“From our Ancestors come our Names,
But from our Virtues our Honors.”
JUST ten short months since, while the writer’s mind during some leisure moments was diverted to the genealogy of his family forefathers, he became suddenly convinced that a history of the stock, embracing all persons in this county bearing the name of Landis, was a necessity. He, therefore, at once undertook the voluntary task of compiling this work, with no other material at hand than a little information concerning his immediate family predecessors.

Had it not been for a host of friends, both old and new, who aided by tongue and pen, this little volume could not have been issued in the specified time; especially since it was prepared amid the manifold interruptions incident to a busy typographer’s life. The author acknowledges his particular obligations to: Rev. John L. Landis, Binkley’s Bridge; Rev. John B. Landis, East Petersburgh; Levi S. Reist, Oregon; Hon. John H. Landis, Millersville; M. B. Landis, Washington, D. C.; Israel C. Landis, Landisville; Prof. F. W. Bushong, Wichita, Kansas; John F. Landis, Elizabethtown; A. G. Landis, Sterling, Kan.; Jacob F. Landis, Abilene, Kan.; Eli B. Landis, Philadelphia; Henry H. Landis, Landis Valley; James D. Landis, Lancaster; M. R. Landis, Richland, Lebanon county; Ezra F. Landis, Lancaster; D. K. Landis, Strasburg; Martin G. Landis, East Lampeter; Benjamin K. Landis, Bird-in-Hand; Emma Lehman, Landisville; and a number of others, for valuable aid in obtaining information from their respective families or localities. Among the publications from which extracts have been made, are: Martyrs’ Mirror, Rupp’s History of Lancaster County, Harris’ Biographical History of Lancaster County, Evans’ History of Lancaster County, the Lancaster Inquirer, New Era, and Landisville Vigil.

It has been the writer’s desire to give a useful compendium of local knowledge that will benefit others besides those of his name. In addition to two parts of genealogy, a complete record of Landis soldiers is appended; also, an original account of the progress of Landisville and Landis Valley; a directory of living adults; and general information. A brief biography, in plain language, is given of each individual; also, the exact generation of every family from the earliest inhabitants. Nick-names are introduced throughout these pages more for the purpose of distinguishing similarity of surnames than to show their oddity.

Should the reception of this volume, with its necessarily limited first edition, prove favorable, a second volume may follow. In the meantime the present book can be had for 65 cents cash, or the illustrated autograph edition for $1.25.

PART I.
ANCESTRY AND EARLY SETTLERS.

Persecutions of Mennonites in the Seventeenth Century—Migration of Landises to America—First Settlers in the Conestoga Valley—Lineal Descendants of the Eighteenth Century.

In the latter part of the Sixteenth century the Landises, among others in Switzerland, were noted for their piety, and were appropriately called Pietists. The first historical mention of individual members of the Landis family is made of Hans Landis,* a "pious witness of the Divine truth," who existed at that time. Hans was a Pietus or Mennonite preacher, who moved to the Rhine, in Switzerland, and lived there to feed and refresh others who were seeking after righteousness. The Council of Zurich, who be it known were not Catholics, but of the Reformed† church, ordered Hans' arrest, thus thinking to stop his teachings. But that good man could not be deterred from his sincere convictions, and "he was taken prisoner by his enemies and sent in irons from Zurich to the papists at Zolothurn." After being liberated by the aid of some kind-natured persons, he was again retaken and sent to Zurich, where he was rigorously examined as to his doctrine. In September, 1614, he was beheaded* with a sword, as a true follower of Christ. The authorities then tried to persuade the common people that Hans was deterred for his obstinacy towards them, but it remains a fact that he suffered death for religion's sake.

† After the fearful persecutions of Protestants by Catholics during the Sixteenth century, some of the Reformed placed themselves on record at Zurich and Berne as continuators of the cruel practices known to the martyrs' era. Various edicts were issued from 1601 to 1660 by the Reformed against the Anabaptists (derisive of Baptists or Mennonites), creating fines, confiscation of property and other stringent penalties, including banishment. Others, however, of the Reformed belief, especially the regents of the United Netherlands, exerted their influence for the protection of the innocent Mennonites.

It is interesting to know that Hans Landis was the last person to be beheaded for religious convictions in that locality, but persecution did not cease with his death. In May, 1637, among three other brethren, "Hans Landis, the second, a steadfast minister of the church in Horgerberg, and his daughter, Margaretha," were confined full sixty weeks at Othenbach. "Meantime the authorities sold their property for 7000 florins, and applied it to their own use."+

In 1640, "Oswald Landis, his wife, and two daughters-in-law, were incarcerated in Othenbach. Jacob Landis, Oswald's son, and all his family, were banished. The two daughters-in-law, with their infants, escaped from prison; which good fortune afterwards befell the old man and his wife. But they had to forsake all their property, and wander about in poverty."‡

Felix Landis (son of Hans, beheaded at Zurich, 161+) was

*The following extract from a letter dated July 19–29, 1659, written by a preacher at Zurich, gives an accurate description of the execution: "Hans Landis was tall of stature, had a long black beard, a little gray, and a masculine voice. Being led out cheerfully with a rope, to Wolfsstatt, the place of decollation, the executioner, Mr. Paul Volmar, let the rope fall [not, however, before Hans' wife and child came to him with tears in their eyes to bid him a last farewell, after which he entreated them to depart so as not to shake his resolution to meet his fate], raised both hands to heaven, and said: 'O, God of mercy, to thee be it complained, that you, Hans, have fallen into my hands; for God's sake forgive me for what I must do to you,' etc. Hans consoled the executioner, saying: 'I have already forgiven you, may God forgive you also; I am aware that you must execute the sentence of the magistracy; be undismayed, and see that nothing hinders you in this matter,' etc., whereupon he was beheaded."

a pious member of the church of Horgerberg. For this he was committed to Othenbach, and treated with shameful rigor, often receiving no food. His digestive organs became so impaired through protracted fasting, that his stomach refused to retain food, and he accordingly prepared himself for death. In this state he was carried by the persecutors to church during the sermon, where he was brutally "thrown under a bench," and when he immediately expired. "His wife, Adelheyd Egli, was also kept in durance in Othenbach nearly four years. During this period they treated her not only unmercifully, but disgracefully; they threw her into several offensive places, stripped her twice in irons, and for a time took her clothes from her every night, etc."* She escaped afterward from prison with a good conscience. Mean- time the authorities ruthlessly dispersed her family, drove the children among strangers, and then confiscated her house and furniture and sold them for 5000 florins.

