EDITORIAL

Happy New Year!! and welcome to our tenth year of publication. Thank you for your continued support of The Southside Virginian. We hope that the features we have planned for 1992 will continue to provide you with the information you need in your research endeavors.

We have had very good response to the questionnaire which was included with the renewal notice for 1992. You may rest assured that we will take all of your comments seriously as we plan the future of The Southside Virginian. As we have said before, we are here to serve the needs of our subscribers. Obviously, each individual subscriber has his own needs and desires when it comes to magazine content. We will try and balance those factors as best we can, to the benefit of the majority of our readers.

An example of the diversity of responses is that several of you expressed that you did not like the short articles about computers, while others said that was one of the best features, and wanted more. Our goal, of course, is to publish genealogical and historical records pertinent to Southside Virginia counties. However, we feel that any topic which will aid you in your use of those materials is appropriate for publication. We will try to limit these and not get into any lengthy topics.

The response to our pre-publication offer for the Indexes and Table of Contents to Vols I - VIII has been excellent. We will be shipping these to purchasers in early March. For those of you who have not yet ordered your copy, the price is $24.50 plus $3.50 shipping (Virginia residents add 4.5% tax). This will make an excellent gift to your local genealogical/historical society or library.

We need your help. If there are unpublished records in your counties of interest which you would like to see published in The Southside Virginian, please drop us a note describing them and where they may be found. We want to print the material most beneficial to our subscribers, and this is one way you can assist us.

We want to thank those of you who have recently submitted queries. Your attention to the necessary limitations on the size and quantity of your submittals and to their legibility is gratifying. This allows us to publish more queries in each issue and to print them in a more timely and accurate fashion. We do not want to discourage you from submitting queries. We feel that this is a valuable tool when used properly. We would like to hear from those of you who have had success with queries we have published.

Thank you again for your continued patronage. We look forward to hearing from you.

BOOK REVIEWS

Priscilla Harriss Cabell, Turff & Twigg, The French Lands. Volume I. 468 pp, cloth, illus, maps, index, 1988, $60.00, postpaid. VA residents add $2.70 sales tax. A study of ten thousand acres donated by King William III to the French refugees who settled at Manakintown on the southern bank of the James River in the colony of Virginia in 1700. Not only does the author identify the original French refugee patentees of this land, but also places each parcel of land on an enduring and detailed map of the area. There is a narrative account of each of the patentees, giving his place of origin and settlement in the Virginia colony, as well as details of his family and his activities. Following this is a detailed account of the progression in ownership of his patents. The material is well documented with primary sources; but also offers insight concerning inferences drawn from the records concerning possible relationships (always so noted). Anyone interested in any of these French immigrants, or in the land they held will find this a handsome and informative addition to their library. Priscilla H Cabell, P O Box 17091, Richmond, VA 23226.

June Banks Evans, Lunenburg County, Virginia, Land Taxes, 1782-1787. 68 pp, indexed, 8½ x 11, paper. 1990. $16.00, postpaid. Ms Evans has contributed a number of books, abstracting the county deeds of Lunenburg County, and presenting the US Census for the years 1810-1860, as well as a number of other publications. This book, abstracting the land tax records is a welcome addition for genealogists who are interested in searching the Lunenburg County records. She has presented a list of land owners and the amount of land owned, for the year of 1782; listed the alterations in landownership and the amount of land involved for the years 1783-1786, and then a complete listing for 1787. It is also of great value that she has presented the listings as they appear in the land tax records, both as to district, order of listing and any notations made. Bryn Mawr Publications, 5600 Bellaire Dr [FGS], New Orleans, LA 70124.

Michael F Doran, Atlas of County Boundary Changes in Virginia, 1634-1895. viii, 61 pp, 11 x 17, heavy paper. 1987. $17.95, $2.50 shipping. This is a welcome addition to understanding the formation and progression of the counties of the colony of Virginia and the later Commonwealth of Virginia. It is very helpful to be able to visualize the geographic entities in any given time period. Two-color maps cover the growth of Virginia counties for each decade beginning in 1634 and ending with the last county formed in West Virginia in 1895. With the Atlas a researcher can locate in exactly which county an ancestor lived by checking the appropriate time period. This publication is a valuable tool, as well as a handsome addition to the researcher's library. Iberian Publishing Co, 548 Cedar Creek Dr, Athens, GA 30605.

The following may be ordered from Genealogical Publishing Co, 1001 N Calvert St, Baltimore, MD 21202. Shipping is $2.50 for the first book and $1.00 for each additional book on the same order. Payment may be made by Mastercard or Visa. 1-800-727-6687.

Nell Marion Nugent, Cavaliers and Pioneers, Abstracts of Virginia Land Grants, 1623-1666. (Volume 1) 767 pp, illus, indexed, cloth. (1934), reissued 1991. $40.00. It is exciting to find that this much-sought-after book has been reissued! Many researchers must have tried recently, by any means, to find a copy for their own personal use, but in vain. While this book is of interest to all researchers of early Virginia ancestors, for the readers of The Southside Virginian, this book is an indispensable reference in identifying the origins of early Southside Virginia ancestors. Cavaliers and Pioneers contains abstracts of land records dating from 1623 to 1666. In paragraph form, under the full name of the patentee, it records the earliest Virginia land grants and patents, with locations, dates of settlement and names of family members, and often refers to relationships, estates, etc. It further includes the names of thousands of headrights claimed by the land patentees. It is the primary reference of immigration to Virginia in the seventeenth century. When one obtains this book, it then becomes imperative to secure Volumes II and III.

Robert K Headley Jr, Genealogical Abstracts from 18th-Century Virginia Newspapers. xxii, 470 pp, indexed, cloth. 1987. $28.50. This book has been an exciting find for this researcher. Mr Headley has abstracted genealogical information from over 7,000 issues of eighty 18th-century Virginia newspapers, a number of them covering information concerning the burned record counties. He has used the notices concerning marriages, deaths, estate sales and settlements and court cases. The exciting finds include: the name of the plantation owned by an 18th-century ancestor, in a burned record county, and the location identified because the plantation exists today! Also found were the place of residence of an ancestor, along with additional land holdings, at the time of his death; and thus his will and estate settlement. With the items listed alphabetically by the name of the individual (with all of the names indexed), it has been easy to discover several dozen relevant entries.

Lloyd DeWitt Bockstruck, Virginia’s Colonial Soldiers. 443 pp, indexed, cloth. 1988, Second printing 1990. $30.00. Mr Bockstruck has done an outstanding job of identifying and assembling the names and information of the early Virginia colonial militia. The militia was established by law as a defense of the colonists against Indian attacks and invasion by hostile powers. The records of those citizens who participated are scattered and incomplete. For this reason this book is a prized source of information to genealogists in identifying a particular person, placing him as to time and residence. The author has covered the periods of the militia from the time of inception in each county, where information could be obtained. This is a must reference book.

Birth of a Surname
Submitted by Maj. David T. Johnston

Among the surnames in use today which may be traced to the early Southside Virginia MANGUM family is that of MANGREM. Other variations found in early Virginia and Tennessee records include MANGAM, MANGRAM, and MANGRUM. This article traces the origin of the MANGREM variant spelling to Littleberry MANGREM of Columbia, Maury County, Tennessee. Early 19th century county record keepers often used phonetic spelling, especially for new or unknown surnames, as conventional spelling in many cases had not been established. However, our ancestors themselves may have adopted a particular spelling for their own surname. If authentic signatures in our ancestor's own handwriting can be found we may discover the spelling they adopted and passed on to later generations. Such is the case with Littleberry MANGREM.

According to surviving Bible records, Littleberry was the son of Briton MANGUM, of Isle of Wight County, Virginia.1 Littleberry was born September 22, 1779, probably in Isle of Wight County, Virginia. His father, Briton, was born September 31, 1747 [sic], according to surviving Isle of Wight County Mill Swamp Baptist Church records.2 His mother has not been identified. His father's estate inventory was returned on December 5, 1782.3 No land or substantial personal property, such as negroes, was included in the inventory of Briton's estate. This may explain why no guardianship records have been found among those surviving for the period, which would identify his children. Guardianship records have been found for Briton's brother, Richard, whose estate was ordered inventoried in 1795.4 Both brothers died intestate, but Richard was a land holder. The laws of Virginia required a legal guardian to be appointed to safeguard the minor.

Owner (1983) Judy (Mrs. Howell) Morrison, Rt. 1, Box 362, Clarksville, TN 37040. Family record in letter appears to have been copied from a Bible Record. The letter appears authentic, and the family record, dim with age, unaltered. Photocopy sent to writer from owner.

heirs’ share of their father’s estate during their minority. It has been assumed by myself and others that Littleberry, and any brothers and/or sisters he may have had, were raised by their uncle, Henry MANGUM, Jr, who moved from Isle of Wight County to the section of Brunswick County which was annexed in 1788 to Greensville County, Virginia.

