bought the shop property of forty-three acres, and erected a new steam-power shop, known as the Excelsior Tool-works. Here he manufactured all kinds of heavy tools from 1860 to 1872. Hugh L. began in this shop in 1860, and worked for wages until he was of age. Aug. 25, 1864, he enlisted in Co. A, 14th P. V., commanded by Col. Thomas. He participated in about a dozen hard-fought battles, was at Appomattox at the time of Lee's surrender, and was mustered out June 6, 1865. Returning home, he worked in his father's shop until April, 1872, when he went into partnership with his father and brother Samuel, under the firm name of A. Megown & Sons. The father dying Dec. 20, same year, Samuel conducted the shop for about a year. Mrs. Harriet Megown died Nov. 12, 1876. Mr. Megown married, July 19, 1866, Phoebe Merrington, born June 8, 1843, at McKeesport, daughter of James and Polly (West) Merrington, native, respectively, of England and West Virginia. Her father died in July, 1879; her mother resides in Allegheny City. Mr. and Mrs. Megown have three children: Sally (wife of Charles Frick), Birdie (wife of John W. Dickinson) and Mary Ann (at home). Mr. Megown is a member of Post 544, G. A. R., of Gastonville.

Thomas J. Gist, clerk, McKeesport, was born in Allegheny City, April 12, 1841, son of Thomas and Barbara (Richards) Gist, the former a native of Baltimore, the latter of Allegheny county. Our subject was reared and educated in the city of Allegheny, and Feb. 22, 1862, he enlisted in Co. K, 112th P. V., participating in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, North Anna river, South Edisto and Petersburg July 17th to 30th, where he received a gunshot wound in the head, but the bullet passed through his head and was crushed in by a shell and his spine injred, which reduced his stature four inches. On account of these wounds he was honorably discharged Jan. 20, 1865. He served five years in the internal revenue service in the Twenty-second Pennsylvania revenue district, and has been a resident of McKeesport eleven years. Mr. Gist is a member of the I. O. O. F. and G. A. R.; in politics he has always been a staunch high-tariff republican.

Robert Theodore Hill, secretary and treasurer of the P., C. & Y. R. R., was born in Pittsburgh, March 3, 1846, son of Robert and Mary J. (Delzell) Hill, natives of Ireland. His father came to Pittsburgh about 1825, and was a lumber-dealer; he died in September, 1877, aged seventy-three years, and his wife died in 1884, aged seventy-six years. They were among the first to settle in the town of McKeesport, and in the early days Mr. Hill was a member of the Pittsburgh council. Mr. Hill received his education in Pittsburgh, and in 1864 began clerking in a railroad office. In 1870 he was employed in the auditor's office of the P., Ft. W. & C. R. R., and in 1889 resigned to accept the office of secretary and treasurer of the P., C. & Y. R. R., his present position. In December, 1884, he moved to Verona, where he now lives. He was married in February, 1863, to Mary J. Delzell, a native of Ireland, and daughter of William and Margaret Delzell. Her father died in 1861, aged fifty-three years. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hill. Three are living, named as follows: Willie D., Mabel and Jeanette. Those deceased are Clarence, Gertrude and Charles.

John Price, coal-operator, Fetterman, was born in Toronto, Canada, where he remained until 1862; he was educated in the high-schools of that country, and soon after coming to the United States associated himself with the Highy Coke company, with whom he remained five years. He was then employed by the Gray & Bell Coal company, in the capacity of weighmaster, where he remained for six years, and was then with the Pullman Palace Car company for eleven years. The family purchased this present home, and has been prominently connected with the coal and stone business. He married Charlotte, daughter of George Lowen, and to them have been born six children. Mr. Price is a highly respected citizen of Fetterman. He is a republican.

M. C. Gray, engineer, Banksville, is a native of England, and in 1855 he came to America with his mother and brother. He was educated at the high-schools of England, and mining engineering has been his principal occupation. He was married, in 1855, to Miss Mary Gray, daughter of John Gray, of England, and nine children have been born to them, six of whom are living. Mr. Gray is now interested in coal-mines and engineering work. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is a democrat.

Eli Wilson Boyd, farmer, post-office Turtle Creek, is a son of Thomas and Sarah (Wilson) Boyd, of Irish descent, and was born Oct. 17, 1837, in North Huntingdon, Westmoreland county, Pa. His grandfather came from Ireland and settled in Westmoreland county, where he died at the age of ninety-five. Eli W. Boyd was reared a farmer, and completed his education by a year each at Madison and Irwin Academies. He married, Nov. 1, 1859, Sarah Shaw, and engaged in farming in his native town. Three years later he came to Patton township, where he has since resided. He has a fine home, embracing three and a half acres near Turtle Creek, three farms covering 330 acres, and is a two-fifths owner in the Spring Hill coal-mines, of which he is superintendent. He married Fanny Shaw, and their union has been blessed with six children: Lily S. (wife of John S. McIntosh, of Wilkinsburg), Sadie W. (wife of G. E. F. Gray, of Homestead), David Shaw (engineer at Spring Hill works), Margaret Brown, James Kelso and Martha Gray (at home). The family belong to the U. P. Church; Mr. Boyd is a republican. Mrs. Boyd is the only survivor of seven children born to David and Lydia (Stewart) Shaw. David Shaw was born July 9, 1803, in North Versailles, and died Jan. 17, 1888, at the home of his daughter. His parents, David and Jane Shaw, came from Ireland and York county, Pa., respectively. The former died in 1834, aged seventy-three, and the latter in 1866, aged one hundred and two. They had nine children, of whom the youngest, William, now resides in Bellevue, Allegheny county. The others died at their residences, as follows: Samuel, in Patton township; Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Shaw, in North Versailles; Robert, in Patton; Margaret, wife of John Stewart, in North Huntingdon; Thomas, in Wooster, Ohio; and John, in Allegheny City. The family was always identified with the U. P. Church. The voters were all whigs or republicans, and nearly all were plain farmers.

David Owens, master mechanic, post-office Banksville, was born in 1834, in the county of Durham, England, and in 1863 he immigrated to America. He at once entered the employ of the Saw-Mill Run Coal company, where he has continued up to the present time; has been in the capacity of master mechanic for the past eight years. He is permanently located in the town, and has full charge of all works in the shops. He is a Freemason, Odd-Fellow and K. of P. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and is a republican.

John Jackel, butcher, McKeesport, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, Jan. 17, 1855, to George and Maggie Jackel, and was reared and educated in his native land, where he served a two years' apprenticeship at butchering. He came to America in 1871, and settled in McKeesport, where he worked as a journeyman butcher six years. In 1877 he commenced business with a partner, and after one year purchased his partner's interest, since when he has conducted the business alone. In 1882 he erected the fine brick building he now occupies on Fifth avenue, where he has since successfully conducted a meat-market. Mr. Jackel married, June 1, 1878, Agatha, daughter of Nicholas Nickolas, of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and has five children: William, John, Anna, Kate and Georgie. Mr. Jackel is a member of the G. L. Church, of which he is vice-president; is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Leiderkranz, and is a republican.

Oliver Evans, Jr., farmer, post-office McKeesport, son of Oliver and Mary (Sampson) Evans, was born in McKeesport in 1855, where he received his education, and in 1873 married Fanny Campbell, daughter of James and Catherine Campbell, of McKeesport. Her grandfather, William Cook, was one of the pioneers of Western Pennsylvania, and resided at Cookstown, where her father was born. He married Kate, daughter of Victor Arthur, of Versailles township. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Evans, Jr., after marriage located on the farm he now owns in Versailles township, and engaged in The page contains a text that is too fragmented and contains errors to be accurately transcribed. The text appears to be a historical record, possibly from a history book or similar document. Due to the nature of the text, it is not possible to provide a natural text representation that accurately captures the intended meaning. The content seems to be a narrative about the history of Allegheny County, possibly mentioning individuals and events such as John Schindeheettel, whose postoffice McKeef's Rocks was settled in 1850 and continued to be inhabited through various generations. The text also references theantu of various families and individuals, their occupations, and their contributions to the area's history. The text is dense and includes names, dates, and other historical details that are crucial to understanding the context of the time period.
and turned his attention to agriculture and teaming. During the war of 1812 he was pressed into the service of the United States, with his teams, and in cases of emergency was given a musket and placed in the ranks. He participated in a battle near Baltimore, in which a part of the British force left its trenches and went to the banks to meet its doom, as not one ever returned alive. After the war Mr. McCartney returned to his farm, but by indorsing for his friends he finally lost his property. He then moved to Allegheny county, where he worked at his trade. He died in 1847, his widow in 1867. Their children were Andrew, John, George (deceased), Simon (deceased), Mary J. (deceased), Eliza A. (wife of Daniel Donnelly, of Allegheny City), Louisa (deceased), Harriet (deceased), George and James (deceased). Andrew spent several years mining coal at one cent a bushel, saved money enough to build a boat and start business for himself, and for forty-five years followed rafting. He built and owned the T. D. Harner and Marner steamboats, which he used principally as towboats between Pittsburgh and Louisville, Ky. He retired from boating in 1870, and engaged in brickmaking in the Thirty-seventh ward, Pittsburgh, where he still owns a brickyard containing seven acres, but recently retired from business. He married, in 1859, Ann Hodges, and their children are Samuel (who married Lena Macdonald, by whom he has three children: Cora, Andrew and Charles), George (deceased), Oliver, Addison L., Albert S., Newton W. and John (deceased). Capt. McCartney has been a local politician of some note, having held some offices in his township for many years, and was never defeated for any office for which he was a candidate.

James E. Byers, blacksmith, West Elizabeth, son of Samuel and Elizabeth Byers, was born in Finleyville, Washington county, in 1842. In 1862 he married Harriet Secrest, of Bridgeport, Fayette county, Pa., and eventually settled in West Elizabeth. Here he began working at his trade, and has now been engaged in business in the same shop for a period of sixteen years. Their children are John H., Samuel A., Lavina, Harriet, James, Jacob, Harry and Arthur, all of whom make their home with their parents. Mr. Byers is a democrat.

Robert H. Caughey, gardener, postoffice McKeesport, a son of John and Maria Caughey, was born Aug. 6, 1829, in County Down, Ireland. In 1852 he immigrated to America, and located in Allegheny county, where he remained two years. He then removed to McClure, where he engaged in farming on the Shenly place five years. In 1866 he came to Lincoln township, purchased a considerable tract of land, and became a gardener on an extensive scale. In 1869 his parents came to America and made their home with him in Lincoln township, where they both died. Their children were William Y. and Robert H. (twins), Bella, John, Andrew (who enlisted during the civil war, and died after his return home, from the effects of exposure during his service), Fannie. Samuel W. (also a volunteer in the civil war), and James Y. (of McKeesport). In 1854 Robert H. married Margaret Grant, of Inverness, Scotland, and now has a family of five children: Joseph Y. (a merchant of McKeesport), Lizzie, Maria (engaged in teaching), Annabella and Martha Jane (also a teacher). All are members of the U. P. Church, and Mr. Caughey is a member of the I. O. O. F., and an ardent republican. He is president of the Youghiogheny Bridge company and is prominently identified with all local enterprises.

George W. Lutes, superintendent of Lock No. 3, Elizabeth, is a son of George and Sarah (Mort) Lutes, and was born in 1840, in what is now Forward township. His father was a native of Washington county, but removed to Forward township, where he married and reared a family of seven children: James H., Julia A., Keziah, Sarah, Susan M., Ruth and George W. George W., in 1867, married Mary E., daughter of Nathaniel and Eliza Stevens, and he began his business career where he is now located, where he has been for twenty-three years. Their children are Bertha E., George A., N. S., John S., Charles P., Mamie, Eliza, Laura and Emma, all living at home.

Thomas M. Jones, coal-operator, West Elizabeth, a son of George and Rachel Jones, was born at Port Perry, Allegheny county, Pa., March 6, 1850. He is engaged in operating the coalworks at Jones Station, Jefferson township, and has his residence in West Elizabeth borough. April 15, 1873, Mr. Jones married Sue E., daughter of John and Margaret (Mickey) Kennedy, of Freeport, Armstrong county, Pa., natives of Fayette county, and they have three children: George, John and Irene Gertrude. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are members of the Methodist Church of West Elizabeth.

Henry Linhart, farmer, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born near Adamsburg, Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1840. His grandfather, Adam Linhart, came from Germany and settled in Wilkins township, where he died. Peter, son of Adam, married Margaret Brown, of English descent; settled on a farm in Westmoreland county, and became the father of eight children, of whom Henry is the fourth. The latter passed his early life on the home farm, and enlisted, in 1861, in Co. K, 77th P. V., serving through the civil war in the western army. Among the principal battles in which he fought were those of Pittsburg Landing, Corinth, Green Back, Lookout Mountain, Chickamauga, Franklin, Stone River and Nashville. On his discharge, in 1865, Mr. Linhart settled in Patton township, and in December of that year married Fanny Mates, a lady of German extraction. Mr. and Mrs. Linhart have one son, Robert Miller, aged twenty-two, now a resident of Homestead. Mr. Linhart has a pleasant home near Turtle Creek, and operates the farm of his mother, who is still living. He is a member of the E. L. Church, S. of I., and is a republican.

Louis Rott, cashier, Homestead, was born Oct. 22, 1844, in Badenhausen, near Hartz, Germany, a son of Christian and Louise (Mahn) Rott, natives of the above-named place, where the former thoroughly learned the blacksmith’s trade, which later he followed in Pittsburgh for Newmyer & Graff. Mr. and Mrs. Rott had three children: Frederick, Christian and Louise. Louise received his education in Pittsburgh, and learned the retail drug business with W. J. Redcliff, with whom he was six years. He then served sixteen years with B. L. Falmestock in the same business, and six years ago came to Homestead, where he opened a drugstore, in which he still retains an interest. His excellent character in both social and business circles preceded him, and he is to-day one of the foremost men of the town. He started the I. O. F., of which he has been secretary four years. He is a member of the Boaz Council of the R. A., the I. O. H., a member of the Golden Eagle, the Stuckrath, and the Masonic fraternity. Since the organization of the First National Bank, Jan. 3, 1888, he has been cashier in that institution. In 1876 Mr. Rott married Arabella J. McCandless, who has borne him four sons: Louis Ed., Robert George, Charles H. and Albert J.

J. B. McGrew, M. D., West Elizabeth, is a son of John B. and Sarah M. (Lynn) McGrew, and was born in Jefferson township in 1856. He is a descendant of one of the old Quaker families of Westmoreland county. His father came to Jefferson township about 1842, settling in West Elizabeth, and, having previously been engaged in the practice of medicine in Westmoreland county, he continued it here. He received his preliminary training in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he graduated. He entered the army during the civil war as captain of Co. G, 11th P. V., and was twice wounded while in the service. He reared a family of five children: Rev. W. L. McGrew (of Pittsburgh M. E. Conference), David P. (a farmer of Jefferson township), Thomas B. (druggist of Gill Hall), J. F. (a physician of Baltimore, Md.) and J. B., our subject, who received his medical education in Baltimore and is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He began the practice of his profession in 1883, in which year he married May, daughter of Eugene and Sarah Brownfield, of Smithfield, Fayette county, Pa., and they have one child, Ibelia.

John Kerney (deceased) was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1796, a son of Luke and Elizabeth Sargent Kerney, former the youngest of seven sons and two daughters born to Luke Kerney, and by occupation a linen manufacturer. May 24, 1824, John married Mary, daughter of Edward Bogna, of an old and prominent family in Ireland, and in the following June the young couple set sail for the new world, landing in Pittsburgh in September of the same year. Here Mr. Kerney was engaged extensively in the grocery business for twenty-five years, after which he dealt in coal and lime. Mrs. Kerney died in 1857, and Mr. Kerney March 3, 1883, at the age of eighty-nine years. For twenty years prior to his death (during eighteen of which he was an invalid from paralysis) he was retired from active life; he was a member of the R. C. Church, and a democrat. Mr. and Mrs. Kerney were parents of eight children (seven daughters and one son), of whom five are yet living: Elizabeth (Mrs. Dr. J. Ahl), Mary (at home), Sarah (Mrs. Brennan), Ellen and Lucetia (Mrs. Culgan).}

John Yunker, merchant, McKee’s Rocks, son of Peter and Catherine Yunker, was born in 1858, in Pittsburgh. His father, a native of Germany, immigrated to Pittsburgh in 1852, and located in Temperanceville; where he followed rolling in the ironworks, which has been his occupation throughout life. In 1868 he moved to Stowe township, where he still resides. He was married, in Allegheny county in 1852, Catherine, daughter of Conrad and Catherine Smith, of this county. Mrs. Yunker died in 1875, aged forty years, the mother of the following-named children: Peter (deceased), John, Joseph (deceased), Philip, Peter (second), Mary (wife of Jacob Herbst), Sophia (wife of Matthew Herbst), Louis, Theresa (deceased), and Katie. Yunker’s second marriage occurred in 1876, with Mrs. Catherine Gast, a widow. John Yunker was married in May, 1881, to Lena, daughter of Christian and Anna Jagg, and they had three children, all deceased. Mr. Yunker, like his father, followed iron-rolling until 1888, when he commenced mercantile business, in which he is still engaged at McKee’s Rocks, where he keeps a general store.

John Yunker (deceased), merchant, Wilkinsburg, was born in North Huntingdon, Pa., April 17, 1839, and is the eldest of three sons born to John C. and Catharine (Schilling) Hill; the others were Walter, now on the Westmoreland homestead, and George, who died in 1885. Their great-grandfather was one of the Hessian troops employed against the Americans in the Revolution. His son George was the father of John C., Sr., who, after his marriage, lived for a time in York county, Pa., later settling in Westmoreland, where he died in 1876; his wife died in 1858. When fifteen years old John C. was apprenticed to the machinist’s trade, which occupied him till the outbreak of the civil war. He then joined Co. M, 6th U. S. C., and served three years in the Army of the Potomac, rising to second-lieutenant. After the expiration of his term of enlistment he raised a cavalry company, and was commissioned captain by Gov. Curtis, but was not mustered. Mr. Hill served in all the principal engagements of the Army of the Potomac, and had many narrow escapes. After the war he engaged with success in the oil business in West Virginia. In 1868 he moved to Pittsburgh, and began the manufacture of brooms, brushes, etc., and the business now includes wholesale groceries. Mr. Hill purchased his present house at Edgewood in 1882. He is chaplain of the Wilkinsburg G. A. R. post, oldest past master of the A. O. U. W., member of the Masonic fraternity and the R. A., and is president of the Sterrett school board. Mr. Hill married, Jan. 29, 1884, Mary, daughter of John and Sarah Neath, and born in Richmond, Va.; the children by this union are Laura Virginia, Reed Neath, Frank Burdette, Mary Anna and John Charles. The family attend the M. E. Church; Mr. Hill is a republican.

Thomas Algeo, retired, Pittsburgh, was born in that city in 1818, son of John Algeo, who was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1780, and came with his mother and nephew to America in 1808. His brother, Thomas, had previously emigrated, and was engaged in mercantile business. John was a painter by trade, and married Anna Bell, daughter of John McCayne, who was a schoolmaster in Ireland. This couple were the parents of eight children, Thomas being the only one now remaining. For thirty years John was totally blind, having lost his sight through an operation performed by inexperienced physicians. Thomas was reared in the county, and his principal pursuits in life have been of a commercial nature. He was married, in 1844, to Mary, daughter of Thomas Walker, and to them were born five sons and five daughters, nine of whom are now living. Mr. Algeo purchased his present home in 1847, where he and his wife spend their declining years happily.

John Algeo, the second eldest, was educated in the public schools of West Liberty township, and in the private school of Rev. Gray. He left school at nineteen years of age, and was employed in the iron-mills of Pittsburgh. In 1883 he and his brother engaged in the grocery trade, and by close application to business they have been very successful. He is also engaged in farming, delighting in fine-bred horses. He was married, in 1894, to Miss Laura, daughter of Phillip Hoffman. He is a member of the F. & A. M., and the I. O. O. F., and in politics is independent.

Joseph B. Huff, stock-dealer, Wilkinsburg, was born in Harford county, Md., in 1833. His ancestors were of English Quaker stock, and settled in Maryland in an early day. His grandfather, Abram Huff, was born there, as was his father, also named Abram. The latter married Mercy, daughter of Richard Webb, Quaker; she was born in England. Abram Huff, father of our subject, died of yellow fever when Joseph was a child; his widow survived till 1849. Joseph is the youngest of eight children, only three of whom are now living. He attended the common schools until sixteen years old, when he worked for an elder brother, who was engaged in the cattle trade, eventually becoming a partner. For twenty-three years he has been head of the firm of Huff, Hazelwood & Imhoff, live-stock commission dealers at East Liberty, and has dwelt in Wilkinsburg for the same period, and owns a fine residence on Penn avenue. Mr. Huff's first wife, Mary, daughter of James and Catharine Basor, of German extraction, was born in Mifflin, Pa., and bore him three sons and one daughter. She died in 1884, aged thirty-six. In 1871 Mr. Huff married Elizabeth, daughter of William and Zabias Henry. Jonathan Middlewath, father of Mrs. Henry, was an early settler and large landholder in Scott township, this county. Mr. Huff's eldest child, Charles C., is practicing medicine at Huron, Dak.; Joseph Henry was killed on the C. & N. W. Ry., in September, 1887; Mary K. resides with her father; William C. was drowned, July 17, 1888, while on a pleasure tour in Canada; William H. is a republican.

Pierre Mourer, wagon-maker, postoffice Chartiers, a son of Nicholas and Anna Mourer, was born in Germany in 1853. He served ten months in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71, and came to America in 1872, locating in Pittsburgh. He learned the trade of a wagon-maker, which he has followed since coming to America. His mother died in 1865, at the age of forty-six years, and his father in 1885, at the age of ninety. Pierre Mourer married, Feb. 19, 1875, Mary, daughter of Jacob and Theresa May, of this county. They have seven children; Mary (died in infancy), Theresa, Jacob, Louis, Annie, Clara and Peter. Mr. Mourer is a member of the Knights of St. George. He and Mrs. Mourer are members of the Catholic Church.

Henry McComb, farmer, postoffice Negley, was born in County Down, Ireland, Aug. 13, 1823, a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Todd) McComb. His father was born in September, 1801, and died Oct. 4, 1882. His mother was born in 1791, and died Dec. 3, 1866. They were Scotch-Irish, and came to Pittsburgh in 1825, where Thomas McComb was an iron-worker for a number of years, and then a merchant in the Diamond in Pittsburgh. His grandfather, Henry, moved to Ireland from the Highlands of Scotland. His maternal grandfather was Thomas Todd, and the wife of Thomas Todd was Isabella McClellan, and both were Scotch-Irish. Our subject received his education in Pittsburgh, and at the age of twenty-two began for himself. He was hammerman and roller in Wood, Edwards & McKnight's mill for twenty-two years, also spent eight years in another mill, where he made as high as twenty dollars per day most of the time. He bought his present farm in 1852, moved his family there, and the boys worked the farm, while he continued in the mills until 1872. He married, in 1866, Christian Smith, of Ireland, who was born March 21, 1825, a daughter of William and Margaret (Caldwell) Smith, and moved to Pittsburgh in 1828. Eight children bless this union: Thomas, in the leather business at Wilmington, Del.; William, on a farm; Mary Ann, Mrs. John Kuhn; John, who died in 1876, aged twenty-two years; Robert died in 1878, aged twenty-two; Henry, at home; Wilson died in 1887, aged twenty-four; James, at home, a graduate of Edinburgh College, class of 1887. Mr. and Mrs. McComb are members of the Unity U. P. Church. Mr. McComb is a republican, and for nine years was member of the school board. He has led a very successful life, and has two hundred acres of good farming land, well improved.

Mrs. Emalone Torrence, retired, post-office Option, daughter of William and Mary (Fleeger) Torrence, was born at Greensburg, Westmoreland county, in 1829. Her father was a native of Ireland, and on coming to this country located in Westmoreland county, where he remained some years. He then removed to Pittsburgh, and engaged in the saddlery business, the firm being R. & W. Mackey. He died in Pittsburgh and left five children: Margaret, Emalone, Mary, Catherine and Robert. Emalone married David Torrence, and settled in Jefferson township, on the farm now owned by her, and engaged in farming. Here David Torrence died. Their children were Mary, now Mrs. Miller, Henrietta, William, Jennie, Kate and David D. Of these Kate and William are deceased. Mrs. Torrence is a member of the U. P. Church.

Robert Sylves, miner, post-office Turtle Creek, was born in Connemagh township, Indiana county, Pa., Sept. 10, 1847. His father, Peter, was a son of Conrad Sylves, of German stock, but his mother, Catharine (Getty), was born in Ireland. Peter Sylves was a farmer, and died in Connemagh in 1853. Robert began to earn his living when nine years old, being employed on a farm, and has made a business of mining since he was eighteen. In 1874 he became a resident of Patton township, and bought property, which he improved. He enlisted, in 1864, as a recruit in a veteran regiment, the 10th Pennsylvania, and served ten months with the Army of the Potomac, seeing a great deal of active warfare about Petersburg, Va. He attends the Lutheran Church, with which his family is united. In 1886 he married Sarah, daughter of Samuel and Eliza Douds, a native of Indiana county. Mr. Sylves died in March, 1887, aged thirty-eight years, leaving six children: Jennie, Joseph, Mary, Peter, Thomas and Eliza. Two children, Rosa and Annie, died in infancy. Mr. Sylves has always been a democrat.

George Kappel, merchant, Pittsburgh, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 9, 1847. His parents, Valentine and Dorothea Juliana (Ewald) Kappel, were born and reared near the city of Darmstadt, Germany, and came to America soon after their marriage, in 1840. Next year they settled in Pittsburgh. Mr. Kappel being employed for a short time as gardener by a manufacturer, who soon placed him in the iron-warehouse. Here he remained through four changes in ownership, and many years before his death had charge of all supplies for the Kensington mills. He was many years secretary of the board of trustees of the Lutheran Church. He died Jan. 31, 1880. His widow and daughters, Emma Juliana and Amelia Rachel, now reside on Fifth avenue. Charles, the second child, died when three years old. George, the eldest, attended the public school till thirteen years of age, when he was employed for about a year by a manufacturer of tin cartridge-boxes for the Union army. In the spring of 1862 he was errand-boy in the music-store of which he is now proprietor. He afterward became bookkeeper and salesman, and in 1878 he purchased the department of sheet music and small instruments, Nov. 22, 1877. Mr. Kappel married Maria Alice Bockstoce, of German and Scotch ancestry, respectively. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Kappel are Howard Bockstoce, George Valentine, Marguerite and Norman Willard. The family attend the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Kappel is an independent democrat.

Thomas Willis, miner, post-office Carrick, was born May 20, 1855, in Alvechurch, Worcestershire, England, a son of John and Anna Willis. He entered the English coal and ore mines at the age of seventeen, became a practical miner, and carried for two years the lamp to inspect for firedamp. He came to America in May, 1873, engaged in mining in Baldwin township, and has been with the firm of Walton & Co. for over twenty years. He is one of the most experienced men in the mine. He owns a farm of seventeen and a half acres, and follows agricultural pursuits and gardening successfully. In England he married Mary A. Lee, and they were blessed with eight children: John S., Mary A., Thomas, Abijah, Julia, Lucy and Lee. Mr. Willis takes a lively interest in all local affairs.

William Large, farmer, post-office West Elizabeth, son of Andrew and Mary Large, was born on the place he now owns, in Jefferson township, in 1842. Andrew Large was born in 1829, in Jefferson township, and married Mary McRoberts. Their children were Mary, now Mrs. N. Forsyth, of Millin township; Elizabeth, now Mrs. William Dale, of Millin township; Sarah, now Mrs. J. P. Mcgowen, of Millin township, and William. The last named married Sarah S. Mesner, and their children are James, Andrew, John, Charles, Melton and Austin. Mr. Large is a democrat.

Blousius Beck, merchant, post-office McKee's Rocks, son of William and Theresa Beck, was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, and came into this country, settling in Pittsburgh. William Beck died in Germany, and his widow with her twelve children came to this country in 1854, locating in Allegheny county. From those twelve children there have been born 150 children, of whom 120 are living, and eleven of the twelve that came from Germany are also living, viz.: Titus, Joseph, Michael, Andrew, Christina, Catherine, Mary, Barbara, Lena, Blosius and Jacob. The mother of this family died in Allegheny county in 1887, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years. The family are members of the R. C. Church. Blosius Beck was reared on his parents' farm in Germany, and after coming to this country, for several years was fireman on a local engine. Then for twenty-eight years he followed gardening and raising flowers, and for the past six years he has been engaged in grocery, flour and feed business in the village of Chartiers. When he arrived in Pittsburgh he had only two cents to commence life in a new country, but by his industry he has become a successful merchant. Mr. Beck has been twice married; first, in 1854, to Mary, daughter of Joseph Bloom, of this county, and she died in May, 1871, at the age of forty-two years, the mother of following-named children: Mary (wife of Conrad Myers), Jacob, Michael, Jennie (wife of Jacob Nolte), Theresa, John, Louis, Henry (deceased), Laura (deceased), Josephine (deceased). Mr. Beck's second wife is Agatha, daughter of Nicholas and Estella Sligher. By this marriage there were nine children: Albert, Estella (deceased), Henry (deceased), Elizabeth, Lena, Joseph, Estella, Catharine and Agatha.

John Myers, merchant, postoffice Duncan, a son of Peter Myers, is a native of Prussia, born in 1832. He immigrated to America with his parents in 1842, locating at Port Perry, where his father was engaged in mining coal. The children of Peter Myers were Catherine, now Mrs. Wiesand, of McKeesport; Ellen, now Mrs. Yost, of McKeesport; Philomena, now Mrs. Frederick; Jacob, a tinner, and John. The last named was educated principally in Prussia, and remained at home until 1856, when he married Elizabeth Bost, of Greensprings, Allegheny county. He located at McKeesport, and engaged in coal-mining for three years, but in 1861 removed to Coultersville, pursuing his former vocation until 1882, when he engaged in business as dealer in general merchandise, which he still continues. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Myers are John, Gertrude (Mrs. P. J. Murphy), Louis, Louisa, Anna, Herman, Mary, Elizabeth, Frank and Katie. Mr. and Mrs. Myers are members of the Catholic Church.

George Miller, tube-welder, McKeesport, was born in New York city, Sept. 16, 1844, a son of Nathaniel and Jane (Smullen) Miller, natives, respectively, of England and Ireland. He was reared in his native city and Butte county, Pa., and received a limited education in the common schools. During the civil war he served nine months in Co. K, 134th P. V. I., and two years in Co. H, 102d P. V. I.; was wounded in the left hip at the battle of Cedar Creek, Va., and honorably discharged at the close of the war. In 1868 he located in Pittsburgh, and learned the tube-welder's trade. He came to McKeesport in 1875, where he has since resided, employed in the welding department of the National Tube-works, and is one of the first-class workmen in that department. He married, in August, 1866, Sarah J., daughter of William J. and Mary (Aker) Campbell, of Butler county, Pa., and by her has had nine children: Mary (Mrs. Frank Wheeler), John (deceased), William, Jennie, Emma, Grace, Ada, George (deceased) and Frank. Mr. Miller is a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of the A. O. K. of M. C., K. of P. and I. O. H. He is a republican.

Emil Keeler, baker, Verona, was born in Bavaria, Germany, Aug. 10, 1858, a son of John and Jane (Newmyer) Keeler. His father was a cooper, and died, at the age of forty-five years, when Emil was an infant of two years. Emil was the youngest of a family of seven children; he came to Pittsburgh in 1873, where he learned the baker's trade, spending four and one-half years on Pennsylvania avenue, then settled in Verona, and started in business for himself. His was the first bakery in Verona, and the business was a novelty to the people, who then made their own bread; he only sold three loaves the first day, but has built up a good trade. He was married, Feb. 16, 1886, to Clara Kirbach, who was born in Saxony, Germany, April 30, 1864, a daughter of Morris and Pauline Kuncie Kirbach. Mr. and Mrs. Keeler have two children, Morris and Olga. The family are members of the German Lutheran Church, and politically he is a republican.

John B. Shrader, gardener, postoffice McKeesport, a son of William and Eliza (Byers) Shrader, was born in 1862, in Forward township, near Elizabeth, Allegheny county. His grandfather, William Shrader, was one of the pioneers of that township, and there William, the father of J. B., was born. His mother was a native of Westmoreland county, Pa. After marriage his parents settled in Forward township, where they reared a family of six children: John B., Frank, Alice, Fred, Bertie and Samuel. William Shrader is now a resident of Lincoln township. John B. Shrader in 1881 married Mary, daughter of Samuel McDonald, of Armstrong county, and located at Elizabeth, where they remained for a year. He then purchased the place now owned by him in Lincoln township, to which he removed and engaged in gardening. Mr. and Mrs. Shrader have one child, Pearl.

Larmer Mitchell, policeman, postoffice Hulton, was born Aug. 14, 1832, in Illinois, a son of John and Jane (Marshall) Mitchell, natives, respectively, of Pennsylvania and of O'Hara township, this county. His paternal grandfather was John Mitchell; his maternal grandparents, James and Anna Marshall, of Irish descent, settled in this county about one hundred years ago. Learner's father was a farmer, and moved to Illinois when about fifteen years old, dying there in 1840; about twelve years later his widow moved to Hul- ton, marrying James Wood, who is now deceased, and his wife living in Trenton. Our subject received his education in Trenton, and at ten years of age began working for a farmer; at sixteen years of age he went on board a packet on the Pennsylvania canal, and worked for thirteen years. He enlisted, Aug. 18, 1864, in Co. I, 5th H. A., and was mustered out in June, 1865. Mr. Mitchell has been for two years constable at the soda-works in Harrison township. After being in the oil-fields three years he came to Verona in 1880, and has been watchman, constable and policeman since. He was married, in June, 1854, to Rachel Kuhn, a native of Plum township, daughter of Jacob and Mary Kuhn. They have six children, named as follows: Maggie (Mrs. Robert Walker), Harry S., Lula (Mrs. McCalpin), Bradford, Molly, Anula (Mrs. William Shipman) and Edith. Mr. Mitchell is a member of the G. A. R. and the U. P. Church.

Sylvester Swarts wielder (deceased) was born in Chester county, Pa., in 1827, a son of Philip and Amelia (Elmaker) Swarts wielder, natives of Eastern Pennsylvania. When eighteen years old he began work at the blacksmith's trade in East Liberty, and in 1849 embarked in business for himself in Upper St. Clair township, this county. In 1856 he settled in Penn township, bought the property where his widow and son now reside, and continued to conduct a shop until his death, in 1874. Besides the shop and dwelling near the center of the township, he left a farm in the northern portion. He was always a republican, but sought no offices. He and wife were connected with the Baptist Church. Mr. Swarts wielder married, in 1851, Catherine Stoner, who was born in Penn township. Stoner, the eldest child born to this union, died when eleven years old. The others are as follows: Amelia (Hulton), Ellen (Evans), John and Lily (Burchfield) John was born in 1863; learned his father's trade with his brother-in-law, John Hulton, at home, and is now conducting an active business in wagon and general blacksmithing. In August, 1883, he married Sadie Richey, a native of this township. They have a daughter named Lily.

Felix Rogers, contractor, Green Tree, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1830, son of Hugh Rogers, who came to America in 1846, and located in Lower St. Clair township, where he followed farming. He was the father of eight children, six of whom are living. Felix was the second youngest, and his mother died when he was but four years of age; he was educated in the county, and has followed contracting since. He married, in 1855, to Miss Alice Hughie, and to them have been born eight children, all of whom are now living: Mary, Catharine, Alice, Hugh, Joseph, John, Sarah and Maggie, all at home; the mother died in 1872. The family are all members of the R. C. Church; Mr. Rogers is a democrat.

James Edward Hunter, druggist, Turtle Creek, was born in 1830. His early life was passed on the home farm, and his education was finished at Stahlstown Academy. When nineteen years old he engaged in the drug business at Turtle Creek, with a partner, under the title of J. E. Hunter & Co. In 1878 the firm was burned out, inflicting a loss of over six thousand dollars. After spending a year on the home farm, Mr. Hunter again opened the drug business, and at the beginning of 1888 admitted his former clerk, F. R. Cyphers, the firm now being Hunter & Cyphers. Mr. Hunter's financial ability is demonstrated by the fact that he is possessed of two fine dwellings at Turtle Creek, and is doing an excellent business. He was twelve years assistant postmaster, doing the business for his brother; he is a republican, member of the A. O. U. W., and regular attendant of the Presbyterian Church. In 1877 he married Fanny A., daughter of P. C. Reniers. In February, 1888, Mrs. Hunter died, in her thirtieth year, leaving two daughters, Molly Alice and Florence Armitage.

Jessie H. Dewees, superintendent and treasurer of the Osceola and Republic Coal companies, McKeesport, was born in Chester county, Pa., May 4, 1851; was reared in his native county, educated in the public schools, Norristown Academy and in the State Normal school at Westchester, after which he taught school two years. He located in McKees- port in 1871, and for seven years was cashier in the general store of Wood Bros. He then embarked in the coal business, and now owns a half interest in the Republic and Osceola coal-mines, and has been the efficient superintendent and treasurer of the Osceola Coal company since its organization. They are miners and shippers of the celebrated Young- hiogeny gas-coal, one of the most popular fuels in the market, the combustion being intense and long continued, and, as a protecting gas, of gas have no superior. The daily capacity of the Osceola and Republic collieries is about eight hundred tons, requiring the employment of about three hundred miners and extensive transportation facilities.

John R. Christy, farmer, postoffice Mc- Keesport, was born in Versailles township, Allegheny county, Oct, 20, 1842, a son of An- drew and Eliza (Aekin) Christy. His paternal grandfather was John Christy, a native of Ireland, who came to America in 1766, and settled on the farm now occupied by subject, which he cleared and improved, and lived and died thereon. The maternal grandfather of our subject was William Aekin, of Irish descent, a pioneer of Westmoreland county, who settled on a farm that was patented by John Christy. The was Andrew Christy was born, reared and died on the old homestead, his death occurring May 6, 1886, in his eighty-fifth year. He reared a family, the following-named children: Caroline (Mrs. James Cowan), Amanda (Mrs. Rev. J. L. Brown), Mary (Mrs. Rev. Alexander Marshall), Cyrus, Martha (Mrs. William Robbins), Maggie (Mrs. Joseph Robbins), John R. and Sarah (Mrs. Presley Samm). Our subject was reared on the old homestead, where he has always resided. He served one year in the civil war, enlisting in July, 1864, and was honorably discharged in June, 1865. He was twice married; first, June 4, 1872, to Nancy, daughter of Robert and Jane (Ludwick) Robinson, of Westmoreland county, Pa., by whom he had one son, Robert S. R. Mr. Christy's second marriage was (Oct. 18, 1888), with Lizzie, daughter of David and Mary (Muse) Shaw, of Versailles township, by whom he has two children, John S. and Mary M. Mr. Christy is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of McKeenosport. In politics he is a republican.

Joseph O. McKee, physician, McKeenosport, was born in what is now North Versailles township, Allegheny county, Oct. 9, 1833, and is a son of Daniel S. and Julitta (Craig) McKee. His grandfather, David McKee, was a native of Ireland, settled in Pittsburgh as early as 1820, kept a hotel for a time and later edited an anti-secret-society paper. His wife was Jane Means, by whom he had one son, David S., who in early manhood settled in North Versailles township, and engaged in farming until his death. David S. married Julia A. Craig, a daughter of George and Mary (Thomas) Craig, who settled in North Versailles in 1827. Their children were:

- Mrs. David S. Craig are Lillie J. (Mrs. A. M. McClintock), David R., William A., Joseph O., James M., George T. and Anna M. Joseph O. was reared in North Versailles township, and began the study of medicine in 1870, with Dr. J. L. Taylor, of his native town. He attended the medical department of the University of Michigan, but did not graduate that year; passed another year at Detroit Medical College, Detroit, Mich., and graduated from the latter March 4, 1874. He began the practice of his profession at New Stanton, Westmoreland county, where he was located two years; then practiced at Monongahela City one year and North Versailles township eight years. In June, 1883, he settled at McKeenosport, where he now has a successful practice. He has been twice married; his first wife, Sarah E., daughter of John C. Hays, of Westmoreland county, Pa., was the mother of one child, Thomas D. His present wife is Gertrude, daughter of Frank A. Carr, Sr., of McKeenosport. Dr. McKee is a member of the C. P. Church, the K. of P. and I. O. H., and is a republican.

Michael Beck, gardener and ice-dealer, postoffice Chartiers, was born in Germany in 1838, a son of William and Theresa Beck. He came to this country in 1852, and settled in Stowe township, where he has since resided, engaged in farming and gardening, at which he has been very successful. He worked some two years in the Pittsburgh Union Saltworks, was a member of the firm that erected them, and has some twenty thousand dollars worth of stock in them. The works do an extensive business, making about four hundred barrels of salt per day, and also manufacture their own barrels, etc. Mr. Beck also owns thirty acres of very valuable land adjoining Chartiers village, and has quite a large amount of surplus capital besides, but when he came to Pittsburgh he had not money enough to pay his toll across the bridge over the Monongahela river. In September, 1858, he married Catherine, daughter of Jacob and Eva Knell, of Stowe township, and their children are Elizabeth (wife of Nicholas Huffmagne), Justina M. (wife of Valentine Ruffler), Titus G., Ulrich M., Laurence W., Margaret P., Emma T., John M. and Conrad W. Mr. Beck has been one of the most successful financiers in Stow township.

John P. Meiers, merchant, Mount Oliver, was born July 39, 1852, in Baenbach, Prussia. He was a son of Jacob and Mary (Wolf) Meiers, who came to this country in 1852. The father died in the same year. He still survives, and has four children now living. The subject of this sketch became a practical miner, and followed it for eighteen years. He married Miss Katie Soulier, and they had two children: Edward J. and Hildegert M. In December, 1883, Mr. Meiers opened a general grocery and feedstore, which he has since successfully conducted. Mr. and Mrs. Meiers are members of the R. C. Church; he is a democrat.

Robert M. Blackburn, coal-operator, Blair Station, son of Anthony and Hettie (McGrew) Blackburn, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1813. His great-grandfather, Anthony Blackburn, was the first settler in the southern portion of that county. John Blackburn, grandfather of R. M., was born in the father's home in 1770. He was a native of Westmoreland county, where he always lived, dying within a mile and a half of the place of his birth. Hettie, his wife, also a native of Westmoreland county, is also deceased. There are but four of their children now living: William, who lives on the old homestead; Albina, also of Westmoreland county; Haddassa, who lives with Albina, and Robert M. Robert M., in 1888, married Mary J., daughter of David Megogney, of Jefferson township. Ten years before, he came to Mifflin township, this county, and five years later to Jefferson township. After marriage they located at Coal Valley, where he was engaged in operating mines, the firm name being R. M. Blackburn & Co. He is still interested in the mines, being the oldest coal-operator on the river. Three years ago Mr. Blackburn purchased what is now known as the Blackburn mills, near the mouth of Peters creek, where he now pays most of his time, depending upon his sons to properly superintend the other interests. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn are David B., married and engaged in the coal trade; Oliver A., of Pittsburgh, also engaged in the same business; Kate, Hattie, R. M., Jr., J. Dick, Pollie, Jennie, Mark and John, all of whom are at home except the first two. The parents are members of the M. E. Church.

Joseph E. Johnson, farmer, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Westmoreland county in 1840. James Johnson, father of Joseph E., was born in Westmoreland county in 1798, and was a son of Matthew Johnson, who emigrated to America from Ireland. This pioneer was a farmer, as was his son and also our subject. James married Mary Ann, daughter of Adam Sunns, and twelve children were born to them, all of whom are now living. In 1854 the family emigrated to Allegheny county, and has for twenty-five years been engaged in farming. Our subject was educated at the common schools, and learned the trade of wagon-making. He purchased his present farm in 1867, and in the same year married Sarah E. Lenhart, daughter of Christopher Lenhart. They have two sons and one daughter: Annie E., James W. and Joseph Albert. Mr. Johnson enlisted, Aug. 5, 1861, in the 105th Pa. Regt., and served for three years and two months; was four times wounded, and confined to the hospitals five months, in New Haven, Alexandria and Philadelphia. His three brothers, Adam, John and William, were also brave soldiers. Mr. Johnson has by his own industry secured a good home, and is a highly respected citizen. Politically he is a republican.

John Fleming, manufacturer, Pittsburgh, founder of the largest establishment in Pittsburgh for the manufacture of pressed and japanned wares, now under the firm name of Fleming & Hamilton, was born in Pine Creek township, this county, Aug. 28, 1823, and is a son of Andrew and Jane (Murry) Fleming, natives of Pennsylvania, who, in 1815, settled at Pine Creek, where for many years the father operated a gristmill, and for the first few years a distillery. He died in 1858, aged seventy-six years; the mother died in 1853, aged sixty-two years. Andrew Fleming was the paternal grandfather of John Fleming, and his maternal grandfather was David Murry. Mr. Fleming, the subject of this sketch, received a common free-school education, and in 1840 learned the trade he has since built up, of John Dunlap. Three years later, in 1849, he began business for himself on the lot where his factory now stands, corner of Third avenue and Market street, and three years later admitted a partner, whom he bought out the next year. He next admitted Joseph Kranz as partner, and afterward Edward Agnew and John Hamilton, under firm name of Fleming, Agnew & Co., which continued until 1884, when it became Fleming & Hamilton. Their business has grown to vast proportions, and they now ship goods to Boston, New York, San Francisco, and all parts of the United States. Mr. Fleming was married, in 1845, to Jane Dunlap, sister of John Dunlap, by whom he has three living children, viz.: John, Mary Louisa and Nettie Jane. His wife died in 1861, and in 1862 he married Rachel Rutherford, who is the mother of six children: Charles P. (now in Wyoming), Frank H., Harry R., Sadie Y., Thomas B. and Glen H. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming are members of the U. P. Church; politically he is a republican, as are all of his boys who are of age.

J. W. Dunshee, boat-builder, postoffice Hero, a son of A. T. Dunshee, was born in Pittsburgh in 1826. His father was a native of Washington county, Pa., but was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, where he died. His wife died in McKeesport. Their children are William, Benjamin, J. W., Sarah Jane (Mrs. Boyd), Joan (Mrs. Prof. Van- tyne), Margaret and Susan. J. W. followed the river for some years, and in 1859 married Sarah Jane, daughter of James Leasure, of McKeesport. They located in Mifflin township, and there resided until 1860, when they removed to the place now owned by them in Reynoldston, and here Mr. Dunshee engaged in boat-building. Their children are Thomas, Harry, Nellie, Edwin, Blanche, Joseph, Pink and Will. Mrs. Dunshee is a member of the M. E. Church. Mr. Dunshee is a member of Youghiogheny Lodge, No. 364, I. O. O. F., of McKeesport; he is one of the oldest members, and his name was presented when its charter was granted. He is a republican.

Louis Zollinger, brick-manufacturer, Wilkinsburg, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., Jan. 6, 1842, and is descended from the early Swedish settlers on the Delaware, of 1688. His grandfather, Jacob Zollinger, was a resident of Lancaster county, where his parents, George and Margaret (Long), the latter of German descent, were born. In 1828 they located on a farm in Westmoreland county, and twenty years later moved to Allegheny county. The father died in Fayette township in 1864, aged sixty-two; his widow, now eighty-two, resides in Wilkinsburg. They had ten children: M. M. (Robinson), in Sterrett; Mary (Michaels), in Erie; Nancy (Crone), Robert and William (deceased), Louis and John, in Wilkinsburg; James, in Lawrenceville; Josina (Jones), in Wilkinsburg, and Sarah (deceased). Louis attended the public schools of Fayette and Pittsburgh till eighteen years old, when he commenced work in a brickyard. At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted in the three-months service in the 1st Virginia regiment, and afterward joined Co. B. 13d P. V. C. He was with the Army of the Potomac at Rich Mountain, Philippa, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorville, and was mustered out in 1863. Resuming brickmaking, he established his present business at Wilkinsburg in 1880, in partnership with his brother. They purchased a plot of ground, put in improved machinery, and are doing a successful business. Their works are in Sterrett township, and their residences in the borough. Mr. Zollinger attends the M. E. Church, and has always been a republican. In 1884 he married Josephine, daughter of John and Sarah Bartley, of Butler county, of Scotch-Irish descent, and the children by this union now living are Charles, Nettie (wife of Jesse King, in Pittsburgh), Harry, Walter, Bertha, Lulu and Cora. William, who was the fourth, died when seven years old.

William Glass, farmer, postoffice Remington, was born in Robinson township in 1811, and has always lived there. His grandfather, Isaac Glass, came to America from County Armagh, Ireland, and was a merchant by occupation. Samuel was among the oldest of the children born to this pioneer, and about 1810 purchased one hundred acres of land in Robinson township. He followed farming, and was extensively engaged in weaving, being the first person in the section who was able to do that kind of work. He married Jane, daughter of William Stewart. Mr. Stewart married a Miss Walker, who was one of three children taken by the Indians and held captive many months. To Samuel Glass and his wife nine children were born, all of whom grew to be men and women. Samuel died at the age of eighty-one years, his wife at the age of seventy-eight. William, their second child, was educated at the log schoolhouse of the township, and has followed farming all his life, owning at one time three hundred acres of land. He married, in 1835, Sarah, daughter of Andrew McCurdy, and six children were born to them: Samuel, Lizzie, Hugh M., Lucretia, Roosa and Emma. Mr. Glass was school director and tax-collector for thirty years, and supervisor for twenty-five years. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and a republican.

Thomas Dale Williams, chief operator W. U. Tel. Co., Bellevue, was born Dec. 10, 1844, in Allegheny City, and named for Dr. Dale, of that place: he is son of John A. and Mary Ann (Bozman) Williams, the former of whom belongs to the family of Williams, settlers of Monongahela City and Washington county. His parents were Cumberland Presbyterians, and their nine children were baptized in that church. The father died at the age of sixty-five. The maternal grandparents of Thomas D. Williams were William and Jennie (Johnson) Bozman, the former born at Coal Hill (South Side), and the latter in Carlisle, Pa. The grandfather of our subject was a tanner, and his father a marine engineer, who was for some time captain of a steamer, and was on a transport during the Mexican war. He resided in California, where he followed blacksmithing from 1856, but, his health failing in 1859, he located in later years in Allegheny City, where he died in 1873. The paternal grandfather of Thomas D. Williams accumulated a large number of land-warrants during the revolutionary war, which he located at Coal Hill. Our subject received his education in the Fourth ward, Allegheny, and at the age of thirteen he commenced life as an errand-boy for J. M. Little. Soon after he went with his brother-in-law, as messenger-boy, to Lafayette, Ind. He soon learned telegraphy, and has been operator for the Western Union company since 1865, and for six months he was with the Army of the Cumberland as operator. He was appointed assistant chief operator. In 1873, at the Pittsburgh office, and in 1882, by faithful attention to duty, promoted to chief operator. Mr. Williams was married, March 10, 1887, to Ida Robinson, of Allegheny City, daughter of Samuel R. and Rebecca (Gallacker) Robinson.

George Henry Moore, manager of gas-office, Verona, was born in Johnstown, Cambria county, Pa., Sept. 28, 1845, the oldest son of George H. Moore, a native of Plymouth, England, who came to America when twelve years old. The father was employed as driver on the Pennsylvania canal, but later became agent for a large forwarding-house on the same route. In 1849 he went to California, where his health failed under exposure, and he was compelled to return. As soon as he was partially recovered he took employment as an operator on an Ohio steamer, and died of choleram at Cincinnati in 1854, aged thirty-three years. His wife, Mary M., was a daughter of Richard Mercer, a descendant of Gen. Mercer, of the revolutionary army, of Scotch stock. Their living children are George Henry, Eliza Ann (Curry), Richard M. and Agnes H. (Calvin). Martha, the youngest, died in 1866, unmarried. When thirteen years old our subject went to Clayton, Iowa, where he remained on a farm until August, 1863. He then entered Co. G, 21st I. V., as drummer, and served in the western army until the close of the conflict. He participated in the battles of Fort Gibson, Champion Hills, Black river, Vicksburg and the capture of Matagorda island, and the forts on Mobile bay. At Vicksburg he received a scalp-wound from a fragment of shell, and during the battle of Shiloh carried over a bare hill under a fierce fire from the enemy. In 1865 Mr. Moore came to Pittsburgh, and was engaged in refining oil on the Allegheny river over sixteen years. Since December, 1885, he has been superintendent of the Verona district of the Philadelphia company. He is a republican, is a member of the school board and borough council, and was elected justice of the peace in 1888. Mr. Moore married, in 1885, Mary Porter, who was poisoned eleven months later, through the mistake of a druggist filling a prescription. In 1878 Mr. Moore married Elizabeth, daughter of J. R. Cribbs. Four children have been born to this union: George Henry, Bessie, Walter (deceased) and Florence.

William M. Felloborn, gardener, postoffice McKeen, is a son of Samuel and Sarah (Erdlen) Felloborn. His maternal grandmother was born in Westmoreland county in 1787, in times when religious services were secured with an effort, she walking twenty miles to attend divine service. His paternal grandparents were natives of Lancaster county. His parents were natives of Westmoreland county, where the father farmed. Their children were Harvey, a soldier during the civil war, a member of Co. C, 8th P. R., was captured at Weldon railroad, and died during captivity; W. M., John, deceased; Sarah, Ellen, Lyman, Charles, Frank, Harry, Anna and Cora. William M. enlisted in Co. G, 11th P. V. I., in 1863, and served during the war, returning home in 1865. In 1872 he married Mary, daughter of R. G. Newlon, of Westmoreland county, and, locating in Lincoln township, Allegheny county, engaged in gardening. Mr. and Mrs. Felloborn are the parents of two children: Maud and Edna. Mrs. Felloborn is a member of the M. E. Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and R. of P., and is a republican.

