It is the highest of earthly honors to be descended from the great and good. They alone cry out against a noble ancestry who have none of their own.—Ben Jonson.

Honorable descent is, in all nations, greatly esteemed. It is to be expected that the children of men of worth will like their progenitors; for nobility is the virtue of a family. —Aristotle.

NOTES, HISTORY AND GENEALOGY

Of some of the families known by the name of WILMOT, WILMOTH, WILMETH, etc., with records from official and private sources, biographical and genealogical sketches and history of the family in England, the families in Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Ohio, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, California, Colorado and other states.
INTRODUCTION

Quoting a distinguished authority on genealogy, Donald Lines Jacobus of New Haven, Connecticut:

"The study of one's family history has become the avocation of thousands of Americans. The interest itself is not of recent development but is inherent in human nature. The Bible is full of genealogies. The aristocracy of every age and land have recognized the importance of keeping a record of their pedigree. In our democratic plan, it is proper that the interest should not be limited to families of special distinction—in fact, one may doubt whether such a thing as a family of special distinction in all its branches and ramifications can be found; whereas every family is able to boast individual members of unusual merit or attainments. At the very least, tracing one's ancestry is a fascinating pastime."

It delighted me as a boy to listen to the stories told by the older members of my family, regarding the traditions of my ancestors. These stories charmed me and appealed to my imagination, and as I grew older created a strong desire to learn more about my people, whence they came, and what they had done in the way of raising families, their contribution to the general welfare, as well as of their successes in life.

The name interested me, the different spelling of it puzzled me, how it originated and where the first people bearing the name made their homes, often entered my thoughts. How long the family had been in existence, and its perpetuation gave me concern, and created a longing to find out, if possible, these things for myself. I was anxious to know the history of my people, with more certainty than the fireside stories heard and so much enjoyed in my early boyhood. This longing for information led me to the Congressional Library in Washington, D. C. where much reading and research work was done over a period of several years, as time permitted. Then followed more than thirty years of correspondence with people of the name scattered throughout the United States, Canada, and Great Britain.

My travels, as a high official of the United States Treasury Department, in connection with my official duties, took me into all the states of the Union, and into all the larger cities of the nation. Wherever I went directories were consulted and contacts made with people and family data secured. Visits were made to old homes, family records secured from Bibles and cemetery monuments, and from other available sources. On the occasion of an official assignment to duty in England in 1914, the opportunity was presented to make some study of the history of the family there and to visit certain ancient manors and ancestral estates located in the English counties.

Through these processes of gathering family information over a long period of years there has been accumulated valuable data which it is desired to be put into permanent form so that it may be preserved and transmitted to oncoming generations bearing the name.

The information which follows is submitted as my humble contribution, assisted by many others interested in the study of the family, to the people of America who are known by the name of Wilmeth, Wilmoth, Wilmot, etc.

It is my fervent hope that it will stimulate the interest and study of those who follow, and enable them to know something of our beginnings, preservation and progress of our family, and afford them something in the way of assistance in tracing their ancestry.

No claim is made to genealogical distinction or recognition. The facts presented should be reasonably accurate and authentic. Many dates are omitted, none are included except they are known to be correct and accurate. References are made to foreign records from which information and pedigrees have been obtained.

Foreign information has been compiled from various authors and sources, and reference given. English lines and pedigrees were mostly furnished by a cultured woman who was recommended for this work by the President of the University of Dublin, and other information was compiled by myself from available records in various historical and genealogical societies and libraries. There are some duplications in the English records of families arising from use of data of different authors.

No apology is offered for the lists of nobility found under that part of this volume dealing with the numerous families in England, except to say, at best they are fragmentary. Any student of Colonial immigration into America knows that it was not the custom of those early days to keep careful family records except in certain church registers and in family Bibles, many of the latter having been worn out or destroyed. Cemetery records of the early colonists as contained on headstones are in many instances undecipherable. The pioneer spirit of these colonists and their mode of living did not contribute to the preservation of family records.

Credit is given to persons who have contributed their data or have given permission to use their published history and pedigrees.

To the many who have assisted in the compilation, grateful thanks and hearty appreciation are extended.

HISTORICAL

The English family of Wilmot sprung from the Saxon possessors of land in Nottinghamshire, Sussex and Essex. A thane, of the name of Willimot is mentioned by Speed as being attached to the Court of King Ethelred. This nobleman held estates in Sussex in the tenth century. Thane was a Dignitary under the Anglo-Saxons and Danes in England. Of these there were two orders, the King's thanes who attended the kings in their courts and held lands immediately of them, and the ordinary thanes who were lords of manors and who had particular jurisdiction within their limits. After the Conquest, this title was disused, and baron took its place.

Judged by the definition of thane this subject mentioned by Speed, the historian, must have been a King's thane, and held his lands and estates accordingly.

THE PARISH OF SPONDON

“At the Court of Ethelred, the Saxon, father of Edward the Confessor, there was there a nobleman, who was ancestor of the three knightly branches of the Wilmots—Chaddesden, Osmaston, Berkswell. The earliest designation of the Wilmots is of Nottinghamshire, though they held lands in Sussex and Essex. For the last three hundred and fifty-two years, they have been a Derbyshire family. John Wilmot was living at Spondon in 1539, when he purchased the Chaddesden estate, or what is now properly termed the Manor of Boroughwood. From this gentleman sprung three separate lines of baronets. Any house with an unbroken descent of six and twenty generations, with a founder who was among the nobles of England before the aggression of the Normans, with a succession of sons who have distinguished themselves with their brains, as well as their swords, may justly be considered as belonging to an aristocracy superior to any wherein the title is by prescription, or by writ, or by letters patent. No other European nation but ourselves can boast the Wilmots and Boothbys and Newdigates”. (Vol. 2, P. 165—The Old Halls, Manors and Families of Derbyshire)

We find an illustrious family, named Wyllimot, resident at Sutton—upon—Soar, in the county of Nottingham in the eleventh century. There are Deeds in the Wilmot family which were made in times before the custom of dating those documents was introduced.

A certain John Willimote, a taverner, was sworn before the Chancellor of Oxford University to sell good beer, 1434 (Mum. Acad. Oxon, p. 595)

According to Miss Elizabeth Wilmarth, Genealogist, of the Wilmarth family, the family of Wilmot, etc. is of French origin. Their ancestors were in Brittany as early as 1000. The name which was Wilmot under William the Conqueror, and is still so kept by the English family, maybe a corruption of Guillemot, Guillemotte, a name frequent in France in early times, derived from Guillaume (William) becoming in England, Willymote, Willymotte, Wilmot. The termination of was introduced by the Normans, and has made a fixed position in English nomenclature. It is to be found in such names as Willmot (Williamot).

The surnames that have descended to us from “William” are well nigh numberless, such as Williamot the more English form of the same, Willmot, Wilmot, Willot, Wills, Willis, Wilson, etc.

One branch of the family settled in early times at Littcomb, Wantage, Berkshire County, England. This family who once possessed Long Marston were the ancestors of the Earl of Rochester. A later branch went to Wales. There were Wilmots in Cambridgeshire in the 13th century. For 350 years the Derbyshire Wilmots “who have been honored with three baronetcies have been settled in Derby.”

Name of Norman extraction—Wilmot—Old G. Wilmod, Fl. Wilmart, Wilmet, Fr. Wilmotte, 9 n. (Resolute, courage).

An old gentle family of Willymot owned the manor at Kelshall in the 17th century. James I, by Letters Patent granted it to George Salter, Gent. and John Williams from whom it passed to Ralph Freman of Aspenden who conveyed it to James Willymot of Kelshall, Attorney at Law, whose son was High Sheriff in 1683.

On the floor of Saint Faiths church at Kelshall is the following: “Here lyeth the body of Elizabeth Willymot, wife of James Willymot, Gent. of Kelshall buried June 6, 1634.”
"This monument deserves thine eye Who're thou art who passeth by,
So much is due that blest one Whose body underneath this stone.

If thou desirest to have't expressed Who's to this latest house a guest,
Know that rest below this shrine,
All what so ever was not divine."

The manor of Woodhall was purchased by James Willymot, Esq. during the reign of Charles I and he gave it to his son, James of Royalston.

There were Wilmots in Farmborough, Hampshire County.

My observations and studies have led me to the conclusion that there is but little to be found in England concerning the family history of the common people. English historians and writers have played up the aristocracy rather than the ordinary people. This compiler has reported in the following pages just what was found out about the family, with the statement that he has not been able definitely and conclusively to tie in any branch of the American family with that of the English lines of nobility. The similarity of names of many of the American immigrants suggest that the line which came to Virginia originated in Derbyshire. The English lines which are set forth herein are given as historical information.

