PREFACE.
PREFACE.

This volume, containing one thousand numbers, will be uniform with those that follow. In its preparation the effort has been to economize space; nevertheless, it is larger in proportion than former issues. This is consequent upon the increased interest throughout the country in the Revolutionary period. Many members have filed additional ancestors, and in all cases where the descent is given it has been printed, as an aid in establishing the right to membership of many wishing to join the Society. A curious net work is thus woven, linking together widely separated families and sections.

The letter and spirit of the constitution of the Daughters of the American Revolution embraces and invites every descendant of a patriotic ancestor to unite with the Society in perpetuating the memory of those who participated in the struggle for independence. In the records we drink from the fountain head of the history of the war and one cannot fail to grasp fundamental truths, and recognize the strong elements which united became irresistible. The bulk of our army was native born and of English descent. Citizens who were unable to bear arms fed and clothed the soldiers.

All sections, all classes, and all professions seemed thrilled with the new-born love of liberty. The clergy were zealous leaders, and the physicians cheerfully gave their skill to the sick and wounded. Many rich willingly became poor for the sake of National Independence, and in consequence of their generosity were conspicuous objects of retaliation. All honor to those devoted patriots who held their riches, as a loan from fortune, subject to the demands of duty and honor. The founders of this Government have builded their own monuments, and we can only inscribe upon them our gratitude and reverence.

The Hancock-Clarke House of Lexington.

Built in 1698 by Rev. John Hancock, the second minister of Lexington, and grandfather of Governor John Hancock, first governor of Massachusetts, and president of the Continental Congress.

Enlarged with a two-story addition in 1734 by Thomas Hancock, the minister's son, builder of the famous Hancock mansion in Boston. The house was occupied by the Hancock family above sixty years, and much of the boyhood of Governor Hancock was passed here with his grandparents. It then became the home and property of Rev. Jonas Clarke, the third minister of Lexington, and one of the leading spirits in the events which brought on the Revolution and won our independence.

It was the gathering-place of some of the great statesmen of that period for consultation upon the critical state of the country.

Here John Hancock and Sam Adams were sleeping on the night of the 18th of April, 1775, when aroused by Paul Revere and told that a detachment of British troops were on the march to arrest them. In view of this house occurred the firing on the Common in the early morning, which ushered in the war of the Revolution. Thus it has a history closely associated with the men and the events that have given us a nation.
Should it not be preserved and kept as a memorial of the birth of the Great Republic and of the men who consecrated their lives "to Liberty and the rights of mankind"?

The Lexington Historical Society has resolved to save it, and is now earnestly engaged in collecting funds to accomplish this object. It has been bought and removed to a new site about a hundred feet from where it stood before. This had to be done to save it from being torn down and destroyed.
The intention is to have it restored in every particular as it was in 1775, and kept open to visitors. To accomplish this requires the raising of about $4,000;
and of this sum the amount so far needed has been advanced by an individual, who thus becomes the owner of it, in the expectation that it will be paid for by the Historical Society and then become its property.

Should not all our patriotic societies be interested in this object? Will they not join in raising money to secure an end so much to be desired? Are there not many individuals who will contribute to preserve so precious a relic?
It belongs not alone to Lexington: it belongs to the State and the nation.
Let all help to secure and keep it for the generations to come.

This plan has been heartily endorsed by the Directors of the Sons of the American Revolution, and $200 donated from their funds for this object.

Contributions may be sent to Rev. C. A. Staples or to Leonard A.

Contributions from Chapters or individual members of the D. A. R. may be sent to Mrs.
Amos Northrop was lieutenant in Capt. Dan Towner's company, First Battalion, commanded by Col. Samuel Whitney.

Wife of William M. Coates.
Descendant of Dr. Henry Malcolm and Capt. Joseph Olney, of Rhode Island.
Daughter of John Lloyd and Esther Barton Malcolm, his wife.
See No. 2378.

MRS. MARY BANCROFT JONES. 2985
Born in Pennsylvania.
Wife of Norman Marriott Jones.
Descendant of Capt. Joseph Olney and Dr. Henry Malcolm, of Delaware.
Daughter of John Lloyd and Esther Barton Malcolm, his wife.
See No. 2378.

MRS. ANNA WILLIAMS DREER. 2986
Born in Wisconsin.
Wife of William F. Dreer.
Descendant of Capt. Phinehas Williams, of Woodstock, Vt.
Daughter of Dr. Edward N. Williams and Cornelia Bailey Pratt, his wife.
Granddaughter of Hon. Norman Williams and Mary Ann Wentworth Brown, his wife.
Great-granddaughter of Hon. Jesse Williams and Hannah Palmer, his wife.

