1. To the memory of our family's wise ancestors, who chose America to be our homeland, and, within its borders, selected one of its garden spots, the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, for their home;

2. To the success and happiness of the generations of our present, scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific and engaging in many forms of productive endeavor;

3. To the increased perpetuity of that success and happiness for our generations to come; and

4. Especially to the blessed memory of Conrad and Hannah Myers Rodeffer, the Author's father and mother, whose love and sacrifices gave her a joyous girlhood and established the foundation of a happy life,

This Book Is Affectionately Dedicated.
Foreword

The family relationship is the oldest and most sacred of human life. Even God, in the Bible, is regarded as Father, and mankind as His children.

Because of the depth and sanctity of the blood tie, kindred usually turn to each other for sympathy and understanding, or for inspiration to nobler living. It is but natural and proper that persons of the same family connections should seek to know more about each other. This interest extends not only back to those who have gone on before but feels outward for those who are living today.

This book has been compiled as a medium through which the Rodeffers of Rockingham County, Virginia, and their connections, past and present, may be bound together through a knowledge of each other. Too long the priceless facts about the lives of our forefathers have remained unrecorded. Neglect in many cases has allowed the data to escape forever beyond our reach.

In this account, a conscientious attempt has been made to roll back the curtain of time as far as public records reveal, and to collect in permanent form the principal available facts about the lives of those of the present, in order that they shall not be lost to the generations of the future.

Through fifteen years the Author, by correspondence, by personal calls at many homes, and by searching in public archives, has painstakingly compiled a roster, complete with few exceptions, of some 1,300 descendants of Conrad Rodehafer and Nancy Showalter, who were married in Harrisonburg, Virginia, January 24, 1805. The search has included the public records at Manyunk, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, now a part of the City of Philadelphia; the historical societies at Germantown, Norristown, Philadelphia and West Chester, Pennsylvania; the Pennsylvania Archives at Harrisburg; the Library of Congress, at Washington; the county court houses of Philadelphia, Montgomery, Delaware and Chester, of Pennsylvania; and of Augusta, Rockingham, Shenandoah and Frederick, of Virginia.

The Author is indebted to Colonel Henry W. Shoemaker, State Archivist, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, who made available a photostatic copy of the Oath of Allegiance and signatures of Palatines who arrived at Philadelphia from Rotterdam, Holland, October 30, 1738, aboard the ship Elizabeth, among whom was Andereas Rothenheffer, the ancestor of the Rodeffers of Rockingham County, Virginia.

Thanks and deep appreciation are extended to Joseph S. Rodeffer, of Mt. Morris, Illinois; Mrs. Kate Bowling, of Verona, Virginia; Mrs. Harry Meyerhoeffer, of Staunton, Virginia; Mrs. Willie Long Driver, of Weyers Cave, Virginia, and Mrs. V. Pearl Runcle, of Bridgewater, Virginia, for detailed information on various branches of the family; also to Mrs. Zella R. Faulk, of Modena, Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Willie B. Hilkert, of Arlington, Virginia, for aid in searching the Pennsylvania records upon which we base our early ancestry in America; also to Charles C. Rodeffer, of Keswick, Virginia, for the article on Palatine background and other valuable assistance; and to all who, in any way, helped to make this book possible.

It is hoped that the present generation will take up the torch where this record leaves off, and carry it on, both by inculcating within their children a deep interest and pride in their family’s history, and by building upon it from time to time the records of future generations. Also the Author hopes her work will be received in the same spirit of love and appreciation in which it has been written, and that it will be faithfully cherished by members of the family as an inspiration to higher achievement and Godly living.
From the Rhine to the Shenandoah

Our people left one of the garden spots of Europe—the Rhine Valley—and came to one of the garden spots of America—the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

The land of our ancestral nativity was known for a century as the Palatinate, which formed two states of the old German empire until about 1740—Upper Palatinate and Lower Palatinate. Our progenitor, as far as we can determine, came from Lower Palatinate, which lay west of the Rhine and included a strip of its valley eastward, centering about a third of the way from the source of the Rhine in Switzerland to its mouth, 400 miles away in Holland. On the west it bordered the French provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, which were taken from the French by the Germans in 1870 and were won back by the French in World War I. Again in World War II, the bloody heel of Mars trod all this area, which once more underwent its oft-repeated ordeal of being a battleground.

Among Lower Palatinate’s leading towns were Heidelberg, seat of one of the most famous of German universities; Worms, where in 1521 Martin Luther on trial defied all state and church authorities and precipitated the Protestant Reformation, and Mannheim, which Palatines who later became Americans remembered in naming a town in Pennsylvania. These may be found on maps of Germany today, and were in news accounts coming from the American Army during its advance into Germany in the Spring of 1945.

As bones of contention in the wars and inheritance squabbles of German rulers of the Eighteenth Century, Upper Palatinate eventually became absorbed into Bavaria, while Lower Palatinate was divided between Bavaria, Prussia, Baden and Hesse, other German states. Lower
RODEFFER FAMILY OF

Palatinate is said to have occupied 2,082 square miles, which made it about three times the size of Rockingham County. It was reported about 1700 to have around 500,000 people, or 250 to the square mile, while in 1939 the same area was estimated to have 1,000,000 people, or about 500 to the square mile; so it has long supported a dense population. By contrast, Rockingham County even today has little better than an average of 50 persons to the square mile. It was a land of valleys formed by the Vosges and Hardt mountains and the Rhine and its tributaries, where the earth put forth an abundance of grapes and other fruit, corn, vegetables and flax. And the area was rated as one of the most fertile parts of Europe.

Had we only a diary of Andereas Rothenheffer, our ancestor who risked his life in the Atlantic crossings of that time on the ship Elizabeth, and if it covered the years up into 1738, then we could know why he decided to come to Pennsylvania, what kind of a trip he had, and how he made his home at Philadelphia. Lacking such a priceless document, we can only try to reconstruct his probable experiences through the record of the thousands of Palatines who came as he must have come, fleeing an Egypt of oppression for the Land of Canaan that was America.

I. WHY THEY CAME

What circumstances could have driven the home-loving Palatines across three thousand miles of raging Atlantic into a strange country, when shipping conditions were so horrible as to be almost beyond conception for us today? The answer to that question has negative and positive phases—repelling forces and attracting forces.

In the role of repelling villains in the story were such characters as the electors of the Palatinate, with their disregard for human rights, and the rulers of nearby states (notoriously including Louis XIV of France, the Hitler of his day), who scourged the area with their wars.

Important on the attracting side of the migration was Queen Anne, of England, who came to the throne in 1702, and who adopted a policy of encouraging harassed German Protestants to settle in English territory in the New World. She hoped thus to bolster British power there against the rivalry of Catholic France and Spain. Then there was William Penn, the Quaker lord proprietor of Pennsylvania, who had made a favorable impression in a preaching tour of Holland and Germany with a message of religious freedom in a new land.

Also allied with the attracting influences were commercial agents, the representatives of British and Dutch ship owners, who sought revenue through inducing Germans in droves to take passage for America. These, however, turned out to be more villains than heroes in the great mass drama.

Dr. John W. Wayland, of Harrisonburg, Virginia, our Valley of Virginia historian, in The German Element in the Shenandoah Valley, gives us an idea of these repelling conditions when he lists five devastating wars that ripped up the Palatinate almost continuously for a century, keeping it in economic prostration. There were the Thirty Years' War, 1618-1648; the Spanish Netherlands War, 1667-1668; the War with the Protestant Netherlands, 1672-1678; the War of the Palatinate, 1688-1697, and the War of the Spanish Secession, 1701-1714.

The War of the Palatinate doubtless created the greatest immediate distress and did most to set off the great flood of Palatine migration to America, and Louis XIV was the aggressor cause. On the death of the Elector Palatine Charles, who left no heir, Louis claimed the territory as the inheritance of the wife of his brother, Philip of Orleans, who was Charles' sister. Without declaration of war, he marched an army in and took possession of the area, holding it until England and other surrounding enemies began to press him too close. Then, realizing that he would have to abandon the Palatinate, he determined that no one else should benefit by this rich region if he couldn't, and ordered it laid waste.

It is estimated that 100,000 people were left homeless. Even the vineyards, the fruit trees and the crops were destroyed. Distress was so great that Palatines in thousands were ripe for a wholesale migration toward the most promising haven of refuge of which they knew—America. And, thanks to Louis and the others, a larger number of emigrants came from Lower Palatinate than any other part of Germany.