John Reutzel, carpenter, Wilkinsburg, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, April 27, 1842, and is the youngest of the six children of John and Kate Reutzel, the latter of whom died when John was two years old. Our subject attended school till fourteen years old, and was apprenticed for three years to a cabinet-maker; in 1858 he immigrated to the United States, and located at Allegheny City, where he learned the carpenter’s trade, working the first year for three dollars per week and the second year for four dollars. In 1862 he enlisted in Co. D, 123d P. V. I., with which he took part in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. At the close of his nine-month enlistment he went into the one hundred days’ service in the 38d, and two months later joined the 97th Regt., under Capt. W. R. Jones. With the last body he remained at Baltimore till discharged, in June, 1865. Returning to Allegheny, he resumed building operations, but lost his savings through a dishonest partner. In 1878 Mr. Reutzel came to Wilkinsburg, where he has the most complete line of Williams out of any city. Sept. 29, 1868, he married Mary B., daughter of Henry and Mary (Butts) Meixner, of Baden, Germany, and their children are Annie Elizabeth (wife of Jacob Weser, in East Liberty), John Nicholas F., John George Washington, Kate F., Henry Frederick William, John George, Margaret Matilda, Edward Franklin and Oscar Alexander (twins), and Henry Emil. Mr. Reutzel, with his family, is a member of the First Christian Church; he belongs to the G. A. R., A. O. U. W., and politically is a republican.

Robert Johnston, farmer, postoffice Upper St. Clair, was born in Allegheny county in 1828, a son of Robert Johnston. His grandfather, Robert Johnston, Sr., came to America with his brother, James, in 1779, from County Antrim, Ireland; married Mary Murray, had four sons, and four daughters. He located in Allegheny county and purchased one hundred acres of land, on which he resided until his death; he died at the age of seventy-five years. His brother located in Tennessee. Robert, Jr., married Sarah, daughter of William Moore, of Washington county, originally from Ireland, and five children were born to them, Robert being the only son. Robert, Jr., died in 1878, aged ninety years; his wife died in 1871, aged seventy-six years. The subject of these lines was born and reared on the farm he now owns, and has all the original tract purchased by his grandfather, with an addition of ninety acres. He was educated at the public schools and at Bethel Academy, and has always followed farming. He married, Nov. 23, 1865, Sarah Jane, daughter of William and Rebecca (McMillan) Caldwell, and they have four children: Jennie N., William C. and Robert M. (students at Washington College), and John McMillan. Mr. Johnston has been assessor of the township; is a prohibitionist, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church, of which he has been trustee for a number of years.

A. C. Ackard, engineer, Homestead, was born March 10, 1831, in Westmoreland county, Pa., a son of Peter J. and Margaret (Miller) Ackard, natives, respectively, of Fayette and Westmoreland counties. Mrs. Ackard is still living. In 1855 he located in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and became a member of the nine-year old children. A. C. was educated in his native county, and with the entire family came to Allegheny county in 1844. At the age of nineteen he went on the river and worked himself to the position of engineer, then pilot, finally becoming captain. He was nine years on the Monongahela, several years on the Vigilant, was interested in the boats as stockholder, and has an excellent record, never having lost a vessel. He retired from the river in 1884, and has had charge of twenty-four boilers in the Beam mill. He married Mary J., daughter of William and Susanna (Slackar) Lynch, old settlers. Mrs. Ackard is the mother of five children: Mrs. Margaret J. Hays, Capt. Thomas J., Capt. Alle O., Mrs. Alice Stewart and Mrs. Elvira Cox. Of these he has two sons, John O. F., K. of G. E. and Knights of the Mystic Chain; he is a democrat, has been councilman, and has taken an active part in all matters pertaining to the borough.

John Reich, conductor A. V. R. R., postoffice Verona, was born in York, Pa., March 8, 1827, a son of John and Katharine (Klizer) Reich, natives of Germany. His father died in 1845, aged fifty-two years, and his mother in 1877, aged sixty-seven years. His father came to York in 1824, where he carried on the butcher business till 1848, when he moved to Westmoreland county, and together with John was in the business until his death. Our subject’s grandfather was also named John, and his wife Elizabeth, both dying in 1846, aged eighty-nine and eighty-seven years, respectively. Mr. Reich received a common-school education at York, and, on going to Pittsburgh, engaged as brakeman on the P. R. R., then as conductor, and four years as yardmaster. In 1865 he was conductor on the A. V. R. R., and the next year train dispatcher, continuing four years. He moved to Verona in 1876, and for the past nine years has been conductor on the Plum Creek branch. He was married April 3, 1855, to Elizabeth Dilks, a native of Pittsburgh, a daughter of Josiah and Elizabeth Dilks. Mr. and Mrs. Reich have six children living: Orlando Madison, Cornelia Dilla, Edgar Hamilton, William Dilks, Cora L., and Carrie May. Those deceased are Harry B. John Lincoln (aged five years) and Ida Rosette, (about three years). Mr. Reich is a repub-clican, and he and his wife and daughter are members of the M. E. Church.

JAMES WHITE, farmer, postoffice Negley, was born in the house in which he now resides, in 1837, and is a son of James and Isabella (Shaw) White. His father was born on the same farm upon which he resided until four years before his death, when he moved to East Liberty and died Oct. 27, 1879, aged seventy-eight years. His widow now resides in East Liberty. Subject's grandfather was also named James, and came here from Westmoreland county in an early day. He died in 1819. His first wife and three children were murdered by the Indians in Westmoreland county. His second wife was Margaret Brown. Our subject left home when eighteen-teen of age and worked in Plum township until about nineteen years of age, when he began managing his father's farm, which he now owns. He married, in April, 1859, Mary Kirk, a native of Plum township, and a daughter of James and Mary (McCounel) Kirk. They have four children: Jennie, George, Ida and William, all at home. All the family, save George, are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics, Mr. White is a democrat. Mrs. White's grandfather served in the Indian war.

JOHN McNAMEE, boatman, postoffice Mc-Kee's Rocks, son of James and Amanda Mc-Namee, was born in this county in 1848. His grandfather came from Ireland very early in the nineteenth century. James McNamme was born in 1819. He had two brothers, William and John, and a sister, Mary, wife of Christopher Selber. The wife of James McNamme died in 1871; he is still living. He is a ship-carpenter by trade, but for some years has worked in the carshops. The subject of these lines learned the carpenter's trade, but for many years has been engaged in the rolling-mill works. He mar-rried, in 1847, Barbara, daughter of Leonard and Catherine Hahn, of Beaver county, Pa., and two children. Albert and Charles, have blessed their union. Mr. McNamme is a member of the Heptasophes. He is the owner of a good home and other valuable property.

S. E. CAROTHERS, proprietor of Hotel
White, McKeesport, was born and bred on a Westmoreland county farm, where he developed that sturdy disposition to work out his own ambitious aspirations, and that persistence in accomplishing the task which he had set for himself, which has, in later life, made him the successful business man and representative citizen. When approaching manhood he moved, with his father and the family, to a larger and more remunerative farm in Fayette county, and here nearly five more years of his life were passed in that round of healthful toil which was to so peculiarly fit him for the certain and unqualified success which he has since achieved. But the time came when the narrow limits of the farm were too circumscribed for his ambitious aspirations, and so, at the age of twenty-four, he started out to seek his fortune, with no greater opportunities or capital than a determination to succeed in life. He came almost directly to McKeesport, where he has remained seventeen years. He early purchased an interest in the "City Drugstore" of Dr. W. H. Hill, and for several years gave his time and attention to his business, and prospered. There were at that time no daily newspapers published in that town, and Mr. Carothers, without any experience in journalism, thought he saw an opportunity, and in 1876 purchased the Times. Calling a younger brother to his aid, he set out on a journalistic career, and for five years gave the people of McKeesport a live, progressive, enterprising, stalwart local paper. He was always a stanch republican and party worker, and was appointed postmaster by President Garfield, and for more than four years administered the affairs of the McKeesport office with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of the public. During his residence in that city he has been more or less interested in the lively business, and is now proprietor of a fine stable on Fifth avenue. He has also recently purchased his former drugstore, now known as "Apothecary Hall," and is also landlord of the Hotel White, one of the leading hostelries of the city. Though never aspiring to public honors, his name has been frequently mentioned for borough and member of council, and for six years he was a borough clerk. Mr. Carothers is yet a young man, being about thirty-two years of age. He is liberally endowed with good common sense, ranks among the foremost in all public enterprises, and is liberal with the means he has accumulated by application and industry.

L. P. EDMUNDS, postoffice McKeesport, a daughter of Levi and Elizabeth (Gamble) Edmundson, was born in Lincoln township in 1852, and comes of a family promi-nently identified with the early history of the county. Levi Edmundson was born in Mifflin township in 1809, and after his marriage with Elizabeth Gamble located in Lincoln township, where the latter died in 1860, leaving three children: Drucilla (now wife of Rev. John A. Bower, of Bellaire, Ohio), Havilah (deceased) and L. P. In 1862 Levi Edmundson married Mary D. Pife, to whom he were born four children: Jenny, Sadie, Mattie and Lida. Levi Edmundson began life under peculiarly fortunate circumstances. He inherited a handsome competency, to which by judicious investment in various directions he continually added until he was known as one of the most successful financiers of his day. In social circles he enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his friends, and his business integrity was proverbial. He died Nov. 8, 1887, deeply regretted by all.

HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Carl Franz Wilhelm von Bonnhorst was born Aug. 15, 1774, in Thalheim, near Wallendorf, Westphalia, and emigrated to America in 1808. Dec. 8, 1808, he married, at Philadelphia, Rebecca, daughter of John and Anna (Huston) Taylor, and the fruits of this marriage were Charles Gustavus von Bonnhorst, born June 13, 1812, died Feb. 28, 1826; Sidney Francis von Bonnhorst, born Sept. 17, 1814, died July 23, 1857, and Frederick Alexander von Bonnhorst, born Nov. 14, 1815, died April 19, 1817. Shortly after his marriage Mr. von Bonnhorst removed from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, and soon bought the large farm opposite Port Perry, on the Monongahela river, now known as the "Oliver farm," where his children were born. After the death of his wife, which occurred in 1816, he came to Pittsburgh, studied law, and was admitted to the bar; was also elected one of the aldermen of the city. He was stricken with paralysis in 1843, and died one year later.

Sidney F. von Bonnhorst first entered business under John D. Davis, one of Pittsburgh's leading merchants in the olden time. Afterward he was in the employ of Henry F. Schwepppe, whom many of our older citizens will remember. He was also bookkeeper in the Bank of the United States, and was sent to New Brighton to close the affairs of the branch bank at that place. Afterward Mr. von Bonnhorst engaged in mercantile pursuits until elected secretary and treasurer of the P. & S. R. Co., which position he held until appointed postmaster of Pittsburgh by Mr. Lincoln in 1861, which office he held until 1866, when the People's Savings Bank was chartered, and he was elected D. W. F. and treasurer of the office; he held unscathed till his death. Mr. von Bonnhorst married, in 1836, Miss Mary A. Murphy, daughter of Andrew Murphy, of Fleecedale, Chartiers township. Ten children were born to them, seven of whom still live.

D. WEB MAINS, grocer, McKeesport, was born in that city, Feb. 16, 1846, a son of William and Eliza (Brady) Mains. His paternal grandfather was Thomas Mains, whose father was a native of Ireland, and a pioneer of Elizabeth township, this county. Thomas Mains was a farmer, and in later life moved to Illinois, where he died. The maternal grandparents of our subject were Joseph and Barbara (Ream) Brady, natives of Cumberland and Lancaster counties, Pa., respectively, and were among the pioneers of Westmoreland county. Thomas Mains was a native of Elizabeth township, where he was reared and educated, and learned the blacksmith's trade. He settled in McKeesport about 1888, where, with the exception of four years, he conducted a shop until his death, July 5, 1881. In 1856 he was appointed postmaster by President Buchanan, and held that position four years. He reared a family of five children: D. Web, Flora (Mrs. Josiah Howe), E. King, William B. and Eugene F. D. Web was reared and educated in McKeesport, and learned the blacksmith's trade in his father's shop, which he followed five years. For a number of years he was employed in the mills of the city, and for five years was the clerk and bookkeeper for a retail coal firm in McKeesport. In 1886 he embarked in the grocery business, in which he has since been successfully engaged. In 1881 he married Sarah, daughter of Samuel and Jane (Meil) Reed, of Indiana township, this county, and has five children: Minnie I., Matilda E., Charles E., Walter R. and Martha E. Mr. Mains is a member of the M. E. Church, and is a democrat.

ALFRED McCABE, farmer, postoffice Coraopolis, was born July 26, 1836, on the homestead of his father, who was a farmer, and which he now owns. His father, James H. McCabe, was born in Cumberland county, Pa., in 1792, and died Nov. 16, 1859. He was a son of William McCabe, a Scotch Presbyterian. James H. McCabe immigrated with his parents to Allegheny county in 1792, and settled on Chartiers creek, near the Washington county line. He was three times married; his first wife, Miss Watson, died childless, and soon thereafter they settled on the old homestead at Coraopolis. He then married Jane Vance, who left one child, James H., Jr., who resides on a part of the home farm. His third wife was Mrs. Margaret Keiffer, née White, who was born in Ohio township, this county, a daughter of John White. James H. McCabe was appointed a magistrate under Gov. Simon Snyder, and served over fifty years. By his third wife he had five children: William P., born Oct. 20, 1829, residing at Coraopolis; John W., in Washington county; C. Miller, (deceased); Janius M. (deceased) and Alfred. The last named was educated at Coraopolis, and worked on his father's farm. He inherited a talent for music, and learned both instrumental and vocal branches of that art, and taught music for some thirty years. He was leader of the Sharon Church choir nineteen years, and of Forest Grove choir four or five years. At the organization of the Midletown First Presbyterian Church, now the First Coraopolis, he became leader of the choir, and still holds that position.

Mr. McCabe was united in marriage, Sept. 22, 1859, with Margaret McDowell, who was born in South Fayette township, a daughter of John A. and Elizabeth (Hannah) Nesbit. Mrs. McCabe died March 13, 1886, the mother of eight children: Elizabeth M., wife of James W. Mains (deceased); John H., of Robinson township; John H., deceased when aged four years; Emma F., wife of H. H. McKelvy, Coraopolis; Alfred D., William P., Lotta L., Mary C. and Eva C. Mr. McCabe, Dec. 22, 1887, married, in Robinson township, Margaret S. Hall, who was born in that township, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Silk) Hall. Mr. and Mrs. McCabe are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is trustee. Old Vance Fort was built on the McCabe farm at Coraopolis.

Joseph Stewart, farmer, postoffice McMin, was born on his farm in Findlay township, May 20, 1816, a son of Samuel and Jane (Patterson) Stewart, former of whom was born in Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., March 5, 1767, a son of Hugh Stewart, of Carlisle, Pa., and the latter at Redstone, Westmoreland county, Pa., Jan. 18, 1774, where they were married. The parents moved to Findlay township, Allegheny county, in 1794 or 1795, where the father died in August, 1837, and the mother in November, 1867, members of the A. R. P. Church. They purchased and settled on the farm now owned by their son Joseph, and George Hawkins. They had twelve children: James, Robert, Hugh, Agnes, Flora, John, Margaret, Samuel, Jane, William, Joseph and Uriah. Joseph Stewart, our subject, married, Oct. 3, 1839, Hannah Glass, born in Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa., Oct. 24, 1819, a daughter of Samuel and Jane (Stewart) Glass, natives, respectively, of Ireland and of Robinson township, Allegheny county, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stewart are the parents of nine children: Samuel G., married Harriet Stoddard; Jane M., wife of John E. Stewart; Mary O., wife of H. Albert Aten; William J., married Margaret Miller; John P., married Eliza Plummer; Joseph P. Sarah A. (deceased), Andrew D. and Albert E. Mr. Stewart is a worthy descendant of two old families of Allegheny county. He has held several local offices of trust in his township, and has the confidence and respect of all as an honest citizen and earnest Christian. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart are members of Sharon Presbyterian Church.

Emrick, Jacob, postoffice Hulton, was born in 1854, in Sharpsburg, Pa., a son of Andrew and Nancy (Wikert) Emrick. His parents lived for some time at Lancaster, Pa., and then came to Sharpsburg, where Andrew enlisted in Co. E, 63d P. V. I. He was wounded at the battle of Fair Oaks, taken prisoner, confined in Andersonville prison, and, so far as can be ascertained, died at Richmond, date unknown. John was educated at the Sharpsburg schools and the seminary. After his father's death he was obliged to leave school and help to support the family. He started at stair-building when fifteen years old, and later worked in a rolling-mill. He was engineer three years at Wooddale, and in 1873 he settled in Verona and became engineer in a paper-mill for a short time; then engaged in the building trade, and, as late as 1886, was in charge of the grinding and polishing department, having several men at work for him. When about eighteen years of age he married Sophia Gillinger, a native of Woodale, Pa. Six children now grace their home: Anna Florence, Harry Ralph, Monclare, William, John G., Jr., and Scott. Mr. Emrick's ancestors were members of the M. E. Church and Mrs. Emrick's of the English Lutheran. Mr. Emrick is a Republican and is a member of the Verona council. He is also a K. of P.

Robert Hunter, machinist, Bellevue, was born in London, England, Sept. 12, 1805, a son of John Ferrier and Sarah (Davis) Hunter, former born in Scotland, April 26, 1807, and died at the age of seventy-two; latter born in Lancaster, England, in 1809, and died in 1840. John Hunter served an apprenticeship as machinist at Edinburgh, and in 1854 immigrated with his family to Pittsburgh. Robert attended school in London; he served part apprenticeship there and finished the machinist's trade in Pittsburgh. He followed his trade for two years in St. Louis and in Mississippi. He enlisted in August, 1862, for nine months, in Co. G, 123d P. V. I., serving in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. He was married April 30, 1866, to Mary Elizabeth, daughter of John and Mary Ann Cook, of England, and to them have been born two children: Mary Janet and John Alexander. He was a latter a clerk for Joseph Woodwell & Co., Pittsburgh. The family are members of the Methodist Protestant Church. Mrs. Hunter is a member of the Masonic fraternity; he was elected treasurer of West Bellevue borough by the republican party, serving nine years; also a member of the school board for the same length of time, and his refusal to fill the former office longer was regretted by his many friends of the borough.

Joseph May and James May, gardeners, postoffice Chartiers. Jacob May, a gardener, was born in Germany, in 1821, and coming to this country in 1829 settled in Pittsburgh, Pa. He married, in Pittsburgh, in 1843, Theresa, daughter of Andrew and Magdalena Heiser, and their children are Joseph, Andrew, Thiry (wife of Louis Meyers), John and Theresa (wife of Peter Herley), Maria (wife of Peter Mousier), Frances (wife of Peter Yunker) and Jacob. Mr. May was an industrious, successful and honorable citizen. He commenced life in humble circumstances, reared a large family, and left them, when he died, very comfortably provided for. He died in the Catholic faith, Aug. 7, 1855, at the age of sixty-five years. His son, Joseph, married, Nov. 17, 1868, Mary, daughter of Joseph and Barbara Lounes, and of their five children only one is living, Elizabeth. Mrs. May died April 20, 1886, at the age of thirty-six years. Jacob, Jr., was married, in May, 1886, to Mary, daughter of Joseph and Mary Herley. They have one child, Jacob. Four of the sons of Jacob May, Sr., live on and have inherited portions of their father's farm.

Francis W. Wilson, Sr., was born in Hebron church, Feb. 12, 1827, a grandson of Thomas Wilson, who built the first dwelling in Penn township. Francis, son of Thomas, married Mary Duff, a native of Penn township, and settled on the farm where he son's widow now resides. Our subject married, in 1893, Mary M., who was born just a week after her husband, a daughter of John and Jane Morrow. Mr.
Wilson inherited the farm from a bachelor uncle, and tilled it until his death, which occurred in August 1881. He always attended the Presbyterian Church, was a democrat, and served four years as supervisor. The children, save John M., the second, who died aged thirty-one, reside as follows: Mary Jane, at home; Eliza (Mrs. F. D. Cribs) and Frank Henry, in Verona; Charles Miner works the farm, and Sarah A., a teacher, at home.

John W. Patterson, retired, McKeesport, was born in Elizabeth township, Allegheny county, Feb. 20, 1822, a son of James and Mary (Watt) Patterson. His paternal grandfather was James Patterson, a native of Scotland, and pioneer of Westmoreland county, Pa. His maternal grandfather was John Watt, a native of Ireland, a wheelwright by trade, a pioneer of Elizabeth, this county, and in later life a prominent farmer.
James Patterson, father of our subject, was a cabinet-maker by trade; also a carpenter and farmer. He died in Elizabeth township in 1856, on the farm where he had settled in 1812. He had eight children who grew to maturity: Nancy (Mrs. William Watt), Jane (Mrs. William Finney), Margaret (Mrs. Robert Finney), John W., James, Joseph, Thomas and Finney. John W. was reared in Elizabeth township, at the age of nineteen was apprenticed for three years at the mill-wright’s trade, which he followed for eight years. He was engaged in farming for six years in Elizabeth, and in 1855 located in McKeesport, where he engaged in business as a contractor and builder, in which he continued until 1883, when he retired. In 1845 he married Susan, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Vankirk) Scott, of Elizabeth, by whom he had two children: James E. and Ruth A.
(Mrs. John O’Neil). Mr. Patterson is a representative and worthy citizen. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is republican.

William P. Byers, painter, 194 Steuben street, Thirty-sixth ward, Pittsburgh, a son of Jonas and Amelia Byers, was born in this county, in 1851. His paternal grandfather came from Germany, and located in Little York, Pa., but about 1820 moved to Allegheny county, and settled at Saw-Mill run.
His business was farming and mining. He had four children, only two of whom are living: Jonas and Alexander. The father died in 1848 and the mother in 1848. Jonas Byers, father of William P., was born in this county in 1820, and in 1850 married Amelia Whitright. Their children were William P., John (deceased). Mary (wife of Charles Risenerger), Wesley, Olive (wife of Peter Hersberger), Austin, George, James (deceased) and Clara. Jonas Byers spent most of his life as pilot on the river. During the civil war he served as wagoner for two years, and in 1864 enlisted for three years in Co. F., 70th V. I., receiving an honorable discharge at the close of the war. He was a member of the G. A. R. His son, W. P., learned painting, in which occupation it can justly be said he excels, and is a contractor of everything pertaining to his line of business.

Richard Straw, retired, Belleve, was born March 23, 1819, in Derbyshire, England, son of Francis and Phebe Straw. He was educated and served an apprenticeship at the tailor’s trade, coming to America in 1840.
In 1853 he moved to Belleve, and built the house now owned by Senator Bayne, where he lived until 1865, and in 1867 built a fine brick house across the street. For more than forty years he successfully conducted a merchant-tailoring business in Pittsburgh, at the corner of Market and Second streets; in connection with his trade he bought the territorial right for Allegheny county from the Singer Sewing Machine company, and the first sewing-machine west of the mountains came to him. Later on the right to sell, in the entire western part of Pennsylvania, Virginia, and a part of Ohio was assigned to him, and he moved his business to Sixth street, devoting his entire time to the machine trade until 1875. He was married, in February, 1847, to Anna Allcott, of England, a daughter of Rev.
William Allcott, a Protestant Methodist minister, and nine children have blessed this union, viz.: Charles F., F. W., John H., Walter H., Walter Lincoln, Annie E. (Mrs. E. G.
Whitehead), Mary Emma (wife of George F.
Wright) Richard Jr. (died Oct. 2, 1888, aged thirty-one), and Percy B. (died June 9, 1886, aged twenty-four years). Mrs. Straw died
Nov. 29, 1886. The family are Protestant Methodists. Mr. Straw has been a republican since the organization of that party; he was burrus of Belleve two terms, justice of the township, and school director. He was one of the organizers of Belleve borough, and is one of the prominent and oldest settlers.

Robert C. Hamilton, farmer and stock-raiser, postoffice Clinton, was born in Notttingham township, Washington county, Pa., Feb. 27, 1851, a son of James and Lucy (Bush-ager) Hamilton, latter a native of Westmoreland county, Pa. James was born in Washington county, Pa., was a farmer, and he and wife were members of the Presbyterian Church. They had seven children, five living: Robert C.; Sarah, wife of Park Morrison, in Nottingham township, Washington county; Margaret A., wife of Samuel McNary, in Washington county; James, who married Anna Sumany, in Washington county; and George, who married Miss Sadie Chamberlin, and resides with his parents on the old homestead in Washington county. Robert C. marrried, Feb. 18, 1872, Mary Lewis, who was born in Findlay township, Allegheny county, a daughter of John and Elizabeth (Stuart) Lewis. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton are J. Lewis, Robert I., Howard W. and Bessie. Mr. Hamilton owns a fine farm of 106 acres.
Conrad Fix, contractor, Wilkinsburg, is a native of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, born in 1840. When he was four years old his parents, Conrad and Mary (Brilly) Fix, immigrated to America, and lived in Penn and Collins townships till the death of the father, which took place in 1850, at the age of seventy-six. There were three children of whom Conrad is the eldest. Kate (Mrs. Joseph Blank), resides in Baltimore, Md., and Philip at Bloomfield, this county. The mother, now aged eighty-four, resides with the latter. When eleven years old our subject began driving on the canal. When seventeen commenced molding brick, an occupation he followed till 1870, when he began contracting for the making of cisterns, sewers and general brickwork. April 17, 1861, he left Pittsburgh with the first troops responding to President Lincoln's call, and afterward joined Knap's battery, becoming, in 1861, a member of the 6th P. H. A. At the close of the war he came to Wilkinsburg, and in 1870 built his present home. Aug. 23, 1866, Mr. Fix was married to Joanna Niblock, native of Butler county, Pa., daughter of Samuel and Nancy Niblock, natives of Ireland and Philadelphia, respectively. Three children bless this union: Annie M., Rebecca N. and Ira N. The family attend the Reformed Church; in politics Mr. Fix is a republican.

William Shrader, retired, postoffice Elizabeth, a son of William and Dorcas (Warren) Shrader, was born in what is now Forward township in 1839. His paternal great-grandfather, when six years of age, embarked, with his parents and their family, for America. While en route the entire family, with a single exception, died, and on the arrival of the vessel at Philadelphia this child of six years was sold for his passage-money. Having legal at that time to enforce payment in that manner. He became the property of a farmer living near Philadelphia, with whom he remained until relinquished from his indebtedness. Subsequently he married the farmer's daughter, and located near Baltimore, Md., where they lived for some years. They then removed to near Stanton, Westmoreland county, where he died. His son, Willis Shrader, was born near Stanton, Westmoreland county, in 1735. Our subject's maternal grandmother, Mary Sechrist, was born in 1761, and sought protection in Hannastown during one of the periodical raids made by hostile Indians. William Shrader, father of our subject, was born in what is now West Newton in 1796, and this family are pre-eminent entitled to the distinction of being among the pioneers of Western Pennsylvania. Dorcas, mother of our subject, died when he was a child of eleven years. His father died at the age of sixty-four years. Two children were born to William and Dorcas Shrader: Susanna, now Mrs. Finney, of Westmoreland county, and William. The latter married Eliza J. Byers, in May, 1861, and resided on the old homestead until 1876. He then sold out and purchased coal-mines at Lovedale, which he disposed of in 1883, and is now living in elegant retirement in Lincoln township. His residence is located on a prominent bluff facing the Monongahela river, from which a beautiful view is afforded.

Louis Hoffmann, farmer, postoffice McKee's Rocks, was born in Alsace, France (now Germany), in 1840, a son of Philip and Charlotte Hoffmann, and came to this country in 1871. His parents both died in Germany, his father in 1856 and his mother in 1854. Their children were Charlotte (wife of a Mr. Cook), Philip, Louisa (wife of Christ Roser), Louis, and Nicholas (deceased). The first two years Louis was in this county he worked at the carpenter's trade; then moved to Stowe township, and has since been engaged in gardening. In 1873 he married Christina, daughter of Philip Beaver, of this county, and they have three children: Louis W., Tina and Louise. He owns twenty-one acres of very valuable land in Stowe township, near McKee's Rocks.

Frederick Kirsch, retired, postoffice West View, was born Sept. 20, 1812, in Germany, the son of Nicholas and Charlotte (Bier) Kirsch, who were among the leading families for many generations in their native place. His great-grandfather, Wilhelm Kirsch, and grandfather, Nicholas Kirsch, were burgomasters of Baumgler, and were highly esteemed. Frederick was educated in his native home, and there learned his trade of coppersmith and sheet-brass worker, at which he became an expert. While a journeyman he traveled extensively in Europe. In 1849 he came to America, and settled in Pittsburgh, Pa., where he followed his trade and later opened a shop, doing only special work, and is well known in business circles as a specialist. He was subsequently moved to Ross township, and opened a shop, where he has also done only special work, but is now retired from business, and resides on a place of twenty acres. Mr. Kirsch has been twice married. His first wife, Julia Warth, a native of Germany, was the mother of four children, viz.: Edward J., Matilda J., Laura and Celia. His present wife is Charlotte Warth, who is the mother of five children: William, Oswald, Frederick, Garfield and Carl. Mr. and Mrs. Kirsch are members of the E. L. Church of Smithfield. Politically he is a republican.

Henry Warren Williams, deceased, was born in Groton (now Ledyard), New London county, Conn., in 1816. "His earliest ancestor in America, Robert Williams, came from England to Roxbury, Mass., in 1633. About 1700 he took his progenitor to a little line in New London county, Conn. His parents were Warren and Elizabeth Stanton (Gallup) Williams. Warren's father was Seth, the latter a son of Henry, whose father bore the same name. Our subject attended the common school until fourteen years old, when he began to prepare for admission to Amherst College, from which he graduated. in 1837. He taught school for a year, and then came to Pittsburgh in 1838; read law with Walter H. Lowry, and was admitted to the bar in 1840. For five years he practiced in partnership with his preceptor, when the latter was appointed judge of the district court. He was then associated with William M. Shinn until his election to the district court in 1851 on the anti-Masonic ticket. He was re-elected at the end of his first ten-year term, and remained until his promotion, in 1868, to the supreme bench of the state, where death found him Feb. 19, 1877. He was made a ruling elder in the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh in 1858, and filled that position during his remaining years; was a member of the General Assembly at four sessions, of the committee on laws in the fusion of the old and new schools, and the American board of commissioners for foreign missions. In 1866 Amherst College conferred on him the degree of LL. D. His wife was Lucy Jane Stone, a native of New Jersey, whose ancestors came from England to Hampshire county, Mass., about 1630.

NATHAN STONE WILLIAMS, attorney, post-office Wilkinsburg, son of Judge H. W. Williams, was born in Pittsburgh, July 13, 1854, and was reared in that city. He graduated from Amherst College in 1877, read law with A. H. Miller, and then went to the Michigan State University at Ann Arbor, where he graduated from the law school under Judge Cooley, in 1880. After practicing for a year with his former preceptor, he was several years a partner with W. A. Lewis. He is now associated with a younger brother, Gurdon Walter, a resident of the city. Since January, 1882, Mr. Williams has dwelt in Wilkinsburg. He is a member of the Congregational Church, with which his early ancestors were associated; is a member of the W. R. M. and A. M., and is also a Scottish Rite Mason. In November, 1880, he married Jennie I., daughter of James Madison and Harriet (Palmer) Balkam, of Robinson, Maine. Two children bless the home of Mr. Williams: Edith Leslie and Nathan Stone.

JAMES F. SYKES, contractor and builder, Chase, was born in India, Sept. 13, 1849, a son of William and Sarah (Francis) Sykes. His father was a native of Manchester, England, a theatrical manager by occupation, and opened the third theater in India, and first in Canada. He settled in Pittsburgh in 1852, and resided there nineteen years; then removed to Toronto, Canada, where he died in 1870. Mrs. Sykes was a daughter of Stanley Francis, a pioneer of Allegheny county. James F. was associated with his father where he learned the carpenter's trade. In 1884 he located at Eielrod's, in Versailles township, where he has since been actively engaged in business as a contractor and builder. He married, in 1862, Margaret, daughter of Angus Kerr, of St. Thomas, Canada, and has eleven children: William, Maria (Mrs. George Mahlow), Mary A., Margaret (Mrs. Bayard Taylor), James, Allie, George, Frank, Charlie, Minnie and Lettie. Mr. Sykes is a member of the M. E. Church, the Royal Templars of Temperance and Mystic Chain. He is a justice of the peace for Versailles township, and a staunch advocate of prohibition.

JOHN WILLY MATEER, carpenter, post-office Hulton, was born near Kittanning, Pa., in July, 1845, a son of Sharrod and Jane (Reed) Mateer. His father was a farmer and moved to Kittanning in 1800; his mother was born near Kittanning in 1806, and died Jan. 14, 1878. They were members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Mateer received his education at Kittanning, and made his home there until he was twenty-four years of age. At the age of eighteen he learned the carpenter trade, and worked eleven years at bridge-building on the A. V. R. R. He came to Verona in 1859 and began work in the railroad shops. He was married, Aug. 12, 1869, to Maria Williams, daughter of Michael and Charlotte (Bayne) Williams, natives of Armstrong county. They have two children, Mead and Minnie, both at home. Mrs. Mateer died April 8, 1878, aged thirty-three years. Mr. Mateer was next married, June 23, 1879, to Lizzie E. Kneifcamp, of Green Oak, this county, daughter of Frederick and Caroline Kneifcamp, natives of Germany. They have one child, William Henry. They are both members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Mateer is a member of the I. O. F. and the Jr. O. U. A. M., and Carpenters' Union. Politically he is a republican, and member of the Verona council. In 1871 his house was burned, and nearly all of his goods lost; he completed his new home on C street in 1888.

GEORGE LINN APPLEGATE, farmer, post-office Sunny Side, is a son of Harvey and Mary (Applegate) Applegate, and was born Jan. 31, 1836. He is a direct descendant of John Applegate, of Philadelphia, and of John Applegate, of Middlesex county, New Jersey. The children of his father's family were Milton, Joseph Vincent, Harrison, George Linn, William A., Minnie E., Bessie Corinne, Bernice and Harriet Jane; Milton, Joseph Vincent, Harrison and Bessie Corinne are deceased. George Linn Applegate's birthplace was on the old homestead settled on by Benjamin. Their farm was taken up by patent, and has never been transferred by deed; it having descended from father to son until now it is in the hands of the fourth generation. Mr. Applegate married Clara, daughter of Calvin Applegate, of Youngstown, Ohio, and has three children: Sally, Harvey and an infant. He is the owner of the old farm.

GEORGE F. LUDWIG, McKeesport, was born in Versailles township, Allegheny county, Pa., April 8, 1882, a son of John and Matilda (Craig) Ludwig. His paternal grandfather, Jacob Ludwig, and maternal grandfather, George Craig, were pioneers of Versailles township. The subject of these lines was reared and educated in Versailles township, and began life as a farmer. On the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted, April 14, 1861, at Lincoln's first call for troops, in Co. K, 14th P. V. I., and served three months; he re-enlisted in Co. K, 11th P. V. I., and served three years, and immediately on the expiration of his term re-enlisted in the same regiment and served until the close of the war, being honorably discharged June 15, 1865. During his term of service he received four wounds, and was once captured by the enemy. At the close of the war Mr. Ludwig settled in McKeesport, where he has since resided, engaged in various business enterprises. He married, Jan. 16, 1867, Rebecca, daughter of Elijah and Sarah (Shaffer) Owings, of McKeesport, and had three children: Anna V. and George A. (living) and Charles C. (deceased). Mr. Ludwig is a member of the Baptist Church and F. & A. M., and is a republican.

Valentine Vey, grocer, Braddock, only son of Valentine and Catharine (Kuntz) Vey, was born in Allegheny, Pa., Sept. 1, 1802. His father came from Germany with twenty-three years of age and located in Allegheny, where he died three months before the birth of his son, with whom the widowed mother now resides. He was educated in German and English in New York city, and finished his English training at Ebensburg, Pa. When twelve years old he went on the P. R. R. as news agent, for six years. Before he was nineteen he built a house at Brushtown, out of his savings, and has since erected another. For five years he was brakeman on a P. R. R. passenger train. In 1887 he became a partner in the firm of Vey & Dinges, who purchased a building and established a successful grocery trade at Braddock. Mr. Vey is a member of St. James R. C. Church; politically, he is a democrat. June 28, 1888, he married Miss Sadie, a native of Kearney Station, Pa., daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Troy.

William M. Wall, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of James and Mary (Mawson) Wall. He is a direct descendant of Walter Wall, one of the pioneer settlers of Forward township. He was born in December, 1834, in the first frame house erected in the township, now owned and occupied by him. He was married, in 1866, to Rebecca, daughter of William and Lucinda Finney, and they have two children—James F. and Alice K. Mr. Wall is engaged in farming; is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

L. L. Davis, attorney at law, Homestead, is a native of Shenleyville, Mercer county, Pa., and a son of John Davis, who was born near Greenwich, England. The latter came to America in 1832, became a merchant in New York city, and after the memorable "Black Friday" removed to the west to build up his health and fortune. He finally became a well-known merchant in Mercer county, Pa., where he died. The subject of this sketch received his primary education in his native county, and graduated at Allegheny College in 1878. Before graduating he studied law with W. D. Moore, of Pittsburgh, and at the latter place was admitted to the bar in 1879. He resided in Allegheny City until 1883, when he came to Homestead to live, following his profession in Pittsburgh. He married Anna B., daughter of Isiah and Catharine Carter, and they have one child, Ralph Carter. Mr. Davis is a Freemason, and a member of the I. O. O. F. of Pittsburgh, representing the latter in the Grand Lodge; is also a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and is a republican.

W. R. Andrews, farmer, postoffice Bridgeville, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, in 1817. His parents, Matthew and Sarah (Rodgers) Andrews, came to America about 1821, and located in Washington county. Matthew was a shoemaker by trade, and died at the age of fifty years. He was the father of two children: W. R. and Jane Ann. W. R. received a common-school education, and for the past thirty years has been a farmer. He learned the tanning trade, and, in connection with saddlery, followed the business for upward of twenty years. He married, in 1839, Amelia, daughter of John and Susanna Collins, and three children blessed their union: Susanna C., David H. and Frances Jane. Mr. Andrews owns 125 acres of land, which he has greatly improved. He is a republican, and has been school director and assessor of his township. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Henry Franz, superintendent, Homestead, was born in 1849, in Pittsburgh, son of John Franz, a native of Germany, who came to America at the age of eighteen years, and became a well-known contractor in Pittsburgh, where he held several offices and was active in the organization of the republican party. He married Caroline Shram, a native of France, who bore him five children: Henry, William, John Emma and Eliza. Henry received a common-school education; early in life entered the glasshouse, and later had charge of the moldshop for Canvill, Jones & Company. In Pittsburgh he married Margaret Pflug, a native of Beaver county, Pa. In April, 1887, Mr. Franz came to Homestead, where he is superintendent of the Windsor Glass-works, which was organized in August, 1886, by George Trautman, Robert Brown, William H. Aldred, George Boton and J. W. Doubleday. Of these, George Trautman is president, W. H. Aldred, secretary, and Charles H. Reed, general manager. They employ nearly two hundred hands, and principally manufacture tableware. Mr. Franz is a republican. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., Red Men and other societies.

John Osborne, M. D., Homestead, was born Feb. 1, 1858, in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, son of John and Sarah (Abernethy) Osborne, natives of County Armagh, Ireland; the former was a weaver by occupation; at the age of nineteen was induced to go to England, where he soon found work as a miner. In 1883 he came to America, minned in Westmoreland county, Pa., one year, and then sent for his family. His labors were rewarded, and he now leads a retired life in Homestead. He has a family of six children:
Hugh, Andrew William, John, Robert, Margaret and Eleanor. Of these, Hugh was a soldier in a New York regiment in the civil war. The subject of this sketch also mined in Westmoreland county, where he afterward kept a grocery-store. He helped to educate his brother William, whom he graduated at the Chicago Medical College. John worked and studied about ten years before he graduated at the Cincinnati Medical College, in class of 1883, where he took the prize in obstetrics.
He followed his profession in Westmoreland county until 1887, when he took a special course on the eye and ear, and graduated in that department. In July of the same year he located in Homestead, where he has built up a large practice, and since January, 1888, he has held the position of county physician at the city farm. He married Melissa Adams, by whom he has five children: William,
Robert, Harold, Sadie and Anna. The doctor is a member of the Western Pennsylvania Medical society; he is a republican.

WILLIAM CREIGHTON, contractor, postoffice Crafton, a son of David and Jane Creighton, was born in Ireland in 1837, came with his parents to this country in 1847, and settled in Allegheny county. His parents had a family of seven children: John, William, Elizabeth, James (deceased), and Jane (wife of Charles Pepper), George and Abram (deceased). The mother died in 1847, aged forty years, and the father in 1854, aged fifty-two. By occupation the latter was a bookkeeper. William Creighton married, in 1860, Elizabeth, daughter of Henry and Margaret Dinsmore, and their children are Jane, Margaret, William and Elizabeth.
For several years Mr. Creighton was a boatman, but since then he has been a contractor. He has held the offices of assessor, supervisor and auditor, is a member of the O. U. A. M., and is a republican. He has risen from humble circumstances to a comfortable competency.

WILLIAM BRAITHWAIT, contractor, postoffice Hulton, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, July 15, 1846, a son of Henry and Sarah (Grimes) Braithwait. His father died when William was three years old, and when he was five years he came to Pittsburgh with his mother and two sisters, Eliza and Sarah. The former now lives in Cleveland, and the latter in Allegheny City.
Between the years 1851 and 1860 Mrs. Braithwait, with her children, lived at times in Maryland, about fifteen miles from Baltimore, and in New Jersey. William attended school in these places, and in 1860 returned to Allegheny City with his mother, who feared that he would enter the navy. Here he worked in a cotton-factory for a short time, and then was for a time in the tobacco trade. In August, 1862, being a month past sixteen years of age, he enlisted in Co. E, 123d P. V. I., and for nine months served with the Army of the Potomac. He was engaged in the battle of Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, but at his time expired before the battle of Gettysburg.
He again enlisted, in August, 1864, at the call for one-hundred-days men, hoping to be at the close of the conflict, but was disappointed.
This time he did guard duty at Delaware.
Returning home, he learned the carpenter's trade with J. C. Patterson & Co., with whom he remained until 1885, when the firm dissolved partnership. In 1879 he built his present home in Verona, and in 1884 began contracting for himself at that place. He was married, in 1873, to Sarah W. Hulton, a native of this county, and a daughter of James and Susana (Warwick) Hulton. Four children have blessed this union: James, William, Bruce and Earl. The parents are members of the Verona U. P. Church. Mr.
Braithwait is a member of the G. A. R. and Royal Arcanum. In the spring of 1888 he was elected to fill an unexpired term in the Verona council.

COLUMBUS C. CARROLL, merchant, Chace, son of James and Margery Carroll, was born in Patton township in 1859. His grandfather, Thomas Carroll, came from Maryland, and located there at an early day, soon after the war of the Revolution. His children were Thomas, William, John, Nathaniel, David and James, all of whom died in the south but James. William Carroll was governor of Tennessee three terms, and was colonel of Tennessee volunteers at the battle of New Orleans. James was born in 1798, in Patton township, and married Margery, daughter of Saul Stewart, of McKeesport. They located in Patton township, and had a family of twelve children, viz.: Thomas M. (deceased), James L., Stewart, William, Henry, Robert
(deceased), C. C., Mary J., Margaret, Nancy (deceased), Elizabeth and Margery (deceased).
Columbus C. was born in Patton township, and in 1873 married Mary Jane Wilkinson and located at Ellrod's in 1877, where he is engaged in business as dealer in general merchandise. He and wife are members of the First Presbyterian Church of McKeesport.

JOHN HASTINGS, merchant, Verona, was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1847, a son of Peter and Sarah (Fletcher) Hastings. His father is a farmer in England, but his mother died in 1870. John attended school until he was seven years old. In 1857 Mr. Hastings married Susan Bristow, a native of Lincolnshire, England, born in 1847, a daughter of John and Ann (Francis) Bristow. Two weeks after marriage Mr. and Mrs. Hastings came to America, spending the first two years in Oneida county, N. Y. He then came to Pittsburgh and worked in the Crescent Steel-works, and later moved to Verona, where he learned for the Dexter Spring-works for nine years. In 1875 he started a grocery-store, for which his wife managed. After five years he gave up teaming, and has since given his attention to the store. Mr. and Mrs. Hastings have three children: Gertrude Ann, James Bristow and Maud, the eldest being in the store. Mr. Hastings is a republican, and he and his wife are members of the U. P. Church. His maternal great-grandmother died at the advanced age of 102 years.

JAMES SCARBOROUGH, farmer, postoffice Remington, was born in Maryland about 1828, a son of John Scarborough, who was an American, as were many generations of the family. James was left an orphan at six years of age, and thrown upon his own resources; his life has been a varied one. At the age of nineteen he went to California, where he remained three years, engaged in gold-mining, hunting, etc., and has traveled through many of the states. He finally settled at his present home in 1861, and purchased a tract of land containing seventy acres. Four children were born to Mr. Scarborough: Henry E., Joseph S., Lewis and Charles W., all of whom are engaged in various occupations. Mr. Scarborough is a member of the U. P. Church, and in politics is independent.

CHARLES THOMAS TAYLOR, builder, postoffice Turtle Creek, is a grandson of Jacob Taylor, a revolutionary soldier, who settled on a farm in Westmoreland county about 1800. William, a son of Jacob, born in 1807, married Louisa Craig, of Scotch descent, and settled on the Greensburg pike, in Versailles township, where he engaged in wagon-making. He died in Westmoreland county, in September, 1885, aged seventy-eight. Charles T. Taylor was born March 9, 1835, in Versailles, received a common-school education, and worked with his father until twenty-two years old, when he took up carpenter-work. In 1859 he married Eliza Jane Maxwell, a native of Patton township, and a daughter of Hugh and Agnes Maxwell, of Ireland. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have five children, all with their parents: James Maxwell, employed atHomestead Steel-works; Samuel Alfred, a civil engineer; Agnes Louisa, and Charles Francis, assisting his father.

JOHN WATSON, superintendent, postoffice Homestead, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1838, a son of James Watson, a native of the same place. He received a common-school education in his native country, immigrated to America at the age of seventeen, and worked for some time for Smith, Varner & Co., of Pittsburgh. He then came to Six-Mile Ferry, where he teamed for James H. Hay. His faithfulness and thoroughness soon gained for him the esteem and confidence of his employers and his sons, who subsequently inherited the Hay estate. Following are the family of Thomas: Mr. Watson soon became general manager and superintendent at Six-Mile Ferry, which position he maintains to the present day. Mr. Watson married Mary J., daughter of Frederick Rineman, and two children have blessed them—James H. and Mabel Watson. Mr. Watson and his family are members of the M. E. Church. In politics he is a republican.

JAMES STORER, carpenter, Elizabeth, is a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Stewart) Storer. Their parents were natives of New Jersey, and came to Westmoreland county in a very early day, the father of our subject being born there April 1, 1800. He was reared a farmer, and afterward settled in this township, where James was born Feb. 7, 1834. At an early age the latter learned the trade of ship-carpenter, which he has since followed. In 1864 he enlisted in the United States navy and served until the close of the war. He married, Sept. 25, 1859, Julias, daughter of James and Annie (Whittaker) Lennox, of Brownsville, and they have five living children: Alice (Mrs. James Lynch), Hattie (Mrs. Charles Snowden), Clarence, Arthur and Annie, all citizens of Elizabeth. Mr. Storer is a member of Brownsville Lodge, No. 51, and Encampment No. 70, I. O. O. F.; K. of P. No. 357, and J. W. Stephens Post, No. 211, G. A. R. At present he is a member of the school board of the borough.

JAMES C. CUBBAGE, lumber-merchant, postoffice Putnam, was born in this county in 1853, and is descended from one of the oldest families in this section of Allegheny county. It was about the time of the first settlement of this county that James Cubbage, with his mother and two brothers, came from Ireland, and purchased some 350 acres of land in Allegheny county, then in Virginia. James was eighteen years of age when he located here; he was always a farmer, and erected buildings on the property he purchased, parts of which are yet standing. He married Jane Gillfillian, and became the father of three sons and five daughters; he died in 1853. Of his children, Joseph, who was born in 1819 on the farm purchased by his father, married, Eliza Jane, the oldest of his children, of whom four daughters and two sons are living. Joseph was a farmer, and died in 1874, aged fifty-seven years; his widow survives him, aged fifty-seven. James C. is the eldest son, and was educated at the public schools. He was a farmer previous to 1881, but since that time has been successfully engaged in lumber business and operating a planing-mill. He is a Freemason, a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a democrat.

JACOB WEINMAN, coal-operator, Wilkinsburg, was born in Württemberg, Germany, in 1842, son of Casper and Dorothea (Bulling) Weinman, who came to America in 1853, and located at McKeesport. The father was a miller, and died in 1858, aged fifty-eight; his widow died in 1884, at the age of seventy-two. Following are the family of Jacob: Mary (Kraft), deceased; Matthias, in Pittsburgh; Veronica (Kreider), in Wilkinsburg; Christina (Rudolph), in Buena Vista; Jacob and Dorothea (Lamp). When thirteen years old, Jacob Weinman commenced mining in a coalpit, and continued at same seventeen years. For the last seventeen years he has been an operator of mines about Wilkinsburg, and is now owner of four hundred acres in Poon, Wilkins and Sterrett townships. In 1888 he built his handsome residence, corner of Coal and Franklin streets, and is the owner of six houses in the borough. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, a Lutheran in religious faith, and a republican in politics. In 1862 he married Anna Barbara Vogel, a native of the same locality as himself, and they have six children living: Jacob, Emma (Mrs. Herbert Crowley), Joshua, Minnie, Dorothea and Anna Bolle. Three died in infancy: Charles, William and James.

Frank Bretthalle, grocer, postoffice Putnam, was born in Prussia, in 1839, a son of Frederick (a farmer) and Louisa (Ressmair) Bretthalle, also of Prussia. They had six children, all of whom are living. Frank came to America in 1867, and up to 1881 engaged in the grocery business in Pittsburgh. In the spring of 1881 he came to Mansfield, and has since remained here, carrying a full line of groceries, having one of the finest stores of the kind in the town. He married, in 1875, Louisa, daughter of Christian Luebbe, of Prussia, and five children have blessed their union: Frederick Lewis (now aged twelve years), Harry Frank (aged ten years), Minnie (aged eight years), Tillie (aged five years) and Frank (aged four years). Mr. Bretthalle is a member of the G. L. Church, and is a democrat.

Abram Leonidas Dollen, merchant, Verona, was born in Florence, Boone county, Ky., a son of Robert William and Elizabeth Eleanor (Staunifer) Dollen, of Kentucky. His grandfather, William Dollen, was said to be a descendant of John Randolph, of Roanoke, and the Staunifer blood is English. Robert Dollen was a slaveholder and extensive planter, and sent his son to school at Louisville, Mo., for five years. During vacations he was employed as clerks in stores, and after completing his education he engaged in the manufacture of tobacco at Louisville, Mo., and in Covington, Louisville, New Albany and other points. He became a resident of Pittsburgh in 1870, and engaged in the wholesale drug trade for over ten years. In 1881 he opened a general store in Verona, where he has since resided. Mr. Dollen was married, in 1874, to Amelia Alma, daughter of William Loder and Mary (Conning) Meyrick, all born in England. The family is united with Trinity Episcopal Church in Pittsburgh, and includes two children, William Meyrick and Anna Meyrick. Mr. Dollen was a Republican before the war. He served six months, enlisting, in 1861, in the 5th Mo. S. M., and helped to keep eleven counties clear of rebel soldiery and guerrillas. He is now a pronounced democrat.

John Holmes, farmer, postoffice Petterson, emigrated from the north of England, and, with his wife, came to Allegheny county about 1824, enrolling in Temperanceville. He married Miss Bell and they were the parents of four children. He was a mechanic in his day, and a highly respected citizen. John Holmes, Jr., was born in Temperanceville in 1843; he was educated in the public schools of Pittsburgh, and farming has always been his occupation. He was married, in 1873, to a daughter of F. B. Sayers, of Mount Washington, and two children have been born to them: John and Eunice. Mr. Holmes is a member of the O. U. A. M., and has been a school director. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and is a republican.

William Dewalt, gardener, postoffice Chartiers, is a native of Stowe township, and was born in 1857 to Adam and Christina Dewalt, former of whom was reared on his father's farm in Germany. On coming to this country, in 1848, he (Adam) soon found himself destitute of funds, and was obliged to pawn his trunk in Buffalo, N. Y., to raise funds to bring him to Pittsburgh, where he obtained work on a farm at from five to eight dollars per month. In a few years he was succeeding very well, but about 1863 his health failed, and he has never been able to do much work since—in fact none at all at the past six years. His wife died in 1882, at the age of fifty-nine years, after twelve or fourteen years' sickness. Mr. Dewalt is now seventy years of age, and a great sufferer, making his home with his son William. Adam Dewalt married the widow Stipe, a daughter of Jacob Minke, of this county, and became the father of the following-named children: William M., Adam J., Jacob and John. Adam's brothers and sisters were Catherine, Elizabeth, Margaret, Philomena and Jacob. William Dewalt (our subject) has always kindly remained at home, and cared for his parents. He is one of Stowe township's most worthy citizens. He is the owner of a considerable amount of property at Duffy's station, in Stowe township.