It is, however, just as likely that Briton’s children may have been reared by their mother and step-father, whomever they were. It is not known if Briton’s wife survived him, remained a widow, or remarried. This uncertainty lends itself to supposing Henry MANGUM, Jr, raised Littleberry in his own household, for it is in the same county of Henry Jr.’s, residence, Greensville County, Virginia, that Littleberry first appears on the personal property tax rolls in 1803, in the household of Isham MANGUM. Littleberry also married in Greensville County, Virginia, in 1807. Henry, Isham, and Littleberry all moved to Maury County, Tennessee, before 1810. If Littleberry was raised by his own mother and step-father as postulated, then it follows that he moved, either with or without his mother and family, from nearby Isle of Wight County, before 1803.

The first record of Littleberry as an adult appears in Greensville County in 1801 when he served as bondsman for the marriage of Hamlin ALLEN and Sylvia LANIER. Reproduced below is a photocopy of his signature on the original bond on file in the Richmond Archives (Greensville County, 1801 folder, loose original marriage bonds). This provides our first reference point. The handwriting looks much like that of a child, and in fact, the surname MANGUM is much darker on the original and appears to be possibly in someone else's handwriting. Perhaps the quill was dipped in ink between the first name and last:

\[g\] While the 1810 Census for Maury Co., TN, has been lost, a complete review of the Personal Tax records of Greensville and Brunswick Counties, Virginia in Richmond indicate that by 1810 all three had removed from these Virginia counties and were not taxed.

\[h\] Vogt, p. 8.
The next available sample of Littleberry’s handwriting appears on his marriage bond six years later in 1807. At that time he was 27 years old. The signature is reproduced below for reference:

1807 Signature on his Marriage Bond

Note here the surname is spelled MANGREM. Attached to the loose bond is a permission slip which appears to have been written and signed by Clary JOURDAN, stating she was of legal age and declaring her willingness “...that Littlebury MANGREM should get lycense to mary me [sic].” Her use of phonetic spelling is noticeable, but her spelling of MANGREM is clear and unmistakable. The second sample appears so different as to suggest it might be the handwriting of another man of the same name. That possibility, however, has been ruled out due to the absence of proof of any other person of that name in the county at the time. The Greensville County Personal Property and Real Property Tax Rolls are available, and only one Littleberry MANGUM is listed on those rolls during the years 1801 through 1807. The remaining possibility is that during this period Littleberry obtained some form of an education and had become literate. During his lifetime he was a merchant, operating a mercantile business in Columbia, Maury County, Tennessee. That he became a successful merchant, and not a full-time farmer, also seems to indicate that he may have had an educational advantage over many of his peers.

The final sample of his handwriting was found on his loose original will filed in the Maury County, Tennessee, Clerk of Court’s office. At the time of writing, Littleberry was 63 years old and not as steady of hand as he had been in younger years. As was often the case, wills were not drafted and signed until the testator thought the end was near, and Littleberry may have been quite ill. He died on 13 September, just three days after the codicil was added on 10 September. Note the signature below:

1 Greensville County, Loose Original Marriage Bonds, 1807 folder, Littleberry Mangrem Bond, Virginia State Archives, VA. Permission slip is attached to original bond.

j Maury County, Tennessee, Clerk of Court Office, Columbia, TN. Loose Original Will dated 29 August 1843, with codicil dated 10 Sept 1843. On the reverse of the loose original is written "Recorded in Will Book 3, pp. 535-536."
1843 Signature on his Last Will and Testament.

The final evidence indicating that Littleberry adopted the MANGREM variant spelling of the MANGUM surname is provided on his tombstone in Greewood Cemetery, in Columbia, Maury County, Tennessee, which reads Littleberry MANGREM. A note of interest is in order here. The dates for Littleberry and those for his wife, Clary JOURDAN MANGREM, are reversed! The birth and death dates on Littleberry’s tombstone are actually those for his wife Clary, and the dates on her stone match those given in the family Bible for Littleberry. The fact that his will was not even made until 1843 rules out the 1837 death date on his stone. Comparing dates from the tombstones to those recorded in the Bible record makes apparent the error.

This is the first case in my experience that I have been able to piece together actual handwriting samples preserved among loose original records and successfully trace the birth of a surname.

Loose Wills of Prince George County before 1865
Abstracted by Anne Bradbury Peebles

Conclusion — Continued from Vol. IX No. 4, pp 156-161

During the War Between the States in the summer of 1864, the courthouse at Prince George was burned, and along with it most of the early records of the county court. Some individuals, who resided in the county and knew of the disaster, brought their copies of some of these vital records to the courthouse to be recorded. Anne Bradbury Peebles went through the packets of loose papers and abstracted and indexed these wills, marriage bonds and other papers so that the information would be available to the public. She listed those wills and marriage bonds for the years before 1865, noting that only one will predated 1800.

Abstractor's Note: May, 1955

The loose wills at the Court House in Prince George were listed by this compiler ten or fifteen years ago. The abstracting of wills and marriage bonds for this compilation was done in the summer of 1954, and rechecked a short time ago. Two wills formerly there are not there now.

It seems well to record the fact that they were there. They were the wills of:

R. G. Dunn, probated 1840
Patsey Gilliam, probated 1829

"Woodsons"
Submitted by Virginia Lee Hutcheson Davis

On the way to Henricus, an exciting discovery was made. After inaccurate directions to Henricus Historical Park, and a long drive on County Rd 618 (one proceeds west from Hopewell on State Route 10, to reach CR 618, north), a fork in the road appeared. The left fork was identified with a sign and arrow, "Meadowville Farm". As a curious traveller, this road was followed. The woods opened into a large farm and cultivated fields. The James River appeared at the end of the road, along with all of the farm buildings. It was especially interesting to see a very large and architecturally unusual house with many large dependancies. A contemporary house brought contrast to the scene. There was a sweeping view of the James, with no industrial intrusions, unusual for that area. Later, to gain insight concerning the farm, the authoritative Chesterfield County, Early Architecture and Historic Sites, Jeffery M. O'Dell, 1983, Chesterfield County, Virginia, pp 260-261, was consulted. The old "Meadowville" home dates back to c.1888, and was built by Edward Barney. When Mr Barney bought the farm it contained 2,200 acres, and was one of the two largest farms in Chesterfield County at that time. The original name for this tract appears to have been "Woodsons". In Tidewater Virginia Families, VLH Davis, (1989 ed, p 471, 1990 ed, p 415) the plantation of Tarleton Woodson in Chesterfield County was identified as lying between Hopewell and Dutch Gap. He was living there before 1750 (Valentine Papers, Vol 3, p 2053) and died there in in 1771 (Chesterfield Co Order Book 3, p 399; Will Book 1, p 496). This further information definitively places the plantation of Tarleton Woodson, first known as "Neck of Land", across the river from Varina, and with a magnificent view of the James. It was here that he was able to load his tobacco for transportation by the river, and was also able to receive goods from distant ports. He left the plantation to his son, Charles Woodson.

Henricus Historical Park lies at the end of County Rd 732/615 at Dutch Gap. After proceeding west from Hopewell on State Route 10, one turns north on CR 732. Traveling south on US Route 1, Dutch Gap and Henricus can be reached by turning east on CR 615.

Buckingham Baptist Church
Transcribed by S. Kathryn Hooper

Has always been known as such since the Baptists took it over in 1771

Location: 4.5 miles south of Arvonia, Virginia, on Route #15, thence east .2 miles of highway.

Date: Early 1700's

Owners: Virginia Baptist Board.

Description: The building is a frame structure weatherboarded of Heart pine with a slate roof. It has two chimneys of brick, one center and one side flue. There are elaborate cornices of wood and thirteen windows. Four entrances, two have double doors, and two have single doors. It has one room with a ceiling height of approximately 9½ feet to the Gallery. There is a winding stairway with no balusters or handrail. The floor is of wide boards of irregular width.

Historical Significance:

Buckingham Baptist Church was first known as the Church of England, built in the early 1700's. At one time it ceased to be a place of worship and was used as a Tavern. In the year 1771 the Baptists took it over, and since that time it has been known as the "Buckingham Baptist Church," the first Baptist church established in this county. It is a very quaint old building with a gallery. About the year 1830 a shed room added to this building was said to have been used as a nursery. In the year 1875 the partition was taken out and all was made into one large room. The Baptists had no deed to this property until 1898, when Professor Boatwright purchased a tract of land known as the "McKenna Tract." The Church building was on this tract. Mr Boatwright gave a deed to the church, spring, cemetery and several acres of land besides, to be used as the Baptists saw fit.
The great-grandparents of Hon. Hal Flood, late Congressman, were buried under this church, the bodies being put there to protect them from the Indians.

One pastor served this church 52 years.

According to tradition a leaden image stood at one time directly in front of the church, but during the Revolutionary War, it was melted and bullets were made from it.

Some Insight Concerning the Colonial Laws of Inheritance

by Virginia Lee Hutcheson Davis
Research Editor

It is necessary to understand some of the laws of inheritance that governed the passing on of an estate at one's death during the colonial period of Virginia history. These laws concerning descent and inheritance were somewhat different from contemporary laws, and wills and inheritances of the Colonial Virginia period must be interpreted in light of these English laws. Rather than try to interpret these laws, this author has taken the liberty of presenting excerpts concerning the interpretation of wills of the Colonial Virginia period, as they were constructed in conformity with English Law. These excerpts have been taken from the Handbook of the Law of Wills by Thomas E Atkinson.

