PREFACE

To all of us who are descended from William Ricketson, the Emigrant, it is a matter of deep regret that we know nothing of his birthplace nor of his English ancestry. Indeed we are so wholly without any guiding clue that we cannot even tell where to begin a search. Mr. Walton Ricketson, of New Bedford, opines that the name Ricketson may originally have been Rickatson; he has visited several of the name living in London and also in their country place in Yorkshire, England, and writes that William and John are favorite Christian names with them as with our American family. They are however, too generic to be really indicative, and a correspondence with the present representative of the Rickatsons, Miss Mary Jane Rickatson of Stokesley, Yorkshire, has brought forth only disappointment. Her family have lived in that neighborhood since the latter part of the eighteenth century, but she can carry her line no farther back than her great-grandfather, she can suggest no way in which more might be learned of her ancestry, nor has she ever heard of any other family bearing the same surname.

About 1851 one Eli Rickettson came to this country and settled in Erie County, New York. An attempt at correspondence with his sons was unsuccessful; hoping therefore to learn something of their English origin, which might help us, we went to see Mr. James Britport Rickettson, of East Aurora, New York. From him we found that his father came from Yoral, Somersetshire, England, and that the name as given in the Family Records and in an English chancery suit in which Eli was involved was called "Ricketts otherwise Rickettson." This seems to show the original patronymic to have been Ricketts and its development into Rickettson or Rickattson to be comparatively recent; again our hypothesis falls to the ground.

So far as we can judge, the name Ricketson in this country, save for one or two incidental cases of misspelling and several entries in the early records where the name is given as Rickinson, has passed through but one change and that among the more illiterate branches of the family who call themselves Rickerson, especially in New York State and throughout the west.

We are forced for the present then to be content with these three meagre facts anent our first American ancestor: that he was an Englishman by birth, a carpenter and yeoman, and a Quaker. And in espousing the latter faith, he at least showed himself to be a man of courage, for if the Puritan creed led its believers along a straight and narrow way, it was yet a path of flowers compared to the stony road which the Quakers were called upon to tread. Persecuted even in this country and debarred from holding any public office, they were furthermore cut off from all intellectual development. Books, save for the enlivening pages of Fox's Book of Martyrs and John Griffith's Journal were forbidden by the narrow tenets of their faith; music was sinful and beauty and art equally so, hence we can scarcely wonder that, thus deprived of all intercourse with the "world's people," the horizon of the Quaker community was bounded by its own fields and hedgerows.

The descendants of William Ricketson's younger son Jonathan are as the sands of the sea, and many of the third generation were pioneers of the Quaker settlements in Dutchess and other New York Counties, and have left representatives in every State in the Union as well as in Nova Scotia and Australia. But the descendants of William Ricketson, Jr., the older son, few in number, have been a quiet, home-loving folk. Sometimes the blue waters of the Bay called to them, and they became whaling captains, but as a rule they remained in old Dartmouth, handing down from father to son the soil which they loved and tilled, and bequeathing too principles of honor and integrity which have stood the test when, with the wider creeds of later years, their children have gone forth into the world.

"Let not Ambition mock their useful toil, The homely joys and destiny obscure" of these "Fathers of the hamlet." For after all, have not the bone and sinew of our Country's strength been made from simple sturdy yeomen such as these, of whom we might quote Lowell's lines:

"The wisest man could ask no more of Fate
    Than to be simple, modest, manly, true
    Safe from the Many, honored by the Few,
    Nothing to court in World or Church or State,
    But inwardly in secret, to be great."

The dates in the Dartmouth Friends' Records, and the Dartmouth Vital Records, including the copy of the latter in the New Bedford Public Library, often conflict with one another, and to this variation must be attributed any discrepancies which may appear.

Last, but by no means least, let us acknowledge our appreciation and gratitude for the untiring help given us by Mr. William Prescott Greenlaw, Librarian of the New England Historic Genealogical Society of Boston, to Mr. George Henry Tripp, Librarian of the New Bedford Public Library, to Mr. William Arthur Wing and to Dr. Edward Tobey Tucker of New Bedford. We have also found useful The Slocums of America, by Dr. Charles Elihu Slocum, and The Howland Family, by Franklyn Howland.

William Ricketson,\(^1\) born ——; married 14 May, 1679, Elizabeth Mott, daughter of Adam and Mary (Lott) Mott, born 6 August, 1659, died 1723; died 1 March, 1691.

Children:

2  i. Rebeckah,\(^2\) b. 14 May, 1681, Portsmouth, Rhode Island.
3  ii. John,\(^2\) b. 11 February, 1682/3, Portsmouth.
4  iii. Elizabeth,\(^2\) b. 17 September, 1684, Dartmouth, Massachusetts.
5  iv. William,\(^2\) Jr., b. 26 February, 1685/6, Dartmouth.
6  v. Jonathan,\(^2\) b. 7 April, 1688, Dartmouth.
7  vi. Timothy,\(^2\) b. 22 January, 1689/90, Dartmouth.

William Ricketson was an Englishman and a Quaker and is supposed to have come to this country to avoid persecution on account of his religious faith. He settled first at Portsmouth, Rhode Island, where he hired a house of Giles Slocum who mentions in his will "five acres of land, with one Small Tiniment on it, laying in the Towne of Portsmouth in Rhode Island and now in the occupation of Will Rickinson house carpenter."

19 12th mo. 1682 the proceedings of the Town Meeting at Portsmouth show that "William Ricketson had presented a petition to set up a water mill for publick use" and on 4th 11th mo. 1683 William Ricketson's name was "propounded" as a freeman of the Town. 27 10th mo. 1685 a suit was brought with a claim of £800 by William Wood and five other men of Dartmouth purchasers of land of Woosanequin and Wamsutta against William Ricketson senr and others, Defendants. The action was non sued, "no cause of action." Apparently William Ricketson moved to Dartmouth before 1684, as their third child was born there in that year, and at Dartmouth he built the beautiful old house on the upland meadow whose walls and chimneys were still standing in 1906. Mr. William Arthur Wing thus happily describes the old mansion: "This house . . . . built about ten years after King Philip's war, where, as Increase Mather wrote, 'Dartmouth did they burn with fire and barbarously murder both men and women' stands on the east side of Acoxet or Westport River.* It is 'Now fallen to decay

With weather stains upon the wall
And stairway worn and crazy doors,
And creaking and uneven floors,
And chimney huge and tall!'

Facing south on the upland, it commands a fine sweep of view, bay and good old New England country. The sunset softens the time-worn shingles and the crumbling stone of the massive chimney with its crude pilasters. Within, in spite of its pathetic desolation, the brave old beams and fine woodwork bespeak an early New England craftsman at his best.

"The wedding room, in which Rebeckah Ricketson was married to John Russell, with attractive corner beaufet and great fireplace in the simplicity of its appointments was in accord with the Friends. . . . . Up winding stairs, in the great chamber above was a chimney piece (now in the Rooms of the Old Dartmouth Historical Society), called by experts the first of its time now extant in Massachusetts. Clambering up to the loft to watch the last rays of the setting sun upon the hills, the river and far-off islands you feel your ancestor, William Ricketson, builded well. Elizabeth Mott Ricketson, his wife, came from Portsmouth, Rhode Island, where her parents were well-known Friends. Her grandparents, first comers of the Motts, had been members of the Church of Reverend John Eliot, Apostle to the Indians. In 1694 Elizabeth Ricketson was one of the two women named in the confirmatory deed to the proprietors of Dartmouth."

As has been shown by the preceding extracts, William Ricketson was a carpenter and a skilful workman as well. The old house must have been quite a mansion for those early days, with a square room on either side of the front door and corresponding chambers above. Part of the original estate, the land lying on Buzzards Bay, at the head of Apponagansett River, in Padanaram Village, now called South Dartmouth, has passed down through seven generations of the name, and William Ricketson’s descendants have their summer home there. This little point of land, jutting out into Buzzard’s Bay, is designated on the maps as Ricketson’s Point; and it is a picturesque fact that in Almejas Bay on the Pacific Ocean another Ricketson’s Point is named for a descendant of William Ricketson’s son Jonathan.

William Ricketson’s will was dated 29 of 12th month, "called February 1691" and witnessed by Valentine Huddleston (of Newport) and by Mary (Mark) Mereyhough.

The Inventory of his estate, dated 31 May, 1707, copied from the original, is as follows:

‡Bristol County Probate Records, ii. 179. The Division of William Ricketson’s estate took place 10 October 1707 (Bristol Probate Records, ii. 183).
Elizabeth, widow, now wife of Mathew Wing, received all moveables or personal estate and use and improvement of uplands in a place in Dartmouth called by the name of Peetborhest being about 30 acres of land during her natural life and then to be divided between William and Jonathan Ricketson, William to have \( \frac{1}{3} \) and Jonathan \( \frac{2}{3} \) with the condition that Mathew Wing do pay to Daniel Wood who married Elizabeth Ricketson one of the daughters of the deceased £8 and two young cattle to be paid forthwith . . . . Daniel Wood to have in right of his wife Elizabeth 50 acres of land not yet divided but agreed upon to be laid out in proportion to 800 acres to a share and an equal right to future divisions being a fifth part of land belonging to the Real Estate.

John Russell, husband to Rebeckah, shall have the same.

The homestead to be equally divided as to quantity William Ricketson Jr. to have the South part; Timothy to have the northward part where the dwelling house is. In consideration of his part being the better he is to pay unto his brother William the sum of six pounds within one year after he comes into possession.

Mathew Wing appointed Timothy's guardian. William Ricketson appointed guardian of his brother Jonathan who is to have middle or shore part of said land. Other lands to be divided. This agreement was satisfactory to all the heirs and was signed by them.

After the death of William Ricketson a claim was made to 81\( \frac{3}{8} \) acres of a share of undivided land deeded to him by Hananiah Gaunt dated 13 January 1684 and also other claims.*

4 September 1696, Elizabeth, widow of William Ricketson, married Mathew Wing (Stephen\(^3\) John\(^2\) Mathew\(^1\)) and the various mentions of him in the deeds seem to show that he made an acceptable “father-in-law” to her children. They all lived together in the Ricketson house until the marriage of Jonathan Ricketson in 1710. Mathew Wing and his wife had the following children:

i. Joseph Wing, b. 21 February, 1696/7.
ii. Benjamin Wing, b. 2 February, 1698.
iii. Abigail Wing, b. 20 February, 1701/2.

Rebeckah Ricketson, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Mott) Ricketson, born 4 May, 1681, Portsmouth, Rhode Island; married 5 April, 1704 at Dartmouth, John Russell, son of Joseph and Elizabeth Russell, born 29 November, 1679, Dartmouth, died — 1767; died 24 March, 1751.

"In ye town of Dartmouth on ye 25th day of ye 2nd month (called April) 1704 a meeting was appointed on purpose at ye house of Martha (Mathew) Wing, for the marriage of John Russell and Rebeckah Ricketson, their being nothing to hinder and their intentions being duly published." Mathew Wing's house was the house built by Rebeckah's father William Ricketson, but now occupied by her mother and step-father.

The simple ceremony of the Friends took place in the room on the right of the front door, in one corner of which was the beaufet and with windows looking out over the meadow and the brook where her brother John built his grist mill. The bridegroom, John Russell, and his twin brother first saw the light in the fort at the head of Apponagansett River, for King Philip's cruel war was raging when the babies were born. A few traces of the earth works of the fort, which was on the easterly side of the river in "Joseph Russell's orchard" still remain and the little brook yet flows across the meadows which gave water to the inmates of the fort.

John Russell was a blacksmith and farmer; he lived at Mishaum Point. His will, dated 11 June, 1751, left to his son John his homestead land. His will was proved 3 August 1767.
24 February, 1753, John Russell married widow Deborah (Earle) Hunt daughter of Ralph Earle and widow of Adam Hunt.