James Brown, brick-manufacturer, McKeesport, was born in Pittsburgh, April 9, 1843, a son of Robert and Mary (Ray) Brown. His father, who was a cooper by trade, was a native of Carlisle, Pa., and settled in Pittsburgh about 1805, but is now a resident of Allegheny. James was reared and educated in Pittsburgh, where he learned the trade of brickmaker, in which he has since successfully continued, and has the oldest establishment in that line of business in the city. His wife was Mary J. Forsythe, a daughter of Alexander Forsythe, Esq., of Beaver county. Mr. Brown served three years and three months in the war of the rebellion, in Co. B, 46th P. V., and participated in the battles of Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Atlanta, Resaca, Lookout Mountain, besides other engagements.

John Armstrong Cowan, farmer, postoffice Upper St. Clair, was born Oct. 4, 1846, in Baldwin township, a son of John and Louise E. (Pryor) Cowan, natives of this county, born, respectively, Feb. 22, 1810, and July 30, 1815. His father was a farmer, born 1841 began keeping the Union hotel, on the Brownsville road. He died June 14, 1888, his wife May 11, same year. Our subject's paternal grandparents, David and Margaret Cowan, both born in 1775, came here from Chester county; the former was a carpenter and farmer, and died at the age of ninety-three years. The maternal grandparents of John A. Cowan were Silas D. and Elizabeth Pryor, who died April 1, 1851, and in 1850, respectively. Our subject received his education in the Moore schoolhouse and Hayslet Academy, on the Brownsville road. His father came to the present farm in 1868, and John lived at home and had charge of his father's farm until the latter's death, when he became the owner. He also conducted a sawmill on the place from 1864 to 1878. He married, March 12, 1873, Sarah V., who was born in Allegheny City, May 12, 1851, a daughter of John and Anna (Richardson) Cinnamond. Her father was a machinist in Pittsburgh, and was born at Lawrenceville in 1810; her mother was born in 1815, on Penn avenue, Pittsburgh. Mrs. Cowan's maternal grandparents, Thomas and Jane (Benny) Richardson, came from Ireland, as did also her paternal grandparents, John and Jane (Johnson) Cinnamond. John Cinnamond was a chemist in the Pittsburgh arsenal. Mr. and Mrs. Cowan have one child, John Pryor. They are members of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Cowan is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F. Mrs. Cowan's father was a colonel in the Mexican war, and at the beginning of the civil war enlisted with the three-months men, then joined the Black Horse Cavalry for three years' service, and was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg.
GENEALOGY AND BIOGRAPHY.

R. J. Edie, teller First National Bank, McKeesport, was born in Allegheny City, Sept. 9, 1854, a son of William H. and Mary J. (Wilson) Edie, also natives of Allegheny. His paternal grandfather, Guyan Edie, a native of Virginia, was among the pioneers of Allegheny. The subject of these lines was educated in Pittsburgh, and commenced the world as a bill-clerk in the wholesale dry-goods house of Arbuthnot & Shannon, in that city. From there he went to Texas and spent four years on the frontier, moving thence to St. Louis, Mo., where, for two years, he was bookkeeper in a large wholesale dry-goods house. Returning to Pittsburgh, he served for a time as teller in the Penn Bank, and later was employed by the P. & L. R. R. Co. as paymaster, a position that he filled to the entire satisfaction of that great company, and which demonstrated the confidence and esteem in which he was held by those who had charge of great public interests. In March, 1886, Mr. Edie came to McKeesport, where he has since resided, occupying the position referred to above, and attending also to the duties of treasurer of the New Enterprise Building and Loan association, to which office he was chosen when that association was formed. He belongs to a family noted for its scholastic attainments, some of them having been prominent in literary circles, and some in the professions, several eminent divines of the name being widely known in the councils of the orthodox churches.

Mr. Edie married, in 1871, Emily, daughter of Albert and Emily (Brown) Culbertson, of Monongahela City, and has one son living, Robert B. Mr. Edie is a member of the Presbyterian Church; is a member of the R. A., and is a deacon.

WILLIAM BARD BRUSH, merchant, Turtle Creek, was born at Caveltsville, Westmoreland county, June 11, 1860, a son of Daniel S. Brush, and a grandson of Robert Brush, an early settler in Westmoreland county. Daniel S. was born in that county, and married Susan, daughter of Joseph Mehaify, who came from Ireland to Westmoreland county, where Mrs. Brush was born in 1828. Daniel Brush was a tanner and shoemaker. In 1861 he enlisted for one year in Co. B, 56th P. V., and on the expiration of his term re-enlisted for the war. He served with the Army of the Potomac, sharing in all its hardships and battles until his right arm was taken off by a fragment of a shell, before Petersburg. He died in 1871, at the age of forty-nine; his widow still resides at Caveltsville. William B. Brush was reared in his native village, and attended the public schools. After serving a short time as clerk in a store at Larimer's Station, he commenced, in 1880, in mercantile business at Stewart's Station, where he was very successful. In 1887 he bought the stock of C. A Black at Turtle Creek; is doing a profitable business, and carries about five thousand dollars' worth of general merchandise. He is connected with the U. P. Church, and is a republican. In September, 1885, he married Ida Haymaker, and they have one son, Harry Berlin.

CLARENCE HARRY CHURCH, fireman, post-office Turtle Creek, was born in Allegheny City, July 27, 1859, a son of Calvin Church. Nearly all his life has been passed here, and his education was acquired in the public schools of Turtle Creek. When sixteen years old he began work about the coal-mines, and soon after was employed as a brakeman, and later as a fireman, on his father's coal-trains. For the last five years he has been employed on the P. R. R., and will soon be promoted to engineer. Mr. Church is associated with the Jr. O. U. A. M. and the Masonic fraternity, and with his wife attends the M. E. Church. Like his father and brother, he supports the republican party. Jan. 19, 1888, he married Sadie E. Roberts, who was born in Sewickley township. They are established in a home recently purchased by Mr. Church.

FRANK G. BERGMAN, liquor-salesman, McKeesport, was born in Hanover, Germany, Jan. 15, 1851, a son of Frank H. and Elizabeth (Busch) Bergman. He was reared and educated in his home town, graduated from Gottingen College as a surgeon, and practiced his profession eight years. He came to America in November, 1880, and settled in McKeesport, where he worked in the National Rolling-mills five months. He then served five months as a nurse at the Western Pennsylvania hospital, Pittsburgh. In 1888 he emigrated to the western part of the state and retired from the liquor business in McKeesport, in which he was successfully engaged until May 1, 1888, and is now acting as a wholesale agent for foreign houses. He is a member of the G. C. Church, and in politics is independent.

WILLIAM W. McLAUGHLIN, engineer, Homestead, was born Aug. 31, 1847, in Mifflin township, Allegheny county, the son of William and Jane McLaughlin, of Scotch descent. His paternal grandfather was born in the United States; was a farmer, and one of the earliest pioneers in Westmoreland county, Va. William W. is one of six children: James, Milton, Adeline, Sarah E., Melvina and William W. He was reared on the river, learned engineering, followed it on different boats, and since 1886 has been engineer of the beam-mill in the Homestead Steel-works. In 1864, at the age of seventeen, he enlisted in the 18th P. C., Co. F, and served until the surrender of Lee, participating in the battle of Winchester and others. His father and two brothers were also in the army. He married Catherine Fickson, a native of this county, and they have seven children: Raymond, Thomas, Frances, Adeline, Catharine, William and George. Mr. McLaughlin is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the R. A., and is a democrat.

JOHN THOMPSON, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, was born in County Armstrong, Ireland, in 1811. His parents, John and Elizabeth (McMullen) Thompson, came to Pennsylvania in 1812, and settled soon after on the farm where our subject now resides. The father died at the age of one hundred and two, and his mother at the age of forty-five. They reared four sons, of whom the eldest and youngest are now deceased; James, John, William and Alexander. John has passed his life in the township, always residing on the home farm. He has been a lifelong republican, and bears the sobriquet of "Honest John." In 1843 he married Mary McKnight, a native of Washington county, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Connor) McKnight. Of thirteen children born to Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, six died in infancy. The following are the names and residences of the others: William and John, in Cannonsburg, Ohio; Anna Mary, wife of Frank McClure, in Patton township; Nancy Jane, wife of David Clements, in Plum; James, in Patton; Elmer, with his parents, and Rebecca, wife of George Anderson, in Munhallville. Mr. Thompson is a member of the U. P. Church.

SAMUEL ALEXANDER STEEL, contractor, Wilkinsburg, was born in Washington county, Pa., July 14, 1843, son of James and Elizabeth (McKinley) Steel, natives of Ireland, who married in Philadelphia, and came west. The father died when Samuel was four years old, and the latter was reared in Pittsburgh. When eighteen years old he began to learn the bricklayer’s trade. In 1869, with a partner named McLaughlin, he engaged in contracting for brickwork. Two years later they dissolved, and next year he was associated with his present partner, Alexander Hall. This firm has put up many of the finest buildings in Pittsburgh, including the Central high-school, Hamilton building, Horne’s block, on Wood street, McClintock and Westinghouse buildings. He became a resident of Wilkinsburg in 1872, and ten years later built his present handsome residence. He is connected with the I. O. O. F., is a Scottish Rite Mason; supports the republican party and the U. P. Church. In 1887 Mr. Steel married Elizabeth Mitchell, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., and daughter of Robert and Mary Mitchell, who were born in Ireland. Following are the names of Mr. and Mrs. Steel's children: Mary Jane, James Hall, Robert John, Samuel Alex., Elizabeth, George Glass and Royal. Mrs. S. is a member of the U. P. Church.

SIDNEY H. TOTTEN, accountant, Pittsburgh, was born in that city Sept. 8, 1843. John Totten, his grandfather, was born in Orange county, N. Y., Aug. 5, 1770, and removed to Westmoreland county, Pa., near Greensburg. His son, William J. Totten, father of Sidney H., was also a native of Orange county, N. Y., born March 15, 1804, and came to Western Pennsylvania with his father’s family in 1808. He afterward settled in Pittsburgh, and established the Fort Pitt foundry, under the firm name of Knapp & Totten. At about the time of the Mexican war they manufactured large quantities of shot, shell and cannon, some of them of large caliber, known as the "Rodman ordinance." The subject of this sketch was educated in this city, and, like his father, was engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel. He has always been a stanch republican. When the civil war broke out he was young and in delicate health, and was prevailed upon by his widowed mother and others not to enlist. He frequently visited the theater of hostilities, aided in raising men and money to resist the invasion of Pennsylvania by Gen. Lee. He was tendered a commission as captain by the late Hon. Thomas M. Howe, acting adjutant-general of volunteers under Gov. Curtin. Mr. Totten is now connected with the department of public safety in Pittsburgh.

Dr. E. G. HUSLER, Mansfield, was born in this county in 1855. R. Husler, his father, is by trade an auger-maker, which he followed for a number of years, but is now engaged in farming in this county. He married Mary Phillips, who has borne him seven children, six of whom are now living. E. G. being the third child. He was educated at the public schools in this county, and at an early age commenced the study of medicine under Dr. George Cheeseman, a graduate of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, which institution our subject entered in 1878.
graduating therefrom in 1880 as physician and surgeon. He immediately commenced practice in this county, at Walker's Mills, where he remained two years. In 1882 he came to Mansfield. He married, Oct. 13, 1888, Hattie, daughter of William Steen, of this county, and one son and one daughter—Edward Gregg and Edna Pearl—have been born to them. The doctor is a democrat.

John Albert, farmer, postoffice White Ash, son of Nicholas and Anna Albert, was born in Bavaria, Germany. He was reared on a farm, and when twenty-two years old emigrated to America, and dwelt many years in McKeesport, this county. For thirty years he was engaged in digging coal, and by industry and frugality laid up enough to buy the farm which he now occupies. This he purchased in 1884, and built his residence. He is a communicant of the R. C. Church of Verona. In 1851 he married at McKeesport, Sophia Robini, a native of Prussia, who died in 1871, the mother of four children, three of whom are now living: Mary (Mrs. Peter Weiss) resides with Mr. Albert; John and Christian, in East Liberty; Katrina, the third child (Mrs. Kopel), is deceased.

William W. Anderson, machinist, Wilkinsburg, was born Oct. 6, 1851, in Allegheny City. After the family came to Wilkinsburg he attended Prof. Ludden's academy, and when eighteen years old entered the machine-shops of the Westinghouse Air-brake company, in Pittsburgh. With the exception of two years, when employed in plumbing in Pittsburgh, he has been with the company ever since, and is now engaged in the manufacture of gas-meters. Jan. 30, 1873, he was married to Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Mary Maloy, of Irish descent, and during that year built his present home on Rebecca street. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are associated with the Presbyterian Church, and he follows the political precepts of his fathers. Following are the names of their children: Mary Malazena, Edna Jane, William, Henry Newton, Thomas J., Joseph K. and Grace.

William C. Neemes, superintendent of McKeesport Gas company, was born in Pittsburgh, March 8, 1849, a son of George and Mary C. (Calhoun) Neemes. His father, a native of Whitehaven, England, a blacksmith and machinist by trade, settled in Pittsburgh in 1855; worked on the Pittsburgh Gas company's buildings, and was the efficient superintendent of the works for thirty-five years. His wife was a daughter of William and Mary Calhoun, early settlers of Pittsburgh, who occupied a farm where a portion of the city now stands. George Neemes, by this marriage, had seven children: John (deceased), Phebe (deceased), William C., Jennie (deceased), George, Thomas (deceased) and Norwell. William C. was reared in Pittsburgh, and was graduated from the public schools, Pittsburgh University and Iron City Business College. He afterward served an apprenticeship of five years at the machinist's trade, and during that time studied mechanical and architectural drawing under Prof. Vandermalin. While serving his apprenticeship he was appointed assistant superintendent of the Pittsburgh Gas company, in which capacity he served one year, after which he served three years as mechanical and architectural draftsman for the same company. He was then employed by the Pittsburgh Waterworks company as superintendent of laying all the water-mains, but resigned his position, and was appointed superintendent of the Consolidated Gas company, of Pittsburgh, in which capacity he served two years. During that time he rebuilt and remodeled the works of the company. In 1886 he came to McKeesport, where he has since been the efficient superintendent of the McKeesport Gas company. Mr. Neemes is an active J. & A. M. He has served two years as a member of the McKeesport council, and is a stanch republican.

S. O. Rhodes, lumber-merchant, postoffice Elizabeth, a son of Frederick and Catherine Rhodes, was born in Jefferson township, in 1838, and made his home with his parents until 1862. He then married Rachel, daughter of Jesse Cunningham, of Baldwin township, and after marriage located in Elizabeth township, where he built a steam sawmill with a daily capacity of ten thousand feet of lumber. This mill he wore out, and then erected another of about the same capacity, and is engaged in building barges, coalboats, etc.; is also a general dealer in lumber. Their children were Jesse (deceased), Samuel O., George Q., Florella May (deceased), Howard, Robert S., and Rachel L. During the war he was in the three-months service, in Capt. Harmar's company. Mr. Rhodes is descended from one of the old families of Allegheny county.

John M. Lewis was born near Nobles-town, North Fayette township, Feb. 25, 1824, on the old homestead of his father and grandfather, a son of John and Margaret (McClellan) Lewis. Mrs. Lewis was a daughter of Alexander and Nancy McClellan, old settlers of North Fayette township. John Lewis was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., a son of William, who was born in Easton, Pa., and was one of the earliest settlers of North Fayette township, Allegheny county. He married a Miss McAllister, and moved to Montgomery county, Pa., John and Margaret (McClellan) Lewis settled on the old homestead in North Fayette. They were Presbyterians, and had thirteen children. The living are Alexander P., John M., James Mc., Nancy (widow of Robert Stevenson), Mary (wife of Joseph Hamilton) and John M. Our subject married, Feb. 10, 1848, Elizabeth J. Stewart, born in Findlay township, a daughter of James and Isabella (Gladden) Stewart. Her father was born in Findlay township, a son of James and Margaret (McCune) Stewart, early settlers of Findlay. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis settled on their present farm soon after their marriage. They had five children: J. Stewart, married to Ella Hamilton, residing in Washington county, Pa.; Margaret M., married to Murray Cook, residing in Washington county; John P. A. (deceased), married to Jennie Harper; Mary, married to R. C. Hamilton, residing in Findlay township; Wilson McBl. L., married to Maggie Ayel, residing in Findlay. Mr. Lewis owns 107 acres of land; has been the officer of township collector, treasurer and constable. He and Mrs. Lewis are members of the Presbyterian Church at Hebron.

William Taylor, farmer, postoffice McKeenport, son of Joseph and Ann (Kissick) Taylor, was born in Versailles township, on the farm he now owns, Dec. 25, 1813. His parents were natives of Ireland, came to America and located in Lancaster county, Pa., and then removed to near Cannonsburg, Pa., and in 1812 purchased the farm now owned by G. William, of 208 acres, where they lived and died. They reared a family of eight children, viz.: Martha (deceased), May (deceased), Margaret (deceased), John (deceased), Anna (deceased), Andrew (deceased), Sarah (now Mrs. Samuel Boal) and William. William Taylor was born, reared and educated in Versailles township, and in 1851 married Amanda, daughter of Peter Whitehead, of Versailles township, and then purchased the old homestead. To them have been born twelve children, viz.: Arabella, Oliver, Amelia, Priscilla, Lincoln R., Sophia, John W., Sarah E. (deceased), Rebecca J. (deceased), Harry W., Charles H. and Clyde B. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are members of the Presbyterian Church, and in politics he is a republican.

John G. Oeffner, justice of the peace, Homestead, was born in Pittsburgh, on the site of old Fort Duquesne. His father, John F. Oeffner, native of Germany, came to America in 1851, and is yet a well-known resident of Pittsburgh. John G. was educated in his native city, where he afterward became interested in the oil business, being a wholesale jobber for three years. He then became a general contractor of bricklaying, which he followed for seven years, and during that time superintended the construction of the brick buildings at the Homestead Steel-mills. He has been a resident of Homestead for a number of years, and in 1886 was elected justice of the peace, which position he has filled with tact and ability. He is also in the insurance business, representing the Germania, New York, and Dwelling House, Boston, Mass. Mr. Oeffner is one of the stockholders and directors of the First National Bank at Homestead. He is a member of the K. of P., K. of G. E., Mystic Chain and order of Red Men. He is a republican.

John Josiah Walker, justice of the peace, Wilkinsburg, was born in Allegheny City, Feb. 1, 1841. His grandfather, Joseph Walker, was many years keeper of the prison in Londonderry, Ireland, and was twice married. James, a son of the first wife, was brought to America by an elder sister when nine years old. When sixteen he paid a visit to his native land, and his visit there occupied nine months. His father came to this country in 1850, and passed his remaining days here. James Walker was forty years keeper of the Western penitentiary, and three years steward of the Allegheny County Home. He died in 1878, aged seventy-three years; his widow is now living at Mercer, Pa., in her eightieth year. He helped to organize the First U. P. Church in Allegheny, and was an elder for fifty years. He was originally a whig, afterward a democrat, but became a republican after the administration of James Buchanan. John J., who is the eighth of twelve children, attended the public school till fourteen years of age; then commenced the trade of painter, and was a partner in a firm of painters at the outbreak of the civil war. He was one of the first thirty men who left Allegheny to enter the Union army. After three months' service in the 7th P. V. I. he helped organize Bat. I, 112th, taking the rank of second lieutenant. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Co. G, 139th Regt. In 1864 he was made hospital steward in the regular army, and was such served till Dec. 10, 1865. He took part in twenty-three regular engagements, and at the battle of the Wilderness he received a scalp-wound, was shot through the finger and had three ribs broken by the recoil of his gun. In the spring of 1867 he came to Wilkinsburg, and carried on a successful painting business till compelled by ill health to abandon it. While Wilkinsburg was part of Pittsburgh he was the alderman; has been three times elected justice of the peace, and was appointed to fill vacancy for two years; was six years deputy clerk of courts, and is now the republican nominee for jury commissioner; is a member of the M. E. Church; Past D. D. G. M. of the I. O. O. F., Past Representative C. of P., member of the G. A. R., Veteran Legion, Jr. O. U. A. M. and Heptasophs. In 1861 Mr. Walker was married to Sarah Ann, daughter of Jacob and Ann Gould, of same German extraction as Jay Gould. One son and one daughter have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Walker: Sarah A. M., a teacher in the Wilkinsburg public school; Loyal John, a bookkeeper for the Singer Manufacturing company, Pittsburgh.

Samuel S. Meanor, merchant and ferryman, postoffice Stoops, was born in Moon township, Jan. 31, 1824, a son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Davidson) Meanor. Isaac Meanor was born in Findlay township, Allegheny county, Pa.; his parents were natives of Ireland, and Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. Isaac Meanor’s grandmother, Sarah (Scott) Meanor, was a cousin of Gen. Winfield Scott. Her father and brothers were soldiers in the Revolution, and both her parents drank much wine. Isaac Meanor’s parents had four daughters and nine sons, all of whom lived to be old and had families. Isaac Meanor and wife were-members of the Presbyterian Church; they had nine children, six living: Martha (wife of Roy Powell, of Mansfield, Ind.), Samuel S., Rebecca (unmarried, residing at Stoops' Ferry), Margaret (wife of John A. Porter, in Evansville, Ind.), Mary (widow of James Kain, in Chester, Ill.) and Jane (wife of Washington McCartney, in Rochester, Beaver county, Pa.). Samuel S. remained on the farm until he was fifteen years old, when he began life for himself. He learned the cooper's trade and followed it at Clinton, Allegheny county, until Feb. 28, 1852. He then went to California, mined and prospected until 1855, when he returned to Clinton, worked at the carpenter's trade until 1858, and then bought a general store there. He sold out in 1864, purchased a farm in Moon township, and in February, 1884, bought his present property at Stoops' Ferry.

He has been twice married; first, Jan. 27, 1847, to Isabella Hood, who was born in Findlay township, this county, daughter of Nathan and Jane (Davison) Hood, natives of Ireland and Scotch-Irish Presbyterians. Mr. and Mrs. Meanor had five children, three living: Winfield S. (a fruit-grower and gardener, at Sharon, married to Nancy McKinley), Sierra Nevada (managing the store at Stoops' Ferry for his father, and is married to Alice White), E. E. (a carpenter on the P. & L. E. R. R., married to Nancy Win ters, and residing at Stoops' Ferry). Mrs. Meanor died in April, 1862, a member of the M. E. Church, and Mr. Meanor next married, in 1875, Mrs. Margaret F. Elder, a daughter of David and Jane (Flannigan) Moody. Mr. and Mrs. Meanor have had five children, three living: Elizabeth G. (wife of John Springer, farmer, of Moon township), and Laura and Margaret L. (who reside with their parents). Mrs. Meanor and daughters are members of the Presbyterian Church at Sharon. Mr. Meanor cast his first vote for his relative, Winfield Scott, for president, and since the organization of the republican party has been one of its warm supporters.

George Herwig, supervisor, Dravosburg, was born in Weida, Roda, Hessen, Germany, a son of Adam and Gillise Herwig, who were tillers of the soil in their native land, and came to America in 1845, where the father engaged in the butcher business for forty-five years, of which seventeen were spent in Pittsburgh. They were the parents of the following children: Elizabeth, Doro thea, Barbara, Catharine, Margaret, Daniel, Jacob, George and Adam. Of these Jacob sacrificed his life in the service of his country at the second battle of Bull run. Our subject came to America in 1888; he came to Dravosburg in August, 1855, but for the last seven years has not been in business. For the last four years he has been supervisor of the road, and has given general satisfaction. He married Louise Kaufman, a native of Germany, and they have six children: Daniel M., William, Mrs. Ella M. Robison, Louis, Paulina and Anna. The sons are employed in the National Rolling-mill at McKeesport, where Daniel M. is head bookkeeper, and William foreman. Mr. and Mrs. Herwig are members of the Presbyterian Church, and he is a republican.

J. S. Bohn, mill foreman, McKeesport, is a native of Frederick county, Md., where he was reared and educated. He is a miller, and followed that business seven years. Later he spent several years in traveling. He located in McKeesport, and entered the employ of W. D. Wood & Co., where, by strict attention to business, he became thoroughly posted in all departments of the mill. In 1875 he was appointed foreman of the patent planishing Russian sheet-iron department of the works.

Dr. R. H. Ramage, Mansfield, was born near Pittsburgh in 1848. His father, William Ramage, a farmer, married Sarah Wilson, and by her had seven children, of whom the doctor is the third child. He was educated at the public schools, and in 1868 commenced the study of medicine under Dr. N. D. White, of Allegheny City. He entered the Hahnemann College of Homeopathy, at Cleveland, in 1870, graduating in 1872, and commenced the practice of his profession in Allegheny county. He then remained one year with his preceptor, and in 1873 located in Mansfield, where he has since resided. He married, in 1881, Sarah E., daughter of Elmo bert Belson, of Pittsburgh. Dr. Ramage is the only physician of his school in the town, and has a large patronage. He is a member of the American Institute of Homeopathy, the Homeopathic Medical Society of Pennsylvania, and Allegheny County Homeopathic Medical Society. He is a Presbyterian and a republican.

George Bratten Armstrong, farmer, postoffice Logan's Ferry, was born in Plum township in 1834, a son of Samson and Sarah (Bratten) Armstrong, who were also natives of this county. Samson was a carpenter, and also owned farms, but in his later days abandoned his trade and attended solely to farming. He was an old-time whig, later a republican, and held several township offices. He died Feb. 13, 1885, aged ninety-one years; his widow died in 1887, aged eighty years. James Armstrong, father of our subject, was of Scotch-Irish descent, and came from the north of Ireland. George B. received his education in the common schools of this county, and started for himself in 1855, farming on leased land until 1876, although he had bought a farm in Westmoreland county in 1870. In 1876 he bought his present farm, and in 1887 sold the one in Westmoreland county. In 1872, in company with others, he bought a lot in Parnassus, and built the Odd Fellows' hall which he still owns. He married, Oct. 12, 1854, Nancy Elliott, of Plum township, a daughter of Robert and Margaret (Fryer) Elliott, natives of this county. Mr. Elliott was born in 1809, and died in 1869. Mrs. Armstrong died in September, 1884, the mother of twelve children: James Calvin (professor in Pittsburgh Academy, formerly principal of Oakdale Academy, and a graduate of Millersville State Normal School), Robert Elliott (died Feb. 24, 1877, aged twenty-one years), Minerva Jane, Maggie E. (a teacher), Samson (at Duff's College, also a teacher for four years), Sally M. (a dressmaker at East End), John Lincoln, Rebecca, George Edward, Nanna A., Lizziè S. and Gertic. All are members of the Presbyterian Church at Parnassus, of which Mr. Armstrong was a deacon, and married by the O. F. O., and has been for six years representative to the Grand Lodge. He is also a member of the Sons of Temperance, and has been school director, supervisor and judge of election. His maternal grandfather, George Bratten, was a farmer, and a trader between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, transporting salt one way and spices the other. He was a native of Pennsylvania, of Scotch-Irish descent, and died about 1828.

William McLarn, retired, postoffice Walker's Mills, was born in Allegheny county, a son of Hugh McLarn, a farmer, who came from County Down, Ireland, at an early date, married Jane Harper, and became the father of nine children. He first purchased land in Beaver county in partnership with two brothers, but afterward came to Findlay township, this county, and purchased land from Mr. McCandless, the pioneer. William McLarn was reared on a farm in Findlay township, where he resided until 1847. He was educated at the old log schoolhouse, early in life learned the cooper's trade, and worked for one firm thirty-seven years. He now owns one hundred acres of land, eiglty of which are underlaid with coal. Mr. McLarn married, in 1839, Adina, daughter of Samuel Thornberg, and seven children have blessed their union: William, Olive, Elizabeth, Mary, Jane, Martha and Samuel. Mr. McLarn superintends the work on his farm. He has been successful, and is now enjoying rest from the labors of a well-spent life. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and is a republican.

G. L. Reiber, secretary and treasurer McKeepost Light company, McKeepost, was born in that borough April 32, 1853, a son of Andrew and Augusta (Manns) Reiber, natives of Germany, who settled in McKeepost about 1850. Andrew was a blacksmith, and on coming to McKeepost opened a shop, which he conducted up to 1876, when he retired. He reared a family of seven children: Georgiana (Mrs. George Snyder), George L., Fred, Adelia (Mrs. C. H. Hitzrot), Henry, Amelia (Mrs. Z. Latshaw) and Edwin. The subject of these lines was reared and educated in McKeepost, and began life as a clerk in a store when but nine years of age. In 1868 he went to Pittsburgh and entered one of the banks of that city as clerk, serving as such in different banks of Pittsburgh and McKeepost until 1869, when he was appointed assistant cashier of the People's Bank of McKeepost, and later its cashier. In 1871 he was appointed bookkeeper and teller of the Penn Bank, Pittsburgh, which position he held up to 1887, when he was promoted to assistant cashier, and held the same until the failure of the bank, in 1884. In 1883 the McKeepost Light company was organized, of which Mr. Reiber was a stockholder; in August, 1886, he was appointed secretary of the company, and Oct. 12 was elected secretary for one year; Oct. 12, 1887, he was elected secretary and treasurer of the same company, a position he now holds. Mr. Reiber married, July 1, 1886, Emma B., daughter of William and Elizabeth (Frich) Small, of McKeepost, and has one son, John L. Mr. Reiber is a member of the Bank Clerks' Mutual association, of Pittsburgh, Liederkranz, Equitable Aid Union, and G. L. Church. In politics he is independent.

Samuel Pangburn, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, a son of Isaac and Susanna (Hill) Pangburn, was born in Forward township, in 1830. His father was a native of Mercer county, and removed to Forward township, this county, about 1805. Both of his parents died in that township. Samuel, however, remained with his parents until 1893. He married Elizabeth Jgeb, of Brown county, Ohio, and afterward settled on the place now owned by him. Their children are Walter C., at Lock No. 4; Rebecca S., now Mrs. Walter Spear, of Webster; Flora A., now Mrs. P. Davidson, and Isaac G., who is married, and resides at West Elizabeth.

William B. Rath, farmer, postoffice Duquesne, was born Sept. 21, 1857, in Mifflin township, on the old homestead, a son of James Rath. He was educated in his native county, has been a farmer all his life, and is now cultivating the old Patterson homestead. He married, Feb. 28, 1884, Sarah E. Patterson, who was born June 29, 1859. Mr. and Mrs. Rath are members of the Presbyterian Church. Politically he is identified with the republican party.

John Roehn, baker, McKeepost, is a native of Germany, born Feb. 24, 1848, a son of Philip and Christiana Roehn, who came to America in 1867, and settled in Pittsburgh, where the father, who was a weaver by trade, resided until his death. They were the parents of seven children: Christiana, Louis, John, August, Lizzie, Nicholas and Philip. The subject of this memoir was reared in Germany, where he served an apprenticeship of four years at the baker's trade. Coming to this country in 1866, he worked in Pittsburgh as a journeyman baker five years, and in 1871 embarked in business for himself on the South Side, where he did a successful trade until March, 1882. He then settled in McKeepost, where he has since carried on the same line of business with marked success. He is now the owner of five stores and nine dwellings in the borough. Mr. Roehn was twice married; first to Teresa, daughter of Leibold Graal, of Pittsburgh, and by her had three children:
August, Minnie and Albert. His second wife was Minnie Werrink, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Roehm is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is a republican.

FREDERICK K. BOWERS, merchant, Wilkinsburg, was born near that borough Aug. 15, 1832. His early life was spent on the farm and about the coal-mines, and his industry has gradually advanced him from a very humble beginning. In 1884 he opened a grocery-store in Wilkinsburg, and is doing a steadily increasing business by the aid of his wife, whom he married in 1873. Mrs. Bowers (nee Mary Jane Huggins) is a daughter of John and Jane Huggins, of Scotch descent, and was born in Shaler township, this county. The children of Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Bowers now living are Henry Alfred, Dora Olive, Frank Clyde, Clara Blanche and Mabel. Charles Frederick, the fourth, is deceased. The family attend the German Reformed Church; in politics Mr. B. is a republican.

JOHN FAIRLEY, farmer, post-office West View, was born Feb. 21, 1830, on the old homestead. His grandfather, John Fairley, a native of County Fermanagh, Ireland, emigrated to America in 1798, with his wife and children. They were farmers, and bought 300 acres of land for four dollars per acre. They both died nearly ninety years old. Their children were Peter, Elizabeth, Burns, Mrs. Sarah Neeley and John. John inherited a part of the old farm, on which he died Jan. 8, 1860, at the age of fifty-six years. John Fairley, Sr., married Rosanna, daughter of Lawrence Burns. She died in 1879, aged seventy-six years, the mother of three children: Peter, John and Nancy. Of these our subject is the only one now living. He was educated in this county, and married here Susannah Smith. They have ten children: John, Thomas, Mary J., Harry, Rosanna, Ann M., Rosella, Annah, Susanna and Louisa A. Politically the Fairleys were democrats.

JAMES MADISON CHADWICK, farmer, post-office East Liberty, was born in Pittsburgh, Dec. 16, 1840. His father, Thomas, was also born in that city, in 1823, and his mother, Elizabeth, was born in McPherson, Cumberland county, Pa. They were, respectively, sixteen and fourteen years old at the time of their marriage. Thomas died at Oakland in 1854, but Elizabeth is still living. He kept a shoe store and tannery, and had three sons and four daughters, of whom the following are now living: Mary Emma (Ferrere), Grapeville, Westmoreland county; James M.; Caroline (McMinn), Brushton; and Jane E. (Landwehr), in Penn township. James Chadwick, father of Thomas, came from England, purchased one thousand acres of land in Allegheny county, 1820, and also owned a large tract in Westmoreland county. He built the plank-road from Pittsburgh to Oakland. He was a member of the M. E. Church, and died in 1847, at a great age. James M. Chadwick has dwelt on his present farm since he was ten years old, and received a common-school education. The Methodist Church represents his religious faith, and the republican party his political creed. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Mystic Chain and K. P. In 1871 he married Mary McCombs, a native of Pittsburgh, daughter of John and Mary Jane (Kelly) McCombs, of Scotch extraction. Their children are Ifroy Homer, Bella Jane, Ella F., Rebecca W., James F., Mary and Charles Offenbach.

ALEXANDER MCCUTCHEON (deceased) was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, Oct. 10, 1804, a son of Claudius and Margaret (Graham) McCutcheon, Scotch Presbyterian. Alexander came to Pennsylvania in 1832, and located in Lancaster county, Pa., where he followed his trade of weaver. He then came to Allegheny City, shortly thereafter moving to Bocktown, Beaver county, and after eight years came to Findlay township and purchased a farm, where he died May 19, 1873. He was united in marriage July 29, 1841, with Rachel McCoy, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14, 1818, a daughter of Isaac and Sarah (Woods) McCoy. Isaac McCoy was born in Allegheny county, Pa., a son of James and Rachel (Meanor) McCoy. James was born in Ireland, and settled near Pittsburgh, Allegheny county. He and his wife were members of the Presbyterian Church, and were among the pioneers of Allegheny county. Alexander McCutcheon and wife had seven children: James Mc.; Claudius, who died at the age of twenty-one; Alexander, married to Sarah J. Jackson, and residing on a farm in Findlay township; Sarah, married to Joseph McElenos, residing on a farm in Moon township; Margaret, wife of Joseph Balford, a blacksmith at Sharon, Moon township; John, married to Anna M. Elder, residing on a farm in Findlay township, and Thomas, who married Elizabeth McCallister, and resides on the old homestead with his mother. Mrs. McCutcheon is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Sharon.

JOHN MCCUTCHEON, farmer, post-office Moon, was born Dec. 21, 1856, on the old homestead of his father in Findlay township, and a part of which he now owns. He was united in marriage March 9, 1875, with Anna M. Elder, a native of Scottsville, Beaver county, Pa., and daughter of David and Margaret (Moody) Elder. Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon have one daughter, Rachel McCoy McCutcheon; they are members of the Presbyterian Church at Sharon.

GEORGE GUTBUB, farmer, post-office Fairhaven, was born Sept. 21, 1831, in Rothbach, Alsace, Germany, a son of Heinrich and Magdalena (Konigsfeld) Gutbub, also natives of the above-named place. The parents had three children; George, Mrs. Elizabeth Fidge, and Mrs. Magdalena Kowolow. The entire family came to America in 1863, and settled in Baldwin township, this county, where they followed farming. The mother died here, aged fifty-four years, and the father returned to Germany, and died there in 1877, aged sixty-seven years. The family were all members of the Lutheran Church, in which our subject was an elder for several years. He married Sophia Clotz, also a native of Alsace, and they had nine children, all of whom died of diphtheria before attaining their fifteenth year except William, who died when twenty-one years old. Mrs. Gutbub was an invalid for seven years previous to her death. Mr. Gutbub has been a successful farmer, and owns sixty-five acres of land. He is a democrat, and has filled several township offices.

PHILIP HOFFMAN, blacksmith, McKeesport, was born in Germany Aug. 30, 1834, a son of George Hoffman. He was reared and educated in his native land, and served an apprenticeship of one year at the blacksmith's trade. In 1852 he came to America, located in Pittsburgh, and in the latter part of the same year in McKeesport, where he finished his trade. He then worked as a journeyman in Millin township five years; then started a shop of his own in the same township, which he successfully conducted until 1875, when he removed to McKeesport, where he has since remained, engaged in business. In 1855 he married Caroline, daughter of Paul and Caroline (Spangler) Wilhelm, of Millin township, and has nine children living: Philip, George, Henry, Frederick, John, Charles, Edward, Caroline and Annie. Mr. Hoffman is a member of the G. L. Church and F. & A. M.; in politics he is independent.

FRED STECKEL, dry-goods and fancy-goods merchant, McKeesport, was born in Hanover, Germany, Nov. 8, 1835, a son of Henry L. and Wilhelmina (Hille) Steckel. He was reared in his native province, where he served an apprenticeship of three years at the dyer's trade, at which he afterward worked as a journeyman two years. In 1856 he came to America, locating in Pittsburgh, and was in the employ of the breweries of that city nine years. He then followed peddling for two years, and in 1867 located in Dravosburg, this county, where he embarked in the grocery and dry-goods business, in which he was engaged until 1871. In September of that year he opened out his present business in McKeesport, which has had a large and prosperous trade. In 1891 he married Mary, daughter of Christian and Margaret (Bellstein) Faulkenstein, of Allegheny, formerly of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and by her has three children: Sophia, Augusta and Fred. Mr. Steckel is an adherent of the G. L. Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and K. of H., and is a republican.

HOLMES B. WARD, master mechanic, post-office Castle Shannon, was born Feb. 28, 1837, in Berkeley county, W. Va., a son of Nicholas and Rachel (Holyday) Ward, old settlers of Berkeley county, and a grandson of Capt. Joel Ward, a captain of militia in the war of 1812. George Holyday, his maternal grandfather, was also a captain of militia in the same war, and participated in the Bladensburg fight. Nicholas and Rachel Ward were the parents of eleven children, of whom Holmes B. was educated in Virginia. He served his apprenticeship with Shriver Bros., Cumberland, Md.; later was employed in a railroad shop, and from 1862 to 1867, was employed in the Q. & O. R. R. He went to Pittsburgh in the spring of 1868, and remained there for a short time; two years later he removed to Castle Shannon and became master mechanic, his promotion being due to his indomitable energy and perseverance. Previous to his promotion he ran an engine eight years. He is at present master mechanic of the P. & C. S. R. R. Mr. Ward married Martha D. Wright, and they have the following-named children: William, Maria, Rachel, Leah, Anna B., Arthur, Holmes, F irney, Naoma and an infant daughter. Mr. Ward is a member of the K. of M., and is a republican; his grandparents were old-line whigs.

SAMUEL HERRON, farmer, post-office White Ash, is a native of County Down, Ireland, born in Jan., 1829. His parents, John and Sarah (McKnight) Herron, were of Scotch and English blood, respectively, and both were born in the year 1802. The father was a shoemaker and farmer, and came with his family to America about 1823. For some time he owned and operated a farm in West Deer, but returned to Penn township, where he first located in America, and died in 1854. His widow now resides in Pittsburgh. Their eldest child, John, was killed while a corporal in the British army. James, the fourth, died in Australia. The others, in order of age, are Robert, Margaret (deceased), Nancy (Frazier), Samuel, David, Mary (Stoner), Sarah (Bennett) and Eliza (Griffith). Samuel Herron received an ordinary education in Ireland, and on his arrival in Pennsylvania began work in a rolling-mill at $2.25 a week. For two years he worked at his father's trade, and for a like period at gardening. Thereafter he followed farming, and purchased his present home in 1879. The house was built in 1811 by W. W. Wilson. The farm includes thirty acres, and is devoted chiefly to fruit-culture. Mr. Herron is a republican. In 1861 he married Christina, daughter of Michael and Margaret Engel, of Germany. Mrs. Herron was born in Sumach, N. Y., and reared in this county. Her maternal grandmother died here in 1884, aged ninety-three. Mr. Herron is a member of the Orange association.

FRED SCHWITTER, dairyman, post-office Allegheny City, was born March 3, 1847, in Canton Glarus, Switzerland, the son of Fred and Louise (Schwitter) Schwitter. The family is one of the largest in Switzerland. Our subject received his education in his native home, where he learned his trade, that of silk-colorer, and worked five years to earn his passage to America, where he arrived in August, 1866. He was without food from New York to Allegheny county, where he settled. He worked at various occupations until 1871, when he procured a few cows and started a dairy on a small scale in Allegheny City, and served milk to his customers in a two-wheeled cart. He built up a good business; then rented, and finally, in 1881, purchased the old Morrow homestead. He now owns seventy-five acres of land, and has greatly improved the farm, keeps from sixty to eighty-five cows, and has all the modern dairy improvements, and the place presents a very attractive appearance. He married Mary, born in this county, daughter of Francis J. Wehrle, of Baden.

John Yourd, farmer, postoffice White Ash, was born on the farm where he now resides, May 17, 1829. His grandfather, Samuel, son of Archibald, came from Ireland and settled in Penn about 1801. Archibald Yourd, son of Samuel, was about three years old when the family came to America. He married Mary Woods, a native of Pennsylvania, and settled where John Yourd now lives. He died in 1860, aged sixty-two years, and his widow in 1866, aged sixty-one. He was employed in farming and coal-mining. John Yourd has always lived on the home farm, but for some time followed boating on the Allegheny river. He and Mrs. Yourd are members of the R. P. Church, and politically he is a republican. He served as road supervisor seven years and as school director eleven years. In 1854 he married Martha Clark, a native of Wilkinsburg, and daughter of James and Flora Ann Clark, of Irish descent. Their children are Archibald, in East Liberty; William, in Penn; Harriet Ann (Mrs. George Bond), in Beltzhoover; Hugh Ellsworth, Elizabeth and James Edward, at home.

Robert M. Boyd, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of Benjamin F. and Susan (Camble) Boyd, of Westmoreland county, who settled, about 1800, where they resided until their deaths, in 1884 and 1883, respectively. They left eight children: John, of Pittsburgh; Benjamin, of Oklahoma, O. M.; Robert Logan, of McKeesport; Oliver; Ann, widow of James McKown, of Elizabeth; Margaret J., wife of George Hornback, of Montuna territory; and Robert M., who was born in 1888 in Elizabeth borough, and received his education at the public schools. In 1850 he engaged in steamboating, which he has since followed. In 1867 he became a part owner of the steamer Elizabeth, has since been connected with it, and for the last thirteen years has been its captain. In 1868 he married Mary, daughter of Samuel and Martha McCune, of Elizabeth, and they have six children: James I., a merchant in Elizabeth; Kate M., Ida L., Annie M. and Willie D., all at home. Mr. Boyd is a member of Stephen Bayard Lodge, No. 526, F. & A. M. The family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Louisa Wallace, retired, postoffice Elkhorn, daughter of William and Ann (Jami- son) Patrick, was born in Maryland, and married to Lewis Wallace in 1850. He was a merchant in Baltimore, of which city he was also a native. He purchased the present homestead, and about twenty-five years since removed to Forward township, and was engaged in farming until his death, in September, 1886. His family consisted of William, John, Jean (now Mrs. Webster, who resides in Allegheny), Kate and Rachel, five in all, three of whom still live with their mother; the remaining brother has his home in Pittsburgh, where he is engaged in banking.

George Forfno, butcher, Wilkinsburg, was born in Allegheny City, Nov. 4, 1855. His grandfather, William Forfno, came from Germany to Allegheny about 1827, at which time William, son of the latter, was a small child. On reaching manhood he married Eliza Shaffnutt, also a native of Germany, and followed butchering till his death; he died in 1876, at the age of fifty-six; his widow still resides in Allegheny. They had six children, of whom George is the third. William, the eldest, died at Los Angeles, Cal., while in the meat business there. The others reside as follows: Elizabeth (Schaer), in Allegheny; Leon, in Rochester, Pa.; Carrie and Kate, with their mother. George was reared in the neighborhood of Allegheny, attending school in Ross (now Reserve) township. Early in life he began his trade, and established a meat-market at Wilkinsburg, Dec. 9, 1879, subsequently buying a building on Penn avenue, to which he has since added. He was reared a Lutheran, but the family attends the U. B. Church. Mr. Forfno is a member of the J. O. U. A. M., K. of P., R. A. and I. O. O. F., and is a republican. In 1880 he married Minnie Bealafeld, and following are the names of their children: George, Clara, Walter (deceased) and Mabel.

Calvin Rufus Church, engineer, postoffice Turtle Creek, is descended from English ancestors, through a long line in America. The homestead in East Haddam, Conn., has always descended to sons named Joseph Church. Calvin Church was born on this homestead in 1799, and went to Rome, Ashatabula county, Ohio, when twenty-two years old. There he engaged in farming, and afterward moved to Thompson, same state, where he kept store and hotel, and died in 1857. His wife, Susan, nee Crowell, was also a native of Middlesex county, Conn. Calvin Church was one of the defenders of New London during the war of 1812. His son, Calvin Rufus, born at Rome, Ohio, Aug. 6, 1829, attended the common schools and Kirtland Academy. After working a short time as a blacksmith, a hotel clerk and in a Connecticut spoon-factory, he took up railroad work, beginning as a brakeman on the Erie. He came to Allegheny county in 1858, and continued in the railroad system (with the exception of one year in Tennessee) until 1870. After the first year he had charge of a locomotive, and had two narrow escapes from injury. Since 1870 Mr. Church has had control of the engine of the N. Y. & C. G. C. Co. here. He owns two houses, one of which he built, in Wilkins township, with two and a half acres of land.
He has served as inspector of elections, and is now school director, and acts with the republican party. He and Mrs. Church are members of the M. E. Church, and he is as-associated with the following benevolent orders: I. O. O. F., K. G. E. and K. P.
Jan. 1. 1855, Mr. Church married Mrs.
Annie Rogers, who died in 1867, leaving five children, of whom four are now living: Annie L., wife of David Gilchrist, of Mc-Keesport; Charles R., of Turtle Creek; Emma L., wife of John McKeever, of Reynoldston; Harry, Turtle Creek, and Carrie, who died at four years of age. In 1868 Mr. Church married Mrs. Hannah Dempsey, who bore him two children—Jacob O. (died when three years old) and Susan Melinda—and died June 5, 1873. Mr. Church next married Maggie Vaughn, and they have one son living—
William Alexander McIntosh.

SAMUEL McGOGNEY, M. D., Castle Shanon, was born Feb. 20, 1836. His grandfather, John McGogney, came to Jefferson township, this county, in 1811, aged 19, and attained the age of one hundred and three years and three months. His son, David, the father of Dr. McGogney, was born in 1806, and died in 1871. He married Margaret Bradshaw, who survived him, and they became the parents of twelve children. Of these Samuel, the youngest, was educated in this county and at Washington and Jefferson College. He read medicine with Dr. C. H. Black, of Mc-Keesport, attended lectures at Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, and graduated in the class of 1879. He located in Castle Shannon, where he has built up a good practice. The doctor married Nannie C., dughter of William Young, and they have three children: Jessie May, William H. and Paul R. Dr. McGogney is a member of the L. O.
of Fr. K. of M.; a republican.

THOMAS B. BRIDGES, contractor, Homestead, was born Nov. 25, 1833, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of Robert Bridges, a native of Ohio. Robert was an engineer on the Ohio river, a popular and highly esteemed man, was considered one of the most skillful engineers of his day, and regarded as an authority. Thomas B. was educated in Pittsburgh, and at the age of nineteen engaged in teaming, dealing in building material, and contracting, in Braddock, which he has followed successfully to the present time. He came to Homestead in 1881, and entered upon the same business here. In Braddock he married Lena Eisenberger, and they have five children: Oliver, Rosa, Adda, Helen and Florence. He is a member of the R. A., and is a republican.

JOSEPH W. GRAPER, huckster, merchant, postoffice Carrick, was born in October, 1836, in Uchte, Hanover, Germany, a son of John Graper. He came to America in July, 1860, and for a time worked at whatever he could find to do, for a time in Pittsburgh. In 1864 he turned his attention to huckstering in this county, and during the last twenty years has lived in Baldwin township, where he has a property of thirty-six acres, upon which he has built a very pretty home. Mr.
Graper here married Dorothea Yosch, a native of Germany, and they have four children: Elizabeth (wife of Emil Schultz), Minnie (wife of Walter Hays), John H. and Harry F. Mr. and Mrs. Graper are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a republican, and has been a successful man.

CHRISTIAN H. GASS, farmer, postoffice Perrysville, was born July 18, 1845, in Allegheny City. His grandfather, Jacob Gass, a native of Switzerland, and a gardeur, immigrated to America in 1812 with his wife, Elizabeth, and seven children: Jacob, John,
Fred, Sebastian, Elizabeth, Anna and Sally.
He was a member of the Smithfield Street G.
Church. Jacob Gass, Jr., was a farmer, a carpenter and coverlet weaver, and farmed and gardened where the P. & Ft. W. R. R. depot now located in Allegheny. He married Amelia Bittenbring, and became the father of eight children: John, Jacob, Christian E., Harry, Emma, Mary, Beth, Sarah and Caroline. Of these Christian H. was educated in Allegheny, learned gardening and farming, and now owns a farm of fifty-six acres. He married Rachel E. Hueh, and has four children: Henry, Amelia, Edward V. and Oliver. Mr. and Mrs. Gass are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he is trustee. Politically he is a republican.

CHARLES JEFFERSON SELLECK, gardener, postoffice Hulton, was born Jan. 1, 1858, in Erie, Pa., a son of Joseph Whiting and Mary Ann (Casper) Selleck. His father was born in Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1799, and died in 1858; he was one of the old pioneers of Erie, and for many years was a teacher of music, day school and penmanship, in his last days following gardening. His mother was born in New York, and died in 1876. They were members of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Selleck was educated in the Erie Academy and the west ward school.
At the age of twenty-one he enlisted in the U. S.
navy, on the ship Conestoga, carrying six guns. He served one year, and the next year enlisted on the Silver Lake, and participated in the battle of Nashville; he was discharged Aug. 19, 1865. Returning to Erie county, he learned the cooper's trade, which he followed twelve years at Erie, Oil City, Titusville and Pittsburgh. Since then he has been engaged in the garden business in Verona. He was married, in 1868, to Mary R. Shade, of Coleman, this county. They have seven children, named as follows:
Charles Francis, Harry Vincent, George Whiting, Emma Blanche, Milley, Willis and Wulph, all at home. The family are members of the M. E. Church; politically Mr. Selleck is a republican.

MRS. MARY E. KINKAID, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a daughter of E. E. and E. E. (McKnight) Barter, and was born in Iowa. She removed with her parents to Oregon, thence to Idaho, where she married Matthew D. Fife, son of Andrew Fife, and went to Nevada, and thence came to Forward township. Mr. Fife here followed farming until his death, in 1879. He left a widow and three children: Charles E., Anna H. and Clifford M., now living with their mother. In 1888 our subject married John Kinkaid, a native of this county, and is now living on the old farm. Mrs. Kinkaid is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Sylvan C. Le Bauda, gardener, postoffice West View, was born Oct. 18, 1881, in Pittsburgh, Pa., the son of Sylvan Le Bauda, a native of Normandy, France. The latter learned the shoemaker's trade in his native country, and coming to America located in Pittsburgh in 1840, where he engaged in the wholesale and retail shoe business. He traveled all over the United States, but found no place which suited him so well as Pittsburgh. He married there Augusta, daughter of James Davis, an old settler, and a native of London. Mrs. Le Bauda was the mother of four children, who are all yet living, Sylvan C., Jr., Constant C., May and Pauline. Our subject was educated in Pittsburgh, where he learned the molder's trade with De Haven & Co. He has also traveled extensively over the United States, but returned to his first love, Pittsburgh, Pa. In 1873 he removed to Ross township, and turned his attention to gardening and farming, having fifty-two acres of land. Politically he is a prohibitionist.