One night in 1643, the beadle attacked the house of Verena Landis, an elderly sister. They made such a tumult that Verena became faint and sick and could not go with the servitors of the authorities. She was thereupon compelled to "promise that she would remain a prisoner in her own house, which promise she accordingly fulfilled."† As she was harshly treated and supplied with poor provisions, death soon resulted.

About 1660, and afterward, the Landises were driven to the Palatinate country, to Zweiburg and Alsace, neighborhood of Strasburg and Manheim on the Rhine. Their properties were generally confiscated; and they became farmers for the German nobility. All the Mennonites received fair usage from the Hollanders and people of the United Netherlands.

MIGRATING TO AMERICA.

For about two generations history fails to reveal individual members of the Landis family, i.e. from 1643 to 1717. Members of the Mennonite belief early took advantage of William Penn's liberal policy to settle in America. About 1683, and later in 1709 and 1712, numbers of them emigrated to Chester county (including what is now the county of Lancaster).

In 1717, three brothers,* Rev. Benjamin,† Felix and John Landis, all Swiss Mennonites, came to America from the vicinity of Manheim on the Rhine, where they had been driven from Zurich, Switzerland, and purchased land from Penn and the Conestogoe Indians. Like most of the pioneer settlers in the American wilds, these good people were comparatively poor in worldly possessions, and had their hands so full of work that they failed, it seems, to keep their family records. They became, however, instinctively American in their progress, and proceeded at once to skillfully till the soil which has since made this county known the world over as a "garden spot." Here, also, these pioneer members of the family worshiped their God according to their desire, and in perfect peace.

Benjamin's lineal descendants being numerous and mostly located in the present confines of Lancaster county, his vast family obtains precedence throughout this volume; while the descendants of his two brothers, Felix and John (and others who emigrated afterward), are also given wherever they are connected with the history of this county.

BENJAMIN LANDIS, OF LANCASTER COUNTY.

Rev. Benjamin Landis,† one of the three brothers who emigrated to America, accompanied by an only son, Benjamin, jr. (aged 18), took up a tract of 240 acres of land from the London Company, for which he received a patent in 1718.‡ This land was in possession of the Conestogoe Indians, from whom it was obtained by purchase. Benjamin was a Mennonite preacher, and, with his son, began farming on his tract.§ situated in what is now East Lampeter township, near Mellinger's meeting-house, about four miles east of Lancaster city, at the intersection of the Horse-shoe and old Philadelphia roads. No records tell to whom this pious man was married, and, unfortunately, for several succeeding generations, such information is very meagre.

†In Taylor's surveys of the old patent tracts, Jacob Landis is said to have taken out the patent for a tract; and in 1718 the first assessment made in Conestogoe township (now Lancaster county) included the names of Jacob Landis and Jacob Landis, jr. From the various records extant it seems as if the name of Jacob on the old surveys was a mistake, and that it was intended for Benjamin, who had also a son, Benjamin, jr.

Benjamin Landis, 2 the younger immigrant, had four sons, whose names in the order of their births* and respective ages were: Benjamin, Abraham, Jacob, and Henry. These four sons were the first born upon the soil, from whom have sprung the numerous descendants of Benjamin.1 Little mention is made in any records obtainable of daughters, although such were born, without doubt, to some of the first generations. Benjamin, jr., tilled the soil of his father's farm and lived there.

Benjamin Landis,3 oldest son of the younger immigrant, moved to Manheim township, in 1751–3, after buying his wife's only brother† out, which left him 800 or 1,000 acres of land‡ about three miles from Lancaster city, near the Reading road and close to where the Landis Valley meeting-house now stands. Benjamin was married, in 1749, to Anna Snavely, only daughter of John Snavely. They had three sons: Hansle (John),§ born March 15, 1755; Bennie (Benjamin), born in the winter of 1756; and Henry, born December 5, 1760. Benjamin's3 place "was the refuge of many Swiss emigrants, who enjoyed his hospitality until they were able to secure homes for themselves."

Abraham Landis,3 second son[,] of the younger immigrant, had two sons: Benjamin and John. Benjamin, the oldest, lived in East Lampeter township; John, second son, called "Musser" John, also resided in East Lampeter.

Jacob Landis, third son of the younger immigrant, had two sons and six daughters, viz.: Barbara (Weaver), Lizzie (Houser), John ("Brick"), born July 3, 1766; Abraham, born November 1, 1767; Esther (Burkholder), ——— (Mrs. Jacob Groff), ——— (Harnish), ——— (Winters). Two of the latter were named Mary and Magdalena.* Jacob was Collector of Taxes "for the King's use" in East Lampeter township, in 1763. He died during the summer of 1794.

Henry Landis, was the youngest son of Benjamin, the younger immigrant. He had five sons: Benjamin, John, Henry, Peter, and Abraham. (See page 17.)

FELIX LANDIS, OF DAUPHIN COUNTY.