Added to wars from without and oppressions within, and the hard times these conditions created, was the important factor of religious persecution. While five wars within one hundred years were crushing the physical possessions of the people, four changes of official state religion were wrecking their religious security. All three of the principal religions of the region at that time had their turn at ruling the Palatinate—Catholic, Lutheran, and Reformed or Calvinist. Each took advantage of its political position to persecute the adherents of the others. Louis, while the territory was under his heel, systematically attempted through persecution to Romanize everybody. The poor Protestant Palatines suffered from the further disadvantage that they occupied a small area almost surrounded by Catholic territory.

Thus beset by the inroads of external rulers, and the religious persecutions, extortionate taxes and profligate living of their own, it took but one thing more to induce the Palatines to migrate—the prospect of a better country. And this better country was advertised in Queen Anne's Golden Book, the flowery promises of the shipping agents, and the first-hand reports of Germans who had been in America.

Perhaps most notable of the reports on America was that published in 1702 by Daniel Falckner, who had spent some time in Pennsylvania. It told about the friendly reception and assistance shown to earlier German emigrants, who began appearing in American colonies as early as 1682—the year William Penn went to take possession of his new land.

In settlement of a debt of 16,000 pounds owed to his father's estate by the British government, Penn in 1681 received a grant of all land west of the Delaware River extending north and south three degrees of latitude (about 150 miles), and east and west five degrees of longitude (about 300 miles)—limits preserved in the Pennsylvania boundaries to this day. His declared purpose was to found a free commonwealth without discrimination as to religion, race or social position. He further proposed to purchase the land from the Indians and to deal with them always in a fair and friendly manner. It was veritably a made-to-order haven for the oppressed and persecuted of Europe, an answer to the prayers of the Palatines.

Founded on a concept of the cooperation of neighbors, the new colony cultivated a spirit of unity and security through tolerance that quickly bore fruits of prosperity and rapid development. Starting from nothing in 1682, Philadelphia in four short years outstripped New York, which had been growing since 1614 with sixty-eight years’ start. Penn’s was a proposition that appealed to persons who wanted to make something of themselves and get ahead in the world; and when the full import of it reached the Palatines, they were prepared to receive it.

The English, doubtless capitalizing on a favorable impression already prevailing, about 1705 got out their famous Golden Book, so called because of its ornamented title page stamped in gold. It contained a picture of Queen Anne and was filled with milk-and-honey descriptions of the English colonies in America. Sydney George Fisher, in his Making of Pennsylvania, credits the influence of this book with creating “a landslide toward the New World” in 1708-1709.

Joined to British propaganda and the first-hand reports of Germans who had seen America was the troop of agents, representing ship owners, who stood to reap handsome commissions from persuading passengers to engage passage to America. Their methods, accordingly, had all the oily exaggerations of the high pressure salesman today, plus some tricks to which no reputable peddler now would be so low as to resort. They pictured America as a land where peasants became noblemen and townsmen became counts, where each servant boy was a master and each maid a mistress. They told of money heaped in piles, and declared everybody was handsomely dressed in the finest cloth, carried gold watches, wore chains and rings of gold, and rode in stately coaches with trains of attendants. How.
in such a land anybody with the status of attendant could be possible, they never paused to explain, though possibly they tried to make a point of the convenience of black slaves in the colonies.

Scattered among these purveyors of ballyhoo were agents who made their appeal to the deeper instincts of man, and it was doubtless these who impressed the Palatines. They told of the rich land, which any man could own in abundance; of the freedom of religion and the democratic government, which enabled a man to be his own master. They also affirmed that, with proper hard work and diligence, an ordinary man in America could soon reach the status enjoyed only by the nobleman in Germany.

Unprincipled agents, to attract the Mennonites and other religious bodies in large groups, disguised themselves as preachers, the better to win confidence. For all prospects who pleaded that they could not afford the trip, the agents always had a ready answer—they would be taken to America on credit. There was no mention of the virtual slavery to which they would sell themselves in the redemption traffic, working for some colonist until their fare had been declared paid. The very last and lowest resort of some of the agents was to get their prospects drunk and obtain their signatures to the slavery contracts. How, the agent cared not, so long as he delivered another passenger for a ship and pocketed his commission.

The total effect of this complex of repelling and attracting influences was a mighty emigration of Germans that continued until the American Revolution broke out in 1776, pausing only for the duration of the French and Indian War.

The Palatine migration, as already noted, began with 1682 but did not gain real momentum until the extremely cold winter of 1708-1709, the historians say. This was the blow that broke loose the forces that had been long accumulating. That winter the grapevines froze to their roots; the wine became solid in its casks; the winter grain was killed. There seemed then but one thing to do; so the Spring of 1709 found Palatines in droves floating down the Rhine in boats, on rafts, or almost anything else that would carry them, with all their earthly possessions in bundles, boxes and chests, bound for Holland. One authority says that 32,468 of them set out that first year.

And for nearly seventy years afterward the emigrants kept coming—some years only a few hundred, in other years up to as many as 12,000.

The regular route of the Palatines was down the Rhine to Holland, where they sailed from Rotterdam to England, and thence to America. The first great rush overtaxed all facilities in both England and Holland for taking care of them. While they awaited passage across the sea, they were kept in special camps, where conditions of crowding, bad sanitation and food shortage brought on disease and death. About a thousand of them died the following winter, 1709-1710.

The English, alarmed at the great number of the Palatines and the conditions which their presence created, began shipping them back to Holland, or anywhere else they could find to send them. A place was found in Ireland for 3800 of them as weavers; 600 were sent to Carolina, where some of them founded New Bern; more than 3000 set out for New York, of whom only 2227 ever arrived, the rest dying at sea. The governor of New York Province, however, was unfriendly and treacherous in his dealings with the Germans, who gave the colony a bad reputation among those who were yet to migrate. Treated as vassels in New York, many of these Germans moved over into Pennsylvania, to which the major part of the German migration moved directly thereafter, including the Palatines.

Our own ancestor, Andereas, came over about midway of this great migration period. Born about the time the Golden Book made its appearance, he must have been brought up under the influence of continual talk about America. Maybe going to America became his boyhood ambition. Possibly he planned to come earlier, but filial duty to some aged father or mother kept him at home until his last sad duty had been done. Or perhaps he was only wisely cautious, waiting for more information and news from the New World before he took the plunge that would separate him from the land of his fathers forever.

II. THEIR CROSSING

Thousands of the Palatines had hardly set out from their homes when they found themselves the victims of grand rascals. The obstacles they faced are almost inconceivable to us, in a day of convenient, comfortable travel.

To begin with, they had to pass thirty or more custom houses, maintained by the so-called robber barons of the Rhine, who required fees of them before they could pass. Each stop usually meant a delay of several days, so that it took five or six weeks to reach Holland. In that time, their money and provisions were likely to be exhausted, forcing many unfortunates to sell the best years of their lives into indentured slavery, to the profit of the ship owners, on their arrival in America. Innkeepers along the lower Rhine profited at their expense.

Then there were delays in Holland of five or six weeks in obtaining passage to England, where once more they were delayed, adding all the more to their privation and loss of such resources as they had. Finally the crossing of the Atlantic required from eight to twelve weeks. In all, it must have taken many of them six months to travel from the Palatinate to Philadelphia.

Too late, many of them discovered that they had put themselves into the hands of a systematically planned migration combine that meant to strip them ruthlessly of everything they had. Many of the ship owners with whom they entrusted their lives had grown wealthy in slave trading. On their ships these owners employed the same methods of overcrowding the passengers and providing cheap, wretched food that had proved so profitable in transporting the blacks from Africa to the American colonies. They merely changed their traffic from black flesh to white.

Still, the Palatines and other Germans continued to seek passage to America, and a regular and profitable trade for ship owners and captains continued for the first fifty years or more of the Seventeenth Century. Vessels were chartered—just as for cargoes of rum, molasses and slaves, the major commodities of the shipping trade of that day—to proceed to Rotterdam and load Palatines for Philadelphia.

The unconscionable jackals who owned and captained these boats had it all worked out so they couldn’t lose—even on the poor passengers who died during the terrible crossings; for the passengers had to agree to pay for the expenses of those who died en route before they would be taken aboard. In addition, any property left by those who died was promptly claimed by the captain and sailors.