Daniel Risher, civil engineer, postoffice Homestead, was born Feb. 27, 1843. His grandfather, Daniel Risher, had nine children, of whom seven were daughters, all now widows, and of his two sons J. C. is yet a resident of Pittsburgh. He (J. C.) married Nancy Denny, daughter of John McClure. She died May 12, 1875, aged sixty-eight years. She bore him three children: Clara, husband of Charles P. Crump, Daniel, Mrs. William J. Snodgrass and John M. J. C., in 1851, bought the coal-fields at Amity, which he and his son developed, the firm being known as J. C. Risher & Co. For seventeen years our subject was the third partner, and on him devolved most of the business, employing upward of four hundred men, and at times getting out 25,000 bushels of coal per day. They had their own sawmill, and built many barges for their own coal trade and for other people. Mr. Risher has been married twice; his present wife is Anna P. Gleadall, a native of the city of Allegheny. His first wife, Rebecca Gamble, of Elizabeth township, bore him five children. Mr. Risher is a member of the L. O. O. F. K. of P. Pittsburgh Commandery No. 1. K. T.

J. W. McCreeedy, justice of the peace, Mansfield, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 26, 1848. About 1819 his grandfather, Hugh McCreeedy, came to America from Ireland, landed in New York, and soon after came to Pittsburgh. He was a linen manufacturer in the old country, but in America was engaged in peddling. He died soon after his arrival in Pittsburgh. His son, Robert, was twelve years of age when he came with his parents to this country; he was by trade a stonecutter. He married Margaret Huston, who bore him six children. Robert died in 1865, aged about fifty-eight years; his widow still survives him, aged about sixty years. J. W., our subject, is the second son. He was educated in the common schools until the age of twelve years, soon after which he commenced the study of drugs, and graduated at Ann Arbor College. He followed the drug business for thirteen years. He came to Mansfield in 1871, and engaged in the hardware business, and here has since remained. Mr. McCreeedy married, in 1872, Mary Highbee, daughter of Benjamin and Jane Highbee, of this county. Mr. McCreeedy is a republican, and was elected by that party justice of the peace of the borough of Mansfield in 1876, and still fills that office. He has been a member of the town council, and twice burgess of the borough. He is a Freemason and a member of the U. P. Church.

Nicholas Wolf, proprietor of the Monongahela House, McKeesport, was born in Prussia, March 20, 1855, a son of Nicholas and Angela (Wagner) Wolf. He was reared on a farm, came to America in 1854, settling in McKeesport, where he worked in the coal mines of the vicinity twenty-six years. In 1879 he erected the hotel he now occupies, which he has since successfully conducted. He married, in 1860, Anna, daughter of John and Anna (Davis) Eckert, of Germany, and by her has nine children living: Mary A., John, Margaret, Nicholas, Peter, Jacob, Frank, Leonard and George. Mr. Wolf is a member of the German Catholic Church, and is a democrat.

Charles Wel Falk, butcher, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born July 3, 1840, in Allegheny City, Pa., a son of Lawrence and Catharine (Hoey) Welfal, of German origin. The father was a blacksmith and locksmith, came to this country in 1832, and found employment as sheet-iron worker in Pittsburgh, but resided in Allegheny. He died in 1886, aged seventy-four years. Catharine Welfal died in 1848, leaving five children: Henry, who died in Baltimore; Amelia (Vogel), a resident of Bloomfield, this county; Charles, Frederick and William. Mr. Welfal afterward married Kate Beckert, who bore him five children, viz.: George, John, Lawrence, Clara and Jessie. Charles Welfal was reared in Allegheny, when fourteen years old began work at his trade, and in 1860 opened a butcher-shop in Pittsburgh. For eight years he was employed in the steelworks at Bessemer, where his eyesight was severely impaired. He came to Turtle Creek in 1885, established a good meat trade, and is now erecting his second dwelling, near the Catholic church. Mr. Welfal is an enthusiastic republican. In 1860 he married Elizabith Brady, who died four years later, leaving two children: Charles and Emma; the former died when five years old. In 1866 Mr. Welfal married Grace R. Osterman, who has one daughter, Agnes Bertha.

Hezekiah Wageman Ament, brakeman, postoffice Turtle Creek, was born in Franklin township, Westmoreland county, in 1846. His parents, John and Susan (Hartman) Ament, as well as his grandfather, George Ament, were also born in that county. The latter bore the title of major, gained in the militia, and was descended from Dutch ancestors. H. W. Ament was reared on a farm, and came to Turtle Creek in 1870. Next year he became brakeman on the P. R. R., and has since followed that occupation. With his family he is connected with the Lutheran Church, and is a member of the Improved Order of Red Men. Politically, Mr. Ament associates with the democracy. Jan. 7, 1875, he married Sanathetta Ellenora Snyder, a native of Wilkinsburg, daughter of Adam George Washington and Nancy Jane Snyder, of German and Irish descent. Mr. and Mrs. Ament have one living child, Birdie Belle; another, Maggie May, died when nearly a year old.

William Neel (deceased) was born in 1827, a son of Archibald and Mary Neel. His early boyhood was spent on the farm, and later he became a practical agriculturist. He owned a farm of one hundred acres in Mifflin township, in which he developed the coal, and also operated the McElhaney & Smith colmines. As a coal-producer he was well known and esteemed by miners and rivermen, his fair and just dealings winning him many friends. He was an active member of the McKeesport Presbyterian Church, and politically was always identified with the republican party. He married, in Somerset county, Pa.; Nancy, born June 4, 1838, a daughter of John and Sarah (Keefer) Woy, and they have five children: James E., Irene, Cora M. and Nora. Mr. Neel departed this life March 18, 1880, aged fifty-three years.

Joseph Allen, farmer, postoffice West Vieux, was born Jan. 1, 1810, in County Down, Ireland, a son of Samuel and Jenny (Carlisle) Allen, also natives of the Emerald Isle. He received his early education in his native land, and in 1846 immigrated to America. He worked in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, Pa., and later engaged in contracting, paving streets, excavating, etc. This he followed with marked success until 1861, when he removed to Ross township, where he owns thirty-three acres of land. Mr. Allen married Eliza Musgrave, with whom he was acquainted in Ireland. They are the parents of two children, Mary E. and John M. The latter, who had a hand in the coke and coal business in Pittsburgh, married Katie Kinney, and they have three children: Mamie, John M. and Eliza. Mr. and Mrs. Allen are members of the R. P. Church. Politically he is a republican.

W. A. Willock, farmer, postoffice Option, was born Aug. 25, 1839, on the old homestead. His grandfather, Alexander Willock, who was a native of Ireland, came to America at the age of eighteen, and was a baker on Fourth street, Pittsburgh, for many years. He bought two hundred acres of land in Mifflin township, which he cleared and on which he died, aged fifty-six years. He married Mary McElhenny, by whom he had six children: Jane, Mary, John, Alexander, Eliza and James. Of these, John was born Dec. 10, 1813, in Pittsburgh, and married Jane Moore, who died leaving seven children: William A., Samuel M., Sarah J., Mary E., Dellaiah A., John P. and Bell. His second wife, Eliza L. Leech, died March 12, 1885. John Willock has been an active republican all his life, and has filled nearly all of the township offices, making his influence in local elections felt far and wide. William A., the subject of this sketch, was educated here, and married Mary E., daughter of John McRoberts. Six children have been born to them: Charles E., John P., Laura E., Seward P., Sylvester R. and Robert L. He has been a trustee of Lebanon Presbyterian Church for seven years, of which his parents are also members.

J. H. Rose, merchant, Homestead, was born March 3, 1860, in Pittsburgh, a son of Henry Rose, a native of Germany, and a well-known glassworker in Pittsburgh. He received his education in the public and German schools of Pittsburgh, and later was a nailcutter. He soon entered on a mercantile career, clerking for various firms until he had a thorough knowledge of the grocery business. In September, 1885, he opened a grocery in Homestead, where he is a successful business-man. He married here Adela Hayden, and their union has been blessed with two children—Cortula and Stewart Rose. Mr. and Mrs. Rose are members of the G. L. Church of Pittsburgh, South Side. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and I. O. U., of which latter he is a past officer, and is a republican.

James Murrly Greer, farmer, postoffice Murrysville, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., March 13, 1831, a son of Col. William and Abigail (Collins) Greer. Her mother, Abigail Byran, was taken prisoner by the Indians, in company with her father, when she was seven years old, and was held a prisoner seven years. Mr. Greer's father was born in 1802, and died in 1873. His mother was born in 1803, and died in 1886. His father was a farmer, and was justice of the peace twenty-four years. His grandfather, Patrick Greer, came from Ireland, and his wife was Elizabeth Wilson. Mr. Greer received his schooling in Franklin township, Westmoreland county, and at twenty-three years of age began for himself farming. In 1858 he bought a farm of one hundred acres in Westmoreland county, and in 1874 bought out the heirs of his father's farm in Plum township, and has erected fine buildings. There were nine children in his John McGinnis), Catherine (deceased), Catherine, second (wife of Thomas Bozel), and Jane. John Carlin married, in 1854, Mary, daughter of Edward and Ann Blundon, and their children were James (deceased), John C. Mary, Sarah A. (a teacher), Margaret (wife of Frank Lutz), Eollide (a teacher), Susan and Francis L. Mr. Carlin has been in the coal trade for many years, mining and selling coal. He has been school director and is now supervisor in Chartiers township. The family are members of the R. C. Church.

CHRISTIAN SCHANZENBACH, hotel-keeper, postoffice West View, was born Aug. 13, 1838, in Württemberg, Germany, the son of Christ and Catharine (Sauer) Schanzenbach, also natives of Germany. He came to America in 1866; had been a farmer in his native land, but here worked with a brewer. For eighteen years he has kept a public house, the last four of which he has been proprietor of the "Five-Mile House."

WILLIAM G. RANKIN, merchant, Boston, is a son of Robert Rankin, and was born at Glenwood, in this county, in 1839. His early education was received at the common schools and completed at the Commercial College at Pittsburgh. He then followed farming for some twenty years, when he engaged in the meat business, which he conducted until 1885, and then embarked in general merchandising, which he still follows. In 1862 Mr. Rankin enlisted in Co. I, 55th P. V., serving about two years in that command. Later he was transferred to Co. B, 1st battalion of sharpshooters, 5th army corps, and served in that capacity until the close of the war. He married, in 1871, Mary J., daughter of James and Eliza Jane Marion, of Elizabeth township, and they have five children: Sylvia, James A., Herbert S., Clyde E. and William G. Mr. Rankin is a member of Post 127, G. A. R., holding the office of commander; also a member of the K. O. M. C., Elrod Castle, 87. He is also a member of the Mt. Vernon Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM ANDERSON, foreman of rigging department, National Tube-works, McKeesport, was born in Sweden, in 1835, and is a son of John and Elizabeth Anderson. At the age of fifteen he went on the seas, and followed the occupation of a seaman for eighteen years. In 1867 he came to America, located in Boston, and worked in the rigging-lofts of that city one year. In 1869 he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company at Boston, and in 1873, when the company started their plant in McKeesport, he moved to that city, and has since held his present position. Mr. Anderson is an attendant of the Episcopal Church. He is a member of the K. of P., I. O. F., K. of H. and International Progressive association. In politics he is a republican.

JOHN SWAIRINGEN, postoffice West View, was born on his farm in Findlay township, July 9, 1816, a son of Nicholas and Melinda (Blackamore) Swaringen.
Nicholas, who was of English descent, was born near Thompsonville, Washington county, Pa. When Pennsylvania ceased to be a slave state he removed to Brooke county, Va., where he died. Melinda (Blackamore) Swearingen was a daughter of Samuel and Abrilla (Dowden) Blackamore, natives of Maryland. Samuel Blackamore was a son of Samuel Blackamore, Sr., an Englishman, who received from King William for services rendered, a tract of land comprising 492 acres. Samuel Blackamore leased the land for ninety-nine years, and died some thirty years after. This land is now in the center of Washington city, and comprises the site of half the capitol building, the commons and other valuable property. The ninety-nine years' lease expired about four years ago, and now the heirs of Samuel Blackamore claim the land. Samuel and Abrilla (Blackamore) Swearingen were early settlers of Findlay township, and had eight children who lived to maturity. John, our subject, is the eldest. He married, Nov. 18, 1838, Mary Ferguson, who was born in Findlay township, a daughter of John and Mary (Guy) Ferguson, old settlers of Findlay township, and they were the parents of four children, one living; Mary, wife of John Shillato, who resides in Beaver, Pa. Mrs. Swearingen died Feb. 21, 1884, a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Swearingen owns a fine farm of 106 acres, and ranks among our leading farmers. While not a member of any church, he aids in the building of all, and assists all worthy enterprises.

Jonas Roop McClintock Johnston, fly-er-man, Wilkinsburg, is a native of Wilkins, Pa., and was born June 1, 1849. His education was finished under Prof. Levi Ludden at his academy, and his life was spent on his native farm till 1887. In that year he built a large livery barn on his property at the corner of Ross and Hay streets, Wilkinsburg, where he engaged in business. He had formerly given some time to coal-mining and the sale of feed in connection with his farming operations. Besides his farm and livery property he is the owner of three houses in the borough. In 1888 he married Eulalia Ann, daughter of A. Stoner, and they have two sons: Frederick W. and Reed. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston are members of the Presbyterian Church.

William Davidson, farmer, postoffice New Texas, was born in Plum township, July 27, 1854, a son of Josiah and Caroline (Wolf) Davidson. His father was born in Plum township in 1833; his mother died in 1858. William received his schooling in Plum township, and at Murrysville, and in 1870 began for himself, conducting his father's farm, which he has since successfully continued. He married, in 1876, Anna M. Conner, a daughter of John M. and Eliza F. Conner, of New Texas, and four children bless the home: Jennie E., Mary N. and Craig, Josiah and Alice May. Mrs. Davidson was born in 1856. She and her husband are members of the Lurid Presbyterian Church. William is a repub-lican, has been a member of the school board for six years, and tax-collector three years. His father has been many years supervisor of the township, and is a member of the M. E. Church.

William M. Simcox, physician, Thirty-sixth ward, Pittsburgh, a son of William and Margaret Simcox, was born in Washington county, Pa., in 1828. His grandfather, William Simcox, Sr., came to Washington county, Pa., in 1787, immediately after his discharge from the army in the revolution-ary war, in which he had served from its commencement to its close. He remained in Washington county until his decease, in 1843. His son, William Simcox, father of the sub-ject of this sketch, was born in Washington county, April 9, 1801, and reared on the farm of 180 acres his father had purchased in 1787. He remained there until 1880, when he came to Allegheny county, and resided with his son, Dr. William M., until his death, which occurred Nov. 3, 1884. He had been edu- cated for a lawyer, but never practiced. He married Margaret Moss, of Washington county, Pa., by whom he had three chil-dren who lived to manhood: William M., James R. (deceased) and John. Their mother died June 7, 1878, aged seventy-eight years.

Dr. William M. Simcox was reared on the old Washington county farm, but at the age of fifteen entered Jefferson College, at Can- nonsburg, Pa., and in 1847 and 1848 at-tended the Ohio Medical College, at Cincin-nati. April 16, 1848, he came to Chartiers township, Allegheny county, commenced the practice of medicine, and has since followed his profession continually. He has been twice married: first in 1849, to Elizabeth, daughter of William and Mary Ephlin, of Montour county, Pa., by which union there were four children: William H. H., Mary E. (wife of Joseph Roberts), Kate L. (wife of John Rogers) and Robert I. Mrs. Simcox died in 1858, aged thirty years, and the doctor then married, in 1859, Martha E. daughter of John and Susanna Stephenson, of this county. By this marriage there were three children: Harry M., Margaret (wife of G. W. Dougherty) and Jessie B. F., who was killed, with twenty-one of her schoolmates, at the Twenty-eighth street railroad disaster, Pittsburgh, Oct. 9, 1880. Dr. Simcox is a member of the medical society of this coun-ty, and of the I. O. O. F.

James B. Reed, contractor and builder, was born in Allegheny City, Oct. 23, 1838, a son of Robert M. and Sarah (Bigham) Reed. His paternal grandfather, Robert Reed, a native of Lancaster county, Pa., and a pion-eeer of Washington and Allegheny counties, in the pioneer days "packed" salt over the mountains to Pittsburgh. Robert M. Reed was a native of this county, a carpenter by trade, and the proprietor of a planing-mill in the city of Allegheny for a number of years; was also engaged in bridge-building to some extent. He reared a family of six children:
Frances, Thomas J., James B., Horace G., Jennie M. and John M. The subject of these lines was reared in Allegheny, and learned the carpenter's trade with his father. He came to McKeesport in 1868, and worked at his trade as a journeyman until 1875, when he embarked in business as a contractor and builder, in which he has been very successful. In 1870 he married Martha E., daughter of Asephe and Anna (Sill) Atwater, of McKeesport, and by her he has three children: Anna, Harry and Charlie. Mr. Reed is a member of the First Christian Church. He is a Royal Arch Mason, a member of the A. O. H., and is a republican.

JOHN J. KURTZ, dairyman, postoffice Fairhaven, was born Dec. 27, 1842, a son of John and Mary A. (Raber) Kurtz, natives of Germany, who had seven children: John J., Conrad, Elizabeth, Peter, Mary, Nicholas and Barbara. At the age of ten years John J. came to America, and subsequently was employed by the Birmingham Coal company for twenty years; at the present time he keeps a dairy. He is a self-made man. Mr. Kurtz married Catherine Kramer, a native of Germany, and their union has been blessed with six children: John C., Margaret, George D., William, Jennie and Jessie. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz are members of the R. C. Church in Baldwin township, and he is a republican.

WILLIAM WADE, Sr., deceased, was born in Springfield, N. J., in 1790. His wife was Susan King, born in 1800, in Washington, D. C. Mr. Wade was an officer in the war of 1813, and settled in this county in or about 1832. He built the Allegheny arsenal, and was one of the originators of the Fort Pitt foundry. Leaving that in 1839, he returned to the government service, as constructor of ordnance, till 1852. He then again engaged in the foundry business until he was burned out, in 1858. He was a member of the commission to establish the high-water lines of Pittsburgh, a member of the council, and held many other offices in the early days. He was also an able contributor to a large work on American manufacturing. He died in 1878. His wife survives him, aged sixty-eight years.

ALEXANDER JAMES MCGREGOR, postoffice Monroeville, was born in that part of Wilkins now called Penn township, in 1829. His grandfather went from Scotland to Ireland, where he died, and our subject's father, James McGregor, was born there. The latter was the youngest of five children, who came with their widowed mother to York county, Pa., when he was eleven years old. There he grew to manhood, and married Martha, daughter of Robert Wilson, of Scotch stock. About 1818 he settled on a farm in Penn township, where he died in 1883, aged forty-five. He was one of the founders and early members of Unity Presbyterian Church, and was a democrat. His widow died in 1873, aged eighty years. There were ten children in the family, and the six survivors reside in this county. Following are their names, with ages at time of the death of the deceased: John, fifty-five; William, fifty-one; Margaret, twenty-five; Robert. Jane (Barton), Nancy (Peterman), Mary (Booth), Martha, fifteen; Alexander and Rebecca (Elliott). A. J. McGregor remained on the farm in Penn until fifteen years old, when he took up carpenter-work, and in 1845 embarked in building in Pittsburgh. Later he took up pattern-building and tank-making, and for five years kept a retail grocery in the city. His only unsuccessful venture was the purchase of a steam flouring-mill in Penn township, which burned down after he had operated it a year and a half, and which was uninsured. In 1865 he was associated with others in putting down an oil-well near Pit Hole, which was sold to advantage the same year. Mr. McGregor became a resident of Patton in 1872, purchasing 146 acres of land, on which he has excellent buildings, and engages in general farming. He is a republican, with prohibition sympathies. In 1860 he married Margaret Anderson, a native of Ireland, a daughter of Jacob Anderson, who brought her to America when a babe. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. McGregor. The second, Mary, died when thirteen months old. The others are Martha, Annie and James; the oldest is the wife of George Aber, residing at Bingham, Wy.

JOHN MARTIN, retired, postoffice Dravosburg, was born Aug. 31, 1836, in Selp, Bavaria, Germany, and came to America at the age of eighteen years. In Germany he had learned the cotton-weaver's trade, but found employment in the coal-mines in this county. Becoming tired of a miner's life, he thoroughly learned the butcher business. In 1856 he opened a shop, and by forethought, honest dealing and economy has accumulated a competency. His son, John H., is evincing some of his father's industry, and is now conducting his business. Mr. Martin married Avelina Koehlman, a native of Germany, and they are the parents of nine children: Anna, who died, aged twenty years and ten months; Mrs. Catharine Watkins, John H., William, Emma, Lena, George, Addie and Charlie. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are members of the G. L. Church of McKeesport. Mr. Martin is a republican.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN SCHWER, farmer, postoffice Verona, is a son of Henry and Eleanor (Forster) Schwer, and was born in Pittsburgh, May 4, 1858. His parents were natives, respectively, of the cities of Hamburg and Copenhagen, and came to this country, immediately after their marriage, about forty years ago. For several years they kept what is known as the Danish restaurant on the Diamond, and were successful in accumulating some means. In 1856 they purchased a large farm in Penn township, whereon they dwelt until two years before Mr. Schwer's death at East Liberty, in 1876, his age being sixty-four. The sons and his mother then returned to the farm, where the latter died in 1888, aged nearly seventy-two years. The family has always been associated with the G. L. Church. Frances (Resler), the eldest child, resides in Allegheny City. William, the only son, remained at home, and received a fair education in the public schools. He is a member of the K. O. T. M.; is an enthusiastic republican, and has been elected to various township offices. In 1875 he married Minna Bauer, and they have five children: Henry Herbert, Dora Florence, William Royden and Minna Eleanor (twins) and Arthur Bauer.

Earnest C. A. Buch, heater in rolling-mill, 726 W. Carson street, Pittsburgh, a son of Frederick W. Buch, was born in Prussia in 1855. He came with his parents to this country in 1832, and settled in Allegheny county. They had eight children: John H. C., I. F. A. (deceased), J. H. E., Earnest C. A., a daughter that died in infancy, Louisa (deceased), J. C. H. and Frederick W., Jr. Frederick W. was a saddler by trade, and died in 1854, at the age of thirty-eight years; his widow is still living, aged seventy years. Earnest C. A. Buch learned the glass-manufacturing business, but in 1860 commenced work in the rolling-mill, which occupation he has since followed, except six years he was engaged in the glass business; he is now a heater in Painter’s rolling-mill. He married, Dec. 24, 1867, Philomena, daughter of Francis and Mary A. Snyder, and their children are Esther C., Elmer E., Augustus A., George F., Park A. and Charlotte E. Mr. Buch is a member of the A. O. U. W., the Heptasophs and the Amalgamated association. By industry and perseverance he is now the owner of a very pleasant home in Chartiers township, and a good business-house in Pittsburgh.

Dennis Nill, boot and shoe merchant, McKeesport, was born in Württemberg, Germany, Aug. 6, 1833, a son of Jacob and Agnes Nill. He came to America in 1854, and settled in Derry, where he worked sixteen years at the shoemaker’s bench, and two years thereafter in Pittsburgh. In 1872 he located in McKeesport, and opened a shoe store, which he has since successfully conducted; also has had a saloon in connection since 1873. In 1858 he married Mary C. Hannah, daughter of Philip Koder, of Württemberg, Germany, and by her has eleven children living: Lizzie, Jacob P., Carl, Anna, Hannah, Otto, Dennis, Emma, Ida, Bertha and George W. Mr. Nill is a member of the G. L. Church, of which he was president ten years in succession. He has held the office of school director of his ward nine years, and served three years as a member of council. He is a member of the F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W. and Liederkrasch, and is a member of the Masons.

Jacob Keil, Sr., retired, an old and highly respected citizen of Sharpsburg, was born in Darmstadt, Germany, in 1824. His parents, George and Catherine (Shaffer) Keil, were also born in Germany, and had a family of six children. George was a weaver, and, coming to America in 1827, located in Pittsburgh, and continued to reside in Allegheny county until his death, in 1868, at the age of seventy-five years. His wife died in 1876, aged seventy-one years. Jacob attended the common schools of Pittsburgh, and at an early day commenced to work in the iron-mills. He came to Sharpsburg in 1845, and here has since resided. That same year he married Doratha Krause, also of Germany, and eight children were born to them, of whom four sons are now living: Peter, manager of the tubeworks, Philadelphia; Edward, an iron-worker; Jacob, Jr., a druggist, of Sharpsburg, and George L., an iron-worker in Pittsburgh. Mr. Keil has for many years been boss roller in the iron-mill. He and family are members of the Lutheran Church. Politically he is a democrat.

David Dempsey, retired, postoffice Bennett, was born Aug. 22, 1838, in County Derry, Ireland, son of Daniel and Mary E. (McCalister) Dempsey. The father died in Ireland, and in 1851 the mother came to America with her children, and settled at Giriy’s run, now Millvale, on the same place where David now resides; she rented thirty acres of land of William Sample, farmed this and built a home. Here she reared her six children: John (a bachelor), James (of Cincinnati), Mrs. Mary Quinn (of Mercer county), Mrs. Catharine Logrin, Mrs. Mary McGaghay (of Erie county) and David. The mother died in 1864, aged seventy-two years, a woman of remarkable courage, a devout Catholic, much beloved and esteemed. David Dempsey remained in this county, and for eleven years was employed in the rolling-mills, subsequently became captain of a steamboat for eleven years, since then has been teaming for Kraft, Bennett & Co. He was married, in 1847, to Mary Disert, who died, leaving six children, viz.: Richard, John, Lillie, Maggie, James and Alfred. His present wife is Mrs. Sarah (Lightcap) daughter of G. C. Lightcap, Sr., an old settler. They are members of the M. E. Church; politically he is a republican. He voted for W. H. Harrison, the whig, and hauled two logs for the campaign cabin.

Adolph W. Reineman, of the firm of A. W. & H. A. Reineman, jewelers, McKeesport, was born in Allegheny City March 4, 1858, a son of Adam and Elizabeth (Rickenbaughs) Reineman, natives of Ziegenheim, Germany, and Allegheny county, respectively. His paternal grandfather, Conrad Reineman, a watchmaker by trade, settled in Chambersburg, in 1834, and his maternal grandfather, John Rickenbaugh, a native of Switzerland, was among the pioneers of Allegheny county. Adam Reineman, who was a watchmaker by trade, settled in Chambersburg, Pa., in 1841, removed to Pittsburgh in 1841, and embarked in the jewelry business, in which he continued until 1852, and then retired. His children who grew to maturity were August R., Emma (Mrs. Dr. Herman Hechelman), Henrietta (Mrs. Adolph Foerster), Edward, Adolph W., Henry A. and Louis E. Adolph W. was reared and educated in Allegheny. He located in McKeesport May 31, 1885, and with his brother, Henry A., embarked in the jewelry business. They have succeeded in building up a fine trade that is daily increasing, and their establishment is the principal one of the kind in McKeesport. Adolph W. married, Feb. 11, 1885, Callie, daughter of August and Henrietta (Goehrign) Hartze, of Allegheny, by whom he had one son, Lawrence G. Mr. Reineman is an enterprising and prominent business-man. Politically he is independent.

Harry Sheaff Paul, manufacturer, was born on Ross street, Pittsburgh, Feb. 13, 1856, son of J. W. Paul. He attended the public schools until fourteen years of age, when he learned the printer’s trade. Shortly after, however, he went with his uncle Metcalf, and entered the Crescent Steel-works, where he remained for over a year. When the firm of Metcalf, Paul & Co. opened the Venango Tool-works he entered there as office-boy, and learned telegraphy. Through his industry and business ability, he soon advanced to the position of shipping-clerk, and then to superintendent of the works, filling the latter place four years. The business had so increased that he went into their city office in Pittsburgh to take charge of their financial department, at the same time becoming one of the partners. This position he has held for eight years, with great credit to himself. Mr. Paul is a Scottish Rite Mason of the 32d degree; is a member of the Royal Arcanum and Jr. O. U. A. M. For two years he has been president of the American Political Club of Pittsburgh, and is well known in political circles. In 1877 he married Miss Jennie Lee, daughter of Caleb Lee, Jr. She was born in July, 1859. Three girls have been born to this family, namely, Knox, Mary Lee and Susan. Mr. and Mrs. Paul are members of the Episcopal Church.

S. W. Phillips, boat-builder, Redman Mills, was born Sept. 29, 1856, in Mansfield, Allegheny county. He is a son of Theodore Phillips, who was born June 3, 1830, in Robinson township, this county. William Phillips, grandfather of Samuel, was a native of Pennsylvania, and came to Allegheny county in an early day, and followed farming; he married Eliza Bails, a native of this county, of Irish descent. Theodore Phillips was also a farmer, and for twelve years he teamed for John Redman. He married Margaret Bonney, who died April 1, 1888, leaving eight children: William A., John A., Samuel W., Elmer E., Alex. S., Clara, Anna R. and Lucilla M. Samuel W. married, in this county, and learned the boat-builder’s trade with Church & Swain, on the Monongahela river. In 1888 he built the Iron City docks at Redmansville, of which he is now a partner and the superintendent. They employ from twenty-five to thirty men repairing boats, etc. Mr. Phillips married Hester Miller, who bore him three children: J. Hartley, Thomas E. and Bessie Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are members of the Baptist Church. He is a republican, and a member of the A. O. U. W. and I. O. O. F.

Oscar Melvin Tucker, teacher, Wilkinsburg, was born in Peru, Oxford county, Me., in 1840. His earliest ancestor in this country was Thomas Tucker, who came from England in 1713. He had two brothers, one of whom settled in South Carolina and the other in Western New York. William, his son, was born in Prospect (now Palmouth), and settled in New Gloucester, Me. They were a race of farmers and lumbermen. Eliphalet, son of William, cleared two farms. His leg was broken when he was thirteen years old in his effort to carry an enormous backlog for the fire. His son William married Lydia, sister of Timothy Ludden, and settled on a farm in Peru, where Oscar M. was born. Our subject was reared on the home farm, and educated at Bates College, Lewiston. In 1862 he enlisted for nine months’ service in the 29th Maine Volunteers, Co. F, and served nearly a year in the Army of the Potomac. He then engaged in teaching in the west, at Indianapolis and Tonica, Lacon and Chillicothe, Ill. For the last thirteen years he has been a tutor in the preparatory department of the Western University, with home in Wilkinsburg. He is associated with the East End Baptist Church, the R. A. and the republican party. In 1867 he married a native of Peru, Miss Harriet Emily, daughter of William B. and Charlotte (Thomas) Walton, of English and Welsh ancestry, respectively, and one daughter, Myrtle May, has been born to them.

Frederick Fleck, engineer, postoffice Wall, is a direct descendant of the “Hard Knight,” or Fleck of Bank, who flourished in Austria in 1180. He was born to John and Catharine (Adler) Fleck, on the Rhine, May 29, 1830. Seven years later they immigrated, and, after dwelling some years at Buffalo and other points, settled in Pittsburgh in 1840. John Fleck made the first lager beer in Pittsburgh, using yeast brought from Bavaria in a letter. He died in 1854, at the age of fifty-three, and his widow died thirty years later, at the age of seventy-three. There were two sons, John, the eldest, being deceased. Fred Fleck was taught brewing and cooperage, and when sixteen years old set out to see the world. He first visited St. Louis, then New Orleans, Mexico and the West Indies. In 1849 he visited his native land, and traced his ancestry from the public records. After traveling in France and England, he returned to Pittsburgh, and was married, in 1852, to Ida Phoebe, a native of Saxon. She died in 1861, leaving a daughter, Elizabeth, now teaching at Wall’s station, where the family have lived since 1868. In 1852 Mr. Fleck became a fireman on the P. R. R., and four years later an engineer. He has hauled all sorts of trains, and never had an accident nor left his train. His handsome home, which he built, contains a choice library of over 250 volumes, to which he is constantly adding. He has filled some local offices, such as school director, etc., and is a lifelong democrat. The family is associated with the M. E. Church. In 1864 Mr. Fleck married Annie E. McIntyre, a native of Greensburg, daughter of James and Annie (Funk) McIntyre; members of old Westmoreland families, of Irish and German extraction, respectively. Three children have blessed the second union: Charles B., ticket-agent at Wall's station; Anna Mary and Katie Isabel.

Frederick Stoner, farmer, postoffice White Ash, was born Dec. 10, 1829, on the farm where he has always resided. Sept. 25, 1863, he married Mary, sister of Samuel Herron, and daughter of John and Sarah (McKnight) Herron. She was born in County Down, Ireland, and is a member of the U. P. Church. Mr. Stoner's father, Christian, was born in Franklin county in 1794, and died in Penn township June 23, 1871. He married Mary Stoner (no relative), a native of Bedford county, who died Feb. 12, 1876, aged eighty-four years. Christian Stoner was one of the founders of Mt. Hope Baptist Church, of which he was deacon. He held numerous town offices, and was, as is his son, a republican. His children are Nancy (Fondersmith), Barbara (Stotler), Penn township; Catharine, Elizabeth and Frederick (both on the homestead) and Mary (Miller).

Dennis Wool, coupling-maker, McKeensport, was born at Boston, Mass., Oct. 15, 1836, a son of Richard and Mary (Madden) Wool, natives of Ireland and England, respectively. He was reared and educated in his native city, where he also learned the blacksmith's trade, at which he worked as a journeyman four years. He came to McKeensport in 1872, and entered the employ of the National Tube-works company, where he has since been employed, in the coupling department, and has one of the best positions in the works. He is a member of the K. of H., and has always been a democrat.

David Means, farmer, postoffice Taren- tum, was born at Colerain, County Derry, Ireland, in 1831. In 1840 his parents immigrated to America, and located in West Deer township, Allegheny county, Pa. His father, George Means, a millwright by trade, was killed at the erection of a mill in West Deer township. David learned the brass-founder's trade, and then went to California, where he remained fifteen years, having previously purchased the farm he now owns. He married Mary Chestnut in East Deer township, and engaged in farming. They have two children, Thomas and James, and are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Henry Morgan, miner, postoffice Turtle Creek, is a native of Wales, born in Breconshire, Feb. 15, 1848. His parents, James and Jane (Edwards) Morgan, came to Allegheny county in 1854, and located at Dravosburg. James was all his life a coal-miner, and in 1874 moved to Turtle Creek, where he died in February, 1886, aged sixty-four years. His widow now resides in Wilkins township. They were members of the M. E. Church, and reared seven children: Henry, James (a resident of Homestead), Maria (Mrs. John Skelton, Wilkins), Charles (with his mother), George W. (in Wilkins), Thomas and Jane (with their mother). Two died in infancy: Maria and Thomas. Henry Morgan began mining when only nine years old, and has since followed the business, except a year spent in peddling. After dwelling seven years at Irwin, he came to Turtle Creek in 1879. His first dwelling here was pulled down to prevent the spread of a fire; he then built another, which was burned down July 5, 1887. Mr. Morgan is associated with the M. E. Church, and politically is a stanch republican. In 1870 he married Lucinda Young, a native of Dravosburg, and daughter of Conrad and Eve Young, natives of Germany and Westmoreland county, Pa. The following are the names of Mr. Morgan's children: Lillian, Minerva, Conrad Young, James, Charles Wesley, Leonora Hunter, William J. and Mabel.

James Carothers, farmer, postoffice Monroeville, is a brother of David Carothers, and was born on the farm where he now resides, Oct. 20, 1827. His home has always been here, and he came into possession of it by inheritance in 1853. He enlisted, Aug. 8, 1862, in Co. E, 135d regiment, nine-months men, and served in the Army of the Potomac, participating in the battles of Chancellorsville and Fredericksburg. In 1866 he married Elizabeth H. Dubarry, born in Pittsburgh, a daughter of Edward and Wilhelmina Dubarry, of French and German descent. Mr. Carothers has served as assessor, auditor and collector. He is a republican, and is an elder in the Cross Roads Presbyterian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Carothers have five children: Matthias G., Edward D., Sophie E., Sarah, and William. The first born, Robert, died in infancy.

Joseph H. Price, M. D., postoffice Lancetol, is a son of John and Mary (Otter- son) Price. His father was reared in Pittsburgh, and opened the first confectionery store in Allegheny City. In 1866 he was appointed overseer of the engineering department of the Western penitentiary, and died in 1898. His widow is still living, a resident of Allegheny City. Seven of their children are also living, as follows: William (a member of the firm of Reyner Bros., confectioners), Mary, Emma, Elizabeth and George (at home), Charles (a farmer of this township), and Joseph H., our subject, who was born April 4, 1864, in Allegheny City, and received his education at the public schools and the Normal Institute, and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, in 1879, and began the practice of his profession in Petersville, Butler county, where he remained one year. He then moved to Allegheny, and in 1886 located in Hampton. township. He married, in 1888, Eva, daughter of J. P. and Elizabeth (Richards) Eaton, of Sewickley, F. R. H. has one child, William. Dr. and Mrs. Price are members of the U. P. Church of Allegheny City.

John M. Peebles, farmer, Perryville, is a son of William and Catherine (Brown) Peebles. William Peebles was born in Ross township in 1819, and followed the occupation of a farmer; he was a soldier in the late war, and was a member of Co. E, 18th P. C. He died in 1898. John M. is the youngest son, and was born on the homestead, Aug. 2, 1857; was educated at the public schools, and at the death of his father became part owner of the homestead, which he works. He has held the office of assessor, and attends the Hiland Presbyterian Church of Perryville.

Robert Carson Catherwood, farmer, Culmerville, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., April 5, 1842, son of John Catherwood and Elizabeth (Fleming) Catherwood, who came to Pittsburgh, in 1813, from County Derry, Ireland. They died May 15, 1861, aged seventy-four years, and Dec. 20, 1845, aged forty-five years, respectively. His father was a farmer, but worked in the Pittsburgh rolling-mills for some time, and was justice of the peace for West Deer township for two terms. Mr. Catherwood has one sister, Mrs. Susan Hessen Culmer. Robert attended the common school here, and remained with his father until the death of the latter. He then worked on the farm, which his father bought about 1827, consisting of one hundred acres, which he cleared from the woods. Robert was married, July 14, 1857, to Sarah Catherine McKnight, of Meadville, Crawford county, Pa., daughter of David S. and Elizabeth (Wayley) McKnight, natives of Pennsylvania. Her father died in 1874, aged seventy-four years, and her mother lives in Tarentum, Pa. They are all members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and are among its founders; her father was one of the elders from its organization until his death. Mr. and Mrs. Catherwood have four children living and four dead. Those living are John Charles, James S., Robert Fleming and Joseph Leonard; those deceased were all under four years of age. Mr. Catherwood was justice of the peace for two terms, and has held all of the town offices.

Robert Bown, foreman machinery department National Tube-works, McKeesport, was born in Bakewell, Derbyshire, England, Dec. 16, 1845, a son of Joseph and Ann (Nixon) Bown. He was reared and educated in his native town, and served seven years' apprenticeship at the machinist's trade. He came to America in 1869, located in New York, and in 1871 removed to Boston, where he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company as a machinist, working in that capacity three years. In 1877 he settled in McKeesport, where he began work for the same company, and has held his present position since 1881. In 1878 he married Jane, daughter of Charles and Jane (Domsfield) Skerret, of Manchester, England, and has six children: Lillian, Joseph R., Ernest, James, Lucy J., and Walter. Mr. Bown is a member of the Episcopal Church, F. & A. M. and I. O. F., and in politics is independent republican.

Samuel G. Brown, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, is a son of George and Mary (Eliott) Brown, of Middlesex, Butler county, Pa., where our subject was born Jan. 13, 1818, and was educated at the public schools. In April, 1849, he moved to his present farm in Hampton township, where he has since lived. He married, in 1841, Mrs. Mary Colwell, widow of Thomas Colwell, of this county. She died in 1866, leaving one son, John G., who enlisted in Co. G, 102d P. V., and lost an arm at the battle of Fair Oaks, returned home, and for a number of years acted as clerk of the court in Pittsburgh. He died May 2, 1874. Our subject married for his second wife, in 1869, Margaret, daughter of John Porter, of this county. She died in 1872, leaving one daughter, Margaret, who lives at home. Mr. Brown has held the offices of justice of the peace, assessor of the township, and is a member of the U. P. Church of Talley Cavey.

Alonzo Ecker, contractor, Wilkinsburg, was born in 1834, in Pittsburgh, Pa., where his father, Emanuel Ecker, settled in 1831. The latter was born in 1813, in Cumberland county, Pa., married Mary Ann White, a native of Pittsburgh, in 1832, and died in 1884, a few minutes after casting his ballot for James G. Blaine for president. His father was a Dunkard preacher, and Catharine M. J. Ecker, a well-known writer, is his half-sister. For over forty years he was a prominent contractor in Pittsburgh, and built the Monongahela House, present city hall, many schoolhouses, churches, etc. His wife was a daughter of Rev. John White, a Baptist clergyman, who dropped dead one morning while waiting for the ferry, on his way to preach. His wife's father, — Ziegler, was a revolutionary soldier. At one time his wife entertained together in her house her mother, grandmother, daughter and grandson, making five generations. Emanuel Ecker had seven sons and five daughters, Alonzo being the eleventh child. With the exception of nine years, during which the family dwelt on a farm in Armstrong county, his youth was passed in Pittsburgh. When nineteen years old he began to learn the bricklayer's trade with his father, and has followed it ever since. In 1890 he became a resident of Wilkinsburg, and three years later the building firm of Ecker & Glantz was established. Among other buildings they erected the Presbyterian and U. P. churches at Wilkinsburg, and Pennsylvania Female College and German school buildings in the East End. Mr. Ecker married Ida, daughter of Frederick and Sarah (Terry) Bishop, of Allegheny, where Mrs. Ecker was born, and their children are Harvey F., Laura J., Jonathon Ecker was a son of James and Sarah (Smith) Fulton, who were both natives of Ireland, where they married, and on coming to America located at Pittsburgh, where James became engaged in mercantile pursuits; later he received the appointment of gauger, and about 1837 he removed to Tarentum, where he became a dealer in general merchandise. James Fulton was a soldier in the war of 1812, with rank of ensign. Sarah, his wife, died in 1843, and he in 1850. Their children were Andrew S., who was educated for the ministry, now deceased; Jonathan G., who died about 1878; James B., deceased in 1884; Sarah, deceased in 1842; James, deceased in 1874; Mary A. and William G. James B., who had been in California for some time following the death of his father, returned to Tarentum, and with his brother continued in business, the firm being J. B. Fulton & Bro. A new building was erected, and an addition was soon found necessary to afford facilities for their increasing trade. William G. is now in trade at the same place. He is a member of the U. P. Church.

Robert Miller (deceased) was born in November, 1835, in Allegheny county, where he died April 7, 1872. He was a son of Rodney Miller, a well-known farmer and was educated in this county, where he followed agricultural pursuits. Having been reared on the farm, he early in life, showed the qualities that make a good husbandman. He was an esteemed member of the Presbyterian Church, and wherever he was known was respected. He married Jane Douthett, a native of Butler county, Pa., the only daughter of Joseph and Rebecca (Magee) Douthett, the parents dying at her home. Mrs. Miller is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and by her devotion to her parents and her husband has proven herself a true woman.

Joseph Miller, hotel-keeper, postoffice Herron, is a son of George and Frances (Wahl) Miller, natives of France, who immigrated to America in 1890, and settled in Pittsburgh. George followed gardening, and in 1858 purchased a farm in Ross township, where he has since resided. He is the father of nine children: John; Mary E., wife of Joseph Begenwall; Andrew, William, Josephine, Rosa B., Burnhart and Frank, at home, and our subject, who was born June 10, 1849, in Pittsburgh, but was reared and educated in Ross township. In 1866 he commenced to learn the carpenter's trade, and followed it for a time in Pittsburgh. In 1872 he entered the hotel business at Eleven-Mile House, in Hampton township, and continued until 1883, when he moved to his present location. In 1871 he married Miss Annie, daughter of John Lovitt, of Blair county. She died in 1872, leaving no children. Mr. Miller married, in 1876, for his second wife Ella, daughter of John and Susan (Good) Keown, of Ross township. They have two children: Susan Frances and Ella T., who are at home. Our subject has held the offices of supervisor of Ross township, and member and built Ross township for three years. He and family are members of St. Mary's Church, of Pine Creek.

James H. McIlvire, tax-collector, McKeesport, was born in Butler county, Pa., Aug. 14, 1820, a son of Robert and Agnes (McCleod) McIlvire, pioneers of Butler county, the former a native of Carlisle, Pa., and the latter of Scotland. James H. was reared in Butler county, and is a ship-carpenter, which trade he followed on the rivers of Western Pennsylvania for upward of thirty-five years. He located in McKeesport in 1857, where he has since resided. In 1844 he married Margaret, daughter of Chrisman and Catherine (Cifer) West, of Butler county, and by her has two children: Margaret (Mrs. John T. Lynn) and Livy H. Mr. McIlvire is a member of the First M. E. Church of McKeesport, and the Equitable Aid Union. He was assessor of the First ward of McKeesport for twelve years, and tax-collector for a number of years. In politics he is a democrat.

Joseph Hite, manufacturer, Sewickley, was born in Armstrong county, Pa., son of John Hite, a native of Germany, who came to America in 1847, and located in Armstrong county; latterly removed to Westmoreland county, where he engaged in the lumber business and died. Joseph Hite was reared in Westmoreland county, and in 1863 he moved to Pittsburgh, where he worked for different parties till 1875, when he entered partnership with Wilson & Snyder, brass-founders and manufacturers of iron pipe, valves and fittings, and steam-pump machines, etc. They have put in various large pumps for water-works, among them two six-milllion-gallon pumps for Allegheny. They do an immense business, giving employment to 120 mechanics. Mr. Hite is traveler for the firm.

Hugh Phillips, general merchant, Glenfield, was born Sept. 25, 1852, in County Antrim, Ireland, son of John Phillips, a native of above-named place, who came to America when his son Hugh was seven months old, settling on Neville Island, this county, where Robert Phillips, an uncle, resided. John Phillips was a gardener, an occupation he followed successfully; the parents are still living. Hugh Phillips was educated in this county; at the age of fifteen years he entered his brother Thomas' store at Glenfield, and in course of time became a partner. They conduct a general merchandise business, including feed, flour, drugs, coal, etc., and merchandisers of all kinds, the style of the firm being Thomas Phillips & Bros. Mr. Phillips was married to Urilda A., daughter of Capt. R. R. Frisbee, a pioneer steamboatman, and they are the parents of six children: Katie, Bessie, Allen C., Emma V., Ethel and Howard. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are mem-
JOHN C. SHULTZ, engineer, postoffice Homestead, was born Nov. 14, 1848, in Harrisburg, a son of Jacob Shultz. He was educated in his native town and learned the machinist's trade in Williamsport, Pa., where he worked four years. He then worked two years in Galesburg, Ill., and Burlington, Iowa, coming back to Williamsport; but in a short time he returned to the west. After remaining a year and a half he again came east, and in Pittsburgh worked with McIntosh, Hempell & Co. until September, 1859. At that time he removed to Homestead, and became foreman of the machine-shop, which position he fills to the present time, having two foremen under him, and is now master mechanic. In Pittsburgh he married Jennie Jeffress, and their union was blessed with five children: Frank, Ada, Harry and James (twins) and Wallace. Mr. Shultz was a soldier in the civil war, served during the one hundred days in Co. A, 194th P. V. He is a member of the I.O.O.F. and Jr. O. U. A. M., and is a Knight of the Golden Eagle.

M. STOLL, blacksmith, Bennett, was born Nov. 13, 1846, in Württemberg, Germany, a son of Jacob F. and Christine (Nofer) Stoll. He was educated in Germany, and came to America at the age of seventeen years. He learned his trade with John Kruger, and has been conducting a successful business for himself since 1870. He married Anna Aldinger, and they have four children: Louise P., Charles W., Mary L. and John F. Mr. and Mrs. Stoll are members of the German Church, in which he has held several offices. Politically he is a republican.

WILLIAM HENRY MALLISEE, miller, postoffice Murrysville, was born in Pittsburgh May 29, 1839. His parents, Henry and Deliah (Deal) Mallisee, natives of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county, respectively, now reside on a farm in Plum township, and are of German and Irish descent. W. H. Mallisee was reared in Pittsburgh, and began work at the molder's trade when eleven years old, following that until 1873. In 1876 he purchased what was known as the Blueball mill, in Patton, which he has since operated. In 1875 he married Margaret Dible, who died the same year, and the next year he married Anna Catharine Dice, a native of Plum. Her father, Enoch, was a son of Peter Dice, whose father came from Germany; her mother, Christina, was a daughter of John Holtzer, whose father, Jacob, was a revolutionary soldier. The wife of the latter was a Miss Pore, of English descent. The Holtzers are no doubt of German ancestry. In politics Mr. Mallisee is a republican. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and he is a republican.

F. M. LOVE, Sewickley, was born in Cabell county, W. Va., and is descended from one of the oldest families. The ancestors were Scotch on the father's side and English on the mother's. The paternal great-grandfather, Daniel Love, was a native of Scotland, and a farmer. His son, Daniel, was a soldier in the revolutionary war. A son of Daniel was a soldier in the war of 1812, and subsequently became an extensive farmer. He was married to Cynthia Chadwick, whose grandfather, Hiram Chadwick, was a native of England, and his son, John, was a whig, and under Gen. Marion in South Carolina. F. M. Love was reared on a farm in West Virginia, and is principally self-educated. At the age of eighteen years, April 10, 1848, he came to Pittsburgh, where he clerked in his brother's business, the firm being Young, Stevenson & Love. He left them in 1856, having been a member of the firm two years. He then traveled west, and returning east he located in Philadelphia, Pa., where he clerked in the dry-goods house of Lippincott, Coffin & Co. Eventually he moved to Pittsburgh, and became a member of the firm of Phelps, Park & Co., manufacturers of wagons. In 1863 Mr. Love entered the army as quarter-master in the Pennsylvania volunteers, Humphrey's division of the army corps; served nine months and then returned to Pittsburgh, where he remained a member of the old firm until 1864, when he sold his interest in the business to his partners. Until 1867 he was again engaged with his father in the dry-goods business, and subsequently for two years was general agent for the Federal Insurance company, of Allegheny. In 1872 the dry-goods firm of Love & Co. was formed, which continued for sixteen years, our subject furnishing the cash and being the mainstay of the firm. Since 1861 he has been a resident of Edgeworth, and has materially aided in the prosperity of the place.

REV. DAVID BARCLAY, pastor of Hebron Church, postoffice White Ash, was born in Nottingham township, Harrison county, Ohio, Jan. 27, 1836. His parents, David and Barbara (Eliza (Kissing) Barclay, were natives of Pennsylvania. His mother, was reared in County Derry, Ireland, and settled on the farm where he was born and reared. He graduated from Franklin College, Ohio, in September, 1857, and afterward attended Allegheny Theological Seminary. His first and only charge was that of Hebron U. P. Church, where he began preaching Jan. 1, 1876. Oct. 11, 1881, he married Mary J., daughter of John Duff, of this township, and widow of Newton Wilson. In 1887, he built the residence he occupies, to which is attached a small farm. Politically he has always acted with the republicans. Mrs. Barclay has a child by her former marriage, Maud Wilson.

NICHOLAS RATIGAN, foreman, Homestead, was born May 3, 1865, in Mystic, Cown., the son of Michael and Bridget (Cuff) Ratigan, natives of Ireland. He was educated in Pittsburgh, and came to Homestead, where he was employed in the Pittsburgh Bessemer Steel-works, where he worked his way up, and since 1885 has filled the position of foreman of the converting department of Carnegie, Philips & Co. He is a man of excellent ability, and has
Mr. McMahan is engaged in farming. He is a member of the R. C. Church, and is a democrat.

John Mcclarin, farmer, post-office Tar- rentum, a son of William and Jane (Cook) Mcclarin, was born in Beaver county, Pa., in 1829. In 1833 his parents removed to the farm in East Deer township, Allegheny county, now owned by John, where they both died. Their children were Elizabeth, who now resides in Tarentum; Mary, deceased; William, who enlisted during the civil war, and was killed in battle, and John. John now occupies the old homestead farm, and is quite an extensive dairyman.

William Floyd, superintendent of steel-mills, post-office Munhall, was born May 12, 1840, in Chester county, Pa. His great-grandfather was an English sea-captain, and a relative of William Floyd, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. George W. Floyd, the father of our subject, was a native of and a well-known resident and millwright of Chester county, Pa., and married Sarah Leggett, who became the mother of nine children; her three sons were mechanics. In youth William learned the trade of blacksmith, at which he worked two years in Ohio. He then worked thirteen years for the Pennsylvania Steel company, at Steelton, where he had charge of the hammer department, but, his health failing, he went west to Michigan, and farmed a year. Later he worked two years in the steel-mills at Joliet, Ill., and in September, 1881, came to Homestead, where he has held the position of superintendent of the steel-mill ever since, and conducted the business intrusted to his care with commendable zeal and ability. At the outbreak of the civil war Mr. Floyd was the first to enter the ranks, enlisting April 16, 1861, in Co. A, 9th P. V. I. He afterward enlisted in Co. I, 201st P. V., in which he was second duty-sergeant, and participated in several engagements. Mr. Floyd is a member of the I. O. O. F., Lodge No. 160, and of the Encampment, No. 10, at Harrisburg. He married Mary E. Powell, of Chester county, and they have one child, Georgia A.