England:

1. Descent of Realty. Under the influence of feudalism, a system of rules was evolved for the descent of land which included the principles of preference of males over females, primogeniture, ancestral property, and the exclusion of lineal ancestors and the half-blood. Most of these doctrines were abolished in the United States in the nineteenth century and the remainder fell in 1925.

   * In harmony with the institution of feudalism, primogeniture, or the right of the eldest son to inherit, to the exclusion of his sisters and younger brothers became established. The Canons of Blackstone read as follows:

   I Inheritances shall linearly descend to the issue of the person who last died actually seised in infinitum; but shall never linearly ascend.

   II The male issue shall be admitted before the female.

   III Where there are two or more males in equal degree, the eldest only shall inherit; but the females all together.

   IV The lineal descendants in infinitum of any person deceased shall represent their ancestor; that is, shall stand in the same place as the person himself would have done, had he been living.

   V On failure of lineal descendants or issue of the person last seised, the inheritance shall descend to his collateral relations being of the blood of the first purchaser; subject to the three preceding rules.

   VI The collateral heir of the person last seised must be his next collateral kinsman of the whole blood.
VII In collateral inheritance the male stock shall be preferred to the female, unless where the lands have in fact descended from a female.

Illegitimates: One born out of wedlock was deemed to be filius nullius and could not inherit from anyone. Likewise his collateral relatives could not inherit from him, though his legitimate children or their legitimate descendants could do so.

Spouse: The surviving spouse, as such, was never heir to the land of the decedent spouse. The widower was entitled to curtsey and the widow to dower but these marital estates did not pass to them by inheritance. Though enjoyment was postponed until the death of the spouse who owned the land, these interests were regarded as existing in inchoate form during the latter's lifetime.

The Statute of distribution England:

* After a period of uncertainty as to who was entitled to the personality of the intestate, parliament passed the Statute of distribution, 1670, which commanded the administrator to distribute the property after payment of debts:

1. One-third to the widow and two-thirds to the children or their issue if both widow and children or issue survived:
2. All to the children or their issue if the widow did not survive;
3. Half to the widow and half to the next of kin if there were no issue;
4. All to the next of kin if neither widow nor issue survived.
5. In case of collateral relatives and lineal ancestors, next of kin were computed by counting the number of steps from the claimant to the closest common ancestor of intestate and the claimant and adding the number of steps from the common ancestor to intestate. Claimants who were by this calculation closest related to the intestate were entitled to the personality. Representation or the right to stand in the place of one's predeceased parent, was permitted in case of nieces and nephews.

Aside from the surviving spouse no one was a distributee unless he was related to the intestate by blood.

Collateral relatives of the half-blood shared the personality equally with those of the whole blood of the same degree and were preferred to all relatives of a more remote degree. However, the half-blood was excluded altogether in the case of the descent of land.

When no heirs were found for intestate, his realty passed to the overlord or to the crown by escheat, and his personality went to the crown.

The surviving spouse must elect between testamentary provisions for him and dower or statutory forced share when it was intended that he should not have both. At common law it was presumed that desires and bequests to
Most In The The which /^tnesses remote, of the intestate relatives. but Children Distribution. provide Descent mother many &st The Handbook p. 60-61, 64
The development of English law of intestacy has been treated for two reasons, first to understand the wills of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and that many of our concepts and positive rules of law are directly traceable to the mother country. Most of the principles peculiar to the English Canons of Descent have disappeared from our law, and statutes in most jurisdictions now provide that the same relatives shall succeed to both realty and personalty. The inheritance tables of the various states differ from each other in many respects, but most follow in a general way the scheme of the English Statute of Distribution. Typically the surviving husband or wife takes a half or third interest, which is often increased if the decedent left no issue or other designated relatives. However, there are numerous divergences from this plan in many states and provisions for the surviving spouse differ in plan and detail more than intestate provisions for blood relatives.
Children of the intestate inherit the latter's property subject to the interests of the surviving spouse. They take equally regardless of sex or age, and the issue of predeceased children take in place of their parents. Descendants, however remote, take in preference to all other blood relatives.
Witnesses — Number and Competency pp. 308-309
1. Most statutes require only two attesting witnesses but in a few states three are necessary
2. In most jurisdictions the statute provides that a beneficiary under the will is a proper attester but that he is not permitted to take under the will unless his is also an heir at law in which case he may take up to his intestate share.
3. The English Statute of Frauds provided that witnesses to the will should be "credible". It became established that credible witnesses were those who were competent to testify on behalf of the will. Interest in a will disqualified a witness. If the will was signed by a devisee, the entire will was invalid. This situation led to the Statute of George II, which provided that when a witness was also a legatee or devisee he should lose all advantage of the provisions of the will. This had the effect of validating the will by nullifying the gift in favor of the interested witness.

"English Home"
Transcribed by S. Kathryn Hooper

Location: 4 miles north of Union Hall on Route #670; thence northeast 3.7 miles on Route #618, west side of Highway.

Date: About 1790.

Owners: George L. English to 1829
Parmenus English 1829 to 1876
Daniel T. Saunders 1876 to 1937, present owner. [at the time]

When the original home was built or how George L. English acquired his land could not be learned, but it was stated in all probability it was a land grant.

In Deed Book 12, page 591, a deed from George L. English to his son Parmenus is recorded. The deed speaks of it as being one fifth of his land holdings and mention is made of the fact that it is to be used by his wife Elizabeth as a home for her natural life, so it is supposed he wanted his son to occupy the home during his declining years. The consideration was $1.00 and love and affection. Metes and bounds are described but the acreage is not given. In Deed Book 32, page 39 the heirs of Parmenus, deeded to Daniel T. Saunders his son-in-law the tract of land known as, The Parmenus English home Tract, and contained 398 acres, and the consideration was $2,427.80. This deed was made February 7, 1876.

Description: The house was log bodied and later the whole was covered with wide boards, tongue and grooved together. It could not be ascertained just when built but as Parmenus English was born there in 1800, it is believed to have been erected before that. The house has crumbled and the only tract left is a mound of half decayed logs. The following description was written from memory by Mrs Sallie Dudley Foster, who was reared in the neighborhood and visited the house frequently.

The house had two large rooms connected by a big hall, a single flight stairway reached to the upper floor which was a duplicate of the one below, the hall and rooms being the same size as the ones below, the only difference being the upper ones, the ceiling was a little lower.
There was no basement to this house and the kitchen was a small shed room.

The lawn showed traces of where flowers had been and there were several lovely old trees left.

To the side of the house is a family burying ground in which sleeps Parmenus English, his two wives and some of his descendants. The cemetery is very well cared for and the graves are marked by nice stones, in a good state of preservation.

Historical Significance:

The English family have long been a prominent one in Franklin County. Large land owners, they established homes in different sections of the county. Very little could be learned of Parmenus and his two wives but one of his sons, James, afterwards became a most prominent citizen in civic and religious affairs. He was appointed Judge, which office he held for years. Another child a daughter, was the Mary Ann Hancock, whose epitaph is given later. Mrs Hancock left two small children which were reared by her father. Another daughter became the wife of Dr. Benjamin Williams, an early physician in Franklin, while another married Mr D. T. Saunders, who continued to live in the English home and later bought out the other heirs.

Mr and Mrs Saunders reared a large family there, but after his death the place was occupied by tenants and gradually the house fell into a state of complete disrepair.

EDITORIAL

It is with a great deal of regret that we must announce the departure of Virginia Lee Hutcheson Davis as Research Editor of The Southside Virginian. It has been a rewarding year and we are sure that each of you has recognized the efforts that Mrs. Davis has made in bringing you new records and insights to aid you in your research. We understand and can appreciate her desire to continue her own research and wish her the best of luck in her future genealogical endeavors. See “Virginia Davis Bids Farewell” later in this issue.

The Table of Contents and Indexes to Volumes I through VIII has been shipped to those who have placed orders. We have gotten positive response, and the reviews thus far have been very complimentary. We feel that it is an invaluable aid to anyone doing research in Southside Virginia. In one 244 page, 8½x11 book are the listings of the 350 articles which have appeared in the first eight years of publication, arranged by county. The indexes encompass more than 35,000 individual index entries from these same years. You may order your copy for only $24.50 plus $3.50 shipping (VA residents add $1.10 tax).

We recently received a letter from a new subscriber who was able to extend one line back an additional three generations by utilizing the information contained in her first issue of the magazine. This kind of response makes all of our efforts worth while.

It seems that this last issue was unusually slow in reaching our subscribers. We have had one report that it took approximately a month to travel to a subscriber in Missouri. We assure you that we are doing everything in our power to make it easy on the Postal Service to deliver your magazine on time and in one piece. We are investigating ways to enhance our addressing to allow for more automation by the Postal Service. You may be sure that we are as concerned as you are when you do not receive your magazine on time or at all. Additional costs are involved in mailing replacement issues and in responding to your queries about late deliveries. We thank you for your patience and understanding, and hope that our efforts will help reduce any inconvenience you may experience.