Great-great-granddaughter of Phinehas Williams and Mary Field, his wife.

Phinehas Williams, in 1776, was captain of militia, and when Vermont organized he commanded the First Company, the Third Regiment, First Brigade. He was selectman of the town in 1778, and served many years.

Mrs. Frances E. Boileau Dayton.

Born in Pennsylvania.

Wife of Alphonso A. Dayton.

Descendant of James McNamara, of Meadville, Pa.

Daughter of Roland C. Boileau and Harriet W. Shryock, his wife.

Granddaughter of Daniel Shryock and Elizabeth McNamara, his wife.

See No. 2090.

Mrs. Ella D. Snyder Lintner.

Born in Pennsylvania.

Wife of J. E. Lintner.

Descendant of Lieut. Col. Philip Frederick Antes.

Daughter of Antes Snyder and Emma F. Evans, his wife.

Granddaughter of George Antes Snyder and Ann Ellen Duncan, his wife.

See No. 2861.

Mrs. Julia Ridgway Grey Dayton.

Wife of George Potter.
Descendant of Mary Van Hook, mother of Capt. Lawrence Van Hook.
Daughter of William Furness Van Hook and Mary Anne Lee, his wife.
Granddaughter of William Furness Van Hook and Elizabeth Beckman, his wife.
Great-granddaughter of Benjamin Van Hook, brother of Lawrence.
See No. 2331.

MRS. ELIZEBETH COX SULLIVAN.
Born in Ohio.
Wife of Theodore G. Sullivan.
Granddaughter of Ezekiel Taylor Cox and Maria Matilda Sullivan, his wife; James Monroe Van Zandt and Elizabeth Denison, his wife.
Great-granddaughter of James Cox and Ann Potts, his wife; William Denison and Anna Slack, his wife; John Van Zandt and Elizabeth Kroesen, his wife; Judge Samuel Sullivan and Mary Freeman, his wife.
Great-great-granddaughter of William Potts and Amy Borden, his wife; Jacobus Van Zandt and Jennetje Bennet, his wife; Johannes Kroesen and Jennetje Nevins, his wife; and of David Sullivan and of Samuel Freeman.

Great-great-great-granddaughter of Joseph Borden and Elizabeth Rogers, his wife.

Joseph Borden was a member of the Council of Safety when the war began; he was selected colonel and quartermaster of State troops. His wife was visited by Lord Cornwallis who offered to spare her elegant home if she would induce her husband and son to leave the American Army and join his forces; to this she gave an indignant refusal, and the mansion was soon in flames.

James Cox rose from the ranks to be brigadier general of militia. He served throughout the war and was praised for his skill and courage.

David Sullivan and Samuel Freeman were in the militia.

William Potts was a private in the Continental Line.

Johannes Kroesen, in 1775, was an officer, and Jacobus Van Zandt a soldier in a Bucks county, Pennsylvania, regiment.

William Denison, a member of a family of patriots, in 1777, enlisted for the war in the Connecticut infantry. He fought at Yorktown under Lafayette.

MISS EMMA SYLVIA COLE.

Descendant of Daniel Bowly, of Maryland.
Daughter of George Murray Gill and Ann McKim Bowly, his wife.
Granddaughter of William Luy Bowly and Mary Hollins, his wife.
Great-granddaughter of Daniel Bowly and Ann Stuart, his wife.
Daniel Bowly was a member of the Committee of Observation in 1775, and ensign in an independent company of militia at Germantown. He was owner of privateers, and superintendent of naval construction for the State. He was one of the patriotic merchants of Baltimore who furnished food and equipments to Lafayette's army when passing South.

Mrs. Cornelia Talcott Rowland. 2998
Born in New York.
Wife of Samuel Carson Rowland.
Daughter of Charles Edward Ransom and Georgia Anderson, his wife.
Granddaughter of Charles Ransom and Hope Maria Talcott, his wife.
Great-granddaughter of William Ransom and Rachel Brooks, his wife.

Great-great-granddaughter of Samuel Ransom and Esther Lawrence, his wife.

Samuel Ransom was captain of the Second Independent Company at Bound Brook, Brandywine, and Germantown, where they acquitted themselves like veterans. As his home was menaced by British and Indians he then served under Col. John Butler in the Wyoming Valley, and every captain in the six companies was found dead at the front of the line in the massacre of July, 1778. His name heads the list on the monument erected to the memory of the slain.
