In presenting a history of the Swope family we have thought best not to confine our account only to the Swope family in this county, but to give a sketch of our ancestors in the Fatherland. This has been done in Chapter I, and was largely drawn from Kohlrausche's History of Germany. The account devolops that portion of German history relating to the Swabians and the old Duchy of Swabia, because there our family originated and we bear the tribe name. Because of their restless, roaming disposition the Romans called our German ancestors Suevi, and they were so known until the early part of the fifth century. An examination of the following pages will show that Yost Swope's son John had nineteen children. The most careful and thorough search has failed to reveal an extended account of more than seven of them. These seven appear at the head of chapters six to twelve.

In beginning this work it was our intention to give only an account of the family of Yost Swope, but during its progress we found several Swope families descended from ancestors who settled in this country prior to the Revolutionary war. These we have traced out as fully as possibly and given in Part II.

Our aim has been in the compilation of this history to secure authentic data through representative members of the different branches of the family. Wherever it has been possible data received has been verified. In this connection we desire expressing our thanks to General John H. Forney, Jacksonville, Ala.; Miss Catharine C. M. Foster, Johnstown, Pa.; Messrs. Isaac and Zuriel Swope, Lancaster, Pa.; Mrs. Eliza Swope Pitkin, Chicago, Ill., and all others who have kindly responded to inquiries regarding their families.

CHAPTER I.

OUR ANCESTORS IN GERMANY.

The history of the origin and of the earliest state of the German nation is involved in impenetrable obscurity. No records tell us when and under what circumstances our ancestors migrated out of Asia, the cradle of the human race, into our Fatherland; what causes urged them to seek the regions of the north, or what allied branches they left behind them in the countries they quitted. A few scattered and obscure historical traces, as well as a resemblance in various customs and regulations, but more distinctly the affinities of language, indicate a relationship with the Indians, Servians and Greeks. This obscurity of our earlier history must not surprise us; for every nation without a written language neglects every record of its history beyond mere traditions and songs, which pass down from generation to generation. Not a syllable or sound of even those traditions and songs, wherein according to the traditions of the Romans, our ancestors delighted to celebrate the deeds and fate of their people, has, however, descended to posterity.

The authentic history of the German nation consequently commences at a period when our ancestors, possibly after they had dwelt for centuries in their native country, first came into contact with a nation that already knew and practiced the art of historical writing. This happened through the incursion of the Cimbrians and Teutonians into the country of the Romans, in the year 113 before the birth of Christ.
According to the description of the Romans, Germany was at the time they first became acquainted with it, a rude and inhospitable land, full of immense forests, marshes and desert tracts. The soil was not cultivated as now, although the Romans called portions of it extremely fertile, and agriculture and pasturage were the chief occupations of the Germans. The pastures were rich and beautiful, and the horned cattle as well as the horses, although small and inconsiderable, were of a good and durable kind. The climate, in consequence of the immense forests, whose density was impervious to the rays of the sun, and owing to the undrained fens and marshes, was colder, more foggy and inclement than at present, but nevertheless was not quite so bad, perhaps, as represented by the Romans, spoiled as they were by the luxurious climate of Italy. "The Germans," says Pliny, "know only three seasons, winter, spring and summer; of autumn they know neither the name nor its fruits." The ancient German loved this country that appalled the Romans, the severity of the air as well as the chase of wild animals strengthened the bodies of the men, and nourished by a simple diet, they grew to so stately a size that other nations admired them with astonishment. Their chests were wide and strong; their hair yellow, and with young children it was of a dazzling white. Among the Suevi the hair was worn on top of the head in a bundle, for the sake of its war-like effect. Among the Saxons it was parted and hung down the shoulders, cut at a moderate length. Their skin was also white, their eyes blue, and their glance bold and piercing. Their powerful gigantic bodies, which the Romans and Gauls could not behold without fear, displayed the strength that nature had given to this people, for according to the testimony of some of the ancient writers their usual height was seven feet.

Their dress was a broad, short mantle fastened by a girdle, or the skins of wild animals, the trophies of the successful chase. The original collective name of the German people was little used in the earlier periods, and was probably unknown to the Romans. When various tribes associated together in bodies, merely the name of the union appeared, as the Suevi, Saxons, Goths, etc. The Suevic race dwelt in the large semi-circle traced by the Upper and Middle Rhine and the Danube, through the middle of Germany, and farther towards the north to the East Sea, so that they occupied the country of the Neckar, the Maine, the Saale, and then the right Elbe bank of the Havel, Spree and Oder. Tacitus even places the Suevic tribes beyond the Vistula.

The Suevi, as Caesar informs us, had early formed themselves into one large union, whose principles were distinctly warlike. The love of arms was assiduously cherished in all, that they might be always ready for any undertaking. Thence it was that individuals had no fixed landed possessions; but the prince and leaders yearly divided the land among the families just as it pleased them, and none were allowed to select the same pastures for two consecutive years, but were forced to exchange with each other that none might accustom himself to the ground, and, acquiring a love for his dwelling place, be thus induced to exchange the love of war for agriculture. They were obliged to supply from each of their hundred districts, the wars with a thousand men yearly, and those who remained at home cultivated the land for all. The following year, on the other hand, the latter marched under arms and the former remained at home, so that agriculture as well as war was in constant exercise.

When Caesar had driven Ariovistus across the Rhine he began the subjugation of Gaul. Intelligence came to him that two German tribes of the Lower Rhine, the Usipeti and Tenchteri, pressed by the Suevi, had passed over the Rhine to seek a new settlement in Gaul. They had with them their wives and children, their slaves and herds, as well as the rest of their property, and were upwards of 430,000 strong. As Caesar now, however, considered Gaul to belong to him, he desired them to retrace their steps. They, however, replied, "That they had been forced by the Suevi to wander from their homes; they desired nothing but a land to dwell in; he ought therefore to leave them the fields they had conquered with their arms, or give them others instead. Besides it was not German fashion to avert a battle by entreaties, but to make a stand against those who desired the contest; he was therefore free to choose friendship or war. They yielded to none but the Suevi, to whom in battle even the immortal gods themselves were not equal; but excepting those there dwelt none on earth whom they could not conquer." They nevertheless were conquered by Caesar, but only by Italian cunning, for as their princes and chieftains came to arrange an interview with him, he suddenly seized them as prisoners, fell immediately upon their camps, and beat and scattered the whole tribe, which was now without a leader.

Caesar bore fresh in mind that the Suevi under Ariovistus had already fallen upon Gaul, therefore he determined to bridge the Rhine, and make the Germans feel in their own country the power of the Romans. In ten days he constructed a large wooden bridge and passed his whole army across the Rhine. This was in the year 55 B.C. He wished to attack the powerful Suevi: these, however, moved all their property and families far back into the interior of the forests, there to await the enemy. Caesar did not think it advisable to follow them. He remained only eighteen days, devastating with fire and sword, when he recrossed the Rhine. But the Suevi had so little fear of the Romans that they shortly afterwards sent assistance to the Treviri against them. Caesar then determined to cross the Rhine a second time, which he did a little above the former place, the vicinity of Seig. But he scarcely placed a foot in Germany, for the Suevi had made their arrangements as prudently as before.

The Suevi, like other German tribes, after the lapse of time settled down to a permanent habitation. The entire people consisted of freemen and slaves. The freemen were divided into the nobles (nobiles, as Tacitus calls them) and the common freemen (ingueni). In later periods the German language distinguishes Adelinge and Frilinge. The former denoted the large proprietor, who reckoned in his estate bondsmen and vassals, and who possessed already in his domains the means of exercising a more extensive influence. The Friling was, on the contrary, the common freeman, who cultivated his small possessions with his own hands, or by the assistance of but a few slaves. From this early distinction we may trace the origin of the German nobility. The slaves were mostly prisoners of war: they were bought and sold, were employed in the more menial services of the house and the labors of agriculture. But the slave was held incapable of bearing arms; this alone was the privilege and prerogative of the freemen.

The Suevi loved the open country above everything. They did not build towns—they likened them to prisons. The few places which occur in the Roman writings called towns—the later Ptolemy names the most—were probably nothing more than the dwellings of the chiefs, somewhat larger and more artificially built, than those of the common freemen. Tacitus says "the Germans selected their dwellings wherever a grove or spring attracted them. Advantage and comfort were consequently frequently sacrificed to their love of open and beautiful scenery. This strong love of nature, which may be traced from the very first in our forefathers, is a grand feature in the German character.

A number of farms of great and small land owners specially united by close ties, constituted a community (Gemeinde), several communities a league of a hundred (Markgenossenschaft), which exercise within a larger circuit, the common right of herd and pasture; and lastly a number of these formed the larger confederacy of the district (Gau). As chief of the district a judge was elected from among the oldest and most experienced, who bore in ancient times the name of Graf. The subdivisions of the district had their chiefs; together they formed the Principes of the district, the foremost and first among their equals, whence is derived the German word Fürst (prince). The National Assembly was at the head of all, and counseled and decided upon the most important affairs. Every freeman, high as well as low, was a member of the national assembly. In earlier times danger from without, and the relationship of the septs, chiefly produced the establishment of unions of whole tribes. The majority of these tribes seem to have had a very constitution of confederacy in time of peace. In the individual districts all continued according to the customary mode of administration, no permanent appointment of a superior executive government being required. In war, on the contrary, an election was made of the common Herzog, or duke, according to valor and manly
The virtue, whose office ceased with the war. Among some tribes peace had also its chiefs or directors, selected originally by the community from the most meritorious of the people which election in the course of time, when a natural feeling placed the son in the place of the father, became invested with an almost hereditary right. The peculiarity of the Saxon people consisted altogether in their free form of government, a constitution most conformable to their origin, springing as they did from the union of the heads of free families, each of whom ruled his domain according to the ancient patriarchal form. A common general was required only during war, which, in general, was defensive and consequently national. Among the Suevi, on the contrary, whose constitution was warlike throughout, wherein the individual was early accustomed to consider himself but a portion of the whole, a monarchial government became the most natural form of the constitution.

At the end of the 9th and commencement of the 10th century, the governors of the provinces, early called Graf, gradually became possessed of ducal powers and appear as dukes of Saxony, Bavaria, Swabia, etc. In Swabia, where the defense of the frontiers was not so necessary, the ducal dignity appears to have connected itself gradually with the power of the royal missus, and to have developed itself later. Burchard, however, under the emperor, Conrad I., appears as Duke of Swabia.

The dukes were not at this early time regarded as lords of their people and lands, but as ministers and representatives of the king, in whose name in peace they regulated the affairs of justice and order, and in war led the army of their race to battle. But soon becoming large land proprietors and no longer under the surveillance of royal envoys, the dukes took advantage of the weakness of the kings, and by degrees arrogated to themselves an increase of power, and brought the lesser vassals under their dominion; they even gradually made their dignity granted to them only as imperial crown officers, hereditary in their families, as well as the revenues of the crown lands, which they had only received as the salary for their services.
Among the many dukes of Swabia, none have become the subject of as many heroic lays and legends as Duke Ernest. The most wonderful deeds performed by his army were connected with his name, and eventually collected together by later poets, formed one entire volume. Duke Ernest of Swabia, was stepson of the Emperor Conrad I. Being dissatisfied with Conrad’s course in annexing the kingdom of Burgundy to the German Empire, he rebelled against the emperor, but at last was forced to surrender, when he was imprisoned for three years, and then banished the country, together with all his partisans. He soon afterwards returned, while his father was on an expedition against the Hungarians and tried to recover his duchy, but was defeated in battle and killed, 1030.

After the death of the Emperor Lothaire, the Saxon, the electors of Germany elevated Conrad of Swabia, to the imperial throne, 1138. The most important undertaking of Conrad was that of the Crusade. Having been greatly moved by the preaching of St. Bernard, he assembled an army of 70,000 warriors, besides others, and undertook the journey to the Holy Land. After many hardships and dangers he arrived in the Holy Land with one-tenth of his army and entered Jerusalem. After an absence of two years he returned, and shortly after died, 1152. Kohlrausch says, "Conrad was a valiant, high-minded and noble-hearted man, and was universally esteemed." Conrad recommended as his successor, not his own young son Frederick, whose age would not as yet allow him to rule the nation, but his valiant nephew, Frederick Barbarossa, Duke of Swabia, who had made the crusade with him, and who was unanimously elected at Frankford, 1152. Kohlrausch says "Frederick I. was one of the most powerful of the German emperors: high-minded, valiant, with a will firm as iron, and of a stern, energetic character. His very form displayed his lofty mind."

After a long and glorious reign of thirty-eight years, it appears as if fate had determined for him the glory of a noble death in a sacred cause. In 1187 the intelligence reached Europe that Saladin, the Sultan of Egypt, had taken Jerusalem. Frederick Barbarossa at the head of 150,000 com-
The Sicopc Family.

The inhabitants, together with several of the crowned heads of Europe and their armies, advanced, in 1189, to recover the Holy City. When the German army was crossing the river Cydnus, July 11, 1190, Frederick was swept down by the strong current and drowned. The grief and lamentation of the whole army were indescribable. The noble soul of Frederick was spared the pain of seeing the German army almost entirely destroyed by sickness before the City of Antioch, and Jerusalem was not taken.

Henry VI., son of Frederick Barbarossa, succeeded him upon the throne, and reigned seven years, dying suddenly in 1197.

On the death of Henry the Hoenstaufens made Philip, Henry's brother, emperor, and the Guelfs made Otho, second son of Henry the Lion, emperor. Both reigned amid much dissension for 10 years, when Philip was assassinated in 1208. Then Otho was universally acknowledged and crowned emperor at Rome. Otho found that in order to gain the support of Pope Innocent III., he had gone too far, and made concessions that were detrimental to the interests of the empire; in trying to withdraw those concessions he brought upon himself the displeasure of the Pope, who placed in opposition to him Frederick the son of Henry VI., who was crowned Aix-la-Chapelle 1215, and at Rome as emperor 1220; he died 1250.

Otho was henceforth deserted and died 1218. Frederick II. succeeded him. Kohlrausch says "he was a friend of Art and Science, and was himself a poet, sentiment, animation and euphony breathing in all his works. Since Charlemagne and Alfred of England, no potentate had existed who loved and promoted civilization in its broadest sense as Frederick II. At his court were assembled the noblest and most intellectual minds of that age." He collected for that period a very considerable library, partly by researches made in his own States, and partly during his stay in Syria. Frederick himself possessed a knowledge unusual, and acquired by few men of his time. He understood Greek, Latin, Italian, French, German and Arabic. Among the sciences he loved chiefly natural history, and proves himself a master in that science by a work he composed. After the death of Frederick II, two emperors stood opposed to each other on the German throne. Conrad, who had been elected king of the Romans during his father's life, was upheld by the Hohenstaufen party, in opposition to William of Holland.

Conrad IV. died 1254. William a few years later. Conrad IV. was the last emperor of the house of Swabia. Conradin, his son, was brought up on his small estate in Bavaria and Swabia, while his uncle Manfred, as regent and subsequently as king, administered his hereditary estates in Naples and Sicily. Pope Clement IV. hated Manfred, and applied to Charles, Duke of Anjou, for aid to dethrone him. Manfred was defeated in action 1266, and killed. Conradin went forth in 1268 to recover his possessions in Italy. He soon stood opposed to the enemy with a strong army in lower Italy. In battle fortune at first favored him; the enemy was put to flight; in the pursuit his own army got into disorder; at that moment the French reserves rushed upon them and they were wholly defeated. Conradin was forced to fly, but was captured and led before Charles of Anjou, who treated him with the insolence, perfidy and cruelty of a tyrant. Considering Conradin a rebel against him, the true king, he caused him to be publicly beheaded in the market place of Naples, October 28, 1268.