It is entirely probable that some of the Wilmot ancestry may have been of the younger branches of the well-to-do families, but as stated by Charles Edward Banks, "The whole conception of great transatlantic migration from the American viewpoint is not based on accident of birth but upon the consideration of the great work that began in laying the foundations of a new nation in the spirit of equal opportunities and equal rights. Immigrants who came formed the backbone of English Yeomanry — the source of England's greatness".

Research abroad has been very difficult as most of the published history of the Wilmot family pertains to more prominent branches of the family. It must not be assumed that any direct, traceable relationship exists between the prominent persons mentioned herein of England with the early immigrants who came to New England, Maryland and Virginia. It is much easier to find a record of the prominent English Wilmots than it is those of humble origin.

The English origin of the Wilmots is something of a puzzle. There were different families of the name, or possibly different families of the same family, settled early in several English counties. Later, there seems to have been Huge-not refugee families that bore the name (1550-1600). The names in the New Haven family might suggest French or Walloon descent—Benjamin, William (Gullaume), Alexander, Valentine. The name, Walter, which occurs in two lines of descent from Benjamin was very rare among Puritans, but common among the Dutch (as Wouter). On the other hand, the name Alexander occurs in the English family which later was raised to the peerage (Earls of Rochester). If the name was French, it was probably originally Guillemot.

Branches of the family appeared in Virginia as early as 1635. Most of those who came to Virginia spelled the name Wilmoth, Wilmot, while those in Maryland spelled it Wilmot; and those in Connecticut and New England colonies retained the simple spelling Wilmot. The name has been variously changed and we find in addition to the foregoing, Wilmouth, Wilmeth, Wilmarth, Wilmuth.

These immigrant families were composed of sturdy, upright honest men and women who were well respected by associates and neighbors, and who made substantial members of the society of their respective communities.

The English immigrants who came in colonial days were imbued with the pioneer spirit. They came from the cottages and humble walks of life rather than manor houses. The people who came as earlier settlers to found homes here were plain people. It is not known, and can not be positively stated, that any persons whose name appears in the pedigrees given in this work has descended directly from any Wilmot who had been knighted or who was lord of a manor.

In colonial days they were often chosen for public office and positions of trust. They took important part in the affairs of the communities where they lived. During the revoolution they filled their posts and played the part of heroes and patriots. There are more than thirty-five names of Wilmots on the Massachusetts Revolution rolls. Connecticut had a great many on the rolls as having served as soldiers in the Revolutionary War. There are several different spellings of the name on Massachusetts, Connecticut and other Revolutionary records.

While not as distinguished as some families, the numerous persons bearing the name Wilmot, etc., are generally persons of good character. The men are generally farmers or business and professional men. They are industrious and persevering and given to overcoming and conquering difficulties; an amusing saying handed down in one branch of the family is "When something unusually difficult has been accomplished or great burdens lifted nothing but a Wilmot or a wild cat could have stood that".

The family has been restless and full of adventure, with a strong pioneering spirit. Soon after the Revolutionary War they began to migrate from Massachusetts and Connecticut, into New Hampshire and Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and the Northwest and South. They suffered many hardships and privations while this was a new country. They are found now in nearly every state in the Union.

There have been artists and poets, musicians and actors and scholars among them—eminent preachers and missionaries, lawyers and doctors and some politicians and executives. Practically every walk in life has been represented. Some have held high positions of trust in the communities in which they lived, but most of them have been retiring, law abiding citizens, caring for their families and serving their communities in quiet modest ways.

WILMARTH

Considerable data have been submitted on the various Wilmarth families which is not included in this volume for the reason that the late Miss Elizabeth J. Wilmarth of North Attleboro, Massachusetts, has a more complete line of this branch of the family. Her data are on file in the New England Historical and Genealogical Society in Boston, Massachusetts and are in manuscript form.

Robert Wilmot came to Derby in 1539 from Sutton Bonnington on Soar in Nottinghamshire.

The Wilmots or Wyllimots of Derbyshire, settled at Derby or its immediate neighborhood in the year 1539, in the person of Robert Wyllimot; whose son Robert married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Smith, of Spondon, and possessed property in Spondon and Derby. We refer our readers to the table of lineage for the descent and alliances which have branched out into families headed by three Baronetcies; the elder of which is the family possessing the estate and residence of Chaddesden; the mansion was rebuilt about a hundred and thirty years ago, by Robert, the father of the first Baronet, Sir Edward Wilmot, of Chaddesden. This eminent man was Physician General to the Army, and Physician in Ordinary to the Royal Family during the reign of George II and the early part of the reign of George III, and for his professional services, he was created a Baronet in the year 1759. He died in the ninety-third year of his age, on the 21st of November 1786. Sir Robert Wilmot, the grandson of this eminent Physician, was High Sheriff of the county in 1803, and from the enrolment to the disbanding of the Derbyshire Yeomanry Cavalry, he discharged the duties of Lieut. Colonel, with high satisfaction to the gentlemen composing that important loyal corps, and with reputation to himself. His second, but eldest surviving son, resides at Chaddesden, and is an active Justice of the Peace for the County. The genealogical table of this family, which has flourished with high repute in this county during three centuries, will more distinctly point out the eminent individuals who have distinguished themselves in the Senate, the church, the law and in the medical profession.

Two other branches of this family have obtained the dignity of Baronet; Sir Robert Wilmot of the Junior Branch, father of Sir John Eardley Wilmot, the Judge, was created in 1772; and Sir John Eardley Wilmot grandson of the Judge, was created in 1821.

WILMOT OF CHADDESDEN, DERBYSHIRE
CREATED BARONET FEB. 15, 1759

The name of Wilmot, or Wylimot, for variously hath it been written, is originally saxon, and very ancient in England.

The family, as we find by deed now in their possession, settled soon after the conquest at Sutton-upon-Soar, and Bonyngton, adjoining thereto, and hence called Sutton Bonyngton, in Nottinghamshire, and about fourteen miles from the town of Derby.

1. Ralph Wylemot is one of the witnesses to a grant of lands in Bonyngton, aforesaid, before the custom of dating deeds began. His descendant was
2. Ralph Wylemot, of Sutton aforesaid, who was witness to a grant of lands there in 1282.
3. Ralph Wylemot.
4. Ralph Wylemot is one of the witnesses to a grant of lands made by William, son of John, Chaddesden in 13.
5. Robert Wilmot of Bonyngton, is one of the witnesses to a grant of lands there in 1380.
6. Robert Wilmot, of Bonyngton, is one of the witnesses of a grant of lands there 21 Rich II and to another grant of lands 4 Henry IV.
7. Richard Wylymot of Bonyngton, 30th of June 9 Hen. IV, grants to John Bonyngton and others, a certain messuage and lands in Bonyngton, part of which lands lay adjoining to lands of William Wylymot, another part adjoining to lands of John Wylymot, and on the 6th day of July 9 Hen. IV, John Bonyngton and others granted certain messuages and lands to the said Richard Wylymot.
8. Robert Wylymot, marryi... in possession at the time of his death, 1682. The said Robert had:

9. John Wylymot, who was father of
10. Ralph Wylymot, who was father of
11. Robert Wylymot, who removed into Derbyshire, where he purchased estates at Derby and Spondon. He had three sons, John, Richard and Robert.
12. John Wylymot, of Spondon, married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Simley, of that place, purchased lands at Chaddesden, and made it the place of his residence.
13. Robert Wylymot, of Chaddesden, purchased from Ralph Wyllymot, of Bonyngton, to John Bonyngton, Esq., dated July 4, 9 Hen. IV, considerable estates at Osmaston, Litchwich, Michelove, Alvaston, Boulton, Barnewst, Newton-Grange and elsewhere, in the said county of Derby, some of which were sold again in 1597, in order to buy other estates in the said county. The said Robert married Dorothy, daughter of Lawrence Shrigley, of Shrigley, in Cheshire, by whom he had four sons, and two daughters. Robert and John, who both died without issue; Edward, and Sir Nicholas, ancestor to Sir Robert Wilmot of Osmaston, Bart. The daughters were Anne, wife of G. Charlton; and Elizabeth, of Robert Miller, Esq.
14. Edward, son of Robert and Dorothy Shrigley, was born at Derby, and educated at Cambridge, where he took the degree of doctor of divinity, and was minister of Allhallows, in Derby. He married Dorothy, daughter of Sir George Grisley, of Drahelor, in the county of Derby, by whom he had two sons, Robert and Edward, and one daughter, Dorothy, wife of Thomas Roly, of Castle Donnington, in Leicestershire. Robert, the eldest son, was high sheriff of Derbyshire, in 1661, and died the same year, unmarried.
15. Edward, the second son, married Susanna, daughter of Richard Coke, of Trusley, in Derbyshire, (by Catharine, daughter of Robert Charlton, and sister of Sir John Charlton, speaker of the House of Commons) by whom he had three sons, Robert, Edward and Richard, who was an eminent physician at Derby, and married Henrietta, daughter of William Cavendish, of Doveridge, in Derbyshire, by whom he had seven daughters, Susanna, Henrietta, Catharine, Elizabeth, Mary, Dorothy and Anne, and four sons, Richard, William, Edward and Robert.
Of the daughters, Henrietta died, unmarried; Susanna was wife of Somerford Booths, in Cheshire; Catharine; Elizabeth, wife of Francis Balbydon Wilmot, of Spondon; Mary, of McParker, of the county of Derby; Dorothy, of McPickering; and Anne, of Ravenshaw, of Bedford-rose, in the county of Middlesex. Richard, the eldest son, was a clergyman, who married, but died without issue. William went also into orders, and married ___________________, widow of Mabb, who was the daughter of Shallcross, Esq.; Edward, of London, married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Wilmot, of Spondon, and had one son, and one daughter; Robert, was a captain of a regiment of foot, and died a bachelor. Edward, the second son of Edward and Susanna Coke, was called to the bar, and married Catharine Cassandra Isabella, daughter and coheiress of William Coke, of Trusley, by whom he had two sons, Francis Balbydon, and Richard, a clergyman; and four daughters, Susan, wife of Waddilove, and died without issue; Cassandra, widow of Baylis; Elizabeth, of Edward Wilmot of London, before mentioned, and Anne; Francis Balbydon Wilmot of Spondon, aforesaid, who was baptized at Trusley, July 27, 1725, married Elizabeth, fourth daughter of Richard Wilmot M. D., beforementioned, by whom he had one son, Francis. Robert, eldest son of Edward and Susanna Coke, was born July 16, 1678. He rebuilt his seat at Chaddesden and married Joyce, daughter, and, at length, coheiress of William Sacheverell, of Morley, in Derbyshire, and of Barbon, in Nottinghamshire, which William Sacheverell distinguished himself greatly in parliament during the reigns of Charles II and James II, and particularly in the convention at the Revolution; soon after which he was made one of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty. The said Robert had four sons: Robert, Edward, William and Richard, and two daughters, Susanna and Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Davison, M. A., Rector of Dalbury, in Derbyshire, both dead. Robert, the eldest son, died a bachelor, in 1755, and William was wounded on board the Phoenix man of war, and died, unmarried; Richard, doctor of divinity, rector of Morley and Mickleove, in Derbyshire, and one of the canons of Windsor, married Dorothy, daughter of Simon Degge of Derby, and of Blithe in Staffordshire, (by Jane, daughter and coheiress of Henry Staunton aforesaid) by whom he had issue; of which Staunton, the eldest son (to whom McSitewell of Reinshaw, in the county of Derby, left his large fortune) has taken the name and arms of Sitwell.

1. Edward, the second son, was born Oct. 13, 1693, was physician in ordinary to the late Queen Caroline, to his Royal Highness, Frederick, late Prince of Wales, and to his Majesty George II, physician-general to the king's armies and physician in ordinary to his Majesty. He married Sarah Marsh, daughter of Richard Mead, M. D., physician in ordinary to his late majesty, by Ruth, his wife, daughter of William Marsh, Esq., merchant of London, by whom he had one son and two daughters, Anne, wife, Feb. 5, 1760, of Thomas Heron, of Newark, in Nottinghamshire. She died April 30, 1767. Sir Edward died Nov. 21, 1786, aged 93, and was succeeded by his only son.

2. Sir Robert Mead Wilmot, Bart., who married Mary, heiress of William Wollet, Esq., by Mary, daughter and co-heiress of William Roberts, of Marbledown, in Kent, by whom he hath issue now living, 1799, two sons and two daughters; Sir Robert, his successor; Edward Sacheverell, born Sept. 16, 1766, and married in April 1797, Anne, only child of the late Dr. Chambers, of Stretton, Leicestershire; Louisa, wife of William Carr Browne, of Stretton aforesaid; Eliza, of Francis Bradshaw, of Holbrooke, Derbyshire.

Sir Robert died Sept 9, 1793, and was succeeded by his eldest son.

Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., born July 5, 1765, who, in March, 1796, married Lucy, eldest daughter of the late Robert Grimston, of Neswick, in Yorkshire, by whom he has two daughters, Lucy Maria, born April 1797, and Harriet, born June 1798.

Arms: Sable on a fence, or between three eagles' heads, couped, argent, as many escallops, gules, a canton, vaire, ermine and gules.

Crest: An eagle's head, couped, argent, gorged with a mural coronet, sable, in the beak, an escallop, gules.

Seat: At Chaddesden, in the county of Derby.

Here lieth buried William Willmott, Gent., who dyed the day of December, A. D. 1618. He married Cecily Hyde, one of the daughters of Hugh Hyde, of Letcombe Regis, Esq., by whom he had six children; two sons, Henry and George Wilmott, and four daughters, Cicely, Martha, Frances and Bridget Wilmott. Whilst he lived he was to his superiors respective, to his equals friendly, to his inferiors compassionate, to the poor charitable, who after 76 years travel in this world, by a virtuous departure, recommended his soul to the mercy of his Saviour. In memory whereof, his sons-in-law, Thomas Garrard and Thomas Tempest have placed this stone as a monument to his posterity.

OSMASTON HALL—DERBYSHIRE

There is an extremely curious fact connected in the most of the past Lords of Osmaston Manor. Robert Wilmot, the builder of the Hall, in 1696, mated with Ursula, daughter of Sir Samuel Marrow, (one of the five co-heiresses) of Berkswell, Warwickshire, who was an offshoot maternally, through the Lyttletons, Talbots and Beauforts, from the very John of Gaunt, who was made Duke of Lancaster, in right of the woman he led to the altar, and not from being the son of Edward III.

WILMOT, OF OSMASTON, DERBYSHIRE
CREATED BARONET, SEPT. 19, 1772

This family is a younger branch of that of Chaddesden, in the county of Derby, as will be found in the pedigree of Sir Robert Wilmot.
Robert Wilmot, of Chaddesden, Esq., who was the common ancestor of the two families, had, by Dorothy, his wife, daughter and heiress of Lawrence Shrigley, of Shrigley, in the county of Chester, four sons, of which:
Nicholas, the fourth son, to whom his father devised the Osmaston and other estates in Derbyshire, was born in December, 1611, was a student, and at length a bencher of Gray’s Inn, where he took his degree of sergeant-at-law. He was honoured by the Cavendish family with particular marks of confidence and trust, relative to the restoration of King Charles II. On the 24th day of May, 1661, he received a deputation from the Earl of Clare, recorder of the town and county of Nottingham, to be deputy recorder thereof.
The following year, the commissioners for regulating corporations in the county, attempted to remove his lordship from that recordership, but His Majesty, by his royal letter to the commissioners, bearing date the 16th of December, 1662, put an entire stop thereto. The commissioners had offered the said recordership to the said Nicholas Wilmot, which he refused, for which the Earl of Clare, in a letter bearing date the 10th of March following, returned his thanks to him in a very particular manner.

Upon the death of the Earl of Clare, the Marquis of Dorchester was elected and chosen recorder of the said town and county of Nottingham; and on the 5th day of April, 1666, the said Nicholas was appointed by his lordship deputy recorder thereof. He was knighted by Charles II, who expressed his intention of promoting him in his profession, which he declined, preferring a private life. He married Dorothy, one of the daughters of Sir John Harper, of Calke, in the said county of Derby, by whom he had two sons: Robert and Nicholas, and three daughters: Dorothy, wife of Francis Revell, of Cornfield, in the said county of Derby; Barbara, of Thomas Benbrigge of Lockington, in Leicestershire, and Elizabeth, of Nicholas Charnell, of Snareston, in the said county of Leicester. Nicholas, the younger, married Chalone, of Duffield, from whom is descended the present Edward Wilmot, of Lansdowne, near Bath, in the county of Somerset.