Those who could not pay for their passage, as already indicated, were sold as redemptioners. At first the fare across the Atlantic was between $30 and $50, but later was increased to $70 and $85. The new, growing country needed labor, and there was always a ready demand for the services of redemptioners until their fares had been redeemed. Indeed, many of these unhappy victims paid their fares many times over before they were released, because they were not permitted to know the terms of their indenture contract, as made by their taskmasters and the ship captains.

Children under five were not sold as redemptioners, but were given to the care of those who would promise to rear them and free them at the age of twenty-one. The services of older children were sold outright until they should reach the age of twenty-one, when they gained their freedom. Some parents, in debt to the skippers, were compelled to place their children under indenture. It was a heartless business from beginning to end.

According to the accounts of historians, the voyages of the Palatines to America must have been veritable nightmares. Jammed between decks, anywhere, everywhere, in old sailing vessels far smaller and lighter than modern steamers, the poor passengers soon succumbed to wholesale seasickness in the giddy rolling and pitching. Small ships called snows and brigs brought fifty to a hundred on a voyage, while the largest would have five and six hundred, the average running around two and three hundred. Conditions of filth and stench soon developed on most voyages, which, coupled with the meager and indecent food, the hunger, thirst and vermin, brought on such diseases as scurvy, yellow fever, dysentery, scarlet fever, and even smallpox. One by one, day after day, victims of these diseases were thrown overboard to a watery grave. And mingled with the moans of the sick and the dying were the wrangles of husbands and wives, or brothers and sisters, laying the blame on each other for ever having started off on such a trip in the first place.

So horrible were conditions on some voyages that a third—and even more—of the passengers perished. Many of those who remained arrived sick, so that the ships were described as floating hospitals and pest houses, shocking in their filth and misery. One writer states that children under seven years of age seldom survived the ordeal. Christopher Sauer, a Dunker printer of note in Philadelphia during the Seventeenth Century, estimated that as many as 2,000 of his German people had perished in a single year in crossing the Atlantic.

Added to all the other horrors of the crossing was the constant possibility of shipwreck. John Greenleaf Whittier, the Quaker New England poet, wrote a hundred years later in commemoration of the Palatine ship Herbert, which was wrecked on Block Island, off the coast of Rhode Island in Long Island Sound, lured by lights falsely placed by fiendish inhabitants, who profited by the spoils of the wreckage they thus caused. Misfortune enough had already befallen this ill-fated ship. Of the four hundred passengers with which it left England, only a hundred and five were alive, and ten of these died a few days after they were rescued from the wreckage. The ship's story had become legendary in those parts, a sort of omen.

Wrote Whittier, in part:

Old wives spinning their webs of tow,
Or rocking weirdly to and fro
In and out of the peat's dull glow,
And old men mending their nets of twine,
Talk together of dream and sign,
Talk of the lost ship Palatine,—

The ship that, a hundred years before,
Freighted deep with its goodly store,
In the gales of the equinox went ashore.

The eager islanders one by one
Counted the shots of her signal gun,
And heard the crash when she drove right on!

Into the teeth of death she sped;
(May God forgive the hands that fed
The false lights over the rocky Head!)

O men and brothers! what sights were there!
White upturned faces, outstretched in prayer!
Where waves had pity, could ye not spare?

Down swooped the wreckers, like birds of prey
Tearing the heart of the ship away,
And the dead had never a word to say.

And then, with ghastly shimmer and shine
Over the rocks and the seething brine
They burned the wreck of the Palatine.

In their cruel hearts, as they homeward sped,
"The sea and the rocks are dumb," they said:
"There'll be no reckoning with the dead."

But the year went round, and when once more
Along their foam-white curves of shore
They heard the line-storm rave and roar,

Behold! again with shimmer and shine,
Over the rocks and the seething brine,
The flaming wreck of the Palatine!
The poet then concludes that the sea and the rocks must indeed not be dumb, and the dead must indeed reckon with the living;

For still, on many a moonless night,
From Kingston Head and from Montauk light
The spectre kindles and burns in sight.

Now low and dim, now clear and higher,
Leaps up the terrible Ghost of Fire,
Then, slowly sinking, the flames expire.

And the wise Sound skippers, though skies be fine,
Reef their sails when they see the sign
Of the blazing wreck of the Palatine!

The poem is quoted because the wreck occurred in 1738, the very same year that our ancestor came over. As fate would have it, he was not a passenger of that ship—but he might have been!

Again we do not know how our ancestor fitted into this picture of danger and horror—only that we ourselves are the living evidence that he arrived safely. That he escaped the redemptioner racket, however, we may infer from the fact that about a year after his landing he married the daughter of a Philadelphia schoolmaster, a feat hardly possible under conditions of indentureship. He may even have been able to pay his way across, as many Palatines did, thus exempting himself from the power of the shipmasters, though not necessarily from the risks and hardships of the voyage.

III. FINDING A NEW HOME

After the usual two to three months of rolling on the crest of the deep amid this unspeakable wretchedness, the vessels of misery, agony and pestilence at last came to rest in the Delaware River at Philadelphia. Even yet, the woes of the pathetic passengers, many of them desperately ill, were not at an end. Although the wonderful Quakers had prepared hospitals for the aid of this constant stream of miserable humanity, the passengers often were detained aboard ship for a long time after arrival and could not take advantage of it. Perhaps this was due to the necessity of making arrangements for the immigrants in a new land not yet ready with sufficient housing; perhaps it was only the greed of the captain, who used any pretext to run up the bills for the passengers' keep, hoping to get the very last farthing they had before he let go of them.

When, finally, they were free to go ashore, they were required to take the oath of allegiance to the British crown. Palatines who first came over were not required to take the oath; but by 1717 the Germans had arrived in such numbers that Keith, the British governor, became alarmed over the flood of immigrants, ignorant of both the language and the laws, who were pouring into the province without having to give any account of themselves to anybody, and asked the Province Council to do something about it. Thus the oath was ordered to be required, but the order was only shabbily enforced, if at all, until 1727. Thereafter, all males above 16 were required to sign or affix their mark to the oath. Thus, together with ships' rosters, it became possible for I. D. Rupp to compile and publish his Thirty Thousand Names of German, Swiss, Dutch and French Immigrants, 1727-1776, in which our ancestor's name is to be found.

After the first few painful days in strange surroundings, the Palatines' outlook on life in the new America must have glowed quickly into rosy hues. Here they were in a democratic society with liberal laws that openly welcomed them and went out of its way to make them feel at home; besides, there were so many of their own kind in Philadelph'a to keep them company. Then they must have been quite busy arranging for living quarters and finding a means of livelihood.

The business they knew best was farming, and to that they turned, excelling all other settlers in the Province of Pennsylvania. They took better care of their livestock, used better methods of cultivation and farm management and built better barns—bank barns like they were used to back in the Rhine Valley. They also brought with them a sense of tidiness in farming, and their premises looked better than the others because of the straight, trimmed fencerows, the carefully shaped fields and the neat arrangements of their houses, barns and outbuildings.

They, too, knew how to pick out the best land, showing a preference for limestone areas. Unlike other settlers, who shrank from areas forested with big trees because of the greater labor of clearing, the Palatines knew the heavy growth meant rich soil, and gladly undertook the extra work. In many cases, they shrewdly bought land cheap from other settlers who had nearly starved on it, then, through their superior methods of farming, proceeded to grow rich. Thus they came to replace many English settlers, and even some of the hardy, thrifty Scotch-Irish. One-third to one-half of Pennsylvania's population today is estimated to be of German descent.

While other colonists built huge fireplace chimneys at each end of their houses, requiring extra labor and expense to build, the Germans, again following the pattern of the fatherland, built only one central chimney and heated their homes with stoves. This not only saved cost in construction but meant economy in fuel consumption and conserved wood-gather ing time for more productive activity.

The Germans hated debt and were punctual in their payments. Almost to a man, their word was as good as their bond. They worked hard from sunup to sundown, and longer, and brought up their children to do likewise. They believed in a simple, sincere, inelaborate type of Protestant religion, and strove for a high standard of private and public conduct. Few of them ever held slaves, like the English and other settlers, partly because of their religious beliefs, but doubtless also because they instinctively realized that involuntary servitude could not attain the standards of skill and productive efficiency that they required.

