Extract from The Morning Post, August 21, 1873.

A West-End Private Hotel.—Few persons but those who have availed themselves of the comfort and convenience of a Private Hotel, conducted on a liberal scale, can appreciate the advantages of such a temporary home.

This class of Hotel is more frequently to be met with in London than in any Continental or American city, and there are certain localities in London which favour their popularity with the upper classes of society. For example, in Dover Street, Piccadilly, there is one of long-established reputation, known by the name of Cowan’s Hotel, but now possessed by Mr. Denyer.

It would seem as if it had been built for this especial purpose, as a long passage connects under the same roof one house with an entrance in Albemarle Street, and another with an exit or entrance in Dover Street. Each house contains suites of fine large and lofty rooms, beautifully furnished, and replete with all the conveniences of a private dwelling.

The general supervision of the establishment is under the immediate care of Mrs. Denyer (formerly Miss Cowan), and whether a suite of rooms is occupied by a family or an individual visitor, there is the same regard to the comforts and requirements of each.

The ménage is at the option and according to individual orders, and is of course of the very best character that the London markets can supply.

Cowan’s
26, Dover Street,
and,
29, Albemarle Street.
London, W.

Wines.

For wines there is, from the fact of Mr. Denyer being a wine merchant with very large connections among the nobility, an inimitable choice of the best brands and from the first shippers. The wine cellars are, however, in a very distinct locality, being situated in Regent Street, and occupying a subterraneous area extending in breadth from the west to the east, or opposite side of this spacious street.

Sparkling and still wines of every class which Germany and the champagne districts can furnish, the red wines of Portugal, and the white wines of Spain are not only to be found in these cellars in every variety, but Messrs. Denyer & Co. have a special reputation of possessing the largest stock of the choice and delicate sherries of Sanlucar which can perhaps be found in London.

These last-named wines are a speciality in themselves, because it is well known that Sanlucar is the native soil of Amontillado, Manzanilla, and all that class of dry sherries which are so highly recommended for their pure, natural, and nutritious properties.

They Are Also Importers Of The New Sparkling Wine, Rhinegau Champagne.

NOTE.—Suites of Rooms specially adapted for Wedding Breakfasts. Estimates given for large or small parties, inclusive of Wines if required.

Special advantages are offered in respect to Wines, which can be purchased at the Cellars, 26, Regent Street, at Merchants’ Prices, paying the Hotel a small charge for Corkage.
This large Family Hotel, situated between Bond Street and Regent Street, near Piccadilly (as the Plan above shows), is newly established, and furnished in the Continental style with every possible comfort and modern improvement.

Italy. Armed Strength of Italy, translated from the German for the Intelligence Branch of the Quarter-master-General’s Department (Horse Guards, War Office). By Lieut. W. A. H. Hare, Royal Engineers. Royal 8vo., sewed. Price 5s. 6d.

"The volume is intensely interesting. . . . The Author’s personal observations, and his diligent studies of other men’s writings, have enabled him to give us much fuller accounts than have ever yet been furnished, and as such is a valuable contribution both to circulating library literature, and to the more sober collections of geographers and antiquarians.”—Weekly Dispatch.

"The author possesses a good knowledge of native character; his picture of the Karen tribes, enslaved, and despised by their Burman conquerors, is in striking contrast to his account of the free and fierce Red Karen, untractable and inaccessible in his native mountain home.”—Atheneum.

SECOND SERIES. Demy 4to., cloth gilt. Price 21s.

"This work will prove highly acceptable to sportsmen, for the Author not only explains where the game is to be found, the mode of travel, and the best seasons to hunt, but gives some well-executed photos of the large game. . . . This work should be largely patronized.”—European Mail.

"The animals, whose haunts and habits he describes, are those which he has himself tracked on and slain, often after many ineffectual attempts, and an amount of persevering toil which would have tired out the patience of most men.”—Edinburgh Journal.

DENT'S CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, and CLOCKS have long held pre-eminent rank, as may be seen from the Reports of various scientific persons:

THE ASTRONOMER ROYAL (Sir G. B. AIREY), in his Report to the Admiralty (August 13, 1870) on forty Chronometers entered for annual competition, says of M. F. DENT's Chronometer:

"This is the finest Chronometer that we have ever had on trial."

N.B.—The Late Astronomer Royal (J. Pond, Esq.), reporting, in 1829, on the celebrated public trial by order of The Lords of the Admiralty, which lasted thirteen years, during which nearly 500 Chronometers were tested, says:

"Your Chronometer, No. 114, is entitled to the First Premium. Actual variation in the year 0'54 hundredths of a second. This is superior to any other yet tried."

SIR WILLIAM ARMSTRONG, Inventor of the Armstrong Gun, says:

"9, Hyde Park Street, W., 14th November, 1861."

"The Chronometer Watch you made for me in December, 1859, has never been affected by travelling or riding; its variation at the end of a year was only 45 seconds. It has proved in every respect a most satisfactory Watch."