Robert, the eldest son of Sir Nicholas, represented the borough of Derby, in the first parliament called by King William and Queen Mary, died in 1732, aged 82. He married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heiress of Edward Eardley, of Eardley Hall, in the county of Stafford, who was possessed of considerable estates in that county; by whom he had seven sons: 1, Robert; 2, Nicholas; 3, Edward; 4, John; 5, Charles; 6, Christopher; 7, Henry; and one daughter, Anne, the wife of Robert Revell of Cornfield.

Nicholas, the second son, married Sarah, daughter of Lloyd, Esq., by whom he had one son, Selden, who died unmarried; and four daughters: 1, Sarah, who died unmarried; 2, Elizabeth, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Valentine Morris, by whom she had one son, Valentine, and three daughters: Frances, who died unmarried; Sarah, wife of Henry Wilmot, of Farnborough Place, and Caroline, who died unmarried; Mary, died unmarried; and 4, Margaret, wife of Rev. Bryan Allot, of Kirk Heaton, in Yorkshire, by whom she had several children; Valentine Morris, the son, married Mordaunt, Esq., by whom he left no issue; John, the fourth son, married Frances, daughter of Francis Barke, Esq., by whom he had one son, Robert, and three daughters: 1, Elizabeth, who died unmarried; 2, Alice, wife of John Ryde, Archbishop of Tuan, and cousin-german to the late lord chief justice Ryde. His Grace left by the said Alice, several sons and daughters.

Charles, the fifth son, was rector of Langley, near Derby, married Bridget, one of the daughters of Benjamin Blundell, Esq., by whom he had one son, who died unmarried.

Christopher, the sixth son, was physician in ordinary to his Royal Highness, George, Prince of Wales, afterwards George II. He married Anne, daughter of Edward Montague, of Horton, in Northamptonshire, and sister to the first Earl of Halifax, by whom he left one son, Montague Wilmot, who was colonel of a regiment of foot, and governor of Nova Scotia, where he died, unmarried.

Henry, the seventh son, married Catherine, daughter of Dowson, Esq., by whom he left one son, Henry, who married Sarah, one of the daughters of the said Lieutenant-Colonel Valentine Morris, and by her, left one son, Henry Valentine, the present possessor of Farnborough Place, and one daughter, Sarah Elizabeth.

Robert, eldest son of the said Robert and Elizabeth, married in 1703-4, Ursula, one of the daughters and coheiress of Sir Samuel Marrow, of Berkswell, in Warwickshire, allied to many great and noble families, by whom he had three sons: 1, Robert; 2, John Eardley Wilmot, and 3, Edward, who died an infant; and two daughters, Ursula, who died young; and Anabella, deceased, who was the wife of James McCulloch, Esq., late Ulster King of Arms; they left no issue.

Lady Marrow was one of the most accurate women of her time, and corresponded with Bishop Hough, who wrote her epitaph in St. James Church, Westminster.
John Eardley Wilmot the second son, in 1755, who was made one of the judges of his majesty’s court of King’s Bench, was knighted; he was appointed one of the commissioners of the great seal, and on the 17th of August, 1766, was appointed chief justice of the court of Common Pleas, and sworn of his Majesty’s most honourable privy council. He married Sarah, one of the daughters of Thomas Revell, Esq., by whom he left three sons: Robert, John and Eardley, and three daughters, Mary Marrow, and Elizabeth Mary Marrow, wife of the Right Honourable Lord Eardley; and Elizabeth, of Colonel Blonefield, of the artillery; Robert, died unmarried; John, of Berkswell Hall in Warwickshire, was one of the representatives in parliament for Coventry, and a master in Chancery, married to his first wife, Frances, daughter and sole heiress of Sainthill, Esq., and secondly to Haslan, Esq., by both of whom he has several children. Eardley is unmarried.

He was born August 16, 1709, at Derby, and after he quitted the grammar school there was placed under Sir Hunter, at Litchfield, in the Johnson and Garrich, where four other contemporary judges had been educated. He was removed, in 1724, to Westminster School, under Dr. Forind, and thence to Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he contracted such a passion for study, that he was often heard to say, his highest ambition was to become a fellow, and pass his life at that learned society. He gave a preference to the church, but his father destined him for the law, and he was called to the bar in 1732.

In 1742, he married Sarah, daughter of Thomas Revell of Derby. His early practice was confined to the county of Derby, but having attracted the notice of Sir Dudley Ryde, attorney general and lord chancellor Hardwicke, the latter, in 1753, proposed to make him King’s counsel, and King’s sergeant, both of which he declined, from a wish to retire into the country; and in 1754, he made his farewell speech to the Court of Exchequer. Soon after his retirement, he was summoned to succeed Sir Martin Wright as judge of the Court of King's Bench, which he accepted in 1755, though not without considerable persuasion, perhaps with regard to his family, having five children. He died Feb. 5, 1792, aged 82, leaving his eldest son sole executor, with directions to erect a plain marble tablet in Berkswell church, containing an account of his birth, death, dates of his appointments and names of his children, without any other additions whatever. His person was of the middle size, his countenance commanding and dignified, his eye lively, tempered with sweetness and benignity, his knowledge extensive and profound.

1. Robert, the eldest son of the said Robert and Ursula, attended his Grace, the Duke of Devonshire, to Ireland, upon his being made lord lieutenant in 1737. He was created a Baronet of Great Britain, September 19 or October 19, 1772. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Foote, Esq. Their only surviving children are Robert, the present Baronet; William, and one daughter, Elizabeth. Sir Robert died suddenly, Nov. 14, 1772, at his country seat at Little Galing, in Middlesex, and was succeeded by his eldest son.

2. Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., who married first, Julia, second daughter of the late Honorable Admiral Byron, who died in 1788, by whom he has one son, Robert. He married secondly, in 1795, Mariana, daughter and heiress of the late Charles Howard, of Litchfield, by whom he has four children, Mary Anne, Charles Foley, Augusta Anne and Eardley Nicholas.

Crest: An eagle's head erased, argent, in his beak, an escallop shell, gules.

Seat: At Osmaston, Derbyshire.

As stated this branch of the family descended from Sir Nicholas, a younger son of Robert Wilmot, of Chaddesden, above mentioned, by the heiress of Shrigley. Robert, the elder son of Sir Nicholas, married the heiress of Eardley, and his eldest son, Robert, a coheiress of Sir Samuel Marrow, Bart. Robert, the son of the last mentioned marriage, was created a Baronet in 1772, in the remainder to Robert Wilmot, Esq., of Osmaston, who is the second and present baronet.

SITWELL OF STEGNESLY

Edward Sacheverell Wilmot Sitwell, Esq., who purchased this place about the year 1782, is grandson of Richard Wilmot, D. D., Rector of Morley, youngest son of Robert Wilmot, Esq., of Chaddesden, by Joyce Sacheverell, sister of the last Sacheverell, of Morley. His elder brother, Richard Staunton Wilmot, took the name of Sitwell, in addition to that of Wilmot, pursuant to the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Sitwell (daughter and heir of George Sitwell, Esq.) who died in 1769. On the death of Richard Staunton Wilmot Sacheverell, Esq., in 1772, his brother, Edward Sacheverell Wilmot took the name of Sitwell.

Osmaston is situated about three miles from Derby, near the road to Ashly-de-la-zouch. In the Domesday Survey, it is written Osmundesteene, and no doubt it took its name from Osmund, the Saxon possessor, in the reign of Edward the Confessor. The manor was granted to Robert Holland, in 1307, as an appendage of Melbourn, in which manor it has passed ever since, and is now the property of the Marquis of Hastings. The principal estate here belongs to Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart.; descended from a younger branch of the Wilmots of Chaddesden. Sir Nicholas Wilmot, of Osmaston, Sergeant at law, in the reign of Charles II, was fourth son of Robert Wilmot, Esq., of Chaddesden, by the heiress of Shrigley. Sir John Eardley Wilmot, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, who died in 1792, was of this branch of the family, being a younger son of Sir Nicholas Wilmot. Osmaston Hall, the seat of Sir Robert Wilmot, has been for a few years past unoccupied, during the present Baronet's residence at Bath, and on the continent.

In the chapel of Osmaston, is the monument of Sir Nicholas Wilmot, who died in 1682, and that of Sir Robert Wilmot, the first baronet, who died in November, 1772. Robert de Dun, Lord of Breadsall, in the reign of Henry II, gave up all his rights in the patronage of Osmaston Chapel to the Abbott of Derby. Sir Robert Wilmot is the present patron.