With the death of Conradin ended the powerful house of Swabia. The Swabian patrimony now fell into so many divisions that eventually no territory in Germany was divided into so many ownerships as Swabia. As the duchy was never restored, the whole of the state henceforth formed a part of the immediate possessions of the Empire. Not only the Bishops, Counts and Free Lords, but also the inferior ranks of the nobility, the cities, monasteries, and even peasantry, which had previously been the vassals and subjects of the duke became now emancipated, but they had not these rights and privileges individually like the larger imperial lordships, but only as an entire combined body of the Swabian states, which they enjoyed as members thereof. The emperor derived from them important revenues, and the administration of these imperial possessions was now transferred to seneschals, so that instead of the ancient Swabian duke, there were now only the imperial bailiwicks—Helvetia or Switzerland, Alsace and Swabia, which were divided into cantons. These arrangements were adopted under the succeeding Emperor Rudolph II.

In Swabia after the fall of the ducal house, all their rights disappeared, their rich possessions had in the later period been wasted or given away; and Conradin, at the time of his expedition to Italy, made over his possessions to the house of Bavaria. We therefore naturally inquire who then from that time was the most important and influential family in Swabia? In answer to this we find that the Counts of Wurtemberg stood at the head of all the rest of the nobility, and who had already chosen Stuttgart as their place of residence. After them the rich Counts of Baden, scions of the Hoenstaufen race, acquired from the house of Zahringen the territory of Brusgan, which was the commencement of the house of Baden. Another portion of the Zahringen inheritance in Switzerland fell to the Counts of Keyburg, and after them to the Counts of Hapsburg, who owed to this circumstance their subsequent importance.

After the dismemberment of the Duchy of Swabia, the scions of the ducal family fell into obscurity, and we hear no more of them in history.

The duchy contained 13,000 square miles, and embraced a part of the present Bavaria, all of the kingdom of Wurtemberg, part of Westphalia, all of what is now known as Swabia, and the Duchy of Baden, where in the town of Sinsheim was born February 22, 1678, Yost Swab (Jacob Swope), the ancestor of the largest branch of the Swope family in America.
CHAPTER II.

THE SWOPES AND THEIR COAT-OF-ARMS.

The Schwab (Swab)—Americanized Swope—name is one of the oldest in German history. It was derived from a powerful tribe in Southern Germany, who were called Suevi by Julius Cæsar, and later Schwabs and Swabians.

When a large portion of Southern Germany was formed into a duchy it was given the tribe name and called Swabia.

The Schwab (Swab) family in its different branches have continued to dwell there, and have preserved the ancient tribe name through all these centuries. Only a small portion of the old duchy is now known as Swabia.

There are several noble houses of Schwab in Germany, each having a coat-of-arms. One characteristic of the arms of all is the wing of the Imperial eagle, showing all to have had a common ancestor. All indications point to our family having descended from the house of Wurtemburg.

Whilst we here only trace our branch of the family back in an unbroken line to 1678, yet we have every assurance that it could be extended much farther did we have access to the records in Germany.

The Coat-of-Arms here given was obtained from the Bureau of Heraldry in Vienna by Rev. Cornelius E. Swope, D. D., late rector of Trinity Episcopal Chapel, New York. He says regarding it: “I procured from the Bureau of Heraldry in Vienna the arms which I have no doubt we have the right to claim. From the same source I learned that the family came originally from Wurtemburg, and traditions of the family date back to the 13th century. The significance of the Coat-of-Arms is as follows: The golden shield signifies the untarnished honor of the family. The stars suggest the loftiness of the aims and ambition of the bearer of the arms, and the wing, which forms the crest, symbolizes the virtue and valor which rise above all that is unworthy and soar, as on eagle’s wing, towards the stars. In all the bearings of the different branches of the family the wing is a conspicuous feature. There is no motto, such being of much later date than the time of the ennobling of the family."

The deep red showing through the visor of the helmet shows that the family or some members of it won distinction in the Crusades, for no coats were permitted red unless the representatives had seen somewhat of the life and wars of the Crusades.

CHAPTER III.

PERSECUTIONS IN THE FATHERLAND—THE SWOPE FAMILY IN AMERICA.

A small act is often far-reaching in its results. In 1685, when Louis XIV., King of France, signed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, which deprived so many thousands of his most valuable subjects of their religious rights and sent them as wanderers in foreign lands, it was not thought that he would become the religious oppressor of our German forefathers and drive them from home and everything that was dear because of their faithful adherence to their Protestant faith. This, however, was the case. Louis XIV. claimed the Succession of the Palatinate in behalf of his brother, the Duke of Orleans. Within a single generation that beautiful country, one of the fairest and most beautiful spots of Europe, was thrice overrun and devastated by the barbarous soldiery of the French monarch. "When he found it impossible to hold what had been conquered Louis gave command to have the country turned into a desert." And right promptly and effectually was the work performed; neither old men nor delicate women were spared, but all turned out, near half a million of human beings, into the winter's snow, which then covered the ground, where many perished of cold and hunger. "Meanwhile the work of destruction began. The flames went up from every hamlet, every parish church, every country seat, within the devoted provinces." The large towns fared no better than the country and were soon reduced to ashes. Later, 1697, the treaty of Ryswick stipulated that the French must evacuate the country, but the Catholic princes who now ruled denied the Protestants the free exercise of their religion, and deprived them of their churches and treated them with great cruelty. Under the stress of their misery many thousands of the inhabitants turned with dim eyes from the ashes of their once happy homes, smiling fields and vineyards, and sought an asylum on the hospitable shores of England and the land of religious freedom, Pennsylvania. In a single year no less than 30,000 persecuted Palatines found a refuge in Pennsylvania. Our ancestor, Yost Swope and family, being pious members of the Lutheran Church and unwilling to sacrifice their religion, left home, friends and all that was dear and turned their faces to this land of promise. After braving the perils of the deep he and his family arrived in Philadelphia in 1720. While there he arranged for the purchase of land on the outskirts of civilization, where most of the Germans were sent, then Conewago township, Chester county, Pa., now Lancaster county; the latter county was not formed until nine years later.

The Swopes, as other settlers on what was then the frontiers, had much to contend with in privations incident to a life in an uncultivated wilderness. The country which greeted them on their arrival was not as inviting as now. That portion not covered with heavy timber was covered with stunted oak and underbrush, which had annually been burnt off by the Indians to drive out the game. This had to be cleared and made tillable by the most crude instruments of husbandry. Our ancestors showed their discernment by selecting the very best lands, and by their untiring efforts, energy and perseverance assisted in making that wilderness the garden spot of fair Pennsylvania. The first humble dwellings were replaced by spacious stone houses and fine barns. These homesteads have already housed several generations and bid fair to shelter many more.

There are no traditions in the Swope family showing that they had any trouble with the Indians. Their nearest Indian neighbors were the Piquaws and Conestogas of Lancaster county. History tells us "'they were the best disposed and most tractable of all the natives with whom the whites ever came in contact. They were extremely hospitable to the early settlers, furnishing them from their own stores with no stinted hands whenever called upon. The Huguenots and Palatines often joined the Piquaws in their fishing and hunting excursions and in other pastimes. Their principal chief was Tauawa, who sold his lands to Penn and was present at the "Great Treaty." The kindly reception given by this chief to Madam Mary Ferre is given elsewhere in the book. The Conestogas were, in 1763, all murdered by the "Paxtang Boys" for depredations and murders that they alleged had been perpetrated by them, but which has not been very clearly proven.

OUR ANCESTORS.

By Belle McKinney Swope.

Beside the sparkling waters of the Rhine,
Where lies the land of the Palatinate so fair,
Are vales of beauty, peaceful and sublime,
And lofty mountains rise in grandeur there.
Beneath the shadows of these towering heights,
The stately spires of Heidelberg look down
On fertile fields of richest verdure rare,
And nestled 'neath the hill, the historic town.

Among these haunts of legend and of song
Through which the storied Rhine and Neckar run,
There dwelt a goodly people, brave and true,
Whose noble Christian lives were here begun.

Yea, staunch and firm, a strong and fearless race
For naught but God and native land loved they,
With steadfast purpose pressing toward the goal,
The great high God above their constant stay.
They walked with Him and in Him put their trust,
They murmured not, nor did they e'en complain
When heavily bowed beneath the chastening rod,
And hearts were sorely wrung with untold pain.

But not for long were dreams of comfort their's
Amidst the beauty of the fatherland.
The tiny kindled sparks that dormant lay
Burst forth and into flames were quickly fanned,
The French King Louis murderous orders gave,
And sent his merciless army to invade,
Destroy and waste the valley of the Rhine,
And through that region make destructive raid.
They came with flaunting colors and banners waving
A brilliant, glittering, devastating train.
And soon the snowy fields and highways broad
Were blackened with the bodies of the slain.
From tall church spires and castles ivy clad,
Burst wildly forth on the cold, frosty air,
Huge tongues of fire that laid in ashy heaps Loved homes and landmarks that had been so fair.

The earnest prayer of thousands ne'er awoke
One chord of pity in the monarch's heart.
From life-long footpaths dear and often trod,
The gray-haired sire and child were bade depart.
From distant tips of snowy mountain crests,
To fairest nooks in lonely woodland dells,
A cry of deepest anguish did arise,
As weirdest notes of solemn funeral knells.

The sun's glad rays ne'er shone on darker scene
No sadder picture could the light reveal.
A cruel blot on history's fairest page,
For there the King of France had put his seal.

As helpless outcasts driven from their homes,
As lonely wanderers turned from cottage doors,
Some sought repose in England's sunny clime,
While many sailed to America's fair shores,
But our ancestors, those of whom we write,
Though driven to desperation and despair,
And draining to the dregs the bitter cup
Of hopeless pain and suffering, lingered there.
Their ancient hearthstones they were loath to leave
In the German fatherland so dear,
Where friends and kinsfolk learned the ways of life
Through darkest times or days of gladsome cheer.

But religious persecution as a tide,
That ebbed and flowed as waves on every hand,
Awakened in their hearts a strong desire
To plant their homes in this fair, happy land.
Where they, according to their old belief
As humble followers, true in faith and tried,
Could reverently worship here, in godly fear
Without restraint, their heavenly King and Guide.

The spring of seventeen hundred and twenty it was,
The dangers of the angry deep they braved,
And found among the hills of good old Penn
The refuge and the liberty they craved.
Their courteous manners and gentle, kindly speech
Soon won the hearts of neighboring Indian tribes,
Who saw as on their honest faces stamped,
The purity of moral, upright lives.
And aided by these dusky savage friends,
Their homes were built beneath the forests' shade
And by their thrifty zeal and industry,
Those wilds into a garden spot were made.
The hills that echoed with cries of startled deer,
Or marked by naught but a winding Indian trail,
Were changed through time to fertile fields of grain,
And spacious dwelling dotted hill and dale.

As time rolled on and touched with gentle hand
The passing years that stopped not in their flight,
Fair daughters of these ancient worthies wed,
And by their presence other lives made bright.
From out the homestead also sons went forth,
To do life's work and rear their own fair homes,
Success about them shed her glowing beams,
And o'er their paths the stars of honor shone.

The land of their adoption soon became
Most dear, and well did they defend her rights.
For liberty they faced the British guns,
And served their country in the civil strife.
Some sang the sweet old songs of Dixie land,
And proudly did they wear the southern gray,
Whilst others bore aloft the stars and stripes,
And wore the blue throughout the bloody fray.

To-day some sit where northern roses bloom,
And some beneath the southern summer skies,
While over all the land their hearthfires burn,
From eastern coasts to where the Rockies rise.
The name we bear is honored and esteemed,
And into prominence has also grown.
In legislative halls and at the bar,
And in the councils of the nation known.
Upon the bench of justice some do sit,
And some there are who preach the word of life.
For worthy sons of worthy sires are they
In all their varied walks and ways upright.

Oh, blessed be the memory of the Swabs,
Whose sacred bones in dust now crumbling lie.
A goodly heritage they left to us;
They taught us how to live and how to die.
CHAPTER IV.

YOST SWOPE—HIS BIRTH IN GERMANY—HIS SETTLEMENT IN LANCASTER CO., PA.

I. Yost (Joseph) Swope,¹ the founder of this branch of the Swope family in America, was born on the 22d of February, 1678, in the town of Sinsheim, in the Duchy of Baden, a part of the old Duchy of Swabia, Germany. His father was a burger and Burgomaster of the town of Liemen, a place of about 2,700 inhabitants near Heidelberg. There the father died; after his death, a short time, the youngest child, Yost, was born. He married in early manhood and lived in Liemen, his son John was born there in 1704. Early in 1720, Yost Swope determined to seek his fortune in the New World. He, together with his wife and five children, set sail for America in the spring of that year, and in due time safely arrived here. Yost Swope must have been an exemplary man from the recommendation given him by his pastor before his departure for America. The original is still in existence in the hands of Adam Swope, of Lancaster Co., Pa., and notwithstanding its age, 175 years, is fairly well preserved. In 1848 a translation was made from the German. We here give it in its quaint style:

*Lectoria Salutine;

or,

Pentalem Ammgemen a Salutis Oceana.

After the death of her husband, a burger and Burgomaster in Liemen under Burstrasser in Kurpaltz, Anna Katharine Swope was delivered of her youngest son, Yost Swope. Both were Evangelical Lutheran in religion, and received into the church of Christ with the rest of the beloved family. As they intend to depart for a strange land, I herewith attest to their Christian character and the life they led up to this time, having long been their pastor and spiritual adviser. As their fide pastorale, I willingly testify that the above-named Anna Katharine and her beloved son, Yost, have always been honest and pious as becomes God-fearing Christians and lovers of Christ and his church. And we have no knowledge of them excepting what is noble and good, naught but praise.
The All-Helper be their support and guide, and bless their coming and going, and grant all their wishes with the richest blessings, both on earth and in heaven, ever partaking of the Holy Communion.

M. John Cristoph Schrenik,
Pastor Evan. Lutheran Kirche.

Lienen, May 5, 1720.

On his arrival in America, Yost Swope went to Lancaster county, Pa., and bought from the Provincial Government one thousand acres of land* in Upper Leacock township, where he lived until his death in 1735. He was buried in a graveyard on his place, where his remains rested until 1884, when they, together with those of his wife, were moved to Heller's churchyard, Lancaster county, where rest the remains of many of his descendants.

The following interesting account of the removal of the remains was published at the time:† "Yost Swope. Remains reinterred to-day, after having been buried 149 years. In 1720, Yost Swope, with his son John, the latter having been the great-grandfather of Zuriel Swope, Esq., of this city, came to this country from near Heidelberg, Germany, and settled on 1,000 acres of land one mile north of Bird-in-Hand, this county. A portion of the original homestead of 1,000 acres remains in the family to this day. The present owner is

*Wherever we have found anyone who has had a knowledge of Yost Swope, there we have also found the tradition that he "took up" 1,000 acres of land in Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa. This we are unable to prove, as no deeds have been found. Our conclusion, based on all the information we could gather, is that he did take up the land intending to pay for it on time, as was often done by the eyearly settlers, but died before he had paid for it, and his interest passed to his daughters and was lost sight of in the change of name. His son John had already been provided for with 630 acres.

† The Lancaster New Era of March 22, 1884.
Daniel Swope, and his son, Adam D. Swope, farms the place. The remains of the original Yost Swope were buried in the corner of the orchard, about forty rods from the old dwelling, and on Monday of last week it became necessary to remove the remains. Digging in the earth to the depth of seven feet, a stone slab was encountered, and it bore the inscription, '1735, Y. S.,' showing that Yost Swope had been buried there in 1735. The slab was lifted and there lay the bones of the original ancestor of the Swopes of Lancaster county, and notwithstanding the burial had taken place 149 years ago, the skeleton was complete. Besides Yost Swope's remains were those of his wife, and near the skull was quite a quantity of female hair. To-day the solemn service of reinterring these ancient and wonderfully preserved remains took place at Heller's Church, and we venture the assertion that no other family in Lancaster county can lay claim to such an experience.

We have the birth records of the five children of Yost Swope, but nothing more regarding them, except his son John, from whom the family here recorded are descended.

THE GRAVE OF YOST SWOPE MARKED BY THE CROSS.
BAPTISMAL CERTIFICATE OF JOHN SWOPE.
CHAPTER V.