On a different note, beginning with this issue The Southside Virginian will be produced on acid-free paper. This is, of course, an added expense, but we feel that the genealogical and historical materials published herein are worthy of preservation. We have been informed that many of our readers, as well as libraries and societies, bind our volumes yearly. We are sorry to say that previous issues were not provided this measure of protection, but any future reprints of those issues will be. This is just another way in which we try to provide you with the best quality for your subscription dollar.

Thank you for your continued support.

BOOK REVIEWS

Churchill Gibson Chamberlayne (transcribed), Births From the Bristol Parish Register of Prince George and Dinwiddie Counties, Virginia, 1720-1798. 133 pp, with a new index, cloth. 1990. $15.00 plus $2.50 shipping, first book; $1.00 each add. This is a reprint of the 1974, 1980 editions. The births of residents of Bristol Parish, which included areas of both Prince George and Dinwiddie counties have been excerpted and reprinted from The Vestry Book and Register of Bristol Parish, Virginia, 1720-1789 that was originally transcribed and published by Churchill Gibson Chamberlayne in Richmond, VA in 1898. Since both of these counties are burned record counties these records assume even greater importance than usual. Of further interest is the fact that it is almost impossible to secure a circulating copy from a local library of the Vestry Book and Register as originally published. Given the paucity of information from this area for the colonial period, this is an important reference. Clearfield Co, 200 E Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (301) 625-9004.

William Macfarlane Jones, The Douglas Register, Being a Detailed Register of Births, Marriages and Deaths ... as Kept by the Rev. William Douglas, from 1750-1797. 408 pp, Cloth. 1985. $25.00 plus $2.50 shipping, first book; $1.00 each add. This is a reprint of the original 1928 edition. Also reprinted in 1966, 1973, and 1977. William Douglas served St. James Northam Parish in Goochland County, Virginia (Dover Church) beginning in October 1750. He served for twenty-seven years, and also had charge of Maniken Town (King William Parish) for nineteen years, and served in Buckingham County for four years. As a concession to convenience, the author has categorized the entries made by the Rev. Douglas in alphabetical order according to Marriages, Births and Deaths. He has also included an index to Goochland County Wills and notes of the French-Huguenot refugees who lived in Manakin-Town. Because each category of information, as listed in the Table of Contents, is presented in alphabetical order, there is no index supplied. This often has the advantage of offering the opportunity to browse, and to discover unexpected relevant information. Genealogical Publishing Co, Inc, 1001 N Calvert St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (800) 727-6687.

Elizabeth Petty Bentley, Index to The 1810 Census of Virginia, xiii, 366 pp, Cloth. 1980. $30.00 plus $2.50 shipping, first book; $1.00 each add. The book, as compiled by Elizabeth Bentley, is, in itself, an alphabetical listing of the heads of households in the 1810 Federal Census of Virginia; therefore no index is required. The last name of the individual, the given name, then the county of residence and then the reference of the page number of the census schedule. As is usual, this book provides a convenient tool for the location of the residence of the individual in question and further investigation of the microfilm copy of that census record. It also provides the necessary direction to pursue the records of that individual in his county of residence. The author has provided a comprehensive Foreword for an understanding of the information available from the 1810 census. Genealogical Publishing Co, Inc, 1001 N Calvert St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (800) 727-6687.

Walter A. Watson, Notes on Southside Virginia, edited by Mrs. Walter A. Watson, under the direction of Wilmer L. Hall (Assistant Librarian, VSL). 346 pp, Indexed, cloth. 1990. $23.50 plus $2.50 shipping, first book; $1.00 each add. Reprint of 1977 edition, originally presented in 1925 as Volume XV, Nos. 2-4, Bulletin of the Virginia State Library. The material for this book was derived entirely from the manuscript books and papers of Judge Watson and are now deposited in the Virginia State Library. His work was compiled by his widow, Constance T. Watson. Judge Watson's notes contain genealogically important information about the residents of Nottoway and Amelia counties. Nottoway is a burned record county. A great variety of source records were drawn upon, including abstracts from both Richmond and other newspapers, church histories, county court records, marriage records and gravestone epitaphs. It is an important contribution to information concerning the residents of this Southside Virginia region. Clearfield Co, 299 E Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (301) 625-9004.

Landon C. Bell, Sunlight on the Southside, Lists of Tithes, Lunenburg County, Virginia, 1748-1783. 503 pp, Illustrated, index, cloth. 1991. $37.50 plus shipping $2.50, first book; $1.00 each add. Reprinted 1974, Originally published, 1931. This book provides much more in the nature of genealogical information, as well as the history of Southside Virginia, than the title of the book implies. The lists of tithables for the years 1748-1751 embrace the area of contemporary Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Charlotte, Halifax, Pittsylvania, Henry, Patrick, Franklin, Campbell, Bedford and Appomattox counties. The author presents a history of the Southside in its Introduction and explains the genesis of the Southwestern expansion. He discusses the routes into the Southwest as well. His book not only identifies the residents and their place of residence at a given year, but he provides a blueprint of the migration of Southside Virginia. As a respected researcher, Bell's book is a must. Clearfield Co, 299 E Eager St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (301) 625-9004.

Maude Carter Clement, The History of Pittsylvania County, Virginia, 340 pp, Illustrated, index, appendices, footnotes, cloth. 1987. $21.50 plus shipping $2.50, first book; $1.00 each add. Reprint of book originally published in 1929. This is a well written, highly readable and authoritative county history. Included in the footnoting are many detailed genealogical identifications and explanations. Pittsylvania County was formed in 1767 and the history includes a wealth of material on the parent counties of Lunenburg and Halifax; also the neighboring counties of Henry, Patrick, Franklin, Bedford and Campbell. The appendices offer lists of tithables, sheriffs, justices and other officials of the county. It is invaluable to those who claim descent from early residents of the county, and interesting reading for all of those interested in the history of Southside Virginia. Regional Publishing Co. (Genealogical Publishing Co, Inc.), 1001 N Calvert St, Baltimore, MD 21202. (800) 727-6687.

Weynette Parks Haun, Surry County, Virginia Court Records, 1691-1700, Book V, vii, 154 pp, Index, paper (8½ x 11). 1991. $22.50 postpaid. This verbatim transcription of the Surry County record book is the fifth in the series of Surry County publications. It is a major work of dedication, and is a faithful transcription of this early book. Ms. Haun is experienced in reading and interpreting the unusual and inconsistent handwriting of the clerks of the early colonial courts. As one of the earliest counties, and one in which the major portion of the records have been preserved, it is a major contribution to the identification and verification of early settlers, their activities and places of residence. Ms. Haun is to be commended for her tireless efforts in making these records available to the public in such readable and useable form.

Write the author for a listing of her other publications and for the purchase of this book at 243 Argonne Dr, Durham, NC 27704.
John P. Alcock, Five Generations of the Family of Burr Harrison of Virginia, 1650-1800, viii, 284 pp, Appendices, map, index, end notes, bibliography, paper. 1991. $25.00 plus $3.00 shipping. Burr Harrison is known to have been in Westmoreland County in 1659, and even with the gaps in the county court records, his life has been documented well in Mr. Alcock's book. He and his wife have done meticulous research and have presented in well documented detail the lives of four generations of Burr Harrison, as well as the lives of Thomas Harrison, Cuthbert Harrison, Mathew Harrison, George Harrison, William Harrison and Benjamin Harrison. He also presents descendants in Kentucky and Ohio and Calvert (Harris) Harrison of Newberry County, South Carolina. Other families covered: Whittle, Barton, Wallis, Linton, Bullitt, Fowke, Gibson, Gillison, Hunston, Peyton and Quarles. It is exciting to read such a detailed, readable and well researched account of this early Virginia family. Heritage Books, Inc, 1540E Pointer Ridge Place, Bowie, MD 20716. (301) 390-7709.

James A. Mumper, I Wrote You Word - The Poignant Letters of Private Holt - John Lee Holt, 1829-1863, 158 pp, Appendices, photographs, sample letter, endnotes. 1991. $20.00 plus $2.00 shipping (VA res. add 4.5% tax). Two great granddaughters of Pvt. Holt, M. Ellen Bailey and Mary A. Dalby compiled this work which was edited by Mr. Mumper (now deceased). Over 100 letters written by Pvt. Holt to his wife during the period 19 July 1861 to 30 June 1863 are presented. These letters are transcribed in their entirety with (mis)spellings and punctuation retained. His letters reflect, in great detail, the hardships of the war period and the associations he had with the others he came in contact with. Interpersed throughout are the editor’s comments pertaining to historical facts which place Pvt. Holt’s passages in perspective. This is a good source for anyone wishing to understand more fully the impact that the Civil War had on the everyday people charged with carrying out the mechanics of warfare. It would have been made complete and a more useful tool for genealogists had an index been included. It may be purchased from the compilers: M. Ellen Bailey, Rt. 3, Box 148, Bridgewater, VA 22812 or Mary A. Dalby, 120 Keesling Ave, Salem, VA 24153.

Virginia Davis Bids Farewell......

It is with both regret and anticipation that I announce my resignation as Research Editor and as a partner in the publishing of The Southside Virginian. I have enjoyed hearing from so many subscribers and trying to meet their requests, and I shall miss that. The research involved in writing Tidewater Virginia Families beckons me to continue this type of research. New information is constantly coming to light concerning Tidewater families, and I look forward to pursuing further research in this area. I am sure that our paths will continue to cross.

