THE AUTHOR

Dellmann Osborne Hood b. August 10, 1887 in Lower Mecklenburg County, N. C., started his business career in 1902 as a telegraph operator in Charlotte, N. C. He soon developed the roaming spirit, characteristic of telegraph operators of those times, and worked in telegraph message relay centers in a number of the larger cities of the South and East. Graduating to the elite of the telegraph profession, he became a Morse operator for the Associated Press and other press associations, rounding his career at the "key" with the private leased wire telegraph system of the well known stock brokerage firm of E. F. Hutton and Company in San Francisco and Chicago.

He served throughout World War I as a First Lieutenant and Captain respectively with the 307th Field Signal Battalion, 82nd Division, which included much combat service on the Western front in France. The only air force service was then attached as a part of the Signal Corps, in which he saw some service as an aerial communications officer. His ground assignments included infantry regiments in which Sergeant Alvin C. York and Major (later Major-General) Jonathan M. Wainwright were members. At the close of hostilities he was commanding officer of the 307th Signal Battalion, 82nd Division, and acting major.

Shortly following his discharge from army service he moved to the Pacific Northwest, and in 1920 established a stock brokerage business in Portland, Oregon. Later, in 1923, he was joined by his brother, the late Ernest R. Hood who had moved to Portland from Charlotte, N. C., at which time they established the investment securities firm of Hood Brothers. Among their principal clients was the Giannini-Bank of America banking system, with branches throughout California, whom they represented. in the purchase of most banks now constituting the vast Giannini-Transamerica founded branch banking system in Oregon and Washington, now the largest such system in the Northwest. In 1928, they also entered the public utility field, organizing the Columbia Utilities Company whose initial operation was a hydro-electric power system in Columbia County, Oregon. They sold this property just ahead of the financial crash in 1929, and marked time for several years during the depression period, after which they re-entered the public utility field with the purchase and expansion of independent telephone properties in Southern Oregon and Northern California. These family-owned telephone properties were merged with the nation-wide United Utilities Telephone System, in 1958, at which time the two brothers semi-retired as management consultants of the United Telephone System, now the second largest independent telephone system in the nation.

Dellmann O. Hood was appointed by President Herbert Hoover in 1928 as a director of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Portland, Oregon, in which capacity he served three two-year terms. He also served as a director of the First National Bank of Klamath Falls, Oregon, and with his brother purchased the Estacada (Oregon) State Bank, which they later sold to the First National Bank of Oregon. He served for twelve years as President of the Oregon Independent Telephone Association, and for ten years as a director of the United States Independent Telephone Association, national trade association of the independent telephone industry.

He has taken considerable time out of his crowded business career to devote to public service. He served three terms as a member of the Port of Portland (Oregon) Commission, and various advisory committees for the City of Portland and State of Oregon. When Major-General Charles H. Martin was elected Governor of Oregon in 1933, he drafted Mr. Hood, who had managed his campaign, as Budget Director for the State of Oregon. In this capacity he made important contributions in straightening out the state's strained financial affairs, restoring its credit to top rating for its securities. He moved to Medford, Oregon in 1942 to assume active management of the fast growing family-owned telephone operations, and now makes Medford his permanent home.
FOREWORD

There comes a time in the lives of many persons, particularly those of the older generations, when the identity and national origin of one's earliest American forebears, so often shrouded in darkness, becomes a matter of consuming interest. But, it seems incredible that so many members of probable deep-rooted American families know so little about their early American lineage. Especially is this true of younger generation members. It is an astonishing fact that many young Americans today are unable to name their four grandparents, and there are some who cannot identify two.

Family heritage should be a matter of great interest to every American, particularly those who have reason to believe themselves descendants of early American ancestors. In this connection, Edmund Burke wrote many years ago:

“People who never look backward to their ancestors will never look forward to posterity.”

Daniel Webster wrote this passage on ancestry: “It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who are regardless of their ancestors . . . do not perform their duty to the world.”

From Cicero came this observation: “Not to know what came to pass before you were born, is always to remain a child.”

And from the Holy Bible this admonishment: “Enquire, I pray thee, of the former Age, and prepare thyself to the search of their Fathers.” Job 8. 8.

Tracing family ancestries is not necessarily an impossible undertaking, even where family records have not been well preserved, if the interest and will to undertake research on the part of some family member is strong enough. In most states old public and church records have been fairly well preserved, some exceptionally so.
Only in several of the Southern states, notably Georgia and South Carolina where so many court houses and some churches were burned by Sherman's army "scorched earth" campaign during the War Between the States, is the task more frustrating through lack of reliable public and church records.

Happily, there now appears to be developing to some considerable extent a resurgent and growing interest among many American family members in researching the identities of their early American forebears, and recording their findings for family posterity. Such is my own primary interest in undertaking this family research project. The growing attendance at the various genealogical libraries, county court record rooms, church, state and national record archives around the country reflects widespread interest in this connection. Ancestor hunters appear to be again on the march.

When I began this research some twelve years ago, I had fully expected to start with a search of 18th Century ship arrivals at South Atlantic ports, most likely Charleston, S. C., for trace of three Scotch-Irish immigrant Hood brothers among passenger lists. It had been a tradition in my family in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, where I was born and reared, that we were descendants of one Tunis Hood, believed to be one of three Scotch-Irish brothers who had emigrated to America from Scotland or Northern Ireland sometime prior to the outbreak of the American Revolutionary War. Tradition advised that all three were American veterans of that struggle for freedom. That they were Scotch-Irish had been generally taken for granted, for no better reason than the general community knowledge that most of the earliest settlers of Mecklenburg County were Scotch-Irish stock, with a sprinkling of Germans and possible Holland Dutch.

The three immigrant brothers legend has become more or less legion among a great many early American families. Such tradition however, has not stood up very well when exposed to competent family research, and usually evokes a skeptical smile from experienced genealogists when offered as an ancestral clue. An early historian has observed however, that all traditions were originally based on fact. Blood relatives, especially older generation members, naturally retain reasonably accurate recollections of family members whose personal ancestral backgrounds are of material interest to them. Such recollections passed along to succeeding generations, in time become somewhat distorted as to details, but often elements of truth do remain. Such traditions therefore frequently do afford valuable clues that often lead to ultimate verification of vital family records. This proved to be true in connection with the Tunis Hood family.

Tradition among Mecklenburg County Hood families had advised that the names of the three legendary Hood brothers were Tunis, John and Reuben. Verified records however, have identified them as Tunis, John and Jacob. There was a Reuben, and also a Solomon, but they came in the next generation, sons of Tunis Hood, Sr. The father of Tunis Hood Sr., well identified as John Hood, also proved to be one of three brothers, John, Lucas and Thomas. A startling revelation was the verified fact that, rather than Scotch-Irish, they were predominantly of Danish and Holland Dutch stock, fourth generation born Americans on their maternal side. All were born in New York City at the turn of the 17th Century, and baptised in the old Dutch Reformed Church of that city under the Dutch-Danish spelling of their names as Jan, Luykas and Thomas Hoed.

Tunis Hood, and his two brothers, John Jr. and Jacob, and three sisters, Cathrina, Grace and Rebecca, born in Kingston, N. Y., were likewise baptised in the Dutch Reformed Church of that old Hudson River Valley New Netherland city, under the Dutch spellings of their names as: Theunis (Tunis), Johannes (John), Jacobus (Jacob), Cathrina (Catherine), Gerritjen (Grace), and Rebekka (Rebecca), children of Jan Hoed (John Hood) and Rachel Van Bunschoten, she being full Dutch. These identities have been conclusively verified from marriage, baptismal and other pertinent entries in the various early New York Dutch and English records, and further confirmed later in Virginia and Mecklenburg County, North Carolina early official court records.

Just how was the veil of mystery covering the identities and national origins of our early American Hood forebears, lifted? My interest in trying to learn more about my Hood ancestors was first stimulated in reading The Hood Sketch Book, a brief genealogy of the Reuben Hood family branch of Eastern Mecklenburg County, N. C., published in pamphlet form in 1926 by the late Rev. Samuel Jefferson Hood, an Associate Reformed Presbyterian clergyman, and himself a descendant of Reuben and Tunis Hood. I had long known that my own family branch were distant cousins of the various Reuben Hood branch lines. I began a correspondence with Rev. Samuel J. Hood in 1938, which continued intermittently up to the time of his death in 1943. I determined to try and pick up where he left off and continue Hood family ancestral research as my time and financial means would enable. I am indebted to his memory for much of the family background data that inspired my efforts toward further research, the results of which have been so rewarding.

My studies of such records as I could find covering early ship arrivals and passenger lists containing the names of Tunis, John and Reuben Hood, were fruitless. I found a number of John Hoods but no Tunis nor Reuben. I had about decided that they probably were not immigrants, but more likely American born. If so, where? Mecklenburg County records gave no indication that they were born there. A lucky break afforded a new and most promising clue, suggesting an entirely new concept of the identity of Tunis Hood's ancestry and place of birth.

Whipple T. Black of Georgetown, Kentucky, had written to one of my Mecklenburg County cousins, advising that he was a descendant of Tunis Hood, and seeking information about family records as might be available from some Mecklenburg County family. Knowing of my activity in that connection, this cousin referred his letter to me. He has since become my most valuable and cooperative contact in connection with family research. In the course of his own research he had found records of a John Hood family in Kingston, N. Y., apparently of Holland Dutch origin, whose eldest son was named Theunis. The family name appearing prominently in the Kingston Dutch records, was spelled as Hoed. It seemed obvious to both Mr. Black and myself that Theunis Hoed of Kingston, N. Y., and Tunis Hood of Mecklenburg County, N. C., were one and the same man. I set out therefore on a hunt of all available records in hopes of confirming that theory, and the result of the trackdown fully justified the effort. Tunis Hood was conclusively verified as Theunis, the eldest son of Jan Hoed (John Hood) and Rachel Van Bunschoten of Kingston, N. Y. This Jan Hoed, or John Hood as later Anglicized, was soon identified as a son of Jaspar Hoed (Hood) and Cathrina Andries, of New York City. We had assumed that Jaspar Hood was probably of English origin, the name suggesting such. However, reliable family tradition discovered later, strongly indicates that he was the son of a probable Danish father, and probable Holland Dutch mother, whose family name was Jasper. There is no indication that he had any English or Scotch-Irish blood.

The fact that our earliest identified American ancestors bearing the Hood name were very early American Danish and Holland Dutch stock, rather than English or Scotch-Irish, which had been so generally assumed, will come as no greater surprise to the readers of these pages, than it was to me. Most American Hoods are either English, Scotch or Irish descent. On our Hood maternal side our Dutch-American forbears have been identified two generations earlier than those bearing the Hood name.

The results of my research, covering a period of more than twelve years, I have endeavored to set forth in detail in following chapters herein. As in the case of an historical work, a genealogical research effort can require no great haste in its preparation and production, it being essentially a creature of time. The assembling of records, the weighing of evidence, the searches for missing links and "Lost Tribes," arrangements of the chain of narrative and of source material, requires time, and more time. Much time consuming correspondence and extensive travel, a maximum of physical and mental energy, and adequate financial means to underwrite costs and expenses, have also been major requisites.

The time I have been able to devote to the completion of this project, an almost endless task, has been seriously interrupted from time to time by illnesses and heavy business demands on my time budget. Hence, this contribution to the posterity of our Hood and allied family lines, has not been hastily prepared. The effort has been entirely a labor of love, with no thought of commercial exploitation. While its theme so to speak, has been strung on the threads of genealogy (to borrow a phrase from the late J. Houston Harrison) some pertinent material of an historical nature, closely associated with the early periods and lives of our ancestors has been included.

I have deemed it unnecessary to furnish on one or more separate pages, of the sources whence the material for this work were derived; rather, I have thought it to be more serviceable to the reader to quote the authors and other sources on the page where such authorities and records are mentioned.

In retracing the ancient tracks of our intrepid early American forebears, and their descendant lines to the extent possible as time has afforded, I have endeavored to give equal prominence to maternal as I have to paternal lines, no attempt being made to confine the work to families bearing only the Hood name. Where reliable material has been available, I have also given some brief coverage to allied family ancestral backgrounds. Few families were more prominently associated with the early life of Mecklenburg County, N. C., than were members of the Tunis Hood family branches, and their connections, as evidenced by the early civil, church and historical records of the county. Their ancestral background, while more or less prominent among the early New York Dutch families, is not claimed to have been aristocratic or particularly distinguished. Rather, our Hood and Harrison American forebears appear to have been infected with "itchy feet" and a migratory pioneering spirit, the early branches having widely scattered as the settlements of the great regions to the South and Southwest progressed. Consequently, some parent stems have become lost, temporarily it is hoped. However, members of such descendant "Lost Tribes" do occasionally show up, each bringing new clues to others. Known living descendants of the various branches of the Jasper Hood line, can now be numbered in the thousands. Nevertheless, the search for those yet missing will continue.

Some members of later generation families have reached high levels of achievement and distinction in business, professional, political and military avocations. And, I have yet to find record of any who have ever been convicted of a major crime.

As to the reliability of this work, I can state only that it is as much so as twelve years of human labor and patient toil can make it. Where vital records lacked positive verification, the most logical chain of circumstantial evidence has been recorded. No comprehensive family genealogy is possible of production without maximum cooperation of members of various family branches in gathering and furnishing all available records of their respective branches. The generous and patient cooperation I have received from so many relatives in this con-connection during the progress of this effort, has contributed in the greatest measure to its successful completion. Older family members whose memories extend back over greater spans of time, have been especially helpful, supplying in some instances tradition clues that have been invaluable.

The first wife of Tunis Hood Sr. is well identified as Elizabeth Harrison, probable daughter of John Harrison and Phoebe ---, pioneer settlers of what is now Rockingham County, Virginia. These Harrison ancestors were largely English in origin, although here too, foundation stock was probably Danish. I have been fortunate in gathering very good records of them, both in America and England, which are covered in some detail herein.

In matters of religious faith our people have been predominantly Protestant. Calvinism, as represented by the Dutch Reformed Church and the various Presbyterian and related persuasions, appears to have been the religious affiliation of most, especially the earlier families, barring the possibility that some were Quakers, as in the case of the early John Hood family of Kingston, N. Y., and later Virginia. Our Danish ancestors were probably Lutherans, as were quite a number of the Dutch New Netherland colonists. Among the later families, a scattering of Baptists, Methodists, Episcopalians, and Roman Catholic and Mormon converts are noted.

This work is not yet completed to my entire satisfaction, but time is fleeting, and at my age the remaining active years of my life are necessarily more or less limited. If I am spared enough additional years and reasonably good health, I may later undertake the preparation and publication of a second edition of this genealogy if continued research turns up heretofore "Lost Tribe" descendant families in sufficient numbers to justify such effort.

To this end, I solicit the cooperation of members of all family branches of the Jasper Hood line not covered, or only partially covered herein, in sending me their family records, both actual and traditional, regardless of whether the Hood name or an allied family name is borne. Hood families with members bearing the Christian names of Tunis, Tunas, Jasper, Lucas, Luke, Reuben, Adam, Jeremiah, Isaiah, Aaron and Harrison, very likely belong to some branch of the Jasper Hood line. I am particularly interested therefore in hearing from any Hoods bearing such typical Christian names of our Hood line, or who may know of relatives bearing such names. We, who are fruit of the same Hood family tree, should come to know each other, organize regional family Clans, hold family reunions, and live again with our ancestors of long ago.

Both Tunis Hood Sr. and Junior signed their Wills as Tunas. However, most public, church and family records I have examined give the spelling as Tunis. Practically all descendants bearing the name, of whom records are available, likewise have spelled their names as Tunis. In the preparation of this work, I have deemed it more appropriate therefore, to use the Tunis spelling throughout.

To the posterity of Jasper and Tunis Hood, and Isaiah Harrison, our intrepid early American forebears, this work is dedicated and entrusted to the keeping of you, their descendants, and the rising generations who follow.

ANCESTRAL CRADLE CHAPTER I

AMERICAN HERITAGE

This is the biography of a family—a more or less typical very early American family; its ancestry, national origin, and far-flung branches of thousands of known descendants and allied connections. Its ancestral roots are neither aristocratic nor particularly distinguished, for the primary reason that its earliest members were colonial pioneers, adventuresome, intrepid; living under conditions of the most extreme hardships, exposed almost daily to the gravest dangers to their lives, common to the founders of America, among whom they are numbered.

The representative of that early American family around whom this work is erected was Tunis Hood, colonial pioneer settler of the Shenandoah Valley section of Virginia, and present West Virginia, and later, Mecklenburg County, North Carolina. Elizabeth Harrison, his first wife and mother of all of his children, also came from a pioneer colonial family of first, Oyster Bay, Long Island, New York, then Sussex County, Delaware, where she was probably born, and finally what is now Rockingham County Virginia.

As stated in Foreword herein, the first knowledge that Tunis Hood was of Danish-Dutch stock, rather than Scotch-Irish as had been so generally assumed, came from Whipple T. Black, one of his descendants, of Georgetown, Kentucky. Mr. Black had been engaged in a research of his Black and Hood ancestries, and had made a practice of studying various family genealogies available to him at the Kentucky State Library, for references to Black and Hood families who may have been of his lines. A clue was found in The Van Bunschoten Family in America, page 806, published by William H. Van Bunschoten of New York City in 1907, in the record of a Jan Hoed (John Hood) family of Kingston, N. Y. This Jan Hoed, or John Hood as later Anglicized, had married in October 1717-18, Rachel Van Bunschoten, the record being found in the ancient marriage registry of the old Dutch Reformed Church of Kingston, N. Y. Rachel's baptismal record, dated December 22, 1695, was also found in the baptismal register of that old Dutch church. She was the youngest daughter of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit of Kingston, Holland Dutch colonists of the early Hudson River Valley section of the former New Netherland Dutch colony.
Jan Hoed, as he was then known, appears to have been a young man of some standing in the Kingston and general Ulster County community. According to the early Kingston and Ulster County civil records, he was elected constable at the March 1, 1719-20 Kingston elections, a fairly important public office of that early period. Later, in 1726-27 he served as Ulster County road surveyor from Hurley to The Strand, another important post of those times.

In the baptismal register of the old Dutch Reformed Church of Kingston are found the baptism records of the six known children of Jan Hoed and Rachel Van Bunschoten, entered in the Dutch language as follows:

Sponsors appearing at Dutch baptisms are usually close relatives of both parties, and therefore afford good clues to vital family records. A study of the Kingston and New York City Dutch records, identifies the sponsors at the baptisms of the children of Jan Hoed and Rachel Van Bunschoten as follows:

Eliasz Van Bunschoten, Marretjen a Bunschoten, and Rebekka Van Bunschoten, were brother and sisters respectively of Rachel Van Bunschoten; Barent Nieuwkerk was the husband of Rebekka Van Bunschoten; Cathrina Andries was the mother of Jan Hoed, and Aefje Hoed was his sister (see further report); the Van Steenbergens and Cornelis Elvendorff appear to have been cousins of Rachel Van Bunschoten, and Angeltjen Heermans was probably an aunt of Gerritje Gerrit, mother of Rachel Van Bunschoten.

In his comments on the Jan Hoed-Rachel Van Bunschoten family, William H. Van Bunschoten, author of the family genealogy, wrote in part as follows:

"Rachel Van Bunschoten married at Kingston Church in October, 1717-18, John Hood, who was from New York, and of English parentage I take it, although his name more frequently appears in the Dutch records as Jan Hoed. It is found that at the Kingston election of March 1, 1719-20, Jan was chosen constable, and that in 1726-27, he served as highway surveyor from Hurley to The Strand. After the death of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten, and the birth of their daughter Gerritjen, all trace of Rachel and Jan themselves is lost, and very completely lost. . . . Also, that they, or at least some of their family, remained in the general Ulster region is also as good as certain since the name which they monopolized at that time cropped up indigenously, as one might say, a generation later in the Wailkil Valley near New Paltz where it figures in the early church records and in the older burying grounds, and is borne by men of today (1907). However, following the latter day records of all sorts as remotely back as possible there yet remains a gap of one generation before the children of Rachel and Jan are reached."

Theunis, eldest son of Jan Hoed and Rachel Van Bunschoten, who was later to become known as Tunis Hood, was named for his maternal grandfather, Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten; Johannes, the second son was of course named for his father. Jan is the common Dutch and Danish short for Johannes, both being the equivalent of the English John. Jacobus, the next son was named for Jacobus Van Bunschoten, brother of Rachel; Cathrina was named for her paternal grandmother, Cathrina Andries; Gerritjen was named for her maternal grandmother, Gerritje Gerrit, and Rebekka, apparently the youngest daughter and child was named for her aunt Rebekka Van Bunschoten, wife of Barent Nieuwkerk.

Jan Hoed's name last appears on the Kingston tax lists in 1729 as John Hood, but he and his family did not remain in the general Ulster region, nor were they completely lost as William H. Van Bunschoten assumed, as will be shown further herein.
CHAPTER II

THE PARENTS OF JOHN HOOD

In the publication of his marriage banns (notice of intent to marry), Jan Hoed gave his birthplace as New York. This, and the statement of William H. Van Bunschoten that he was from New York, prompted a search of the early Dutch and English church and public records of New York City, for the identities of his parents. The "hunch" paid off well. A study of Marriages, Dutch Reformed Churches in New York, 1639-1801, Collection of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Vol. I. p. 83, produced this most important marriage record, entered in the Dutch language:

"Jasper Hoed, j.m. van - - -, en Cathrina Andries, j.d, van Nieuw Yorck, boyde woonende alhier, Inschreven den 7 Juin, 1696; Getrouwt, mateen licente den 7 Juin, 1696."

The English translation of this marriage record follows:

"Jasper Hood, young man not previously married of (not stated), and Cathrina Andries, young woman not previously married, of New York, both residing here; Banns published 7 June, 1696; license issued and marriage performed this 7th day of June, 1696."

From this marriage record, and the appearance of Cathrina Andries and Aefje (Eve) Hood as sponsors at the baptisms of the children of Jan Hoed and Rachel Van Bunschoten, it appeared reasonably certain that Jasper Hoed and Cathrina Andries were the parents of Jan Hoed, and doubtless Aefje Hoed as well. An examination of the baptismal register of the old Dutch Reformed Church of New York City fully confirmed that assumption. Here were found the baptismal records of five children of Jaspar Hoed and Tryntje Luykas, the first four being entered under the Dutch spelling of their names. The name Tryntje Luykas rather than Cathrina Andries, as the mother of the children, suggested that Tryntje Luykas was a second wife of Jaspar Hoed, but the dates were not consistent with such a theory, there being a lapse of only ten months between the dates of Jaspar's and Cathrina Andries' marriage, and the baptismal date of the first born child.

A better understanding of the primitive patronymic system of names, still being used by the Dutch of New York in those times, to a considerable extent, and the penchant of Dutch women for aliases, or nicknames, clarified the riddle. Tryntje is the well recognized Dutch alias, or nickname, for Cathrina, hence it was evident that Tryntje Luykas and Cathrina Andries were one and the same woman. The appearance of her name in the marriage record as Cathrina Andries, and in the baptismal records as Tryntje Luykas, gave the clue that her father's name was most likely to be either Andries Luykas or Luykas Andries.
A further study of the records identified him conclusively as Luykas Andries, also known as Luykas Andrieszen. (See further report).

Thus it became clear that Cathrina Andries had used alternately as her Christian name, both Cathrina and Tryntje, and as her surname alternately as both Andries and Luykas. Dutch women of that period were not always consistent in recording in church and public records their Christian and surnames, frequently alternating from one to another. In most Dutch records of that period wives invariably appeared under their maiden names, and nickname aliases were more of less commonly used.
In some records for instance, Cathrina Andries appeared alternately as: "Cathrina Andries, huis Vrouw van Jaspar Hoed," and "Tryntje Luykas, huis Vrouw van Jaspar Hoed," (housewife of Jasper Hood.) Such inconsistent practices are very confusing to the genealogical researcher not acquainted with Dutch name customs of those early times.

It is unfortunate that in issuing the license and registering the marriage record of Jaspar Hood, his place of birth was omitted. Such information would be helpful in confirming some good circumstantial evidence of his family background and national origin. A certified transcript of the original record of his marriage has been furnished by the Archivist of the CollegiateDutch Reformed Church of New York City, where the original copies of the early Dutch church records are lodged.

A reliable clue to the national origin of Jaspar Hood has been furnished by Miss Laura Hood, of LaPorte, Indiana, a great-great-great granddaughter of Tunis Hood. Her grand uncle, Hugh Thompson Hood, a grandson of Reuben Hood Sr., son of Tunis Hood Sr., made a visit to Mecklenburg County, N. C., about 1845, whence his parents had migrated to Indiana in 1816.
During the course of that visit he talked at some length with his grandfather Reuben Hood, and other family members discussing the early ancestral background of the family. Prior to his death in 1903, Hugh Thompson Hood related to Laura Hood that his grandfather Reuben Hood had told him that his Hood ancestors were Danish, and that some others were Dutch. Laura Hood, who was born in 1877, and still alive and active, was a young woman 26 years of age at the time of her granduncle, Hugh Thompson Hood's death in 1903, and has vivid recollections of talks with him in connection with her Hood ancestors. He had also told her that his father had frequently told him of their Danish ancestry on the Hood side.

The tradition of Dutch ancestry appears to have been handed down and well known to some other Hood families of the Jasper Hood line, particularly those who are descendants of Lucas Hood. One such family in Winchester, Kentucky, relates a tradition that the family origin was in early New York, where the name was spelled as Hudde, and that the first American ancestors owned a farm where old Trinity Episcopal Church now stands on Lower Broadway in New York City. This reference undoubtedly concerns Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood), a fabulous historical character in the early affairs of New Amsterdam, and the Dutch colony of New Netherland in America, now New York. The family background of Andries Hudde is well recorded in the early genealogical records in The Netherlands, and offers no clue to his identity as an ancestor of Jaspar Hoed or that they were of the same family.

The earliest colonists of New Amsterdam were a conglomerate of a number of different nationalities, of whom quite a substantial number were Danes, many of whom were mariners serving on sailing ships of the Dutch West India Company who dominated the government of the colony. In addition to the Dutch, others included Swedes, Germans, Balts, English, French Huguenots, and other Western Europeans. There were many Negro slaves, and a few free Negroes. Few if any Southern Europeans, Scots or Irish were noted. The case of Joachim Pietersen Kuyter and Cornelis Melyn dramatized from the very start the serious differences between the colonists and Peter Stuyvesant, Director-General of New Amsterdam and New Netherland prior to the first occupation by the English, which occurred on August 26, 1664. . . . Kuyter was a Dane who had served his country as a naval commander in the East Indies. In 1639, at the age of forty-two, he packed family, cattle and herdsman aboard the ship Burning of Troy in Amsterdam, and came to settle down to the life of landowner and farmer in New Netherland. The promise of the New World must have been alluring to many Danes, whose own country had not been an active contender for American land. A considerable number of them arrived with Kuyter, including Jonas Bronck, from whom the New York City borough of the Bronx is named. (Peter Stuyvesant and his New York, p. 68, by Henry H. Kessler and Eugene Rachlis, Random House, New York, N. Y.)

At first it had been assumed that Jaspar Hood was English, or of English origin, both his Christian and surname suggesting such. The close association of his name with New York Holland Dutch families in the published early records however, prompted some research of the origin of both names, particularly in view of the family tradition related to Laura Hood identifying him as a probable Dane. Perhaps the most complete collection of Western European and English genealogical records to be found in America are lodged in the library of the Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church (L.D.S.) in Salt Lake City, Utah. A search of such records for the appearance of the Hood and Jasper names was therefore undertaken. The results suggest that Jaspar Hood could very likely have been a Dane. It was somewhat surprising to find that the Hood name, under various spellings as Hoed, Hoedt, Hoet, Hude, Hudde, Houde, and Hoodt, was not entirely uncommon in both the Dutch and Danish genealogical records. The name also appears occasionally in genealogical records of Holstein and Hannover, provinces of old Germany, and once a part of Denmark, usually spelled as Hoodt. Inhabitants of those sections of Germany are largely of Danish origin. The Hood name is a common one in England, Scotland and Northern Ireland, spelled in the earlier records variously as Hod, Hodde, Hude, and finally Hood, the common spelling of today, both in England and America.

Even more surprising was the frequent appearance of the Jasper name, spelled as Jaspar, Jasper and Jaspers, in both the Dutch and Danish genealogical records, more common in fact than found in the English records. Passenger lists of ship arrivals at New Amsterdam around the period 1660-1670, contain the names of several single women bearing the name of Jasper and Jaspers, hence the name was not uncommon in the New Netherland colony. Jan Jasper, a prominent shipping merchant of Rotterdam, The Netherlands, was the agent for William Penn in Holland securing settlers for the Pennsylvania Quaker colony in America. His daughter Margriet married the English Admiral Sir William Penn in Rotterdam in 1642, and in 1643 they became the parents of William Penn, Jr., the Pennsylvania Quaker colonizer, who was a grandson therefore of his Rotterdam agent, Jan Jasper.

The first born son, Jan, having failed to survive, the name was again given to the next son, who became John Hood, father of Tunis Hood. Jasper Hood and Tryntje Luykas thus followed a common Dutch practice of those times in selecting names for children. The first born son was usually named for his paternal grandfather, the second for his maternal grandfather; the first daughter for her maternal grandmother, the second for her paternal grandmother, and others for close relatives, usually uncles and aunts. Thus, it is reasonably certain that the father of Jasper Hood was named Jan or Johannes Hoed or Hude. The next child, Aefje (Eve) was named for her maternal grandmother, who is identified as Aefje Laurens, wife of Luykas Andries or Andrieszen; Luykas (Lucas), the next son was named of course for his maternal grandfather, Luykas Andrieszen. Thomas, the youngest son was probably named for some other relative. That name is also fairly common among Dutch families, sometimes spelled as Tomas.

Of the sponsors at the above baptisms, Jacob van Zane or Sane was the husband of Jannetje Luykas, sister of Cathrina Andries alias Tryntje Luykas; Cornelis Klopper was the husband of Aefje Luykas, another sister of Tryntje: Luykas Andrieszen, Jr. and sister Hellegondt (Hellegondt Luykas) were brother and sister respectively of Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas. Cathrina Wendall was Cathrina deKay, wife of Abraham Wendall; Jacobus Goelet was the husband of Jannetje Cosaar. What relationship they were to either the Hood or Andrieszen families, if any, is not presently known. Jacobus Goelet was a prominent New York merchant and trader of those times, whose family has been of outstanding wealth and prominence in New York down to present generations of Goelets.

Of the other children of Jasper Hood and Cathrina Andries, good early records of the family of Luykas Hoed (Lucas Hood) have been found, some of which have been traced and extended. down to present generation members. Records of the two mar­riages of Aefje Hood and her children were also found. See fur­ther reports on these families.

No record of the marriage and family of the other son, Thomas, has been found, and no research in that connection is contemplated at this time. It is possible that he could have been the ancestor of the Hood families in and around New Paltz, Ulster County, N. Y., mentioned by Mr. W. H. Van Bunschoten. Some records of such early Hood families of that section have been obtained, the earliest members spelling the name usually as Hoed, and all married women with Dutch names. There are also records of early Hood families in and around Philadelphia who spelled their name as Hoodt, and in which the name Thomas appeared. It is also possible therefore that Thomas Hood, son of Jasper, may have settled in that section.

Weighing all of the evidence available, both verified and circumstantial, suggests that Jasper Hood was the son of a Jan or Johannes Hoed or Hude, who was most likely a Dane, possibly one of the early Danish colonial settlers of New Netherland. The most logical guess as to Jasper Hood’s mother would indicate that she was Holland Dutch, or possibly a mixture of Dutch and Danish, and that her family name was Jasper, whence Jasper Hood got his Christian name. The ultimate verification of these theories is however, a matter for further research.
CHAPTER III

SKIPPER LUYKAS ANDRIESZEN AND HIS FAMILY

Among the earliest marriage records entered in the marriage register of the old Dutch Reformed Church of New Amsterdam, Vol. II, (now New York City), was that of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens, under date of May 20, 1655. Baptismal records of their fifteen children are also found in the baptismal register of the same old church. (Baptisms, New York Dutch Churches, p. 110, Collection of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.) These children were:

 Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas, wife of Jasper Hood.
Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens thus are well identified as the parents of Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas, wife of Jasper Hood. They were the paternal great-grandparents of Tunis Hood of Mecklenburg County, N. C.

A careful analysis of the church and civil records of New Amsterdam identifies Luykas Andrieszen as a son of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyns. Both are called Schipper (Skipper) in most records, which identify them as captains, or skippers of sailing ships plying the coastwise and Hudson River trade in and out of New Amsterdam. From the early Dutch and English New Netherland and New York records, they appear to have been rather prominent citizens of the colony, particularly Luykas Andrieszen.

Aefje Laurens was a daughter of Schipper (Skipper) Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and Lysbeth Thys, also known as Thyssen.

It is interesting to note that Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens followed in strict conformity the more or less general custom of Holland Dutch families of those times in selecting names for their children, a valuable factor in identifying ancestors, especially where they bore patronymic names, common among the earlier Dutch colonists of New Netherland.

Andries, the first surviving son to Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens, was named for his paternal grandfather Andries Luycaszen; the next surviving son, Laurens, was named for his maternal grandfather, Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel. Lysbeth, the first daughter was named for her maternal grandmother, who was Lysbeth Thys, or Thyssen, wife of Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel; and Jannetje, the next daughter was named for her paternal grandmother, Jannetje Sebyns, wife of Andries Luycaszen.

It is possible to identify the relationships of some of the sponsors at the baptisms of the children of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens. Schipper Laurens en syn huisvrouw (and his wife) were Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and Lysbeth Thys, or Thyssen, maternal grandparents; Jannetje Sebyns wife of Skipper Andries Lucaszen, was the paternal grandmother; Jan Janszen van Breestede was the husband of Marritje Andries, sister of Luykas Andrieszen; Claes Thyssen was the father of Lysbeth Thyssen, and therefore a maternal great-grandfather; Marritje Andries, as stated, was a sister of Luykas Andrieszen, and wife of Jan Janszen van Breestede; Jan Joosten was a business partner of Luykas Andrieszen in their sailing ship operations and other business ventures; Jan Stephenszen was the husband of Lysbeth Luykas, eldest daughter of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje.
Laurens. Jannetje Luykas was the second daughter of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens. The others are not definitely identified, but were probably close relatives, or in-laws.

The early New Amsterdam, Fort Orange (Albany), Kingston, and later New York City church, civil and marine records contain copious entries involving the name of Luykas Andrieszen. It is found in various marine records of New Amsterdam, New York City, Kingston and Albany, that he owned and operated sailing ships plying the Hudson River and coastwise trade between Albany, Kingston, New Amsterdam (later New York City), Boston and the South (Delaware) River section of the New Netherland Dutch colony, and that he continued such operations after the English occupied New Netherland in August, 1664, without interference from them.

There are some good indications that Jasper Hood was an officer or seaman in the employ of Luykas Andrieszen, and thus met his wife, Cathrina Andries alias Tryntje Luykas, daughter of Luykas Andrieszen. It is evident from the New York records that Jasper Hood was away from home most of the time, probably on extended river and sea voyages. Good records of the early residents of New York City are available and have been examined, but Jasper Hood's name does not appear on any of them, hence it does not seem likely that he ever established a home there. It is possible that his wife and family lived with her parents.

During his frequent brief periods of stay in Albany and Kingston Luykas Andrieszen appears to have lived at hotels or inns. A condensed chronology of some records involving his name follows:

1650: The earliest published record involving the name of Luykas Andrieszen, concerned his appearance as one of the baptism sponsors of Wouter, son of Jan Janszen van Breestede and Marritje Andries, in New Amsterdam on December 24, 1650. This was five years prior to his own marriage to Aefje Laurens. Marritje Andries was his sister.

1654: In the court minutes of Fort Orange (Albany) for February 10, 1654, Luykas Andries, as his name appears in some records, skipper, seized a boat of Willem Albertsz, who owed him money. The court held that Luykas Andries could keep the boat until the debt was paid.

1655: May 20: Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens were married at the New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church. He gave his birthplace as New Amsterdam, hence was probably one of the earliest white children born in the New Netherland Dutch colony of North America. Aefje Laurens gave her birthplace as Amsterdam, The Netherlands. His birth date is estimated at around 1625-28.

1656: June 15: Aefje Laurens, wife of Luykas Andrieszen appears as a sponsor at the baptism of Pieter, son of Jan Janszen van Breestede and Marritje Andries. (Baptisms, New York Dutch Churches, Collection of N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Soc.)

1659: May 16: Hendrick Janz, van Uytreght (Utrecht) acknowledges that he owed Olof Stephensz van Courtlandt 200 guilders for beer and money advanced; he mortgaged his home and lot, described as being west of Heere Straat (Street), to the south of Luykas Andrieszen's corner, to the west of the bank, etc. Fort Orange (Albany) Court minutes.

1661: Fort Orange (Albany) Court records: Bill of sale of sloop Eendracct (“Union”) from Jacob Janszen Flodder to Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten was dated 9 November 1661 and signed by Jacob Janszen Flodder, Jeremiah van Renselaer, Philip Pieterse Schuyler, Luykas Andrieszen, Jan Joosten, Daniel van Donck, Volckert Janszen, Jan Cornelisz van der Heyden (wit.) Jere Joem Tunsen (wit.) in the presence of D. V. Schelluye, Not. Pub. Albany court records.

1662: Kingston Court records: Several deeds from Luykas Andrieszen to Geertruyd Andrieszen. She was his sister.

1663: Kingston Records: Luykas Andrieszen, residing at the Manathaus, contracted to deliver to Tjerck Claeszen de Wit and Barbera Andrieszen bolts of cloth on his next voyage from Fort Orange (Albany). Barbara Andrieszen was his sister, and Tjerck Claeszen de Wit was her husband.

1663: Luykas Andrieszen appeared as a sponsor at the baptism of Annetje, daughter of Jan Joosten and Tryntje Jans, October 17, 1663, at the New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church, and again on July 15, 1665 at the baptism of a second daughter bearing that name, the first having failed to survive. Jan Joosten was his business partner, and possibly an in-law relative.

1663: The name of Schipper (Skipper) Luykas Andrieszen appeared frequently in the New Amsterdam court records in connection with a yacht called The Flower of Gilder, which he and his partner Jan Joosten of Fort Orange (Albany) sold in 1663 to Thomas Janszen Mingoels.

Court Minutes of New Amsterdam:
Vol. 3, p. 374, 4 October 1661: Luykas Andrieszen mentioned in a lawsuit concerning a freight of goods.

Vol. 3, p. 405, 8 November, 1661: Court examination of prisoner Messack Martens, late West India Company's brick mason:

Q. “Did you not about 14 days ago climb in behind the fence of one Luykas Andrieszen, skipper, trading to Fort Orange at Albany, through the garden gate, and enter his house there very early in the morning, and were you not found there with a tub of butter about half empty, and did you not steal and take it with you and carry it to your house?”

A. “He has not had no butter in half a year, if not longer in his house; his road lying thereby, and being drunk, his hat remained lying there.”

Q. “Did you not hastily retire, and on hearing noises leave your hat behind, which was then taken up by one Barent Cruytdop and saved?”

A. “Barent Cruytdop told him his hat was there.”

Case continued by the court.
Vol. 4, p. 176, 23 January 1663: Lawsuit by Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten, partners; plaintiffs, vs Abraham Pietersen and his daughter, defendants. Defendants deliver in a petition; plaintiffs produce papers. Court undertakes to consider case.

Vol. 4, p. 191, 23 January 1663: Jan Joosten entering, requests by petition that he may take and resume the yacht which he and his partner Luykas Andrieszen sold to Thomas Janszen Mingaels, and which yacht is bound for the payment at the price at which it was sold to him, and to receive for the use, wear and tear of said yacht and tackle, whatever arbitrators selected by the court and conversant therewith shall adjudge to be proper, taking into calculation what has been paid thereon. Petitioner is ordered to keep a sharp eye constantly on said yacht until further disposition is made in the matter.

Vol. 4, p. 210, 6 March 1663: Burgin Jorejen plaintiff vs Jan Hackens, defendant. Plaintiff demands restitution of a kedge which he made for Thomas Janszen Migaels for three beavers, or payment of three beavers, as it is not paid for. Defendant produces an inventory of goods which he bought on the yacht of Skipper Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten. Plaintiff says that Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten admit the kedge in question is unpaid for. They therefore had no right to sell it. Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten appearing, say there was an anchor with the yacht when they sold it to Thomas Janszen Migaels, and that the said Thomas Janszen Migaels sold the anchor. They therefore retained the kedge instead, admitting they knew the kedge was unpaid for. Court ordered Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten to pay for the kedge.

1664: February 17: Claes, son of Tjerck Claeszen de Wit and Barbara Andrieszen was baptised in the Kingston Dutch Reformed Church. Among the sponsors appearing were Luykas Andrieszen “residing at the Manathaus, Kingston,” Geertruyd Andrieszen of Fort Orange (Albany), and Tryntje Thyssen.

This interesting transcript is taken from Documents Relating to the Colonial History of New York:

"Complaint against Frederick Phillipsen, Nicholaes Meyer, Luykas Andrieszen and others:

"To their Noble, Very Worshipful Honors, the Director-General and Council of New Netherland:

"Shows with due reverence Nicasius de Sille, Fiscal (sheriff), that according to a letter from Ensign Niessen, Nicolaes Meyer, Frederick Phillipsen, Jeronimus Ebbingh and Luykas Andrieszen have presumed to drive with six wagons, loaded with grain, to the Redoubt without a convoy, as they were not willing to wait for the letters of the Director-General and Council and for the escort, which is contrary to orders and in derision of the placards, because great danger was imminent from hostile savages; a heavy reproach would have fallen on the officers, if an onslaught had been made upon them, as it has happened before, and it was further in disobedience to the orders of the Director-General and Council. To prevent such proceedings in future, these people ought not to be allowed to go unpunished as having done well, but must be punished. Therefore the Fiscal has come to the conclusion that the aforesaid persons ought to be condemned to a fine of 25 guilders, pursuant to the order of the 4th of August last past, if they will promise not to do so again, but to obey such orders, as the officers appointed by the Director-General shall give.

"Your Hon'ble Worships' Servant
"Nicasius de Sille."

"The foregoing complaint of the Fiscal was read to the accused, who answered that not only had the convoy been ready to go with them, but the soldiers were also ready outside of the gate, and, whereas, the wagons with the grain were already ahead, as it is the common custom; they, the defendants, followed their wagons, supposing the escort would go with them; they do not know why the Ensign held them back.

"It was decided: Before sentence is pronounced in this case, it is resolved to send a copy of the defendants' excuse to Ensign Christian Niessen and to await his further report and verification of their reply. Date as above.

"Also send a convoy down in the morning with grain to the river side, which on returning brought up the Wappinger Sacchem and his wife, Splitnose, the Indian last taken by us. Which Sacchem brought with him two captive Christian children, stating to us that he could not, pursuant to his previous promise of the 29th of November, bring along with him the remainder, being still five Christian captives, because three were at their hunting grounds and that he could not find them, but that another Indian was out looking for them; the two others are in his vicinity; the squaw who keeps them prisoner will not let them go, because she is very sick and hath no children, and expects soon to die; and when he can get Albert Heyman's oldest daughter, who is also at the hunting ground, and whom he hath already purchased and paid for, then he shall bring the remainder of the Christian captives along. For the two Christian children which he hath brought with him; an Indian child is given him, being a little girl, and three pieces of cloth, with which he was content. In the afternoon Jeronimus Ebbingh, Nicolaes Meyer, and Frederic, the Hon'ble Company's late carpenter, went down unescorted to the Redoubt, with six wagon loads of grain, not being willing to wait for the writings and letters which should be sent by them to the Heeren Director-General and Council of New Netherland; and the skipper, Luykas Andrieszen, also said he would not wait for the Director-General's nor any man's letters, but would be off as the wind was fair."

New Amsterdam court minutes:
Vol. 5, p. 31, 21 February 1664: In the list of names of those who volunteered subscriptions for the repair of the fort were:

Luykas Andrieszen fl.100
Jan Janszen van Breestede fl.150
Jan Joosten fl.100

Vol. 5, p. 224, 19 April 1665: In the list of Burghers of the city (New Amsterdam) who were taxed, appear the following names:

Luykas Andrieszen
Jan Janszen Van Breestede
Andries Andrieszen
Jan Joosten

Vol. 7, p. 155: An entry notes that on 26 April 1657, Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten had both been given the Lesser Burgher's rights by the Honorable Council of New Netherland, sitting in formal session.

In 1664 Luykas Andrieszen took the oath of allegiance to King James of England, in New York, following the first capture of New Netherland by the English.

In 1666, Luykas Andrieszen and wife, Aefje Laurens, were included in the list of members of the New York Dutch Reformed Church. They were also included as members in the list published in 1686.

In 1667 Luykas Andrieszen, Jan Andrieszen and Marritje Andries, his brother and sister respectively, sold land in Kingston to Gerrtruyd Andries, another sister.

Vol. 6, Albany court minutes, 27 October 1670: Lawsuit by Jan Hendricks van Bael vs Pieter Jacobsz. Plaintiffs demand of defendant 17¾ yards of light weight cloth which he brought with him from Boston for his account. Defendant says he put the cloth on the yacht of Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten and does not know what became of it. They claimed they received the cloth from Jacobsz' yacht at New York and unloaded it at Albany. Court adjourned the case and ordered that all parties look for the cloth. Case again heard on June 30, 1671 and was referred to the Council in New York. It was noted that Jan Hendricks Van Bael was a tailor in Albany and served several times as one of the magistrates there.

Vol. 6, Albany court minutes, 19 September 1671: Gelyn der Planck, attorney for Jan Hendricks van Bael of Albany, plaintiff vs. Pieter Jacobsen Marius, Jan Joosten and Luykas Andrieszen defendants. Plaintiff says that the defendant Pieter Jacobsen Marius bought at Boston for the plaintiff's account and also brought on freight to New York and there shipped to Albany in yacht of the defendants, Jan Joosten and Luykas Andrieszen, of which little boxes one lot was missed on receipt at Albany. He demands therefore indemnification for said lots of boxes with costs. Defendant Pieter Jacobsen Marius says he delivered all the plaintiff's goods according to invoice, to the defendants Jan Joosten and Luykas Andrieszen. They answered that they delivered, but without counting all boxes which they received from defendant Pieter Jacobsen Marius again to the plaintiff at Albany. The jury gave the verdict that the defendants Jan Joosten and Luykas Andrieszen make good the lost boxes with costs of suit, provided that Pieter Jacobsen Marius shall confirm on oath upon the Holy Evangel that he actually delivered all the plaintiff's goods to the defendants, which being done by the above named Pieter Jacobsen Marius, the above verdict and award of the jury was declared by the Court to be valid and therefore is approved.

From Manuscripts Relating to the Colonial History of New York, it is noted that the English, following their final recapture of New Netherlands from the Dutch colonists, prepared a list of property valuations, dated 19 February 1674. Prominent on the list was the name of Luykas Andrieszen, sloop captain, and family, with this notation: - - "these being among the best and most affluent inhabitants of Dutch extraction."

His property was described as a house valued at £1,500.00, located at the present west side of Broadway between Battery Place and Rector Street, then known as part of Marketfield and Broadway.

Under date of 22 March 1682, Luykas Andrieszen and Christian Andrieszen (his brother) sold land to Robert Story in Kingston. In the same year Skipper Luykas Andrieszen agrees to deliver to Robert Story 600 quintals of wheat. (Kingston Records).

On January 14, 1684, Luykas Andrieszen appeared as one of the sponsors at the baptism of Aefje, another daughter of Tjereck Claeszen de Wit and Barbera Andrieszen. (Baptisms: Kingston Dutch Reformed Church.)

In 1683 Luykas Andrieszen sold land in Kingston to Jannetje Breestede.

On 3 April 1683, Luykas Andrieszen and Jannetje Breestede were among the sponsors at the baptism of Grietje, daughter of Jan Focke and Engeltje Breestede at the Kingston Dutch Reformed Church.

1666: Luykas Andrieszen and Jan Joosten joined the Dutch Reformed Church of New York City, 17 January.

1673: Luykas Andrieszen, described as skipper of the sloop Eendracct, arriving from Boston, testified as to passing the frigate Zee Hond (Sea Dog), sailing from New Orange to the east end of Long Island. New Orange was the name given to New York City after its recapture from the English by the Dutch in that year.

The following petition was presented to the English Governor-General of New York in 1675, by Luykas Andrieszen and others:

COUNCIL MINUTES: SETTLEMENT AT NEW LOTTS, CORNBURY, AND MADNANSNECK; MINISTER'S HOUSE AT FLATBUSH:

"To the Highborn, Noble Lord, The Governor-General, Knight of His Majesty's Order &c.:

"Very humbly show the undersigned inhabitants or proprietors of the new allotments in Midwout, that for want of land to cultivate and gain our living, we have been compelled to purchase of the old inhabitants at Midwout the said new lots, which we bought free and unincumbered, the Lord's right excepted, for a considerable sum of money, believing that the Lord's right meant only the Country rates of one penny in the pound. But afterwards the said lots were charged with a yearly quit-rent of one bushel of wheat, of which the settlers never informed us and which cannot be demanded from us.

"We are therefore compelled to represent very highly to your Honor, that the old inhabitants of Midwout act very improperly in petitioning your Honor for these new lots, because we and other poor people needing land are in their way, and as soon as they had obtained them to sell them to us for a considerable sum, concealing however the yearly quitrent of one bushel of wheat, with which they will burden us now.

"We have always understood that it was the intention of his Royal Highness, our Sovereign Lord, and of your Honor, to grant the land to persons who needed it, but not to people who had abundance of it and who, as soon as they obtain a grant, sell it and put up the money. It is true, we have purchased the land and contrary to our contract we cannot go to pay the purchase money, although it falls hard upon us, to put our new land into good condition and pay so much money to people to whom it was not granted formerly nor now. If your Honor deems it advisable, we shall pay the purchase money, but we hope that your Honor will consider the matter and allow us some relief in regard to the price of the land, or at least release us from paying the quitrent with which the people from whom we bought, desire to burden us. Which doing, & c. & c.

Your Obedient Servants and Subjects

Luykas Andrieszen	Laurens Corneliszen

And others.

At the baptism of Aefje, daughter of Cornelis Klopper and Aefje Luykas, May 1, 1700, Aefje Laurens “widow of Luykas Andrieszen” appeared as one of the sponsors. Aefje Luykas was their daughter. Thus it is known that Luykas Andrieszen died prior to May 1, 1700.
CHAPTER IV
ANDRIES LUYCASZEN
AND HIS FAMILY

The parents of Luykas Andrieszen are well identified from published early New Amsterdam (New York) civil, marine and church records, as Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyn. Both were using the primitive patronymic system of names, in general use in New Netherlands in that period. Under that system, a man is known merely by his Christian name as his father's son. Thus, Luykas Andrieszen's name was formed as: Luykas, Andries' son, or Luykas, son of Andries. Likewise, Andries Luycaszen was the son of a man whose Christian name was Luykas. In such cases the father's name was suffixed with "zen" or "sen," the Dutch and Danish words for "son." Daughters in most cases suffixed their Christian names with "je" to identify themselves as females. In choosing a family surname, daughters were in many cases more inconsistent than men, criss-crossing back and forth from the father's Christian name, to his assumed surname. Under that system, family surnames changed with each generation.

That Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyn were very early comers to New Netherland is made known from available marriage records of some of their children, all of whom gave their birthplaces as New Amsterdam. Marritje Luycas, apparently their eldest daughter and child, married Jan Janszen van Breestede on November 1, 1647. (Marriages, New York Dutch Churches, Vol. VI, p. 37, Collection of the N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Soc.) In this record she gave her birthplace as New Amsterdam. Hence, she was probably born about 1625, or 1628. Jan Janszen (John Johnson) van Breestede, was of course from a town or village in either The Netherlands or Denmark named Breestede. His name being such a common one, it was necessary to suffix the name of the place whence he came in The Netherlands or Denmark as a better means of identification. This became more and more a common practice in New Netherland as the population increased.

In Documents Relating to the Colonial History of New York, Vol. 14, p. 94, is found a record establishing the age of Andries Luycaszen. A transcript of this record follows:

"Before me, Cornelis van Tienhoven, Secretary of New Netherland, appeared Andries Luycaszen, aged 53 years, Cornelis Martise Bout, aged 33 years, and Jan Janszen van St. Obyn, aged 27 years, who at the request of Mr. Goovert Loockermans, attest: that they have been in the months of October and November, Ao. 1647, with Goovert Loockermans and his bark along the north coast from New Amsterdam to Pahehetock and Crommegou (Gardiner’s Bay at the east end of New Haven), during which voyage they neither saw, nor heard, nor even knew that Goovert Loockermans himself, or any of his crew had directly or indirectly traded or bartered with or to the Indians. — 28 September, Ao. 1648, in New Amsterdam, New Netherland. This the mark (X) of Andries Luycaszen.”

According to the above affidavit, Andries Luycaszen was born in 1595, probably in Frederickstad, Denmark, according to other records, suggesting that he was a Dane. His wife, Jannetje Sebynswas undoubtedly however, Holland Dutch, as she suffixed her Christian name (Janet) with the customary Dutch “je.” She was also identified as a member of the New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church. There are no records indicating that Andries Luycaszen was a member of that faith. Being a probable Dane, he most likely was a Lutheran.

Another historical document from New York Historical Manuscripts, involves the name of Andries Luycaszen. A transcript of this record follows:

With no shadow of claim from discovery or exploration, Sweden had chartered colonies between 1638 and 1647, locating five or six trading posts along the South (Delaware) River region. The Dutch Colonial officials sent orders to the Swedes to cease driving stakes into the ground, and sent Schipper (Skipper) Andries Luycaszen and a few men to enforce the order. The Swedish lieutenant showed Skipper Luycaszen that he had orders to resist with force any effort on the part of the Dutch to stop him. Having only a small detachment of men at his command, Skipper Luycaszen returned to New Amsterdam and reported to Director General Peter Stuyvesant the position taken by the Swedish lieutenant. Later, in 1655, a Dutch expedition commanded by Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood) set out from Fort Casimir on South (Delaware) River and captured the Swedish garrison. This ended the efforts of the Swedes to colonize the area.”

Among other Colonial Documents of New York is a letter from Director Peter Stuyvesant to Andries Hudde, then Commissary of South River, dated 1648, requesting information on some Indian troubles. It seems that Goovert Loockermans had been accused of killing the chief of the Minquas, and Director Stuyvesant was worried about the consequences. Loockermans denied that he had killed the chief, stating that he only threatened to kill him because the chief had wounded Skipper Andries Luycaszen in the face with a pistol in the presence of Commissary Andries Hudde.
On 19 July 1648, Andries Luycaszen was a sponsor at the baptism of his granddaughter, Jannetje, daughter of Jan Janszen van Breestede and Marritje Andries. It is noted in this case Marritje gave her surname as Andries, whereas at the time of her marriage, she gave her surname as Luycas, a case similar to that of Cathrina Andries, who gave her patronymic alias, or nickname of Tryntje Luykas in registering the baptisms of her children. In subsequent records, Marritje appears under the surname of Andries. In that connection Jan Janszen van Breestede apparently died prior to 11 August 1675, since on that date Thomas Janszen van Dyck and Marritje Andries baptised a son, Andries. (Baptisms: New York Dutch Churches, Vol. 1, p. 28, Collection of the N. Y. Gen. and Biog. Soc.) Jan Janszen van Breestede had been a cooper (maker of barrels).

Andries Luycaszen, in addition to his more active occupation as a skipper of sailing vessels, was a gauger of barrels, and also served as a fire warden of New Amsterdam. On 17 April 1657, he appeared and registered as a Lesser Burgher in New Amsterdam.

On 3 September 1651, Andries Luycaszen, Pieter Cornelis van der Vean, Anneken Bogardus and Geertruydt Jans sponsored the baptism of Johannes, child of Andries Harperszen.

Jannetje Sebysns, Pieter Wolphertsen, Robert Elbertszen and Judith Stuyvesant, sister of Director-General Peter Stuyvesant, were sponsors at the baptism of Gerrit, child of Paulus Leendertsz, 30 April, 1651. That Jannetje Sebysns was the wife of Andries Luycaszen is indicated by the fact that three of his children are known to have named daughters Jannetje, for two of whom she appeared as a sponsor. On 17 October 1657, she and Laurens Corneliszen were sponsors at the baptism of Jannetje, second daughter of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens. It is also likely that she was the Jannetje, who with Claes Thyssen sponsored the baptism of Hillegondt, fifth child of Luykas Andrieszen and Aefje Laurens.

Following is a transcript of the declaration of Alexander Boyer, Andries Luycaszen and others, that the Swedish lieutenant had shown them his orders to resist by force any Dutch claim on the Schuylkil and South (Delaware) Rivers:

"We, the undersigned declare and attest by Christian words and on our conscience in place and under promise of oath, if it should be needed, that it is the truth and nothing but the truth, that we have demanded from the Swedish lieutenant his commission and orders, which he has shown us from his Governor, wherein it was expressly stated, that he should not allow any post or stake to be set in the ground and in case such were attempted to be done, to prevent us by friendly words or by force if necessary; his instructions also being to keep continuously two men in the channel, to see where we would build and not let any building timber be landed. The 4th Xober, 1648, at Fort Beversreede.

An analysis of various New Amsterdam, Kingston and Albany early Dutch records, indicates that the following were probably children of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyns:

1. Marritje, married 1, November 1, 1647, Jan Janszen van Breestede as Marritje Luycas. In baptismal records of her children however, she gave her surname as Andries. She married 2, Thomas Janszen van Dyck.

2. Luykas Andrieszen married Aefje Laurens. See further report.

3. Barbera Andries married March 24, 1656, Tjerck Claeszen d Wit. She gave her birthplace as New Amsterdam. In the baptisms of their several children, she gave her surname alternately as Andries and Andrieszen. They lived in Kingston.

4. Geertruyd Andries, also appearing occasionally as Andrieszen, appears to have been married three times, and also was apparently a rather prominent woman, particularly in Fort Orange (Albany) and Kingston. Her name appears most frequently as a resident of Fort Orange (Albany), although other records show that she was born in New Amsterdam. In the Albany records is found a power of attorney given by Geertruyd Andrieszen, van (of) Doesburch, widow of Jacob Janszen Stol, to her brother Hendryck Andrieszen, authorizing him to go to Holland to receive money due her child from the estate of the child’s grandfather, Jan Jacobszen Stol, dated August 26, 1661. Since records show that she was previously married to Harry Albertsen, of London, it is evident that Jacob Janszen Stol was her second husband. He was an early settler of Esopus (Kingston). Kingston records show that Geertruyd Andrieszen was granted land there August 15, 1661 by Christoffel Davidz, one of the earliest settlers at Esopus.

From the Albany records it is learned that Geertruyd Andries married 10 June, 1648, Jan Thomaszen, van (of) Oostenvelt. He was a young man not previously married, but it was her third, the others to Harry Albertson and Jacob Janszen Stol having occurred prior to 1648. Also found in the Fort Orange (Albany) records is a joint Will of Jan Thomaszen “van Wiltbeck en Holsteyn” (in Holstein, Denmark), and Geertruydt, Andries’ daughter, born in New Amsterdam. It was dated 21 October 1679. Children were mentioned but not named. Witnesses were Jan Andrieszen and Volskert Jansz Douw. The name of Geertruyd Andries and Andrieszen appeared frequently as sponsors at baptisms of relatives and others at Albany and Kingston. There are also a number of Kingston deeds records involving her name, and that of her brother Luykas Andrieszen. There was another Geertie Andries who was the wife of Cornelis Pluvier, but she died prior to 6 January, 1662, when her widower married Neeltje Couwenhoven. This last record was from the Dutch Reformed Church of New Amsterdam.

5. Hendryck Andrieszen, named as a brother of Geertruyd Andrieszen in her power of attorney mentioned above. At Albany there is record of a trial in which Jan Andrieszen testified that he saw Hendryck Andrieszen standing in the middle of the street with a naked sword in his hand, but that he did not see him molest anyone.

6. Christian Andrieszen. At Kingston there are several land transactions recorded for this man, including a joint deed with Luykas Andrieszen to Robert Storey dated 22 March 1682. Other joint transactions noted. He was probably a son of Andries Luycaszen and the several joint deeds there from various Andrieszens, but mostly to Geertruyd Andrieszen, probably involved land they had inherited from their father.

7. Jan Andrieszen. There can be no doubt that there was a son Jan, but unfortunately this was a very common name and there were several men named Jan Andrieszen in the colony of New Netherland at the same time. It is reasonably certain that the following records refer to the son of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebys:

29 November 1654: Jan Andrieszen, Volckert Janszen and Engeltje Jans were sponsors at the baptism of Engel, child of Jan Janszen van Breestede and Marritje Andries.

4 September 1657: He testified on behalf of Hendryck Andrieszen. See above.

12 January 1658: Jan Andrieszen and Pieter Jacobszen Bosboon were fined 500 florins and banished from the colony for selling brandy to the Indians. Albany records. Such banishments seldom were effective for great periods of time however.
26 THE TUNIS HOOD FAMILY

1667: Jan Andrieszen, Luukas Andrieszen and Marritje Andries sold land to Geertruyd Andrieszen at Kingston.

15 October 1668: Jan Andrieszen, Luukas Andrieszen and Marritje Andries witnessed baptism of Geertruyd, child of Tjerck Claesz de Wit and Barbera Andries. Kingston records.

27 June 1670: Deposition of Jan Andries, Kuyper (cooper), aged about 35 years concerning abusive language of one Ludovicus Cobesz. Albany records.

7 September 1675: Jan Andrieszen, a sealer of weights and measures, was gauger. His hoop was adopted as standard for meal casks, 4 April 1683. Albany records.

21 October 1679: Jan Andrieszen and Volckert Janszen witnessed the will of Jan Thomasz, husband of Geertruyd Andries. See above. Albany records.

It is not definitely known whether Jan Andrieszen, b. ca. 1640, apparently the youngest son of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebys was married. Several men bearing this name were married before 1670. One, styled "van Duyvelant" had a wife named Vrouwtze Jans; another's wife was named Greetie Jans, or Greetie Dorensz, and the wife of a third was Slyntie Jans.

Most likely there were other children of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebys who came with their parents to New Netherland, or were born there. There were in New Netherland quite early, men named Andrieszen, whether sons or brothers of Andries Luycaszen is not definitely known. Among them were Andries Andrieszen, Barent Andrieszen, Stoifel Andrieszen, Pieter Andrieszen, Laurens Andrieszen, and Jochem Andrieszen, and also Cornelis Andrieszen and Jeuroaen Andrieszen. There were also women named Francyntje Andries, Neesje Andries, and Annetje Andries. What if any relation these people were to Andries Luycaszen is not known.

Some further records of Geertruyd Andries are found in Albany court minutes, as follows:

Vol. 2, p. 254, 3 June 1679: Richard Pretty pltf, vs. Jan Thomasz, Johannes Jans (son of Jan Thomasz), Cornelius Teunise, Gerrit Teunise, and Roeloff Carstance, def'ts. The pltfs. demand of the def'ts, the fine provided by ordinance for having fought together at Paepske Island, offering to prove it by testimony of Arent Jacobsz. He says further that he has been informed that the dispute arose from the fact that Jan Thomasz drove his hogs on Gerrit Teunise's field of peas, across the kill. Arent Jacobsz, being sworn, says that he was at Kessom's house, at dinner, and he heard some noise, whereupon he went out and saw Jan Thomasz having hold of Gerrit Teunise's body, before his door, while Geertruyd, Jan Thomasz's wife, was beating Gerrit Teunise. Geertruyd says that Gerrit Teunise struck her husband, her son, and herself, and she would not stand for that. Gerrit Teunise offers to prove that the hogs, against his will and consent, were driven into his grain. Also that he was severely beaten by the four of them, and that Roeloff Carstence beat him so severely that he called for help, whereupon Cornelis Teunise came and was likewise beaten by Roeloff. Jan Thomasz says also that Gerrit Teunise beat him and his son. Cornelis Teunise says that he was severely beaten by Roeloff. The Honorable Court finds that the parties concerned are closely allied by blood and marriage, and recommends to them that if possible they make peace and become reconciled before the case assumes greater proportions, to which the parties are inclined, promising to satisfy each other tomorrow, reserving the sheriff's claim and costs. The reconciliation took place 4 June 1679, through the mediation of Meyndert Frederickse and Gabriel Thomsen.

Vol. 2, p. 474, 2 March 1680: Richard Pretty pltf. vs. Gerrit Teunise, def't. The pltf. demands of the def't. a fine of fl.200 in seawan, alleging that he was the cause of the trouble which arose last year at Paepske Island, because after the matter had been settled by the referee, Gerrit Teunise was notified to settle with the sheriff. The def't. denies that he owes anything more than the fine for having struck a blow with his fists. The Honorable Court, having heard the arguments of the parties, condemns the def't. to pay a fine of fl.25 in seawan to the pltf. for fighting, and Roeloff Carstence is condemned to pay fl.200 and the costs of the proceedings, because he is accused and proved by the witnesses of having been the main cause of the big quarrel and fighting in Paepske.

Vol. 3, p. 506, 6 January 1685: Geertruyd Andries, the widow of Jan Thomasz, and Doritie, the widow of Volckert Janse, pray by petition for a reduction of their assessments, as they are widows. Their Honors are unable to do anything in the matter.

Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyns were great-great-grandparents of Tunis Hood of Mecklenburg County, N. C., and are likewise direct ancestors of all of his descendants. Descendants of Luykas Hoed (Lucas Hood) are similarly related as descendants of Andries Luycaszen and Jannetje Sebyns.
CHAPTER V
SKIPPER LAURENS CORNELISZEN VAN DER WEL AND HIS FAMILY

The parents of Aefje Laurens, wife of Luykas Andrieszen, great-great-grandparents of Tunis Hood, are well identified as Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and Lysbeth Thyssen, sometimes identified as Thys. She appears to have been a sister of Claes Thyssen. In this connection, the Minutes of Orphan Masters, Vol. 1, p. 62, in Court Record, published by the Holland Society of New York, contains the following entry:

"Claes Thyssen announces that Angenietje Strycher, his wife, had died in the year 1658, leaving, besides the widower, two small children, both boys, one 9 years 10 month and the other about 4 months; and at the request of the said Claes Thyssen, the Orphan Masters of the estate have appointed as administrators of the estate and guardians of the children, Schepen (Magistrate) Jacob Strycker, brother of the deceased, and Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, brother-in-law of the said Claes Thyssen . . . 8 January 1659."

Lysbeth Thyssen was listed as a member of the New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church in 1649. In the same year an entry in the church records stated that Aefje Laurens had removed to Amsterdam, Holland. This must have been a visit voyage, since the marriage register of the same church shows that she married Luykas Andrieszen on May 20, 1655.

The early New York Dutch records contain voluminous references to Schipper (Skipper) Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel who had come to New Amsterdam about the year 1640 from Holland. His name was patronymic, being formed as "Laurens, Cornelis' son, of the Wel." Some of his male line descendants of today are known by family names variously as Cornelisen, Vanderwel, Vanderwal, and Vanderwall, and are widely scattered around the country.

The earliest public record of Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel is found in the Holland Society of New York Year Book, 1901, p. 128, covering a grant of land on Manhattan Island, adjoining Hendrick Snyder's land, by the West India Company to Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, 7 September, 1641.

Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appears to have incurred the enmity of the then Director-General, Willem Kieft shortly after his settlement in New Amsterdam, aggravated by Corneliszen van der Wel heading a group of petitioners seeking to have Director Kieft recalled. As a result of this agitation, Kieft was recalled in 1645, but prior to that time he had put through an order banishing Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and other agitators from New Netherland. The order apparently was not very well enforced, as records show that Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel continued to live in the colony, or nearby English colonies, although his New Netherland citizenship rights were apparently suspended. After Kieft’s departure for Holland in 1647, Skipper Laurens Comeliszen van der Wel was fully exonerated and his banishment revoked. Later the Council conferred upon him its highest honors.

In this connection, J. Franklin Jameson, in his Narratives of New Netherland, 1609-1664, wrote as follows:

"In 1650 Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Secretary for New Netherland, made a reply to the representation of Adriaen van der Donck and his associates. Both documents were published in full and concerned the difficulties Director Kieft had had with the Council. Tienhoven wrote: "Hendrick Janszen, snyder (tailor), Laurens Corneliszen and others, many years ago were banished from New Netherland. Janszen, the tailor, was throughout Kieft's administration one of his bitterest critics and most abusive opponents, and was several times prosecuted for slander. In 1647 he sailed on the Princess, as did Kieft, and both he and Kieft were lost at sea. Laurens Comeliszen van der Wel was a sea captain and had also been prosecuted by Kieft.'"

From the minutes of Director Kieft’s Council, prior to his recall, came this scathing attack in connection with his charges made against Rev. E. Bogardus, in a summons to appear before the New Amsterdam Council:

"In the year 1644, one Laurens Corneliszen, being here—a man who had committed perjury; once openly took a false oath and was guilty of theft—he immediately found a patron in you, because he bespattered the Director with lies and you were daily making cheer with him. In the summer of the same year, when Minister Douthey administered the Lord's Supper in the morning, you came drunk into the pulpit in the afternoon; also on the Friday before Christmas of the same year, when you preached the sermon calling to repentance."

DOCUMENTS RELATING TO THE COLONIAL HISTORY OF NEW YORK, Vol. 1, p. 165, Friday, 18 October 1645: It being stated that one Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, being banished from New Netherland, requests permission to be at liberty to go thither whenever the new Director proceeds there and to pursue in peace without being troubled by justice, some other business than that which he followed when he was banished. On hearing further explanations of the circumstances of the case, it was resolved to leave the convict as he is, and that the petition lie on the table.

Vol. 1, p. 122, 26 June 1643: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel grants to Hendrick Lubbertszen land near Smith’s Valley.

P. 128, 2 July, 1646: The West India Company grants to Sander Leendersen a lot formerly granted to Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel.
P. 207: Letter to Director Pieter Stuyvesant, Director-General of New Netherland, from Jochem Pietersen Kuyter, dated 22 June, 1647: Item 10: That Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel could not defend his case in consequence of Director Kieft’s authority. On this point the above named skipper complained in the presence of divers persons, to-wit: that he would have indeed obtained declarations from persons in his suit regarding pearls, but through fear and in consequence of the high station of Mr. Kieft, they dare not give them except two, who however, had made so bold and gave him a certificate. We do not corroborate the whole of this matter in other letters; we merely state that we believe it. As this point has no relation to the general affairs of the country, but merely regards the difficulty between Mr. Kieft and the above named skipper, we shall therefore refrain from it and pass on to the conclusion.

P. 211: The danger from the Indian attacks was stressed and the narrative continued: But to this very little attention was paid. The favorable season has been allowed to go by and people have busied themselves with private quarrels and lawsuits with this one and that, especially about sending pearls by Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, skipper of the ship Machtel Van Enckhyzen, which lasted six weeks, and who on that account has been banished. Through respect for the Director we shall not rightly speak of the matter which finally appertains to the Lord only to pass judgment, but so much is said and heard here, and it is our opinion that had it not been for the authority of the Director, the poor skipper might have fortified himself with divers most respectable certificates, not only those which were sent with him, but also with divers others. The above had been sent on October 28, 1644 to the Amsterdam Chamber of the West India Company by the Committee of Eight Men, with the result that Kieft was recalled and Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel completely exonerated of all the charges against him, and particularly that of smuggling pearls, as wholly unfounded and completely false, and restored to all his rights, as a very competent skipper, with the sentence of banishment revoked.

New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church Baptisms, Vol. 2, p. 30, 20 August 1651: Thys and Dirck, apparently twins, sons of Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and Lysbeth Thyssen were baptised. Sponsors included Claes Thyssen, Skipper Jurianen and Engeltje Jans. Claes Thyssen was a brother of Lysbeth Thyssen. It is noted that Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel had a daughter old enough to testify in Court on 2 January, 1658, or seven years after the baptisms of the above two sons. This was probably their daughter, Aefje Laurens, who was born in Amsterdam, Holland, probably about 1635 or 1638, and who married Luykas Andrieszen May 20, 1655. Lysbeth Thyssen was listed on the first membership rolls of the old New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church, and only a few names separated from hers, appears the name of Aefje Laurens as a member. It is possible that Aefje Laurens was a daughter of Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel by a first marriage in Holland, but an analysis of appearances by Lysbeth Thyssen at baptismal ceremonies suggests otherwise.

A study of Court Minutes of New York City, covering the period 1654-1664, shows that Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel was involved in almost continuous litigation, mostly as defendant and occasionally as witness, or petitioner. Transcripts of some of these actions follow:

Vol. 1, p. 150, 12 January, 1654: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel requests by petition the office of gunner of the artillery mounted on the City’s Works, with a suitable salary. Whereupon it is ordered at a more convenient time, attention shall be paid to the prayer of petition.

Vol. 1, p. 161, 16 February, 1654: Michael Paulisen, pltf., vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. says that he hired his scow to def't., and before it was returned, it was carried off, and not having been returned up to the present time, claims payment of rent for the days that elapsed, and for the scow. Def't. admits that he had hired the scow; says that while it was lying at the shore in fair weather, it was swept off by the tide, and up to the present date he has not been able to ascertain where the same was stranded; requests that arbitrators may be appointed to settle the same. Parties being heard according to def't. request, referred to Lambert Huebersteeb Mol and Cornelis Van Dort, both master ship carpenters, as arbitrators to arrange the matter according to their ability, with power if necessary, to assume to them a third party.

Vol. 1, p. 161, 16 February, 1654, continued: Daniel Letschoe, as attorney of Paulus Schrick, pltf., vs Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. in said quality demands payment of f361.l8 stivers due according to note drawn by def't. and Arys Janssen, jointly and severally, bearing date of 28 August, 1651. Def't. acknowledges said note, but states that Arys Van Cock is not present and that Jacob Stoffelsen is security for the payment on 4 March, which he offered to prove. The matter was postponed by the court for proof.

Vol. 1, p. 161, 16 February, 1654, continued: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, pltf. vs Jan Gerritsen and Adam Gerritsen, def'ts. Pltf. declares that def'ts., being in his service had charge of the aforesaid scow, and that through their carelessness, the same had been carried away; claims they ought to make good the damage. Court having heard the def'ts. excuse, they were also referred to the before-named arbitrators.

Vol. 1, p. 180, 30 March, 1654: Gysbert van Imbroeck, pltf. vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Demands payment for the balance due him for linen sold according to note dated 4 March 1653. Def't. admits the debt, offering after adjustment of accounts to pay whatever may be due either in good wampum or goods, before the departure of the ships to the Fatherland to the satisfaction of the pltf., which pltf. accepts. Ordered that they settle their accounts and that def't. perform the aforesaid promises.

Vol. 1, p. 162, 16 February, 1654, continued: Daniel Letschoe in aforesaid quality, pltf. vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. For payment of fl.170 which def't. individually owes according to note dated 4 February, 1653. Def't. admits the debt and states that the time has not expired, as it is included in the preceding condition. Case put off for further proof.

Vol. 1, p. 149, 12 July 1654: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appearing in Court requests that he may be able and allowed to sell beer and wines by the small measure as well as others, which request is granted, provided he pay the customary duty, and subject himself to such Ordinances as may already have been or may hereafter be enacted.

Vol. 1, p. 226, 19 August, 1654: Gerrit Janssen Klinkhammer, pltf. vs Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Demands payment of fl.24 for earned monthly wages. Def't. confirms the debt but the question is only whether pltf. is not bound to pay part of the loss of the scow by the mates. Parties having been heard, the Burgermeister (mayor) and Schoepens (magistrates) of the City condemn the def't., Skipper Laurens, to pay the remaining monthly wages; he acknowledges that Gerrit Janssen was not at work on the day the scow was lost, but was exonerated by the other mates, as well as Skipper Laurens himself.
Vol. 1, p. 267-268, 30 November, 1654: Arent Colsbuys, pltf., vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, as attorney for Claes Thyssen, def't. Pltf. as before claims compensation for six lost planks, which he had given to Claes Thyssen as freight. Def't. denies as before that the time was fixed to take them on board, and if any plank had drifted away it was because pltf. himself had not placed them high enough in safety, where they could not be carried off, maintaining that he was not responsible for any loss as long as he received no notice, and no delivery was made. The Court, after hearing the parties, examined the pltf. as to whether he could prove his statement that the time was appointed to receive the planks, or that notice or delivery had been made; received for answer that he had no further evidence but what he already exhibited. Therefore the Court found that the pltf. had failed to sustain his statements; his claim is dismissed, with costs to him, and the def't. discharged.

Vol. 1, p. 269, 30 November, 1654: Cornelis Hendricksen van Dort, pltf. vs Mr. Thomas Young, def't. Pltf. claims that he had assisted the def't.'s ketch off the Hell Gate Rocks, etc. Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, examined, declares he had heard that Mr. Young offered 100 guilders, but that no agreement was reached. Parties having been heard and the proof of the party's allegations being insufficient, the Court refers the same to the arbitrators, and appoints as such Thomas Hall and Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wal to decide the same.

Vol. 1, p. 352, 26 August, 1655: Dirck Teunissen, pltf. vs Jacob Clopp, def't. Thomas Hall and Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, appointed arbitrators in settling the matter of the loss of three canoes by the pltf.

Vol. 2, p. 21, 24 January, 1656: Cornelis Schut, pltf. vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. demands pursuant to the order of the last Court, that def't. shall declare on whose acc't. he delivered two barrels of meat to Skipper Waterhout, and that the Court shall please then to pronounce judgment between him and the skipper. Def't. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appeared in Court, declared that Skipper Pieter Dircksen Waterhout came to him to buy meat in the name of Cornelis Schut's acc't., and it was all the same to him, that he bought and received two barrels of meat for 12 beavers from him on acc't. of Cornelis Schut's acc't.; offers to pay Waterhout in meat or wampum as the same circulates here, whatever may belong to him. The Court having paid attention to the declaration of Skipper Laurens, orders that Skipper Pieter Dirkszen Waterhout shall allow Schut the 12 beavers which he has received in meat from Skipper Laurens, and should he, Waterhout, think he has any action against Laurens Corneliszen, he may institute the same.

Vol. 2, p. 95, 8 May, 1656: Willem Beeckman and Thomas Hall, pltfs. vs Skipper Laurens Corneliszen and Jacob Schellinger, defts. Pltfs. say that they applied repeatedly to def'ts. to enclose by a common fence their land lying next to theirs and that they and others have neglected to enclose it up to the present time, whereby they are suffering great loss from the cattle in their crops, requesting that def'ts. shall be constrained to fence land, or that they be authorized to have it done at their expense. The def'ts., Skipper Laurens Corneliszen and Jacob Schellinger assert that their land is not under common fence, saying that Director-General Kieft, now deceased, granted a particular ground brief thereof, and that they are not bound to make a fence in common. Parties being heard, the Court decides and orders the pltfs. shall cause the land in question to be enclosed at the expense of whomever shall be obliged for the same. Meanwhile Skipper Laurens was ordered to produce his proof.
Old New York City as it appeared in a panorama sketched in 1717 by William Burgis of Boston. The artist stood on what is now Brooklyn Heights and sketched the East River from the fort at the Battery (marked by flag, far left) to the foot of present Catherine Street. The lower town which stretched up to Trinity Church (far right) was largely built by Dutch colonists who imported their architecture direct from Holland. Most of Dutch New York was burned during the Revolution and the original Dutch style is seen now only in a few survivals farther up the Hudson. See page 69.
Old Senate House, Kingston, N. Y., built about 1660, still standing. Tunis Hood Sr. played around this old public building as a small boy. See page 38.
Vol. 2, p. 96, 8 May, 1656: Willem Beeckman, Schoepen (Magistrate) of this city, requests by advice relative to a dispute between him, Willem Beeckman, and Thomas Hall vs Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't., regarding a certain parcel of land about 5 or 6 morgens (10 or 12 acres) lying within the Public Enclosure near the Valley (Smith's Valley), beyond the Fresh Water Lake, the def't. refusing and failing, pro rata, to maintain with others the common fence, maintaining that he is not liable for the common fence because he has a special groundbrief of the aforesaid 5 or 6 morgens. Our answer is: Special groundbriefs are a thing of the past for all lands within the Common Enclosure, and even if they were not past, and the land lay within the common fence, that would excuse no one from maintaining the Common Enclosure or from defraying the charges necessary thereto, or aiding to defray them. Therefore it is necessary that the def't. Laurens Corneliszen, or whoever has his share, or shall thereafter obtain it, be ordered to construct his own part of the Common Fence, on pain of forfeiting his right and being condemned in the costs.

Done at Fort Amsterdam in New Netherland, the 9th day of May 1656.

Subscribed: Pieterus Stuyvesant, Director-General.

By virtue of the foregoing act, Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel was ordered by Special Court Messenger, on direct order issued by the Director-General, to construct his part of the Common Fence, wherein the period of twice 24 hours after this notice of this date, on pain of losing his rights.

Vol. 2, p. 117, 10 June, 1656: Jan Danielsen, pltf. vs. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, dt't. Pltf. demands restitution of 8 beavers and 1 otter which according to handwriting received from the Swedish Clergyman, Rev. Lawerence Lock, pastor at Fort Christina (now Wilmington, Delaware), and delivered only 14 pounds of powder therefor. Def't. acknowledges according to handwriting to have received 8 beavers and 1 otter from the Clergyman of the Swedes at Fort Christina to buy certain goods for him, but says he bought and sent only few goods for them, but should the Court decide, he offers to give an acc't. of what he purchased and restitution of the remainder. The Court orders the def't. to do so at the earliest date possible.

Vol. 2, p. 133, 3 July, 1656: Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appears in Court exhibiting procuration from Skipper Jan Jansz Bestewaer to collect from Mr. Scharborg 6,000 lbs of tobacco which must be paid before the departure of the ship Nieuw Amsterdam, and whereas he has failed therein, and Nicholaes Boot is bound by certain acts to deliver goods he has in pledge therefor, being 294 ells of Kersey Cloth and some staves of lead, in default of payment, he requests that he be authorized by the Court to take the goods and to sell the same in return according to obligation. Nicholaes Boot says he is ready to deliver the goods according to signatures, requests only that Skipper Laurens give sufficient security to restore the proceeds of said goods in case the tobacco be sent to Holland from Virginia. The Court having seen Scharborg's note and Nicholaes Boot's band, decides that whilst there are articles of contraband such as lead mixed with the goods which Nicholaes Boot has in pledge, they cannot dispose of them. Therefore it was referred to the Director-General and Council for further disposal.

Vol. 2, p. 177, 2 October, 1656: Arysen Huybertsen, pltf. vs Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. says that about two months ago he navigated 2½ months in def't's. employ in his yacht, and agreed for fl.50 per month, to be paid in beaver or tobacco, and whereas to the present time he has not been paid, requests that he be constrained therunto by the Court. The Court orders def't. to deposit with the Secretary the demanded sum of fl.50 within 8 days, with costs of this suit.
Vol. 2, p. 180, 9 October, 1656: Nicholaes Boot, pltf. vs Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. asks for payment of a loan to def't. Def't's wife appears and says her husband is gone to the North on a voyage, and had no summons. She asks for postponement of the case until his return, which is expected soon. Court orders a postponement.

Vol. 2, p. 214, 31 October, 1656: Nicholaes Boot appears in court, stating that he is informed by two women, namely, Mrs. Harck and Susanna Brewer, that Skipper Laurens Corneliszen's wife expressed the intention to remove her residence there; requesting that for security of his debt, he may arrest the goods and chattels of the above Skipper Laurens, the rather that he is informed, that she has already removed some property. Court consents to the pltf's. demand and that he may arrest at his risk the goods and chattels thereof for the security of his debt.

Vol. 2, p. 281, 22 January, 1657: Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appears in court, and whereas he cannot obtain any barrels from the cooper, and has some himself which are not of Holland measure, and consequently cannot be guaged conformable to order, and that as he intends to have beer put in them, be used without hinderance for sea stock. The Court considering present circumstances consents to allow the petitioner to use and carry with him the barrels which he has, on the condition that the same be guaged so that export duty may not be lost.

Vol. 7, p. 155, 11 April, 1657: Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appears in Court of Burgermeisters, representing that he has already performed divers extraordinary services in time of need, etc., both as a gunner of the City, as also on the South (Delaware) River and that if necessary he is ready to serve; requesting therefore the benefit of the Great Burgher Right. Burgermeisters considering the manifold services of the petitioner, and his good disposition to continue if necessary, grant his petition, and he is therefore inscribed in Letters of Gold on the Great Roll, and has taken the Great Burgher's Oath before all the Burgermeisters of the Colony of New Netherland in North America. So mote it Be.

Note: Very few Great Burgher's Rights were given in New Netherland,—in all about 12, among a few of whom in addition to Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, were Director-General Pieter Stuyvesant, Cornelis Tienhoven, Secretary, and Olof Stephenszenvan Courtlandt.

Vol. 2, p. 291, 7 January, 1658: Abraham de la Noy, pltf. vs Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, def't. Pltf. demands from def't. the sum of fl.394, balance according to obligation dated 16 August, 1656, with interest thereon for acct. of Roeloff Janszen Vonk, according to procuration had therein and exhibited to the Court. Def't. answers that he had paid something on acct. of the obligation and that Roeloff Janszen Vonk promised him he shall not be troublesome to him and will not have any procurations, and admits having passed the obligation, but has paid thereon, as before. Court grants def't. 8 days time to bring in his proof of what he has paid on acct.

Vol. 2, p. 299, 14 January, 1658: Abraham de la Noy appears in court stating that there is no termination regarding the acct. and payment which he claims from Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel for acct. of Roeloff Janszen Vonck, demanding that he have an end to it. Court answers that he, Abraham de la Noy, is in default as he has not furnished def't. any copy of the obligation.

Vol. 2, p. 306, 21 January, 1658: Abraham de la Noy, as attorney for Roeloff Janszen Vonck, pltf. vs Laurens Corneliszen def't. Pltf. again demands payment according to obligation of the sum of fl.394 with interest thereon for Roeloff Janszen Vonck's acct. Def't. exhibits in Court proof of the payment of a hhd. of leaf tobacco at 5 stivers the pound, amounting to fl.60, shipped to Holland and consigned to Roeloff Janszen Vonck. Pltf. says he is not satisfied with that as the def't. had no authority thereunto. Def't. answers that Vonck had promised him not to leave any procurations and to give time; whereupon he is asked if he have proof thereof. Answer: No other than his wife and daughter, and it was verbal, and he thereupon shipped the foregoing tobacco. Is then asked if he also knew that Roeloff Janszen Vonck left no procuration.? Answer: No. The Court condemns the def't. to pay the pltf. according to obligation, and that meanwhile the tobacco shall stand for payment on condition of giving security for the truth thereof.

Vol. 2, p. 339, 25 February, 1658: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel pltf. vs Capt. Jacob, def't. Pltf. says he loaned the def't. 22 lbs of tallow. Def't. admits having asked for the loan of some tallow, but denies the quantity, and says he had only 11 lbs., being willing to prove the same by one of the seamen who brought the tallow. Pltf. exhibits in court a written declaration of Marten Lauwerensen, seaman, who declares to have weighed 22 lbs. of tallow to Capt. Jacob’s servant. Court orders Capt. Jacob to pay Skipper Laurens Corneliszen, the pltf. the 22 lbs. of tallow within the time to twice four and twenty hours.

In 1661 the West India Company transferred ownership of South (Delaware) River Colony to the city of Amsterdam, Holland. Its records from 1661 to 1664 (when the English took over the first time), are not in the West India Company papers in the Archives of The Hague, in the Old City Archives of Amsterdam.

DOCUMENTARY HISTORY OF NEW YORK, Vol. 2, p. 183, 1662: “List of Colonists and other Freemen who have already applied for going to the Colony of this City (Amsterdam) in New Netherland:” The 15th name on the list was Laurens Corneliszen Van Der Wel. This was a preliminary list. Final list dated 17 November 1661; the name of Laurens Corneliszen van Der Wel was not on it. List was signed by G. Van Sweringen. The immigrants sailed on the ship “The Purmerland Church.”

Court Minutes of New York City, Vol. 4, p. 337, 27 November 1663: Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel appearing, demands payment due a boy over whom he has authority for monthly wages earned from Thomas Jansen Mingaels according to account, producing the same. Court decrees that he must settle with the curators of the insolvent estate of Thomas Jansen Mingaels, deceased, before he can receive the monies.

Vol. 5, p. 83, 1 July, 1664: Lambert Huybertszen Mol and Hendrick Lammerszen Mol plffs. vs Raimond Slaaptefort, def't. Plffs. demand payment from def't. of what they earned in def'ts' bark according to award of arbitration, exhibiting award. Def't. shows the contract made regarding repairs of the bark with the plffs. previous to his voyage to Virginia, demanding loss of interest suffered by the delay of the work. Court refers the matter in question to Pieter Jacobsen Marius and Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, authorizing them to take up the work and see if same can be executed, to estimate what has been earned by overwork, and render a report to the Court.

Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and his son-in-law Luykas Andrieszen were among the signers of a petition to the British Governor-General of New York under date of January 12, 1697. (See Chapter IV).

There are a great many other references to Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel in the various New York City court, marine and church records. After his vindication from the charges instigated by former Director-General Willem Kieft, and the revocation of his banishment from the New Netherland colony, he seems to have achieved a place of considerable prominence in the colony. His credit rating however, appears not to have been so good. Nevertheless he did reach the pinnacle of honor and prominence by being appointed one of the 12 Greater Burghers of New Amsterdam.

New York early marine records show that he was skipper of sailing ships for the West India Company at various times, sailing between New Netherland, The Netherlands and Denmark.

Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel was a direct ancestor of every Jasper Hood descendant.
CHAPTER VI
THEUNIS ELIASZEN VAN BUNSCCHOTEN AND HIS FAMILY

The mother of Tunis Hood was Rachel Van Bunschoten, youngest daughter and child of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, of Kingston, N. Y., both of whom appear to have been born in Holland. They were the grandparents of Tunis Hood of Mecklenburg County, N. C.

A comprehensive genealogy of the Van Bunschoten family in America was prepared and published in 1907 by the late William H. Van Bunschoten, a lineal descendant of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit. He was a prominent attorney of New York City, and one of the founders of the Holland Society of New York. He numbered among his clients the late President Theodore Roosevelt. The data covered in this chapter have been transcribed mostly from the records produced by Mr. Van Bunschoten, checked and supplemented to some extent from the official Kingston, Bergen, and other published early New York Dutch records.

Theunis Eliasz Van Bunschoten was an immigrant from Bunschoten, a small one-time walled town on a tidal way of the Zuyder Zee in Utrecht Province, Holland. He came to America about 1670, or perhaps earlier, bearing only the primitive patronymic name of Theunis Eliaszen, but sometime thereafter utilized the name of the village in Holland whence he came as his fixed family name, prefixed by Van, the Dutch word for of. He was known thereafter as Theunis Eliasz Van Bunschoten, formed from the patronymic name of "Theunis, Eliasz' son, of Bunschoten." Present family members spell the name mostly as Van Benschoten. Theunis is the short for Antheunis, which is the Dutch equivalent of the English and American Anthony.

The parents of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten are not identified beyond the certainty that his father bore the Christian name of Eliasz, and his mother most likely was named Marritje.

It is found in the marriage register of the first Dutch Reformed Church of Bergen, New Jersey, center of the original Dutch settlement of the Communipaw, across the bay from New York City, that Theunis Eliasz Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, were married there February 27, 1674. She gave her residence as New York, but her birthplace is not stated. Among the witnesses were Gerrit Thyssen and Hermantje Heermans, reasonably well identified respectively as her father and stepmother.
Following the birth of their first child, Henrickje (Henrietta), who was baptised in the Bergen Dutch Reformed Church May 22, 1676, and probably their second daughter Marritje, they removed to Kingston, Ulster County, N. Y., on the Upper Hudsen River, where Theunis Eliaszen appears to have previously lived. According to Ulster County public records, his family homestead was at Esopus, an old village several miles south of Kingston, where on March 27, 1678 Theunis Eliaszen bought 18 morgens (36 acres) of land from Dirck Jansen, Schepmoes (chief magistrate).

The earliest record of Theunis Eliaszen in America is found in the Kingston public records, where on March 3, 1671 he wittnessed a transaction between Regnier van der Coelle and Henry Pawling. He appears to have formally adopted Van Bunschoten as his fixed family surname sometime after 1680.

The early Kingston public records show that Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten was prominent in the public affairs of that old city, and of Ulster County. He was one of the original trustees (city commissioners) of the Corporation of Kingston, and was so named in the charter granted by Governor Dongan in 1687, and approved in Council May 17, 1688. Kingston became the county seat of Ulster County, which had been formed November 1, 1683.

Time and again the name of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bun-schoten is found affixed to corporation deeds. He served nine terms as Corporation of Kingston trustee, 1688-89 to 1711-12 inclusive. He died in Kingston sometime between 1725 and 1728, and is buried in the old Dutch Reformed Church graveyard there.

William H. Van Bunschoten assumed from the best circumstantial evidence, that the father of Gerritje Gerrit, wife of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten, was Gerrit Thyssen, a sailing ship skipper of New York City. He was probably a son of Thys Mathyse of Holland. Gerrit Thyssen and wife Hermantje Heermans were sponsors at the baptism of Henrickje (Henrietta) first child and daughter of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, May 22, 1676 in the old Dutch Reformed Church at Bergen, N. J.

The marriage register of the old Dutch Reformed Church of New Amsterdam (now New York City) contains the record of the marriage, November 29, 1664 of Captain Gerrit Thyssen and Hermantje Heermans, widow of Egbert Zanders. The marriage record did not identify him as “j. m.,” (young man not previously married), hence it can be assumed that he was a widower. Since Gerritje Gerrit was probably born about 1650 or 1655, possibly in New Amsterdam, it is certain that Hermantje Heermans could not have been her mother. If therefore she was the daughter of Gerrit Thyssen, which appears reasonably certain, then Hermantje Heermans was his second wife, which also appears certain. Since Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit christened their first born daughter as Hendrickje, it can well be assumed that she was named for her maternal grandmother, Henrickje, first wife of Gerrit Thyssen, and mother of Gerritje Gerrit.

Gerrit Thyssen was apparently in New Amsterdam prior to 1650, where his name appears in public records as early as 1649. In September, 1652 he was defendant in a lawsuit against him brought by Judith Verleth, wife of Nicolaes Bayard, and sister of Peter Stuyvesant, Director of New Netherland, in connection with a number of Negro slaves and other property purchased by Judith Verleth, which she charged "were taken away in the night by one Captain Gerrit Thyssen, without consent of plaintiff." Various other Thyssens, apparently brothers and sisters of Gerrit Thyssen appear in the New Amsterdam public and church records as early residents. Claes Thyssen, whose sister Lysbeth Thyssen is identified as the wife Skipper Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, was there as early as 1639.

From Dutch Reformed Church baptismal records, the children of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, are identified as follows:

* Failed to survive.
 Mother of Tunis Hood.

Since Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit undoubtedly followed the old Dutch custom of choosing names for children, it can be assumed that Hendrickje, the first born daughter was named for her maternal grandmother, Henrickje Thyssen; Marritje, the second born daughter likewise must have been named for her paternal grandmother, Marritje, wife of a man whose Christian name was Elias. The first and second born sons, Elias and Gerrit, certainly were named for their paternal and maternal grandfathers respectively, well identified as Elias of Bunschoten, Holland, and Gerrit Thyssen of New Amsterdam (New York City).

Some records of the marriages of some of the above children are available from the New York records. As now well known, Rachel the youngest daughter, married Jan Hoed (John Hood) of New York City, son of Jaspar Hoed (Hood) and Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas, of New York City. In 1719 she became the mother of Theunis Hoed (Tunis Hood). See further report.

Eliasz Van Bunschoten above married 1, August 13, 1705, Sara Jans, who was baptised October 8, 1686, daughter of Jan Mattysen Jansen and Magdalena Blanchen of Kingston. He married 2, about 1716, Catrina Keyser, who was baptised October 20, 1689, daughter of Kerk Cornelis Keyser and Agnietta Coensraad of Kingston. Their son Isaac Van Bunschoten, baptised September 11, 1723 at Kingston, married about 1743, Nellie Van Vliet, daughter of Aaron or Arie Van Vliet and Pieternella Swart, who was a daughter of Theunis Corneliszen Swart and Lysbeth van der Linden of Albany, N. Y.

Catrina Van Bunschoten, daughter of Eliasz Van Bunschoten and second wife, Catrina Keyser, married in 1744, Jacob Concklin, son of Jan Concklin of Tarrytown, N. Y., and Annetje Storm, daughter of David Storm and Esther See. David Storm was a son of Dirck Storm and Marie Pieters Montfort. Jan Concklin above, died November 1785 in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He was a son of Deliverance Concklin and Angeltje Boeckhout, baptised March 11, 1678, daughter of Mathys Boeckhout and Elizabeth Ellsworth of New York City.

Gerrit Van Bunschoten, second son of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, married Annetje Delma. They had a son Anthony (Theunis) Van Bunschoten who married Margriet Wels, and they had a daughter Elizabeth who married Jacobus Van Auken. Their daughter Charity Van Auken married Lodowick van der Marck, and they had a son James van der Marck. (Taken from the chart entitled “Ancestors of the paternal grandparents of Josephine Vandermark Koon, James Vandermark and Nancy Vandermark Humphrey, as appearing in Van der Mark Ancestry”).

Rebekka Van Bunschoten, daughter of Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten and Gerritje Gerrit, married Barent Nieukerk, who was baptised October 13, 1689 at the Kingston Dutch Reformed Church, son of Cornelis Gerritsen Nieuwerk and Jannetje Kunst, who were married October 5, 1664, Cornelis Gerritsen Nieuwkerk was a son of Gerrit Corneliszen van Nieuwkerk and Jannetje, daughter of Jan Barentsen Kunst and Jacomyntie Slight of New Amsterdam. The Nieuwkerk (later Anglicized to Newkirk) family origin was in Nieuwkerk (New Church) Holland, which they utilized as their fixed family surname. Barent Nieuwkerk lived in Hurley, near Kingston, until 1717, when he moved to Kingston.

According to The Newkirk Family published in March, 1934 by the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, pp. 26-27, Barent Nieuwkerk and Rebekka Van Bunschoten had nine children, as follows:

1. Gerretjen bapt. April 14, 1714 d. - - -; m. - - - Hoagland.
2. Cornelis bapt. August 12, 1716; married twice, descendants live mostly in Indiana.
3. Tunis (Theunis) bapt. July 13, 1718 d. - - - in Fairfield County, Ohio; m. Mary - - -
7. Tobias b. circa 1723; m. Penelope Brosard. They lived and died in Duplin County, North Carolina. Many descendants live in various sections of southeastern North Carolina. He was a Revolutionary War soldier.
8. Jemima b. - - -; m. - - - Hoagland.
9. Peter b. - - - Lived in Bullitt County, Kentucky; m. Cornelia Sousley. Raised a large family of children, many descendants of whom live in Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana.

Here again it is noted that this Dutch-American family followed strictly the old Dutch custom of selecting names for their children. Gerritjen, the first born daughter, was named for her maternal grandmother, Gerritje Gerrit Van Bunschoten; Cornelis, the first born son was named for his paternal grandfather, Cornelis Gerritsen Nieuwkerk; Theunis, second born son, was named for his maternal grandfather, Theunis Eliaszen Van Bunschoten.

Barent Nieuwkerk and family joined his brother-in-law, John Hood and family, in a pioneer migration to the Shenandoah Valley section of Virginia in 1732. Both families settled in the Back Creek Valley section of what is now Berkeley County, West Virginia, where John Hood had received a patent to 1,175 acres of land November 12, 1735. Barent Nieuwkerk bought 585 acres of that land from John Hood. Additional tracts later came into ownership of other members of his family. The land is still owned by members of Newkirk families, living in nearby Hedgesville, and the city of Martinsburg, West Virginia. The family Anglicized the spellings of their names to Newkirk after settling in Virginia. Barent became Barnet Newkirk; sons Theunis and Henderikus respectively became Tunis and Henry Newkirk. Daughter Gerritjen appears to have taken the Anglicized name of Grace. (See Newkirk Family History, p. 26).

The will of Barnet Newkirk, dated February 18, 1764 is filed in the Record of Wills, Frederick County Court House, Winchester, Virginia. One of the witnesses was Tunis Hood, son of John Hood, and nephew of Barnet Newkirk’s wife Rebecca. The Will was proved August 6, 1765 by Tunis Hood, Jonas Hedges and James Davis. Henry Newkirk, a son, was administrator, with Tunis Hood and Richard Hoagland as securities under his bond. Richard Hoagland was probably a son-in-law of Tunis Hood, husband of his daughter Elizabeth Hood.

The name of Gerritje Gerrit does not appear among the sponsors at the baptisms of any of her grandchildren, as would ordinarily be expected, hence it can be assumed that she died prior to 1714.
CHAPTER VII

THE NETHERLANDS AND NEW NETHERLAND

While his paternal ancestral line appears to have been more Danish, with some mixture of Holland Dutch, Tunis Hood himself was more predominantly Dutch, his mother being full Dutch and his father probably partially so. It seems fitting therefore that a brief review of the historical background of that Dutch ancestral cradle of so many early American families, including the Hoods, be reviewed.

The influence of the Holland Dutch in the making of the American republic is too often lost sight of. While they were not the first discoverers of America, they were nevertheless responsible for the establishment of the first white settlements of New York, sections of Southern Connecticut, the Jersey coast line communities, the state of Delaware, and the Delaware River sections of New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania. New York Bay and the Hudson River had been discovered almost a century earlier by Giovanni da Verrazano in 1524, sailing under the French flag, although he himself was probably Portuguese. Following the discovery, French vessels occasionally sailed up the broad river, then unnamed, to trade with the Indians, but no attempts were made by the French to colonize the country.

Holland is more properly spoken of as The Netherlands (plural), while New Netherland, the early Dutch colony in America, is in singular form. The Netherlands resulted from a union of several peoples or provinces. In early times it was a part of the Middle Kingdom that lay between France and Germany. Through all the ages the people of England and Holland have been very closely associated. In fact, they were blood cousins; and even today an English-speaking person can understand a little Dutch. The country was well located for commerce and the Dutch and Flemish people early took to weaving cloth from English wool, long before England became a manufacturing country.

Under William Rufus, a party of Flemings obtained permission to settle in England because of their having been driven from their homes by floods. The actual settlement was made under Henry I. Because of their knowledge of weaving, some were induced by David I, of Scotland, to come to his country. However, this was 200 years or more before England became an industrial country.

In the 14th Century under Edward III, (1327-1377) immigration from The Netherlands of skilled workers increased greatly. They settled for the most part in Norfolk and Suffolk and it was here that the English manufacture of cloth centered in the reign of Henry V (1413-1422). This is part of the section of England conquered and occupied by Canute (1016-1035), the Sea King and his Viking Danes in the 10th Century. The majority of early settlers of New England actually came from Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex, the East Anglian counties where the Dutch and Flemish weavers had settled. The same is only slightly less true of the early Virginia settlers.

The influx of Dutch settlers in East Anglia had a profound influence on English life. Oxford remained High Church, while Cambridge was liberal and more or less Puritan. It was from the East Anglia counties that Wycliff obtained many of his converts. This was the home of the Lollards.

During the reign of Lady Mary (1477-82), daughter of Charles the Bold, the Dutch and Flemish burghers obtained a charter of liberties known as the “Great Privilege.” This charter was forced on her and she tried to get out of it by sending two messengers to the King of France for help. Their mission became known and they were seized by the men of Ghent and beheaded in the market place in the presence of Mary. She married Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, and at her death, her son Philip became ruler. He married Joanna of Castile, daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain. In 1500, their son Charles was born at Ghent and he became Charles V of Spain and Lord of The Netherlands. This ended for a while the attempt of the Dutch people to gain political liberties.

Even during the 16th Century the Dutch were culturally far advanced. They had free public schools supported by taxes. The first English translation of the Bible was published at Antwerp in 1535; previously more than 15 Dutch and Flemish Bibles had been published. The Calvinists insisted that everyone read his Bible; hence there were few who could not at least read.

The revolt of Martin Luther resulted in the reign of Charles V being devoted mainly to suppression of heresy in the Low Countries. According to Grotius, over 50,000 heretics were put to death. The Dutch provinces revolted and united to become the modern state of Holland, while the Flemish provinces remained attached to the House of Hapsburg and were known as the Spanish Netherlands, and eventually became modern Belgium.
During the persecutions, thousands and thousands of Dutchmen fled to England. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth I (1558-1603) over 100,000 Dutch and Flemings became English citizens. They were fine people and contributed to England's greatness. After the division of the Netherlands, many thousands of the best stock of the Spanish Netherlands moved to Holland. This served to weaken the former country and strengthen the latter. Nearly all of those who fled to England were Puritans. By the time of Charles I (1625-1649) of England, many of the Puritans of England were children and grandchildren of Netherlanders who had adopted English equivalents of their names.

The Emperor Charles V had appointed William of Orange his stadholder for Holland and Zealand, and after the rebellion in 1579, these and other Netherlands states continued him in office by election. He had two sons, Maurice and Frederick. This William of Orange was known as William I (The Silent), though he would never accept the title of king. His son Frederick was the father of William II who married Mary, daughter of Charles I of England. Their son, William III (1688-1702), in time became king of both countries for a period of thirteen years.

NEW NETHERLAND

An interesting account of the occupation, colonization of the New Netherland settlements in America by the Dutch during the 17th Century is condensed from The Dutch and Quaker Colonies in America, Vol. I and II, by John Fiske. As every student of American history knows, on September 3, 1609, Henry Hudson, an Englishman in the employ of the Dutch East India Company, which had been organized in 1602, entered New York Bay in his Half Moon, manned by Dutch sailors and proceeded up the great river that was soon to bear his name, in search of a "northwest passage" to India. He recommended the establishment of a vast Dutch fur trade with the Iroquois Indians, and the newly independent United Netherlands claimed the entire uncolonized strip between Virginia and New France (Quebec). The New Netherland Company was established in 1614 with a three year monopoly of the fur trade. In 1615 the Dutch took over an abandoned French fort and a stockaded trading post called Fort Nassau was established on Castle Island, which was the site of the present city of Albany, N. Y., and a few scattered huts had been built on the southern tip of Manhattan Island at the mouth of the river. They made a treaty with the Indians in 1618. The United New Netherland Company was formed by certain Dutch merchants following the passage of ordinances by the states of Holland and Friesland, granting the monopoly of the fur trade. The charter of the New Netherland Company lasted only three years and was not renewed. Following the alliance with the Iroquois Indians in 1618, the Dutch moved Fort Nassau to the mouth of Tawasanth Creek nearby and renamed it Fort Orange.

The Dutch West India Company was chartered by the Dutch in 1621 for a term of twenty-four years, replacing the New Netherland Company, with monopoly of the Dutch trade from New Foundland to the southerly Strait of Magellan.

In June, 1623, New Netherland was formally made a province, whose boundaries took in a thin line of settlements on central and western Long Island, Manhattan Island, the Hudson River region as far north as the present city of Albany, N. Y., and scattered farming communities along the coastal areas southward to the mouth of the Delaware River, then called the South River. Later in 1623 a new Fort Nassau was built on South (Delaware) River at the site of the present city of Camden, N. J., opposite the city of Philadelphia. Another party established a small settlement at Fort Good Hope, which was the the site of the present city of Hartford, Connecticut, and still another settlement was established on Walloon Bay (New Haven) by Flemish Walloons who had previously tried unsuccessfully to settle in Virginia. By this time approximately 15,000 Hollanders had emigrated to New Netherland, although only about 1,600 had settled and founded the old town of New Amsterdam, the present New York City.

In 1625 two ships loaded with cattle and horses arrived. This meant that the Dutch had come to stay. Quite a substantial number of these early emigrees were Danes, French Huguenots and Englishmen who had early emigrated to Holland and acquired Dutch citizenship, or were descendants of such immigrants. A few scattered Germans had also arrived.

Thus, The Netherlands, or Holland as more commonly called in America, was the Fatherland of the first settlers of New York, Southern Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, and Delaware River strips of Pennsylvania. And it is a further interesting fact that when the Mayflower landed at Plymouth, Massachusetts in 1620 approximately one-third of her crew were Holland Dutch born.

Pieter Minuit, first Director-General of New Netherland, arrived in 1626, and soon afterwards Manhattan Island was bought from the Indians for the equivalent of $24.00 in calico and beads. Pieter Minuit had replaced Willem Verhulst who had been acting Director. Fort Amsterdam was built at the lower tip of Manhattan Island, approximate site of the Battery, and this settlement, later called New Amsterdam, was made the capitol of the province.
By 1633 the government of New Netherland was placed under a council of five, headed by Wouter (Walter) Van Twiller. The other members of the council were Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood), apparently no relation to Jasper Hood, who had arrived from Holland in 1629; Captain Janszen Hesse, Mertyn Gerritsen and Jacques Bentyn. Andries Hudde was named Commissioner of Wares, and also served as official surveyor of the province. Later he became Secretary of the Dutch West India Company, which his relatives in Holland had been among the organizers. He also served as one of the early burgermeisters (aldermen) of New Amsterdam, and conducted a school, he having been well educated in Holland. Laws for the settlers were made in the Amsterdam (Holland) office of the West India Company and administered by Pieter Minuit, with the advice of the other council members, all of whom had been appointed from Amsterdam. Immigrants of any nationality or religious faith were welcomed in this early stage of the colony. All lands were purchased from the Indians and on the whole relations with the Indians started off harmoniously.

In 1629 the West India Company issued its famous charter of “Privileges and Exemptions” under which the patroonships were established. In effect, these patroons were feudal barons. Their only restriction was in regard to the fur trade and they paid scant heed to it. The first successful patroonship was that of Killian Van Renssalaer.

In 1632 Pieter Minuit was recalled on the grounds that he had shown too much favor to the patroons. He was succeeded by Wouter Van Twiller, who proved to be a man of inferior ability. In 1637 he was removed, and Willem Kieft arrived to become Director-General. He was a man of ability, but greatly lacking in prudence and tact.

In 1638 the fur monopoly was abolished, and a more liberal policy toward immigrants adopted. More settlers came as a result. During this year, the English began establishing settlements on Long Island and the site of the present city of New Haven, Connecticut. The year 1641 brought a serious outbreak of Indian troubles. Kieft had attempted to tax the Indians. The DeVries Plantation on Staten Island was destroyed by the Raritan Indians in revenge for the killing of some of their braves. Kieft convened the assembly to obtain more money. Certain reforms were demanded, promised, and then repudiated. During this year English settlers from Massachusetts were accepted; DeVries took up a subscription to build a permanent Dutch Reformed Church.

Indian troubles increased in 1643. The Algonquins, who had been driven across the river by the Mohawks, were massacred by order of Director Kieft. The Indians retaliated a full measure of revenge by repeated massacres of whites. The destruction of the Algonquin tribes brought a temporary halt to the Indian troubles, but it was an uneasy peace. Kieft again convened the assembly and new taxes were imposed over the protests of the Council of Eight Men by petition to the Estates General. DeVries left for Holland in gloom and bitterness toward Director Kieft.

As a result of petitions to Amsterdam, instigated by Laurens Corneliszen Van der Wel, a sailing ship master, and others, Kieft was removed in 1645, prior to which he had ordered Corneliszen van der Wel banished from the colony.

Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel and wife, Lysbeth Thyssen, were great-great-grandparents of Tunis Hood, later of Mecklenburg County, N. C.

Joachim Pietersen Kuyster, the Dane, and Cornelis Melyn, had also been active in circulating petitions against Kieft. Peterus (Peter) Stuyvesant, a peg-leg, was appointed to succeed Willem Kieft as Director-General, but did not arrive until 1647. Stuyvesant sided with Kieft in the controversies with Kuyster, Melyn and others. Kuyster and Melyn were ordered banished from the colony. Kieft was drowned in a shipwreck en route back to Holland, but Kuyster and Melyn, also aboard, were saved. They were later vindicated by the Council, of which they had been the two ablest men. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel was also vindicated and the banishment order against him revoked. Rev. E. Bogardus who had been another target of Kieft’s venom, was also drowned in the shipwreck along with Kieft. Survivors related that Kieft confessed his errors and begged forgiveness of those whom he had persecuted, when faced with the loss of his life.

Later in 1647 a new Council of Nine Men was elected, and a faint beginning of self-government was made. Stuyvesant ran into trouble with Van Renssalaer, Adriaen van der Donck and other patroons over refusal of Goovert Loockermans to pay staple rights to Van Renssalaer. Stuyvesant’s troubles with the patroons increased.

In 1649 Cornelis Melyn returned from a trip to Holland with a writ of mandamus for Stuyvesant to return to Holland and give an account of his actions. Van der Donck and the Council of Nine Men sent a petition requesting the ouster of the West India Company, establishment of a suitable municipal government, and that boundaries be established.

In 1651 under the Treaty of Hartford, the Dutch gave up all claim to New England land.

1652 saw the outbreak of war between England and Holland.
In New Amsterdam the Dutch began the construction of Wall Street as a protection against attack, and in 1653 New Amsterdam was incorporated as a city. Trouble developed with George Baxter and the English towns on Long Island. The West India Company upheld Stuyvesant, and Baxter and James Hubbard were removed from office and jailed. The war ended in 1654. John Underhill seized Fort Good Hope (Hartford).

With no shadow of claim from discovery or exploration, Sweden had in 1635 chartered colonies, locating five or six trading posts along the South (Delaware) River region, in New Netherland territory. Director Stuyvesant sent Captain Andries Luycaszen (great-great-grandfather of Tunis Hood) with a small force to investigate these activities. The Swedish lieutenant in command of the colony, showed Captain Luycaszen his orders to resist with force any attempt to evict them. Having only a few men with him, Captain Luycaszen returned and reported the situation to Director Stuyvesant. In 1655 Director Stuyvesant sent an expedition headed by Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood), who captured the Swedish posts. It then became known that this Swedish colony had been established by none other than Pieter Minuit, former Director-General of New Netherland. The year 1655 also saw the resumption of serious Indian troubles, especially at Esopus (Kingston) which were not ended until 1660, after a number of settlers had been massacred.

In 1661 the West India Company transferred ownership of the South (Delaware) River colony to the City of Amsterdam, Holland. Its records from 1661 to 1664 (the year the English took over the first time) are not in the West India Company papers in the Archives of The Hague, but are in the Old City Archives of Amsterdam.

The Connecticut Charter of 1662 put the squeeze on the Dutch Colonists, and the navigation laws further tightened the squeeze. Intrigues of George Baxter, John Scott and Samuel Maverick at the Court of King Charles II (1660-1685) of England, who in 1664, planning a commercial war against Holland, granted all the territory between the Connecticut and Delaware Rivers to his brother, the Duke of York, as a proprietary province. The Dutch burghers of New Amsterdam had received no word of this, until the Duke's fleet anchored in New Amsterdam harbor, with a preemptory demand that the fort be surrendered, an act Stuyvesant had long feared and repeatedly warned Amsterdam against, but to no avail. The Amsterdam authorities doggedly refused to recognize the imminence of such hazard.

A hurried convention was held to decide what to do. Peter Stuyvesant, the courageous, but despotic old peg-leg Director, wanted to resist the English conquest, but the shrewder burghers, recognizing their utter lack of means of defense and the futility of resistance, prevailed upon Stuyvesant to surrender. Thus, the occupation by the English was accomplished without a struggle. Colonel Richard Nicolls was appointed the English governor-general. Shortly afterwards Stuyvesant sailed for Holland. When he returned he became a friend of Colonel Nicolls.

The English changed the name of New Netherland, first as Nova Belgia, but a little later this was changed to New York.

Under Stuyvesant's rule there had been a great influx of Waldenses from the Piedmont section of what is now Northern Italy; Huguenots from France and present Belgium, Scotch Presbyterians, English Independents, Moravians, Baptists and Anabaptists; Danish, Swedish and a few German Lutherans, Jews and finally the Quakers. Quite a few Dutch were also Lutherans, which was tolerated though not encouraged in the The Netherlands. According to West India Company law, which was supreme in the colony, only the Calvinist Dutch Reformed Church could be recognized, a factor of much controversy in the course of time. In carrying out this policy, Stuyvesant, an intolerant pious Dutch Reformed Church bigot, aggressively supported by Rev. Johannes Megapolensius, ranking minister of the Dutch church, and Samuel Drisius, his assistant, who went far beyond the intent of the Company's policy, and persecuted many of these sects. Persecution of the Lutherans and Jews was most harassing to their attempts to form congregations of their own faith. Treatment of the Quakers who had come a little later was even more severe and brutal. These sects were obliged to hold religious services clandestinely in private homes, known as conventicles.

The conglomerate population of New Amsterdam, comprising so many European nationals produced language difficulties. Including the several dialects spoken by neighboring Indian tribes, a Babel of different languages caused much confusion in the daily lives of the colonists. Eighteen different languages and Indian dialects were spoken at one time. Dutch however, was the prevailing official language, of which the newcomers had to master at least a working knowledge.

New Amsterdam soon developed as a rowdy, immoral, free drinking community, reminiscent of the days of the American early West of Dodge City, and the gold rush days of California and Oregon. Aside from the more conservative and better behaved Dutch segment of the population, many had come primarily as fortune hunters, seeking quick riches in the fur trade, and sharp practice trading with the Indians. The restrictive trade regulations put into effect by the West India Company soon brought disillusionment to the get-rich-quick fortune hunters, and many returned to Europe.

AN ERA OF TYRANNY

A more graphic account of the harassing persecutions of, first, the Lutherans and Jews, followed by the more brutal treatment of the Quaker missionaries, is given in a recently published book: Peter Stuyvesant and his New York, Chapter XI, pp. 171-196, by Henry H. Kessler and Eugene Rachlis (Random House, New York). Its reading is recommended to any who are interested in learning in more detail of the unhappy era of the New Netherland Dutch colony.

A few brief excerpts from the authors' book gives an idea of the hardships endured by so many of the New Netherland colonists.

"Throughout Peter Stuyvesant's life, in time of calm, as well as violence," they wrote "he was sustained by a fierce devotion to his personal vision of God, Stuyvesant's God, the God of the Dutch Reformed Church, of Calvinism; was strict and uncompromising. His hand was palpable in all of mortal man's activities. God marched with Stuyvesant against the Swedes and brought good fortune to the expedition; and God sent the Indians to Manhattan to punish a wicked population. God's vengeance was swift and severe when there was sin and evil; all of life was but a series of tests to man's faith.

"In New Netherland, the open blasphemy and immorality were evidence of human weakness in the face of the Devil's temptations. But to Stuyvesant, a sin even greater than those of the flesh, and more dangerous to the community, was to worship God in a way other than that set forth by the Dutch Reformed Church. And now, in the unsettled and fearful quiet which followed the Indian raids, Stuyvesant became suddenly aware that heresy was stealing through his domain; men and women were finding ways to practice the religion of their own choice. On Long Island, especially among the predominantly English towns, Independents (Congregationalists) were holding their own local services; on Manhattan and in other Dutch towns, the Lutherans were worshiping according to their lights and had even asked for a minister of their own; there were whispers that the handful of Jews who arrived less than eighteen months earlier, were planning to seek permission to build a synagogue. Stuyvesant turned to fight the Devil in his insidious disguises.

"Stuyvesant's was not a lonely battle. He had the strong encouragement and support of the colony's ranking ministers, Megapolensis, and Drisius, who had arrived in 1653 to help Megapolensis serve the growing congregation. These two men, if anything, were more fervid than Stuyvesant in their eagerness to keep New Netherland a pure outpost of the Dutch Reformed Church. It was they who helped set the pattern for religious discrimination. In mid-January, 1656, while much of Manhattan was worrying about the city's defenses against future Indian surprises or devising ways to ransom the women and children still held by the Indians, the Reverends Megapolensis and Drisius formally petitioned Stuyvesant and the Council to act against a few heretics on Long Island. They had learned that Middleburg (now the Elmhurst section of Queens Borough) was the scene of secret religious meetings—converticles—from which they said, 'nothing but quarrels, confusions and disorders may be expected.'

Two weeks later, Stuyvesant signed his name to an ordinance that he naively assumed would settle the question of religious worship in the colony. 'The Director-General and Council of New Netherland,' the new law read, 'are credibly informed that not only conventicles and meetings are held here and there within this province, but also that in such gatherings some unqualified persons have assumed unto themselves the office of teaching, announcing and declaring God's Holy Word, without being called or appointed thereunto by authority either of church or state.' Since this was in direct contradiction and opposition to the policy of the church government of the Fatherland, Stuyvesant added, and 'because from such manner of gatherings divers mischiefs, heresies and schisms would follow, all such meetings, public and private, were now banned, and unqualified preachers were to be dismissed. But there was one line which Stuyvesant, his Council and his ministers did not dare cross: a fine Dutch tradition was too strongly ingrained. The ban, Stuyvesant said, was not intended to do 'violence to Conscience . . . nor to prohibit the reading of God's Holy Word, family prayers and worship, each in his own house.'

'Conscience. Around this single word controversy was to swirl for the rest of New Netherland's existence as a Dutch colony. As early as 1624, the 'Articles for the Colonists' approved by the Amsterdam Chamber made specific the official attitude toward religion in the New World. 'They shall within their territory hold no other services than those of the true Reformed Religion, in the manner in which they are at present conducted here in this country, and thus by their Christian life and conduct try to lead the Indians and other blind persons to the knowledge of God and His Word, without however persecuting anyone on account of his faith, but leaving to everyone freedom of conscience.' Stuyvesant would not, of course, reverse Amsterdam Chamber policy, nor would he tamper with the Dutch concept of conscience . . . those who had the poor grace to stay away from the Dutch Reformed Church could worship as they liked, as long as they kept it private and personal, preferably in their own homes. The few Roman Catholics who lived in the colony had done this for years, and saw a priest only on the rare occasions when a Jesuit missionary passed through. When worship took the form of organized activity, however, it represented a threat to the Reformed Church, the West India Company and the United Netherlands itself, all of which Stuyvesant was pledged to defend.

"The Lutherans were the first to feel the effects of the new ordinance. They had been gradually increasing in the colony as new settlers arrived from Sweden and Denmark; and many Dutch were finding Lutheranism less restricting than Calvinism. In 1653 the Lutherans petitioned Stuyvesant for permission to call a Lutheran minister and to organize themselves as a congregation and a church. Stuyvesant submitted the petition to the Amsterdam Chamber without comment. The Reverends Megapolensis and Drisius were less tolerant . . . They sent a letter to their superiors, the Classis of Amsterdam reporting this threat to their flock and demanding that the strongest efforts be made to prevent the recognition of Lutheranism in New Netherland. Otherwise, they said, the results would be disastrous . . . 'It would pave the way for other sects, so that in time our place would become a receptacle for all sorts of heretics and fanatics.'

"Although there was undoubtedly great pressure on the Amsterdam Chamber from Lutherans in Amsterdam and The Hague, the Classis was able to win its point quickly . . . They wrote its Manhattan ministers of the desired conclusion. 'They (the directors of the West India Company) have refused the request of the Lutherans in every particular, and have resolved to tolerate no other (public) exercise of divine worship in New Netherland except that of the true Reformed Religion.'

"Despite the edict from the West India Company and the Amsterdam Chamber, the Lutherans continued to meet in homes and taverns of their fellow members.

"The Amsterdam Lutherans persuaded Rev. Johannes Ernestus Gutwasser to go to New Amsterdam as minister to their brethren there, claiming that nothing in the Chamber's ruling prevented a minister from participation in private services. Megapolensis and Drisius saw the Lutheran minister's presence as the culmination of a 'plan of Satan; to smother this infant, rising congregation almost at its birth.' When Gutwasser made the mistake of referring to the Lutherans as a Congregation, the Burgomasters and Schepens thereupon forbade him to present his credentials. This did not fully satisfy Megapolensis and Drisius however. They demanded that Gutwasser be ordered back to The Netherlands, and the New Netherland Council promptly complied.

"The Lutherans were not disposed to give up without a struggle. They spirited Gutwasser into hiding, and raised funds for his defense. Gutwasser continued in hiding throughout the winters of 1657 and 1658, thus frustrating Stuyvesant's decision to banish him.

"The Amsterdam Chamber grew increasingly irritated with the narrowness of the Classis and its representatives in New Amsterdam. They regarded the difference between Lutheranism and Calvinism as minor, involving only a slight difference of language during the sacrament of baptism. Furthermore, the frustrating actions of Megapolensis and Drisius were causing divisions in the colony, and discouraging new colonists. Finally, the Chamber advised Stuyvesant that if the complaining continued it was prepared to concede 'a separate divine service' to the Lutherans. This caused the Dutch Reformed ministers to modify their position. In 1659 Gutwasser returned to Amsterdam. Slowly afterwards, the Lutherans reorganized a congregation but complete freedom of worship was never achieved in New Amsterdam, until after the English took over."

NEW NETHERLAND DUTCH REFUGEES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

About the time of the English occupation of New Netherland, many of the Dutch colonists who had become discontented and discouraged with their situation, formed resolutions of moving to other provinces. Most of these were Lutherans. In his History of the German Settlements and of the Lutheran Church in North and South Carolina, (1872), Rev. Gotthardt Dellmann Bernheim, maternal grandfather of this author, wrote in this connection:

"The only settlement in South Carolina in A.D. 1674, was old Charles Town, located on the Ashley River, several miles distant from where the present city of Charleston now stands. The settlers, who had been located there but little over three years, struggled for a name and existence against famine and other adverse circumstances, when, fortunately, during the time Sir John Yeamans was governor of Carolina, the colony received a great addition to its strength from the Dutch settlement of Nova Belgia, now New York, which province surrendered, as is well known, without any resistance, and became subject to the British crown."
"After the English conquest, many of the Dutch colonists, discontented with their situation, resolved to move to other provinces. The proprietors of Carolina offered them lands and encouragement in their Palatinate, and sent their ships Blessing and Phoenix, which brought a number of Dutch families to Charles Town.

"Stephen Bull, surveyor-general of the colony, had instructions to mark out lands on the southwest side of the Ashley River, viz: on James Island, for their accommodation. There each of the Dutch emigrants drew lots for their property, and founded a town, which was called Jamestown. This was the first colony of Holland Dutch who settled in Carolina, whose industry surmounted incredible hardships, and whose success induced many from ancient Belgia afterwards to follow them to the Western world.

"Whether these Dutch settlers had their pastor or not, history does not inform us; it is known, however, that they constituted a distinct class among those numerous dissenters, who protested against that unjust legislation of A.D. 1704, which established the Church of England as the Church of the State, and supported by the public treasury . . .

"The population of the colony was composed of individuals of different nations, and consequently various sects: Scotch Presbyterians, Dutch Lutherans, French Calvinists (Huguenots), Irish Catholics, English Churchmen, Quakers and Dissenters, emigrants from Bermuda and the West Indies, which, from their late settlements could not be places remarkable for the education of young people in Christianity and morality.

"In the year 1698, one step farther was taken by an act of the legislature 'to settle a maintenance on a minister of the Church of England' . . . In the year 1704, when the white population of South Carolina was between five and six thousand, when the Episcopalians had only one church in the province, and the Dissenters had three in Charles Town, and one in the country, the former were so far favored as to obtain a legal establishment. Most of the proprietors and public officers of the province, and particularly the Governor, Sir Nathaniel Johnson, were zealously attached to the Church of England. Believing in the current creed of the times, that an established religion was essential to the support of civil government, they concerted measures for endowing the church of the mother country, and advancing it in Carolina to a legal pre-eminence.

"Preparatory thereto, Governor Johnson, assisted by the principal officers of the southern part of the province, exerted his influence with so much success as to procure the election of a sufficient number of Episcopalians, who were disposed to forward his views. Notwithstanding the great opposition which the bill received, it passed into law. An act was passed requiring members of the Assembly to conform to the religious worship in the province, according to the Church of England, and to receive the sacraments according to the rites and usages of that church. The act virtually excluded from a seat in the Legislature all who were Dissenters, erected an aristocracy, and gave a monopoly of power to one sect, though far from being a majority of the inhabitants . . .

"The usual consequences followed. Animosities took place and spread in every direction. Moderate men of the favored church considered the law impolitic and hostile to the prosperity of the province. Dissenters of all denominations, both in North and South Carolina, made a common cause in endeavoring to obtain its repeal.

"From this narrative we learn that our Lutheran brethren, the Dutch colonists of South Carolina, on James Island, likewise suffered severely by this impious act of human legislation, and that they were not attached to the principles and usages of the Church of England, otherwise they never would have been classed by all historians of the two Carolinas among the number of those who dissented from that Church, and protested against its establishment by law.

"It may be asked, what reasons we have to conclude that the Dutch settlers on James Island were members of the Lutheran Church? To which we reply, that they are so denominated by all historians who have given us an account of the oppressive act instigated by Lord Granville, and carried into effect by Governor Nathaniel Johnson; consequently we conclude that these settlers from Nova Belgia (now New York) were mostly, if not all, Lutherans. However, should this doubt arise, that Englishmen were in the habit of denominating Germans as Dutch, thus confounding them with Hollanders, and that thus this mistake might very easily arise, we can safely meet this doubt with the fact, that at this early period, A.D. 1704, there were no other Lutheran Protestants, of either German or Swiss origin, in all the territory of the two Carolinas; the first German immigrants to these provinces were the Palatines, and they did not arrive at New Bern, N.C., until 1709, and in South Carolina about the same time. Every history of the two provinces, as well as the records in the office of the Secretary of State, have been thoroughly examined, and no trace of any other Lutheran colony could be found for this early period. The conclusion, is therefore correct, that the Dutch Lutherans mentioned are none other than the Dutch settlers of James Island.

"This opinion is confirmed by examining Rev. Dr. Schaeffer's Early History of the Lutheran Church in America, in which it will be seen, that in Holland there were Dutch Lutherans as well as Dutch Reformed, at this period, and that a great many of the Dutch settlers of New Netherland (New York) were of the Lutheran faith, and were on that very account, sorely persecuted by Director Peter Stuyvesant. Dr. Schaeffer states on p. 64:

"'The Lutherans had long been accustomed to meet in their own dwellings for purposes of social devotion. Against these meetings, called 'conventicles' in contempt, Stuyvesant published a fiery proclamation, showed that the Lutherans could expect no indulgence from him; encouraged the Dutch Reformed clergy in enforcing their baptismal formulary, so obnoxious to the Lutherans, and continued to punish by fines and imprisonment those who refused submission'. Their first minister, Rev. Johannes Ernestus Goetwater, who was sent to them by the Lutheran Consistory of Amsterdam, Holland, upon his arrival at New Amsterdam (New York), was cited to appear before the civil tribunal, and forbidden to preach, or to hold any Lutheran 'conventicles'; in short, he was forthwith banished from New Amsterdam; and having spent some few weeks in sickness in the suburbs of the city, he embarked in the month of October, 1659 and returned to Holland.' (Schaeffer, p. 65).

"Besides, if Dr. Howe is correct in dating the arrival of the Dutch settlers on James Island, S.C., as far back as December, 1671, then certainly these Dutch settlers must all, or nearly all, have been Lutherans, for that was the period when they suffered such fierce persecutions from Director Stuyvesant, before the reigns of his government had yet passed into the hands of the English, and the Dutch Lutherans were doubtless greatly rejoiced to have an opportunity of escaping religious intolerance by removing to South Carolina in the proprietary government's ships, Blessing and Phoenix; all of which must of necessity stand opposed to the statement found in Dr. Howe's History of the Presbyterian Church in South Carolina, p. 86: 'The Dutch settlers were of the Presbyterian Church of Holland'.

