A letter from the War Dept pension office 12-10-1856 to Hon Lynn Boyd, H. R.

states: Sir: The declaration of Zephaniah Harrison has been examined. He alleges a number of tours of from two to three months and one tour of six months as a militia man of Virginia.

It is alleged that he was drafted with his company for six months to take charge of a party of recruits destined to serve in the regular army. The militia were at no time drafted for that length of time, and the statement as to his being drafted for the purpose alleged is entirely improbable. The other alleged service consisted principally in watching against the hostile attacks of the Indians. In the early settlement of our western frontiers it was indispensably necessary in many instances to the safety of the inhabitants that the able bodied men of every age should arm themselves in self defense against the savage of the wilderness. It is well known that for this purpose block houses were erected, and that the people were obliged to resort to them for protection. This description of predatory warfare, however, was never considered of such a character as to place the persons engaged in it on the footing of soldiers, drafted or enlisted for the general defense of the country, and such persons therefore are not provided for by the pension laws. The applicant for such service can of course have no lawful claim to a pension. The claim has accordingly been rejected and the papers filed.

The above was in answer to Mr. Boyd's letter of Dec 21 1836.
He made declaration in Vandenburgh County Indiana, 1835 August at Probate court, resident of said county and state age 73 under Act of June 7 1832. States he enlisted in army just preceding coronation of Lord Cornwallis, served in a regiment of Virginia line, under Col Davis, Capt Win B'tly, under Genl Muhlenburg, his sergeant was a foreigner, he thinks a frenchman--that at date of entering service he was residing in Montgomery county Virginia, that himself and Isaac and Peter Stiff Stiffey or Stephens, Andrew and Henry Love and Austin and Valentin Valentine Acres were all taken from the same county and served in same company for same length of time.

That he enlisted for the term of 18 months, left service about the month of June, or middle of Aug, one year and five months at least after he entered service. That he found the army at Chesterfield court house, a short time before Xmas and helped to build a barrack there consisting of about 160 cabins expecting to remain there during the winter but was moved from there to PETERSBURGH where they staid for 2 or 3 weeks, and thence down James River to near the mouth, thence back and was kept moving short intervals during the whole time.

That his name is HARRISON, but that in Va and elsewhere he has lived was and has been generally known by the name of HARRIS and not being capable of reading or writing he does not know by which name he was enlisted but thinks it probably he was enlisted by name of ZEPHERIAH HARRIS.
