PREFACE.
PREFACE.

The fourth volume embraces members who entered in the year 1893 and includes, as does each of the series, one thousand records. I wish to call attention to the references which link these genealogies with those of preceding volumes. There is no other change in presenting this historical matter save an abbreviation adopted to economize space and thought to be an improvement.

For illustrations, the National Officers have, as far as possible, been reproduced, and I have made special effort to secure the portraits of State Regents, and hope the series will be continued until the lineaments of each Daughter who has held this responsible office shall appear in the Lineage Book of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.