Felix Landis, a brother of Rev. Benjamin, received a patent in 1719–20, from the London Company, for 400 acres of land on Mill Creek, near Witmer's Bridge (then known as Conestoga township,† now East Lampeter). Felix established a mill‡ on his tract. In 1781 he granted part of this property to John Binckle, as then written, who appears to have been a relative.§ It is said that the first generation of Felix sold out and removed to Dauphin and Lebanon counties (then known as Derry township, Lancaster county). His children were: Felix, jr., Anna, Barbara, Froneka (married to Abra-

§John Binckley died intestate in 1760, leaving three sons: Felix, Henry and John. At the division of the property Felix Binckley took the water-right and land adjoining, consisting of 113 acres and 96 perches, and in 1767 built the mill at Millport. Felix died in this county and is supposed to be buried at Mellinger's graveyard, although no stone bearing his name can be found.—Evans' History of Lancaster County.

The third generation settled at Spring Creek, Dauphin county, the Landises there upholding the name of Felix for generations.

JOHN LANDIS, OF BUCKS COUNTY.

John Landis,¹ a brother of Rev. Benjamin, and a native of Switzerland, after arriving in America in 1717, located in Bucks county, this State. He had five sons, viz.: John, Jacob, Martin, George, and Samuel; and two daughters, Veronica and Barbara.*

John Landis,² one of the five sons, was born in Bucks county, November 11, 1720, and removed to Montgomery county, this State.

Jacob Landis³ was born in Montgomery county, this State. He died in 1806, near Jersey Shore, Lycoming county, whence he had removed. His children were: Solomon, John, Joseph, Benjamin, Nancy, and Betsy. Their occupations were various, and they lived at divers places—John and Joseph removing to Lancaster county.

JOHN LANDIS, OF EPHRATA.

About the year 1720 John Landis⁴ took up three or four hundred acres of land below the junction of Middle and Hammer Creeks running into the Cocalico, between what is now Akron and the Oil Works. He started a graveyard near Akron, where five generations of Landises are buried. He was the founder of most of the Ephrata stock.

The later descendants of Felix Landis, of Dauphin; John, of Bucks; and John, of Ephrata, are given at the close of Part II.; also, the genealogy of "Hill" John, and others.

PART II.

GROWTH OF THE LANDIS FAMILY.

Embracing the Period from about the Revolutionary Time to the Present Day—Genealogical Sketches, with Births, Marriages and Deaths of Many Members—A Variety of Other Information.

Since the days when our forefathers experienced the trials incident to a separation from English rule, the spread of the Landis family has been remarkably rapid; and “there is no family so closely and so essentially connected with the growth and development of Lancaster county” as this one. As a family, too, it has been steadily devoted to farming through successive generations, who “are not so much distinguished for producing great public men as for the uniform private worth of all its members”—and yet some of them have shown their aptitude for other than agricultural pursuits. They have maintained, in a large degree, the genuine Lancaster county character, having been industrious and economical without almost an exception. This, together, with the natural modesty and coolness of the stock, has proved a safe shield against the allurements of speculation and excitements, and has kept the family largely together on its native farms.

Genealogical Sketches.

Beginning with the oldest branch of the original settler in Lancaster county, the genealogy of the Landis family is given on the following pages as complete as it could be procured. The numerous descendants of Rev. Benjamin1 are given first, viz.:
"So-zu-sauga"* John Landis,* so called from his frequent use of the words "so to say," lived in East Lampeter township, and was the oldest son of Benjamin.* He had three sons: John, Benjamin and Henry. He lived on his father's farm, and died in May, 1837, at the advanced age of 82 years.

"Swamp" John Landis* was born in Lampeter township, September 11, 1782. He went to Landisville on a farm, and married Anna Bachman, by whom he had three children who reached maturity: John C., Michael B. and Elizabeth. He started storekeeping at "Centreville" (now Landisville) in the spring of 1829, having purchased land from Jacob Charles in the fall of 1828. (See Part IV.) He was Landisville's first Postmaster, and remained a citizen of that place until his demise, April 16, 1863; aged 80 years, 7 months and 5 days. His wife, who was born February 3, 1785, died May 23, 1846; aged 61 years, 3 months and 20 days.

John C. Landis,* first son of John Landis,* of East Hempfield township, was born on August 31, 1807. His later school days were spent at John Beck's famous Academy for Boys, in Lititz, from about 1823 to 1825, when and where he acquired a thorough knowledge of mathematics, astronomy and surveying. He was an expert chirographer and reader in both English and German. After leaving school he followed surveying in Landisville, which village was laid out by him and his father in 1828-30. (See Part IV.) From 1829 to 1832 he was a salesman in his father's store. On January 5, 1832, he was united in marriage, by Rev. Loeffler, to Veronica (commonly called Fanny) Shelly. Four children resulted from this union: Ann Eliza, the first child, was born May 14, 1833. Israel Christian was the second by birth. Jacob was born April 23, 1841, and died September 4, 1845; aged 4 years, 4 months and 11 days. Albert Shelly, born August 20, 1847; died August 15, 1849, aged only 1 year, 11 months and 26 days. John C. was one of the originators of the Bethel church at Landisville, founded by John Winebrenner, and a consistent member thereof. He kept a general merchandise establishment from about 1833 in his native village, and died March 25, 1854, from an apoplectic stroke received while in his store; his age was 46 years, 6 months and 25 days. Fanny, his wife, lived, until her demise, west of where Minnich’s hotel is now located. She died at the age of 69 years and 25 days, on January 13, 1879.

* He was also known by some persons as "Hansle."

Ann Eliza Landis became the wife of Joseph G. Greider, a farmer, of East Hempfield township. Her children, all living, are: John, Joseph L. and Benjamin. She died a few days previous to her mother, in 1879.