In regard to the Russell family we are much indebted for help to the "Descendants of John Russell" by Barret Beard Russell, published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register. When our dates have differed from his, we have followed our own as they were taken from original sources. Mr. Russell ascribes a tenth child to John Russell. We think he must have mistaken John Russell's granddaughter, Rebecca Allen, whom the latter mentions in his will, for a daughter.

Children:

i. Elizabeth Russell, b. 19 April, 1705, Dartmouth; m. 1 March, 1721/2, Abraham Tucker son of Abraham and Hannah (Mott) Tucker, b. 5 March, 1697; d. ——; d. 9 October, 1724. Abraham Tucker was a farmer. He lived in what is now North Dartmouth on the Tucker Road and his farm joined his brother Henry's at the south. Children:

1. Rebecca Tucker, b. 18 December, 1722.
2. James Tucker, b. 23 September, 1724.

ii. Rebeckah Russell, b. 23 July, 1706; d. in childhood.

iii. Bethia Russell, b. 19 December, 1707; d. probably young.

iv. John Russell, b. 16 January, 1709/10; m. 6 January, 1732, Patience Tucker, daughter of Henry and Phebe (Barton) Tucker; b. 31 6th month, 1711; d. 3 10th month, 1778. John Russell lived at Misham Point, Dartmouth, where he built the old house which passed to his sons Benjamin and Elijah. His wife's father, Henry Tucker, left to his daughter, Patience Russell, in his will (proved 15 June, 1763) his silver tankard, marked H. T. P., and his clock. Tradition says that Patience was such a tiny baby that she was put into the tankard and the cover shut down over her. The clock is supposed to have been brought to Dartmouth by Patience's mother, Phebe Barton of Portsmouth, Rhode Island, at the time of her marriage to Henry Tucker. The dial and works are still in existence and the latter running. Children:

1. Job Russell, b. 4 March 1731, Dartmouth; d. 30 July, 1733.

Residence, Dartmouth, Massachusetts. Nicholas Howland was a yeoman. He married (2) 9 December, 1762, widow Sarah (Cook) Devoll of Dartmouth. In his will, dated 7 6th mo., 1774 (proved 27 November, 1782), he made his son Timothy Executor and left to him his homestead farm and land thereto adjoining on the east side of the river — his grist mill river — and to his son Jonathan the land on the west side

Residence, Dartmouth, Massachusetts. Occupation, yeoman. Timothy Russell's first marriage is to be found in the Leonard Papers only. It is said that his second wife, Rhoda Potter, was the handsomest woman in the meetinghouse while his third consort, Hannah, was very plain. Nathl Paine Probate* Daniell Wood married (2), 13 March, 1737/8, Phebe Sherman. They had one son, Enos Wood, b. 27 April, 1739, and others.

Daniell Wood's will was probated 7 December, 1758. In it

*Bristol Probate, iii. 727.
he mentions his wife Phebe, his son William the executor, his dughter Elizabeth, wife of John Newport, his daughter Martha, wife of John Cook of Tiverton, the two eldest children of his deceased son Daniel, viz., John and Anna, his own two youngest children Daniell and Elizabeth, but he does not speak of Rebecca or Enos.

Children:

i. William Wood, b. 20 May, 1706, m. (1) (published 16 August, 1728) 10 September, 1728, Hannah Howland, daughter of Nicholas and Anna (Woodman) Howland, b.
10 June, 1708, d. 25 7th mo. 1771; m. (2) 22 July, 1774. Alice (Shearman) Stafford, daughter of Samuel and Hannah Shearman and widow of Joseph Stafford of Tiverton, b. 15 September, 1719, d ——; d. 1786. Residence, Dartmouth, Massachusetts. William Wood was known as Captain Wood. It seems fair to infer that the Alice Stafford of Tiverton whom William Wood married was the widow of Joseph Stafford, “celebrated astrologer,” whose death is noted in the Newport Mercury of 31 May, 1773, as having occurred the previous week.
Captain Wood made his will 15 July, 1786; therein he mentions wife Alice, sons Josiah and Luthern, and grandchildren Collins, Henry, Rebecca, Hannah and Mary Smith, the children of his deceased daughter Cynthia.
His wife is to have all the movables she brought with her at her marriage and he speaks of his “chime clock” and his “veneered clock.”

Children:

1. Josiah Wood, b. 27 February, 1729.
2. Luthern Wood, b. 16 January, 1736/7.
3. Cynthia Wood, b. 9 July, 1742.

ii. Elizabeth Wood, b. 26 January, 1708/9; m. (1), (published) 18 May, 1728, Joseph Smith, son of Eliezer and Ruth (Sprague) Smith, b. 26 October, 1696; d. ——;
m. (2), 22 September, 1745, John Stevens, son of John and Mary Stevens, b. 27 February, 1702; d. 17 April, 1778, aetat 76 years; d. 18 February, 1791, aetat 82 years. We suppose the Joseph Smith whose birth is given in the Vital Records of Rhode Island to have been the son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Wood) Smith although the births of their other children are not given. Elizabeth was married to her second husband, John Stevens of Newport by the Rev. James Seering. John Stevens’s birth is taken from “John Stevens’ Book” now in the Newport Historical Society in Dr. Henry Turner’s manuscript, and the dates of death of John Stevens himself, and his wife from their headstones in the graveyard. John Stevens’s father, John, bought land in 1705, of Nathaniel Coddington, on Thames Street, and there established a stonecutting business which is still carried on (1906); John Stevens, Jr. calls himself a bricklayer however in his will; this instrument is dated 28 May, 1774, but it was not proved until eighteen years after his death, 17 June, 1786. He mentions his wife Elizabeth and his son John who are his executors and his daughter, Martha Biszell, and grandchildren, James, Job and Martha Biszell. We are not sure whether this John and Martha are the children of Elizabeth Wood or of another wife. Martha married 26 June, 1764 Job Bissell, son of Job Bissell, who was born 14 July, 1746. Children:

1. Hannah Smith, b. 31 May, 1730.
2. James Smith, b. 3 February, 1733.
3. Joseph Smith, b. 11 August, 1738.
   and possibly
4. John Stevens, b. ——
5. Martha Stevens, b. ——

iii. Martha Wood, b. 13 April, 1712; m. 10 April, 1735; John Cook, son of Thomas and Mary Cook, b. (circa) 1707, North Tiverton, Rhode Island; d. ——; d. ——. Residence, in or near the family homestead at North Tiverton, Rhode Island.

The dates given by Albert Welles in his “American Family Antiquity” for the marriage of John Cook and the births of his two children, Pardon and Paul, are evidently apocryphal and we have therefore omitted them. The Leonard Papers give the correct date of marriage and Elizabeth was evidently the first child. Children, first three born at Dartmouth, Massachusetts, others at Tiverton, Rhode Island:

1. Elizabeth Cook, b. 5 February, 1756.
2. Pardon Cook, b. —
3. Paul Cook, b. —
4. Rebecca Cook, b. —
5. Bathsheba Cook, b. —
6. Hannah Cook, b. —
7. Caleb Cook, b. —
8. Bennits Cook, b. —

iv. Rebecca Wood, b. 4 July, 1715; d. probably sine prole before 1757 as there is no mention of her in her father’s will of that date.

v. Daniel Wood, Jr., b. 27 March, 1720; m. 12 November, 1743/4, Mary Wady, daughter of Humphrey and Sarah (Wing) Wady, b. 10 August, 1726; d. —; d. 1755. John Wood and his wife were married at Dartmouth. Her father, Humphrey Wady, emigrated from London, England, where he was born 20 12th mo., 1690. He settled in North Carolina whence he moved to Sandwich, Massachusetts. In his will, dated 21 June, 1759, he speaks of his grandchildren, John, Ann, Elizabeth and Daniel, but he does not speak of Lydia. Her name (although with no date) is found in the Record of the late Mr. William C. Pierce of New Bedford, and is also mentioned in the will of her father Daniel Wood as unmarried, but she probably died before the latter was proved in May, 1755, as her name is not given in the settlement of the estate. Daniel Wood’s will speaks also of his daughter, Nancy (undoubtedly his second daughter, Ann), who married Henry Treadwell. Daniel Wood lived in Dartmouth. His widow married before July, 1763 — Treadwell. Children:

2. Ann Wood, b. —
William Ricketson

3. Elizabeth Wood, b. —
4. John Wood, b. —
5. Daniels Wood, b. —
6. Lydia Wood, b. —; d. unmarried before May, 1755.

The musty records of the early Friends give little scope for much play of fancy but a faint breath of romance and mystery still lingers around the memory of Elephel Fitzgerald, the mother of Meribah (Slocum) Ricketson.

One story goes that she was one of the young women of gentle birth who were forcibly brought to America and sold as wives to the settlers, but we prefer to follow the legend to which Mr. Henry Howland Crapo gives preference in his interesting article on the Slocum house at Barney’s Joy. Both traditions agree that she was of gentle blood, a daughter of The Fitzgerald Earl of Kildare of the race of the Geraldines, descendants of the early Irish Kings. Her sister, whose name alas! we have not, eloped with an English officer, of course against her father’s will, and brought Elephel with her to America, but the links are missing whereby we might learn why she and her sister were parted, and Elephel became an inmate, probably a serving maid, in the house of Giles Slocum of Portsmouth. Once there however, it was of course the natural sequence, that her master's youngest son, Eliezer, not yet twenty, should fall in love with her, and equally of course that his stern Quaker parents should not look with favor on his love-affair with the young Irish maiden. It is said that Elephel was incontinently locked up in the smoke house, and that Eliezer climbed down the chimney thereof and released his sweetheart. At any rate, they were happily married and their lives were passed in the house at Barney's Joy which Eliezer built about 1700. The annals of Slocum's Neck cherish still the tale of the gorgeous lady with her coach and four, Elephel's sister, making her slow way through the sandy roads of Dartmouth to visit her humble Quaker sister. Apparently Elephel adapted herself well to the rude conditions of the New England life of the day and made a faithful helpmate, for Eliezer Slocum speaks of her in his will as his "beloved wife."

Dartmouth 19 6th mo. 1734  Friends Monthly Meeting  And William Ricketson was at this meeting and the meeting having agitated the matter with him concerning his Son's wearing a periwig and the disorderly marriage of his Daughter, he desires some farther time to consider of it, and so it is referred to the next meeting.

16 7th mo. 1734  William Ricketson appeared at the meeting and hath made the meeting satisfaction as to his daughter's disorderly marriage and as for his son's wearing a periwig he doth signify that he will do his Endeavour to persuade him to desist.

The daughter above referred to must have been Elizabeth who committed the terrible offence of being published by the Town Clerk Jabez Barber to Henry Tucker 8 September 1733

15 1st mo 1742  Committee appointed by the Dartmouth Meeting to talk with William Ricketson for having entertained certain erroneous beliefs contrary to their principles.

19 5th mo. 1742  A condemnation of William Ricketson was read, and he was disowned after the said condemnation had been previously read. He announced that he believed Adam was in a better state after he had transgressed against the command of God than before. 2nd that from Adam to the coming of Christ in the flesh the wickedness of man brought as much honour to God as the Righteous, these with many more such like notions he "doth stand to testify."

William Ricketson's father-in-law, Eliezer Slocum made him executor of his will, dated 1746. He left a bed to his daughter Meribah, to William himself a horse and Six spoons and after several other bequests the residue of his estate to his daughter Meribah.

This humble petition was granted and the erring pair were restored to the membership of the Meeting.

Jonathan Ricketson was a yeoman and cordwainer. He lived in the family homestead on the farm at Dartmouth (now Westport), Massachusetts, the house which had been built by his father William Ricketson. 9 April 1756 he sold part of the land to his son Abner but the deed of sale was not signed until 12 October 1763 when it was signed by Jonathan and “Alys,” evidently an error.