During the War Between the States in the summer of 1864, the courthouse at Prince George was burned, and along with it most of the early records of the county court. Some individuals, who resided in the county and knew of the disaster, brought their copies of some of these vital records to the courthouse to be recorded. Anne Bradbury Peebles went through the packets of loose papers and abstracted and indexed these wills, marriage bonds and other papers so that the information would be available to the public. She listed those wills and marriage bonds for the years before 1865, noting that only one will predated 1800.

They are presented with the deed book number first and then the page number in that book.

CARTERS TAVERN

The following Virginia State Historical Marker is located in Halifax County adjacent to Route 659, approximately 3½ miles east of the Pittsylvania county line.

U47
Carters Tavern

Samuel and Elizabeth Carter operated an ordinary here from about 1808 until the 1840s. It is one of many historic buildings remaining along River Road, which, as the then principal roadway between Halifax Court House and Danville, formed a link in the main stage road between New York and New Orleans. The smaller and earliest section of Carter's Tavern was built by Joseph Dodson, who died in 1773.

Appomattox County

Historic Places

St. Paul's Church

Transcribed by S. Kathryn Hooper

Location: 100 yards east of Hurtsville, Virginia on Route #625.

Date: 1875

Owners: Members of the Church.

Description: This little church is built of logs and is very neat in appearance. Between the logs, cement has been placed and painted white. The entrance is plain. New pews have replaced the old hand made ones. The room is lighted by six windows, each sash containing four ten by twelve panes. The original pulpit, which was donated by a Church in Richmond, has been taken out, and a platform about twelve inches high has been built, upon this and about five feet back, the alter has been placed. Back of the alter, there is another raise of about twelve inches, and a chancel rail built. Back of this rail with about five feet of space, comes the communion stand, with a small space at its back for the minister to stand. One small room occupies space on either side of the pulpit, one of which is used as a library for the Sunday School.

Historical Significance:

St. Paul's is the only Episcopal Church ever built in Appomattox County (as of 1937). Rev. Robert Gibson was the first preacher at this church. A number of years later he became Bishop of Virginia. Another beloved man preached here for a good many years, Dr. Hugo Lacy. This church, like many of the early churches, found its beginning in the home. John R. Hughes who returned to Richmond after the War Between the States, broken in health but not in spirit, undertook to take up where he had left off in the business world, failing to regain his health, his Doctor advised him to move to the country. Packing up every thing he started out with his little family for "Oakley" the home of an Aunt in Prince Edward County. Traveling part of the way by rail, and the rest by any means convenient, he reached his objective. Later on his father bought this place and gave it to him. Out of this house grew St. Paul's Church. Mrs. Hughes, being a very religious woman, saw the need of a Sunday School for her children, and no church being near by, started a school in... her home with her children as the only scholars. In a short time the neighbors sent their children. The school grew and flourished for a long time. Being so successful in this, and seeing the need of a church, she wrote to Rev. Churchill Gibson of Petersburg, Virginia, told him the story of her success with her school and asked him to help. He made a trip to her home, and from time to time held services there. By 1870 the congregation had outgrown the home, and plans were made to build a church.
There arose quite a difference of opinion when it came to giving a name to the church. One faction favored "Oakley" in honor of Mrs. Hughes, who was really the founder of the church. Finally the name of St. Paul's was agreed upon. Mrs. Hughes father, Dr.
John Dove of Richmond, Virginia, a vestryman in old St. James Church, gave the money to buy the land for the church, which at that time was owned by Mrs. J. T. Hardy. Work was begun at once, large forest pine trees were cut and hewn from the land on which the church was built. As soon as the walls were up and the roof on, Sunday School was started. Children and adults alike used the sleepers for benches. Due to the fact that saw mills were scarce, it was some time before the floor was laid.
The nearest mill was some ten miles away. This was run by water which made sawing very slow compared with our present day mills. It was at this mill the material for floors, windows and doors was produced. The following gentlemen were elected as the first to serve as vestrymen, with Rev. Robert Gibson as minister. John R. Hughes, Richard Watkins, George D. Sanders, and J. W. Jones. Some of the preachers who served following Rev. Gibson were Rev. George Webb, Rev. Thomas Jones, Rev.
Elliott Boykin, Rev. Baker P. Lee, Dr. Thomas Hugo Lacy and Rev. R. E. Withers. The church was not completed and dedicated until June 9th, 1875, with a rather large membership.
But today only thirteen names can be found on the roll to carry on the work. No old records can be found and according to statements of both Mrs. John Hurt and Rev. R. E. Withers, no records seem to have been kept of the activities of the church until about five years ago.

A chancery suit in Chesterfield County, found among the Ended Chancery Causes, involving the numerous heirs of the aged and unmarried Judith Archer in 1841 illustrates the value of these documents. This particular suit shows the heirs of John Archer, Sr. of Dale Parish, Chesterfield County, who died in 1773. In his will, dated 5 Sept. 1773 and probated 3 December 1773, he names his children: John, Henry, Sarah Archer, Judith Archer and Ann Robertson and grandchildren Christopher and Archer Branch.

Judith herself died in 1831, apparently at least 80 years old, in Chesterfield, leaving a will dated 23 Nov. 1830 and probated 4 Feb. 1831. In it she named Susan D. Archer, widow of her deceased nephew, Robert P. Archer; her nephew Richard Henry Archer; grandniece Margaret Archer, daughter of John Archer of Bermuda Hundred; grandniece Amanda Malvina Archer, daughter of John; grandniece Elizabeth Archer Robinson (sic) of Goose Island; niece Elizabeth Randolph Archer. Samuel Taylor and Parke Poindexter were named executors, but refused to serve. Estate was turned over to Thomas Stratton, the Sheriff of Chesterfield Co.

The Case of Judith Archer's legatees vs Judith Archer's Administrator is found in Ended Chancery Causes 1750-1860, 1841 Box and is as follows:

"To the Hon. Court of Chesterfield in Chancery Sitting: The said Susan D. Archer, Lewis Owen & Frances his wife, Bolivar Archer and Mary Archer, the said Frances, Bolivar and Mary by their next friend as aforesaid, by leave of court for that purpose granted, and by amendment to their bill heretofore filed, show that, after payment of the testator's debts and the legacies contained in her will, it is believed a residue will remain as to which she died intestate, and which is consequently distributable among all of her next of kin: that she had two brothers, John and Henry Archer, and three sisters Martha Branch, Sarah Archer and Ann Robertson, all of whom she survived."

Bedford County
Cemeteries

Steptoe and Callaway Cemetery
Transcribed by S. Kathryn Hooper

Research performed by Nora A. Carter, Thaxton, VA, March 2, 1937.

Location: “Federal Hill” (Home of the Steptoe family); 9 miles southwest of Lynchburg, Virginia, on Route #128; thence north .3 mile on Route #623; house is 300 yards west of road and the cemetery is 500 yards southwest of the house.

Date: 1777

Owners: James Steptoe and his descendants.

Description: The plot covers one fourth acre of ground and is surrounded by a four foot wall made of large reddish stones, well mortared together. The oldest graves are covered with the marble table type of marker. The cemetery is in good condition. (1937)

Historical Significance:
During the War Between the States, at the time of Hunter’s raid toward Lynchburg, a skirmish was fought here. The southern troops took their stand within the cemetery behind the stone wall and fired on the Union Army as it passed. Two northern soldiers were killed, and a long time afterwards the remains of another soldier were found near the wall. His gold watch of excellent workmanship identified him and a letter with the watch was sent to his mother. There are holes in the cemetery wall made by cannon balls.

Some Southside Virginians in Greene County, Illinois
Tombstone Inscriptions in the Stith Cemetery
Contributed by Philip B. Alfeld

Editor's Note: It is with great pleasure that we are able to publish materials which indicate the emigration of former residents of Southside Virginia to other locales. Often times, it is just such information which gives researchers that long lost clue as to "Where did John Smith go?" It is through subscribers such as Mr. Alfeld, that these clues may be made available. Thank You.

The Stith Cemetery is located about four miles west of Carrollton, the county seat of Greene County, Illinois. In the 1830s, a number of families from Dinwiddie and Brunswick counties in Virginia migrated to this Illinois county some sixty miles north of St. Louis. The following are the tombstone inscriptions for several of those Southside Virginians.

Author's notes: Thomas S. Booth served on the Greene County Commissioners' Court from 1845 thru 1848. After the death of his first wife, he married Mary Peter (Pegram) Andrews, widow of Baker Andrews, and daughter of Maj. Baker and Mary (Manson) Pegram of Dinwiddie County. Her brother, Benjamin Pegram, was married to Catharine Stith, sister of Booth's first wife, Julia. Presumably, David Stith is a brother of Julia and Catharine. See History of Greene and Jersey Counties, Illinois (Springfield, IL: 1885), pages 590,700; Samuel William Simmons, The Pegrams of Virginia and Descendants, 1688. 1984 (Lakemont, GA: 1985), pages 94-104.