JAMES WILMOT, D. D.

“Arg. on a bend, or, between three eagles' heads erased two fleur de lis and un unicern” for Wilmot. Crest Wilmot “un eagles’ head”.

James Wilmot, D. D. Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford, Rector of Barton on the Heath and Anlcester, Warwickshire, and one of H. M. Justices of the Peace for that county. He descended from Sir Nicholas Wilmot, of Osmaston Co. Derby Kt. His Grandfather Henry Wilmot was brother of Sir John Eardley Wilmot's father, who married a Yorkshire lady of good family and handsome fortune. Rev. Dr. Wilmot used to say that Lord Rochester was of the same family, and that his nearest of kin was Sir Thomas Coke Wilmot, the munificent founder of Worcester Coll. Oxford. Henry Wilmot married and had several sons and daughters. Of these Thomas Wilmot born 1680 was wounded at Blenheim where he distinguished himself. He married the daughter of Gen. Downes and had Theopolus, Edward and Thomas. He married again to Sarah Hughes and had among others Rev. James, Olivia, Robert and Sarah. A life of Dr. Wilmot was published in which an effort was made to prove that he was the writer of the letters of Junius. Its title is “The life of the author of the letters of Junius, the Rev. James Wilmot, D. D. late fellow of Trinity College Oxford, etc. by his niece Olivia Wilmot Serres 820 London; 1813. (Copy in the Congressional Library).

Olivia Wilmot was married by her brother in the presence of George the III to Henry Frederick, Duke of Cumberland and Brother of George the III (?). One child was born from this marriage, Olivia, who married John Thomas Serres, a painter of repute and marine draughtsman to the Admiralty. Olive Wilmot in a letter dated 1828 to her Cousin Joseph Dowman signed herself “Olive Princess of Cumberland and Lancaster”, and she states “Your father's cousin, Anthony Hart, is now Chancellor of Ireland.” (Haydens Genealogies p. 124.)

WILMOT AND LEE
EXTRACT FROM THE REGISTER OF THE PARRISH CHURCH OF ADDERBURY, CO. OXFORD. P. 420

1673 The Hon. Thomas Wharton, Esq., eldest son of the Lord Wharton, married to Ann Lee, the youngest daughter of Sir Henry Lee, Bart., September 16.

Charles, third Earl of Rochester, and Baron Wilmot, of Adderbury in the peerage of England, and fourth Viscount of Athlone in the peerage of Ireland, died under age and unmarried, 12th November 1681, and was buried beside his father and grandfather at Spelsbury, in the vault of the Lees of Ditchley on the 7th December following. The date of his birth is not given either in Ant. a Wood's Athenal Oxoniem, or in Dugdale's M. S. additions in the Bodleian copy of his Baronage.

Eleanor Lee, eldest daughter and coheir of Sir Henry Lee, third, Bart. of Ditchley, Co. Oxford, he was uterine brother of John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester "The Poet and Wit", who resided at Adderbury. As both of her parents died in 1659, when she was in her second year, it is probable that she and her sister Ann Lee, were brought up by their grandmother, the dowager Countess of Rochester. The connection between the Lees and Wilmots is shown in the accompanying form of pedigree.

Ann Lee was bapt. the day of her mother's funeral, who was buried in Spelsbury, Co. Oxford, 24 July, 1659. She died at Adderbury, 29th October, 1685, s. p. and was buried at Winchenden, Bucks, 10th November following. Her husband, Thomas Wharton, Esq., was married secondly, to Lucy Loftus, daughter of Adam, Lord Lisburne, succeeded his father in 1695 as fifth Baron Wharton; and dying 12th April 1715, was succeeded by his son Phillip, who was created Duke of Wharton and died 1731, s. p.

Children:

He died at Sluys.

John Wilmot, second Earl of Rochester, son of Henry Wilmot, first Earl of Rochester; M. A. Wadham College, Oxford 1661; volunteer in unsuccessful assault of Dutch ships at Bergen 1665; had reputation as a poet for amorous lyrics, questionable rhymes and mordant verse; gentleman of Kings bedchamber 1666; brilliant as wit; patron of Elizabeth Barry and of other poets including Dryden; collections of his poems were issued posthumously that of 1731-2 being the most complete.

THE WILD WILMOTS

Although the genealogist may carry the pedigree of the Rochester Wilmots somewhat further, their history begins and comes to an end within six generations.

Their founder was Edward Wilmot of Whitney, a figure familiar amongst ancestors of English noble houses, a thrusting yeoman of the Tudor times who dies a squire and lord of manors. His father, a Wilmot of the substantial yeoman class, had married with one who had married after his death a Cottismore, and again on Cottismore's death to an Oxfordshire Doyley, but Edward, although a younger son, pushed his fortunes to a point beyond any of his kin. His wife was one of the seventeen children of John Bustard, a squire of Adderbury, and her portion cannot have been a large one, so we must reckon all Edward Wilmot's winning as coming by his own eager wits. He died in the first year of Elizabeth's reign, and an inquest taken of his Gloucestershire lands shows that he was seised of the manors of Newent and Pauntley, whilst his will disposes of other manors and lands in Oxfordshire, Gloucestershire and Buckinghamshire. Christian, his widow, married William Bury of Culham, esquire.

Edward Wilmot and Christian Bustard had seven sons and three daughters, Thomas the eldest son and heir being aged twenty-three years and more at his father's death. This Thomas married an Essex woman and removed into Hampshire. Alexander, the third son, died without issue. Anthony, the fourth son, was apprenticed to a citizen of London, and became himself a citizen and skinner in 1564, marrying and leaving a son. The fifth son, John Wilmot, went like his elder brother into Hampshire, and was of Wield in Hampshire and a gentleman when he died on a visit to London in 1614. James, the seventh son, seems to have been one of two brothers to stay in Oxfordshire, and he died there in 1610 as a squire of Churchill. In this generation the highest rank was reached by Arthur Wilmot, the sixth son, who was of Wield when he was created a baronet in 1621 for his 'services in Ireland,' the growing interest of his nephew, the Lord President of Connaught, being perhaps a better explanation of his rise.

The will of this Sir Arthur Wilmot is a substantial instalment towards the biography of the good baronet of whom we should else know little enough. His opening pieties are in the best taste of his day—

I doe willingly forsake the world and the vanities thereof, and doe profess from the bottom of my hart Cupio dissolvi et esse cum Christo, Amen, fiat voluntas Dei.

Since it hath pleased God that he should not have an heir of his body—

I give him most humble thanks that hath blest our name and family with so noble a person as my honourable nephewe Charles Lord Viscount Wilmott, whose vertues hath added honor to our house.
Therefore the residue of his estate is settled upon this splendid nephew, who is to take into his especial care Mistress Dorothy Waringe, wife of Arnold Waringe, esquire, and their children, which Dorothy was a natural daughter of the testator.

The father of this worshipful nephew was Edward Wilmot of Culham, esquire. Certain proceedings in Chancery give us the tale of his marriage to Elizabeth Stafford, daughter of a Berkshire squire, and widow of John Bury of Culham, a son by an earlier marriage of Edward Wilmot's mother's second husband. Thus entangled become the relationships in an age in which there are few spinsters and fewer bachelors and in which no well-founded widow or widower rests many months unmarried. With this a stepson came into the Culham house, young Thomas Bury, who married, before he came of age, one Judith Humfreys, and had the law of his stepfather therefor, protesting that he had been forced into the match. The suit being in Chancery Edward Wilmot could not do less than deny the plea roundly, swearing that the match was one of wilful Tom's own making and deplorable to his stepfather.

Edward Wilmot and Elizabeth Stafford had two sons, Charles and Stafford. Of these Charles was sent to Oxford, where he matriculated from Magdalen College. But Charles Wilmot did not love his books well enough to take a degree, and leaving Oxford, perhaps as pages to Sir Thomas Norris, an Oxford man like himself, he went off to the Irish wars, and in 1592 is found wearing a captain's scarf, which, as any other young man of his years will agree, is a handsomer garment than a bachelor's rabbit-skin hood.