18 September 1711 the north part of his father's estate was allotted to Tymothy Ricketson and later other portions were set off to him.

Mary Ricketson, daughter of William (William') and Meribah (Slocum) Ricketson, born 20 February, 1713, Dartmouth; married 10 July, 1731, Stephen Wilcox, son of Daniel and Sarah Wilcox of Dartmouth, born 2 May, 1707, died 1778; died ——.

Stephen Wilcox was a tailor. He lived on Westport River in Dartmouth (now Westport), Massachusetts. In his will, proved 6 October, 1778, he mentions wife Mary, sons Culbert, Daniel, Abner and David, and daughters Hannah, Catherine Cornell and Mary Pecom (sic).

Children:

i. Culbut³ Wilcox, Son of Stephen and Mary (Ricketson) Wilcox, b. 13 April, 1732; m. 8 January, 1754, Ruth White, daughter of George and Deborah (Shaw) White of Dartmouth, b. 19 May, 1736, Dartmouth; d. ——; d. —— at Tiverton, Rhode Island. Culbut Wilcox lived at Tiverton, Rhode Island. He was a ship-carpenter, and when his son William and grandson Hiram settled at Palmyra, New York, he is supposed to have accompanied them, but he returned to Tiverton and died there. We can find no record of his death nor of any Probate proceedings connected with his estate. These facts have been collected from widely scattered descendants of Culbut’s children, William and Lillis, who have never heard of any other children than their own progenitors. The Tiverton Records give the marriage in 1774 of Culbut’s daughter, Sarah, to John Stafford, son of David Stafford, and from Mr. George H. Richardson we learn of Culbut’s son, Abner, who was his ancestor. The census of the inhabitants of the Colony of Rhode Island in 1774 gives the family of “Culbud” Wilcox as follows: 2 males above 16 years; 3 males under 16; 3 females above 16; 3 females under 16; 1 black; total 12. Elizabeth Ricketson, daughter of William (William') and Meribah (Slocum) Ricketson born 10 March, 1715; married (intention 8 September, 1733) 18 October, 1733, O. S., Henry Tucker, Jr., son of Henry and Phebe (Barton) Tucker, born 8 February, 1713, died 1794; died ——.

Henry Tucker was a yeoman and inherited from his father one-half of the Tucker Farm at North Dartmouth, situated on the Tucker Road; the latter derives its name from having been cut through the Tucker estate. As we know, William Ricketson was called to account by the Friends for his daughter Elizabeth's disorderly marriage to Henry, and Henry Tucker himself was disowned from Meeting on account of the vanity displayed in his personal attire. He was nicknamed "Double Row Henry" from the double row of buttons which he wore on his coat. For a number of years before his death he was blind. In his will, dated 9 March, 1784, proved 6 May, 1794, he mentions his wife Elizabeth, his daughters, his grandson Holder (whereby we infer that Holder's father William had previously died) and speaks of "lands in the town of Newport, Kingston County, Province of Nova Scotia." His children were not members of the Friends Society owing no doubt to their father's dismissal from the Meeting.

Children:

i. William Tucker, b. 12 January 1734/5, m. (published 16 and 3 November, 1754,) 18 January, 1755, Mary Slocum, daughter of Holder and Rebeckah (Almy) Slocum, b. 20 August, 1736, d. ——; d. (probably before 1784). The publication of the banns between William Tucker and Mary Slocum was forbidden by her parents. We copy the remonstrance entered the following year. “Dartmouth ye 4th of the 4th mo. 1735 Whereas William Tucker has got published to our daughter Mary Slocum, we the subscribers do forbid the bannes (sic) of marriage between ye said William Tucker and our daughter Mary Slocum and Likewise forbid the Town Clerk of giving them a certificate till the controversy be determined by law the above-mentioned bannes of marriage forbidden by Holder Slocum and Rebeckah Slocum.

And His Descendants

Timothy, Jonathan, William. He was therefore his wife’s second cousin. He lived for some years at Dartmouth where his three eldest children were born, but about 1762 he must have gone to North Carolina, where his brothers Marmaduke and Timothy had preceded him, for the tradition which has been handed down in the family of his daughter Nancy (Mrs. Marshall) is that he came to Annapolis from North Carolina. He must have settled in Nova Scotia before 1770 as he is mentioned in the census returns of that year. His father-in-law Henry Tucker owned land in Nova Scotia so it is possible that Abednego was thereby induced to try his fortunes there, although in a different part of the country. He bought a farm between Bridgetown and Belleisle which is still known as the “Ricketson Property” but it has long since passed into other hands. Abednego Ricketson was a Methodist preacher as well as a farmer; he was a man of some education and intelligence and appears to have held a leading place among his fellow-settlers. Children, first four born in Dartmouth, others in Bridgetown:

1. Bathsheba Ricketson, b. 2 July, 1758.
2. Henry Ricketson, b. 30 July, 1760.
3. Elizabeth Ricketson, b. 19 October, 1762.

*George Smith, b. 27 August, 1701; m. 1.31.1726, Elizabeth Allen, and d. 7.17.1769.
William Ricketson was a yeoman. He lived in Dartmouth where the Stephen Anthony house now stands; in fact part of the frame work of the Ricketson house was used for the present Anthony building. His great-granddaughter, Mary Wood Ricketson (Mrs. Thomas) remembered being told that when the British soldiers invaded Dartmouth, they took the dolls' clothes of William Ricketson's little daughters, Hannah and Rhoda, and strewed them along the road to the point which is now the corner of Chestnut and Walnut Streets.

174th month, 1758, William Ricketson with others gave money for Military service.

He made his son, Benjamin, Executor to his will which was proved 4 May, 1796. His estate, according to Inventory, was valued at $2738.76.

Joanna3 Ricketson, daughter of William2 (William1) and Meribah (Slocum) Ricketson, born 9 September, 1725; married (1), (intention, 13 November) 29 November, 1741, William Howland, son of Henry and Elizabeth (Northup) Howland, born 20 March, 1720; died before 1746; married (2), 15 October, 1746, Nathaniel Howland, son of John and Mary (Cook) Howland, born 7 March, 1726; died before 1801; died before 1768. The Dartmouth Town Records give the year of Nathaniel Howland's birth as 1725. Joanna Howland and her second husband moved from Dartmouth to Quaker Hill, Dutchess County, New York, and settled near Nathaniel's brothers, Peleg and Isaac Howland. We can find scarcely any mention of the family in the Friends' Records or the Dutchess County Probate Office and Registry of Deeds.*

Children:

i. William Howland, b. 30 January, 1744; m. 26 May, 1763, Hope Almy, daughter of Joseph and Abigail (Sisson) Almy of Dartmouth, b. 14 December, 1748, "in the evening about candlelight," d. ——; d. ——. Child:
   1. Johannah Howland, b. 2 January, 1765, Dartmouth.

ii. Meribah Howland, b. 10.9.1747; m. (intention 6 April) 25 April, 1776, Joseph Severance. The name of Meribah Howland and her husband are greatly confused in the Howland and Slocum Genealogies and every effort to learn what became of them has been fruitless.

iii. Mary Howland, b. 3.11.1749; m. (intention 15 1st mo.) 25 2nd mo., 1767, Benjamin Ferris, Jr., son of Benjamin and Phebe (Beecher) Ferris, b. 25 9th mo., 1738, O. S., d. ——; d. ——. The Slocum Genealogy and Oblong Records vary as to the date of Mary Howland's birth. She and her husband lived at Quaker Hill, Dutchess County, New York, on part of the farm owned in 1902 by E. L. Post. Benjamin Ferris was a farmer; he gave to the Society of Friends the old graveyard north of the meeting house. He and his wife and children are there buried, their graves unmarked by any stone as was the custom of the Friends until recently. The grave of his son Peleg has a head stone. Children:
   1. Walters Ferris, b. 1 January, 1768.
   2. Lilliass Ferris, b. 25 September, 1769.
   3. Wayman Ferris, b. 25 September, 1771.
   4. Edwards Ferris, b. 20 February, 1778.

* Nathaniel Howland m. (2) Sarah ——, b. 2 mo. 25 day, 1740, O. S. Their children were Deborah, b. 5 mo. 13 day, 1768; Deidamia, b. 12 mo. 8 day, 1769; Sarah, b. 7 mo. 11 day, 1772; Ruth b. 3 mo. 26 day, 1774; Roby b. 11 mo. 9 day, 1775; Elizabeth, b. 9 mo. 15 day, 1777; Eunice, b. 7 mo. 27 day, 1781. (Copy of Family Bible record of Nathaniel Howland, from Haviland Genealogy.)

The Howland and Slocum Genealogies differ as to dates; we have given precedence to the Howland Genealogy.
5. Peleg Ferris, b. 21 January, 1781.
7. Phoebe Ferris, b. 28 January, 1788.

iv. Peleg Howland, b. 14 February, 1752; m. intention 17 3rd mo., 1774. Elizabeth Aiken, daughter of Jonathan and Lillias (Ferris) Aiken, b. 3 April, 1758, d. 27 February, 1818, Greenbush, New York; d. 10 May, 1814. Peleg Howland moved to Dutchess County, New York, with his parents in 1760 and lived at Pawling. In his will, dated 16 September, 1805, he leaves to his wife all his farm which he bought from Nathaniel Howland. His will was proved in 1814, day and month not given. He is buried on the Martin Leach Farm at Pawling. His widow died while visiting her brother William Aiken and is buried at Greenbush, New York. Several of Peleg Howland's children emigrated to Canada, among them the family of his son Jonathan, whose son William Pearce Howland became Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario and was knighted. Children:

1. Joanna Howland, b. ——.
3. Nathaniel Howland, b. 2 August, 1782.
4. George Howland, b. ——.
5. Elizabeth Howland, b. ——.

v. Nathaniel Howland, born 2 August, 1756; m. —— Margaret Aiken, daughter of Josiah and Judith (Huddleston) Aiken, b. 4 9th mo., 1760, d. 24 September, 1840; d. 2 January 1840. Nathaniel Howland lived at Franklin and Fredericksburgh, Dutchess County, New York, and later at Patterson, Putnam County, New York. He was a farmer. He and his wife are buried in the Four Corners Burying Ground at Patterson. Children:

1. William Howland, b. 15 March, 1778.
2. David Howland, b. ——, 1785.
3. Laura Howland, b. 26 August, 1800.

vi. Deborah Howland, b. ——; m. —— Noxon. All search for further facts in the Quaker and Probate Records of Dutchess County have been fruitless in regard to Deborah (Howland) Noxon. There is a Noxon family in Dutchess County but so far as can be learned no member of it married Deborah Howland.

vii. Sarah Howland, b. ——; d. 18 January, 1846, unmarried. Neither have we been able to obtain any clue as to what became of Sarah Howland.

viii. Tabby Howland, b. ——. Of whom no more is known.

Meribah Ricketson, daughter of William (William') and Meribah (Slocum) Ricketson, born 5 May, 1729, Dartmouth; married 7 August, 1748, Walter Easton, son of Peter and Content (Slocum) Easton, born 20 January, 1723, died 20 February, 1802, Easton's Point; died 19 July, 1812, Newport, Rhode Island.

Walter Easton was the great-great-great-grandson of Governor Nicholas Easton. His father, Peter Easton, left him his farm at Easton's Point, Middletown, Rhode Island, and it must have come into his possession about 1747, when Peter Easton's will was proved. The bequest caused dissension in the family which lasted for many years, for the farm was a very valuable one, and the other heirs considered the division of the property unfair. Walter Easton was also his father's executor. He was a merchant and farmer and in December, 1781, the estimate of damages sustained by him from the depredations of the British troops at Middletown was £1,656 10s. He was a member of the Friends Meeting, although he differed from them at one time as to slave-holding. 28 6th mo. 1796 he sent in a paper however to the Meeting at Newport, in which he expressed repentance at having disagreed with them and as he had freed his last slave, hoped to be reunited to them.

