HIS DESCENDENTS,

compiled by

1967
The writer of this manuscript is indebted to the many descendents who submitted their family records. Charles Clinton Everman (5G), his daughter Luetta Everman Sager, and his niece Fern Everman Richardson were very helpful in tracing the descendents of Barton Stone Everman (3G) (1815-circa 1885). For the family of William Franklin Everman (4G) (1845-1910) thanks to Cousin Abbie Everman Stiles and her daughter-in-law Mrs. Stanley Stiles; to Ruth Everman Greenshields (5G) for the research she did in the LDS Library at Salt Lake City and the trips she made to Kentucky to gather state and county records.

The research on the background of the Everman family was made by the writer aided by the written record left by the late Dr. Barton Warren Evermann (4G) (1853-1932) and located in the possession of his niece, Ava Everman of Kokomo, Indiana.

Had it not been for my husband Otto Haraldson and our son Rodney Haraldson the travel and research for this work would not have been possible. For their patience and help I am greatful.

Since inaccuracies and omissions no doubt occure in this work I request to be informed of all mistakes in case a second edition be called for, either I or some other may make the corrections.

As I gathered the information for this manuscript it was a great pleasure to meet many fine cousins. I also enjoyed the correspondence with many whom I hope to meet at a later date.

Irene Everman Haraldson

April, 1967
On September 26, 1732 the English ship "Mary" docked at the port of Philadelphia with 61 German passengers aboard. Among these immigrants were Michael Eberman, age 56; Conrad Eberman, age 23; and Hans Jacob Eberman, age 19. Since only the names of males over 16 years of age were recorded by the clerk of the ship we must assume there were also females and males under 16 years of age in this group. Among the young male passengers there had to be a German lad of about seven years of age by the name of Michael Eberman who will be referred to in this manuscript as "our immigrant ancestor, Michael Eberman (1G)." It is probable that Michael Eberman, age 56, was the father of Michael (1G) and that Conrad and Hans Jacob were brothers of the young Michael.

The information I will now quote is from a manuscript compiled between 1885 and 1905 by Dr. Barton Warren Everman, a great grandson of Michael Eberman (1G).

"According to the information given to me by my father, Andrew Everman (3G) (1817-1905), at various times in the last 20 years of his life, the American progenitor of the Everman family was my great grandfather, Michael Eberman (1G), who was born about 1725 somewhere on the Rhine, in Germany. Tradition has it that five brothers came from Germany at the same time; that two of them settled in Pennsylvania, and the other three in Virginia. Of the two who settled in Pennsylvania very little is known; of the three brothers who settled in Virginia only the name of one is known; namely, Michael Eberman (1G), my great grandfather."

1. From German Pioneers, by Strassburger and Hinke.
2. (1G) means first generation in America.
* He always spelled his name Evermann.
"He is said to have entered the American Army in the Revolutionary War. One unverified tradition has it that he was married twice. How many of his 14 children were by the first wife and how many by the second wife tradition does not say. It is said that he spent the last years of his life at the home of his son, Andrew Everman (2G)(1780-1857), near Mt. Sterling, Kentucky. My father, Andrew Everman (3G)(1817-1905), often heard him tell about his experiences as a Revolutionary War soldier. He would take his old gun down from its supports on the wall and show his grandchildren the mysteries of gun drill and the manual of Arms. He was not a large man, perhaps 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing about 175 pounds. His second wife died many years before his death. He is said to have been a man of very strong convictions and very strong will, who often lost his temper. At the time of his death, which occurred about 1830, at the home of his son, Andrew (2G), near Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, he was 105 years and 10 days old. If this is true, he was born about 1725. His body lies in the old graveyard at the mouth of Somerset Creek, north of Mt. Sterling, Montgomery County, Kentucky."

Andrew Everman (3G)(1817-1905), who furnished his son, Dr. Barton Warren Everman (4G), with the material for the above quoted manuscript, was 13 years of age when his grandfather, Michael Eberman (1G), died about 1830. A lad of 13 would naturally be impressed with the extreme old age of his grandfather and the stories he told of his Revolutionary War experiences.

3. Jane, Michael's wife, was last listed in the 1820 Federal Census of Montgomery County, Kentucky.

4. Michael was not listed in the 1830 Federal Census of Montgomery County, Kentucky, but according to a record in the Circuit Court of Bourbon County, Kentucky, he was still alive in Nov. of 1828.

5. This writer located the old abandoned cemetery just above the junction of Somerset and Grassy Lick Creeks in Montgomery County, Ky. The old burial ground is surrounded by a wall of limestone, and is now referred to as the old Wilson Cemetery.
The biography of Michael Everman (3G)(1826-1881) appeared in a history of Appanoose County, Iowa, published in 1878. This states that his grandfather was born in Germany. The statements of these two grandsons, Michael (3G) and Andrew Jr. (3G), about the immigrant Michael Eberman; plus the fact that a search of the ship records in the National Archives disclosed no other Eberman came to America until 1830, is convincing proof that our immigrant ancestor, Michael Eberman (1G), was on the boat that docked at Philadelphia on September 26, 1732.

What became of our Eberman family after they arrived in Philadelphia on September 26, 1732? A very careful study of the records in the City Hall of Philadelphia turned up nothing. The Colonial Records of Pennsylvania listed Michael Eberman as settling in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, but a study of the church and court house records of that county revealed nothing.

It was not until a search of the Virginia records was made that I again located our Eberman family, although I am sure they spent some time in Pennsylvania before going to Virginia.