Charles M. McCully, merchant, De- haven Station, post-office Herron, is a son of William and Nancy (Gilmore) McCully, natives of County Down, Ireland, who emigrated to America about 1825. They located in Pittsburgh, where the father followed the occupation of carpenter. In 1832 he purchased a farm in Hampton township, and resided thereon until his death, in 1882; his widow died in 1885. Their family consisted of ten children, nine of whom are still living: Henry, James G., Mary Jane (wife of Lott Morrison), Hugh, Euphemia (a maiden lady), Nancy (wife of Alexander Lawber), Eliza (wife of Frederick Morse), Sarah E. (wife of Edward Chandler) and our subject, who was born on the homestead in Hampton township, Oct. 8, 1849, and remained on the farm until 1886, when he engaged in general mercantile business at Dehaven Station. In earned for himself his present position. He married, in Pittsburgh, Mary Manning, and they have two children: Blanche C. and Catharine M.

HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

William J. McLaughlin, farmer, post-office Moon, was born on the farm where he now resides, June 15, 1831, a son of Thomas and Ellen (Hooper) McLaughlin. The latter was born in Moon township, a daughter of John and Elizabeth (Riccord) Hooper, who settled first in Moon and afterward in Findlay township. Thomas McLaughlin was born in Findlay township, where his son William J. now resides. He was a son of James and Elizabeth (Baird) McLaughlin. James McLaughlin and brother came from Ireland to Eastern Pennsylvania, and soon after his marriage James came to what is now Findlay township. Thomas and Ellen (Hooper) McLaughlin had three children: Emmeline (who resides with her mother in Findlay township), Eliza J. (widow of David McClaster, in Findlay township) and William J. The latter married, Sept. 9, 1873, Margaret McLaughlin, who was born in Findlay township, a daughter of Lazareth and Margaret (Wyke) McLaughlin. Their children are Fannie C., Thomas L., Jane M. and Jeremiah M. Mr. McLaughlin owns a fine farm of two hundred acres, and raises grain and stock; also has an extensive dairy. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin are members of the Presbyterian Church at Sharon.

Phillip Grall, Jr., gardener, post-office Bennett, was born April 8, 1852, in Millvale, this county. His father, Phillip Grall, a native of Alsace, France (now Germany), came to America with his young wife, Barbara (Jacobs) Grall, in 1850, and worked in Millvale two years. He removed to Spring Hill, where he gardened thirteen years, and then purchased thirty-three acres of land in Shaler township, where he farmed and gardened until his death, Nov. 29, 1886; his wife outlived him only one year. Our subject, who was educated in this county, has followed farming and gardening successfully. He married there Maggie Thomas, a native of Alsace, Germany, and they have four sons: Phillip, Fred, George and Charles. Phillip Grall, Sr., was president of the G. L. Church for many years, and which he assisted to build. Our subject is also a member, and politically he is a republican.

Robert McMahan, farmer, post-office Sunny Side, a son of Hugh and Rosella (Comiski) McMahan, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1811. In 1816 his parents removed to Westmoreland county, and purchased one hundred acres of land at nineteen dollars per acre. Hugh died in Westmoreland county, and Rosella, his wife, at Monongahela. "Our Robert married Betsey (now deceased), daughter of Samuel Reeves, of Westmoreland county, over fifty years ago. Their children were Martha, Rosella, Hugh, Nancy, John, Mary and Robert, all living in the county except Hugh, who is in West Virginia. Mr. McMahan is engaged in farming. He is a member of the R. C. Church, and is a democrat.
1877 he married Mary, daughter of J. B. and Mary (Couchroun) McMorland, of McKeesport. They have six children living: Emma Gertrude, Anna Margaret, David Allen, Mary Gilmore, Charles Melvin and Harry McKee (twins). Our subject has held the office of vocal director of the township, and he and family are members of the U. P. Church of Pine Creek.

SEWARD OLIVER, D. D. S., Duquesne, was born April 12, 1848, on the Oliver homestead, and was educated in this county and at the State Normal school. He studied dentistry with Dr. J. S. King, of Pittsburgh, and graduated in March, 1877, at Indianapolis, Ind. He resides in Duquesne, where he has an office and keeps a drugstore. Dr. Oliver married, Nov. 23, 1885, Alice M., daughter of Archibald Robinson, and they have one child, Laura Bell. Dr. Oliver is a republican.

WILLIAM T. SHANNON, dry-goods merchant, Sewickley, is a son of Robert and Essie Shannon, born in County Down, Ireland. The family is a very old one in Ireland, having come from Scotland at the time of the Normans. William T. was educated in his native home, came to America in 1843, at the age of sixteen years, clerked in New Castle, Pa., till 1847, and then located in Pittsburgh. He clerked for Thomas White & Brothers, was next with Charles Arbuthnot for thirty-five years, five years as clerk and thirty years as partner, engaged in wholesale notions and dry goods. In 1882, after a successful career, they dissolved partnership, and his son Robert was taken into the business, the firm being now W. T. Shannon & Son. Mr. Shannon resided in Pittsburgh till 1873, when he removed to Edgeworth, where he now resides. He has all his life been a sober, earnest, industrious man.

DR. S. F. SHANNON. Another son of Mr. Shannon is Dr. S. F. Shannon, who read medicine in Wilkinsburg, and graduated at the Hahnemann Medical College, in Philadelphia, in the class of 1879. The following year he went abroad, where he pursued his studies in the best European hospitals. He is now located in Sewickley, where he has built up a fine practice.

JOHN HEINZ, manufacturer, Sharpsburg, the junior member of the firm of F. & J. Heinz, born at South Side, Pittsburgh, in 1849, the second son and third child born to Henry and Margaret (Smith) Heinz. His education was obtained at the private schools of Sharpsburg, and as early as eight years of age he helped his father in the brickyard. At thirteen years of age he learned the trade of nail-cutting, which he followed until twenty-two years of age, when he returned to the brickyard and assisted his father in that work. He continued there until 1874, when he turned his attention to the preserving of pickles and the vinegar business, and is now superintendent of the packing and manufacturing department. In February, 1876, upon the reorganization of this establishment, Mr. Heinz became one of the firm, which still exists. In 1868 he married Maria C., daughter of Robert James, of Canada. They have six children: Harry W., I. T., Eddie, Clara May, John R., and Henrietta Ada. From his first association with this business Mr. Heinz has devoted all his attention to it. He and family are members of the U. P. Church, and politically he is a republican.

JAMES SIMPSON, foreman of the butt-weld department National Tube-works, McKeesport, was born in Manchester, England, June 9, 1841, a son of James and Catherine (Pendleberry) Simpson. He was reared and educated in his native city, and served an apprenticeship of seven years at the machinist's trade. Coming to America in 1869, he settled in McKeesport, where he was foreman in the McKeesport locomotive and car-works five years. In 1874 he engaged with the National Tube-works company as a machinist, and since 1880 has held his present position. In 1862 he married Abigail, daughter of John and Ann (Riley) Hill, of Manchester, England, and by her has eight children: Polly, James A., Thomas, Annie, Florence, Henry I., Charles and Diana E. A. Mr. Simpson is a representative citizen of the borough, a member of the F. & A. M., and a republican.

JOHN MCLAREN, pattern-maker, Pittsburgh, son of Peter and Mary (McVain) Mclaren, was born in Scotland, where he was educated and learned his trade, that of pattern-maker. He immigrated to America in 1879, arriving in Pittsburgh, Pa., in May of that year. Here he followed his trade until 1888, when he opened a pattern-shop on his own account on Third avenue. Mr. McLaren was married, in or about 1876, to Elizabeth Nelson, a native of Scotland, and three children have been born to them: Bella, May and Jessie. Mr. and Mrs. McLaren are members of the Emsworth U. P. Church, and he is a F. & A. M.

ANDREW WYSE, tailor, Wilkinsburg, son of Robert and Margaret (Hardie) Wyse, was born at Markinch, Fife-shire, Scotland, June 19, 1850. His father was a mine boss, and died there in 1883; the widow still resides there. Of their ten children, one-half remain in Scotland and the others are in America, all married and settled. Andrew, who is the seventh, was reared in a village, attended a pay-school till thirteen years old, when he was apprenticed to a tailor. He served four and one-half years, and always followed the trade. In 1870 he came to Pittsburgh, and was employed in some of the leading shops there. In 1882 he took up his residence at Wilkinsburg, and built his house two years later. March 1, 1887, he opened a tailor-shop here, and has built up a very successful business, employing six hands. He is an active supporter of the Presbyterian Church, and a consistent republican; he is a member of the A. O. U. W., R. A. and I. O. H. He was married, in 1879, to Gertrude Lacock, and they have one son, born June 5, 1881. John Scott and Margaret (McLean) Lacock, parents of Mrs. Wyse, were early residents of Wilkinsburg, and were of Scotch ancestry.

Frank Baumann, Glenfield, was born Feb. 6, 1853, in Endingen, Baden, Germany, son of Frank and Apolonia (Benitz) Baumann, former of whom was at one time a merchant, and now lives retired in Freiburg, Germany. Frank Baumann, the subject of this sketch, was educated in his native home, and there learned the brewer's trade. After having traveled considerably in Europe, he came to America in 1874, and followed his trade in Pittsburgh for a couple of years, then engaged in the hotel business, and subsequently turned his attention to fruit-growing. He now owns a farm of thirty acres, and has been very successful. Mr. Baumann married Augusta Schuahmann, a native of Prussia, and they have one daughter, Emma, and one adopted daughter, Lizzie Baumann. In politics Mr. Baumann is an independent.

C. G. L. Peffer, merchant, postoffice Creighton, was born in Butler county, Pa., in 1832. He received his education in the schools of that county when educational advantages were not so good as they are now, but fitted himself for business. He has been a merchant for thirty-six years, and located in Creighton in 1883, as a dealer in general merchandise. Nov. 23, 1872, he married Jennie Creighton, a cousin of James Creighton, formerly superintendent of the W. P. R. R., in whose honor Creighton was named. Mr. and Mrs. Peffer have four children: Harry C., George W., Lulu C. and Gracie.

Samuel King McElheny, farmer, Dorseyville, was born in this county in 1846, son of Cortland King and Mary (Patton) McElheny, who were born in Washington county in 1816, and in this county in 1817, respectively. His father learned the trade of cabinet-maker in Pittsburgh, and afterward rented a farm in Indiana (Pa.) (in 1846) (which he bought the farm where Samuel now lives. He was a member of Pine Creek Presbyterian Church, and an elder in the church at Bakerstown at the time of his death, which occurred in September, 1884. His widow died in January, 1888. His maternal grandfather was one of the earliest settlers in Indiana township, and his grandfather was in the war of 1812. Both of his great-grandfathers were in the revolutionary war. Samuel was educated in the common schools of this township, and at the age of seventeen he enlisted in Co. D, 77th regiment, P. V. I., 4th corps. Army of the Cumberland. They were sent to the front, and reached Nashville just after the battle; then were sent to Alabama, New Orleans and Texas, but had no engagements, and were discharged in November, 1865. He succeeded his father farm, and, death of the latter, and continued to cultivate the home farm. He was married in April, 1884, to Sarah J. Brown, a native of Ireland, who came to this country with her parents when she was a baby, and settled in Moon township, where she resided until 1865. Three children, two of whom are deceased, were born to Mr. and Mrs. McElheny; Mary Alice is living. Mrs. McElheny is a member of the East Union M. P. Church. Mr. McElheny is a republican, member of the G. A. R., Post No. 98, and has been assessor and register of the township. He has eighty-four acres of land, with fine buildings.

James Kennedy, manufacturer, Tarentum, son of John and Sarah M. (Woods) Kennedy, was born at Tarentum, in 1828, which has since been his home (a record of his family appearing on page 288). He married, Oct. 30, 1851, Margaret N., daughter of James Hare, of East Deer township, Allegheny county, her people being among the pioneers of that part of the country. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy settled in Tarentum, where he followed his trade, that of a carpenter, until 1872, in which year he and his brother, John, built the planing-mill, in which business he is now engaged. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy reared a family of nine children: Mary A., now Mrs. W. A. Tucker, of Tarentum; Kezia A., who has taught for sixteen years in Tarentum; John A., superintendent of the planing-mill at Monongahela City; James H., at the glassworks near Kittanning; Sarah I., Rebecca J.; William G., being educated at the university at Allegheny City; Thomas S., manager of the planing-mill, and Alfred C., at school in Tarentum. The mother died Jan. 10, 1885, a member of the M. E. Church, of which Mr. Kennedy is also a member.

Hon. Andrew Large, retired, postoffice Coal Valley, was born March 14, 1820, on the Large homestead, a son of Jonathan Large, who was born in 1794, and died in 1862, in Jefferson township. Jonathan married Esther, a daughter of Andrew and Jane (Howe) Finney, and became the father of the following children: Jane, John, Andrew, Levi, Jonathan, John, and Anna (twins), Henry and Mrs. Henrietta McCracken. Jonathan Large, Sr., was one of the most active men in his day in the building up of the Pennsylvania militia, of which he was brigadier-general. The subject of this sketch has been a farmer, carpenter, miller, soldier and statesman, and was captain in the militia, Union artillery. He yet owns 123 acres of the Finney homestead. He is a strong democrat, and when, on the outbreak of the civil war, the Union was threatened, he raised Co. C, 102d P. V., and enlisted Aug. 6, 1861, for a three-years term. He participated in the battle of Williamsburg and other engagements, but after ten months' service was stricken with camp fever, from which he never fully recovered. He married Mary, a daughter of James and Mary (Lowdun) McRoberts, and by her had following children: William, Sarah, May and Elizabeth. Mrs. Large died Jan. 14, 1888, aged sixty-five years, a member of the U. P. Church, of which Mr. Large is also a member. He has filled many township offices, and in 1874 was elected to the house of representatives, and served on the military committee.

George Greenfield Graham, M.D., assistant physician D ixmont Hospital for Insane, was born March 29, 1856, in Allegheny, Pa., son of John and Martha A. (Greenfield) Graham, former of whom was born in Pittsburgh, in 1832, and now resides at Washington, Pa. The mother was born in Newburgh, N. Y., and died in 1886. His grandparents, John and Elizabeth Graham, were born in Westmoreland county, Pa., of Scotch parentage, and his grandfather came to Pittsburgh in an early day, where he began business in the hat trade, finally becoming president of the Bank of Pittsburgh; was also vice-president of the D ixmont hospital and the Western Pennsylvania hospital. George G. Graham attended the Allegheny public schools and the Western University of Pennsylvania, and then studied medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, Md., graduating in 1885. In the same year he became resident physician of the Western Pennsylvania hospital, department of medicine and surgery, and in May, 1888, he entered the D ixmont Hospital for the Insane, of which he is now senior assistant physician. He is a member of the Allegheny County Medical society, A. O. U. W. and F. & A. M., and Allegheny Chapter. He and his father are members of the Allegheny and Second Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh.

James Dick, brick-manufacturer, Tarentum, is a son of David and Letitia Dick, and was born in Allegheny City, in 1821. His parents were natives of Ireland, and were married in Allegheny City, where they both died. Their surviving children are Nancy (now Mrs. Thomas Brown, of East Liberty, Pa.), Mary (now Mrs. Thomas Bartley, of Allegheny) and James (now subject, when eighteen years of age, left the paternal roof and began life for himself. In 1844 he married Miss Nancy Leslie, of West Deer township, and they began their married life in Allegheny, where he was engaged in the manufacture of brick. Removing subsequently to West Deer township, they there remained fourteen years, and then returned to Allegheny. In 1873 they removed to Tarentum, his present residence and place of business, where he is now manufacturing brick. Their children are Letitia, now Mrs. Hugh Cargo, of Warren county, Pa.; James L., now in Kansas; William, in Tarentum; David, a tinner in Charleston, W. Va.; Mary, now Mrs. Robert Caldwell, of Tarentum; John, of Scottsdale, Westmoreland county, Pa., and Margaret Beales in Tarentum. The mother died in 1886.

Isaac Wall, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a son of Maxwell and Elizabeth (Jobb) Wall, and was born Oct. 28, 1835. Walter Wall, the first of the family, was his great-grandfather, and Isaac Wall was his grandfather. The father of our subject was born on the farm now occupied by our subject, and his family consisted of six children: Isaac, Margaret A., Araminta, Hannah R.; Sarah M. and Mary E., all of whom are living except Sarah M. Isaac Wall was married, Dec. 24, 1866, to Margaret, daughter of Robert Beam, of Baltimore, Md., and they have one child living—May. Mrs. Wall and three children are deceased. Mr. Wall married for his second wife Sarah, daughter of Rev. J. K. Cramer, of Forward township, and by this union they have four children: Francis W., Lillie, Susan P., Theresa M. Mr. Wall lives upon the place where he was born. When a boy, while engaged in gathering hickory-nuts, he fell sixty-four feet, causing the loss of one arm. He has occupied several positions of trust in his township. He is a republican.

Edward D. Murray, farmer, postoffice Hites, a son of Bartram and Eveline (Galbraith) Murray, was born on the farm now owned by him, in East Deer township, Allegheny county, Pa., in 1844. His parents, natives of Lancaster county, Pa., were among the first settlers of this portion of the county, coming to East Deer about 1830. Here his father purchased one thousand acres of land, and made his home until his death, in 1861. Eveline, his wife, died in 1884, leaving four children: Caroline, now Mrs. Dr. Jacoby, of Pittsburgh; Louisa, now Mrs. McGraw, of Tarentum; Lenander, of Indiana township, and Edward. In 1870 Edward married Mary Jane, daughter of Robert Stewart, of Lincoln, Allegheny county, and located on the farm he now owns. He and his wife have reared five boys: Bartram, Robert, Edward, Harry and Marcus.

John W. Lynch, engineer, Elizabeth, is a native of Scotland, and came to this country with his mother when eighteen months old. She settled in this county near Lock No. 3, and is still living, a resident of Elizabeth. John W. Lynch commenced work on the river boats when about fifteen years old; at twenty-one was licensed by the government as an engineer, and has since followed that occupation. He has been employed by the firm of Joseph Walton & Co. for fourteen years, the last eleven years of which he has been on the steamer Nellie Walton. He married, Dec. 25, 1870, Mary, daughter of David and Jane (Loan) Burns, of West Elizabeth, and they have two children, George H. and Mollie E. Mr. Lynch is a member of Marine Association No. 30, Officers Protective Association of Pittsburgh, and Assembly 278, K. of L. He and family are members of St. Michael's Church of Elizabeth.

William Thompson Dunn, contractor, Allegheny, was born at what was then called Georgetown, Mercer county, Pa., in 1825, son of James and Maria (Thompson) Dunn, who were born in Crawford county, Pa., in 1800 and 1802, respectively. His grandfather, Alexander Dunn, was born in Eastern Pennsylvania, and was for many years a justice of the peace. The maternal grandfather of Mr. Dunn was carried off by Indians while on a survey in Crawford county, and held for ransom. The father of William T. was a carpenter, and died in Allegheny in 1874; his wife died in 1883; both were members of the M. E. Church. William received his education in the public schools and at Allegheny College, Meadville, graduating in 1853. He then went south in 1853, and taught school in Louisiana for three years. Returning in 1856, he, in July, 1857, began reading law with Judge Wilson McCandless, and in 1860 was admitted to the bar at Pittsburgh, where he practiced till 1887. He then associated with the late Edward Allen, as contractors and builders of sewers, etc. April 23, 1861, Mr. Dunn was married to Amelia Frances, daughter of Edward Allen (deceased); her mother resides with Mr. Dunn, aged eighty-two years. One child has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, Amelia Maria, wife of Frank Moore. In 1884 Mr. Dunn purchased property at Emsworth, and has a beautiful home. He and family are members of the M. E. Church.

Eben Bragdon (deceased) was born in 1802, in the state of Maine, son of Ebenezer and Dorotha (Cutts) Bragdon, also natives of Maine. Eben received his education at the place of his birth; on reaching manhood he went to sea, and was mate on a vessel ten years. In 1837 he came to Neville island. He was married in June, 1850, to Elizabeth W. (deceased), daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Houdon) Jackman. Her parents were born in Ireland, and when they came to America located in Washington county, but moved to Bellevue, where Mrs. Bragdon was born, and has always lived near her old home. Her father died in October, 1850, aged seventy-two years, and her mother in September, 1863, aged seventy-two years. Mrs. Bragdon was born May 1, 1816, and is the mother of five children: Amelia (Mrs. John Robinson), Mary Jane (Mrs. James S. Hamilton), Eliza B. (Mrs. E. B. Houghton), William Perry, and Madison H., who was married Feb. 14, 1888, to Maggie Gallagher, of Pittsburgh. He lives with his mother and carries on the home farm. A part of the house they now occupy was the home of Gen. Neville, and a house on the next farm was the general's slave-quarters.

George W. Beale, farmer, Natrona, son of Washington and Rosanna (McCune) Beale, was born in Harrison township, Allegheny county, Pa., in 1853, on the farm he now owns. His grandfather, Washington Beale, was one of the first settlers in that portion of the country, and he with three other brothers laid out the first streets in Philadelphia. Washington Beale located in Harrison township, and reared a family of ten children: Margaret, Priscilla, Nancy, Alexander, Thomas, Washington, James, Sarah, Hannah and Mrs. Boyd. Washington, father of G. W., was born on the place now owned by Samuel Alter, in Harrison township, March 1, 1831; he married, and reared a family of seven children: Joseph G., Jane E., the late Mrs. David H. Harrison; May J., now Mrs. W. R. Logan; James B., Margaret M., now Mrs. J. R. Anderson; George W. and Sarah A., who died July 10, 1881; Mr. Beale died April 6, 1885, his wife having died July 10, 1881. George W., in 1887, married Zelia E., daughter of Alfred Harrison, of Shadyside, and located on the farm he now owns, where he is engaged in farming and dealing in stock, his father having been the first importer of heavy draft-horses in this county. Mr. and Mrs. Beale have one child, Mattie E. Beale, and are members of the Presbyterian Church of Freeport.

William T. Armstrong, hotel-keeper, McKee's Rocks, was born in the north of Ireland, in 1840, and is of Scotch-Irish descent. He came to this country in 1860, but his parents remained in Ireland, where his father still resides, aged seventy-six years, and where his mother died in 1887, at the age of seventy-four years. They had eleven children. The living are Andrew, Mary A. and Elizabeth, Jane, Catharine (the only one in this county except William T.) and Sarah. Andrew, Mary A. and Elizabeth are in Australia. Mr. Armstrong spent his first three years in this country in the state of New York, working on a farm, though he was a miller by trade; he then came to Pittsburgh, and was employed in the glassworks until his health failed. He possesses a good deal of inventive genius, and was the patentee of some very valuable devices for the construction of glass-furnaces. He still has an interest in the glass business. In consequence of failing health, in 1883 he came to McKee's Rocks and engaged in the restaurant and saloon business, which he is still prosecuting. In December, 1886, while out hunting, he was accidentally wounded in the arm, which had to be amputated just below the elbow. He was married, in 1871, to Sarah, daughter of William and Elizabeth Crozier, of Allegheny, and their children are Annie E., John (deceased), Andrew, Sarah, William J. and Robert. Mr. Armstrong is a member of the Masonic fraternity and the I. O. O. F. Mr. Armstrong owns a good hotel property at McKee's Rocks, and is keeping hotel there.

F. Heinz, manufacturer, Sharpsburg, was born in 1842, in Baiern, Germany, the son of Fred and Rosa (Schrader) Heinz, the former a farmer and wine-grower of that country. In 1869 he came to America, and for some years was employed at gardening. After that he entered the employ of Heinz, Noble & Co., and in 1876 became a member of the firm of F. & J. Heinz. Mr. Heinz married, in 1878, Rebecca Seekarp, three children being the result of the union: Charles, Maggie and Bertha. Mr. Heinz also superintends the work on the farm near Sharpsburg. He and family are members of the G. L. Church. Politically he is a republican.

Joseph C. Johnston, farmer, Natrona, was born in Harmar township, Allegheny county, Pa., in 1857, son of George and Sarah (McKee) Johnston, the former of whom was a native of Ireland, came to America in 1842, and located in Canada; in 1844 George removed to Pittsburgh, where he married, in 1849, Sarah, daughter of James and Mary (Wise) McKee, of Eliza, where they located. In 1852 George Johnston went to California, where he was successfully engaged in mining for a period of four years, when he returned and purchased the farm, a portion of which is now owned by J. C., and where he died in 1887. Following are the names of Mr. Johnston's children: Lizzie, now Mrs. Dr. Young, of Kansas; J. C., George R. and Emma, now Mrs. Samuel Hookey.

Henry Cowan, retired, postoffice Putnam, was born in Collier township, in 1833, a son of Hugh (a farmer) and Jane (Michael) Cowan, to whom were born nine children, six yet living. The grandfather, Henry, came from Ireland; he was a farmer, and purchased one hundred acres of land on Miller's run, where he died. Hugh, who was also a farmer, died in 1866, aged seventy-two years. Henry, the subject of this memoir, named after his grandfather, was reared on a farm. He married, in 1849, Hannah, daughter of George Cubbage. Mrs. Cowan died in 1880, the mother of two children, Harry and Emma. Mr. Cowan retired from active farm-work in 1883. He is a member of the U. F. Church, and is a democrat.

George Altmeyer, proprietor of restaurant and saloon, McKeesport, was born in Millfin township, Allegheny county, Jan. 4, 1858, a son of Georg and Barbara (Seward) Altmeyer. His father was a native of Germany, and came to this country in 1833, locating in Millfin township. He was a carpenter, and for a number of years was in business as a coal-operator; he died in 1876. His children were Peter, Mary (Mrs. Peter Flaus), Barbara (Mrs. Peter Steiner), Kate (Mrs. Joseph Nagle), Annie (Mrs. Jacob Switzer), Maggie (Mrs. William Stone), Georg and Lizzie (Mrs. Peter Dewar). The maternal grandfather of our subject was John Seward, a native of France, and a pioneer of Millfin township, where he was engaged in the coal business for many years. The subject of this memoir was reared in Millfin township, where he received a common-school education. In 1879 he engaged in the liquor business in Millfin, in which he continued until December, 1887. From 1883 to 1888 he had an interest in his present establishment in McKeesport, and became sole proprietor May 1, 1888. His restaurant is very popular, receiving a large patronage. Since 1885 Mr. Altmeyer has been in business as a contractor, and owns an interest in a mine at Webster, Pa. He married, in 1881, Isabella, daughter of Walter and Sarah Sutton, of Millfin township, and has three children: Millie, Walter and Peter.

F. H. Callahan, merchant, postoffice Bennett, was born July 12, 1845, in The Grove, Chester county, Pa., a son of Patrick and Margaret Callahan, natives of Ireland, who reared a family of six children. F. H. Callahan was educated in his native county, and at the age of sixteen entered the rolling-mills at the Phoenix Iron-works, in Chester county. In 1861 he removed to this county, and worked in the rolling-mills until 1889, when he engaged in the grocery business, which he has conducted successfully up to the present time. Mr. Callahan was married to Mary J. Cunning, and they are the parents of ten children, eight daughters and two sons. Mr. Callahan is not identified with any party, and belongs to no society.

Philip Bohlander, proprietor of meat-market, Elizabeth, was born in Germany in 1832; came to America in 1852, and settled at McKeesport, in this county, where he was engaged in the butchering business for about twelve years. He then moved to Elizabeth borough and established his present market, where he enjoys the largest business of the kind here. In 1854 he married Catherine Miller, a native of Germany, who died in 1872, leaving three children: Leonard, John and George, all of Elizabeth borough. He was then married, in 1874, to Susan Messer-smith, also a native of Germany, and they have three children: Christian, Alexander and Catherine. Mr. Bohlander is a member of the K. of P. and Old Monongahela Lodge, No. 311, I. O. O. F. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Ernest Frederick, farmer, postoffice Glenshaw, was born Aug. 1, 1840, in Kurhessen, Germany. At the age of two years he came to America with his mother and stepfather, and has since lived in Shaler township. He worked eight years for John Herr; subsequently he enlisted for three years in Co. E, 68th P. V. I. He returned after one year's service, and has since then been a farmer. He married Emma, daughter of Thomas Douglas, an old settler of Lawrenceville; she was born in this county, and is the mother of eight children: Mary, Maggie, Hattie, Sadie, Frank, Florence, Thomas and James. Politically Mr. Frederick is a republican.

William Grabner, farmer, postoffice Negley, was born in the Kingdom of Hauover, Germany, in 1819, a son of Charles Godfrey and Caroline (Rachel) Grabner, both deceased. His father was a surgeon, and served under the Prussian government, at the time of Napoleon's invasion, at the battles of Austerlitz, Leipsic and Waterloo. He received two balls in the left leg, a saber-wound in the right thigh and a scalp-wound. After the close of the war he held a position under the government. William's maternal grand-father, George Otto (Rachel), was a German school-teacher and organist of a church for fifty years. Our subject had the good fortune to be highly educated in his native country, studying German, Latin and French at the Osnabrug Seminary, from which he graduated in 1834. He then worked four years in a chemical laboratory, where he became a skilled druggist, but, his health failing, he was obliged to cross the ocean, and arrived in Baltimore in 1842. There he engaged with Judge George Smith, judge of the orphans' court, and for two years labored on his plantation in Frederick county, Md., and for the next five years he was foreman or manager. He also acted as private tutor to the judge's son. In 1849, seeing the evils of slavery, he left Maryland, and, coming to East Liberty, worked four years for Robert Bailey, whose daughter Hannah he married. Mrs. Grabner was born in Belfast, Ireland, and died in September, 1884. Mrs. Minnie Winkler, a niece of Mr. Grabner, and her two children, William and Mary, reside with him. In 1859 he moved to his present farm in Plum township, where he has been four years school director and fourteen years trustee of the Unity U. P. Church. In politics he is a republican, and having received a liberal education himself is ever interested in the good work of educating the young.

Jacob Trautman, decorator, Homestead, was born Feb. 18, 1843, in Bavaria, Germany, the son of Adam and Margaret (Rothar) Trautman, natives of the above-named place. Jacob was brought to America at the age of two years by his parents, who settled in Columbus, Ohio, where they died. He was there educated; also learned the decorative trade, and followed it for several years. July 22, 1861, he enlisted in Co. D, 2d battalion, 18th U. S. I., Army of the Cumberland, and served until July 22, 1864. He participated in the battles of Stone river, Chickamauga, Pea Ridge and Peach Tree creek, and while carrying messages to headquarters he had two horses shot under him and his clothes perforated. In the fall of 1880 he removed to Homestead, where he has followed his trade successfully, and has taken an active part in building up the place. He was one of the charter members of the I. O. O. F., and also of the Loan and Building association, of which he has been a director since its organization. He also assisted in organizing the First National Bank of Homestead, of which he is a director. He is a member of the commercial and school boards, and of the I. O. H. and R. A., and is a republican.

William Smeaton, farmer, postoffice Harmarville, was born in Fifeshire, Scotland, in 1821, a son of Edward and Ann (Brown) Smeaton, who came to America in 1840. His father was a carpenter and a member of the Presbyterian church. Mr. Smeaton received his schooling in Scotland, and, on coming to America, stopped in Bedford county, Pa., about seven years, and followed the mason's trade. In 1852 he went to California and dug gold for five years. He then returned to Harmarville, and located on his present farm. He married, in 1863, Mary Jane Wilson, of Pittsburgh. Five children have blessed this union: Anna Brown, Jessie Ellis, Mary, James Alexander, William Graham, all at home. The family belong to the U. P. Church. Mr. Smeaton is a republican, and was school director three terms, also assessor. Mrs. Smeaton's parents were William and Mary (Alexander) Wilson, natives of Scotland. Mr. Smeaton has a fine fruit-farm on the highest bluff overlooking Verona borough and the Allegheny river, making a beautiful sight. In his travels in the gold regions of California he has ascended many high and rugged peaks, and the high, commanding site of his home suits his taste.

Josh. Anderson Courtway, coal-dealer, Pittsburgh. In the year 1803 William Courtway came from Chester county, Pa., and settled on a farm at Emsworth, Kilbuck township, this county, which was then in a state of nature. He was born in 1777, and lived to be seventy-seven years of age, and was one of the foremost and earliest settlers of his township. He belonged to the old whig and republican parties, and was the first postmaster of Kilbuck. He held a commission from John Quincy Adams for the improvement of the Ohio river, and was turned out of office by Andrew Jackson. He served in the Pennsylvania legislature in 1816-17, and was elected colonel of a regiment from Allegheny county. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church for many years. Mr. Courtway was twice married, becoming the father of eighteen children. His first wife was Anna Dickson, by whom he had six children; his second wife was Margaret Scott, daughter of one of the oldest settlers of Ross township, this county. Nearly all his children are living, three of the sons, Samuel, James Milton and John Addison, now residing at Emsworth. The last named, the subject of this sketch, was born April 1, 1837, and is well and favorably known in Pittsburgh as a coal-merchant, which business he has carried on nearly all his life, although he was for a short time in the iron trade.

Stephen Wall and Milo Wall, farmers, postoffice Sunny Side, sons of Gideon and Rebecca (Applegate) Wall, were born, respectively, about 1845 and 1847. Stephen on the place not occupied by Ershin Wall's heirs, and Milo on the place now occupied by Edward Wall. They are descendants of Walter and Elsa (Applegate) Wall, who settled in Allegheny county, from New Jersey. The parents of the subjects of these lines had six children: Sparks, who entered the Union army, served three years, and contracted a disease which resulted in his death; Theodore and Sarah (deceased); Lucinda, who now resides in Missouri; Stephen, and Milo, who was married, Dec. 15, 1869, to Miss Agnes, daughter of John Howison, who emigrated from Scotland in 1849; they have three children: Dora May, Katie and Porter Morrison.

John G. Smith, farmer, postoffice Sharpsburg, was born in Ohio township, Allegheny county, Pa., in 1838. John Smith, his father, came from County Tyrone, Ireland, about 1814, and located first in New York state, where he remained one year, moving thence to Ohio township, Allegheny county, Pa., where he purchased a farm. In 1832 he came to Indiana township, Allegheny county (now O'Hara township), and bought eighty-six acres of land, all of which is now owned by our subject. He was a farmer, and married Fannie Caldwell, who bore him seven children, two living. John died, aged ninety-three years, and his wife, aged seventy-nine years. Our subject was reared and educated in Indiana township, and followed farming and gardening. In 1856 he married Rebecca J. Ramage, daughter of Benjamin Ramage, of Allegheny county. Three children have blessed this union: William John, Frank and Harry J. Mr. Smith has resided on his present farm for the last five years. He and family are members of the M. E. Church. Politically he is a republican.

John C. Reed, foundryman, postoffice Bennett, was born Feb. 19, 1847, in County Derry, Ireland, son of John and Mary (Morrison) Reed, former of whom came to Pittsburgh in 1847, his wife following in 1849 with five children, viz.: William M., Robert, Mary A., James (since deceased) and John C. Two other children were born to them here. Joseph and James F. John Reed lived in Pittsburgh until his death, in 1899; the mother is still living, aged seventy-nine years. The subject of this memoir was reared in Pittsburgh, had two years' schooling, and at the age of seven years went to work in the old rolling-mill at Girty's Run; when he was twelve years old his father died, and he became the main support of the family. In 1857 he removed to Pittsburgh, where he resided until 1869, when he engaged in the lime business one year at Beaver Falls, Pa. Returning to Pittsburgh, he worked a brief season in the stove-founndry, subsequently traveling for a business firm. He was the first one who successfully introduced a non-conductor of heat west of the mountains; his patent, known as "Reed's elastic sectional non-conducting covering for heated surfaces," has entirely superseded other styles of same. He married, Feb. 13, 1869, to Mary E., daughter of John Curtz, whose father, John Curtz, Sr., was one of the original iron-men of Pittsburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Reed are the parents of six children, viz.: Mary M., John C., William F., Lillie M., Henry M. and Martha E. Mr. Reed engaged in business for himself in 1883, in Millvale, where he erected a foundry. In 1886 a limited partnership was formed, composed of J. C. Reed, A. Krauseope, E. W. Demmler and F. E. Schenk. They manufacture the Vesta ranges; also make their own patterns, being the first to break record by making all at home; they employ thirty-five men. Mr. Reed is a prohibitionist; has been in the city council two years, and one term on the school board.

Henry T. Healey, brick-manufacturer, Homestead, was born May 21, 1847, in Oxfordshire, England, the only son of James and Susan (Johnson) Healey, former of whom now resides with him. Mr. Healey was a carpenter by trade in England, immigrated to America in 1872, and was the first one to settle in Homestead after it was laid out in lots. In the great strike at the steelmills he received injuries which prevented him from following his trade, and since 1877 he has been successfully engaged in the manufacture of bricks. His first wife, Jane Milk (deceased), was the mother of five children: Albert, William, Henry T., John and Jessie. By his present wife, see Maggie Freeburn, he has four children: James, Edward, Susan and Alice. Mr. and Mrs. Healey are members of the Episcopal Church, and he is a republican.

Thomas J. Murphy, dealer, Sharpsburg, was born in Ireland in 1846, the second of four children born to Thomas Murphy. In 1849 the family immigrated to Allegheny county, Pa. Thomas M. was educated at the public schools of Sharpsburg, and at an early age commenced work in an iron-mill in the town, at which he continued for some years. He married, in 1874, Catherine McNamara, daughter of Andrew, and their union has been blessed with eight children, five living. Mr. Murphy has been engaged in various business enterprises in the town, and was elected to the town council in 1885. He is a member of the Catholic Church, and politically a democrat.

John L. Hess, boss roller, Homestead, was born June 8, 1859, in Cambria county, Pa., a son of John H. Hess, a native of the above-named place, who died in Altoona, Pa. John L. was educated in his native county and Pittsburgh Academy, and learned the blacksmith's trade in Oil City. In April, 1879, he came to Braddock, and was employed in the Edgar Thomson Steel-works, where he worked his way up to the position of extra roller. In March, 1885, he was appointed to the Homestead Steel-works, where he was a roller in the new beam-mill, and is now the boss roller. He married, Sept. 30, 1885, Olive A. Bryant, of Braddock. Mr. and Mrs. Hess are members of the M. E. Church; he is a member of the L. S. C. C. and married.

Michael Metzgar, brewer. Etua, was born Feb. 2, 1817, in Schornweisen, Bavaria, Germany, a son of George and Elizabeth (Keil) Metzgar. The former was a large landowner in Germany, "Waldmorsch" being the name of his estate. Michael learned the brewer's trade in his native home, and traveled considerably for his employer. He came to America in 1853, and in Temperanceville followed his trade. In 1867 he came to Etna, where he built a brewery, and has since conducted it. He married here Miss Margaretha Schuster, a native of Germany, and they have four children, viz.: John, George, Mrs. Elizabeth Klaus and Caroline.

D. H. Siebert, merchant, postoffice Bennett, was born Nov. 22, 1858, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of William and Margaretha Siebert, former of whom was a native of Germany, came to America in 1856, and followed the shoemaker's trade in Pittsburgh till 1868, when he removed to Millvale, where he followed his trade, and engaged in mercantile business. He was twice married; his first wife, Catharine Miller (deceased), was the mother of Mrs. Anna Creedel and Martha Siebert. His present wife, Margaretta, is the mother of David H., Hannah, Emma, Sarah and Clara. David H. was reared on a farm, and received a public-school education. At an early age he began a mercantile career, in which he has been very successful, and is now conducting a grocery and feed business in Millvale. He married Alice Kimberly, and they have one child—Paul William. Mr. Siebert is a member of the K. of P. and the American Mechanics; politically he is a republican.

Henry Stein, proprietor of Stein's hotel, Sharpsburg, is a native of Prussia, Germany, born in 1844, a son of Jacob Stein, a farmer in that country. Henry is the youngest of his parents' seven children, and at nine years of age became an orphan. In 1854 he came to America, soon after located in Sharpsburg, and for six years was engaged in the grocery business, and later for sixteen years was employed in the iron-mills of that town. In May, 1874, he commenced his present business, which he has since followed. His hotel is on the outskirts of town, erected in 1885 for the local trade.

G. W. Goodwin, druggist, postoffice Bennett, was born June 13, 1845, in Pittsburgh, Pa., a son of Samuel and Mary (McGarey) Goodwin, former of whom was a native of Lancashire, England, came to America when a young man, and settled in Pittsburgh; he was a baker by trade, but here he engaged in making pots for melting glass in furnaces. He died in 1854; his wife died young, leaving two children: Mrs. Emma Morrison, of Indiana county, Pa., and G. W. Goodwin, our subject, who was reared in Pittsburgh, and at the age of ten years entered a drugstore. At the age of seventeen years he enlisted in the 102d Regt. P. V. I., Co. M; participated in all the engagements of the Army of the Potomac, and was with Gen. Sheridan in the battle of Fishers Valley. He was discharged Nov. 1, 1864, and subsequently returned to the drug business. In November, 1873, he came to Millvale, where he opened a drugstore for himself. The following January he was elected postmaster, which office he held until September, 1885. Mr. Goodwin was married to Anna E. Woods, of Pittsburgh, and they are the parents of five children, viz.: Samuel, Emma M., John W., Thomas M. and Mary J. Politically Mr. Goodwin is a republican, and is a member of the A. O. U. W. and G. A. R.

William Thompson, farmer, postoffice Bennett, was born Jan. 17, 1817, on the old homestead. His father, John Thompson, a native of Ireland, came to America at the age of thirty, with his brother James. He married Ellen Davis, who was of Welsh descent, and to them were born sixteen children, of whom fourteen attained maturity, viz.: Nancy, James, Elizabeth, Thomas, Mary, John, William, Davis, Robert, Isabella, Samuel, Sarah, Ellen, Benjamin. John Thompson enlisted to go to the war of 1812, but was not accepted on account of his age. He bought land in Ross township, now Shaler, upon which his children are living. He was an earnest and active member of the Presbyterian Church, and died on the homestead, at the age of eighty-five years. Politically he was a democrat. Our subject, William Thompson, married Mary, daughter of Archie Hazlet. She died Aug. 7, 1881, the mother of six children: Mrs. Isabella Haney, Rebecca J., Elizabeth, Emma, William and John. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he has been an elder for forty years. Politically he is a democrat.

W. H. Kern, homeopathic physician, McKeensport, was born in Johnstown, Pa., June 8, 1839, a son of George W. and Martha (Wakefield) Kern. George W., a native of Little York, Pa., was a merchant of standing, and began his mercantile career at Greensburg, Pa.; removed to Johnstown in 1829; for a number of years kept a drugstore, and later a general store. He was the first postmaster of Johnstown, and also the first justice of the peace. He had considerable reputation as an engineer, and surveyed the line for the Somerset plank-road, a distance of eighteen miles, between Johnstown and St. Lawrence. He was one of the original stockholders and projectors of the bridge between Johnstown and Kernville, which latter place was named for him, having surveyed and laid out the town.

W. H. Kern was educated at Johnstown Academy and Elder's Ridge Academy, Indiana county, and in 1857 began the study of medicine with Dr. Samuel Kern, of Wilmore, Cambria county. The war, however, interrupted his studies, and Aug. 3, 1861, he enlisted in Co. H, 12th P. R., and served as second lieutenant three years. In April, 1864, he enlisted as a veteran in the same company, served as first lieutenant, and in June, 1864, was appointed captain by brevet. He was honorably discharged from the service June 29, 1865. In 1870 he resumed the study of medicine at St. James, Mo., entered Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, from which he graduated in 1873. He located in McKeensport in 1871, and has had a large and extensive practice. He is the oldest established homeopathic physician in the city; is a member of the Homeopathic Medical Society of Allegheny county, Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, Medical Society of America, Institute of Homeopathy and International Homeopathic Medical Society. In 1877 Dr. Kern took a special course of lectures on diseases of women at the private school of Prof. Reubem Ludlam, M. D., Chicago, III. He is a Freemason and a republican.

Adam Mangold, farmer, Etna, was born June 16, 1838, in Etna, Pa. His father, John J. Mangold, a native of Canton Basel, Switzerland, emigrated to America when a young man, and settled in East Liberty, Allegheny county. In the course of two years he removed to Allegheny, and gardened where the cotton-factory now stands. In 1831 he came to Etna and pursued gardening until his death, which occurred Feb. 23, 1875. His widow, who still survives, resides with their son, Adam. They had six children, viz.: Adam, Henry, John F., Fannie, Rosa and Margaret. Mr. Mangold held various offices in the German Evangelical Church, of which his wife and family are members. He was a republican, as are also his sons. Adam and Henry were soldiers in the civil war. Adam enlisted in Co. C, 5th H. A., and participated in many prominent engagements. Henry was wounded at Cold Harbor.

J. G. Wertz, butcher, postoffice Sharpsburg, was born in that town in 1855, a son of Gottlieb Wertz, who came to Allegheny county from New Orleans, and from 1850 to 1874 was engaged in the general meat business. He married a Mrs. Proyer, who bore him four children, J. G. being among the oldest. The latter was educated at the public schools of Sharpsburg, and early in life assisted his father in the meatshop, and assumed full control of the business in 1874, the date of his father's retirement. Our subject's market is at S. 16 Main street, where he has a successful business. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and A. O. U. W. Politically he is a strong republican.

Alice Wall, postoffice Elizabeth, daughter of James and Naomi (Wall) Wall, was born April 15, 1808. Her father was a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and came to Forward township with his parents when about five years old. They had a family of ten children: Steven, Walter, Gard, Franklin, Wayne, James, Jessie, Catherine, Alice and Hannah, who are all deceased. Our subject was reared on the homestead, where she now resides, and was educated at the public schools of the county. She is engaged in farming, and is a member of the Baptist Church.

Wiley & Lawton, marble-workers, McKeesport, are natives of Pittsburgh. The latter was reared in his native city until fifteen years of age, when he removed to McKeesport, where he has since resided, and was the first apprentice to learn the marble-cutting trade in that city. Mr. Wiley was reared in McKeesport from four years of age, and was the second apprentice to serve his time as a marble-cutter. The present firm of Wiley & Lawton was established in 1884, and succeeded to the business of George H. Lawton, who embarked in the trade in McKeesport in 1869. Messrs. Wiley & Lawton thoroughly understand every branch and detail of their business, are wide awake, enterprising and energetic, and have built up a successful business that is constantly increasing, extending from Pittsburgh to Brownsville.

Charles O'Donnell, proprietor of Commercial hotel, corner of Eighth and Main streets, Sharpsburg, is a native of Ireland. Since 1886 he has been proprietor of his present hotel, a new two-story frame building, centrally located in the town.

Harry H. Molony, installment merchant, McKeesport, was born in Woodbury, N. J., Sept. 2, 1866, a son of C. T. and S. A. (John son) Molony. He was reared and educated in his native city, and located in McKeesport in the fall of 1887. He opened an installment business for a Pittsburgh firm, and Jan. 1, 1888, purchased the business, which he has since successfully conducted. He married, June 12, 1888, Marie, daughter of Frederick Price, of McKeesport. Mr. Molony is one of the enterprising young businessmen of the city; is a member of the Episcopal Church and Jr. O. U. A. M., and is a democrat.

Wendlin Kraus, ice-merchant, Etna, was born Sept. 22, 1833, a son of Altin and Eva (Breining) Kraus. He learned the wagon-maker's trade in Germany, and came to Pittsburgh at the age of nineteen, where he followed his trade two years. He then opened a dairy in Shaler township, which he conducted successfully eight years. He also followed various other occupations, and at present resides in Etna, where he is in the ice business, and puts up nine thousand tons annually, supplying Pittsburgh and other places. Mr. Kraus was married here to Lizzie, daughter of Anton Vellsbach, and they have had seven children: Leopold, August, Katie (deceased), Wilhelm, Lena, John and George. Mr. and Mrs. Kraus are members of the Catholic Church. Politically he is a democrat.

John Prinz, hotel-keeper, Sharpsburg, was born in McKeesport, May 7, 1851. Since 1880 he has resided in Sharpsburg, and is proprietor of Horseman's Home hotel, 1326 North Canal street.

C. H. Stilley, M. D., postoffice Hope Church, was born March 13, 1847, in Thompsonsville, Washington county, Pa., a grandson of Peter Stilley, a native of Jefferson township. John B. Stilley, the father of C. H., was born in Jefferson township, this county, and died in 1886, at the age of seventy years. He had been a farmer in early life, but subsequently practiced medicine eight years, and then became civil engineer, serving as county engineer for three years. He was also a teacher at Bethel Academy for eight years; was a well-known gentleman, highly esteemed. His wife was Lydia A. Morgan, whose father was one of the early millers and millwrights on Painter's run, in this county. She survived her husband, and had the mother of four children: Dr. Hugh M. (deceased), Charles H., M. D., Horace (an engineer), and Edward (a physician). The subject of this memoir was educated at Bethel Academy, read medicine with his father, and graduated at the Miami Medical College, Cincinnati, in 1872. He located at Six-Mile Ferry, where he has built up a good practice. The doctor married Melissa M. Cunningham, and they have two children: Alexander M. and Jessie C. He is a republican.

William Alexander Shanks, gardener, Coraopolis, was born in Ohio township, this county, Feb. 22, 1825, son of John and Eliza (Ingram) Shanks. His father was born in Philadelphia in the year 1800. He was a farmer, and came to this county in 1828, living most of the time in Franklin township, where he died in December, 1888. Mr. Shanks' grandfather was also named John. William received a common-school education at Fairmont, and at the age of twenty-one began life for himself; two years later he settled on the island, where he worked for John Hamilton. At the age of twenty-four he married Jane Kerr, daughter of John and Sarah Kerr, natives of Ireland. His capital was fifty dollars, and he rented the Craig farm for six years, at seven dollars per acre. He then bought another small farm, but at the breaking out of the war he sold it. In 1863 he bought his present farm, which he has paid for and improved; he has two fine houses, and has now purchased the Rev. Wortman's place. Mr. Shanks is the father of six children, viz.: Alexander, John J., William C., Harriet Jane, and Eliza Jane, who died at the age of thirteen months. His wife also died in February of 1872. John J. was married to Harriet Gibson, daughter of James and Margaret (Watters) Gibson. Mr. Shanks is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and has been an elder for thirty years. Owing to his having no opportunity to receive an education himself, he has tried to build up good schools in his own township, where they now employ the best of teachers. He is now holding his seventh commission as justice of the peace. He and his twin brother, Samuel F. Shanks, were the eldest of his father's seven children. One of his brothers, James Dickson Shanks, is a minister in Philadelphia, Pa.

J. T. Birney, merchant, Tarentum, son of Thomas and Mary Birney, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa. His family are the old families of Allegheny county, and his father was one of the oldest merchants of Pittsburgh. Their family consisted of six children: Annie (now wife of David Anderson, a sewer-pipe manufacturer in West Virginia), Essie, Minnie (now Mrs. Lewis Dallmyer, of Pittsburgh), Mary, Eva and John T. In May, 1886, our subject removed to Tarentum, where he engaged in business as a dealer in hardware, farming implements, etc. In 1893 he married Eliza McQueen, of Glenfield, Allegheny county, Pa., and they have one child, Wiford. Mr. Birney is a Freemason, a member of the Dallas Lodge, No. 508, of Pittsburgh.

Adam Wolfarth, baker, Homestead, was born July 4, 1854, in South Germany, son of Andrew W. Wolfarth. He was reared and learned the baker's trade in his native home, and in 1871 came to America, working at his trade in Pittsburgh, New York and Chicago. In 1882 he sailed for Australia, but was not as well pleased with the country as he had expected, and the next year he sailed for England, subsequently returning to America. He settled on the South Side, in Pittsburgh, where he engaged in business for himself. Later he removed to Homestead, where he is doing an extensive trade. He was married to Annie Kensing, and they have three children: Clara, Phil and Walter. Mr. W. is an independent voter.

William Dickson, contractor, Sewickley, was born August 3, 1845, in Glasgow, Scotland, son of Robert and Elizabeth (Shoan) Dickson. They came to America in 1850, settling in Sewickley, Pa., and reared three children, one son and two daughters. Robert Dickson had been a stonemason and contractor in Scotland, and followed the same business here successfully. Originally a Covenanter, he is now a member of the Presbyterian Church of Sewickley, where he lives a retired life. He has been a member of council, and is a democrat. His son William received his education in the public school of Sewickley, and for a short time he was in business with his father, but is now doing business on his own account, principally in contracting for stonework.

Henry Dallmeyer, tobacco-manufacturer, Pittsburgh, was born in Minden, Germany, and descends from a fine old family. He was reared and educated in his native home, and there learned the trade of cigar-making. When a young man he immigrated to New York, and after spending one year there he came to Pittsburgh, where he soon became popular as an expert cigar-maker. In 1852 he engaged in business for himself on a small capital, but to-day he is the largest manufacturer in his line in Western Pennsylvania. He employs seventy hands, and they turn out 150,000 cigars per week, all brands. Mr. Dallmeyer is the father of five children. Of these Louis is engaged in the business with his father. Mr. Dallmeyer is a director of the Third National Bank of Pittsburgh, and German and Imperial Banking Institution of the same city. He and family are members of the G. L. Church. Politically he is a republican.

Samuel Fitzsimons, farmer, Leet township, is a native of Pittsburgh, Pa. His father, David Fitzsimons, was a native of Ireland, and in 1806, at the age of fourteen years, came to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he eventually engaged in mercantile business, keeping a grocery-store many years; was also engaged in the transportation and commission business, and was identified with banking interests. He was self-made, honored and esteemed. When a young man, he returned to his native country, where he married Martha Reed. Of their seven children, William R. became a well-known citizen in Pittsburgh, where he filled the office of councilman. Samuel Fitzsimons was educated in Pittsburgh, where he was associated with his father and brother in business. Since 1873 he has resided in Leet township, where he owns considerable property. Politically he was formerly a whig, but is now a repub-lican.