In his will, dated 10 June, 1799, proved 1 March, 1802, he left his property to his wife, his four sons, William, Walter, Peter and Job, and his two daughters, Content Warner and Catherine Easton, as well as to his daughter Elizabeth Slocum.

The homestead farm was sold 23 July, 1803, by his widow and children.

Walter Easton was buried in the Upper Burial Ground of the Friends Meadow Field at Newport. His death and that of his widow are noted in the Providence Gazette.

27 9th mo. 1804, Meribah Easton received a certificate to the Dartmouth Monthly Meeting, and a return certificate 17 7th mo. 1809.

Children:

i. Content Easton, b. 7 April, 1750; m. (1), 7 June, 1770, John Wanton, b. ---; d. ---; m. (2), 24 May, 1778, John Warner, b. ---; d. ---; d. 12 May, 1825, Newport. Content Easton’s first marriage ceremony was performed by the Reverend Gardner Thurston, a Baptist minister who officiated at Trinity Church, Newport, during an interregnum when the Church was without a rector and the Baptist Church was occupied by British troops. Her second marriage is to be found among the Trinity Church marriages. John Wanton was a resident of Newport, Rhode Island; further than that we can learn nothing of him nor of her second husband, John Warner. 27 8th mo., 1771, she was condemned by the Friends’ Meeting for marrying out of the Society but was forgiven, 29 10th mo., 1771, on showing proper contrition for her fault. She was again disowned for her second marriage and again reinstated, 28 8 mo., 1778, on sending in a paper expressive of repentance. The terms of her father’s will made in 1799 show that she lived with him as he left her an especial legacy for her care of him. In 1817 her brother, Dr. Peter Easton of Nantucket, left her $50.00. The administration on her estate shows her to have been childless. Her funeral sermon was preached by Abigail Robinson. Her death is mentioned in the Providence Gazette.
ii. William⁴ Easton, b. 29 9th mo., 1751; m. 21 October, 1792, Elizabeth Oldfield, daughter of Captain John and Anna (Clarke) Oldfield, b. ——; d. 1802, Newport; d. ——. William Easton lived in Newport, Rhode Island, at the time of his wife’s death in 1802, which is reported in the Providence Gazette of 6 March, 1802. 29 7th mo., 1824, he received a removal certificate from the Newport Friends Meeting to Rockland Factory, within the limits of Greenwich Monthly Meeting, New York. Mr. John Cox, Jr., who has studied the Meeting Records throughout New York extensively, has never heard of this meeting. We cannot learn whether William Easton had children nor the date of his death.

iii. Catherine⁴ Easton, b. 24 May, 1754; m. December, 1802, Eleazer Treavett, son of Captain Eleazer and Mary (Church) Treavett, b. 5 May, 1745; d. ——; d. 1816. 29 4th mo., 1796, Catherine Easton presented a paper to the Newport Meeting desiring to be restored to membership. A note in the Record adds that she was disowned 12th mo., 1802, for marrying out of meeting. Mr. Treavett was a school teacher and William L. Marcy, afterward Governor of New York, was an usher in his school for several years. Residence, Newport, Rhode Island. No children.

iv. Elizabeth⁴ Easton, b. 22 July, 1756, Newport; m. (intention, 4 December) 18 December, 1779, Paul Slocum, son of Benjamin and Phebe (Wing) Slocum, b. 27 December, 1754, Dartmouth; d. 1824, at Pembroke, New York; d. 1824, Pembroke. About 1784 Paul Slocum and his family moved from Dartmouth, Massachusetts, to New York, and lived for sixteen years or more in Hartford Township, Washington County, and for several years in Saratoga and Cayuga Counties. They settled finally in Pembroke Township, Genesee County. Paul Slocum was a clothier, real estate dealer, Judge and Sheriff of Cayuga County. Administration was taken out on his estate 25 September, 1824. His fourth child was undoubtedly named Stephen Mazýck for the husband of his sister, Ann, and we thus give it, although the Slocum Genealogy calls him Stephen Myrick. Children:

1. Phebes Slocum, b. 8 September, 1780.
2. William Easton's Slocum, b. 19 April, 1782.
3. Marian Easton Slocum, b. 22 March, 1784.
4. Stephen Mazyck's Slocum, b. 16 April, 1786.
5. Benjamin Walters Slocum, b. 1789.
6. Charles Slocum, b. ——.

v. Ann Easton, b. 21 February, 1759; m. 8 November, 1784, at Newport, Rhode Island, Stephen Mazéck, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Ravenel) Mazéck, b. 1755; d. 24 August, 1808, at Charleston, South Carolina; d. 27 June, 1785. Stephen Mazéck's home was at Goose Creek, Charleston, South Carolina. His name occurs in the list of soldiers who served in the Continental Army until the end of the war and who were therefore entitled to commutation of pay and to land bounty. He was lieutenant of the Second South Carolina Regiment and was accompanied by his colored servant, "Black Robin." His grandfather, Isaac Mazéck, was the first of the name in the United States. Lieutenant Mazéck's death and that of his first wife, Ann Easton, are chronicled in the newspapers of Charleston and of Newport. No children. He married (2), Miss Young and had six children.

vi. Walter Easton, b. 13 June, 1760, Middletown, Rhode Island; d. there 27 July, 1761.

vii. Walter Easton, 2nd, b. 2 June, 1762; m. (1), (intention, 4 January) 19 January, 1783, Phebe Slocum, daughter of Benjamin and Phebe (Wing) Slocum, b. 26 August, 1767; d. ——; m. (2) ——, Meribah Slocum, daughter of Benjamin and Phebe (Wing) Slocum, b. ——; d. ——; d. ——. In 1806 Walter Easton was a sailor. Until 1810 he lived in Dartmouth, Massachusetts. After that date he disappears from Town and County Records. It was undoubtedly he who married his wife's sister, Meribah, as there was no contemporaneous Walter Easton. We have vainly tried to trace him and his children. Children:

1. Holdres Easton, b. 24 August, 1783.
2. Nancy5 Easton, b. 10 June, 1786.
3. Charless Easton, b. 18 November, 1789.
4. Elizabeth5 Easton, b. 10 August, 1792.

viii. Holdre Easton, b. 1 February, 1766; d. probably before 1799 as he is not mentioned in his father's will of that date.

ix. Peter Easton, b. 26 July, 1767; m. 18 September, 1784, Mary Coffin, daughter of Hon. Peleg and Eunice (Barker) Coffin, b. July, 1789; d. 19 March, 1846, at Boston, aetat. 66 years 7 months; d. 16 August, 1817 (sic.), Nantucket, Massachusetts. Dr. Peter Easton studied medicine with the well-known Dr. Isaac Senter of Newport. 29 12th mo. 1789, he was disowned by the Friends Meeting of Newport for having departed from their ways. He settled in Nantucket and apparently never returned to their membership as his marriage was performed by Bezalid Shaw, Town Clerk. The Nantucket Census which gives the date of his death as above is obviously an error, for his will was dated 16 September a month later. Dr. Charles D. Easton's records give his death as 17 September which is probably correct. Dr. Peter Easton left $50 to his sister, Content Warner, and to his executor, Philip Folger. The remainder of his estate was to be divided equally among his children after his son Isaac should attain the age of twenty-one. His wife was not mentioned but she signed the release to the executors. After her husband's death, Mrs. Easton moved to Boston where her daughter Mary Ann kept a fashionable boarding house on Bowdoin Square for many years. Mrs. Easton and all her children except Alexander are buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Massachusetts. Children:

1. Alexanders Easton, b. 3 December, 1795.
2. George Waltens Easton, b. 3 January 1798.
3. Josiah Barkers Easton, b. 28 March, 1799; d. 1819 at Havana, Cuba, aetat. 20 years.
5. Isaac Senter Easton, b. 31 May, 1802, Nantucket; d. 2 March, 1863, Boston; unmarried.

x. John Richardson Easton, b. 1 July, 1769; d., probably sine prole, before 1799, as he is not mentioned in his father’s will.

xi. Job Easton, b. 2 March, 1771; m. 16 August, 1796, Betsey Treavitt, daughter of Eleazer Treavitt, b. 1778; d. 6 January, 1830, Laurens, New York, ätat 52 years, after an illness of 20 years; d. 1839, at Burlington, Otsego County, New York. Job Easton’s marriage was given in the Newport Mercury of 16 August, 1796. In 1802 he was living in Washington County, New York. In the New Bedford Mercury of 15 April, 1839, which gives his death, he is mentioned as “late of Newport.” Children:

1. Catherine Easton, b. 10 September, 1797; d. 7 October, 1797.
2. Lucretia Easton, b. 7 November, 1798; d. 24 November, 1798.
3. Franklin Benjamin Easton, b. 7 October, 1799.
4. Peggy B Easton, b. 12 March, 1802.
5. Caroline Easton, b. 3 September, 1808.
6. Harriet Easton, b. 3 September, 1818.

Hannah Ricketson, daughter of William (William, William) and Hannah (Russell) Ricketson, born 8 February, 1749/50; married 16 June, 1768, David Allen, son of Benjamin and Ellifal (Slocum) Allen, born 14 May, 1749; died 12 September, 1818, New Bedford; died before 1791, when her father made his will.

The witnesses to the marriage of Hannah Ricketson and David Allen were: Bethiah Wady, Sarah Howland, Mary Almy, William Ricketson, Benjamin Ricketson, Meribah Ricketson, John Ricketson, Patience Ricketson and Benjamin Tucker. In the record of his death, David Allen is styled "of Clark's Neck." His father's homestead was at the head of Clark's Cove, New Bedford; he originally owned the whole of Clark's Cove and as far north as the brow of the hill of the County Road (now County Street), leading to Clark's Cove. His house itself, which was very large, was known as the Cove House, and afterward belonged to Abraham Ricketson* (John, Jonathan, William).

II 2nd mo., 1772, David Allen sent in a paper to the Friends Monthly Meeting at Dartmouth, expressive of his contrition "for having been in company with the Rabble."

He married again after his wife's death. His death is given in the New Bedford Mercury.

8th mo., 1784  Benjamin Ricketson was reduced to contrition.

In his will, dated 26 January, 1796, Benjamin Ricketson makes the following disposition of his property:

To my brother, John Ricketson, $\frac{1}{3}$ of my real and personal estate.

To the heirs of Sylvia Tucker, wife of Abraham Tucker $\frac{1}{6}$ of Same

To the heirs of Hannah Allen, wife of David Allen, $\frac{1}{6}$ of Same

To Rhoda Wing, wife of Bennet Wing $\frac{1}{6}$ of Same

To Elizabeth Slocum, wife of Peleg Slocum, $\frac{1}{12}$ of Same

To Catherine Sanford, wife of David Sanford $\frac{1}{12}$ of Same

If Elizabeth Ricketson, widow, relict of William Ricketson, deceased, do not accept of the last will and testament of her late husband, Elizabeth Slocum and Catherine Sanford aforesaid, instead of having $\frac{1}{12}$ of my real and personal estate, should have only each of them one dollar and no more.

I give and bequeath one of the five lots of land I own in Gennessee County in the eleventh township in the third range in Gorham and Philip's purchase to be divided as follows, viz.:

One moiety to be the property of "friends and Quakers" at the place where said lot lies and never to be sold, and the other moiety for the use of the Dartmouth Monthly Meeting to be sold.

My will is that John Trip, son of Samuel Trip shall have the use and improvement during his natural life of the lot he now lives on and buildings known by the name of John Curtin Lot also the improvement of my cleared land known as Jonah's Field. John Trip was to set out sixty apple trees at Curtin Lot.