THE EBERMAN BROTHERS IN VIRGINIA

Michael, John, and Jacob Eberman were paid in 1756 and 1760 for their services in the French and Indian War, serving from Augusta County, Virginia. At that time Augusta County was very large, extending far beyond the Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi River.

In 1782, Michael Eberman (1G) was on the tax list of Hampshire County, Virginia. Later Hampshire County was divided to form Hardy County and Michael Eberman (1G) was a taxpayer in that county by 1786. These two were brothers.

6. These two were brothers.
After a division of Hardy County in 1767, he was then a taxpayer in Penelton County which was formed from Hardy and Augusta Counties. Our ancestor had never moved, only the county lines had been changed. In 1790 Michael Eberman (1G) was still living on his original 64 acres, a land patent of 1767, five miles below the mouth of Seneca Creek.

Michael Eberman, our immigrant ancestor, lived in a little valley less than a mile wide along the North Fork of the South Branch of the Potomac River, five miles below the point where the Seneca, a swift mountain stream, runs into the North Fork. At the junction of these two streams are located the beautiful Seneca Rocks, considered the most beautiful spot in West Virginia and featured on the cover of the West Virginia State Highway Map. Of course, when our ancestors lived there they were living in Virginia. During the Civil War this part of the state became West Virginia.

A study of the court records of Augusta County, Virginia proved that John Eberman (1G), who served in the French and Indian War, was a brother of our immigrant ancestor, Michael Eberman (1G). John died in 1774; his widow, Mary, and his brother, Michael, were appointed the administrators of his estate. If John left any male heirs they would have been minors at the time of his death. John, who lived near his brother, Michael, in Virginia, would have been under 16 years of age when the family came to America since his name did not appear on the ship list.

Jacob, who was named on the ship list as Hans Jacob, lived near his two brothers, Michael and John. Jacob was naturalized in 1767.

9. Augusta County Court Records. Dr. Morton in his History of Pendleton County, West Virginia states that Jacob, John, and Michael Eberman were brothers.
1774 in the Augusta County, Virginia Court. Of the many thousands naturalized, the records of only a few remain, so it is not surprising I did not find the naturalization records of Michael and John. Many of Jacob’s descendents can be found today in Carter County, Kentucky.

Since nothing more was found concerning the immigrant John Eberman (LG), except that his bill of sale, listed in the records of Augusta County, Virginia, revealed that he was a slave holder, he will be dropped.

The Revolutionary War record of our progenitor, Michael Eberman (LG), was located in the State Archives at Richmond, Virginia. He was an ensign in the State Militia and was paid, according to his record, for 121 pounds of bacon which he furnished the American Army in 1780.

After searching through the records of Virginia and West Virginia I am convinced that the information in the manuscript of Dr. Barton Warren Everman (LG) is true—that three of the immigrant Eberman brothers settled in Virginia; namely: Michael, Jacob, John.

THE EBERMANS IN KENTUCKY

After 1790 our family became attracted by the new state of Kentucky and began leaving Virginia. Samuel and Jacob Jr., sons of Jacob Sr. (LG), were on the 1793 tax list of Bourbon County, Kentucky. Their brother, William, arrived a few years later. Apparently Jacob (LG) and his wife Barbara died before the trek to Kentucky. In 1780 Jacob (LG) and Barbara were exempt from the Virginia tax because of infirmities and old age.¹ Our progenitor, Michael (LG) and his two oldest sons, William and Jacob, appeared on the tax list of Clark County, Kentucky in 1795; although they were probably there by 1793 or 1794 as a daughter, Sarah, was married in the year 1794 to Hugh Forgey of Bourbon County, Kentucky.

The year 1799 finds Michael Eberman (1G) and wife Jane, of Montgomery County, Kentucky selling land on the north side of Seneca Creek, Pendleton County, Virginia. This fully establishes that our immigrant ancestor, Michael Eberman (1G), migrated after the Revolutionary War to the State of Kentucky.

According to the manuscript of Dr. Barton Warren Everman (4G), the sons of Michael Eberman (1G) were Jacob who settled in Clark County, Kentucky and was buried on Lullbegrud Creek of that county; William, who settled in Illinois and died there; John, who settled in Monroe County, Indiana near Ellettsville where he died May 9, 1857; Andrew and Michael Jr., who settled in Putnam County, Indiana where they spent the rest of their lives; Samuel, who settled in Clark County, Kentucky on Lullbegrud Creek; Arthur, the youngest son of Michael Eberman (1G), who settled in Nicholas County, Kentucky where he spent the rest of his days.

This writer found descendents of Jacob Eberman (2G) still living in Clark County, Kentucky. In 1852 Clark County was divided to form Powell County and it is in this county that Samuel (2G) died, and where many of his descendents can be found today. No doubt, both Jacob and Samuel were buried on Lullbegrud Creek in a little country cemetery.

2. Dr. Everman's manuscript. Bond in Bourbon Co., Ky. Clerk's Office

4. Kentucky became a state on June 1, 1792.

5. In 1962 the Eastern Kentucky Pike was surveyed through this cemetery; the bodies were removed to a spot nearby.
William (2G) received a land patent for eighty acres in 1823 in what is now Jasper County, Illinois. On this land is located a mound which is known even today as "Evermond Mound". On this mound is located a cemetery and Methodist Church. It is said by his descendents, living there today, that William was buried in this cemetery.