Israel Christian Landis was born September 24, 1835. His father was John C., of Landisville. Israel, after receiving a common education, spent his last school days in James P. Wickersham’s Academy, Marietta. His father dying suddenly, he was thrown upon his own resources for a living. He was married by Rev. W. T. Gerhard, January 17, 1861, to Mary Musselman, after which he kept an oyster saloon in Landisville for five years. During this time a son was born, who was named David Bachman. A daughter called Florence Shelly, was born April 6, 1865. Mr. Landis then removed to Centreville, East Hempfield township, where farming occupied his attention for two years. From there he went to Rohrers-town, where he kept a confectionery and lived three years. He built a house on a tract of land 1½ miles west of the latter place, whence he removed and lived one year. Hearing of an opportunity to rent a store stand in Salunga, he sold his new property and did a thriving trade in general merchandise for three years, besides being Postmaster of the last-named village. In the fall of 1874 he built a new store near Bamford Brothers’ zinc mines, the place afterward being named Bamfordville.* Since then he has been engaged in business there. In politics he has always been a Republican; and in business a careful manager.

David Bachman Landis is the only son of Israel C., and was born in Landisville, February 12, 1862. He received a common school education. Was a clerk in his father’s store, at Bamfordville, for some years. In March, 1877, during school days, he first brought to light a small boys' paper, named the Keystone Amateur. In April of the following year it was first printed by him, under the title of the Amateur, Jr. In August of that year, the sheet was enlarged to a 16-page magazine, including covers, under the original name; and with the October number it ceased publication. On the 7th of October, 1878, David was apprenticed to the Inquirer Printing and Publishing Company, Lancaster, to learn Guttenberg's art. After serving four years at the trade, he opened a professional job printing office in Landisville, in April, 1883. On May 1 of the same year, he issued the initial number of the Village Vigil, as a tri-monthly; in a year it was printed weekly; and in 1885 the paper was enlarged to eight pages, being known thereafter as the Landisville Vigil. He has been a frequent contributor to the Inquirer and the New Era, of Lancaster; the Wheel, New York; the Wheelman (magazine), Boston; and other journals. He was married to Nora K., daughter of David Baker, deceased, of East Hempfield township, on Tuesday, September 29, 1885, by Rev. Dr. E. Greenwald, late of Lancaster. September 19, 1886, a daughter, named Katie Musselman, was born. On March 13, 1886, the Vigil was discontinued, the owner connecting himself with the Lancaster Inquirer, in which establishment he has had charge of the printing since then.

Elizabeth Landis, the daughter of John Landis, was born October 29, 1811. She was married by Rev. Loeffler, at Lititz, to John Lehman, September 29, 1829. She had six children: John, who died at the age of 6 years; Henry C., Lancaster; Annie (Martin); Mary A. (Swarr); Emma, and Adeline. Mrs. Lehman (widow) resides in Landisville.

Michael Bachman Landis, the second son of John Landis, of East Hempfield township, was born in September, 1819. Was three months a student of John Beck's Lititz Academy; went to two select schools—one in Niagara county, N. Y., and the other at Williamsville, Erie county, N. Y.; attended

DESCENDANTS OF HENRY, OF DAUPHIN.

Henry Landis, who no doubt was a resident of Dauphin county, as his numerous relations are now mostly located there, it is claimed was one of a family from which the Spring Creek Landises sprung at an early day during the last century. He was married to a Miss Bureman, by whom he had seven children: Peter B., Christopher, Jacob B., Henry B., Elizabeth B., Anna B., and John B.

Peter B. Landis, the first member of the second generation, was married to a Miss Lauman (supposed to be related to the Lauman family of Middletown, Dauphin county). Peter moved to New York State. Nothing further is known of his family except about one son, George L. Landis, who was a Justice of the Peace.

*Henry’s grave cannot be found among those of his family buried at what is known as Strickler’s graveyard, Dauphin county, Pa.
Christopher Landis² was born August 27, 1770. Died, unmarried, while living with brother his John, on July 13, 1830, aged 59 years, 10 months and 16 days.

Jacob B. Landis,² of Dauphin county, was born May 9, 1781. Died, unmarried, on February 3, 1806, aged 24 years, 9 months and 24 days.

Henry B. Landis² was born May 10, 17—. He was a resident of Dauphin county, near a cave along the banks of the Swatara creek, about one mile from Hummelstown. Had four sons, viz.: John, Jacob, Henry, and Joseph. Henry B. and his wife belonged to the Lutheran church. He was a firm believer in the Divine truth; and, after being nearly blind, through partial loss of sight, by constant prayer and undergoing two separate operations, he became more steadfast than ever. Died April, 1839, aged 49 years and some days.

John Landis³ was born on October 15, 1805, one mile from Hummelstown, Dauphin county. According to the preface of a book of "Discourses on the Depravity of the Human Family,"* he was the "seventh child" of his parents. From childhood his disposition was more or less sedate and retiring. He was educated in a common country school; and early proved himself to be an adept in arithmetic, together with mensuration, surveying and gauging. His genius developed itself, also, in other ways; the gift of drawing and painting manifesting itself in youth. In fact, his life from childhood was somewhat romantic. At about the age of 15, he attended the village church, with others; his mind became serious and more abstracted from earthly things, and he committed passages of Scripture with such delight and facility that one of his sisters wanted him to study for the ministry. He became a member of the Lutheran church. Afterward, however, he concluded to learn a trade, and accordingly apprenticed himself to Mr. Wyeth at Harrisburg until he was of age. In the winter of 1822–3 he began his career as a printer. He made rapid progress; in his own language he says: "The first day it was late when I got there, but I learned the cases and composed nearly half a column of matter, long primer, for the paper.” He continued to study his Bible; but became a Sabbath-breaker, “and for money would work all Sunday until night on the bills of the Senate which Mr. Wyeth had engaged to print.” Soon afterward he was taken with a fever and lay seriously ill for some weeks. During this time his religious feelings again overtook him, and while in a disturbed state of mind he resolved to lead a better life. In a bit of verse he alludes to this thus:

“And when this frame press’d with sickness,
Sore disease and deep distress;
The groan of anguish Thou didst hear,
And lend’st Thyself a willing ear;
To defeat the grave of its prey,
Did’st Thy Almighty power display;
To health again for to restore,
That I might know Thee more and more.”