JOHN SWOPE OF UPPER LEACOCK TOWNSHIP, LANCASTER CO., PA.

II. John Swope² (Yost³) was born May 26, 1704, in Leimen, a town of about 2,700 inhabitants, of which his grandfather was burgomaster, in the Duchy of Baden, Germany. He was baptized on the 28th day of the same month, as is here shown by a translation of his baptismal certificate from the German:

"John Swope, son of Mr. Yost Swope, a citizen of the parish of Leimen, was baptized the 28th day of May, 1704. The sponsors were John Kitzmüller and Dorulicker Müller of the Dornmüller (district) near the town of Wisloch. This is a correct copy from the church records of Leimen, near Heidelberg.

J. G. Kirckmayer, Paster of Leimen.

May 5, 1720."

In 1720 he emigrated with his father to America and settled in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster Co., Pa., on land purchased from the Provincial Government. This land was cleared, made tillable and divided into farms, which he bequeathed to his sons at his death. In addition to farming he was also engaged in the pottery business.

He married first in 1725, Anna Dorothea Line, daughter of John Line, who died in 1740. They had issue as follows, all born on the old homestead in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster Co., Pa.:

i. John Swope, b. Sept. 27, 1726. He married and lived in Lancaster city. At his death he left a widow and daughter five months old, who soon after died. The widow afterwards married George Sprecher.

ii. George Michael Swope, b. Dec. 10, 1727, married, and died 1758. He left two children, John and Catharine. John was born Aug. 12, 1756. The baptismal records of Trinity Lutheran Church give his baptism as Jan. 22, 1757. He is supposed to be Dr. John Swope, a surgeon of the Revolutionary War. Tradition says that "prior to his departure for the front, in passing the Lancaster County Hotel, on East King street, everyone, especially the ladies, remarked upon his fine appearance." Catharine married Casper Balser.

iii. ELIZABETH SWOPE, b. July 31, 1729; died unmarried.
iv. ANNA BARBARA SWOPE, b. Mar. 12, 1731; m. Philip Gloninger.

vi. ANNA CATHARINE SWOPE, b. Mar. 15, 1734; m. Ludwig Schott, of Lebanon. She is known to have had three sons—John, b. 1739; George, b. 1765; Jacob, b. 1772.

vii. JOHN CONRAD SWOPE, b. May 31, 1736; m. Clara Shriver.

viii. MARGARET SWOPE, b. Mar. 27, 1738; m. George Diehl, and left children at her death in Lancaster county.

ix. ANNA DOROTHEA SWOPE, b. Jan. 4, 1740.
x. No record.

John Swope, in 1742, married, secondly, ELIZABETH GROVE (Groff or Greve). Their marriage contract is extant, a copy of which we give; it is somewhat in form to that now used by the Society of Friends. These contracts were common in those days, and we have seen one in exactly the same form, written by the same justice of the peace, for Daniel Ferree, Jr., and Mary Carpenter (Zimmerman).

"Pennsylvania, County of Lancaster,"

Whereas, John Swope and Catharine Elizabeth Greve, both of the said County of Lancaster, having made a publication of their intention of marrying as the law of said Province directs— This is therefore to certify to all persons whom it may concern, that on the 25th day of May, 1742, came before me, Emanuel Carpenter, one of the justices of the peace of the said County of Lancaster, the said John Swope and Catharine Elizabeth Greve, and the said John Swope, before a solemn assembly for that purpose met and appointed, did openly declare that he took the said Catharine Elizabeth Greve to be his wedded wife, promising to be unto her a loving and faithful husband, until death should separate them. And she, the said Catharine Elizabeth Greve, did in like manner declare that she took the said John Swope to be her wedded husband, promising to be unto him a loving, faithful and obedient wife until death should separate them. In testimony thereof both the parties hereunto have set their hands. She, after the custom of many, assuming the surname of her husband. We whose names are hereunto subscribed being witnesses present at the solemnization, the day and year above written.

John Schwab,
Catharine Elizabeth Schwab.

Emanuel Carpenter,
Justice of the Peace.

This contract was signed by nineteen witnesses, many of them the ancestors of old Lancaster county families. The second wife of John Swope died Aug. 14, 1776. He survived her until Dec. 18, 1780, when he died. He was buried in the graveyard of the Old Hellers (Salem) Church, about a mile from his home, where repose five generations of the family.

From the provisions of his will he must have accumulated a considerable estate for those early days. The home plantation he bequeathed to his son, John Daniel, and it is still owned by his descendants. To his sons Jacob, Adam and Henry he gave each a farm. To his other children and grandchildren he left various sums ranging from fifty to one hundred and twenty-five pounds each. By his second marriage he had issue as follows:

xi. Maria Juliana Swope, b. March 17, 1743.

xii. John Jacob Swope, b. June 9, 1744; m. Sabina Smyser.

xiii. Christiana Swope, b Nov. 10, 1745.

xvi. Susana Swope, b. May 22, 1750. She died unmarried Aug. 13, 1776, and is buried in the graveyard of Salem Church, in the same grave with her mother. The grave is marked by a stone on which is cut two female figures.

xvii. John Daniel Swope, b. Nov. 4, 1751; m. Elizabeth Grabill.

xviii. Anna Elizabeth Swope, b. Nov. 12, 1753; died Feb. 12, 1773. She was probably a favorite daughter, as her grave in Salem churchyard is marked by an elaborately cut tombstone.

xix. John Adam Swope, b. May 2, 1756; m. Sarah Grabill.

CHAPTER VI.

ANNA BARBARA SWOPE AND PHILIP GLONINGER.
TOGETHER WITH THEIR DESCENDANTS.

I. ANNA BARBARA SWOPE\(^3\) (John\(^2\), Yost\(^1\)), the fourth child of John and Anna Dorothea (Line) Swope, was born in the homestead in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., March 12, 1731. Her father had employed on the farm a young man named *Philip Gloninger, who won the affections of the daughter, Anna Barbara. He being an industrious and capable man, met with favor in the eyes of the father and married the daughter. Philip Gloninger was born in the Palatinate, Germany, and was one of the sufferers from the desolation of that fair country. He came to America at about 28 years of age. After the marriage of PHILIP GLONINGER and Anna Barbara Swope, they moved to Lebanon township (now Lebanon county) where they lived until death. The old Gloninger home is still standing on the the south bank of Quitapahilla creek. In early days it was known as the Gloninger "Fort." During the Indian wars it was used as a place of refuge by the inhabitants of the surrounding country from the Indians. †"It is a good specimen of the solid architecture of the early days, with its piked roof and original port holes for windows, and serves as an interesting landmark because here the first Gloninger lived, from whom has descended locally quite an illustrious family." George, son of Philip and Anna Barbara Gloninger, seems to have been the oldest, and remained on the old homestead as farmer. Philip died December 11, 1796, and Anna Barbara, September 23, 1810. They are both buried in the graveyard of the Reformed church at Lebanon, Pa. They had several daughters, of whom we have no record. Their sons were as follows:—

2. i. George Gloninger, m. Mary Funk.
4. iii. Peter Gloninger, b. Sept. 14, 1763; m. first wife unknown; m., secondly, Eliza Keller.
   iv. Valentine Gloninger, b. June 11, 1776; d. March 24, 1844. He was unmarried. He lived and died at Lebanon, Pa., and is buried in the Reformed graveyard at that place.

II. George Gloninger¹, (Anna B. (Swope) Gloninger², John Swope³, Yost Swope¹), was born in Lebanon township, Lebanon county, Pa. He there grew to manhood and became a farmer, occupying the old homestead. He was not a man who was ambitious for public office, but was highly esteemed and an important man in the community. He was possessed of considerable means, as is shown by his will. He married Mary, daughter of Martin Funk, of the same township. They had three children, as follows:—

   i. Dr. George Gloninger, who died in Philadelphia, Pa., about 1850, unmarried.
   ii. Elizabeth Gloninger, b. 1792; d. 1868. She married Jacob Sheaffer and had three children—Henry, Philip and Kate, all of whom married.
   5. iii. Mary Gloninger, b. 1798; d. 1827 (?); m. 1814 Christian Swope.

III. Hon. John Gloninger¹, (Anna B. (Swope) Gloninger², John Swope³, Yost Swope¹) was born in Lebanon township, Lebanon county, Pa., Sept. 19, 1750. He received most of his education from the pastor of the Reformed church, as it was quite a common thing in those early days for the pastor to receive into his study the brighter youths of his church for instruction, or to teach a parochial school. On the breaking out of the Revolutionary war he enlisted, and towards the close was in command of a battalion of militia. The Supreme Executive Council appointed him county lieutenant on the organization of Dauphin county, May 6, 1785. In 1790 he was elected a representative to the General Assembly. This office he shortly after resigned, and was then elected to the State Senate. This office he held for two years and then resigned. He was a warm friend of Governor Mifflin, who appointed him one of the associate judges of the county of Dauphin. On the erection of the county of Lebanon, in 1813, he was commissioned one of the associate judges, which office he filled until 1821. Judge Gloninger was a man very highly respected and beloved. He married Catharine, daughter of Adam and Catharine (Kucher) Orth. She was born Oct. 31, 1767, and died June 17, 1848. John Gloninger died Jan. 22, 1836, and is buried in the Reformed graveyard at Lebanon. They had issue as follows:—

   In the schools of his native town he prepared himself for entrance into Dickinson College, where he completed his literary course. He then went to Baltimore, where he studied theology, and was subsequently ordained to the ministry of the Reformed Church. In 1808 he accepted a call to the Reformed Church at Harrisburg. Here he labored very successfully for several years. He was gifted with fine pulpit abilities, and soon rose to a prominent position in his church. His health failed in 1814, and he resigned his charge and returned to Lebanon, where he died on Sept. 10, 1816. The Rev. Gloninger married, in 1810, Eliza Clark, who survived him.

6 ii. Mary Gloninger, b. May 9, 1788; m. Rev. Jonathan Helfensteine.

7. iii. Dr. John W. Gloninger, b. Sept. 23, 1798; m. Mary A. Hassinger.

IV. Capt. Peter Gloninger (Anna B. (Swope) Gloninger, John Swope, Yost Swope.) was born in Lebanon township, Lancaster (now Lebanon) Co., Pa., Sept. 14, 1763. He resided in Lebanon. He was captain in the Fourth Battalion, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Baltzer Orth, in 1789 and 1790. He was elected a County Commissioner in 1815. In his domestic relations he was ever the fond father and affectionate husband. Sedate in manner, and of a quiet, thoughtful turn of mind. He was twice married. The name of his first wife is unknown; she died early in life, leaving one son, who was reared by her relatives in Baltimore, Md. After a residence of many years in Lebanon he moved to
The Swope Family.

Baltimore, where he remained until 1832, when he removed to Canal Dover, Ohio, where he bought large tracts of land, a part of which is yet owned and occupied by his descendants. The issue of his first marriage was—

ii. JOHN GLOINGER, b. May 26, 1803; m. Mary J. Ringgold.

Capt. Gloninger m., secondly, Maria Eliza Keller, who was born Aug. 29, 1792 and died July 21, 1859. She was buried in the cemetery at Canal Dover, at the side of her husband, who died Dec. 2, 1835. They had the following children:—

    ii. PHILIP GLOINGER, b. Jan. 27, 1816; d. Feb. 15, 1818.
10. iii. CATHARINE GLOINGER, b. June 14, 1819; m. Samuel Kuhn.
    iv. DANIEL KELLER GLOINGER, b. July 11, 1821; d. Aug. 19, 1848; unmarried.

V. MARY GLOINGER⁵ (George Gloninger⁴, Anna B. (Swope) Gloninger³, John Swope², Yost Swope¹) was born 1798 and died about 1827. She married Christian Swope, of Lebanon Co., Pa., b. 1791, d. 1877, and is buried at Millersburg, Berks Co., Pa. (See Chap. XIV.) They had the following children:—

i. LUCY SWOPE, died in infancy, 1816.

The following year he went to New York and attended lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, where he graduated April 1, 1819. In 1820 he returned to his native place and commenced the practice of his profession. In a short time he was the leading physician of the town. He was a careful and conscientious general practitioner. His specialty was diseases of the eye. During the early years of his practice he was a frequent contributor to the medical periodicals of the day. He was president of the Lebanon bank for twenty-six years, and a trustee of Marshall College for a number of years. He was deeply interested and took an active part in the work of the Reformed church, to which he contributed liberally of his means.

His mother died when he was a small boy, and he was taken and reared by her relatives in Baltimore, Md. They being Catholics, he was brought up in the faith of that church: his descendants also are members of the Catholic church. He married June 8, 1828, Mary J. Ringgold, b. Nov. 4, 1804, d. 1863, Pittsburgh, Pa. She was a daughter of John Ringgold, of Baltimore, of the family of the fighting Maj. Ringgold, famous in the Mexican war, and a first cousin of Archbishop Eccleston, fifth Archbishop of Baltimore. Mrs. Gloninger possessed a mind of rare vigor, which had received most careful culture. Her memory was strong and retentive, and remained unimpaired until the end of her life. She distinctly remembered the stirring scenes of the war of 1812 as occurred in the vicinity of Baltimore. Her mind had a strong poetical bent, and next to her church the poets gave her the greatest enjoyment. Four children were the issue of this union:—

15. ii. Alice E. Gloninger, m. Redmond J. Grace.
16. iii. John Ringgold Gloninger, m. Mary Ledlie.
17. iv. Mary Augusta Gloninger, m. Gilbert de Lafayette de Balan Fetterman.

She married, Oct. 18, 1831, John Hildt, of Lebanon, Pa. They at once went west and settled at Canal Dover, Ohio. In her church relations she was a zealous Methodist, but charitable to those outside of that fold. She possessed a kindly spirit of humor, and marked generosity pervaded her life, which endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. She died April 24, 1892, and rests in the Fourth St. Cemetery at Canal Dover, O. They had four children, as follows:—

1. Mary C. Hildt, b. Oct. 13, 1832, d. June 6, 1895. She passed the greatest part of her girlhood in Canal Dover, but sometime previous to her marriage moved with her parents to New Philadelphia, O., where she was united in marriage to Upton Deardorf, Dec. 8, 1852. The newly wedded couple set up their household gods on a fine farm on the outskirts of Canal Dover, and there resided for many years, afterwards locating permanently in Canal Dover. This union was blessed with nine children, five of whom are living. Mrs. Deardorf was a kind, benevolent friend to all in distress. In church relations she and her husband were earnest workers in the M. E. church. She was laid to rest in the cemetery at Canal Dover. Mourned she must be, but the memory of her beautiful spirit and life is fresh in the hearts of all who knew her.

ii. Col. George Henry Hildt was born Oct. 11, 1835. He is a veteran of the late war, having enlisted in 1861, in Co. F, Sixteenth Ohio Infantry. At the battle of Vicksburg he was wounded, and resigned and returned home. Since the war he has been engaged as pension claim agent. At one time he held the position of clerk in the office of Secretary of State of Ohio. He is a member of the Loyal Legion of the U. S., and vice-president of the Army of the Tennessee. In religion he is a Methodist. Col. Hildt married Nov. 25, 1875, Mrs. Angie Switzer. Two sons were born of this union.

E, Eightieth Ohio Infantry Vol. When the war was virtually over he resigned and returned to the peaceful pursuits of life, engaging in the manufacture of salt and bromine. Capt. Hildt was a generous, large hearted man, possessed of a strong will power and determination; no obstacle was sufficiently great to prevent him from reaching his object. He died May 21, 1887. Cut down just at the zenith of his career, his death left a sadness and vacancy in the hearts of a host of friends.