John K. Rhodes, farmer, postoffice Mc-Keensport, was born May 21, 1827, in Alle-gheny county, Pa. His grandfather, Casper Rhodes, of German descent, came to this county, and was an industrious farmer. His children were Frederick and Mrs. Katie Webb. Frederick married Jane, a daughter of Alexander Snodgrass, and they had the following children: John K., Ann, Presley, Susan, Alexander and Mary J. John K. has been a successful farmer, and owns 154 acres of land. He married Margaret, daughter of Andrew McClure, whose father was Judge McClure. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes have one son, Sylvester E., who married Bell M., daughter of John Willock, Esq., and they have one son, John K. Mr. Rhodes and family are members of the Lebanon Church.

Joseph Newton Watters, gardener, Dixmont, was born Aug. 1, 1849, in Pitts-burgh, Pa., son of Joseph and Harriet (Eyster) Watters. (See sketch of W. E. Watters for parents.) He received his education on the island and at Clinton. He was married, in 1876, to Emma P. Flesson, daughter of Thomas P. and Elizabeth M. (McCuer) Flee-son. Her mother was a daughter of Mr. Mc- Cuer, of Pittsburgh, who was clerk of the court. Her father was a gardener, and a ru-ling elder in the Presbyterian Church. He died, July 28, 1888, aged seventy years. Mrs. Watters' grandfather was Reese E. Flessen, and his wife was Matilda Craig, sister of Neville B. Craig. He was a southern banker, and when he came to Neville island he bought his slaves with him. Mrs. Watters' great-grandfather, Thomas Plunkett, was a Presbyterian minister in Ireland, and fled with his family to this country at the time of the religious persecution, and at that time changed the name to Flessen. He was a de-scendant of Lord Plunkett, of Ireland. Her father's brother, Reese E. Flessen, was editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Her mother re-sides with T. P. Flessen, of Hite's Station, Pa. Her maternal grandparents were William F. and Margaret (Ferguson) McCuer, of Westmoreland county, Pa., and of Scotch descent; her great-grandfather was Joseph Bartlett, who was scalped by the Indians. Her fa-ther's uncle, Eugene Flessen, was in the Mexi-can war and the rebellion, dying in Libby prison. Her great-uncle, Charles Carroll, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Her sister, Miss Kate Neville Flessen, is a Presbyterian missionary to Siam. Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Watters: Margaret Virginia, John Barnard, Harriet Elizabeth, Joseph Wilson and Carroll Stanley Crossen. Mr. Watters is now vegetable-inspector of Pittsburgh. He is a republican and a member of the I. O. O. F.

Leander J. Rhees, M. D., Elizabeth, is a son of Joseph (deceased) and Sarah (Cooper) Riggs, of Snowden township, this county, and was born Sept. 6, 1845, in that township. He received his early education at the public schools, and graduated from the medical department of the Western Reserve University, of Cleveland, in 1870. In 1871 he located in Elizabeth, where he began the practice of his profession, and is now looked upon as one of the leading physicians of this end of the county. In 1876 he married Mary H., daughter of Robert and Catharine (Boyd) Finney, of Elizabeth. They have no children.

John Bevington, river-pilot, Leetsdale, was born March 31, 1835, in Columbiana county, Ohio, son of Henry and Margaret (Laugh-lin) Bevington, natives of Ohio, where their parents were pioneers. The subject of these lines was reared on a farm, but eventually he left home and engaged in railroad contract- ing. In 1853 he went on the river, and has followed it as pilot up to the present time. Mr. Bevington married Mary A. McAlbrath, a native of East Liverpool, Columbiana county, Ohio, who died Jan. 26, 1884, leaving one son, Harrison M., born March 11, 1867, who is now a trusted employe of the American Express company.

Edward Clarence Kleinman, gardener, Corapop, son of Herbert and Eliza (Holt- hanse) Kleinman, was born in South Pitts-burgh, Feb. 26, 1859. His father was born at Cologne, on the Rhine, Germany, Jan. 4, 1825, a son of John and Catharine (Hercdorfl) Kleinman, natives of the same place, who died in 1837 and 1851, aged fifty-two and forty-six years, respectively. Edward's great-grandfather was at Moscow with Napoleon. His mother was born in Prussia, a daughter of John and Louisa (Forneich) Holthans. His father came to America in 1849, settling in Pittsburgh, where he followed his trade of coppersmith. In 1853 he opened a store at Birmingham (South Side), continuing until 1865, when he moved to his present home on the island, and has now retired. He has three gas-wells on his place, which supply Glenfield and Dixmont. Edward was edu-cated at the island schools, and at McKeens-port; in 1880 he started for himself in the gardening business, buying ten acres just below the Phillips place. He was married, in 1881, to Emma Pluchel, of Alliance, Ohio, daughter of John and Amelia (Hoff) Pluchel, very old settlers of that place. They have three children living, viz.: Eva Irene, Edith Gertrude and Laura Vern. One child, Edward Clarence, died, aged seven months. Mr. and Mrs. Kleinman are members of the Presbyterian Church; politically he is a prohibitionist.

Henry Johnston Bigger, lawyer, Pittsburgh, was born in Montgomery county, Ohio, June 5, 1849, of Scotch-Irish parentage. He was reared on a farm, and graduated at Monmouth College, Illinois, in 1872. He was a teacher in Greene county, Ohio, in 1872 and 1873, and in the latter year he came to Pittsburgh, where he entered the law-office of Aughinbaugh & Duff, and was admitted to the bar of Allegheny county in the autumn of 1876. He was married, Feb. 6, 1881, to Miss Sallie P., daughter of the late John Palmer Pears, of Pittsburgh, and they have three children.

Dr. D. T. McIntosh, physician and surgeon, Sharpsburg, was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, the third child of Philip and Martha Mary (Fraser) McIntosh, the former a prominent farmer, but now a resident of the above-named county. Our subject commenced the study of medicine in 1876, entered the University of New York, and graduated in 1881. He commenced practicing in Allegheny City, but shortly after located in Sharpsburg, where he has since resided. He married, in 1881, Helen, daughter of Peter Schildecker, a prominent citizen of Pittsburgh. Three children were born to this marriage, two now living, Daniel H. and Margaret Helen. During his seven years' residence in Sharpsburg, Dr. McIntosh has been continuously engaged at his profession, has the confidence of the people, and enjoys a high reputation as a successful physician. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church and of the Masonic fraternity. Politically he is a republican.

James Martin Wisman, professor of higher mathematics, Curry University, Pittsburg, son of Eli and Susanna (Obney) Wisman, was born Feb. 20, 1854, at Monipelier, Williams county, Ohio. His parents were natives of Beaver county, Pa., of which county his grandfather, William Wisman, was a prominent farmer. His father, who was a mechanic and farmer, was born in 1806, and for many years was an elder in the Presbyterian Church; he died in 1861, his widow in 1877, at the age of fifty-four years. The subject of this memoir attended the normal school at Bryan, Ohio, for two years, then taught in the public schools of Evansport, Ohio, one year, and following that attended the Oberlin (Ohio) College three and one-half years, completing all but the senior year. He was then appointed superintendent of the Fayette (Fulton county) schools, which position he held nearly five years. With a view of fitting himself for the profession of teacher, he attended the Valparaiso (Ind.) Normal school for four years, teaching in the school the last two years, and graduating in same in the classical, scientific and musical (vocal) courses. He also gave considerable time to the study of anatomy and commercial work. Mr. Wisman was then elected associate principal of the normal schools at Fayette, Ohio, teaching rhetoric, Latin and history. In 1887 he entered the Curry University as teacher of higher mathematics, and took charge of the normal department and physical geography. At the same time he took lessons in elocution of Prof. Byron W. King (in the university), graduating in 1888. Prof. Wisman, in the earlier days of his student life, was a molder of brick, commanding high wages, whereby he was enabled by his own individual efforts to complete his education. Thus, rung by rung, he has ascended the ladder of literary fame. He is identified with the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and in politics is a stanch republican.

William A. Payne, farmer, postoffice Coal Valley, son of James and Hannah (Allison) Payne, was born in Jefferson township in 1823, on the place where James Payne now resides. The early history of the family will be found in the biographical sketch of Joseph Payne, on page 488. Mr. Payne married Isabella J., daughter of Capt. Blair, in October, 1851. Their children were James N. (deceased), Esther M. (deceased), William F. B. (deceased), George B. and Hannah A. (now Mrs. A. G. Willson).

Charles S. Beck, apothecary, Sharpsburg, is a native of Germany, and was born in 1861, a son of Adolph and Mary (Baker) Beck, who were parents of seven children, five of whom are now living, Charles S., the third child, was educated at home, and also attended college five years. At fifteen years of age he commenced the study of medicine, and graduated at the College of Pharmacy, Strasbourg, Germany, in 1880. He came to America in 1883, and for three years was employed as clerk in Pittsburgh, Pa. Coming to Sharpsburg in July, 1877, he established his present business, since which time he has continued here. Mr. Beck married, in 1887, Mary, daughter of Nicholas Smitten, now of Allegheny county, and one child has blessed their union, Adolph Nicholas. Mr. Beck is a member of the Catholic Church, and politically is independent.

William McPhillian, farmer, postoffice Sharpsburg, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, Oct. 12, 1818, a son of William and Jane (Galbreath) McPhillian. William McPhillian, Sr., came to America in 1829 with his wife and children, and purchased 140 acres of land in Indiana township. He was a farmer by occupation, and after the purchase of his land returned three times to his native isle. He died there sixty-five years, and his wife at the age of eighty-eight. Our subject, the eldest of seven children, is the only surviving member of the family, and since eleven years of age has resided in O'Hara township, and received his education in the common schools. In 1849 he married Mary Wise, who has borne him three children, all of whom are deceased. Seventy-four of the 140 acres of land purchased by his father—James, who has always led the life of a farmer. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. Politically he is a Cleveland democrat.

CHARLES GIBSON, Sr., retired, postoffice Gibsonia, is a son of Thomas and Rachel (Dixon) Gibson, and was born in Pine township in 1803. Thomas was a native of Ireland, and immigrated to America about 1800, stopping in Philadelphia for one year, and then moved to Allegheny county, and engaged in farming in Pine township. He was justice of the peace for that township for thirty years, and afterward moved to Allegheny City, where he died in 1848. He was the father of seven children, five of whom still live, viz. : Charles, Eliza (wife of Charles Donnell, of Allegheny), Nancy, Margaret (wife of Washington Collins, of Indiana), and Sarah (wife of Dr. William M. Herron, of Allegheny). Of these Charles is the eldest. He was educated at the schools of his time, and subsequently for several years engaged in farming and distilling on the homestead. At an early age he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked for many years. He was one of the first stockholders in the Butler and Allegheny plank-road, of which he is now manager, and is also president of the Allegheny and Perryville plank-road. He was one of the earliest stockholders of the P. & W. R. R., and acted as president of that road for several years; has also been engaged in saw- and grist-milling in Richland township for a number of years. He married, in 1841, Elizabeth Logue, daughter of James Logue, of York county, and who died in 1883, leaving four children: Robert (a merchant of Gibsonia), Charles (a farmer of the township), Louisa (wife of John Logan, of Pine township) and Rachel (wife of Clark Alexander, of Cleveland, Ohio). Mr. Gibson has held the offices of supervisor and school director of the township. He moved to his present farm in 1841, and Gibsonia station and postoffice are named in his honor. In 1861 he engaged in mercantile business at Bakerstown, and continued four years. He is a member of the Cross Roads Presbyterian Church.

ROBERT M. GIBSON, merchant, postoffice Gibsonia, is a son of Charles, Sr., and Elizabeth (Logue) Gibson, and was born in Richland in 1845. He was educated at the public schools of the township and Jefferson College, of Washington county. After completing his education he engaged in farming for a number of years, and in 1876 was chosen freight and station agent on the P. & W. R. R. at Gibsonia, which he held for seven years. In 1879 he engaged in general mercantile business at his present stand, and in 1880 was appointed postmaster, which office he still holds. In 1881 he married Anna M. McGoran, daughter of John and Nancy Owens, of Pine township. By her he has two children—Elizabeth Logue and Nancy; also has two children by a former marriage—Charles E. and Maggie. Mr. Gibson is a member of the Presbyterian Church at Bakerstown.

CHARLES J. GIBSON, farmer, postoffice Gibsonia, is the youngest son of Charles, Sr., and Elizabeth (Logue) Gibson, and was born in Richland in 1858. He was educated at Monmouth, Ill., and Valparaiso, Ind., and married, in 1880, Alice, daughter of Samuel and Margaret Patch, of Chicago. Mr. Gibson is a member of the Juniata Lodge, No. 201, I. O. O. F., and Encampment 56, of Illinois. He has held the office of inspector of elections of the township.

AUGUST DEPP, manufacturer, Sharpsburg, was born in 1880, in Bavaria, Germany, a son of Adolph Depp, a farmer, who came to America in 1854. Adolph married Mary Wilhelm, and of their children August is the eldest. He attended school in Germany, worked on a farm in his younger days, and for a number of years was employed in a tannery in Allegheny City. In 1885 he commenced his present business—the manufacture of glasshouse pots, stoppers, etc. He married, in 1887, Mary, daughter of Andrew Auburger, of Germany. Three children, all living, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Depp: William M., Barbara and George A. Mr. Depp is a member of the G. C. Church, and politically is an independent.

JAMES McROBERTS, farmer, postoffice Hoboken, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1824. His father, David McRoberts, was a weaver and farmer, and married Margaret McGoran, who became the mother of eight children. James, the eldest son, at twenty years of age left his native land, came to America, worked for a time in Pittsburgh, and in 1820 purchased his farm of one hundred acres, making additional purchases of one hundred acres. He married, in 1848, Agnes McWilliams, also of County Down, Ireland, and six children have been born to them: Jane, John, Samuel, James, Foster and David.

JAMES G. WEIR, wagon- and coach-maker, Sharpsburg, is a native of County Derry, Ireland, born in 1835. His father was named Alexander Weir, as was also his grandfather, and both were natives of Scotland. Alexander, Jr., was a farmer, married Rachel Speer, and became the father of eight children. James G., the third son, was educated in Ireland, and remained at home until eighteen years of age, at which time he went to Scotland, and then for five years was engaged in mining. In 1857 he came to America, located in Pittsburgh, and served an apprenticeship of three years at wagon-making. At the expiration of that time he commenced business for himself. Starting on a small scale, he has to-day one of the leading houses in his line in the city, and has become such by his industry and attention to business. He married, in 1881, Martha Jane (wife of George Porter, of Scotland. Twelve children blessed this union, six living; George
S., John P., Lula May, Robert Mc., W. S. and Daisy. Mr. Weir purchased one hundred acres of land in O'Hara township in 1871, where his family now reside. He is a member of the U. P. Church, and politically a republican.

Henry Hohmann, farmer, postoffice Emsworth, was born Sept. 11, 1827, in Helpersheim, Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, son of John and Gertrude (Pepler) Hohmann. They had four children: Henry, Adam, John and Katie. Henry came to America in 1848, and settled in Allegheny county. He was a soldier in the German army, and during our late war he left his wife and five children to fight in the northern army. He married Anna E. Reel. They have nine children, viz.: J. Henry, John, Elizbeth, Ernnet, George, Matilda, Katie G., Fred and Charley. Mr. Hohmann was on the river for eighteen years, and during the war served in Co. A, 5th P. H. A. He has a farm of seventy acres. Politically he is a republican, and was tax-collector one year and constable seven years.

William S. Grubbs, farmer, postoffice Glenfield, was born Dec. 30, 1829, in Allegheny county. His grandfather, Conrad Grubbs, of German descent, was a native of Lancaster county, Pa. He was a whig, and his people were members of the G. R. Church. He came to this county in an early day, and married Margaret A. Wible. He owned a large tract of land in Pine creek; when he died he was more than ninety years old. He had eleven children, viz.: Andrew, John, William, David, Wible, George, Eliza, Beth, Charlotte, Catharine, Sarah and Mary A. Andrew came to Ohio township in 1842, and bought 130 acres of good farm-land. He married Mary Ncff, who died in 1871, aged sixty-five years. Six children blessed this union: William S., A. Harrison, Frank, Harvey, Harriet and Sarah. Andrew died in 1877, aged eighty-five years. William received a limited education, but is a well-read man. He taught school fourteen years, and later cultivated his farm of one hundred acres. He married Mary J. Laird. They have five children, viz.: Mary E., Clara B., Ella J., Harry S. and Lillie F. Mr. and Mrs. Grubbs are members of the U. P. Church, of which he is a member of sessions.

Alexander Martin, Esq., salt-manufacturer, Etna, is a great-grandson of Thomas Martin, a native of Ireland, who settled near Wilkinsburg, Allegheny county, shortly after the Revolution, in which struggle he was a soldier. He was married, in Scotland, to Mary Morrow, and their children were William, James, John, Alexander, Richard, Mary and Catherine. Most of these Alexander was in the war of 1812. Thomas Martin, Sr., moved to Butler county, where he died. John Martin was a representative and senator. Thomas Martin, the father of our subject, has been a deputy marshal twice in Butler county, besides filling other positions. Since 1881 he has resided in Etna. He and his wife, Martha Welsh, are the parents of six children: Alexander, Ellen B., Mary, Thomas M., Sarah E. and John. Our subject was educated at the Witherspoon Institute. He clerked for many years in a store at Etna, and since severing that connection he has been superintendent of the Allegheny Salt company, limited. Politically he is a republican, and has been a member of the council. In April, 1887, he was elected justice of the peace, filling that office with efficiency. He is also a member of the A. O. U. W. and A. Y. M.

William Brickell, deceased, was a son of George and Lydia Brickell, of Lancaster county, and was born in Shaler township, Allegheny county, April 21, 1800. His parents settled in Shaler township about 1785. William was educated at the schools of his time, and followed farming. In 1842 he married Lavina Stolffe, of Butler county, and in the same year purchased a farm, where his family now live, in Richland township, and he died there in 1866. Three of his children still live: Nancy, wife of P. Kennihan, living on the homestead; Elizabeth, wife of John Wilson, of Allegheny City, and Sarah, wife of George McMorran, of Sharpsburg. Mrs. Brickell carries on the farm in connection with her son-in-law, Mr. P. Kennihan, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church of Bakerstown.

Fraugott Obenauf, retired, Etna, was born Sept. 26, 1828, in Ehra Reis, Saxony, Germany, son of Christian Obenauf, who came to America in 1854, and died in Mahoning county, Ohio. Our subject was educated in Germany, where he learned ropemaking. He immigrated to America at the age of eighteen, and followed his trade for ten years in Pittsburgh and Etna. He became the owner of the steam ferry-boat Blackhawk, and from 1866 to 1868 was in the sawmill business. Subsequently he spent four years in the west, in Illinois and Missouri, and during the last eight years has been engaged in the tobacco business very successfully. He married Magdalena, daughter of Jacob and Catherine Morbach, old settlers in Etna, who owned fourteen acres of Etna property, and Jacob, being a carpenter, assisted in building most of the houses in Etna. Mr. Obenauf is a republican.

William C. Shaw, farmer, Glenshaw, was born Oct. 12, 1826, on the old mansion farm in Shaler township. His parents, John and Matilda (Courtney) Shaw, were also natives of this county, and the latter was a daughter of William Courtney, an old settler at Lowry's Run. John Shaw was a miller by trade, and operated the old mill at Glenshaw. He was an excellent miller, and, besides his milling, was engaged in the coal business, and was supplying Spang's mill with fuel. The old Shaw family were active members of the Presbyterian Church. Our subject is a miller by trade, and followed it in early life. Later on he helped his father in the coal business, and now is a farmer and gardener. He married Eliza J. Mather, and four children have-blessed their union: Mrs. Matilda Watts, Edward D., Clara and Lyda C. All are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Shaw is an elder.

Joseph D. Hunter, guide-roller, Etna, was born Jan. 17, 1847, in Shaler township. His father, Joseph Hunter, was a native of New Jersey, and of Scotch descent. He came to this county when a little boy, accompanied by his parents, Joseph and Mary E. Hunter. He was a blacksmith by occupation, but followed the sickle-maker's trade later in life. He married Catherine, daughter of Henry and Barbara (Moyer) Boyer. Henry Boyer came from New York and settled in Pittsburgh in 1806, and there cleared the ground and built a house where the county courthouse now stands. He was a gunsmith by trade, and a little above Etna built a tunnel to make a race for his mill, and manufactured guns, in which occupation his daughter, Catherine, assisted him. The latter is the only survivor of eight children. She was born Aug. 13, 1813, and is the mother of six children: Matthew C., John S., James C., Joseph D., William H. and Mary E. Hunter. Of the above, Joseph D. was born Jan. 17, 1847. At the age of ten years, after the death of his father, he entered the Etna Iron-works, and thus helped to support his widowed mother. He has been employed twenty-nine years in the mill, and is one of the company's most trusted men. He married Mattie E., daughter of George Taylor, and they have four children: Mabel E., Clarence J., Oliver E. and Mary C. Mr. Hunter has been a delegate of the I. O. O. F. and E. A. U. He has always taken a deep interest in societies and the affairs of Etna.

Johann Beierlein, gardener, Etna, was born Jan. 15, 1828, in Mortfield, Grabenberg, Bavaria, Germany, a son of George Beierlein. He came to America in 1848, and, after residing in East Liberty seventeen years, removed to Shaler township, where he has farmed and gardened up to the present time. He married Margaret Backoever, a native of the above-named place, and they have seven sons, viz.: Henry, Thomas, John, George, William, Conrad and Frank. The children are conducting the mill business, and spell the name Byerly. Mr. and Mrs. Beierlein are members of the Lutheran Church in Sharpsburg, where Mr. Beierlein has held several offices.

George Dillig, blacksmith, postoffice Bennett, was born Oct. 27, 1847, in Chimchen, near Koblenz, Prussia, the son of Jacob and Margareta (Knebel) Dillig. George was educated in Germany, and began learning the blacksmith's trade there, finishing in Pittsburgh, where he located in 1865. He removed to Millvale in 1874, where he has followed his business successfully up to the present time. He has a wagon-shop connected with the smithy, and employs several men. He was married here to Lena Householder, and they are the parents of four children: Carrie, George, Harry and Albert. Mr. and Mrs. Dillig are members of the G. E. Church at Millvale, of which he is a trustee; he is also a member of the A. O. U. W.; in politics he is a republican.

William H. Wible, merchant, postoffice Bennett, was born Nov. 23, 1854, in Shaler township, this county, on the old homestead, "Sturbridge," son of James H. and Charlotte (Wilson) Wible, former also born on the old homestead, latter a native of Ireland. James Wible was a farmer by occupation; politically a republican, and a patriotic worker for the Union during the late war. Mr. and Mrs. Wible were members of the Presbyterian Church. William H. graduated from the bookkeeping department of Duff's Business College. He farmed until 1884, when he engaged in the coal business in Millvale, which he is conducting with success. He married Anna M. Hagan, a native of this county, daughter of Thomas and Maria (Wilson) Hagan, and they have one child, Florence A. Wible.

George Vilsack, farmer, postoffice Bennett, was born April 15, 1837, in Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Anton and Catharine (Farnorie) Vilsack, former of whom was a native of Carlsruhe, Baden, Germany, latter of Alsace, France (now Germany). Anton Vilsack came to Pittsburgh in 1835, where he followed his trade, that of carpenter. He removed to Shaler township, where he engaged in farming, and died there quite young; his widow lived to be over eighty years of age. They were the parents of four children: George, Leopold, Catharine and Elizabeth. The subject of this memoir is a farmer, but was previously employed in the Sharpsburg mills. He married Mary Bavelon, native of this county, and they are the parents of four children: Maria, Joseph, Anna and Lena. Mr. and Mrs. Vilsack are members of the Catholic Church; politically he is a democrat.

James W. Oesterling, hotel-keeper, postoffice Bennett, was born in October, 1848, in Butler county, Pa., a son of John Oesterling, who was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, and came to the above-named place when a child, and is now a farmer there. James W. remained on the farm during the early part of his life. In 1875 he embarked in the livery business, which he abandoned in 1878, and for four years conducted a hotel in Zelienople, Pa. He subsequently removed to this county, where he has continued to conduct a hotel to the present time. His father and brother were soldiers in the late war. Politically Mr. Oesterling is a democrat.

Patrick Bligh, bender, lap-welding department National Tube-works, McKeesport, is a native of County Roscommon, Ireland. He came to America in 1868, and settled in Boston, Mass. In 1870 he entered the employ of the National Tube-works company, in that city, where he operated a furnace for several months. In 1872 he came to McKeesport in the interest of the same company.
and has been working in the lap-welding department of their works here ever since. After the works burned down, in 1873, and new buildings were erected, he was the first man to build a pipe, and the first when the mills were originally started. He is a prominent leader in local organizations, and is a stanch Republican.

ISAAC KERR and DANIEL KERR, farmers, Elkhorn, sons of James and Esthier (Wilson) Kerr, were both born in Forward township. Their father's family consisted of seven children: Mary, Jane, Wilson, Joseph, Matthew, Isaac and Daniel, of whom the last two are the only ones now living. Their grandfather, James, settled in Washington county at an early time, where James, his son, was born, and who later came to Forward township, bought a large tract of land, now owned by the two surviving sons, who are engaged in farming and raising stock.

J. M. McCurdy, M. D., Dravosburg, was born May 27, 1846, in Indiana county, Pa., a son of Samuel McCurdy, of Scotch-Irish descent, and an old resident of the above-named place. Dr. McCurdy received his primary education in his native county, where he subsequently became a teacher. In June, 1864, at the age of eighteen, he enlisted in Co. F, 204th H. A., and served his country until the close of the war. After yielding the rod three years he was persuaded by his mother, Margaret (Miller) McCurdy, an excellent woman, to study medicine. He attended lectures at Cincinnati, Ohio, and graduated at the Long Island Medical College in the class of 1871. The doctor has been a successful practitioner, and in Dravosburg has built up a good practice. He married Clara Bell, and has two children, Wilda N. and Garvin P.

ROBERT McKinney, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, is a grandson of Matthew and Elizabeth (Lardy) McKinney. His parents were Capt. James and Mary Jane McKinney, and he was born May 7, 1823, in what is now Forward township. His wife was Nancy, daughter of Robert Marshall, of Ohio, and she died Dec. 20, 1880, leaving four children: Robert Marshall, James Wallace, Mary Jane (Mrs. Joseph Lytle) and Margaret Elizabeth (Mrs. James Gambol). Mr. McKinney has always followed farming; he and his family are members of the Presbyterian Church of Round Hill.

D. W. Risher, manager, postoffice Hope Church, was born April 28, 1865, on the old homestead in this county. He was educated at Chester Military Academy and the University of Pittsburgh. At the age of twenty he began to work with his father; and soon became manager of his father's coal and real estate business. He married Fannie B., daughter of J. J. Patterson, and they have one child, Frank G. Risher.

WILLIAM Mason, farmer, postoffice Ta- rentum, is a native of England, and came to America at the age of eighteen years, located in Pittsburgh and learned the trade of shoe-making. In 1850 he married Sarah Miller, of Wilkinsburg, where they resided three years. In 1853 he purchased thirty acres of land on Bull creek, East Deer township, and engaged in farming; also worked at his trade. Later he moved to Indiana county, where he was a coal-dealer for five years, and then came to Pawn township. In 1881 he purchased the farm of 125 acres which he now owns, and has since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. Mr. Mason has been supervisor of Pawn township, and has held several positions of trust. His first wife died, leaving four children, and he next married, in 1868, Elizabeth Montgomery, of West Deer township, who has borne him six children. Mr. Mason visited England about twenty-three years ago.

THOMAS H. Grimes, M. D., Sewickley, was born May 2, 1832, in Sewickley, Pa. His grandfather, James Grimes, was a native of Ireland, and came to America in an early day, settling in Maryland, where he was a slave-holder. His son, Capt. James Grimes, was born near Baltimore, Md., and married Deborah Grimes (same name but no relatives), and they had twelve children, who all attained maturity: Benjamin, Samuel, Elias, James, Lavina (all born in Maryland), Ellen, Sarah, John, Elizabeth, Mary, William and Davis (born in Sewickley). The family removed to Sewickley in 1805, and settled on Jordan's hill; they farmed extensively. Capt. James Grimes was a well-known pilot between Pittsburgh and Louisville. He was captain of the Gazelle and other boats for many years. He died in Sewickley Jan. 2, 1862. He was married to Elizabeth, a daughter of John and Mary (Hoey) Fife, the latter of whom was a daughter of Thomas Hoey, a prominent merchant of Dublin, Ireland. Our subject was educated at the Western University, where he took a special course, and graduated from the Bellevue Hospital Medical College in the class of 1876. Subsequently he studied homeopathy with J. F. Cooper, M. D., of Allegheny City, and then located in Sewickley. He was married here to Miss Anna M. Dilkes, who died Sept. 6, 1887, leaving two children, Walter and Mary. The doctor is a member of the Allegheny county and state medical societies.

ED. A. Smith is a manufacturer at Sewickley. His ancestors were natives of Scotland, his grandfather, Hugh Smith, having been born near Edinburgh. Ed. A. Smith was educated at the Western University, from which he graduated, at the age of eighteen, in the class of 1875. He then entered the Fifth National Bank, where he was employed ten years, and held the position of teller. For the next two years he was a member of the Smith Brothers Steel Company, engaged in the manufacture of Krupp’s cooling compound. He is general manager of the concern, and a large stockholder. Mr. Smith has led an active business career, and early in life laid the foundation of those principles which lead to success. He married Henrietla T. Catherwood, of Philadelphia, and five children were born to them: Andrew D., Edward C., Eleanor N., Harold A. and Miriam C. Smith.

George W. Cochran, Sewickley, was born Aug. 24, 1824, on the old homestead, in Pine township, this county. The paternal grandfather, Richard Cochran, was born in Londonderry, Ireland, came to America in 1794, located in Philadelphia, Pa., and about the year 1800 removed to Pine township, where he built a cabin, and later a house, which bears the inscription of 1806. Mr. Cochran farmed and operated a sawmill. His son, Hon. William Cochran, was born in 1777, and died in 1867; he was a farmer early in life, was elected to the legislature, and was deputy warden of the Western penitentiary. He was unanimously re-elected to the legislature; also filled the office of justice of the peace and other positions. Politically he was identified with the democratic party until Gen. Harrison became a candidate, when he espoused Whig principles, and adhered to that party. He married Mary Davis, of Ireland; they were Scotch Presbyterians, originally Covenanters. Mr. and Mrs. Cochran were married sixty years, she living to be ninety-five years old. This union was blessed with five children: Mrs. Jane Lecky, Mrs. Sarah McGonigle, Mrs. E. C. Davis, Robert (deceased) and George W.

Our subject was educated in Sewickley, and engaged in steamboating; filled every position up to that of captain. He was captain of several boats, and ran on all the principal rivers in the Mississippi valley. During the war he retired, and has resided in or near Sewickley for twenty-five years. He has filled many offices—that of councilman and burgess for several years. Mr. Cochran was married to Miss Martha, daughter of Dr. Daniel N. Neehan, and they have two children, William G. and George I.

William Potter Jones (deceased) was born in Norristown, Pa., son of Rev. John Jones, of Warrenton, Va. He was married to Harriet Potter, of Bridgeton, N. J., which family is related to the Potter family of New York. Eight generations of the Potter family are buried in New Jersey. William P. Jones was educated at New Castle, Ky., and came to Pittsburgh, Pa., with Moses Atwood, his brother-in-law, about 1833. He engaged in the forwarding commission business, which he followed successfully until the railroad destroyed that branch of transportation. Subsequently he engaged in the insurance business, representing the North American; he then established the Manufacturers' & Merchants' Insurance company, and he became its secretary. He was popular and everywhere highly esteemed. He married Elizabeth J., daughter of Rev. L. Hunting- ton, of the Presbyterian Church of Lyons, Conn., an old and popular English family in the United States. William L. Jones was educated in Sewickley Academy, and subsequently engaged in the insurance busi- ness, which he is still pursuing. He is the agent and manager of the North American, Hartford Fire and Pennsylvania (of Philadelphia) companies. His wife is a daughter of Thomas and Winifred E. (Chaplin) Shields.

John McMillen, contractor, Sewickley, was born March 15, 1836, in Moon township, Allegheny county, Pa. His paternal grandfather, who was of Scotch descent, came from Ireland, and settled permanently in Hopewell township, this county, where he carried on farming. He was married to Martha J. Jeffrey, a daughter of an old pioneer in Jeffersonstown, this county, and she still survives her husband, at the age of seventy-eight. Of their six children, Charles was born in Beaver county, Pa., came to Allegheny county, where he followed his trade, that of cooper; he died in Middletown, Moon township, a member of the Presbyterian Church. John was educated at Sharon, Pa., and in 1853, at the age of seventeen, he came to Sewickley, where he learned the carpenter's trade with the Miller brothers. After one year of journeyman-work, Mr. Miller began contracting, and has resided in Sewickley up to the present time. He has one brother, John W., and two sisters, Mrs. Amanda Watson and Mrs. Anna Cole, still living. Mr. Miller has been councilman and assessor several times.

John Applegate, farmer, postoffice Monongahela City, is a son of James and Rachel (Halscraft) Applegate, and was born in 1815, in Union township, Washington county, Pa. James was a son of Garret Wall and Mary (Johnson) Applegate, and was born in Forward township in 1787, and Rachel, his wife, in 1792. Garret Applegate came from New Jersey, and was the first settler in Forward township. James Applegate had five children: Elizabeth, John, Rachel, Harriet J., and Minerva. Harriet J. and Rachel are deceased. John came to his present farm when two years old, and here has since resided. He has been engaged in farming all his life. He is unmarried, and occupies the old homestead with his sister, Elizabeth.

Ralph Johnson, contractor, Sewickley, was born May 14, 1812, in Yorkshire, England, where his ancestors have resided for many generations. He was educated there and learned the bricklayer's trade. In 1839 he immigrated to America, spent one year in Philadelphia, and then removed to Pittsburgh, where he followed his trade. He worked on many of the old prominent buildings in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, finally engaged in contracting, and built the first Monongahela House. He was a member of the Smithfield M. E. Church, of which he was officer, class-leader, steward and trustee. Politically he is a republican. Mr. Johnson came to Sewickley in 1874, and has taken an active part in the growth of the town, and in many enterprises, in the way of stone bridges, jail, etc. He was member of the council twice. Mr. Johnson was married in England.
He has been a member of the firm of Adams & Co., glasshouse, and also of Johnson, King & Co.

J. P. Eaton, proprietor of livery establishment, Sewickley, is a native of this county. His parents, George and Sarah Eaton, who were American, of Scotch and German descent, settled in this county, near Clinton, about the beginning of this century. George Eaton's name and the date of 1812 appear on his old barn. He died aged ninety-four; his wife aged eighty-three. They reared a family of eight children. Of these, Capt. Eaton was born in this county, near Clinton, and went on the river at an early age, "keelboating" for many years on the Ohio between Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. Subsequently he became a pilot, and later captain, and the owner of many boats, among them the Rambler, one of the oldest towboats of the Monongahela river. In 1859 he had his hand injured, and in 1860 he was elected prothonotary of Allegheny county by the republican party. After serving three years creditably he retired to his farm near Mansfield. Subsequently he engaged in the livery business, keeping stables in New Castle and Sewickley. He died in Allegheny, aged eighty-two years; his wife, see Sarah Hood, died young, leaving eight children, who all attained maturity.

J. P. Eaton, the subject proper of this memoir, was reared in this county, and at the age of fourteen years he went on the river, following it till 1865, when he embarked in commerce. In 1872 he commenced his present livery business in Sewickley.

Robert Stewart, farmer, Springdale, was born in 1806, in Allegheny county, Pa., son of James and Sarah Stewart. His grandfather, John Stewart, was of Scotch descent, and came from Ireland to America soon after the revolutionary war. James Stewart, father of Robert, was born in Scotland, and came with his parents to this country when quite young; he was married, in 1800, to Sarah Shaffer, and to them were born thirteen children, nine now living.

Albert Hare, M. D., Tarentum, is born of Robert and Sarah (Flack) Hare, was born in Tarentum, in 1835. His grandfather, Thomas Hare, with his brothers, James and Robert, came from Ireland, locating in Tarentum, in 1841, and secured a contract to build a section of the Pennsylvania canal. Thomas Hare was married in Ireland, and his family consisted of Robert, Alexander (now a lumber-dealer), Maria (now Mrs. Samuel Black, of McKeesport, Pa.), and John, whose place of residence is unknown. The parents of Albert Hare were among the pioneers of Tarentum, and his father was one of its old merchants. There are about two surviving children: Emma (now Mrs. Eugene Hall, of Tarentum) and Albert. The subject of this sketch received his early education in the educational institutions of the county, and graduated in medicine in May, 1882, from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, Md., and began the practice of medicine in Tarentum. Dr. Hare is identified with many of the local offices of the borough, being a director in the gas company, a stockholder in the water-works, and having served several terms in the council. He is a member of the Sphinx Lodge, No. 502, and of the A. O. U. W.

John R. Harbison, attorney at law, Pittsburgh, was born in Allegheny, Pa., son of Adam Harbison, a native of the north of Ireland, and a Covenanter of Scotch descent. He came to America at the age of fourteen years, and lived in Cannonsburg, Pa., five years, when he removed to Allegheny, where he engaged in the carpenter's trade, which he followed until his death; he built several boats. John R. Harbison received his primary education in the public schools of Allegheny, and in Eldridg Academy and Westminster College. He read law at the Cleveland Law School, and was admitted to the bar with John Barton in April, 1874. He has followed his profession in Pittsburgh successfully up to the present time, especially in the civil courts, and since April, 1880, he has resided at Osborn. In 1888 he was elected burgess. Politically he is a republican.

J. C. Stewart, merchant, Tarentum, is a native of Westmoreland county, Pa., born at Parnassus, Aug. 31, 1843, a son of William and Mary (Hunter) Stewart, former of whom was a merchant at Parnassus, and in 1883 was in business at Freeport, Armstrong county. They had a family of six children, viz.: W. Reid (now of Williamsburg, Iowa), Frank (residing near Saltsburg, Pa.), R. O. (residing near Parnassus), Mary (now Mrs. D. A. Hawk, of Kansas), Annie (now Mrs. John Kunkle, of Kansas), and J. C. The grandparents of these children came from near Gettysburg, Pa., to Westmoreland county, and there settled. J. C., the subject of this sketch, remained at home until 1863, when he enlisted in Co. K, P. H., and received his discharge in 1863, and re-enlisted in Co. I, 5th Regt. P. H. A., and was mustered out of service July 4, 1865. His father having presented him with a farm, J. C. married, in 1865, Jennie, daughter of John McKain, of Westmoreland county, and located on the place, which they soon sold, however, and Mr. Stewart engaged in business at Parnassus, as dealer in general merchandise. He was also "on the road" for a period of seven years. In 1884 he removed to Tarentum, where he became a dealer in clothing, gents' furnishing goods, carpets, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have two children (twins), Frank and Newton. The parents are members of the U. P. Church. Mr. Stewart is a member of the G. A. R., Post No. 47, Pittsburgh.

James Staley, druggist, Tarentum, son of James and Julia A. Staley, former of whom is deceased, was born in Tarentum, Aug. 22, 1845, his parents being among the pioneers of this portion of Allegheny county. Their children were Nancy, now Mrs. J. W.
Hemphill, of Tarentum; William J., James; Julia A., deceased; Willard; Dora, deceased; Belva, now Mrs. H. Euclid of Tarentum, and Maude, now Mrs. T. Hudefoll, of Tarentum. James Staley married, in 1867, Miss Sarah M., daughter of Joseph Nash, of Georgetown, Beaver county, Pa., and located in Pleasantville, Venango county, Pa., where he engaged in the oil business from 1869 to 1879. He then removed to Richburg, N. Y., and thence to Tarentum in 1884. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Staley were Maud E., Harry (deceased), Charles H., Eugene W., Claude and Howard. Mr. Staley is a member of the Order of American Mechanics.

Hite Euriach, merchant, Tarentum, a son of Valentine Euriach, was born at Hite's Station, West Deer township, in 1858. His parents were among the early settlers of that portion of Allegheny county, but are now residents of West Tarentum. In June, 1878, our subject married Mary L., daughter of James Staley, of Tarentum, where they made their home and Mr. Euriach commenced business. He is now a dealer in general merchandise in the Tarentum Bank building. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Euriach are Charles S., Julia E., Bella and Georgiana.

I. P. Loucks, merchant and postmaster, Tarentum, son of John M. and Mary A. Loucks, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1850. In 1876 he removed to Tarentum, when he engaged in his present business as dealer in general merchandise. In 1884 he married Annie, daughter of John Dyer, of Allegheny, Pa., and by her has two children: Paul and an infant not named. Mrs. Loucks is a member of the Presbyterian Church; he is a member of the R. A. and the A. O. U. W. In politics he has been a lifelong democrat. He was appointed postmaster at Tarentum during the administration of President Cleveland.

H. H. Weylman, jeweler, Tarentum, established his house here in 1884, and has since that time been identified with the borough as one of its prominent business-men. He is dealing in watches, clocks, jewelry, silverware and optical goods.

Samuel Wolf, farmer, postoffice Tarentum, a son of George and Nancy Wolf, was born in 1818, in Fawn township, whether his parents came from over the mountains and settled at an early time, where they died. Their children were John, Andrew, David, Zigler, Catharine, Margaret, Polly, Betsy, Sarah, Samuel, Wallace, Jackson, Joseph and George. In 1837 Samuel Wolf married Mary Jane, daughter of Joseph Haney, of Fawn township, where they located and engaged in farming, and where they reared a family of thirteen children: Nancy J., John, George, Sarah, David, Catherine, Annie, Josephine, Malinda, Delila (deceased), Samuel, Martha (deceased) and Haney (deceased). In 1888 Mr. Wolf sold the farm and removed to his present residence in Tarentum. Mr. and Mrs. Wolf are members of the Methodist Church.

Alexander Larmour Phillips, gardener’ Dixmont, was born March 11, 1855, on the place where he now resides, son of John and Elizabeth (Larmour) Phillips, natives of County Antrim, Ireland. His father was born about eight miles from Belfast, and his parents were Thomas and Margaret (Sales) Phillips. Alexander Phillips’ grandparents were Daniel and Sarah (Boys) Phillips, and his maternal grandfather was Hugh Sales. John Phillips and his twin brother, Robert, came from Ireland about the year 1833, and settled on Neville island. John Phillips and his wife are still living on the homestead, which their son Alexander has charge of. Six children were born to John, viz.: Thomas, Margaret (Mrs. Graham), Robert, Hugh, William John and Alexander. All but Alexander reside at Glenfield. The family are Presbyterians. Alexander received his education at the Glenfield and city schools, and since 1882 has had charge of his father’s farm. He was married, in October, 1878, to Lizzie Dickson, of Neville island, daughter of James Dickson (see his sketch). Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips: Thomas Leslie, Velma May, Alexander Larmour and Maggie. Mr. Phillips has been school director, supervisor and trustee in the church. Politically he is a prohibitionist.

John Sommers, miller, Elizabeth, is a native of Mifflin county, Pa., born Sept. 17, 1835. At the age of fourteen he moved to Canton, Ohio, and learned the trade of miller, which he has since followed, and for some years he worked in the large Cascade mill at Canal Dover. In 1859 he came to Elizabeth, and has since acted as head miller in the Elizabeth mills, now operated by the Meyer Milling company. He married, in 1864, Catherine Winfield, of Stark county, Ohio, and they have four children living: Mary E., John C., William E. and Ida May, all at home. Mr. Sommers and family are members of St. Michael’s Church of Elizabeth.

Wilson Wall, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, a son of John and Mary (Wilson) Wall, was born in 1814, in what is now Forward township. Walter Wall, his grandfather, and James, his brother, came at the same time from New Jersey, and were among the first settlers of Forward. Wilson Wall married Hannah Eliza Storrer, daughter of Richard Storrer. Their children are Wilson Stuart, James S. O., John R., Anna Mary and Hannah Martha. Only three are living. Mr. Wall deservedly occupies a prominent place in the estimation of the citizens of Forward, and is prominent in local enterprises.

Samuel P. Hollis (deceased) was born Sept. 19, 1833, in Providence, R. I., a descendent of the Stuarts of Scotland. He died Feb. 5, 1888. He was educated in the east, and there learned the tuck and nail trade, and was a partner in his father’s business. He came to Pittsburgh in 1853, and followed his trade number of years before he started in business, which he did in 1870, with several partners, conducting it successfully until the combination company bought them out. In 1886 he again entered into business, with his son Charles and his brother, William B. Hollis, as partners. Mr. and Mrs. Hollis were Presbyterians. He was a very popular man in business circles. He married Sophie D., daughter of Rev. Isaac Banks, and by her had five children: Maud. Charles A., Leora O., Ralph W. and Isaac B. (who died at the age of eighteen). Mr. Hollis was a republican.

Genealogy and Biography.

C. W. Gardner, merchant, postoffice Bennett, was born Dec. 14, 1862, in Buffalo township, Butler county, Pa.: was reared on a farm, but while still a boy came to Pittsburgh and here worked in a grocery-store. In 1880 he went to Millvale, and here clerked with his brother until 1884, when he commenced in the dry-goods business for himself. He had no previous experience in that line, but has made a complete success of it, notwithstanding that he embarked in it without capital; his success is due to his honesty and industry. Mr. Gardner is a member of the American Mechanics; he is a republican.

Frederick H. Hampe, merchant, Mt. Oliver, was born Aug. 26, 1860, in Pittsburgh, South Side. He is a son of Frederick and Hannah (Ochlan) Hampe, natives of Goe- tingen, Germany. Frederick, Sr., is successfully engaged in the bottling business, and takes an active part in local politics, being identified with the republican party, and under the republican administration was postmaster of Mt. Oliver for eleven years, having had the honor of naming that town. He was also the originator and first president of the Mt. Oliver fire company. Frederick, Jr., was educated in Pittsburgh, and for the last five years he has conducted the grocery business in Mt. Oliver. He was married to Miss Laura, a daughter of Louis Kucheneisen, a merchant of Pittsburgh. He is republican, and a member of the A. P. A., S. O. of A. M.

Frank Patterson, farmer, postoffice Buena Vista, is a son of Peter and Jane (McKnight) Patterson. James Patterson, the grandfather of our subject, was one of the first settlers of Elizabeth township, locating in this county over one hundred years ago. He was a farmer, and in connection carried on the business of distilling. He was an active participant in the whisky insurrection, and was held by Washington prisoner at Buena Vista for his connection with that outbreak. He had eight children, one of whom is still living—Rebecca, widow of Ebenezer Henderson, of Elizabeth township. Peter the father of our subject, was born on the farm where his son now lives, and was engaged in the occupation of farming. He had seven children, one of whom, Sarah, Mrs. Thomas W. McCune, of Elizabeth township, is dead. The living are James H., William E., Thomas C., Rebecca (now Mrs. James Nesbit), Amanda (a maiden lady, living with James H.), and Frank, the eldest, who was born April 23, 1828. He received his early education at the public schools, the preparatory course at Greene Academy, Greene county, Pa., and graduated from Waynesboro College. Subsequently he engaged in the mercantile business at Buena Vista. For ten years he was, by the ballot of the peace of his township, school director seventeen years, and in 1885 was elected director of the poor of this county, which office he now fills. Mr. Patterson is extensively engaged in farming. He was married to Kate, daughter of William and Julia (Flynn) McCune, of this county. They have three children living: Charles H., Jesse O. and Frederick G. Mr. Patterson is a member of the R. A., and he and family are members of the U. P. Church of Buena Vista, of which he is presiding elder.

Adam Henning, saddler, Mt. Oliver, was born April 13, 1843, in Hessen, Germany, son of Adam and Mary (Hochhous) Henning, also natives of the above-named place; both are still living, the father being eighty-three years of age; he is a cooper by trade, and has followed various other occupations successfully. They had following-named children, viz.: Adam, Catherine, Henry, Margaret Louise (deceased), Sophie and Mary. The parents were members of the Evangelical Church. Adam was educated in this county, and here learned the saddler's trade, which he followed for twenty-two years in Mt. Oliver, where he has now established a flourishing business. He married Catherine Claus, a native of Germany, and to them were born six children: Charles, Henry, George, Katie, Emma and Frederick. Mr. Henning is a republican, and has held the office of school director for nine years.

Joseph Ritter, farmer, postoffice Verona, was born in Alsace, then France, in 1818, a son of Joseph and Ann (Borschure) Ritter. In 1827 the family, including six children, immigrated to America, and settled in the county in Cambria county. In 1840 they removed to Pittsburgh, South Side, where the father died in 1840, at the age of sixty-four years, and his widow in 1872, aged eighty-two. Joseph remained with his father until his death, and carried on the farm until 1856, when he sold out and bought his present farm of eighty-seven acres in Penn. In 1844 Mr. Ritter married Catharine Werling, who was born in Bavaria. Her parents, Anthony and Clara (Metz) Werling, were born in 1800, and died, the former at the age of forty-nine, and the latter at seventy-three. Mr. and Mrs. Ritter lost two sons and two daughters in infancy, and one son, John Nicholas, died at the age of twenty. The living are Joseph (in Kentucky), Daniel (in Verona), Conrad (in Wharton), John (in Ohio), Peter A. (in Verona) and William Henry (with his parents). In 1887 the last named married Maggie Costello, a native of Penn township, of Irish descent. Mr. Ritter is a democrat, and he and family are members of the R. C. Church at Verona.
Horace Gibbons, merchant, Duncan, was born in 1824, in Westmoreland county, where he received his education. Sept. 22, 1846, he married Elizabeth Gregg, of Allegheny county, and remained in Westmoreland county until 1862. They then removed to Osceola, where Mr. Gibbons opened the mines and remained as superintendent until 1869. Moving thence to Coultersville, he entered the service of R. McQuiston, Kirkpatrick, Herrn & Co., in the capacity of check-weighman and pit-boss, and remained there for thirteen years. In 1864 he enlisted in Co. F, 204th P. V. I., and was discharged in 1865 by reason of disability, having received injuries from which he never recovered. Upon his return he was honored with various official positions in his township, and was tax-collector for a period of ten years. Later he engaged in the general merchandise business, which he still continues; he is a republican in politics. Mrs. Gibbons is a member of the M. E. Church. Their children were: Henry, born 1824, Allegheny county; Abba, born 1826, Allegheny county; William, born 1829, Allegheny county; Jacob, born 1832, Allegheny county; John, born 1834, Allegheny county; Minnie, born 1836, Allegheny county; Rose, born 1839, Allegheny county; and Margaret, born 1844, Allegheny county. Mrs. Gibbons has lived in Allegheny county all her life. She was educated in the public schools. Mrs. Gibbons is a native of Allegheny county, born near Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 15, 1826, a daughter of John and Margaret (Fenwick) Gibbons. Mrs. Gibbons was a member of the Scotch-English Presbyterian Church. She is the mother of four children, viz.: Caroline, Malinda, Emma and Melvina. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons are members of the G. L. Church, of which he is financial secretary. He is a republican; has been school director nine years, and was treasurer when the schoolhouse was in progress. He is now a member of the council. He has been secretary of the I. O. O. F. for twelve years, and is a member of the R. A.

John M. Herrn, mechanic, Etna, was born June 13, 1833, in Rützwiler Amt Glauben, Bavaria, Germany, the son of Carl Boertzler. He emigrated to America in 1850, and, coming to Etna, learned the wagonmaker's trade with Daniel Hieier, and has been employed in the same shop up to the present time, the business now being conducted by Mr. Hieier's grandchildren. Our subject married Mary Wunderling, of Lancaster county, Pa. She is of German descent, and the mother of four children, viz.: Caroline, Malinda, Emma and Melvina. Mr. and Mrs. Boertzler are members of the G. L. Church, of which he is financial secretary. He is a republican; has been school director nine years, and was treasurer when the schoolhouse was in progress. He is now a member of the council. He has been secretary of the I. O. O. F. for twelve years, and is a member of the R. A.

Peter Anthony Ritter, newsdealer, Verona, was born May 15, 1862, a son of Joseph and Catharine Ritter, a full account of whom is given in their biographies. Mr. Ritter received his education at Monroeville, and at the age of twenty-one started a milk dairy, and one year later began tending bar for his brother. In 1884 he bought out J. W. Sadler & Son in the news business, the only place of the kind in Verona, carrying also a stock of school supplies, and he has a prosperous business. He was married, June 18, 1885, to Cornelia Antoinette, daughter of A. J. and Mary Ann (Neels) Verner, natives of Pittsburgh, and one child, Mattie Verner, has been born to this union. Mr. and Mrs. Ritter are members of St. Joseph Catholic Church; he is a democrat; a member of the Emerald Benefit Association.

William Rose, merchant. McKee's Rocks, was born in Germany in 1855, a son of Henry and Catharine Rose, and came with his parents to this country in 1856, settling in Allegheny county, Pa. Henry and Catharine Rose had seven children: Conrad, William, Jacob A., John H., Henry, Christ and Lena. William Rose was married, Dec. 27, 1877, to Catharine, daughter of John R. and Catharine Brezger, and they have had three children, viz.: Henry E. (deceased), Estella.
C. (deceased) and Edna M. From 1880 to 1888 Mr. Rose was engaged in mercantile business, but has recently sold his stock of goods to his brother-in-law, William Brezger. Mr. Rose early in life learned the trade of machinist, and followed it for some time. He recently built a good business block and dwelling on River road, Chartiers. The family are members of the G. L. Church.

