MY FATHER

AND

THE MEMORY OF

MY MOTHER
ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I wish to express my gratitude and hearty thanks to my friend Howard S. F. Randolph, compiler of this book, not only for the tremendous amount of work he has done, but also for the unfailing enthusiasm with which he greeted each new phase and overcame the many difficulties which arose.

Mr. Randolph and I are also deeply indebted to Mrs. P. H. Baskervill of Richmond, Va., for her gracious permission to quote freely (as we have done) from the book "Andrew Meade, of Ireland and Virginia," written by her late husband. The data thus obtained have been of in-caretable assistance in compiling this history.

I also acknowledge with sincere appreciation the cordial and interested co-operation of the following relatives:

Mrs. Edwin Hinks, Elk Ridge, Maryland;
Mr. Robert M. Ward, Winchester, Virginia;
Miss Edith W. Smith, Denver, Colorado;
Mrs. Montrose P. McArdle, Webster Grove, Missouri;
Mr. William Meade Fletcher, Sperryville, Virginia;

and last but not least to my father, Robert Emmett Funsten, for his interesting and valuable personal recollections.

Hortense Funsten Durand.

THE ANCESTORS AND DESCENDANTS OF COLONEL DAVID FUNSTEN AND HIS WIFE SUSAN EVERARD MEADE

FUNSTEN

The progenitor of the Funsten family in America was Oliver Funsten. He came from the northeastern part of Ireland, near Belfast, and as he was forty-four years old at his death in 1826, he must have been born about 1782. It is known that he arrived at Philadelphia and remained in that city for a short time before going to Virginia. No attempt has been made to discover his ancestry in Ireland. The best account of him is contained in the "History of the Lower Shenandoah Valley," by J. E. Norris (page 625), from information which was supplied by his daughter, Miss Emily Funsten, which says

"Oliver Funsten, a member of the Church of England, came to this country the latter part of the eighteenth century, when a young man, from the northeastern part of Ireland, and settled at White Post, then in Frederick County, but now in Clarke County, Virginia. He was a very prosperous merchant, and enjoyed pre-eminently the confidence of all who knew him for his integrity, sound judgment and the firm maintenance of his convictions. It was often said of him that his name was a synonym for integrity. He married Margaret, daughter of Andrew McKay . . . and died in 1826, leaving a widow and ten children."

This brief biography of Oliver Funsten can be supplemented with a few items. Thomas H. Gold, in his
THE EFFECTS AND DEVELOPMENT OF COMMUNITY-DIFFERENTIAL
AIDS IN THE 20TH CENTURY

INTRODUCTION

Our research has shown that an account of AIDS in terms of the social determinants of health is necessary. The purpose of this paper is to examine the role of community-differential AIDS in the 20th century. We will focus on the ways in which AIDS has affected different communities and the ways in which they have responded. We will also consider the implications of these findings for future research on AIDS.
“History of Clarke County, Virginia,” (page 49), states that the historic village of White Post, Virginia, became quite a center of trade “mainly through the efforts and enterprise of Mr. Oliver Funsten, whose storehouses—substantial buildings of stone and brick—were built on the several corners of the crossing of the roads.” This village grew around the cross roads at which Lord Fairfax erected the “White Post,” intended as a sign post directing travelers to take the southern road to his manor, “Greenway Court,” a short distance away; and the northwestern road to Winchester, about twelve miles distant. This post, weather-boarded and painted white, has been maintained ever since its erection about 1751. In recent years an arc light has been installed, and a bronze tablet has been placed upon one side which reads:

This Post was originally placed here by Lord Fairfax, to direct strangers to his home, Greenway Court, about one and a half miles from here, and to point the way to Winchester.

Tradition says that George Washington erected the first post. 1751–1921

The Meade Memorial Church at White Post, dedicated July 13, 1875, was built on the site of the residence of Oliver Funsten—which was burned before 1870—largely from the brick of that residence. The recorded deed conveying to him the lot upon which his residence was built is dated in 1800 and recites that he was then living at White Post. The family tradition is that Oliver Funsten was nineteen years old when he came to Virginia. No portrait of him is in existence, but a silhouette, in the possession of one of his descendants, was thought by his children to be an excellent profile likeness.

FIRST GENERATION

1. OLIVER¹ FUNSTEN, born in Ireland about 1780-1782; emigrated to America the latter part of the eighteenth century; settled at White Post, Frederick Co., Va., shortly prior to 1800; married, date unknown, Margaret McKay, daughter of Andrew McKay and Jane Ridgway (see McKay). Oliver Funsten died in September, 1826, aged about 44 years, at White Post, Va. His will is dated Sept. 18, 1826, and was admitted to probate on Oct. 2, 1826. His widow died in Winchester, Va., in 1843. Her will was probated in the County Court of Clarke Co. on Sept. 25, 1843. Children: 10 (Funsten), as given by Norris, but stated correctly in the order of their birth:—

2. i. Frances W.² Married James Withers, a farmer and merchant of Front Royal.

3. ii. Sarah Young.² Married James Gordon Bryce, a lawyer who represented the county of Frederick for several years in the house of delegates of Virginia. Their son, Oliver Bryce, volunteered with General Lopez, prior to the Civil War, in a military expedition to free Cuba from Spanish rule. The expedition was not successful, and Oliver Bryce, with twenty-five others, was captured and shot at sunrise in Havana.

4. iii. Maria.² Married James A. Bynum, a lawyer and representative in Congress from North Carolina for a number of years.

5. iv. Margaret.² Married first Major Richard Bennett, paymaster in the United States Army; married second Richard E. Byrd, a prominent lawyer of Winchester, Va. By his first wife, Anne (died 1842), daughter of Benjamin Harrison of "Brandon," Mr. Byrd was the father of Colonel William Byrd; the grandfather of Richard Evelyn Byrd; and the great-grandfather of Harry Flood Byrd, the present Governor of Virginia; of Lieutenant Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, who in the spring of 1926, was the first man to fly over the North Pole; and of Thomas Bolling Byrd, of Clarke Co., Va. Margaret (Funsten-Bennett) Byrd died April 21, 1874, Winchester, Va., and is interred at "Old Chapel," Clarke Co., where Mr. Byrd and his first wife are also interred.

6. v. Emily.² Never married. Died March, 1893. Her residence in Winchester, Va., which has been in the family for more than eighty years, is now the home of her nephew, Robert M. Ward.

7. vi. Robert Gray.² Died at the age of nineteen, unmarried.

8. vii. Elizabeth.² Died in infancy—date not known.