"History also informs us of the final fate of this Dutch colony as follows: 'The Dutch inhabitants of Jamestown, on James Island, afterwards finding their situation too narrow and circumscribed, in process of time spread themselves through the country where they soon lost their individuality by marriage with other settlers, and their town was totally deserted.' (Hewatt, vol. i, p. 73)."
"We sometimes meet with traces of Dutch settlers in the Carolinas and Georgia at the present day; they may be supposed to be descendants of this early Dutch colony on James Island; they themselves, as well as their surnames, inform us that they are descendants of Dutch ancestry, but they remember no longer their own colonial history, it being so remote that even tradition has left them no trace of the same. Many of these are still in full connection with the Lutheran Church, and retain a strong attachment to her doctrines and usages."

JEWS IN NEW AMSTERDAM

The first Jews on Manhattan faced an entirely different problem, one which had to do with a different type of prejudice. Kessler and Rachlis, in their Peter Stuyvesant and his New York, pp. 177-186, (Random House, New York) give a comprehensive account of their trials and tribulations in New Amsterdam. "The first Jews to arrive were refugees, twenty-three men, women and children, the first week of September, 1654. They had not come by choice. Their voyage had started some nine months earlier, when Portuguese troops, under the command of Francisco Berreto, forced the surrender of Pernambuco, the capitol of Dutch Brazil. The confusion and fear among the Dutchmen, and especially among the city's six hundred Dutch Jews, who were mostly of Portuguese ancestry and had strong memories of the Inquisition, was partially allayed by Berreto. He offered the defeatist colonists their choice of remaining, if they pledged allegiance to Portugal, or taking up to three months to settle their affairs if they chose to leave. Despite the tremendous losses they would have to take by hasty sales, or outright abandonment of property—Christians and Jews alike—decided to return to The Netherlands. Berreto provided ships enough for the emigration, and a total of sixteen Dutch and Portuguese ships were used. Fifteen made it without apparent difficulty, the sixteenth had no such luck. It was overtaken and captured by a Spanish pirate ship. In the Caribbean, the Spanish pirate ships was captured by the frigate St. Charles, a French privateer. Although the miserable band of Dutchmen had little more than the clothes they wore to show for security, Jacques de la Motthe, master of the St. Charles, contracted to bring them to New Amsterdam; the charge for the Jews was twenty-five hundred guilders, not excessive for the lengthy voyage. Of this, they had less than nine hundred guilders in cash. To insure collection of the rest, de la Motthe made the Jewish passengers responsible in solidum, the debt a total responsibility of all members of the group."
Almost immediately after reporting his cargo and passengers, the French captain sued for payment of 1567 guilders, the balance owed him by his Jewish passengers. There was no debate; the contract was fair. The Jews could only plead for time to write friends in Amsterdam. But neither the court nor de la Motthe had patience for that. After auctioning off all of their material goods, there was still a balance of 495 guilders due de la Motthe. The master of the St. Charles went to court again, and the Burgomeisters and Schepens concurred in his request that David Israel and Moses Ambroisius be held under civil arrest for the balance. But late in October, the sailors of the St. Charles who were last in line to receive their portion of the debt, agreed to await receipt of money from Amsterdam. And so the affair ended.

But before it did, the campaign started to rid the colony of the Jews. For Stuyvesant, Megapolensis and Drisius, religious freedom for Jews went far beyond the liberty of conscience allowed Christians . . . Stuyvesant's first report to the Amsterdam Chamber, set the tone for the harassment which followed. 'The Jews would nearly all like to remain here', he wrote. 'But learning that they (with their customary usury and deceitful trading with the Christians) were very repugnant to the inferior magistrates, as also to the people having the most affection for you; the Deanery also fearing that owing to their present indigence they might become a charge in the coming winter, we have for the benefit of this weak and newly developing place and the land in general, deemed it useful to require them in a friendly way to depart, praying also most seriously in this connection, for ourselves as also for the general community of your Worships, that the deceitful race—such hateful enemies and blasphemers of the name of Christ—be not allowed further to infect and trouble this new colony, to the detraction of your Worships and the dissatisfaction of your Worships' most affectionate subjects.'

From their rented quarters—they could not own property, even if they had had the money to buy it—the Jews wrote to friends in The Netherlands for money, for help, for influence with the Chamber. The response was quick and gratifying, indicating strength among Jewish stockholders in the West India Company which not even the Classis of Amsterdam, prodded by Megapolensis and Drisius and its own antipathy to the Jews, could overcome . . . Spokesmen for the New Amsterdam Jews cited French policy which permitted Jews to traffic and live in Martinique and British policy which allowed Jews to settle in Barbados. They recalled the Jewish record in support of the Dutch in Brazil, where they 'have at all times been faithful and have striven to guard and maintain that place, risking for that purpose their possessions and their blood.' And they played on the Amsterdam Chamber's recurring concern about the scanty population in America compared to the growing English colonies. 'Yonder land is extensive and spacious' the Amsterdam Jews pointed out. 'The more of loyal people that go to live there, the better it is.'

"The Amsterdam Chamber could make no other choice. Reluctantly, it told Stuyvesant, 'for we would have liked to fulfill your wishes,' it granted permission to the Jews 'to travel and trade to and in New Netherland and live and remain there, provided the poor among them shall not become a burden to the Company or the community, but be supported by their own nation." The members of the Chamber did not see how they could decide otherwise, especially because of 'the considerable loss sustained by this nation, with others, in the taking of Brazil, as also because of the large amount of capital which they still have invested in the shares of this company.'

... "More Jews migrated to New Amsterdam early in 1655. But the increased numbers also brought increased antipathy. Stuyvesant tried in nearly every letter to get the Chamber to reverse its decision. Megapolensis wrote frantic notes to the Classis, foreseeing a dire future and begging help to bring about the expulsion of the Jews. 'They (The Jews) report that many more of the same lot would follow, and then they would build here a synagogue' he wrote. 'This causes, among the congregation here a great deal of complaint and murmuring. These people have no other God than the Mammon on unrighteousness; and no other aim than to get possession of Christian property, and to overcome all other merchants by drawing all trade toward themselves. Therefore we request your Reverences to obtain from the Messrs Directors that these godless rascals, who are of no benefit to the country, but look at everything for their own profit, may be sent away from here. For as we have here Papists, Mennonites and Lutherans, among the Dutch; also many Puritans or Independents, and many atheists and various other servants of Baal among the English under this Government, who conceal themselves under the name of Christians; it would create a still greater confusion, if the obstinate and immovable Jews came to settle here.'

"Despite the intensity of the opposition, the Jews began to win minor victories. But arrests and fines for various questionable offenses continued. The request of the Jews for permission to buy land for a cemetery brought new opposition, but in the end they got it. Taxation against them was oppressive, and the granting of any new right was resisted, but in time Stuyvesant’s denials were overruled by Amsterdam. An attempt to establish a ghetto for housing Jews in New Amsterdam likewise failed. The Jews were soon as fully established in New Amsterdam as they were in old Amsterdam. In 1660, their permanence was symbolized when Asser Levy and Moses Lucena were sworn in as licensed butchers for the city. They were specifically exempted from having to handle pork however.”

THE QUAKERS COME

The persecutions of the Lutherans and Jews was mild in comparison to what was to come for the Quakers. On August 6, 1657, New Amsterdam met its first Quakers. The experience was so shocking that Megapolensis and Drisius sat down to collaborate on a breathless report to the ‘Reverend, Pious, Very Learned Fathers and Brethren in Christ’ the Classis of Amsterdam.

Here again, Kessler and Rachlis have produced a graphically outstanding coverage of the explosive effect of Quaker missionaries’ attempt to exploit their faith in the New Netherland Dutch colony, in their Peter Stuyvesant and his New York, pp. 186-196, some excerpts of which follow:

“Eleven Quaker missionaries arrived on the ship Woodhouse, which was built by Robert Fowler, an English convert to the recently organized Society of Friends, and dedicated to service in the New World.

“Among the arrivals were two young women, Dorothy Waugh and Mary Weatherford both in their twenties. As soon as the ship had departed, the two young women attempted to preach in the manner of their religion. They were promptly arrested and kept in the fort’s dingy cell for eight days, after which they were removed, with their arms pinned behind them, and with two Negro slaves as escorts, were marched down to the waterfront and put aboard a ship about to sail for Rhode Island, which Megapolensis and Drisius had described as ‘the receptacle of all sorts of riffraff people, and is nothing else than the sewer of New England. All the cranks of New England retire thither.’

“Eventually Dorothy Waugh married and went to live in Yorkshire, England. Mary Weatherford’s efforts in behalf of her faith ended a year after her New Amsterdam adventure. According to George Fox, founder of the Society, ‘she was shott att sea by a Dutch Privateere and killed’ in 1658.

“The Misses Waugh and Weatherford were not Satan’s only instruments in New Amsterdam, as Stuyvesant soon learned. Apparently he and Megapolensis did not know at the time that the Woodhouse had also deposited on Manhattan three other Quakers, one of whom was Robert Hodgson, who at the age of twenty-three had developed a fanaticism that could endure the most violent physical tests. Hodgson and his two companions, one of them a woman, did not remain in New Amsterdam but made their way to the Dutch section of Long Island and were soon preaching their doctrines in Gravesend and Jamaica. At Hempstead, the other two decided to work their way to the east end of the island, which was under English control, while Hodgson remained behind. The English settlers, themselves dissidents of various religious stripes, were not as disturbed by the Quakers as the Dutch were. Despite their tolerance, none of the English were ready to go so far as to lend Hodgson a house in which he could hold a service, but this did not stop the determined young man. He selected a convenient fruit orchard and invited all the inhabitants of Hempstead to hear him on the first Sunday after his arrival.

“News of such outright lawbreaking did not take long to reach Richard Gildersleeve, the town sheriff. On Sunday morning, warrant in hand, Gildersleeve found Hodgson ‘pacing the orchard alone in quiet meditation.’ He immediately put him under arrest. This unusual Sunday morning activity brought Gildersleeve perilously close to the time for his own religious observance, so he brought Hodgson to his home while he went to church. The Quaker was not a docile prisoner. With Gildersleeve out of sight, Hodgson stepped to the front of the house and began to preach. Gildersleeve returned to find a large crowd, which, in Hodgson’ words, ‘staid and heard the truth declared.’ Gildersleeve promptly clapped Hodgson into another house and rushed to Manhattan to report the day’s events to Director Stuyvesant.

“Stuyvesant commended Gildersleeve for suppressing the ‘Quaker heresy,’ but apparently realizing that Hodgson might be too much for one man, dispatched Fiscal (Sheriff) de Sille and twelve soldiers to pick up Hodgson, and if possible, all persons who had him in their homes. They arrived to find the Quaker still preaching. The day had been quite a success, he later reported.

“In the afternoon’ he said, ‘many came to me and even those who had been mine enemies, after they heard the truth, confessed it.’ His message did not move de Sille or Stuyvesant’s soldiers. They seized Hodgson and searched him; the most dangerous weapon they found was the small pocket Bible carried by all Friends. Some of the soldiers went off to search for two women who reportedly had 'entertained the stranger.' One was nursing a child at the time of her capture, but this did not deter the soldiers. They placed the two women in a cart and tied Hodgson to the back of it, so that he had to run to keep pace or be dragged over the rough roads through the woods. The prisoners were taken to Fort Amsterdam's damp and verminous cells, Hodgson 'torn and abused' by the trip. The women were soon released but Hodgson was held for trial.

'Before Stuyvesant and his Council, Hodgson showed the same defiance he had maintained since he left the Woodhouse.
In keeping with the Quaker belief in the equality of all men and women, he would not remove his hat in the presence of his judges. As a result of this disrespect he was not allowed to answer the charges against him and was sent back to his cell. No one speaking English was permitted near him. It is quite likely that he did not understand the charges, although there is little doubt, given the Quakers' experiences in America up to now, that he was not unaware that he was breaking a local law. When he was returned to the Council to hear his sentence, his hands were tied and this time his hat was snatched from his head, thus preserving the dignity of the court. He was fined six hundred guilders or, as alternative, two years at hard labor alongside the Company's slaves.

'Now Hodgson's ordeal began. He was chained to a wheel-barrow, which was being used to carry heavy stones, and was instructed to push it. He refused. At once a slave was given a heavily pitched rope, four inches thick, and ordered to beat him.
Hodgson was knocked to the ground senseless, lifted up, and beaten again. When he failed to rise, he was left chained to the barrow in the hot August sun. At the end of the day he was brought back to his cell. The next few days were a repetition of the first. Hodgson refused to work because, he said, he had 'committed no evil.' In the conscious moments of his humiliation he cried out to passersby, asking what law he had broken and calling for his accusers to name his transgression. Stuyvesant, on the basis of the reports he received, ordered that the beaten man must work or face daily whipping. Greater punishment was threatened if he continued to talk to people. Hodgson kept talking, and Stuyvesant committed him to his cell without food or water.

'Then the punishment was stepped up. Hodgson was taken to a room, stripped to the waist, his hands tied to a rope attached to a ceiling beam and a log tied to his feet. In this helpless posture he was whipped until his flesh was cut raw. This was followed by two days of solitary confinement and a repetition of the whipping. All of Manhattan was aware of the cruelty taking place within the fort. Hodgson himself, for the first time, thought he might die and asked that someone who spoke English be sent to him. An Englishwoman was given permission to visit and was horrified at what she saw. She was sure he would not live through the night and begged that he be put in her care. Her husband offered de Sille a whole ox merely to move Hodgson to his house. The sheriff insisted on payment of the court's fine, but Hodgson would not permit this and found himself again at the wheelbarrow.

"Hodgson's martyrdom attracted wide sympathy, especially after news of it reached the English towns on Long Island. Stuyvesant's violent effort at suppression had given the Quakers a status they might not otherwise have attained. Protests were made to Stuyvesant by the Dutch as well as the English. The writer of an anonymous letter in English asked Stuyvesant to 'think my Lord-Director whether it be not best to send him to Rhode Island, as his labor is hardly worth the cost.' At this point Stuyvesant was permitted to retreat from his untenable position. His sister Anna, who had recently married the merchant Nicolaes Verleth, made a personal plea on Hodgson's behalf, and Stuyvesant was relieved to let the obstreperous prisoner go—on a promise that he would immediately leave New Netherland, and not return.

"There is no record of Hodgson's breaking the promise; but he did not have to; he had done more for his cause than he could have with a hundred sermons. By now, Quakers were preaching all through the English towns; it was impossible to apprehend them all. Meetings were being held in open defiance of the law against convectibles, and Stuyvesant had to issue a new proclamation: ships bringing Quakers to New Netherland would be confiscated; colonists who took Quakers into their homes would be fined fifty guilders, one half of which would be given to the informer (a device Stuyvesant frequently used to help bring compliance with the law.) Arrests and fines followed so rapidly that to many it seemed that Stuyvesant had crossed the line which he himself had established respecting man's conscience.

"To Tobias Feake, the sheriff of Flushing, (Long Island) whose duty it was to enforce the law, the implications were too great to be allowed to stand unquestioned. He sat down and wrote a short statement of principles on freedom of conscience and called a meeting in the home of Michael Milner on December 27, 1657. The statement was read aloud by Edward Hart, the town clerk, and before the meeting ended, thirty-one men signed it. Two days later Feake took the ferry to Manhattan to deliver it personally to Stuyvesant and the Council. He was ar­rested the same day. The ‘seditious, mutinous and detestable letter of defiance,’ as the Council called it, became known as the Flushing Remonstrance. The portion which must have most irritated Stuyvesant declared it to be the signers’ desire ‘not to offend one of His little ones in whatsoever form, name or title he appears in, whether Presbyterian, Independent, Baptist or Quaker, but shall be glad to see anything of God in any of them.’ ‘Therefore’, the Remonstrance continued, ‘if any of these said persons come in love unto us, we cannot in Conscience lay vio­lent hands upon them, but give them free egress into our town and houses as God shall persuade our Conscience; and in this we are true subjects both of the Church and State; for we are bound by the law of God and man to do good unto all men, and evil to no man.’

“Stuyvesant responded firmly. The authors had to confess their wrongdoings publicly or be punished. Edward Farrington and William Noble, who with Feake and Hart comprised Flushing’s town officers, were placed under arrest. In short order under Stuyvesant’s pressure, each man confessed to grievous error, and put the blame on Feake for leading him astray. Noble and Farrington humbly craved pardon, ‘promising for the Time to Come that we shall offend no more in that Line . . .’ Hart made a ‘humble request for mercy, not your judgment.’ The Council decided that the three men had been misled by Feake and their fault was ‘graciously forgiven and pardoned . . .’ And then, at last, even Feake recanted with a confession of wrongdoing and a promise to avoid such errors in the future. But as the ‘leader and instigator,’ Feake was dismissed from his office as sheriff and ordered to pay a fine of two hundred guilders or be banished from the province. He paid the fine.

“But despite the failure of the authors of the Flushing Re­monstrance to become martyrs, the principles of their protest survived. Even with the promised reward, few people became in­formers, and even the sheriffs were not disposed to break up conventicles or make arrests. In January, 1661, such large meet­ings were being conducted in Jamaica that Stuyvesant dispatched six soldiers to make the proper arrests and remain there to see that the law was obeyed. The soldiers were also instructed to get the signatures of all townspeople on a statement in which they promised to inform the authorities about Quaker meet­ings. Six refused to sign. Later, when town authorities reported that it was unfair to make the town quarter the soldiers, Stuy­vesant merely ordered them to be quartered in the homes of the six men who would not sign the statement of compliance.
This was too much for most of the holdouts; they soon sold their properties and moved to Oyster Bay, in English Long Island, beyond Stuyvesant's reach. But the final victory of the Quakers in New Netherland was Flushing's after all. Following the temporary cleanup in Jamaica, word came to Stuyvesant that the Quakers were holding their largest meetings at the home of John Bowne, a Flushing farmer. Stuyvesant now narrowed all his anti-Quaker bitterness on one man.

"John Bowne was not a Quaker when he married Hannah Field, who was. Soon, out of curiosity, he accompanied her to the clandestine meetings in the woods and fields. By his own account, he was so moved by the beauty and simplicity of the worship that he invited the Quakers to meet in his house. He became a member of the Society himself, and as his enthusiasm for the Quakers grew, he permitted them to hold regular meetings at his home. Thus he found himself in conflict with Stuyvesant, and with Stuyvesant's agent in the case, Resolved Waldron, the new sheriff of Flushing.

"Bowne was a literate man, whose own journal of the events of the next few months shows not only a capacity to withstand physical and mental indignity, but also a perseverance for his cause which ultimately did more for the Society of Friends, and, for that matter, for the whole principle of freedom of conscience in New Netherland, than Hodgson's more dramatic martyrdom. Bowne's trial, according to his account, started abruptly, and terrifyingly in September, 1662. Waldron, Bowne wrote, 'came to my house at Flushing with a company of men with swords and guns (where I was tending my wife being sick in bed, and my youngest child sick in my arms, which were both so ill that we watched two or three with them). He told me I must go with him to the General. I told him my family were not in a condition to leave them. He said he could not help that, he must follow his order. By which order he was to take such as he should find in unlawful meetings, but found me in none. So I told him I did deny to go on foot by virtue of that order. He said: then he would bind me hand and foot and carry me. I told him he might do what he was suffered, but by that order he ought not to carry me away. So next day, like a wicked hard-hearted man, he carried me in a boat to Manhattan.'

"The day after he was placed in a cell in the fort, Bowne saw Stuyvesant 'about to take horse,' and asked a sergeant of the guard to tell Stuyvesant he wanted to speak to him. The man came and told me in Dutch, and showed me by his actions that the General said that if I would put off my hat and stand bareheaded, he would speak with me. I told him that I could not on that account. So he sent me word again: That he could not speak with me. So the soldiers did break out in laughter at it.'

"For a time it looked as if the battle between Bowne and Stuyvesant revolved around the single issue of Bowne's hat. To Stuyvesant, the doffing of the hat was a simple recognition of his authority. To Bowne, as to all Quakers, no authority but God's was recognized. When Bowne was brought before the Council, Stuyvesant again asked him to remove his hat. Before Bowne could respond, Stuyvesant directed the sheriff to remove it for him. Bowne then listened to the indictment in which Quakers—the servants of the Lord' Bowne called them—were described as 'heretics, deceivers and seducers.' Bowne was fined one hundred and fifty guilders and costs, but refused to accept his guilt or the sentence.

"He was ordered banished from the colony; he appeared to welcome the opportunity; at least he did not run from it when he had many chances to escape. This seemed to surprise the Dutch, including the sheriff, who had always thought a prisoner's first duty to himself was to escape. But Bowne apparently felt he could make a case before the Amsterdam Chamber; he certainly argued it well after he arrived in The Netherlands. He referred to the original guarantee of liberty of conscience when Flushing was established. The Chamber's response was that the guarantee had been given before there were Quakers in New Netherland, and that if they could not live according to the laws of the colony, 'we cannot suffer you in our jurisdiction.' Bowne's reply was classically simple: 'It is good first to consider,' he said, 'whether that law be according to justice and righteousness or whether it be not contrary to it and also to that liberty promised to us in our Patent.'

"The Chamber kept Bowne waiting around a month for its response, which he found 'a bad paper.' He left for New Netherland, and sometime after he left the Chamber had a change of heart. Its members were realists first, with an eye to profits. If increased population—and profits—meant putting up with heretics, then heresy would have to be tolerated. It was a decision not necessarily prompted by noble motives, but on April 16, 1663, the Chamber sent Stuyvesant and the colony its final interpretation of freedom of conscience.

"Your last letter informed us that you had banished from the province and sent hither by ship a certain Quaker, John Bowne by name,' the Chamber wrote Stuyvesant. 'Although we heartily desire that these and other sectarians remained away from there, yet as they do not, we doubt very much whether we can proceed against them rigorously without diminishing the population and stopping immigration which must be favored at so tender a stage of the country’s existence. You may therefore shut your eyes, at least not force people’s consciences, but allow everyone to have his own belief, as long as he behaves quietly and legally, gives no offense to his neighbors and does not oppose the government. As the government of this city has always practiced this maxim of moderation and consequently has often had a considerable influx of people, we do not doubt that your Province too would be benefitted by it.

“The Chamber’s letter brought Stuyvesant sharply back to almost the identical pronouncement he had made about conscience seven years earlier. In the heat of battle with the Devil’s disciples—whether Lutheran, Jew or Quaker—prodded by the bitter intolerance of Megapolensis and Drisius and his own single-minded devotion to Calvinism, he had abused the precept he himself had set down. In the time that remained to him as Director-General, the ‘maxim of moderation’ was to prevail.”

THE ENGLISH TAKE OVER

The Duke of York, even before he had formally taken over the Dutch rule, granted the territory from the Hudson River to the Delaware to two of his friends, Lord Berkeley, brother of the greatly disliked governor of Virginia, and Sir Philip Carteret, former governor of the island of Jersey in the English Channel. The territory was named New Jersey in 1664, but was divided in 1674 into East Jersey and West Jersey. Ultimately both came under control of the Pennsylvania Quakers.

Colonel Richard Nicolls, who succeeded Peter Stuyvesant as the English governor, proved to be an excellent administrator. Though his authority was practically unlimited, and though he was not in sympathy with home rule, yet his good sense, tact and wisdom made his four year term a kind of golden age for the former Dutch colony. The people were required ‘to list their property and take an oath of allegiance to England. The Church of England became the Established Church, but the Dutch Reformed Church, as well as others, were in no way molested. In fact, the Church of England and the Dutch Reformed Church for a while actually used the same building for their services. During this year there was an exodus of people from Connecticut to the newly formed New Jersey.

In 1667 the peace of Breda formally ceded New Netherland to England. Colonel Nicolls was replaced by Francis Lovelace as governor. He immediately abolished the classes of Great and Lesser Burghers introduced by Stuyvesant in 1657.
In 1672, Governor Lovelace established mail service between New York, which name had replaced the Dutch New Amsterdam, and Boston. Later in that year, war again broke out between Holland and England, and on August 9, 1673, eighteen months after Peter Stuyvesant died, a Dutch fleet under command of Admiral Cornelis Evertsen, and Jacob Benckes, recaptured the city. It was not the bloodless surrender that the first had been. A few shots were exchanged, and one man in the fort was killed, and the Dutch suffered eighteen wounded. As before, the defenders had no choice but to surrender. And as before, officers and soldiers were permitted to leave the fort with military honors.

On August 12, 1673, Antony Colve was appointed by the Dutch as Governor-General. Anticipating an attack by the English, he rebuilt Fort Willem Hendrick and pulled down houses in line of fire. Owners were compensated by money and gifts of other real estate.

The war was ended in 1674, and the Treaty of Westminster returned New Netherland to English rule. The Dutch had changed the name of the colony back to New Netherland, but the old city of New Amsterdam, was renamed New Orange, perhaps because the name New Amsterdam was associated with defeat.

New Netherland was regranted to the Duke of York, and included Jersey, previously granted to Philip Carteret and Lord Berkeley. The latter had since sold his interest to John Fenwick, a Quaker, in trust for Edward Byllings, another Quaker. Edmund Andros was sent over as Governor, and new oaths of allegiance were required. The name of the city was changed back from New Orange to New York.

In 1682 William Penn, the Pennsylvania Quaker colonizer, lacking a coast line, persuaded the Duke of York to cede to him the lands along the Delaware River which the Dutch under Andries Hude (Andrew Hood) had conquered in 1655 from the Swedes. Maryland claimed this territory, but New York had held it for eighteen years. These “Three Lower Counties” were ceded to Pennsylvania, and were governed by a deputy appointed by William Penn. In 1702 these lower Counties were separated from the Quaker colony and given their own legislature as the Colony of Delaware. They were still owned by the Penn family at the time of the American Revolution.

King Charles II of England died in 1685, and his brother James, Duke of York became King James II. 1689 saw war between England and France, and the overthrow of King James II. William and Mary became King and Queen of England. King William died in 1702, and Anne became Queen. She died in 1731, and George II came to the English throne.

DUTCH HERITAGE

The early Holland Dutch colonists of New Netherland generally were honest people, lovers of liberty, despite Peter Stuyvesant's tyrannical rule, and were eager workers, some historians to the contrary notwithstanding. In religious faith they were mostly Calvinists, although quite a segment were Lutherans, and had brought their Heidelberg catechisms and their Bibles with them on the first ships that sailed into New York Bay. They had learned at home in The Netherlands, the way of a republic and how to make one, and kept in their conscience the words of William the Silent, who wrote to the Dutch magistrates in 1557, words which made the corner stone, first of the Dutch, and then the American republic:

"We declare to you, Sires, that you have not the right to interfere with the conscience of anyone so long as he has done nothing to work injury on anyone, or caused a public scandal."

It was not surprising therefore, that when the American Revolutionary War came on, the Holland Dutch were strong sympathizers with the American Cause. The first salute to the American flag was fired by the Dutch. After the Estates General of The Netherlands had formally recognized the United States as a republic, a loan of $14,000,000 came from the Dutch when it was sorely needed.

Being fundamentally an intensely religious people, strong in their faith, the Dutch of New Netherland maintained an inherited sense of duty to their families. The Hollander counts the baptism of his children, and the recording thereof in church registry, as his first solemn obligation to himself and to them, a custom that has been of great assistance to present day ancestor hunters.

Notwithstanding their strong religious customs, the early Hollanders in America, despite Stuyvesant's bigoted rules, loved fun and amusement. They were the first to bring to this country the custom of New Year calls and celebration. They loved music and kept organs in their churches, and the violin and the flute in their homes. They made Sunday a day of rest, prayer and worship but also of innocent enjoyment. The bigotry and persecutions of Megapolensis and Drisius was not characteristic of Dutch people in general, who strongly opposed their harsh treatment of other religious sects.

Most of the early Dutch immigrants were of the agricultural and mechanical classes who brought with them their ideas of liberty and the rights of the people. In this age of relative ease and luxury, thanks to the progressive development and refinements of labor saving devices and appliances, we perhaps have lost the power to contemplate what the poverty and hardships of these early colonists could have meant when they first landed in a strange and unsettled wilderness, surrounded by savages and wild beasts.

It is a scientific question today whether heredity or environment accounts most in molding the character of a man. It has been said that both of these factors have been reflected in the characteristics of many early Dutch-American families in which the rise of family pride and distinction began early. Their descendants do well to honor them. In that connection, Washington Irving wrote:

"I cannot but look back with reverence to the early planting of these Dutch families, which have taken such vigorous root, and branched out so luxuriently. The blood which has flowed down uncontaminated through a succession of steady, virtuous generations since the time of the Patriarchs of Communipaw, the first organized settlements on 'Manahata,' must certainly be pure and worthy,—legitimate nobility and real lords of the soil."
CHAPTER VIII
MIGRATIONS TO A LAND OF PROMISE

John Hood's name last appeared in the Ulster County, N. Y., records in 1728-29, when he was listed as a taxpayer. After that time he and his family were listed as a "Lost Tribe" by William H. Van Bunschoten. However, their appearance in the Orange County, Virginia court records as early as 1733 raises the curtain of apparent mystery surrounding their disappearance from Kingston, N. Y. The story of their migration to Virginia and their settlement there, is best told by a brief review of some history of the first settlements of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, during the period 1730-35, which included at that time the present northeastern section of West Virginia. From these records is uncovered the ancient tracks of many intrepid pioneer settlers, blazing trails southward to a new "land of promise." John Hood and family, together with some of their Kingston relatives, were in the vanguard of one of those adventurous groups, headed for what historians have referred to as "that land of promise west of the Great Mountains."

Most Virginia historians have recorded that the first settlers of the Shenandoah Valley section of Virginia migrated thither from Pennsylvania; that they were mostly Scotch-Irish and Palatine (Pennsylvania Dutch) stock. That this theory has been somewhat over-emphasized as regards the very earliest settlers, is well established by the late J. Houston Harrison in his fascinating book: Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, (Jos. K. Ruebush Co., Dayton, Va.) Mr. Harrison combined a brief but highly interesting historical review of the earliest colonizations of the Shenandoah Valley, with an excellent genealogy of the Isaiah Harrison family, pioneer settlers of what is now Rockingham County in the lower Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Rockingham County was formed from Augusta County in 1778. Tunis Hood married into this Harrison family, as did his son Tunis, Jr., and daughter Phoebe. The Hood-Harrison early ties were therefore close, hence the book is of particular interest to their descendants.

The evidence produced by Mr. Harrison suggests that many of the very earliest Shenandoah Valley settlers more likely came through rather than from Pennsylvania; that they were perhaps It is well established by the early Virginia public records that the first grants of land in the Shenandoah Valley, comprising some 40,000 acres, were in the Upper Potomac River section of what is now Frederick County, Virginia, and the Back Creek Valley section of the present Berkeley and Jefferson Counties, West Virginia. At the time of the first settlements, all of these counties were a part of Orange County, Virginia, which extended west to the Mississippi River and included all of the present states of West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and a section of Northeastern Tennessee. These grants were issued by Governor Gooch of Virginia to two brothers, John and Isaac Van Meter, who later sold their warrants to the land to Joist Hite, who had moved into the area from Pennsylvania. These two Holland Dutch Van Meter brothers came originally from Ulster County, N. Y., center of the early Dutch Hudson River settlements of New Netherland, now part of New York state. Joist Hite who was of German or Alsatian origin and apparently a Huguenot, migrated from the present French province of Alsace, and first settled in Kingston, Ulster County, N. Y.

The Van Meter brothers and Joist Hite recruited some of their first groups of settlers from Holland Dutch families of the former New Netherland colonists around Kingston and that general Hudson River area, and some others who had previously migrated to the Lower Delaware River settlements of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. Statements made by John Van Meter in his application for land grants are in fact ample evidence of this. Among the Van Meter and Hite recruits were John Hood and family—the Hood "Lost Tribe" described in the Van Bunschoten family genealogy. Among other Kingston recruits were Barent and Rebecca Nieuwkerk and their family, she being a sister of Rachel Van Bunschoten Hood. After leaving Kingston the Hoods and Nieuwkerks probably traveled by sailing ship to the vicinity of Philadelphia where John Hood is believed to have had relatives, and where a brother of Barent Nieuwkerk had previously settled. Where they took up temporary residence during the several years interval between their departure from Kingston, and arrival in Virginia is not definitely known, but very likely somewhere in the general Philadelphia area.

In his book Mr. Harrison gave a most interesting account of the first settlements of the Valley of Virginia, writing in part as follows:

"The Valley of Virginia was settled under the administration of Lieutenant-Governor William Gooch, a native of Scotland, who arrived in Virginia October 13, 1727, the year that King George II came to the throne of England. The first organized effort of the English to explore the Valley of Virginia was made under Colonel Alexander Spottswood, a descendant of an old Scottish family, in 1710. He headed a party of explorers, afterwards familiarly known as the ‘Knights of the Golden Horseshoe’, in 1716. What Colonel Spottswood saw filled his party not only with wonder and admiration, but a desire to spread the news, inviting immigration from the settlements along the Jersey coast and the more thickly settled parts of Pennsylvania.

‘The year 1730 marked the beginning of grants of land in the Valley of the Shenandoah. This year the first two grants for settlements appear, issued by Governor Gooch on the same date, June 17, 1730, and were to the Van Meter brothers, John and Isaac. Later, on the 28th of October, 1730, an order granting Alexander Ross and others a right to survey was made by the Governor in Council. Finally in 1730, Joist Hite of Pennsylvania, through the influence of the Governor there, obtained a conditional grant from the Virginia Council for land ‘west of the Great Mountains’ not heretofore granted. These grants were all for large areas of land in order to induce settlement, and were powerful factors in getting the valley populated.

‘Alexander Ross was given the right to lay out contiguous, not exceeding 100,000 acres ‘from such waste land not embraced in any order heretofore made.’ The grant was very liberal and general and did not limit the time as to when the families would have to be seated, which later caused confusion and litigation. Ross’ surveys were located west of the Opequon, in the section now north of Winchester, Virginia (mostly in present Berkeley and Jefferson Counties, West Virginia), and never aggregated 100,000 acres, as he ran into the Van Meter land. The first grant confirmed to him appears on November 22, 1734 for 2,375 acres, part of a 40,000 acres survey of the same year. Among those associated with him were Josiah Ballenger, James Wright, Evan Thomas, Joseph and Morgan Bryan, and other ‘Friends from Pennsylvania and Elk River in Maryland.’ The first deed on record in Frederick County made by Ross was to Joseph Bryan, one of the ‘other Friends’, April 13, 1734.

‘John Van Meter was granted 10,000 for the settlement of himself and family of eleven children and ‘leave for surveying’ an additional 20,000 acres when he had settled on it twenty families, or the Council was satisfied so many were to move thither. Isaac Van Meter was granted 10,000 acres for the settlement of ten families, the condition of both grants being that the required number of families would be seated within two years.
Their lands were located in ‘the fork between the River Shenando and River Cohonguroota’ (early Indian name for the upper Potomac) and extended to the Opequon.

“It is said that John Van Meter led Joist Hite into this land of promise. Van Meter had been granted 200 acres of land near what is now Frederick, Maryland, December 1, 1726 by Lord Baltimore, and the following year he is found at Germanna lending his aid to Spottswood’s settlers. Tradition states that from there he set out to explore the Valley, blazing his way through the dense forests. He was a typical backwoodsman, an Indian trader, and familiar with the savages’ ways.  According to the petition of Isaac Van Meter, he too ‘had been to view the lands in these parts.’ Both brothers were granted their petitions at the same time, and it appears that both were together on the trip from Germanna. **

“Hite arrived in the Valley in 1731 and in his explorations found the Van Meter land in his way. The result was that on August 5, 1731 he bought out the Van Meter brothers. The condition of these grants, with that of his own, now required him to locate 140 families. He later obtained from the Governor an extension of time to December 25, 1734, and as indicated by an order of the Governor in Council on October 31, 1731.  On June 12, 1734, an order of the Governor in Council was recorded stating that Hite had made due proof of his compliance with the terms of the Van Meter grants, and it was directed that patents issue to him or his assigns. He received his first patent in August, 1734. This was the first patent issued by the Governor to land in this region of the Valley.

“The Van Meter brothers were originally from the Province of New York.  John and Isaac Van Meter were born in Marbleton, Ulster County, N. Y., and later settled in Pilesgrove Township, Salem County, New Jersey (across the Delaware River from the Philadelphia area). “Joist Hite, as stated by Stapleton in his Memorials of the Huguenots in America, was a native of Strasbourg, Alsace. From there says Cartmell, he came directly to the Hudson River with his wife, Anna Marie DuBois, and daughter Mary. He located at Kingston, N. Y., on the west bank of the Hudson River, in 1710, where two daughters, Magdaline and Elizabeth were born, their births being entered in the baptismal records of the old Dutch Reformed Church in Kingston. He next appears in Old Salem, New Jersey, where he was a fur trader for seven years.

"John Van Meter's grant of 1730 recites that he had petitioned 'that he is desirous to take up a tract of land in this Colony—on the west side of the Great Mountains for the settlement of himself and eleven children, and also divers of his relatives and friends living in the Government of New York'."

That John and Rachel Hood and their family of children were among the "divers of friends," and quite likely relatives as well, from "the Government of New York" mentioned by John Van Meter in his petition seems fairly certain. That they were among the first parties of settlers recruited by the Van Meter brothers and Hite from "the Government of New York," where the Van Meters and Hite themselves had formerly lived, would appear equally certain. All were from the same location of "the Government of New York" in and around Kingston, Ulster County. John Hood was a surveyor by profession, and no doubt of some high standing, since the Kingston official records show that he served as a government surveyor from Hurley to The Strand in Ulster County, and earlier had been elected by his neighbors as constable at Kingston, both important public offices of those times. It seems logical to assume therefore, that the Van Meter brothers and Joist Hite knew something about their former neighbor John Hood's qualifications and standing as a professional surveyor, and that they induced him therefore to join their Virginia colonization project to assist in surveying their lands received under grant of the English Crown. In fact, an examination of early deeds recorded in the Orange County Court House at Orange, Virginia, and the Frederick Court House at Winchester, show several references to John Hood surveys in describing lands conveyed, including a deed issued by George Washington, who later became a large land owner in the general area where John Hood had lived.

While John Hood and his family appear reasonably certain to have been members of Van Meter-Hite parties of earliest settlers moving into the Valley of Virginia, historical records disclose that shortly after their arrival in Virginia, or possibly earlier, they apparently forsook Calvinism, religious faith of many of their forebears, and became Quaker converts. It is probable however, that some of the paternal forebears of John Hood may have been Quakers. Alexander Ross, Joseph Ballenger, James Wright, Evan Thomas, Joseph and Morgan Bryan, John Hood and other Friends, comprising seventy families, established the first Hopewell Friends Meeting House near the present village of Hedgesville, West Virginia, then a part of Orange County, Virginia, in the year 1734. (Hopewell Friends History, 1734-1934, by John W. Wayland, Chapter II, p. 37.) Thus it is known that John Hood and family had embraced the Quaker faith, and joined in establishing the Hopewell Friends colony in Virginia.

Fast on the heels of the Van Meter brothers and Joist Hite, had come Alexander Ross, Morgan Bryan and their Quaker associates, moving into the section north of the present city of Martinsburg, Berkeley County, and adjoining Jefferson County, West Virginia, in the area of the Upper Potomac River. Among the early deeds issued by Ross and Bryan was one to John Hood under date of November 12, 1735. The land granted comprised 1,175 acres, described as beginning at the mouth of Back Creek, and extending along the Potomac River easterly to the mouth of Tuliasis Branch which is at the approximate location of the village of Little Georgetown, West Virginia, three miles north of Hedgesville, and ten miles north of the city of Martinsburg. The original copy of John Hood’s patent to this land, issued by King George II of England, is presently lodged in the Virginia Land Office records in the Virginia Archives at Richmond, Book P, p. 230. The land covers a section of scenic beauty overlooking the Upper Potomac River, called the Cohonguroota earlier by the Indians, opposite Fort Frederick State Park in Maryland. Most of this original tract is now owned by several Newkirk families, descendants of Barent Nieuwkerk and wife, Rebecca Van Bunschooten Nieuwkerk, who accompanied the John Hood migration from Kingston, N. Y., to Virginia. (See Newkirk Family History, pp. 26-27.) John Hood sold a substantial part of his land directly to Barent Nieuwkerk, who by that time had Anglicized the spelling of his name to Barnet Newkirk. He was a brother-in-law of John Hood. Their living descendants are therefore distant cousins.

TESTS OF HUMAN ENDURANCE

It would be difficult to describe in a few words the hazards and privations endured by those intrepid pioneer colonists, which included the John Hood family, who formed the vanguards of the earliest migrations of settlers to that “land of promise west of the Great Mountains”—the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. The migrations, a prelude to the settlements from which have grown a fine modern civilization, were not without cost in human misery and suffering and the shedding of much blood; the cost was great, as it was tragic. The subsistence of these hardy pioneers was dependent upon their prowess in fishing, and hunting wild game animals and fowl, mostly by trapping—ammunition supplies were too limited and precious to spend on random shots. Their diet was supplemented only with such wild fruits and berries as could be found and gathered, sweetened with the honey of wild bees, until the soil could be tilled for the raising of vegetables and grains. Breakfast frequently was not served until it could be obtained from the forest or streams, and they existed for months on end without a taste of bread. Furs were virtually the sole medium of exchange at that time for rifles, salt, pewter and iron, hence their economic problems had to be met primarily by hunting the buffalo, elk, deer, panther, wild cat, wolf, fox, beaver, bear and other wild animals of the forest. Like their Indian neighbors—if they happened to be neighborly, which was seldom, their tools and household implements were few and very crude, mostly fashioned from wood during evenings after the day's work was finished. Clothing was usually that made from the skins of animals, and supplemented by the housewife who spun and made cloth of linsey woolsey for the family. The rifle was an essential item of the daily dress of the defender of the home. There were no roads then through that land of wilderness, only occasional Indian trails, and there were of course no vehicles. Most of the first comers, among whom were the John Hood family, carried what few possessions they had on their backs; relatively few could boast of a pack horse. Beds were made from boughs plucked from the forest, and the hides of animals provided the only bed covers.

An even more graphic description of the hardships and hazards suffered by those earliest trail blazing courageous pioneer families is found on the pages of an old book: History of Virginia, by Charles Campbell, published in 1860. He wrote in part as follows:

"One who would become acquainted with these matters must travel back well over a century or more; he must witness the early adventurers leaving their abodes of civilization, and singly or in families, or in groups composed of several families, like pioneers on a forlorn hope, entering the dark, dreary, trackless forest, which had been for ages the nursery of wild beasts and the pathway of the Indian. After traversing this inhospitable solitude for days or weeks, and having become weary of their pilgrimage, they determine to separate, and each family taking its own course in quest of a place where they may rest; they find a spot such as choice, chance, or necessity points out; here they sit down; this they call their home—a cheerless, houseless home. If they have a tent they stretch it, and in it they all nestle; otherwise the umbrage of a spreading oak, or mayhap the canopy of heaven is their only covering.

"In this new found home, while they are not exempt from the common frailties and ills of humanity, many peculiar to their present condition, thicken around them. Here they must endure excessive labor, fatigue, and exposure to inclement seasons; here innumerable perils and privations await them; here they are exposed to the alarms from wild beasts and from savage Indians. Sometimes driven from home, they take shelter in the brakes and recesses of the mountains, where they continue for a time in a state of anxious suspense, venturing at length to reconnoitre their home, they perhaps find it a heap of ruins, the whole of their little peculium destroyed. This frequently happened. The inhabitants of the country being few, and in most cases widely separated from each other, each group, fully occupied with its own difficulties and distresses, seldom could have the consolation of hoping for advice, assistance, or even sympathy of each other. Many of them, worn out by hardships inseparable from their new condition, found premature graves; many hundreds, probably thousands, were massacred by the hands of the savage; and peace and tranquility, if such came at all, came at a late day to the survivors.

"Here we have stated in a few items the first cost of this country (Virginia), but the half has not been told, nor can we calculate in money the worth of the sufferings of those people, especially we cannot estimate in dollars and cents the value of the lives that were lost."

From the pages of a much more ancient publication, the Virginia Gazette, are gleaned the following news items covering conditions of that period:

"Winchester, May 26, 1737: We still continue to be alarm'd by Rioters from the Forest, who have plunder'd the farmers of their malt and Corn, and threatened the Neighborhood with a visit to examine the Granaries, and to destroy all the Corn that is designed for Exportation; so that our Farmers are forced to keep snug and quiet."

Issue of June 23, 1738:
"This week an express came here from Orange County to the Governor, to acquaint His Honour, That some INDIANS had lately murder'd eleven white Persons, men, women and children, who were settled far back on the Frontiers of the County; and that 'twas believed they were ALLEGHANEY INDIANS. Whereupon his Honour was pleas'd to issue Commissions to Persons to go with armed men, in pursuit of the INDIANS; and also to order a messenger to go to the INDIAN Settlement at Alleghaney, to demand the Murderers, if they shall be found among them; and also gave such other Instructions and Orders as his Honour tho't necessary for the Preservation of the Frontier inhabitants."

Issue of July 14, 1738, carried this item:
"We hear from the Fronties Counties, Prince William and Orange, that since our last account of the Destruction of Three families of White People by the Indians, four more Families have been destroyed by them; and that the whole neighborhood are under apprehension of greater Danger from the Indians, a great number of them being got together; but of what Nation I an not yet certainly informed."
Letter, James Patton to Governor Gooch:
Augusta County, Xber 18, 1742

"Honor'd Sir:

A parcel of Indians appeared in an hostile manner amongst us, killing and carrying off horses etc. Cap't. John Buchanan and Cap't. John McDowel came up with them this day and sent a man with a signal of peace to them, which man they killed on the spot and fired on our men, which was returned with bravery; in about 45 minutes the Indians fled, leaving eight or ten of their men dead, and eleven of ours are dead, among whom is Cap't. McDowel; we also have sundry wounded. Last night I had an account of ye behaviour of the Indians and immediately traveled toward them with a party of men and came up within two or three hours after the battle was over. I have summon'd all the men in our county together in order to prevent their doing any further damage and to repel them force by force. We hear of many Indians on our frontiers; the particulars of the battle and motions of the Enemy I have not time now to write.

I am, Your Honour's most Obed't Serv't

James Patton

P.S. There are some white men (whom we believe to be French) among the Indians. Our people are uneasy but full of Spirit and hope ye behaviour will shew it for the future, they not being in any way daunted by what has happened.

Augusta County, Xber Ye 23, 1742

"Honor'd Sir:

We have certain news of 150 Indians seen seventy miles above, and about the same number lately cros't the Patowmack on their way up here. A few medicines for our wounded would be very acceptable.

I am, Your Honour's most Obed't Serv't

James Patton

John Hood and family were among the families living in one of the frontier counties referred to in these ancient news dispatches. Tunis Hood was yet a boy in his late 'teens when the Indians depredations referred to were beginning. He was living in Augusta County when the Indian attacks reported by James Patton occurred. No doubt he was among the men summoned by Patton to repel the attacks.

Land of Promise indeed! The promise was redeemed to the generations that followed—more than 200 years later.

In 1738 two new counties, Augusta and Frederick, were formed from Orange County—"because of the divers inconveniences attending the upper inhabitants of the county by reason of their great distance from the court house and other places usually appointed for public meetings." Hence, John Hood thereafter found himself a resident of Frederick County. Courts were not organized in Frederick and Augusta Counties until November 11, 1743, and December 9, 1745, respectively. Court actions and recordings for the two new counties were continued in the Orange County court therefore, prior to those dates. The areas westward to the Mississippi River had been transferred to Augusta County, previously in Orange County.
That John Hood sold some of his patented land in September, 1737, is disclosed by the following deeds recordings found in the files of the Orange County Court, at Orange, Virginia:

Deed Book No. 2, pp. 136-140: “Ye 20th of September 1737.” Description of deed by John Hood, of Orange County, Colony of Virginia and Rachel, his wife, to Richard Lane, covering 125 acres of land lying and situated on the west side of Sherrando (Shenandoah) River and Opechon (Opequon) Creek, along the banks of the Cohonguroota (Potomac) River, being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres granted by order of Council to Morgan Bryan and Alexander Ross, and patented by them to the said John Hood under date of November 12, 1735, said tract adjoining Barent Newkirk’s land.

Deed Book No. 2, pp. 142-147: “Ye 27th of September 1737”: Deed by John Hood of Orange County, Colony of Virginia, and Rachel, his wife, to Bournet Newkirk, 585 acres of land on the west side of the Sherrando River and Opechon Creek on the Cohonguroota River at the mouth of a stream called Tuliasis branch, adjoining and bordering James Daniel’s land, being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres granted to the said John Hood November 12, 1735.

The above two sales were confirmed by the court and ordered entered into the records at a court of Orange County, held October 27, 1737.

Appearance of the name of Anthony Hood as a witness to the above deeds, as well as other court records linking his name with that of John Hood, emphasizes the likelihood of their family relationship. All of John Hood’s children appear to have been educated, and able to read and write, whereas it is noted that Anthony Hood signed with his mark. This suggests that he was not a son of John, but more likely an uncle or cousin. Both John Hood and his wife Rachel also were able to write, further suggesting that Anthony was not a brother of John.

Anthony Hood apparently lived first in the same section as John Hood, far back on the frontiers of original Orange County, but it is made certain by various Orange County court records involving his name, that he later moved much farther south to the Rapidan River section of Virginia, then in Orange County, but his home place was probably in what is now either Madison or Culpepper Counties. The fact of his new residence being such a great distance from the newly established Frederick County court house at Winchester probably accounts for Anthony Hood’s reluctance to serve as executor under the will of John Hood, who had so designated him.

A deed executed by Anthony Hood entered in the Orange County court records is of particular interest, first because it identifies the place of Anthony Hood’s residence at about the time of John Hood’s death, and secondly because John Hood signed as one of the witnesses to the deed. In this case he signed himself as “John Hoet,” which was the spelling of the Hood name frequently appearing in the early New York City records. In this case the habit apparently carried over into Virginia. John Hood must have signed as a witness to that deed in advance of the recording date, as he was probably dead by that time. The record of this deed follows:

Deed Book No. 7, pp. 103-105 Orange County court records: “Ye 21st of February 1742”: Deed by Anthony Hood, of Orange County, Colony of Virginia, and Sarah, his wife, conveying 150 acres of land on Maple Run and along the Rapidanne River, to Henry Downs; being the land granted to the said Anthony Hood by patent June 27, 1739, adjoining the land of Thomas Schooler.

The above sale was confirmed by a court of Orange County held February 24, 1742.

The name of Henry Downs appearing in connection with the above deed is of special interest to old residents of Mecklenburg County, N. C., where Tunis Hood later settled. Henry Downs’ descendants are still prominent residents of that section.
CHAPTER IX
DEATH OF JOHN HOOD SR.

That John Hood died, a comparatively young man aged 43 years, prior to February 26, 1742, is shown by a series of entries in the county court records of both Orange and Frederick Counties, Virginia. The circumstances of his death are not known, but considering his age it may be assumed that he was the victim of some sort of epidemic, or may possibly have been murdered by Indians. As noted elsewhere herein, Indian troubles were particularly bad in the general vicinity of his home around that period, and many settlers were massacred.

The first evidence of John Hood’s death is found in the following Orange County court record:

Order Book No. 3, p. 379: “At a court continued and held for Orange County on Saturday the 26th day of February, 1742 — The order to summons John Hood, the heir at law of John Hood Sen’r, Deceased, is continued until the next court.”

Order Book No. 3, p. 166: “At a court held for Orange County on Thursday the 22nd day of July, 1742, Rachell Hood, widow and relict of John Hood Dec’d, being by last Court’s order summoned to inform the Court if she would administer on her Dece’d husband’s Estate, appeared and produced a Will, but none of the Evidences (witnesses) appearing, Anthony Hood, one of the Executors therein named, appeared and refused to take upon him the burden of Executorship; wherefore it’s ordered that Tho’s Curtis, Richard Hilton and Enoch Ireland, Evidences to the said Will be summoned to appear at next Court & that Jonathan Curtis and James Davis, the other two Executors be also summoned but for as much as Lands are Devised by the said Will the Court doth appoint that the said Will shall be proved at a Court to be held for this County in August next, and it’s Ordered that the Sheriff summon the heirs at law, them to be present for to shew forth anything that may be lawfully alleged against such proof.”

Order Book No. 3, p. 448: “At a Court continued and held for Orange County on Friday Ye 27th day of May, 1743 — The Order to summons John Hood to contest his father’s Will is continued until the next Court.”

Thus the fact of John Hood’s death is established, and that he left a will, witnessed by Thomas Curtis, Richard Hilton and Enoch Ireland, and that he named Anthony Hood, Jonathan Curtis and James Davis as executors under his will. That his son, John Hood Jr., (he who was baptized as Johannes Hoed in Kingston, N. Y., January 8, 1721-22), had served notice of his intent to contest his father’s will, is shown by the above final order appearing in the Orange County court records pertaining to John Hood’s will.

Following the Orange County court order of May 27, 1743, administration of the Estate of John Hood, deceased, was transferred to the newly established Frederick County Court. This is shown by a record of the minutes of that court, continued and held on Saturday, the 14th day of June, 1744, as appearing in Frederick County Court Order Book No. 1, p. 141, wherein the court granted temporary administration of the Estate of John Hood, deceased, to Joseph Carrol, by reason that the executors had not up to that time proved the will according to law. Whereupon Carrol took the oath of administration, with Isaac Perkins and Louis Stephens qualifying as his sureties.

Further entries in Order Book No. 1, Frederick County court minutes, show that on July 14, 1744, during the administration of Joseph Carrol, the court issued another order appointing Andrew Campbell, Richard Beason, Robert Davis and Thomas Van Swearingen to appraise the estate of John Hood, deceased. Record of the appraisal was completed and submitted to the court under the date of November 9, 1744, as follows:

"November Ye 9th, 1744: We the under subscribers have appraised Ye Goods belonging to the Estate of John Hood Sen’r, Dece’d, as follows, viz:

The fourth appraiser, Thomas Van Swearingen, did not sign the appraisal.

No land, which constituted the chief value of the estate, was included in the appraisal.

The appraisal was accepted for record as shown by a further order of the court in Order Book No. 1, as follows:

"At a court continued and held for Frederick County, Colony of Virginia, on Thursday the 6th day of December, 1744—The appraisement of the Estate of John Hood Sen'r. deceased, being returned into court, the same is admitted for record.

Teste: J. Wood, Clerk

Such was the personal property of John Hood Sr. at the time of his death, early in 1742, or late 1741. Pitifully small, but indispensable to a family in those early times trying to eke out a living in a land of wilderness and hostile savages.

Further evidence that John Hood did leave a will is shown by the following transcript from the Frederick County court minutes:

Order Book No. 1, p. 165: "Rachel, widow and relict of John Hood, Dece'd, came praying liberty of probate of the Will of her deceased husband, whereupon Joseph Carrol relinquished administration on condition of County security. James Porteous, attorney, ordered to speak to Orange County Clerk to send up the Will of John Hood Dece'd. — — Saturday, 10 August, 1744.

Teste: J. Wood, Clerk

Further in the record of Frederick County court minutes, Will Book No. 1, p. 128, at a court continued and held for Frederick County on September 14, 1744, is shown that Rachel Hood "relict of John Hood, Dece'd" qualified on that date as administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband, with James Davis and Jeremiah Jack qualifying as her sureties. Full text of the qualifying record follows:

"Know all men by these presents that we, Rachel Hood, James Davis and Jeremiah Jack are held & firmly bound unto Morgan Morgan, Gent, the first justice in the commission of the Peace for Frederick County for and in behalf and to the sole use and behooof of the justices of the said county, and their successors in the sum of Two Hundred Pounds current money to be paid to the said Morgan Morgan, his executors, administrators and assigns, to the which payment will and truly be made, we bind ourselves and each and every of us, our and every of our heirs, executors and administrators jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals this XIV day of September, 1744

THE CONDITION of this obligation is such, that if the above bound Rachel Hood administratrix of all the Goods, Chattles and Credits of John Hood dece'd, with the Will annexed do make or cause to be made, a true and perfect inventory of all and singular the Goods, Chattles and Credits of the said Dece'd, which have or shall come to the hands, possession or knowledge of her the said Rachel Hood, or into the hands or possession of any other Person or Persons for her and the same so made, do exhibit or cause to be exhibited into the County Court of Frederick at such time as she shall be thereunto required by the said Court, and the same Goods, Chattles and Credits of the said Deceased, at the time of his death, which at any time after shall came to the hands or possession of the said Rachel Hood or into the hands and possession of any other Person or Persons for do well and truly administer according to law, and further to make a just and true account of her actings and doings therein, when thereto required by the said Court, and all the rest and residue of the Goods, Chattles and Credits which shall be found remaining upon the said administratrix's account, the same being first examined and allowed by the Justices of the Court for the time being, shall deliver and pay unto such Person or Persons Respectively, as the said Justices by their orders or judgment shall direct pursuant to the laws in that case made and provided; and if it shall hereafter appear that any Last Will and Testament was made by the said Deceased, and the executor or executors therein Named do exhibit the same into the said Court, making Request to have it allowed and approved accordingly, if the said Rachel Hood being thereunto Required do render and deliver her Letters of administration, approbation of such Testament being first had and made in the said court, then this obligation to be void of none effect, or else to remain in full force and virtue.

(Signed) Rachel Hood (Seal)
James Davis (By his mark)
Jeremiah Jack (Seal)

Sealed and Delivered in the Presence of:
Omitted

"At a Court held for Frederick County on Fryday the 14th Day of September, 1744, Rachel Hood, administratrix of John Hood Deceased together with James Davis and Jeremiah Jack acknowledged this their bond for the said Rachel Hood's true and faithful administration of the Estate of Ye Deceased Which is admitted to record.

Teste: J. Wood, Clerk"

The above Jeremiah Jack later migrated to Greene County, Tennessee. Two of his grandsons, James and John Jack migrated to Mecklenburg County, N. C., where they became prominent in the affairs of that community. It was Captain James Jack who carried the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia in May, 1775.

Further references to the will of John Hood, deceased, are found in the indexes of the will books of Frederick County court records, in Deed Book No. 1, pp. 27, 28 and 32, but thus far no copy of the will can be found entered in either the Frederick or Orange County court records; nor have any records been located as yet at either court house showing that the will was ever probated. This may possibly have been due to the fact that a son, John Hood Jr., had signified his intention of contesting his father's will, and so perhaps to satisfy him it may have been decided to forget the will and permit the widow, Rachel Hood to continue indefinitely as administratrix. This is in fact indicated by the conditions of Rachel Hood's bond posted at the time of her appointment as administratrix on September 14, 1744, and this theory is further strengthened by the absence of any court records showing that the signified intention of John Hood Jr. to contest the will was ever carried out. In many respects laws were rather informally and loosely administered in those times. This is shown by the following deed, entered in the Frederick County records, wherein Rachel Hood, and her son Tunis, sold land out of the setate of John Hood, even though the estate apparently had not at that time been probated, and the fact that John Hood Jr. appears not to have contested the sale:
DEATH OF JOHN HOOD SR.

Deed Book No. 1, Frederick County Court deeds records, p. 288, deed dated April 10, 1746, executed by “Rachel Hood, of Frederick County, relict of John Hood, deceased,” and “Tunis Hood, of Augusta County, Colony of Virginia, son and heir of said John Hood Dece'd,” which deed conveyed 200 acres of land to Joseph Carrol, probably to liquidate a debt incurred by John Hood, as Joseph Carrol is mention in other records as the principal creditor of John Hood, deceased. The land was described in this deed as being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres situated along the Potomac River, between the mouth of Back Creek and Tuliasis Branch, granted to Alexander Ross and Morgan Bryan, and by them patented to the said John Hood, November 12, 1735.

The above sale was confirmed by the Frederick County court on December 3, 1746, or some eight months after the execution of the deed, which indicates some possible litigation before the court finally approved the sale. It is interesting to note that in this deed, Tunis Hood identified himself as a resident of Augusta County, while Rachel stated her residence as Frederick County.

Frederick County court minutes covering the period 1743-1747 show that Rachel Hood was involved in several legal actions, resulting mostly from damage to neighboring property by her cattle and sheep. Apparently she was not too concerned about appearing in court to defend the actions, or it is also possible that she may have been physically incapacitated and unable to appear. In such case however, the court record would probably have so stated.

In Order Book No. 1, p. 161, Frederick County court minutes, is recorded a petition of Thomas Postgate seeking damages from Rachel Hood in the sum of £2 12s 6d for damages to Postgate’s vegetable garden by Rachel Hood’s cows.

In Order Book No. 1, p. 212, same period, is recorded a petition of William Griffith vs Rachel Hood seeking damages in the sum of £4 1s 1d covering damage to Griffith’s property.

And in Order Book No. 2, Frederick County court minutes, p. 43, period 1745-47 is recorded that Herman Richman filed a petition against Rachel Hood, administratrix of the Estate of John Hood, Deceased, for collection of debt. This action was settled out of court and the case dismissed.

It is apparent that both Tunis and John Hood Jr. moved south and settled in Augusta County about 1742, as their names appear in the first court records of that county, beginning in 1742. It is fairly well established that both settled in that part of the county which was later formed into Rockingham County, from various court records associating their names with persons known to have been residents of that section during that period, notably the several pioneer Harrison families.

More about their activities and movements in succeeding chapters herein.
Jacob Hood, third son of John and Rachel Hood, he who had been baptized in 1722-'23 in the Kingston, N. Y., Dutch Reformed Church as Jacobus Hoed, continued his residence in Frederick County until his death about 1751 or 1753. The fact of his death is confirmed by Frederick County court minutes for that period. In Order Book No. 4, p. 182, is recorded the petition of George Mason & Company vs Jacob Hood for collection of debt. The case was abated on account of failure of the sheriff to serve the summons on the defendant Jacob Hood.

Order Book No. 4, p. 250, same period, same case, again abated account failure to serve summons on Jacob Hood.

Order Book No. 4, p. 302, same period, same action by George Mason & Company vs Jacob Hood, indefinitely abated account failure to serve summons on Jacob Hood, and conclusive evidence having been presented to the court establishing the fact of Jacob Hood’s death.

Thus it is known that Jacob Hood, youngest brother of Tunis, died a premature death at the age of approximately 30 years. This was the period just preceding the outbreak of the French and Indian Wars, culminating in Braddock’s defeat in 1755, and during which George Washington was taken prisoner by the French and Indian forces. Indian troubles in that part of Virginia where Jacob and Rachel Hood lived, had been growing progressively worse, and a great many white colonists were massacred over the several years period. Whether Jacob Hood was one of those victims is not definitely known, the circumstances of his death being uncertain.

No records of the marriage and family of Jacob Hood have been found. An entry in the Frederick County court minutes, period 1753-'55, Order Book No. 5, p. 216, recites that a petition of the Church Wardens of Frederick Parish vs Mary Hood was abated account failure to serve summons on her, and evidence being presented to the court’s satisfaction that she had moved away from the county, might possibly provide a clue to her identity as the widow of Jacob Hood. The only other Hood family known to be living in that part of Frederick County during that period when members of the Lucas Hood family, Lucas being a brother of the deceased John Hood. However, neither Lucas nor John had daughters named Mary according to available records. In any event this Mary Hood must have been connected by marriage with one of those Hood families.

No evidence has been found to indicate that Rachel Hood was killed by Indians. She probably died about 1758-1760. Tunis Hood’s name began reappearing in the Frederick County records about that time as a resident of the county, which suggests that he probably moved back there from Augusta County to be near his mother in her final illness. It is also possible that he may have moved back about five years earlier about the time of his brother Jacob's death. Jacob Hood was probably living with his mother in the family home at the time of his death, which left Rachel alone with no male relatives living nearby to take care of her. It is certain from records that Tunis Hood was living in Frederick County about 1758, and it is definitely established that his youngest son Reuben was born in Frederick County October 4, 1762, according to his application for a Revolutionary War pension.
PART TWO

FRUITS OF THE TREES
CHAPTER I

TUNIS HOOD SR. AND HIS FAMILY

The restless migratory trail of Tunis Hood from his home in Augusta County, thence back north again to Frederick County, again to Augusta County, Virginia, and finally to his final residence in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, is well marked on the pages of the court records of those counties. Augusta County court records show that Tunis Hood first became a resident of that county, in the section now located in Rockingham County, about the year 1742. His name last appeared in the Orange County court minutes of a court held for that county on August 27, 1742. This record is as follows:

"Tunis Hood, appearing on last Court's order to be fined for not appearing as evidence for Thomas Harrison's agent, William Triplett, on oath declared that he was prevented from coming on account of sickness. It was therefore ordered that he be discharged from paying the fine."

Thomas Harrison was a prominent resident of Augusta County (now Rockingham) at that time. His son Davis later married Phoebe, daughter of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison. At the time of the above action the Augusta County court had not yet been organized, and court actions were still being administered by the Orange County court. It is evident therefore that Tunis Hood was a resident of Augusta County (now Rockingham) at that time. First appearance of his name in the newly organized Augusta County court was in 1746 in the record of a legal action by Adam Dickinson, blacksmith, vs Tunis Hood defendant. Plaintiff, Adam Dickinson, was from Prince George County; Tunis Hood formerly of Orange County (later Frederick County section) whence his bond was transferred to Augusta County. The bond was dated August 7, 1742.

Augusta County court minutes, Will Book No. 1, p. May 12, 1746: John Dobikin and Mary Dobikin qualify as executors, with Benj. Allen and Tunis Hood qualifying as sureties.