Michael Eberman Jr. (2G) left Montgomery County, Kentucky about 1829 and was followed by his brother Andrew (2G) in 1836; both settling in Russell Township, Putnam County, Indiana, where they spent the remainder of their days. The descendents of these two brothers can still be found there. Michael Jr. and Andrew are buried side by side in the Russellville, Putnam County, Cemetery.

Descendents of John Eberman (2G) are still living in Monroe County, Indiana. However, several of his grandchildren went to Kansas after the Civil War. Two of John's grandchildren were killed in the Battle of Perryville, October 8, 1862 at Perryville, Kentucky.

Descendents of Arthur Eberman (2G) are living in Bath County, Kentucky; others as far away as Texas and Colorado.

Little is known of the seven daughters of Michael Eberman, the emigrant, except that his daughter Sarah married Hugh Forgey, a Revolutionary War soldier, and lived and died in Bourbon Co., Ky.; daughter Polly married Charles York; Ann married an Alexander; another daughter married an Eaton; one a Skidmore; and possibly Jane who married a Hinkle. Some of these marriage records can be found in Kentucky, others are tradition.

6. The descendents of Arthur Eberman are being traced by Mrs. Dorothy Honaker, 1441 S. Pearl, Denver, Colo. 80210.
ANDREW EVERMAN (2G) (1780-1857)

Andrew Everman Sr., probably the fourth son of Michael Everman (1G), was born September 25, 1780 in Hampshire County, Virginia, now Pendleton County, West Virginia. He lived in the beautiful little valley of the North Fork Creek in the shadow of the Allegheny Mountains until his parents migrated to Clark County, Kentucky in the year 1793 or 1794. Kentucky was a new state, just free of troubles with the indians. Andrew was a lad of about 14 years when he left his Virginia home and doubtless was often homesick for the more comfortable living he left behind.

It is a question whether our family came by water down the Potomac and Ohio Rivers, and then overland from Maysville, Kentucky, located on the Ohio River, to Clark County, Kentucky; or did they go completely by land through the Cumberland Gap into Kentucky?

Andrew probably worked on his father's 400 acre farm which laid on the waters of Hinkston Creek in the northwest part of Montgomery County, Kentucky. A survey of this farm shows that a small part of the land fell in Bourbon County.

On December 15, 1810 a marriage bond was issued in Bourbon County, Kentucky for Andrew Everman to marry Nancy Wasson. One of the signers of this bond was Andrew's oldest brother, William. Nancy's parents were James and Cathy Wasson who had come to Bourbon County, Kentucky about 1795 from Iredell County, North Carolina where Nancy was born. James Wasson died in Bourbon County in 1813.

1. Montgomery County, Ky. was formed from Clark County in 1796.
2. A survey of this land can be found among the Circuit Court records in Bourbon County, Kentucky.
3. The biography of Michael Everman (3G) states his mother, Nancy Wasson, was born in North Carolina. The 1787 tax records of Rowan Co., N. Car. lists a James Wasson. Iredell County was formed from Rowan Co. in 1788. The 1790 Census of Iredell Co., N. Car. lists a James Wasson and family. No other James Wasson can be found in the 1790 Census of North Carolina.
Nancy was born March 29, 1790. James and Cathy Wasson had sons John and William and several daughters.

After Andrew Everman's and Nancy Wasson's marriage, they purchased land on Grassy Lick Creek, two miles below the mouth of Aarons Run and seven miles northwest of Mt. Sterling in Montgomery County, Kentucky. It was here that all of their twelve children were born and where they remained until 1836 when they left their old Kentucky home and migrated to Putnam County, Indiana.

From the manuscript of Barton W. Everman: "On September 5, 1836 the family bid adieu to their "old Kentucky home" and started by wagon for their new home near Russellville, Putnam County, Indiana. Enroute they passed through Frankfort, Kentucky where they saw the first railroad car they ever saw. Austin Bolles, a man who accompanied the party, drove five horses to a big wagon. Barton Stone Everman, third child and oldest son, drove two horses, while my father, Andrew Everman, then a boy of 18, drove a yoke of oxen to a two-wheel cart loaded with a portion of the household effects of his brother-in-law, Hazelwood Hughes. They crossed the Ohio River at Madison, Indiana and arrived at their new home on a farm two and a half miles south of Russellville, Indiana about the middle of September, where he died May 25, 1857; the widow died August 24, 1866 at the home of her youngest son, James, in Boone County, Indiana."

1. Land records of Putnam County, Indiana show that Andrew purchased land there before he moved his family.

2. These death dates agree with those found in the family bible.
CHILDREN OF ANDREW EVERMAN AND NANCY WASSON

1. Mary Everman (3G), usually called "Polly", was born on the farm near Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, November 5, 1811. She was married November 13, 1832 to Hazelwood Hughes. They lived near Mt. Sterling until 1836 when they moved to Putnam County, Indiana. About 1840 or 1841 they moved to Shelby County, Illinois where they remained until about 1853 when they went to Monroe County, Iowa. There Mary died February 19, 1873. Hazelwood died in Appanoose County, Iowa, May 2, 1894 at the age of 84 years, 10 months, and 20 days. He probably died at the home of his son, John, and is buried in the Dale Cemetery north of Centerville, Iowa.

The children of Mary Everman (3G) and Hazelwood Hughes were:
- William Woodford (4G), born November 11, 1834 in Kentucky
- Henry Clay (4G), born February 17, 1836 in Kentucky
- Nancy Jane (4G), born December 17, 1837 in Putnam County, Indiana
- Samuel Allen (4G), born May 8, 1839 in Putnam County, Indiana

Probably many descendants of Mary Everman and Hazelwood Hughes can be found living today (1966) in Marion, Mahaska and Monroe Counties, Iowa.