Most of the Palatines settled in those Pennsylvania counties surrounding Philadelphia, particularly in Lancaster, Lebanon, Berks and York. But they had come in such numbers during that part of the Seventeenth Century leading up to the Revolutionary War that the land was soon all taken. Later descendants of the early immigrants, therefore, had to look elsewhere for more ambitious opportunities to expand. Ready-made for them and beckoning was the nearby new homeland to the southwest—the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, where Germans had been settling since 1730 or before. Their first settlement, opened in 1726 or 1727, was called “Massanutting,” and lay along Massanutton Mountain to the east, near the present boundary of Rockingham and Page Counties.

In the Valley lay an expanse of good, cheap land, which, in 1732, sold for thirty to thirty-five dollars for a hundred acres. First officially visited by Alexander Spottswood and his Knights of the Golden Horseshoe in 1716, it became a part of Spottsylvania County in 1721. When Orange County was sliced off from Spottsylvania in 1734, the Valley area lay in the new county.

By 1743, so many settlers had come into the Valley that Frederick County was formed as the first Valley county, and two years later, 1745, Augusta was created. This second Valley county reached to the top of the Blue Ridge on the east, to the northern border of what is now Rockingham County on the north, extended south to include Botetourt County, and spread as far west as anybody in that time dared to venture to make their home. Shenandoah County was taken from Frederick in 1774, and Rockingham County, the old home place of our family record here, was carved off of Augusta in 1778—two years after the Declaration of Independence. It is therefore a strictly American county, and not a British one.

By 1800 the Valley was full, and the overflow settlers, who found the choice locations all taken up, sought their fortunes in Ohio and lands to the west. Almost entirely, it had been settled by second and third generation Americans who moved in from the older colonies along the Atlantic Seaboard. So predominantly were they Germans that to this day, Professor Wayland estimates, three-fourths of the people of Rockingham, Shenandoah and Page Counties are of German descent, and one-half of those in Augusta, Frederick and Warren Counties.
Conrad Rodehafer, with his brother, William, the first Rodeffers of Rockingham County, arrived in 1799—just in time to secure a small piece of the rapidly diminishing good land, locating near the present site of Mill Creek Church, not far from that branch of the Shenandoah known as North River. Conrad remained in the Valley and became our forebear; William later joined the movement to Ohio.

Few new settlers came into the Valley after 1800; most of its people have grown from stock that was planted there in the last half of the Seventeenth Century. And our own folks of that time barely beat the deadline.

The Rodeffers In Pennsylvania Records

The record begins with the arrival of the ship Elizabeth at the Port of Philadelphia, October 30, 1738, from Rotterdam, carrying 95 passengers who were fleeing the persecution of the German Palatinate. Among these passengers was Andreas Rothenheffer (Rupp's Immigrants in Pennsylvania 1727-1766).

The Elizabeth was the first ship arriving at this port that listed only male passengers over 16, so that out of the 95 passengers 41 names were listed, the names on the ship's roster and those on the Oath of Allegiance being identical. These Palatines did not know English. Those who signed for themselves did so in German, while those who could only make their mark were signed for in English. Andreas (meaning 'the manly') Rothenheffer signed his own name, thus:

\[\text{Signature: Andreas Rothenheffer}\]

After his arrival in America, the name soon became Anglicized to Andrew Redheiffer, with variations.

Andrew Redheiffer married Margaret Morse, daughter of John Morse, a Philadelphia schoolmaster, about 1739.

From the Pennsylvania Archives we gather the following:

In Military Record, 1775-1783, Andrew Redheiffer, Jr., Conrad Redheiffer and Jacob Redheiffer were listed as serving in the Revolutionary War with the Philadelphia County Militia; Andrew, Jr., as Captain, Conrad as 2nd Lieutenant and Jacob as Ensign.

In Series 6 of Pennsylvania Archives, vol. 4, p. 425, Conrad Redheiffer was elected Captain of the Philadelphia County Militia, 2nd Regiment, 4th Company, July 28, 1794.

The Pennsylvania Archives also furnish information
In 1767 Andrew Redheiffer appears on the assessment books at Norristown. From 1769 to 1781 Andrew, Sr., Andrew, Jr., and Conrad Redheiffer run through the tax lists in Springfield Township together. Andrew Redheiffer disappeared from the list in 1781 and is presumed to have died.

Conrad Redheiffer was in Cheltonham Township in 1782-3, and from 1785 to 1794 in Charlestown Township.

Jacob Redheiffer is in the Norristown tax list of 1786.

William Redheffer appears on the tax lists from 1794 to 1798.

Daniel Showalter was listed the last time for taxes in Pennsylvania, in 1799.

The first census taken by the United States in 1790 lists heads of families as follows:

From these and numerous other records we gather what we believe unmistakable, indisputable conclusions. A perfect record covering those far away times is rare indeed. Here and there records have been destroyed, lost, or just hidden away in rooms full of old musty record books whose contents have not been indexed, and may never be.

We know that through the period of immigration into Pennsylvania only one named Rothenheffer entered who established himself and lived out his natural life in the state. We do not know how many children Andrew, Sr., had, but from the records we must conclude that Andrew, Jr., Conrad and Jacob were sons of Andrew, Sr.

The Joseph listed in the 1790 Census as having in his family himself, wife, young son and daughter, was not yet on the tax lists; so we presume he was the son of Andrew, Jr., as a Joseph appears in the list of Andrew's children, a complete record of which may be found at the Daughters of the American Revolution headquarters, Washington, D.
C. Andrew, Jr. married Ann Rubicum, March 16, 1761. Both are buried in St. Thomas Churchyard, Whitemarsh, Pennsylvania.

From the records we believe that William Redheffer, born 1771, was the eldest son of Conrad, the elder, and that Conrad II, born 1787, was the young son of Conrad, the elder. It is only natural to presume that William, having married Catherine, daughter of Daniel Showalter, should have gone with the Showalters to Rockingham County, Virginia, in the summer of 1799, as this was the last year that William and Daniel appeared on the Pennsylvania tax lists.

William and Catherine had three children born to them in Pennsylvania, and the fourth, Susannah, was born in Virginia in September, 1799. We also conclude that when Conrad, the elder, died in 1794 the young son Conrad went to live with his brother William and came to Virginia with him.

On January 24, 1805, this young Conrad, now 18, married Nancy Showalter, 16, in Harrisonburg, Virginia.

A review of the descent is as follows:
Andrew Redheiffer, b. in Germany, 1704, d. in Pa. 1781, 77 yrs.
Andrew Redheiffer, Jr., b. in Pa. 1740, d. in Pa. 1817, 77 yrs.
Conrad Redheiffer, b. in Pa. 1742, d. in Pa. 1794, 52 yrs.
Conrad Redheifer II, b. in Pa. 1787, d. in Va. 1857, 70 yrs.
Conrad Rodehafer III, b. in Va. 1824, d. in Va. 1905, 81 yrs.

NAME CHANGES AND VARIATIONS

The name of Andereas Rothenheffer ran through the records of Pennsylvania with these variations: Rodenheffer, Redheifer, Redheiffer, Redheffer, Rodipher, Redheifor and Ridheffer. The name now in general use in Pennsylvania is Redheiffer, pronounced 'Red-i-fer', with the accent on 'Red.'

The name Conrad (meaning 'bold in council') has these varied spellings in Germany: Konrad, Konradt, Kon-rat, Kuhnrat, Kurret, Chounrat, Kunrat, Cunrad, Con-rat and Conrat.

When William Redheffer and Conrad II went to Virginia they took the name of Rodehafer, which was generally used until about 1855, when, for a now unknown reason, all with one accord began to use the name Rodeffer.
The Showalters

It was early in the eighteenth century that the Showalters, then living in Switzerland, began to think seriously of joining the throng seeking a new home in America. Life was no longer pleasant for a peaceful people in a land constantly torn by wars, as people living in a country at war must fight for that country.

They were a plain people opposed to war, and opposing anything the victorious rulers ordered brought persecution—principally religious persecution. Why not go to America, reputed to be a land flowing with milk and honey, enough for all and to spare, and every man a king in his own domain?

The decision to go was finally made but the journey could not be speedily accomplished. They must cross Germany en route to Rotterdam, the port from which they should sail; but such crowds were before them that they must wait for their turn. During this time they settled down to farming in Germany and contented themselves as best they could while dreaming of the future home in America.