Augusta County court minutes, Will Book No. 1, p. 208, September 1, 1748: Vendue (sale) held at house of Samuel Stewart of goods of Joseph Harrison, deceased, sold by Jeremiah Harrison. Among the purchasers were Timothy Convey, Samuel Harrison, Samuel Monsey, Arthur Johnson, Abraham Smith, Samuel Hull, Edward McGinnis, TUNIS HOOD, and others.

Tunis Hood married about 1744 in Augusta (now Rockingham) County, Virginia, Elizabeth Harrison, who is reasonably well identified as a daughter of John and Phoebe Harrison, pioneer Colonial settlers of that section. (See further report).

Florence Wilson Houston in her Maxwell History and Genealogy, published a transcript of the diary of Rev. John Craig, first pastor of old Tinkling Spring Presbyterian Church in present Rockingham County (then Augusta). Rev. Craig kept an interesting list of baptisms during his pastorate, both in his own and neighboring congregations. His record began October 5, 1740 and continued through September 28, 1749, during which time he baptised 463 males and 420 females among whom were Jeremiah Harrison and two of his children, Lydia Donnell Harrison and Nehemiah Harrison. On July 27, 1744 he baptised Elizabeth Herison (Harrison) "an adult person," (Maxwell History and Genealogy p. 584), and on January 21, 1747 he baptised Abigail Harrison "another adult person." This Elizabeth Herison (Harrison) is believed to have been the wife of Tunis Hood.

Among other baptisms recorded by Rev. John Craig were Robert and Margaret Hood, April 27, 1749, children of John Hood, and on November 27, 1749, John Hood, another son of John Hood. This John Hood is believed to have been the brother of Tunis Hood.

It is evident from Frederick County records that Tunis Hood had come into ownership of a total of at least 346 acres of land from his father's estate prior to 1771. County court records show that he leased this land, in two parcels, to John Koofman and John Pearce respectively prior to August, 1771. Frederick County court records show that John Hood Jr. also joined in executing land leases during the period 1759-1764.

Tunis Hood sold his lands in Frederick County in August, 1771, as evidenced by two deeds recorded there. The first deed dated August 1, 1771, recorded in Deed Book No. 15, p. 81, executed by Tunis Hood, describing himself as the "sole surviving son and heir of John Hood, deceased," and Elizabeth, his wife, conveyed 216 acres of land to John Koofman, said land having been previously under lease to Koofman. The land was described as fronting on the Potomac River near the mouth of Back Creek, being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres patented to John Hood on November 12, 1735. Witnesses to this deed were: Jacob Purius (Pearce), John Pearis (Pearce) and John Champion.
The second deed, dated August 7, 1771, recorded in Deed Book No. 15, p. 84, Frederick County court records, executed by Tunis Hood “sole surviving son and heir” of John Hood, deceased, and Elizabeth, his wife, conveyed 130 acres of land to John Pearce. The land was described as fronting on the Potomac River, near the mouth of Back Creek, being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres patented to John Hood on November 12, 1735. This tract had previously been under lease to Pearce. Witnesses to this deed were: John Champion, Elias Newkirk and John Hougland. Both sales were confirmed by the Frederick County court on August 7, 1771. Elias Newkirk one of the witnesses was a first cousin of Tunis Hood.

Thus it is known that John Hood Jr. died prior to August 1, 1771, but no details or records of his estate have been found. He is known from Augusta County court records to have been a resident of that county beginning about 1742, moving there with his brother Tunis at that time.

That a daughter, or possibly a granddaughter of the above John Champion, witness to two deeds executed by Tunis Hood, married into a Hood family, most likely either Tunis or John Jr., is indicated by the record of a John Champion Hood born August 5, 1825 in Monticello, Jasper County, Georgia, and died March 27, 1893 in New Orleans, Louisiana. Government pension records, lodged in the National Archives, Washington, D. C., show that John Champion Hood enlisted April 20, 1847, for service in the War with Mexico, and was assigned to Company “I” 3rd U. S. Dragoons. He was discharged at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, having served as a private, with combat service in Mexico. He was rated as excellent on his service record, which described him as being 6' 1/2" tall, fair complexion, grey eyes, and brown hair.

Found in his file in the National Archives is a letter dated Monticello, Jasper County, Georgia, May 7, 1849, addressed to I. L. Edwards, Commissioner of Pensions, from John C. Hood inquiring as to the status of his application for a warrant to land in Western Florida, and requesting that his warrants to such land be forwarded to him at Cork, Butts County, Georgia. The pension records show that he was granted 160 acres and the warrant mailed to Cork, Georgia.

This John Champion Hood next appears in Mobile, Alabama records, where he married, May 18, 1858, Mrs. Amanda A. Goodwin, nee Callahan, a widow. His name appears in the Federal Census of 1860 for the City of Mobile, the members of his household being his wife Amanda, aged 34, born in Alabama; James Hood, aged 20, bricklayer, born in Alabama, and Martha E. Hood, aged 15, born in Alabama. Just what relationship these two Hood members of his household were is not definitely known, but they could not have been his children, but most likely were his younger brother and sister.

After serving in the Confederate Army during the War Between the States, John Champion Hood moved from Mobile to New Orleans in 1871. There he conducted a lodging house at No. 18 St. Charles Street until the time of his death March 27, 1893. His remain were taken to Biloxi, Mississippi, for burial, the funeral arrangements being conducted under the auspices of the Continental Guards, a colorful Confederate veterans organization, of which he was a member. In her petition for appointment as administratrix of her husband's estate, Mrs. Amanda Ann Hood stated that her only source of income was her husband's Mexican War pension, and made further affidavit that he left no descendants of his own.

Frederick County, Va., court orders and minutes contain these two records:

Book 8, 1758-1760, p. 162: Suit by John Carlyle and John Dalton, pltfs. vs Tunis Hood def't. Suit dismissed by the court because of faulty motion by the pltfs.

Book 12, p. 223: Tunis Hood awarded 75 lbs. of tobacco as fees for attending court three days as witness for John Bucclew (Buckaloo). Fees paid by Becclew.

Barnet Newkirk (Jr.) and Tunis Newkirk, sons of Barnet Nieuwkerk (Barnet Newkirk Sr.) and Rebecca Van Bunschoten, sold parcels of land in 1769 to Tunis Hood Jr. and John Hood, sons of Tunis Hood Sr., as evidenced by the following transcripts of deeds recorded in the Frederick County court records:

Deed Book No. 13, p. 57, August 1, 1769: Deed from Barnet Newkirk and Rachel, his wife, to John Hood conveying a parcel of land on the west side of Tuliasis Branch, said parcel being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres patented to John Hood November 12, 1735.

Deed Book No. 13, p. 59, August 1, 1769: Deed from Tunis Newkirk and Mary his wife, of Frederick County, Province of Virginia, to Tunis Hood Jr., of the same county, conveying a parcel of land in Frederick County on the west side of Tuliasis Branch, said tract being a part of an original tract containing 1,175 acres patented to John Hood, November 12, 1735.

Berkeley County, West Virginia court records show that John Hood resold the above tract of land to Richard Houglod on December 11, 1770. This was about the time John Hood left for Burke County, North Carolina where he lived for a time before moving to Mecklenburg County, and later to Greene County, Georgia. In 1775 according to Berkeley County court records, Richard Hougland and Elizabeth, his wife, probable daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison, of Bedford County, Pennsylvania, resold the tract to John Boyd.

Berkeley County, West Virginia court records show that Tunis Hood Jr. resold his tract of land, above mentioned, to Michael Bruner according to a deed recorded September 13, 1773. Tunis Hood Jr. apparently had moved to Mecklenburg County, N. C., prior to that date, since the Mecklenburg County court minutes show that he served as a juror in that county in 1771.

Barnet and Tunis Newkirk were first cousins of John and Tunis Hood Jr.

After selling his lands in Frederick County, August 1 and 7, 1771, Tunis Hood had either moved back to Augusta County, or was preparing to do so. The county court records of that county show that Tunis Hood bought 200 acres of land in the county, August 16 and 17, 1771, according to the following deed record transcript:

Deed Book No. 17, pp. 398-401, Augusta County, Virginia court records: August 16 & 17, 1771: Deed by Francis McBride and Mary, his wife, conveying 200 acres of land to Tunis Hood of Frederick County. The land was described as situate and lying along the waters of Linville's Creek between the land of Joseph Boone and Josiah Davison, being part of an original tract of 1,500 acres on Linville's Creek patented by Joist Hite, Robert McCoy and Robert Green to William Linville. The said William Linville conveyed 500 acres of said land to Joseph Bryan, and he (Bryan) conveyed the same to Jacob Chrisman, who in turn conveyed 500 acres of said tract to Francis McBride, and he (McBride) conveyed the same 500 acres to John Bear, who conveyed 200 acres of said land back to Francis McBride by release; Francis McBride then conveyed the said 200 acres to Tunis Hood by lease and release.

The above land purchased by Tunis Hood on Linville's Creek is located in what is now Rockingham County, near the present town of Broadway.

That Tunis Hood had moved, or was preparing to move to Mecklenburg County, N. C., prior to about August, 1775, is shown by a transcript of the following Deed covering sale of his 200 acres of land on Linville's Creek to Abraham Brandiman:

Deed Book No. 22, pp. 418-420, Augusta County court records, August 20, 1775: Deed by Tunis Hood and Elizabeth his wife, conveying the above 200 acres of land on Linville's Creek to Abraham Brandiman. This sale was confirmed by the November 19, 1776 session of the Augusta County court.

The following entry in the Augusta County court minutes in connection with this sale, is of particular interest:

Deed Book No. 12, pp. 353, Augusta County court minutes, year 1775: "Abraham Smith and Daniel Smith having been appointed by the court to examine Elizabeth Hood, wife of Tunis Hood, privately and not in the presence of her husband, account said Elizabeth Hood being unable to appear in court in persons, in connection with a deed conveying 200 acres of land to Abraham Brandiman, made affidavit to the Court that they had accordingly examined the said Elizabeth Hood, privately in her home, and not the presence of her husband, Tunis Hood, said Elizabeth Hood testified to them that she had joined with her husband Tunis Hood in executing the deed of sale to Brandiman of 200 acres of land, and that she had voluntarily waived her dower, inheritance and other rights to said land."

In Will Book V, p. 114, Augusta County court minutes is recorded the Will of John Chrisman, dated May 27, 1772, witnesses: George Chrisman, Tunis Hood and John Smith. Said Will was proved on August 17, 1773 by Chrisman and Smith. Tunis Hood apparently was not in the county at the time.

Tunis Hood Sr. undoubtedly had contemplated moving to Mecklenburg County, N. C., as early as 1772, deed records in the county court files showing that he began buying land in the county in December of that year. The first record of such purchases is contained in the following transcript of a deed appearing in the Mecklenburg County court records:

"This Indenture made this the 12th day of December, in the year of our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King and Defender of the Faith, in the year of our Lord, 1772, between Henry Eustace McCulloch of the Province of North Carolina in America, of the one part, and Tunis Hood Sen'r., in the same province, planter, of the other, 227 acres of land on McCalpine's Creek for 100 Pounds Proclamation Money."

Henry Eustace McCulloch was the Mecklenburg County agent for Lord George Augustus Selwyn, one of the Lords Proprietors who had been granted large areas of land in North and South Carolina by the English Crown.

These earliest purchases of land in Mecklenburg County, N. C., were probably made by Tunis Hood Jr., on behalf of his father, since the Augusta County, Virginia court records covering the examination of Elizabeth Hood in connection with the sale of land in that county to Abraham Brandiman, show that she was examined "in her home" by Abraham Smith and Daniel Smith. Hence it is clear that Tunis Hood must have continued to maintain his residence in Augusta County until August, 1775, or later. Mecklenburg County court records verify that Tunis Hood Jr. was living in the county in 1771.

Recordings of numerous other deeds to land found in the Mecklenburg County court records followed the above first court entry in connection with purchases made in the name of Tunis Hood Sr. The next deed on record, dated December 20, 1772 covered conveyance of 127 acres of land on McA1pine's Creek by Henry E. McCulloch to Tunis Hood Sen'r., planter, the consideration being 30 Pounds 10 Shillings.
Yet another deed filed in the Mecklenburg County court records, dated October 23, 1774, covers conveyance of 145 acres of land on McAlpine's Creek by Henry E. McCulloch to Tunis Hood Sen'r., planter. One of the witnesses to this deed was Tunis Hood Jr.

All of the above deeds were issued in the name of "Our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King and Defender of the Faith."

From numerous other deed records found in the files of the Mecklenburg County court, covering conveyances by various other individuals too numerous to list here, many bearing well known names of families prominent in the early life of the county, it is apparent that Tunis Hood Sr., as well as his son Tunis Hood Jr., acquired through grants and purchases several thousand acres of land during the period 1772 to about 1790 or later. These lands lay mostly along the rich blackjack bottoms of McAlpine's Creek and tributary streams in Eastern Mecklenburg County, mostly in the present Morningstar Township. The late D. A. Tompkins in his History of Mecklenburg County, identified John Springs (Jr.), Thomas Polk and Tunis Hood as the three largest land owners and slaveholders in the county, in that order. The late Dr. J. B. Alexander who also published a history of Mecklenburg County makes similar references to Tunis Hood Sr. as among the largest land owners and slaveholders in the county in the last decade of the 18th Century.

The home place of Tunis Hood Sr. was located in about the center of Morningstar Township, across a small brook from the home of his youngest son, Reuben Hood, which is still standing, near the present village of Mint Hill, just north of Hood's Cross Roads. The house of Tunis Hood Sr. has long since been razed.

Family tradition advises that Tunis Hood and members of his family were affiliated with old Philadelphia Presbyterian Church at Mint Hill, he apparently having forsaken the Quaker faith before leaving Virginia, possibly about the time of his marriage to Elizabeth Harrison, who was a Presbyterian. Her father, John Harrison was, however a devout Baptist.

The grave of Tunis Hood Sr. has been located in old abandoned Rock Springs graveyard near Hood's Cross Roads, marked only with a crude flint headstone, on which are carved the letters "T. H."

Tunis Hood was baptised under the Dutch spelling of his name as Theunis Hoed. Theunis is the Dutch short for Antheunis, which is the English equivalent of Anthony. Most court records in both Virginia and Mecklenburg County, N. C., show the spelling of his Christian name alternately as "Tunas" and "Tunis." Both he and his son Tunis Jr., signed their Wills as "Tunas." Among most family and church records found, the spelling is almost invariably "Tunis." Practically all of his later descendants bearing the name, spelled it as "Tunis." Hence that spelling has been used in the preparation of this work.

That Elizabeth, first wife of Tunis Hood Sr., and mother of all of his children, died prior to 1790 is shown by the Federal census of that year for Mecklenburg County. Tunis Hood Sr. is listed, but no female members of his household were included, the only members listed being four house slaves. That he remarried sometime between 1790 and 1797, the year of his death, is shown by the provisions of his Will, signed April 12, 1797, and proved at the October, 1797 session of the Mecklenburg County Court. It is known therefore that his death occurred between those dates. He made provision for his wife, Jane, who by family tradition is known to have been Jane Jones, a widow. There were no children by his second marriage. He was approximately 79 years of age at the time of his death, a good age for that period when average life spans were so much shorter.

Both Tunis Hood Sr. and Tunis Jr. were public officials of District 15, Mecklenburg County, N. C., during the period 1775-1785, their offices being comparable to present county commissioners. Tunis Hood Jr. must have taken time out from his public office duties, since he served as a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He is referred to in many records as "Captain." However, that was a political rather than a military title, since official records show that his military service in the Revolution was as private. In those times, and much later, it was customary to call heads of public offices as "Captain." Hence, Tunis Hood Jr. was chairman of the board of county commissioners, District 15, Mecklenburg County, N. C.

Tunis Hood Sr. strongly supported the American Cause during the Revolutionary War and gave material aid to the armed forces, during the struggle for independence from Great Britain. All four of his sons, John, Tunis Jr., Solomon and Reuben served in the American armed forces in that war. (Roster of Soldiers from North Carolina in the American Revolution, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution, North Carolina Society.) In his application for a Revolutionary War pension, Reuben Hood made affidavit that he first entered service in the American army as a wagon master, driving a wagon and team that had been furnished by his father to the American military forces. (See further report under Family of Reuben Hood Sr.) Transcript of the full text of the Will of Tunis Hood Sr., as recorded in Will Book D, p. 16, in the files of the clerk of the Superior Court of Mecklenburg County, N. C., follows:

In the Name of God, Amen. Proved by Samuel Black, William Query and James Buchanan at the October 1797 term of the Mecklenburg County court.

At the January, 1799 term of the Mecklenburg County Superior Court, Reuben Hood Sr. and James Osborn, executors of the Will of Tunis Hood Sr., deceased, made their final accounting and turned into the court £759 12s 11/2d, said sum representing the cash residue of the estate after distribution of devices and discharging all obligations and expenses in connection with the administration of the said estate. The estate was then ordered closed by the court.

Thus passed into the Great Beyond, Tunis Hood, hardy Holland Dutch Colonial pioneer, born under the English Crown in New York state in the fifth year of the reign of King George I, of England, and died in the first year of the administration of John Adams, second President of the United States.

Tunis Hood lived through an interesting, if hazardous period of Colonial development into the first era of the great American republic. A fifth generation born American, his Dutch and Danish forebears were settled on these shores more than a Century before the migration of his family to the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia began.

After living through such a perilous period in the history of the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, before and during the French and Indian Wars, Tunis Hood must have found life in Mecklenburg County, N. C., among the peaceful Catawba Indians, a haven of welcome relief.

CHILDREN OF TUNIS HOOD SR. AND ELIZABETH HAR­ RISON, in order named in his Will, were:

1. John Hood b. about 1745 d. about 1835; m. Sarah Austin.
   See further report.

2. Tunis Hood Jr. b. about 1750 or earlier, d. 1801; m.
   Eleanor Harrison b. - - - d. - - - . See further report.

3. Solomon Hood b. about 1750 or '55, d. - - - ; m. Sarah - -
   See further report.

5. Elizabeth Hood b. probably about 1742, d. - - -. Believed to have married Richard Hougland (Hogeland) of Bedford County, Pennsylvania. Found in the court records of old Berkeley County, Virginia (now West Virginia), is record of a deed by Richard Hougland (Hogeland) and wife Elizabeth, to John Boyd conveying 1,175 acres of land on west side of Tuliasis branch, Berkeley County, Virginia, said land having been originally granted to John Hood, November 12, 1735, and acquired by Hougland December 11, 1770. There is some inconsistency here as to the actual number of acres acquired by Hougland, as other record show that John Hood sold 500 or more acres of the tract to his brother-in-law, Barent Nieuwkerk (Barnet Newkirk), and that both Rachel Hood, widow of John Hood, and Tunis Hood, their son, also sold the remainder of the land in various different tracts. Nevertheless, the strong indication is that Elizabeth, wife of Richard Hougland (Hogeland) was in fact, Elizabeth, daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. In the Mecklenburg County, N. C., court records, Tunis and Mary Hogeland deeded 163 acres of land to Tunis Hood, Jr., in October, 1789, and also 50 acres to Tunis Hood in the same month. This Tunis Hogeland also appears in the Federal census for adjoining Iredell County for the year 1790. He is believed to have been a son of Richard Hougland (Hogeland) and Elizabeth Hood. In his Will, Tunis Hood Sr. stated that his daughter Elizabeth was then living in Fort Natches, presumably Natchez, Mississippi. In any event, there was a close relationship between those Hogelands and Tunis Hood.

6. Phoebe Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. Davis Harrison. See further report under Harrison ancestors.

7. Rachel Hood b. about 1743, d. - - -; m. Frederick W. Shaffer. See further report.

8. Mary Hood b. - - d. - - -; m. Jesse Neal. See further report.

9. Lydia Hood b. - - d. - - -; m. Alexander McGinty. See further report.
CHAPTER II
JOHN HOOD, ELDEST SON OF TUNIS HOOD, SR., AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN HOOD, eldest son of Tunis Hood, Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison was born about 1745 to 1750 in old Frederick County, Virginia, in the section now a part of Berkeley County, West Virginia. From reliable family sources his wife is identified as Sarah (Sallie) Austin b. --- in North Carolina.

John Hood moved south about 1772, first to Burke County, North Carolina, and later, about 1775 to Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, where some early deeds records of him are available. In October, 1775, he conveyed fifty acres of land on McAlpine Creek to Jonathan Buckaloo. In a deed dated October 12, 1779, John and Mary Robinet conveyed 53 acres between McAlpine and Goose Creeks to John Hood. Later, on March 20, 1783, Joseph Galbreath conveyed 53 acres on Goose Creek, described as a tributary of Rocky River to John and Tunis Hood. There is record of a state grant, of 46 acres of land in Mecklenburg County to John Hood under date of November 9, probably bounty land in connection with his service as a Revolutionary War soldier. He served from the Salisbury District, which at that time included Mecklenburg County as a part of the Salisbury District. (D.A.R. Roster of North Carolina Soldiers in the Revolution, pp. 341, 578 and pension record No. 710.)

That John Hood moved from Mecklenburg County, N. C., to Greene County, Georgia about 1792, is shown by a Mecklenburg County deed wherein John Hood “of the County of Greene, State of Georgia” conveyed 46 acres of land to Tunis Hood, probably Tunis Jr. Later Greene County, Georgia court records show that William Fitzpatrick deeded land to John Hood in a deed dated April 9, 1799. (Deed Book B, p. 213.) In a deed dated September 14, 1801, John Hood conveyed the same tract of land to Phineas Whatley. (Vol. 2, p. 624, Greene County, Georgia court records). His name disappeared from the Greene County court records after that date.

A John Hood, and wife Sarah, with children born in both North Carolina and Georgia, appear in the early Knox County, Tennessee court and census records. A careful analysis of the best available family tradition, court and census records offers a good case for this Knox County, Tennessee, John Hood as the probable eldest son of Tunis Hood, Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison.

In a letter written in 1928 by the late Oliver Roland Hood of Gadsden, Alabama, to his brother, the late William Ross Hood, in connection with family ancestral research then in progress in collaboration with his cousin, the late Frazer Hood, professor of psychology at Davidson College, N. C., recited some traditions of their family line. Some excerpts from this letter follow:

"The traditions in our family are, that the first settlement of Hoods in America was in Maryland, and that from that family some emigrated to Pennsylvania, some to Massachusetts, some to Kentucky, and some to North Carolina. You will recall there are prominent Hoods in Pennsylvania, especially Philadelphia, and in Massachusetts. General John Bell Hood, the Confederate general, undoubtedly sprang from that branch of the family which emigrated to Kentucky.

"From that branch that emigrated to North Carolina, one or more families migrated to Knoxville, Tennessee, among which was John Hood, our great, great-grandfather.

"You will recall in the Creek Indian wars in Alabama, General Andrew Jackson mustered a volunteer army in Tennessee. In that army several sons of John Hood volunteered and were soldiers. That occurred in the years 1813 and 1814, or thereabouts. At that time all of Alabama was a wilderness occupied only by several Indian tribes. In making his way from Tennessee to Talledega, Alabama, where the battle of Talledega was fought with the Creek Indians, and to Tallapoosa County, Alabama, where the battle of Horseshoe Bend was fought, Andrew Jackson cut and built a road, now commonly known as the Jackson Trail. The road led down through or near the spot where the present city of Huntsville, Alabama is located, crossed the Tennessee river at or near the present town of Guntersville, Alabama, and at a point about one mile west of the town of Attalla, Alabama. As Jackson's army passed through what is now St. Clair County, foraging went out among the Indians seeking corn and other foodstuffs.

"After his release, one son of John Hood who was with Jackson's army, went back to Knoxville and he and his brothers sold their lands there and moved into Alabama in about the year 1816, settling in St. Clair County. It is said that they built flat boats on which they floated down the Tennessee river from Knoxville to Guntersville, and that they brought along with them their slaves, cattle and draft animals, as well as their household effects. Among these brothers, as I understood, were William Hood, Austin Hood, Osborn Hood, and Robert Hood, our great-grandfather. I believe that Robert Hood, our great-grandfather, was a soldier in Jackson's army. There appears to have been other brothers. It seems to me one was Amos. I know that Amos is a family name, our grandfather having a brother by that name. With these several brothers came their father, John Hood, quite an old man by that time.

"William Hood, after living in St. Clair County for some time, migrated to Pickens County in West Alabama, and then to Mississippi. I think that Austin Hood also migrated to Pickens County, and that Osborn Hood went to Jefferson County, Alabama, the county in which is located the city of Birmingham. Frazer Hood is the grandson of William Hood. The name Austin is a common name in our Hood family, as are the names Oscar, Amos, Osborn, John, William and Robert. I think that John Hood, our great-great-grandfather married an Austin. I think that the Waldrops of Jefferson County, Alabama, sprang from the Osborn Hood branch of the family. I suggest that you write William J. Waldrop, Board of Revenue, Birmingham, Alabama, who can perhaps give you information relative to the Waldrops and the Osborn Hood family, as he is a descendant of that branch of the family.

"It is my recollection that William Hood was the eldest son of John Hood, and for that reason it was thought that he carried the old family records to Mississippi. Some of the Hood family still reside at Knoxville."

"It seems that a member of the Philadelphia Hood family branch had erected entirely the family tree. You will recall that many years ago there was a prominent business firm in Philadelphia by the name of Hood, Bonbright and Company. If one could get in touch with some member of that family it is possible we could obtain a copy of the family tree he caused to be erected. However, if you, Fraser Hood and Oscar Monroe Hood of Trinidad, Colorado, will continue your efforts with what aid the enclosed suggestions may supply you, I think that you will ultimately be able to trace the family back to its original settlement in this country."

Oliver Roland Hood has furnished some very interesting family traditions and offered some valuable suggestions in connection with Hood ancestral research. However, he did make the mistake so common to other Hood family researchers, in assuming that all of the earliest Hoods in this country were descended from English and Scotch-Irish immigrants to Maryland and Massachusetts. It is now well established that some of the earliest Hoods in America were Holland Dutch colonials of New Netherland, now New York. Among them was the family of Jasper Hoed, or as anglicized Hood, whose descendents are legion throughout the country, especially in the Southern states. Many Hoods of Maryland and Delaware are no doubt descendents of another Holland Dutch colonial, Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood), prominently mentioned in the earliest historical records of New Netherland, and who moved to South River, Maryland, in 1663 where he died later in that year. There were however, some early Hoods in Maryland who were English immigrants, and the same is true of Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania.

So far no contacts have been established with the Hood family in Philadelphia whose ancestors erected the Hood family tree mentioned by Oliver Roland Hood, but the suggestion will be explored further. It is very likely that some of the Hood families of Philadelphia and other sections of Eastern Pennsylvania are descendents of the Jaspar Hood line, probably through Thomas Hood, youngest son of Jaspar Hood. It has been stated also that some descendents of Lucas Hood, another son of Jaspar, moved back to Pennsylvania from Virginia. Lucas Hood lived in New Jersey and Pennsylvania for some years before settling in Frederick County, Virginia, about 1745. It has now been well verified that Oliver Roland Hood’s tradition that General John B. Hood was a descendant of that branch of the Hood family that settled in Kentucky was correct. He was a descendant of Lucas Hood.

An analysis of the family records produced by the late William Ross Hood, and other family tradition sources, indicates that John Hood and Sarah Austin had at least seven sons. No records of any daughters are available. These probable sons were:

1. William Hood b. about 1777 in North Carolina, d. about 1850 in Itawamba County, Mississippi; m. Elizabeth ---. See further report.

2. Austin Hood b. about 1780, probably in North Carolina, d. ---; name of first wife, unknown, probably married in Georgia; m. 2. Dec. 19, 1821 in St. Clair County, Alabama Elizabeth Quinn b. --- d. ---. See further report.

3. James Hood b. about 1782, probably in North Carolina, d. --- before 1850; m. probably Maragret ---. See further report.

4. Amos Hood b. about 1785, probably in North Carolina, d. young.

5. Isaac Hood b. 1790, probably in North Carolina, d. ---; his name appears in the 1820 and 1830 census lists for St. Clair, County, Alabama, and on the 1850 census for Jefferson County, Alabama; wife Lucinda b. 1826, obviously a second wife. Two children named: a-1. James Hood (idiot) b. 1836 in Alabama. Likely a son by the first wife.
   a-2. May Ann Hood b. 1850 in Alabama, daughter of Lucinda, his second wife.

6. Robert Hood b. 1792 in North Carolina d. --- in St. Clair County, Alabama; m. Sarah Roland. See further report.

7. Osborn Hood b. 1800 in Georgia, d. ---; m. Elizabeth --- b. 1800 in Georgia. See further report.

WILLIAM HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

WILLIAM HOOD, b. about 1777 in North Carolina d. about 1860 in Itawamba County, Mississippi. A Baptist clergyman, he was identified by William Ross Hood and Frazer Hood as the eldest son of John Hood and Sarah Austin of St. Clair County, Alabama. His name appeared in the 1820 and 1830 census lists of St. Clair County, Alabama, whence he moved to Pickens County, in Western Alabama. He moved from there prior to 1850 to Itawamba County, Mississippi. Census records for the county for 1860 lists Elizabeth Hood b. 1794 in North Carolina living with the family of Kelley Williams, aged 45, b. in South Carolina and wife Elizabeth, aged 40. This Elizabeth Hood was most likely the widow of Rev. William Hood, and Elizabeth Williams was their daughter. They left a host of descendants living in various sections of Mississippi and Alabama. According to William Ross Hood’s research, he too, had seven sons and several daughters. Only partial records of their children and descendants are available, as follows:

a-1. Elizabeth Hood b. 1820 in Alabama d. - - -; m. Kelley Williams b. about 1815 in South Carolina. No record of children.

a-2. Hiram Hood b. 1821 in Alabama d. - - - . He was operating a hotel in Itawamba County, Miss., according to the 1860 census for that county; m. Mary - - -. Their children in 1860 were:
   b-1. John C. Hood b. 1845 in Itawamba County, Miss. No further record.
   b-2. Sarah V. Hood b. 1850 in Itawamba County. No further record.
   b-3. Charles J. Hood b. 1853 in Itawamba County. No further record.
   b-4. Hiram Hood Jr. b. 1856 in Itawamba County. No further record.

a-3. Robert Hood b. 1824 in Alabama; m. Martha - - - b. 1826 in Alabama. Children in 1860 were:
   b-1. Mary F. Hood b. 1853. No further record.
   b-4. Anna Hood b. 1859 in Mississippi. No further record.

a-4. Joshua Hood b. 1828 in Alabama d. - - - ; m. Dec. 20, 1849 in St. Clair County, Alabama, Margaret Johnson b. 1827. Children in 1860 were:
   b-1. James Hood b. 1851 in Alabama. No further record.
   b-2. William Hood b. 1853 in Alabama. No further record.
   b-4. John T. Hood b. 1856 in Mississippi. No further record.
   b-5. Moss Hood b. 1857 in Mississippi. No further record.
b-6. Harrison Hood b. 1858 in Mississippi. No further record.

b-7. Osborn Hood II b. 1859 in Mississippi. No further record.

a-5. Charles Buren Hood b. 1828 in Alabama, apparently a twin of Joshua above. Captain in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States; m. - - -. Record only of one son:

b-1. Frazer Hood b. June 2, 1875 in Tupelo, Miss., d. 1942 in Davidson, N. C. He was a professor of psychology at Davidson College, Davidson, N. C. Record of two daughters:

c-2. Kalister Wagner Hood, daughter, b. - - - Lives in Davidson, N. C., unmarried.

a-6. James R. Hood b. 1835 in Alabama; m. Minerva - - b. 1835 in North Carolina. Record of one son in 1860:

b-1. William W. Hood b. 1859 in Mississippi. No further record.

AUSTIN HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

AUSTIN HOOD b. 1778, probably in North Carolina, d. --- in Pickens County, Alabama; name of first wife unknown, probably married in Georgia; m. 2, Dec. 19, 1821 in St. Clair County, Alabama, Elizabeth Quinn b. - - d. - - -. According to records produced by the late William Ross Hood, he served in the War of 1812-14 with Great Britain, and also in General Andrew Jackson's army in his campaign, 1813-1814, against the Creek Indians in Alabama. After his release from military service he returned to Knox County Tennessee, and in 1815 joined his father and several brothers, and their families in a migration in flat boats down the Tennessee River to Northwestern Alabama. His name appeared in the first census of Monroe County, Alabama, then a part of Mississippi Territory, in 1816, the members of his household being: 1 son over 21, 3 sons under 21, and 3 females under 21. It is obvious therefore that he was then a widower. His name appeared later in the 1820 and 1830 censuses of St. Clair County, Alabama, the 1830 census listing his age bracket as 40-50, wife 30-40, children: 1 male 10-15, 1 male 20-30, no females listed. Records only of five known sons:

a-1. William Hood II b. about 1800 in Georgia, d. prior to 1850; m. Martha Hood, a cousin, b. - - d. - - They lived in Tallapoosa County, Alabama according to 1850 census records of that family. See further report.

a-2. Humphrey Hood b. about 1802 in Georgia d. ---. Said to have moved back to Georgia after growing up in Tennessee and Alabama. No record of family.

a-3. Matthew Hood b. about 1805, probably in Tennessee, d. ---. Moved to Georgia after growing up in Tennessee and Alabama. No further record.

a-4. James Hood b. about 1806 in South Carolina, d. ---; m. Mary Elizabeth --- b. about 1802 in South Carolina. They were living in Hardeman County, Tennessee in 1850, with the following children:
   b-1. Tabitha Hood, aged 22, b. in Alabama.
   b-2. Daniel Hood, aged 21, b. in Alabama.

   b-6. James Hood Jr. aged 11, b. in Alabama.
   b-7. Gifford Hood, aged 10, b. in Tennessee.
   b-8. Lemuel Hood, aged 6, b. in Tennessee.

a-5. Austin Hood, Jr. b. 1809 in Tennessee, d. apparently a widower in 1850, children listed in the 1850 census for Jefferson County, Alabama:
   b-1. Frances Hood, aged 18, b. in Alabama.
   b-2. Rachel C. Hood, aged 16, b. in Alabama.
   b-4. William P. Hood, aged 15, b. in Alabama.
   b-4. Isaac A. Hood, aged 11, b. in Alabama.
   b-5. Amos W. D. Hood, aged 7, b. in Alabama.
   b-6. Jane F. Hood, aged 1, b. in Alabama.

"My father was a son of William Hood (II) and Martha Hood, a cousin, of Tallapoosa County, Alabama. I have heard him speak of three uncles named Austin, Matthew and Humphrey Hood, and some of them lived in Georgia as well as I remember. My father carried the mail on horseback between two cities in Alabama, and as I remember, one was Tuscaloosa. He was a plantation overseer in slave days in Tallapoosa County, Alabama, for a man named Spencer Moore, and also for a Dr. Kimbrell. I have been told that my father's ancestors came from North Carolina, and that he was named for his grandfather, Austin Hood. There seems to have been a lot of them in the family with given names of Austin. My father and his oldest son, Frank, by his first wife, were veterans of the Civil War, and my father belonged to the Confederate cavalry and served under General Nathan Bedford Forrest. My Uncle Will Hood was also a Civil War veteran. He had two more brothers, James and Matthew Hood. He had a sister Mary Jane Hood who married Joab Cauley, and another one Ann, who married Wilson P. Pool, and also a sister Monan who died when a young girl. There may have been some other sisters, and maybe a brother, but I cannot remember their names."

ROBERT HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

ROBERT HOOD m. 1792 in North Carolina, d. 1858 in St. Clair County, Alabama, son of John Hood and Sarah (Sallie) Austin; m. Sarah (Sallie) Roland b. 1791 in North Carolina, d. 1855 in St. Clair County, Alabama; both buried in Hopewell Cemetery in St. Clair County. According to family records accumulated by the late William Ross Hood and late Oliver Roland Hood, his great-grandsons, Robert Hood served in the army of General Andrew Jackson during the War of 1812-1814 with Great Britain, and was also a member of General Jackson's forces in the campaign against the Creek Indians in Alabama, 1813-1814. The victories of that campaign brought about the opening of Alabama, then a wilderness, for white settlement.

Following his discharge from General Jackson's army, Robert Hood joined his parents and other family members in their migration from Knox County, Tennessee to St. Clair County, Alabama. Together with his parents, and several brothers, and possibly sisters, he settled in St. Clair County in 1816, where he established his home and raised his family. From family Bible and other records furnished by living descendants, together with official census and court records, the following are identified as children of Robert Hood and Sarah (Sallie) Roland:

1. Burwell Hood b. 1817 in St. Clair County, Alabama, d. --- in Gatesville, Coryell County, Texas; m. Sept. 8, 1839 in St. Clair County, Margaret N. Cooper. See further report.

   b-1. William J. Waldrop b. - - - Was living in Birmingham, Ala., at last report, a retired member of the State Board of Revenue. Said to have good records of the Osborn Hood family.
CHAPTER III
THE SOLOMON HOOD FAMILY

Records of the family and descendants of Solomon Hood, third son of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison, are meager, and somewhat circumstantial. It seems apparent that Solomon Hood settled first in Burke County, N. C., after moving south from Virginia. That he later moved to Iredell County, N. C., is shown by the Federal census records of that county for the years 1790, 1800 and 1810. That he moved from Burke to Iredell County in 1789 is indicated by the records of a deed lodged in the Iredell County court records dated December 7, 1789, wherein John Andrews conveyed 250 acres of land on the waters of Third Creek to Solomon Hood, “of the County of Burke, State of North Carolina.” There was an earlier deed recorded in the Mecklenburg County court deeds records, dated in January, 1788, by which Solomon Hood and wife Sarah, conveyed 145 acres of land on McAlpine Creek to his brother Tunis Hood, Jr.

There is also record of a later deed recorded in the Mecklenburg County court deeds records, dated September 6, 1799, by which Davis and Phebe Harrison conveyed to Solomon Hood “of Iredell County, State of North Carolina,” 58 acres of land on McAlpine Creek. Then, on the following day, September 7, 1799, Solomon and Sally Hood deeded this 58 acre tract to John Farson, indicating that they had taken title to and sale of the land merely as nominee agents of Davis and Phebe Harrison, who had previously moved to Christian County, Kentucky. Phebe Harrison was Solomon Hood’s sister.

In the 1810 Federal census for Iredell County, N. C., Solomon Hood is listed as aged “over 45” and that of his wife in the 26-45 age range. Members of their household, undoubtedly their children, were listed as follows:

One male 1-10 age range, one male 10-16 age range, one male 16-26 age range; one female 1-10 age range, three females 16-26 age range. This census record suggests therefore that their children in 1810 were three sons and four daughters. His birth date is estimated at about 1750.

A deed dated December 15, 1814, lodged in the deeds records of Iredell County, N. C., covers conveyance of 161 acres of land, more or less, on Third Creek, by Solomon Hood of Iredell County to Daniel Frazier. Later, under date of January 12, 1826, Solomon Hood deeded 77 acres of land, more or less, on Third Creek, in Iredell County, N. C., to John Harris. This is the last record of Solomon Hood appearing in the Iredell County records. Likewise, his name does not appear in subsequent census records of that county, hence it is assumed that he and his family moved away from the county.

Among the witnesses to deeds executed by Solomon Hood in Iredell County, N. C., appears the name of Tunis Hogeland, whose name also appears in the 1790 census of Iredell County as a resident of that county. He apparently had lived in Mecklenburg County, N. C., prior to 1790, since he and wife Mary, deeded 50 acres of land on McAlpine Creek to Tunis Hood in October, 1789, record of which appears in the Mecklenburg County court deeds records. And in the same month, Mary Buckaloo, Mary and Tunis Hogeland conveyed 163 acres of land on McAlpine Creek to Tunis Hood, Jr. There is good reason to believe that Tunis Hogeland was a son of Richard Hougland (Hogeland) and wife Elizabeth, formerly of Bedford County, Pennsylvania, and that Elizabeth Hougland was most likely the oldest daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. See further reference in this connection.

One probable son of Solomon Hood and Sarah --- was William Henry Hood, born 1772 in Burke County, N. C., whose wife was Winnifred Elizabeth Reed, born in North Carolina, in 1773. They are listed in the 1850 Federal census for old Pendleton County, S. C., now a part of Anderson County, S. C. The following records of this family was furnished by the late Rev. A. O. Hood, their descendant who lived in Jefferson, Jackson County, Georgia, which is not far from Anderson County, S. C. Their children were named as follows:

1. William Hood b. --- d. ---
2. Edith Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Frank Cook b. --- d. ---
3. Steven R. Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Jane Sewell b. --- d. ---
4. Mary Ann Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Asa Jones Ware b. --- d. ---
5. Reuben Harvey Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Millie Cook b. --- d. ---
6. Zilmon S. Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Harriet Morrison b. --- d. ---
7. Nathaniel Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Luissie Butler.

Family of Reuben Harvey Hood and Millie Cook above:

a-1. Zilmon Willis Hood b. --- d. ---; m. Martha Thurmond
    b. --- d. --- Record of two sons:
    b-l. Washington Lafayette Hood b. ---; m. --- Record of one son:
c-1. Rev. A. O. Hood b. - - d. 1953, lived in Jefferson, Jackson County, Georgia, where in addition to his ministerial duties, he was manager for The Maccabees, and also served as tax receiver for Jackson County. Record of one son:
   d-1. Zilmon Hood b. - - No further record.

b-2. Reuben Columbus Hood b. - - d. - -; m. - - They lived in Atlanta, Georgia, where he was dean of the Southern College of Pharmacy, Atlanta, Georgia. Record of one son:
   c-1. Major-General Reuben Columbus Hood, Jr., b. 1907 in Atlanta, Georgia; m. Emma Thomas of Atlanta. They have two daughters and one son, names not immediately available. General Hood, who recently retired from the U. S. Air Force, served as a combat pilot in World War II, and also saw service in the Far East. Following that service he spent four years in the Pentagon, helping to organize the Air Force as a separate branch of the armed forces. He is now taking a special post-graduate course at Duke University, N. C.

CHAPTER IV
LINE OF CAPTAIN TUNIS HOOD, JR.

TUNIS HOOD, JR. was born about 1745 in either what is now Rockingham County, Virginia, then a part of Augusta County, or possibly in old Frederick County, Virginia, near the present city of Martinburg, Berkeley County, West Virginia, once a part of Frederick County, Virginia. Deeds and other Frederick County court records show that he was living in that county at the time of his removal to Mecklenburg County, North Carolina about 1771. There is recorded in the Mecklenburg County, N. C., deeds records archives a deed dated April 25, 1801 by Tunis and Eleanor Hood, conveying land to Ezekiel Black. The Will of Tunis Hood, Jr., dated October 6, 1799, was proved in the July, 1801 session of the Mecklenburg County court. This is specific evidence therefor that he died sometime between April 25, and July, 1801.

The earliest verified record of Tunis Hood, Jr., is found in the Frederick County, Virginia court records, dated August 1, 1769. On that date a deed was recorded by Tunis Newkirk and wife Mary, "of the province of Virginia" to Tunis Hood, Junior, of the same county, conveying a parcel of land in Frederick County on the west side of Tuliasis creek. Tunis Newkirk (originally Theunis Nieuwkerk, formerly of Ulster County, N.Y.) and Tunis Hood Jr. were first cousins. In the deed the land conveyed is described as being a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres patented to John Hood, Sr., November 12, 1735.

It would appear that Tunis Hood, Jr. moved from Frederick County, Virginia, to Mecklenburg County, N. C., about 1771, several years in advance of the arrival of his parents in the county to make their future home. Mecklenburg County court records show that Tunis Hood served as a juror in the county in 1772. This undoubtedly referred to Tunis Hood, Jr.

As a young man Tunis Hood, Jr., was somewhat noted as an amateur boxer of the rough and tumble bare fist style of those times. He once won a championship bout with one of the Harrison boys, representing Virginia. He was a veteran of the Revolutionary War, having served several tours of duty as a member of Captain Charles Polk's Company of Mecklenburg foot troops. His saber is in the possession of this author. His Revolutionary War service has been established with the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the records of his service appear in the D. A. R. Roster of Revolutionary Soldiers from North Carolina, pp. 489, 490, 491, 493, 494. In these and a few other court records, including the Federal census of 1790 and 1800, identify him as Captain Tunis Hood, Jr., but this was undoubtedly a political rather than a military title. He served as a private soldier in Captain Polk's company. Official Mecklenburg County records show that he was a public official, captain of District 15, Mecklenburg County, during the period 1775-1785. This would correspond to the chairman of the County Commissioners of today. His father, Tunis Hood, Sr., also served as a public official of District 15.

Numerous deeds records in the Mecklenburg County Superior Court archives confirm the well-founded knowledge that Tunis Hood, Jr. became a very substantial land owner in Morningstar and Clear Creek Townships in Eastern Mecklenburg County along the headwaters of McAlpine Creek and tributaries of Rocky River. Tradition advises that he bought thousands of acres of land for as little as 12½¢ per acre. He operated a grist mill and distillery at his home place on upper McAlpine Creek, and was a substantial slaveholder. He was also more or less active as a slave trader, and once shipped a boat load of Negro slaves through the port of Charleston, S. C., to New Orleans.

The wife of Tunis Hood, Jr., was Eleanor Harrison, daughter of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, pioneer settlers of old Augusta (now Rockingham) County, Virginia, and who later moved to Greene County, Tennessee. Jeremiah Harrison was a son of Isaiah Harrison and second wife, Abigail Smith.
Catherine Adams was a daughter of John Adams and Margaret Patterson, a widow of old Augusta County, Virginia. Elizabeth Harrison, mother of Tunis Hood Jr., was also a granddaughter of Isaiah Harrison and first wife, Elizabeth Wright. Hence, Tunis Hood, Jr., and Eleanor Harrison were half first cousins.

According to family tradition, handed down through several descendant families, Eleanor (Harrison) Hood once defiantly opposed a British foraging party searching for horses and livestock, during the Revolutionary War, while her husband was away serving in the American army. She firmly refused to reveal the hiding place of the family's horses and livestock, opened the bosom of her dress and dared the British commander to have her shot. They left without the horses and livestock, and she became a neighborhood heroine.

In his Will, dated October 6, 1799, and proved in July, 1801, Tunis Hood, Jr. named the following children:
1. Robert Hood b. about 1775, d. - - -; m. May 15, 1797, Elizabeth McRaven, daughter of John McRaven and - - - Some few limited records. See further report.

2. Elizabeth Hood b. March 8, 1777, d. Oct. 8, 1831; m. May 7, 1795, Robert Maxwell. Some fairly good records. See further report.

4. John Harrison Hood b. about 1781, d. 1840; m. 1, Socelia E. Black; m. 2, Mary Russell. Some good records. See further report.

6. Jeremiah Hood b. about 1786, d. - - -; m. Jan. 16, 1816, Mary McCroskey, apparently his second marriage, as the 1810 Census for Mecklenburg County, N. C., shows him with a wife, but no children. There is record of a deed dated Jan. 8, 1814 wherein he conveyed 154 acres of land, including dwellings and other buildings to Robert Maxwell, his brother-in-law, property he had inherited from his father. That he was living in Mecklenburg County, N. C., in 1822 is indicated by the record of a power of attorney executed by his brother Tunis Hood III in Williamson County, Tennessee, in favor of Jeremiah Hood "living in Mecklenburg County, N. C." Since no further records of him are found in Mecklenburg County, it is evident that he moved away about 1822. This is presently a "lost tribe."

Tunis Hood Jr. made no specific provision for his wife Eleanor in his Will, although she is known to have survived him. His executors however, were charged with the responsibility of providing for the family. His place of burial is not known, but very likely in one of the old abandoned cemeteries in Eastern Mecklenburg County, N. C., in an unmarked grave.

His Will, dated October 6, 1799, was proved at the July, 1801 session of the Mecklenburg County court, is recorded in Will Book D, p. 60, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court in Charlotte, N. C. A transcript of the Will follows:

(S) Reuben Hood
(S) John Black

The above Will was proved at the July term of the Mecklenburg County court 1801.

ROBERT HOOD I AND HIS FAMILY

ROBERT HOOD I b. about 1775 d. --- eldest son and child of Captain Tunis Hood and Eleanor Harrison, m. May 15, 1797, Elizabeth McRaven b. --- d. --- daughter of John McRaven of Mecklenburg County, N. C. Many records of this Robert Hood are found in the Mecklenburg County court records of deeds and contracts, beginning in July, 1796 and extending through to September 17, 1830. On that date he was party to a contract in connection with the marriage of his daughter, Eleanor J. Hood and William O. Edwards. Edwards agrees to deposit $3,000 or the equivalent in property with Robert Hood, father of Eleanor J. Hood, in trust for the benefit of Eleanor J. Hood or her lawful heirs.

Early Mecklenburg County, N. C., census records show that Robert Hood I had a large family of children, the names of several which are known. The census for 1820 for Mecklenburg County, the last in which the name of Robert Hood I appeared, listed the members of his household as 4 males under 10, 1 male under 16, 2 males under 26, and 1 male over 45 (himself); 3 females under 10, 2 females under 16, and, his wife Elizabeth, over 45, was living in 1820. According to this census record he had twelve children in 1820.

Robert Hood I was named by his father-in-law, John McRaven, as executor of his Will signed Feb. 24, 1813. One of the witnesses was Jeremiah Hood. No court or family records of him have been found in Mecklenburg County after September, 1830. Family tradition advises that he moved away from the county about that time, probably to Tennessee. There is record of a Robert Hood in Hardeman County, Tennessee around that period, which could have been him, but this has not been confirmed. His brother Tunis Hood III was living in that community around that time. He witnessed the Will of his brother-in-law, John Black, written in 1808, and proved in 1813.

The following are reasonably well identified as children of Robert Hood I and Elizabeth McRaven:

2. Tunis Hood IV b. about 1800 d. - - -; m. Feb. 22, 1822, Catherine Starnes. One probable son was:
   a-1. John M. Hood b. 1826 d. - - -; m. Melinda Black b. 1828 d. - - - Record of two children:
      b-1. William Hood b. 1847 d. - - - No further record.
      b-2. Thomas Hood b. 1849 d. - - - No further record.

3. Mary Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. Feb. 8, 1823 Reuben Starnes. No further record.

4. Robert Hood Jr. b. - - - d. - - - No further record.

5. Anna Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. James Grier b. - - - d. - - - Very good records of their son, Eli Clinton Grier and his family. See further report.

6. Margaret N. Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. Nov. 20, 1827, Zachariah McCauley. No further record.

Other than the records of the family of Eli Clinton Grier, son of James Grier and Anna Hood above, Robert Hood I and family must presently be numbered among the Hood “Lost Tribes” of Mecklenburg County, N. C.

FAMILY OF ROBERT MAXWELL AND ELIZABETH HOOD

ROBERT MAXWELL b. 1766, d. December 9, 1840, in Mecklenburg County, N. C., m. November 7, 1795, ELIZABETH HOOD b. March 8, 1777, d. October 8, 1831; eldest daughter of Captain Tunis Hood, Jr. and Eleanor Harrison. According to family tradition, their marriage was a horseback elopement because of parental objections. They were forgiven apparently, as Tunis Hood, Jr., provided for her in his Will. He devised his home to his two sons, Jeremiah and Tunis III, which was later acquired by Robert Maxwell, including the grist mill which he continued to operate, and subsequently operated by his son Francis Harvey Maxwell. In this connection, a deed found in the effects of the late Eugenia Maxwell of Charlotte, N. C., from Jeremiah Hood to Robert Maxwell, dated January 8, 1814, covers transfer of 154 acres of land and all buildings thereon. This conveyance undoubtedly involved Jeremiah Hood’s share of the family home place, inherited from his father. This sale was most likely made by Jeremiah Hood in contemplation of his removal from Mecklenburg County, as his name disappeared from the county records a short time thereafter.

According to entries in the family Bible of Jeremiah Harrison Maxwell, son of Robert Maxwell and Elizabeth Hood, now in possession of his granddaughter, Mrs. William Franklin Morrison (Susan Porter Maxwell) of Concord, N. C., the following were the children of Robert Maxwell and Elizabeth Hood:

1. Robert Hood Maxwell b. April 12, 1796, d. - - -; m. 1, Dec. 21, 1823, Anne Rogers; m. 2, May 12, 1856, Mary R. Rea. See further report.

3. Elizabeth Eleanor Maxwell b. Feb. 22, 1800, d. Sept. 3, 1872; m. Ambrose Rogers b. - - - d. - - - They lived in Tippah County, Miss. Record of one daughter, Teresa Rogers m. - - -, had one known daughter, Elizabeth, m. --- Sadler. They lived in Vicksburg, Miss.

4. James Jarvis Maxwell b. Feb. 2, 1802, d. March 5, 1870; m. Feb. 8, 1823, Margaret Wallace. See further report.

5. Lydia P. Maxwell b. May 1, 1805, d. 1869; m. March 8, 1830 Eli O. Black in Mecklenburg County, N. C. In a letter to his sister, Margaret E. Maxwell, written from Tippah County, Miss., by Jeremiah Harrison Maxwell, October 6, 1850, found in the papers of the late Eugenia Maxwell, he mentions a visit from his sister Lydia, living in that country at that time.

Family tradition advises that she and Eli O. Black were later separated. No records of their children and descendants, if any, are immediately available.

7. William J. Maxwell b. 1810, d. - - - name of wife unknown. In the letter above referred to, Jeremiah Harrison Maxwell, stated that his brother William was then living in Memphis, Tenn, (Oct. 1850), roofing houses, and that he expected to move his family from Alabama to Memphis in a short time. No further record.

8. Francis Harvey Maxwell b. May 11, 1811, d. April 10, 1874; m. 1, Mary Ann Perpall; m. 2, Honoria O’Brien. See further report.

9. Margaret E. Maxwell b. 1815 d. - - - Never married.
ROBERT HOOD MAXWELL AND HIS FAMILY

ROBERT HOOD MAXWELL b. April 12, 1796, d. ---; m. Dec. 21, 1823, Anne Rogers b. --- d. --- Records only of three children:

1. James Harvey Maxwell b. 1834, d. ---; m. Laura Yark b. --- d. --- According to family advices they moved to Cullman County, Alabama, sometime after 1880, where descendants now live. The Federal census for Mecklenburg County, N. C., for the year 1880, show they were living in that county in that year, with the following children:
   1. Lula Maxwell b. 1861.
   5. William Maxwell b. 1869.
   7. Charles Maxwell b. 1873.

No further records of this family immediately available.

2. Hugh Harrison Maxwell b. --- d. --- Moved to Texas.

No further record.

3. Tunis Hood Maxwell b. --- d. ---; m. Martha Wilsoxen. b.---d.--- See further report.

TUNIS HOOD MAXWELL AND HIS FAMILY

TUNIS HOOD MAXWELL b. --- d. ---; m. Martha Wilcoxen b. --- d. --- They lived in Surry County, N. C. Record only of one daughter:

a-1. Annie Eliza Maxwell b. March 5, 1868 in Surry County, N. C., d. June 18, 1899; m. Richard W. Davis b. Oct. 8, 1861 in Davidson County, N. C., d. August 30, 1929 in Surry County, N. C. Both buried in Grassy Creek Cemetery near Elkin, N. C. He was a son of James Henry Davis and Rebecca Smith. Their children and known descendants:

c-2. John Buford Hayes b. August 24, 1919 in Surry County, N. C.; m. August 23, 1941, Myrtle Cathryn Mathis b. March 2, 1922, daughter of James Mathis and Kate Thornton. They live near Elkin, N. C., and have these children:
   d-1. Rebecca Ann Hayes b. August 14, 1954 in Raleigh, N. C. d-2. Lydia Elizabeth Hayes b. April 22, 1957 in Raleigh, N. C.
Viola Burchman b. - - - in Wilkes County, N. C., d. Nov. 24, 1930. They lived in Surry County, N. C. Their children and known descendants:

c-1. John Richard Davis b. Jan. 3, 1921 in Wilkes County, N. C.; m. Nadine Williams b. - - - They live in Detroit, Michigan. Two children:
   d-1. James Henry Davis II b. - - - in Detroit, Mich.
   d-2. Bonnie Davis b. - - - in Detroit, Mich.

c-2. Annie Laura Davis b. April 5, 1922 in Surry County, N. C.; m. Lauren Holbrook b. - - - in Wilkes County, N. C., son of Oliver Holbrook and - - - Sprinkle. They live in Surry County, N. C. Two children:

c-4. Clara Eugenia Davis b. Dec. 25, 1925 in Surry County, N. C.; m. Luther Ransom b. - - - in Winston-Salem, N. C. They live in Winston-Salem. Two children:
   d-1. Barbara Jean Ransom b. - - - in Winston-Salem, N. C. d-2. Terry Wayne Ransom b. - - - in Winston-Salem, N. C.

c-5. James Henry Davis III d. in infancy.

James Henry Davis (I) above was born in England; brought to America as a small child; he died in Virginia of pneumonia while serving in the Confederate army in the War Between the States.

JEREMIAH HARRISON MAXWELL AND HIS FAMILY

JEREMIAH HARRISON MAXWELL b. June 30, 1798 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. October 13, 1878, probably in Louisiana or Texas; m. August 28, 1827, Elizabeth C. Houston b. March 1, 1801 in Ireland, d. January 4, 1880, daughter of Thomas Houston and Mary - - -. Of particular interest to descendants of this family is a letter found in the papers of the late Eugenia Maxwell of Charlotte, N. C., written by Jeremiah Harrison Maxwell from Tippah County, Mississippi, October 6, 1850, to his spinster sister, Miss Margaret E. Maxwell, Charlotte, N. C.

"Dear Sister:

I have an opportunity of sending your money ($20.00) to you by Mr. John Moor of Sugar Creek Congregation, without I can get Carolina paper tomorrow morning. He is at W. C. Houston's. Houston lives where Preacher Rogers lived last year, between Esq. Bailey's and Bolen. He has bought 5 quarter sections of land on this side of the creek below Morris' mill, and the 4th of the mills. Morris has sold out there and commenced building another mill on little Cold Water by Mount Pleasant and I am informed that he has an interest in Barrett's old mill (7 miles down the creek), along with Bigers that came to this county with James Irwin's hands, but for the correctness of this report I cannot determine. Our crops in this settlement are tolerable good, better perhaps than anywhere else in this country. As far as I can learn crops are lighter throughout this state than ever was known in the state. It is also the case in a great portion of Arkansas, west Tennessee and the southern part of Alabama. I have upwards of 30 acres of cotton. I have but little corn planted. There is perhaps 5 barrels to the acre. It is all new ground, cleared this year.

I have sold my land (the McClellan place) for 8 dollars per acre, half to be paid down, the other half at 10 dollars per acre on twelve months credit, with the chance of the purchaser giving all the money against the 15th of Nov. next, and getting all at 8 dollars per acre. I expect to move by the 15th of Nov. to Louisiana or Texas in company with George Cain and James Roberts. If the men that purchased by land fulfill their engagement, and I get the Burrow money, $250 in, that I sold my land down the creek for; I got a judgment in court last July for it but it will not be collected until Dec'r. and if he forfeits his bond that he gave to the court it will not be collected for six months longer, but I think I will get the money before I start, from the sheriff. I will have between $2,500 and $3,000, considerable more than I started to Carolina with last November.

"Brother William remains in Memphis covering houses, flat roofed, employed by some men engaged in that business, at good wages (1 dollar per day), he told me in July; he then brought his family to Morris' and they are there yet; they became sickly in Memphis but they are now in good health. I was in Sister Ellen's house 2 or 3 times last May and to judge by appearances they are doing well. She told me she could be at my house in a short time but she has not come. Sister Lydia was up here 2 or 3 months at Ambrose Rogers; she was with us a day or two. Robert Rogers was here all night a short time since but has not paid your money yet. He had the jaundice bad when here. Ann Elmore was here a short time ago; she looks well and almost as young as she did 15 years ago; she has become fleshy.

"Eliza Rogers is married to a Sadler in Memphis and moved to Vicksburg. Margaret Maxwell and her children was here 2 or 3 days. She received the dripshawl you left here for Mary and said she should wear it. Mrs. Sim Bailey has not given Eliza that song ballad she promised to you, and told Eliza a few days ago she would certainly send it to you.

"There has been a great stir here on the subject of religion. There was a protracted meeting at Philadelphia church in July and another recently that continued 17 days and nights with but one day intermission.
Between 30 and 40 professed religion. Columbus and Ptolemy was of that number.

"The health of the country has been remarkably good this year; there has been but few cases of sickness. Eliza was one of them; she was confined to bed for 10 days with the fever. We are all in tolerable health now. I overworked myself last spring and quit work in April and have went more idle than I ever did, and in better health now that I have been in many years.

"I would be glad to hear from you before I move. If you want to write immediately I could get a letter before I start. I will let you know where I stop. If you do write let me know as much as you can about Hood and John, and give a particular account of our friends.

"I gave paper money, Planters Bank, Tennessee; he will pay his stage bill in Ripley and give you some other money that is good.

"Affectionately

"J. H. Maxwell."

In the above letter, Jeremiah Harrison Maxwell mentioned only three of his children, and there are no available records of any others. These three children were:

JAMES JARVIS MAXWELL AND HIS FAMILY

JAMES JARVIS MAXWELL b. Feb. 2, 1802, d. March 5, 1870 in Bristol, Tennessee-Virginia; m. Feb. 8, 1823, Margaret (Peggy) Wallace b. --- d. --- daughter of Matthew Wallace and --- of Mecklenburg County, N. C. A brief record of this family, found in the papers of the late Eugenia Maxwell, of Charlotte, N. C., follows:
“Uncle Jim Maxwell married Peggy Wallace, old man Matthew Wallace’s oldest daughter. They had seven children, namely: Betsy, Bob, Susan, Luraine, Wallace, Josephine and Jarvis (Jr.).

“Two brothers by the name of Hamilton from East Tennessee came to this country (Charlotte, N. C.) with a drove of horses and hogs. They put up at Uncle Jim’s, and the youngest brother, Jake, fell in love with and married Betsy. General Young said that Jake was the handsomest man that ever walked the streets of Charlotte.

“Bob married Roxanna Rea, old man Green Rea’s daughter. She did not live long. His second wife was Mary Skeem of Georgia. Sue preferred a life of single blessedness to that of married happiness. Luraine had beautiful black curly hair but her father would never let her curl it as he thought it would take too much time. Often when he would go away she would curl it but always took to have it combed straight before he returned. When 17 years old, she went to Tennessee to visit Betsy; while there she took the diphtheria and died. The evening the news came that she was dead there was company at Uncle Jim’s. Ina was there, and Aunt Ellen Rogers (Teresa’s mother) and several others whose names escape my memory. The Negroes were busy preparing supper, when Jarvis, who was then a mere lad, had come from Charlotte and stepped to the door and said: ‘Luraine is dead.’ The ones that had been so gay but a minute before were now plunged into the deepest grief, and the supper that had been prepared with such care, was scarcely touched. She was buried in Tennessee and the home folks never saw her again.

“Wallace was the best of the boys and kept bachelor’s hall where Rufus Irwin lives. He was subject to severe attacks of cramp colic, and as these were liable to come on any time, he always carried a bottle of whiskey when he was away from home. So one morning or night when his horse came home with the bridle and saddle on, the servants became anxious and went over and told Uncle Jim. A large crowd went to search for him and found him dead. It was supposed that he took a violent spell of colic and got off his horse to lay down and then died. The bottle of whiskey had hardly been touched.

“Bob Hamilton, the eldest brother, fell in love with Josephine, but Uncle Jim made him wait eight years for her. After Jarvis went to Tennessee he married a Baptist preacher’s daughter, got converted, and became a preacher and is now in Texas.”

The above family record sketch was unsigned, but is in the handwriting of M. Georgia Maxwell, daughter of Francis Harvey Maxwell and Honoria O’Brien.
The James Jarvis Maxwell family moved to Bristol, Tennessee sometime prior to the outbreak of the War Between the States, where some of the descendants still live. More specific, though limited records of the children of James Jarvis Maxwell and Margaret Wallace, are:

a-1. Robert Hood Maxwell II b. 1824, d. __; m. 1, May 12, 1856, Mary Roxanna Rea b. --- d. ---, daughter of Green Rea and --- of Mecklenburg County, N. C. No record of children, if any.

The last three daughters above conducted a fancy boarding house at 415 East 7th Street, Charlotte, N. C., for a number of years.

The late Misses Eugenia and Annie Maxwell, of Charlotte, N. C., rendered fine cooperation to the author in the production of records of the Robert Maxwell-Elizabeth Hood families as well as some interesting traditions. Probably the oldest living descendants of Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison at the time the author interviewed them in 1949 and again in early 1952, both had vivid recollections of traditions of their Hood ancestors recited to them by their father, Francis Harvey Maxwell, and older brothers and sisters. They well remembered being told that their great-grandmother and great-great-grandmother Hood were both Harrisons of Virginia, and were well convinced that they were of the Presidents William Henry and Benjamin Harrison family. This tradition however, is apparently in error. The author has not been able to connect our Harrison ancestors with the Presidents Harrison families. The late J. Houston Harrison, with whom the author was well acquainted and visited on several occasions, had also been told of this tradition in his family. He too however, was unable to establish such a connection excepting possibly a most remote relationship. The presidents Harrison were from the James River family of Harrisons. They may have been related to Rev. Thomas Harrison, but no verification of such relationship has been produced. It is interesting to note that President Abraham Lincoln however, was a direct lineal descendant of Isaiah Harrison and Elizabeth Wright. Mrs. Willie Hood White of Charlotte, N. C., also aided greatly in developing these Maxwell records.

JOHN BLACK AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN BLACK b. August 25, 1779 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. November 13, 1813; m. August 25, 1802, LYDIA HOOD II, b. September 3, 1779 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. December 27, 1844, daughter of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison. John Black is believed to have served in the War of 1812-14, and it is believed that he was killed in action during that service. Official records show that a John Black served as a private in the 8th Company, Detached, 2nd Mecklenburg Regiment. Captain Robert Hood, a first cousin of Lydia Hood Black was commanding officer of that company. Other members of the company were Lieut. Jacob Shaver (Shaffer), another first cousin of Lydia Hood Black, and Lieut. (later Colonel) Solomon Reid, husband of Eleanor Adams Hood, a sister of Lydia Hood Black.