X. Catharine Gloninger (Peter Gloninger, Anna B. (Swope) Gloninger, John Swope, Yost Swope,) was b. June 14, 1819, in Lebanon, Pa. At an early age she removed, with her parents, to Baltimore and from thence to Canal Dover, O. At the age of 16 years she united with the M. E. church of that place, and for half a century was a devoted member. To her belongs the credit of having organized the first Sunday-school at that place. She was foremost in all christian and benevolent work in the church and neighborhood. She died Sept. 3, 1889, and peacefully sleeps by the side of loved ones gone before, but her works do follow her. She was joined in marriage to Samuel Kuhn, Aug. 18, 1842, and to them were born the following children:—

He then left the home roof and went fourth to battle with the world, but the struggle was a brief one. Health failing, he returned home and for two years manfully fought the fell destroyer, disease. Just in the prime of life he was cut down, May 12, 1885. In temperament he was peculiarly bright and sunshiny, seeing naught but the bright side of life. In early manhood he became a member of the M. E. church.

iv. Emma Maria Kuhn, was born Dec. 3, 1863, in the old homestead located on a part of the old Gloninger tract of land. As she expresses it, her "occupation is acting in the capacity of a girl bachelor and farmeress. In this line her time is fully occupied." She still resides in the old home, and cherishes the fond memories and associations which cling to it of those of her forefathers and loved ones gone before.

CHAPTER VII.

CONRAD AND CLARA SWOPE, OF HANOVER, PA.,

AND ADAM, AND THEIR DESCENDANTS.

I. Conrad Swope, the third son of John Swope, was born in the old homestead in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., on May 31, 1736. Being one of the older children of his father's large family, he early left the paternal roof and "went west." Although the journey consumed several days at that time of slow methods of travel, he did not go farther than the adjoining county of York and settled at Hanover. There he married about 1760 or 1762, Clara Shriver, as tradition says; we have, however, no records to show her family name. He was a man of kindly disposition and warm affections, finding his chief enjoyment in home and the family circle. He was a confirmed member of the old Conewago (St. Matthew's) Lutheran Church, Hanover, and was an elder in the same for many years. He took great pleasure and was faithful in the discharge of all his church duties. He reared his children in his faith and most of his descendants have been identified with the Lutheran Church. He died Aug. 3, 1799, sincerely regretted, not only by his family, but by the community at large. Four hundred and fifty persons are descended from him, but only seven living males bear the Swope name. His will shows him to have been in comfortable circumstances. He left his wife well provided for and bequests to each of his children. His wife, Clara Shriver, was born July 8, 1737; died April 18, 1812. They had issue as follows:—

2. i. JOHN SWOPE, b. Oct. 10, 1763; m. Catharine Karl.

He died Feb. 13, 1842, a member of the Lutheran Church and is buried, together with several of his children and his wife, in the graveyard adjoining that church in Taneytown. His house at the edge of Taneytown, known as "Locust Grove," is a fine old mansion, where hospitality was dispensed in true Maryland style. It was the resort for four generations of the family, who always found there a warm welcome. Many are the childish recollections of visits to Locust Grove and romps with the slaves, who were afterwards liberated, but remained devoted to the family. Dr. Swope was an active member of the Lutheran Church, not only at home, but in his Synod. Although he had no children, he and his estimable wife raised several nieces. He was the Republican candidate for a seat in the Senate of Maryland, but being of the minority party was defeated. He married Margaret Bruce Scott, of an influential Carroll county, Md., family, descended from the distinguished Bruce family of Scotland. He was a member of the Lutheran Church. He married LYDIA SPANGLER, of York county, Pa., who was born Aug. 15, 1785; d. Dec. 20, 1841. She was a woman loved for her many virtues; she was gentle and amiable almost to a fault. Her marriage to Adam Swope was the second time the Spangler and Swope families had intermarried. Her great aunt, a daughter of Casper Spangler, one of the pioneers of York county, married Col. VI. CATHARINE SWOPE (John, Conrad, John, Yost), was born in Hanover, May 16, 1796. She is described by her granddaughter, Mrs. Blanche Smeltzer, as follows: "Catharine Swope was married to HENRY WIRT, March 9, 1815. She was gowned in white satin, low neck, short sleeves, with long, white gloves. All her married life was spent in Hanover, where for fifty years she lived in ease and comfort. Early in life she and her housekeeper spun upon a spinning wheel the thread for their garments and yarn for their stockings, as well as flax for household linen, many a piece of which is treasured in her family, spun before the fireplace whilst the burning logs crackled and roared during the winter evenings.

Her children were all given the best education the times afforded, and all were taught music upon a square mahogany piano, a rare instrument in those days. After the death of her husband she and her granddaughter, Blanche, lived together when death called her home, April 19, 1876. She was beloved by all who knew her, charitable and liberal, a lovely face, fair and gentle." Her husband, Henry Wirt, was born Oct. 19, 1789; d. April 14, 1859. He was a son of Christian Wirt of Hanover, Pa. He succeeded his father in
The Swope Family.

The latter's mercantile business, and after retiring from active pursuits took great interest in all the movements which were made for the good of the town of Hanover. He was first lieutenant of the company commanded by Capt. Metzger, which marched to the defense of Baltimore in 1814. He helped to organize the first Sunday-school in the town, and also to introduce the common-school system there. He was also interested in the building of the Hanover Branch R. R. They had issue as follows:—

   vii. Henry Wirt was born in Hanover, Feb. 23, 1827. His education was begun in the schools of his native town, but the rudimentary course which they afforded could not satisfy his keen and aspiring mind. By judicious and careful reading he acquired more than ordinary mental discipline and culture. At the age of twenty he took charge of his father's store in his own name, and continued in business until 1850. He was married, October 26, 1854, to Louisa, daughter of Mathias N. and Amanda (Nace) Forney. Although no children were born to them, their home, by its quiet, social cheer and Christian refinement, was the centre of a large circle of relatives and friends. Mr. Wirt was actively identified with the public interests of Hanover, and served in various capacities and positions of trust. Shortly before his death he showed his devotion to his native town by donating to it an entire square as a common playground. "Henry Wirt Park" very fittingly perpetuates his name. From early manhood he was an active member of Emanuel's Reformed Church, representing his Classis and Synod in many important positions. He was prominently identified with the educational and benevolent operations of his denomination, and contributed liberally to their support. He gave $5,000 toward the endowment of a Professorship in the Theological Seminary at Lancaster. By bequest he also contributed several thousand dollars to various benevolent purposes. But while Henry Wirt exerted wide influence through his public and official relations, and his generous benefactions, his name is best known and will long be cherished, because of what he was in his personal character. No sketch, however fully extended, can exhibit the value of his sterling manly qualities, or measure the influence of his faithful Christian life. He died Dec. 9, 1890.

Her daughter says "her life was one of the most beautiful I ever knew. Modest—indeed, retiring of disposition, with the sweetest face and temper; temper that seemed never to be

He was educated at Pennsylvania College, in his native town. Being a man of fine taste he chose art as his profession, and he became a very skillful portrait painter. This, however, was injurious to his health, and he gradually relinquished his profession. He subsequently purchased large tracts of land in Pulaski Co., Va., where he developed several zinc mines which he is now extensively operating. He married MARY J. WARREN, who was born Aug., 1836. They had issue as follows:—

i. ELSIE FORNEY, b. Aug 5, 1882.

He received his education at Oak Ridge Academy and Pennsylvania College. In 1849 he joined a company for California. They spent the winter of '49 and '50 at Salt Lake with the Mormons. Continuing their journey in the Spring they crossed the Sierra Madre mountains with no guidance but blazed trees at long intervals. He began prospecting in 1851, but not being successful he left California for Oregon, where he remained a year. Returning to California he spent some time in vainly "wooing fickle fortune." He returned to his home in Gettysburg 1859. The following year he bought the farm on which he now resides, 1½ miles north of Gettysburg, on Seminary Ridge. This farm is part of the historic battlefield of Gettysburg. About the 28th of June, 1863, Jenkins' Cavalry, an advance scouting party of the Confederate Army occupied the place, and a few days later, during the battle, the house was made the headquarters of General Ewell. Just above the house was placed the largest gun of the Confederate army, which discharged its shell over Gettysburg to Round Top, a distance of four miles. Everything about the place was completely destroyed by the battle except the house and barn, and they were well riddled by shot and shell. The house now bears but few scars from that memorable event, the skill of the artisan having erased them, while the well-kept terraces of the lawn gives no evidence of the terrible combat that raged on its surface, or the brave men who were embraced in its bosom, after giving up their lives for their country. The farm is now marked by some of the finest monuments on the battlefield and traversed by several avenues. Mrs. Forney relates some very thrilling experiences incident to the battle. One was her escape from her home with an infant in her arms at midnight, through a country filled with soldiers, to her father's house, a mile away. Another was her return to her home during the battle and her efforts to save from destruct-

After finishing his schooling he learned the printing business under Mr. Henry Frick, proprietor of the Miltonian. After serving his apprenticeship he concluded to take a trip "West," and accomplished the entire journey on horseback. Being of a speculative turn of mind, he made considerable money while there, but the old "Keystone" State had for him greater charms, and he returned and opened a general store in Mifflinburg, Pa. He afterwards removed to Muncy, then to Lewisburg, where he continued the mercantile business until a few months before his death, when he retired from active business with the prospect of a life of ease and comfort. He died suddenly, on the anniversary of his 75th birthday, May 21, 1889, and his remains were laid to rest in the Lewisburg cemetery. He was a man who was temperate in all things, methodical in his habits, and a good business man. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and took a strong stand in the cause of temperance. He never married.

IV. Mathias Swope¹ (John Jacob², John³, Yost⁴) was born, Jan. 24, 1780, in Lancaster Co., Pa. He lived there until a few years previous to his death, when he moved to Ohio and settled near Dayton, where he died, Sept. 1, 1854. He married Sarah Becker, who was born June 5, 1793; d. EMANUEL SWOPE.
9, 1864. His early educational advantages were confined to the subscription schools of his day, but he had an inquiring mind and great natural talent, good sound judgment and extraordinary foresight. These characteristics soon won for him a commanding position in the community in which he lived. He was the counsellor of his neighborhood. Every one in trouble went to him for advice, comfort and help, and he was frequently called upon to arbitrate differences arising among his neighbors. Because of his unquestionable integrity he was often made the executor of the estates of his neighbors, and was the guardian of numerous children, several of whom he reared in his own family, and when they arrived at their majority gave them a substantial start in life. He was a progressive farmer, was constantly experimenting in farming, stock raising and fruit growing. His model farms gave evidence that his methods were the best. Besides being interested in agriculture, he was connected with other business enterprises; he was one of the founders and for thirty years a director in the Lancaster County National Bank. He was a stockholder in the Lancaster Gas Company and one of twelve owners of the nickel mines. He was a man of fine physique, was over 6 feet tall, and weighed 280 pounds. From early manhood he was a faithful member of Zion’s Lutheran Church of Mechanicsburg, Lancaster county. He was very pronounced in his religious views, thinking no church equal to his own, and no bible equal to "Luther’s Bible," of which he was a constant student. During his later years he developed quite a fondness for traveling and made several trips to Canada, where he had landed interests; while there he tried to induce the Canadians to adopt Lancaster county methods of farming, but in this he was not very successful; they seemed to know that bleak, sterile Canada could not be made to smile as Pennsylvania’s garden spot, Lancaster county. Emanuel Swope at one time was considered one of the wealthiest citizens of Lancaster county, but his generosity and many benefactions reduced his fortune to a moderate size at his death, which occurred in 1872. He was laid to rest by the side of his wife in Zion’s Lutheran graveyard at Mechanicsburg. They had issue as follows:—
The Swope Family.

18. i. ISAAC SWOPE, b. Dec. 22, 1812; married, first, Amelia Carothers; m., secondly, Rachel Ludwig.

VII. FREDERICK SWOPE (John Jacob, John, Yost) was born, Sept. 17, 1790, in Lancaster county, Pa.; d. Nov. 27, 1853. He was a farmer by occupation, and owned part of the original Swope tract, which passed out of the Swope name at his death. He was twice married—first to MARY BARE. They had children as follows:

20. i. DAVID SWOPE, b. May 3, 1813; m. Rebecca Corfield.

21. ii. MARY SWOPE, b. May 5, 1814; m. Elias Bare.

22. iii. EMANUEL SWOPE, b. Oct. 10, 1815; m. Catharine Bare.

23. iv. LEAH SWOPE, b. Oct. 4, 1817; m. Michael Bender.

Frederick Swope, married, secondly, ELIZABETH, daughter of John Bard, of Lancaster county, Pa. They had issue as follows:

i. SAMUEL SWOPE, b. Nov. 8, 1817; d. Jan. 25, 1848.

27. iii. SALOME SWOPE; m. Charles H. Kelley.

IX. DANIEL SWOPE (Jacob, John Jacob, John, Yost) was born, Aug. 19, 1812, in Womelsdorf, Pa. Died, June 30, 1892, from old age. He lived in Lancaster city over forty years. During this time he was engaged in a number of business enterprises, one being the manufacture of matches, which he carried on for a number of years. At the time of his death he was engaged in the pottery business, which he had successfully operated for thirty years. He was for many years a consistent member of St. John's Lutheran Church. He married ELIZABETH SOUSMAN, who was born Aug. 8, 1826; died Feb. 3, 1892. They had issue as follows:

28. i. JOHN C. SWOPE, b. July 1, 1849; m. Lavina A. Jefferies.
X. Zuriel Swope, born March 16, 1818, in the old home in Leacock township, Lancaster county. He was early sent to the subscription school of his neighborhood, and having a bright and inquiring mind he obtained a good education for his advantages. Before he was twenty years of age he went to Philadelphia to learn tailoring "after the latest improved methods." Tailoring not being to his taste, he taught school in Leacock township in 1838. He afterwards went to Lancaster and read medicine, but the horrors of the dissecting table drove him from the medical profession. In 1844 he entered the law office of Col. Reah Frazier as a student-at-law, and was admitted to the Lancaster County Bar in 1846. For 49 years he successfully practiced his profession, retiring in 1895, through the infirmities of age. Although not noted as a criminal lawyer he had a large civil practice. Zuriel Swope is a man of much inventive genius; this showed itself in early youth and developed as he attained manhood. When but a lad he invented a successful arrangement for igniting spunk without the use of flint or steel. Much of his leisure time has been spent with his inventions, more for the sake of the pleasure he obtained from it than with a view of profit. He has completed not less than twenty inventions, and some of a very practical character. The Swope family are greatly indebted to him for having preserved records of the early Swoopes that otherwise would have been lost. His interest in genealogy began with his efforts to establish the claim of his branch of the Swope family to a fortune left by a Dr. John Swope, of Virginia, a surgeon of the Revolutionary War; in this he failed, but his interest in family history continued. For fifty years, during a time when others were little interested in things of that kind and often ridiculed him, he was adding to this fund of information until he was admitted to be the best informed man on the Swope family history in the country. He married Elizabeth A. Gunckle, of Cumberland county, Pa. He and his wife reside in Lancaster, the infirmities of old age resting heavily upon him. They had one son:
The Swope Family.

XI. Lydia Swope (Jacob, John Jacob, John, Yost) was born April 2, 1822. She married, Aug. 5, 1855, Jacob O. Steinheiser, born October 20, 1817. She resided in Lancaster, Pa. They had issue as follows:—

i. Freemont D. Steinheiser, b. July 11, 1856; m., Dec. 23, 1879, Miss Snyder.

XII. Sophia Swope (George Michael, John Jacob, John, Yost) was born, Sept. 6, 1809, in Lancaster county, Pa. On Dec. 4, 1828, she was united in marriage to Jacob R. Levan, of Kutztown, Pa. For a time after their marriage they resided in Lancaster. Subsequently Mr. Levan engaged in merchandising in Milton, Pa., where he remained several years. Sophia Swope Levan was a lady of prepossessing appearance, refined, intelligent and possessed of a true Christian character. She died of consumption, April 13, 1857, and her remains were deposited in the Lutheran graveyard at Lewisburg, Pa., but were afterwards removed to the new cemetery at that place. They had issue as follows:—

29. i. Alfred Grael Levan; m. Mary J. Cook.