9. viii. Oliver Ridgway.² Married first, Mary Catherine Meade, daughter of David Meade (see Meade); married second, Mary Bowen, daughter of James Bowen of Albemarle. His residence in Clarke County was "The Highlands," situated about one mile west of White Post. He graduated from the well known Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. At one time he represented Clarke County in the State Senate. When the war began in 1861 he entered the Confederate army, serving as Colonel of the Eleventh Virginia Cavalry throughout the war. He returned, broken in health and fortune, and died July 14, 1871, at the age of 56 years. His second wife built and owned until her death, "Mirador," in Albemarle Co., which was subsequently purchased from her heirs by Mr. C. D. Langhorne, the father of the famous Langhorne sisters, one of whom is now Lady Astor. It belongs at the present time to one of his grandchildren, Mrs. Ronald Tree, of Chicago.

Children: 11 (Funsten):—

By his first wife, Mary Catherine Meade:—

i. Louisa Nelson, born 1833; married John Thomas Fletcher, and had three children: Mary Olivia Fletcher, born May 18, 1869, married George W. Kinsey; Elizabeth Hamilton Fletcher, born June 18, 1872, married Wade H. Massie; and John Nelson Fletcher, born March 8, 1880, unmarried.

ii. Oliver Ridgway, born 1842; married Lucy Lewis. No children.

iii. Mary Catherine, born Feb. 27, 1847; married Hamilton Smith Fletcher (brother of John Thomas Fletcher above), and had a son and a daughter, Louise Funsten Fletcher, who married first Edward M. Green, and second Marshall L. King.

By his second wife, Mary Bowen:—

vi. Ida Bowen, Unmarried.

ix. Margaret, married Rev. Thomas A. Semmes. Two sons and one daughter.

xi. Oliver Herbert, married Elizabeth Carter Minor. Two sons.

II. x. Julia Ann, married George W. Ward, a native of Culpepper County, Va. He was a lawyer and farmer; one-time presiding Justice of the Old County Court of Frederick; and for more than twenty years represented that County in either the lower or upper House of the Virginia Legislature. The family residence was at "Elmwood," near Winchester, Va. Julia Ann (Funsten) Ward, who was the youngest of the children of Oliver Funsten, died in January, 1884; her husband died in March, 1902. They had eight children, two of whom died in infancy; the others given in the order of the date of birth are (Ward):—

i. Margaret Funsten (Minna); never married; died in Winchester, Nov. 8, 1904.

ii. George William, married Elizabeth Arthur Preston of Abingdon, Va., and had two children. He was a lawyer and editor of prominence; one time Judge of County Court of Washington County. While at the Virginia Military Institute he was one of the famed Cadet Corps which distinguished itself at the battle of New Market on May 15th, 1864. A monument upon the Campus commemorates this event. He died at Abingdon, Va., Jan. 27, 1897.

iii. Dr. Julian, married Eleanor Knight of Cecil County, Md. He is a physician and Mayor of the city of Winchester, Va.

Emily Funsten (Lillie); never married. She was a missionary of the Episcopal Church, stationed at Wuchang, China. She died June 27, 1897, and is buried at Shanghai.
v. Robert Marion,³ married Emily Ridgway Funsten (No. 24 of this record), April 12, 1899. He is a prominent lawyer of Winchester, and was at one time a member of the Virginia Senate; and later President of the Board of Education (Handley School Foundation) of Winchester.

vi. Rev. David,³ married Cornelia Stephensen Ewing of Alexandria, Va.; was a clergyman of the Episcopal Church; died at Rockville, Md., in July, 1908.

SECOND GENERATION

10. DAVID² FUNSTEN, born Oct. 14, 1819; married by Rev. Wm. G. H. Jones at Christ Church, Millwood, Clarke Co., Va., on Nov. 21, 1844, to Susan Everard Meade, daughter of David Meade and his wife Louisa Washington Nelson (see Meade). The following interesting letter, now in the possession of Mrs. Edwin Hinks, casts a vivid light on an event in the Civil War. It was written by Susan Everard (Meade) Funsten to her brother William Fitzhugh Meade ("Buck") at "Benvenue."

"May 3rd

She was born May 16, 1824, and died April 9, 1872. David Funsten was graduated from Princeton in 1838; practiced law in Alexandria, Va.; was a member of the Virginia Assembly in 1844; Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel of the Eleventh Virginia Infantry, C. S. A., 1861-1863, until severely wounded; Representative from Virginia to C. S. Congress 1863-65. He died April 6, 1866, from the effects of wounds received in the battle of Seven Pines. He and his wife are interred at Ivy Hill Cemetery near Alexandria, Va. Children: 13 (Funsten):

* "Regarding the death of my brother, David Funsten, who was known in his young days and in fact up until the time of his death as 'Daisy.' The accident occurred in 1862, the second year of the Civil War. My father was then Colonel of the 11th Virginia Infantry and was in winter quarters on the battlefield of Bull Run. My brother and myself were visiting him and were assisting the soldiers in building a hut for him, when the building—probably for want of sufficient nails—collapsed, and he was caught between the upper log and the rafters. I at the time was standing inside of the building handing up shingles to him, and he was handing them to the soldiers on the roof, when suddenly the building fell in. I helped to take him down and carried him to my father's tent. That night he became delirious and lost his power of speech, viii. Oliver, born at Alexandria, Va., Nov. 10, 1857; died July 9, 1858.

tax. Rev. George Meade, born at Alexandria, Va., March 12, 1860; died, unmarried, Feb. 17, 1891, at Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Funsten had been rector of St. Philip's Church at Atlanta, for only two years, but in this time he had so endeared himself to his people that when he died the whole city was moved. His attractive personality, his tireless energy, and his devoutness had built up the church remarkably, and his untimely death was sincerely mourned. The funeral was held and as my mother was half the time in the Federal lines and the other half in the Confederate lines and not a doctor was in reach, my father, therefore, kept the wounded boy in his camp for three months, where he had good medical attention, but finally he was taken home and for the balance of the time was without medical attention, as the doctors were all in the army, but he had to be taken home as the army was breaking up their winter camp and had orders to move. One month later, on Easter morning, he passed away. The only utterance that he was known to have made during his illness was the day before his death when he was heard to say 'The Lord hath given and the Lord hath taken away.' This is the true account of his accident and death. He was a very handsome young fellow, and, of course, his death was a great affliction, especially to my father, as he was his oldest boy and his namesake."