Following the death of her husband, Lydia Hood Black continued to live in Lancaster County, S. C., until 1830, where she appeared in the Federal census of the county of that year, as the head of a household. Her parents and brothers and sisters had moved away to Kentucky, Illinois and Arkansas, following the death of John Black. Her sons later moved to Tennessee, and finally settled mostly in Mississippi.

According to well founded Hood family tradition, Lydia Hood Black In. 2, about 1830, John B. (Jackie) Springs, son of Captain John Springs II and Sarah Shelby Alexander of Mecklenburg County, N. C. Old time family members have often spoken of "old Uncle Jackie Springs," who married John Harrison Hood’s sister. She was his second wife. There are no records that they had any children.

The Will of John Black, signed in 1808, was proved in 1813. One of the witnesses was his brother-in-law, Robert Hood I.

Children and known descendants of John Black and Lydia Hood were:

1. Eleanor Harrison Black b. August 7, 1803, d. Oct. 6, 1829, probably unmarried.
2. Son died in infancy.
3. Thomas Osborn Black II b. March 6, 1807, in Lancaster County, S. C., d. 1873 in Lafayette County, Mississippi. He was blind and never married, living alternately with his several brother’s families.
5. John Springs Black b. May 22, 1810 in Lancaster County, S. C., d. - - -; m. Sept. 1, 1835, Phoebe Socelia Hood, his first cousin, daughter of Tunis Hood III and Rachel Crawford. See further report.
6. Tunis Hood Black b. Feb. 9, 1812 in Lancaster County, S. C., d. July 18, 1872 in Lafayette County Mississippi; m.
1. Lucretia Todd; m. 2. Martha (Clements) Terry, a widow. See further report.

7. William Richard Black b. posthumously, June 10, 1804, in Lancaster County, S. C., seven months after his father’s death, d. 1893 in Lafayette County, Mississippi; m. in 1836, Catherine Self, b. about 1818 in Tennessee, d. 1875 in Lafayette County, Mississippi. See further report.

JOHN SPRINGS BLACK AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN SPRINGS BLACK b. May 22, 1810 in Lancaster County, S. C., d. --- probably in Marshall County, Mississippi; m. Sept. 1, 1835, probably in Hardeman County, Tennessee, Phoebe Socelia Hood b. Sept. 18, 1815, d. --- daughter of Tunis Hood III and Rachel Crawford. She was therefore his first cousin. They were living in Lafayette County, Mississippi in 1850, according to the census records of that county for that year, with the following children:

1. William J. Black b. 1838 in Tennessee d. --- No further record.
2. Mary Black b. 1838 in Tennessee d. --- No further record.
3. Eleanor Black b. 1840 in Lafayette County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record.
4. John Springs Black Jr. b. 1842 in Lafayette County, Mississippi, d. --- probably in Texas; m. Elmira --- b. 1837 in Tennessee. This family appears in the 1870 census for Marshall County, Mississippi, but are known to have moved to Marion County, Texas, near the town of Jefferson. This is confirmed by an old letter now in possession of Mrs. Gorman G. Powell Sr. of Chalybeate, Mississippi, written in 1886 by Samuel Joseph Hood to an aunt in Saulsbury, Tenn., in which he mentioned that his cousin John Black had bought land 25 miles south of Queen City, Texas, where Samuel Joseph Hood was then living. According to the 1870 Marshall County, Mississippi records, John S. and Elmira Black had the following children:

a-1. John S. Black III b. 1860 in Marshall County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record.
a-2. Rufus Black b. 1865 in Marshall County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record. a-3. William Black b. 1866 in Marshall County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record.
a-4. Ida Black b. 1868 in Marshall County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record.
Also living with this family in 1870 were John A., Louisa, Rosanna, and Virginia Dunn, children of Thomas P. Dunn and Elzira Dunson. Thomas P. Dunn was then deceased, and his widow, Elzira Dunson, had married John Nicholas Black, who was a first cousin of John S. Black Jr.

5. James Black b. 1844 in Lafayette County, Mississippi, d. ---, next son of John Springs Black and Phoebe Socelia Hood. No further record.

6. Samuel Black b. 1846 in Lafayette County, Mississippi, d. --- No further record.

Family data and records of the John Black - Lydia Hood family were produced primarily by Whipple T. Black of Georgetown, Kentucky and Mrs. Ida Pitts Cooper of Arlington, Tennessee, together with those of the John Middleton Berry - Nancy Elizabeth Black family of the same line gathered by William Francis Berry. Sincere appreciation is expressed to these family members for their splendid cooperation in gathering these records, which involved so much time and labor.

JOHN HARRISON HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN HARRISON HOOD, son of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison, was born about 1780 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., died in 1840 in Mecklenburg County, buried in Unity Presbyterian Church Cemetery, old section, Fort Mill, S. C. He was more commonly known as Harrison Hood, and was a substantial land owner and slaveholder. His land holdings at one time extended from a short distance south of the town of Pineville, Mecklenburg County, N. C., along the present State Highway No. 521, across the state line into the northeastern corner of Lancaster County, S. C., a distance of about seven miles, and totaling several thousand acres. Together with his father-in-law, Thomas Black, and his wife's two uncles, Major Richard Springs and Captain John Springs Jr., he acquired rich river and creek bottom lands in this area from the Catawba Tribe of Indians, first through leases, and later by purchase deed. His home plantation and residence was located about three miles south of Pineville, later known as the John Cunningham place, and presently owned and occupied by a McGinn family.

John Harrison Hood's name appears in the survey platt of Catawba Indian land records made by Hugh White, then supervisor of the Catawba Indian Reservation. The date of his lease according to these records was July 17, 1811, his main tract being located at the confluence of Big Sugaw Creek and the Catawba River. These platt records are presently in possession of Miss Zoe White, granddaughter of Hugh White, who lives near Fort Mill, S. C.

John Harrison Hood donated the land, furnished logs and timbers, slave labor, and contributed otherwise to the original establishment of Harrison Methodist Church in Lower Mecklenburg County, as an active and permanent congregation in 1815 although he was an active Presbyterian himself. The church was named in his honor, and in memory of his mother and grandmother, both of whom were Harrisons of Rockingham County, Virginia. For years it was commonly known as "Harrison's Church." The first congregation, conducting services under an arbor, had been originally organized in 1785 by James Jonathan and Daniel Mills. The first structure, built by John Harrison Hood, burned down in 1900, and was rebuilt on adjoining land given by the McGinn family.

John Harrison Hood is said to have seen military service in the War of 1812, but this has not been fully confirmed. His brother, Tunis III, did serve in that war as verified by official records, and it is most likely that his other brother, Jeremiah, also saw service. A saber, passed down from Harrison Hood, now in possession of the author, is said to have been carried by his father, Tunis Hood Jr., in his Revolutionary War service.

First wife of John Harrison Hood was Socelia E. RICHARD AUSTIN HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

This is pretty much a “Lost Tribe” family, records of descendants being presently almost totally lacking. RICHARD AUSTIN (DICK) HOOD, son of John Harrison Hood Sr. and Socelia E. Black, was born about 1815 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and died shortly prior to 1850. The 1840 Federal census for Mecklenburg County lists the members of his household as follows:

Males: 1 under 10, 1 over 30 (himself); females: 2 under 5, 2 under 15; 1 under 20, and 2 under 30. One of the latter was undoubtedly his wife, but her name is not known at this time. The one male under 10, two females under five, and quite likely the two females under 15 were probably his own children. The one female under 20, and one under 30, were almost certainly his two younger full sisters, Harriet Eliza (Betsy) and Mary B. Hood. His father, John Harrison Hood, was at that time married to and living with his second wife, Mazy B. Russell, and it is a well known family tradition that they were not very compatible, which is confirmed by the provisions of his Will, in which he cut her off with one silver dollar because she had been so stubborn and inconsiderate of him. It is also known by family tradition that Mazy Russell Hood resented any of her step-daughters living in her household, hence those who were still single lived alternately with their married brothers' families, and their sister Sophia Gassaway Hood Moore.

Richard Austin Hood is known to have had two sons, both of whom migrated to Louisiana following his death. Of his daughters by his first wife, one is said to have married Sam Cureton but records of their children and descendants if any, are not presently known. The names of the others, and the two sons is likewise not known.

Richard Austin Hood was probably a widower before his father's death in 1840, since he married in 1847, Mazy B. Russell Hood, his father's widow and his own step-mother. This strange and unusual marriage was regarded by family members as a spite marriage on her part, out of resentment against the provisions of her husband's Will, cutting her off with one dollar. A family estrangement resulted.

Richard Austin Hood and Mazy Russell Hood had one known daughter, Nancy Hood, born in 1848. That he died prior to 1850 is indicated by his Will, dated in 1849, and filed in the Mecklenburg County court records of Wills, in which he devised his entire estate to his widow Mazy B. Hood, with the provision that upon her death, the residue of the estate be divided equally between all of his children. The children however, were not specifically named in the Will.

Mazy B. Russell Hood is said to have married a third time to --- Hall. She was somewhat sacreligiously referred to by some old-time family members as having married "the father, the son, and the Holy Ghost."

According to the Federal census of 1860 for Mecklenburg County, N. C., Nancy Hood was living with the family of Robert Cunningham and wife, who was Sarah Ann P. Hood, daughter of John Harrison Hood Sr. and second wife, Mazy B. Russell. Sarah Ann P. Hood Cunningham was therefore both half sister and aunt of Nancy Hood, daughter of Richard Austin Hood and Mazy Russell Hood.

Nancy Hood is said to have married John Lanier of the Pineville section of Lower Mecklenburg County, N. C. Records of their children and descendants are not immediately available.

Richard Austin (Dick) Hood is buried in the garden of his plantation home in Mecklenburg County near Harrison church, which now is owned by - - - Ardrey of Pineville, N. C. There is another grave beside his, said to be that of Anne Eliza Hood, b. Feb. 14, 1848, d. April 11, 1848, daughter of Thomas Osborn Hood and first wife Sarah Jane Alexander Culp. This plantation was later owned by Samuel P. Blankenship, who married Dorcas (Kitty) Hood before passing into the ownership of Ardrey.

FAMILY OF TUNIS HOOD III

TUNIS HOOD III, son of Captain Tunis Hood, Jr., and Eleanor Harrison, was born November 5, 1784 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and died January 28, 1841 in what is now Benton County, Mississippi, which was formed from Tippah County. He married January 27, 1808 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Rachel A. Crofford (Crawford), who was born March 10, 1788 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., died some time after 1860 in Benton County, Mississippi. These dates are from his family Bible, now in possession of his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Lena H. Funk, of Memphis, Tennessee.

Rachel Crawford was a daughter of James Crawford and Rachel McGinty, who was a daughter of Alexander McGinty and first wife Lydia Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. All were residents of Mecklenburg County, N. C. James Crawford died June 19, 1835 according to an entry in the Tunis Hood III family Bible.

James Crawford was twice married, and it is evident from an examination of Mecklenburg County, N. C., court records, as well as family tradition, that both of his wives were granddaughters of Tunis Hood Sr. and first wife, Elizabeth Harrison. The Will of Frederick W. Shaver (Shaffer), dated November 13, 1803 and filed in the Mecklenburg County court records, names, in addition to his wife, Rachel, and seven children, "Son-in-law James Crawford." Rachel, wife of Frederick W. Shaver (Shaffer) was a daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. Thus, it is conclusively established from official records that James Crawford first married a daughter of Frederick W. Shaver (Shaffer) and Rachel Hood, and that she probably died without issue.

That James Crawford next married Rachel, daughter of Alexander McGinty and first wife, Lydia Hood, is indicated by the provisions of Alexander McGinty Will, dated April 2, 1802 and filed in the Mecklenburg County, N. C., court records, in which he devised his entire estate to his wife, Mary Ann McGinty, and his ten grandchildren. Among these grandchildren named, were James Crawford, Jr., Alexander Crawford and Rachel Crawford. That Lydia Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood Sr., and Elizabeth Harrison, was the first wife of Alexander McGinty is shown by Mecklenburg County early records of deeds executed by Alexander McGinty and "Lydia, his wife." From these records it is also determined that Tunis Hood III and wife Rachel Crawford were second cousins.

The Daughters of the American Revolution Roster of North Carolina Soldiers in the Revolutionary War includes the name of James Crawford, showing that he served from the Salisbury District as a member of Lieutenant James Montfort's Company, Sixth Battalion, North Carolina Militia. The Salisbury District of that period included Mecklenburg County.

As common to most descendants of Tunis Hood Sr. and Junior, Tunis Hood III used that spelling of the name rather than Tunas. Good records of this family and host of descendants have been developed from birth and marriage records entered in his family Bible, as well as County Court records of Mecklenburg County, N. C., Williamson County, Tennessee and Tippah County, Mississippi. That he moved from Mecklenburg County, N. C., first to Williamson County, Tennessee sometime between 1816 and 1820 is shown from deeds records involving his name in Mecklenburg County, N. C., April 20, 1816, and the appearance of his name in the Williamson County, Tennessee Federal census records for the year 1820. Mecklenburg County court records show that he received two state land grants for 100 acres on Crooked Creek, dated March 15, 1815, and March 23, 1815 respectively. Another Mecklenburg County deed, dated April 20, 1816, executed by William Shehorn, conveyed 196 acres of land on Four Mile Creek to Tunis Hood. As well as can be determined, Tunis Hood III was the only living Hood in the county of legal age bearing the Tunis name at that time.
Recorded in the Williamson County, Tennessee court records of July, 1822, was a power of attorney letter executed by Tunis Hood to Jeremiah Hood "of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina." Jeremiah Hood was his younger brother, and according to Federal census records was living in Mecklenburg County at that approximate time. Tunis Hood III also had a son named Jeremiah Adams Hood.

Tunis Hood III served his country as a soldier in the War of 1812-1814 with Great Britain as a member of the 7th Company, 2nd Regiment, Mecklenburg Troops. His first cousin, Captain Robert Hood II, was commanding officer of that company in the 2nd Regiment of Mecklenburg Militia. Another first cousin, Lieutenant Jacob Shaver (Shaffer) was also an officer in the 7th Company, 2nd Regiment. Solomon Reid, brother-in-law of Tunis Hood III also served in the 7th Company, 2nd Regiment, Mecklenburg Militia, as a second and first lieutenant respectively.

Sometime between 1830 and 1835, Tunis Hood III and members of his family began moving south to Tippah County, Mississippi, where they took up rich Chickasaw Indian lands, then being thrown open for settlement in the rich Mississippi delta. They lived mostly in that section of Tippah County from which Benton County was later formed. Some of his descendants still live in Benton County.

Children and known descendants of Tunis Hood III and Rachel Crawford were:

1. John Allison Hood b. February 7, 1809 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. August 17, 1837 in Tippah County, Mississippi; m. December 3, 1829, Rebecca Colar. Their children were:

Credit for production of records of Tunis Hood III-Rachel A. Crawford families is due largely to the efforts and zeal of Mrs. Gorman C. Powell, Sr., of Chalybeate, Mississippi, and Mrs. Lena Hudspeth Funk of Memphis, Tennessee, both of whom are their lineal descendants. Without their generous cooperation and labors, the excellent records of this Tunis Hood descendant family would not have been possible.

COLONEL SOLOMON REID AND HIS FAMILY

SOLOMON REID, b. Sept. 3, 1787 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. May 27, 1863; m. ELEANOR ADAMS HOOD b. Jan. 13, 1789 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. May 19, 1861, youngest daughter and child of Captain Tunis Hood, Jr., and Eleanor Harrison. Both are buried in Providence Presbyterian Church Cemetery near Charlotte, N. C., their graves marked with well inscribed marble monuments.

According to family records data furnished by his great-granddaughter, Miss Ellie Grier of Charlotte, N. C., Solomon Reid was a son of James Reid b. about 1760 or perhaps earlier, in County Down or Antrim, Ireland. He emigrated with his parents to America, who settled in Chester County, Pennsylvania. He served as an American private soldier in Captain Isaac Thomas’ Company of foot militia, First Battalion of Chester County, Pennsylvania, troops in the Revolutionary War. He was captured by the British at Philadelphia and confined to a prison of war camp in Quebec, Canada. (See Vol. V, p. 507, Pennsylvania Archives, Fifth series). His Revolutionary War service was established with the Daughters of the American Revolution by his descendant, Mrs. Bleeker Reid Bahnson of Winston-Salem, N. C., whose D.A.R. national number is 124402.

Following his repatriation from the prisoner of war camp about 1780, James Reid married Mrs. Elizabeth (Miller) Osborne, a widow, probably in Pennsylvania. After the close of the war they moved South to Mecklenburg County, N. C., and settled in the Providence Township community near Charlotte. Both are buried in Providence Presbyterian Church cemetery.

Known children of James Reid and Elizabeth (Miller) Osborne were, sons: Abraham, William and Solomon; daughters: Jane, Elizabeth, Mary, and Margaret. Elizabeth (Miller) Osborne Reid had one daughter, Mattie Osborne, by her first husband, who married Thomas Smith, probably in Pennsylvania.

Solomon Reid was a prominent Mecklenburg County merchant, planter, and active Presbyterian Church layman, serving for many years as an elder of Providence Presbyterian Church. He served in the War of 1812-1814 with Great Britain, as second and first lieutenant respectively in the Second Regiment, Mecklenburg Troops. His Company commander was Captain Robert Hood, his wife's cousin, son of Reuben Hood Sr. He is said to have also served later in the War with Mexico, during which service he reached the rank of colonel.

2. Margaret Reid b. October 29, 1818, d. November 6, 1840, m. Hugh McCombs Houston. See further report.

Sincere thanks are extended to Miss Ellie P. Grier of Charlotte, N. C., Mrs. Ruth Houston Fountain and Mrs. Luther H. Hodges, of Raleigh, N. C., for their invaluable aid in producing these records of the Solomon Reid - Eleanor Adams Hood families, of whom they are lineal descendants. Thanks to their fine work, this is one of the most complete records of Tunis Hood descendant families made available.
CHAPTER V

THE PIONEER HOUSTON FAMILY OF UNION COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA

A good ancestral background of the pioneer Houston families of Union County, North Carolina, closely allied with Tunis Hood families, was provided by the late David Franklin Houston, supplemented by some data found in the early Augusta County, Virginia court records, and other sources. David Franklin Houston, one of the most distinguished descendants of Tunis Hood, served as a member of President Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet, first as Secretary of Agriculture, 1913-1920, and Secretary of the Treasury, 1920-1921. He was Chairman of the Board, Federal Reserve Bank, and of the Federal Farm Loan Board, 1920-1921.

After retirement from his Cabinet post in 1921, he was elected a director and member of the Finance Committee, Prudential Insurance Company of America. At the time of his death in 1940, he was serving as President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York; President, Bell Telephone Securities Company, affiliate of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company (Bell System), and also a director of A. T. & T., and of the Farmers Loan and Trust Company of New York. His educational background included: A.B. degree, South Carolina College, 1887; A.M., Harvard University, 1892; L.L.D., Tulane, Yale, Harvard, Brown and Rutgers Universities, and Universities of Wisconsin, Missouri and North Carolina. He served as President of A. & M. College of Texas, 1905-1908, and Chancellor, Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, 1908-1915.

The family data provided by David Franklin Houston, was taken from a brief biographical sketch he furnished to the Institute of American Genealogy by request, in 1921, for publication in First Families in America, then in course of preparation by the Institute.

According to Mr. Houston, the first member of his Houston family to settle in Union County, North Carolina, was William Houston, who was born in Rockbridge (then a part of Augusta) County, Virginia in 1750, and died in Union County, North Carolina in 1824. William Houston was a Revolutionary War soldier, his war service having been established by his descendant, Mrs. Kathryn (Lee) Morrow of Monroe, North Carolina, to the satisfaction of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and she was subsequently accepted to membership in that patriotic society.

Most Union County, North Carolina, Houston family members are descendants of William Houston, Jr., 1782-1870, and John Houston, 1784-1877, who were sons of William Houston, Sr., the first Union County Houston settler. There was another John Houston who was an early settler of Lower Mecklenburg County, in the Waxhaw District, sections of which are now parts of Union County, N. C., and Lancaster County, South Carolina. This John Houston married December 21, 1797, Ann Howie, in Mecklenburg County. He left a Will dated May 28, 1812, date of probate not presently known. According to his descendants he was from the Rockbridge County, Virginia Houston family. He was probably a cousin, or possibly a nephew of William Houston, Sr.

In his biographical sketch filed with the Institute of American Genealogy, David Franklin Houston stated:

"The tradition in my family, and I believe it to be well founded, is that my great-great-grandfather William Houston's (Sr.) father was John Houston of Augusta County, Virginia, who founded old Providence Presbyterian Church in that county, (now Rockbridge). This John Houston was born in Scotland, in Renfrewshire. He then went to Ulster, in Northern Ireland, whence he emigrated to America. My reasons for believing that this tradition is well founded are these:

"My great-grandfather, William Houston, Jr., told us that he and General Sam Houston of Texas fame, were second cousins. Five of my grandparents lived in Augusta or Rockbridge Counties, Virginia, for a while. John Houston had a grandson William, who left Augusta County and about whom the published documents give no account. I have good reasons for thinking that he was my great-great-grandfather, William Houston, to whom I have referred. Either this is true or his great-grandfather was a brother of the original John Houston. I shall take steps to examine further the records in the near future."

In a subsequent letter dated November 3, 1921, David Franklin Houston wrote:

"My father was William Henry Houston, born in 1839. I will give you below the Houston line names in the reverse order:

"1. Father William Henry Houston (1839-1914) died in Union County, N. C. My mother Anne Stevens (1838-1911).

"2. Grandfather—John Patterson Houston (1814-1895) died in Union County, N. C. Grandmother—Ellen Reid (1820-1891).

"5. Great-great-grandfather John Houston Jr. of Rockbridge County, Va., b. 1726 in Northern Ireland. Great-great-grandmother not known. (She was Sarah Todd of Philadelphia. See Notable Southern Families by Armstrong.—D.O.H.)

"6. Great-great-great-grandfather John Houston b. 1689/90 in Northern Ireland, d. 1754 in Rockbridge County, Va. Great-great-great-grandmother not known. (She was Margaret Cunningham b. in Northern Ireland.—D.O.H.)

"7. Great-great-great-great-grandfather Samuel Houston b. in Northern Ireland, d. there prior to 1730. Great-great-great-great-grandmother not known. (She was Margaret McClung b. 1650 in Scotland, d. 1747 in Augusta (now Rockbridge) County, Va., in 1747, aged 97 years. See Notable Southern Families.—D.O.H.)

"My family names are: Houston, Stevens, Reid, Howard, Blythe, Hood, Harrison and Gray. All of my people except the Williams and possibly the Hoods, were Scotch. I have been told that we were related to the family of the two Presidents Harrison, but as to the truth of this, I have no verification. (Any such relationship was very distant. Our Harrisons were of a different line. D.O.H.)

"My maternal grandparents were Amos Stevens (1794-1854) and Jane Howard (1794-1854). Grandmother Jane Howard was a daughter of William Howard (1764-1843) and Elizabeth Blythe (1764-1845), daughter of Samuel Blythe, born in Scotland in 1727, and Elizabeth Patton. Grandfather Amos Stevens was a son of Squire Stevens (1775-1844) and Hannah Houston. Squire Stevens was a son of Emanuel Stevens, born in Virginia, whose David Franklin Houston 1866-1940. See pages 350-353.

"Paternal grandmother Ellen Reid was a daughter of Solomon Reid (1787-1863), son of James Reid who was born in Scotland, and Eleanor Adams Hood (1789-1861), daughter of Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison of Mecklenburg County, N. C., both born in Virginia. Tunis Hood Jr. died 1802 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., was a son of Tunis Hood Sr., died 1797 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. and Elizabeth Harrison, who came to Mecklenburg County from Virginia. Tunis Hood, Sr., was a son of John and Rachel Hood of Virginia. (She was Rachel Van Bunschoten of Kingston, N. Y. See further report. D.O.H.)

"In your questionnaire you ask for data about identified members of my wife's family. I refer to William Pope Du Val; the Du Vals originally settled in Maryland. They were French Huguenots. The Popes were descendants of Nathaniel Pope who settled in Virginia about 1651. One of the Washington ancestors married a Pope who was also a descendant of Nathaniel Pope. I have Mrs. Houston's family record somewhere but cannot put my hands on it just now."

J. Houston Harrison, author of Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, who was himself a descendant of John Houston of Rockbridge County, Virginia, wrote some records of that family on p. 408 of his book, as follows:

"John Houston, the immigrant, came to America in 1780 landing in Philadelphia from Northern Ireland, in company with his widowed mother, Margaret McClung Houston, his wife, nee Margaret Cunningham, and six children. They located first in Pennsylvania, whence they removed to old Augusta, now Rockbridge County, Virginia, and settled on the 'Borden Tract' near where old Providence Presbyterian Church was a little later built. He was born in Scotland in 1690, and died testate in Augusta County in 1754, buried in old Providence Church Cemetery. (Will at Staunton, Will Book 2, p. 40). Two sons were Robert Houston, born 1720, married Margaret Davidson, and John Houston, Jr. who married Sarah Todd.

"The Will of John Houston, the immigrant, was proved May 15, 1755, by his widow, Margaret. His Will specifically names only two sons, but other children are mentioned. (This John Houston, the immigrant, was in fact a son of Samuel Houston and Margaret McClung b. 1650 in Scotland d. 1747 in old Augusta County, Virginia, aged 97 years. Samuel Houston was a son of Hugh Houston of Wighamshire, Scotland and Sarah Houston of County Antrim, Ireland.—Abstracted from Notable Southern Families by Armstrong, with comments by Mrs. C. E. Bond, Decatur, Georgia.)"
Robert Houston above and Margaret Davidson had a son Samuel, who married Elizabeth Paxton. (The Paxtons emigrated to America with the Houstons). Samuel died in 1806 and his widow removed with her family to Blount County, Tennessee. Among their children was a son, Samuel Jr., born March 2, 1793 in Rockbridge County, Virginia, died July 26, 1863 in Texas, the later General Sam Houston, of Tennessee and Texas fame.

Of the sons of John Houston Jr. and Sarah Todd, John III, born about 1750, and Robert moved to Kentucky. Another son, Samuel, remained in Rockbridge County, Virginia, and became a Presbyterian clergyman. (See The Houston Family by Rev. Samuel Rutherford Houston, D.D., son of this Samuel Houston, published in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1882).

This family of Houstons was predominantly Presbyterian from its beginning in Augusta County. John Houston, the immigrant, was one of the founders of old Providence Church in Augusta County (now Rockbridge).

A family tradition advises that John Houston, the immigrant, was killed by the falling of a burning branch of a tree, which pierced his head.

After serving for a time as sheriff of Rockbridge County, Virginia, John Houston Jr., son of the immigrant John, removed to Logan County, Kentucky, where he died in 1797. His wife Sarah died previously in 1795 in Maryville, Blount County, Tennessee, where they apparently had lived prior to his removal to Logan County, Kentucky, and where his sons John (III) and Robert had previously moved. They also had a son, Samuel, who became a Presbyterian clergyman in Sullivan County, Tennessee, and a daughter, Esther, who married Captain Joel Wallace of Blount County, Tennessee. (Tennessee Cousins, pp. 165, 311, by Worth S. Ray.)

John Houston (Jr.) and Sarah Todd also had a son William, who was the great-great-grandfather of David Franklin Houston, and likewise, ancestor of the various other Houston families of Union County, North Carolina. (Notable Southern Families).

The Revolutionary War service record of William Houston Sr. is found on pp. 219 and 308, D. A. R. Roster of North Carolina Revolutionary War Soldiers.

It appears certain beyond reasonable doubt that the Houston, Grier and Reid descendants of Tunis Hood Sr. were also descendants of John Houston, the immigrant, of Rockbridge County, Virginia. The records produced by J. Houston Harrison and Notable Southern Families more or less verify the family tradition records recited by David Franklin Houston.
Another prominent member of the Union County, N. C., Houston families, was Hugh McCombs Houston, born April 13, 1817 in Monroe, N. C., died November 10, 1901. His wife, the former Margaret Reid, born October 29, 1818, died May 14, 1884, was another daughter of Colonel Solomon Reid and Eleanor Adams Hood.

Hugh McCombs Houston was a son of John Houston, b. Dec. 25, 1784, d. Nov. 13, 1877, and Elizabeth Potts b. Sept. 10, 1792, d. March 11, 1831. They were married March 29, 1810. Both are buried in Providence Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Lower Mecklenburg County, N. C. This John Houston was a son of William Houston Sr. and Margaret Williams, hence Hugh McCombs Houston and John Patterson Houston, son of William Houston Jr., were first cousins.

Hugh McCombs Houston was a prominent planter, merchant, and banker of Monroe, Union County, North Carolina. He served as Clerk of the Superior Court, and later County Treasurer of Union County, and also operated a mercantile business in partnership with his brother-in-law, Robert Grier. He was one of the organizers of the Wilmington, Charlotte and Rutherford Railway, of which he was a director. After that railroad property was sold to the Seaboard Air Line System he continued to serve as a director of that company. In 1874 he was elected president of the Bank of Monroe, which corporate office he held until his death in 1901. Prior to the War Between the States he also owned a large plantation and a number of Negro slaves in Georgia.

Another descendant of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison on the Houston line, Martha Elizabeth Blakeney, whose mother was Margaret Ann Houston, granddaughter of John Patterson Houston and Eleanor Reid, brought prominence to the family through the election of her husband, Luther Hartwell Hodges, as Governor of North Carolina in 1956. He had previously been elected lieutenant-governor in 1952, and succeeded to the governorship in November, 1954, following the death of Governor William B. Umstead, serving out as governor, two years of Governor Umstead's term. Many outstanding achievements in progressive legislation and administration, bettering the affairs of the State government were accomplished during his administration. A retired industrialist of Leaksville, North Carolina, he was a former vice-president of Marshall Field Company of Chicago. He was elected to a full four year term as governor in 1956.

In a history of another branch of the Houston family by Elisha Houston of Springfield, Ohio in collaboration with R. R. Sweet, genealogist of Washington, D. C., a research of the origin of the Houston family name is set forth in some detail. From ancient records explored by the authors, Sir Hugh de Padavin, most likely a Norman, came to Scotland from France in the year 1160 and received a large grant of land in the Barony of Kilpeter. Gradually a village grew on the estate and became known as "Hugh's Town." In time the name changed to Houston, whence the early residents of the town, ancestors of most Houston families of today, derived their fixed family name.
CHAPTER VI
GRIER ANCESTORS

Four known members of Grier families married into descendant families of Tunis Hood Sr. The ancestral background of those Grier families is therefore of interest to those lines of Tunis Hood descendants.

James Grier, son of John Grier and Mary McComb, married Anna Hood, daughter of Robert Hood (I) and Elizabeth McRaven; their son, Eli Clinton Grier, married Lydia Reid, his cousin, daughter of Colonel Solomon Reid and Eleanor Adams Hood. See further report. Robert Grier, brother of James Grier above, married Elizabeth Reid, another daughter of Colonel Solomon Reid and Eleanor Adams Hood.

Mary Jane Grier, daughter of Arthur Grier and first wife, Eliza Erwin, married Jeremiah Solomon Reid, son of Colonel Solomon Reid and Eleanor Adams Hood. Arthur Grier was a twin brother of Robert Grier above.

According to data furnished by Miss Ellie Pauline Grier, of Charlotte, N. C., granddaughter of Eli Clinton Grier and Lydia Reid, John Grier, father of James Grier, and the twins Robert and Arthur Grier, was a son of Edward Grier, who was born in Scotland. There is no record of his having moved to Mecklenburg County, N. C., or if he emigrated to America. Earliest American records of John Grier, also known as Greir and Greer, are found in the county court records of old Frederick County, and Augusta County, Virginia. Frederick County, Virginia court records show that John Grier witnessed the Will of Lucas Hood, uncle of Tunis Hood Sr., signed November 30, 1770, and recorded in Will Book No. 4, Frederick County court records of Wills.

Augusta County, Virginia county court records as compiled in Chalkley's Annals of Augusta County, contain several references to John Grier, also spelled Greer. In Vol. II, p. 509, covering Augusta County muster rolls of Revolutionary War soldiers, Captain John Wilson's Company, is included the name of John Greer.

In Vol. III of Chalkley's Annals, p. 555, is a reference to Augusta County court minutes, p. 328, July 18, 1778, "Private examination of Sarah, wife of Francis Hartgrove in connection with a deed of John David Greiner, dated September 9, 1773, before Charles Gordon, John Grier and John Brown, justices of Wilkes County, N. C.” Thus it is known that John Grier moved from Augusta County, Virginia to Wilkes County, N. C., some time prior to 1778. That he moved from Wilkes County to Mecklenburg County, N. C., prior to 1783, is shown by official Mecklenburg County records that he was a Mecklenburg County tax collector in that year.

The first Federal census of 1790 for Mecklenburg County, N. C., lists John Grier as a resident of District 18, with his wife and one son under 16 years of age. That would be his eldest son James. They had a total of fourteen other children, including a set of twins, and set of triplets. Two of the children died young and the triplets died at birth.

Early spellings of the Grier name appeared variously as Greear, Greecor, Greer, Greir, and finally Grier, the common spelling of today. It is said that the name in Scotland was originally McGregor, and later Gregor. The prefix “Mc” was in early times the Gaelic prefix for “son,” the patronymic system of names being more or less generally used then. Hence the name Edward Greer, or Gregor would appear as Edward McGregor, or “Edward, the son of Gregor.” (See chapter on “Origin of Family Surnames.”)

John Grier acquired much land in Mecklenburg County, mostly along what is now the Monroe road, along McAlpine Creek about two miles from the present town of Matthews in Eastern Mecklenburg County. The Grier families were close neighbors of the various Tunis Hood and Black descendant families, many of whom were more or less closely related by marriage.

John Grier had a gold mine on his Mecklenburg County lands known as the Grier mine, and later as the Ray mine by the company that worked it. This part of his land is still in the family, owned by John R. Renfrow and his wife, who was Kate Grier, great-great-granddaughter of John Grier.

The greatest activity in gold mining in this section was in the period 1830-1835. It being too far to send gold to the Philadelphia mint to be coined, a mint was established in Charlotte in 1836 on West Trade Street, location of the present United States Postoffice building. The original mint was ultimately moved to the Eastover section of Charlotte, and now houses the Mint Museum of Art. Besides the Grier mine, there were gold mines operated by the Springs, Capps, Reids, McCombs, Dunn and others.

John Grier also owned lands along Four Mile Creek in Mecklenburg County, and his son Robert, and grandson, Eli Clinton Grier, also owned substantial acreage along that creek down into the Providence section.

John Grier married February 28, 1789, Mary McCombs of the Mint Hill section of Eastern Mecklenburg County. According to family tradition he was born about 1740-1750, and died shortly after 1841, said to have been aged close to 100 years. He is believed to be buried in one of the old Philadelphia Presbyterian Church abandoned cemeteries, probably Rock Springs. According to old Sardis Presbyterian Church records, John Grier was an elder of that church between 1809 and 1826. He probably transferred to Philadelphia Presbyterian Church later because his wife was a member there.

James Grier, eldest son of John, is also believed to be buried in old Rock Springs abandoned cemetery.

Arthur Grier, another son of John, was elected and ordained an elder of Sardis Presbyterian Church in 1844, and served there for a number of years. His twin brother Robert, was an elder of Providence Presbyterian Church, (established in 1767) for many years, and is buried there. Arthur is buried in Sardis Presbyterian Church cemetery.

Children of John Grier and Mary McComb were:

1. James Grier b. 1790 d. - - -; m. Anna Hood. See further report under Family of Eli Clinton Grier.
2. Elizabeth Boyd Grier b. 1791, d. - - -; m. Duncan McCown.
3. Silas Grier b. - - - d. - - -; m. Sara Jones.
4. Margaret Grier b. - - - d. - - -; m. John Arnold.
5. Robert Grier, twin, b. Feb. 17, 1807, d. Feb. 5. 1889; m. 1, Dec. 22, 1811, Elizabeth Reid; m. 2, Mary Rea. See further report.
6. Arthur Grier, twin of Robert, b. Feb. 17, 1807, d. Feb. 22, 1890; m. 1, Eliza Erwin (1813-1843); m. 2, Martha Boyce (1823-1891). Mary Jane Grier, daughter of Arthur Grier and first wife, Eliza Erwin, m. Jeremiah Solomon Reid. See further report.
7. Dorcas Grier b. - - - d. - - -; m. - - - Purviance. No children.
8. Rachel Grier b. - - - d. - - -; m. - - Black. No children.
9. Stewart Grier b. - - - d. - - - Never married.
10. William, 11 Mary, 12 Jennie all died young. 13, 14 and 15, triplets, died at birth.

The twins, Robert and Arthur Grier above, were raised by their older sister, Elizabeth Boyd Grier McCown. Mrs. W. L.
Nicholson and Mrs. John Delaney of Charlotte, N. C., who died a few years ago, were great-granddaughters of Duncan McCown and Elizabeth Boyd Grier.

In addition to their son, Eli Clinton Grier, James Grier and Anna Hood also had three or four daughters, but their names and family records are not presently available.

A transcript of the Will of John Grier, written December 21, 1841, and filed in Will Book H, pp. 183-185, Mecklenburg County Records of Wills follows:

"In the name of God, Amen. Be it remembered that I, John Grier, of the State of North Carolina, County of Mecklenburg, knowing that it is appointed that all men shall die, and considering the uncertainty of my earthly existence, and being weak in body but of sound disposing mind, and in consequence of the death of my daughter Mary, do think it proper to revoke all other Wills heretofore made by me, and make the following disposition of such property as God has blessed me with in this life, viz:

"1. I recommend my soul to God and my body to be buried in the customary manner at the discretion of my friends.

"2. It is my will that my just debts and burying expenses be paid out of the first money that may come to the hands of my executors hereinafter named.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son, James, our Negro boys named Ben and Nat, and the girls Ciley and Emmy.

"I give and bequeath to my daughter, Elizabeth, one Negro woman, Nana, and her child, and a boy named Taipen and Sindey and Lead.

"I give and bequeath to my son, Silas, the price of the Negro boy, Charles, which he has already received, and our boys, Joe and Stephen, and the girl, Iantalio, and all the lands where I live consisting of several surveys to him or his heirs or assigns forever.

"I give and bequeath to my son Robert, the Negro boys George, Henry, Hosea and Washington.

"I give and bequeath to my son Arthur, the Negro boys Andy and Joshua, and Patsy and Lige.

"I give and bequeath to my daughter Margaret, the Negro woman Venie and her four children, and my Negro woman Harriett.

"It is my will that the girl Mercy be sold to the highest bidder among my legatees and the proceeds arising from the sale to be applied to getting gravestones for my wife and dead children, and this claim to be carried out by my sons James and Arthur at such time as they may think proper, and if the proceeds of the sale should not be sufficient for that purpose, I allow my several legatees to pay up in proper proportion for that purpose when called on.

"It is further my will that my sons may work and have an interest in the gold mine I have willed to my son Silas, but not to transfer that claim contrary to Silas's wish.

"It is my will that my Negro boy Harry be sold to the highest bidder among my children and the proceeds from his sale to go to pay my debts or be divided among all my children.

"It is my will that all the balance of my property, household and kitchen furniture, livestock of every kind, family utensils of every kind, that are not herein disposed of shall be sold at public auction and the proceeds after carrying my will into effect to be divided with my daughter Elizabeth and her four sons, after deducting my executors' commissions.

(The next paragraph explains that he wants any differences or disputes over his Will to be settled out of court.)

"Finally, I do appoint my sons James, Robert and Arthur my whole and sole executors to this my Last Will and Testament, in witness whereof, I, John Grier, the testator to this my Will written on sheets of paper, set my hand and affixed my seal the 21st of December, 1841.

CHAPTER VII
LINE OF REUBEN HOOD, SR.

REUBEN HOOD, SR., youngest son of Tunis Hood, Sr., and Elizabeth Harrison, was born October 4, 1762 in old Frederick County, Virginia (now Berkeley County, West Virginia), and died May 13, 1845 in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina. The record of his birth date and place of birth is found in his application for a Revolutionary War pension, filed in April, 1836, and presently lodged in the Archives of the Government, Pension Records Section, Washington, D. C. The date of his death is entered in the family Bible of his youngest son, James Hood, which is now in possession of his great-granddaughter, Miss Lucille Hood, 5320 Sardis Road, Charlotte 7, North Carolina. He lived therefore to the age of 83 years, a good age for that period.

In his pension application affidavit, Reuben Hood stated that he was first drafted for Revolutionary War service in August, 1780 in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, and that he served in Captain Oliver Wiley's Company of militia. He stated further that he drove a wagon and team which had been furnished to the American Cause by his father, Tunis Hood, Sr., and that his company marched to the Catawba River near Charlotte, thence to Rowan County, and from there to Guilford County, where his company joined General Greene's army. He drove the wagon and team furnished by his father for six weeks, which was to stand for his three months tour of duty.

The affidavit goes on to state that he was again drafted into service in January, 1781, serving three months in Captain Jonathan Potts' company of Major Joseph Sharpe's regiment in General Greene's army, and that he was rated as a wagon master. His company marched through Anson and Montgomery Counties to Wilmington, North Carolina, during which time he participated in some active combat service against the Tories. After serving this three months tour of duty, he was discharged March 1, 1781 in Wilmington. He stated that he remained in and around Wilmington until August, 1781, when he volunteered for additional service for the duration of the war. He was then assigned to a cavalry company commanded by Captain Joseph Graham, which company saw active combat service under Generals William Davidson and Griffith Rutherford. After the close of the war he was discharged at Wilmington. His discharge papers were signed by Captains Charles Polk and Joseph Graham. Reuben Hood stated in his petition for pension that prior to applying, he had been ill for several years and "did not get into town very often," but that he was now in good health again; that he had not previously given much thought to applying for a pension but had been advised by some of his friends that he was entitled to same under an Act of 1833. He submitted affidavits signed by "his neighbors" Ezekiel Black, Philemon Morris, Robert McCombs and James Irwin. Philemon Morris was his nephew by marriage, being the husband of Rachel Shaffer, whose mother was Rachel Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood, Sr.; James Irwin was his father-in-law, or may have been James Irwin, Jr., his brother-in-law. Each of these affiants certified that to their personal knowledge, Reuben Hood had performed the Revolutionary War service as claimed. His pension was subsequently granted, but he died before receiving any payments.

On March 23, 1853, James Hood, describing himself as "son of Reuben Hood, deceased" filed a claim with the Federal government for pension money due his father, but which had never been paid, stating that his father had served in the Revolutionary War as a wagon master; that the amount of pension granted his father was at the rate of $20.00 per annum. In his affidavit, James Hood stated that his father died May 13, 1845, leaving no widow, but the following surviving children:

John Hood, Jane Bane (Bain), Reuben Hood, Jr.
Deborah Glass, Margaret Lemmonds, and the affiant, James Hood.

Under date of April 6, 1853, Bruly Oates, Clerk of the Court of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, certified that Reuben Hood was entitled to a pension of $20.00 per annum for Revolutionary War service, and that same was unpaid. Subsequently James Hood was paid $130.00 in settlement for his claim for pension money due his father, Reuben Hood.

Reuben Hood Sr. lived on his father's home place, located near Hood's Crossroads in Morningstar Township near the village of Mint Hill in Eastern Mecklenburg County, which he had inherited from his father, Tunis Hood, Sr. The house, a large two story structure with a high roof, still stands, being presently owned by one of Reuben Hood's descendants.

Reuben Hood was a well-to-do planter and prominent citizen of his community. He wife was Jane Irwin, daughter of Captain James Irwin and Sarah Boyd. The record of her death, January 7, 1831, is entered in the old family Bible of James Hood. Reuben Hood's place of burial is not presently known, but his family were known to have been affiliated with old Philadelphia Presbyterian Church near Mint Hill.

An interesting family tradition, reflecting Reuben Hood’s individuality, independence and self-reliance, is handed down through the descendants of his son James. It seems that several years prior to his death, while living with the family of his son James, his dignity was injured by a remark of his daughter-in-law to the effect that a man of his years should consider himself fortunate to have a good home, and should therefore refrain from trying to boss the entire plantation. Old Reuben promptly had a small cottage built nearby on his own land, moved into it, and lived out his days in what he was pleased to call “a peaceful atmosphere.”

In the course of a visit from his grandson, Hugh Thompson Hood, of LaPorte, Indiana, only member of that branch of the family to make a return visit to Mecklenburg County, Reuben Hood related to his grandson that his Hood family ancestry was Danish and Dutch, and that his mother’s family name was Harrison. These are now well verified facts, confirmed by various public, church and family record sources.

The following were the eleven children of Reuben Hood, Sr. and Jane Irwin:

2. Robert Hood b. about 1786, d. February 18, 1844. See further report. Some limited good records.
6. Jane Hood b. about 1794, d. - - -; m. January 20, 1820, Samuel Bain. They lived in Mecklenburg County, N. C. Record only of one son, Rev. John W. Bain, a Presbyterian clergyman, who moved north to Altoona, Pennsylvania in 1861 because of his anti-slavery views. He died in Altoona. No records of children and other descendants.
7. Deborah Hood b. about 1796, d. - - -; m. - - - Glass. They moved to the Clinch River Valley section of East Tennessee about 1820. No further records presently available.
8. Mary Hood b. about 1798, d. February 21, 1852; m. 1, - - - Hart; m. 2, - - - Small. No records of children and descendants if any.

11. Margaret Hood b. about 1805 d. June 28, 1880; m. February 27, 1845, John Q. (Jack) Lemmond. He was murdered by Negro slaves shortly afterward. They had no children; she never remarried.

Captain James Irwin, Sr., d. April 25, 1845 according to an entry in the James Hood family Bible.

The fifteen day interval between the deaths of Jane Irwin Hood and her son Abner Hood, suggests that both probably died the victims of an epidemic.

The Will of Reuben Hood, Sr., signed April 25, 1845, less than one month prior to his death, is entered in Will Book I, Page 15, and lodged in the Wills record room of the Superior Court of Mecklenburg County, in Charlotte, N. C. The full text follows:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Reuben Hood, of the County of Mecklenburg and State of North Carolina, being old and frail in body, but of a sound and disposing mind and memory, considering the certainty of death and the uncertainty of the time thereof, do make and declare this my Last Will and Testament in manner and form following, viz:

"First, that my Executor shall provide for my body a decent burial, suitable to the wishes of my relatives and friends and pay all funeral expenses, together with my just debts howsoever and to whomever owing, out of money that may first come into his hands as a part or parcel of my estate.

"Secondly, as to Six of my children, viz: John, Robert, Elizabeth Bain, Sarah B. Nesbit, Jane Bain and Deborah Glass, I consider. that I have already advanced to them a full share, 'hras much as I allow them out of my estate.

"Third, I will and bequeath to my son Reuben and my son James, the plantation that I live on, to be divided equally between them.

"Fourth, I will and bequeath to my daughter Mary Hart, a Negro girl name Celia, about Fourteen years of age.

"I will and bequeath to my daughter Margaret Lemmonds a Negro boy named Eli, about sixteen years of age; said boy to be under the whole and sole control of my son James Hood, and the benefits arising from said Negro to be applied to the use of my said Daughter in the manner that my son James thinks best, and if my said Daughter should die leaving behind her no heirs of her own body, then and in that case said Negro boy Eli is to go to my Daughter Mary Hart.

"Sixth, it is my will also that my Daughters Mary Hart and Margaret Lemmonds pay to my son James Hood a note (each equal parts) that he holds on me for about One Hundred and Eighty Dollars and considering the two Negroes that I will to them more valuable than I can afford to give to them out of my estate.

"Seventh, I also will and bequeath over and above the bequeathments above mentioned, to my Daughters Mary Hart and Margaret Lemmonds, all the balance of my property of whatsoever kind over what will pay my just debts, and lastly, I do hereby constitute and appoint Wm. Maxwell my true and lawful Executor to all intents and purposes to execute this my Last Will and Testament according to the intents and meaning of the same, and do hereby declare and make void all other Wills and Testaments by me heretofore made.

"In Testimony Whereof, I the said Reuben Hood doth hereunto Set my hand and seal, this 23rd day of April, 1845.

"Signed, Sealed, Published and Declared to be his Last Will and Testament in the presence of:

JOHN HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN HOOD b. Sept. 5, 1784 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. June 19, 1856 in LaPorte County, Ind., was the eldest son of Reuben Hood, Sr., and Jane Irwin. He is buried in the old Presbyterian Church Cemetery in the city of LaPorte, Indiana, with a well marked monument. His first wife was Sarah Matthews, born about 1788 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., daughter of William Matthews, Esq., prominent lay member and elder of Providence Presbyterian Church in lower Mecklenburg County, N. C. She was thrown from a horse, and died from injuries resulting, in 1825 near Madison, Jefferson County, Indiana. She is buried in Madison.

John Hood was one of the leaders of a migration of settlers who left Mecklenburg County, N. C., late in 1816 bound for the Ohio River section of Kentucky and southern Indiana where rich river bottom Indian lands were being thrown open for settlement. The party traveled by wagon train caravan north to northwestward by the old Cumberland Trail after crossing the Great Smoky mountains of the Blue Ridge range from western North Carolina into eastern Tennessee. A relatively few dropped out and settled in East Tennessee and mid-Kentucky. Reaching the Ohio River, the others boarded flat boats and moved down the Ohio River to Jefferson County, Indiana, where most of the party took up land grants and established their homes. Here they also established a Carmel Congregation of the Dissenter Associated Presbyterian Synod of Kentucky, which was one of the anti-Burgher Society of Scotland, and the Associated Presbyterian Synod of North America.
Among the members of this Mecklenburg County migratory caravan, most of whom were related more or less by blood or marriage, were the following and their families:

James Matthews, John Matthews, Mary Matthews, widow; John Irwin, Thomas B. Irwin, Robert Irwin, John Bain, Reuben Bain, Robert Bain, Thomas McKay, Benjamin Boyd and John Hood, all members of prominent Mecklenburg County families of that period. Samuel Bain, son of Robert Bain, married Jane Hood, a daughter of Reuben Hood, Sr. and Jane Irwin, and sister therefore of John Hood. They were among the migrants who continued on to Indiana. Hugh Bain, whose wife was Elizabeth Hood, and Robert Glass, whose wife was Deborah Hood, both daughters of Reuben Hood, Sr. and Jane Irwin, were among the caravan members who dropped out enroute and settled in and around McMinn County, Tennessee. It is believed that one or more other Hood “Lost Tribe” members in the caravan also settled in East Tennessee or Kentucky, but records of their settlements and families are not presently available.

Descendants of those “Lost Tribes” of Mecklenburg County, N. C., today make up a substantial segment of the population of Jefferson County, Indiana, and the city of Madison.

About 1847, John Hood, who had by that time married his second wife, who was a Miller, moved with members of his family from the extreme southern section of Indiana to the extreme northern part of the state, and settled in the LaPorte area. Thomas McKay and wife, Mary Francis, were among several other former Mecklenburgers who moved up to LaPorte County, Indiana and settled. His daughter, Esther McKay, married Hugh Thompson Hood, son of John Hood and Sarah Matthews.

Children and known descendants of John Hood and first wife, Sarah Matthews, were:

1. William Matthews Hood b. Sept. 6, 1806 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. d. 1874 in Monmouth, Illinois; m. Sarah Boyd Bain b. June 12, 1808 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. - - - in Monmouth, Illinois, his second cousin, daughter of Robert Bain and Mary Irwin, who was a sister of Jane Irwin, wife of Reuben Hood, Sr. This family made their home in Monmouth, Illinois, where both are buried. Their children and known descendants were:

   a-1. John Allison Hood b. June 16, 1830 in Jefferson County, Indiana, d. - - - m. April 3, 1855, Mary Crosier b. - - - d. - - -. They lived in Monmouth, Illinois and had these children and known descendants were:

C., where his son Hugh was engineer on a power dam construction project, in company with his daughter Laura, and became acquainted with many of his relatives. They lived in LaPorte, Indiana, and had these four children:
unmarried; buried in LaPorte, Indiana. She lost the sight of both eyes in her later life.

b-3. Laura Sarah Hood b. Sept. 1, 1877; unmarried, she lives six miles east of LaPorte with a cousin. A post graduate of the University of Chicago, she has devoted much of her life to special research and genealogical service for the library of that university, including much time spent in Washington, D. C., doing research in the Library of Congress and the National Archives. To her must go much of the credit for the production of this genealogy. Still hale and hearty, her remarkable memory of facts told to her about her family ancestry, particularly by her great-uncle, Hugh Thompson Hood, lifted a veil of doubt concerning the national origin of our earliest American Hood ancestors. A truly remarkable woman.

b-4. Hugh Kendall Hood b. Jan. 28, 1881 d. 1956; m. Susan Abigail Dodd, who survives him. He was a civil engineer, specializing in the construction and installation of power dams and generating equipment, including much work for the Duke Power Company of North and South Carolina. 6. John M. Hood b. --- d. ---. Married, but name of wife unknown. No records of children.

7. Martha Hood b. --- d. ---. No marriage or family record.

Credit for production of the records of this John Hood family must be given to Misses Laura Hood and Gretchen Tyler of LaPorte, Indiana. One of the older living descendants of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison, Laura Hood retains keen recollection of the national origin of early Hood family ancestors told to her by her great-uncle, Hugh Thompson Hood, a grandson of Reuben Hood Sr. This clue has aided materially in identifying the cradle of origin of our earliest Hood ancestors.

FAMILY OF ROBERT HOOD II SON OF REUBEN HOOD, SR.

Both Tunis Hood, Jr. and Reuben Hood, Sr. had sons named Robert, and since definite records of the families of both are rather limited, it is difficult to learn from official Mecklenburg County court records, and Federal Census records very much about their families and descendants. Both appeared on the Federal census lists for the years 1820 and 1830, Mecklenburg County, N. C., but not thereafter. Likewise, the names of both appeared frequently in the Mecklenburg County court deeds records up until 1835, after which such records of both disappeared from the Mecklenburg County court archives. It seems certain therefore that both must have moved away from the county about 1835, and this also is the recollection of several very old living family members as having been told to them. Just where either of them moved to is still an unsolved mystery.

From reliable family sources among descendants of Reuben Hood, Sr., some reliable records of several descendant families each of these two Robert Hoods have been obtained.

ROBERT HOOD II, the son of Reuben Hood, Sr., is named in his father's Will as his second son, hence he must have been born about 1786. The date of his death, February 18, 1844, is entered in the family Bible records of his youngest brother, James Hood. His wife was Sarah B. (Sallie) - - -. Fairly complete records of the family of his son Reuben Harrison Hood are available, and some limited records of another son, Andrew Jackson Hood and his family.

Mecklenburg County records of the soldiers of the War of 1812, show that Robert Hood served as a captain of Mecklenburg troops in that conflict. In some instances his name is misspelled as Wood. Official records found in the War Department at Washington, D. C., show that Captain Robert Hood served in the War of 1812 as the commanding officer of the 8th Company, Detached, 2nd Regiment, Mecklenburg Troops, North Carolina Militia. The following voucher records of payments to Robert Hood, Captain, 8th Company, 2nd Regiment, North Carolina Militia was furnished by the Adjutant General's office, War Department, Washington, D. C.:
Feb. 1, 1814 to August 25, 1814—

Service and Rations..............................................$254.19
Personal servant ................................................. 52.20
Travel mileage for return to his home.................. 18.06
                                                      $324.45

It was stated that his service was under General Andrew Jackson in his campaign against the Creek Nation of Indians.
That campaign was in Alabama. It is not definitely known at this time whether Captain Robert Hood and his company participated under General Jackson in the battle of New Orleans, but the dates of the above voucher payments would indicate that he did not.

That Robert Hood II sold his home place in Mecklenburg County, N. C., to Reuben Hood is shown by the record of a deed filed in the Mecklenburg County Superior Court records, dated March 12, 1835 conveying 134 acres of land on Goose Creek to Reuben Hood. This was probably his brother, Reuben Hood Jr. It seems evident that this sale was preliminary to Robert Hood’s removal from Mecklenburg as there are no records indicating that he lived in the county after 1835. That he may have moved to Hardeman County, Tennessee, is a possibility. There are records of a Robert Hood there around that period that could fit him.

Only partial records of the descendants of Robert Hood II are available. A son, Reuben Harrison Hood, born September 3, 1809 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., died October 11, 1887 in Lafayette County, Mississippi, is conclusively identified, and fairly complete records of his family obtained. According to his grandson, the late John William Hood of Slaton, Texas, his father, James Melanthem Hood, son of Reuben Harrison Hood, related to him that his father, Reuben Harrison Hood left Mecklenburg County, N. C., in 1835 with his wife and two small children, and two brothers, Tunis and William D. Hood. They traveled to Charleston, S. C., where they boarded a boat for New Orleans. There they separated, Tunis going to Texas, and William D. and Reuben H. continuing up the Mississippi River by boat to Memphis, Tennessee, where they too separated. William D. moved on north and settled in Southeastern Missouri. Reuben
H. remained in West Tennessee until about 1847 when he moved to Lafayette County, Mississippi and homesteaded Delta land, then being thrown open to settlement.

Reuben H. Hood told of a visit from his nephew Bill Hood, son of William D. Hood of Southeast Missouri, in 1864 shortly before the close of the War Between the States. John W. Hood did not recall hearing of any other contacts with the William D.
Hood family in Missouri, or Tunis Hood in Texas. He recalled his father mentioning an uncle, Andrew Hood, who remained in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and several aunts, whose names he could not recall. The Federal Census for Mecklenburg County, N. C., for the year 1860, list an Andrew J. Hood, born about 1814, and wife Jane. Their children were named as follows:

2. Caroline Hood b. about 1845 in North Carolina.
3. Cynthia Hood b. about 1846 in North Carolina.
4. Isabella Hood b. about 1848 in North Carolina.
5. Elizabeth Hood b. about 1850 in North Carolina.
7. Mary Hood b. about 1854 in North Carolina.

Mecklenburg County Civil War records show that William L. Hood served in the Confederate army, Co. K, 13th N. C. Regiment, and was wounded in action.

It would appear reasonably certain that this Andrew Hood was a son of Robert Hood II. No other reliable records of this Robert Hood family are available. Andrew J. Hood and family must have also moved away from the county since no additional records of them in the county are found.

REUBEN HARRISON HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

REUBEN HARRISON HOOD b. Sept. 3, 1809 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. Oct. 11, 1887 in Lafayette County, Mississippi. These records were taken from his family Bible in possession of the late John W. Hood of Slaton, Texas; m. April 10, 1830 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Margaret Hennegan b. June 3, 1809 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. July 25, 1886 in Lafayette County, Mississippi. The record of their marriage is found in the marriage bond register at the Superior Court of Mecklenburg County. His uncle, James Hood, youngest brother of his father Robert Hood II, signed as security on their marriage bond. In Mecklenburg County he was more commonly known as Harrison Hood, but this should not be confused with his cousin, John Harrison Hood, who was also usually called Harrison Hood.

Children and known descendants of Reuben Harrison Hood and Margaret Hennegan were:

1. William Ross Hood b. April 15, 1832 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. - - m. Oct. 28, 1866 in Lafayette County, Miss., Martha Dickson b. - - d. - - . They later moved to Graybill, Collins County, Texas, and from there sometime later to another location in Texas, just where is not definitely known at this time. Their known children were:
a-1. Fannie E. Hood b. 1870; m. John Kelly of Pilot Grove, Grayson County, Texas. No further record.
a-2. Ira Hood b. 1872, no further record.
a-3. William T. Hood b. 1875, no further record.
a-4. Joanna Hood b. 1878, no further record.
a-5. DeWitt Hood b. 1880, no further record.
a-6. Claude Hood b. 1883, no further record.

2. Harriet Jane Hood b. Sept. 9, 1834 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. May 16, 1835, probably in Mecklenburg County, N. C.

4. Robert Theodore Hood b. Dec. 28, 1838 in Tennessee, d. Sept. 3, 1893 in Water Valley, Mississippi; m. Rosie Seaton b. Feb. 21, 1842 d. Jan. 12, 1929. They lived in Water Valley, Miss., where he was a planter. Their children and known descendants remained in Yalabusha County, Mississippi, and were as follows:
a-1. Margaret L. Hood, twin, b. Aug. 18, 1875, d. Aug. 23, 1894, unmarried.
a-2. Samuel H. Hood, twin of Margaret L., b. Aug. 18, 1875, d. Jan. 1, 1929; m. Josie Sharpe b. Oct. 23, 1880, still alive in Water Valley, Miss., at last report. They lived in Water Valley and had these children and known descendants:
   b-1. Tula Pearl Hood b. June 9, 1904 in Water Valley, Miss.; m. John F. Grumby b. June 27, 1903. They live in Water Valley and have these children:
      c-1. Hollis Eugene Grumby, twin, b. April 22, 1924, no marriage or family record.
      c-2. Wallace Franklin Grumby, twin of Hollis, b. April 22, 1924; m. Inez Haynes. Record of one daughter:
      c-3. Mildred B. Grumby b. Aug. 9, 1925; m. Robert A. Baker. Record of one son:
      c-4. Janie Ruth Grumby b. Sept. 29, 1928; m. Guy Hillhouse. They live in Water Valley, Miss. Record of two daughters:

b-2. Claudia Merle Hood b. Aug. 23, 1907; unmarried, she lives in Water Valley, Miss., with her mother.

b-3. Robert Webb Hood b. Feb. 21, 1914 in Water Valley, Miss.; m. LaVerne Hughes b. Nov. 12, 1917. They live in Water Valley, Miss. Record of two children:

5. Eliza E. J. Hood b. Dec. 28, 1840 in Tennessee, d. --- m. in Water Valley, Miss., Jesse Powell. They moved to northwestern Arkansas, exact location unknown. They had these known children: a-1. John C. Powell b. - - - m. Hannah Barton. No further record.
   a-2. Virgil Powell b. - - - m. Pauley Powell. No further record.
   a-3. Augusta Powell b. - - - No further record.
   a-4. William Hood Powell b. - - - No further record.
   a-5. James N. Powell b. - - - No further record.
   a-6. Robert A. Powell b. - - - No further record.
   a-7. Margaret Powell b. - - - m. Emmet Parsons. No further record.

7. James Melenthem Hood b. Nov. 5, 1844 in Tennessee, d. June 30, 1930 in Comanche County, Texas; m. Nancy Samantha Armstrong b. Feb. 11, 1847, d. May 7, 1937. They lived in Comanche County, Texas, and had these children and known descendants:
   a-1. Agnes E. Hood b. Nov. 5, 1869 in Water Valley, Miss., d. 1938 in Comanche County, Texas; m. J. C. Morrow b. 1860 in Water Valley, Miss., d. 1950 in Brownwood, Texas. They lived in Comanche County, Texas. Children and known descendants:

REUBEN HOOD JR. AND HIS FAMILY

REUBEN HOOD, JR., b. 1793 in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, d. July 20, 1856 in the same county. He was a planter and lived on a plantation inherited from his father in Morningstar Township, Eastern Mecklenburg County, N. C. He served as a soldier in the War of 1812-1815 with Great Britain, in the 2nd Regiment, Mecklenburg Troops, under the command of his cousin, Captain Robert Hood. It is more likely however, that Captain Robert Hood was his brother, since it is not entirely certain at this time whether it was Robert Hood, son of Tunis Hood Jr., or Robert Hood, son of Reuben Hood Sr., who was the Captain Robert Hood commanding Mecklenburg Troops of the Second Regiment in that war.

Reuben Hood Jr. was twice married. His first wife, who died about 1820, was Cynthia Young, daughter of James Young of Mecklenburg County. This is verified by the Will of James Young, dated January 10, 1833 and filed in the Wills records of the Mecklenburg County Superior Court, in which he named as legatees Alexander Irwin Hood, James Calvin Hood, and John Hood, "sons and grandson respectively of my extant daughter Cynthia, who married Reuben Hood Jr."

Reuben Hood married December 15, 1825, as his second wife, Mary Neal, his second cousin, daughter of Jesse Neal and Mary Hood, who was a daughter of Tunis Hood Sr.

Children of Reuben Hood Jr. and first wife, Cynthia Young, were:

1. Alexander Irwin Hood b. 1816 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. 1887 in Smith County, Texas. See further report; very good records.

2. James Calvin Hood b. 1818 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. - - - See further report; good, though incomplete records.

Children of Reuben Hood Jr. and second wife, Mary Neal:

3. Andrew Jackson Hood b. July 27, 1826 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. - - - in Mecklenburg County. See further report; good records.
4. George Washington Hood b. 1830, d. 1877 in Mecklenburg County, unmarried.

5. Robert Irwin Hood b. 1832 in Mecklenburg County, d. 1893, unmarried. He was mentally retarded.

6. Tunis Harrison Hood b. 1834, d. 1863 while serving as a Confederate soldier in the War Between the States. See further report; fairly complete records.

7. William Columbus Hood b. 1836 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., died in salt mine in 1864, while serving as a Confederate soldier in the War Between the States. Insofar as known he never married.

8. Abner Hood II b. 1838, died after 1880 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. He was living with his mother in that year. He never married.

WILL OF REUBEN HOOD, JR.

Recorded in Will Book J, p. 30, in the Wills records of the Superior Court of Mecklenburg County, Charlotte, North Carolina.