After an absence of about ten weeks he returned to Mr. Wyeth. A few weeks after leaving that printer’s employ, he became a partner in one of the first Jackson papers in the State, printed at Reading, where he was six months. He then sold his interest, and visited Philadelphia and New York, working some weeks in the metropolis; also worked at Lancaster, York and divers other towns. Studied medicine six months with an eminent physician; was successful, but the practical part not being congenial to him, he left the profession and engaged in the brokerage business. Here again he had considerable success, and accumulated a small fortune in a few years. His sole object then was money, until he began the study of painting, in the spring of 1830, under some slight instruction of a local portrait painter. He then visited Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, and Washington, at different times, to examine the best pictures from the Italian masters, besides those of West and other American artists. In less than a year’s time, after producing fourteen small single portraits, he began a vast design of “Christ Preaching and Healing Diseases;”* this was commented upon by one of the Philadelphia papers, where it was once on exhibition, as indicating “an indubitable and high order of genius.”

*This production was burned in the Lutheran church of Harrisburg, in October, 1838, when that edifice was consumed.
other designs were named: "The Head of John the Baptist" (afterward exhibited in the Royal Exhibition, Pall Mall), "The Battle of New Orleans" (size of canvas 14 by 22 feet, with life-size figures), "St. Peter's Release by an Angel," etc. On August 1, 1838, he left for Europe; and, after a voyage of 42 days, he stepped on Britannia's shore at Liverpool. Took a stage for London, and located himself in the western part of the great city, where he pursued the study of his profession. During some unguarded moments, and for some unaccountable cause he was deprived of his personal liberty and imprisoned for at least two years. His religious knowledge there again manifested itself, and he wrote upwards of 200 hymns. In March, 1836, he left London and embarked for America, where he arrived in May. Here he pursued his studies as historical painter, and, also, wrote a poem entitled "Messiah," with a large number of verses. While in Chambersburg during the following year, he met with considerable success. He was the author of "A Soul's Aid," etc. There is, unfortunately, no record obtainable of his death or age.

In the Eighteenth century, about 1775, John Landis, a young man, with his bachelor brother, and a sister (who was since married to a man named Nolt), came to this country and settled in Dauphin county. John had at least five sons: Henry, Christian, Benjamin, Abraham, and Jacob. One daughter married Benjamin Johnson, and the other became the wife of the late Sheriff Huber. John lived, also, at one time in Manheim township, Lancaster county. Some of the children moved to this county, among them Christian.

Christian Landis was married to Susan Brubaker, of Rohrerstown. They lived at Roseville, where Mr. Landis began the business of coachmaking about 1824, which he carried on there until his death. His children were: Abraham B., Jacob B., and Anna (Mrs. Samuel Kohr, Rockford, Ill.)

Abraham B. Landis learned the coachmaking trade with his father, whom he succeeded in 1843. He removed to Mount Joy, in 1858, where he established the Landis Coach Works. This industrial establishment has had a large Southern trade. Mr. Landis was one of the organizers of the Friendship Fire Company, of Mount Joy, on January 27, 1868. He married Maria Summy. They have no children.

Jacob B. Landis, coachmaker, was married to Fanny K. Long, near Landisville. Their children were: Benjamin L., Samuel K., Jacob F., Aaron, Abraham, and Ellen, the latter three now deceased.

Benjamin L. Landis was married to Emma Busser, of near Brickerville. He was a coachmaker by trade; but is now living in Rapho township, and makes cigar boxes in Landisville. His children are: Virginia, Ella, Benjamin, Edwin, Abraham, and Dolly.

Samuel K. Landis was married to Susan M. Swartley, Landisville. They had seven children, five of whom are living: Eva, Mary, Walter, Fannie, Harry (Abraham and Granville, twins, deceased). Samuel is a cigarmaker.

Jacob F. Landis was born April 6, 1860. He finished his education at Millersville, after which he taught school. For the past two years he has been in Kansas, and was recently located at Abilene, that State. He is unmarried. His mother lives at Landisville.

"Schmidt" Jacob Landis, a son of John Landis, of Dauphin county, moved to Lancaster county and settled at Landis Valley, where he carried on blacksmithing. He married Elizabeth Kaufman. They had four children: John, Jacob, Nancy, and Elizabeth.

John Landis was an edge-tool manufacturer. He was rather "wild" in his young days, and was known as "Devil" John. He died, however, to his credit, a temperate man.

"Smith" Jacob Landis, jr., son of the elder Jacob, was born at Landis Valley, in 1813. He was married to Catharine Grabill (who now lives on North Queen street, Lancaster). Their children are: Abram G., Adam (Lancaster), Lizzie (Lancaster), and Grabill (Dodge City, Kansas). "Smith" Jacob was the founder and first Postmaster of Landis Valley, where he died in 1861. (See Part IV.)

Abram Grabill Landis was born in 1842. He was married to Ellie F. Hubley, in 1873. Their children are: Nevin, Maud, May, and Paul, the first-named being deceased. Abram moved from this county to Kansas, in 1870, and he is yet there in the town of Sterling. He was engaged in general merchandise, milling and banking; subsequently in banking exclusively, until 1884, when he sold out and is now loaning money privately.

JOHN A. LANDIS, OF BERKS.

John A. Landis was born September 15, 1777, and came to Lancaster county from Berks. He was twice married: 1. Beitler; 2. Sarah Bubb (died October 3, 1874, aged 75 years, 10 months and 30 days). Mr. Landis and a relative of his first wife opened the first theatrical and circus building in Lancaster city, in a large structure erected for the purpose, on West Orange street.* The Western hotel was opened by him at the sign of "The Wagon," corner of West Orange and Water streets, Lancaster, in June, 1814. In 1819 Landis opened the first museum in the city, opposite the "Circus" building. It was called the Lancaster Museum, but better known as the Landis Museum.* Some time afterward it was removed to the building that formerly stood where the present Examiner printing office is located. Mr. Landis next removed to where Haberbush & Son now keep a saddlery on Penn Square, where the Museum flourished for many years and became widely known. The last removal of the Landis' Museum was made in 1836 or '37 to the Rohrer House, corner of West Chestnut and North Queen streets. In 1838 Mr. Landis sold the curiosities to Westhaeffer & Getz.† The Museum was a wonderful attraction in its time, and many people yet tell of the success Landis made of it. He was no mean genius, but his ingenuity never brought him riches. He died, leaving no children, March 8, 1862, and his body rests beneath a monument bearing the Masonic emblem, in Shreiner's cemetery, Lancaster.