SIR RICHARD KIDDER, the Bishop of Bath and Wells, was born in 1633 in Sussex, England. He served as parish clergymen in different places before he was appointed Bishop. In his first parish he had three children, and lost them all by death there. Afterwards other children were born, and two sons and one daughter died within three weeks. On the accession of William and Mary he was recommended to the bishopric of Bath and Wells, to take the place of good Bishop Ken, who refused to take the oath of allegiance, maintaining the claim of James II. At first he refused it, but was finally prevailed upon to accept, and was consecrated in the Bow Bells Church, Holborn, London, and assumed the work in 1691. Bishop Kidder and his wife were killed during the terrible storm of Nov. 26, 1703, by the falling of a stack of chimneys, which crushed in the roof of the room where they were sleeping. In this same storm the first Eddystone lighthouse, completed in 1699, was destroyed. There is a monument to Bishop Kidder in Wells Cathedral. The bishop was survived by two daughters, Ann, who died in 1728, aged 38, unmarried, and

Robert McKay — Margaret ——
Robert McKay — Patience Job
Andrew McKay — Jane Ridgway
Margaret McKay — Oliver Funsten
David Funsten — Susan Everard Meade

ROBERT McKay, the emigrant, from near Belfast in Northeast Ireland, is shown by historical archives to have been in Pennsylvania in 1726 with his wife Margaret and a family of children. Ten years before that date, in 1716, the Great Valley of Virginia was first discovered as the result of the dramatic excursion of Governor Spottswood and his Knights of the Golden Horseshoe. Local historians have been able to discover that the first organized effort to colonize the Lower Valley was made by Joist Hite, the so-called German Baron, who came in 1731 from the neighborhood of York, Pa., to the Valley, with sixteen families. With him came Robert McKay and his family; and the records show that he and Joist Hite were the earliest pioneers in the settlement and development of the now far-famed Valley of the Shenandoah. On October 31, 1731, letters patent were granted by the Colonial Governor and Council to Robert McKay and Joist Hite for 100,000 acres in the Shenandoah Valley between Winchester and Front Royal, on condition that they settle thereon 100 families in four years. The condition of the grant was subsequently performed; and this large body of land was parcelled and sold to many settlers. It has been well said: "In the association of McKay with Hite we see the reason for the commingling of the Germans and the Scotch-Irish in the Lower Valley."
Later 828 acres were deeded to Robert McKay individually. This tract was originally in Frederick County, but now is in Warren County, which was created in 1836. It lay upon Crooked Run, a stream less than ten miles in length, which has its source near the hamlet of Nineveh, originally called McKay's, and flows into the Shenandoah River near Riverton. The McKays were the first settlers in this particular neighborhood, which has ever since been identified with that family. It was upon a part of this property that David Funsten (No. 10 Funsten record) built, shortly after his marriage, his first home called "Erin." It is situated about four miles southwest of White Post on the old "road to McKay's," which has now become the modern State Highway from Winchester to Front Royal and thence over the Blue Ridge to Richmond. The original grant first above referred to, with subsequent minor grants, were involved in the celebrated law suit instituted by Joist Hite and Robert McKay against Lord Fairfax, Proprietor of the Northern Neck, which was pending for fifty years (1736-1786), and was finally decided in favor of the complainants long after the death of all the original parties to the litigation.

Although not certainly known, it seems very probable that a previous acquaintance existed between the Funsten and McKay families, representatives of which came to America from the same neighborhood in Ireland. It was doubtless more than a coincidence that the young emigrant, Oliver Funsten, who was soon to marry Margaret McKay, should upon his arrival in Philadelphia have gone immediately to the White Post and taken up his residence there in close proximity to the neighborhood which her ancestor, Robert McKay, had settled three generations before.

Robert McKay, the pioneer, died about August, 1752. His will is dated Oct. 7, 1746, and was probated on August 19, 1752. His children were:

ROBERT McKAY, Jr., born about 1705; married Patience Job, born 1710 in Chester County, Pa., daughter of Andrew Job and Elizabeth Vernon (see Job). It was probably through this marriage that the family became Quakers. He died before 1796. Three of his children married three of the children of John Ridgway and Hannah Brown (see Ridgway). His son Jacob married Rachel Ridgway; his daughter Margaret married Richard Ridgway; and his son

ANDREW McKay, born 12 mo. 29, 1736; married*

"Whereas Andrew McKay son of Robert McKay in the County of Frederick and Colony of Virginia and Jane Ridgeway, daughter of John Ridgeway of the County and Colony aforesaid have declared their intentions of taking each other in marriage before several monthly meetings of the people called Quakers at our monthly meeting of Hopewell, and having consent of parents and parties concern, their said proposal of marriage was allowed of by the said meeting. Now these are to certify all whom it may concern that for the full accomplishing their said intentions upon the 27th day of the 11th month in the year of our Lord, 1760 they, the said Andrew McKay and Jane Ridgeway, appeared in a public assembly of the said people met together at their public meeting house of Hopewell aforesaid, and the said Andrew McKay taking the said Jane Ridgeway by the hand did in a solemn manner openly declare that he took the said Jane Ridgeway to be his wife, promising with divine assistance to be unto her a loving and faithful husband until death should separate them or words to that effect. And then and there in said assembly said Jane Ridgeway did in like manner openly declare that she took the said Andrew McKay to be her husband, promising with divine assistance to be unto him a loving and faithful wife until death should separate them or words to that effect, and moreover the said Andrew McKay and Jane Ridgeway, she according to the custom of marriage assuming the surname of her husband as a further confirmation thereof, have unto these presents set their hands.
11 mo. 27, 1760, Jane Ridgway, daughter of John Ridgway and Hannah Brown (see Ridgway); died Oct. 12, 1804, at Crooked Run, near Nineveh, in Frederick Co., Va. His will was dated Oct. 30, 1802, and was probated Dec. 3, 1804. He left a large tract of real estate on Crooked Run to be divided among certain of his children. The list of their children, as given in the “Records of the Births and Deaths of the Hopewell Monthly Meeting” in Frederick Co., Va., have probably never before been published. They are:

i. Jacob, born 2 mo. 17, 1762; died 2 mo. 23, 1762.

ii. Patience, born 2 mo. 9, 1763; married Robert Whitacre.

“And we whose names are hereunder written and subscribed being present at the solemnizing of the said marriage in manner aforesaid have as witnesses thereunto subscribed our names the day and year above written.”

In the same Book of Records above referred to is the marriage certificate of Richard Ridgeway, “son of John Ridgeway and Hannah, dec'd,” and Margaret McKay, “daughter of Robert McKay and Patience McKay, dec'd,” dated 12 mo. 22, 1762. In the signature Ridgeway is spelt without an “e.”

It also gives the marriage certificate of Jacob McKay and Rachel Ridgeway, dated 8 mo., 15, 1765.