In the name of God, Amen. I, Reuben Hood of the County of Mecklenburg and State of North Carolina, being in perfect mind and mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men to die, make and ordain this my Last Will & Testament, that is to say principally and first of all I give and recommend my Soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it — And I recommend my body to the Earth to be buried in decent Christian burial at the discretion of my family, nothing doubting but at the General resurrection I receive the same again, and touching such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me in this life, I give devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form:

I give and bequeath my lands as follows — this Tract that I now live on with Albert Wallis with it I give to George W., T. Harrison, Abner, Wm. Columbus my four sons with the incumbrance of my Wife Mary & Daughter Mary. My wife to have her support of it as long as she lives here on the Land, and my Daughter Mary to live with them and have her support of the Land, and the four boys to pay her two Dollars a Year, Yearly, the land not to be divided as long as my Wife Polly lives and if any of them don’t stay and work it they lose their claim until the death of my wife.

I give my Harkey lands to my three oldest sons, Alex. I., Calvin and Andrew and leave it in the care of Alex. I. Hood to manage and sell or dispose of as he thinks best and divide the price equally between them each other after keeping his part out.

I give to my son Robert I. Hood fifty five Dollars to be paid in two years after my death with the interest with the two years with it. My Household furniture running just as it is the use of the family now living on the land and at my Wife’s death it to be equally divided between my Daughter Mary and two Sons Abner and Columbus. I allow A. I. Hood to sell my Gray horse and give the money to my Daughter Mary, to his discretion to sell to the best advantage, my Bay Horse goes to my Wife Polly. Wm. Columbus gets the young colts. Abner gets the two year filly. Cattle, Hogs Sheep remain to the support of the family. My Cross Cut Saw goes to my Son Abner.

I herewith leave my Son A. I. Hood to Execute this Will. My Son A. I. Hood I give Five Dollars considering him to have got his portion, if there is any more money left on hand the Executor to divide it between Mary and Abner.

My Right and title to Eli the Negro boy that I am in possession of I leave to Alex. I. Hood solely as his own, the Waggon to Columbus.

I ratify and confirm this my Last Will and Testament in Witness whereof I have set to my hand and seal this July the 11th 1851.

/S/ Reuben Hood (Seal)

Signed in the presence of these names:

FAMILY OF JAMES HOOD AND ELIZABETH PEOPLES

JAMES HOOD, youngest son of Reuben Hood Sr. and Jane Irwin, was born Oct. 8, 1803, died March 6, 1882. He married in 1835, Elizabeth Peoples, also born in 1803, died July 11, 1882, surviving her husband by only five months. He inherited his father's home place near Hood's Cross Roads in Morningstar Township in Eastern Mecklenburg County, N. C., a sizeable plantation. He was a successful planter and prominent Presbyterian Church layman. He and members of his family were active members of Sardis Presbyterian Church near Matthews, N. C., of which he was a ruling elder. He and his wife are buried in the cemetery of that church, old section.

He lost a leg in an accident in 1852 and walked with an artificial limb for the remainder of his life. A rugged individual, his handicap did not however, bar the pursuit of his favorite sport, that of deer hunting, nor interfere with his successful farming operations. He was rated as one of the best hunters of the community, and kept his family larder, as well as those of the families of his sons Abner and John, away from their homes fighting in the Confederate Army during the War Between the States, well stocked with meat and provisions. Abner Hood made the supreme sacrifice in that tragic struggle.

The four children of James Hood and Elizabeth Peoples were:

2. Abner Boyd Hood II b. Dec. 15, 1838, killed in action as a Confederate sergeant, June 27, 1862 near Richmond, Virginia; m. Caroline Laura Hunter. See further report.

4. James Watt Hood b. Aug. 3, 1848, d. Feb. 9, 1918; m. 1, Laura Neal; m. 2, Mary Elizabeth Biggers. See further report.

He served as commanding officer of the 3784th Army Engineers, and saw distinguished combat service in Korea during that action. He was a son of Samuel Lemmond and Cora Klutts; Samuel Lemmond was a son of William Evan Lemmond and Della Secrest; William Evan Lemmond was a son of Marquis deLafayette Lemmond and Adeline Rea; Marquis deLafayette Lemmond was a son of William Lemmond, Jr. b. 1791, and Mary Stuart, and William Lemmond, Jr. was a son of William Lemmond, Sr. b. 1740, and Mary McCree. Pars H. Lemmond and Guthrie Ellen Hood live in Charlotte, N. C., and have one daughter:

   a-1. Guthrie Hood Lemmond b. April 5, 1939; unmarried. She is an alumnus of Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia.

Every descendant of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison, and especially those of the Reuben Hood lines, owe a debt of gratitude to Miss Lucille Hood and Mrs. Willie Hood White, of Charlotte, N. C., descendants respectively, for the yeoman service performed by them in gathering vital records and other material, which has contributed so greatly to the completion of this work.
CHAPTER VIII

THE PIONEER ALEXANDER FAMILIES OF MECKLENBURG COUNTY, N. C.

Because so many descendant families of Tunis Hood are also descendants of, or allied with the several pioneer early Alexander families of Mecklenburg County, N. C., a brief ancestral background sketch of those families is of interest.

The Alexander name is legion in Mecklenburg County, where members of some Colonial Alexander families were among the early settlers of the county, having moved there from Cecil County, Maryland, about 1760 or earlier. This was just prior to the formation of Mecklenburg County, which was formed from Anson County, originally a part of Bladen County, which at one time included all of Western North Carolina and the present state of Tennessee.

The late Worth S. Ray of Austin, Texas, author of Lost Tribes of North Carolina, Tennessee Cousins, and The Mecklenburg Signers and their Neighbors, included a review of his research of the Alexander families in the latter publication. Other records are found in the histories of Mecklenburg County published by the late D. A. Tompkins and Dr. J. B. Alexander. The data contained in this chapter is taken largely from those publications, together with some material from other sources.

Outstanding Alexander names inscribed in the early historical records of Mecklenburg County include: Abraham, senior and junior, Hezekiah, Adam, John McKnitt, William Sample (“Black Billy”) and others. They were among the leaders who inspired the organization of a convention which met in Charlotte, N. C., on May 19, 1775, which resulted in the signing on the following day, May 20, 1775, the now famous Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, over a year prior to the historic declaration signed in Philadelphia, July 4, 1776.

Abraham Alexander served as chairman of the Mecklenburg Convention, and his name heads the list of signers of the decla­ rati on. He also served as chairman of the “Committee of Safety,” and as such, signed all laws passed by that body.

Hezekiah Alexander, a first cousin of Abraham Sr., was also one of the organizers and signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration. He was appointed a member of the Committee of Safety for the Salisbury District, which included Mecklenburg County, by the Provincial Congress which met at Hillsboro, N. C., in August, 1775. In 1776 he was appointed paymaster of Colonel Thomas Polk's regiment of Continental troops during the Revolutionary War. Later he served as treasurer of the famous "Liberty Hall Academy" in Charlotte. His home built about 1774 of stone, located a few miles north of Charlotte, has now been fully restored and preserved as a historical shrine by the Daughters of the American Revolution "Signers" Chapter of Charlotte. Miss Lucille Hood, one of his descendants, and likewise a descendant of Tunis Hood, is secretary of the Restoration Committee.

John McKnitt (McKnight) Alexander, brother of Hezekiah, also participated prominently in the organization of the Mecklenburg Convention and was one of the signers of the declaration, having served as secretary of the Convention preceding the signing. He served in the Provincial Congress of North Carolina, and rendered material and personal aid to General Nathaniel Greene during the American Revolution, being actively engaged in the job of sinking ferry boats on the Yadkin and Dan Rivers on behalf of the patriot army. He was one of the most prominent lay leaders of old Hopewell Presbyterian Church near Charlotte.

Adam Alexander, brother of Abraham Sr., and cousin of Hezekiah and John McKnitt Alexander, was another prominent Alexander "Signer." He was for many years a magistrate and member of the county court. In September, 1775, he was appointed lieutenant-colonel under Colonel Thomas Polk, and served in the so-called Snow campaign against the Tories in South Carolina. In April, 1776, he was chosen to command one of the Mecklenburg Continental regiments, succeeding Colonel Polk. He led his forces against the Cherokee Indians at the head of the Catawba River in 1776. His daughter Sarah married Captain John Springs Jr., the wealthiest land owner and slaveholder in Mecklenburg County in that period. They were the ancestors of many of the present Springs and allied families of the county. Catherine MacLeod, another descendant of Adam Alexander and Sarah Shelby, married Sebron Yates Hood, great-great-grandson of Reuben Hood, son of Tunis Hood Sr.

Alexander Signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence whose names appear on the monument list in Charlotte are:

Abraham Alexander, Chairman of the Convention.
John McKnitt Alexander, Secretary of the Convention.
Hezekiah Alexander. Adam Alexander.
These Alexanders were all descendants of Joseph Alexander and Abigail McKnight, who, with his brothers William, Martin and Samuel Alexander, and brother-in-law John McKnight, emigrated from Londonberry, North Ireland to Cecil County, Maryland, in the town of New Munster, prior to 1700. They were descendants of Scotch settlers who had moved earlier to the Ulster section of North Ireland. William Alexander later moved to Somerset County, Maryland eastern shore.

Joseph Alexander, ancestor of the Mecklenburg Alexanders, was a tanner by trade, and proprietor of a tan yard in the New Munster community. He is mentioned in the Maryland Historical records as a man of learning and high character, and a leader in his community. His Will dated December 13, 1726, proved in March, 1730, the approximate time of his death, is preserved in the Calendar of Wills, Cecil County Court House, Vol. 7, p. 193, at Elkton, Maryland. The following legatees were named: sons Francis and James Alexander, daughters Sophia Alexander, Jane Haley, and Abigail Clapan, and son-in-law Elias Alexander, husband of Sophia. Witnesses were Owen O'Daniel, Anne Taylor, John Dail, and John Knight, brother-in-law of Joseph Alexander.

Elias Alexander above is believed to have been a son of William Alexander, brother of Joseph.

The name of Francis Alexander's wife is not known, but four of his sons were:

1. Abraham Alexander, b. 1709, in Cecil County, Maryland, d April 28, 1778; m. Dorcas ---, b. 1734, d. May 20, 1800. Both are buried in Sugaw Creek Cemetery near Charlotte, N. C.

3. Charles Alexander.

4. Ezra Alexander.

All of the above four sons of Francis Alexander were Mecklenburg "Signers."

James Alexander, second son of Joseph Alexander and Abigail McKnight married first, his cousin Margaret McKnight, daughter of John McKnight, the Scotch-Irish immigrant. His second wife was Abigail Alexander, also a cousin. His Will, dated June 17, 1772, was proved July 17, 1779, the approximate time of his death, and is filed in the Cecil County, Maryland court records in Elkton, Maryland. The Will was also probated in Mecklenburg County, N. C., in 1779 because the Will described property he acquired in that county. Named in the Will are all of the nine children born to his first wife, Maragret, and five born to his second wife Abigail, as follows:

by first wife, Margaret:
1. Thesophilus Alexander.
2. Edith Alexander.
5. Ezekiel Alexander.
6. Jemimah Alexander, m. in 1762 Thomas Sharpe in Maryland.
7. Amos Alexander, m. Mary Sharpe in Maryland.
9. Margaret Alexander II.

By second wife Abigail:
10. Elizabeth Alexander, m. William Sample.
11. Abigail Alexander II.
12. Margaret Alexander III.
14. Ezekiel Alexander II.

Since the above list shows two sons Ezekiel and two daughters named Margaret, it is supposed that the first children so named had died before the birth of the second ones, a not uncommon custom of those times.

According to the late Dr. J. B. Alexander of Charlotte, the Mecklenburg County historian, and Alexander family genealogist, the children of Abraham and Dorcas Alexander were:
2. Isaac Alexander.
5. Joab Alexander b. 1770, d. 1828.

Hezekiah Alexander, son of James Alexander, m. Mary Sample, daughter of John Sample, and sister of William Sample. Both are buried in old Sugaw Creek Cemetery near Charlotte. The Samples were also North Ireland Scotch. Children of Hezekiah Alexander and Mary Sample were:
1. William Sample Alexander, b. about 1750, d. Dec. 19, 1836; m. his second cousin Elizabeth Alexander above, daughter of Abraham and Dorcas Alexander.

5. Amos Alexander.

7. Oswald Alexander.

8. Esther Alexander, m. --- Garrison.

9. Mary Alexander, m. Charles Polk Jr., son of Captain Charles Polk.

10. Keziah Alexander II.

William Sample Alexander above was commonly known as “Black Billy” Alexander. Prior to and during the Revolutionary War he was the leader of a patriot guerrilla group who carried out continuous harassing raids against the British and their Tory allies. This group staged the so-called “Gun Powder Revolution” shortly before the outbreak of the Revolution, which culminated in the Regulator troubles leading up to the pre-Revolutionary War Battle of Alamance between the American patriots and Tories under Governor Tryon.

Family tradition advises that William Sample Alexander was a Mecklenburg “Signer”; however, his name does not appear on the monument list, or that of Historian Ramsay. If he was not in fact an actual signer, it was probably because he was away on a harassing raid.

Children of William Sample and Elizabeth Alexander were:

5. Mary S. Alexander.

7. Susan Alexander.

8. Martha Alexander.

Dan Alexander above married June 12, 1800, Susan Shelby, b. 1775, d. March 1, 1853 daughter of Brigadier-General Evan Shelby, commander of the American troops who defeated the British under Major Ferguson at the battle of King’s Mountain. General Shelby was a son of Moses Shelby Sr., born in Wales, son of a previous Evan Shelby. Children of Dan Alexander and Susan Shelby were:

1. Winslow Alexander.

2. Isabella Alexander.
3. Margaret Alexander.
   Isabella Alexander above, m. 1, May 23, 1845, Charles E. Moss, who died shortly afterwards; m. 2, October 11, 1849 Joab P. Smith. Their daughter Mattie Smith, married Millard Fillmore Kirby. They lived in Charlotte and had these children:
   1. Fred Kirby, deceased, m. Wilma Myers. They lived in Gastonia, N. C.
   2. William Kirby, m. Anna Dotcher, deceased. They lived near Brunswick, Georgia.
   4. Hattie Kirby, m. W. K. M. Gilkey, deceased. She lives in Marion, N. C.
   5. Mary Kirby, m. Roy Cook, deceased. They lived in Charlotte, N. C.
   6. Robin S. Kirby, m. Nancy Poter; they live in Charlotte, N. C.
   7. Sarah Kirby, m. Walton Mann. They live in Decatur, Georgia.

   Two other children died in infancy.

   Hezekiah Alexander Jr., had a son William Alexander, whose son Joel Alexander m. Sara Reid. Their daughter, Jane E. Alexander m. Abner Boyd Hood III, great-grandson of Reuben Hood, son Tunis Hood Sr. See further report.

   John McKnitt (McKnight) Alexander b. 1733, d. July 10, 1817; m. 1762 in Virginia, Jane Bane (Bain) b. 1739, d. March 16, 1789; both buried in old Hopewell Presbyterian Cemetery near Charlotte. He was a Mecklenburg “signer” and prominently identified with the organization of the Mecklenburg Convention, and signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

   The name McKnitt is obviously a phonetic contraction of McKnight, the family name of John McKnitt Alexander's grandmother. His Will, dated July 2, 1807, with supplemental codicils dated November 3, 1812, and April 4, 1813, was proved in 1817, and filed in the Mecklenburg County Superior court record of wills in Charlotte. Five children were named as follows:

   1. William Bane (Bain) Alexander.
   2. Dr. Joseph McKnitt Alexander b. 1771, d. October 17, 1841.
   3. Margaret McKnitt Alexander, m. April 7, 1789 Francis Alexander Ramsay. They became the parents of J. G. M. Ramsay, the noted Tennessee and North Carolina historian.
4. Jane Bane (Bain) Alexander II.
5. Abigail Bane (Bain) Alexander, b. 1770, d. May 14, 1802; m. May 8, 1795 Rev. Samuel C. Caldwell.

William Bain Alexander above, m. August 25, 1791, Violet Davidson, b. August 28, 1771 d. October 26, 1821; daughter of Major John Davidson, Revolutionary War American officer. They had these children:
2. Jane Bain Alexander II.
3. Robert Davidson Alexander, b. August 26, 1796, d. May 8, 1868; m. in 1829 Abigail Bain Caldwell, daughter of Rev. Samuel C. Caldwell and Abigail Bain Alexander. They were the parents of the late Dr. J. B. Alexander, well known Mecklenburg County historian and Alexander family genealogist.
4. Margaret Davidson Alexander.
7. Rebecca Eloise Alexander, b. 1805.
8. Benjamin Wilson Alexander, b. 1805.
11. Violet Elizabeth Alexander, b. 1812.
12. James McKnitt Alexander, b. December 1, 1808, d. December 29, 1856; m. July 16, 1844 Mary Louise Wilson. She m. 2, Dixon Kerns of Iredell County, N. C.
13. Mary Abigail Alexander, b. 1813, d. April 9, 1835; m. Robison.

Dr. Joseph McKnitt Alexander above, second son of John McKnitt Alexander and Jane Bain, m. August 5, 1797 Dovie Wilson Winslow b. 1776, d. September 6, 1801, daughter of Colonel Moses Winslow. They had only one child, a son, Dr. Moses Winslow Alexander b. May 5, 1798, d. February 27, 1845; m. December 27, 1821 Violet Wilson Winslow Graham b. August 31, 1799, d. March 25, 1868, daughter of General Samuel Joseph Graham, Revolutionary War officer. Their twelve children were:

1. Dovie Winslow Alexander; m. Rev. Hugh B. Cunningham.
2. James Graham Alexander.
3. Junius Montrose Alexander.
4. Isabella Louise Alexander.
5. Hamilton Lafayette Alexander.
6. Mary Sophia Alexander.
7. Julia Susan Alexander.
11. Suydenham Benoni Alexander.
12. Alice Lenora Alexander.

Further genealogical records of the descendants of John McKnitt Alexander and Jane Bain will be found in The Mecklenburg Signers and their Neighbors, a separately published section of The Lost Tribes of North Carolina, by the late Worth S. Ray of Austin, Texas. Some additional records will also be found in Dr. J. B. Alexander's History of Mecklenburg County.
CHAPTER IX

FAMILY OF ALEXANDER McGINTY JR. AND LYDIA HOOD

ALEXANDER McGINTY JR. b. about 1766, d. after 1826, m. as his first wife, LYDIA HOOD, daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. This is indicated by early Mecklenburg County, N. C., deeds records executed by Alexander McGinty and "Lydia, his wife." That she was his first wife, is shown by the provisions of his Will, dated April 2, 1802 and filed in the Mecklenburg County Court Records of Wills, in which he devised his entire estate to his wife, Mary Ann McGinty and his ten grandchildren. This suggests that he had no children by second wife, Mary Ann McGinty, and that the parents of the ten grandchildren were children by his first wife, Lydia Hood. No children are specifically named in the Will. Among the ten grandchildren named were, James Crawford, Jr., Alexander Crawford and Rachel Crawford, who married her second cousin, Tunis Hood III.

James Crawford Jr., Alexander Crawford and Rachel Crawford above, were undoubtedly children of James Crawford Sr. and second wife, Rachel McGinty, daughter of Alexander McGinty, Jr. and first wife, Lydia Hood. (See further report under Family of Tunis Hood III.)

James Crawford Jr. above m. 1, Sept. 5, 1804, Sally Graham. Bondsman John Morris; m. 2, April 23, 1813, Susannah Phifer. Bondsmen James Crawford Sr. and Isaac Alexander.

Alexander McGinty, Jr. was a son of Alexander McGinty, Sr., who was a son of John McGinty of old Augusta County, Virginia, who was born in Ireland. John McGinty's Will, written in 1760, and proved in 1762, named his wife Mary, and the following children:

1. Alexander McGinty (Sr.) b. about 1740, d. ---.
2. Margaret McGinty b. ---; m. --- Stuart.
3. John McGinty Jr. b. about 1744, d. ---.
4. Robert E. McGinty b. 1746, d. ---.
5. Ann McGinty b. --- d. ---.
6. Sarah McGinty b. --- d. ---.
7. Mary McGinty b. --- d. ---.
According to Mecklenburg County official records, Alexander McGinty Jr. and Andrew Jackson, later President of the United States, appeared together in court in Charlotte, N. C., to present their licenses to practice as attorneys.
CHAPTER IX-A

AND RACHEL HOOD

FREDERICK SHAFFER b. -- --, probably in Pennsylvania, d. -- -- in Mecklenburg County, N. C.; m. about 1763, RACHEL HOOD, daughter of Tunis Hood, Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. She was undoubtedly the oldest daughter, and very likely their oldest child.

Frederick Shaffer's name appears in the Frederick County, Virginia court records during the period 1760-1763. Family tradition advises he was of German ancestry, and migrated to Virginia from Pennsylvania where he was probably born. Tradition advises further that he served as an American soldier in the Revolutionary War from North Carolina. This is confirmed in the Roster of Soldiers from North Carolina in the American Revolution, published by the Daughters of the American Revolution, p. 19. In this record his name was misspelled as Frederick Sheaver, but there seems little doubt as to his identity.

Some later generation members of this Shaffer family adopted the spelling of their name as Shaver, but most descendants bearing the name, still living in Mecklenburg County, N. C., continue the spelling as Shaffer.

The Will of Frederick Shaffer, dated December 13, 1803, filed in the Mecklenburg County Superior Court Record of Wills, identifies the names of his children, and two sons-in-law, James Crawford and Philemon Morris. These children were:

1. Jacob Shaffer b. about 1764 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. after 1850, probably in Carroll County, Tennessee. See further limited record.

2. Tunis Shaffer b. -- -- in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. -- --; m. March 29, 1793, Margaret Pharis (Faris) b. -- --. Their bondsman was Philemon Morris, his brother-in-law. No record of children and descendants.

3. Mary Shaffer b. 1773 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. after 1850; m. April 4, 1794, Philemon Morris b. 1772 as shown on his marriage bond record, d. after 1850. See further report.

4. Dorcas Shaffer b. -- --. No further record.

5. Reuben Shaffer b. -- --. No further record.
6. Lydia Shaffer b. - - - d. - - -; m. Feb. 7, 1799, in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Moses Kerr; their marriage bond signed by Tunis Shaffer. No record of children and descendants of this family, although Kerr is a well known Mecklenburg County name.

7. Rachel Shaffer b. - - - d. - - - was apparently the first wife of James Crawford, whose second wife is said to have been Rachel McGinty, daughter of Alexander McGinty Jr. and first wife, Lydia Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. See further report under family of Tunis Hood III.

8. Frederick Shaffer, Jr. b. - - - d. prior to 1850; m. August 17, 1803 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Margaret Brown b. - - - d. - - - apparently no relation to wife of Jacob Shaffer (Shaver) by that name. See further report.

JACOB SHAFFER AND HIS FAMILY

JACOB SHAFFER, also known as Shaver, appears in the 1850 census record for Carroll County, Tennessee, as aged 86 in that year, born in North Carolina. This would date his birth year as approximately 1764. He was undoubtedly the son of Frederick Shaffer and Rachel Hood, and born in Mecklenburg County, N. C. Marriage bond records of Mecklenburg County, N. C., show that he married June 15, 1796, Margaret Brown b. - - - d. prior to 1850. He served in the War of 1812-1814 as a 1st lieutenant, 8th Co. Detached, 2nd Mecklenburg Regiment. Robert Hood, his first cousin, was commanding officer of that company.

In the 1850 census for Carroll County, Tennessee, Jacob Shaver was living with a son, William B. Shaver, also apparently a widower, with the following children:
1. Martha P. Shaver b. 1834 in Tennessee.

No further records are available on the family and descendants of Jacob Shaffer (Shaver).

PHILEMON MORRIS AND HIS FAMILY

PHILEMON MORRIS b. 1772, d. after 1850 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., named in the Will of Frederick Shaffer, Sr., as son-in-law; m. April 4, 1794, MARY SHAFFER, b. 1773, d. after 1850, daughter of Frederick Shaffer and Rachel Hood. Philemon Morris was a Revolutionary War soldier; enlisted as a

The Will of Philemon Morris, dated July 23, 1847, and filed in Will Book J, Mecklenburg County Superior Court Record of Wills, names, in addition to his wife, Mary, the following ten children:

1. Reuben Morris b. --- d. ---; m. Feb. 1, 1816, in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Mary Houston, a widow. No available records of their children and descendants, if any.

2. William Morris b. --- d. --- No further record.

5. Philemon W. Morris b. 1810 d. ---; m. Rachel --- b. 1808. Record of these children, taken from 1850 Mecklenburg County census records:
   a-1. Robert B. Morris b. 1833 d. --- No further record.
   a-2. Elizabeth Morris b. 1835 d. --- No further record.
   a-3. Daniel Morris b. 1837 d. --- No further record.
   a-4. Eliza Morris b. 1839 d. --- No further record.
   a-5. Mary Morris b. 1845 d. --- No further record.
   a-6. Margaret Morris b. 1847 d. --- No further record.

6. James B. Morris b. --- d. ---; m. June 6, 1822, Anne Matthews b. --- d. --- Record only of one son:
   a-1. John W. Morris b. --- d. ---; m. 1, --- Four children by this union:
       b-1. Lester Morris b. --- No further record.
       b-2. Olin Morris b. --- No further record.
       b-3. Dallas Morris b. --- No further record.
       b-4. Virginia (Jennie) Morris b. ---; m. William Samuel Shaffer b. --- d. --- a distant cousin. For further report see Family of Frederick Shaffer, Jr.

   John W. Morris m. 2, --- Henderson b. --- d. --- Record of two children:
       b-5. Rufus Morris b. --- No further record.
       b-6. Fannie Morris b. --- d. --- No further record.

7. Rachel Morris b. --- d. ---; m. --- Dennis. No further record.
8. Amy Morris b. - - - d. - - -; m. March 21, 1828, James McComb b. - - - d. - - -; Bondsmen were Cyrus Black and Eli Springs. No further record.

9. Mary N. Morris b. 1807 d. ---; m. Oct. 7, 1834, Dempsey (Demps) Ritch b. 1811 d. ---; Record from 1850 Mecklenburg County census of these children:
   a-1. William Ritch b. 1831 d. --- No further record.
   a-2. Susan Ritch b. 1835 d. --- No further record.
   a-3. Mary Ritch b. 1837 d. --- No further record.
   a-4. Philemon Ritch b. 1839 d. --- No further record.
   a-5. Elizabeth Ritch b. 1841 d. --- No further record.

CHAPTER X
FAMILY OF JESSE NEEL AND MARY HOOD

JESSE NEEL b. - - d. - - m. MARY HOOD b. - - d. - - daughter of Tunis Hood Sr. and Elizabeth Harrison. Jesse Neel was a son of Andrew Neel, whose Will, dated October 7, 1796, named Jesse Neel as one of his children.

Jesse Neel (Neal) apparently died intestate, as there is no record of his Will in the Mecklenburg County Court files. His widow, Mary Hood Neel however, left a Will, dated June 8, 1840, in which she named the following children:

2. Andrew H. Neel b. - - killed while serving as a Confederate soldier in the War Between the States; m. - - Hunter. They had one daughter, Laura Neel (Neal) who was the first wife of James Watt Hood. See further report.
3. Eleanor A. Neel b. - - d. - -.
6. Mary Neel (Neal) b. - - d. - -; m. Dec. 15, 1825, Reuben Hood Jr., his second wife. See further report.
8. Thomas Neel (Neal) b. - - d. - -.

Also grandson Robert H. Neel (Neal).
CHAPTER XI
HARRISON ANCESTORS AND RELATIVES

The Harrison ancestors of Tunis Hood descendants, identified by well-founded family tradition, and the best of circumstantial evidence, are of equal interest to that of the Hood and allied Danish-Dutch lines. These Harrison forebears were also early immigrants to America. Fortunately, excellent records of them, and some of their descendants are available, thanks to many years of patient genealogical research by the late J. Houston Harrison of Alexandria, Virginia, and Washington, D.C., himself a descendant of the same Harrison family line so closely connected with Tunis Hood descendant families.

J. Houston Harrison recorded his findings in his fascinating book, Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, which he published in 1930. While he did not specifically identify the Hood-Harrison intermarriage connections in the publication of his book, subsequent data, produced by this author in collaboration with other Tunis Hood descendant family members, has reasonably well verified the connections. This was fully recognized by Mr. Harrison in discussions with the author on several occasions prior to his death in 1954. He had hoped to assemble the mass of later discovered Harrison family data and publish a second edition of his book, incorporating the new finds, including the Hood connections, but unfortunately, death claimed him before that objective could be realized. Discovery of some of the important early Hood family records produced in this genealogy, resulted from clues furnished by Mr. Harrison, including the records of Tunis Hood in Virginia.

Who were these early American Harrison ancestors of Tunis Hood descendants, and where did they come from? It is known from the most reliable of family tradition, and other impressive circumstantial evidence, that the first wife of Tunis Hood was Elizabeth Harrison, of the Isaiah Harrison line of Rockingham County, Virginia. Also, Eleanor Harrison, apparently a niece of Elizabeth, being the daughter of her half-uncle, Jeremiah Harrison, was the wife of Tunis Hood, Jr., and therefore his half first cousin. The first Harrison forebear of this line to reach the North American Continent, was identified by J. Houston Harrison as Rev. Thomas Harrison (1619-1682), a native of Kingston-on-Hull, England, and forebear of the Rockingham County, Philipse Manor, Philipsberg, N. Y., (now Yonkers). Casper Joosten Springsteen and Marie Storm, grandparents of John Springs, were married here in 1683. See page 532.

Virginia Harrison families. Mr. Harrison's identity of Rev. Thomas Harrison as the ancestor of the Rockingham County, Virginia Harrisons is circumstantial, but he makes a good case for his findings. This author has not attempted to verify the actual facts of this ancestry, and has accepted the results of J. Houston Harrison's research in this connection as reasonably adequate.

The English and Scotch Harrisons, from whom we are certainly descended, first came to England from Denmark with the Norse Viking Sea Kings, who finally under Canute, conquered and possessed the whole of the country. He was crowned King of England, Denmark and Norway, in the year 1016, his reign extending through the year 1035. Hence, our original ancestral stock on the Harrison line is also Danish.

J. Houston Harrison conducted a thorough research of the origin of the Harrison families of England and Scotland, the results of which are found in Chapter VII, pp. 77-78. He wrote in part as follows:

"The Harrisons are said to have come into England with the Norse Viking Sea Kings, who finally under Canute (1016-1035) conquered and possessed the whole of the country. They were among the 'free Danes' of whom Kingsley's hero, 'Hereward the Wake' was one, and who were the last to withstand William the Conqueror, himself of Norse Viking origin. Thus they were in England a generation or more before the time of the Battle of Hastings (October 14, 1066), and the period of the Domesday Book (1085-1086), from which many old English families date their origin.

"Northumberland, the Danish section of England, is said to be filled with Harrisons now, and the name there is variously spelled, sometimes without an 'H', and sometimes with only one 'r'. The name being of Danish patronymic origin, it is claimed that it is more properly spelled Arysen (also Aertsen), derived as 'Harry's son,' which is common to this day in Denmark, Sweden and Norway. (See Richmond, Virginia Standard, No. 41, June 12, 1890).

"Surnames began to be hereditary in England in the 11th Century and became common after 1160, when Henry II enfranchised the land. They were legally recognized in the 'Statute of Additions' under Henry V (1413-1422). The most popular given names have always been made famous by some great king or national hero, William and Robert, and a little later, John, were such names introduced at the Norman conquest, and have maintained their ground ever since.

"The old chronicles of England end with the close of the 14th century, and the official records begin in 1509. With the introduction into the kingdom of parish registers, 1538, by Thomas Cromwell, vicar-general, and the further growth of the system under Queen Elizabeth I, accelerated by the laws of 1601, placing the affairs of the civil parish under the vestry and overseers of the poor, a more definite idea of the distribution of family names of the time, and of their specific locations in the shires is obtained.

"That Daniel and Robert were favorite early given names among the Harrisons of Northumberland is shown by a record of the baptism of ‘Daniell, son of Robert Harrison’ in the parish of Berwick-on-Tweed, under date of December 26, 1610. (See—The Register of Berwick-on-Tweed, County of Northumberland, by Durham and Northumberland Parish Register Society, Vol. I, p. 72.)

“Northumberland, it may be observed, is the northernmost shire of England. To the east it borders on the North Sea, and to the north on the River Tweed, which separates it from Scotland. Its southern boundary is the River Tyne, and from Newcastle, near the mouth of this river, extends the ruins of the old Roman wall which ran across the country to Solway Firth on the west coast. This wall was the northern limit of definite Roman occupation. During the time of Canute, (and the earlier kings), Northumberland embraced the ‘whole tract of England from the Humber river northwards to Scotland, together with Lancashire, Westmoreland and Cumberland.’ (See—The Baronage of England, by William Dugdale, London, 1675, p. 2.) Berwick, Northumberland, at the mouth of the Tweed, is farthest north of any city of England. From the old kingdom ‘of the north,’ the Harrisons drifted south among the various other shires of the country, and some moved into Scotland.

“Directly south of Northumberland, and bordering also on the North Sea, lies the county of Durham, referred to at the beginning of this chapter, known at the time of the above (Berwick) records as the County Palatine. Formerly, in the time of the Romans, it was a part of the general region called by them Ebor. The Romans found settled in the region the Brigantes, an ancient English tribe that inhabited most of present Yorkshire, Lancashire, Durham, Westmoreland, and Cumberland. Caer Efroc was their capitol. During the Roman occupation the legionaires made the town their military headquarters, and changed the name to Eboracum, now known as the city of York. From Eboracum a Roman road, yet in use today, led south connecting the region with London.

“The name Durham is taken from the peninsula which was anciently called Dunholme, or Hill Island. In Norman times this was softened to Duresme, whence Durham. The county was one of the Counties Palatine; the other two being Lancashire and Cheshire. The Palatine was abolished in 1646, but was revived after the Restoration, and with some restrictions continued to 1836. Durham, the principal city of the county, obtained its first charter in 1179-80. A bill for securing representation to the county and city of Durham and the borough of Barnard Castle, was introduced in Parliament in 1614. The city is the seat of the cathedral of St. Cuthbert, begun in 1093, the view of which from the river is said be surpassed in beauty by no other English cathedral. The town grew up from the early church which in Canute’s time was presided over by Bishop Aldune, whose daughter, says Dugdale, married Uchtred, one of Canute’s earls. (See Dugdale, as above.)

“The parish registers of St. Margaret’s, Durham, begin in 1559. Among the first marriages recorded were: ‘Wm. Herrison et Margrett Farles’ November 9, 1559; ‘Thom Herrison et Isabel Whitfield’ June 16, 1560; ‘Xpofor Herrison et Ann Walton’ November 12, 1593; ‘Thomm Herrison et Elizabeth Gryndve’ November 7, 1598; ‘Rollands Harysen et Jensta Thompson’ June 29, 1600; and ‘Johannes Herrison et Bettram Wrangham, Jiduam’ July 4., 1602. (Publications of the Harleian Society, Registers of St. Margaret’s, Durham, pp. 1, 6, 7.)

“South of Durham and skirting the North Sea to the Humber, lies Yorkshire, and to the west borders Cumberland and Westmoreland, the three counties, with Durham, being embraced in both the old Roman Region Ebor, and the later region Northumbria. In each of these counties were seated by 1575 Harrison families whose records, as collected by the College of Arms, some dating back to the days of the old chronicles, show that they had long since—

"Stood forth—fully mewed,
From brown soar feathers of dull yeomanry,
To th' glorious bloom of gentry.
"Albumazar, A, III, Sc. 4,—Dryden."

Rev. Thomas Harrison came to the early Jamestown, Virginia settlements about 1640, in which year he qualified as minister of Elizabeth River parish, Established Church of England (Anglican, Episcopal). He also served as chaplain of the early Jamestown Colony during the first part of Governor Berkeley’s first term (1645-1652). At first, according to Mr. Harrison’s research, he used his influence against the Puritan Calvinists (Congregationalists) who had become numerous on the south side of the James River. But, following the second Indian massacre, April 18, 1644, he turned Pilgrim himself, and in 1648, after refusing to read the Book of Common Prayer, or administer the sacraments, abandoned his ministerial office. He then removed from Virginia to New England, where in 1648-49, he married as his first wife, Dorothy, daughter of Samuel Symonds of Ipswich, Massachusetts, Deputy Governor of Massachusetts in 1638, a native of Great Yeldham, Essex County, England.

Late in 1649 Rev. Harrison left Massachusetts and returned to England, where, about 1650 he succeeded Dr. Goodwin in his non-conformist “Gathered Church” at St. Dunstans-in-the-East London. Here he became an intimate of Henry Cromwell, son of Oliver Cromwell, then Lord Protector of England, following execution of King Charles I, and the overthrow of the English monarchy. In 1655, Rev. Harrison accompanied Henry Cromwell to Ireland, where Cromwell went as Lord-Deputy, and during this time he resided with Cromwell’s family in Dublin.

Following the Restoration, and assumption of the English throne by Charles II, Rev. Harrison returned to Chester, England, where he preached to large congregations in the Cathedral there. After passage of the “Act of Uniformity” he again removed to Ireland, and settled permanently in Dublin, where he died in 1682. He was the author of several works of note, and left a valuable library. Unfortunately, his Will was destroyed in the Great Dublin fire some years later, but some of his children were identified through other sources and circumstances.

Following the death of his first wife, Dorothy Symonds, Rev. Harrison married February 28, 1659-'60 as his second wife, Katherine Bradshaw, record of the marriage being entered in the marriage registry of St. Peter's Church, Chester, England. She was a daughter of Edward Bradshaw (1604-1671) of Chester, and first wife, Sussanah, daughter of Christopher Blease of Chester. Katherine Bradshaw was baptised September 10, 1637 in Chester, the record being entered in the baptismal registry of St. Peter's Church there.

Edward Bradshaw, father of Katherine, was a lineal descendant of the "Bradshaw of Pennington" line. His pedigree is found in Dugdale's Visitation of Lancashire—1664-65. A more complete pedigree however, naming Katherine herself directly, occurs in the Piccope MMS of the Chetham Collection, in which her family is traced without a break in the line, from "Robert de Bradshaw, Lord of Bradshaw, 23, Reign of Edward I" (1272-1307). (See The Genealogist, New Series, Vol. XVII, London, pp. 14-15). This is the oldest ancestral line of Tunis Hood descendants thus far identified, covering a span of 23 generations from Lord Robert de Bradshaw down to younger living generation members.

ISAIAH HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

ISAIAH HARRISON, our American Harrison forbear, was identified by J. Houston Harrison as a probable son of Rev. Thomas Harrison and second wife, Katherine Bradshaw. His birth date is estimated as 1666 in Chester, England. He migrated to America, arriving in Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., from Chester, England, prior to January 2, 1687. On that date, as recorded in Book "B" of the ancient Town Book of Oyster Bay, he was made a freeholder of the town, his occupation being given as farmer and blacksmith. The marriage of Isaiah Harrison to his first wife, Elizabeth Wright, in 1688 is also recorded in the old Town Book of Oyster Bay, she being identified as the daughter of Gideon Wright and Elizabeth Townsend. Gideon Wright died in 1685, and the death of Elizabeth Wright is recorded as 1698, probably at the birth of her daughter Elizabeth on March 30, 1698.

The birth dates of the five children of Isaiah Harrison and Elizabeth Wright entered in the quaint language of those early times, appear in the old Oyster Bay Town Book, Book "B," fol. 19-a, as follows:

"Isaiah Harrison the Sone of Isaiah Harrison was Borne in Oyster Bay ye 27th Day of September Annoq Domini 1689."
"John Harrison the Sone of aforesaid Isaiah Harrison was Borne in Oyster Bay ye 25th day of September Annoq Domini 1691.

"Gideon Harrison ye Sone of aforesaid Isaiah Harrison was Borne in Oyster Bay ye 25th day of June Annoq Domini 1694.

"Mary Harrison the Daughter of ye said Isaiah Harrison was borne in Oyster Bay ye 25th day of May Annoq Domini 1696.

"Elizabeth Harrison the Daughter of Ye said Isaiah Harrison was Borne in Oyster Bay Ye 30th Day of March Annoq Domini 1698.

"These are the Sones and Daughters which Ye said Isaiah Harrison begat by Elizabeth Harrison His wife the Daughter of Gideon Wright of Oyster Bay aforesaid Deceased."

The "Aforesaid Deceased" mentioned in the above record, refers to Elizabeth Wright Harrison, she being deceased at the time these records were entered.

Gideon Wright above was born about 1635 in Lynn, Massachusetts, son of Peter Wright and Alice - - -, originally of Norfolk County, England, where they were married about 1630. They emigrated to Massachusetts early in 1635, thence to Oyster Bay in 1660, where Peter died between 1660 and 1663. His widow remarried to Richard Crabb in 1663.

Gideon Wright married Elizabeth Townsend, daughter of John Townsend and Elizabeth Montgomerie who were married in England. The Townsend family were natives of Norwich, England. The Wrights and Townsends were Friends (Quakers), and suffered persecution as such by the authorities of the Massachusetts Colony. The execution of Mary Dyer, a Quakeress, June 1, 1660 aroused deep indignation, and among the Quakers who flocked to Boston were Hannah and Mary Wright, daughters of Peter Wright and Alice - - -. They were especially "bold in speech" in denouncing the magistrates, and Mary gave her "testimony" against the authorities for their cruelty in putting Mary Dyer to death. She was accused of witchcraft, tried and acquitted, but was convicted of being a Quaker and was detained in Boston, along with her sister Hannah. Both were banished in 1661, after suffering many hardships. In 1662 Hannah returned to Boston and appeared in open court, there warning the magistrates to spill no more innocent blood. She was especially prominent in the Oyster Bay Society of Friends, and never married. She was drowned while traveling in Virginia on a visit to the Quakers there in 1675. (The Wright Family of Oyster Bay—Delano Perrine, 1923).

On April 20, 1702, Isaiah Harrison sold his entire possessions of land in Oyster Bay, and removed to Smithtown, Long Island, N. Y., where he married his second wife, Abigail Smith. In 1721 he sold out in Smithtown and removed to Sussex County, Delaware, where he purchased Maiden Plantation on the Delaware River near its mouth, eight miles from the town of Lewes.

Sussex County, Delaware, court records show that Isaiah Harrison, together with his sons John, Daniel, Thomas and Jeremiah, sold their lands in that county, preliminary to their departure in 1737 for the new settlements in the lower Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

J. Houston Harrison identified the children of Isaiah Harrison as follows:

By first wife Elizabeth Wright:

1. Isaiah Harrison Jr. b. Sept. 26, 1689 in Oyster Bay, L. I.
N. Y., d. --- moved to old Craven County, S. C.; m. --- A probable grandson was an Isaiah Harrison whose name appears in the 1790 Federal census for Mecklenburg County, N. C., his household members being: 3 males under 16, 1 male over 16, himself; 3 females and 2 slaves.
That he later moved to Polk County, Tennessee is indicated by the appearance of an Isaiah Harrison on the 1850 census list for that county, or this could have been his son. A daughter, Mary, of this Polk County, Tennessee Isaiah Harrison, born in Tennessee, and aged 52 years in 1850, married Robert Hood of Polk County, identified as a descendant of Lucas Hood. For further reference see The Lucas Hood Family herein.

2. John Harrison b. Sept. 25, 1690 in Oyster Bay, L.I. N.Y.,
d. May, 1771 in Augusta (now Rockingham) County, Virginia; m. Phoebe --, b. 1686, d. 1793, aged 108 years.
See further report.

N.Y., d. 1729 in Sussex County, Delaware; he was mar­ rried and had several children. No further record.

4. Mary Harrison b. May 25, 1696 in Oyster Bay, L.I. N.Y., d. 1781 in Rockingham County, Virginia; m. Robert Cravens (1696-1782).

By second wife Abigail Smith:

6. Daniel Harrison b. 1701 in Smithtown, L.I. N.Y., d. 1770 in Augusta (Rockingham) County, Virginia; m. 1, Mary Cravens, sister of his brother-in-law, Robert Cravens; m. 2, Sarah --- widow of William Stephenson.

7. Thomas Harrison b. 1704 in Smithtown, L.I. N.Y., d. 1785 in Rockingham County, Virginia. He was the founder of the city of Harrisonburg, Virginia which is named for him; m. 1, Jane de la Haye; m. 2, Sarah Cravens. Their son Davis Harrison m. Phoebe, daughter of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison. See further report.

8. Jeremiah Harrison b. 1707 in Smithtown, L.I. N.Y., d. 1798, aged 91 years in Greene County, Tennessee; m. Catherine Adams. See further report.

9. Abigail Harrison b. 1710 in Smithtown, L.I. N.Y., d. 1780 in Rockingham County, Virginia; m. Alexander Herring. They were the great-grand parents of President Abraham Lincoln, a distant kinsman of all Tunis Hood descendants. See further report.

10. Samuel Harrison b. 1712 in Smithtown, L.I. N.Y., d. 1790 in Rockingham County, Virginia; m. Mary ---.

Isaiah Harrison died about the latter part of 1787 or early 1788 enroute to then Augusta County, Virginia. He is said to have been buried in an unmarked grave in the Potomac River section of Northern Virginia, near the present city of Alexandria, Virginia.

Several Tunis Hood descendant family members recite a tradition in their respective families to the effect that President William Henry Harrison and his grandson, President Benjamin Harrison, were descendants of Isaiah Harrison. No reliable evidence confirming such tradition has been found. J. Houston Harrison had heard of the same tradition, and devoted considerable research in that connection, his findings failed to substantiate the tradition. Those Harrison families were descendants of Harrisons who settled early in Eastern Virginia, and were known as the James River branch of Harrisons. It is quite possible, however that there may have been some distant relationship between them and Rev. Thomas Harrison, the probable father of Isaiah Harrison.

President Abraham Lincoln however, was a lineal descendant of Isaiah Harrison, and therefore a kinsman of all Tunis Hood descendants. See further report in this connection.
JOHN HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN HARRISON, second son of Isaiah Harrison and Elizabeth Wright, is reasonably well identified as the father of Elizabeth Harrison, first wife of Tunis Hood. In his Will, dated August 23, 1758, and proved May 1771, lodged in the Wills records of Augusta County, at Staunton, Virginia, names specifically only five children, and his wife Phoebe. Elizabeth was not among the children named. The children named were:

1. Zebulon Harrison (1718-1792); m. July 23, 1747 in Morristown, N. J., Margaret Primrose, a widow, daughter of Robert Cravens and Mary Harrison, and was therefore his first cousin.

3. Phoebe Harrison II (1728-1807); m. 1, in 1745, Daniel Davidson, of New Jersey; m. 2, in 1758, Thomas Moore.

4. Ann Harrison (1730-1805); m. 1, John Davidson; m. 2, Joseph Langdon; m. 3, David Harnett.

5. Reuben Harrison (1731-1807); m. 1, Lydia Donnell Harrison, daughter of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, and was therefore his half first cousin; m. 2, Mary McDonald. He served in the Revolutionary War as a captain in the Virginia militia.

The seven year lapse between the births of son John Jr., and daughter Phoebe II, would suggest that one or more children, not named in the Will, were born during that period. That Elizabeth, first wife of Tunis Hood, was one of them there can be little doubt. That she was the Elizabeth Herrison "an adult person" baptized by Rev. John Craig July 27, 1744 appears equally certain. That would be about the time of her marriage to Tunis Hood.

That the name of the first wife of Tunis Hood was Harrison, is a well handed down tradition among a number of their descendant families. That her name was Elizabeth is verified by a number of early Augusta County, Virginia court records. The case for her as a daughter of John and Phoebe Harrison, while necessarily circumstantial, nevertheless appears air-tight. Similarity of typical Harrison family Christian names appearing in the family of Tunis and Elizabeth Hood, as well as in so many of their descendants' families, offers reasonably positive proof of her identity, as Elizabeth Harrison, a daughter of John and Phoebe Harrison of Rockingham County, Virginia. These typical Harrison family names such as Reuben, Jeremiah, Robert, Harrison, Elizabeth, Lydia, Phoebe, Mary, Eleanor, Adams, appearing in Tunis Hood families came from the Harrison side.
None have appeared insofar as known among Tunis Hood pat­ernal ancestral families. Rachel is the only Hood family name appearing, named for Rachel Van Bunschoten, mother of Tunis Hood.

John Harrison’s mother was Elizabeth Wright; he had a sister named Elizabeth and apparently a daughter. It is signifi­cant therefore that Tunis and Elizabeth Harrison Hood named their first daughter Elizabeth.

The father of Tunis Hood was John Hood, and the father of Elizabeth Harrison, his first wife, was almost certainly John Harrison. It was appropriate therefore that their first born son was named John.

John Harrison’s wife was named Phoebe, and they also gave that name to one of their daughters. It was not unusual therefore to find one of the daughters of Tunis and Elizabeth Hood named Phoebe. There were no Phoebes in Tunis Hood’s ancestral lines families. Tunis and Elizabeth had a daughter named Lydia, as did Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison. Lydia Donnell Harrison married Reuben, son of John and Phoebe Harrison, her half first cousin. No Lydias have appeared in Tunis Hood ancestral families. Mary, a favorite Harrison Christian name, has been equally popular among Tunis Hood descendant families. There were no Marys in Tunis Hood’s ancestral families. The wife of Tunis Hood Jr. was Eleanor Harrison, his half first cousin. Eleanor was a more or less common Harrison Christian name, but never appearing in early Hood families.

The youngest son of Tunis and Elizabeth Harrison Hood was named Reuben, for Captain Reuben Harrison, son of John and Phoebe, and brother of Elizabeth. Reuben Hood named a son Reuben, as did his brother Robert. Reuben has also appeared as a Christian name in other Tunis Hood descendant families. No Reuben ever appeared in early Hood families. It was a favorite Harrison name.

The father of Eleanor Harrison, wife of Tunis Hood Jr., was Jeremiah Harrison, son of Isaiah Harrison and second wife, Abigail Smith. Tunis Hood Jr. had a son named Jeremiah, as did his brother, Tunis Hood III. Col. Solomon Reid and Eleanor Adams Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison, named their only son Jeremiah Solomon Reid, and there have been other Jeremiah’s in family lines. There were no Jeremiah’s in Tunis Hood’s ancestral families.

The wife of Jeremiah Harrison was Catherine Adams, hence Adams has appeared more or less frequently in Jeremiah Harrison descendant families, both Hood and Harrison, as a middle Christian name.
Harrison, as a Christian first and second name, has appeared frequently and consistently in Tunis Hood descendant families, down to present generation members in some cases. Harrison, in fact, has appeared even more frequently as a Christian name in Hood families, than the name Tunis.

Robert, a favorite Hood family Christian name, was equally prominent in Harrison families of the Isaiah Harrison lines. There were no Roberts in Tunis Hood’s ancestral families. This name came from the Harrisons.

Tunis Hood Jr. named Nehemiah Harrison, his brother-in-law, a son of Jeremiah Harrison, as one of the executors of his estate under his Will. Nehemiah Harrison also moved to Mecklenburg County from Virginia about the same time as the Hoods.

The consistently repeated appearances of these typical Harrison family Christian names in Tunis Hood’s family, and among his descendant families, could not have been coincidences. There can be no reasonable doubt therefore that Elizabeth, wife of Tunis Hood Sr., was in fact Elizabeth Harrison, daughter of John and Phoebe Harrison of Rockingham County, Virginia. Nor can it be doubted that Eleanor, wife of Tunis Hood Jr., was Eleanor Harrison, daughter of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams.

A transcript of the full text of the Will of John Harrison, signed July 30, 1769, and proved May 21, 1771, entered in the records of the Augusta County court at Staunton, Virginia, Will Book No. 4, p. 398, follows:

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN - - - written the 30th day of July in the year of our Lord God one thousand seven hundred and sixty nine - - - I, John Harrison of Augusta County, Colony of Virginia, Cordwinder, being of Perfect mind and memory & no disorder but that of old age, thanks be given unto God for his mercy, and therefore calling unto mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is Appointed unto all men once to dye, do make and Ordain this my Last Will & Testament in writing, that is to say:

Principally the first of all I recommend my Soul into the hands of God who gave it and as for my Body I recommend to the Earth to be buried in a Christian like and desant manner at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting that at the General resurrection I shall receive the same again by the Mighty power of God, and as touching such Worldly estate wherewith it hath plased God to bless me in this life I give, devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form:

Imprimis. It is my will & I ordain in the first Place that my well beloved wife Phoebe Harrison enjoy my Plantation on which I now dwell without disturbance during her natural life together with my Moveable estate with with my slaves and increases of them to work for her maintenance during her natural life.

And it is further my will and I do order my land whereon I now dwell being a part of two surveys which has been divided, I do leave my well beloved Son Zebulon Harrison and his heirs and assigns forever.
And further my survey which is also Pattiained known by the name of the Long Meadow which is Part thereof and is described in the Pattiain, I give my son Reuben Harrison and his heirs and assigns forever;

Which land above named shall be freely Possessed and enjoyed by my above named Sons and their heirs after their above named Mother's decease and not before;

I furthermore will that after her decease all my Moveable estate be appraised and sold according to law except my Negro wench Jenny if my daughter Phoebe Moore shall see cause to take her at the Praise­ment for so much of her shire of my estate as she shall be Appraised to if it shall amount to more than her shire she shall pay the overplus to the other heirs and if she does not see Cause to take her she shall be sold with the rest of my Slaves in being;

In the first Part the half of my Moveable estate is to be equally divided between Zebulon Harrison and Phebe Moore and the other half of my Moveable Estate to Reuben Harrison and for my Daughter Ann Langdon I leave her one shilling Starling;

And I do make, constitute and Ordain my well beloved Sons Zebulon Harrison and Reuben Harrison that is above mentioned my sole Executors of this my Last Will & Testament;

And I furthermore ordain my said Executors that they provide a Baptist minister if they can do so with Conveniency to Preach my Funeral Sarment; if noon of them is to be had that then they provide some other Christian minister for it is Proposed for that service to pay him twenty shillings;

I furthermore order that they pay all my just debts and Funeral charges out of my Moveables and such Charges shall be levied before such Estate suffers division as aforesaid;

And I hereby do disallow revoke & disanul all and every other and former Wills Legaisse 8:Executors by me before this time named, willed Bequeathed retifing & Confirming this & no other to be my last and only Will & Testament.

In Witness whereof I have set my hand this day & year above written.

/S/ John Harrison (Seal)

Signed & Sealed in the presence of us the Subscribers:
Felix Sheltman
John Ray
John Harrison, Junior

The appearance of the signature of John Harrison Jr. as a witness to his father's Will, written July 30, 1769, poses an inconsistency since John Jr. was killed by a Negro slave in November, 1763, and left a Will which was proved November 15, 1763. It is noted that John Harrison Jr. is not named as a legatee in his father's Will, evidence that he must have been dead at the time the Will was signed. John Harrison Sr. must therefore have prepared and actually signed his Will prior to November 15, 1763, which John Jr. witnessed; the other two witnesses, Felix Sheltman and John Ray must have signed later, after the death of John Harrison Jr.

As indicated in his Will, John Harrison was a devout Baptist. So devout in fact, that he traveled from Virginia to Oyster Bay, L.I. N.Y., in 1754 to be baptised in the Baptist faith, quite a journey in those times. In 1761 he was one of the organizers of the First Linville Creek Baptist Church in what is now Rockingham County, Virginia. He and his half brother Jeremiah and the latter's wife, Catherine Adams apparently were the only members of the Isaiah Harrison line families to affiliate with the Baptists. Catherine Adams Harrison was baptised as a Baptist in May, 1757, and her husband, Jeremiah Harrison in 1761. He had previously been baptised as a Presbyterian by Rev. John Craig during the 1740-1749 period recorded in Rev. Craig's diary. (Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, p. 151.) Most other members of the Isaiah Harrison lines were Presbyterians and other Calvinist persuasions, excepting several of the early members who continued their affiliation with the Established Church of England (Anglican, Episcopalian).

Entered in the old Linville Creek Baptist Church Book, p. 53, appears the following:

"Met according to appointment on Saturday, Dec'r. 7, 1793, and after Praise and Prayer Proceeded to Business &c.
1st. Brothers Johnson and Lincoln reported that they wrote, signed and delivered Brother (Absolom) Graves & wife's letter of Dismission.
2nd. Agreed that Brother Johnson disappoint his preaching here tomorrow on account of being requested to attend and Preach the Funeral of Mrs. Phebe Harrison on Smith's Creek, who departed this life in the 108th Year of her Age."

Thus it is known that Phoebe, widow of John Harrison Sr. died about December 6, 1793 at the remarkable age, especially for those early times, of 108 years. She outlived some of her adult children. Apparently she had affiliated with her husband's Baptist church.

JEREMIAH HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

JEREMIAH HARRISON, son of Isaiah Harrison and second wife, Abigail Smith, was a half-brother of John Harrison, and thereby a half-uncle of Elizabeth Harrison, first wife of Tunis Hood Sr. His wife was Catherine Adams, daughter of John Adams and Margaret (Donnell) Patterson, widow of William Patterson. They were among the direct ancestors of all descendants of Tunis Hood Jr., whose wife Eleanor, was one of their daughters. Thus, Tunis Hood Jr. and wife Eleanor Harrison were half-first cousins. Marriages between cousins among these early Hood and Harrison families were not uncommon, the same being true among other families. Asked why this was, an old time Hood wag facetiously replied: "Because they couldn't find anybody in other families good enough for them." A more logical explanation however, was probably due to the fact that most communities in those early days were rather sparsely settled, hence the availability of marriage partners in unrelated families was usually somewhat limited.

On October 10, 1732, Isaiah Harrison sold his son Jeremiah Harrison 250 acres of land from his Maiden Plantation in Sussex County, Delaware, and also deeded a like portion to his son Thomas Harrison. In 1737, Jeremiah Harrison sold his land to Samuel Black, and in 1738 his brother Thomas Harrison sold his 250 acres to James Hood. The two families then joined their father and other family members and migrated to Augusta County, Virginia, settling generally in the Linville Creek section of what is now Rockingham County, near the present city of Harrisonburg and the town of Broadway, in the southern part of the Shenandoah Valley section of Western Virginia. The first land survey for Jeremiah Harrison in Augusta County was made on November 13, 1740.

Augusta County court records as well as many church records are filled with references to these early Harrison and Hood families. On the second day of the first sessions of the newly formed Augusta County court in 1745, Jeremiah Harrison, Thomas Harrison and William Williams were appointed appraisers of the estate of Hugh Douglas (Order Book No. 1, p. 4, December 10, 1745, Augusta County court minutes). Previously Jeremiah Harrison, Thomas Harrison, William Williams and Hugh Douglas had been appointed appraisers of the estate of John Levenson.

Rev. John Craig recorded in his diary that during the period 1740-1749, he had baptised Jeremiah Harrison and two of his children, Nehemiah and Lydia Donnell Harrison. Rev. Craig was pastor of the Linville Creek Presbyterian congregation. Later Jeremiah Harrison was converted to the Baptist faith, and baptised in that faith in 1761. His wife Catherine, had been baptised as a Baptist in May, 1757.

On August 22, 1745, Jeremiah Harrison was appointed Constable in place of Thomas Stewart, and on September 26, 1745 he was one of the several who signed a bond of Robert Leaper to keep peace toward James Patton, Gent.

On June 26, 1746 Jeremiah and Thomas Harrison were appointed overseers of the Indian Road to Robert Cravens' place. A year later Robert Cravens and Samuel Wilkins were appointed in their places.
On May 18, 1748 Isaiah Harrison Jr. qualified as administrator of the estate of Joseph Harrison, deceased, with Jeremiah Harrison Sr. and William White as bondsmen.

In 1753-'54, Jeremiah Harrison Sr. and Jeremiah Harrison Jr. signed petitions as inhabitants of North Mountain at the head of Muddy Creek for a road. Other signers included Daniel and Jesse Harrison and Rev. John Craig. Rev. Craig, in his church register noted that Jeremiah Harrison lived at the half way house on Muddy Creek.

In 1765 Jeremiah Harrison sold his 400 acres of land on Linville Creek to John Hinton of Berks County, Pennsylvania. Previously, on February 10, 1748, Jeremiah Harrison had patented 370 acres of land on the south side of Cook's Creek, a tributary of Linville Creek, adjoining the land of his brother-in-law, Robert Cravens. And later, on September 20, 1768, Jeremiah Harrison patented 135 acres on Linville Creek.

On August 18, 1772, Jeremiah Harrison and wife Catherine deeded all of their lands in Augusta County to their sons Josiah and Nehemiah Harrison. (Deed Book No. 17, p. 327, Augusta County court deeds records.) In 1773 Nehemiah and Josiah Harrison received a grant of 131 acres adjoining the land acquired from their father, Jeremiah Harrison.

Following the transfer of their lands to sons Nehemiah and Josiah Harrison, Jeremiah and Catherine Harrison disappeared from the Augusta County records. J. Houston Harrison in his Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, referred to them in terms of a "Lost Tribe," reported to have "moved to Holston River." The headwaters of the Holston River are mostly in what is now Washington County, in the southwestern section of Virginia, whence the stream winds through East Tennessee to its confluence with the Tennessee River. J. Houston Harrison published no further records of Jeremiah Harrison following his move to the Holston River section. Further research by this author revealed the movements of Jeremiah Harrison and various members of his family after their migration from Augusta County, not covered in Mr. Harrison's book. New settlers began moving southwest into the Holston River headwaters sections of Washington County, Virginia about 1772, coming mostly from old Augusta County, and a little later the newly formed Rockingham and Rockbridge Counties, which had been taken from Augusta County. And here in 1772, the supposedly "Lost Tribe" Jeremiah Harrison family are found taking up land. Among other settlers in the area around that time was Robert Hood of old Augusta County, probable son of John Hood Jr., brother of Tunis Hood. In that year, 1772, Jeremiah Harrison was granted two tracts, comprising 340 and 400 acres respectively, in Rich Valley, and on the Sinking branch of Baker's Creek. Later in 1774, he was granted 412 acres additional land on both sides of Sinking branch.

On June 15, 1779, Jeremiah Harrison was one of several appraisers of the estate of John Hargis in Washington County. A Washington County court order of November 19, 1782 mentioned a road by Jeremiah Harrison's old place. In a deed dated June 14, 1787, Jeremiah Harrison conveyed 340 acres in Rich Valley, Washington County, Virginia, to David Smith.

By 1781 the restless pioneer feet of Jeremiah Harrison and family were again on the move, and in that year they are found taking up land in Greene County, “ Territory South of the Ohio,” which in 1783 was incorporated as a county in the state of North Carolina. Among the earliest settlers of Greene County, which at that time included most of present Blount, Knox, Jefferson, Cocke, Washington and Sevier Counties, Tennessee, were the families of General Sam Houston and Robert Hood, the probable son of John Hood Jr. Rev. John Craig noted in his diary that he baptised Robert and Margaret Hood, children of John Hood on April 27, 1749, and on November 27, 1749, John Hood, another son of John Hood, Jr., brother of Tunis Hood, Sr.

The pages of early Greene County, Tennessee history are filled with familiar names from Augusta, Rockbridge, Rockingham and Washington County, Virginia, and it is evident that most of the earliest settlers moved there from sections of old Augusta County, Virginia, including the Houston and Robert Hood families, as well as some other Harrison families of the Isaiah Harrison line.

In 1785 Greene County seceded from North Carolina and became a part of the short-lived State of Franklin until the “blow up” of that dubious government in 1787. Prior to that time the state of North Carolina took in all of the present state of Tennessee westward to the Mississippi River. Following the demise of the State of Franklin, Greene County was again mapped as a part of the “Southwest Territory,” until 1796, when the state of Tennessee was created. Greene County, and the several other adjoining counties formed from it, then became a part of the new state of Tennessee.

That Catherine, wife of Jeremiah Harrison, was a daughter of John Adams and Margaret (Donnell) Patterson, widow of William Patterson, appears reasonably certain. It is significant that a number of Hood and Harrison grandchildren, as well as some later descendants, bore the name of Adams as a middle Christian name.
Margaret Patterson-Adams, a close neighbor of Jeremiah and Catherine Harrison in the general Linville Creek section of old Augusta County, Virginia, left a Will, dated September 3, 1744, but not proved until March 15, 1770, in which she named her legatees as: Son, Robert Patterson and his children; Mary Patterson, daughter of son Robert Patterson; daughter Jane Love; granddaughters Margaret Dollinson and Ester (Esther) Harrison; daughter Elizabeth; son-in-law Daniel Love; son Samuel Adams; Executors Robert Patterson and Samuel Adams. (Will Book No. 4, p. 301, Augusta County court records of Wills). Continued in the same entry is the following statement:

"We, the children of Margaret Adams, have recev'd of the exeunt the full of all legacy, I say recev'd, according to her desire and Will. Signed: Dan'l. Love, Jane Love (by her mark), Ester Harrison."

In the same connection, this further record:

"These are to certify to all persons whom, etc., that I, Robert Patterson of North Carolina, Tryon County, son of William Patterson deceased, do disclaim any right or title that is may be alleged belonging to me of a certain tract of land lying and being in Augusta County upon a small branch on the south side of Linvell's Creek, which said land was taken up by Margaret Adams, the widow of John Adams, deceased." Signed February 1, 1770 by Robert R. Patterson. Teste: Francis Adams, J.P., North Carolina, Tryon County. Ezekiel Polk, county clerk of Tryon County, certified that Francis Adams was a magistrate. Samuel Adams qualified as executor with Joseph Dictum and John Madison Jr., as bondsmen.

In Deed Book 16, Augusta County court records, p. 315, appears this entry:

"15th May 1770. Samuel Adams of North Carolina to Joseph Dictum, power of attorney to convey 340 acres on Linvel's Creek, devised by Margaret Adams, and from her descended to Samuel Adams as eldest son and heir, having been patented in the name of Mary Adams. Title yet to be made to Samuel."