I give to Rhoda Wing, one hundred dollars. I give to Henry, son of my brother John my desk and gun.

To Elephel Butler, wife of Obed Butler, bed, bolster, pillows and blankets.

Executors: John Ricketson and Bennet Wing.

About 1852, Benjamin Ricketson's grand-nephew, Benjamin Tucker Ricketson, bought the estate called "John Curtin Lot," John Trip had duly set out the sixty apple trees which yielded their harvest of fruit and the spot was the favorite playground of his little daughter, Sarah Howland Ricketson.

The small house on the place was occupied, long after it passed into the hands of Benjamin Tucker Ricketson, by John Trip's daughters, Mrs. Phebe Craw, a widow, and Miss Polly Trip. They divided the little domicile scrupulously in two and maintained separate homes, as they frequently were not on speaking terms for months at a time.

20 5th month, 1798. The Friends Meeting reports the gift of Benjamin Ricketson of land in Genessee (sic) County and have agreed with the heirs to have the title looked up.

And His Descendants

Peleg Slocum was called "King Peleg" on account of his extensive possession of land on Slocum's Neck in Dartmouth where he lived in the house built by his grandfather, Holder Slocum. The house was burned about 1850. Peleg Slocum was a farmer. His wife's niece, Mrs. Smith (born Millia Ann Sanford), perfectly remembers his visiting her grandmother, Mrs. David Sanford (Catherine Ricketson), at Augusta, Maine. Peleg Slocum had driven from Dartmouth with his own horses and carriage and his colored coachman on the box.

Mrs. Slocum's death is mentioned in the New Bedford Mercury of 6 November, 1838; the date in the family record of 7 November must therefore be an error.

Catherine⁴ Ricketson, daughter of William³ (William² William¹) and Elizabeth (Smith) Ricketson, born 29 June, 1770; married 8 January, 1789, David Sanford, son of Peleg and Alice Sanford; born 16 September, 1773; died 15 April, 1814, Augusta, Maine, aetat. 44 years.

David Sanford and his wife were married by Benjamin Russell, Justice of the Peace. Mr. Sanford was then a yeoman, and the family lived at Dartmouth, Massachusetts, until 1802, when they moved to Augusta, Maine. At the time of David Sanford’s death his estate was declared insolvent; his widow was appointed administratrix, and she apparently had ample means. She owned a farm at Sanford, Maine, near Augusta, Maine, which she made over to her sons David and Isaac and she confirmed this act in her will, dated 1840. Mrs. Sanford’s only surviving granddaughter (1909), Mrs. Smith, born Millia Ann Sanford, tell us that when the family moved from Dartmouth to Augusta they brought with them a colored woman, named “Black Peg,” who was family nurse to children and grandchildren. She was regarded with some terror by the residents of Kennebec, as the town was then called, to whom negroes were almost unknown. Mrs. Smith also recalled the visit made by Mrs. Sanford and her daughter Catherine (Mrs. Purrington) to New Bedford, sometime in the "forties," when they carried with them a stuffed panther as a specimen of Maine productions. The memory of the latter animal is the sole recollection which any of the kindred in the old home appear to retain of their visits. David and Catherine Sanford were members of the Quaker Meeting and are buried on Quaker Hill, Sidney (near Augusta), Maine.

Children:

i. Holder⁵ Sanford, b. 16 June, 1789, Dartmouth; d. 21 June, 1793.

ii. Abigail⁵ Sanford, b. 1 July, 1794, Dartmouth; d. 7 September, 1794.

iii. William Ricketson⁵ Sanford, b. 18 October, 1795, Dartmouth; m. (1), 4 December, 1817, Sylvia Lyon, daughter of Alpheus* and Lucy (Blake) Lyon; b. 21 June, 1796; d. ——; m. (2), ——, Mary A. (Dutton) Pickard, divorced from John Pickard, b. ——; d. 23 March, 1869; d. 28 November, 1865, North Manchester, Maine. Mr. Sanford was a farmer and horse-raiser. His farm was in North Manchester, Maine, and in the orchard he and his first wife, with their children, Charles Henry, Lyman Allen, and Mary Jane, are buried. When his son Lewis moved to California he had the headstones in the little lot laid flat upon the ground, so that they must now be wholly covered with earth. William Sanford was executor of his mother's will in 1850. The family Bible containing records is now in possession of Lewis Sanford who has sent us many of these dates. Children:

1. Emeline Elizabeth⁶ Sanford, b. 7 June, 1818.
2. Charles Henry⁶ Sanford, b. 15 February, 1820.
3. Renil William⁶ Sanford, b. 21 December, 1821.

iv. Holder* Sanford, b. 21 October, 1797; m. —— Patience ——; b. ——; d. 25 July, 1858, aetat. 59 years. Holder Sanford was a tavern-keeper and also ran a stage line. He lived at Mattawamkeag, Maine, where he is buried in the village graveyard; the date of his death, from his headstone, was sent us, by the town clerk. His wife is said to have come from Hallowell, Maine, and she was living there in 1862, when her husband’s estate was settled, but we can find no clue to her later residence nor to her maiden name. There are no entries concerning her in the Hallowell Town Records. Holder Sanford was called Captain Sanford. He and his wife had six children, all of whom died under the age of two years.

v. Eliza* Sanford, b. 8 February, 1800, Dartmouth, Massachusetts; m. 1 January, 1821, Eliab Lyon, Jr., son of Eliab* and Rachel (Faught) Lyon, b. 14 July, 1797; d. 12 July, 1882; d. 9 November, 1845. Mr. Lyon was a farmer; residence, Manchester, Kennebec County, Maine. Mr. Lyon had lived in three different towns and two different states while occupying the same house. The town was originally Kennebec, and the name was subsequently changed to Readfield, finally becoming Manchester, and at the time of his birth Maine was still a part of Massachusetts. The old family place is now in the possession (1909) of his son, Edward Franklin Lyon. Children:

1. David Sanford* Lyon, b. 20 May, 1822.
2. Sarah Eliza* Lyon, b. 19 March, 1824.

Eliab and Rachel Lyon, b. 14 July, 1797.
3. Charles Eliab\(^6\) Lyon, b. 11 March, 1830; d. 30 August, 1871; unmarried.
4. Catherine Ricketson\(^6\) Lyon, b. 3 July, 1836; d. 17 October, 1864; unmarried.
5. Edward Franklin\(^6\) Lyon, b. 12 April, 1839; unmarried 1909. Residence, Manchester, Maine.

vi. Jonathan\(^3\) Sanford, b. 24 October, 1801, New Bedford, Massachusetts; m. 10 April, 1823, at Readfield, Maine, Millia Lyon, daughter of Tabor and Abigail (Caldwell) Lyon, b. 7 August, 1804, Readfield, Maine; d. 16 January, 1894, Industry, Maine; d. 1 May, 1847, Augusta, Maine. Jonathan Sanford was a farmer and trader and lived at Augusta, Maine. His widow m. (2), Henry Johnson, of Farmington, Maine. Jonathan Sanford is buried in the Allen Cemetery at Manchester. To his daughter, Mrs. Smith of Kennebunk, Maine (born Millia Ann Sanford), we are indebted for valuable help with the Sanford Family line. She was still beautiful at the age of seventy-seven. Children:

1. Emily Abigail\(^6\) Sanford, b. 12 August, 1825, Readfield.
2. Millia Ann\(^6\) Sanford, b. 5 April, 1832, Augusta, Maine.
3. Augusta Cyrene\(^6\) Sanford, b. 10 March, 1836, Augusta, Maine.

vii. Charles\(^5\) Sanford, b. 22 September, 1803; m. 10 April, 1838, Angeline Daniells; d. — , 1841. One record gives the year of Charles Sanford’s birth as 1802. Residence, Augusta, Maine; occupation, horse-raiser. Charles Sanford was buried on Burnt Hill, Augusta. His nephew Lewis Ricketson Sanford, thinks that the grave has been destroyed by the cutting through of a street. His widow m. (2), — Washburn, before 1845, but we cannot learn his given name nor where he lived. Mrs. Smith (Millia Ann Sanford) thinks that Charles Sanford had two children; if so, one must have died before 1842, as only Adeline is mentioned in the settlement of his estate. Charles Sanford left no will and his brother-in-law, Eliab Lyon, was appointed executor. Child:

1. Adeline\(^6\) Sanford, b. —.
viii. Catherine Sanford, b. 2 April, 1805; m. (intention 16 September, 1836) 31 October, 1836, Zaccheus Purington, son of Daniel* and Lydia Purington, b. 12 8th mo., 1804; d. 24 November, 1884, Philadelphia; d. ——, 1848, Sidney, Maine. Mr. Purington was a blacksmith. The family lived at Sidney and at Oldtown, Maine. Mrs. Purington and her mother revisited the old home in New Bedford, as has been said, sometime in the “forties.” She died of consumption. Mrs. Smith tells us that there were five Purington children who died in infancy and were buried at Oldtown. Mr. Purington moved to Baltimore, Maryland, with his children William and Katie, and he and his son are there buried in the cemetery. His daughter Katherine married (1), Dr. Harvey Lonsley Pierce, son of Daniel and Mary Ann (Taylor) Pierce, born 24 August, 1829. Dr. Pierce was Assistant-Surgeon in the 5th Maryland Infantry; he was mustered into service 21 August, 1862, taken prisoner and shot at Libby Prison 5 November, 1863. He is buried in the Purington lot in the Baltimore cemetery. His son, Norval H. Pierce, was born 13 May, 1863. Mrs. Pierce married (2), 24 April, 1869, George R. Bunting of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Zaccheus Purington is buried at Baltimore, Maryland. Children:

David Sanford was a farmer and lived on the family place at Sanford Plains, Manchester, which his mother had given to him and his brother Isaac. They were both buried in the orchard behind the house, but their remains were afterward removed to the Allen Cemetery at North Manchester, Maine. No children.

Henry Ricketson, son of John (William, William, William') and Patience (Tucker) Ricketson, born 7 May, 1764, Dartmouth; married 15 October, 1789, Alice Sanford, daughter of George and Rachel (Gifford) Sanford, born 21 3rd mo., 1771; died 26 2nd mo., 1826; died 10 March, 1824, Dartmouth.

Henry Ricketson lived in Dartmouth, Massachusetts, and was a farmer. His farm was on the brow of the hill overlooking Padanarum and was afterward known as the Isaac Davis place. It extended to the lower road and included part, at any rate, of the land where the cemetery now is, for he gave a portion of it to the town for that purpose. Henry Ricketson was brought up a Friend but he was disowned 21 12th mo., 1789, for his marriage; his wife was restored to membership 15 3rd mo., 1790. He was a man of fine character, but intemperate habits increased if, indeed, not entirely caused by, his wife's unfortunate disposition. She had so violent and ungovernable a temper that on one occasion she set fire to the barn in a fit of passion. In 1816 Henry Ricketson's mind became greatly affected and it was necessary to place him under guardianship; in 1823 however he must have recovered, for in that year he was of sufficiently sound mind to make a will which was proved 27 July, 1824. He and his wife are buried in the Padanarum Cemetery which was his gift to the village. The dates of death of Mr. Ricketson and his wife cut on their gravestones are incorrect.

SYLVIA RICKETSON, daughter of John (William, William, William*) and Patience (Tucker) Ricketson, born 31 July, 1766; married (1), 25 December, 1789, Jethro Soule, son of Jonathan Soule, born ——; died ——, 1797; married (2), (intention 17 April, 1802), Stephen Barker, son of Jabez and Meriba (Borden) Barker, born 4 August, 1759; died ——, 1825, Dartmouth, aetat. 66 years; died 28 February, 1839. Jethro Soule was grandson of Joseph Soule of Westport, Massachusetts. Residence, Dartmouth, Massachusetts. The death of Stephen Barker is given in the New Bedford Mercury of 28 October, 1825.