XVIII. Isaac Swope (Emanuel, John Jacob, John, Yost)
Yost

) was born, Dec. 22, 1812, near Mechanicsburg, Lancaster county, Pa. He received from his father a fine farm, fully stocked and equipped in every respect. On this he lived until 1857; when he moved to Canada to take possession of a farm inherited from his maternal grandfather. Not liking Canada he returned to his native State the following year. He subsequently engaged in merchandising in Lancaster city, in which he continued until his death. He was a man of a quiet and retiring disposition, taking little interest in affairs outside his own circle of acquaintances, and rarely went away from home unless called away by business. With his friends, however, he was always companionable and genial. He died 1887 and is buried at Zion's Church, Mechanicsburg. He was twice married—first, Oct., 1842, to Amelia Carothers, who died Jan., 1844. They had one child, which died in infancy. He married, secondly, Sept. 1, 1846, Rachel Ludwig, b. March 21, 1824. She survives him, residing in Lancaster, Pa. They had children as follows:

32. ii. Rachel Swope, b. June 5, 1849; m. Peter Schgier.
33. iii. Isaac Swope, b. March 7, 1851, on his father's farm, in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa. He gives a very amusing account of his early experience in the "district school," his dislike for going to school, and the necessity of bribing him with pennies, candy, etc.; these means, however, seem to have become burdensome, when the traditional "rod" was brought into play with telling effect. His antipathy for school was soon overcome and we next find him anxious to go, diligent in his studies, and standing at the head of his class. After leaving school he determined that a trade was to his taste and apprenticed himself to the carriage painting business. He served an apprenticeship of four years and then worked at the business for a time. In the meanwhile he was seized with a desire to see more of the world than was presented to his vision in the circumscribed limits of Lancaster city; so, on March 3, 1873, he and a friend started West. He had varied experiences in the different western cities. In St. Louis he was persuaded to go to sea "before the mast," but at the last moment was dissuaded by one who had been there. He subsequently went to Chicago, where he engaged with the large firm of Studebaker Bro. He, being a first-class workman, was placed at the head of one of the shops, where he remained for some time. Again his old desire to see more of the world came upon him and he determined to go to Australia. On April 14, 1877, he sailed from New York for Sidney, New South Wales. After a three months' voyage, rendered very uncomfortable and disagreeable by the rough emigrants on board, he arrived at Sidney. There, on landing, the party passed under a British man-of-war, when one of the roughs made an insulting remark about the British flag; it was heard and was the means of bringing the whole party into the hands of the law; they were, however, extricated from the dilemma without much trouble. New South Wales was a disappointment; work was not plenty and the natives were jealous of Americans because of their superior work. Mr. Swope, owing to the privations of his long voyage, lack of proper food and water, and the disappointments experienced after his arrival in Sidney, took sick and did not recover for several months. During a part of this time he was in an unconscious condition in a hospital, where he received bad treatment. Shortly after his return to consciousness he was discovered by a young English lady, whom he had known at his boarding house, Miss Emily, daughter of Mr. Thomas Maton, editor of the Isle of Wight Chronicle, now Mrs. James M. Hall. Through the kindly offices of this excellent lady better quarters were given him and he received more humane treatment. He remembers with much gratitude her kindness. After his recovery his one desire was to return home. He secured work at his trade and earned not only enough to take him home, but to enable him to see more of the Colonies. After visiting the International Exhibition, at Melbourne, 1881, he sailed for San Francisco on the "City of New York." In San Francisco he again engaged with the Studebaker Bro., taking charge of their shops at that place, where he remained until 1887, when he was called home on the death of his father. He took charge of his father's store in Lancaster, improving it until he has the most prosperous grocery store in the city. Our thanks are due Mr. Swope for his untiring efforts in assisting in searching out records, etc., in Lancaster county. No one has rendered us more valuable assistance.

VIII. George K. Swope (George 1, John Henry 2, John 3, Yost 4) was born, Feb. 2, 1837, in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa. He was educated at the Annville, Pa., Academy, the Whitehall, Pa., Academy, and Millersville Normal School. He received a teacher's professional certificate and began teaching in 1854. His career as a teacher was interrupted by the breaking out of the war. He volunteered as a member of the "Union Guards" of Lancaster county. His company was "Co. B, First Regiment, Infantry, Pennsylvania Reserves." He was in all the battles in which his brigade was engaged, viz.: Drainsville, Mechanicsville, Gaines Mill, New Market Cross-Roads, Malvern Hill, Second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Bristoe Station, Mine Run, Wilderness, Spottsylvania Court House, North Anna, and Bethesda Church. In all of these engagements he won for himself an enviable name for daring and bravery. He, being the best shot in his regiment, was frequently called upon to do sharpshooting service. Many interesting and thrilling incidents are related regarding his service. We will give one, as related by Prof. J. P. Wicksham before the Teachers' Institute of Lancaster county. The incident occurred, June 30, 1862, at the battle of New Market Cross-Roads. We quote the Professor as follows: "A rebel battery was being handled in a masterly manner; a general rode up to a captain of a Lancaster county company and said: 'Captain, have you a good shot in your company who is willing to go out between these two armies to pick off yonder officer?' 'Why, general, it will be certain death to venture out there.' 'I know it,' was the answer, 'but you see how that fire is decimating our ranks; is no one willing to sacrifice himself?' The captain turns to his company, with the remark: 'I'll see.' A young man rises in the ranks and volunteers, 'I'll go.' He creeps forward, takes deliberate aim and fires, but misses his mark; again, steady aim; the officer is seen to throw up his arms; he falls into the arms of his gunners The young man returns to his company unharmed; and, said the professor, in a burst of enthusiasm: 'I would search the army through, but I would take that young man by the hand and say, it was well done; that man was George K. Swope.' " At the battle of Bethesda Church he received a gunshot wound in the left lung, which necessitated his return home. The wound was a long time in healing and he yet carries the bullet in his body. After his return from the war he engaged in teaching for some years. He subsequently moved to Philadelphia, where he engaged in the commission business, continuing in the same for several years. In 1889 he was appointed Inspector of Customs in the district of Philadelphia and located at Marcus Hook; this position he held until 1893. He and his family are devoted members of the Methodist Church, he taking a prominent part in all the operations of his church. He married, Oct. 6, 1866, his cousin Lizzie, daughter of Daniel Swope. His portrait appears on page 161. They had children as follows:—

i. Ella Nora Swope, b. July 12, 1867.

CHAPTER X.

SABINA SWOPE AND JOHN Hoke, TOGETHER WITH THEIR CHILDREN AND THEIR DESCENDANTS.

I. Sabina Swope\(^3\) (John\(^4\), Yost\(^1\)) was born in the old homestead, in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., Dec. 26, 1748. She married John Hoke, of York county, Pa., and lived there until after his death, when she, together with her children, moved to Lincoln county, N. C., about 1797 or 1798; there her children established themselves and became prominent members of the community. Sabina (Swope) Hoke was a very superior woman, having great strength of character, energy and perseverance. She, being left a widow, felt a great responsibility in rearing her children and was extremely particular in her care for them. It is said that "when any of her boys were out late at night she would take a servant, go out and not return until she had found the missing one, whom she would bring home with her. On one occasion she found one of her sons at a card table with a crowd of jolly boys. She walked up to the table, pulled the cards off into her lap, led her son home and thus broke up the game."

On the death of her father, in 1780, she received from his estate, by will, one hundred and twenty-five pounds. She died Aug. 9, 1826, and is buried in the Lutheran graveyard, in Lincolnton, N. C., she being a member of that church. They had issue as follows:—

In 1835 he and his family moved to Jacksonville, Ala. At this time the Indians were yet there. He died 1856 and is buried at Jacksonville. They had issue as follows:—

Forney says of him, that "he was a fine, jovial character; we have many funny stories on Uncle Daniel. He was a big 'See-sesh' and a remarkably polite and entertaining man, in consequence a favorite beau of the ladies."

IV. Frederick Hoke* (Sabina (Swope) Hoke*, John Swope*, Yost Swope*) was born in York county, Pa. About the year 1798, he, together with his family, moved from York to Lincoln county, N. C. He settled on Liles Creek in the upper part of Lincoln county, and there reared a large family. As his sons grew to manhood and married he gave to each one a plantation. He was a man much loved and respected in the surrounding country, and noted for his kindness and generosity to the poor. The section of country in which he lived was thickly peopled, and as there were few physicians there, and he had some knowledge of medicine, he often rendered medical assistance to those around him, even at times bleeding them and extracting teeth. He raised large crops of grain on his plantation, and it is a remarkable fact that he fixed the price of corn at fifty cents per bushel, and no matter what the market value of corn was, he refused to receive more or less per bushel for his. Sometimes when there was a failure of crops in other sections, a number of wagons would come for corn offering him one dollar per bushel, which he would refuse to accept. Enquiring of them how many they had in the family and how much stock they fed, he would then say: "Well, you may have so many bushels at fifty cents, and you can't have any more." Frederick Hoke was considerably interested in politics. There being an election precinct on his place, runners would often come up in behalf of one or the other of the candidates. On one occasion one of these men asked an illiterate man how he was going to vote. He said, "I don't know; I always vote like Hoke's boys." And the vote was always nearly unanimous for "Hoke's boys." Frederick Hoke was inclined to be musical. He brought with him from Pennsylvania a pipe-organ. His fondness and talent for music have been inherited by many of his descendants. He married four times. His first wife was a Miss Hafer, his second a Miss Lorance, his third a Miss Stirewalt, his fourth a Miss Wilson. No children are recorded of his third and fourth wives. There are records of one daughter by his second wife. Her name was Rhoda; she married an Allen, but nothing more is known of her. By his first wife he had issue as follows:—
The Swope Family.

16. i. Peter Hoke, b. Dec. 7, 1791; m. Sarah Lorance.

V. Hon. Henry Hoke* (Sabina (Swope) Hoke, John Swope, Yost Swope) was born in York county, Pa. He moved with the family to North Carolina, and began farming in Lincoln county. He was an active politician, and elected to represent Lincoln county in the State Senate for two terms, 1803 and 1804, by the Democratic party. He was a confirmed member of the Lutheran Church and faithful in his duties to the same. His remains repose in the family burying ground on the homestead surrounded by many of his descendants. In 1797 or 1798, he together with his mother's family moved from York county, Pa., to Lincoln county, N. C., the father having died at York prior to their leaving. Col. Hoke4, John Swope3, Yost Swope2) was born in Lincoln county, N. C., 1800. She accompanied the family when they moved to Jacksonville, Ala. and died there, 1882. She married Jacob Forney, a son of Gen. Peter Forney,8 of Revolutionary fame, a resident of Lincoln county, N. C.
They had issue as follows:

i. Maj. Daniel Peter Forney, was born in Lincoln county, N. C., 1819, and died 1881, unmarried. He was educated at the University of Virginia, taking a course in law, which profession he practiced a number of years. He was a soldier in the Mexican War, was captain of the Alabama State Troops in 1861, and major and inspector general of the C. S. Army

*The traditions of this Forney family are the same as those of the Conewago (Hanover) Pennsylvania family mentioned elsewhere. Both point to French extraction, having fled from religious persecution in France to Germany, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, 1685.
They remained in Germany long enough to become citizens of that country before emigrating to America. There are no records to show a relationship between the Conewago, Pa., and the Southern family, but a relationship may have existed in a higher branch in the Fatherland.
vii. Col. George Hoke Forney, b. 1835. He was merchandising until the breaking out of the war when he entered the Confederate service in the company of his brother, Daniel Peter, Jan., 1861. In 1862 he was major commanding the 1st Confederate Battalion. In 1863 the 1st Confederate Battalion was increased in number of companies, and he was promoted to lieutenant colonel. "A rather unusual order was made by the President in this, that the first battalion and another named regiment was ordered from the army in Mississippi to the army in Virginia to be placed in a brigade commanded by Gen. Davis, a relative of the President."

A result of this transfer was that Col. Forney took part in the battle of the Wilderness, and was killed there. May 5, 1864. His battalion was composed of disbanded regiments, in which there was many rough cases—Mobile and New Orleans "wharfs"—still he held them under complete control through the love they bore him.

41. ix. Maria Eloise Forney, b. May 15, 1841; m. R. D. Williams.

X. Col. John D. Hoke (Daniel Hoke, Sabina (Swope) Hoke, John Swope, Yost Swope) was born Sept. 18, 1803, in Lincoln county, N. C. He died March 24, 1878. He married Anna Maria Whitaker, of New York city. In 1835 he moved from Lincolnton, N. C., to Jacksonville, Ala. He is described as a "noble character." He was colonel of militia, and a fine, dashing soldier. When the family moved to Jacksonville his wife was the only baptized member of the Episcopal Church in that town. Through her persistent and unflagging efforts, the most of the kin, who had been Lutheran and German Reformed, were from time to time confirmed by the Episcopal Bishops, of Alabama. For quite a number of years they were without a minister and a proper building; finally the families built St. Luke's Church and John D. Hoke became Sunday School superintendent and lay reader. The services were gone through with regularity, though the attendance was very small. The church by outsiders was known as "Hoke's Church." A cruciform tablet has been placed in the wall of the church bearing the following inscription, "In memory of John D. Hoke, the founder.

In 1869 Mr. Ranck gave up teaching and purchased a printing office in New Holland, Lancaster county, and established the New Holland Clarion. This paper was a success from the start, and soon came to be regarded as one of the most ably conducted local newspapers in the State. He has always taken an active part in everything which promised to advance the interests of his community. His town is largely indebted to him as one of her most progressive citizens for her railroad, telegraph, and telephone connection with the outside world, the establishment of her national bank, and the improvement of her public schools. In 1889 he was elected a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, and while there served on several important committees—Agriculture, Military, and Banks and Banking. CHAPTER XII.

ADAM SWOPE, OF LITTLESTOWN, PA., TOGETHER WITH HIS CHILDREN, CATHARINE, JONATHAN, SAMUEL, EPHRAIM, SUSAN AND ELIZA, AND THEIR DESCENDANTS.

1. Adam Swope3 (John2, Yost1) was the youngest child, and was born in the homestead, in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., May 21, 1756. There he grew to manhood and left the impress of a boyish ambition by carving his name on the stone lintel of the spring-house door. It is now almost obliterated by time, only this remaining, "Adam Swope, 17." He married Sarah Grabill, of Lancaster county, who was born May 18, 1765. By his father's will he received a farm in Lancaster county, part of the original Swope purchase, on which he lived. Early in 1800, at the urgent solicitation of his wife, because she thought the Swopes were becoming so numerous in Lancaster county that they could not be distinguished, he sold his farm and moved to Adams county, Pa. He bought a farm and other property near Littlestown, where he continued to live until death. He was also a large holder of Virginia lands. His wife did not live long to enjoy the distinction of dwelling in a community where the name was uncommon; she died Sept. 2, 1805, aged 40 years, 6 months and 12 days. Adam Swope was also a silversmith; several pieces of his work are yet preserved by his descendants as precious heirlooms. After the purchase of his farm he built a mill on a small stream running through it, but the stream did not furnish sufficient power and the mill was abandoned, and subsequently became the dwelling place of bats, and, the superstitious said, "ghosts." They, no doubt, saw

A phantom miller at the midnight hour,
Grinding his wheat by an unseen power.
Adam Swope was a member of a military organization, known as the "Associators," belonging to Capt. Roland's company, associated the 5th day of July, 1775, for the defence of American liberty. He died Feb. 7, 1821, and is buried in the graveyard of St. John's Lutheran Church, at Littlestown, of which church he was a consistent member. They had issue as follows:—

2. i. Catharine Swope, b. March 7, 1784; m., first, Adam Woods; secondly, Capt. Samuel Long; thirdly, James W. Foster.

4. iii. Samuel Swope, b. April 16, 1791; m. Margaret Weikert.

5. iv. Ephraim Swope, b. July 4, 1796; m., first, Catharine Lefevre; m., secondly, Susan Keeports.

6. v. Susan Swope, b. June 1, 1799; m., first, Solomon Stonesifer; m., secondly, John Shorb.