That the above Samuel Adams was in fact the son of Samuel Adams Sr. named by Margaret Adams in her Will, is shown by the following record:

Will Book No. 1, Augusta County court records, p. 83, 18th May 1748, Margaret Adams' bond as administratrix of the estate of Samuel Adams deceased, with sureties Richard Dictum and Samuel Wilkins.

It is evident therefore that Margaret Adams outlived her son Samuel by about 32 years, and that his son, Samuel Adams Jr. qualified and received his father's share of Margaret Adams' estate.

The first child and daughter of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams was Ester (Esther) Harrison, undoubtedly the granddaughter named in the Will of Margaret Adams. Esther Harrison married Robert Cravens Jr., her first cousin.
Prior to her marriage to John Adams of Augusta County, Virginia, Margaret Adams was the widow of William Patterson. She had at least one child by him, a son Robert R. Patterson. As a general rule in those times middle Christian names were not bestowed on children, but were given occasionally to honor the mother or grandmother. The only middle Christian name accounted for in the immediate family of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams was in the case of their daughter, Lydia Donnell Harrison, first wife of her first cousin, Captain Reuben Harrison. Hence it seems likely that the maiden name of Margaret Patterson-Adams was Donnell. There were several Donnell families appearing in the early records of Augusta County, Virginia. As noted previously, the name Adams appeared frequently as a middle Christian name in descendant families of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, including those bearing Hood names.

That Margaret Patterson-Adams was the mother of Catherine, wife of Jeremiah Harrison, there can be little or no reasonable doubt.

A genealogy, The Adams Family, compiled by William Newton Adams, of Brooklyn, N. Y., reveals the probable ancestral background of John Adams, father of Catherine Adams, and ancestor therefore of so many Hood and Harrison family descendants.

In the absence of direct proof, there can be little doubt however, that John Adams was a son of Francis Adams Jr. b. about 1680 in Charles County, Maryland, d. 1766, in the same county, and Mary Godfrey, daughter of George Godfrey of Charles County, Maryland. They were married in 1704. This Francis Adams was a son of Francis Adams Sr. born in England about 1643, and Grace ---.

From the old Maryland records at Annapolis, it appears that under date of August 16, 1659, Zacharias Wade demanded land “for the transporting of Francis Adams, Mary Fox, Richard Nott and Edward Wade, Anno 1658, as appears on record this year.”

On October 2, 1661, 350 acres of land in Charles County, called “Troop’s Rendezvous,” on the east side of Fresh Avon River, were surveyed for Robert Troop, of which 185 acres were in possession of Francis Adams.

In September, 1666, Francis Adams entered “his marke of hogs and cattle.” The following patents for land in Charles County were issued to him: 100 acres called “Batchelors Hope,” patented November 2, 1668; 100 acres called “Raly” patented January 30, 1668-9 and 145 acres called “Pinnar” patented May 10, 1671.
In a deposition made by Francis Adams in court in 1668, he stated his age as "25 or 26 years."

On February 10, 1671, "came Francis Adams, of Charles County, and proved rights to 100 acres of land for his own and Grace, his wife's time of service performed in this Province. Warrant then granted the said Adams for 100 acres of land to him due as aforesaid. Certificate Returnable the 10th of May next."

Francis Adams' name appears occasionally in the court records as juryman, witness, party to deeds, etc. and in 1678 as a member of the Grand Jury. He was one of the signers of "The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Merchants, Planters, Freeholders, and Freemen, their Majesties Protestant Subjects in Charles County in the Province of Maryland" dated November 28, 1689 and addressed to William and Mary, then King and Queen of England.

On December 22, 1698, an inventory of the personal estate of Francis Adams, deceased, was filed by George Godfrey and John Payne, appraisers, and on June 7, 1699, an account was rendered by his widow Grace, as administratrix.

In 1694, Francis Adams Jr. of Charles County, Maryland, entered his "marke of Cattle and Hogs." George Godfrey, father of Mary, wife of Francis Adams Jr., came to Maryland in 1664 from England, and in 1680 was a justice of Charles County court and lieutenant of the troop of horse commanded by the noted ranger, Captain Randolph Brandt. In 1681, in the dissensions which culminated in the revolution of 1689, George Godfrey was accused of leading an attempt to rescue from prison the former Governor, Captain Josiah Fendall. He was tried, convicted of treason to the proprietary and sentenced to be hanged. This sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life and confiscation of his estate. He was however, shortly afterwards pardoned, and in 1693 obtained a grant of 150 acres of land, called "Troop's Rendezvous," and he flourished for twenty years or more thereafter. He is variously styled in the records as "Lieutenant," "Planter," "Carpenter" and "Gentleman."

By deed dated November 13, 1707, George Godfrey conveyed to Francis Adams and Mary his wife, "in Consideration of the Natural Love and affection which he hath and Beareth Towards the said Mary, his Daughter, the wife of said Francis Adams," part of a tract of land called "Troop's Rendezvous" in Charles County, comprising 100 acres; a gift previously acknowledged in court in 1704, and probably a marriage portion. On August 16, 1716, John Hammon conveyed to Francis Adams "in consideration of 3,136 pounds of Tobacco, and for divers other causes and considerations" certain parcels of land in Charles County, including “part of a tract called ‘Troop’s Rendezvous’ formerly in possession of George Godfrey,” and on this “Troop’s Rendezvous” plantation (of which 185 acres were in the possession of Francis Adams Sr. in 1661), George Godfrey resided up to the time of his death, when he must have been over 86 years of age.

Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, who settled finally in Greene County, Tennessee, raised a large family of 17 known children, 14 of whom were specifically named by Jeremiah in his Will, written September 15, 1793, and probated in the April, 1798 session of Greene County court. Thus it is known that Jeremiah Harrison, Virginian and East Tennessee pioneer and ancestor of many Tunis Hood descendants, died in that year at the remarkable age for that period of 91 years.

A transcript of the Will of Jeremiah Harrison, lodged in the Record of Wills, Book A-P, p. 140, Greene County court records, Greeneville, Tennessee, follows:

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN: The fifteenth of September, 1793—I Jeremiah Harrison of the County of Greene, Southwest Territory, being weak of body but of sound mind and memory blessed be God for his mercies, considering the frailty of the human species, do make and constitute this my Last Will, Disannulling all Will or Wills heretofore made by me.

First, I desire that my body be decently buried at the discretion of my Executors and after my just debts are discharged, to dispose of my worldly goods which God has blessed me with in the following manner, (viz):

I give and bequeath to Catherine my dearly beloved wife the whole of my worldly property and estate for her support during the time of life allowed her and what remains to be equally divided between my children to them their heirs and assigns forever, (viz):

Ester, Nehemiah, Josiah, Mary, Elinor, Abigail, Amos, Jane, Elizabeth, Isaiah, Bathsheba, Margaret, Ruth, and Grace Harrison, and I do appoint my son Isaiah Harrison and Samuel Harned Executors of this my Last Will and Testament.

/S/ JEREMIAH HARRISON (By his mark)

Green County Court minutes, period 1797-1800: Last Will & Testament of Jeremiah Harrison, Dec’d, Isaiah Harrison was appointed Executor at the April, 1798 sessions.

It is noted that Jeremiah Harrison signed his Will by his mark. He must have been either blind, or too feeble to write his name at the time his Will was written, since in other previous records, both in Virginia and Tennessee, he signed his name to legal documents in his own handwriting.
It is interesting to note that one of the daughters of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams was named Margaret, undoubtedly for her grandmother, Margaret Patterson-Adams. Another daughter named in the Will, was Elinor (Eleanor) who married Captain Tunis Hood Jr. of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina.

Three known children not named in the Will were: Benjamin, killed by Indians in 1754, fighting in the French and Indian Wars in Virginia; a daughter, Lydia Donnell Harrison, first wife of her cousin Captain Reuben Harrison, who died prior to 1780. There was also a Jeremiah Harrison Jr., whose name also appears in early Green County court records, but not named in the Will. There have been records of so many Jeremiah Harrisons, found variously in Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio, it is difficult to determine definitely which one was Jeremiah Jr. Likewise, there have been a great many Isaiah Harrisons, records of whom are found in various Southern States and Kentucky.

Good records of Isaiah Harrison, son of Jeremiah Sr., and executor of his estate are found in Greene County, Tennessee court and church records, and other sources. This Isaiah Harrison was born February 1, 1762 in old Augusta County, Virginia, and died October 1, 1851 in Greene County, Tennessee, aged approximately 90 years. This would indicate that he was probably the youngest, and likely the favorite son of Jeremiah Sr. He was married three times, the name of his first wife and probable mother of several of his oldest children, is unknown. His second wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Frederick Whittenburgh, b. 1770, d. 1838. She was probably the mother of most of his children. His third wife was Mary Jones, b. April 12, 1812, d. April 13, 1890. No records of children by this marriage, if any.

This Isaiah Harrison and his second and third wives are buried in Harrison Cemetery, near Harrison School, six miles south of Greeneville, Tennessee, in well marked graves. From his Will, and other reliable sources, the following are identified as his probable children:

2. Jeremiah Harrison, b. 1787, d. 1868; m. August 1, 1805 Elizabeth Jones. Many Greene County court records connect Isaiah Harrison and this Jeremiah Harrison as father and son. This Jeremiah left a Will, dated January 19, 1857, and probated July 21, 1868 in which he named his wife Elizabeth, and one son, Benjamin W. Harrison.

3. Eleanor Harrison, m. March 11, 1799 John Kelly Jr. of Greene County, Tennessee who d. in July 1822. Isaiah Harrison was administrator of his estate.

7. Caleb Harrison, b. Feb. 15, 1810, d. March 3, 1889; m. 1, March 15, 1832, Eliza Henshaw; m. 2, March 20, 1834, Mary (Polly) Bird.

11. Wesley Harrison, m. May 21, 1815, Polly Carter.

12. James Harrison, m. Feb. 1834, Rebecca Brooks. One known son was Stephen B. Harrison.

13. Sarah Harrison, m. Jan. 9, 1834, Henry Brooks. That she died prior to 1866 is indicated by his Will, written in that year, in which he names his wife Nancy. Obviously a second wife.

Among the other children of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, their daughter Eleanor, as stated previously, married Captain Tunis Hood Jr. of Mecklenburg County, N. C. See Family of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. for records of their children and descendants.

As stated before, Esther Harrison, eldest child and daughter of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, married her first cousin, Robert Cravens Jr. In his Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, J. Houston Harrison identified their children as follows:

1. Jeremiah Cravens, m. his cousin, Margaret Harrison, daughter of Zebulon Harrison.

4. Nehemiah Cravens, m. Sallie McCullough.

5. Margaret Cravens, m. Henry, son of Captain Abraham Smith.

6. Robert Cravens III, moved to Kentucky, thence to Georgia. No further record.

7. Eleanor Cravens, m. - - - Hawkins. They moved to Mississippi.

8. Abigail Cravens, m. - - - Hays. They also moved to Mississippi.
CAPTAIN REUBEN HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

REUBEN HARRISON, b. 1731 in Sussex County, Delaware, d. 1807 in Rockingham County, Virginia, son of John and Phoebe Harrison, and brother of Elizabeth Harrison, first wife of Tunis Hood Sr. He served in the Revolutionary War as a captain in the Virginia Militia. His children by first wife, Lydia Donnell Harrison, as identified by J. Houston Harrison, were:

1. Lucretia Harrison, d. unmarried.
2. Nathaniel Harrison b. 1807; m. Mary Woodley b. Feb. 12, 1764.
5. Lydia Harrison m. John Neely; m. John Woodley; moved to Warren County, Tenn.

Captain Reuben Harrison m. 2, Mary McDonald, probably a daughter of Alexander McDonald. Children by this marriage were:

13. Rachel Harrison, m. May 26, 1801, Jesse Harrison, son of Ezekiel Harrison. They also moved to Christian County, Ky. in 1815, later to Illinois and finally to Missouri.

DAVIS HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

DAVIS HARRISON, b. 1743 in present Rockingham County, Virginia, d. November, 1817 in Christian County, Kentucky, son of Thomas Harrison and second wife, Sarah Davis, was the third member of the Harrison family to marry into the Tunis Hood family. His wife was Phoebe Hood, daughter of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison, and therefore his half-first cousin.

On August 22, 1766, Davis Harrison was appointed road surveyor for Augusta County, Virginia; he was also serving as constable at the same time. (Order Books X, p. 233, and XI, p. 333, Augusta County court records.) This was probably about the time he married Phoebe Hood.

Mecklenburg County, N. C., court records indicate that Davis and Phoebe Hood Harrison lived for a time in that county after leaving Rockingham County, Virginia sometime after 1766, the exact year not definitely known. In the Mecklenburg County, N. C., court records of deeds, is recorded a deed executed by Davis and Phoebe Harrison, dated September 6, 1799, conveying 58 acres of land on McAlpine Creek in Mecklenburg County, to Solomon Hood of Iredell County, N. C. Solomon Hood was a son of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison, and therefore a brother of Phoebe Hood Harrison, wife of Davis Harrison. On the following day, September 7, 1799, Solomon and Sally Hood conveyed the same 58 acres tract to John Farson of Mecklenburg County, N. C. Davis and Phoebe Hood Harrison had prior to that time moved to Christian County, Kentucky, hence it would appear that Solomon and Sally Hood merely acted as proxy nominees in taking title to the 58 acres of land and completing sale to Farson as a convenience to Davis Harrison. There is no evidence that Solomon Hood and family ever lived in Mecklenburg County for any considerable length of time.

The Will of Davis Harrison, signed June 30, 1817, and proved November 3, 1817, is entered in the records of the Christian County, Kentucky, court. He named as legatees his wife Phoebe, and the following children:

1. Robert Harrison, m. July 1, 1813, Elizabeth Cravens.
2. Tunis Harrison, no marriage or family record.
3. Sarah Harrison, m. Reuben Harrison, son of Robert Harrison, a son of Zebulon Harrison, son of John and Phoebe Harrison of Rockingham County, Virginia.
5. Liddy (Lydia) Harrison, m. --- Reed.
6. Eddy (Edith) Harrison, m. --- Reed.
7. Mary Harrison, m. Robert Harrison, brother of Reuben Harrison above. They were married Oct. 15, 1815.

There was also a son, Davis Harrison Jr., not named in the Will. He married July 3, 1819, Fanny Harrison, daughter of Colonel Benjamin Harrison, son of Daniel Harrison of Rocking-Ham County, Virginia, a son of Isaiah Harrison and second wife, Abigail Smith. They moved to Illinois and thence to Franklin County, Missouri. His brother Tunis Harrison, also moved to Missouri, where all trace of them is lost, temporarily at least.

Davis Harrison Sr. named his sons Robert and Tunis Harrison as executors under his Will. Witnesses were Wm. G. Reynolds, Phillip Ford and John McDonald. His home place, patented December 13, 1811, was devised to sons Robert and Tunis, described as “Assigne of Robert Harrison, who was assigne of John Reed, Robert Harrison, assigne of Jeremiah Cravens.

On March 10, 1813, Davis Harrison Sr. was one of the witnesses to an agreement between William C. Davis and Robert Harrison Sr., the latter probably a son of Davis Sr. (Christian County, Ky., court minutes).

John Reed above, was one of the Reed sons-in-laws of Davis Harrison and Phoebe Hood. Whether he was the husband of daughter Lydia or Edith is not definitely known.

Jeremiah and Reuben Harrison, sons of Thomas Harrison Sr., of Rockingham County, Virginia, and founder of the city of Harrisonburg, Virginia, were brothers therefore of Davis Harrison Sr. They migrated to Christian County, Ky., about 1798.

There were several other known Davis Harrisons. One was Davis, son of Robert Harrison, another grandson of Thomas Harrison Sr. of Rockingham County, Va., b. August, 1783 in Rockingham County, Va., d. June 17, 1853 in Christian County, Ky., m. April 11, 1811, Sarah (Sally) Davis, daughter of James Davis. Also, Gideon Harrison, son of Zebulon, son of John and Phoebe Harrison of Rockingham County, Va., who migrated to North Carolina prior to 1788, thence in 1790 to Greene County, Georgia, where he died in 1797. His son, Davis Harrison was appointed administrator, June 2, 1797.

The Will of Reuben Harrison above, who married Sarah (Sally) Harrison, daughter of Davis Harrison Sr. and Phoebe Hood, signed September 20, 1838, and proved April 27, 1840, named as legatees, his wife Sarah, and the following children and grandchildren:

1. Son, Josiah Harrison.
2. Son, Davis Harrison III.
4. Son, Reuben Harrison Jr.
5. Son, George M. Harrison.
6. Daughter, Peggy (Margaret) Harrison, m. Elbert V. Harrison.
8. Grandson, Reuben M. Gray, also son of Wm. C. Gray and Elizabeth Harrison.
9. Grandson, - - - Webber.
10. Grandson, - - - Wallace.
11. Son-in-law, Elbert V. Harrison.

Robert Harrison, brother, was named executor. Opposition was noted by Elbert V. Harrison, son-in-law, and Lawrence Bryant, Elbert V. Harrison was a son of Colonel Benjamin Harrison above.

Many of these Harrison descendants of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison, as well as other Isaiah Harrison descendant lines, still live in and around Christian County, Kentucky, while others are scattered widely over the Middle West and Southwest. Time and labor effort has not permitted tracking them down.

NEHEMIAH HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

NEHEMIAH HARRISON, eldest son of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams, sold out his lands in Rockingham County, Virginia prior to 1790 and migrated to Mecklenburg County, N. C., where so many of his Hood cousins had previously settled. His name appears on the 1790 and 1800 Federal census for Mecklenburg County, but not thereafter. His brother Josiah Harrison also settled in Mecklenburg County sometime after 1800.

Nehemiah Harrison was named by his brother-in-law, Tunis Hood Jr., as one of the executors under his Will, written in 1799 and proved in October, 1802. That Nehemiah Harrison was alive as late as June, 1812, is shown by a deed record entered in the Mecklenburg County court records, wherein Nehemiah Harrison, Robert, Reuben and Tunis Hood III, executors of the estate of Tunis Hood Jr., deceased, conveyed 111 acres of land on McAlpine Creek to Robert Maxwell, a son-in-law of Tunis Hood Jr. his wife being Elizabeth Hood, daughter of Nehemiah Harrison. The property conveyed was the home place of Tunis Hood Jr., in Eastern Mecklenburg County, near the village of Mint Hill.

Nehemiah Harrison apparently died sometime after 1812, intestate. In the settlement of his estate, as shown by the Mecklenburg County court records, the following heirs participated in the distribution:
1. Daughter, Elizabeth Harrison, no further record.
2. Daughter, Margaret Adams Harrison, no further record.
3. Son, Jeremiah Harrison. No further record.

4. Son, Daniel Harrison, m. Nov. 20, 1820, Esther Hutchinson. No further record.

5. Son, Robert Harrison, listed in the 1820 Federal census for Mecklenburg County, members of his household in that year being 5 males under 10, 2 males 10-16, 1 male 26-45 (himself); 1 female under 10, 1 female 26-45 (his wife). One known son, Robert Harrison, Jr. m. March 16, 1841, Catherine Wilson. He is listed in the 1850 Federal census for Mecklenburg County, aged 28, wife Catherine, aged 26, son James, aged 7, daughter Ann aged 5. Living with them was Catherine Maxwell, aged 17.

6. Son, Josiah Harrison, no further record.

7. Nehemiah Adams Harrison b. Sept. 27, 1790, d. 1863; m. July 6, 1815 Mary (Polly) Wilson b. Sept. 17, 1795, d. Oct. 1, 1842. His Will, dated April 25, 1855, proved October, 1863, named only two daughters, Mary Farrow and Caroline Wallace. Named as executors were Sons-in-law Wilson Wallace and Thomas Farrow. A complete list of his children however, is found in his family Bible, now in possession of his descendant, Mrs. W. Frank Sample, 239 Travis Avenue, Charlotte, N. C. These children were:

a-2. Margaret Jane Harrison b. Dec. 31, 1820 d. - - - m. June 10, 1841, David Maxwell b. 1816, d. July 8, 1850. One known son was:

a-4. Elizabeth Mary Harrison b. Oct. 23, 1825, probably died in infancy.

a-5. Mary Elizabeth Harrison b. Sept. 28, 1827 d. - - - m. May 8, 1848, Thomas Marion Farrow, son of Stephen Farrow, b. Jan. 15, 1800, d. - - -

It is noted that the name Adams as a middle Christian name appears three times in this family.
Another known living descendant of Nehemiah Adams Harrison is Stephen L. Asbury, who lives on Route 5, Box 880, Charlotte, N. C.

JOSIAH HARRISON AND HIS FAMILY

JOSIAH HARRISON, son of Jeremiah Harrison and Catherine Adams; m. July 23, 1799 in Rockingham County, Virginia, his cousin Mary Cravens, daughter of John Cravens, who was a son of Captain Robert Cravens and Mary Harrison, daughter of Isaiah Harrison and first wife, Elizabeth Wright. The wife of John Cravens was Margaret (Hiatt) Dyer, widow of William Dyer. Josiah Harrison and his family migrated to Mecklenburg County, N. C., from Rockingham County, Virginia, prior to 1810. His name appeared on the Mecklenburg County Federal census list for that year, the first appearance.

The Will of Josiah Harrison, signed in 1810, was proved at the November, 1812 term of the Mecklenburg County Superior Court, Will Book L, p. 73. He named no wife, but the following children:

1. Jeremiah Harrison no further record. He was too young to have been an earlier Jeremiah Harrison appearing in the earliest census records of Iredell and Mecklenburg Counties, N. C., and later in Jasper County, Georgia, who was probably Jeremiah Harrison Jr. son of Jeremiah Harrison Sr. and Catherine Adams.
2. Samuel Harrison, no further record.
3. John Cravens Harrison, no further record.
4. Margaret Harrison, no further record.
5. Esther Harrison, no further record.
6. Elizabeth Adams Harrison, no further record.

HARRISON ANCESTRY OF PRESIDENT ABRAHAM LINCOLN

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, 16th President of the United States, b. Feb. 12, 1809, in Buffalo, Hardin (now LaRue) County, Kentucky, assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, and d. April 15, 1865, was a direct descendant of Isaiah Harrison, and therefore a kinsman of all Tunis Hood and Isaiah Harrison descendants. His parents were Thomas Lincoln, b. Jan. 5, 1778, in Augusta County, Virginia, d. Jan. 17, 1851 near Janesville, Illinois; m. 1, Jan. 12, 1806 at Beechland, Kentucky, Nancy Hanks b. 1783-8, d. Oct. 5, 1818 near Gentryville, Indiana, granddaughter of Joseph and Nancy Ann Hanks of Augusta County, Virginia. The names of her parents are not known. Besides Abraham, the President, they had a daughter, Sarah Lincoln, b. Feb. 10, 1807, d. 1828; m. in 1826, Aaron Grigsby of Spencer County, Indiana; and another son, Thomas Lincoln Jr. b. 1811, d. in infancy.

Thomas Lincoln m. 2, Dec. 2, 1819 in Elizabethtown, Kentucky, Sarah Bush, widow of Daniel Johnson. They had no children; she raised his two surviving children by Nancy Hanks, Abraham, the President, and Sarah, the daughter.

Thomas Lincoln was a son of Captain Abraham Lincoln b. May 13, 1744 in Berks County, Pennsylvania, killed by Indians May, 1785 in Jefferson County, Kentucky, and Bathsheba Herring, daughter of Alexander Herring and Abigail Harrison, who was a daughter of Isaiah Harrison and second wife, Abigail Smith.

Captain Abraham Lincoln was a son of John Lincoln, styled "Virginia John," b. May 3, 1716 in Monmouth County, N. J., d. November, 1788 in Rockingham County, Virginia, and Rebecca... John Lincoln moved with his family from Berks County, Pennsylvania, to the Linville Creek section of present Rockingham County, Virginia. The Lincoln family were near neighbors of Tunis Hood, who lived in the Linville Creek section of Rockingham County, Virginia before migrating to Mecklenburg County, N. C. An earlier neighbor of the Harrison and Hood families of the Linville Creek section, was Daniel Boone, who moved from there in 1751 to the Yadkin Valley section of North Carolina.

In a short autobiography, written out of regard for his old friend, Hon. Jesse W. Fell, and not for publication at that time, President Lincoln wrote:

"My parents were both born in Virginia. My paternal grandfather, Captain Abraham Lincoln, emigrated from Rockingham County, Virginia to Kentucky about 1781 or 2, when a year or so later, he was killed by the Indians, not in battle but by stealth when he was laboring to open a farm in the forest... My father, at the death of his father, was but six years of age, and he literally grew up without education." (See full autobiography in Power's History of the Early Settlers of Sangamon County, Illinois, p. 457.)

Following the death of her husband, Captain Abraham Lincoln, his widow, Abigail Herring Lincoln removed to Washington County, Kentucky. She died in 1836. (Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, p. 350.)

Thomas Lincoln, the father of President Abraham Lincoln, was a mule driver while living in Kentucky, and made frequent trips through Tennessee into North and South Carolina, driving herds of mules.
For a complete biography of the Harrison families of Rockingham County, Virginia, J. Houston Harrison's fascinating book Settlers by the Long Grey Trail, is recommended as good reading. (Joseph K. Ruebush Company, Publishers, 1935, Dayton, Virginia.)

CHAPTER XII

MARRIAGES AND FAMILY OF AEFJE HOOD

AEFJE HOOD, only known daughter of Jasper Hood and Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas, married 1, Thomas Meggelvain (McIlwain) of New York City. (Marriages, New York Dutch Churches). Their two children were:

Of the above sponsors, Cornelis Klopper was Cathrina Hood’s brother-in-law; Tryntje Whoood is of course, Cathrina, alias Tryntje Hood, mother of Aefje Hood. Another case of misspelling, so common to early New York Dutch records. John Whoood was certainly John Hood, brother of Aefje Hood; Jannetje Van Sane was a sister of Cathrina Andries Hood, alias Tryntje Luykas.

Aefje Hood’s name was also misspelled as Whoood and Woed, but obviously Aefje Hood.

Thomas Meggelvain (McIlwain) died some time prior to 1730. Aefje Hood then married 2, November 6, 1730, Alexander Bulsing of Phillipseberg, N. Y., (Marriages, N. Y. Dutch Churches, N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Soc.). Here again, her name was misspelled as Woed, but she was described in the marriage record as “widow of Thomas Mekkelveen (McIlwain),” hence there can be no doubt as to her true identity. It was the first marriage for Alexander Bulsing.

Alexander Bulsing and Aefje Hood had one daughter, Helena, baptised May 27, 1731 (Baptisms: N. Y. Dutch Churches, N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Soc.). Sponsors were: Hendrick Bulsing, probably a brother of Alexander, and Hyla Klopper, who was a first cousin of Aefje Hood.

That Aefje Hood died prior to October, 1733, is made certain by the record second marriage of Alexander Bulsing and Sara de Mildt, j.d. October 27, 1733 (Marriages: Dutch Churches, N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Soc.). Alexander Bulsing was described as the “widower of Aefje Whoood, widow of Thomas Mekkelveen.”
CHAPTER XIII

JOHN HOOD JR. AND HIS FAMILY

Records of John Hood Jr., son of John Hood Sr. and Rachel Van Bunschoten, are somewhat limited, although some skimpy circumstantial records of his descendants are presented. It is apparent from the early Augusta County, Virginia, court records that he moved from old Frederick County, Virginia, to that county about the same time as his brother Tunis, around 1742. In Augusta County court Order Book No. 1, there is a record that John Hood was selected as a jurymen September 17, 1846. A little later, in Augusta County court land book No. 1, is recorded a grant to John Hood of 400 acres of land, between the land of Hugh Thompson and Colonel Wood, near Robert McMahon's place. Jeremiah Harrison, a known close neighbor of John and Tunis Hood, was granted 100 acres of land adjoining that of John Hood at the same time. These tracts were located in the general Linville Creek section of what is now Rockingham County, near the present town of Broadway, Virginia. John Hood's 400 acres were later acquired by Robert McMahon.

There are records of the baptism of three children of John Hood Jr. during his residence in that section. The diary of Rev. John Craig, first pastor of Tinkling Spring Presbyterian Church in what is now Rockingham County, near the present city of Harrisonburg, Virginia, contains entries advising that he baptized Robert and Margaret Hood, children of John Hood, on April 27, 1749, and another son, John Hood (III) on November 27, 1749. (Florence Walton Maxwell History and Genealogy).

It is reasonably certain from published records that Robert Hood above, son of John Hood Jr., joined migrating pioneers moving from Augusta County, Virginia, to the Holston River section of what is now East Tennessee, then known as the Southwest Territory. Jeremiah Harrison and families were also members of those migrations. Both Robert Hood and Jeremiah Harrison stopped for a while and lived in Washington County, in the extreme southwest corner of Virginia, whence they moved about 1780 to what is now Greene County, Tennessee, then a part of North Carolina. Robert Hood was on the first tax list for Greene County, Tennessee (then North Carolina) for 1783. He lived in what is now the south edge of the city of Greeneville on land later owned in 1887 by a Mrs. Walker. (See Goodspeed's Records of East Tennessee, pp. 881-885, published in 1887). Other Greene County records show that Robert Hood operated the first general store in that county around the period 1783 and later. Robert Hood and William Boyd were signers to the petition for separation of the Western Country, then taking in all of the present state of Tennessee, from North Carolina, in 1783. Greene County had been organized as a North Carolina county in that year, and included several adjoining Tennessee counties.

That Robert Hood died in the year 1793 is shown by Greene County, Tennessee court minutes, period 1783-1796, p. 303, wherein it is recorded that Elizabeth Hood, David Russell and James Richardson were appointed August 21, 1793 as administrators of the estate of Robert Hood, deceased. In the records of the November, 1793 sessions, p. 316, is recorded an inventory of the estate of Robert Hood, deceased.

In Guardianships and Orphans Estates, Greene County, Tennessee, period 1803-1855, p. 1, Tuesday, January 25, 1803, Alexander McAlpin of Greene County was appointed guardian for Robert Hood, an orphan of said county. He was reasonably certain to have been a son of Robert Hood Sr. and wife Elizabeth. She evidently was deceased in 1803. There were probably other children of Robert and Elizabeth Hood, but no further verified records are presently available.

There are some Hood families living presently in Greene and Madison Counties, Virginia, who appear reasonably certain to be descendants of John Hood III above, son of John Hood Jr. Greene and Madison counties were originally a part of Augusta County. These Hoods are descendants of a John Hood of Madison County, Virginia, who was probably a son or a grandson of John Hood III above. One son of this John Hood of Madison County is identified by relatives as William Henry Hood, who married Evadna Simpson. They lived at Hood, Madison County, Virginia, a small village named for this Hood family. Records of their children and some descendants, furnished by James Haywood Hood of Hood, Virginia, were as follows:

   a-1. James Haywood Hood b. Sept. 12, 1908 in Hood, Va.; m. July 7, 1934, Mabel Lee Watts b. May 6, 1905 in Bethune,

Anna Maria Hennen, wife of General John B. Hood. See page 508.
Dr. John W. Hood, 1796-1857, father of General Hood. See page 507.
S. C. They live in Quinque, Virginia. Record of three children:

a-5. Stanley Walker Hood b. March 7, 1913 in Hood, Va.; m. July 16, 1941, Dorothy Nethers b. Sept. 23, 1913, daughter of George Nethers and Irna Thornhill. They live in Hood, Virginia. Record of one son:

5. Elizabeth Hood b. - - - in Hood, Va. No further record.

That John Hood Jr. who was baptised January 8, 1721 in the Dutch Reformed Church at Kingston, N. Y., under the Holland Dutch spelling of his name as Johannes Hoed, died prior to 1771, is shown by the record of deeds executed by Tunis Hood, and Elizabeth, his wife, dated February 14, 1771 and August 1, 1771, Frederick County, Virginia records, wherein Tunis Hood described himself as "the sole surviving son and heir of John Hood, Sr. deceased." The land conveyed was described as a part of an original tract of 1,175 acres granted to John Hood Sr. November 12, 1735.

At the time of his father's death in early 1742, John Hood Jr. had notified the Orange County, Virginia court, where administration of the estate of John Hood Sr. was first ordered, of his intent to appear and protest his father's Will. Subsequent Frederick County, Virginia court records, where administration of the estate had been transferred, do not show that John Hood Jr. followed through on his declaration of intent to contest the Will. In fact, later records indicate that he had reconciled his differences with the family, and was shown by Frederick County rentals records, as the executor of the estate of John Hood, Sr. deceased. This was in 1759, and he continued to appear on the records as executor through 1764. Tunis Hood is also mentioned as one of the heirs of John Hood Sr. in these records.

A study of Virginia records fails to identify the wife of John Hood Jr. Pending verified records of other descendants, the family of this John Hood Jr. must be numbered among the Hood "Lost Tribes."

In Order Book No. 1, Augusta County, Virginia court records, under County Court Judgments, November, 1754, John Hood was named as assignee of Andrew Barclay in connection with a lawsuit, Andrew Barclay vs William McKinley and Alexander McKinley. These McKinleys later moved to Mecklenburg County, N. C. One of them, probably William, was the ancestor of President of the United States, William McKinley.
CHAPTER XIV
THE LUCAS HOOD FAMILY

LUCAS HOOD, second son of Jasper Hoed (Hood) and Cathrina Andries, alias Tryntje Luykas, was baptised October 20, 1708 at the New York City Dutch Reformed Church, under the Holland Dutch spelling of his name as Luykas Hoed (Baptism, New York Dutch Churches, N. Y. Biog. Gen. Society). He died about April, 1771 in old Frederick County, Virginia, in what is now Berkeley County, West Virginia. His Will, written November 30, 1770, and proved May 7, 1771, filed in the records of wills, Frederick County, Virginia court house at Winchester, Virginia, identifies his wife Johannah, and eight of his known nine children.

Lucas Hood appears to have settled first in Readington, Somerset County, New Jersey, where records of his marriage to Johannah Van Stockholmand the baptismal records of their first two children are lodged in the Readington, N. j., Dutch Reformed Church (Somerset County Historical Quarterly, Vol. IV, pp. 300-302). In those records his name appears spelled as Lukas Hoed.

Aaron, apparently the first born son and child, was baptised Oct. 31, 1742 at the Reading, N. J., Dutch Reformed Church. Jan (John), the next son and child, was baptised at the same church, Feb. 3, 1745. Sponsors were Rynier Van Sichelin and Mersere. The Van Sichelin family had moved from Long Island, N. Y. to New Jersey. They are said to have been one of the prominent Holland Dutch families of Long Island. Johannah Van Stockholm was probably a relative, although her name, obviously patronymic, suggests that she was at least part Swedish.

It is indicated from available court records that Lucas Hood and family moved from Readington, N. J., first to Pennsylvania, probably in the general Philadelphia area, whence they moved on south to the Shenandoah Valley section of Virginia, some few years following the death of his older brother Jan Hoed, then known by his Anglicized names as John Hood, who died early in 1742. The wording of Lucas Hood's Will suggests that he and his family were Quakers, as were his brother John and family. John Hood and family had settled in that part of Virginia, now Berkeley County, West Virginia, about 1733. In Book M. p. 451, in the index of original Northern Neck land patents in the Virginia State Land Office at Richmond, Va., shows that Lucas Hood Sr. of Frederick County patented 133 acres on Sleepy Creek, August 26, 1765. He is believed to have moved to Virginia much earlier than this however, and settled near the home place of his brother John on the upper Potomac River section of Back Creek in present Berkeley County, West Virginia, although his place may have been a little farther east near Shepherdstown, in present Jefferson County, West Virginia, then a part of Frederick County, Virginia. Following the action of his brother John, he Anglicized the spelling of his name to Lucas Hood, his sons doing likewise. He was commonly known as Luke Hood. There are many records found in the Frederick County court files, as well as several adjoining counties, involving his name, and to some extent the names of his sons John, Lucas Jr., and Andrew. Berkeley County, now West Virginia, was formed from Frederick County, Virginia, as Berkeley County, Virginia, in 1772. West Virginia was formed as a separate state during the War Between the States.

1. Aaron Hood baptised Oct. 31, 1742 in the Readington, N. J., Dutch Reformed Church; not named in his father's Will but known to have moved to Wilkes County, N. C., where his name appeared in the first Federal Census of that county in 1790. Most of his children appear to have moved over into East Tennessee, settling mostly in Knox, Polk and Blount Counties, where some good early probable records are found. See further report.

2. Jan (John) Hood baptised Feb. 3, 1745 in the Readington, N. J., Dutch Reformed Church. Some limited records of him in old Frederick County, Va., and Berkeley County, W. Va., records. In his book Historic Shepherdstown, pp. 66-67, Danske Dandridge wrote as follows:

   "The rent rolls of Berkeley County, W. Va., which was a county of old Virginia, having been cut off from Frederick County in 1772, show the following names for the years 1774, 1775, 1776, 1777, 1778, 1779, 1800, 1801, 1802 and 1803, John Hood, 303 acres and 284 acres respectively." There are strong indications that he moved later to Eastern Kentucky, where the name John Hood appears frequently in records of several counties, including Montgomery and Bath. No further definite records.

3. Andrew Hood b. about 1747 probably in Pennsylvania. See further record.
4. Lucas Hood Jr. b. about 1750 or earlier probably in Pennsylvania, died about 1825, probably in Montgomery County, Ky. That he served as a soldier in the American Revolution is shown in Historical Register of Virginia in the Revolution by John H. Gwathmey. This was undoubtedly Lucas Hood Jr. He is believed to have settled later in or around Montgomery County, Kentucky, where some records of a Lucas Hood appear, and not apparently Lucas Hood III, son of Andrew Sr. No further record.

5. Thomas Hood b. —- d. —- named in his father’s Will as “my young son Thomas.” Believed to have moved to Pennsylvania. No further record.

6. Cattren (Catherine) Hood b. —- d. —-; m. —- Smith. No further record.

7. Leora or Lena Hood b. —- d. —-; m. —- Francis. No further record.

8. Margaret Hood b. —- d. —- unmarried in 1771. No further record.

AARON HOOD AND SOME PROBABLE DESCENDANTS

AARON HOOD baptised October 31, 1742 in the Dutch Reformed Church at Readington, N. J., d. —- probably in Wilkes County, N. C., where his name appears in the 1790 federal census for that county. The name of his wife is not known. One probable son was Lucas Hood, whose name appeared in the 1850 census for Blount County, Tennessee, aged 76, which would date his birth year as approximately 1774. He was born in Virginia. His wife’s name was listed as Sarah, aged 64, born in North Carolina, which would date her approximate birth year as 1786. This could not have been Lucas Hood Jr. since he was born three years after the death of Lucas Hood, Sr. That he was a grandson of Lucas Hood, Sr., however, can be certain. There are a number of court records involving this Lucas Hood and some of his children found in the Blount County, Tennessee county court files. A careful analysis of the Blount and Knox Counties, Tennessee, identify the sons of Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tennessee, to a reasonable certainty as: William, Aaron, Robert, Gilbert, Thomas and John Hood. Isaac Hood of Blount County was probably another son. A daughter, Mary (Polly) married Feb. 11, 1847, James Mayfield.

The 1830 Census for Blount County, Tennessee listed the following Hoods:
Luke Hood—males 2 under 5, 1 5-10, 1 10-15, 1 15-20, and 1 40-50 (himself); females 1 under 5, 1 10-15 and 1 40-50 (his wife).

Isaac Hood—males 1 20-30 (himself), females 1 under 5, and 1 15-20 (his wife).

Nathaniel Hood—males 1 5-20, 1 15-20 and 1 50-60 (himself); females 1 10-15 and 1 20-30. Apparently he was a widower in that year.

The Nathaniel Hood name is more common to the early New England Hood families, who were of English origin, and has seldom appeared in families of the Jasper Hood line. Hence, Nathaniel Hood and Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tennessee were probably not related.

The Blount County tax lists for the years 1837 and 1839 include the names of John Hood and Daniel R. Hood. Nathaniel Hood lived in that tax district.

Blount County court records show that Lucas Hood made trust deeds in 1846, 1848, and 1852, and then sold the land in 1852. The land had been granted to him.

That Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tennessee died prior to or about 1858 is shown by the following deeds records filed in the Blount County court:

Book Z, p. 365, June 25, 1859; Lucas Hood, deceased, by his heir Thomas Hood to Rockford Manufacturing Company “my undivided interest, being 1/11th” etc.

Book V N, p. 236, September 28, 1858: Aaron Hood of Knox County, Tennessee deed covering 74 acres of land on waters of Stock Creek, being a part of the tract where Aaron Hood lives.

Appearance of the name of Aaron Hood as a son of Lucas Hood, would appear to confirm that he, Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tennessee, was a son of Aaron Hood, son of Lucas Hood Sr. and Johannah Van Stockholm, who had settled in Wilkes County, North Carolina some time prior to 1790. Wilkes County is in the northwestern part of North Carolina. Many residents of the county migrated to East Tennessee in the early 1800’s.

The 1850 Census for Blount County, Tennessee provides some further identity of the families of some of the children of Lucas Hood of Blount County:
Thomas Hood, aged 48, born in Tennessee;
Elizabeth Hood, aged 31, born in Tennessee: (his wife)
Children named were:
1. Mary Hood, aged 19, born Tennessee;
2. Lucas Hood, aged 10, born Tennessee;
3. William Hood, aged 6, born Tennessee;
4. Robert Hood, aged 1, born Tennessee.
Mary Hood above must have been a daughter by a first wife.

Thomas Hood probably was a son of Lucas Hood by a first wife.
Robert Hood, aged 31, born Tennessee;
Ellen Hood, aged 23, born Tennessee (she was Eleanor Tally)
Two children listed:
1. Isabella Hood, aged 3, born Tennessee.
2. Elizabeth Hood, aged 1, born Tennessee.

There is a record of the marriage of Luke Hood and Elizabeth McCavern, February 25, 1816 in Knox County, Tennessee.
He appears to have been a Luke Hood who was living in Sparta, White County, Tennessee, in 1791. This would indicate that Elizabeth McCavern was a second wife. He does not appear to have been the Lucas Hood of Blount County, whose wife was named in the 1850 Census of that county as Sarah, unless possibly Elizabeth McCavern was his second wife, in which event Sarah most likely would have been a third wife. A further research of these two Lucas Hood families, if they were two different men, offers interesting possibilities by some living member or members of the Lucas Hood line, whose ancestry is connected with East Tennessee. In that connection the following records should offer some likely clues:

Early Blount County, Tennessee marriages:
Feb. 21, 1814: Edward Hart and Elizabeth Hood.
May 23, 1821: Jeremiah Hays and Margaret Hood. Bondsman Samuel George.
March 30, 1830: Alexander Hood and Sarah Frow. Bondsman Darius Hoyt, M.G.
July 19, 1832: Daily W. Hood and Nancy Tipton. Bondsman Wm. Toole.

March 25, 1847: Robert Hood and Eleanor Tally. Bondsman B. F. Duncan.

April 13, 1848: William Hood and Margaret J. Cupp. Bondsman Alex. O. George.

Sept. 7, 1852: Thomas Hood and Rebecca Roddy. Bondsman D. Caldwell.

Nov. 1, 1853: Jasper Hood and Celia A. Kidd. Bondsman D. Caldwell.

Jasper Hood above may have been a younger son of Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tennessee. He was undoubtedly of the Lucas Hood line.

There is record of the marriage, May 28, 1823 in Polk County, Tennessee, of Aaron Hood and Nancy Hensey. This could not have been the Aaron Hood of Blount County, son of Lucas Hood of that county, who married Feb. 24, 1848, Sarah Kidd. He must therefore have been the son of another son of Aaron Hood of Wilkes County, N. C.

There was a Robert Hood family listed in the 1850 Census for Polk County, Tennessee who are certain to have been descendants of Lucas Hood Sr. and Johannah Van Stockholm. Polk County is in the extreme southeastern section of Tennessee, adjacent to Knox County, and bordering North Carolina.
Robert Hood, the head of this Hood family was listed in the 1850 Census for Polk County as aged 55, born in Virginia, hence his birth year would be approximately 1795. His wife was Mary, aged 52, born in Tennessee, believed to have been Mary Harrison, daughter of Isaiah Harrison of Polk County, Tennessee, who probably lived in Mecklenburg County, N. C., before moving to Polk County, Tennessee. Contacts were made with some living descendants of this Hood family, who furnished the names of their children as follows:

1. John Calvin Hood b. April 12, 1822, d. Nov. 15, 1866. See further report.
2. Robert Lafayette Hood b. - - - d. recently in California; never married.
3. Rufus Hood b. 1830, d. --- No further record.
4. Alexander Isaiah Hood b. 1833, d. 1882; see further report.
5. Jack Hood b. - - - d. - - - No further record.
6. Mary Hood b. - - d. - - - No further record.
7. Eliza Hood b. - - - d. - - - No further record.
8. Sarah Hood b. - - - d. - - - No further record.
9. Elmira Hood b. - - - d. - - - Probable twin; no further record.
10. Elvina Hood b. - - - d. - - - Probably twin of Elmira. No further record.

JOHN CALVIN HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN CALVIN HOOD b. April 1822 in North Carolina, d. Nov. 15, 1866 in Benton, Polk County, Tennessee. Some records of this family, and ancestral background, was published by the youngest son, the late Richard Bartow Hood, in his autobiography, a copy of which was furnished by his widow, Mrs. Mary Cocke Hood, who was alive at last report, living at 814 South Waco Street, Weatherford, Texas. Wife of John Calvin Hood was Mary M. O'Neal b. 1832 in Indiana, d. --- in Weatherford, Texas. Richard Bartow Hood wrote that his father, John Calvin Hood was brought to Polk County, Tennessee from North Carolina when a small boy. Tennessee historical records advise that his parents, the Robert Hood family were the first white settlers south of the Hiwassee River in the Ocoee section at the base of the Chilhowee Mountains, when Indians were the only inhabitants of that section up to that time.

In his autobiography, Richard Bartow Hood stated that his ancestry was Scotch-Irish on his mother's side, and English and Holland Dutch on his father's. His daughter and only child, Miss Cornelia Hood, a teacher in the Fort Worth, Texas, public schools inherited an ancient flax spinning wheel from a great uncle, the tradition being that it was brought to America from Holland by early Hood ancestors who were Dutch colonial settlers of New Netherland, now New York. Richard Bartow Hood was a prominent attorney of Weatherford, Texas; a former member of the Texas legislature and a circuit court judge at the time of his death. He was commonly known as Judge Bartow Hood.

Children of John Calvin Hood and Nancy M. O'Neal were:
1. Miranda Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. Sam Selvidge. No further record.
2. Eliza Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. J. M. Clifton. No further record.
3. Sibbie Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. D. E. Pierce. No further record.
4. William Hood b. - - - d. - - - No further record.
5. John Hood b. - - - d. - - - No further record.
6. Robert Hood b. - - - killed - - - in an accident in Texas.
7. George Hood b. - - - d. - - -; m. Maggie Selvidge. No further record.
8. Richard Bartow Hood b. June 26, 1863 in Polk County, Tennessee, d. March 1, 1943 in Weatherford, Texas; m. Mary Prince Cocke b. - - - They had one daughter.
   a-1. Cornelia Hood b. - - - unmarried, she is a teacher in the Fort Worth, Texas, public schools.
9. Abbie Elender Hood b. - - - d. - - - unmarried.

The following excerpts are taken from the auto-biography of Richard Bartow Hood:

"My father, John Calvin Hood, was a farmer and 'stock drover' and at the beginning of the Civil War had accumulated considerable property and some Negro slaves, but during that holocaust of blood most all was swept away. The end of the war found him almost a financial wreck. I have but slight recollection of him, a very attractive man in his personal appearance, being of blonde type, more than six feet big, and weighing over two hundred pounds. He was half and half—English and Holland Dutch, and my mother likewise was half and half, but it was Irish and Scotch.

"My father was a close cousin of General John B. Hood of the Confederate Army, and visited General Hood at his field headquarters during his ill-fated Tennessee campaign.

"My father died from a relapse of smallpox, contracted on a trip with stock to South Carolina and Georgia. He left my mother with nine children, five boys and four girls, considerable property and quite as much debts. The country had been almost devastated by both armies sweeping back and forward through that section almost continuously for four years.

"After my father died, my mother sold the property, paid off the debts, and gathered together what was left, two covered wagons, four big mules, and her nine children; bade adieu forever to her friends and relatives, and kissed the earth where her children were born, on a beautiful day in September, 1867, bound for the Eldorado of Texas."
Family tradition advises that the wife of Robert Hood of Polk County, Tennessee was Mary Harrison, daughter of Isaiah Harrison and Mary -- --. Appearance of the name Isaiah in several descendant families gives substance to this tradition. There were several Harrison families in Polk County, Tennessee, listed in the 1850 census of that county, among which was Isaiah Harrison, aged 60, born in Virginia and wife Mary, aged 47, born in North Carolina. This Isaiah Harrison was undoubtedly a descendant of the Isaiah Harrison family of Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y., Delaware and Rockingham County, Virginia, descendants of whom have been so closely linked by marriage with members of the Tunis Hood family. There was an early resident of Mecklenburg County, N. C., named Isaiah Harrison who was probably the later Polk County, Tennessee resident.

ALEXANDER ISAIAH HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

ALEXANDER ISAIAH HOOD b. 1833 in Polk County, Tennessee, d. 1882 in McMinn County, Tennessee; m. in 1851, Martha Ann Higgins b. - - - d. 1906. A cripple from birth, on account of his physical condition, he received the best educational advantages that those early pioneer days afforded. Before reaching his majority, he became a successful Indian trader, and located at Benton, Tennessee about 1840. There he married in 1851, Martha Ann Higgins, daughter of William H. Higgins, one of the early settlers and wealthy farmers of Polk County.

Records of the children and known descendants of Alexander Isaiah Hood and Martha Ann Higgins, as furnished by their granddaughter, Mrs. Jessie Hood Evans of Chattanooga, Tennessee, were:

1. James Howard Hood b. 1853 in Polk County, Tennessee, d. 1919 in McMinn County, Tennessee; m. Alice Hughes b. 1858 d. 1912. After graduating from college in Atlanta, Georgia, at the age of twenty-one, he taught school in Texas and old Indian Territory (now Oklahoma), and later in Benton County, Tenn. In 1883 he founded the Polk County News in Benton, Tenn. After a year of successful management, he sold his interest in the paper and became telegraph operator and agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, now part of the Southern Railway System. He afterwards founded the McMinn Citizen at Athens, Tennessee, of which he was managing editor until the time of his death. Children and known descendants of this union were:
   a-1. Lily Ethel Hood b. 1881; m. -- - Streeter. No children.
492  THE TUNIS HOOD FAMILY

a-3. Annie May Hood b. 1892, unmarried.
a-4. Jessie Marian Hood b. ---; m. David W. Evans b. 1888, d. 1948. She lives in Chattanooga, Tennessee. Their two children:
3. William A. Hood b. 1881, d. in infancy.
4. Lily Hood b. --- d. 1917; m. Joseph McCollum b. --- Their children: a-1. Clarence McCollum b. ---; m. Claudia Waters b. --- Record of one son:
   b-1. Clarence McCollum Jr. b. 1923, d. 1940.

Some further records of apparent descendants of Robert Hood and Mary Harrison have been furnished by William Isaiah Hood of Bentonville, Arkansas, and Barto Roy Hood, of House, New Mexico, who claim to be cousins, and state that their fathers were first cousins of the late Judge Richard Bartow (Barto) Hood of Weatherford, Texas. They also state that their Hood ancestors came from East Tennessee. William Isaiah Hood states that a tradition in his family advises an early Hood ancestor in New York received a grant of land from the “Queen of Holland.” While somewhat distorted as to the actual facts, this nevertheless confirms what a number of other descendants seem to know by tradition—that descendants of Lucas Hood appear to have better records of their early Holland Dutch ancestry, than Tunis Hood descendants have known, until this research developed and verified the facts of Holland Dutch and Danish ancestry.

William Isaiah Hood, who is now more than 85 years of age, and unmarried, has furnished some limited records of his family, which have made possible the tracing of the early members of his line, through Federal Census records. He states that his father was James Hood, born in Jasper County, Missouri, name of mother not stated, and that his father James Hood was a son of Joel N. Hood, born in Jasper County, Missouri in 1837, d. ---

According to the 1850 Federal Census for Jasper County, Missouri, Joel N. Hood was a son of Samuel J. Hood and Susan --- both born 1815 in Tennessee. These Census records follow:

Family of Samuel J. Hood:
Samuel J. Hood b. 1815 in Tennessee
Susan Hood, his wife, b. 1815 in Tennessee Children:
1. Joel N. Hood b. 1837 in Jasper County, Mo. See further record.
2. Charles M. Hood b. 1840 in Jasper County, Mo. No further record.
3. Margaret E. Hood, b. 1842 in Jasper County, Mo. No further record.
4. Ezra P. Hood b. 1844 in Kansas. No further record.
5. Samuel J. Hood Jr. b. 1846 in Kansas. No further record.

Children of Joel N. Hood, as furnished by William Isaiah Hood of Bentonville, Arkansas, wife not named, were:
1. Norris Hood b. --- d. ---
2. Joseph Hood b. --- d. ---
3. William Hood b. --- d. ---
5. Chriss (Christopher) Hood b. --- d. --- See further report.
6. David Crockett Hood b. --- d. --- See further report.
7. Tabitha Hood b. --- d. --- No further record.
8. Sarah Hood b. --- d. --- No further record.

Family records of Christopher Hood above, as taken from the 1850 Census for Jasper County, Missouri, were as follows:
1. Christopher Hood, aged 40, born in Missouri.
2. Susan Hood, his wife, aged 38, b. in Missouri.

Their children in 1850:
a-1. Charles A. Hood aged 17 b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-2. Bettie Hood aged 15, b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-3. Henry Hood aged 12 b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-4. John Hood aged 11 b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-5. Fannie Hood aged 7 b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-6. Michael (Mike) Hood aged 4 b. in Missouri. No further record.
a-7. Frederick Hood aged 1 year b. in Missouri. No further record.

No tracing of the descendants of the above children has been attempted.

Some records of the family of David Crockett Hood, son of Joel N. Hood, have been provided by a son, Barto Roy Hood of House, New Mexico. He states that his father died when he was young and that he was raised by relatives. He had been told that his great-grandparents, Samuel J. Hood and Susan --- were born in East Tennessee, and moved first to Illinois after leaving Tennessee, thence to Jasper County, Missouri. Most members of the family later moved to the vicinity of Bentonville, Arkansas, whence his own parents moved to Bosque County, Texas, where they are buried. He states that he has lived in House, New Mexico for more than thirty-five years. He stated also that he was named for Judge Richard Bartow (Barto) Hood of Weatherford, Texas, who was a close cousin of his father’s.

Children of David Crockett Hood b. - - d. August 12, 1899, and wife, Mary Frances Lindsey, b. - - in Webb City, Missouri, d. 1925 in Glenrose, Texas, as stated by Barto Roy Hood were:

1. Edgar Hood b. - - ; m. Lela Heathington. No further record.

2. Jasper Hood b. - - ; m. Erie Walker. No further record.

3. Charles Hood b. - - ; m. Lora Thompson. No further record.

4. Temple Hood b. - - ; m. 1, Eva Horton; m. 2, - - No further record.

5. Walter Hood b. - - ; m. Jessie Terrell. No further record.

6. Barto Roy Hood b. July 11, 1890; m. March 7, 1915, Bessie McVicker b. Sept. 29, 1892. Record of one daughter:

   a-1. Leona Hood b. Nov. 11, 1925; m. Oct. 1, 1949, Ivan Rush

7. Lena Hood b. - - ; m. Robert Franklin Walker. No further record.

8. Elizabeth Hood b. - - ; m. Clarence Boggs. No further record.

9. Anna Laurie Hood b. - - ; m. David Bowden. No further record.

Nancy Frances Lindsey above, wife of David Crockett Hood, was a sister of Judge F. G. Lindsey of Bentonville, Arkansas, still alive at last report.

It does not seem likely that Samuel J. Hood, grandfather of David Crockett Hood was a son of Robert Hood and Mary Harrison, but he was probably a member of the same family branch. Likewise, it would appear that David Crockett Hood, James Hood, father of William Isaiah Hood, and Judge Richard Bartow (Barto) Hood were first cousins, but they very likely were second cousins. The father of Robert Hood of Benton, Polk County, Tennessee, is not definitely identified, but it seems certain that he was of the Lucas Hood branch of the Jasper Hood line. He may have been a son of Lucas Hood of Blount County, Tenn., by an earlier marriage, or possibly a son of Lucas Hood formerly of Sparta, White County, Tenn., and later of Knox County, Ten-nsee, by an earlier marriage. These two Lucas Hoods do not appear to have been one and the same man, but both obviously were of the Lucas Hood Sr. branch of the Jasper Hood line.

Several other Hood families of Jasper County, Missouri, and later Arkansas, are likewise probable descendants of East Tennessee Hoods, of the Lucas Hood branch. These families were:

David Crockett Hood (I) b. about 1816 in Tennessee, and wife Idella --- b. about 1824 in Ohio, had the following two children in 1850:

2. Esther C. Hood aged 15, b. Missouri.

David K. Hood b. about 1795 in Tennessee, and wife Susan J. --- b. about 1813 in Tennessee, were living in Jasper County, Missouri in 1850 with the following children:

5. Sarah E. Hood aged 8, b. Missouri.
8. Cora C. Hood aged 1, b. Missouri.

Living in the same family was Martha Hood, aged 97, b. in South Carolina, undoubtedly the mother of David K. Hood.

Also living in Jasper County, Missouri in 1850, was John N. Hood, aged 34, and wife Mary A. --- aged 21, b. in Missouri. They had one child in 1850:

1. John N. Hood, Jr., aged 1 year, b. in Missouri.

Also living with this family were James Hood, aged 80, b. in Tennessee, and Agnes Hood, aged 73, b. in Kentucky, undoubtedly the parents of John N. Hood.

Stephens M. Hood aged 36 in 1850, b. in Tennessee, and wife Miriam ---- aged 37, b. in Kentucky, were living in Jasper County, Missouri in 1850, with the following children:

4. Kate Hood aged 3, b. Missouri.
5. Lucy Hood aged 1, b. Missouri.

Norris C. Hood, aged 26 in 1850, b. in Tennessee, and wife Mary Fannye ---- aged 23, b. in Tennessee, were living in Jasper County, Missouri in 1850. He was undoubtedly the son of Joel N. Hood. They had these children in 1850:

1. Margaretta Hood aged 2, b. in Missouri.
2. Eunice Hood aged 1, b. in Missouri.

Also living with this family was Z. Taylor, aged 23, b. in Tennessee. He was probably a brother of Mary Fannye Hood above.

H. O. Wilson Sr. of Route 1, Evant, Texas, advises that his mother was a daughter of Isaac Newton Hood, who was a son of Daley Walker Hood. This was undoubtedly the Daley W. Hood who married July 19, 1832, Nancy Tipton, in Blount County, Tennessee. Mr. Wilson stated that his mother's family were close relatives of General John B. Hood, hence they would be of the Lucas Hood branch. Daley W. Hood may have been a son of Dr. William Newton Hood, who was a son of Dr. William S. Hood, son of Lucas Hood III and Frances Wills.

Charlie J. Hood of Florence, Texas, advises that his father, Onslow Marshall Hood, now 85 years of age and living in Lometa, Texas, is a second cousin of General John B. Hood, hence a member of the Lucas Hood branch of the Jasper Hood family. Onslow Marshall Hood was a son of Onslow Marshall Hood Sr., b. July 7, 1836 in McMinn County, Tennessee, d. 1916. He was a son of Joseph Bennefield Hood of McMinn County, Tennessee, which is near Blount County. Charlie J. Hood, now aged 44, was born in Sidney, Texas. He is a professional rodeo rider. He has a son Ronald Lee Hood, aged 19, and a daughter Charlene, aged 17. His father has one brother living, Joseph Bennefield Hood II, who lives in Lometa, Texas, and one sister, Mrs. Mettie Hood Bennett of Arnett, Texas. Onslow Marshall Hood has seven living sons and two daughters.

The late Rev. Andrew Oslin Hood, of Sierra Blanca, Texas, advised that his father, William A. Hood was a second cousin of Judge Richard Barto Hood of Weatherford, Texas, and that his grandfather Andrew M. Hood was either a first or second cousin of General John B. Hood. He gave the following record of his Hood ancestry:

Great-grandparents Robert Hood b. Dec. 23, 1777, in either North Carolina or Virginia, d. August 14, 1858; wife Elizabeth --- b. Oct. 15, 1786 in North Carolina he though, d. --- They lived in East Tennessee and had these children:

2. William A. Hood b. March 13, 1809, d. ---
3. John Hood b. August 14, 1811, d. ---
5. Demaris Hood b. Jan. 11, 1816, d. ---
6. Martha Hood b. Feb. 26, 1818, d. ---
9. Samuel A. Hood b. April 12, 1826, d. ---
10. Elizabeth Hood b. August 12, 1829, d. ---

Andrew M. Hood above married Lucinda A. Scurlock b. July 23, 1829 in Alabama, d. Sept. 18, 1910 in Texas. Their known children were:
a-3. James Alva Hood b. May 12, 1858 in Texas, d. 1943 in Texas.
a-4. Thomas Andrew Hood b. Dec. 26, 1862 in Texas, d. ---

Rev. Andrew O. Hood, son of William A. Hood II above, stated that his parents had seven sons and five daughters; three sons including Rev. Andrew O. Hood, now deceased. Others are living in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. Rev. Hood did not send the records of his own immediately family.

It would appear that this family descended from one of the Kentucky Andrew Hood branches. Rev. Hood also advised that it was a tradition in his family that his early Hood ancestors were mostly Holland Dutch Colonial settlers in New York, and that some were said to have been part Danish.

ANDREW HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

ANDREW HOOD b. about 1747, probably in Pennsylvania, d. --- named by Lucas Hood, Sr. in his Will as his third son; married early in 1769, Massa Sudduth b. 1748 in old Frederick County, Virginia. They lived for a time in Shepherdstown, in old Frederick County, Virginia, but now in Jefferson County, West Virginia. From there they moved in 1774 to Pennsylvania, and ten years later they moved permanently to what was then Bourbon County, Kentucky where he built what was known as the site of Hood's Station. This site was originally in Fayette County, but was cut off in 1785 and made a part of newly formed Bourbon County. Then, again in 1792 that part of Bourbon County was cut off and incorporated as a part of newly formed Clark County. The site is presently in Clark County near Winchester on the Lexington Pike. Some early court records of several Kentucky counties, which were obtained from Miss Ida Richardson Hood of New Orleans, La., daughter of General John Bell Hood, and still living at last report, involve frequent references to Andrew Hood, Sr., the Kentucky pioneer.

Under date of May 25, 1787 Andrew Hood was listed in Bourbon County in the tax district of Edward Mountjoy, commissioner, which took in the settlement of John Strode, hence it can be assumed that Andrew Hood was then living at his station near Strode's station.

In March, 1789, Andrew Hood was listed in Bourbon County, location not given. In March, 1790, March 1791, December 11, 1792, and January 12, 1792, Andrew Hood was listed in Bourbon County, location not given. His name no longer appeared in Bourbon County as that part of the county had been cut off and incorporated into newly formed Clark County, in 1792. In August, 1793, Andrew Hood was listed in Clark County.

In June, 1794 Andrew Hood was listed in Clark County with 150 acres of land, and also 1,000 acres in Mason County. Under dates of May 26, and June 16, 1795, Andrew Hood paid taxes on 250 acres on Hood's Creek, and for the same year, 500 acres on Fox's Creek for the years 1792 and 1793 in Mason County.

Under date of April 28, 1795, Deed Book I, p. 385, Clark County Court records, Winchester, Kentucky, Andrew Hood bought from John O'Bryan Lot No. 2 in Winchester. On April 23, 1800, Andrew Hood and Massa, his wife, then living in Mason County, sold one-fourth of the above lot to William Smith, and three-fourths to Robert Clark, Jr., Deed Book 4, pp. 55-57, Clark County Court records.

On July 29, 1796, Andrew Hood, 250 acres on Hood's Creek, Clark County, entered, surveyed and granted by, and for Ralph Morgan. Also 500 acres on Fox's Creek, Mason County, entered, surveyed by and granted to John Fife. In 1799, Andrew Hood, 200 acres on Ohio River, John Crag survey; 1,000 acres on Fox's Creek entered in name of John Fife and surveyed and patented in name of Andrew Hood who paid taxes on it in 1792, 1793, 1794, 1795 and 1796. His entry as “white male over 21” shows he was living there.

In Mason County, July 25, 1800, Andrew Hood 200 acres on Ohio River, John Crag survey, and 1,000 acres on Fox's Creek, Fleming County, John Fife survey. For the years 1801, 1802, and 1803, Andrew Hood listed with same land as above. Greenup County had been cut off from Mason County in 1805. No Hoods appeared in that year, which is believed to be the approximate time of his death.

At the April, 1796 term of Clark County Court, page 37 of that court record book, it is stated that commissioners were appointed to lay out a new road from Strode's station to "Major Hood's old place." At the September, 1796 term of Clark County court, reference is made to a road from Winchester to Bourbon County, passing by "Major Hood's old place." This indicates that he had moved from Clark County. He died in what is now Greenup County. Early tax lists of Greenup County have been lost, but it is known that Major Andrew Hood lived about half a mile above Little Sandy. It had been used as a meeting place for the first courts. Jesse Boone, brother of Daniel Boone, lived just above him. He is said to have been the first white man to have lived within the county limits. This was later the home of his son, Andrew Hood, Jr.

Andrew Hood served in the Revolutionary War as a private under General George Rogers Clark, and it is thought that he came to Kentucky to take up bounty land he received for his Revolutionary War service. He was usually called "Major" Hood, the source of that title having been earned as an Indian fighter, according to family tradition. Collins' History of Kentucky mentions Major Hood's station between Lexington and Winchester. His descendants spread eastwardly from Clark County, settling mostly in Montgomery, Bath, Mason, Carter, and present Greenup and Boyd Counties.