These prove that Andrew, Margaret and Jacob, children of Robert McKay, Jr. and his wife Patience (Job), married respectively Jane, Richard and Rachel, children of John Ridgeway and his wife Hannah (Brown).

ANDREW MEADE, the emigrant ancestor of the Virginia Meade family, came to America about 1685. He was from Ballintobber, Co. Cork, Ireland, and the late Mr. P. H. Baskervill traced his ancestry for nine generations in his book Andrew Meade of Ireland and Virginia. He is said to have gone first to London, and then to New York, where he married Mary Latham of Flushing, Long Island, N. Y., daughter of Daniel Latham, a Quaker. About five years later he removed to Nansemond Co., Va., engaged in trade with the Indians, and also in the lumber trade, and became a man of wealth. Andrew Meade was an Irish Catholic, and it has never been ascertained that he ever formally renounced the Catholic faith, though he was many years a representative of his county in the House of Burgesses, judge of the court, and senior colonel of the militia. He died in 1745, "leaving a character without a stain, having had the glorious epithet connected with his name, long before he died, of 'Honest'." He had a daughter Priscilla, who married Wilson Curle, of Hampton, and a son

DAVID MEADE, born 1710; educated at Harrow; married 1731 Susannah Everard, daughter of Sir Richard Everard and his wife Susannah Kidder (see Everard). Of him his son David writes:

"My father, David Meade, some time before his marriage, made an acquaintance with the family of Sir Richard Everard, who resided at Edenton, the then seat of government of North Carolina, where an attachment, perfectly romantic, was mutually formed between my father and the eldest daughter of Sir Richard.

"Having relinquished his government, Sir Richard Everard and his lady and two daughters became the guests of my grandfather Meade, he living convenient to Hampton Roads, where the ship lay in which they had taken their passage to England. From some cause or other, the ship was delayed longer than was expected, which delay proved favorable to my father's views, who had but little expectation of obtaining the parents' consent to his marriage with their daughter in Virginia, and he was preparing to accompany the family to England, when the earnest entreaties of his father, who was distressed at the thought of being so long and so widely separated from his only son, prevailed upon the parents of my mother to consent to an immediate marriage. They, with the most entire confidence in his honor and affection, put their daughter under the protection of her enraptured lover. No pair ever enjoyed more happiness in the hymeneal state than they did. They were both of them very young when they came together, and with very little experience of mankind, brought up under eyes of fond and virtuous parents.

"My father was of handsome person and fine stature. He lived a monotonous and tranquil life."

David Meade died in 1757, in his 47th year. He and his wife had eight children:

ii. Mary, who married Colonel George Walker, and moved to Kentucky.

iii. David, born July 29, 1744; died Oct., 1838; married May 12, 1768, Sarah Waters. David Meade was the author of The Chaumiere Papers, published long after his death, at Chicago, in 1883. It is from these papers that we learn much regarding the Meade family. The book is scarce, but most of it has been (pp. 37, 73) republished in the William and Mary College Quarterly, Vol. XIII. Any member of the family should read this fascinating book.* He tells of his edu-

* The book abounds in quotable parts, of which only a taste can be given here. "The chief source of enjoyment he derived from the society of his friends up James River, was principally that of Curles, the seat of Mr. Richard Randolph, who married the eldest of his three sisters. His friends Ryland and John Randolph were inmates there, and several very agreeable females were the members of the household; but although he had a heart not destitute of susceptibility of the tender passion which nature and sentiment dispose the sexes to feel for each other, and the neighborhood of Curles, including the seat, abounded with as much beauty, fashion and rank as any part of Virginia (if not cation in England, his return in 1761, the four following years, "rather monotonous," then from July 26th to Oct. 22d, 1765, he takes a trip with Ryland and John Randolph [brothers of his sister Anne's husband. John was the father of John Randolph of "Roanoke"], visiting Philadelphia, New York, Albany, Lake George, Lake Champlain, Montreal, and Quebec, and back the same way. After the Revolution he moved, in 1796, to Kentucky, where he founded "Chaumiere des Prairies," "celebrated in the early history of Kentucky as the finest, handsomest, most elegant house and private residence in the West."

more), there was wanting something in them individually that was essential to excite such sentiments in him as to secure his exclusive affections" (page 27).

He evidently preferred Colonel William Byrd to George Washington. "Col. Byrd was in some respects the superior of General Washington, and in none his inferior." (page 38). "... the grateful multitude in its enthusiastic admiration and almost adoration of General Washington, who became most unaccountably popular, with little of that affability, address, or art which is generally considered essential to make one a popular hero. He was brave and prudent and active of body, but without one great essential in an accomplished commander, namely, decision; [italicized in the original] nor was he recommended by much experience. He was an honest statesman, though as a chief magistrate, deficient in personal suavity and address. He had sound judgment, and was scarcely rivaled by any one in his conduct of private affairs. Without ambition, and probably actuated by a sincere desire to promote the public weal, his powers of mind were no doubt ever at their utmost stretch to attain his end. He seems to have been ordained by Heaven to achieve great things in arms without great military talents, without great native genius, without classical learning, and with but little knowledge of the sciences"! connection with Mary Thornton”; married second, Mary Eggleston, widow of Benjamin Ward.

vi. Andrew, married Susanna, daughter of Buckner Stith, of Brownswick. Built “Octagon Hall,” which was destroyed by fire in 1873.

vii. John, died at seventeen years of age, about 1771–2.

viii. Daughter. David Meade in note above mentions his “three sisters.”

LIEUT. COL. RICHARD KIDDER MEADE, born July 14, 1746; educated at Mr. James Graham’s school at Dalfton, in Hackney parish, England; married first about 1765 a daughter of Col. Richard Randolph and his wife Jane Bolling (a descendant of Pocahontas) of “Curles.” Bishop Meade states that his father’s first wife was Jane Randolph, while David Meade in “The Chaumiere Papers” states twice that his brother’s first wife was Elizabeth Randolph, which is probably correct.* Other authorities are about evenly divided, until we come to Browning’s Americans of Royal Descent, which makes the absurd claim that Richard Kidder Meade married his own niece, daughter of Anne Meade his sister by her husband Richard Randolph,

* It is correct. In a letter written June 24, 1885, by R. K. Meade, son of Bishop Meade, to Capt. David Meade of “Benvenue,” now in the possession of Mrs. Edwin Hinks, he says: “Col. Meade’s 1st wife cannot be in the ‘Lucky Hit’ graveyard, unless her remains were brought there after the war…. She died in lower Va. before the war, and was buried there; furthermore her name was Elizabeth (the italics are the writer’s), not Jane, Randolph—in proof of which I send the following extract from The Virginia Gazette of 1874, ‘Died Jan. 20, 1874 Mrs. Elizabeth Meade, wife of R. Kidder Meade of Prince George.’ How my father came to say Jane in Old Churches etc. I cannot conceive. The above extract—conclusive in itself—is sustained by all the authorities, and especially by our grandfather’s brother, David Meade of Kentucky, who in his autobiography mentions his first marriage and the death of his first wife, and calls her Elisabeth.” It is unnecessary to add that the date 1874 above is of course incorrect. Mr. Meade at the end of his letter says, “I am too old and nervous to escape blunders.” The date should be 1774.
named Elizabeth Jane Randolph (page 788). Elizabeth had several children, all of whom died before her death on Jan. 20, 1774.