7. vi. Eliza Swope; m. Henry Weikert.

II. Catharine Swope(Adam3, John2, Yost1) was born on her father's farm, in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., March 7, 1784. She grew to be a winsome and attractive young woman, fond of company and very popular. At about eighteen years of age she married Adam Woods. The following year he made a trip to Kentucky and perished among the Indians. They had issue:—

8. i. Adam Swope Woods, b. June 9, 1803; m. Margaret Campbell.

Catharine Swope married, secondly, Capt. Samuel Long, at Littlestown, Pa., she having accompanied her father to that place from Lancaster county. They moved to Bunker Hill, Md., on the Baltimore and Pittsburg turnpike, where they opened a house of "public entertainment" for travelers. Whilst living there the war of 1812 broke out and Capt. Long organized a company for his country's defence. After serving his country for a time he returned home sick with fever and died in a few days. Mrs. Long continued her residence and business in the place for some time, when, at the persuasion of her father, she moved to Abbotsztown, Pa., to a property owned by him. They had issue:—
The Swope Family.

i. John Long married, but the name of his wife is unknown. They had issue as follows:

i. Samuel, m. and had six children.
ii. Martin, m. and had six children.
iii. Albert, m. and had four children.
iv. Amanda, m. — Garner and had two children.
v. Ella, m. — Campbell and had two children.

Catharine Swope married, thirdly, May 11, 1817, James W. Foster, who was born, Oct., 1784, and died, Nov. 30, 1870. Soon after her arrival in Abbotstown the "village teacher," James W. Foster, a native of Donegal, Ireland, applied for boarding at her house and was accommodated. As a result of this they were married, May 11, 1817, and continued living in Abbotstown. In their declining years they moved to Gettysburg, Pa., and lived there until death. The last few years of Mrs. Foster's life were years of great suffering from a disease of the eye, which rendered her entirely blind. Her portrait, as shown elsewhere in connection with that of her daughter Catharine, was taken at a great disadvantage at the age of 90 years. She was a confirmed member of the Lutheran Church, but later in life she changed her doctrinal views and united with the United Presbyterian Church, the church of her husband. She died, Jan. 14, 1878, at the advanced age of 94 years, and rests at the side of her husband, James W. Foster, in Evergreen Cemetery, Gettysburg, Pa.

They had issue:

i. Catharine, b. July 28, 1825. She being the only child of her parents, their care in declining years rested entirely upon her, and faithfully did she perform this duty. Her parents considered this her mission to the world, but she did not consider it her only mission. For many years she has given all her time and energy to Home Missions and Bible Society work, not only in her church, the United Presbyterian, but outside of denominational lines. She has been especially active in the work of "The Woman's Christian Temperance Union." Wherever she finds herself she finds also ready to her hand some of the lines of work from which she cannot and would not escape. She has three times narrowly escaped death. At one time when bathing in the surf at Cape May she was carried out into deep water, but was rescued before life was extinct. Then in the Johnstown flood. She was a resident of Johnstown at the time of the flood. Her residence, a frame house, was caught by the first surge, lifted and carried away; she and the other occupants of the floating house escaped from the attic to the flat roof of a house in passing and were saved. During the battle of Gettysburg she made a narrow escape from destruction while serving water from the steps of her father's house to thirsty soldiers in passing; a shell struck the roof of the porch under which she had been standing and completely demolished it. She gives a very interesting account of her experience during the battle of Gettysburg in the history that she has written of "The Foster Family." We would gladly reproduce it here did space permit. Miss Foster still resides in Johnstown, Pa., devoted to works of benevolence.

III. Jonathan Swope' (Adam!, Johnt, Yost') was born on his father's farm in Lancaster county, Pa., May 5, 1787. After the family moved to Adams county, he married Elizabeth Brothers, at Littlestown. In early life he learned the trade of gunsmith, which he carried on for many years. In 1857 he moved to Fulton county, Ill., where he bought a farm and began farming. He died, 1868, at Astoria, Ill. His wife preceded him to eternity, dying Sept. 30, 1842. They had children as follows:

10. i. Jacob Swope, b. July 2, 1811; m. Elizabeth Musser
   iii. Levi Swope; died at the age of 14 years.

IV. Samuel Swope' (Adam2 Johnt, Yost') was born in Upper Leacock township, Lancaster county, Pa., April 16, 1791. On the removal of his father's family to Adams county, he accompanied them and lived there until death. He was a farmer by occupation, having inherited a part of his father's extensive real estate possessions. He was a confirmed member of the Lutheran Church, and one of the active spirits in the erection of the church at Bonneauville, in 1846. He married, 1814, Margaret Weikert, who was born 1796, and died 1865. They had issue:

He had contracts on the Catholic Educational Buildings at Emmetsburg, Md., on the old Thaddeus Stevens' "Tape Worm" R. R., along the South Mountain in Pennsylvania, and other important public works. He was colonel of a Pennsylvania militia regiment, and was widely known. He was twice married, both of his wives being descendants of Madam Mary Ferree, through her daughter Catharine, who married Isaac Le Fevre, mentioned elsewhere in this book. He married, first, May 2, 1821, Catharine Le Fevre,* who was born Aug. 15, 1800, in Lancaster county, Pa., and who moved with her parents to Adams county. When her father bought the farm on which they lived, he paid $40,000.00 for it all in silver dollars brought in kegs by wagon, and it took several days to count it. They had the following children:—

  ii. Anna E. Swope, b. Aug. 11, 1824; d. April 23, 1830.
  iii. Susan J. Swope, b. June 10, 1826; died.

hood. He married, Sept. 18, 1827, Margaret Campbell, who was born June 12, 1803. He immediately moved to Hunterstown, Adams county, Pa., where he opened a tailor shop, he having previously learned tailoring at Littlestown. His location not being very promising for the future he was seized with a desire to go west. In the fall of 1833 he purchased a team and large wagon, in which he placed his little family and effects, and accompanied by his half-sister, Sarah (Long) McSherry, started for the then far west, their objective point being Dayton, Ohio. They traveled several weeks and reached Springfield, Ohio, where he met a resident of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, who set forth in glowing words the possibilities of his town and country. Having heard before flattering reports of the place, he determined to locate there, and directed his course thither. On arriving there he was greatly disappointed and chagrined at the place, but the inhabitants gave them such a cordial welcome that they soon felt at home. Discouragement gave way to contentment and happiness. Plenty of work came and prosperity followed. He remained there until the 25th of Nov., 1850, when he removed with his family to North Lewisburg, Ohio. He resided there until the fall of 1860, when he removed to Warsaw, Ind., where his son Thomas had lived for about twelve years. Adam S. Woods was from youth religiously inclined, moral, temperate in all things, striving to do his duty to his maker and fellow-man, yet he never connected himself with any church until 1839, when he joined the M. E. Church. In this he remained until 1862, when his views underwent a change and he accepted the faith of the Adventists. This he held until his death, which occurred at Warsaw, Ind., May 12, 1870, from erysipelas. A son says: "He was a kind father, a loving and affectionate husband, and a good, law-abiding citizen. His great loss was keenly felt and deplored by all." His wife survived him, dying April 20, 1891. They had issue:

At one time he owned every hog in the State of Ohio that the feeder or farmer had to sell. He continued his large business in Ohio until 1864, when he went to Buffalo, N. At the time of his death, March 16, 1895, he was the head of the firm of Swope, Hughes, Waltz & Beustead. He removed with his father's family to Mechanicsburg, Ohio. He was educated in the common schools of that place, and afterwards learned the tailor's trade with his father. At the age of 17 years, having a desire to see more of the world, and especially of his relatives in the east, he left home without the consent of his parents and walked to the home of his grandmother, in Adams county, Pa., where he remained some months. He determined to make his trip home profitable, and purchased a stock of notions which he sold by the way. This was the beginning of a successful business career. Some time after his return west he established himself at his trade in Warsaw, Ind. He also began buying and selling real estate. This being more to his taste than tailoring, he abandoned that pursuit and continued in the real estate business. In 1854 he was appointed deputy clerk of the courts of Kosciusko county, Ind. He was faithful and efficient in the discharge of the duties of the office, and was elected principal of the office by his party in 1855 for a term of four years. In 1859 he was re-elected for a term of four years without opposition from the opposing party. At the expiration of his term of office in 1863, he was appointed general deputy and acted as such for ten years. In 1874 he was again elected to the same office without having asked for the nomination. At the close of this term of office and his retirement from public service he was given a grand banquet by the Bar and court officials of Kosciusko county, at which strong resolutions were passed, expressing the highest confidence in his integrity and uprightness; also commending the faithful, affable and efficient discharge of the duties of his office for a quarter of a century. On this interesting occasion he was also presented with a handsome gold watch, as an additional tribute of the esteem of the donors—the Court and Bar of the county. In politics he was a Whig up to the time of the breaking up of parties in 1854; after that he became a Republican. He has been a strong believer in and staunch defender of the principles of his party, and has contributed much to its success. Believing that music as well as oratory is necessary to a successful political campaign, he has frequently contributed rhymes to be sung by the "Hoosier Glee Club." He now resides in retirement in Warsaw, enjoying the fruits of a well-spent life. He married, June 26, 1854, Catharine Smith. They had one son—William, who died Feb. 12, 1860, aged 3 years.

SWOPE FAMILIES DESCENDED FROM ANCESTORS WHO SETTLED IN THIS COUNTRY PRIOR TO THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR, BETWEEN WHOM NO RELATIONSHIP HAS BEEN TRACED.

CHAPTER XIII.

REV. BENEDICT SWOPE.

I. Rev. Benedict Swope was a clergyman of the Reformed Church. Family traditions say that he was born near York, Pa. Public records, however, speak of him as "from Germany," so his place of birth is uncertain. There are some things which point to his being of the same family as Benjamin Swope, elsewhere mentioned, who lived near York in 1759 (Pa. Archives). One is that Benjamin was a member of the Reformed Church, as was Rev. Benedict, while all the other Swopes of that section were Lutherans, according to the Church records. Rev. B. Swope entered the ministry of the Reformed Church in 1771. Harbaugh, in "The Fathers of the Reformed Church," says, "Rev. Benedict Swope is first mentioned in the Cotal minutes of 1770 as preaching in the neighborhood of Baltimore, as not being a member of Cötus, and as having been charged with creating strife in the congregations of Mr. Faber, who also was not a member of Cötus. These two men applied to Cötus to have their differences adjudicated, and in the hope of doing some good, Cötus appointed Revs. Gross and Gobrecht to visit that region and if possible restore order. Mr. Swope was at that time an applicant before Cötus for examination and ordination, which was promised him in case the committee appointed to examine into the affairs of that charge should report favorably. The committee made a favorable report, dated Dec. 7, 1770, and he was directed to be ordained. Revs. Henop and Hendel were appointed to ordain him." After his ordination he became pastor of the Second Reformed Church in Baltimore, he being the choice of the evangelical party of the church. About 1774 he moved to Kentucky and settled at Logan's Station, Lincoln county, where he bought a tract of land. On the breaking out of the Revolutionary War he returned to Baltimore, where he remained until its close, then returned to Kentucky. He was a life-long friend of Bishop Asbury, and assisted Dr. Coke at the ordination of the Bishop in Baltimore, in 1784. The Bishop refers to him in his journal as "a very pious, talented and zealous German minister, in full sympathy with the several movements in the Church."

A great-grandson of Rev. B. Swope, Bishop John C. Keener, gives this account of the close of his life: "He preached in the German and English languages, and two years before his death he ceased his ministerial work. His death occurred at the home of his son Jacob, and was caused by something like gout. In the early part of the night on which he died he was very cheerful, talking to an old neighbor, and about break of day, March 30, 1811, he died. He was conscious and perfectly calm, death having no terrors for him." His age was 79 years and 6 months. He married Susanna Welker, who died March, 1795. They had children as follows:

i. John Swope, who had entered land near Shelbyville, Ky., in 1776, was killed by the Indians in 1782, on Long run, Jefferson county, Ky.

II. BENEDICT SWOPE (Rev. Benedict) married, in Baltimore, Md., MARGARET, daughter of Melchoir Keener. For a time he was merchandising, probably in Baltimore. About 1779—according to records, tradition gives an earlier date—he moved to Lincoln county, Ky., where he bought eighteen hundred acres of land. The greater part of it was unimproved Government land but that portion on which he lived had been improved previous to his purchase. A warrant for one thousand acres of the land is still in existence, bearing date Oct. 15, 1779. The price paid was four hundred pounds. He sold the greater portion of the land to individuals in small tracts, one of which was to Greenbury Majors, his brother-in-law. He died in Lincoln county, and is buried in a graveyard on his farm, still occupied by his descendants. Benedict Swope and his wife Margaret had children as follows:

He was possessed of a competency and was not engaged in any business, although in early manhood he read law, but never practiced the profession. He married, May 10, 1826, Frances A. Hunton, who was born in Fauquier county, Va., Feb. 2, 1804; died May 2, 1847. She was of the same family as Gen. Eppa Hunton, late U. S. Senator from Virginia. They had issue as follows:—

i. Thomas H. Swope, was born and reared in Danville, Ky. He was graduated from Yale University, after which he read law with Judge Reavis, in Gainesville, Ala., but never practiced his profession. In 1856 he went to Kansas City, Mo., then a village of 1,000 or 1,200 people, and made investments; also at Wyandotte. Later, in 1864, he made extensive personal explorations in the Rocky Mountains, where he also made investments. All of these investments through time grew to large proportions, and he became very wealthy. He has given liberally of his large means to charity and public purposes. In 1891 he gave $25,000 to Centre College, Ky., and in 1893 he gave three and a half acres in Kansas City for a park, and in 1896 a tract of land containing 1313 acres of the finest land in Jackson county, four miles southeast of Kansas City limits, on the Blue River, for a city park to be named after the donor, "Swope Park." This magnificent gift is highly appreciated by the citizens of Kansas City, and is estimated to be worth a quarter of a million of dollars, and will give Kansas City the second largest park in this country. June 6, 1896, was a day set apart for opening the park. Business was almost suspended, and thousands wended their way to their new pleasure ground, and all were enthusiastic in doing honor to their generous benefactor. It was there resolved to erect a statue in the park in honor of the donor. Although Mr. Swope has spent much of his time in Kansas City and made it the object of his generosity, yet he does not consider it his home. He cherishes a love for his native State and maintains a residence in Woodford county, Ky., in the heart of the far-famed blue grass region. He is a man of wide reading and the most diversified information. He has kept abreast of the questions of the day, being a sagacious and careful observer of political and social changes. He has spent considerable time in the Old World, having made three trips abroad.

iii. Hon. Armsted M. Swope, b. May 1, 1844, in Lincoln county, Ky. He early showed the characteristics which when developed, made a noble, large-hearted man. He was given a good education, and after leaving college entered the law office of Col. T. P. Hill, who had been attracted to him when a boy, because of his "fine figure and splendid eye," and advised his parents to educate him. He made rapid progress in law, and at the end of two years went to Paris, Ky., and became associated with Judge Williams. There he acquired a large practice. In 1877 he was appointed Internal Revenue Collector of the Seventeenth District of Kentucky. This position he held for seven years, retiring with one of the best records of any officer in the Government service. In politics he was a Republican, and very active in promoting the interests of his party. He was one of the most popular and polished public speakers in the State, and was in constant demand on public occasions. His many admirers organized quite a strong movement to nominate him for Governor of the State, but he declined to allow his name to be used. Later, in 1884, he was strongly recommended by his friends and the press of the State for the Vice Presidency. After his resignation of the collectorship he made a tour of Europe and Egypt, where he remained a year or more. For several years there had been personal differences between him and Wm. Cassius Goodloe of a serious nature, and on Nov. 8, 1889, the two met in the post office at Lexington. Goodloe stabbed Col. Swope, and the colonel before he fell shot Goodloe. Both died from their wounds, the colonel almost immediately, and Goodloe a few days later. The tragedy caused a universal gloom not only in the community, but throughout the State, where they were so well known. The Lincoln County Bar in passing resolutions on his death, said: "Hon. A. M. Swope was a gentleman who through his attainments and virtues was worthy of the confidence that was reposed in him, and in every sense worthy of the honors and positions that were bestowed upon him. He was a man of brilliant attainments, of generous magnanimous feelings, of commendable aspirations, of honest convictions, of unaltering courage, of steady honesty, of open-hearted charity, and in all things honorable." CHAPTER XV.