A Military Certificate is a certification issued in the name of the governor and council stating that a certain individual was entitled to a specific quantity of land on the basis of military service during the Revolutionary War. A Military Warrant is a warrant issued by the Land Office on the basis of a military certificate. The warrant was directed to the surveyor of lands set aside for officers and soldiers, such land being located in what is now the states of Ohio and Kentucky. It directed the surveyor to lay off land in the amount specified.

The name Bassett is prominent in Southside Virginia history. This document is presented for its potential significance to those doing research in Southside Virginia and North Carolina.

GENEALOGY. What does that word mean? Is it a thoughtful study of one's family history or is it a search for that elusive "one more generation back" on one's direct line? Many genealogists, in the excitement of discovery, use the latter approach in their research without realizing that the former would be a much more fruitful method.

We are often confronted with researchers looking for an ancestor who lived in Southside Virginia only during a specific period of time (i.e., lived in Brunswick Co. 1750-1785, removed to Tennessee). They are sometimes dissatisfied with The Southside Virginian because we do not provide as much coverage as they would like of a specific county during the time period in question. As has been stated before, we are attempting to balance the materials published, so that all areas and early time periods of Southside are encompassed. This is a large task for a publication such as The Southside Virginian, but we attempt it none-the-less.

The larger issue here, though, is in the methods being employed by the family researcher. In fact, the hypothetical ancestor listed above probably did live in Brunswick Co. from 1750-1785, and left there for Tennessee. But, to think that this time period is the only one in which records of their family exist in Brunswick (or surrounding counties) is extremely short-sighted. What of this person's brothers, sisters, cousins, etc., who have the same ancestry, and many of whom did not remove to Tennessee? They continued to live in Brunswick and continued to make history which may be recorded in county records. We often see in wills, deeds, and powers-of-attorney where reference is made to siblings who "removed to Tennessee" in previous years. These records are often produced some 10-20 years after the fact. What lost opportunities for research these records conceal.

Genealogy is like a great jigsaw puzzle. You often can't fit together the pieces you're really interested in until you complete another section of the puzzle. Several years ago, we were confronted with a similar issue. Our direct line ancestry ran into a brick wall in Illinois, c1800. After years of research in Illinois, we still did not know where our 3rd Gr. Grandfather had come from. We noticed that two of his sons (not our direct line) had served in the Mexican War (1847). We requested their military records from the National Archives. Upon studying these documents, we noted that many of the pension affidavits were being filed from NW Arkansas. We immediately searched the records of that area and found that a majority of the family had moved there in the late 1840s. We also found references to our progenitor and leads on where he may have been born. As it turned out, our 2nd Gr. Grandfather moved back to Illinois in 1860, and our direct line remained there until the 1930s. Without those clues in the sibling's military files, we would not have had the opportunity to follow the trail into Arkansas.

So, in the future, look into all references concerning members of your family, direct line or otherwise. Even the most obscure person may provide the record you need to go "one more generation back."

BOOK REVIEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Augustus Monroe Raney, Jr., Raney's, Jollys, and Trotters of Smoky Ordinary, Brunswick County, Virginia — Their Ancestors and Descendants — 1988. 89 pp; index; cloth (7½ x 10½); photographs; sketches; maps; tables. 1988. This book contains a well organized and indexed family history of the Raney, Jolly, Trotter, and associated families of Southside Virginia. In addition, the history of Smoky Ordinary, a Revolutionary period stage stop on the road from Petersburg to North Carolina, is given in great detail. Numerous pictures, maps, and charts along with transcriptions and reproductions of documentary information provide interesting background to the written family history. The impetus for this book was the desire of the author to permanently mark the location of the old Smoky Ordinary Inn, which dates to 1720. Through his actions, a state historical marker was placed and dedicated in October 1987. This book is a "good read" as it depicts much of the history of both the families and the way of life associated with Southside Virginia. For information, contact the compiler at 6190 Rivershore Pkwy., Atlanta, GA 30328.

Herman W. Ferguson, Genealogical Deed Abstracts — Mecklenburg County, North Carolina — Books 10-14. x, 249 pp; index; soft-cover (8½ x 11); map. 1990. $25.00 postpaid, NC residents add 6% sales tax. The proximity of North Carolina to Southside Virginia dictates that anyone particularly interested in genealogical research in this region of Virginia would be well advised to look "south of the border" as well. Mr. Ferguson's book is an excellent reference work for this purpose. Mecklenburg Co., NC, is situated on the NC/SC border, and was formed in 1762. Deed Books 10-14 encompass 2,987 pages with 2,323 abstracts, and cover deeds recorded from 1778 through 1794. The abstractor has gone to great lengths to make this an easy tool for the researcher to use. The index contains some 4700 whole name and place entries, which reference the consecutively numbered deed listings. Through the use of bold-faced type the index differentiates between references to grantors, grantees, former owners, etc. and those of minor officials, neighbors, or witnesses. Of particular interest is the map, which indicates watercourses, fords, churches, and other features contained in the descriptions within the deeds. This is an excellent work and is recommended to anyone doing research in North Carolina whether for migrant Southsiders or not. It may be purchased from the abstractor at: 600 Chad Dr., Rocky Mount, NC 27803.

William Thorndale and William Dollarhide, Map Guide to the U.S. Federal Censuses, 1790-1920. xxvi, 420 pp; maps; index; bibl; paper; $39.95 + $2.50 postage. This is a "must have" book for anyone performing research of the type in which county boundaries play an important role. The maps of each state, with current county lines, are overlaid with the county boundaries in existence at the time of each U.S. census from 1790 through 1920. Counties which are no longer in existence are indicated along with their pertinent dates. An index of county names is also included, which will aid the user in finding counties which have ceased to exist. U.S. maps with current state lines overlaid by previous state and territorial boundaries, are provided for each of the censuses, which will aid the user in understanding the westward development of this country. Genealogical Publishing Co., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, MD 21202.

Parish Records

Saint Andrews Parish Parishioners of 1762-1773
Contributed by Dennis Hudgins

Editor's Note: The following are entries from Brunswick County Deed Book 11 along with an attached listing of the parishioners of St. Andrews Parish. The Deed Book entries are transcribed from the originals in the manner in which they were originally written. The list of parishioners has been alphabetized and compiled by Mr. Hudgins to aid in its usage.

Brunswick County Virginia, Deed Book 11 pages 138-145:

Whereas John Marshall and Henry Morriss in the year 1762, did become two of the Securities for the parish Collection of the dues and demands. Levied on the Tithables of Saint Andrews parish which were Collected and only in part accounted for by Thomas Jackson the acting Collector since which a Suit has been Commenced upon the said Bond, a Copy whereof is hereunto annexed [see below] and is Now Depending in the County Court of Brunsk. The payment of the bal lance on which account such will tend Greatly to the prejudice of the said Marshall & Morris on whom the whole is likely to fall & perhaps terminate in the Ruin of their innocent as themselves. We the parishioners knowing that if the said money is paid into our vestry it can operate only so as to lesson our levies in future — a trifle hardly perceptable to us as individuals do of our own free will and accord in pity to the said Marshall & Morris. Voluntarily release them of all Debts duties & Demands whatsoever which we or those coming after us may have against them in and by Virtues of the bond aforesaid hereby declaring that these presents are by us intended and Designed to operate as an acquittance & full Discharge against the said Bond for our Respective shares & Claims of in & to the said Demand and every part thereof.

Witness our hands this 24th May 1773.

At a Court held for Brunswick County the 23rd day of August 1773. Those Receipts together with the bond thereunto annexed were Returned into the said County Court by James Parham & others and on their montion were ordered to be Recorded.

Teste. P. Pelham Jr Cl. Court

The original Bond of 1762, mentioned above, was annexed and entered in the 1773 Deed Book 11 as follows:

The Southside Virginian, Vol. X No. 3
Henry Edmunds. Robert Briggs. Edward Goodrich. John Pettway. Hugh Williams. William Thornton & William Edwards Gentleman of the Vestry of the parish Saint Andrews in the County aforesaid in the full and just sum of one thousand pounds Curre. money of Virginia to which payment well & truly to be made to the Said Drury Stith ... Nicholas Edmunds and the other Gentleman of the vestry above mentioned or their Successors we bind ourselves and each of us our heirs Executors and administrators Jointly & Severally firmly by these presents Sealed with our Seals and dated this day of April A.D. 1762.

The Condition of the above obligation is such that whereas the above bounden Thomas Twitty was appointed by the Gentlemen of the Vestry of the parish of Saint Andrews aforesaid collector of the Levy for the said parish this present year. Now if the said Thomas Twitty shall well & truly collect the Quantity of Toba. from each Warehouse as is Established ... payable in the parish & County aforesaid from the Inhabitants of the said parish and pay to each person their Respective Quantity of Toba. Levied for their Services and also when thereunto Required by the Gentlemen of the Vestry above mentioned to render a true and Just account of all the toba. Levied by the vestry for the use of the said Parish & Dispose of the same at the highest price & Discharge the same without fraud or further delay then the above obligation to be void and of none Effect other otherwise remain in full force & virtue.