It is not known whence Clark Ricketson obtained his given name, which is an unusual one in Dartmouth, but Clark's Point, New Bedford, was probably named for him. He went to school in New Bedford for a time, walking back and forth daily from Dartmouth along what was then a mere bridle-path through the woods. 30 August, 1794, he was published in marriage to Rhoda Wilcox of Westport; she died a few days before their wedding day and was buried in her wedding gown. For her his two oldest daughters were undoubtedly named.

The home of his two wives, Mary and Elizabeth Wood, was the large Colonial house, still standing at the head of Apponagansett River, opposite the Friends Meeting house. It must have been a beautiful mansion, the wide door-way, entrance hall and spacious rooms bespeaking old time hospitality, and in the garden at the left may still be seen traces of the little enclosure wherein the family were laid to rest. When the estate was sold the remains were removed to the cemetery.

Clark Ricketson was a birthright member of the Friends, and at first tried to conform to their precepts as is shown by the following entry from the Dartmouth Monthly Meeting Records: “15 11th mo. 1770 A paper signed by Clark Ricketson expresses sorrow for having attended at a place of music and dancing.” The apology was accepted and the delinquent restored to favour, but like their ancestor Samuel Gorton, the Ricketson race have always demanded freedom of thought and action, and Clark Ricketson as he grew older evidently felt the need of more liberty than was consistent with the narrow tenets of the Quaker sect. “A Committee of the Dartmouth Meeting reported that they have had Several opportunities with him and find that he has Since fallen into like transgression and also he has departed from the Simplicity of our profession in his dress which they have endeavored to show him the Inconsistency of but he did not appear in a Situation to the friends Satisfaction. Wherefore with the Concurrence of the Women’s Meeting we deny unity with him and can no longer esteem him a member of our Society until he Shall be favored to return to the satisfaction of this meeting."

After leaving the Friends, Clark Ricketson joined the Congregational Church in Dartmouth, but his wives and his older daughters continued in the Meeting. 5 December, 1829, he bought Pew No. 31 in the Dartmouth Congregational Church.

He had inherited from his father the portion of his estate known as Ricketson's Point, which had come down to them from their emigrant ancestor, the first William Ricketson, and in 1803 he built the house which is still standing; the lumber was brought from Maine in vessels and landed on the beach at the Point. They moved into the new house 8 August, 1804, the day before his daughter Rebeckah was born.

Clark Ricketson was always known as Captain Ricketson from his Commission in the militia. 23 July, 1808, he was appointed Lieutenant of the 2d Regiment, 2d Brigade, 5th Division, serving in New Bedford; and 13 April, 1812, he was promoted to a captaincy.

In 1814 he was Representative from Dartmouth.

It may not be generally known that the scheme of a Cape Cod Canal is of no recent date. About 1820 a petition was presented to the Legislature of Massachusetts by inhabitants of Dartmouth, asking that leave to build a canal across the peninsula through the town of Sandwich, thus connecting Buzzards Bay with Barnstable, might be granted them. Among the petitioners were Clark Ricketson, his son Barton Ricketson, his brother-in-law Stephen Taylor, and his son-in-law James T. Slocum. The petition mentions that a similar request had already been made a generation before.*

He and his family were originally buried on the place in accordance with the custom of the time, but their remains were afterward removed to the family lot in the Padanarum graveyard.

* A copy of this petition was printed in the New Bedford Republican Standard for 3 March, 1904.

Eliza Ricketson was a great belle in her young maidenhood, and her sister, Mrs. Thomas used to say that she well remembered the Sunday afternoons when the horses of eight of Eliza's suitors were tethered to the hitching posts outside the house at Ricketson's Point. The favored swain was Ephraim Smalley, afterward a clergyman of some note and father of the well-known journalist, George Washburn Smalley, but the Smalley family was of humble origin, and as Captain Ricketson consequently disapproved the match, his dutiful daughter sent her lover away and settled down into the then thankless office of "family old maid." Mrs. Cummings (born Mary Ricketson Thomas) has written us of her aunt Eliza's devoted care of herself and her sisters in their childhood and of how much they owed to her wise teaching. She was a woman who, under more favorable conditions, might have made a name for herself for she possessed uncommon intelligence, and theories and ideas, especially in matters of hygiene, far in advance of her time, as well as keen scientific interests which found no scope in the surroundings among which her lot was cast. She lived for many years with a friend in Newport, Rhode Island, and after the latter's death made her home with her sister, Mrs. Slocum and her niece, Mrs. Pierce, in New Bedford.

with lingering consumption. He was so beloved in St.
Louis that when his grandniece, Mary, married Mr.
Paschall Carr and went there in 1893, she found his memory still green in the hearts of all who had known him. He was greatly interested in art and very generous to struggling artists. The late James Yeatman, to whom "The Crisis" by Winston Churchill is dedicated and from whom the character of Mr. Brinsmade in that novel is drawn, was Asa Ricketson's intimate friend. They made their home together during the latter's life in St.
Louis.

Sylvia Ricketson, daughter of Henry (John, William, William, William') and Alice (Sanford) Ricketson, born ——, 1790; married ——, Josiah M. Cleaveland of Philadelphia, born ——; died ——; died ——.

Sylvia Ricketson is said to have been very beautiful. We do not know when she was married to Mr. Cleaveland, but before 1847, when she was sole heir to her son's estate. In that year monies were sent to her from the Administrator at Newport, Rhode Island, New York and Philadelphia. After that all trace of her disappears. Her brother Captain William Ricketson made many efforts to find her but without success.

Captain GIDEON\(^6\) RICKETSON, son of Henry\(^5\) (John,\(^4\) William,\(^3\) William,\(^2\) William\(^1\)) and Alice (Sanford) Ricketson, born ——, 1794, Dartmouth; married (1), (intention, 5 September, 1812), Catherine Cushman Kempton, daughter of Elijah and Lucy (Haydon) Kempton, born 7 May, 1798; died 17 November, 1858, New Bedford; married (2), ——, 1825, at Wilmington, North Carolina, Elvina Perry, daughter of Captain James and Abigail Perry, born 3 March, 1811; died 25 March, 1868; died 10 February, 1838, Newport, Rhode Island.

Gideon Ricketson was a sea captain. His first marriage was unhappy and he and his first wife separated. She married (2) Foster Solomon Dennis of New Bedford, and is there buried in the Oak Grove Cemetery. 9 October, 1818, Captain Ricketson was living in Craven County, North Carolina, as deeds show that at that date he became half owner of a negro girl named "Deziah." At the time of his second marriage, recorded in the Providence Journal of 11 August, 1825, he was still in North Carolina, and in his will dated 23 December, 1827, he is styled Captain Ricketson, residing in Newport, "late of State of Alabama and formerly of Massachusetts."

He left all his property to his second wife with the exception of two bequests to members of his family and $20 to Henry Ricketson of the State of Massachusetts. The latter was of course his son, in whom he felt no interest, and who was brought up by his grandfather Kempton. Captain Ricketson's will was proved 5 March, 1838. He and his second wife are buried in the Island Cemetery, Newport, Rhode Island.

Rebeckah⁶ Ricketson, daughter of Henry³ (John,⁴ William,³ William,² William¹) and Alice (Sanford) Ricketson, born August, 1796; married 12 July, 1813, Joseph Bolles, son of Joshua and Prudence (Taber) Bolles, born 14 March, 1790; died ——; died 13 July, 1813; aetat. 16 years, 11 months. No children.

Rebeckah Ricketson's aunt, Mrs. Soule (Sylvia Ricketson), used to tell her niece, Mrs. Thomas (Mary Wood Ricketson), many stories of the two fair sisters, Sylvia and Rebeckah, and from her we learned the tragedy of Rebeckah's short life. She and Sylvia were very beautiful, and their home-life with their mother's violent outbursts of temper and their father's consequent intemperance, was ill-fitted to provide the care and training needed for girls so perilously lovely. In the Dartmouth Town Records appears the following note in regard to Rebeckah Ricketson.

"Intention. Mr. John A. Smith and Rebeckah Ricketson both of Dartmouth, August 9, 1812.

Ephraim Tripp.

"Whereas, John A. Smith and Rebeckah Ricketson as above mentioned by the request of a third person were published and within time the following objections were made by Miss Rebeckah Ricketson on 19 August, 1812.

"Dartmouth, 18 August, 1812.

"Mr. Tripp, I have altered my mind, as Mr. Smith is not agreeable to my mind I want to have publishment that stand between Mr. Smith and myself to be void.

Yours to serve,

Rebeckah Ricketson."

N. B. You must excuse me for putting you to so much trouble.

Ephraim Tripp Town Clerk
A year later she was married to Joseph Bolles, and on the day after her marriage she committed suicide. Her grand niece, Mrs. Sweetser, tells us that she has heard that Rebeckah's mother forced her to marry Mr. Bolles against her will, and that a portrait which she remembers to have seen of the bridegroom seemed to her sufficient reason for Rebeckah's aversion, so sinister was his expression. Joseph Bolles's father lived in New Bedford. He died when his son was twelve years old, and his widow Prudence was appointed guardian. We have been able to learn nothing of Joseph Bolles's later life. Some of his relatives live in Bristol County, but they could recall only his name, and it is not strange that they should never have heard of his twenty-four hours married life with Rebeckah Ricketson.

As we have already said, Henry Ricketson had lately given to the town of Dartmouth a piece of land for the cemetery, and his daughter was the first to be laid there. Her gravestone is of old blue slate and is placed beside her father's in the family lot. It bears the following inscription:

In memory of who died

July 13 1813 aged 16
years 11 months

T'is God that lifts our comforts high
Or sinks them in the grave

William⁶ Ricketson, son of Henry⁵ (John⁴ William⁸, William², William¹) and Alice (Sanford) Ricketson, born 26 April, 1800; married (intention 29 June), 18 July, 1822, Phebe Springer Pease, daughter of Fortunatus and Susannah M. (Sherman-Sherman) Pease,* born 29 March, 1801, Chilmark, Martha's Vineyard; died 17 August, 1896, Dartmouth; died 10 January, 1872. Residence, Dartmouth, Massachusetts. No children.

Captain Ricketson was a master-mariner. He and his wife adopted Lydorean Sherman who married Captain Ricketson's nephew, Henry Holsey Ricketson. Captain Ricketson and his wife are buried in the Dartmouth Cemetery. The inscription on his stone incorrectly gives the date of his death as 17 August, 1872.

Benjamin Franklin⁶ Ricketson, son of Henry⁵ (John,⁴ William,³ William,² William) and Alice (Sanford) Ricketson, born ——, 1809; married (1), 27 July, 1837, at Boston, Massachusetts, Nancy A. Wormell, born ——, 1816; died 16 September, 1854, Brooklyn, New York; married (2), ——, 1863, Brooklyn, New York, Mary Kline, daughter of Henry Wand and Mary (Knipe) Kline, born ——, 1827; died 18 April, 1890, King's County Hospital, Brooklyn, aetat. 63 years; died 17 December, 1888, Sailor's Snug Harbor, Staten Island, aetat. 79 years.

Benjamin Franklin Ricketson was married to Miss Wormell by Reverend Baron Stow, and at that date was a resident of New York City. He was a sea captain and one of the first to become familiar with the Pacific Ocean and California coast. Some of the family think that he formed a third union with some one from Ohio and that there were two children, but we have been unable to verify this impression. He lived in Brooklyn for a number of years before his death.

Children:

   ii. James Harvey,⁷ b. ——; d. ——. He was killed in the Civil War, but we cannot learn in what regiment and company he served.