It was not until November 3, 1750, that Jacob Showalter, with his family and others, arrived at the Port of Philadelphia on the ship Brotherhood, from Rotterdam, John Thomas, captain, last of Cowes, England, carrying 300 passengers.

Daniel Showalter, son of Jacob Showalter, was born in Germany in 1738. He married Margaret Saunders, who was born in Germany in 1743, and came to America with the family of Jacob Showalter.

Daniel and Margaret had eleven children—six sons and five daughters, as follows:

Jacob Showalter married Sophia Saufley.
Joseph Showalter married Anna Rhodes.
David Showalter married Agnes Linville.
Daniel Showalter, Jr., single, died soon after the War of 1812.

George Showalter married Nancy Coffman.
John Showalter married Elizabeth Weaver.
Elizabeth Showalter married John and James Pennbacker.

Mary (Polly) Showalter married Jacob Swank.
Catherine Showalter married William Rodehafer.
Nancy Showalter married Conrad Rodehafer.
Margaret Showalter married Abraham Heathwole.

The Showalters settled first in Pennsylvania. Daniel was listed for taxes the last time in Chester County, Pennsylvania, in the year 1799. Margaret died February 1, 1816, and Daniel died May 10, 1822. Both are buried in the Trissels Church Yard (Mennonite), Rockingham County, Virginia.

William Rodehafer, born 1771, married Catherine Showalter, born 1770, daughter of Daniel. Their first child was born in Pennsylvania in 1794. William was listed for taxes in Pennsylvania the last time in 1798. The Showalter emigration from Pennsylvania to Rockingham County, Virginia, was probably made in the summer of 1799, as Susannah, fourth child of William and Catherine, was born in Virginia, September, 1799.

It is presumed that William and Conrad (called Redheffer in Pennsylvania) were sons of Captain Conrad Redheffer (referred to in the record as Conrad, the elder), who dropped from the Pennsylvania tax lists in 1794 and is presumed to have died. The son Conrad II was born in 1787. Since his brother William was married to Catherine Showalter and his father was dead, we can only presume that Conrad then a young lad, went to live with William and came with him to Virginia in the Showalter emigration.

In January, 1805, young Conrad, now eighteen, married Nancy Showalter, sixteen, in Harrisonburg, Virginia.

All of the Rodeffers and connections listed in the Genealogical Record herein, are descendants of Conrad and Nancy Showalter Rodehafer.
William Rodehafer

William Rodehafer, son of Conrad Redheiffer, was born in Pennsylvania in 1771, and died in Ohio in 1841. He was married in Pennsylvania to Catherine, daughter of Daniel Showalter. She was born in Pennsylvania in 1770, and died in Ohio in 1842. Both are buried at Bremen, Ohio.

Their first three children were born in Pennsylvania before they came to Rockingham County, Virginia in 1799. Their children are as follows:

- Margaret, b. in Pa. 1798.
- Anna, b. 1801, Mrd. Henry Brenneman, 1843, his 3rd wife. (No. 9 Brenneman History).
- Daniel, b. 1803.
- David, b. 1805.
- Mary, b. 1807.
- Catherine, b. 1809.
- Elizabeth, b. 1811.
- Lydia, b. 1813.

The records at Harrisonburg, Virginia, state that William purchased land on the North Fork of the Shenandoah River, in Rockingham County, from George Leonard and wife Susannah, in 1810. William is also found on the tax lists of 1813. He and all of his family eventually emigrated to Ohio, probably at different times, as the records would indicate.

Dr. J. W. Wayland, in his The German Element in Shenandoah Valley, mentions a John Rodehafer who, in 1817, had scruples against military service.
The Funk Family History, page 213, records that Christian Funk married Susanna Rodehafer in 1817. They moved to Augusta County, near Staunton, where they remained until 1820, when they moved to Fairfield County, Oh' o; and in 1850 to Lasalle County, Illinois, where they died, he in 1856 and she in January, 1889.
Other Rodeffer Connections

GEORGE RODEFFER

Records of children of Captain Conrad Redheiffer other than William, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1771 and died in Ohio in 1841, and Conrad II, ancestor of the Rockingham Rodeffers, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1787 and died in Virginia in 1857, are, unfortunately, incomplete. It is of record that a George Rodeffer was born in Pennsylvania in 1784, between William and Conrad II, and later came to New Market, Shenandoah County, Virginia, where he died in 1852. It appears that this George was a son of Captain Conrad and a grandson of Andereas.

George married Elizabeth Black, who was a member of the family of Jeremiah Sullivan Black, Attorney General and later Secretary of State in President James B. Buchanan's administration. She died at York, Pa., in 1883. George served in the War of 1812. Their children were Harrison, Lemuel, Elizabeth and David Mark.

David Mark Rodeffer was born November 28, 1808, and died April 17, 1874. He married Ann Sager, who was born October 2, 1811, and died December 16, 1865. Both are buried at Woodstock, Virginia.

One of David and Ann's children was James Harrison Rodeffer, who was born in 1836 and died in 1926, and who was the first mayor of Woodstock, serving 26 years in that position. He was also a Justice of the Peace and was Postmaster at Woodstock during one of President Cleveland's administrations. During the War Between the States he served in the army of Stonewall Jackson and was twice wounded in the battle of Chancellorsville.

Caddie Berry, daughter of James Harrison, married Joseph B. Clower, of Woodstock, whose son, the Rev. Joseph B. Clower, Jr., is pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Morganton, North Carolina.
RODEFFER FAMILY OF

JOHN RODEFER, SR.

In records of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Washington it was found that a John Rodefer, Sr., appeared at Wheeling, West Virginia, in 1796, where he engaged in the trade of blacksmith. It is further recorded that he married Barbara Bennett, daughter of Captain John Bennett, famous as an Indian fighter in the history of the Upper Ohio Valley.

After his marriage, he moved to a farm of 133 acres, which later became the center of Bellaire, Ohio. His son, John, Jr., was the father of Albert D. Rodefer, member of the Rodefer Brothers, glass manufacturers, who founded a prosperous business on their grandfather's farm.

It would seem that this line also is descended from Captain Conrad, son of the original Andereas. The outstanding member of the family is Charles Mayger Rodefer, who has been listed for years in Who's Who In America. He was born July 28, 1881, the son of Thornton Allan and Mary Elizabeth (Pumphrey) Rodefer; attended Hiram College, 1900-03; married Alma Myrtle Hayden, February 14, 1906; became president and treasurer of the Rodefer Glass Company in 1914, and has been a business and philanthropic leader in Bellaire, as well as prominent nationally among glass manufacturers of the United States.

THE SHENANDOAH RODEFFERS

The Author has stated that only one by the name of Rothenheffer arrived at the Port of Philadelphia during the period of emigration into Pennsylvania who established his home and lived out his natural life in the state—the Andereas Rothenheffer whom the Rockingham Rodeffers claim as their ancestor in this country. However, four years after Andereas came, another arrived at the Port of Philadelphia, who, after signing the Oath of Allegiance, did not appear on the Pennsylvania records. This was David Rothenheffer, a passenger on the ship Francis and Elizabeth, from Rotterdam, which qualified September 21, 1742.

In 1773, thirty-one years after his arrival in Philadelphia, the records at Woodstock, Shenandoah County, Vir-
Virginia, show the proving of the will of David Rothenheffer, leaving "wife Catherine, sons David, Samuel and wife Mary, John, Anthony and daughters unnamed."

The Shenandoah records also show David, Samuel and Anthony Rodeheffer and their families in the census enumerations of 1783, 1785 and 1790; also in the tax listings of 1804 are found David, Samuel, John (blacksmith), John (saddler), Jacob and Anthony Rodeheffer; also recorded is that John Rodeheffer married Polly Yackly, November 29, 1796; the will of David Rodeheffer proved in 1810, and Samuel Rodeheffer deceased in 1822.

John (saddler) who was son of Samuel, who was the son of David Rothenheffer, went to Preston County, West Virginia, on a business trip in 1796. While there he attended an ox roast and was so well pleased with the country that in 1807 he returned to Preston County to make his home on the Crab Orchard Plantation, which he purchased. He was a tanner, owned a family of slaves, and had fourteen children. On moving to West Virginia he took the name of Rodeheaver. This name is still used by a large number of his descendants. Both John and his wife, Mary Yagel, died in the fall of 1838 and are buried on the plantation. His personal slave is buried by his side.