2. Demercy Everman (3G) was born in Montgomery County, Kentucky, October 4, 1813 and was married there at her home, February 17, 1834 to John Turley Crooks. She died near Albany, Oregon, September 17, 1876. J. T. Crooks was born in Virginia on September 14, 1807, the son of James Crooks and Elizabeth Wardford. He died January 1, 1896 and was buried in the Miller Cemetery near Albany, Oregon next to his wife, Demercy.

The children of Demercy Everman (3G) and John T. Crooks were:

- Martha Ellen (4G), born October 29, 1851 near Albany, Oregon

Amanda Jane Barkley (adopted), born September 6, 1842; was left with an aunt in Missouri when the Crooks family went to Oregon.

3. Peter Hughes who died in 1845 at the age of 80 years was the father of Hazelwood—-from Hughes Bible records.

4. From the Crooks Genealogy, written in 1898 by Inez Augusta Everman Crooks Filloon, a granddaughter of J.T. and Demercy Crooks

The Crooks family was in Mercer Co., Ill. at this time. John Turley Crooks was prominent in early Oregon history.
3. Barton Stone Everman (3G), the third child of Andrew Everman (2G) and Nancy Wasson, was born October 19, 1815 in Montgomery County, Kentucky. No doubt he was named for Barton Warren Stone who converted his mother, Nancy Wasson, to the "New Light" at the old Cane Ridge Church in Bourbon County, Kentucky. This church is still standing and is a shrine of the Disciples of Christ. Barton Stone married Martha Ann Wright on January 10, 1845 in Shelby County, Illinois. Martha Ann was a daughter of William and Nancy Wright. In 1843 Shelby County was divided to form Moultrie County, and it was in Moultrie County that they spent the rest of their lives. Barton was a Methodist preacher and farmer. Martha Ann was dead by 1860 and Barton died after 1880; both are buried in the Wright Cemetery, Moultrie Co., Illinois. The children of Barton S. Everman (3G) and Martha Wright were:

- Benjamin Franklin (4G), born January 11, 1848.

- Abraham Lincoln (4G), born about 1862.
- Samuel (4G), died September 9, 1854.
- Nancy (4G), died at age five months.

The family and descendants of Barton Stone Everman and Martha Ann Wright are treated at greater length, starting on page 48.

4. Andrew Everman Jr. (3G), the fourth child of Andrew Everman Sr. and Nancy Wasson, was born September 2, 1817 in Montgomery County, Kentucky. He was married September 5, 1839 in Putnam County, Indiana to Nety Gardner, the daughter of Andrew Gardner and Margaret Byerly. Andrew and Nety Everman lived in Putnam County, Indiana until about 1847 when they moved to Monroe County, Iowa where they remained for eleven years and then returned to Indiana, settling on a farm near Burlington, Carroll County, where they remained the rest of their lives. Andrew died in 1905.

The children of Andrew Everman Jr. and Nety Gardner were:

a. William Henry (4G), born November 21, 1840 in Putnam County, Indiana; married in Carroll County, Indiana, February 14, 1867 to Isabella Cooke, daughter of James Cooke and Jane Richardson. Their only child was Edwin Clarence (5G) who was born April 10, 1868; died March 8, 1869. He was married to Emma Rodgers, daughter of Henry and Catharine Rodgers. Believe Edwin Clarence Everman left no descendants. William Henry Everman (4G) died March 13, 1916 on a train nearing Chicago after spending the winter in California. He served in the Civil War with an Indiana Regiment.

From Shelby County, Illinois marriage records.

b. Andrew Martin (4G), born February 6, 1846 in Putnam County, Indiana; was married in Carroll County, Indiana to Ophelia Ann Collins, daughter of William B. Collins and Mary Jane Dotson, on August 23, 1870. Andrew Martin Everman was a merchant at Burlington, Indiana. He died June 24, 1934 at Kokomo, Indiana.

I have no information on the marriages of the children of James and Nancy Beck.
e. Barton Warren (4G), the fifth child of Andrew Everman Jr. and Nety Gardner, was born October 24, 1853 at Lovilla, Monroe County, Iowa. He was married to Meadie Hawkins, the daughter of Noah Hawkins and Susan Magdeline Hickman, on October 24, 1875 in Howard County, Indiana. Meadie Hawkins was born June 23, 1854 and died February 9, 1929 at Berkley, California. Barton Warren Everman was a public school and college teacher in Indiana; was a naturalist, especially interested in birds; later was appointed to the Bureau of Fisheries in Washington, D.C.; author of many books on fish now in the library of Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, California. He was special lecturer at Cornell, Yale, and Leland Stanford Universities. He died September 27, 1932 at his home in Berkley, Calif. and is buried at Burlington, Indiana. During his years in Berkley he was director of the museum in Golden Gate Park (1911-1932), and director of Golden Gate Aquarium (1921-1932). While living in Washington, D.C. he was vice-president of the school board.8

The children of Barton W. Everman and Meadie Hawkins were:

Toxaway (5G), born February 21, 1879 at Camden, Ind.; died November 30, 1910 at Washington, D.C. He was an architect and never married.

Edith (5G), born December 9, 1894 at Washington, D.C.; married February, 1920 at Washington, D.C. to William E. Humphrey, who was with the Bureau of Engraving. They had one child, Karen (6G), who was born about 1924 in Washington, D.C.