It was soon seen that Charles Wilmot had corrected his vocation in good time. He became a 'valorous and sufficient serjeant-major' (1) of the forces in Munster. A colonel at twenty-seven, he was knighted in 1599 by the Earl of Essex as Viceroy in Dublin. From this time his life was a long story of wars with the wild bare-legged Irish and with the wild Irish-English rebels of the pale and beyond it. In October of 1600 he broke Thomas Fitzmaurice, Lord of Kerry, and the next month Listowel Castle fell to him after sixteen days' sieging. In these activities he stood in the path of Fineen

(1) The rank of serjeant-major was the forerunner of our major.
Maccarthy Reagh, plotter and historian, an Irish chieftain whom the English loved not and whom Irishmen held to be 'a damned counterfeit Englishman.' The Maccarthy Reagh is said to have honoured the hard-riding Wilmot by planning his taking off in private ambuscade, but fortunately Wilmot was of a race that found favour in women’s eyes, and he was warned in time by the chieftain’s wife.

In 1600 he was Governor of Cork, from which point he harried the lands of Beare and Bantry in 1602 and 1603. For a picture of Elizabethan war in Ireland let us call up this campaign of his in those savage parts of the Cork coast. On the high roads, that were bridle tracks and no more, we may see the pikemen and musketeers in steel caps, breast and back pieces, tramping in a close company with a few gallopers at the flanks. Marching on the edge of the hills they could command on either side the land that runs down to the waters of the long bays. In the winter weather boats could not live amongst the toothed rocks of these firths, and the governor’s pikemen might drive the Irish before them towards the headlands where the skene and axe must needs turn against the pike. On the shores of those waters are the fifteenth century peel towers of the O’Mahonys, a pirate race, and the strongholds of the O’Sulivans, each of which must be stormed before the country could be left in that peace which the sword leaves.

In such frontiersman’s warfare the years of Charles Wilmot’s life went by. He came to England for some years about 1610, being M. P. for Launceston in 1614, before which time he had christened three children at St. Martin’s-in-the-Fields, children by a wife whom he buried there in 1615. She was Sarah, daughter of Sir Henry Anderson, a sheriff of London. It was twelve years and more before he married again, his second wife being the widowed Viscountess Moore, a daughter of Sir Henry Colley of Castle Carbery, a knight from whose loins was to come Sir Arthur Colley, alias Wellesley, Duke of Wellington and Prince of Waterloo.

After the death of Dame Sarah Wilmot her husband went back to Ireland. In 1616 he was made Lord President of Connaught, with a seat at Athlone, from which town he took his title when, on 4 January 1620, he had a patent as Viscount Wilmot of Athlone. In 1627 he was given a service outside Ireland from which little credit could be plucked, being in command of the relief expedition to the Isle of Rhé which was scattered and driven back by storms. In 1629 he was back again in Ireland as general and commander-in-chief of the forces, and had good hopes of being Lord Deputy until Wentworth came, a man with whom the old soldier had no pleasant dealings. He came at last to beseech Wentworth's favour, but he was then clinging to the crown lands which in the course of his adventurous life had disappeared into his own Irish estates, and Wentworth's policy was a harsh one, full of reform distasteful to the old pioneers of Elizabeth's day.

In 1641 he was failing and could no longer go out after the rebels upon the bog, and he died some little while before April 1644, when his third and only surviving son Henry was appointed to serve with Sir Charles Coote as Joint President of Connaught, the office being vacant by his death. He probably died in London, as his will, made 12 May 1643, speaks of his lease of a house near Charing Cross, adjoining Scotland Yard, wherein he was dwelling, which lease he gave to his son Henry. His mortgaged manor of Long Marston was the only noteworthy estate to be dealt with, and the will lay unproven for ten years and more, a creditor in 1654 taking an administration grant.

His third son, Henry Wilmot, succeeded him. This is the Lord Wilmot of Clarendon's history, the Wilmot of the Odyssey of King Charles II. He is said to have been born 2 November 1612, but he was certainly christened at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields 26 October 1613, an unusually long time in those days for a baby to wait outside the church door. He was sent up to Oxford as a lad, for in the seventeenth century a young gentleman must needs make his bow to learning, but in 1635 he began life in a manner more kindly to his father's son as a captain of horse in the Dutch service. His foreign service made a soldier of him, and he was Commissary-General of the horse in the second Scottish war, where he and Major O'Neale were taken by the Scots in 'that infamous rout at Newburn,' charging the enemy at the head of troops who were unwilling to come to handstrokes. They were well treated by the Scots, whose good discipline and order were noted by Wilmot, and handed over at York by the Scots mission.
nothing the worse for their adventure. O'Neale's name be­wrays his birthplace, and the two prisoners were more than comrades in arms seeing that the Major was 'very indevoted' towards the Wilmots' old enemy Strafford. In 1640 Wilmot was M. P. for Tamworth and a known partisan of the king at a time when public men were beginning to look at this side and that for the cause they would stand by, but Parliament in the next year expelled him from the House as one favouring the plot for bringing up the army to overawe the Commons.

When the King came north in 1642, soldiers were welcome guests at his court, and Wilmot, as muster-master and Com­missary-General, took arms and came by a wound in one of the first skirmishes of the war. At Edgehill he commanded the cavalry at the King's left wing, but the honours of war fell to him alone when with his own command, a fortnight after being raised to the peerage as Lord Wilmot of Adder­bury, he met Sir William Waller upon Roundway Down.

Waller, flown with success, and wearing his new nickname of 'William the Conqueror,' won in the south and in the west, was superior in horse, foot and cannon to my Lord Wilmot. His men were arrayed on Roundway Hill, a steep place a mile from the Devizes, and marched to the charge split into little plumps of horsemen with the foot and cannon between. Wilmot, by a strange fancy of tactics, looked not for his ene­my's weak point, but for his strong one, and found it in Sir Arthur Haslerigge's cuirassiers, 'all covered with armour' and massed about Sir William. At these Wilmot suddenly launched his whole force of cavalry, breaking them up with the shocks, and driving them, heavy in their lobster-tail hel­mets, their plates and pauldrons, this way and that amongst Waller's disordered host. Waller's foot, light horse and gun­ners were stirred at once into confusion. Routed as much by their own cuirassiers as by the cavalier horse, a panic fear ran through the Parliament's men, who fled tumbling upon the steep hillside. Out of the Devizes came the Cornish foot, still furious from Lansdowne with Sir Bevill's death unavenged. No rallying was possible. Wilmot filled the town with prisoners, and the guns and baggage came whole to his hands, whilst Waller and Haslerigge's good horses were carrying them towards Bristol.
The two captains were to meet again, for at Cropredy Bridge in 1644 the Lord Wilmot came down upon Waller's dragoons and worsted him with another charge of horse. For Wilmot this was his last command under King Charles I. His good service had made him no friends in high places. Prince Rupert hated him with a hatred which may have had something in it of jealousy, and the King had no affection for him. His own father's ambitious and climbing spirit filled him, and the King's civil advisers found in Wilmot a man contemptuous of them and ill to handle. Nevertheless the army loved him for a good soldier and companion, and made a soft pillow for his fall when it came in August of 1644, at which time he was arrested upon a charge of treating with the Parliament. It was difficult to understand what lay beneath the charge, but it is clear that Wilmot had spoken freely of the kingdom's affairs, declaring that the weak and stubborn king feared to make peace, and that the Prince of Wales might stand for a regent in whose name some new policy could be advanced.

His officers petitioned for him, and so with a loss of his command, and of his share in the Presidency of Connaught, he was allowed to pass over to France, where in 1647 he had the pleasure of calling Lord Digby, one of his enemies, to account, with the result that the civilian pined the soldier to the derision of all Paris.

With the new reign Wilmot came again into the field under a king who had broken with many of his father's counsellors. From the day when the young Charles went into Scotland Wilmot was at his right hand. He was with him at Worcester field and shared the flight of the King's majesty. Those wanderings of which Charles loved to tell were his wanderings with the Lord Wilmot, and in those days it was well with the King that Wilmot's and no wiser head shaped his path. For beyond all things Wilmot loved disguises and concealments.

Having lived the intimate life of vagabond pals it was impossible that Charles, once safe abroad again, should not either love or detest his late companion. As it fell out, the dismissed servant of King Charles I. was taken to the arms of King Charles II., and became one of the council of four in that slipshod court over in the low countries. In 1652 he was created Earl of Rochester, in which new name he went as envoy to the Duke of Lorraine and to the diet of the empire at Ratisbon, from which august sitting he coaxed a subsidy of 10,000£ for his master's need as deftly as he had found him meat and shelter on the road from Worcester.