To name a few descendants of David Rothenheffer, through his grandson, John Rodeheaver, of Preston County, West Virginia:

George Hamill Rodeheaver, now of Yough Crest Farm, Oakland, Maryland, formerly of Braddock, Pennsylvania, where he operated a printing business. For some years he edited and published an eight page periodical, The Rodeheaver Clan. He is the President of the Rodeheaver Clan and has gathered data on a family covering some four thousand persons. He is a son of Patrick Hamill Rodeheaver, son of Christian Rodeheaver, son of John Rodeheaver.

Dr. J. N. Rodeheaver, of Chicago, and Homer Rodeheaver, widely known as song writer, song leader and trombone player, are sons of Thurman Hall Rodeheaver, son of George Rodeheaver, son of John Rodeheaver.

Ed. O. and John D. Rodehaver, of Walhonding, Ohio, are progressive farmers, both general and stockraising. They are sons of Francis Lafayette Rodehaver, son of David Rodehaver, son of John Rodeheaver, who settled in Preston County, West Virginia.

LATER GERMAN EMIGRANTS

J. W. Rothenhoefer of Frederick, Maryland, traces his family back through Lorenz Rothenhoefer, born in Gundersleben, K. P. Bavaria, Germany, December 15, 1815, and married Christine Graef (Hausen) June 4, 1840. From this marriage came thirteen children, living mostly in Pennsylvania and Ohio. Lorenz was the son of Michel Rothenhoefer.

F. W. Rodenheber, radio broadcasting from Louisville, Kentucky, traces his ancestry back through one of two brothers who came from Berlin, Germany, Phillip Rodenheber locating in Chicago and Lorenz Rodenheber locating in California. Both are dead.

And so one might go on and on.
GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE RODEFFERS OF ROCKINGHAM COUNTY, VIRGINIA
Explanation of Genealogical Record

The listings in this record are numbered consecutively from 1 to 625 and bear no relation to page numbers. Conrad and Nancy Showalter Rodehafer are featured as No. 1 and the first generation in Rockingham County. Their eldest child, George, is listed as No. 2, and his eldest child who had descendants, George II, is No. 3. Then No. 4 is the eldest child of George II, and so on until the eldest of each eldest, with their descendants, have been traced down to the present before going back to list the descendants of the second child of George I.

Conrad and Nancy had nine children who left descendants, but ten children have been given feature numbers, which run through the record as follows: George, 2 through 128; Margaret, 129 through 202; William, 203 through 411; Elizabeth, 412; Catherine, 413 through 453; Polly, 454 through 462; Anne, 463 through 503; Susannah, 504 through 514; John, 515 through 560, and Conrad III, 561 through 625.

For example:

No. 12. Fourth Generation—3

2) George Samuel Rodeffer

The 'No. 12' means the twelfth person featured in the record; the 'Fourth Generation' is counted from Conrad and Nancy as the first generation, and the '3' refers to the feature number of his parents' family. The '2)' means that he is the second child of the No. 3 family, where his name will be found also.
Conrad Rodehafer, born in Pennsylvania in 1787, and Nancy Showalter, born in Pennsylvania in 1789, were married in Harrisonburg, Virginia, January 24, 1805, having immigrated to Rockingham County, Virginia, in the Showalter immigration of 1799. They settled in the southeastern part of Rockingham County, as evidenced by records of land transfers at the Court House. The old homestead is said to have been near Goods Mill, later known as the Old Samuel Petrie Place, now, in 1948, owned by J. Hubert Cline and is adjacent to the Jacob Bowman farm. On account of the destruction of records during the Civil War it is impossible to get accurate information from that source; so we fall back upon the memory of those who have had it handed down to them likewise.

Nancy died June 20, 1827, after having given birth to eleven children within twenty-two years, and was buried in the old Wise farm burying ground near Timber Ridge. When Conrad died thirty years later, he was buried with Nancy at the Wise farm. Sometime after, their remains were removed to the Mill Creek Church cemetery.

Following the death of Nancy, the eldest daughter, Margaret, mothered the family until her marriage to Daniel Long in 1833.

In December of 1834 Conrad purchased land of Richard Wingfield, presumably the tract later known as the old Evers place, between Singers Glen and Chrisman, where he moved with his family and spent the remaining years of his life.

Their children are:
3. William Rodehafer, b. Apr. 9, 1809.
5. Catherine Rodehafer, b. May 5, 1813.
10. Conrad Rodehafer, b. May 19, 1824.

Conrad took Mary Shrader for a second wife November 9, 1852. He died March 18, 1857, after which his widow, Mary Shrader Rodehafer, made her home with her stepson, Conrad Rodehafer and his wife, Hannah Myers Rodehafer. She died in January, 1861, as evidenced by the fact that her will, made in 1859, was probated in January, 1861. She was buried in the Antioch Christian Church cemetery, near Green Mount, Virginia.

Will of Mary Shrader Rodehafer

In the name of God, Amen: August 24, 1859

I, Mary Rodehafer, widow of Conrad Rodehafer, Sr., of the County of Rockingham and state of Virginia, being of sound mind and memory, and considering the uncertainty of this frail and transitory life, do therefore make, ordain, publish and declare this to be my last will and testament. That is

First, after all my lawful debts are paid and dis... consisting of personal property, ready money and all money accruing to me in any wise, I give, bequeath and dispose of to my beloved step son, Conrad Rodehafer, as a remuneration for the kindness and attention he has always bestowed upon me, and the expense I have been and may be to him hereafter.

Likewise I make, constitute and appoint Christian Myers to be executor of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by me made. In witness whereof I have here unto subscribed my name and affixed my seal the Twenty Fourth day of August, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Nine.

He enlisted in the Aviation Cadet Corps at Richmond, Virginia, in March 1942 and was placed on furlough two months as an enlisted man, after which he was ordered to Maxwell Field, at Montgomery, Alabama, for preflight training. Then followed primary training at Bennettsville, South Carolina; basic training at Cochran Field, Macon, Georgia, advanced training at the Columbus Army Flying School, at Columbus, Mississippi, from which school he graduated and received a commission as 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force, with rating of Pilot. After graduation he was assigned to the Second Air Force and ordered to Salt Lake City, Utah. From here he was sent to Blythe, California, to begin training as pilot on a B-17 for combat duty. Following this he went to Dalhart, Texas, then to Grand Island, Nebraska, where he was processed for shipment overseas. He embarked from Hampton Roads, Virginia, on the USS Argentina, destined for England and the Eighth Air Force. After arrival in Liverpool he was assigned to the 305th Bomb Group, 366th Bomb Squadron, as first pilot on a B-17 crew.

He flew four combat missions and was shot down over Wiesbaden, Germany, where he was captured and made a prisoner of war. This was October 4, 1943, and he was taken from Cologne to Dulag Luft III at Sagan, Germany, for internment, remaining here until early 1945, when the Russian approach caused the Germans to evacuate them on foot to Stalag VII-A at Mooseburg, Germany. From this place they were liberated April 29, 1945, by the American Army. After liberation he made his way across France to St. Vallery by Rheims, and then on to Le Havre, from where he sailed to Boston Harbor and Camp Miles Standish. From here he went to Fort Monroe, Virginia, and was placed on a sixty days recuperation leave, which terminated at San Antonio, Texas, where he was separated from the army and placed on inactive duty January 10, 1946.

"Conrad Long, a prosperous and widely known farmer of the Good's Mill neighborhood, was found dead Wednesday evening on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge mountain, a short distance from the Brown's Gap road. When discovered the body was lying in a private roadway, where it was evident Mr. Long had fallen from his horse. He had been dead the greater part of the day.

"Mr. Long, who lived about midway between Good's Mill and Port Republic, on what is known as the Port Republic road, left home early Wednesday morning, saying he was going to the mountain to purchase fence posts. Going by way of the Brown's Gap road, he reached the top of the mountain shortly before 9 o'clock. A mile after he had crossed the summit he met with John Garrison, whose home is near by. To Mr. Garrison he stated he was on his way to see Ad. Harris, tenant on the Harnsberger place, which was near by on a side road. He added that if he was unable to get posts from Harris, he would ride over to see Garrison: who had posts for sale.