From various records, including some family Bible sources, county court, and census records, the following are reliably identified as the children of Major Andrew Hood and Masssa Sudduth:

3. Lewis Hood b. 1773 in present Berkeley County, West Virginia, d. --- See further report.

4. Sybbee Hood b. 1779 in Pennsylvania, d. ---; m. Oct. 26, 1796, Jesse Griffith, bondsman Andrew Hood. Verbal consent was given by Andrew Hood, father of Sybbee Hood. No further records.

5. Thomas Hood b. 1782 in Pennsylvania, d. about 1825. See further report.

6. Andrew Hood Jr. b. 1784, d. sometime after 1884. See further report.
7. Rachel Hood b. 1786, probably in what is now Clark County, Kentucky, d. - m. Dec. 10, 1810, Joseph Howe. Andrew Hood was bondsman. No further record.

8. Henry Hood b. 1788, in present Clark County, Kentucky, d. - m. Sept. 17, 1811, Margaret Cain. Andrew Hood bondsman. Robert Cain, father of Margaret, gave consent. No further record.

11. Martha Hood b. 1794 in present Clark County, Kentucky, d. - m. James Howe. For some further records see History of Greenup County, Ky.

12. Catherine Hood b. 1796, probably in present Clark County, Kentucky, d. - m. Nov. 3, 1826, Solomon Brown, her sister Elizabeth’s widower. Samuel Powell bondsman. No further records.

There may have been one or more other children born between 1778 and 1779, of whom no records are available; probably died in infancy.

JOHN HOOD AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN HOOD b. 1769 in Shepherdstown, old Frederick County, Virginia, but now in Jefferson County, West Virginia, first son and child of Major Andrew Hood and Massa Suduth, d. Nov. 29, 1853 in Sangamon County, Illinois, m. Dec. 29, 1794, in what is now Clark County, Kentucky, Margaret Suduth b. 1769 in Virginia, d. March 29, 1835 in Sangamon County, Illinois, John Ireland was bondsman, and D. Bullock witness. Ann Suduth, mother, gave consent. Both are buried in Constant Cemetery, Buffalo Hart, Sangamon County, Illinois. They moved to Sangamon County from Kentucky in 1829. Record only of two daughters:

1. Mariah Hood b. - d. - No further record.
2. Ann Hood b. - d. - m. Nov. 19, 1817, James Cast (Cass), b. August 12, 1797 in Clark County, d. - in Sangamon County, Illinois. Arthur M. King, Route 2, Box 249, Parkville, Missouri, a great-grandson of James Cass and Ann Hood, has furnished some ancestral data on his Cast (Cass) line: James Cast (Cass) was a son of Robert Cass, b. 1768 or '69 in Iredell County, N. C., son of James Cass who came from England. Robert Cass m. 1, Feb. 26, 1790, in Iredell County, N. C., Lucy Riley b. - - - d. 1809 in Clark County, Ky. They had five children, names not given. He m. 2, April 26, 1810 in Clark County, Kentucky, Mary Boggs. They had two children, names not known.

James Cass and Ann Hood moved to Sangamon County, Illinois in 1829. They had eight children, but only names of two daughters are presently available. After her death he m. 2, Amanda McKinney. They had four children, and he died.

Between 1794 and 1802, John Hood was bondsman on several marriage bonds in Kentucky. Some further records of him are found in Clark and several other Kentucky counties. In August, 1793, March 1795, March 1, and December 9, 1796, and August 3, 1797, John Hood was listed as a tax payer in Clark County, Ky. On June 14, 1795, June 22, 1796, August 15, 1797, John Hood paid taxes on 200 acres of land on Johnson Creek.

As of June 26, 1799, John Hood was listed as a tax payer on land on Stoner Creek, Clark County; Slate Creek and Red River, Montgomery County; Licking River; North fork of Kentucky River, and 5,000 acres, location not listed. In all, over 16,000 acres and one lot “in town,” presumably Winchester, Ky. Taxes had been paid on the land since 1792.

John Hood was listed as a tax payer in Clark County from 1801 through 1809.

LUCAS HOOD III AND HIS FAMILY

LUCAS HOOD III, also known as LUKE HOOD, b. July 4, 1770 in old Frederick County, Virginia, but now in Berkeley County, West Virginia, d. Sept. 30, 1843; second son of Major Andrew Hood and Massa Sudduth; m. about 1790, Frances Wills b. Jan. 25, 1774, d. Dec. 21, 1841, daughter of Frederick Winston Wills and Fanny - - - originally from Albemarle County, Virginia (Clark County Will Book 60, July, 1796, court). Both are buried in the old Hood burying ground five or six miles east of Winchester, Kentucky, on what is now known as the Stevenson Brothers farm. Inscribed on his tombstone in good legible lettering, is this inscription:

"Sacred to the memory of Lucas Hood whose body lies beneath this slab. He was born in Berkeley County, Virginia, July 4, 1770, removed to Pennsylvania in 1774, to Kentucky in 1784. Was in General Harmer's army at his defeat; was a spy under Wayne; was in the battle 21 August 1794 when the Indians were defeated. Died in Clark County, Ky., 30 Sept. 1843."

Buried on an adjacent lot is his wife, Frances Wills Hood, whose tombstone bears this inscription:

"Sacred to the memory of Frances Hood, wife of L. Hood, b. Jan. 25, 1774, d. 21 December 1841."

The military service of Lucas Hood, who was more commonly known as Luke Hood, refers to the several Indian wars prevalent in that section some time following the end of the Revolutionary War. Termination of the Revolutionary War had failed to bring immediate peace with the Indians, and savage warfare continued intermittently for some time. The Indians were incited to carry warfare against American isolated settlers by the many British agents who were still in the country. Luke Hood appears to have been a restless, adventurous man, who was more interested in fighting Indians than acquiring large tracts of land and tilling the soil, although he did become a land owner to some extent. Wherever fighting broke out with the Indians, Luke Hood was usually in the thick of it. He was a member of the Kentucky militia under command of General Harmer in the ill-fated expedition against the Indians under Little Turtle along the upper Miami River in what is now Ohio in 1790. Some three years later he was serving as a scout and spy for General Mad Anthony Wayne in his Indian campaigns, and participated in the battle of "Fallen Timbers" on August 21, 1794. This is the battle referred to in his tombstone inscription. It has been recorded that he was scalped by Indians on one of these expeditions and left for dead. He survived however, although he is said to have suffered occasional "spells" for the remainder of his life.

First appearance of Lucas Hood III's name in Kentucky county court records was December 11, 1792, when he was listed as a tax payer in Bourbon County, having come of age since the previous list, March, 1791. He next began to appear on Clark County tax lists, in 1795 and continuously thereafter through 1806. Clark County had been formed from a part of Bourbon. On the Clark County tax list of May 31, 1808, Luke Hood's name appears with 86 acres on Stoner Creek, James Masterson survey. This was the first entry in which his location and land was shown. In 1809 and 1810 he was listed with 125 acres on Stoner Creek, James Masterson survey. In 1811 through 1815 he was listed with 120 acres on Stoner Creek, John Fowler survey. In 1816 through 1818 he was listed with 200 acres on Stoner Creek, valued at $15 per acre. In 1820 he was listed with 400 acres on Stoner Creek, which means he was probably omitted in the previous year and added twice in this year to “make weight.”

He continued to appear on the tax lists from 1821 through 1829 with the same land. He had also appeared on the Montgomery County list in 1797, that county having been formed from a part of Clark County in 1796. Many Clark County tax lists are missing, but more complete data from tax records, giving the number of horses, cattle, slaves, and white males over the age of 21, etc., are in the tax books and copies of the various Hood records made by Lucien Beckner for the Clark County Historical Society, Winchester, Kentucky, are available.

Children and some known descendants of Lucas Hood III and Frances Wills were:

1. Dr. Andrew Hood III
   - b. March 31, 1792, d. Nov. 16, 1859 in Winchester, Ky.;
   - Record of these children and some known descendants:
     - a-2. Thomas Jefferson Hood b. Sept. 26, 1821, d. July 16, 1854; m. March 19, 1851, Mary A. Turner b. - - d. - - - eldest daughter of Major S. Turner. They lived in Carter County, Ky., where he was a prominent attorney, and together with his father, Dr. Andrew Hood III, was a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Conventions of 1849 and 1851. He was also a prominent Mason. He signed his Will on the day of his death, in which he named his wife Mary Ann, and “My children.” He failed to mention the names of the children however. Witnesses to the Will were J. W. Hood, John Martin and H. H. Turner. One probable son was:
       - b-1. James Green Hood b. about 1852, believed by his descendants to have been born in Mississippi. It is more likely however, that he was born in Kentucky, and moved to Mississippi as a young man. Record only of one son:
           - c-1. John Thomas Hood b. - - d. - - ; m. Annie Bowen b. - - d. - - - Record only of one son:

a-4. William Kerley Hood b. Sept. 20, 1805, d. Feb. 18, 1890; m. Oct. 20, 1946, Elizabeth Simpson b. --- d. ---. They lived in Winchester, Ky., and had three children:

b-1. Edward S. Hood b. --- d. --- m. Theresa Hunn

b-2. William Kerley Hood b. Sept. 20, 1805, d. Feb. 18, 1890; m. Oct. 20, 1946, Elizabeth Simpson b. --- d. ---. They lived in Winchester, Ky., and had three children:

c-1. Elizabeth Hood b. --- m. --- Sweeney. No record of children. She was still alive, living in Winchester at last report.

c-2. Martha Pearl Hood b. --- No further record.

c-4. Katherine Hood b. --- m. --- Faulconer. No record of children. She too was still alive, living in Winchester, Ky., at last report.

Mrs. Sweeney and Mrs. Faulconer above had some genealogical research work done on their family ancestry, of which they gave this brief report:

“Our great-great-grandfather on our father's side was Luke Hood, who had three sons and two daughters: Dr. Andrew Hood, Dr. William S. Hood, Dr. John W. Hood, Frances Hood and Elizabeth Hood. Dr. Andrew Hood, our great-grandfather, was a prominent physician of Winchester, and with his son, Thomas Jefferson Hood, was a member of the Kentucky Constitutional Conventions of 1849 and 1851. Dr. Andrew Hood was married three times, his first wife being Marian White of Madison County, Ky., to whom he was married in 1819. To this union was born four or five children. His second wife was Hannah Kerley, also of Madison County, Ky., to whom there was born six children. William Kerley Hood was our grandfather. He had three children: Edward S. Hood, Emma Hood and Dr. Thomas Hood. Edward S. Hood married Theresa Hunn, and to this union were born four children: Elizabeth, Martha Pearl, Edward S. Jr., and Katherine. The Hoods were early Colonial residents of New York City, where they had a grant of land from the King of England, where old Trinity Church now stands. The name was originally spelled “Hude” or “Hudde.” The Hoods came to Kentucky from Virginia in or around Madison County. General John B. Hood, a cousin of ours, Joseph Hood, John K. Hood, and Lucas Andrew Hood, great uncles of ours, were in the Confederate Army.”
(Note: The land grant in New York City above referred to, was that of Andries Hudde (Andrew Hood), a fabulous character in the early life of New Amsterdam (New York City) during the Dutch occupation. He did receive such a grant and operated a farm where old Trinity Church now stands, and his farm residence was across the street, present site of 42 Broadway. The grant came to him however, from the Dutch West India Company, of which he was secretary for a number of years. Exhaustive research in connection with the preparation and production of this work, has failed to verify that he was related to the father of Jasper Hood, who appears to have been a Dane. Such relationship seems only a remote possibility. D.O.H.)

a-5. Frances Wills (Fanny) Hood b. Sept. 6, 1827, d. Nov. 11, 1849; m. August 5, 1847, Lewis Hampton b. - - - d. - - - son of George and Routt Hampton. Record only of one son:

b-1. Andrew Hood Hampton b. Sept. 15, 1849 d. - - - m. - - - Record of three children:

  c-1. Andrew Hood Hampton Jr. b. - - - No further record.

  c-2. Fannie Hood Hampton b. - - - still alive at last report, unmarried, living in Winchester, Ky. Many of the records of Dr. Andrew Hood's family came from her.

  c-3. Catherine W. Hampton b. - - - No further record.

Dr. Andrew Hood m. 2, May 12, 1832, Hannah Kerley b. Jan. 16, 1804, d. Sept. 11, 1848. Children born to this union were:

a-6. Nancy K. Hood b. Jan. 20, 1935 d. - - - m. 1, Nov. 26, 1850, Dr. Wm. R. Embry, b. - - - d. - - - She m. 2, Leonidas Embry, brother of Dr. Wm. R. Embry. See further report.

  b-1. Hood Tucker b. May 22, 1859 d. - - - m. Margaret Allan b. - - - d. - - - No record of children.

a-8. Lucas Andrew Hood b. June 25, 1836, d. Oct. 25, 1920 in Tipton, Missouri; served in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States; m. March 7, 1861, Cornelia, Chism of Tipton, Missouri, b. - - - d. - - - They lived in Tipton and had eight children. One child, Matt Embry Hood b. - - - d. March 3, 1869, aged 3 years 4 months; a daughter who married Ezra Robertson of Tipton, d. Oct. 8, 1920 in Tipton. Surviving children mentioned in the published obituary were: Rev. J. Turner Hood of Gene­seo, Illinois; Mrs. A. L. George of Tipton, Mo.; Mrs. R. H. Whittaker of Twin Falls, Idaho, and Mrs. J. S. McLain of Red Rock, Oklahoma.

a-9. John K. Hood b. Nov. 22, 1839, d. March 11, 1877; served in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States. No further record.

a-10. Dr. Joseph T. Hood M.D. b. March 28, 1842, d. May 20, 1890; m. - - - Million. They had two children, names not presently available. He was a practicing physician, graduate of Jefferson Medical School, Philadelphia, Pa. Served in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States.

a-11. Dr. Richard French Hood, M.D., m. June 14, 1844, d. Feb. 11, 1890. Commonly known as "Dick" Hood; m. Also served in the Confederate Army. See further report. Dr. Andrew Hood m. 3, April 9, 1850, Mrs. Ellen McAdams, a widow. There were no children by this union.

2. Dr. William S. Hood M.D. b. about 1794, d. - - - He was a practicing physician; m. Mary Smith b. - - - d. - - - daughter of Nelson Smith and Sarah Kirr, who was a daughter of David Kirr and Dorothy Rodes. Dorothy Rodes was a daughter of David Rodes and - - -; David Rodes was a son of Clifton Rodes, sheriff of Albemarle County, Virginia in 1782, and Sarah Waller, who was a daughter of Sir Pumphrey Waller, Crown judge of Albemarle County, Virginia. Record of three known children of Dr. William S. Hood and Mary Smith:

Both were victims of a Yellow Fever epidemic. John Bell Hood graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., in 1853, and served with distinction as a cavalry lieutenant in the War with Mexico. He also saw service in several Indian actions. When the War Between the States came he cast his lot with the South, and served the Confederate Cause throughout that tragic conflict, reaching the rank of Lieutenant-General, despite the loss of a leg and the use of his left arm. During the siege of Atlanta, he was placed in command of the Confederate forces defending the city, even though his amputated leg stump had not healed. Strapped to his horse, he commanded the remnants of an army in defense of the city, but the odds were too great, and he was compelled to retire, evacuating the city, which fell to Sherman's Union Forces.

For a full history of the heroic and tragic life of General John B. Hood see: Advance and Retreat by John B. Hood Lieutenant-General, C.S.A.; Hood, Cavalier General by Richard O'Connor (Prentice-Hall, Inc., New York, 1949); The Gallant Hood, by Dr. John P. Dyer, Associate Professor of History, Tulane University, New Orleans (Dobbs-Merrill, New York). There are some ancestral errors in the latter two works, not known at the time of publication.

During the less than eleven years of their marriage, General John B. Hood and Anna Marie Hennen Hood had eleven children, which included three sets of twins. After their tragic death, and the death of their eldest daughter, Lydia Marie Hennen Hood, also a victim of Yellow Fever, the surviving ten children were adopted and raised by various relatives. These children were:

b-1. Lydia Marie Hennen Hood b. 1869, d. August, 1879, of Yellow Fever.

Oct. 19, 1805 in Greenup County, Ky., Mary Ann (Polly) Cain (sometimes appearing as Kane), daughter of Jacob Cain, who gave consent, hence she was probably under 18 at the time of her marriage. John Cain was bondsman. They had fourteen children and he lived to be well over 100 years of age according to reliable family tradition, some say 115 years. The following record was started by Anthony G. Clark in 1847, and completed August 8, 1948, by Mrs. Albert Hales of East Fork, Kentucky, his great-granddaughter:

"Andrew Hood (Jr.) was a true pioneer, having lived within the present bounds of Greenup County before it was organized, and is said to have been the first man to live within its limits. He and his wife Mary Kane (Cain) came originally from Virginia, and lived two miles above Little Sandy River. It was in their home that the town fathers of Ashland, Kentucky, met to organize the county, and also where they met to organize the quarter sessions and the circuit courts. Hood's Creek below Ashland was named for Andrew Hood Jr. and Hood's Run in Tygart Valley was named for his brother Thomas Hood, who was one of the town (Ashland) fathers. Andrew Hood (Jr.) fought in the Indian wars and drew a pension for his services. It is claimed by his descendants that he was 115 years old when he died."

Mrs. Margie C. Spresser, a great-great-granddaughter of Andrew Hood, Jr., who lives presently at 293 West 7th Avenue, Columbus, Ohio, advised as follows:

"Andrew Hood Jr. is buried in what is known as the Collins Cemetery on East Fork in Greenup County, Ky., about ten miles west of Ashland, Ky. It is a sort of a mound; there aren't any stones that you can tell exactly his grave. Several of his children and his wife are also buried there. I visited this cemetery just a year ago, May 30th, (1953) with my father who took me there. My father was Ellis Callihan; he was a great-grandson of Andrew Hood Jr. His mother, my grandmother, has only been dead since January, 1952; had she lived until July 7, 1952, she would have been 101 years old. My father is 73. This Andrew Hood, I have always been told, lived to be 115 years old."

Andrew Hood Hampton, Jr., a great-great-grandson of Lucas Hood III, states that his grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Hood Hampton, spoke of a great uncle, Andrew Hood, who came from Greenup County to visit in her home at Winchester, Ky., shortly after the close of the War Between the States, and that he was more than 100 years old at that time.

Some reliable records of the children of Andrew Hood, Jr. and Mary Ann (Polly) Cain, have been furnished by Mrs. Spresser above, as related to her by her grandmother on her 82nd birthday. Other records are taken from the Register of the Kentucky Historical Society, Vol. 51, No. 177, October, 1953 issue, p. 311. Thus a reliable record of the children of Andrew Hood, Jr. and Mary Ann (Polly) Cain are available as follows:

WILL OF LUCAS HOOD

Filed in Will Book 4, Frederick County Court Records, Winchester, Virginia

In the Name of God, Amen. The thirtieth of November, in the Year of our Lord, 1770, I, Luke Hood of Frederick County and Province of New Virginia, being sick and weak in body, but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God, therefore calling unto mind the mortality of my body and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my Last Will & Testament that is to say, Principally and first of all, I give and recommend my Soul into the hands of God that gave it to me and for my Body I recommend it to the Earth to be buried in a Christian like and decent manner at the discretion of my Executors nothing doubting but at the General Resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God—and as touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life, I give, devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and firm. Imprimis. It is my will and I do order that in the first place that all my just debts and Funerall charges be paid and satisfied.

Item. I give and Bequeath unto Johannah my dearly beloved wife I give all my whole estate and household goods as long as she remains my widow, and if she marries again she shall (sic) Twenty pounds Pennsylvania money to be devised of my estate.

Item. I give my son Lukas Hood the sum of four pounds Pennsylvania money at my wife's death.

Item. I give to my son Andrew Hood the sum of ten pounds like money at my wife's death.

Item. I give to my young son Thomas Hood the whole estate at my wife's death and if the said Thomas die before he comes of age or has any heirs then the said estate to be divided among all of my children—Lukas and Andrew and John and Cattren and Lena and Margaret and Hannah, that is if my wife is dead; if she is living after my young son's death she is to have the managing of my Estate and Goods and Moveables to her death.

Item. At my wife's death all the Horses, Cows, Hogs and sheep and moveable goods to be divided among my four daughters Cattren Smith and Leona (Lena) Francis and Margaret and Hannah. I do appoint and allow my well beloved wife Johannah to be my whole and sole executrix forever of this my Last Will & Testament all and singular the lands, Messages and Tenements. In Witness whereof I have set my hand and seal this day and year above written.

John Greir, Christian (his mark) Houser, Adam (his mark) Christman,

At a court held for Frederick County May 7, 1771, this Last Will and Testament of Lucas Hood, Deceased was proved by the oaths of John Grier and Adam Christman, witnesses thereto, and ordered to be recorded.

Thus it is known that Lucas Hood Sr. died shortly before May 7, 1771. Also it is known that his youngest son, Thomas Hood, was less than twenty-one years of age on November 30, 1770, the day Lucas Hood signed his Will.

Since the primary purpose of this work has been a genealogy of the ancestral background, and to the extent possible, the descendants of Tunis Hood and Elizabeth Harrison, no extensive research of the descendants of Lucas Hood, who was an uncle of Tunis Hood, has been undertaken. However, such brief records as the author has been able to accumulate as time has permitted, are published herein as a matter of general family line interest. It is hoped therefore that with such records and other clues as a helpful guide, some living descendant, or groups of living descendants of Lucas Hood, Sr. and Johannah Van Stockholm will undertake a more extensive research of the descendants of this early Hood family branch of the Jasper Hood line, with the objective of publishing a comprehensive genealogy of that family branch.

The author will be glad to advise and offer such assistance as time will permit, to any descendant family member undertaking such project.
CHAPTER XV SPRINGS, GASSAWAY, BLACK ANCESTORS AND RELATIVES

The family and ancestry of JOHN SPRINGS and SOPHIA GASSAWAY, and their son-in-law, THOMAS BLACK, who married their daughter Sophia Gassaway Springs II, is of particular interest to two branches of Tunis Hood line descendants. John Harrison Hood, son of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison, married 1, Socelia E. Black; Lydia Hood, daughter of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison, married John Black, daughter and son respectively of Thomas Black and Sophia Gassaway Springs II.

John Springs was born 1716 in Newton, Long Island, N. Y., died 1792 in Mecklenburg County, N. C.; m. Sophia Gassaway b. 1723 in Annapolis, Maryland, died 1793. Both are buried in old Providence Presbyterian Church Cemetery in lower Mecklenburg County, N. C., in well marked graves.

John Springs, a full blood Holland Dutchman, whose family name in Holland was originally Springsteen, was a descendant of Casper Springsteen, who died in Groeningen, Holland, in 1650, and wife Geesie (Grace) Jans. Their four children were:

2. Johannes Springsteen.

Geesie Jans Springsteen emigrated from Groeningen, The Netherlands, to New Amsterdam, New Netherland (now New York City), in 1652 with her four children. There she married 2, September 8, 1652, Jan Jansen van Groeningen. By this marriage she had one son, Casper, baptised November 11, 1653 at the old New Amsterdam Dutch Reformed Church. (Marriages, N. Y. Dutch Churches, p. and Baptisms, N. Y. Dutch Churches, p. 36, Collection of N. Y. Biog. & Gen. Society). This son was known as Casper Jansen van Groeningen.

The four children of Casper Springsteen and Geesie Jans first appeared in the New York Dutch records under their patronymic name as Caspersen. Ultimately they became known by their father’s surname of Springsteen.
Joost (George) Caspersen, later known as Springsteen, m. 1, June 10, 1663, Catherine Lothie, widow of Pieter Praa in the Breuckelen (Brooklyn) Dutch Reformed Church. (King's County Genealogical Collection, p. 140.) Their children were:

1. Abraham Springsteen.
2. Johannes Springsteen.
4. David Springsteen.
5. Catrina (Catherine) Springsteen.

It is not material to this narrative to follow the descendants of Casper Springsteen and Geesie Jans, except through the line of their son, Joost Caspersen, later known as Joost (George) Springsteen, ancestor of the two branches of Tunis Hood line descendants. Those wishing more information on the Springs or Springsteen family are referred to Lineage and Traditions of John Springs III, a genealogy of that family by Julia Amanda Gibson, granddaughter of John Springs III (Foote & Davies Company, Atlanta, Georgia, 1921).

Casper Joosten Springsteen above, m. 1, August 9, 1683, Marie Storm, daughter of Dereck (Frederick) Storm at Phillipse Manor in Phillipseberg (now Yonkers), home of Frederick Phillipse, who was counted the wealthiest "Mynhier" in New Netherland at that time. They established their home first in Brooklyn, and in 1714 moved to Newton, Long Island, N. Y. (Berghof's King's County, N. Y. p. 270; Holland Society p. 128, and also Storm Genealogy.) They also held pews No.'s 8 and 11 in the early Dutch Reformed Church at Newton. (Ricker's Annals of Newton, L.I., N. Y.) Their children were:

1. Catherine Springsteen, d. young.
2. Dereck (Frederick) Springsteen m. Geertruyd - - - ; (parents of John Springs.)
3. Peter C. Springsteen.
4. Abraham Springsteen m. Abigail Betts, daughter of Thomas Betts and Mary Whitehead.
5. Gertruyd Springsteen m. Willem Molleneau.
6. Joost C. Springsteen bp. July 1, 1693; m. Maria Colve, daughter of Jacob Colve and Jennteje Springsteen, cousin of Joost Springsteen. Their daughter Rachel, m. Nov. 17, 1748, Hendryck Onderdonk at Schenectady N. Y.
7. David Springsteen m. Avante Van Letten, his cousin. He joined the Orange County Militia, Co. 1, Captain Haring. His will, dated in 1753 is found in the New York Historical Society Abstract, p. 288, Vol. 6.
SPRINGS, GASSAWAY, BLACK ANCESTORS

Casperjoosten Springsteen, the ancestor of John Springs, m. 2, Jannetje Schermerhorn, his cousin. No record of children if any. His Will, dated Nov. 8, 1723, at Newton, L.I. N. Y., was proved in 1729. He died May 21, 1729 in Newton. (Historical Society of New York Abstract of Wills, Vol. 2, p. 123.) He also served in the Queens County, Newton Militia under Captain Daniel Stevenson.

Dereck Springsteen, son of Casper Joosten Springsteen above, moved with his family to Kent County, Delaware in 1717. Here they Anglicized and shortened their name to Springs. (Ricker's Annals of Newton, Long Island, also Berghof's History of King's County.) Names of the other children of Dereck Springsteen and Geertruyd - - - are not immediately available. In some New York Dutch records he appeared as Dereck Caspersen Springsteen. He served in Captain Nathaniel Hazard's Company of Queens County, Long Island Militia. (New York History, Vol. 1, p. 4, 1796.)

Before moving to Mecklenburg County, N. C., in 1762, John Springs, and wife Sophia Gassaway, lived with their family in Jones Neck and Dover, Delaware. In Mecklenburg County, N. C., they were named in most court records as Springs, but up to the time of the Revolutionary War he frequently signed notes, deeds and other conveyances as John Springsteen. Following the close of the Revolutionary War the Springsteen name has entirely disappeared as a family name in this branch of that family.

THE GASSAWAY FAMILY

Sophia Gassaway, wife of John Springs, was a daughter of Henry Gassaway and Rebecca Chapman of Annapolis, Maryland. He was a son of Captain Thomas Gassaway and Susannah Hanslap, daughter of Major Henry Hanslap of Maryland. The Will of Captain Thomas Gassaway, dated 1739, is found in the public records at Annapolis, Maryland.

Captain Thomas Gassaway was a son of Colonel Nicholas Gassaway, who came to South River, Maryland in 1650 from London, England. He married Hester Besson, daughter of Captain Thomas Besson, whose lands adjoined his in Maryland. He became a man of great wealth for those times and was prominent in the early colony of Maryland. In 1678 he was captain of the provincial militia; he was mayor of South River in 1681. In 1684 he was, among others, a commissioner to establish ports of entry; he was justice in 1684. In 1691 he was assistant commander of the Rangers, and at the same time, one of the “Quorum.” He came into possession of Edwards Neck, taken up by John Edwards; in conveying that property to one Anthony Ruley, he recorded that it came to him by inheritance. The Maryland Archives contains one of his letters concerning the insolence of the Indians. His Will, dated in 1691, was proved at a court held at his residence, January 27, 1691. He apparently signed it on his deathbed. Captain Thomas Gassaway, one of his sons, was named as one of the executors. Mention was made of his uncle, John Collingwood, of London, and also of his cousin, Samuel Beaver, of London.

Most of the early members of the Gassaway family are buried in the old cemetery at Annapolis, Maryland, where their well marked graves are kept in good order.

Children and some known descendants of John Springs and Sophia Gassaway were:

1. Hannah Springs b. - - - d. - - -; m. - - - Dempsey. No further record.
2. Eleanor Springs b. - - - d. - - -; m. James Henderson. No further record.
3. John Springs II b. 1751, d. 1818; m. Sarah Shelby Alexander. See further report.
4. Richard Springs b. 1754, d. 1855; m. 1, Jean Baxter; m. 2, Mary (McBryde) Craig, widow. See further report.
5. Sophia Gassaway Springs II b. 1760 d. - - -; m. 1, Thomas Black; m. 2, Jacob Shaw. See further report.

CAPTAIN JOHN SPRINGS II AND HIS FAMILY

JOHN SPRINGS II above, m. Sarah Shelby Alexander, daughter of Adam Alexander, one of the signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, and Sarah Shelby, daughter of Col. Isaac Shelby, of the Battle of King's Mountain fame, and prominent Tennessee statesman. John Springs II lived in Lower Mecklenburg County, N. C., near Pineville. At the turn of the 18th Century he was the largest land owner and slaveholder in the county. He acquired, first by lease and later by grants and purchases, several thousand acres of rich Catawba Indian lands lying along the Mecklenburg County side of the reservation. He served in the Revolutionary War as a captain in the Mecklenburg Militia.

Children of John Springs II and Sarah Shelby Alexander were:

1. Mary Laura Springs b. 1778, d. 1834; m. John Springs III, her first cousin.
2. Sarah Alexander Springs b. 1780, d. 1842; m. Major Jonathan Harris.
3. Adam Alexander Springs b. 1782 d. 1843. He was one of the first graduates (1798) of the University of North Carolina. No record of marriage.
4. John B. (Jackie) Springs b. 1784, d. 1847; m. 1, Margaret Alexander; m. 2, probably Lydia Hood Black, widow of John Black and daughter of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison, his cousin.

5. Sophia Gassaway Springs III b. 1788, d. 1839; m. Dr. Joseph Ross.

6. William Polk Springs b. 1790, d. 1829; m. Margaret Polk Springs, his cousin.

MAJOR RICHARD SPRINGS AND HIS FAMILY

Major Richard Springs, second son of John Springs and Sophia Gassaway, was a large land owner and slaveholder in Lancaster and York Counties, South Carolina. He served in the Revolutionary War, reaching the rank of major; he was with General Gates at his defeat in the battle of Camden (S.C.). Following that defeat, Major Springs rallied together a force at Charlotte, N. C., and drove out Cornwallis' army who were occupying the city and where Cornwallis had his headquarters. This action brought forth the historic remark of Lord Cornwallis that Charlotte "was a hornet's nest."

Major Richard Springs m. 1, Jean Baxter b. 1760, d. 1804. Their children:

1. John (Jack) Springs III b. 1782, d. 1853; m. 1, Mary Laura Springs, his first cousin; m. 2, Margaret (Allison) Smith, widow; m. 3, Elizabeth (Nichols) Hill, widow. See further report.

2. Cynthia Springs b. 1784, d. - - -; m. Frederick Dinkins of New Orleans.

3. Andrew Baxter Springs b. 1786, d. - - -; m. 1, Mary Moore; m. 2, Frances Henderson; m. 3, Mary (Polly) Wynen.

4. Richard Springs Jr. b. 1788, d. 1801.

5. Jane Springs b. 1790, d. 1810; m. Thomas Grier.

6. Sophia Gassaway Springs IV b. 1794, d. 1879; m. James Moore.

7. Margaret Polk Springs b. 1796, d. - - -; m. William Polk Springs, her cousin.

8. Baxter Springs b. 1798, d. young.

9. Harriet Baxter Springs b. 1802, d. 1832; m. Dr. William Moore.

Major Richard Springs m. 2, Mary McBryde (Ball) Craig, a widow. They had one son, Richard Clarke Springs b. - - - d. - - - He was a deaf mute, the result of scarlet fever.
JOHN (JACK) SPRINGS III, son of Major Richard Springs and Jean Baxter, was more commonly known as Jack Springs. His first cousin, John B. Springs, son of Captain John Springs II and and Sarah Shelby Alexander was also known as "Jackie" Springs. John Springs III was a prominent member of the South Carolina landed gentry of that period. He lived on a palatial plantation estate just inside York County, S. C., between Fort Mill, S. C., and Pineville, N. C. The place, owned by his great-grandson, the late Elliott White Springs, was in recent years more or less completely restored. It is known as Springfield plantation. This John (Jack) Springs was a man of great wealth and prominence, the foundation of his land holdings inherited from his father, and further acquisition of Catawba Indian and other lands by himself, in York and Lancaster Counties, S. C. He was a prominent member of the South Carolina legislature, and also sponsored and largely financed construction of the first railroad in that section, extending from Columbia, S. C., to Charlotte, N. C., now a part of the vast Southern Railway System. His first wife was Mary Laura Springs, his first cousin. They had these children:

2. Sarah Delia Springs, twin, b. 1810, d. 1819.
4. Leroy Springs b. 1811, d. 1863; m. Amanda Moore.
5. Mary Laura Springs II b. 1813, d. 1872; m. Adam Brevard Davidson.
7. Sergeant Jasper Springs b. 1817, d. 1824.

John (Jack) Springs III m. 2, Margaret (Allison) Smith, a widow; m. 3, Elizabeth (Nicholls) Hill, a widow from Connecticut. No record of children, if any, by his second and third marriages.

COLONEL ANDREW BAXTER SPRINGS
AND HIS FAMILY

Colonel Andrew Baxter Springs, son of John (Jack) Springs III and Mary Laura Springs, inherited his father's Springfield Plantation estate, where he lived and reared his family. He was a Confederate colonel during the War Between the States. Manager of his Springfield plantation operations was his cousin, Thomas Osborn Hood, son of John Harrison Hood Sr. and Socelia E. Black. Thomas Osborn Hood was the paternal grandfather of this author.

Colonel Andrew Baxter Springs m. Julia Blandina Baxter. Their children were:

1. Jack Springs b. 1850, d. 1851.
3. John Springs IV b. 1853, d. 1890, no marriage or family record.
4. Julia Richardson Springs b. 1855, d. at birth.
5. Richard Austin Springs II b. 1856, d. 1944; m. Ethel Armitage. They lived in Mt. Kisco, N. Y.
7. Alva Cornell Springs b. 1859, d. 1982; m. Miriam Seltzer. They lived in Mt. Kisco, N. Y.
8. Brevard Davidson Springs b. 1860, d. 1936; m. Caroline Clarkson.
9. Leroy Springs II b. 1861, d. 1932; m. 1, Grace A. White of Fort Mill, S. C.; m. 2, Lena (Jones) Wade, a widow. See further report.
10. Fannie Cutliff Springs b. 1863, d. 1866.
11. William Myers Springs b. 1866, d. at birth.
12. Blandina Bleeker Springs b. 1869, d. 1949; m. John M. Scott, prominent pharmacist of Charlotte, N. C.

LEROY SPRINGS II, more commonly known as Colonel Springs, was a pioneer Southern textile manufacturer, founder of the great chain of Springs Cotton Mills, and builder and owner of the Lancaster and Chester Railroad. He is buried in a mausoleum erected on the roof of his Lancaster cotton mill. He and his first wife, who was Grace A. White of Fort Mill, S. C., made their home in Lancaster, S. C. They had only one child, a son, Elliott White Springs, who died in October, 1959, closing an outstanding career as a soldier-aviator, author, and highly successful textile industrialist.

At the outbreak of World War I, Elliott White Springs joined the French Lafayette Escadrille, composed entirely of American volunteers, and quickly became a combat flying ace. With the entry of the United States into that conflict, Elliott Springs transferred as a captain to the American flying forces, a unit of the Signal Corps, and continued his career as one of the outstanding American combat flying aces, second only to Captain Eddie Rickenbacker in enemy planes shot down.

After leaving the military service at the close of the war, Elliott Springs tried his hand at writing war memoirs with considerable success. His first book, War Birds, first written anonymously, a masterpiece, enlivened with spicy repartee, quickly became a best seller. The great World War I motion picture Hell's Angels, was a screen film adaptation of War Birds. His writings greatly distressed his father, resulting in an estrangement for a time. However, the popularity and financial success of his publications, ultimately softened his father's feelings and a reconciliation came, conditioned upon Elliott's promise to cease writing books, and turn his talents to learning the textile business. This he did with equal success.

Following his father's death in 1932, Elliott Springs inherited the estate including the vast textile industries and the railroad. His success in the management and exploitation of both has been outstanding in American business history, his textile operations now being among the world's largest. His subtle and daring national advertising programs, wholly conceived and authored by himself, exploiting the sale of his "Springmaid" textile products, excited national interest and some considerable controversy with competitors. His impish sense of humor was aptly reflected in the list of vice presidents of his Lancaster and Chester Railroad. This line, operating thirty miles of trackage, boasts of twenty-nine vice-presidents, made up almost entirely of notable American and world figures.

Elliott Springs again served his country in World War II as a colonel in the United States Air Forces. His only son, Captain Leroy Springs III, also an active combat pilot in that war, was killed in a plane accident at Fort Mill, S. C., shortly after his discharge from the military service.

Eli Baxter Springs, Alva Cornell Springs and Richard Austin Springs II, all now deceased, were the founders of the prominent Wall Street stock and cotton brokerage firm of Springs and Company. The business is now conducted by their sons and grandsons.

Captain Richard Austin Springs III, another Springs combat "fly boy" in World War II, was associated with Elliott Springs for a time in the management of the family textile industries, but has since returned to New York and entered his family's brokerage business.

Still another Springs combat "fly boy" in World War II, was John Springs Myers II, son of the late John Springs Myers I and Margaret Springs, daughter of Brevard Davidson Springs and Caroline Clarkson. He served as pilot and navigator in the United States Air Forces in the China, Burma, India theater of operations in World War II.

A transcript of the Will of John Springs, signed on his death bed December 25, 1792, and proved December 28, 1792 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., follows:

"I, John Springs, of Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, being weak in body but of perfect mind and memory, do make and appoint this my Last Will and Testament, knowing it is appointed for all men once to die.

"First, I give my soul to God, my Master, and my body to the Earth from whence it was taken, in full assurance of its resurrection at the last day.

"My burial I desire may be without pomp, to be managed at the discretion of my dear wife, and my executors hereafter mentioned, and as far as my worldly affairs and goods which it hath pleased God to bless me with, I desire it may be ordered as follows, viz:

"Item. I give and leave to my beloved wife, Sophia Springs, one Negro fellow named Tom during her lifetime and then the said Negro to be the property of my beloved granddaughter Mary Springs. I likewise leave my beloved wife my dwelling house and furniture and plantation, instruments and tools, and my orchards and fields adjoining orchard and the barley patch that is in barley and rye at present and likewise the barn and patch adjoining thereto and my stock of all kinds that she may think she has need of, and one Negro wench named Rose. The above articles to be disposed of at her, my wife's death as she thinks best unless she marries, and in that cause I only leave her a horse, saddle and bridle and the dresser, furniture and a feather bed and furniture.

"I likewise give and leave to her, my said wife, the grain and fodder now on the plantation.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my grandson John Springs, the son of my son John Springs, one sorrel filly three years old.

"I give and bequeath to my beloved granddaughter, Sarah Dempsey, one cow and calf and four head of sheep and a woman's saddle and feather bed and furniture; the remainder of my estate after the aforesaid legacies given, I desire may be sold and equally divided among children as follows:

"To John Springs and Richard Springs three parts, and Thomas Black a fourth part, and to Hannah Dempsey five shillings and to Eleanor Henderson five shillings.

"And I do hereby appoint my beloved sons, John Springs and Richard Springs my executors of this my Last Will and Testament.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal the 25th day of December, 1792. /s/ John Springs (Seal)"

Signed, sealed and pronounced in presence of:
Henry Downs
Daniel Johns

It is noted that he cut off his two daughters, Hannah Dempsey and Eleanor Henderson with only five shillings each. He made no direct bequest to his other daughter, Sophia Gassaway Black, but did bequeath one-fourth of his estate to her husband, Thomas Black.

THOMAS BLACK AND HIS FAMILY

THOMAS BLACK (II) b. about 1750 or '55 in Mecklenburg County, N. C., d. January, 1830 in Hancock County, Kentucky, where he is buried; m. about 1776, SOPHIA GASSAWAY SPRINGS II b. about 1760 in Jones Neck, Delaware, d. - - - in Crawford County, Arkansas; believed to be buried in Fort Smith, Arkansas. She was a daughter, and apparently youngest child of John Springs and Sophia Gassaway. She remarried July 13, 1832 at age 72, Jacob Shaw in Davies County, Kentucky. This would date the year of her birth as approximately 1760. Shortly afterward they moved to Crawford County, Arkansas, where her son William Black had moved previously from Kentucky.

Thomas Black is reasonably well identified as a son of William Black, probable son of a John Black who was born in Ireland. Wife of William Black, and mother of Thomas, is likewise reasonably well identified as Mary Osborn, probable daughter of Thomas Osborn of Mecklenburg County, N. C. These identities are well supported by certain deeds records found in the Mecklenburg County, N. C., Superior Court files. In a Mecklenburg County deed dated January 16, 1767, Thomas Black bought from Henry E. McCulloch 127 acres of land on Four Mile Creek. McCulloch was Mecklenburg County agent for Lord George Augustus Selwyn, one of the Lords Proprietors who originally had received Crown grants to all lands in Mecklenburg County. Later, under date of August 1, 1806, Thomas and Sophia Black, then of York County, S. C., conveyed the above 127 acres to John Black, who was their son. Another Mecklenburg County deed record shows that John Black sold this same 127 acres on August 27, 1811, to John and Joseph Reed. The deed was not recorded by the Reeds however, until April 26, 1813, in the Mecklenburg County court records. In another Mecklenburg County deed, Thomas Black, and Sophia, his wife, conveyed four acres of land to John Black (their son) on Four Mile Creek. John Black, and Lydia, his wife, thereupon conveyed the four acres to John and Joseph Reed.

In a deed dated April 13, 1778, filed in the county court records of Mecklenburg County, N. C., William and Mary Black conveyed to Thomas Black (their son) for 100 pounds Proclamation money, 110 acres of land on McAlpine Creek, described as being formerly a part of a large tract belonging to Lord George Augustus Selwyn.
Under date of March 16, 1772, one Thomas Black, apparently a bachelor, wrote a most interesting Will, which was proved in April, 1772 in Mecklenburg County, N. C. In his Will he made no reference to a wife or any children of his own, but named the following legatees:

1. "To my loving nephew William Black, son to my brother William Black, deceased." This "loving, true and trusted nephew" William Black, he appointed as executor under his Will.
2. "My cousin, Thomas Black, son to William Black.
3. "My cousin (sic) Ezekiel Black, son to my nephew William Black,
4. "My nephew, John Black.
5. "My cousin William Black, son to Ezekiel Black, deceased.
6. "Likewise, I bequeath unto said William Black (the 'loving nephew') my right of what John Springsteen is debtor to me by note."

It is noted that he used the word "cousin" for grandnephew, a not uncommon error in describing relatives in those times. The Will was witnessed by John Broadan, Noble Osborn and John (illegible). John Springsteen, the debtor by note, was later known as John Springs, whose daughter Sophia Gassaway Springs II married Thomas Black. It seems clear that one of the two sons of "brother" William Black who was not named in the Will, was Ezekiel Black, who also had a son named William. Thus two Ezekiel Blacks are indicated, and this is confirmed by the fact that one Ezekiel Black served as a soldier in the American Revolution (Roster of N. C. Soldiers in the American Revolution), who was most likely the "cousin, Ezekiel Black, son to my nephew William Black (Jr.)." The first Ezekiel Black was deceased in 1772 when Thomas Black (the bachelor) wrote his Will.

The "brother" William Black mentioned by the above Thomas Black (the bachelor) in his Will, was an Irish immigrant who settled in Bucks County, Pennsylvania in 1730, where he died in 1781 aged 76 years. His wife was Martha Gillespie who died in 1773, aged 70 years. They were married in Ireland. There was also a third brother, to the above Thomas and William Black, the Irish immigrants, a John Black, who migrated to Mecklenburg County, N. C. That he too had a son named William Black is reasonably certain, who is fairly well identified as the father of "my cousin, Thomas Black, son of William" and "my cousin Ezekiel Black, son to my nephew William Black." Both of these William Blacks were undoubtedly the "nephew, William Black" mentioned in Thomas Black's Will. This William Black, undoubtedly a son of John Black, brother to the bachelor Thomas and the Pennsylvania Irish immigrant William, was the father of Thomas Black who married John Springs' daughter, and Ezekiel Black mentioned in the Will. It is reasonably certain that he also had a son William Black (Jr.).

There were a number of Black families living in Mecklenburg County, N. C., in that period, most of whom were apparently more or less related, probable children and descendants of the two Irish immigrants William Black of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and John Black of Mecklenburg County, N. C. William seems to have been a favorite name among those Black families, at least seven different William Blacks appearing in Mecklenburg County court records of that period. Their descendants are still numerous in the county and adjacent communities.

That Thomas Black and most of his family, moved to York County, S. C., prior to 1791 is indicated by the record of a deed dated August 9, 1791, lodged in the Mecklenburg County court records, wherein Thomas Black and Sophia, his wife, of the County of York, State of South Carolina, conveyed a tract of land on McAlpine Creek in Mecklenburg County, N. C., to Andrew Wintz, who recorded the deed in Mecklenburg County March 10, 1793.

In other deeds executed by Thomas and Sophia Black, they gave York County, S. C., as their residence. The Federal census for York County for 1790 lists Thomas Black as a resident of that county. However, in the Census records for 1800 and 1810 he is listed as a resident of adjoining Lancaster County, S. C. This may possibly be explained by the known fact that their home place was practically on the York-Lancaster County line, hence census takers could easily have confused the true location of their residence. In all recorded deeds examined, Thomas and Sophia Black gave their residence as York County, S. C. Census records show that their nearest neighbor was Major Richard Springs, brother-in-law of Thomas Black, whose residence was always shown as being in Lancaster County, S. C. Major Richard Springs acquired large tracts of Catawba Indian lands, first by lease, and later by grants in recognition of his Revolutionary War service, in that northeastern part (panhandle section) of South Carolina, where Lancaster County borders York County, S. C., and Mecklenburg County, N. C.

That Thomas Black also acquired some Catawba Indian land in that same community by lease, is shown by the record of the conveyance of a lease to a tract of Catawba Indian land on the south side of McAlpine Creek at its junction with Big Sugaw Creek emptying into Catawba River, by Thomas Black to John Black (his son) under date of July 17, 1811. The lease had been surveyed and certified by Hugh White, then superintendent of the Catawba Indian Nation of Indians. Witnesses were W. Pettus, G. Miller and J. Davie. These and many other valuable records of early settlers in that community are in the possession of Miss Zoe White, a descendant of Hugh White, who lives near Fort Mill, S. C.

Names of children and grandchildren of Thomas (II) and Ezekiel (II) Black are oddly similar. Thomas and Sophia Black had a son named Thomas Osborn Black and a daughter Socelia (Celia) who married John Harrison Hood, and they had a son named Thomas Osborn Hood. Ezekiel Black had a daughter Celia who married Thomas O. (Osborn?) Black, son of William Black (Jr.) John Black, son of Thomas and Sophia Black, and wife Lydia Hood, sister of John Harrison Hood, had a son Thomas Osborn Black. Ezekiel Black had a son named Eli O. (Osborn?) Black. There are other instances of the occurrence of the name Celia (Socelia) and the middle name Osborn, or the middle initial "O" reasonably certain to have stood for Osborn.

Apparently the brothers above, Thomas, Ezekiel and William Black (Jr.) each had sons who were given the middle name of Osborn. They were beyond reasonable doubt sons of William Black Sr. son of John Black I, and Mary Osborn, probable daughter of Thomas Osborn. The diary of a John Osborn, entry 1801, mentions a visit to his Black cousins near Charlotte, N. C. Finally, in the historical archives at Raleigh, N. C., is a Mecklenburg County record of the estate of Thomas Osborn in which Thomas Black is named as one of his heirs. The estate was settled in the period 1778-1796.

Thomas Black (II) was one of the first elders of old Providence Presbyterian Church in Lower Mecklenburg County in 1777. (Foote's History of Western North Carolina.)

In his Will, signed December 25, 1792, apparently on his death bed, John Springs bequeathed one fourth of his estate to Thomas Black, his son-in-law.

After disposing of their lands in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and York County, S. C., lease in 1811, Thomas Black moved with members of his family to what was then Breckenridge County, Kentucky, sometime prior to 1815, probably following the death of his son John in 1813. His name first appeared on the Breckenridge County, Kentucky, tax rolls in 1815 and continued each year thereafter until 1828, when that section of Breckenridge County was formed into newly created Hancock County. Thomas Black's name appeared on the tax rolls of Hancock County for the years 1829 and 1830. He died in Hancock County in January, 1830.
Known children of Thomas Black (II) and Sophia Gassaway Springs II were:

1. William Black b. about 1777 in Mecklenburg County, N.C., d. after 1850 in Crawford County, Arkansas; m. in 1801 Elizabeth Meachland in York County, S.C. They moved from York County, S.C., first to Breckenridge County, Kentucky, and from there about 1816 to Crawford County, Arkansas.

2. John Black b. August 25, 1779 in Mecklenburg County, N.C., d. Nov. 13, 1813 in Lancaster County, S.C. He may have been killed in the War of 1812-1814 with Great Britain; m. August 25, 1802, Lydia Hood II, in Mecklenburg County, N.C., daughter of Captain Tunis Hood Jr., and Eleanor Harrison. See further records under Line of Captain Tunis Hood Jr.

3. Richard Springs Black b. March 1, 1784 in Mecklenburg County, N.C., d. in 1853 in Schuyler County, Illinois; m. 1, in 1805 Elizabeth Partlow in York County, S.C.; m. 2, Elizabeth Fowler in Schuyler County, Illinois. Many descendants of these two families live in and around Schuyler County, Illinois.

4. Thomas Osborn Black b. in 1788, probably in York County, S.C., d. about 1850 in Hancock County, Kentucky; m. 1, March 19, 1816, Elizabeth (Betty) Thrasher in Breckenridge County, Kentucky; m. 2, Sarah Chambers in Hancock County, Kentucky.

5. Socelia E. Black b. about 1790 in York County, S.C., d. about 1830 in Mecklenburg County, N.C., buried in old Unity Presbyterian Cemetery, Fort Mill, S.C.; m. John Harrison Hood, son of Captain Tunis Hood Jr. and Eleanor Harrison. See further records under Line of Captain Tunis Hood, Jr.

There is believed to have been another daughter, but further record is not presently available.
CHAPTER XVI
ORIGIN OF FAMILY SURNAMES

Family surnames in early times originated from several sources, first in England in about the early 11th Century, and much later in Scotland, Ireland, Wales and some northern and western European countries, particularly The Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Germany. Primitive personal names doubtless originated soon after the invention of spoken language, although the date of their first use is lost in the darkness of ages preceding recorded history. For thousands of years thereafter, first or given names were the only designations that men and women bore; and in the dawn of historic times, when the world was less crowded than it is today and every man knew his neighbor, one title of address was sufficient. Only gradually with the passing centuries and the increasing complexity of civilized society, did a need arise for more specific designations. While the roots of our system of family names may be traced back to early civilized times, actually the hereditary surnames as we know it today, dates from a time scarcely earlier than nine hundred years ago.

A surname is a name added to a baptismal or Christian name, the purpose of making it more specific and of indicating family relationship or descent. Classified according to origin, most surnames fall into four general categories: (1) those formed from a given name of the father; (2) those arising from bodily or personal characteristics; (3) those derived from locality or place of residence; and (4) those derived from occupations. It is easier to understand the story of the development of our institution of surnames if these classifications are borne in mind.

The ancient Viking Scandinavians and for the most part, the Germans, and more recently the Holland Dutch, had only individual given or Christian names, and there were usually no family surnames strictly speaking. A relatively few, mostly Hollanders and Danes, bore by feudal right the names of towns of which their forefathers had been overlords in earlier days, as fixed family surnames. Most descendants of Dutch feudal barons who are likened to the English peerage and gentry, preceded their surnames by van den, or van der, spelled with the small v and d.
As early as Biblical times certain distinguishing appellations were occasionally employed in addition to the given name, as, for instance: Joshua the son of Nun, Simon the son of Jonas, Judas of Galilee, and Simon the Zealot. In ancient Greece daughters were named after their fathers, as Chryseis, the daughter of Chryses, and sons’ names were an enlarged form of the father’s, such as Hieronymus, son of Hiero. The much more recent Scandinavians and Hollanders followed generally the same primitive patronymic system of selecting family names well into the 18th Century, adding the father’s name to the son’s, such as Luykas Andrieszen, “Luykas, Andries’ son,” or as Anglicized, “Lucas, the son of Andrew,” a New Netherland Dutch-Dane who was an ancestor of all Jasper and Tunis Hood descendants.

True surnames, in the sense of hereditary designations, date in England from early in the year 1000. Largely they were introduced from Normandy, although there are records of Saxon surnames prior to the Norman conquest. By the end of the 12th Century hereditary surnames had become common in England. But even by 1465 they were not universal. During the reign of Edward V a law was passed to compel certain Irish outlaws to adopt surnames. “They shall take unto them a Surname, either of some Towne, or some Colour, as Blacke or Brown, or some Art or Science, as Smyth or Carpenter, or some oflice as Cooke or Butler.” And as late as the beginning of the 19th Century a similar decree compelled Jews in Germany and Austria to add a German surname which they had previously used.

Under the primitive patronymic system of selecting names, identical names frequently occurred in families entirely separate and unrelated, such as the John Smiths and John Johnsons of today. The inconvenience of this practice, and the confusion it occasioned, brought about the change from the local sufficiency of the father’s Christian name for identification in little towns and rural communities, to the daily need for better identification in new and changed conditions out in an expanded world that was of necessity yielded to. This was especially true in the early North American Holland Dutch colony of New Netherland. In most cases the names borne by the heads of Dutch families in New Netherland up into the early 18th Century became and continued as the fixed family surname. But in cases where such adopted family name was a more common one, such as Jan Janszen (John Johnson), the name of the town or community in Holland whence the family came was added and ultimately became in most cases the fixed family surname. Hence, for instance if Jan Janszen’s family came from Breestede, he became known thereafter as Jan Janszen van (of) Breestede, (John Johnson of Breestede). An example of this practice is found in the name of Theunis Eliaszen van Bunschoten, maternal grandfather of Tunis Hood, who arrived in America bearing the simple and common Dutch name Theunis Eliaszen (Theunis, Elias' son). His home in Holland had been in Bunschoten, a small village in the Province of Utrecht on the Zuyder Zee. Shortly after arriving in America, and finding his Dutch patronymic name a rather common one, he identified himself as Theunis Eliaszen van Bunschoten (Theunis, Elias' son of Bunschoten). Thus was derived the prominent fixed family name of Van Bunschoten, which is borne by many descendants of today, except by most the spelling is now Van Benschoten.

Another comparable example involves the name of one of Tunis Hood's great-grandfathers. Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, who arrived in America bearing a most common Dutch patronymic name of Laurens Corneliszen. In Holland his home had been in the community of Wel, hence in America, as a means of more definite identification, he became known as Laurens Corneliszen van der Wel, (Laurens, Cornelis' son, of the Wel).

In other cases, trade names were frequently utilized as a fixed family surname. There were so many Jan Janszens in New Netherland that some added the name of their trade or profession as the fixed family surname. Thus Jan Janszen, a cooper (maker of barrels) became Jan Janszen de Kuyper (Jan Janszen the cooper), while in other cases he was known merely as Jan de Kuyper (John Cooper).

Insofar as can be determined, the Hood name in early New Netherland (New York) was not patronymic. All available records of Hoods in that Dutch-American colony bore fixed family surnames, spelled variously as Hoed, Hoedt, Hoet, Hude, Hodde, and Hudde.

The Hoods in America are mostly of English, Scotch or Irish origin, but there have been exceptions, as in the case of Tunis Hood, baptised under the Holland Dutch spelling of his name as Theunis Hoed, and whose ancestral background was predominantly Holland Dutch and apparently some Danish. In this connection, the late Professor Frazer Hood, professor of psychology at Davidson College, North Carolina, a recognized student of the origin of family names, and an apparent descendant of Tunis Hood, speaking before a reunion of the Hood Clan in Charlotte, N. C., some years ago, discussed his research of the origin of the Hood name. Like most Hoods of that community at that time, Professor Hood apparently considered himself as being of English or Scotch-Irish origin, a commonly accepted tradition of the Hoods at that time. He spoke as follows:
The distinguished name of Hood is derived from the Saxon word 'Houdt' meaning 'the wood.' The name was spelled differently in various countries. In old Norse (Icelandic) it was Ude; in early France it was Ude and Udo; by the Danish people it was Hude or Hoed; in Germany and Austria the name was originally Hudy, then Hodde, and later Hoodt, the common German spelling of today. By the Holland Dutch people it was Ouda and Hoed, and the descendants of early Dutch colonists of New Netherland in America who spelled their name variously as Hoed, Hude and Hudde have long since adopted the Anglicized spelling of Hood. In England, the name was variously Odo, Hud, Hude, Hod, Hodd, Hode and finally Hood, the common English and American spelling of today.

Prior to the time of Robin Hood, a true character, who died about the year 1200, the Hood name was in its original form as 'Odo.' It has been advised that the word 'Odo' meant 'head' in some absolute language such as perhaps, the ancient Greek and Anglo-Saxon. It is supposed that all Hood families are descended from 'Odo' (1035-1097), one of the half brothers of William the Conqueror whom history advises was of Norse origin; and that Odo was a Roman Catholic bishop of Bayeaux (Normandy), and also Duke of Kent, blessed with a large family, which scattered to his various estates in different parts of England. It seems that moral standards in the time of Odo were rather low and that he made no effort to uphold them. He was a man of considerable shrewdness, ability, and quick action, serving at one time as a co-regent of England. He was killed near Jerusalem in a crusade battle in 1097.

In several records it has been stated that Robin Hood, also known as the Duke of Lancaster, Earl of Nottingham, and Robert Locksley at different times in his life, was one of the great-grandsons of Odo. Robin Hood was a resident of County Lancastershire in Northwestern England, where his residence and grave have been on public exhibition ever since his death, which occurred in the year 1200, closing an eventful life of struggle against special privilege, as partially described by Sir Walter Scott in Ivanhoe.

"We find the name of Hud mentioned numerous times in the 'British old Rolls and Records' i.e., Matilda Hud, 1379, Emma Hud, 1379, Johannes Hud, 1379, and also John Hod, County Somersetshire."

Note: The late well known French Canadian Camillien Houde, several times mayor of Montreal, Quebec, Canada, was also a Hood.

For origin of the Harrison name see Harrison Ancestors, Chapter XI.

The well known Houston family of Union County, North Carolina, closely allied with Tunis Hood descendant families of that section, was also of patronymic origin. From ancient records of Scotland, it is learned that Sir Hugh de Padavin came to Scotland from France in the year 1160 and received a large grant of land in the Barony of Kilpeter. Gradually a village grew on the estate and was known as "Hugh's Town." In time the name became simplified as Houston, whence early residents of the village derived their family name. (See - Crawford's History of Renfrewshire, Edition of 1818).
Early family surnames adopted under the patronymic system, usually changed with each generation. As stated, by the English, Hollanders and Scandinavians, patronymics were formed by adding a syllable ‘son’ or ‘kins’ or a letter 's.' Thus the English Walter, the son of John, became Walter Johnson; Thomas, the son of Thomas, became Thomas Thomasson, Thomson or Thompson. The Holland Dutch and Scandinavian Jan, short for Johannes (John), son of Jan, became Jan Janszen (John Johnson).

Mac, also shortened to Mc, is Gaelic for son, a sure sign of a Scottish or Irish ancestor. Thus Andrew MacKay or McKay, was a son of a man whose given name was Kay.

Fitz is a version of fils (pronounced fess), modern French for son. Names beginning therefore with Fitz usually identify Irishmen of Anglo-Norman descent.

A17 is Welsh and usually appears as an initial, P or B, in Welsh family names. Pritchard is Ap Richard; Powell is Ap Howell; Bowen, Ab Owens; Price or Brice is Ap or Ab Rice, and Bevan or Bevans is Ab Evans. The Welsh also used the ‘s’ at the end, forming such characteristic family names as Jones and Davis—“John’s boy and David’s boy.”

Many family names of today were derived originally from the names of occupations. Thus the well known John Smith of today had an early ancestor who was a smith, or blacksmith. William Mason’s early ancestor was a stone mason, likewise the Dutch Willem de Maeler (William the mason). As in the case of the Holland Dutch and other Northern Europeans, most early English people worked with their hands, and their work was their life and their name. Thus are derived the common English and American family surnames as Farmer, Mason, Carpenter, Turner, Sawyer, Carver, Glover, Porter, Harper, Rider, Wright, Singer, Prentice, and most common of course, Smith.

As in Holland, many English and German family names were taken from the city, town or community where a family lived, or whence had moved. A look at the map of England or the Continent, gives a clue to the origin of a family surname—London, Hastings, Glasgow, Berlin, etc. The passage of time brought occasional changes—Bristow from Bristol, Frankfurter from Frankfort, and German Frankfurt; Lubbock from Lubeck, Germany, and Cullen from Cologne or Koln, Germany.

If your ancestor always lived in the same town or community, you most likely have a name that described the location of his home—at the bridge, at the well, at the ash tree, at the ford, or by the wood. At the was often written by the earlier English as atte, or atten before a vowel. If your name is Ford, your early English ancestor was most likely known as John atte Ford; if Ash or Ashe, the origin was probably John atten Ash. In time the atten was dropped, and they became plain John Ford and John Ash, Ashe or Nash. The old atte did not always disappear entirely however. Thus we still have today Atlee, Atwood, Atwater, Atwell, etc.

The common Holland Dutch Van Buskirk or Boskirk was composed originally of two Dutch words: bos (woods) and kerk or kerch (church); thus, Jan van Bos Kerk or Kerch (Jan, of the woods by the church) is now John Van Buskirk or Boskirk. Winkle is the Dutch word for store or shop, hence Hendrick Van Winkle of olden times—“Hendrick the store or shop keeper” is today’s Henry Van Winkle. The equally well known Newkirk family was of Holland Dutch origin. Barent Van Nieuwkerk (Barent of the new church) became in America, Barnet Newkirk, who was the husband of Rebecca Van Bunschoten, maternal aunt of Tunis Hood.

Such obvious names as Brook (s), Bridge (s), Field (s), Lane, Well (s), Wood (s), are brought to mind. But many are less obvious, because over the centuries, words have changed their form and have become somewhat disguised. However, it is not always difficult to penetrate the disguise. Briggs is an old spelling of bridges; Craig and Craik are related to crag. Downs, Downes and Downing came originally from down or dune; Hurst and Hearst came from an old English word meaning a wooded hill. Holt is old English for a small wood (related to the German Holz), and Howe came from an old English word for a hill.

The brad in names like Bradford, Bradstreet and Bradley is the modern English word broad. The ley found at the end of so many family names is lea, poetic for meadow, giving us the familiar Lee and Leigh. So, Bradley is a broad meadow, Cowley a cow pasture, Crowley a field of crows and Shipley a field for sheep.

A nickname, today merely a substitute for a given or Christian name, in earlier times became the family surname. Such names as Armstrong, Doolittle, Long, Lang, Hardy, Stout, Swift, Drinkwater, Cruikshank (crooked legs) and others originated in this way. Many American Indians derived their names in a somewhat similar manner. Names taken from colors, prompted originally by King Edward V of England, are common today, such as Brown, White, Green, Black or Gray. But some of these are not readily detectable. Red is concealed in Reid and Read, and Russell is from an old French word meaning red-haired, and is related to our russet. Dunn and Dunne is an early spelling of dun, describing a dull grayish brown. Bain, Bane or Bayne is from the Scottish-Gaelic ban, meaning fair or white; likewise, Gwynne or Wynne is from a Welsh word for white.

Some animals' names, such as Fox, Wolf, Bird (Vogel in German), Oliphant (elephant) etc., probably originated as nicknames. Here too the American Indian selected names, such as Running Fox, White Eagle, Red Bird, Gray Wolf, etc. Many such English names however, probably came from tavern signs which had animals, fowl or objects painted on them.

To this group belong also such names as Lamb, Buck, Lyons, Peacock, Cox, Fish (also Fisk, the Scandinavian), Bell, Spear, Horn, Keyes, etc. A trainer of hawks and falcons became Faulkner.

Some Christian names, like Richard, Robert and Roger, have so many pet forms that they yielded a series of patronymics. Richard, besides having given us Richards and Richardson, produced Dix, Dixon, Dickens, Hicks and Hickson. Robert gave us Robbins, Robson, Robertson and Robinson; from Hobbs came Hobson and Hopkins, while Roger produced Hodges, Hodgkins and Hotchkiss. Other patronymic "son" derivations not easily recognizable are Madison (son of Matt), likewise the Scandinavian Mattson; Tennyson (son of Dennis), Gibson (son of Gilbert), Sanders and Sanderson, (son of Alexander).