Part IV.

LANDISVILLE AND LANDIS VALLEY.

Two Villages of the County Founded by Landises—Their Start and Subsequent Growth—Moral and Spiritual Institutions—Industries, etc.

The earlier, and later, growth of Landisville has been but meagrely treated of in the past, historically speaking; and it is with no little difficulty that the present Historian has procured reliable material for this sketch. In 1798 Jacob Minnich erected the first house in the eastern part of what is now Landisville. In 1808 Mr. Minnich built a two-story hotel on the north side of the Lancaster and Elizabethtown turnpike, about six and one-half miles west of Lancaster. The following year his brother-in-law, Jacob Charles, purchased a piece of ground from him, upon which he erected a dwelling house and a blacksmith shop. It was in the same year that Mr. Minnich also put up a large distillery. Prior to 1825 several more dwellings were added to the first mentioned.

Centreville—Landisville.—In the fall of 1828 John Landis, who owned a farm south-west of the tavern, purchased the dwelling house* built by Mr. Charles and established a store in it the following spring. Mr. Landis saw the necessity of naming the little settlement, which began to assume the dignity of a village, as a few more houses were built soon afterward. With the aid of his son, John C., a surveyor, Mr. Landis laid out the village about that time and named it "Centreville," from the fact that it was just equa-distant between Lancaster and Mount Joy. Several years thereafter, about 1832, John Landis applied to the Post-Office Department for a post-office, which was then established with him as first Postmaster. As there was already a Centreville office in Centre county, the Department took the liberty of naming the place "Landisville," which name it has kept since.

Its Postmasters.—The post-office at Landisville was at one time removed from Landis' store to a point near the present Reformed Mennonite meeting-house, then known as Snyder's store (now occupied by John M. Gochnauer). As S. S. Snyder, who became Postmaster, was also a Justice of the Peace, the office remained at his place a very short time and Mr. Landis got it back again. John C. Landis also served as Postmaster for some years until his death in 1854, when Jacob K. Minnich was appointed, with Israel C. Landis as assistant. Martin M. Swarr afterward kept the office at his store. Jacob K. Kurtz became the next Postmaster, after which Simon Minnich, sr., held the office until shortly before his death, with Henry E. Minnich as assistant. Daniel K. Wolf, upon being appointed, removed the office to his residence. Since 188—, John B. Kern has been Postmaster, with quarters at his shoe shop.

Places of Worship.—The Old Mennonites erected a log meeting-house* at what is now Landisville, about the year 1790. In 1855 a brick house was built near by, to which an addition was put a score of years since, the interior being also remodeled. The large room has a seating capacity of five hundred persons. Meetings are held there every four weeks, with an afternoon Sunday-school during the summer months. The present ministers are: Jacob N. Brubacher (Bishop), John B. Landis and Tobias Shenk.

About 1840, the Church of God was organized at Landisville, its services for a time being held at private houses. Jacob II. Hershey, now living at Rohrerstown, was one of its first members, as was, also, John C. Landis, now deceased, and others. In 1843, a frame house of worship was erected which is still standing, although improved since internally. It has seating room for about two hundred souls. During the winter of 1887–8 the same edifice was enlarged and considerably improved. A flourishing Sabbath-school is held in the same building. The present pastor is Rev. F. L. Nicodemus.

The Reformed Mennonites first held services in the Bethel. They erected a brick structure east of the village, in 1869. It has about two hundred and fifty sittings. Meetings every four weeks, with occasional evening services. The regular ministers are: Abraham Long, Martin Musser and Levi Shenk. John Kohr, sr. (deceased), was Bishop until his death.

Camp-Meetings.—Over forty years ago, what may be termed a type of "religious insanity" broke out south of Landisville, in an encampment under the charge of Second Adventists or "Millerites." An extended account of the odd affair was printed in the Landisville Vigil, Vol. I., No. 15.

About 1870 the Landisville Camp-meeting Association was formed, and a tract of woodland lying close to the village was bought from Dr. Andrew Kauffman. This grove was tastefully fitted up and since improved with cottages and suitable buildings. Up to date seventeen annual meetings have been held there. Methodists from Harrisburg, Reading, Columbia, Lancaster, etc., worship there.

Musical and Literary.—On September 4, 1858, the "Mechanicks Band of Landisville"† was organized, with these officers: W. D. Reitzel, president; E. D. Golden, vice president; Emanuel Newcomer, secretary; J. B. Kern, treasurer. Twelve members composed the full band: W. D. Reitzel, G. W. Sener, Emanuel Newcomer, C. H. Newcomer, Jacob Souders, J. B. Kern, J. J. Golden, E. D. Golden, I. C. Landis, Solomon Seamer, Reuben Pickel, and Daniel Kern. Three other names appear on the roll of membership: Joseph Musselman, Daniel M. Brown and Christian H. Mayer. War breaking out, the Band disbanded about 1863, after flourishing several years.

In 1886 a small musical club, known as the Landisville Orchestra, had a brief existence.

A couple of literary societies assembled at Landisville in the past, the best known of which was in existence from the winter of 1881 to the spring of '84. The Landisville Literary Society met every Friday evening and held very successful meetings.

In 1882 the Union Temperance Society was started, which existed until the summer of '86.