JAMES McKEE, superintendent of the sawmill, docks and river business for Joseph Walton & Co., West Elizabeth, is a son of Alexander and Jane McKea, former a native of Ireland, latter of Beaver county, Pa. He was born at Bakers' Yard, Beaver county, near Freedom, in 1848. There, later, he found employment, and learned the trade of ship-carpenter. In 1871 he married Amelia, daughter of Christian and Margaret Holland, of Freedom, Beaver county. In 1873 he moved to West Elizabeth, where for several years he followed his trade in the employ of J. Walton & Co., when he received the position he now holds. Mr. and Mrs. McKea have three children: Christie H. (born in Freedom, Beaver county, in 1873), Mabel Irene (born in West Elizabeth, in 1876), and Bertha Ada (born in West Elizabeth, in 1884). Mr. and Mrs. McKea are members of the M. E. Church.

JOHN GIRDOL, farmer, postoffice Verona, was born in Bodenstein, Bavaria, in 1830. His parents, John and Catherine (Hiem) Girdol, came to America when he was six years old, and settled in Birmingham, Allegheny county, Pa. The father was employed as a laborer, and died in 1849, aged forty-two years. The only daughter, Katrina, and eldest son, Hans, died at the same time, of cholera. John, the only child left, was forced to work to support himself, and cared for his mother during the last twenty-five years of her life. She died at his home near Verona, in 1887, at the advanced age of eighty-nine years. Mr. Girdol has followed farming from twelve years of age, and rented before purchasing his farm of 150 acres, in Penn, in 1872. He occupied one farm of two hundred acres, at Birmingham, for some seven years. In 1868 he married Theresa Stoebel, who was born in Bavaria. Her parents, George and Katrine Stoebel, never came to this country. One child blesses the union of Mr. and Mrs. Girdol—Catharine Thress. The family are members of St. Joseph's R. C. Church at Verona. Mr. Girdol has always been a democrat.

NEWTON SPEER, postoffice Chartiers, is a son of James Speer, Jr., who was born in 1807, on the farm purchased by his father, John, Sr., in Beaver township prior to 1800. James Sr. died young, was always a Presbyterian, and resided on the home farm. He married, in 1838, Agnes, daughter of Manuel Twiford, of Beaver county, Pa., and the fruits of this union were eleven children: Wilmina (wife of Philip J. Magnus, of Indiana county, Pa.), Dillie A., Harriet C. (wife of Lewis Magnus, of Pittsburgh, Pa.), Lizzie E. (deceased), Isaac N., Frank B., Howard L., Elmer B., Grant A. and Cora V. (twins) and Garnet R. Dillie A. has followed teaching eleven years, and is principal of the school at Braddock, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. James Speer were members of the Presbyterian Church; Mr. Speer was a republican. Their son Newton is managing the farm.

DAVID MORRISON, farmer, postoffice McKeesport, son of John and Mary Ann (Suce) Morrison, was born in New York in 1823. His parents moved to Pittsburgh in 1824; his father was a carpenter and millwright, and worked at his trade until he died, at Girty's Run, in 1828. The mother of our subject lived until 1877, when she died near Freeport, Pa., when over ninety years of age. The children of John and Mary Ann Morrison were Isaac (deceased), Elizabeth (now Mrs. Charles Prager, of Wheeling, W. Va.), David, Matilda (now Mrs. Andrew Irvin) and Julia A. (deceased). David was reared in this county, and in 1849 married Sarah E., daughter of William Adams, of Allegheny, and their children were Jane, Nancy, David, Martha, Mary, Robert, Benjamin, Harriet, William, Rachel and Sarah E., all now deceased except the last three named. After the marriage of David and Sarah E. they located in Allegheny City, where Mr. Morrison was a coal-operator, having mines at Saw-Mill run and Allegheny Side. He remained there until 1851, then moved to Elizabeth township, and in 1868 purchased the farm he now owns in Versailles township. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were Martha J. (deceased), William J. (deceased), Rachel A. (now Mrs. Nicolas Rusa), Isaac N., Samuel, Sarah H. (now Mrs. Mabery Gates). The two last named are members of the M. E. Church. Mr. Morrison is a stanch republican. His brother Isaac was a resident of Elizabeth township, and while burning charcoal fell into the pit and was burned to death.

WILLIAM REDMAN (deceased) was born near London, England, in 1811, and came with his people to America when fifteen years of age. In early life he commenced boating and trading on the river, which he followed many years, and in 1852 he located in Braddock township, where he purchased thirty acres of land, all of which he afterward sold with the exception of a few acres where his widow and sons now reside. He died in 1876. The subject of this sketch married, in 1852, Ann Fauquet, a native of England, born in 1826, and daughter of Thomas Fauquet, and nine children were born to them: Henrietta (Mrs. Stewart), Charles B., Anna (Mrs. McClure), Margaret, Jane (Mrs. Miller), John, William, Frank and Christopher. The family are members of the Methodist Church; politically republican.

ANDREW JACKSON HANKEY, painter, postoffice Hulton, was born in this county May 25, 1845, a son of Jonas and Elizabeth (Ludwick) Hankey, natives of Franklin township. His father was a cabinet-maker, and moved to Verona in 1842. They were members of the Lutheran Church. Andrew, at the age of fifteen years, learned the painter's trade in Parnassus, where he worked for three years. He married, July 25, 1878, Mary Dewalt, of Allegheny City, daughter of John W. and Elizabeth (George) Dewalt, natives of Westminster county. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hankey, named as follows: Elmer Brace, Frank and William. In 1870 Mr. Hankey moved to Allegheny City, where he followed his trade for six years, then came to Verona. He enlisted, in 1863, in Co. K, 54th P. V., for one hundred days. He is a member of the I. O. F., K. of M., J. W. Paul Tent, No. 40, and the G. A. R.

JACOB STEMLER, gardener, postoffice Chartiers, was born in Germany in 1844, and came with his parents to this country in 1850, settling in Pittsburgh, Pa. His parents, Peter and Elizabeth Stemler, had the following-named children: Frederick, Peter, Caroline (wife of George Shaffer), Jacob, Daniel, Elizabeth and Charlie. The mother died in June, 1870, at the age of fifty-four years, the father in 1879, at the age of sixty-five; he was a laborer in the glassworks. Jacob had worked in the glassworks ever since he was nine years old. In 1870 he married Annie, daughter of Stephen and Mary Saddler, of this county, and they have two children, Mary and Frederick. Mrs. Stemler's parents were natives of Ireland, and came to this country in 1847; they had two children: Annie (Mrs. Stemler) and John. Mr. Stemler has by industry and economy secured a good home and seventy-three acres of valuable land in Stowe township, on which he raises a vast quantity of fruits and vegetables for the Pittsburgh market.

GEORGE W. WINELAND, blacksmith, postoffice Wall, was born in Derry township, Westmoreland county, March 5, 1833, a son of John and Mary Louise (Robb) Wineland, of Pennsylvania. His maternal great-grandfather, Gen. Arthur St. Clair, first governor of the Northwest Territory, and a revolutionary army veteran, was a Scotchman, and his remains lie in the Greensburg cemetery. John Wineland was a miller in Westmoreland county; he died in June, 1888, aged seventy-seven years; his wife died a year previously, at the same age. They had seven sons and three daughters, of whom George W. is the eldest. He was reared in Derry and Unity, and attended the common school until fifteen years of age, when he began his trade. He was employed on bridge-work by the railroad company at Latrobe, and by the Cambria Iron company. On the first call for troops, in 1861, he enlisted in Co. H, 10th P. V., and at expiration of three months joined Co. B, 183d P. V., remaining nine months. He took part in the battles of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Antietam and South Mountain, and was absent from the service. He was employed some years in Pittsburgh, five years by the P. R. R. at Altoona, two years at Bradford division and for the last five years at Wall's station. He is a member of the G. A. R. and A. O. U. W. He is a democrat. He and his wife attend the Methodist Church. He married, in 1856, Caroline Owens, who was born in Centre county, daughter of Henry and Sarah Owens, of Penn, and they have five children living: John Albert, Mary (Mrs. John Saylor), Wagner, Ellen (Mrs. S. B. Patterson), Winfield (a soldier in the regular army at Ft. Assinboine) and Florence Gertrude.

DALLAS, Viotta and Adell died in infancy.

JAMES LITTLE JOHNSTON, retired, Wilkinsburg, was born in Pittsburgh, Oct. 22, 1832. His father, George Reed Johnston, was a half-brother of Capt. James M. Johnston (whose sketch appears elsewhere), and was born Aug. 7, 1790. Sarah Ann, wife of the latter, born in March, 1807, was a daughter of David Little, who came from Cumberland county and settled in Wilkinsburg; he was a carpenter. G. R. Johnston was employed on the river in early life, and later engaged in farming in Wilkins township, this county, where he died in November, 1886. He had eight sons (four of whom are living): James, George, John, Robert, John (who was born after the death of the first John), David, William and Jonas. Robert and John served in the Union army; the former was killed at the battle of the Wilderness, and the latter died from disease contracted in the service. James L. was educated in the common schools and an academy at East Liberty. Until very recently, he remained on the farm which he inherited from his father, and now resides in Wilkinsburg. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, in politics a republican. In July, 1861, he married Rachel Glenn, daughter of Rev. James Graham and his third wife, Martha McCullough. Mrs. Graham was a daughter of John and Jane (Witherow) McCullough. Mr. Graham came from Cumberland county, and was forty years pastor of Beulah Church.

JOHN P. KAI,I farmer, postoffice Glenfield, was born Sept. 1, 1823, in Neufchatel, on the Eisch, Hecksstadt, Germany, son of Casper and Anna M. (Fisher) Karl. He was educated and learned the linen-weaver's trade in his native town. In 1849 he came to America and settled in this county, engaged with a farmer, and eventually purchased a farm of sixty acres. Mr. Karl has been twice married, his first wife being Sarah Johnson, who died young, leaving two daughters, Mary A. and Eliza J. His present wife was Mary J. Crawford, and she is the mother of four children: Ella M., Maggie B., John and James I. Mr. Karl has been school director nine years, and is a member of the U. P. Church; he is a republican.

JAMES M. LOVE, bookkeeper, postoffice Duncan, a son of Samuel Love, was born in 1832, in Westmoreland county, where he was educated. He was educated also in the Presbyterian church by Mr. McKain, and located at Port Perry, Allegheny county, where he worked at his trade of blacksmithing, which he also followed later in McKeesport. In 1859 he removed to Coultersville, where he pursued his business as before, but for the last eight years has been keeping books for the Osceola Coal company. Mr. Love is a republican, and has been identified with the township officially for many years, and at the expiration of his present term will have served twenty-one years as justice of the peace. His children are Manda J., wife of James Boon; Angelina, wife of W. K. Kramer; Melissa, wife of Henry Blank; James C.; Ada, wife of W. K. Scott, and Edward.

Joseph Kinkaid, National Tube-works company, McKeesport, was born in Loudon-derry, County Donegal, Ireland, Oct. 25, 1829, son of Robert and Margaret (Miller) Kinkaid. He was reared in his native county, and came to America in 1852, locating in Philadelphia, where he resided fifteen years. Afterward he traveled from place to place in the county until 1874, in which year he located in McKeesport, where he has since made his home, and with the exception of two years has been in the employ of the National Tube-works company. He is a republican.

Charles A. Black (deceased) was born near Six-Mile Ferry, Allegheny county, in 1845, a son of Hamilton and Rebecca (Cox) Black. In 1853 the family moved to Patton township, and twenty years later to Turtle Creek village. Hamilton Black died in 1876, aged seventy, and his widow in 1881, in her fifty-eighth year. Charles A. secured a good education, and taught school for some time. He was very successful in teaching the violin, and spent considerable time in literary labors, being a frequent contributor to Demorest's Magazine. He married Rose Ann, daughter of Degery and Nancy (Myers) Morcom, now residents in Westmoreland county. In 1877 Mr. Black opened a general store on Church street, Turtle Creek; in 1887 he was compelled by failing health to sell out his stock, and death closed a useful life on the 10th of January, 1888. He is survived by a widow and three children: Jennie Mabel, Charles Ashley and William Noble.

John J. McGirr, real-estate agent, McKeesport, was born at Youngstown, Pa., March 12, 1855, a son of Dr. John E. and Mahler (Heyden) McGirr. His paternal grandfather, Dr. Patrick McGirr, a native of Ireland, was a prominent physician of London, England, and later of Westmoreland county, Pa. Dr. John E. McGirr was an eminent physician of his day, and during the civil war had charge of the United States hospital at Nashville, Tenn. He afterward removed to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he died in 1870. The subject of this sketch was educated in the Catholic schools of Latrobe and Pittsburgh, and when ten years old began the study of Latin under his father. He took a course at Ashland Hall, Pittsburgh, where he read Latin with Prof. Arnold, now a B. & O. employed in McKeesport. He also took a course of instruction in English literature with Prof. J. P. O'Neil, and completed his education at the Western University of Pennsylvania. In January, 1873, Mr. McGirr came to McKeesport, where he was at first agent of the B. & O. R. R., and afterward agent of the P., McK. & Y. R. R., which position he resigned April 30, 1888. He then embarked in the real-estate business, in which he is now successfully engaged. He is a gentleman of literary tastes, has contributed poems to magazines and newspapers, and is the author of a work entitled "The Destruction of the World," and other poems. He is a member of the Catholic Church and C. K. of A. He is a democrat.

Evan Beedle, postoffice Jones Station, is a son of Edward and Margaret Beedle (natives of Wales, and now deceased), and was born in Wales in 1855. He immigrated to America in 1850, and located at McKeesport, this county, where he engaged in coal-mining. In 1858 he married Sarah Ann, daughter of William and Charlotte Hodgson, and settled twenty years ago near Jones Station, in Jefferson township, which is his present place of residence. Their children are William, Charlotte, Sarah Ann, Steven, John, Maggie, Eddie, Henry Charles and Evan. Of these, William is at Hillsdale, Sarah A. (now Mrs. R. Latta), resides at McKeesport, and the rest are at home with their parents. Mr. Beedle is operating mines at Hillsdale and Coal Bluff, which have a capacity, respectively, of ten and twelve thousand bushels daily. He devotes nearly his entire time to the mines, and is also a merchant.

Jacob Ament, engineer, Wall, is a brother of Hezekiah Ament, and was born in Franklin, Oct. 24, 1841, a great-grandson of George Ament, a revolutionary soldier. He was reared on the farm, and attended the common schools. When seventeen years of age he was employed about a coalboat-yard, and later went on a coalboat on the Ohio. On reaching his majority he was employed in the carpenter-shop of the Pennsylvania railroad, in Pittsburgh. After breaking two years and firing four years, he took charge of a locomotive in 1867. In 1871 he located at Wall, and built his present residence the next year. He is a member of the M. E. Church at Turtle Creek, and superintendent of the Sunday-school there and at Wall. He is a democrat, with prohibition tendencies. In 1856 he married Isabella Jemima Cline, a native of Westmoreland, daughter of Michael and Hester Cline, of Dutch descent. The following are the names of Mr. Ament's children: Francis Chalmer, Joseph Albert, Norman McIntosh and Florence Edna.

H. W. Flick, undertaker and liveryman, Tarentum, was born in Butler county, Pa., in 1859, a son of Edward Flick, of Butler county, Pa. In 1875 he removed with his parents to Tarentum, where his father died in 1885 and his mother now has her residence. Their family consisted of the following-named children: Catherine, John C., Robert G., William J., H. W., Mary, Grant, Annie
R. (deceased), Catherine (now Mrs. White, of Harrison township) and Mary (now Mrs. Vogeley, also of Harrison township). In 1875 our subject and his father became engaged in business in Tarentum, which they followed until the decease of the latter, when H. W. continued in the same line. In 1884 he married Miss Ella Bovard, of East Deer township, and they have two children: Goldie and Edward W. Mr. and Mrs. Flick are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., No. 587, of Tarentum.

FRANK SMOLENSKE, grocer, McKeesport, was born in Westchester county, N. Y., March 9, 1860, a son of Louis and Nancy A. (Ewing) Smolenske, the former a native of Russia, and the latter of Ireland. The parents, in 1875, settled in McKeesport, where the father, for the past six years, has carried on the business of dairyman. His family consists of six children: Mary, Frank, Martha, Delia, John and Maggie. Frank settled in McKeesport in 1878, and for eight years worked as a laborer. He then embarked in business as a dairyman, in which he still continues, and since 1886 has been in the grocery business. In 1881 he married Rose A., daughter of Frederick and Caroline (Nunencamp) Knipcamp, of Green Oak, Allegheny county, and has two children: Mattie B. and Louis F. He is a member of the C. F. Church and of the I. O. O., and is a democrat.

HENRY S. BECKER, expressman, Sewickley, was born December 9, 1841, in Pittsburgh, Pa., son of Adam Becker, a native of Holland, who came to America when a single man, and settled in Pittsburgh; he had been a blacksmith in Holland, and engaged here with John Anderson & Son, of Monongahela foundry, in 1838. He remained with the same firm until his death, which occurred in 1877, at the age of 80. He was a member of the Catholic Church, and was one of the original stockholders of one of the first German newspapers in Pittsburgh, known as the Republican, published for the benefit of St. Joseph's orphan asylum. He was married to Mary T. Gehlhausen, and they reared a family of four children. Henry S. Becker enlisted in the Army of the Potomac at the age of nineteen, and served three years. He participated in eight or ten battles, and was promoted to sergeant. Since the war he has lived in Sewickley, where he has been in the express business for eighteen years. He was married to Mary S. Sacher, and they have nine children. Mr. Becker is a democrat.

HENRY MATHEWS, farmer, postoffice Upper St. Clair, was born in Germany, April 20, 1807, and April 15, 1818, respectively. His father came to Union township in 1837, and began farming in Baldwin township in 1853, and in 1873 he bought the farm where our subject now lives. He died April 11, 1886; his widow now resides on the South Side, Pittsburgh. Henry married, Aug. 21, 1873, Martha Kitcer, born Aug. 10, 1851, in Upper St. Clair township, a daughter of Conrod and Mary (Muth) Kitcer, who were born in Germany in 1817 and 1823, respectively. The latter died March 26, 1888. The former was a wagonmaker on the Brownsville road, and his father and mother, Henry and Margaret Kitcer, died there in 1863. Mr. and Mrs. Mathews are members of the Lutheran Church at Castle Shannon. Seven children have been born to them: Anna Mary C., July 10, 1874; Harry John, Dec. 25, 1875; John Henry, Oct. 26, 1877; William Fredrick, Aug. 30, 1879; Lizzie Ellamanda, Oct. 22, 1881; George Edward, Dec. 12, 1886, and Henry Adam, Aug. 11, 1888. Mr. Mathews had his collar-bone broken in a runaway, but was only laid up a few days; he also barely escaped being shot, through the carelessness of a Pittsburgh gunsmith, the ball grazing his cheek.

DANIEL MCCURDY, merchant, postoffice White Ash, was born near Bush Mills, County Antrim, Ireland, in 1832. When fourteen years old he came with his parents, Daniel and Mary Ann (McAleese) McCurdy, to Pittsburgh, and since then has cared for himself. In 1853 the elder McCurdy came to Penn township and engaged in farming; he died in 1870, aged eighty years, his widow in 1877, aged about seventy. They had five children who grew up, of whom Daniel is the eldest. The others are Elizabeth (wife of William Palmer, in Hatfield, this county), Mary (Mrs. Wilson Smith, in Verona), James (at Sandy Creek) and Julia (Mrs. R. L. Kent, in Verona). On reaching his majority Daniel was employed about the Sandy Creek Coal-works, and was several years superintendent. He opened a general store in the village of East Pittsburgh in 1876; it was a successful business, and owns a handsome brick residence on the Frankstown road. He is connected with Hebron U. P. Church; politically he is a republican, and has served two years as supervisor. In 1858 he married Margaret, daughter of Anthony Edgar, of County Down, Ireland, and they have nine children living: John, in Verona, and Sarah, Elizabeth, Minerva, Daniel Morgan, James Oliver, Lee, Henry and Stella, at home; Julia, Harry and Etta died in infancy.

JOHN PHILLIPS, farmer, postoffice Upper St. Clair, was born in this county in 1819. About 1755 Joseph Phillips, in company with his brother, Rev. David Phillips, came to America from Wales. Of the early life of Joseph but little is known, he being thirty-nine years of age at the time he emigrated to America. He settled in the same county, where he purchased a small tract of land, erected a two-story log house, and there remained until his death. He married a Welsh lady, whose first name was Mary, and three children, David, John and Joseph, were born to them. Of these, Joseph, who was a native of Chester county, came to this county and took up 390 acres of land, where he remained until his death. He followed farming all his life, and was for many years a justice of the peace. His son, David, was born and reared on this tract of land, and married Sichey Hults, by whom he had thirteen children, nine of whom are living. Of these, John, the subject of this memoir, and who is the sixth son, was born and reared on the farm where he now resides, and which he owns, and was educated in the log-schoolhouse. He owns seventy-five acres of the first tract purchased by his grandfather. He married, in 1843, Margaret, daughter of Josiah Philips, and eight children were born to them, viz.: Josiah F., David M. (deceased), Mary Bell (deceased), James Alfred, Sarah Frances, Emma P., Lois A. and Elmer Ellsworth. The mother died in 1879, aged fifty-eight years. Mr. Philips and family are members of the Baptist Church; he is a republican.

George Ross Dougherty, miller, postoffice Drennen, was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., March 25, 1848, an son of Andrew and Sarah (Albert) Dougherty, natives of this county, the former a farmer in Westmoreland county. George Ross Dougherty received a common-school education, and worked with his father until about 1870. He was in the rolling-mills two years at Blair, Ohio, and for eighteen years has operated his father's gristmill in Plum township. He married, Feb. 17, 1876, Mary Wall Smith, a native of Westmoreland county, and two sons and four daughters have been born to them. Mrs. Dougherty is a member of the Lutheran Church; Mr. Dougherty is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is a democrat. Johan C. Ziesche, gardener, postoffice Ross, was born Jan. 23, 1813, in Chemnitz, Saxony, Germany, to Gottfried and Christiana R. (Glaeser) Ziesche. He learned the weaver's trade in Germany, and followed it in this country. In 1878 he crippled his hand, after which he removed to Ross township, where he occupies six acres of land, which he cultivates successfully, with the aid of his wife and children. Mr. and Mrs. Ziesche are members of St. Matthew's German Church.

Samuel Austen, farmer, postoffice Gibsonia, is a son of Thomas P. and Lydia B. (Allison) Austen, former a native of England, latter of Richland township, this county, where she was reared, and where she died. Thomas P. came to America with his parents, Charles and Sarah, in 1821. They settled in McCandless township, near Pearce's Mill. Charles Austen died at Bakerstown, Dec. 5, 1856. There Thomas P. lived until 1844, when he moved to Richland township, and here he remained until his death, in 1886; his wife died in 1878. Samuel was born on the Grubbs farm, near Bakerstown, in 1834. He received his education at Bakerstown Academy, and engaged in teaching for several years; then commenced farming, which he has since followed. He married, in 1877, Eliza, daughter of John and Jane Love, of West Deer township, and they have three children living: Herbert, Thomas P., and Clyde Sylvester. Mr. Austen has held the office of school director of the township for seven years. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church at Bakerstown, of which he is an elder.

William Ross Clendenning, farmer, postoffice Bakerstown, was born on his father's farm in 1839, son of Charles Clendenning (see his sketch). He received his education in West Deer township and at Bakerstown, beginning work for himself in 1858. He was then married to Margaret G., daughter of George and Eliza (Karnes) Hazelett, natives of Tarentum, Pa. Her father died Oct. 18, 1870, and her mother Oct. 4, 1869. Mrs. Clendenning was educated at Tarentum and Allegheny City; Mr. and Mrs. Clendenning have one child, Mary Ellen. The family are members of the Bakerstown Presbyterian Church. Mr. Clendenning is a large farmer in the township, and is a republican.

Samuel Sutter, farmer, postoffice Etma, was born in Etma, the son of Samuel and Sarah (Heckenthorn) Sutter, natives of Switzerland. Samuel Sutter, Jr., came to America when a boy with his parents, who settled in Etma in an early day. The father made nail-kegs for Spang & Co.; was an early gold-miner in California, being one of the "forty-niners." He was successful in his enterprise, but was killed on his way home by one of his companions. There were only two children: Mrs. Sarah Seitz and Samuel. The latter married Margaret Mangold, and they have six children: Emma, John, Mary A., Sophia, Sarah and George. Mr. Sutter worked sixteen years in Spang's mill and other nail-mills. In 1873 he purchased fifty acres of land, which he improved. Mr. and Mrs. Sutter are members of the G. L. Church. He is a republican, and is school director.

John McNeal, farmer, postoffice Montooth, is a son of John and Margaret (Campbell) McNeal, natives of Ireland, who immigrated to this country in 1828, and settled in Pittsburgh. In 1834 they moved to Hampton township, and located on a farm near Talley Cavey. Mrs. Margaret (Campbell) McNeal died in 1857, and John, Sr., next married Mrs Hamilton, of Butler county, who is still living; he died July 4, 1885. His children by his first wife were Catherine, now Mrs. Henry Thomas, of Iowa; John, our subject; Jane, now Mrs. David Ryan, of Temperanceville; Arthur, of Lawrenceville; Henry, who was killed by accident Dec. 7, 1887; Sarah, widow of James Kane, of Iowa; Margaret E., widow of Henry Leafer, of Lawrenceville. The children by the second marriage are Frederick, who resides with his mother, and Belle, wife of Dr. Joseph Irwin, of Miola. The subject of this memoir was born in Pittsburgh in 1829, and was brought to Hampton township, where he was reared. In 1851 he married Mary, daughter of Patrick Cullen, of this county, and they have had four children, two of whom are now living: Edward J. and William A., both farmers of Hampton township. Mr. McNeal was elected justice of the peace of Hampton township in 1882, again in 1887, and still holds the office; has also been assessor, school director and supervisor.
He and Mrs. McNeal are members of St.
Mary's Church, of Pine creek.

Joseph Hatch, farmer, postoffice Bennett, was born Jan. 1, 1818, in Massachusetts, son of Ebenezer Hatch, who was born in 1774, in Barnstable county, Mass. The Hatch ancestry, Davis and Cushman, came over in the Mayflower in 1620. Ebenezer Hatch learned the ship-building trade in South Caroolina. He married, in Maine, Statirah Blanchard, who became the mother of six children:
Sabra, Eunice, Elizabeth, Nathaniel B., Joseph and Davis P. Ebenezer came to this county in 1807, and followed his trade in Pittsburgh, where he built the first brick house. Joseph learned the wagon-maker's and painter's trades and surveying, which he followed at different times. When a young man he taught school for ten years. He marrid Nancy Jane McFerrin, who died Feb. 24, 1873, a Presbyterian. Of her children, two are living: Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and Mrs. Nancy J. Schar. Mr.
Hatch has been a farmer forty-five years.
He is a Presbyterian; has been a republican,
is now a prohibitionist.

WILLIAM ANDREWS, farmer, postoffice
Remington, was born in 1806, in County Derry, Ireland, son of Mark and Sarah (Anderson) Andrews, and was among the youngest children born to his parents. In 1825 he immigrated to America, settling in Lebanon county, Pa., and in that part of the state was for forty years engaged in contracting and railroading. In 1831 he came to Allegheny county and purchased 145 acres of land, aftward owning over three hundred acres.
He was married, in 1831, to Margaret Phillips, daughter of James Phillips, and of the five children born to them the following three are now living: Mark, Joseph and Samuel. Mr.
Andrews, through his own perseverence, has been very successful financially. He and family are members of the U. P. Church, and he is a republican.

JAMES ALONZO CYPHERS, retired, postoffice White Ash, was born in Wilkinsburg, March 8, 1818, the eldest child of Philip and Nancy (Quinter) Cyphers. Philip was born in 1791 in New Jersey, and died in East Liberty in 1888. He came to Wilkinsburg in 1815, in company with John Quinter, his wife's father, and was a lime-burner and farmer. His wife died Feb. 9, 1870, aged sixty-nine years. There were fourteen children, of whom the following grew to matur-ty: James A., John, William, Henry; Philip, Benjamin, Sarah and Elizabeth (Hatch) and Margaret (Thompson) Cyphers. James was reared on a farm, and for eleven years drove a six-horse team at Wilkinsburg. For about the same period he was night yardmaster at East Liberty, and took part in the construction of the
A. V. R. R. and Sandy Creek coal-road. In 1847 he purchased land where Sandy Creek village now lies, and built three houses.
Oct. 6, 1842, he wedded Maria, only child of John and Jane (Thompson) McGlade, of Ireland, former of whom kept hotel many years at Johnstown, where Mrs. Cyphers was born, in 1827. Mr. Cyphers has always been a democrat. He was reared a Presbyterian, but with his wife joined the R. C. Church at Verona. They have seven children: William John, Rebecca Jane, Annie, James, Frank, Lawrence and Albertus P.

ARCHIBALD McFEE STEWART, postoffice
White Ash, a son of William and Elizabeth (McFee) Stewart, was born in Kilmarnock, Scotland, Nov. 12, 1837. His father was a landscape-gardener, and came to this country in 1851. His first work in America was to lay out the grounds of J. K. Knox, at Knoxville. He afterward settled in Pittsburgh, where he acquired property, and died Sept.
20, 1874, aged sixty-nine years; his widow now resides there, at the age of eighty. Besides the son above named there are two others, John and James, in Pittsburgh.
Archibald McFEE Stewart received most of his education in Scotland. When fourteen years old he went to learn the shoemaker's trade until he was twenty. He kept a shop in Lawrenceville and Allegheny, Titusville and various points in the oil-country, being longest at Martinsburg, where he now owns property. In 1857 he moved to the farm owned by the family at White Ash, and is engaged in fruit-growing. In 1872 he mar-rried Mary Smathers, born in Clarion county, dughter of John and Elizabeth (Walters) Smathers, of German descent, and they have three children: Anna, Ella and William G.
Mr. Stewart accepts the Swedenborgian faith, and is a member of the A. O. U. W.; for many years he has voted with the prohibitionists.

HERCULES McINTYRE, blacksmith, postoffice Talty Cavey, was born in County Down, Ireland, in 1841, and in 1849 came to America in company with six brothers. Two brothers went to California, where they died.
One was killed in the civil war, and James,
David and William are farmers in this county.
Hercules was married, in 1867, to Christina, daughter of George Sterling, of West Deer township, and they have six children; Mary, John, Robert, Belle, George and William, all at home. In 1867 Mr. McIntyre purchased his present home, where he has since been engaged in blacksmithing. He and his family are members of the U. P. Church at Talley Cavey.

Mrs. CAROLINE GRAFF, merchant, postoffice West Elizabeth, daughter of Michael and Margaret Wilds, was born in Baldwin township, in 1840. Her parents were both natives of Germany, who came to this country married, after which they immigrated to Baldwin township, where they reared a family of seven children, three of whom are still living: Jacob, William and Caroline. The last named married, in 1859, John Graff, of Baldwin township, where they resided for a period of nine years. They then moved to West Elizabeth, and purchased property now owned by our subject, and where she is at present engaged as a dealer in general merchandise. Mr. Graff died July 6, 1887, and was the father of the following-named children: Louise, now Mrs. Samuel Livingston, of Duquesne; Margaret, now deceased; Lena, now Mrs. George Moyer, of Jefferson township; John W., Charles B., Jane L., Sadie M. and Ella Belle. Charles B. has a store at Duquesne.

Charles Durning, machinist, Verona, was born in Pittsburgh, Feb. 18, 1848, a son of Robert and Mary (Alcock) Durning, of Lancashire, England. The father was called a whitesmith, that is, a fine-tool maker, and died in 1874, aged sixty-six years. His widow, now seventy-seven, resides in Pittsburgh. Charles attended the city schools until fourteen years old, and when sixteen began work in machine-shops. In 1872 he took employment in the A. V. R. R. shops, and for the past three years has had charge of the entire machine department. He became a resident of Verona when the shops were moved here in 1876, and is the owner of a house and several lots in the First ward. In 1872 he married Mary E. Gray, who was born at Blairsville, of German descent. Mrs. Durning is the mother of nine children, five of whom are living: Charles Harry, Alice, Bessie, Martha May and Thomas. Those deceased were named Alma Ida, Joseph, Maud and Bertie, who was thirteen years old. The family is connected with the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Durning is a F. & A. M. and a member of the I. O. O. F.; he is a republican, and a member of the borough council.

Henry Elkin, hotel-keeper, Hulton, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, May 17, 1848, a son of William and Jane (Rippey) Elkin, former of whom came to America in 1835, and engaged in farming in Indiana county, Pa.; he is a member of the Episcopal Church, and helped to build St. James' church in Pittsburgh. Henry Elkin received his education in Ireland. In 1861 he began work in the Fort Pitt foundry, where he made guns for a year and a half; was then five years a puddler in the rolling-mills; then engaged in the restaurant business on Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, in which he continued nineteen years. In 1873 he organized the American Tin-plate company, and started a factory at Wellsville, O., in 1873. Financially ruined the concern, and Mr. Elkin lost all he had invested. In July, 1886, he came to Verona, where he opened the Holton hotel, in which he has met with success. He was married, in 1869, to Agnes Ann Potter, a native of Clearfield county, Pa., born Aug. 31, 1840, and a daughter of Joseph Ramsey and Margaret (Postlewaite) Potter. Mr. and Mrs. Elkin have four children: Margaret Ellen, Antha Cardia, Anna Gusta, Ida Lily, all at home. Mr. Elkin is a member of the I. O. O. F., American Protestant Association, Orange Society and Knights of Malta. He is a republican.

Stephen Butler Clement, clerk, post-office Verona, was born Feb. 23, 1847, in Cincinnati, Ohio, and is the son of William Butler and Eliza Jane (Meeds) Clement, natives of Cincinnati and Baltimore. Our subject received his education in the Cincinnati public schools, and in 1869 embarked as clerk in the wholesale house of T. F. Thirkield & Co. At the outbreak of the war this firm closed up, and in 1866 Mr. Clement began farming in Colerain township, Hamilton county, Ohio. In 1872 he came to Plum township, where he engaged in farming until 1881. He then engaged in his present business with the Verona Tool-works. He was united in marriage, Oct. 5, 1873, with Mary Ellen, daughter of George and Sarah (Leeher) Gosling. Two children bless their union: Bertha Bishop, aged thirteen, and Ada, aged six. The family are members of the P. E. Church. Mr. Clement is a member of the I. O. O. H. He was elected auditor of Verona by the republican party.

Isaac Patterson, engineer-hostler, Wall, was born in the parish of Tillabish, County Down, Ireland, a son of Isaac and Margaret Patterson. He was reared on a farm, and attended the public schools. When thirty years old he came to Pittsburgh, and was employed in the construction of the P. R. R. For the last twenty-four years he has had charge of locomotives when not in use. He lived sixteen years above Stewart's Station, and in 1869 bought a house at Wall. He is also the owner of two other houses, each of which his industry has secured. Mr. Patterson is a member of the M. E. Church at Turtle Creek; politically he is a democrat. He married, in Ireland, in 1851, Susannah English, a native of the same parish as himself, and they have five children: Thomas, a resident of Wall; John, at Braddock; Isaac, in Pittsburgh; Ellen, wife of D. S. Lewis, Wall, and Catherine, at home.

Thomas J. Watson, retired, post-office Coraopolis, was born in Middletown, County Durham, England, Oct. 5, 1824, a son of Mark and Eleanor (Rennison) Watson, both natives of England, and members of the M. E. Church. They immigrated to South Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1830, where Mark engaged in manufacturing brick for seven years. He then removed to Fayette county, and purchased a large body of land. Two years later he sold out, returned to Allegheny county, and, coming to what is now Coraopolis, purchased 141 acres now included in the borough. He was the first resident Methodist, and did everything in his power to encourage the building up of a congregation here; he gave the land on which the present church is built, and was one of the principal contributors toward its erection. He died Feb. 18, 1896, in the seventy-second year of his age. He and his wife had a family of eight children, six of whom grew to be men and women: Elizabeth, married to William Hannah; Mark, married to Elizabeth Allen; Agnes, married to James Brown; Sarah, married to Rev. Josiah Dillon; Thomas F., and John, who married Amanda McMillon. Thomas F. worked on his father's farm, and after the latter's death he and his brother purchased a sawmill, which they operated at Coraopolis until April, 1854. In June 30, 1850, Mr. Watson married Mary A. Moore, who was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., a daughter of Andrew and Sarah (Hook) Moore, and they have had eight children, seven yet living: Mark, an engineer, married to Mollie Hohie; Ella, wife of Charles Scharff; Thomas F., Jr., clerk for the F. & W. R. R., married to Bessie Winn; Charles E., John W., Cora A. and James, all of whom reside at Coraopolis. Mr. Watsou is a trustee of the M. E. Church, of which he and his family are members.

Hugh G. Miller, farmer, postoffice Glenshaw, was born July 19, 1828, on the old Miller homestead, in Shaler township. His grandfather, James Miller, came here from Ireland with his second wife and three children, Rodney, Thomas and Margaret. He was a member of the old Covenanter Church, to which his descendants still adhere. Thomas Miller married Margaret Watt, and their union was blessed with the following-named children: Jane, James, John, Mary, Sarah, Hugh G., Robert and Martha. Hugh G. has been a miner, but is now a farmer, and has eighty acres of the old homestead. He married Martha J., daughter of Joseph and Margaret (Black) Cunningham, who were old settlers in Butler county, and they have four children: Mrs. Sarah E. Crosskey, Matilda C., Clara B. and H. P. Wiley. Mr. Miller has been an active member of the R. P. Church, of which he has been an elder for twenty years.

William Parker McDaniel, toolmaker, postoffice Verona, was born on an island in the mouth of Plum creek, this county, April 5, 1832, a grandson of James McDaniel, who came from Ireland, and kept store many years in Pittsburgh, and also in what is now Verona. William Parker was jailer of Pittsburgh the same time that James McDaniel dwelt there, and Robert, son of the latter, married Mary, daughter of the former, both being born in the city. The McDaines were Methodists and the Parkers Presbyterians. Robert McDaniel now resides in Pittsburgh, his wife having died June 14, 1888. He served three years in Hampton's battery during the civil war, and his son went out at the age of fifteen, and died a year later in the service. William McDaniel was the youthful stay of his mother during his father's military service, and had little opportunity for schooling. At the age of nineteen he went to the city, and his first employment was following six years. For the last twelve years he has been employed in the Verona Tool-works. He is a member of the R. A.; is a republican, and adheres to the faith of the Methodist Church. In 1875 he married Loraine, a native of Penn township, and daughter of Alexander and Eliza Smith. Their children are Harry Parker, Warren, Clifford, Ella Maud, Edith P. and an infant son unnamed.

George Mason Ferree, farmer, postoffice Coraopolis, was born on the homestead of his father and grandfather near Coraopolis, April 21, 1831, a son of William P. and Mary (Stoddard) Ferree, and was educated at Coraopolis. He married, Dec. 31, 1862, Rachel O. Curry, who was born Dec. 30, 1841, on her father's farm in Moon township, a daughter of John and Anna (Onstott) Curry. Mr. Ferree worked on his father's farm and conducted a sawmill with R. B. Kiddle until his father was killed. He then located on his present farm at Coraopolis, it being part of the place his grandfather, Jacob, purchased prior to 1800. Mr. and Mrs. Ferree have a family of two sons and two daughters: Emery Howard, clerk in the Chartiers Steel-works; Westanna J., Ralph Nevine and Beulah V., all with their parents. Mr. Ferree is a republican. He and his wife are members of Forest Grove Presbyterian Church.

James H. Rath, farmer, postoffice Elizabeth, a son of Robert and Mary (McFadden) Rath, was born in Millin township, in 1841. His parents settled in Millin upward of fifty years ago, and their family consisted of nine children—six girls, five of whom are living, and three boys. James H. is by profession a teacher, and received his early education in the schools of the county, and later attended several educational institutions. In 1865 he married Elizabeth, daughter of William and Diana Lowrie. He resided for some time in Jefferson township, and recently moved to the farm purchased by him in Forward township. His children are Carrie L., William L., Sadie M., Maud J., Minnie, Charley C., Mabel F. and George Lyle. Susan P. Lowrie is also a member of his household, having made her home with him since 1865. She has taught school for fifteen years, with invariable success. Mrs. Rath, after a lingering illness, died Nov. 12, 1887, a member of the U. P. Church, of which Mr. Rath is also a member.

John Holmes, farmer, postoffice Talley Cavey, is a son of Lazarus and Margaret (McCombs) Holmes. His parents were natives of Ireland, and came to this country about 1812. They located in Washington county, Pa., remained there until 1818, when they moved to Ohio, and about 1833 came to this county and settled on the farm now occupied by our subject. They died in 1840 and 1863, respectively. They reared fourteen children, six of whom are still living: Maria, wife of J. Moore; Mary, wife of Samuel Church; Joannah, wife of Samuel Davidson; and Margaret, maiden ladies, in Hampton township; Elizabeth, widow of Robert Mc-
HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

Henry Allegheny Singer, few 1864, member carriage—his 766 married Elizabeth, daughter of James and Rachel (Bradshaw) Moore, natives of Ireland, and settlers in this county. Eleven children were born to this union: James M., Lazarus M., William J., Joseph C., Mary Ann, Albert J., Agnes E., George Syl., Rachel S., and David R., I., II., III., IIII., and Mr. Holmes has been assessor of the township for several terms, and he and his wife are members of the U. P. Church of Talley Cavey, in which he is an elder.

WOLKOSKY BROTHERS (Jacob and Mayer), clothiers, McKeesport, are natives of Russia, where they were reared and educated. Jacob came to America in 1880, located in Pittsburgh, and in 1881 embarked in the jewelry business in this city, in which he was engaged five years. In 1887 he carried on the Clothing business in Connellsville, Pa., six months, and Oct. 1st, same year, established his present business in McKeesport, in company with his brother, Mayer, who came to this county in 1884. Though but a recent acquisition to the business community of McKeesport, the Wolkosky Brothers, by strict attention to business, have built up a large trade that is constantly increasing.

FINDLEY GILKESON, farmer, postoffice
Mount Lebanon, was born in Allegheny county, in 1849, the youngest of four children born to James and Fannie (McCulley) Gilkeson. This family came originally from east of the Allegheny mountains. James was a farmer, and purchased the farm now owned by Findley. He died in 1872, aged seventy-five years; his wife in 1874, aged forty-four years. Our subject was born and reared on the place he now owns, and has always been a farmer. He received a commonschool education at the public schools, and married, in 1874, Caroline Anderson, daughter of Jacob and Sarah Anderson, of this county.
Three children have been born to this union:
Harvey, Wallace and Sarah Frances Gilkeson is a democrat.

EDWIN F. PEARSON, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Delivery company, Pittsburgh, is a son of Joseph and Mary Pearson, and was born in Pittsburgh in 1840. His father was born in England in 1789, came to this country in 1810, and settled in Pittsburgh, where he engaged in the hardware trade until his retirement in 1850. His wife was Mary, daughter of James Miller, of this county, and their children were Joseph, George, William (deceased). Alfred, Edwin F., Mary (wife of George W. Bowman) and James.
The father was a member of the Masonic fraternity and the I. O. O. F., and died in 1863, at the age of seventy-six years. Edwin F., married, in 1864, Sophia, daughter of Edward and Wilhemina Dubarry, and by this marriage there were five children: Joseph, Adda, Edwin, Rolland and Julia M.
When about sixteen years of age Mr.
Pearson went west, where he remained three years engaged in various occupations, among others teaching school one year. On his return to this county he became manager of the Duquesne freight department for the P. R. R., and is at present with the Pennsylvania Railroad Delivery company of John W. Haney. He is a member of the A. O.
U. W. and the Golden Chain. Mr. Pearson is a successful business-man, and has recently built a very extensive residence at Crafton.

EDWARD HOREN, roller in Singer, Nimick & Co.'s rolling-mill, postoffice Pittsburgh, a son of Edward and Ann Horen, was born in Ohio, in 1852, and came to this county in 1873. His father, a native of Ire-lond, came to this country in 1848, and located in Vermont. About 1852 he came to Pennsylvania, where he has resided ever since, with the exception of a few years. He married Ann Dempsey and they had children as follows: Simon (deceased), James (deceased), Eliza (wife of Richard Maloney), Michael,
Catherine (wife of John Craig), Thomas, Ann (wife of John Broadrick), Edward, Patrick (deceased) and John. The mother of this family died in 1865, at the age of fifty-seven years; the father is living in the county, at the age of seventy-six years. Edward, the subject of this sketch, married, in 1876, Mary, daughter of Thomas and Rose Kelley, and their children are Ida M., Thomas and Rosella.
Mr. Horen is a member of the Amalgamated association and Sovereigns of Industry.
He has, by industry and economy, secured a good home, and is owner of other valuable property.

CHRIST WIEGERING, grocer. McKeesport, was born in Prussia, Sept. 12, 1839, a son of Henry and Christiana (Steinhoff) Wiegering. He was reared in his native land, where he learned the wagon-maker's trade, came to America in 1866, settled in McKeesport, and opened a carriage- and wagon shop, which he successfully conducted for seven years. He then embarked in the grocery business, in which he is still engaged.
May 7, 1865, he married Christiana, daughter of Peter and Catharine (Werkley) Miller, of McKeesport. Her parents settled in this county about 1840, and her grandmother, Christiana Werkley, died in McKeesport, in 1887, at the advanced age of ninety-two years. Mr. and Mrs. Wiegering had four children: Sophia, Willie, Allen and Alfred (deceased). Mr. Wiegering has been a member of the I. O. O. F. for twenty-one years.
He is a member of the G. L. Church, and is a democrat.

CAPT. ARTHUR STUART, clerk, Wilkinsburg, was born in Pittsburgh, Nov. 21, 1832, a son of James and Elizabeth (Shaw) Stuart, who were born in Ireland and Liverpool, England, respectively, both being of Scotch decent. James Stuart was a painter, in business many years in Pittsburgh, where he died in 1863; his widow died in 1864. They had seven children, only two of whom grew to maturity. James, the eldest, died in Novem-
Alexander W. Rook was born in Pittsburg in 1836. His parents had come to Western Pennsylvania from New York state some years before his birth. He was given the best education then obtainable in Pittsburg, and early showed a bent toward mechanical pursuits. At an early age, having obtained his parents' permission to learn the printing trade, he entered the job-printing office of Johnston & Stockson as roller-boy and typesetter. At the same time he did not abandon his studies, but continued to attend night-school, and in this industrious fashion he obtained an unusually thorough education. It was clear from the very first that he had a decided preference for the printing trade, and very soon he apprenticed himself for six years, first to the Pittsburg Post, and later to the Chronicle. Even in these early days his work attracted attention, and at the end of his six years' apprenticeship he was reckoned among the foremost typographical experts in the city. He was not satisfied, however, with local supremacy in his craft, and he successively added to his store of knowledge and experience in the composing-rooms of the Philadelphia Ledger and the New York Herald. About 1850 he returned to Pittsburg, where he became the first local representative of the Typographical Union, then just formed. Two years later he went to Greensburg and bought an interest in the Pennsylvania Argus. This venture did not satisfy him altogether, and in 1854 he returned to Pittsburg and took the place of foreman of the composing-room of the Evening Chronicle. This was the first favorable opportunity he had to show his executive ability, and his success was remarkable. It was acknowledged during the years from 1854 to 1864 that the typographical department of the Chronicle in his hands was the best managed in that part of the country.

In 1858 Mr. Rook was married to Miss Harriett L. Beck, an alliance which had a very marked influence for good upon his career. During the half-dozen years succeeding his marriage Mr. Rook's rise was remarkably fast. In 1855 he and Daniel O'Neill became partners in the firm of J. H. Foster & Co., then publishers of the Dispatch. That paper was really re-born on the day Messrs. Rook and O'Neill put their brains and energy into its publication. When Col. J. Heron Foster died (April 21, 1868), Messrs. Rook and O'Neill became sole proprietors of the Dispatch. The two partners divided the administration between them, Mr. Rook taking entire charge of the mechanical part, while the business and editorial work fell into Mr. O'Neill's hands. It was a singularly powerful combination of diverse talents, and the result was brilliant. The Dispatch in a short time was advanced to the first rank of newspapers in Pennsylvania. It was easily the first among the papers of Pittsburg soon after Messrs. Rook and O'Neill took charge of it. The Dispatch owes its reputation of being one of the handsomest papers in the country, typographically considered, to the genius of Mr. Rook. In this way Mr. Rook became one of the leading citizens of Pittsburg. He was a very hard worker, and after the death of his partner, Daniel O'Neill, in 1877, the pressure of his duties began to tell upon him. He continued in active cooperation with Eugene M. O'Neill in the publication of the Dispatch, though his health began to fail, until early in the summer of 1880. The end came swiftly after this, and Aug. 14, 1880, he died from a complication of organic diseases. Mr. Rook was not only respected for his qualities as a business-man, but also for the excellent traits of character revealed in his family and social connections. He was always interested in charitable enterprises, and gave his money and labor to such benevolent schemes as sending the poor children of the city on excursions into the country. In the order of Freemasons and in several other secret societies he held a high place. Mr. Rook's wife and family survive him. The family consists of Charles A. Rook, secretary of The Dispatch Publishing company; Helen E., now Mrs. C. A. Carroll, and Edwin M. and Harry C. Rook.
was county commissioner three years, and a Presbyterian elder nearly fifty years. He married Nancy, daughter of Robert Thompson, a native of Glasgow, Scotland. The subject of this memoir is one of five children, and was born in this native country, where he also learned the bricklaying trade. In 1845 he came to Etna, and assisted in building the residence and pipemill for Charles F. Spang, Sr.; he also built the Park, McCurdy & Co. copper-mill, Pittsburgh, in 1859. During the war he ran a steam ferry in Sharpsburg, and since then has been in the sawmill business, and has also been interested in gold-mines in Colorado and South Carolina. Mr. Graham's first wife was Permelia Buffington, who died leaving three children: Edwin, Mrs. Zelas McCord and Dr. Norman R. His present wife, nee Jane M. Ayres, has borne him two children—Mabel and Charles. Mr. and Mrs. Graham are members of the M. P. Church. He has held all the principal offices in Etna; was twice elected burgess, and served as justice of the peace fifteen years in Sharpsburg and Etna boroughs. In early life he was one of the best sharpshooters in the state, and has many medals and trophies of his victories. He also took great pleasure in collecting rare coins, native and foreign, and has in his possession one of the finest collections in the county. This collection, which now numbers some three thousand pieces outside of duplicates, was commenced in the year 1840 by a number of odd coins coming into his possession. But few were added to this stock until the year 1845, when a silver half-dollar of the date 1818 was picked up by Mr. Graham in the débris of the Pittsburgh fire, and from that time the collection steadily grew. A hint of coins for sale, an announcement of a coin exhibition, or a newspaper item concerning the finding of any, was, after that year, sufficient to start Mr. Graham on an investigation, from which he rarely returned without a coin or two to pay him for his trouble. The arrangement of the coins is systematic, and in strict numismatical order.

Benjamin Coursin, retired, postoffice McKeesport, was born in Jefferson township, Allegheny county, Jan. 10, 1807, a son of Peter and Hannah (Winn) Coursin. His father was born in New Jersey in 1753, and died in Elizabeth, this county, at the age of one hundred years and eight months. He came to Allegheny county soon after the Revolution; was a carpenter by trade, though he followed farming to some extent. He settled permanently in Elizabeth township in 1810, and resided there until his death. His children were Polly (Mrs. B. Grimes), Jane (Mrs. Thomas Brant), Nancy (Mrs. Geo. Cunningham), Catherine (Mrs. Joseph Hamilton), Isaac and Benjamin. The last named was reared in Elizabeth, where he resided from 1810 until 1849. He then located at Reynoldton, where he has since resided. He is a boat-builder by trade, and was engaged in that business in Elizabeth, West Elizabeth and Reynoldton (opposite McKeesport) for many years. He retired in 1866. He was twice married; first to Christina, daughter of Frederick and Elizabeth Rhodes, of Elizabeth township, by whom he had seven children; second, to Fred- rick, John, Mary (Mrs. Dorsey Downey), David and James P. His second wife was Mrs. Lydia (Hull) Norton. Mr. Coursin is a director of the First National Bank of McKeesport, director of Pittsburgh, Brownsville & Geneva Packet company, and president of the Elizabeth Steam Packet Company. He is a republican.

Very Rev. John Hickey was born in the city of Kilkenny, Ireland, Nov. 11, 1834, and came with his parents to the United States in September, 1846. He entered St. Michael's Seminary in the fall of 1848. His health failing, he was obliged to return to the residence of his maternal uncle, Rev. Joseph Cody, at Sugar Creek, Armstrong county, Pa., where he remained till the winter of 1851. Under the advice of Rt. Rev. Michael O'Connor, then bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, he repaired, at a later date, to St. Vincent's College, Westmoreland county, Pa., to study the rudiments of the Latin and German languages. On the 22d of January, 1852, he crossed the Allegheny mountains, and entered Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., where he graduated with the degree of A. M. in June, 1855. After a theological course of three years he was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop O'Connor, in St. Paul's cathedral, Pittsburgh, Aug. 15, 1858. In September of the same year he was recalled to his alma mater as professor of belles lettres, a position which he held with much distinction for the term of one year. On the resignation of Dr. O'Connor, in 1860, Father Hickey was appointed assistant professor in St. Michael's Diocesan Seminary, near Glenwood, Pa. In 1862 he took temporary charge of a church at Freeport, Armstrong county, and on Jan. 6, 1863, became rector of the cathedral, Pittsburgh. While in this charge he finished the building of the cathedral, erected the present magnificent episcopal residence, established the parishes of St. Malachy, St. Agnes, within the limits of the city proper, and St. James, Wilkinsburg, at a distance of five miles from Pittsburgh. In addition to these works he founded an orphan asylum with ample accommodations for six hundred children, and before leaving Maryland built a neat gothic stone church in the village of Mechanicstown, for the colored people at that end of the state.