Residence, New Bedford, Massachusetts. Occupation, Master mariner. Captain Ricketson is said to have been killed in the Civil War, and is supposed to have enlisted from Illinois, but we are unable to verify the statement. He and his wife separated many years before his death and it is possible that he may have married again, but of this also we have no certain knowledge. Mrs. Ricketson married at Boston, 6 February, 1860, J. Proctor Snow. She is buried in the Oak Grove Cemetery, New Bedford.

Rhoda Ricketson, daughter of Clark (John, William, William) and Mary (Wood) Ricketson, born 30 July, 1798, Dartmouth; married (intention, 14 November, 1818), November, 1818, Andrew Beauvais, son of Joseph and Catherine Beauvais, born 15 May, 1795, Bordeaux, France; died 6 August, 1878, Dartmouth; died 15 February, 1820. No children. Andrew Beauvais was a sea captain. His family lived in Bordeaux, France, and had become impoverished by the Revolution. In order to avoid conscription in Napoleon’s army, to which boys of twelve were then subject, his widowed mother sent him to America, whither his sister, Louise (wife of Captain James Ryder of Dartmouth), had preceded him. He commanded packet ships from New York on the New Orleans line and was also in South American trade, chiefly with Buenos Ayres. He married (2) Patience Ricketson 30, sister of his first wife ; and
(3) Alice H. Sherman, daughter of Jireh H. and Ann (Howland) Sherman of Dartmouth. Captain Beauvais is buried in the Padanarum Cemetery. His first marriage is given in the New Bedford Mercury of 20 November, 1818.

cember, 1800, Dartmouth; married — , 1823, Dartmouth, vais, born 15 May, 1795, Bordeaux, France; died 6 August, 1878, Dartmouth; died 10 September, 1831, Hallett's Cove (now Astoria), Long Island.

The marriage of Captain Beauvais and Patience Ricketson is noted in the New Bedford Mercury of 24 April, 1823, and her death in the Mercury of 16 September, 1831. At that time apparently Captain Beauvais was living at Hallett's Cove as he is described as "late of Dartmouth," which was certainly his home the greater part of his life. For details about him, see Rhoda Ricketson, 29.

Dartmouth until 1840, when he went to the Bush (now Madison) Street Grammar and High School in New Bedford. While at school he met with an accident to his knee which crippled him for life. In 1842 he entered the counting house of his uncle, Barton Ricketson, who was then the managing owner of whaling and merchant vessels and also of the New Bedford Iron Foundry. In 1872 Mr. Beauvais formed the firm of Beauvais & Fuller, private bankers, and he also organized the Fall River Railroad of which he became president. With his partner and others he founded the Citizens National Bank, he was president of the Institution and transferred his private business to it in 1878. He was president for a term of the New England Mutual Aid Society. Child:

† Charles Matthews married Ruth Crowell, 21 March, 1812.
Dartmouth, Massachusetts. No children. Catherine Beauvais's life was that of a typical Cinderella. Her father, Captain Beauvais, was much away at sea and Captain Ricketson, realizing that his grand daughter was entirely sacrificed to her stepmother and the large family of half-brothers and sisters, offered to assume the expense of her education and send her to boarding school. Her stepmother refused to let her go and the best years of Catherine's life were passed as a household drudge. She bore her trials with uncomplaining courage, and her marriage in middle life brought her some years of happiness.

Barton Ricketson, son of Clark (John, William, William) and Mary (Wood) Ricketson, born 12 May 1802, Dartmouth; married 14 November, 1828, at New York, New York, Cécile Catherine Ryder, daughter of Captain James and Louise Catherine (Beauvais) Ryder, born 11 May, 1812, Bordeaux, France; died 7 June, 1890, New Bedford; died 15 January, 1867, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Barton Ricketson attended school in Dartmouth, until he went to sea. After his marriage he moved to New York, New York, with his wife's parents, Captain and Mrs. James Ryder; they lived on Henry Street which was then a fashionable part of the city. Later they bought a place at Hallett's Cove (now Astoria), Long Island, but were obliged to leave there on account of malaria. They returned to Dartmouth, and subsequently settled in New Bedford which remained their home. During the early part of his life Barton Ricketson and Captain Ryder were associated in the packet service, sailing chiefly from New York to France. At the time of the gold fever he went to California where he made a large fortune which he afterward lost. He was interested also in sending vessels to various ports; at one time, in apparent emulation of Lord Timothy Dexter of Newburyport, despatching a cargo of warming pans to South America, where the natives made use of them in gold mining.
His chief business however was the fitting out of whaling vessels from New Bedford. He had a decided talent for invention and the sanguine temperament which is apt to be its accompaniment; among his attempts in this line were an apparatus for carrying school books, a dead-eye (part of a ship's rig), and a bicycle, the last far taller, so says one of his daughters, than even the first lofty ones imported here from Europe.

Mr. Ricketson was a man of uncommon executive ability entering upon whatever he undertook with the utmost enthusiasm. He was universally respected and beloved, and his opinion on business matters was much esteemed. His family life was beautiful and he was most generous and warm-hearted with a sunny disposition and great love for children, and although rather a silent man, when he did speak every word was trenchant and to the point. He died at the home of his brother Charles Wood Ricketson at Pittsburgh and is buried in the family lot in Padanarum Cemetery. Mrs. Ricketson lived in New Bedford where her daughters now reside.

32  Rebeckah Howland6 Ricketson, daughter of Clark5 (John,4 William,3 William,2 William1) and Mary (Wood) Ricketson, born
9 August, 1804, Ricketson's Point, Dartmouth; married 21 June, 1821, James Tucker Slocum, son of Elihu and Sarah (Smith) Slocum, born 3 July, 1795, Dartmouth; died 5 August, 1874, New Bedford; died 4 October, 1891, New Bedford.

Rebeckah Howland Ricketson was born the day after the family moved into the new house at Ricketson's Point. She was named for her grandmother Wood, who was born Rebeckah Howland.

James Tucker Slocum was a merchant. He was a very intelligent man, and in 1834 was Representative in the Massachusetts Legislature from Dartmouth. In 1854 he moved to New Bedford where he bought a house on Seventh Street which his widow and daughter occupied as long as they lived. The family are buried in the Friend's Graveyard in New Bedford.

Children:

i. Julia Almy7 Slocum, b. 14 March, 1824, Dartmouth; m. 24 May, 1848, William Clark Pierce, son of Clothier and Comfort (Chase) Pierce, b. 31 July, 1821; d. 12 April, 1859; d. 12 January, 1904, New Bedford. No children. Residence, New Bedford, Massachusetts. Mr. Pierce was a clerk. Mrs. Pierce had no relatives nearer than first cousins. She divided her property into one hundred shares, leaving a certain number of shares to each of her cousins and specifying that all her personal property should be sold at auction but that only the legatees should be allowed to bid for it. She had many family heirlooms which had been handed down in the Ricketson and Slocum families. Her house was entirely furnished with antique furniture and with china and glass which were very rare and beautiful.

ii. John Smith7 Slocum, b. 13 February, 1827, Dartmouth; d. 1 September, 1828.

Benjamin Tucker6 Ricketson, son of Clark5 (John,4 William,3 William,2 William1) and Mary (Wood) Ricketson, born 14 February, 1811, Ricketson's Point, Dartmouth; married 18 November, 1835, at New Bedford, Eliza Cowdrey Warneck, daughter of James and Margaret (Gorman) Warneck, born 1 November, 1814, Ireland; died 26 November, 1883, New Bedford; died 3 March, 1890, New Bedford.

Benjamin Tucker Ricketson was named for the husband of his grandfather's sister Sylvia (Ricketson) Tucker. He went to school in Dartmouth until 1828 when he and his brother Asa were sent to the Wesleyan Academy at Wilbraham, Massachusetts, where they remained for a year, boarding in the family of a Mr. Barker. Among their fellow-boarders were John F. and Samuel Slater, sons of Samuel Slater of Smithfield, Rhode Island, and Osman C. Baker and John C. Keener, afterward Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

When quite a young man, Mr. Ricketson settled in New Bedford; he held a position as clerk for several years and later formed a partnership with Franklin Tobey, under the name of Tobey and Ricketson. They were in a building on Centre Street and conducted a wholesale grocery business and were agents for several whaling vessels. When this partnership was dissolved, Mr. Ricketson took up insurance, and carried on an extensive business in marine insurance when whaling was at its height. He was also local agent of the Atlantic Insurance Company and Secretary of the Pacific Mutual Insurance Company remaining with the latter until its affairs were closed. He was a Trustee of the New Bedford Institution for Savings, Director of the Bristol County Mutual Insurance Company and one of the Directors of the Merchants Bank.

In 1852 Mr. Ricketson bought a small farm in Dartmouth on the corner of Dartmouth and Rockland Streets. This place was called Curtin Lot from having been once owned by John Curtin, but it was part of the original Ricketson property and in 1796 Benjamin Ricketson (great uncle of Benjamin Tucker Ricketson) devised it in his will to John Tripp for his lifetime.
with the charge that he was to set out sixty apple trees. At the time of Mr. Ricketson's death in 1890 many of the trees were still bearing fruit.

The farm consisted of about eight acres of land and a small house, occupied for many years after Mr. Ricketson bought it, by John Tripp's two daughters Polly Tripp and Mrs. Phebe Craw. In 1871 after his retirement from business he devoted himself to the cultivation of Curtin Lot, driving back and forth twice daily from his home in New Bedford. He was a great lover of farming and owned many parcels of land, scattered about in various parts of Dartmouth and New Bedford, as well as the ancestral estate at Ricketson's Point, having bought out the shares of all but one of his brothers and sisters.

Mr. Ricketson was a man of the nicest sense of honour and business integrity and was universally respected.

The increasing publication of parish registers throughout Great Britain may reveal to the descendants of Eliza Cowdrey Warneck, wife of Benjamin Tucker Ricketson the story of her ancestry, but it is a sealed book to those now living. Her father, James Warneck, was a Scotchman; her mother, Margaret Gorman, was Irish, and their granddaughter distinctly recalls the marriage certificate, long since lost, and the worn wedding ring which with a silver thimble marked "M. G." are the only relics which they left behind them.

James Warneck was a sailor and was lost at sea when his little daughter was only a few months old. Why his widow, now dependent on her own resources, with her baby girl, elected to brave the dangers of a long voyage on those especially perilous seas of the year 1816, and why she chose to come to the whaling port of New Bedford are mysteries to which we have no clue. She did so however, and took a position as housekeeper in the household of John Howland, one of the wealthiest and most esteemed of the Quaker citizens of New Bedford. He and his wife, Sarah (Howland) Howland, were childless and they became so attached to the beautiful little Eliza that (although never legally adopted) she was brought up as their own child and her mother passed the rest of her life in a comfortable little home across the river in Fairhaven. Mrs. Warneck was a Protestant and certainly belonged to the better class of Irish, for the peasantry of 1800 were quite uneducated, and she was an omnivorous reader. We have no way of learning the names of James Warneck's parents, but we know that his mother was French and the combination of Scotch-Irish and French blood in his child is another argument in favor of the brilliancy said to result from a blending of races, for his daughter was an unusually brilliant woman. She had the warm heart, quick temper and sparkling wit which she inherited from her mother's people with all the vivacity and charm which are attributed to the French.

John Howland was too broad-minded a man to attempt in any way to coerce the inclinations of his adopted daughter, so she was never a member of the Friends Communion, but joined the Unitarian Church. None of her pictures does justice to her peculiar and exquisite loveliness; to the day of her death she retained her pink and white coloring, and her smile was so wonderfully radiant and winning that the children in the street used to turn to look after her. She and Mr. Ricketson—who was a kinsman of John Howland and his wife—were married in the parlour of the Howland house on Sixth Street, which still (1913) stands on the lower corner of Madison Street although now shorn of its once spacious grounds. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Joseph Angier, who was settled over the New Bedford Unitarian Church.