Richard Kidder Meade married second, Dec. 10, 1780, Mrs. Mary (Grymes) Randolph, widow of William Randolph of "Chatsworth," and daughter of Benjamin Grymes and Elizabeth Landon Fitzhugh (see Grymes). She was born Nov. 9, 1753, and died June 16, 1813. It is from these two Randolph marriages that the name Randolph descends to later generations, though there is no Randolph blood in the family.

David Meade in the "Chaumiere Papers" says of his brother:—

"R. K. Meade, after the death of his wife, and having no children, being actuated by the most virtuous motives that ever actuated the mind of man, engaged first as a volunteer in the service of his country and raised a company, or rather was placed at the head of a company by its unanimous vote. As soon as the convention of Virginia ordered the raising of two regiments, he was appointed captain in the Second Regiment under Colonel Woodford, and in a very short time raised his company in the winter of 1776-7. The Second Regiment was ordered to join the army, then on the Delaware, in Jersey, under the command of the commander-in-chief. Before it left Virginia, he received his appointment of aide-de-camp to General Washington, and thereon without delay he repaired to headquarters. In his station of aide he performed all the active duties of it better, perhaps, than any other of the General's family. He was a handsome man, of athletic form and constitution—from his early years was fond of manly and hardy sports; was a good horseman, and was the best mounted aide-de-camp in the army. At the battle of Monmouth he escaped being made prisoner by the fleetness of the horse he rode, as he related it himself. Being sent with orders to Major General Lee, when either going or returning, he fell in with a general officer and his suite, and was so near to them as to be in gunshot. He was sensible of the danger he was in, but confiding in the powers of his horse, he soon found himself out of their reach; but having a swamp to cross, his horse got so immersed in it as not to be able to extricate himself from captivity; he found himself under the necessity of dismounting, and abandoning his horse, which, relieved from so great a load, with great exertion plunged out and fortunately recovered, was instantly remounted. Audbury, a British officer . . . narrated the above adventure to this effect: That the General and suite which R. K. Meade was so near being taken by, was no less a person than Sir Harry Clinton, the British commander-in-chief and his suite; that an officer in it desired the General to permit him to shoot at the American, which, to Sir Harry's immortal credit, was generously, nobly and gloriously refused. The events of the Revolutionary War of North America are well recorded by different historians. From these histories, it does not appear that the aide-de-camp, Captain Meade, was in any way distinguished from his associate aides. It will not be to his discredit to have it remembered that he was particularly intimate with and had a friendship for General Alexander Hamilton. . . .

"But, returning to R. K. Meade, a subject much more interesting to the writer. . . . In this state of things at the American camp, the unfortunate Andre then had his trial and condemnation as a spy, and R. K. Meade was sent with a flag and letter directed to Sir Henry Clinton, commander-in-chief of the British army in New York. A blunt, ingenuous, honest-hearted lieutenant of the navy was sent to receive the flag and letter. The lieutenant, upon receiving the letter and looking at the superscription, pronounced without hesitation or reflection that it was not directed properly, for General Ralston, not Clinton, commanded in New York, by which he disclosed a secret which General Washington considered of the utmost importance to him. General Washington moved with the army, or a considerable detachment, first up the North River, immediately after the return of this flag with the intelligence. But, returning to the conference of the British lieutenant of the navy and R. K. Meade. The honest lieutenant, with much appearance of feeling, several times repeated his inquiries of R. K. Meade, whether he thought they would hang Major Andre. ‘And will they?’ says he, repeating the question for the second or third time, ‘hang that d—d fine fellow Andre?’ and being reluctantly answered in the affirmative, after a pause and a sigh: ‘Well, then,’ says he, ‘if you do hang Andre, the world will know what a d—d blockhead Sir Harry Clinton is.'

"R. K. Meade left the army before the peace of Paris in 1783, and settled permanently in Frederick County, State of Virginia, where he spent an agricultural and very retired life, beloved by all who were acquainted with him, esteemed and respected by his neighbors and every one that had ever heard of his worth." (Pages 39-40, 44-46.)

Bishop Meade in Old Churches and Families of Virginia says of his father:—

"I shall be excused for adding in this place some other particulars concerning my father. He married, at the age of nineteen, Miss Jane (?) Randolph, of Curls, sister of Richard Randolph, who married his sister, and aunt of John Randolph, of Roanoke, who always called him Uncle Kidder. His wife was some years older than himself, which called from the elder Judge Tucker some humorous poetry, entitled Happy Dick, in which he condoles with the younger ladies on James River upon their disappointment. This wife lived but a few years, having several children during the time, and leaving none behind. During his first marriage he lived at Coggin's Point, in Prince George, the present possession and residence of Edmund Ruffin, and which he sold during the war, though, by means of the depreciation of money, he realized but little from it. In Prince George he was a vestryman, but resigned because the vestry would not discharge an unworthy clergyman. He entered early into the Revolutionary war, being one of twenty-four persons . . . who, in June, 1775, seized upon the arms and ammunition in Dunmore's house, in Williamsburgh, carrying the powder to the magazine, and dividing the arms among themselves for safekeeping and the service of the country. In December of that year he was found at the battle of Great Bridge, near Norfolk—the first battle fought in Virginia. He had raised a company, and was then serving as captain under General Woodford. He was soon taken into the family of General Washington as his aide, and was most active in reconnoitring, being a good rider and having a fine animal—the black mare so well known to the British as well as American armies. He used to say that Hamilton did all the headwork for the General, and he the riding, reconnoitring, and carrying orders on the field. He was with Washington in all the great battles of the Revolution. To him was committed the superintendence of the execution of Major Andre, of which he always spoke with much feeling, saying that he could not forbear tears at seeing the execution of so uncommon and interesting a man, though he entirely approved the order. At the close of the war he married the widow of Mr. William Randolph, of Chattsworth, near Richmond, the brother of Governor Beverly Randolph, of Cumberland, and Colonel Robert Randolph, of Fauquier. She is mentioned in Campbell's History as among the female contributors to the expenses of the war in a time of great need. Her contribution was eight hundred dollars. Perhaps this circumstance may have first attracted my father's attention to her. When Washington was taking leave of some of his aids, a circumstance occurred which showed his estimate of their different characters. To Hamilton he said, 'You must go to the bar, which you can reach in six months;' to Laurens, something as appropriate; to Colonel Meade, whom he then called by his familiar name, 'Friend Dick, you must go to a plantation in Virginia; you will make a good farmer and an honest foreman of the grand jury of the county where you live.' And so it proved; for he became a most attentive, successful, and, at first, hard-working farmer, and was, while health permitted, always the foreman of the grand jury of the old District Court of Frederick County.” (Page 294.)