Barton Warren Everman (4G) was the first descendent of the immigrant, Michael Everman, to take an interest in the history of the Everman family. It was the manuscript prepared by Dr. Everman that made further research by this writer possible.

f. Emma (4G), born July 1, 1856 in Monroe County, Iowa; married October 1, 1889 in Carroll County, Indiana to John Witter, the son of Daniel Witter and Elenor Kingery. Emma died at Drayton Island, Florida, August 25, 1890.

g. Dora Belle (4G), born November 10, 1859 in Carroll County, Indiana; died March 29, 1946 at Burlington, Indiana. She never married.

h. Ida Mariah (4G), born November 27, 1862 in Carroll County, Indiana; married April 6, 1883 in Carroll County to Sylvester Wallace Barnard, the son of Obed Racey Barnard and Mary Ann Gwinn; Sylvester was born March 2, 1860. The children of Ida M. Everman and Sylvester W. Barnard were:

Ethel (5G), born September 8, 1885 at Flora, Ind.

6. Juliet Sinclair Everman (3G), later known as Julia Ann, was born August 28, 1828 in Montgomery County, Kentucky; was married to John Elridge Norman, the son of Thomas Norman and Sarah Davis, on January 29, 1846 in Putnam County, Indiana. It is said that John Elridge Norman was born in Bath County, Kentucky. Elridge Norman owned land in Monroe County, Iowa, but it is not known if he ever lived there. During the 1860s the Normans moved to Dallas County, Missouri. Here Elridge Norman died on February 22, 1876 at the age of 52 years, 4 months, and 5 days. His tombstone is engraved with the Masonic emblem. He is buried in the Prairie Grove Cemetery, southwest of Buffalo, Dallas County, Missouri. Juliet S. Everman-Norman (according to her descendants) died May 10, 1892 in Dallas County, Missouri. It is known that Thomas Norman, the oldest son, was living in Henry County, Iowa in the 1890s. Other descendants of Elridge and Julia Norman moved to Greeley, Colorado.

Mary Ellen (4G), born September 5, 1853 in Keokuk Co., Ia.
John Andrew (4G), born October 10, 1850 in Keokuk Co., Ia.

The descendents of Joseph Everman and Martha Ann McCaughey are being traced by Evelyn Page, a great granddaughter-in-law, 3514 E. 1st St., Long Beach, California (1965).

10. Sally Ann Everman (3G), the tenth child of Andrew Everman and Nancy Wasson, was born February 20, 1830 in Montgomery County, Kentucky. She was married on January 23, 1845 in Putnam County, Indiana to Andrew Long, born October 30, 1824 in Rowan County, North Carolina, the son of Valentine Long and Phrana Yokley. Sally Ann died May 4, 1853 in Appanoose County, Iowa and was buried in the Dale Cemetery, north of Centerville. Sally Ann Everman and Andrew Long had three children: Joe, Jim, and Sally Ann. On maturity Jim and Joe left the state of Iowa. Sally Ann, the daughter, raised by her grandparents, Valentine and Phrana Long, married George McDonald. They spent all of their lives in Appanoose County, Iowa. Their children were: Scott, Nellie, Howard, Tina, Fred, Claude, and Flora. All are now dead except Tina (1965) who married Harry Powers and lives at Centerville, Iowa.

11. Martha Jane Everman (3G), the eleventh child of Andrew Everman and Nancy Wasson, was born June 6, 1832 in Montgomery County, Kentucky and died there on May 1, 1833.

12. James Jefferson Everman (3G), the twelfth and last child of Andrew Everman and Nancy Wasson, was born March 19, 1835 in Montgomery County, Kentucky. He was married September 2h, 1857 in Putnam County, Indiana to Sarah Jane Norman, the daughter of Thomas Norman and Sarah Davis. Sarah Jane was born March 3, 1836. James died August 11, 1870 in Dallas County, Missouri and is buried in the Prairie Grove Cemetery, southwest of Buffalo beside his brother-in-law, Eldridge Norman. The children of James J. Everman and Sarah J. Norman were: Mary Bell (4G), born July 30, 1858. Martha Ann (4G), born November 12, 1859. Charles Wesley (4G), born February 4, 1861. William Riley (4G), born July 12, 1863. George Ora (4G), born December 2, 1866. Joseph Franklin (4G), born February 20, 1866. Emma Adaline (4G), born November 22, 1869 in Dallas Co., Mo. It is possible that all of the children of James and Sarah Everman, except the last one, were born in either Putnam or Boone Counties, Indiana before the family moved to Missouri. The descendents of James J. Everman and Sarah J. Norman have been completely traced by Mrs. Margaret Ramsey of Russellville, Indiana (1965).
Michael Everman, the seventh child of Andrew Everman (2G) and Nancy Wasson, was born in Montgomery County, Kentucky, May 5, 1825. Here he lived and probably received his first schooling until his parents and family moved to Putnam County, Indiana in 1836. His father, Andrew Everman, (2G) had purchased land about two and one half miles south of Russellville prior to moving his family there. They had been preceded there by Michael Jr. (2G) and his family. Both brothers settled in Russellville Township, Putnam County, Indiana. It was here that Michael (3G) grew up and continued his education. However, at the age of nineteen he was married to Abigail Lookabill, November 21, 1844. Abigail was born in Davidson County, North Carolina, June 12, 1828, the daughter of George Lookabill and Elizabeth Clodfelter. The Lookabills had come to Putnam County about 1830.