"After the two men parted nothing more was seen of Mr. Long until his lifeless body was found by two small sons of Mr. Harris. Mr. Long's horse, a vigorous, spirited animal, was found at the Harris barn. Mr. Harris ordered it taken up and fed, believing it to be the horse of a man expected there that day from Augusta County to inspect the place with a view to buying. He presumed that the animal had escaped from its owner while the prospective purchaser was engaged in roaming over the place. When the horse had not been claimed by supper time, Mr. Harris, who was suffering with rheumatism, sent his two small sons to search for the man. They soon returned with the startling news that a man lay dead by the side of the driveway leading to the Brown’s Gap road and less than 200 yards from the barn.”

A messenger was hurriedly sent to the nearest telephone to give information to the family and the authorities. Frances Long died May 8, 1929. Both are buried at the Mill Creek Church. Farmer. Brethren.

7) LUTHER E. LONG, son of Isaac and Sarah Catherine Craun Long, was born Sept. 5, 1881, at Meyerhoeffer’s Store, Rockingham County, Virginia. He attended the Timber Ridge School, Bridgewater College and National Business College. The following will be a record of some of Mr. Long’s activities and accomplishments: Was clerk and private stenographer for the Hon. William E. Humphrey, M. C., 1903-04; stenographer in R. D. Armstrong’s Brokerage Office, Harrisonburg, Va., 1904-05; bookkeeper for Harrisonburg Milling Co., 1905-09; operated flour mill at Pleasant Valley, Rockingham County, and Rockland Milling Co., Augusta County, from 1909 to 1936. He promoted, developed and managed the Weyers Cave Light and Power Co., Weyers Cave, Va., from 1911 to 1925, and the Shenandoah River Power Co., Harrisonburg, Va., from 1925 to 1930; operated the electric system in the Town of Elkton, Va., from 1930 to 1936, and promoted engineered and managed the Shenandoah Valley Electric Cooperative from 1936. (Still managing and operating the S. V. E. Coop. in 1947).

Mr. Long grew up on the farm of his parents at Meyerhoeffer's Store where he learned early in life the value of patience, persistence and tolerance and practiced them in his business career. He was one of the first men in the United States who had the firm belief that rural people and farmers were entitled to electricity in their homes, the same as city people.

Thirty five years of pioneering in this field has resulted in the bringing of electric service to more than four out of five homes in three counties in the Valley of Virginia, viz., Augusta, Rockingham and Shenandoah. The magnitude and the way Mr. Long has handled this development have won for him nationwide recognition and a prominent place in Men of Mark. There are at present in the three counties mentioned more than 10,000 homes, or 50,000 people enjoying the electric lights and the unnumbered electrical appliances and helps as a direct result of his efforts and work.

Mr. Long has been honored and privileged to serve in many key positions in state and national associations. He is a Mason, an Elder in the Evangelical and Reformed Church, is active in Sunday School, being Superintendent almost continuously for the past 35 years; has taken active interest in P. T. A. and other community activities. He enjoys league baseball, likes to bowl and is especially enthusiastic about his farm and pure bred Hereford cattle.

He was married October 3, 1905 to Sada Washington Wagoner, of Port Republic, Va., born February 22, 1884. They reside at Weyers Cave, Va.

He was inducted into the U. S. Army as a noncombatant, December 27, 1943, at New Cumberland, Pennsylvania, and was sent to Camp Barkley, Texas, for basic training. After a three months course at the William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Texas, he graduated as a medical technician, June 7, 1944, and was sent to Camp Reynolds, Pennsylvania, for further orders.

September 20, 1944, he embarked for Camp Shanks, New York, on the Queen Mary, arriving five days later in England, where he spent a month in practical hospital work. November 1 he crossed over to France and November 9th was assigned to the Third Medical Battalion of the Ninety-Ninth Division, in Hodges’ First Army, stationed in Belgium.

The aid station in which he was assisting in attending both allied and enemy wounded was surrounded the night of December 17, during the Battle of the Bulge, and he and nineteen others were taken prisoners. Forced to march five days without food and allowed very little water, he arrived at Bonn the day before Christmas. Three days later, he and many others were packed in filthy box cars, and transported, by night only, to Stalag IV-B, near Muhlenburg, on the Elbe, arriving on January 1. The train was strafed by Allied planes, but the prisoners were spared.

Here he remained as one of 25,000 American, English, French, Dutch and Russian prisoners, with very little to eat, for several months, until a troop of Russian Cossacks one day rode through camp and told them they were free. They were taken to Rieso until American trucks came and transported them to Halle. May 26, 1945, they were flown to Le Havre, France, where they remained until June 15 for passage home. He arrived at Newport News, Virginia, June 30, and reached home July 3 to greet his family, whom he had not heard from since the preceding December. He received his discharge October 15, 1945, at Camp Crowder, Missouri. Now employed with the Hershey Chocolate Corp.

After graduating from the Edom High School he went to work with the Harrisonburg Grocery Company, rising to position of second foreman. He was drafted for service in World War II on April 3, 1944. Owing to a previously broken ankle never grown strong he was given service on the home front, through Camp Meade, Maryland, to Camp Grant, Rockford, Illinois, and to Mayo's General Hospital, Galesburg, Illinois—at the latter place attached to the Medical Corps. He received his discharge at Camp Meade. Returned to take up his old job. He owns his home three miles south of Harrisonburg, on the Valley Pike, where his wife and children remained during his service in the army. His wife, Isa, is a registered graduate nurse. She does part time duty.

CONRAD RODEHAFER, son of Conrad and Nancy Shownwalter Rodehafer, was born May 19, 1824, at the old Rodehafer Homestead near Goods Mill, Rockingham County, Virginia, later known as the Samuel Petrie place. When he was about ten years old, his father moved to what was known as the Eavers place, near Chrisman, Virginia. As he grew up on a farm, it was natural to become a farmer. however, he had a turn for music and conducted classes in vocal music. He also took a prominent part in the social life of the community. He not only had an ear for music but was possessed of a good voice which remained with him through life—even up to his eighty-first year. His place in church was on the front bench where he took part in the opening hymn. He was a quiet man, never known to laugh aloud, but would literally shake with silent glee.

November 1, 1855, he married Hannah Myers (then known as Moyers) daughter of Christian and Mary Cline Myers, of Green Mount, Virginia. The first years of their wedded life were spent in the old Jessie Jones house, up the hollow from the Christian Myers place, while the stone house was being built that was to be their lifetime residence. This house was built on a strip of land which was the west end of the Christian Myers farm given to Hannah Myers Rodeffer by her father, Christian Myers. Conrad purchased other land west of this tract up to the then called back road which made an 125 acre farm. The Christian Myers farm was acquired through a grant from King George III.

When the Civil War came on Conrad was drafted and served three months in the Union Army, after which he was given a medical discharge on account of varicose veins in his legs. Since the Valley of Virginia was the tramping grounds of both armies, he moved his family of wife and three children out of the war zone to a place in Ohio, situated on the Richmond and Eaton Pike, near Eaton, called Good Intent. The fourth child, John William, was born in Ohio. After the close of the war they returned to their home at Green Mount, Virginia. where they spent the remainder of their lives. They were affiliated with the Brethren Church. Conrad died November 21, 1905, aged 81 yrs, 6 mo. and 2 days. Hannah died August 28, 1910, aged 75 yrs, 2 mo. and 11 days. Both are buried in the Green Mount Cemetery.

Their children are:
5. Samuel Aldine Rodeffer, b. May 13, 1867.
8. Carrie Effie Rodeffer, b. Mch. 29, 1876.

No. 562 Third Generation—561

1) Dewitt Marion Rodeffer, son of Conrad and Hannah Myers Rodeffer, was born October 8, 1856, at the old Jessie Jones House. He received his education in the public schools and Bridgewater College and taught for several years before his marriage to Orra B. Nisewarner, late of Turleytown, Virginia, but formerly from Berryville, Virginia. She was born February 20, 1859. They were married September 25, 1879, by Rev. Isaac C. Myers, Uncle of Dewitt.

Not being one to stay put and being capable of doing many things, Dewitt spent the larger part of his life trying out first one or another activity as it might appeal to him, be it farming, milling, business, politics, photography, salesmanship, etc. So through the years he lived variously at Turleytown and Broadway, Virginia; Citra, Florida, where he was Mayor of the Town until the great freeze of the late 1880s when the life blood of the Town was destroyed; then again Turleytown, Virginia; Coatesville, Pennsylvania; Frederick, Maryland; Seymour, Wisconsin, and Folsom, New Jersey. At this latter place he established his permanent residence, becoming the Secretary of the Borough Council, President of the School Board and Tax Assessor. He passed away March 11, 1928, and is buried in the cemetery at Coatesville, Pennsylvania. His widow makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Bertie Russell, of Gap, Pennsylvania. Methodist.