Father Hickey remained at the cathedral till 1877, filling the offices of rector, vicar general, and administrator of the diocese during the absence of the bishop. In August, 1879, he visited Rome and other parts of Europe. On his return, in March, 1882, he was appointed rector of St. Thomas' congregation, Braddock. In 1883 he built a schoolhouse at this place, roomy enough.
for one thousand children. When called to other and far more important missions, financially, he was induced by the universal petition of the citizens, Catholic and Protestant, to remain at Braddock, where he still resides. During the labor troubles at the Edgar Thomson Steel-works, he took such a deep interest in the welfare of the working classes as to endear himself to all alike. The Sisters of Mercy are in charge of his schools.

The Hays Family. Among the prominent pioneer Scotch-Irish families of Allegheny county and Pennsylvania there is none more worthy of mention than the Hays family. From the "Pennsylvania Genealogies," published by Dr. W. H. Egle, M. A., Harrisburg, Pa., the following is taken: "This name has had a varied orthography—in olden times De la Haye and De la Haya, while in later, Hay, Hays and Hayes. The American branch of the family write it Hays, as a general thing. In Burke's Peerage is a very interesting account of the origin of the Hays arms, which was, 'argent, three escutcheon gules,' to which was afterward added 'crossed arms, each hand grasping a short sword and supporting the escutcheon gules, surmounted by a crown.'"

William Hays, a native of Scotland, left that country during the religious persecution, and settled in County Tyrone, Ireland. He was at the siege of Derry, and suffered with the rest of the besieged until relief came, being absent from the family twenty-two months. The first of the Hays family to settle in Allegheny county was Abraham, who married Miss Fannie Pittee, a French lady. They removed from Maryland to Allegheny county, Pa., in 1767, and located one mile above Homestead, opposite Braddock's Field, where they remained nine months. On account of Indian troubles they returned to Maryland, but in 1769 once more came to this county. Here Abraham Hays took up land which is still in the possession of his descendants. He was a Presbyterian, an upright and honorable citizen. He and his wife died on the old homestead farm where they first located, one mile above the place now known as Homestead. Abraham Hays and James Whittaker married sisters. The neighbors were Robert Byerly (who came from Maryland), Andrew McClure, Samuel Hamilton, Samuel Ferguson, James McKinney, Edward West, Joseph West, John Neal, Judge McClure (a bachelor, and brother of Andrew McClure), John Risher, Davy Calhoun, John Irvine, Robert Patterson, William Furie, William Brown and David McKee, all being about the same age. Abraham and Fannie (Pittee) Hays had nine children: Francis, Isaac, Abraham, Patty, Jacob (see his sketch below), John, Thomas, Sarah and Elizabeth. Philip Hays, born in 1770, married Beckey Drennen, and moved in 1820 to Butler county, Pa. (they had six sons and six daughters); Isaac married a Miss Wylie, of Pittsburgh, and moved down the river to Owl Creek; Abraham married, and had two sons and two daughters; Patty married Steve Wylie, who made the first brick ever manufactured in Pittsburgh; John was a bachelor; Thomas married Elizabeth Hamilton, and had four sons and six daughters; Sarah married James Harlen, and had two sons and four daughters; Elizabeth died unmarried.

Jacob, fourth son of the pioneer Abraham Hays, was born in 1778, and married, in 1799, Jane Harden, who was born in 1779; they had the following-named children: James H., born in 1800; E. W., in 1802; Thomas H. (see his sketch); Emily J., in 1806; Frances, in 1808; Nancy, in 1810; Mary, in 1812; Abraham (see his sketch); John K., in 1815; Sarah, in 1817; Alexander, in 1819; Ivy, in 1821, and Caroline, in 1824. Of these, James H. married Mary Crudy, and died at Beck's Run in 1876 (they had ten children: Ann E., Mary J., Josephine, Henry B., Emeline, Sarah, Agnes, James H., John S. and Walter F.); E. W. married, in 1822, Ivy McKenzie, a native of Jamaica (they had ten children: Mary, born in 1822; Emily, in 1824; Sarah, in 1826; Charles, in 1828; Elizabeth, in 1830; Josephine, in 1834; Alexander and Arthur (twins), in 1837; Thomas, in 1839, and Virginia, in 1841); Emily J. married Charles Gibbs, and had thirteen children; Frances married James Rippert, and had four children; Nancy married Henry Alexander, and had four children; Mary married Jacob Painter, an iron-manufacturer, and had five sons; John K. married a Miss Large, and had three children; Sarah married David E. Park. Thomas Hardin, father of Mrs. Jaue (Hardin) Hays, was an officer in the revolutionary war, and had a horse shot from under him at the battle of Brandywine. Jacob Hays, son-in-law of Thomas Hardin, was a soldier in the late war. Jacob Hays was a farmer, and at one time owned and ran a mill and distillery; he was a Presbyterian and a Freemason; was originally a deist, but his last two votes were republican. He died Jan. 2, 1866, his widow on March 28, same year. Jacob Hays and son E. W. started the first ferry on the Mouongaheela river, in 1811, at Six-Mile Ferry. E. W. Hays handled the first stick of timber that ever went into a steamboat in Pittsburgh, and which was used for a keel; he had eighteen oxen and seven horses to draw it to Six-Mile Ferry, whence it was rafted down the river.

Thomas Hardin Hays (deceased) was born in 1804, on the old Hays farm, in Mifflin township, this county. Coming to Pittsburgh in his youth, he here learned the trade of millwright, and afterward embarked in the manufacture of white lead and linseed oil, in partnership with his brother-in-law, Jacob Furie, his brother in-law, Mr. Hays' decease, when the property was sold to the P. R. R. Co. Mr. Hays married Miss Sarah, daughter of Hon. Lazarus and Mary (Thompson) Stewart, former of whom was twice member of the legislature, and twice elected sheriff of Allegheny county. Mr. and Mrs. Hays had a family of ten children, of whom two sons and three daughters lived to maturity, viz.: Amanda (wife of Walter F. Hunter, of Oakland), Mary (widow of D. McKinley), George S. and Charles T. (who enlisted in the war of the rebellion, and both died from exposure while in the service), and Alice (wife of David K. Calhoun, residing in Mifflin township).

Mr. Hays died in 1853. He was a man of more than ordinary ability and intelligence, and enjoyed the confidence and respect of all. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, toward the building of which he contributed the sum of five hundred dollars.

Capt. ABRAHAM HAYS (deceased), late of Mifflin township, this county, was born in 1809, on the old Hays homestead, located on what is now known as Whittaker's run, one and one-half miles above Homestead, and about one and one-half miles from the Monongahela river. He was reared on the farm, and was a private pupil of H. M. Turner, a well-known teacher, for several years, until eighteen years of age, when he commenced the trade of millwright with his brother-in-law, Charles Gibbs. This business he followed until his marriage with Miss Sarah Brenneman, of Mifflin township, soon after which event he moved into Pittsburgh, where he formed a partnership with his brother, Thomas, in the manufacture of flaxseed oil. (Their mill stood near the present site of the Pennsylvania union depot.) Some years later, his health failing, Capt. Hays moved to Butler county, Pa., where he followed farming about three years, and then returned to the old homestead. Some years later he moved down the Monongahela river, above Homestead, where he followed his trade several years; then engaged in steamboating in partnership with his brother, James H., Harvey Robinson and James Lindsey, owning steamboats and towing coal. Afterward he purchased a farm near his residence, just above Homestead, where he died Sept. 10, 1887. He and his wife were members of the Presbyterian Church at Lebanon. They had two children: Almira Painter, who died unmarried at the age of twenty-four, and Capt. W. Seward B. Mrs. Hays was a daughter of Jacob and Susan Brenneman, who came from Westmoreland county, Pa., and settled in Mifflin township on a farm which is now in the borough of Duquesne. They were Presbyterians, of German descent, and had a family of six sons and six daughters.

Capt. W. SEWARD B. HAYS; steamboat pilot, boat-owner, and coal-merchant in Pittsburgh, was born in that city Dec. 14, 1858, the only son of Abraham Hays, whose sketch appears among the work of the same six months. old his parents moved to Butler county, and three years later to Mifflin township, this county, where the subject of these lines obtained his education in private and public schools. On his father's farm he worked until eighteen years of age, at which time he commenced running on the river, assisting his father.

Capt. Hays resides on the old homestead farm in Mifflin township. He was united in marriage June 7, 1876, with Flora B. Packer, a resident of Braddock, and daughter of Capt. Wilson and Electa (Corbett) Packer, former a retired steamboat captain and coal-shipper. Capt. and Mrs. Hays are parents of one son, Abraham Packer. They are members of Lebanon Presbyterian Church; in politics Capt. Hays is a republican.

MICHAEL SIMON, contractor, builder and planing-mill owner, Allegheny, was born in Germany, Oct. 18, 1838, and is the son of John and Catherine Simon. He came to America in 1853, and settled in this county, where he has since resided. He is the only one of the family who ever came to this country. His parents both died in Germany, his father in 1840, and his mother in 1865. Of their family of eight children, seven are living. Michael Simon was married, April 25, 1858, to Maria, daughter of Matthias Voelp, and to them have been born ten children, of whom eight are now living, as follows: Philip, Charles, John, George, Emma, Clara, William and Harry; two children died in infancy. Mr. Simon learned the carpenter's trade in Germany, and engaged in that business upon his arrival in Allegheny county. In 1861 he commenced business for himself as a contractor and builder, and in 1871 added a planing-mill to facilitate his operations. At the age of twenty years Mr. Simon found himself far from home, among strangers, with only ten dollars to commence life with, but by industry, economy and good business ability he has risen from those humble circumstances to be one of the financially substantial men of the city of Allegheny, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the A. O. U. W., and of the G. F. Church. In all of the relations of life Mr. Simon is faithful and true to every obligation. As a citizen, as a business man, as a neighbor and friend, he is respected by all, and has the cordial good-will of everyone who knows him.

DAVID K. CALHOON, farmer, postoffice Homestead, was born on the old mansion farm, April 3, 1831. His grandfather, Dr. Calhoon, who was of Scotch-Irish descent, was born east of the mountains, and at the age of seventeen years teamed to Pittsburgh. In the latter part of the eighteenth century, after the Revolution, in which he was a soldier and fought many battles, he settled in Mifflin township. His patent, known as the Calhoon & Shiler patent, for three hundred acres of land was granted in 1803. At the beginning of 1812, at the age of sixty years, being yet a strong, active man, he shouldered his musket and marched out with the troops to Gen. Harrison's headquarters, but the general ordered him to Pittsburgh, where he was placed in command of the fort. He died, age eighty years, a strict United Presbyterian, and is buried in Mifflin church cemetery. His sons, James and John, and his father, James Calhoun, are buried at Lebanon cemetery. David Calhoun married Eleanor King, by whom he had eight children: Sarah, Thomas, Mary, James, Elizabeth, John K., David and Eleanor. Of these, John K. farmed the old homestead, where he died. He married Mary R., daughter of Robert Hays, a native of Ireland, who bought the Shier portion of the old homestead, and they had three children: Mary H., Robert R. and David K.

The subject of this sketch owns the old homestead, where he yet resides. He married Alice P., daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Stewart) Hays, the latter a daughter of Lazarus Stewart, first sheriff of Allegheny county, who was induced to come here by his grandfather David Calhoun. Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun have been blessed with seven children; Mary H., John K., Sarah J., Flora H., Alice Eleanor, David R. and Charles. The old members of the Calhoun family were Seceders, and later joined the U. P. Church. Politically, they were first democrats, and then republicans.

HENRY WILKINS BIGLEY, retired, post-office Logan's Ferry, was born in Franklin township, this county, in 1827, son of Charles and Mary (Estate) Bigley, natives of Clarion county, Pa. The father died about 1867, aged seventy-eight years, and the mother in 1856, aged fifty-one years, both members of the Presbyterian Church. The grandfather of H. W. Bigley was Philip Bigley. The subject of this sketch received his education at the place of his birth, and at the age of fourteen years sailed on the first iron-clad steamer that left Pittsburgh via the gulf and Red river for the Rocky mountains, carrying provisions to the standing army. He was eight years on the Red river, then returned to Pittsburgh, and ran on the Allegheny and Ohio rivers as pilot, from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, until 1882, when he retired. He was married, in 1850, to Maria, daughter of Samuel and Catharine (McMillen) Hosick, early settlers in East Deer township. Twelve children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Bigley, four of whom are living: Samuel Joseph, Viola (Mrs. Oliver Fulton Katz), Isabella (Mrs. William Lyons), and Harry, in Verona. Four of the family died in October, 1877, of diphtheria, their names being Flora, Stewart W., Melissa and Foster, aged seventeen, fourteen, twelve and nine years, respectively; four others died under two years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Bigley are members of Alice Cary Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, of Pittsburgh, and of the Presbyterian Church at Parnassus. Mr. Bigley is a member of the I. O. O. F. and the republican party. March 17, 1865, his house and barn, with all their effects, were swept away by the flood, and all was lost save one trunk of clothing.

This involved a loss of several thousand dollars, but Mr. Bigley, being a resolute man, began anew, and has since prospered in every business undertaking.

ANCESTRY OF MRS. CAPT. EDWARD W. H. SCHEINLEY, nee CROGHAN. Mrs. Edward W. H. Schenley, possessed of large estates in Allegheny county, was born near Louisville, Ky., in 1827. Her ancestors were identified with the patriot cause from colonial times. She was the granddaughter of Maj. William Croghan and of Gen. James O'Hara; the granddaughter of Gen. George Rogers Clarke and of Gen. William Clarke, and the niece of Gen. George Croghan.

Maj. William Croghan was a native of Ireland, born about 1750. He came to Virginia when quite young. When the revolutionary war broke out, and the clash of arms was heard on the fields of Lexington and Concord, Virginia sprang to the contest. Among Virginia's soldiers was young William Croghan. In 1776 he was a captain in the 4th regiment of the Virginia line, under Col. John Neville. The lieutenant-colonel of the regiment was Presley Neville, the son of John Neville. William Croghan was promoted to be major of the regiment. These soldiers fought under the eye of Washington, being intimate friends of his. Amid the snows of Trenton and Princeton, and under the burning heat of Monmouth, they fought and were victorious. At Brandywine and Germantown they fought also, and, though defeated, retired in grim defiance with Washington to Valley Forge, to watch through that dismal winter the British army under Howe at Philadelphia, and to drive that army the following summer across the Delaware, through New Jersey to Sandy Hook, and across the bay to New York. In 1780 the regiment was ordered south to join the army under Gen. Lincoln. During the most of this year the military operations were confined to the Carolinas. A powerful British fleet transported Sir Henry Clinton and the bulk of his forces from New York, and anchored in Charleston harbor. After a month's siege, the most of the fortifications having been beaten down, Gen. Lincoln found himself obliged to surrender his troops, including Neville's regiment of Virginians; among them Cols. John and Presley Neville and Maj. William Croghan. Col. Presley Neville was fortunate enough to be exchanged, but Col. John Neville and Maj. Croghan, with the rest of the officers, were released only on their parole of honor. Before Maj. Croghan was exchanged, he was present at the siege of Yorktown and surrender of Cornwallis, but could only participate in the stirring scenes by his presence. Maj. Croghan came to Fort Pitt with Col. John Neville, and was here on the 6th of July, 1789. Under that date he wrote to the Virginia secretory of war, giving an account of the murdering of the Moravian Indians by a party of white men from Washington county, Pa. On the 24th of July, 1789, he was ordered by the secretary of war to discharge the men of the Virginia line at Fort Pitt and to give them three months' pay. He was one of the original members of the Society of the Cincinnati, the officers of the Virginia line having joined at a meeting held at Fredericksburg in the beginning of October, 1783.

It is remarkable what a number of soldiers of the revolutionary army became residents of Pittsburgh and vicinity after the war. Among them were Col. John Neville, Col. Presley Neville, Col. Richard Butler, who became major-general, and was killed at St. Clair's defeat, in 1791; Col. William Butler, Col. Stephen Bayard, Maj. Isaac Craig, Maj. Ebenezer Denny, Maj. Abraham Kirkpatrick, Col. James O'Hara, Gen. John Wilkins, Jr., Maj. James Gordon Herron, James Foster and many others.

In 1784 Maj. William Croghan visited Kentucky and was so pleased with the country that he concluded to make it his home, and accordingly removed there, finally settling in Jefferson county, where he passed the remainder of his life at his beautiful place, Locust Grove, not far from Louisville, where he died in September, 1822.

After his removal to Kentucky he married the sister of Gen. George Rogers Clarke, who conquered the Northwest territory from the British during the revolutionary war.

Gen. George Rogers Clarke was a native of Virginia, born in Albemarle county, Nov. 19, 1752. When twenty-two years old he was captain of a company sent against the Indians in Lord Dunmore's war. The following year he went to Kentucky, and was given command of the armed settlers there. He was so active and so successful in his conflicts with the Indians that his name became a terror to them. In the spring of 1778 he was intrusted by the state of Virginia with the command of an expedition against the Illinois country, then in possession of the British. Gov. Hamilton, the British commander, was a man of most cruel, barbarous nature. He continually provided the Indians with arms and supplies to enable them to operate against the American settlers. He offered high prices for scalps, but would pay nothing for live prisoners. Gen. Clarke organized his expedition at Redstone Old Fort, now Brownsville, Pa. He prepared boats, ammunition and supplies, and with about one hundred and fifty rangers, armed with rifles, he set sail down the Ohio. He received a few reinforcements at Fort Randolph, and other reinforcements in Kentucky farther down. His whole force consisted of less than four hundred men, but they were men of steel, inured to exposure, and sure shots with their rifles. Clark landed his men opposite the mouth of the Tennessee river, and concealed his boats among the bushes of a small creek. With his rifle and provisions on his back, he placed himself on foot at the head of his men and silently led the way through the wilderness for distant Kaskaskia. There were deep streams to cross and swamps to wade through, but secretly did he move that the enemy were totally unaware of his coming. He was a stout, rather short man, with a high, broad forehead, sandy hair, blue eyes, and heavy shaggy eyebrows. With his personal prowess, hardihood and capacity for detail, there was always comprehensive wisdom in plan and purpose. The enemy knew of his coming only by his presence among them, and the American flag supplanting the royal standard of England. Hence his prestige and renown among the savages was of great value to carry on hostilities or dictate a peace. When he was present the great Indian warriors never noticed any other general. In six days Clarke and his little party reached the Kaskaskia river, at night. They saw the old French mission building on the opposite bank lighted up, and heard the sound of music. It was a ball given by the British officers to the inhabitants of Kaskaskia. Taking with him a portion of his men, he waded the river at the ford. Placing men quietly at each door, he gave orders to let no one pass. Wrapping himself in his blanket, he passed in, and, with his arms folded, leaned against the door-cheek of the ballroom and looked upon the dance. An Indian who lay asleep upon the floor of the entry waked up, and gazing intently upon the general's features in the light reflected from the room, suddenly sprang to his feet and gave the warwhoop, exclaiming in Indian, "The great white chief!" The dancing ceased, the greatest confusion prevailed, women screamed, and all rushed toward the door. Without moving from his position or changing his grave expression, Clarke said to them, "Go on with your dance. The only difference is you dance now under Virginia instead of Great Britain."

His next movement was against Vincennes. Gov. Hamilton was in command there organizing a force of British regulars and Indians to move against Clarke and cut him off. No time was to be lost. Clarke said, "I must take Hamilton or he will take me." With 175 men he marched in cold, stormy weather. He traversed a wilderness and the drowned lands of Illinois, enduring every privation from wet, cold and hunger; and suddenly appeared before Vincennes. By marching his men along the crest of the bluff in sight of the fort, counter-marching out of sight, and again appearing in a continuous file, he made his force appear much larger than it was. After some sharp fighting, Hamilton surrendered and was made a prisoner. Clarke was strongly inclined to put him to death for his cruelty and uncivilized modes of warfare, but finally sent him to Virginia under guard. The power of Great Britain was ended in the Northwest territory, and from Fort Pitt to the Mississippi river the American flag floated in triumph. Clarke was anxiously waiting for money to pay his men and to enable him to make good his engagements on sudden emergencies for supply furnished his army. He sent many messengers urging relief, but was disappointed. The state of Virginia voted him a sword for his conquest of the Illinois country. The bearers of it met the grave and discontented hero on the bank of the Wabash. He took the sword, drew it from its scabbard, and placing the point to the ground thrust the blade deep into the soil he had conquered, and broke it off by the hilt. Throwing the glittering handle into the river, he exclaimed, "I ask Virginia for bread and she sends me a sword."

In 1780 Gen. Clarke led a force against the Shawanese Indians, defeating them with great loss on their part. He established Fort Jefferson on the Mississippi. Learning of the disastrous battle of the Blue Licks, he started immediately on foot with one companion for Kentucky, rallied the people, and drove the enemy across the Ohio. He then proceeded to Richmond to procure aid. While there Benedict Arnold invaded Virginia, and Gen. Clarke served temporarily in a command against him, under Baron Steuben.

In 1782 Gen. Clarke made a successful campaign against the Shawanese towns in Ohio, and destroyed them, driving the Indians from that part of the country.

Gen. Clarke spent the latter part of his life with his sister, Mrs. Croghan, at the beautiful country seat, Locust Grove. He died there Feb. 18, 1818. His modest grave is in Cane Hill cemetery.

A plain stone with the initials G. R. C. engraved upon it is all that tells where the great-hearted leader sleeps. He who conquered for us the territory of five states, containing 160,000,000 of acres, has only six feet of earth. Congress moved last winter about raising a monument to him. He does not need it. "Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin," are his monument. It will stand as long as free government lasts on this continent. When the romance of American chivalry shall be written, the story of George Rogers Clarke will be linked with his noble, poetic members, immortal as the tale of Roland or that of the Cid Campeador.

Gen. William Clarke, youngest brother of George Rogers Clarke, and of Mrs. Maj. Croghan, was an ensign in the army at the early age of eighteen years. Promoted to be a captain, he was in 1804 selected by President Jefferson, in conjunction with Capt. Meriwether Lewis, to explore the great west from the Mississippi to the mouth of Columbia river. The particulars of this famous expedition are familiar to every intelligent reader in the world. The vast continent which for ages had slept in the darkness of obscurity was, like a book, unsealed and opened to light and progress by Lewis and Clarke and their little band of hunters and trappers. The country they explored is thus described by the great American poet:

"Far in the West there lies a desert land,
Where the mountains lift through perpetual sands
Their lofty and luminous summits.
Westward the Oregon flows, and the Walloway
Eastward with devious course, among the Wind River Mountains;
Through the Sweet Water Valley, precipitate leaps the Nebraska.

Spreading between these streams are the wondrous beautiful prairies;
Over them wander the wolves and herds of riderless horses,
Firs that blast and blight, and winds that are weary with travel;
Over them wander the scattered tribes of Ishmael's children, Straining the desert with blood; above their terrible war-trails Circles and sails aloft, on pinions majestic, the vulture,
Like the implacable soul of a chieftain slaughtered in battle."

William Clarke was appointed governor of Missouri in 1812. He was promoted to be a brigadier-general in 1817. In 1822 he was appointed Indian agent by President Monroe. He died in 1838, after having served his country over fifty years, leaving a name that is an honor to the American army.

George Croghan, William Croghan, Jr., and Dr. Croghan, the owner of the Monmouth cave, were sons of Maj. William Croghan.

George Crogan, the most distinguished of them, was named after his uncle, Gen. George Rogers Clarke. He was born at Locust Grove, Nov. 15, 1791, and graduated at William and Mary College in 1810. At the age of twenty years he was aid-de-camp to Col. Boyd at the battle of Tippecanoe. On 13th of March, 1813, he was appointed captain in the 17th regiment of infantry, and distinguished himself at the sortie from Fort Meigs, where the Pittsburgh Blues under Capt. James R. Butler gained such honor. On the 30th of March, 1813, he became a major, and was appointed aid-de-camp by Gen. William H. Harrison.

On the 1st and 3d of August, 1813, he commanded at Fort Stevenson, and conducted the memorable defense of that fort against five hundred British regulars and seven hundred Indians, with artillery, under Gen. Proctor. This defense will live in history as one of the most gallant successful exploits of any nation. For his bravery and skill in this affair George Crogan received a commission as brevet lieutenant-colonel, and the thanks of Congress, and on 21st of February, 1814, he was made lieutenant-colonel. In 1824 he was appointed postmaster at New Orleans, and on the 21st of December, 1825, was appointed inspector-general of the army.
He served under Gen. Taylor in the Mexican war; was in the battle of Monterey and other hard fights. Gen. Croghan died in New Orleans Jan. 8, 1849. He was a soldier "without fear and without reproach."

Gen. James O'Hara was a native of Ireland, who immigrated to this country when quite young. He came to Fort Pitt in 1773, and was an Indian trader here before the revolutionary war. He entered the army as a private, and became a captain in the 9th Virginia regiment. His superior business qualities and activity made him necessary to the quartermaster's department, and he served as assistant quartermaster.

After the revolutionary war he was actively engaged in business, among other things filling large contracts with the government for supplying the western armies, and acted as purchasing agent for Indian supplies. When the town of Pittsburgh was laid out, and afterward the reserve tract opposite Pittsburgh, on the north side of the Allegheny river, he made large purchases of property at the low prices offered by the Penns and the state of Pennsylvania. He also acquired large landed property in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. He was foremost and led the way in every enterprise calculated to promote the business interests and growth of Pittsburgh. In his various active movements his life was constantly exposed and in danger. The Indians in the interest of the British had planned to murder him at Schen- brum, one of the Moravian towns. The Moravians discovered the plot, and sent one of their most trusty Indians, called Anthony, to guide him by night through the woods, avoiding the trail, to Fort Pitt, which place he safely reached, although hotly pursued by eleven Hurons.

In 1788 Mr. O'Hara was a presidential elector, and cast his vote for George Washington at the first presidential election.

In 1792 he was appointed quartermaster-general in the United States army, and served as such during the whisky insurrection of 1794, the first armed rebellion against the United States, to suppress which Washington himself drew the sword and marched at the head of fifteen thousand men as far as Bedford.

In 1795 Gen. O'Hara, as quartermaster-general, marched with Gen. Anthony Wayne in the memorable campaign which put an end to Indian hostilities at the battle of the Fallen Timbers and the treaty of Greenville.

In 1797 Gen. O'Hara, in partnership with Majs. Isaac Craig, erected the first Pittsburgh glassworks. It was a stone building on the south side of the Monongahela river, nearly opposite the present William Eichbaum was brought from Germany to superintend the works. Green glass bottles were made. In a note of Gen. O'Hara found among his papers after his death he says: "To-day we made the first bottle, at a cost of thirty thousand dollars." About this time he built his own ships and loaded them, some with furs and peltries from the great northwest for Liverpool, others with flour for South America and the West Indies. A bushel of salt had been worth a cow and a calf at Pittsburgh, and men were not allowed to walk across the floor when salt was being measured.

After Wayne's treaty Gen. O'Hara entered into a contract with the government to supply Oswego with provisions, which were then cheaper at Pittsburgh than in the settlements on the Mohawk. Gen. O'Hara was a far-sighted calculator; he had obtained correct information in relation to the manufacture of salt at Salina, and in his contract for provisioning the garrison he had in view the supplying of the western country with salt from Onondaga. This was a project that few men would have thought of, and at that time hardly anyone else would have undertaken. The means of transportation had to be created on the whole line. Boats and teams must be provided to get the salt from the works to Oswego. A vessel was built to transport it to the landing below the falls of Niagara, wagons procured to carry it to Schlosser, then boats constructed to carry it to Black Rock. There another vessel was required to transport it to Erie. The road from Erie to the head of French creek had to be improved, the country through which it passed being mostly swampy, and the salt carried in wagons across the portage; and finally boats were provided to float it down French creek and the Allegheny river to Pittsburgh. It required no ordinary capacity and perseverance to give success to this enterprise. An individual undertaking at the present time to exchange Pittsburgh goods for furs and Russian leather with the traders at Nijni Novgorod by way of the great lakes and Belting straits would hardly be equal to it in boldness and in complexity of detail. Gen. O'Hara, however, could execute as well as plan. He packed his flour and provisions in barrels suitable for salt. These barrels were reserved in his contract. Arrangements were made with the manufactur- ers, and the necessary advances paid to secure a supply of salt. Two vessels were built, one on Lake Ontario and one on Lake Erie, and the means of transportation on the various sections of the line were secured. The plan fully succeeded, and salt of fair quality was delivered at Pittsburgh and sold at four dollars a bushel. The vocation of those who brought salt across the mountains on packhorses was gone. The trade opened by this man, whose success was equal to his merits, was extensively prosecuted by others. A large amount of capital was invested in the salt trade, and the means of transportation so greatly increased that the Pittsburgh market was supplied with Onondaga salt at two dollars and forty cents per bushel.

In 1804 Gen. O'Hara was appointed a director of the branch of the Bank of Pennsylvania established that year at Pittsburgh. This was the first bank west of the Alle-ghany mountains. The "Miami Exporting Company" was not then a bank and did not become so until afterward. Gen. John Wilkins, Jr., was the first president, and he was succeeded by Gen. O'Hara, who was the president when the Branch Bank of Pennsylvania was transferred to and merged in the office of the Bank of the United States.

In the first board of the Branch Bank of Pennsylvania were the following officers of the revolutionary army: Gen. Presley Neville, Maj. Abraham Kirkpatrick, Maj. Ebenezer Denny, Gen. Adamson Tannehill, Surgeon George Stevenson.

A large proportion of the prominent citizens of Pittsburgh at this early period having been officers of the army, they necessarily constituted a majority in the boards of trustees of the church, the bank and the academy. Nor does it appear that the Bank of Pennsylvania, or its successor, the Bank of the United States, had any reason to regret their confidence in these gentlemen. Only one other branch of the United States Bank (the office at Mobile) was more successfully managed or lost less money. To these brave men the country was a debtor when they died, and continues so to the descendants of most of them. But no one lost by them.

James O'Hara, while as enterprising as Astor or Girard, was as large hearted and magnanimous as Abraham. John Henry Hopkins, a young Irishman, afterward bishop of Vermont, came to the United States in the early part of this century, and about 1811 to Pittsburgh, poor, but full of intelligence and activity. Gen. O'Hara, pleased with Hopkins' business qualifications, took him into partnership in an iron-works he established at Ligonier, and gave him the management. This business, through no fault of Hopkins, failed, as, indeed, did all business after the war of 1812. Hopkins was overwhelmed, and his hopes apparently blasted for life by his share of the debt which hung over him. O'Hara said to him, "Give yourself no concern. You have done your best. I will pay all the debts." He gave Hopkins a clear acquittance and settled up all the debts. This incident was told by Bishop Hopkins himself in the accents of a grateful heart.

Gen. O'Hara died at his home on the bank of the Monongahela in 1819, wealthy and full of years. A patriotic soldier, an enterprising business-man and a charitable Christian. The tears of the poor and rich alike were shed at his grave and mingled with the clods that fell upon his coffin. Pittsburgh owes him a debt of gratitude, and his memory should be cherished. - Stevenson.

William Croghan, Jr., and Mary O'Hara were married in the year 1821. He was the son of Maj. William Croghan, and she was the daughter of Gen. James O'Hara.

William Croghan, Jr., was a remarkably handsome man, whom the writer remembers with pleasure for many kindnesses to him a boy. He was tall and well built, with remark-bly well-proportioned features, and an exceedingly keen and intelligent eye. He was a very Chesterfield in courtly manners, and a true gentleman in heart.

On the 20th of May, 1835, Mr. Croghan was admitted as a member of the Allegheny county bar. He resided at his beautiful country seat, "Picnic," which commands a view of the three historic rivers, Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio, and a far-off glimpse of the hazy Chestnut ridge of Pennsylvania. He died at his residence, Picnic, near Pittsburgh, Sept. 22, 1850, loved and lamented by all who knew him.

Mrs. Croghan died Oct. 25, 1827, leaving two children: William, her oldest child, survived his mother but a short time, and died April 25, 1828; Mary E. Croghan, the daughter, was born April 27, 1826. She married Capt. Edward W. H. Schenley, an officer of the British army, and went to England, where she has resided for the greater part of her married life, having now living five daughters and one son.-Harrison Foster.

William Walker Fortune, civil engineer, Turtle Creek, was born in Pittsburgh, April 16, 1824, a son of George and Jane (Campbell) Fortune, former a native of Philadelphia, latter of Scotland. George Fortune settled early in the present century at Pittsburgh, where he carried on the manufacture of saddletrees for many years. From 1830 to 1873 he was secretary of the board of guardians of the poor, and for twenty years was health officer of his city. He died in 1876, at the age of sixty-three, well known and respected. Politically he was a republican, and in religion he was brought up with the Roman Catholics, but united with the Unitarians. His wife died in 1870, at the age of sixty. Her father, John Campbell, was the first Unitarian preacher in Western Pennsylvania, and resided in Pittsburgh where he died. The subject of this sketch was reared in Pittsburgh. He received his education at the Second ward school, and when fifteen years old entered the city engineer's office, where he worked his way up rapidly, becoming, when but nineteen years old, chief engineer in charge of the grading of Fifth avenue. Since 1878 he has given his attention to railroad work, and for the past two years has been in charge of the Turtle Creek Valley railroad, with office at Turtle Creek. In 1879 Mr. Fortune married Virginia, daughter of Charles and Margaret Rahm, all of Pittsburgh birth. Martin and Dorothy, parents of Charles Rahm, came from Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Fortune had two sons born to them, the elder now living: Frank Rahm, a writer. Mrs. Fortune, the second son, died in 1887, aged six years.

Robert McFarland Smith (deceased) was born near Elizabeth, Pa., July 24, 1804, and was a son of Philip and Eleanor Smith, of Germantown, Pa. Philip was a son of Thomas and Elizabeth Smith, who came from Germany in 1750 and settled in "Upland," now Germantown, Pa. Philip married Miss Eleanor Fismire, of Germantown, Sept. 12, 1782. In 1783 or 1785, Philip, then a sturdy young farmer, and his wife, came hunting for themselves a home in the then western wilderness. After a long and toilsome journey they reached Elizabeth, then only a settlement with three or four dwellings, the principal one, that of Col. Stephen Bayard, being built of logs. Within less than a mile the newcomer built his first home. It was a one-room log cabin on the hill plantation, called “Salisbury,” which comprised three hundred acres bought from Joseph Carle in 1790.

In 1798 he bought from Thomas Liming the plantation of 160 acres called Newry, nearer the Monongahela river. On this he built his house, containing one large room, second story, a hall and stone kitchen, a porch length of the front, a large barn and other outbuildings for a farmer’s use; part of the old barn is standing yet. These buildings were made of hewn logs. A few years afterward he weatherboarded his house, and it is said to have been the first weatherboarded house west of the Alleghany mountains. Often while engaged in this work he was obliged to take up the old musket which he had carried at Valley Forge and Trenton, in order to repel the attacks of Indians. A few years after his house was finished the first public worship ever held in that region was conducted there; and there, in the providence of God, was first organized the Old Stone M. E. Church of Elizabeth, which by its blessing has been the means of converting multitudes, who with Philip Smith have long since passed away. This church was dedicated to the worship of God in 1802, the stone to build the same having been donated by Philip Smith and taken from his old homestead.

Miss Elenor Fismire was born Sept. 11, 1763, in Germantown, Pa., a daughter of Christian and Martha Fismire. Elenor’s grandparents were Quakers, who came from Wales in 1682, being among the number of about two thousand colonists who founded Philadelphia. They had eleven children, seven of whom were born prior to 1800. Their names are Martha, Betsey, John, Elenor, Adam, Thomas, Nancy, James, Joseph, Robert and Margaret. The father of this family willed to his son Joseph the hill farm; Robert, the homestead, and to Margaret, the town property; all the rest of his children settled in the west and south. Philip Smith was owner of large tracts of land, which he sold and gave to his children. They also settled in the west and south, and almost every state in the Union can furnish a relative.

Robert McFarland Smith was married Aug. 12, 1828, to Caroline Black, of Monongahela City, in Washington county, then called Williamsport. Ten children were born to them: Mary Elenor, Eliza Jane, wife of William F. Curry; Hester Ann, wife of D. McIntosh; Wilson Speers, of Elizabeth, in the livery business; Ross Stokely, died Dec. 2, 1875, aged thirty-eight years and four days; Caroline Bellvidere, wife of John Finney, died March 8, 1867, aged twenty-eight years and seven days; Laura and Robert Sehon, who died in infancy; and Myra Dell, wife of James H. Christy, of Elizabeth.

Their father was born and reared on the old homestead, and died Jan. 27, 1881, in his seventy-seventh year; his widow died July 24, 1885, in her seventy-fifth year. In the family burial-ground, on a sunny spot overlooking the beautiful Monongahela, and in full view of the old homestead, rest the ashes of parents and children. Philip Smith, father of Robert, died June 23, 1849, aged eighty-eight years; Elenor, his wife, died Sept. 26, 1836, aged seventy-one years and fifteen days.

Robert followed farming, but in 1847 he bought the glasshouse property, and took an interest with his son Samuel in the manufacturing of glass, which proved a bad investment, as Samuel H. went to San Francisco with the Maryland Mining company in 1849, and died there among strangers, Jan. 13, 1850, aged nineteen years and thirty-two days. His brother, Wilson S., enlisted Sept. 4, 1862, in Co. D, 14th P. C., Sheridan’s command, and was in the battles of Winchester, Fisher’s Hill, Mt. Jackson, White Sulphur Springs, Rokey Gap, Droop Mountain, Lewisburg, Snicker’s Gap, Leesburg and others, being honorably discharged at the expiration of his term of service.

Their daughter, Mary E., was twice married; first, Dec. 25, 1845, to William Christian Lorenz, by whom she had one son, Frederick Smith, who inherited a part of his father’s estate. This he willed to his mother, who is now the wife of William M. Grace, having been married to him March 22, 1859. The Lorenz homestead they now own and occupy. Her son, Frederick S. Lorenz, died Jan. 29, 1875. One child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Grace, Mary Frances, who died in infancy. William C. Lorenz, father of Frederick, died Feb. 29, 1853.
INDEX TO PART II.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr> </thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>312</td>
<td>312</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>566</td>
<td>566</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>543</td>
<td>543</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>416</td>
<td>416</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>691</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>446</td>
<td>446</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>166</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>586</td>
<td>586</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>392</td>
<td>392</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>368</td>
<td>368</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>354</td>
<td>354</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>509</td>
<td>509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>317</td>
<td>317</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>457</td>
<td>457</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>575</td>
<td>575</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>88</td>
<td>88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>554</td>
<td>554</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>499</td>
<td>499</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>771</td>
<td>771</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>340</td>
<td>340</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>492</td>
<td>492</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>97</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>68.5</td>
<td>68.5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>43.3</td>
<td>43.3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>97,</td>
<td>97,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>642</td>
<td>642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>317</td>
<td>317</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>741</td>
<td>741</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>574</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>109</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>511</td>
<td>511</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>528</td>
<td>528</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>369</td>
<td>369</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>164</td>
<td>164</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>701</td>
<td>701</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>606</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>697</td>
<td>697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>551</td>
<td>551</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>502</td>
<td>502</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>669</td>
<td>669</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>717</td>
<td>717</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>472</td>
<td>472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>618</td>
<td>618</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>374</td>
<td>374</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>533</td>
<td>533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>719</td>
<td>719</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>757</td>
<td>757</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>131</td>
<td>131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>126</td>
<td>126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>200</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>58</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>447</td>
<td>447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>748</td>
<td>748</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>53</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>78</td>
<td>78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>353</td>
<td>353</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>318</td>
<td>318</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>142</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>108</td>
<td>108</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>592</td>
<td>592</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>717</td>
<td>717</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>741</td>
<td>741</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>574</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>606</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>59</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>694</td>
<td>694</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>691</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>694</td>
<td>694</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>691</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>733</td>
<td>733</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>697</td>
<td>697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>740</td>
<td>740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>575</td>
<td>575</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>618</td>
<td>618</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>142</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>75</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>317</td>
<td>317</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>574</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>613</td>
<td>613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>266</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>317</td>
<td>317</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>634</td>
<td>634</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>748</td>
<td>748</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>574</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>613</td>
<td>613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>262</td>
<td>262</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>428</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>574</td>
<td>574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>613</td>
<td>613</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>428</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>428</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>428</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>337</td>
<td>337</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>526</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>428</td>
<td>428</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX.
INDEX.

PAGE

PAGE

783

783

Denny, Maj. Ebenezer...............164, 235
Denny, Harmer........................163
Denny, Hon. Harmer..................214
Denny, Henry..........................356
Denny, W..............................607
Depp, August..........................749
Dersan, John N.........................613
Derry, W...............................496
Devlin, Peter D.........................384
Dewalt, Jacob.........................609
Dewitt, W..............................698
Dewees, Jesse H.......................700
Diamond, William A...................374
Dick, James............................420
Dickey, Archibald.....................403
Dickey, Robert B......................672
Dickey, David........................412
Dickson, David S......................412
Dickson, Isaac M.......................633
Dickson, Prof. James, Ph. D...........422
Dickson, James.........................684
Dickson, James E.......................584
Dickson, Dr. John......................238
Dickson, John S........................235
Dickson, William.......................746
Dietrich, Jacob.......................658
Dierick, Alex..........................658
Dillon, George.........................751
Dillon, Rev. Josiah....................471
Dinmore, Dr. S. W.....................314
Dineen, W..............................296
Dixmoot, Charles......................188
Dolens, Abram L.......................714
Doolan, William W.....................357
Donaldson, Henry.......................577
Donovan, Daniel G.....................613
Doran, Stephen H......................347
Doolittle, John.........................458
Doran, James A.........................607
Doran, Patrick.........................609
Dorcas, John...........................622
Dougherty, George R...................762
Dougherty, Joseph C...................594
Douglas, Joseph.......................324
Douglas, Elisha F......................384
Douglas, John J........................766
Douglas, Thomas C.....................582
Douglas, Col. Wm......................92
Douglas, William L....................380
Dowley, William .......................684
Dowling, John.........................292
Dravensburg...........................76
Drennen, Thomas H....................388
Driscoll, Daniel McC.................368
Duff Family............................181
Duff, Firman K.........................495
Duff, George F.........................659
Duff, James H, M......................365
Duff, John B..........................546
Duff, Samuel..........................450
Duffner, Rev. John B..................277
Duffy, Charles A.......................691
Dugan, P. H...........................631
Duncan, James M.......................671
Duncan, Alexander C...................324
Duncan, Daniel S.......................361
Dunlap, Capt. Isaac W................588
Dunlap, W. M..........................672
Dunlevy, M. C..........................638
Dunn, William T.......................739
Dunsees, J. W.........................1072
Dunsees, Capt. William..............311
Durnin, Charles.......................314
Eahe, A.................................348
East, James J.........................383
Eaton, Robert ........................324
Eaton, Charles Homer...............621
Eaton, John H.........................316
Eaton, Osman L.........................636
Ecker, Alonso..........................636
Eckley, E..............................703
Eckoff, Joseph.........................347
Edgeworth Seminary..................125
Edgar, E...............................413
Edie, R. J..............................715
Edmundson, John W....................684
Edmundson, L. F......................1058
Edwards, Thomas......................292
Edwards, William.....................611
Ehrenburg, Arthur....................601
Ehrenburg, William...................601
Ell, Frederick.........................666
Elkin, Henry.........................764
Elliot, D. S..........................356
Elliot, Mrs. Benjamin.................627
Elsesser, J. L.........................453
Elwood, Robert D......................478
Elzey, W. H...........................700
Ernick, John C.........................761
England, John.........................580
English, John................................580
Erle, Barthele..........................561
Erbeck, E. L...........................512
Erny, Frank A..........................545
Erny, Joseph L.........................563
Errett, Hon. Russell..................338
Erskine, W. C........................348
Erwin, R. M............................380
Esler, James M.........................382
Espe, Fred................................417
Espy, John............................481
Espy, Capt. Thomas...................395
Eurich, Hite...........................755
Evans, Cadwallader, M. D............238
Evans, David..........................470
Evans, George, Samuel.................473
Evans, James..........................322
Evans, John D..........................583
Evans, Oliver, Sr........................599
Evans, Oliver, Jr......................599
Evans, Thomas..........................617
Everett, A. B..........................347
Ewalt, George W......................645
Ewing, Alex............................18
Ewing, Isaac..........................496
Ewing, James E........................496
Ewing, James A.........................636
Ewing, J. Nelson.......................469
Ewing, Robert A.......................386
Ewing, Capt. Samuel W................496
Ewing, William, Jr....................414
Eyster, C. W..........................663
Eyster, Matthew B.....................662
Fairfield, Capt. J. G.................603
Fairley, John..........................560
Parley, Daniel A.......................668
Paruciere, John.......................434
Farmerie, John A......................454
Farnik, William G.....................394
Fawcett, George O......................653
Fawcett, Thomas.......................563
Fawcett, Maj. John....................367 Fell, Daniel...........................367
Felloborn, W. M.......................708
Fenton, William A.....................496
Ferguson, John S......................567
Perree, George M.......................765
Perree, Jacob F........................472
Perree, Robert S.......................472
Pey, Peter................................581
Fields, Samuel.........................335
Fife, Andrew..........................389
Fife, James, Jr.......................407
Fife, Maj. John.........................407
Fife, John, Sr..........................43
Fife, Nathaniel.........................407
Fife, Samuel R.........................356
Fife, Thomas...........................406
Fife, Thomas M.........................418
Fife, William J.........................407
Findlay, George.......................654
Finley, Gov. Wm.......................11
Finley, Samuel F.......................538
Finley, W...............................355
Fisher, George.........................677
Fisher, John...........................695
Fisher, John (Dr. Schubert)...........685
Fisher, William (White Ash)...........654
Fitzsimons, Samuel...................746
Fix, Conrad............................769
Fleming, Hugh S.......................263
Fleming, John (Sewickley)...........336
Fleming, John (Pittsburgh)...........792
Fleming, J. R..........................763
Fleming, Mrs...........................394
Flick, H. W............................750
Floyd, William.........................730
Fogarty, Michael......................673
Foreman, Henry C......................498
Forks of Trough........................84
Fort, George...........................722
Forrester, Hugh.........................384
Forsyth, J. L..........................250
Forte, William W......................750
Forward, Hon. Walter...................98
Foster, David.........................425
Foster, David G. and W. Ross........386
Foster, Walter.........................484
Fowler, John..........................193
Fox, John................................673
Frances, James.........................599
Franz, Henry..........................711
Frazier, Lieut. John.................121
Frazier, Samuel R......................937
Fremont, Ernest.........................741
Frew, Samuel...........................106, 106
Frew, William S.......................325
Fricke, Henry..........................574
Frost, Albert E.........................541
Fryer, Amos............................689
Fryer, William J.......................498
Gaff, James W..........................724
Gale, George................................394
Garbraleth, Thomas, M. D............406
Garrison, Abraham.....................247
Gass, Christian H.....................724
Gaunt, Christopher....................318
Gayley, James.........................831
Gedekoh, Frederick..................528
Gensch, Theresa.........................547
George, Mrs. W........................459
George, David.........................640
George, J. C...........................398
George, J. W..........................473
Gerwig, Nicholas J. H................363
Gete, George................................394
Gibbons, Elizabeth....................977
Gibbons, Horace.......................757
Gibson, Charles, Sr...................749
Gibson, Charles, Jr...................749
Gibson, Robert M.......................749
Gibson, Thomas.........................141
Gibson, W. George......................690
Gift, William...........................481
Giles, George W.........................577
Gilliland, Alexander, Sr.............495
Gilliland, Family, The................460
Gilliland, Rev. Robert A.............371
Gilliland, William......................495
Gilkeson, Findlay.....................766
Gillespie, John.........................660
Gilliland, James.......................762
Gillmore, David.........................452
Gillmore, Capt. D. S. H..............331
Gillmore, Francis S...................483
Gillmore, James.......................601
Gillmore, Dr. William J...............422
Girdle, John...........................768
Givens, Simon.........................581
Gist, Thomas J.........................692
Gladen, George, M. D...............497
Gillen, Charles J........................497
Glass, John C...........................573
Glass, William.........................708
Glendale...............................65
Glenn, Maj. W. J......................908 INDEX.

PAGE.

Love,

LOVE.

July 8, 92

Kern, Dr. W. H.

Kern, John

Ker, Isaac and Daniel

Kidd, Andrew

Kiddoo, Dr. S. R.

Kiddoo, William J.

Kier, Samuel M.

Kilbuck, William H.

Kirtley, Byron D.

Kirtley, James D.

Kirk, Charles

Kirk, Mrs. Jane L.

Kirk, Mrs. Mary J.

Kilday, Joseph J.

Kinkaid, Mrs. Mary E.

Kinkade, Col. Joseph McC.

Kimball, Edgar G.

Kircher, Christian.

Kirk, William A.

Kirkpatrick, John B.

Kirkwood, Robert L.

Kirsch, Philip

Kiskadden, John

Kistler, Joseph B.

Klaus, John J.

Klauss, L. G.

Klein, John C.

Kleinmiller, Edward C.

Kletsy, John

Klitsmann, S.

Knepper, Charles

Knoderer, William

Knox, Jeremiah

Koch, W. F.

Koering, Theodore

Koers, Louis F.

Kramer, E. R.

Kraus, Wenzil

Kreath, John

Krauth, Frederick

Krems, John George

Kress, Dr. W. B.

Kuhn, George

Kuhn, Samuel P.

Kurtz, John E.

Lacock, Gen. Almert

Lafayette, Hotel of

Lahe, William

Lapham, Marcellus

Lapsly, Capt. Thomas H.

Largay, Agnes A.

Large, Hon. Andrew

Large, Hon. Henry (Cosgrove).

Large, Hon. James T.

Large, James

Large, William

Laglier, John R.

Larkin, John B.

Lashell, Capt. Jacob

Laitham, James C.

Laughton, Albert O.

Laughlin, I. N.

785

Laurent, Joseph.

Lawson, Joseph B.

Lee, David N.

Lee, Lewis, Jr.

Lee, Robert

Lee, S. W.

Lee, S. H.

Learn, James P.

Leadsale

Le Baude, Sylvan C.

Lee, W. B., Capt.

Lee, Caleb, Jr.

Lee, George L.

Lee, Hugh

Leet, Maj. Daniel

Leet, Jonathan

Lenard, A.

Lenkner, Louis

Leonard, Michael H.

Leppig, George M.

Lesaet, Christopher

Lensett, John W.

Lewis, F. E.

Lewis, James C.

Lewis, John M.

Liggett, Thomas.

Liggett, Chas.

Linderman, George

Lindsay, Isaac

Linhart, James B.

Lindset, H.

Linke, Frederick

Linton, William S.

Lippard, Edward J.

Lohngier, Christopher C.

Lockton Station

Loebler, Martin

Logan, Alexander

Logan, Edward J.

Logan, Hugh J.

Logan, James

Logan, Robert

Logan, William

Logan's Ferry

Lombard, J. George W.

Long, Henry M.

Long, H. R.

Loomis, A. W.

Lorenz, Frederick R. J.

Louches, L. P.

Love, C. H.

Love, F. M.

Love, James M.

Loveless,

Loy, Alfred G.

Loyd, Col. J. L.

Ludewig, W. H.

Ludden, Levi

Ludwick, Jacob

Ludwick, John

Ludwick, John T.

Ludwick, Levi.

Ludwig, George F.

Luft, Ernest.

Lundmark, John L.

Lutes, George W.

Lutz, John R.

Lynch, John

Lynch, John W.

Lyon, H. H.

Lyon, Robert W.

Lyon, Walter

Lytle, Thompson

Lytle, Perry A.

McAdams, George W. J.

McAdams, Joseph H.

McAfee, Alfred

McBride, H. Elliott

McBride, Homer J.

McCahe, Alfred

McCahe, Howard L.

McCahe, Thompson F.

McCain, John R.

McCain, John

McCandless, Philip

McCandless, Wilson, Jr.

McCandless, Wilson L.

McCarron, John W.
INDEX.

Newspapers—34, 70, 77, 106, 107, 121, 126, 127, 160, 166, 182

Nicholas, John

Niemann, Herman H.

Nill, Dennis

Nimick, Alex.

Nimick, W. H.

Nixon, Jane Lea

Nobles, Col. Henry

Noble, Joseph

Norton, Anson P.

Nuttall, Edmund

Oakdale Station

O'Bryan, William

O'Ceallaigh, E. W.

O'Connor, H. R., M. D.

O'Donnell, Charles

Oeffher, John C.

Oesting, James W.

O'Hara, Gen. James

Oll, First Searcher

Oliver, John H.

Oliver, Seward, D. D., S.

O'Keefe, Michael

O'Neill, James (Eunsworth)

O'Neill, Frank (Kecksport)

O'Neill, James (West Elizabeth)

O'Neill, J. D.

O'Neill, John

O'Neill, William D.

Ort, James

Osborne, William (Pittsburg.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.

Owens, David

Owens, Edward

Owens, William P.

Oxman, Nathaniel

Oxman, John

O'Neill, William (Upper St. Clair.)

Osborne, Dr. John

Osborne, William, M. D.