Signed Sealed & Delivered in presence of

The list of parishioners is alphabetized in the following pages. The first 14 names in the Deed book were listed twice in direct sequence, later in the list. That repeated block was evidently an error in the parish list or the County Clerk's transcription, and therefore has been ignored. However, other duplications may exist, and when no pattern is obvious, those errors could not be distinguished for this listing. For example, William Raney and Dancy Standley are repeated since they were listed twice in the Clerk's Deed Book entry.

Historical Significance:

For many years the only connections of Franklin County with the outside world was through the stage coach which journeyed perilously across Grassy Hill to Big Lick, now Roanoke, Virginia. Of course there was also the covered wagon, drawn by horses, mules or oxen, the gig, used by professional men generally, the carriage of the more affluent, and most of all the horse back riding which was the most common means of transportation. By some of these processes George Washington and Andrew Jackson, and earlier still, William Byrd passed through the County, and Patrick Henry made many pilgrimages to Richmond and the eastern part of the State. Hardy pioneers make themselves politically useful, and participated in all the conflicts of the Country from Vincennes to Appomattox. There were brave soldiers listed from this county in the Revolution, in the War of 1812, and in vast numbers they swelled the ranks of the Confederate army.

It was not until 1880 that the Franklin and Pittsylvania Railroad was established to run between Pittsville and Rocky Mount. People flocked from every section of the county to see the new steam wonder puffing and blowing along its iron tracks.

The narrow gauge was later widened to standard, and the road was in operation until 1924 when it was purchased at a receivers sale by E. P. Angle, C. S. Bennett, and R. E. Ferguson. It was discontinued after a short time.

But the great advantage in transportation was accomplished in the late “eighties” when the Roanoke and Southern (now the Norfolk and Western R. R.) was completed through the County. Beginning at Roanoke once known as “Big Lick,” the road crosses the Roanoke River and winds so deviously across “Greassy Hill” that it was known by the old timers as the “Pumpkin Vine Trail.” After crossing this branch of the Blue Ridge where it reaches its maximum elevation at Ferrum (1321 feet) it strikes Smith’s River, and runs for miles along its banks. It reaches the junction of the Mayo and Dan Rivers at Mayodan, passes, Madison and Walnut Cove and thence by Walkertown to Winston-Salem.

The Virginia portion of the road was incorporated in 1886. On April twentieth of that year a meeting was held at Roanoke Hotel in the evening. Later the meeting adjourned to the “Skating Rink,” a more commodious place of meeting. Colonel David F. Houston, general manager of the Crozer Iron Works, was elected President; Henry C. Lester, of Martinsville vice-president; S. W. Jamison, of Roanoke, Secretary; E. H. Stewart, Treasurer. The directors were Henry S. Trout, J. Fleming Christian, Dr. J. D. Kirk, J. C. Moomaw, W. K. Andrews, P. L. Terry, J. M. Gambill, Maj. Andrew Lewis, T. M. Starkey, and Joseph T. Engleby.

In June 1887, the lines in Virginia and North Carolina were consolidated under the name of the Roanoke and Southern Railway Company. The principal offices were in Roanoke and the line, 122.53 miles long was to standard gauge. The road from Winston-Salem to Martinsville was known as Division “A” and was constructed before the remainder of the line which was known as Division “B”. The line from Martinsville to Roanoke lay through a mountainous country much more difficult and costly to construct.

On June 18, 1890 Henry S. Trout, of Roanoke, was made President of the Roanoke and Southern Railway Company. Andrew Obderdonk was appointed chief engineer. On June 17, 1890, Robert A. Buckner, who was later made Superintendent of the American Railway Express Company, was elected a director of the Roanoke and Southern Railway to represent the city of Roanoke. The heaviest part of the 57 miles between Roanoke and Martinsville was delayed by the mountainous part of the country through which it runs occasion [sic] slides and washouts.

Colonel H. F. Fries was elected president of the part of the road incorporated in North Carolina, with R. J. Reynolds, F. J. Stone, C. B. Watson, George W. Hinshaw and C. H. Fogle directors.

The line of the Roanoke and Southern was opened for traffic from Winston-Salem to Roanoke early in 1892. In September 1891, Henry S. Trout resigned as president of the Virginia part of the road, and Colonel Fries was made president of the entire route. A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Trout and he remained as first vice-president. G. W. Maslin was appointed general manager.

In March 1892, the Norfolk and Western Railway Company leased the Roanoke and Southern, and it became the Winston-Salem Division, with D. H. Barger Superintendent. In August 1893, Mr. Barger was transferred and Mr. H. H. S. Fandy was made superintendent of the Winston-Salem Division. In 1896, the property was purchased by the Norfolk and Western and made a part of their system.

EDITORIAL

Its RENEWAL time once again. Enclosed for your convenience is a renewal form which has your mailing label affixed. If your mailing address is correct, just specify the number of years you wish to renew, and send a check in the enclosed, addressed envelope. If the address on your mailing label is incorrect, please correct it prior to returning the form.

You will note a slight change in our renewal policy. The subscription rate for The Southside Virginian is still $20.00, the same as it has been since 1986, but for anyone renewing after March 1st, we must charge $2.00 extra to cover the additional postage required to send you issues already published for the year. The increase in postage costs has forced us to do this, but it is also a way to encourage you to renew promptly so that you don't miss receiving your magazine on schedule. We would prefer not having to add these charges, but we feel that this is more equitable than increasing the subscription rate. As we have stated before, by utilizing Bulk Rate postage, we have been able to keep the subscription rate down. Unfortunately, we can not use bulk mail to send the issues published prior to receiving your renewal. We tried waiting until the next issue was released, but we were having to respond (by mail) to subscribers wanting to know where their magazines were. This also costs time and money. So — take some time right now to complete your renewal form and send it to us. That way you won’t miss a single issue, and can help us reduce the costs we must pay to the US Postal Service.

We want to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued patronage. It is very enjoyable receiving your notes of genealogical success accomplished by utilizing material we have published. We will continue to try to publish articles which contain information not easily accessible to the average family researcher. You will note that in the past few issues, as well as this one, we have published information received from out-of-state sources, which contain references to Southsiders who have relocated or had dealings in other states. This information is made available to everyone as a result of subscribers like yourself who submit it to us for publication. We strongly encourage you to submit this type of information, so that others may take advantage of the finding.

We hope that you have enjoyed The Southside Virginian for 1992 and will continue to subscribe in future years. We have enjoyed producing it for you. We have gotten to know many of you through your submissions, and we take great pride in being able to provide a medium through which information about Southside Virginia can be preserved and shared by people all over the US and beyond.

BOOK REVIEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Jo White Linn, C.G., C.G.L., Surry County, North Carolina, Wills 1771-1827. xi; 215 pp; map; cloth (6 x 9); full-name index; $25.00 plus $3.00 shipping; 1992. Add this book to the long list of excellent publications produced by Mrs. Linn. This work is not comprised of the usual short listings provided by the majority of records abstractors. Parenthetical notations abound as Mrs. Linn supplies the researcher with numerous supplemental sources. The abstracts of these wills were originally published in soft cover by Mrs. Linn in 1974 (now out of print). She states, "For this edition the wills were re-read with some corrections and additions, and parenthetical material was added." Surry County, NC was formed from Rowan County in 1771, and is bounded on the north by the Virginia line. Surry County, NC covers the present day counties of Surry, Yadkin, Stokes, and Forsythe. In addition, from 1771 to 1778, the records covered by this volume include the present day counties of Ashe, Alleghany, and Wilkes. This book is a useful aid to any Southside researcher who knows or suspects that their family trail lead through Surry County, NC during this time period. We voice sincere words of thanks to Mrs. Linn for her comprehensive work in compiling another fine genealogical resource. Genealogical Publishing Co., 1001 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, MD 21202.

Weynette Parks Haun, Surry County, Virginia, Court Records, 1700-1711, Book VI. 156 pp; indexes; paper (8½ x 11); $25.00 postpaid, NC residents add 6% sales tax. 1992. This book continues the excellent series of Surry County court records by Ms. Haun. These transcriptions of the early court records are welcomed by anyone who has attempted to read the actual handwritten entries of this time period. This volume includes three separate indexes of the court records. First is a transcription of the court clerk's original record index. The usual full-name index is also included. A miscellaneous index completes the trio. This index includes not only place names, but gives occupations, powers of attorney, presentments, Indians, Vestrys, etc. The Southside researcher can be most grateful that Ms. Haun is continuing her work with these most valuable records. Order from the compiler at 243 Argonne Dr., Durham, NC 27704-1423.