In the fall of 1845 Michael and Abigail, with several Hoosier neighbors, started to the state of Iowa. Their conveyance was a two-wheeled cart with box 3/4 by 6 feet with bows and cover on it. Provisions, cooking outfit, bedding, and family were all chucked in that old wooden spindle cart. After about four weeks drive they arrived at the old garrison near Agency City in Wapello County, Iowa. It being late in the fall they concluded to stop there and winter in the old garrison with several other Indiana families. When spring came Michael and Abigail and their one child pulled westward into Monroe County and settled about six miles north of Albia on forty acres of raw prairie. There they built a log cabin and raised a fair crop of sod corn, with an average of four rattlesnakes and six blue racers to each acre. It was no strange sight in the summertime to step out of doors and see a rattlesnake in the yard and a couple of blue racers on the sod chimney, also a wolf howling on a gopher hill just out of gun shot.

Not having sufficient provisions on hand to take them through the coming winter, Michael hooked up and pulled back to Putnam County, Indiana in the fall of 1846 and remained and farmed there the next season. Then the same fall, 1847, they returned to Monroe County, Iowa. This was one of the most severe winters known in the history of Iowa. Michael and his family subsisted principally that winter on prairie chicken and lye hominy. They remained in Monroe County the summer of 1846 and raised a crop of corn and wheat and probably returned to Putnam County again before Michael sold his land in Monroe County and moved to Appanoose County, Iowa in 1850. The family located on 40 acres of land about three miles north of Centerville, a little town of only one store and a blacksmith shop.

On this farm Michael erected a home about twelve feet square. He set four forks or posts in the ground and placed poles over and all around it, then covered the top and sides with prairie hay. Here the family of five lived until Michael could cut and hew logs to build a one room cabin sixteen feet square. In the spring of 1851 Michael broke a little prairie and raised some corn and vegetables. In the fall he sold this place and bought eighty acres just half a mile west with cabin, fence, and well thereon. He did not move on it, but rented the land for the next season to another party. However, they put some of the furniture in the cabin, such as rocking cradle, trundle bedstead, and three legged stools; then nailed up the door and loaded the remainder of the household goods in a two horse wagon and pulled back to old "Hosier" in the fall of 1848. Picture of this cabin in possession of this writer.
1851. It was then that the oldest child, William Franklin Everman, was big enough to notice the difference in the taste of an Iowa Crabapple and an Indiana Rambo. Michael rented land of his father, Andrew, and raised a crop the next season, 1852. He was still not satisfied so in the fall of 1852 he again loaded up and struck back west; so the family grew up with the road a little more. After about four weeks and wild geese going south, they landed at home in Appanoose County, Iowa—the land that flowed with crabapples, blackhaws, and sheep sorrel pies. They found their home about as they had left it one year before, except ragweed in the dooryard was higher than the eaves of the house. Just as the family was pulling weeds so as to get to the housedoor a stranger came up and asked to sleep overnight. Under the circumstances Michael objected; at the same time directing the man to the nearest neighbor, one half mile farther west. It was then getting dark and it was noticed that the stranger did not go as directed. The next morning Michael's horse was missing. A few yards from the house he found where the stranger had laid down a part of the night in the slough grass and had left his walking cane sticking in the ground. Neither the stranger nor the horse were seen again. That left Michael in bad shape with only one horse for a team, but by the next spring (1853) he sold the eighty acre farm, bought another horse and had a few dollars in "wildcat" currency left.

Michael then rented a farm two and one half mile southeast in the forks of the Chariton River and Cooper Creek and moved on it. It contained about one hundred twenty acres with thirty acres in cultivation. "Each acre contained three shakes of the ague, each shake contained three fevers, each fever a dozen headaches and a quart of puke." Michael got two thirds of the corn and the family all of the ague.
In the fall of 1853 Michael took what he had and bought another forty acres of raw prairie land, built a cabin that winter and moved into it. Michael bought an adjoining forty acres and began paying for it right away by hauling goods for a merchant in Centerville. By this time he had traded his horses for three yoke of oxen. The oldest child, William Franklin, was now ten years old. His father presented him with a pure buckskin whip and gave him charge of one yoke of oxen and one wagon. Michael took the other two yoke of oxen and larger wagon and struck out for Keokuk, Iowa, a distance of one hundred miles to haul goods to pay for that last forty acres and if son Frank couldn't drive oxen as good as his father he did lots of hollering all the same.

The next spring Michael followed prairie breaking for himself and other settlers near him. The next winter was spent getting logs to a sawmill since the log cabin was getting to be a thing of the past. The home at this time was on a divide between the Chariton River and Cooper Creek, known as "Tick Ridge". The Ewermans must have a frame house like other "Tick Ridgers" or they would be counted "Hoosiers and back woodsmen".

In the spring of 1857, having all the lumber and homemade shaved shingles on hand, a carpenter was hired to build a new home. The land was rented out, one more yoke of oxen added, making four; and long before the rosinweed was in bloom Michael and his young son, Frank, could be seen strung out across the broad prairie turning under the hazel brush and bluestem for their neighbors. In the rear of them a man might be seen with an old ax in his hand, chopping in sod corn and killing joint snakes.

Michael, with the help of his son Frank, continued to improve his farm, broke prairie for others, and hauled goods from Keokuk to Centerville.
Wild game, such as geese, ducks, turkeys, deer, prairie chickens, and all small game were very plentiful. Michael, being a good shot, got his share. Neighbors were few and far between, but were all the more sociable and helpful to each other.