The old public school building, between the Bethel and Old Mennonite churches, was torn down several years before the national Centennial; and since then two graded, brick buildings near by were erected for school purposes.

Industries.—The largest industrial establishment in the place is Simon B. Minnich's machine shop and wood-turning works, erected in 1883, and now under the management of the Landisville Manufacturing Company (Limited). The village has, in addition, two hotels, two general stores, one shoe shop, one tailor shop, two blacksmith shops, one coal and lumber yard, one tobacco warehouse, one chopping mill, one tin shop, one cigar-box factory, one cigar factory, one bakery, two confectionery stores, one carpenter shop, two slaughter houses, one carpet weaver, one furniture store and undertaker, one creamery, one cooper, etc., embracing all-told 28 or 30 business and professional establishments.

Mineral and Earth Deposits.—During the time of the Mexican War, Samuel Pickel (now deceased), while making a fence near Snapper creek, one and a-half miles east of Landisville, discovered lead ore. Soon afterward oxide of zinc was manufactured there for a brief time. About 1871 the mineral deposit was purchased by Bamford Brothers, of England, and extensive works built there for smelting zinc. These were operated until the fall of 1877. Since then, in 1883, the Lehigh Zinc & Iron Company leased the mines* for ten years; this company only used the works six months, and they are now idle.

A brick-yard was opened north-east of Landisville, in 1842, by Joseph G. Greider's father. About 1855 Joseph started in the business and carried on the yard successfully until after the war. The land of M. B. Landis is also suitable for making brick.

A complete account of this mineral deposit and its discovery was published in the Lancaster Inquirer, November 20, 1886.
In 1870 Jacob S. Trout discovered a valuable bed of fire sand in East Hempfield township, south of Landisville. This sand is yet regularly shipped to some steel works from the village station.

Notable Fires.—The village has had several destructive fires, the most notable of which occurred during the summer of 1871, when Simon Minnich's hotel and store, two large frame buildings, were entirely consumed. A large three-story brick structure was afterward built at the same spot, in which Jacob B. Minnich now keeps a general store and the Sycamore House.

In 1881 an incendiary caused J. M. Rutt's new cigar factory and stable to be entirely consumed by fire.

During a thunder shower in 1885, a bolt of lightning entered the combined stable and workshop of J. C. Stewart, carpenter. The building was burnt to the ground, and a driving horse was lost in the flames.

Growth of the Village.—Up to about the death of Christian Hiestand, in the summer of 1877, Landisville grew slowly. Previous to that time two railroads, the Pennsylvania and Reading & Columbia had laid their tracks through the place, but the hamlet still remained toward the east of the "Crossing." In the past decade of years the growth of the village has been rapid, many fine residences being put up between the station and the old settlement. Most of these are occupied by retired farmers. The population to-day exceeds 450, and the number of dwelling houses is at this time 81.

LANDIS VALLEY.

"Smith" Jacob Landis was the founder of Landis Valley, a little settlement on the Lancaster & Ephrata turnpike, about four miles from the city of Lancaster.

In 1855 Jacob Landis built the hotel and kept it until his death in 1861, when the property was purchased by Isaac Landis. Jacob also obtained a post-office for the place prior to 1860, after whom it was named. It is said that this office was the outgrowth of one formerly located at Roseville.

H. L. Brackbill (once proprietor of the Landis Valley hotel) was Postmaster for a number of years. He was succeeded by L. H. Longenecker. The office is at present in charge of Mrs. Hannah A. Hauck, who received her appointment as Postmistress at the close of 1887.

Wallace L. Hauck, one of the latest proprietors of the Valley hotel, died November 27, 1887.

The settlement contains among its business establishments, wagon and blacksmith shops, cigar manufactory, etc.

The Landis Valley Mennonite meeting-house is only a short distance from the village.

PART VI.

GENERAL ODDS AND ENDS.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION OF A MORE OR LESS INTERESTING CHARACTER CONCERNING THE WORK OF THE LANDIS FAMILY—AN OLD BIBLE—LATE MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.

The name of Landis was known to the French and Germans centuries ago. The French pronounce the word Lon-da (or de), and the Germans, Lan-des—the accent in either instance being on the last syllable. In France the name Landes (londes) was applied long ago to a department in the south-western part of that country, including the Bay of Biscay. Its area is 3,490 square miles. Population in 1876, 303,508. The place is occupied by heaths (landes), whence its name.

Landis is the name of a township of Cumberland county, N. J. Its population is over 7,000.

Landisville is a small post-village in Atlantic county, N. J., on the New Jersey Southern & Vineland Railroad. It has a church. This pretty place was founded by Charles Kline Landis, of Bucks (or Lancaster county, Pa.) descent.

Landisburg, Perry county, Pa., was founded by Abraham Landis, formerly of Lancaster county. It is on Sherman's creek, about fourteen miles north-west of Carlisle. An academy is located there; also, several churches and two tanneries. Population, over 400.

Landis' Store is a post-hamlet of Berks county, this State, about sixteen miles north-east of Reading.

DISCIPLES OF MENNO SIMON.

Rev. Benjamin Landis, one of the first emigrants to this county, was, as previously stated, a Mennonite minister of the Gospel, and all his descendants to the fifth generation adhered to the Mennonite faith without an exception. Even to this day a majority of the Landis family belong to Menno Simon’s church, in which a number have served and are serving as pastors.

Abraham Landis, about 1812,* was one of the first persons to follow Francis Herr in withdrawing from the Old Mennonite church and establishing a new branch called the Reformed Mennonites. On October 10 of that year John Landis was appointed to the ministry and preached his first sermon October 31. He resided at East Lampeter.

A TREASURED BIBLE.