Bishop Meade concludes the references to his father by a poem, written after his death by Mrs. Mary Page, of "Page Brook," Frederick County, Va.:—

Though wars have ceased, the hero claims renown;
With choicest myrtle let his tomb be crown'd;
And ye, sweet nine, your plaintive tribute pay,
And o'er his virtues shed a milder ray.
In scenes domestic man is truly known;
In scenes domestic Meade forever shone.
His soul, unconscious of one narrow thought, of self regardless, did the thing he ought.
Where'er his form benignant bent its way,
Grim care soon vanish'd and each heart was gay.
At mercy's call he ever foremost press'd;
For meek-eyed pity sway'd his manly breast.
Hasten, fair nymphs of Frederick's peaceful plains;
Attend, fond youths, to breathe your mournful strains;
Votaries of Hymen, follow to deplore
That Meade, your pride and father, is no more.
But why, blest shade, should friends lament thy doom?
Joys celestial hover o'er thy tomb;
Thy Mary, purer than the snowdrop white,
Shall guide thine offspring to the realms of light.

The oaths of allegiance taken by the various members of the official family of George Washington have just been discovered at Washington. Here follows the oath taken by Richard Kidder Meade:

"I Richard K. Meade Lieutenant Colonel, and Aide de Camp to His Excellency The Commander in Chief do acknowledge the UNITED STATES of AMERICA, to be Free, Independent and Sovereign States, and declare that the people thereof owe no allegiance or obedience to George the Third, King of Great-Britain; and I renounce, refuse and abjure any allegiance or obedience to him; and I do Swear that I will to the utmost of my power, support, maintain and defend the said United States, against the said King George the Third, his heirs and successors and his or their abettors, assistants and adherents, and will serve the said United States in the office of Aide De Camp which I now hold, with fidelity, according to the best of my skill and understanding.

(Signed)  RICHARD K. MEADE.

Sworn before me, Camp Valley Forge May 12 1778
Stirling, Major Genl."

Lieut. Col. Richard Kidder Meade died at his residence "Lucky Hit" in Frederick (now Clarke), County, Va., Feb. 9, 1805. He is buried in the cemetery of the Meade Memorial Church at White Post. On his tombstone, after his name and dates, appear only the words "vir probus." The master of a grammar school in England used to tell him that though he would not be a learned scholar he would be what was far better "vir probus." His will is dated Nov. 4, 1797; and was probated July 1, 1805. He had eight children by his second wife:—

i. Ann Randolph, born Dec. 3, 1781, at Chatham, near Fredericksburg, Va., married March 23, 1799, Matthew Page of "Annefield"; died March 28, 1838; interred at "Old Chapel." She might have died wealthy, but spent all her substance on charity, always considering her servants paramount. After her husband's death on Oct. 5, 1826, she began preparations for liberating her slaves and sending them to Liberia, which she did, in 1832, providing them with every necessary supply for a year. She was very religious, and would not accept a handsome carriage lined with red leather as a gift from her husband: "I will send it over to Sister Maria (Mrs. John Page of 'Page Brook'). She will use it."

iii. William Fitzhugh, born March 16, 1786; died Sept., 1786. Probably buried at "Lucky Hit."

iv. Susannah Everard, born March 9, 1788; died Oct. 3, 1823.

v. William, born Nov. 11, 1789. This is Bishop Meade of Virginia, author of Old Churches and Families of Virginia, that inexhaustible mine of information regarding old Virginia families. He married first Jan. 31, 1810, Mary Nelson, born, 1792, daughter of Philip Nelson and Sarah Burwell, of "Long Branch." She died July 3, 1817, and is interred at "Old Chapel," Clarke Co., Va. He married second his first wife's cousin, Tomasia Nelson, daughter of Thomas Nelson, on Dec. 2, 1820. He died March 14, 1862. His home was "Mountain View" (see Appendix B).

vi. David, 4 born March 11, 1793. See below.

vii. Mary, 4 born Dec. 25, 1794. In the History of Clarke Co., Va., it says that the Tavern at White Post "is located on the Media lot, formerly owned and occupied by a very saintly lady, Miss Mary Meade, sister of Bishop Meade of Virginia." She never married. "Aunt Mary Meade died March 21, 1879, was 85 yrs old on Xmas day last."

DAVID 4 MEADE, born March 11, 1793; educated at Princeton, class of 1812; married Nov. 17, 1814, Louisa Washington Nelson, born Aug. 20, 1796, daughter of Dr. John Nelson and his wife Catherine Washington (see Nelson). He died Dec. 20, 1837, and she died Feb. 6, 1858, at "Benvenue," in Clarke Co. They had eleven children:—

i. Mary Catherine, 5 born June 19, 1816; married Col. Oliver Ridgway Funsten (No. 9, Funsten record); died Feb. 28, 1847.

ii. Lucinda N., 5 born May 17, 1818; died Dec. 27, 1818.

iii. Richard Kidder, 5 born Nov. 7, 1819; married Jane B. Grymes; died March 4, Bishop William Meade, 1789-1862

Bishop of Virginia. Author of "Old Churches and Families of Virginia" 1862. They had five children: David, Edgar Snowden, Custis Grymes, George Carter, and Jane Brokenborough.

iv. John Nelson, born Oct. 1, 1821; married Elizabeth Holmes Mackey; died at "Valley View," Jan. 6, 1888. They were the parents, with other children, of Catherine Meade, born Feb. 2, 1850; married Jan. 8, 1870, James William Fletcher, born April 29, 1827, son of William Fletcher and Catherine Starke, and brother of John Thomas Fletcher and Hamilton Smith Fletcher, who married two of the daughters of Col. Oliver Ridgway Funsten (No. 9, Funsten record). He died Jan. 25, 1900, and she died May 7, 1921. They had two sons, William Meade Fletcher, born Oct. 31, 1870, and James Hamilton Fletcher, born March 21, 1872.

v. Susan Everard, born May 16, 1824. See below.

was at one time Judge of Corporation Court of Alexandria, Va. By his second wife he had six children.

ix. Captain David, of "Benvenue," born Jan. 31, 1833; married Nannie Snowden; no children. He was a captain in the Confederate Army. Died in April, 1906. Known in the family as "Uncle Pidgie."

x. Philip Thomas, born Feb. 11, 1835; died March 2, 1835.