In 1866, Michael moved from Center Township and purchased a farm in Walnut Township, Appanoose County, Iowa where he spent the remainder of his life. He died May 11, 1881 and is buried in the Dale Cemetery, north of Centerville, Iowa. Abigail remained in the home until her death, December 3, 1887. She also is buried in the Dale Cemetery.

THE CHILDREN OF MICHAEL & ABAGAIL EVERMAN

1. William Franklin Everman (hG), born March 3, 1845 in Putnam County, Indiana. He died March 21, 1910 and is buried in the Dale Cemetery, north of Centerville, Iowa. He was married, March 25, 1876 in Monroe County, Iowa to his first cousin, Melinda Ann Hughes, who was born in Monroe County, March 31, 1858, the daughter of Mary Everman (3G) and Hazelwood Hughes. Melinda Ann (Dolly) (hG) died August 27, 1908 and is buried in the Dale Cemetery.

Frank enlisted in the Union Army, August 4, 1863, at the age of eighteen years. He served with the 8th Iowa Cavalry for twenty-one months and seven days and was discharged at Camp McClellan, near Davenport, Iowa on May 31, 1865.

While with Sherman's Army, Frank was captured near the little town of Newman, Georgia, in the area of Atlanta, and sent to Andersonville Prison, August 1, 1864. On November 24th of that same year eleven thousand prisoners, including Frank Everman, were transferred from Andersonville to the rebel prison at Charleston, South Carolina. After two weeks in the prison at Charleston the prisoners were taken to Florence, South Carolina on December 10, 1864.

3. Early years in Iowa were from the autobiography of William Franklin Everman (hG), the first child of Michael Everman (3G) and Abigail Lookabill.
These same prisoners, on February 18, 1865, were put aboard the cars and started north to Salisbury Prison in North Carolina. Near Wilmington, North Carolina, Frank escaped from the train along with many other prisoners. That night the Union Army moved into Wilmington; the rebel soldiers fled, leaving all of their Union prisoners behind.

These soldiers, who had been held prisoners for many months by the rebels, were now moved into an old stone building that stood on the Fear River, near the ship landing in Wilmington. There they were brought warm baths, clean beds, and clothing. The citizens were allowed to bring in all manner of delicacies which caused a great many of the soldiers, including our Frank, to become unconscious.

As he lay unconscious for three days, a young man, a citizen of Wilmington wrote Frank's parents telling them that their son was very ill and if they wanted to see him alive they must come quickly.

At this time Frank had gone from 144 to 84 pounds. Frank survived this illness and after two weeks in Wilmington he was sent with four hundred other released prisoners to Annapolis, Maryland. It was here that Frank became very ill with dropsy and entered the hospital, but with good treatment he was well enough to be sent home on furlough on the 26th or 27th of March, 1865. When he arrived home five days later it was quite a shock to his parents, as they long supposed their son dead. Frank's furlough of thirty days was extended another thirty days by the family physician but he was becoming anxious to get back to his regiment which had regrouped and was at Macon, Georgia, near Andersonville. As he was returning to join his company he stopped at Benton Barracks, St. Louis, and here he was ordered to return to Davenport, Iowa to be mustered out.
After Frank's discharge, he spent a year or so at his home near Centerville, Iowa recuperating from the dropsy brought on by the hardships he endured in the rebel prisons. In February of 1867 he went to Nebraska Territory where he farmed for one year, returning to Iowa to visit his parents before leaving for Laramie City, Wyoming Territory. Here he and three friends from Nebraska purchased five ox teams and five wagons and took a contract for furnishing the Union Pacific Railroad with two hundred cords of wood, at seven dollars per cord to pay for the team they had bought on time. In June of 1869, Frank hired out as a wagon boss and pulled out for Sweetwater Country, Wyoming, three hundred miles west of Laramie, where gold had been found. Here he found no gold and little work, so he spent much time hunting and finding such game as antelope, elk, buffalo, sheep, deer, jackrabbit, otter, Rocky Mountain lion, all killed with a needle gun. Then in June of 1870 he joined an expedition to the Big Horn, as a guide and scout, traveling from Sweetwater mines in Wyoming. On July 18, near Moose Horn Springs, Wyoming Territory, 150 cavalry soldiers from Fort Brown caught up with the group. These soldiers had a telegram from Washington stating that this group of gold seekers would be trespassing on Indian rights by going to the Big Horn Mountains—thus ended the expedition to the Big Horn; however, the party continued to travel up and down the streams panning for gold without much success. About September 1st the party broke up into various groups, each going its own way. Frank Everman and two or three of his friends proceeded to Bozeman, Montana Territory arriving there September 16, 1870. He spent the winter of 1870 and '71 hunting and chopping wood. The wood was sold and delivered by ox team the next summer to Fort Ellis, near Bozeman.
Frank continued to hunt, cut and deliver wood around Bozeman, break prairie with his ox team for other people, hired out by the month to a freighter to drive an eight-mule team between Bozeman City and Corinne, Utah—a distance of five hundred miles. On November 4, 1874 he jumped the job of freighting, boarded the cars at Corinne, rode down to Salt Lake City, took in the sights of the great Mormon city, visited the Tabernacle, saw the eleven thousand dollar organ but did not get to see Brigham Young as he was ill at that time. Frank returned to Ogden, Utah on November 7, 1874. Here he took the Union Pacific for Omaha, Nebraska, arriving there November 13th. Here he took the "Q" for Albia, Iowa where he visited relatives for a few days and arrived home near Centerville, Iowa on November 17, 1874, having been away from home nearly eight years. After a short visit with relatives in Indiana, he returned to Iowa and took up farming.