THE SWOPES OF HUNTINGDON COUNTY, PA.

There are two Swope families living in Huntingdon county, Pa., one spelling their name with two o's and the other with one. The ancestors of both families settled in that county in the last decade of the eighteenth century. The Swopes lived at Mapleton in 1782; in that year Michael Swope was born there, and afterwards moved to the vicinity of Dayton, O., where his descendants are still living. Michael had two other brothers; their descendants are still living in or about Mapleton.

The Swoope family of Huntingdon descended from Peter Swoope, who was a son of John Jacob Swoope, of Hellam township, York county, Pa. Peter was born April 1, 1763; died June 30, 1839. He was apprenticed to the hatting business, Aug. 17, 1773. He afterwards removed to Hagerstown, Md., where he married, July 5, 1784, Elizabeth Snyder, born Dec. 22, 1768; died July 21, 1851. He subsequently settled in Huntingdon, where his children, ten in number, were born. There he engaged in merchandising and the iron business, and accumulated a nice fortune. He was commissioned captain of the Huntingdon county militia by Governor Mifflin, Aug. 31, 1793. His children were:

5. Samuel Swoope, b. March 25, 1796.

II. Dr. William Swoope, born Oct. 19, 1804, in Huntingdon, Pa., and died Jan. 13, 1861. He read medicine and attended lectures at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1826 and 1827. After graduating he began the practice of his profession in Huntingdon, Pa., where he continued for thirty years. He married, ——— Bucher

They had the following children:

i. Hon. Henry Bucher Swoope, b. July 17, 1831, in Huntingdon, Pa.; d. Feb. 16, 1874. He read law with Hon. John Scott, and after being admitted to the bar removed to Clearfield, Pa., in 1851, and established himself in his profession. There he remained enjoying a large and lucrative practice until 1870, when he received the appointment of U. S. Attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania. Mr. Swoope was a man of extraordinary abilities and great versatility of talent. He had a highly cultivated taste for, and a fine appreciation of the beautiful. His prepared orations contained many gems of thought and brilliant ideas clothed in the choicest language. His extemporaneous oratory was electrical, frequently arousing his hearers to the highest pitch of excitement, and as occasion required, it was either sarcastic or pathetic. These qualities made him a ready advocate and a powerful criminal lawyer, as is attested by his unparalleled success during the time he acted as the attorney for the general government in the courts of the U. S. at Pittsburg, Erie and Williamsport. He married Susan P. Irvine, and had children—Roland, William and Janie. The two former are prominent attorneys in Clearfield and Curwensville, Pa.

iii. Granville P. Swoope, b. Oct. 6, 1835. He served through the war of the Rebellion in the Fifth Regiment of Pennsylvania Reserves, was promoted to a captaincy for gallant conduct at the battle of Gettysburg; died at Alexandria, Pa., June 6, 1869.

vi. George Howard Swoope, b. Sept. 9, 1843; d. March 5, 1844.

viii. Clara Swoope, b. Sept. 1, 1847; m., Sept. 2, 1871, George S. Ballantyne, M. D., who died July, 1891, at Huntingdon, Pa., and had issue.

enterprises, and stood very high in commercial circles. He was an expert accountant, and was employed on several famous cases. The press said at his death: "Louisville lost one of its most estimable citizens by the unexpected death of Mr. B. L. Swope. He was a gentleman of culture and literary taste, and an earnest and outspoken advocate for all that was best in government and politics. He wrote much good poetry and prose of a fugitive nature, and he did much good all through his honorable and useful life." He married Jessie Staines, who survives him. They had children as follows:

His first call was to be assistant rector of Trinity Church, Chicago. Shortly after he became connected with Grace Church, as rector, and after a stay of three years became rector of Trinity Church, of Pittsburg, Pa. In 1867 he accepted a call to Trinity Episcopal Chapel, New York, where he remained until his death, which occurred April, 1890. Dr. Swope was popular in social and religious circles in New York, and was an earnest and hardworking churchman. He died full of ecclesiastical honors. He was one of the founders and for several years president of the New York Churchmen's Association; a corporate member of the American Board of Foreign and Domestic Missions, and a member of the Standing Committee of the diocese of New York. From resolutions passed on his death by his brother clergymen the following is given: "We desire to put on record an expression of our high esteem for his character, and a sense of our great loss in his death; his calm judgment and genial nature endeared him to his associates and won their confidence. He will be greatly missed in many places of trust in the Church, but in none more than in her missionary councils. The Church-at-large throughout the whole United States will mourn the loss of one whose calm judgment, sound understanding, and remarkable tact, made him one of the most marked men in her general councils." He married early in life, but his wife did not live long, and left no children. In 1867 he spent some time in Europe, and while in Vienna, obtained the coat-of-arms of the Wurtemburg house of Schwab, believing his family to have descended from that house.

CHAPTER XVII.

COL. MICHAEL SWOPE, HANS JORG SWOPE, AND BENJAMIN SWOPE.

Col. Michael Swope, of York county, was one of the first purchasers of lots when the town of York was laid out 1741. This is the first record we have of him. He was a judge of the Orphans' Court of York county from 1767 to 1772, and commissioned a Justice of the Peace 1764. He was a member of the Assembly from 1768 to 1776. He was appointed, June 30, 1775, by Act of Assembly, one of the Council of Safety. In 1775 he was elected major of the Independent Light Infantry Co. The next year, on the organization of the celebrated Flying Camp, he was made colonel of the first battalion of the first brigade. Col. Swope's battalion suffered as severely as any during the Revolutionary war. At Fort Washington, near New York, nearly his entire command was either killed or taken prisoners, he was among the latter. He married first, Mary, daughter of Casper Spangler, who came to America 1727, and by whom he had children; the names are unknown. She died previous to 1764. By his second wife, Eva, he had a son, Andrew Simon, born Feb. 4, 1764, and another, George, born April 2, 1773. We have no account of Col. Swope after 1783. In a list of taxables of that year we find his family to have consisted of five persons, and him to have been a man of considerable means, among many things mentioned being a silver plate or medal valued at thirty-two pounds, supposed to have been given him for distinguished services in the war.

Hans Jorg Swab arrived in Philadelphia, Sept. 21, 1727. (Col. Rec., Vol. 3, page 597.) This is supposed to be the George Swope who settled in the neighborhood of York. He was one of the organizers of Old Christ's Lutheran church at York, 1733. George Swope was "one of his majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Lancaster, Aug. 29, 1746.'
He was reappointed April 22, 1749. (Col. Rec., Vol. 5, page 378.)
Penna. Archives, 1740 to 1756, page 38, refers to him as "a principal inhabitant." George Swope died 1757; his son George was administrator of his estate. Besides the son he had daughters—Anna Barbara, married Michael Rancke; Eva Elizabeth, married Peter Yeager, both of Paradise township, now York county; Anna Eve, married Paul Burget; Anna M., married Peter Huber. George Swope left a widow, Anna Eve. Nothing is known of any of the descendants of his children.

Benjamin Swope (Swope) was an inspector of the election during the riots at York, Pa., 1750. Penna. Archives, Vol. 1748 to 1756, page 52, gives his deposition touching the riots. Nothing further is known of him except that he lived in the country near York, and was a member of Zion's Reformed church in 1754.

NOTES.

NOTE I. Elizabeth Herr was a daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Herr, of Manheim township, York county, Pa. Michael Herr died Sept 30, 1778 (?), and his will was probated Nov. 15, 1778. He devised his plantation to his son John upon the payment of 400 pounds to his sister Elizabeth. His personal property was equally divided among his children and wife. Tradition says that the guardian of the children so mismanaged the estate that nothing was left for the children when they became of age. Elizabeth married Henry Swope, and John moved to the neighborhood of Louisville, Ky., about 1793. He there amassed quite a large fortune. He had eight children by two wives, and his descendants are among the most prominent and influential members of the community. This family of Herr are said to be descended from Rev. Hans Herr, the first Christian minister who settled in Lancaster county, Pa.

NOTE II. An extended sketch is here given of the Shriver family for the reason that three different members of the Swope family have married into that family, viz: Eliza Swope, daughter of Henry Swope, of Taneytown, Md., married Samuel S. Forney, whose mother was Rachel Shriver, daughter of David Shriver, of Little Pipe Creek, Md.

Catharine Wirt, whose mother was Catharine Swope, daughter of John Swope, of Hanover, Pa, married Andrew K. Shriver, son of David Shriver, of Little Pipe Creek.

Lydia Swope, daughter of John Swope, of Hanover, married Henry Shriver, son of Andrew Shriver, of Conewago, Pa.
This narrative of the Shriver family was taken from the "Shriver Family History," and most of it was collected by Judge Abraham Shriver from various authentic sources in 1826. Judge Shriver was a son of David Shriver, of Little Pipe Creek, Md. Judge Shriver begins his account with Andrew Shriver, who was born 1673, but Andrew is not the first Shriver of whom we have knowledge; his father was Yost Shriver and his mother, Anna, who died in 1690; the date of birth is unknown. The father of Yost was Lorenz and mother, Margareta, both of whom died in 1684. The dates of their births and marriage is unknown.

THE SHRIVER FAMILY.

"Andrew Shriver was a native of Alsenborn, in the Electorate Palatine, Oberamt, Lauten, Germany. His parents were Andrew Shriver, i. e., Schreiber, and his wife, Anna Margareta, who had been the widow of John Young. He was born Sept. 6, 1712, and baptized in the church at Alsenborn by John Miller, the Reformed pastor of that place. He came to America in the Fall of the year 1721 with his parents, who paid the passage of the whole family, and landed at Philadelphia, after which they moved to the neighborhood of Goshenhoppen, near the Trappe, on the Schuylkill, where his father soon died. Andrew then learned the trade of tanner. Having attained his freedom in the year 1732, he worked one year after, in which time he had 18 pounds in hand.

In the Spring of 1733 he married Anna Maria Keiser, and in June following he removed to Conewago, where, after paying for sundry articles with which to begin the world, he had two shillings left.

Anna Maria Keiser, his wife, was a daughter of Ulerich Keiser and Veronica, his wife. Both were natives of the Pfalz, Germany. Veronica's father was a tanner, who lived five hours from Heidleburg, in a small village called Renche. Her father and mother came with her to America in the fall of the year 1731. They arrived at Philadelphia, and moved to the neighborhood of where Andrew Shriver lived and where her father, soon died, and she married Andrew Shriver.

In moving to Conewago, Andrew Shriver's step-brother, David Young, came with them and helped to clear three acres of land, which they planted in corn, and Young then returned home. During this clearing—about three weeks—they lived under Young's wagon cover, after which Andrew Shriver peeled elm bark and made temporary huts to keep off the weather and by Fall prepared a cabin. The wagon that brought them to this place passed through what is now known by the name of "Wills' Bottom," and in the grass, which was as high as the wagon, left marks of its passage which were visible for several years. There was no opportunity for obtaining necessary supplies for the first year, short of Streamer's Mill, adjoining Lancaster.

One hundred acres of land where he lived, were the first he bought, which cost him one hundred pears of negro shoes, being the price agreed upon with Mr. Diggs, the owner, of whom he shortly after bought more land, which was paid for in money.

At the time of his settlement in Conewago, the nearest neighbor of Andrew Shriver was a family of the name of Forney, living where the town of Hanover is now located. It is worthy of remark that these families were in after years united in marriage. For a long time the public road from the South came by Andrew Shriver's house, and, at the time of his settlement, Indians lived near him in every direction. About this time, and for several years after, the Delaware and Catawaba Indians were at war and each Spring many warriors passed by, after stopping at Andrew Shriver's spring, which was a large flush limestone one. At this time they would display in triumph the scalps, painted and suspended from a pole, which they had been able to obtain from the enemy. They received the accommodation of free quarters as demanded; the consequence was they were very social, and smoked around the pipe of friendship very freely, without any attempt at wanton injury.

Having but little cleared ground at this time, the stock was left to run at large in the woods. Such as were wanted, David, being the eldest child, had to collect every morning, much to his discomfort, the pea vines and grass being nearly as high as himself and covered with dew, soon made his deer skin dress so wet as to render it like unto his skin, adhesive to his body. Deer and other game were so abundant, and so destructive to grain fields, as to render hunting necessary for their protection.

David Shriver, son of Andrew Shriver, and Anna Maria, his wife, was born in York county, Pa., at a place called Conewago, south of Hanover about six miles. His parents had been but a few years from Germany, and recently married when they settled at Conewago, in the woods surrounded by Indians. David Shriver, the first born, grew up with scarcely any education, the opportunity and means being both wanting. The time of his majority was, of course, occupied in rendering his father assistance in the business in which he was engaged. On arriving at age, he attracted the attention of Andrew Steiger, residing in Baltimore, who was an enterprising man engaged in extensive business. Steiger employed him as storekeeper in a county store, which he located not far from his father's residence. The want of an education being immediately experienced, he so applied himself to attain what his business required, that, in a short time he acquired a very good knowledge of figures, as well as wrote a fair hand, and otherwise improved himself in knowledge and address.

At this time Lancaster had become a considerable town, and it was the custom to hold semi-annual fairs, which drew together vast numbers of people. At one of these fairs David Shriver first met Rebecca Ferree, who had been placed at school in Lancaster to acquire a knowledge of ornamental needle work. He accompanied her home, and was received with becoming respect by her father, but with much displeasure and indignity by her mother, who was Elizabeth Eltinge, she having imbibed high notions in consequence of the opulence and distinction enjoyed by her family in New York. Standing well, however, with the daughter and father, he persevered and succeeded in his object. Previous to this he had settled on a tract of land provided for him by his father, at Little Pipe Creek, Frederick county, Md., where he had erected some buildings and cleared lands. To this place he brought his wife, and thereupon built a mill, which, though of little value in after time, was, nevertheless, of con-considerable importance to himself and neighbors at that period, the settlement being in its infancy.

Having experienced the want of an education, he sought, at an early period to have his children taught, and for this purpose sent his eldest son abroad for some time, there being no school within reach of them. Possessing an inquisitive and discriminating mind, he added rapidly to his stock of information. As a self-taught mathematician he made considerable advance, and was instructor to his sons in the art of surveying—the compass and other instruments used being of his own manufacture. His mechanical talents were remarkable.

He was, moreover, the umpire of the neighborhood, in the settlement of controversies. Having a great aversion to law suits and litigation, he did much to preserve peace and harmony. His house was the resort of much company, and the place where travelers regularly sought shelter and repose; they were always received with kindness and liberality and treated without reward.

The disputes between the colonies and mother country early attracted his attention and he early became an active Whig. So warm was he in the support of the rights of his country that his friends were alarmed for his safety, and his clergyman emphatically warned him to beware; that the powers placed over him were of God; that he would be hung for treason and his family made beggars. He treated the admonition with marked contempt and persevered, taking an active part in committees, vigilance and public safety, and urging his countrymen to vindicate their rights. He was, in consequence, elected a member of the convention of 1776, to frame a constitution for Maryland, and was afterwards continued, with the exception of a year or two, a member of the Legislature for thirty years, and until the infirmities of age admonished him of the propriety of retirement. He ever abhorred debt as a restraint upon his independence and freedom of action. Of course, his advancement to wealth was slow but certain, and at his death without a cent of debt, he was worth seventy thousand dollars.

David Shriver had two brothers and four sisters, who all married. The names of the brothers were Andrew and
The Swope Family.

Jacob; the former continued to reside on the home plantation and raised a large family. The latter moved to Littlestown, had one son, who died young, and his father shortly after.