In the February of 1654 he crossed secretly to England on a desperate errand and was at the gathering on Marston Moor, at which Yorkshire cavaliers were to rise for King Charles. But so small a troop came to the muster, that they were fain to break company and ride for their lives. Wilmot came southward in grievous peril, for his shrift would have been short had the Lord Protector dealt with him. But once in a disguise, this strange man, whose courage in the melee had often been questioned, seemed happily prepared for all risks. He rode lingering at his ease, chattering in marketplaces, drinking with good company in market alehouses as though the very shadow of the dangling loop were not upon his neck. He had an adventure in Aylesbury that was like to be his last, being detained for a malignant, but stepped delicately from the trap and went on his way.

This was the last adventure of his picaresque life. He lived out his day in the court whose plate was pawned, whose high officers went in threadbare breeches. The one part left for him to play upon occasion was that of the pious courtier, a performance repeated by Charles and his circle whenever a strange visitor from England was received. We learnt that on such occasions the court was 'plaguy godly,' and we may not doubt that Rochester of the twenty disguises snuffled louder and more convincingly than any man of his fellow-players.

After all his adventures he died in his bed, an exile's bed. Colonel Price at Ghent writes to Secretary Nicholas at Bruges on 19 February 1657-8 that he is ill in bed, having been for three nights 'attending my lord of Rochester's, I hope, happy departure out of this unhappy world'; my lord having died on that day at three in the morning. A letter of 24 February (1) tells us that the Colonel had laid Lord Rochester’s body ‘with what decency we could and as little noise' by Lord Hopton's body as Sluys, (2) embalmed, in good cere cloth with 'a lead well soldered.' His body, however, does not rest in that forgotten town, once a great port and now a Dutch inland village upon a canal. A coffin plate at Spelsbury shows that the body was afterwards carried home to Oxfordshire.

Over in England the hope of the Wilmots was learning his book at a country grammar school. The scandal-mongering Wood would lop him from the family tree, alleging that Sir Allen Apsley was nearer of kin than Harry Wilmot to him. (3) But in twenty ways the son reflected the father. A play-actor in grain, a gallant ruffler whose deeds of arms did not stay the whisperings against his courage, we know too much of John Wilmot to doubt his begetting.

He was born in his native Oxfordshire in 1647, and as a mere child proceeded to Wadham College. His little pipe greeted King Charles at the Restoration in a copy of verses neither better nor worse than such odes are wont to be, verses from one

The University made its prodigy Master of Arts at fourteen years of age, and the boy was carried abroad by a tutor to obtain in Italy and at the Court of France lessons which would serve him better at Whitehall than all that Wadham could teach.

Then the Court took him, and, as it is written, corrupted the lad; he took his seat in the House as a minor, and generally began life young. It was, as we know, a 'loud, querulous and impertinent Court,' this one of the English Restoration. After years of exile and hard living it had rushed upon the dainties like an ill-conditioned dog. There was no need of any more for being 'plaguy godly' in the sight of strangers, and the Puritan, once so disconcerting a figure in his buff coat and cuirass, was now a whining pantaloon for the comic stage.

These were the days of the courtier, the man who followed the court as other men follow a craft. Before this time he is always present in the history book, yet these were his great days and perhaps his last. We have a glimpse of him under the fourth George, but the King's court, after the death of the restored Charles, shrinks to a royal household. Rochester was to see it in its golden prime as the house of the pride of the eye, of the lust of the flesh, as Bunyan's own Vanity Fair jigging, wenching, ruffling and drinking, play acting and casting the dice. The very dress of this court, with its long curls shorn from other men's heads, its profusion of lace, its wanton beribboning from shoe to shoulder, must have been viewed by the survivors of the saints as the true livery of hell.

RIGHT HONOURABLE JOHN, EARL OF ROCHESTER

A Book entitled "Some Passages of the Life and Death of the Right Honourable John, Earl of Rochester" who died the 26th of July 1680. This book was written by his own direction on his death bed by Gilbert Burnet, D. D. It was printed in London for Richard Chiswel, at the Rose and Crown in Saint Pauls Churchyard, 1680. Under his picture in the front of this old book appears this writing:

"The Right Honourable John, Earle of Rochester, Baron Wilmot of Adderbury in England and Viscount Wilmot of Athlone in Ireland. Born April 1648, Died 26th July 1680."

In the Preface to the Reprint in 1875, May, Ronald Gower said: "Can anything, indeed, be sadder than that one so highly gifted with intellect, courage, and good looks as Wilmot, Lord Rochester, should have left a name almost proverbial for all that is most dissipated and abandoned; and a career which might have rivalled in the reign of Charles II that of Philip Sydney in that of Elizabeth, should (owing probably not a little to the general license of the time) have terminated in early life by disease brought on from drink and dissipation."

There are Rochesters in the reign of Victoria—not, however, gifted as was the witty author of the "Satire against Man” and “Verses upon Nothing,” but whose lives resemble Wilmots in a course of selfish and wicked indulgence, and who appear as reckless of the manner in which they pass their short span of existence as if there was no such certainty as death."

“John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, was born in April Anno Dom. 1648, his father was Henry, Earl of Rochester, but best known by the Title of the Lord Wilmot, who bore so great a part in all the late Wars, that mention is often made of him in History; and had the chief share in the Honour of the preservation of his Majesty that now Reigns, after Worcester—Fight, and the conveying Him from place to place, till happily he escaped into France: But dying before the Kings return, he left his son little other inheritance, but the Honour and Title derived to him, with the pretensions such eminent Services gave him to the Kings Favour. These were carefully managed by the great prudence and discretion of his mother, a daughter of that Noble and Ancient family of the St. Johns of Wiltshire, so that his education was carried on in all things suitably to his Quality.”

“When he was at school he was an extraordinary proficient at his Book; and those shining parts which have since appeared with so much lustre, began to show themselves. He acquired the Latin to such perfection, that to his dying-day he retained a great relish of the fineness and beauty of that tongue; and was exactly versed in the incomparable Authors that writ about Augustus’s time, whom he read with that peculiar delight which the greatest wits have ever found in those studies.”

“When he went to the University the general joy which overran the whole nation upon his Majesties Restoration, but was not regulated with that sobriety and temperance, that became a serious gratitude to God for so great a blessing, produced some of its ill effects upon him. He began to love these disorders too much. His tutor was that eminent and pious Divine, Dr. Blandford, afterwards promoted to the Sees of Oxford and Worcester; and under his inspection he was committed to the more immediate care of Mr. Phineas Berry, a fellow of Wadham College, a very learned and good natured man, whom he afterwards ever used with much respect, and rewarded him as became a great man. But the humour of that time wrought so much on him, that he broke off the course of his studies; to which no means could ever effectually recall him.”

“He began to travel in very early life. He went to Italy where his Governor, Dr. Balfour, of Scotland induced him to read good books that in a measure revived his love of learning. He returned from his travels in his 18th year, and appeared at Court. He was a graceful and well shaped person, tall and well made, if not a little too slender. He was exactly well bred, and what by a modest behavior natural to him, what by a civility became almost as natural, his conversation was easy and obliging. He had a strange vivacity of thought and vigor of expression, his wit had a subtility and sublimity both, that were scarce imitable, his style was clear and strong, when he used figures they were very lively, and yet far enough out of the Common Road: He had made himself master of the ancient and modern wit. Few men ever had a bolder flight of fancy, more steadily governed by man so made, and so improved was very acceptable in a Court.”

“Soon after his coming thither he laid hold on the first occasion that offered to show his readiness to hazard his life in the Defense and service of his country. In winter 1665 he went with the Earl of Sandwich to Sea, when he was sent to lie for the Dutch East-India Fleet; and was in the Revenge, Commanded by Sir Thomas Tiddiman, when the attack was made on the port of Bergen in Norway, the Dutch ships having got into that port. It was as desperate an attempt as ever was made; during the whole action, the Earl of Rochester showed as brave and as resolute a courage as was possible. A person of Honour told me he heard the Lord Clifford, who was in the same ship, often magnify his courage at that time very highly. Nor did the rigours of the season, the hardness of the voyage and the extreme danger he had been in, deter him from running the like on the very next occasion. For the summer following he went aboard the ship commanded by Sir Edward Spragge the day before the greatest sea fight of the year. During the action Sir Edward Spragge not being satisfied with the behavior of one of the captains, could not easily find a person that would cheerfully venture through so much danger to carry his commands to that captain. This Lord offered himself to the service, and went in a little boat, through all the shot, and delivered his message and returned back to Sir Edward, which was much commended by all that saw it.”

“His wife was the daughter of Lady Warre. Died in his 33rd year.”