On December 25, 1876 Frank married his first cousin, Melinda Ann Hughes (4G), in Monroe County, Iowa. He continued to farm in Appanoose County but after many unfavorable seasons he left his wife and two children with her brother, John Hughes and wife, Nancy, in Monroe County and returned to Montana in May of 1880. Here he worked at the carpenter trade until December 20, 1881, then returned to Iowa with a little over seventeen hundred dollars in cash, having been away from home a little over nineteen months.

Frank spent the remainder of his life in Appanoose County, Iowa and died on his farm near Mystic.
Malinda Ann Hughes-Everman (Dolly) (4G), the daughter of Mary Everman (3G) and Hazelwood Hughes, was born March 31, 1858. Her father, Hazelwood Hughes, was born in Kentucky, the son of Peter Hughes. The obituary of Malinda Ann Everman states that her grandfather, Peter Hughes, was in the Revolutionary War; her two brothers in the Civil War, and an uncle in the Mexican War.

Malinda Ann Hughes-Everman died August 27, 1908 in Appanoose County, Iowa and is buried in the Dale Cemetery beside her husband, Frank Everman.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION

Some research was made in Germany with the hope that we might be able to locate the ancestral home of our Everman family. The historian of Ebermannstadt, Bavaria, Germany wrote that he was unable to find the name in either the church or town records of Ebermannstadt. A letter from the vicar of the Evangelical Church of Schweigern, Wurttenberg, Germany (near Heilbronn) stated that only the family of Johannes Eberman (who arrived in Philadelphia on September 19, 1732 and settled in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania) could be found in the records of his church for four generations.

A German genealogist reported that he examined the parish records of Neckar-Garbach, near Heilbronn, and found the name Eberman, but it was not our Eberman family. It is possible that the large genealogical center at Kaiserslautern, Rhineland, Germany may have parish records that list the names of our emigrant ancestor.

When our ancestors arrived in America the spelling of their name was Ebermann. I was told by a German immigrant that the name Ebermann is a very common name in Germany. Eber means wild boar and mann means man. Therefore, Ebermann means a man who hunts the wild boar.

In the Virginia, Augusta County, I found the spelling Eberman, Aberman, Eavenman, Eaverman, and Everman. Starting with the 1810 Census of Kentucky the spelling has been Everman, with the exception of two branches that spell their name Evermon.

The Ebermann Coat-of-Arms depicts two standing men, one dressed as a hunter holding a long spear and the other as a monk with an open bible in his hands. In front of the two men are two large hunting dogs. The historian of Ebermannstadt, Germany informed me that a royal family by the name of Ebermann lived in the Rhine Valley, but this family became extinct about 1500. If this is true then we can scarcely claim to come from royalty since our Ebermann family came to America in 1732. However, in a book titled All Known Coat-of-Arms of Continental Europe the Ebermann Coat-of-Arms is shown and described as belonging to commoners.

A Bethlehem, Pennsylvania descendent of Johannes Ebermann states that our branch of the family is closely related to his line. A careful study of all available records indicated that this descendent of Johannes Ebermann is mistaken.

It was stated in this manuscript that two of the emigrant Eberman brothers remained in Pennsylvania. The research I made in Pennsylvania proved that there were early day Ebermans in and around Philadelphia. A Jacob Eberman was married at the Saint Michael's and Zion's Lutheran Church, just north of Philadelphia in 1760; also an Anna Elizabeth Eberman was married in 1766 at the same church. Census records show there always have been and still are many Evermans in Philadelphia. I fully believe that many of the Evermans living in and around Philadelphia today, who can be traced back to a very early time, are descendents of the Ebermann brothers who came to America on the ship "Mary", Sept. 26, 1732. Many of the Ebermans who live in Philadelphia today are descendents of Johannes Ebermann who came to America on Sept. 19, 1732 and settled in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

During the Revolutionary War a Jacob Eberman and John Eberman (some instances spelled Everman) served their country from Philadelphia County. The descendents of Johannes Eberman served from Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. A John Everman served during the Revolution in a New York State Regiment, there was a John Everman, perhaps the same one, who was listed in the 1790 Census of Orange County, New York. It is highly possible that the John Everman who served from Philadelphia County could be the same one that later enlisted at Orange County, New York.

The DAR number of the writer of this manuscript is 51746, and it is hoped that many direct descendents of Michael Everman (1725-1830) will avail themselves of the opportunity to become a member of the DAR or SAR.

It has been reported that Mrs. Brackmo mentioned on page 15 has passed away.

Carol Crick, on page 34, was married June 19, 1965 to Stephen John Bednarch. They live in San Diego, California where Carol is teaching in the elementary schools and Steve works for the phone company.

Stella Catherine McNeff was married to Doyle Henderson at Bedford, Indiana, February 15, 1967.

Brenda Lee Goodwin is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth Goodwin of Huntington Beach, California.

The family of Nancy Everman Gardner Forgey has been traced by Mrs. Margaret Ramsey, Box 72, Russellville, Ind. 46175.

James Madison Clay, the husband of Neatie Melinda Everman, was born February 15, 1856 and died September 6, 1932.

I wish to thank Neata Clay Ritchie for her assistance in tracing the descendents of her grandmother, Neatie Everman Clay (4G).

The writer trusts that each family will keep a record of the births, marriages, and deaths of his descendents and where each occurred. It is suggested that these records be recorded on the blank pages of this manuscript.