Ann S. Lainhart, State Census Records. 116 pp; cloth (6 x 9); $17.95 plus $3.00 shipping. This book represents the first comprehensive listing of the state census records ever published. State censuses, unlike the US census, were taken at random times and for varying reasons. They are equally as valuable as the federal censuses, and in some instances fill in gaps where the federal census no longer exists. Ms. Lainhart has enlisted genealogists and state specialists, as well as state archivists and librarians in compiling a complete guide to these invaluable records. This volume lists census availability by state and year and frequently gives listings by county and district. She not only indicates what records are available, but where they may be found and what data you might expect. Ms. Lainhart has been a professional genealogist for twelve years, and is a former reference librarian. She teaches genealogy and is a popular speaker at seminars and conferences. This book should grace the Elizabeth Petty Bentley, The Genealogist's Address Book. ix; 539 pp; index; paper (8½ x 11). 1992. $29.95 plus $3.00 shipping. This is a complete update of the 1991 edition of the Address Book which contained only 391 pp and did not have a general index. This book contains listings, addresses, and contacts of national, state, ethnic and special resources, libraries, archives, societies, and independent publications. Ms. Bentley solicited amended data from all of the references cited in the 1991 edition. This new edition updates addresses and accompanying details and lists new organizations and ones overlooked in the previous edition. It contains a Yellow Pages advertising section in the back and has a more precise index to available periodicals. Ms. Bentley states in her introduction a concern which is becoming more prevalent in today's tight budgetary climate. Apparently a number of agencies requested that their addresses be withheld, as they could not cope with the increased demands on their time by the genealogists who requested responses through the mail. The lesson we must learn from this is to make all of our requests as concise and complete as we possibly can, ask only for specific information and offer to pay a reasonable rate for copies, postage and research time. It is our hope that this negative trend does not continue. As for the Address Book, it is a most complete resource and is another volume that should be utilized by every serious researcher. CORRECTION

In the last issue of The Southside Virginian, we gave a listing for publications by Bryn Fifliaid Publications (June Banks Evans) which were of particular interest to those doing research in Southside Virginia. We unfortunately made an error in stating that the 1860 Charlotte County Census was available. This should have stated "Charlotte County Census of 1850." We are sorry for any inconvenience this error may have created. We have also been notified by Mrs. Evans that her current address for ordering is 300 Lake Marina Dr., 16 BW, New Orleans, LA 70124-1679. Please make these corrections to your copy of Vol. X No. 3, p. 104.
Village View — Emporia, Virginia

Editor's Note: Village View is a Virginia Historic Landmark and has been entered in the National Register of Historic Homes. It is open to the public through tours by appointment. The Village View Foundation is incorporated and has non-profit status. To make a contribution or for further information, contact the Village View Foundation, Box 413 E., Southampton St., Emporia, VA 23847.

Village View today is a restored Federal-style "Mansion House" set on four acres of lawn in Emporia, Virginia. Though the plantation dates to the 1720s, the "Mansion House" is believed to have been built in the 1790s. An earlier eighteenth century residence with a 46' x 17' English-style basement stood at the same site and was destroyed by fire prior to the construction of the "Mansion House." The following is a review of the various owners of Village View, along with information of genealogical interest. The name "Village View" does not appear in the records until the nineteenth century, but for convenience it will be used for the plantation regardless of time period.

The first known patent to Village View land was for 190 acres to Maj. Robert Mumford of Prince George County. The patent apparently lapsed for on October 31, 1726, John Lynch acquired a patent for 200 acres of "new land" that overlapped the Mumford patent. The four acres that remain today as Village View were situated just west of the center of the Lynch patent. By 1733 Lynch had moved to Bertie Precinct, North Carolina. He wrote his will on April 31, 1753, naming his wife Elizabeth and two daughters Elizabeth and Nelly. The will was probated in Granville County, North Carolina, on March 7, 1758 (original, North Carolina Archives).

On June 27, 1735, John Lynch leased the 200 acre Village View tract to Rev. John Betty, an Oxford-educated Irishman and the first minister for St. Andrews Parish, Brunswick County, Virginia. This lease was written under the terms of a "Statute made in the Seven & twentieth Year of the Raign of King Henry the Eight for transfering uses into Possession," and the plantation soon belonged to Betty. The burned eighteenth-century house recently excavated at Village View may have been Betty's home. Rev. Betty does not appear to have married, but his brother William also settled in Brunswick County. Williams's descendants can be traced there at least into the nineteenth century. Rev. Betty was paid the usual £20 bounty given to ministers appointed to a definite cure by the Bishop of London; this payment was recorded on February 27, 1732/33. He was hired by St. Andrews Parish four months later on July 4, 1733.

Rev. Betty wrote his will on January 12, 1750/51 ordering that the plantation on which he lived be sold, and on December 30, 1751, his executor Nathaniel Edwards sold the 200 acre plantation to Michael Wall, Jr., who owned the 290 acre tract southwest of Village View. Michael Wall, Jr., married Rebecca Chapman, widow of John Chapman "of Rockford in St. Andrews Parish," who wrote his will December 21, 1740 naming wife Rebecca, daughter Mary Chapman, sister Mary Donaldson, and sons William and Benjamin. By 1755 Rebecca had married Michael Wall. By 1757, Michael Wall, Jr. was deceased as an inventory of his estate was ordered on November 22, 1757. Rebecca Wall was appointed guardian of the children on February 28, 1758. Rebecca Wall wrote her will May 3, 1777, naming sons Benjamin Wall, Michael Wall, and william Wall and daughter Elizabeth Sims. She named William Sims and Michael Wall executors. The will was witnessed by Benjamin Chapman, Lewis Jackson, John Hunt, Senior, and John Sims and was recorded July 28, 1777.

Michael and Rebecca Wall sold the now 290 acre Village View to Littleton Tazewell, Clerk of Brunswick Court, on December 13, 1755. When Littleton Tazewell died on April 26, 1757, the plantation passed to his oldest son Henry, who would later serve in the U.S. Senate from 1794 to 1798. Henry Tazewell's son Littleton served as Governor of Virginia from 1834 to 1836. The Tazewells did not live at Village View, but rather at their plantation in the northern part of the county.

At some point between 1757 and 1776, Henry Tazewell sold the 490 acre plantation to Meherrin Parish, which formed from St. Andrews Parish in 1754. He did not convey the property, however, before he and the parish vestry sold it to James Wall, Jr. on April 15, 1776. James Wall, Jr., was the son of Capt. Michael Wall, who patented the 760 acres east and south of the original Village View tract in 1728. Capt. Michael Wall wrote his will July 8, 1749, naming his son James Wall, his daughter Lucy Wall, and his executors “my friend Robert Jones Jun. my Kinsman Walter Campbell and Nicholas Edmunds.” 16 Evidence from other sources suggests that Capt. Michael Wall had a sister named Agnes and a brother known as James Wall the Elder who died in 1788. 17 By his will, Capt. Michael Wall devised the 760 acres adjacent to Village View to his son James Wall, Jr., who then patented 4,500 acres, including a repatent of those 760 acres, south and east of the Village View plantation. 18 When James Wall, Jr., purchased the 490 acre Village View from Tazewell and Meherrin Parish, Village View reached its largest size of 4,990 acres.

James Wall, Jr., wrote his will November 15, 1777, giving to his aunt Agness Wall the use of one room in his “old House,” and to his wife Mary the use of the tract of land “whereon I now live, bounded on the North by the Glebe Land.” Most of this land south of Village View was to go eventually to his son Michael; the Village View — or “Glebe” — tract was left to his yet-to-be-born son James M. Wall. Also named in the will was daughter Mary and cousin Peter Gray Wall, son of James the Elder and Sarah Wall. Mary Wall was appointed guardian of the children; if she should die, guardianship was to go to the Rev. W. Fanning and a cousin also named James Wall. Guardianship of the “unborn” James M. Wall, however, eventually fell to Douglass Wilkins. James Wall, Jr., named as his executors “my beloved Wife Mary Wall, and my Friends James Wall the Elder, Seymour Powell and my Brother in law James Mason.” 19

On July 27, 1797, Douglass Wilkins, “guardian of James M. Wall, orphan of James Wall, Jr.,” requested an appraisal of “the house he has built for James M. Wall.” 22 This is believed to be the “Mansion House” now restored as a museum. [Note that Greensville County formed from Brunswick County in 1781.]

James M. Wall died unmarried. He wrote his will February 4, 1805, leaving the original Village View tract to his brother Michael and $100 annually to his sister Mary Allen. He also left £100 each to the five “Children of my Mother Mary by Achilles Jeffries.” He named as executor his brother Michael; witnesses were Alex Madill, John Wall, and John Prichard. 23

Michael Wall wrote his will April 6, 1808, loaning the plantation to his wife Elizabeth until his four children came of age, at which time Elizabeth would retain 1/3 and the children would divide the remaining 2/3. He appointed William S. Jeffries guardian to the children and Nathaniel Rives and William S. Jeffries executors. The will was witnessed by Edward Lewis, John M. Jeffries, and Sarah Jeffries. 24

Late flourished near this ground;
Awhile they bright and lovely shown,

Exhaled, ascends to heaven.”

Notice to subscribers. Queries may request explicit information on individuals who should be identified by place name (county or town) and by date (year only). We will attempt to print the queries as received without editing, if possible, so please keep them as concise as possible. If you wish to exchange information on a specific surname or group of people with similar names, simply begin your query with “Exchange” and follow with the family names of interest. Queries are only accepted from active subscribers at the time the query is received. Due to the increase in numbers of queries received, please limit your queries to 50 words each (not counting your name and address), and only submit one for each issue published. Queries are printed in the order in which they are received and on a space available basis. Multiple queries from the same individual may appear in separate issues. Please PRINT or TYPE your queries to make sure that the information published is accurate, and names and addresses are correct, so that you can receive the answers you wish without delay.
