PREFACE.
PREFACE.

The ninth volume of the Lineage Book of the Daughters of the American Revolution includes the national numbers from 8001 to 9000. The demand for this work is steadily increasing, especially from the earlier members, for they have come to an appreciation of its value.

In this volume the faces of the Honorary State Regents first greet us, for, in our organization we wish to honor, not only the women of the Revolution, but those who were pioneers in our work, whom the States delight to dignify as their honorary officers.

As our Lineage Books increase in number and circulation, their necessity as auxiliaries to the library of our National Society is more and more clearly demonstrated, for many valuable genealogical and historical works have been procured by exchange with this publication. The Lineage Book, following the application papers, at quite an interval, the selections from our expanding library add new interest to our records through the principle of evolution. The members of the Society are often surprised by the appearance of a new ancestor, or the heroism of their original ancestors is depicted in more glowing terms in the Lineage Books than in their modest original application papers, for the final revision supplies what was omitted at first through inexperience and lack of knowledge.