Children:

42 i. John Howland, b. 21 September, 1837, at New Bedford.
43 ii. Sarah Howland, b. 6 October, 1841, at New Bedford.
44 iii. Benjamin Tucker, b. 9 August, 1842, at New Bedford.
45 iv. William Lindsay, b. 27 November, 1843, at New Bedford.
Charles Wood Ricketson, son of Clark (John, William, William, William) and Mary (Wood) Ricketson, born 9 December, 1815, Ricketson's Point, Dartmouth; married 4 September, 1845, Polly Haldan Cushing, daughter of Dr. Ezekiel Dodge and Delia (Sawyer) Cushing, born 31 October, 1816, Boston; died 10 February, 1872, New Bedford; died 27 September, 1866, Pittsburgh.

Charles Wood Ricketson began his business life as clerk for John Avery Parker of New Bedford. In 1833 he went to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and began business on the corner of Liberty and Saint Clair Streets in wholesale sperm oil with William and John Avery Parker. The venture was not successful; in a financial crisis the firm failed and although he had taken the Poor Debtor Oath, Mr. Ricketson subsequently paid all his own debts as well as the greater part of his partners. His next business connection lasted until his death. He entered into partnership with William Miller of Philadelphia. The firm of Miller and Ricketson had large iron interests and the iron for the famous Rodman gun, now at the fort at Clark’s Point, New Bedford, was made entirely in their furnaces.

Mr. Ricketson was president of a railroad and two banks, and was one of the promoters and directors of the Mechanics (now Mechanics National) Bank of Pittsburgh which he was much interested in bringing under the National Banking Law. He was also a director of the Bank of Pittsburgh and connected with the Alleghany Valley Railroad. He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity.

A former clerk of his, Mr. J. S. Rymer of Pittsburgh, writes to his daughter, Mrs. Allen, "his word and promise were considered inviolate."

He was the soul of honor, public-spirited and foremost in all things for the good of his adopted city. He was very patriotic and at the time of the Civil War he equipped a Cavalry Company which was named for him.
He was a strikingly handsome man, of genial and charming personality, very popular and most generous and kind hearted. He had a town house in Pittsburgh, but during the summer and sometimes for the greater part of the year his family made their home at Bloomfield, Pennsylvania, where one of his furnaces was situated. He and his wife are buried in the family lot in the Dartmouth graveyard.

Mary Wood Ricketson was to have been sent to the Friends School at Providence, Rhode Island, and her little Quaker outfit was all ready, but when her father, finding how rigid and narrow were their customs and that they would not even allow her to wear "a bow of riband at her throat," he determined to send her instead to the Academy at Bradford, Massachusetts. Her brother Benjamin drove her there in his buggy. This was in 1831. She was very homesick but remained there for a year, when she fell ill and returned home. She was very beautiful and possessed great charm of manner. It is largely due to her recollections that we have been able to complete the records of this branch of the family. Mr. Thomas taught school for a short time, but subsequently became a farmer and during his lifetime their home was in Dartmouth. After his death his widow made her home with her youngest daughter, Mrs. Woodsum.

James Clark Ricketson's earlier life was passed in New Bedford and he always looked upon it as his home. In 1863 he went west, settling first at Detroit, Michigan, where he remained for six years; in 1869 he moved to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and accepted a position with the old Wisconsin Iron Foundry which has now passed out of existence. Shortly before 1880 he became local manager of the Inter-Ocean Transportation Company which made Milwaukee its port; when its offices were closed in that city Mr. Ricketson retired from active business. Although earnestly interested in political movements and the success of the Republican party, Mr. Ricketson was never willing to hold office. He always said that he was a "private in the ranks" and while doing his duty at the polls he preferred to leave the offices to others. He was prominent in the business circles of Milwaukee and was much esteemed as a citizen.

"Integer Vitae"

The sudden death of John H. Ricketson of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, at Nonquitt on Friday, July twentieth, has brought grief to his many friends in Eastern Massachusetts no less than to those in his place of residence.

Mr. Ricketson was a native of New Bedford, having been born there in 1837. He graduated at Harvard in 1859. Among his classmates and life-long friends were William Everett, Professor John Chipman Gray, James Schouler, Francis Vergnies Balch, James Augustus Rumrill, Edward William Hooper, Ellis Loring Motte and others of equally distinguished merit in different walks of life. After graduating he studied law in the office of Governor Clifford of New Bedford and on his motion was admitted to the bar in Bristol County in 1861. He immediately removed to Pittsburgh where he began the practise of his profession, but soon after opening his office an opportunity of engaging in business was offered to him which was too tempting to be resisted.

He entered into partnership with Mr. Abram Garrison, whose daughter subsequently became his wife, and from that time until his death he was successfully engaged in the manufacture of chilled rolls. He was president of the A. Garrison Foundry Company with which he was connected for more than thirty years.

Mr. Ricketson brought great enterprise and untiring energy to whatever he became interested in. Full of enthusiasm and public spirit, he was soon identified with all the best interests and leading events in the city of his adoption. He was a director in the old Pittsburgh National Bank, a director in the Tenth Street Bridge Company, founder of the Harvard Club of Pittsburgh and president of the University Club. He had many flattering offers to represent the County of Allegheny in the House of Representatives at Washington and of many other political preferments, all of which he declined. He accepted, however, some important positions to which he was invited with the joint concurrence of all his fellow citizens.

At the dedication of the Carnegie Hall and Library he gave eloquent voice to the appreciation and gratitude with which the splendid gift was regarded by all classes and conditions of men.

Whenever the great iron interests of his city were to be represented, it was he who was always called upon to say the proper word which he never failed to do in the most agreeable and gracious way.

Much as he loved the state and the city where he passed the whole of his business life his affection for his birthplace and for the old Bay State never diminished but grew more and more strong with advancing years.

His early affiliations had been with the original Free Soilers and he took pride in the stand, which under the lead of Charles Sumner, our Commonwealth took in opposition to any and every scheme for tampering with the rights of man. Had he lived earlier he would have been of the party of Garrison and Wendell Phillips and of their fellow abolitionists. He naturally took strong sides with the North in the War of the Rebellion, in fact he helped to raise a company of volunteers and was only prevented from going to the front by the breaking down of his health.

Mainly through his efforts the beautiful window designed by Lafarge, was placed in Memorial Hall at Harvard, an enduring testimonial by the class of '59 to the pride and affection felt by them for those who went forth from their ranks and gave their lives in defence of the Union.

Through his influence, the plan for building a new court house for Allegheny City was awarded to Henry Hobson Richardson, his classmate. This is one of the last great works of our distinguished architect, and is regarded as second to Trinity Church only in originality of design and in the perfection with which every detail is carried out.

Mr. Ricketson's life abounded in acts of kindness for others. Not merely of his purse but of himself he gave in unstinted measure. Nothing ever brought him so much exultation as success in some plan for relieving the wants of the friendless and the destitute. One day he met in the streets in Brooklyn an old gentleman whom he recognized as having been his teacher in his early school days. He found that he was in great distress because he had just been turned out of the little office in the New York Custom House which he had filled for years and on which he depended for the support of himself and his aged wife. The new Collector just appointed by President Hayes had made a clean sweep of the old incumbents in all departments for the purpose of replacing them with his political adherents. Mr. Ricketson's sympathies were at once enlisted. He had no acquaintance with the President, but he procured a letter of introduction to him and started for Washington on the following day. The President was very busy on his arrival but at last received the applicant and listened to his plea, at first with some incredulity but soon with more interest, and when the story was told, he replied that so far as he could see "there were no politics in it" and proceeded to make his own enquiries into the truth of the old man's wrongs. The result was that within a week, the latter was reinstated in his former place. But this was not enough. Mr. Ricketson called upon all who had been his associates at school and a fund was established, so that when the old master was at last forced by the infirmity of age to relinquish all work he was enabled to live in comfort to the end of his days.

Jutting out into Buzzard's Bay, bounded on the west by Apponagansett River, there is a promontory known on the maps as Ricketson's Point, which had come down to Mr. Ricketson by direct descent through seven generations. On this point, looking down the Bay as far as the Elizabeth Islands, he was about to re-establish the homestead of his fathers, and had come to the neighboring shores of Nonquitt with his family to carry out the designs which had been completely prepared and which he hoped to bring into execution during the present summer. But this was not to be. His life was suddenly terminated by a sharp attack of the disease from which he had long been a sufferer.

Never was there a man of more magnetic and winsome personality. None ever left behind him a more tender memory of pleasant words, of helpful deeds, of intense sympathies.

He was all sunshine; in his face
The very soul of sweetness shone;
Fairest and noblest of his race,
None like him we can call our own.

The foregoing notice was published in the Boston Advertiser for 30 July, 1900. It was written by Mr. Ricketson's brother-in-law and friend, William Cross Williamson.
Mr. Ricketson is buried in the Rural Cemetery, New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Sarah Howland Ricketson, daughter of Benjamin Tucker (Clark, John, William, William) and Eliza Cowdrey (Warneck) Ricketson, born 6 October, 1841, New Bedford; married 29 April, 1863, at her father's house, New Bedford, William Cross Williamson, son of Honorable Joseph and Caroline (Cross) Williamson, born 31 January, 1831, Belfast, Maine; died 13 June, 1903, Weston, Massachusetts; she died 12 January, 1916, Boston.

Sarah Howland Ricketson was named for her adopted grandmother. Her rare personal beauty was a true index to her unusual loveliness of character. She possessed a wonderful gift of sympathy and none who went to her for comfort, help, or counsel came hungry away. For many years she was one of the chief workers in the charity for Helping Destitute Mothers and Infants, where her remarkable insight into character and excellent judgment made her most valuable and where her influence for good over the unfortunate women was unbounded. She was for many years Treasurer of the Society and was also long a Director of the Massachusetts Infant Asylum which has since passed out of existence.

A perfect wife and mother. This is not the place to speak of her beautiful home life nor of the brightness and charm which none who came within her sweet and gracious presence can ever forget.
Mr. Williamson graduated from Harvard College in the Class of 1852. He was a member of the Hasty Pudding Club, of which he was both Secretary and Poet, the Institute of 1770, the A Δ Φ, the Pierian Sodality and several smaller and less known societies. At graduation he was Class Poet, but owing to the sudden death of his mother while on her way to Cambridge to attend the Class Day exercises, the poem was read by his classmate, Joseph Hodges Choate. In 1855 Mr. Williamson graduated from the Harvard Law School and took up his permanent residence in Boston. In 1856 he was admitted to the bar and became associated soon after with Elias Hasket Derby and when he retired from active practice, with his son, George Strong Derby. At first he took the court practice of the firm, and was known as a successful advocate with both courts and juries, but after the death of his partner, Mr. Derby, he gradually withdrew from this branch of the profession and devoted himself to chamber practice, conveyancing and the management of trust estates.

When a young man he was president of the Young Men's Democratic Club in Boston, and in 1861 was elected Commissioner in Insolvency. Between 1878 and 1888 he was on the School Committee and was its first president in 1888. He was appointed one of the commissioners on the publication of the Province Laws in 1890; all other public offices he invariably declined. He was a principal founder and counsel of the North End Savings Bank, a member of the Boston Cadets, the Union and Saint Botolph Clubs, the Harvard Musical Club, the Examiner Club and The Colonial Society of Massachusetts. In 1901 he was elected into the Harvard Chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa in recognition of his scholarship.

His chief pleasure and interests lay in his home, in foreign travel, in music and in the study of the classics. Horace was his favorite author and he became one of the first Horatian scholars in the country. He had a fine collection of the best editions of Horace including some very rare ones of great antiquity. At one time he contributed prose articles and poems to some of the leading magazines; his last poem was a noble sonnet on his chum and classmate, James Bradley Thayer, LL.D., of Harvard College, and his last literary work, a memoir of his elder brother, the Honorable Joseph Williamson, the historian of Belfast, Maine.*