SUSAN EVERARD MEADE, born May 16, 1824; married Nov. 21, 1844, at Christ Church, Millwood, Clarke Co., Va., David Funsten (No. 10, Funsten record).

DR. ARTHUR NELSON was of "Point of Rocks Plantation," Frederick Co., Maryland. Of his ancestry the only trace is a letter written by Fred J. Nelson, a grandson of Gen. Roger Nelson, to David Meade at White Post, Va., dated Aug. 5, 1894, which states that Dr. Arthur Nelson was a son of John Nelson, who was a son of Arthur Nelson, who came from England before 1745, but gives no further information. Dr. Arthur Nelson mentions his children Sarah, Jane, John and Roger in his will. His son Roger Nelson became a Brigadier General in the Revolution, and his portrait and an article about him appears in the "American Monthly Magazine" (D. A. R.) Vol. III, page 397. His other son

DR. JOHN NELSON of Berryville, Va., surgeon of the Sixth Maryland Regiment in the Revolution, married Nov. 3, 1789, in Frederick Co., Va., Catherine Washington, daughter of Warner Washington and Hannah Fairfax (see Washington). He died in May, 1806, at Frankfort, Va. His military record is given as follows:—Sergeant of Gist's Continental Regiment, 1777; Sergeant Major, 1778; Second Lieutenant, 1779; retired Jan. 1, 1781. Mrs. Nelson married second about 1813, John Milton. "Catherine Milton (mother of our beloved mother) departed this life the 6th

RICHARD RIDGWAY, of Berkshire, England, arrived Sept. 12, 1679, at the Delaware River on the Jacob and Mary, with his wife Elizabeth Chamberlayne, and a two year old son Thomas, and settled at Crewcorn, Bucks Co., Pa. Here his wife died March 31, 1692. He married second, date unknown, Abigail Stockton, daughter of Richard and Abigail Stockton, who settled at Flushing, Long Island, before Nov. 8, 1656, and later moved to Springfield Township, Burlington Co., N. J. They had eight children, of whom the first, Richard, was the grandfather of Richard Stockton "the Signer"; and the fourth was Abigail who married Richard Ridgway. The Ridgways were Quakers, and Richard is mentioned in the old records as a tailor. His will is dated Sept. 21, 1722, and was probated April 5, 1723. The will of Abigail, his widow, was dated March 8, 1726, and was probated Dec. 19, 1726. Richard Ridgway had seven children by each wife:

By first wife, Elizabeth Chamberlayne:

1. Thomas, born 5 mo. (July) 25, 1677, at Wallingford, Berkshire, England; emigrated with his parents in 1679; married first, in 1699, Ann, daughter of

ii. Richard, Jr., born 6 mo. (Aug.) 27, 1680, in Bucks Co., Pa.; married first 8 mo. 9, 1702 at Jerusalem, Queens Co., L. I., Mary, daughter of Hope and Mary Willits, by whom he had six children; married second Nov. 11, 1714, Mrs. Mary (Stockton) Crispin, sister of his father's second wife, and widow of Thomas Shinn and Silas Crispin. No children by this marriage. He died in 1719 at Springfield, Burlington Co., N. J.

By his second wife, Abigail Stockton:

x. John. See below.

xiii. Sarah. Mentioned as lame in her mother’s will. Died unmarried.

JOHN RIDGWAY, date of birth unknown; married May 5, 1727, Hannah, daughter of Richard and Elizabeth Brown. John and Hannah removed to Hopewell, Frederick Co., Virginia (date not given), where they lived for some time. John returned to New Jersey with a certificate from Hopewell (Va.) Meeting, dated 6 mo. 7, 1749, in which it was stated that he was a widower. Hannah, therefore, probably died in Virginia. They had four children, and possibly more:

i. Jane. See below.

ii. Richard. Married 12 mo. 22, 1762, at Crooked Run Meeting House, Frederick Co., Va., Margaret McKay, of Crooked Run, Va., a sister of Andrew McKay.

iii. Rachel. Married 8 mo. 15, 1765, at Hopewell, Va., Jacob McKay, of Crooked Run, Va.; a brother of Andrew McKay.

iv. Mary. Returned to New Jersey in 1749 with her father.

JANE RIDGWAY, date of birth unknown; married 11 mo. 27, 1760 at Hopewell, Va., Andrew McKay (see McKay). After his death in 1804 she moved to a Quaker settlement near Waynesville, Ohio, where on Oct. 15, 1806, she married second a preacher, Joseph Cloud, of the Society of Friends. She died soon after, in 1806, and was buried at Waynesville, Ohio.

JOHN WASHINGTON, the emigrant ancestor of the Washington family in America, was born in England about 1633–4, the son of Rev. Lawrence Washington and Amphillis Twigden, and emigrated to Virginia, where he died in Jan., 1677. His ancestry in England has been traced for eight generations or more. In 1660 he married as his second wife Anna Pope, daughter of Nathaniel Pope, and had three children, Lawrence, John and Anne.

LAWRENCE WASHINGTON, baptized Sept. 21, 1661, at Bridges Creek, Va.; married in 1690 Mildred Warner, daughter of Augustine Warner and Mildred Reade (see Warner). He died in March, 1697–8, and his widow married second George Gale, and died in England in 1700. They had three children, John, Augustine, and Mildred. Augustine, by his second wife, Mary Ball, was the father of George Washington.

Mrs. Herbert Durand (No. 37, Funsten record) is the fortunate possessor of a page, here reproduced, evidently taken from an old family Bible, that records the births of the children of this couple, and of their son Warner, much more fully than any record so far printed.

i. Elizabeth, born June 21, 1717; died unmarried, Feb. 3, 1736.

ii. John, born July 15, 1718.

iii. Mildred, born Jan. 8, 1720; twice married; no children.

WARNER WASHINGTON, of "Fairfield," own cousin to George Washington, was born Sept. 22, 1722; died June 23, 1790; married first, Dec. 1, 1747, Elizabeth Macon, daughter of Col. William Macon. They had four children.

i. & ii. Twins, born and died Aug. 1, 1748.

iii. John, born Aug. 5, 1749; died Nov., 1758.

iv. Warner, born April 5, 1751; married first Mary Whiting; married second Sarah Rootes.