The character of Rebecca Shriver was almost entirely domestic. At an early period her mind became imbued with piety, and the duties of religion were at no time neglected or disregarded by her. On the contrary, she delighted in devotion; she habitually spoke of the hour of her dissolution with complacency, and while afar off prepared to meet it as a matter rather to be desired than avoided. In her religion there was nothing, however, of gloom or austerity. She freely took part in the rational enjoyments of life, and was highly social and benevolent, ever ready to receive all who called upon her, whether relative, friend or stranger. The best refreshments of her table were always presented to them and their wants liberally supplied.

As a mother she was truly affectionate, ever sympathizing in the afflictions and ministering to the welfare of her children with a tenderness that could not be surpassed. Her husband having occasion to be much from home, the management of the family, which was large, devolved mainly upon her, which she met without a murmur, and discharged with the utmost propriety.

David Shriver was born March 30, 1735, and died Jan. 30, 1826, aged 90 years and 8 months. May 8, 1761, he married Rebecca Ferree, who was born Jan. 21, 1742, and died Nov. 24, 1812, aged 70 years, 10 months and 3 days. They had eight children—Andrew, David, Rachel, Abraham, Mary, Isaac, Jacob, Susanna.

It may be of interest to state that Mr. Clarence Shriver, of Baltimore, Md., in a late tour of Europe, availed himself of the opportunity to visit the home of his paternal ancestry, Alsenborn, Germany. He visited the Hess family residence, the home of Anna Margareta Hess (the widow Young), wife of Andrew Shriver the emigrant, which is still occupied by descendants of the Hess family. He obtained from Mrs. Hess, the present occupant of the house, a valuable relic—a pewter plate stamped with the Hess name, said to have been over two hundred years in possession of the family.
NOTE III. The progenitor of this Forney family in America was Johann Adam Forney, who came to this country from Wachenheim-in-the-Haardt, near Manheim, Germany. Family tradition says that "the Forneys were originally Huguenot refugees from France, who sought an asylum in Germany from religious persecution." Johann Adam Forney brought with him to this country a certificate from the magistrates, Burgomaster and council of the city of Wachenheim, and sealed with the city council's great seal, May 7, 1721, setting forth among other things that, "As long as we have known him he has behaved himself honorably, piously and honestly as well becomes a good citizen, and moreover showed himself so neighborly that no one has had any complaint to make of him. He is also bound by no compulsory service or servitude." He arrived in Philadelphia, Oct. 16, 1721. In 1734 we find him in the Conewago settlement in York county, where he had bought land. The Pennsylvania Archives make frequent mention of him because of the trouble he had in holding his land, owing to the conflicting claims of Penn and Baltimore to the proprietorship of that part of Pennsylvania. He, however, held his own and lived there until his death, which occurred about 1752, tradition says from the consequences of a wound inflicted by an Indian. Johann Adam Forney and his wife Louisa Elizabeth, had six children. One, Philip, married Elizabeth Sherz, they had several children, among whom was Adam, who married Rachel Shriner (see note II.) They had eleven children, one of whom was Samuel, who married Eliza Swope. A very complete history of the Forney family has been compiled by Miss Lucy Forney Bittinger, of Sewickly, Pa., from which the above was taken.

NOTE IV. Samuel S. Forney's mother, Rachel Shriner, was a daughter of Rebecca Ferree, who married David Shriner, of Little Pipe Creek, Md. The history of the Ferree family is an interesting one, and is here given, for not only has the Forney branch of the Swope family descended from Madam Ferree, but the Shriners who are descended from the Swopes through Catharine Swope Wirt. We are indebted for our account of the Ferree family to the "Shriner Family History" and "Rupp's History of Dauphin and Cumberland Counties," etc.

The Ferree (Le Fiere) family were among the sufferers in France after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by Louis XIV, in 1685.

"John Le Fiere had married a woman of rare endowments, Mary Warrimbere. Their children were Daniel, Philip, John, Catharine, Mary, Jane. On the destruction of the Protestant establishments the family removed from their home, near the Rhine, to Strasburg, Germany. Here they remained two years, but on the death of her husband Mary went to Holland. The character of this lady was tinctured with uncommon resolution and intrepidity. She had left the land of her nativity for ever, the tie of love of country had been rudely broken. About this time hearing of the fair province of Pennsylvania, she resolved to seek its benevolent founder,
William Penn. With this view, accompanied by her chil-

"William Penn became interested in the unfortunate Mary Le Fiere, moved by the sad tale of her sufferings and the vicissitudes she had undergone. He received her into his house, introduced her to the Queen, who, commiserating her condition, promised her aid on emigrating to the 'Land of Penn.' William Penn procured lodgings for her in the vicinity, where she remained six months, until the 'vessel bound to the North river' was ready to sail with emigrants.
The Queen provided her with ploughs, harrows, axes, hatchets, saws, hand-mill for grinding corn, etc. Mary Le Fiere arrived in New York about eight months afterwards, and visited Esopus, then went to Philadelphia, taking with her letters to Penn's agent, with a grant for two thousand acres of land. She found the Hugenots dissatisfied with their situation, the vineyards on the Schuylkill near Philadelphia not proving profitable, which they resolved to abandon and join Madam Le Fiere in the proposed settlement among Pequeas, whose king had been a favorite of Penn's, and the location was strenuously recommended to Madam Le Fiere by the kind agent.''

Rupp, in his "History of Dauphin and Cumberland Counties," etc., thus describes the arrival of Madam Le Fiere and her party in the valley of the Pequea: "It was on the evening of a summer's day when the Hugenots reached the verge of a hill commanding a view of the valley of Pequea; it was a woodland scene, a forest inhabited by wild beasts, for no indication of civilized man was near; scattered along the Pequea, amidst the dark-green hazel, could be discovered the Indian wigwams, the smoke issuing therefrom in its spiral form; no sound was heard but the songs of the birds; in silence they contemplated the beautiful prospect which nature presented to their view. Suddenly a number of Indians darted from the woods; the females shrieked, when an Indian advanced, and in broken English said to Madam Ferree: 'Indian no harm white; white good to Indian; go to Beaver—our chief—come to Beaver.'"

Few were the words of the Indian. They went with him to Beaver's cabin, and Beaver, with the humanity that distinguished the Indian of that period, gave up to the immigrants his wigwam. Next day he introduced them to Tawana, who lived on the great flats of Pequea."

"At the time of the Ferree settlement in his dominions Mary Le Fiere took a present from Penn's agent to Tawana, and thus secured his friendship."

"She had a grant of 2000 acres of land, Daniel Ferree, her son, had a grant of 2000 acres, and her son, Philip Ferree, who married Leah, daughter of Abraham Du Bois, was presented with the grant held by Du Bois for 2000 acres."

"Isaac La Fevre held a grant for 2000 acres, and also obtained an additional grant by his marrying Catharine Ferree. Their son was the first white child born in the valley of the Pequea, Lancaster county, Pa."

"The Ferree family, according to the above data, must have reached this country in the year 1705 or 1706. Allowing for the visit to Esopus, North river, New York, the settlement at Pequea was made a year or two later."

"The name of Madam Ferree will long be held in grateful remembrance by her numerous and warm-hearted progeny; she died 1716. Her descendants have been connected by marriage, with a number of the well-known families of the
The Swope Family.

State, some of whose ancestors were identified with the Pequea settlement dating from 1718 onward.

Philip Ferree, son of John and Mary Le Fiere (Ferree), was born, 1687, at Steyn-Wiel, in the Palatinate and was about 21 years old when they came to this country. Having formed the acquaintance of several families in Esopus, N. Y., he went to that place and lived one year with Abramam Du Bois, one of the twelve patentees of New Pfaltz. While in the family of Abraham Du Bois, Philip Ferree formed an attachment for his daughter Leah, whom he married, May 10, 1712, the ceremony being performed by Dominie Petrus Vas. She was born Oct. 16, 1687. Abraham Du Bois, who was born 1657, at Manheim, Germany, married, March 6, 1681, Margaret, daughter of Christian Deys at Esopus, and died Oct. 7, 1731. He was a son of Louis Du Bois and his wife Catharine, daughter of Mathew Blanshon and his wife Madeleen Jorrisse, who fled from France to Germany in 1650, where they remained until April 27, 1660, when they sailed for America in the ship "Gelded Otter," arriving here December 7, 1660. They settled at Esopus. Philip Ferree, after his marriage, moved to the Pequea settlement and commenced improving land on the north side of Pequea creek, that had previously been taken up by his mother and family. Some of their first labors were to cut grass in the woods for the purpose of making hay, no land having been cleared on the part allotted them.

"They placed timbers in the ground forked at the top, laid poles across them, and built their hay on top of that, and under this they lived. During their stay in this shelter their first son was born. They lived to have eight children—five boys and three girls. The names of the sons were Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Philip and Joel. The daughters were Lena, Leah and Elizabeth. Abraham married Elizabeth Eltinge or Elteng, of Esopus, and had six children. He was buried in Carpenter's graveyard, about a mile from where he was born, it being a burial ground pointed out by his grandmother Mary."

Rebecca, the eldest child of Abraham and Elizabeth (Eltinge) Ferree was born Jan. 21, 1742; married David Shriver,
May 8, 1761. David Shriver was born March 30, 1735. They had eight children. Their first daughter, Rachel, who was born Jan. 7, 1767, married Adam Forney. The issue of this marriage was ten children, the one son, Samuel S., as above referred to, was the founder of the Forney branch of the Swope family.

Note V. Dr. Jesse Gilbert was a son of Bernard Gilbert, who was born March 21, 1786, and married his cousin, Susannah, daughter of Jacob Gilbert, of Adams county. Bernard Gilbert lived in Gettysburg, Pa. He was sheriff of Adams county, Pa., in 1821, prothonotary in 1835, and county treasurer in 1836. He subsequently moved to Athens, Tenn., where he died. His father was George, and his grandfather Bernard Gilbert, who came to America in 1744, and settled in what is now Adams county, near the village of Bendersville, where he married Catharine Bender.

Note VI. The Hays family and allied branches were among the earliest settlers of the Cumberland Valley, Pa. Their first ancestor in this country was Patrick Hays, who came to this country from Ireland, where the family had lived some time after their emigration from Scotland. He settled in Derry now Dauphin county, Pa., and had several children, one of whom was Capt. Robert, who served during the Indian wars of 1755-64, and also in the Revolution. He married Margaret Wray, and had besides other children, Patrick, who settled in Cumberland county about 1821. His son Robert married Hannah Sharpe. Their son John married Jennie E. McFarlane. The children of this union were Belle McKinney Hays, wife of Gilbert E. Swope; Lucy Sharpe and Jane McFarlane. Hannah Sharpe, wife of Robert M. Hays, descended from Thomas Sharpe, who married Margaret Elder, the daughter of a Scottish laird. He came to America prior to 1746, and settled on Big Spring, Cumberland county, Pa. He had five sons and five daughters; four of his sons were commissioned officers in the Revolutionary war, the fifth one, Alexander, was a private. Alexander married Margaret McDowell and had several children, one of whom was John, the father of Gen. A. B. Sharpe, of Carlisle, and Hannah, wife of Robert M. Hays, of Newville. Jennie E. McFarlane, wife of John Hays, was a daughter of Robert McFarlane and Lydia Belle McKinney. Robert McFarlane was a son of Robert, and Robert was a son of Patrick, and Patrick was a son of James, who came to this country about 1718, and settled in Cumberland Valley. The descendants of James McFarlane through his son Patrick have lived in the neighborhood of Newville, Pa. The Scottish clan of McFarlane are descended from the ancient Celtic Earls of Lennox. In the reign of James V of Scotland, the head of the clan was chosen to defend an important defile between the high and low lands of that part of Scotland. This duty was successfully performed. The reward was permission to carry on the family insignia "This I'll Defend."
The Swope Family.

Note VII. The Henkle family are descended from the Rev. Johann Henkle, D. D., LL. D., born in Leutschau, Hungary, and father confessor to Queen Maria about the year 1530. He sympathized with Protestantism, and maintained friendly relations with Melanchthon, Erasmus, Spalatin and other reformers of the sixteenth century. One of his descendants, Count Henkle, was instrumental in sending to America Rev. Henry Melcher, the patriarch of Lutheranism in this county. Rev. Gerhard Henkle, who was a descendant of Count Henkle, was a German court preacher, and came to America about 1718, and located at Germantown, near Philadelphia, Pa. He had a son Jacob who was the father of the Rev. Paul Henkle, who was actively engaged in the ministry of the Lutheran Church in the South for forty-four years. Three of his brothers were clergymen and five of his sons clergymen of the Lutheran Church, one of whom was Andrew before noticed.

Note VIII. Isaac Le Fevre was born March 26, 1660, in France. During the persecutions of the Huguenots which followed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, his family were all killed. He alone escaped to the hospitable borders of Germany where he remained several years. He married in Germany in 1704, Catharine, daughter of John and Mary Warrimbe Le Fiere, also refugees from the persecutions in France. He accompanied Madame Le Fiere (Fieree) and her family to America about 1705, and settled in Pequea Valley, Lancaster county, Pa., where he obtained a grant for 2,000 acres of land. Isaac Le Fevre had six children, the oldest of whom was Abraham, born April 9, 1706. Abraham had Peter, and Peter had Joseph, and Joseph had Catharine, who married Col. Ephraim Swope. Joseph also had Elizabeth, who married John Keeports, whose daughter Susan was the second wife of Col. Ephraim Swope.

Note IX. The Spangler family from which Lydia, wife of Adam Swope (see page 75), is descended have traced their family back to George Spengler, who was born 1150, died 1190. He was cupbearer to the Bishop of Würzburg, and accompanied the Bishop and the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa on the Crusade, 1189. Both he and the Bishop died of the plague, and were buried in the church of St. Peter, Antioch, 1190. Following is the descent of Lydia (Spangler) Swope: 1George, 2George, 3Kilian, 4Kilian, 5Peter, 6Hans, 7Hans or Urban, 8George, 9George, 10Frantz, 11Lazarus, 12Hans, 13Jacob, 14Hans Rudolf, 15Hans Kasper born January 20, 1684, married February 9, 1712, Judith Zeigler. They emigrated to America 1727, and settled in York county, Pa. 16Jonas born May 26, 1715, at Weyler, Duchy of Baden, died in York county, Pa., 1762. His wife, Maria, born 1718, died October 15, 1784. 17Henry born 1750, died 1791, married October 28, 1779, Maria C. Hoke, born 1753, died 1818. 18Lydia Spangler married Adam Swope.

Edward W. Spangler, of York, Pa., has written a very complete history of that family from which the above was taken.
APPENDIX.

Prior to the Revolutionary War quite a number of Schwab (Swope) families emigrated to this country, as will be seen by the following list taken from the Penna. Archives. Several of these families settled in Pennsylvania. Five families of Schwab lived in York county, Pa., during the same decade, yet there are no records to show that they were related; however, it is probable that they were, for it is hardly possible that five families bearing a name as uncommon as the Swope name lived in as sparsely a settled community as York was previous to the Revolution and not be related. The following took the oath of allegiance immediately after their arrival in this country or on the date given with each name:—

"A list of Ye Palatine Passengers imported in Ye ship William and Sarah, from Rotterdam, Sept. 18, 1727, Albert Swop.

On ship Patience and Margaret, from Rotterdam, Sept. 25, 1748, Baltzer Schwab, aged 43 years.

On ship Two Brothers, from Rotterdam, Sept. 15, 1748, John Philip Schwab.

On ship Patience, from Rotterdam, Sept. 16, 1748, Heinrich Schwab, 18 years old.

On imported brig Mary, of Philadelphia, from London, June 28, 1755, Peter Schwab.

On ship Edinburg, from Rotterdam, Sept. 15, 1749, Freiderick Schwab and Johan Walter Schwab.

On ship Ann, from Rotterdam, Sept. 28, 1749, Jacob Schwab and Hans Michael Schwab.

On ship Patience, from Rotterdam, Aug. 11, 1750, Jacob Schwab."