1) Zella May Rodeffer, daughter of Dewitt Marion Rodeffer, was born July 30, 1880, at Turleytown, Virginia. She was married by her great oncle, the Rev. Isaac C. Myers, on November 22, 1899, to Delaney W. Faulk, of Kata¬wa, Kentucky. Mr. Faulk was born August 18, 1876. He is a professional photographer.

After their marriage they went to Coatesville, Pennsyl¬vania, where they established themselves in business and in the community life of the city. She is a very public spirited person as evidenced by the number of organiza¬tions with which she has been identified: An active member of the Methodist Church and in which she has held local, district and conference offices; served in production ser¬vice of the S. E. Chapter of Red Cross 28 years of continu¬ous service for which she received an award; served as Chairman of Home Nursing, First Aid and Disaster Relief; was President of Coatesville Visiting Nurse Association. Coatesville Century Club, Coatesville High School P. T. A., and Chester County Children’s Aid Society; a Board Mem¬ber of the County Health and Welfare, T. B. Society, Chester County Crippled Children’s Society, Chester County Parent Teachers Association; also member of Associated Charities Board, Y. W. C. A.; Coatesville Hospital Auxiliary; Needle Work Guild of America; Nursing Service of Defense Council during World War II, etc. They lived in Coatesville for many years. More recently they purchased one of the fine old homes for which Pennsylvania is noted, “Ten Acres,” at Modena, Pennsylvania, which is only a few miles out of Coatesville, where Mr. Faulk maintains his photographic studios. Methodist. Coatesville and Mod¬ena, Pennsylvania.

2) Zaida Itura Rodeffer, daughter of Dewitt Marion Rodeffer, was born December 7, 1881, at Turleytown, Virginia. She was married first to J. C. Bowers, of Harrisonburg, Virginia. They were divorced. She entered into a second marriage with Dudley G. Rowell, railway equipment manufacturer, of Appleton, Wisconsin.

Zaida is possessed of a striking and attractive personality. Active in church and community service until the loss of sight in one eye followed in a few years by total blindness curtailed this work; however she is far from idle, busying herself with many household duties, even to taking the part of a practical nurse for her ill husband when another could not be secured. Finding herself in the dark she immediately took up reading and writing by the Braille system for the blind. To those who see she writes in long hand, using a sliding line guide. She appreciates and counts it a blessing to have seen and known the beauties of the earth, and cherishes her memories. The courage and enthusiasm with which she faces life may well be an inspiration to all whose lives touch hers.

1) LaVerne Anna Rodeffer, daughter of Carl Dewitt Rodeffer, was born February 17, 1915, at Philadelphia; died February 22, 1932, at Coatesville, Pennsylvania. Although she had been afflicted with a spinal trouble for some years, the fatal attack was unexpected and sudden. At the time she was a junior in the Coatesville High School. She was of a gentle thoughtful nature and given to writing poems running to the serious, as the following triolet:

The night is measureless; no voice, no cry
Pierces the dark in which the planet swings.
It is the shadow of her bulk that flings
So deep a gloom on the great sky;
This scrupulous dust, this phantom that is I Cowers in shelter while the evening brings
A sense of mystery; and now all things
Waver like water and are gliding by.

2) Carl Samuel Rodeffer, son of Carl Dewitt Rodeffer, was born July 19, 1918, at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Finished the Sadsburyville grade school in 1932 and graduated from the Coatesville High School in 1936. After this he went to work, first taking a job with Faulk's Studio; then with Lukens Steel Company for one year; gang watchman for Pennsylvania Railroad; salesman for W. T. Raleigh Company for one year, and with By-Products, Coatesville, from 1939 to 1943, when he was drafted for the armed forces for World War II.

He was inducted in U. S. N. R. October 1, 1942, at Philadelphia, and sent to Great Lakes for boot training. While there he passed the Eddy Test for radio technician; then to Wright Junior College, Chicago, for four weeks of pre-radio training. Completing this he was sent to Texas A. & M. College for a course in primary radio work, graduating May, 1944, as a radio technician, 3rd class; then to Bellevue at the Naval Research Laboratory, at Anacostia. After three and one half months was sent to Oceanside, California, for advanced training in field and mobile equipment and in Morse Code work; then to Tanforan, a Naval Personel Depot; then to Treasure Island for transfer for duty beyond the Continental Limits of the U. S. January 3, 1945 sailed for Pearl Harbor, reaching there on January 8th. Was attached to Communications Unit, doing repair and maintenance work on radio receiving and transmitting sets; went on maneuvers for a week and also stood radio watches in the mountains. While going to stand a watch was stricken ill and taken to Base Hospital, finally landing in the Naval Hospital at Boston, Massachusetts, where he underwent six weeks of tests and experiments before being given a Medical Discharge on May 25, 1945, with a perfect conduct record.

In his home community he remembers as high points in his life: He received the last Oxford Bible ever to be given away free by the Presbyterian Church Board at Philadelphia; was awarded a medal in High School for being tops in class of mathematics and science; received the Eagle Scout Badge with One Palm while attached to the Boy Scouts of America; served as trustee of the Upper Oc-torara Presbyterian church for two years; Sunday School teacher for three years. Since the war he has built a new home where he lives with his widowed mother and young brother, at Sadsburyville, Pennsylvania.

6) Sallie Frances Rodeffer, daughter of Conrad and Hannah Myers Rodeffer, was born August 5, 1869, at the old stone house near Green Mount, Virginia. She was married Sept. 14, 1904 to David Hopkins Rolston, son of Benjamin and Eliza Rolston, of Amberly, Rockingham County, Virginia. He was born October 28, 1878.

From childhood he was an outstanding personality. He was a country lad who loved the good earth and was full of appreciation of the things that came forth from it. Being a lover of nature and a friend of animals, in later life he often spoke of himself as a shepherd boy tending his Father's sheep.

After the public schools he went to West Central Academy, Mt. Clinton, Virginia, and in 1900 entered Washington and Lee University, from which institution he graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, making four years in three, and standing first in his class. Then came marriage and four years of study and training for the ministry in Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia. He did pulpit supply work all through the period of study in the Seminary. He never had to seek a place to preach. The place sought him. After graduation he went as evangelist to Glady, West Virginia, for one year, then to the Second Presbyterian Church, Petersburg, Virginia, from which place he was called to the First Presbyterian Church of Charlotte, North Carolina, 1911.
His first sermon preached at Charlotte was taken from Isaiah 55: 6-7. Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.

He was often spoken of as The Gospel Preacher; and it was said of him that in his church courts no one out-classed him in ability or influence; he directed thought and action. Shortly before his passing he was elected Moderator of the Synod of North Carolina.

He never spared himself when there was work to do. The First World War was on with increased opportunity for service in Camp and Hospital work, which, added to his regular pastoral duties, proved too much, and he passed away after a three day illness, November 21, 1917.

His last sermon was taken from Matthew 10:39. He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

After his death Sallie retired to the old Benjamin Fielding Rolston Home Estate, four miles northwest of Harrisonburg, Virginia, which they had purchased some time before for a retreat.

ADDENDUM TO NO. 615

As the years passed by Carrie Rodeffer Power became an active and prominent club woman, extending her interest in gardening and art. Known as a nature lover and huntswoman, iris, lilies and water gardening becoming a hobby to such an extent that she came to be known as the mother of water gardening on the Peninsula. She has been popular as a speaker on club programs, giving inspirational talks, demonstrations and book reviews. She also staged and judged in many flower shows. Finding that Virginia had no set Arbor Day, backed by her garden group and approved by the Virginia Federation of Women’s Clubs, she presented a resolution to the State Legislature to the end that an act was passed at the 1938 session of the General Assembly of Virginia designating the second Friday in March of each year as Arbor Day.

She led her club in doing outstanding war work, and sponsored classes in lipreading for the hard of hearing. She is a Past Matron in the Order of the Eastern Star.

As her latest hobby she has taken up painting and has done many beautiful scenes which will be cherished by her relatives and friends.

An able, talented, versatile, loving woman, whom God has blest.