Elizabeth (Macon) Washington died April 28, 1763, aged 34, and Warner Washington married second, May 10, 1764, by the Rev. Mr. Green, Hannah Fairfax, daughter of William Fairfax and Deborah Clarke (see Fairfax). She died May 29, 1804, aged 62 years. By this marriage there were eight children, and the family record above referred to gives the dates of their birth, and of the death of Frances:

v. Mildred, born March 22, 1766; married Albion (Alban) Throckmorton.

vi. Hannah, born April 20, 1767; married Peter Beverley Whiting.

ix. Elizabeth, born Sept. 21, 1773; married Dr. George Booth.

x. Louisa, born Nov. 9, 1775; married Feb., 1798, Thomas, 9th Lord Fairfax, and died April 28, 1798, three months after marriage. Thomas, de jure Lord Fairfax of Cameron, was a son of Bryan, and a grandson of William Fairfax and Deborah Clarke (see Fairfax).
xi. Fairfax, born June 28, 1778; died Feb. 5, 1861; married Sarah Armistead.

xii. Whiting, born Sept., 1780; married Rebecca Smith.

George Washington wrote to George William Fairfax, March 11, 1778, "Your sister Washington goes on teeming, but cannot produce a boy."

It will be noted that the dates in this list correct those published in Colonial Families of America, Vol. II, p. 278.

CATHARINE WASHINGTON, born April 1, 1769, at "Belvoir," Va.; stated by her great-granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Funsten Reed (No. 12, Funsten record), to have been baptised at "Mount Vernon," with General Washington acting as Godfather; married first Nov. 3, 1789, in Frederick Co., Va., Dr. John Nelson; married second, about 1813, John Milton. Bishop Meade says of her and her sister that they "were long and well known to me as among the best of women." She died July 6, 1845, at "Roseville," Va., and is interred at "Old Chapel."

MEADE HOMES—“Lucky Hit,” “Mountain View,” and “Benvenue.”

By Robert M. Ward

Situated between the White Post and the Blue Ridge Mountain there are three adjacent farms, known as “Lucky Hit,” “Mountain View,” and “Benvenue,” which have been peculiarly identified with Colonel Richard Kidder Meade and his sons, William Meade and David Meade and their descendants, and deserve special mention in this sketch.

In his Memoir of Bishop William Meade, published in 1867, Bishop John Johns, of the Diocese of Virginia says:

“At the commencement of the conflict between the Colonies and Great Britain Richard Kidder Meade lived at Coggins’ Point in Prince George County, Va., on the James River. In that eventful struggle he felt the deepest interest and promptly participated in it in person. . . . He at once sold his estate on the James River, distributed the greater portion of the proceeds among his relations—reserving only $3,000.00 for himself which he placed in the hands of a friend to be invested for him as he might think best. Having disencumbered himself he offered his services to his country. . . . The friend to whom Col. Meade had left the portion of the proceeds of the sale of his estate which he had reserved for his own use purchased with it one thousand acres of land in that part of the Valley of Virginia known as Frederick County, and since its sub-division as Clarke. It was then a wild region, a kind of backwoods to the first settlements on tide water, and as the price indicates not in much demand, but as it became cleared and was brought under cultivation its superior agricultural properties were soon developed and it rose very much in value. The investment was regarded as eminently advantageous which is quaintly expressed by the name given to the tract, "Lucky Hit." After the war Col. Meade went to reside on this estate and labored diligently as a pioneer in its improvement. With his own hands he assisted in till ing the ground and in the erection of the buildings necessary for the accommodation of a family and for the purposes of the farm. . . . Col. Meade shrank from no labor which the proper culture of the soil or the real comfort of the dwelling demanded."

During his life Col. Meade built a large brick residence with outbuildings, here illustrated, situated in an oak grove and commanding an extended view of the Blue Ridge. It is about one mile east of White Post. He died Feb. 9, 1805, leaving a will which was probated in the County Court of Frederick on July 1, 1805, in which he left his whole estate for life to his widow, who survived him, dying on July 16, 1813, with the right to dispose of the same among her children as she might deem best. During her life she gave to her son, William Meade, the tract upon which he built "Mountain View," and to her son David Meade the tract upon which he built "Benvenue."

Upon the tract given him William Meade, shortly after his marriage on Jan. 31, 1810, built a house, selecting a site which afforded an extensive prospect of the Blue Ridge and which, no doubt, suggested its name, "Mountain View."

In a sketch prepared by Bishop Meade himself he says:

"This step (marriage) compelled me at once and for many years to labor with my own hands for a support. My mother gave me a small farm, out of order, much injured by the tenant, and without a house on it. My wife had nothing. I began at once to build a small house. Myself and one or two hands burnt the lime-kiln which was used in building. I was in attendance almost without intermission night and day from Monday morning to Saturday night. I assisted to tend the workmen who built the house. On the farm I helped to plough the first field that was cultivated, and as I did for many years scattered the seed with my own hands. I did all this because I was resolved never to incur debt—a rule to which I have strictly adhered ever since, and which in the good Providence of God has been the means of greatly increasing my property and enabling me to divide a sufficient portion to my sons. Had I at any early period been too proud or too indolent to work or had I not been a rigid economist and even subjected myself to ridicule for what seemed a needless singularity to some, I should have been forced to sell at a very low price my portion of my father's military land which has so increased in value as to enable me to give to each of my sons as much to begin life with as I desire them to have."

Writing about "Mountain View," as it was at a much later date, Bishop Johns says:

"The residence of Bishop Meade was in Clarke County . . . at the western base of the Blue Ridge, a county of remarkable fertility and beauty, and endeared to him by the associations of his youth and as the happy home where his children and his children's children had grown up around him. The undulating ground about the house covered with its rich turf he had adorned with every variety of the fir and cedar, interspersed with the most beautiful shade trees which the nurseries could furnish. The adjacent garden abounded in choice grapes and other fruits of which the Bishop was very fond, and which he was gratified to gather with his own hand for the refreshment of his visitors as he conducted them about the grounds. No one could be his companion in these walks without perceiving his strong attachment to Mountain View."

Upon the tract of land given him by his mother, David Meade, shortly after his marriage in 1814, built "Benvenue." It is a handsome brick residence situated a short distance south of "Lucky Hit." "Benvenue" was the home of David Meade until he died in 1837. It was the birthplace of his daughter, Susan Everard Meade, and her home until her marriage in 1844 with David Funsten. It descended to his son and namesake, Captain David Meade, who resided at "Benvenue," at the time of his death in 1906.