Probably the oldest evidence of the Landis relationship is a Bible now in the possession of Levi S. Reist, of Oregon, this county, whose wife is a great-granddaughter of Benjamin and Anna Landis, once owners of it. Anna’s parents (Snavely) brought the sacred volume from Europe. The book was published at Zurich, Switzerland, by Johannes Wolff, in 1596, the numerals MDXCVI being at the beginning of the Old and end of the New Testaments. The family record† contains notices of the children born to Benjamin and Anna Landis prior to the Revolutionary War. The orthography of this old volume seems somewhat odd at this late day, as any German reader will readily notice from a perusal of “Des Alten und Neunven Testament.” May this rare old Bible witness many more years of service as evidence of the large family of Landis folk.

PUBLIC OFFICERS.

Old records show that Abraham Landis, about 1785, furnished lime for the building of a Court House in Centre Square, Lancaster.

John Landes was one of the first managers of the New Holland & Lancaster turnpike, which was incorporated March 20, 1810.

*Evans’ History of Lancaster County.
†See Landisville Vigil, January 30, 1886.
John Landis, esq., was Supervisor of Conestoga township, in 1817.

Joseph Landis, Marietta, was one of the original contributors to the Zion’s church building, that place, in July, 1817.

John Landis was a Justice of Peace in District No. 8 (composed of the townships of Warwick and Elizabeth), August 7, 1832.*

Joseph Landis was County Auditor in 1837.

John Landis was an Alderman of Lancaster city, February 26, 1842.

Emanuel Landis, of Upper Leacock township, was a road Supervisor in 1847.

Benjamin Landis, Upper Leacock, was a Supervisor in 1848; Assessor in 1847 and 1853.

Jacob Landis, Upper Leacock, was Supervisor in 1849.

J. B. Landis, Mount Joy, was one of the borough Councilmen in 1859.

H. H. Landis was one of the incorporators of the Mount Joy Cemetery, which was planned on August 19, 1863.

J. D. Landis, Pequea township, served as Justice of Peace, April, 1874.

David Landis, Adamstown, was a member of the borough Town Council, 1878-9.

PRACTITIONERS IN MEDICINE.

Dr. E. Landis assisted in the organization of the Lancaster City and County Medical Society, at the house of Dr. Eli Parry, on January 14, 1844.

Henry Landis, M. D.,† of Marietta, graduated in 1861, from University of Pennsylvania; was elected a member of the County Medical Society in 1866. Lives now in Reading.

J. R. Landis, M. D., of Elizabethtown, graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1864; was elected a member of the Medical Society in 1866.

FIRE COMPANIES.

The meeting at which the Washington Fire Company, of Lancaster city, was organized, was held at the house of John

*Evans’ History of Lancaster County.
†Presiding officer of Ashara Lodge No. 398, A. Y. M., in 1869.
Landis, March 4, 1820, at which 41 persons were present who were desirous of forming the new company.

Jesse Landis was President of the American Fire Engine and Hose Company, Lancaster, in 1862.

George B. Landis was President of the Sun Fire Company, Lancaster, June 1, 1882.

On the night of June 20, 1838, two one-story frame houses occupied respectively by John Landis and a Mr. Rook, in Lancaster, were destroyed by fire. Landis and his wife, it is said, were so bewildered that they neglected to carry their two children out, and the record tells us the latter perished in the flames.

RECENT MARRIAGES AND DEATHS.

Among the more recent marriages and deaths not to be found in Part II. of this work are the following:

On April 19, 1887, Mr. Henry C. Barnhart, formerly of Mount Joy, was married to Miss Nellie G. Landis, at the residence of the bride's mother, York, this State, by Rev. J. O. Miller, D. D. Both bride and groom had been employed for some years in John Baer's Sons' book store, Lancaster.

On November 24, 1887, Miss M. Emma Landis, who taught school at Locust Grove, West Lampeter township, was joined in wedlock by Rev. James Y. Mitchell, D. D., of Lancaster, to Mr. Phares K. Doner, of East Lampeter township.

On December 20, 1887, Mr. Israel S. Sheirk, of Penn township, was wedded at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. D. W. Gerhard, to Miss Emma H. Landis, of East Lampeter township.

On Saturday morning, December 24, 1887, Mr. Abraham G. Landis, of Voganville, was married by Rev. Charles L. Fry, at Trinity Lutheran parsonage, Lancaster, to Miss Alice J. Kraemer, of Voganville, this county.

On the 8th of June, 1887, Jacob L. Landis died in Washington borough, in his 64th year.

A shocking accident on Saturday night, August 20, 1887, resulted in the death of J. Clayton Landis, a former resident of Columbia, this county. Landis was making his first trip, after promotion to brakeman, on a passenger train, in the employ of the Wilmington & Northern Railroad. At Wilmington, while he went around the rear of his train to place a switch, he was struck on the head by a shifting engine, and in falling was caught by the rods of the latter, whereby he was horribly mangled. The only part of his body, as reported, remaining whole was the right forearm and wrist. Deceased was 38 years of age, and left a wife and two young children to mourn his loss.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

The painstaking reader who may have been interested sufficiently in this volume to read it through, will notice a number of points, some of which are herewith appended:

The common use made of such surnames as, Benjamin, John, Jacob, Henry, etc., is apparent from the beginning of the family sketches. The word Benjamin occurs 140 times; that of John 312 times; Jacob, 153 times; and Henry, 140 times, including every portion of the book.

The remarkable increase of several members of the family is, also, noticeable. The descendants of "Brick" John Landis, of Lampeter; "Hill" John, of Manheim township, and others, can be enumerated by the hundreds. The decrease of other lineal descendants of the original stock is just as perceptible in a few instances. "So-zu-sanga" John's direct descendants, for instance, number less than a score.

A WISH.

The writer, in conclusion, indulges the hope that, among many others of the large Landis family, he may witness in the year 1917 a grand gathering of descendants of the pioneer settlers on Lancaster county's fertile soil. To properly commemorate the bi-centennial of the arrival of the original stock, there should be such a collection of Landis folk as to make the event, in point of numbers alone, one of much significance. Besides, it would naturally leave in its wake many pleasant memories.