GENEALOGY OF THE FAMILY OF WILMOT, EARLS OF RICHESTER

Edward Wilmot of Witney in Oxfordshire, esquire, died at Witney . . . October 1558, as appears by an inquest taken at Cirencester, co. Gloucester, 10 March 1558/9. The jurors say that he was seized of the manors of Newent and Pauntley, and of the rectories of Newent, Pauntley and Dimok in Gloucestershire. He made a will 7 July 1558, which was proved December 1558 (P. C. C. 9 Welles) by Christian Wilmot the relict and executrix. In this will he names his brother Thomas Cottesmore, and also his brothers William Chauncey, Anthony Bustard, and Robert Doyley. He recites a deed dated 21 November 3 and 4 P. and M., whereby he had given all his Gloucester manors and lands to Sir Thomas Pope, knight, William Chauncey, Anthony Bustard and Robert Doyley, esquires, and Thomas Cottesmore, gentleman, to his own use for life, with various remainders to his sons, etc.

Edward Wilmot and Christian Bustard had issue:

i. Thomas Wilmot, son and heir, who was born about 1535, being aged twenty-three years and upwards at the death of the inquest taken after his father’s death on 10 March 1558 8/9. He married Anne Tweedy of Essex, and had issue according to the herald’s visitation pedigrees (Visit. Hants, 1634) a son, Edward Wilmot of Ringwood in Hampshire (who married Anne Okeden, daughter of Philip Okeden,

(1) A genealogy of the earlier Wilmots and of the older line of their descendants is in preparation.
of Elingham, Hants), and three daughters—Dorothy Wilmot, wife of Henry Tanner; Catherine Wilmot, who died unmarried; and Barbara Wilmot, who married Henry Lock.

ii. Edward Wilmot of Culham, esquire, of whom hereafter.

iii. Alexander Wilmot, whom his uncle, John Wilmot of Wolston, Berks, yeoman, made his residuary legatee in a will dated 20 July, 1550 (P. C. C. II More), at which time the said Alexander was a minor. His father's deed of 21 November 1556 gave him the reversion of the manor of Walmer, which he had bought of Richard Androwes, esquire.

iv. Anthony Wilmot of London, gentleman, a citizen and skinner. He was made free of the Skinners' Company 31 January, 1566-7. His brother Edward, by a deed indented, dated 23 March 1576, gave him the manor of Garforde, co. Berks, for a term of 500 years, which lease by deed dated 24 February 1581-2 to Edward Vener, serjeant-at-law, and Hugh Cheverell, gentleman, for the lives of himself and his wife Elizabeth, in consideration of an annuity of 60£ to the said Anthony and Elizabeth for their lives. By his will dated 25 December 1582 he gave the lease to Edward Wilmot his son. To the said Edward he gave his lands at Dover and his rent-charge out of the manor of Culham, with remainder, if the said Edward died without issue, to the testator's nephew and servant, Edward Kempe, and the heirs of his body, with further remainder to William Kempe, brother of the said Edward Kempe. He made his good brother, Arthur Wilmot, his friend Mr. Fleminge of the Isle of Wight, Mr. Lucas of Paternoster Row, and Mr. Thomas Lewes, 'my brother William Parker's schoolmaster,' his overseers, and sealed his will with his seal of arms. Administration with the will annexed was granted 22 March 1582 (P. C. C. 17 Rowe), to Elizabeth Wilmot the relic, during the minority of Edward Wilmot, the son and executor.
Anthony Wilmot married Elizabeth, who was probably daughter of Edward Kempe, citizen and skinner, to whom he had been apprenticed. They had issue Edward Wilmot, who by Elizabeth his wife had, with other issue, Arthur Wilmot, named in the will of Sir Arthur Wilmot, his great uncle (23 February 1628-9), who gave legacies to Edward Wilmot, son of his brother Anthony, and to Arthur Wilmot and the other children of the said Edward. This Arthur Wilmot was of Adderbury, and died a bachelor, administration of his goods being granted 10 February 1646-7 (P.C.C.) to Elizabeth his mother. After the making of his will Anthony Wilmot’s wife must have given birth to a daughter, for Elizabeth, daughter of Anthony Wilmot of Culham (sic) is recorded in the Visitation of Wilts in 1623 as wife of Simon Spatchurst of Humington, esquire, by whom she had issue Elizabeth, aged six in 1623, Simon aged four, and Thomas aged three. Simon Spatchurst, with other defendants, makes answer 4 April 1612 to a bill in Chancery of Arthur Wilmot of Weld, concerning a lease of the manor of Thaxted (C.P. Fac. I., W. 8. No. 4).

v. John Wilmot of Wylde or Weld, now Wield, in Hampshire, gentleman. He died in the parish of St. Andrew’s, Holborn, 14 October 1614, as appears by his nuncupative will made about Bartholomew-tide before his death. He gave legacies to Alice, wife of Leonard Tokefield, gentleman, and to the said Leonard Tokefield, and to Julian Nicholls. Administration with will annexed was granted 28 October 1614 (P.C.C. 127 Lawe) to Arthur Wilmot, esquire, the brother.

vi. Sir Arthur Wilmot, of Wield, co. Hants, baronet. He was created a baronet 1 October 1621, by patent at Dublin March 1628-9 in the chancel of St. James’s, Clerkenwell. He made a will 23 February 1628-9, which was proved 16 March 1628-9 (P.C.C. 24 Ridley) by his nephew, the Lord Viscount Wilmot, the executor. He recites that by indenture of equal date with his will he had conveyed to his friend and counsellor John Davies, of the Inner Temple, esquire, and his servant Richard Rowell, all his manors, lordships and lands in the counties of Southampton, Oxford, Lincoln, Hertford, Lancaster, Stafford and Buckingham, with exceptions therein noted, having by another indenture dated 21 February 1628-9 conveyed to them in his manor of Whitchwell, alias Winelsgate, alias Bradshewe's Manor in Wendover. He made various dispositions for the benefit of Mrs. Dorothy Waringe, wife of Arnold Waringe, esquire, whom, with their children and his nephew Edward Wilmot, son of Anthony Wilmot, deceased, he commended to the special care of his nephew Charles, Lord Viscount Wilmot. He settled the residue of his real estate upon the said Viscount and upon his sons Arthur, Charles and Henry Wilmot, in tale male. He gave 200l. for his monument to be set up in the church of St. Jame's, Clerkenwell. He seems never to have married, but the aforesaid Dorothy Waringe was his bastard daughter. She married (i) at St. Jame's, Clerkenwell, 1 January 1613-4, the said Arnold Waringe or Warren, esquire, of Thorpe Arnold in Leicestershire, by whom she had issue. Her second husband, Nicholas Lanyon of Cornwall, was married to her 27 April 1647, at St. Bartholomew the Less.

vii. James Wilmot of Churchill, co. Oxford, esquire. He made a will 31 August 1610, which was proved 10 September 1610 (P.C.C. 80 Widenbanck) by Arthur Wilmot, the brother and executor. He desired to be buried in the church of Great Milton by his kinswoman the Lady Greene, deceased. He gave his brother Arthur his leases in Berkshire and Hampshire. He gave to his cousin Sir Michael Greene, knight, his best gelding, and to his cousin Anne Greene the 'silver bason and ewer and all my other plate I have in my lodging in Yarworth House in Fullwoods rentes.' His lease of the prebend of Munch Milton, granted by Sir William Greene, knight, and Sir Michael Greene, his son, is to be redelivered to them for 800l. William Greene, Millicent Green and Richard Yerworth are witnesses to this will, which was confirmed by sentence the same year. The Greenes were James Wilmot’s Kinsfolk by the marriage of Sir William Greene of Munch Milton with his aunt Anne, daughter of Anthony Bustard. Sir William Greene was buried at Mil­

i. Mary Wilmot, who was married before the date of her father’s will to Richard Beconsawe, a son of the Lancashire family of that name, who settled in Hampshire and was of Hartley Westhill in that county. The heralds’ visitation of 1634 records their issue.

ii. Elizabeth Wilmot, to whom her father gave 300l. at full age or marriage. She is named in the heralds’ visitation of Hampshire in 1634 as unmarried.

iii. Anne Wilmot, to whom her father gave 300l. at full age or marriage. She is not named in the heralds’ visitation. She is not named in the herald’s visitatation of 1634, and probably died young.

Edward Wilmot of Culham, co. Oxford, esquire, second son of Edward Wilmot of Witney. He married Elizabeth Staff­ ford, daughter of Thomas Stafford of Bradfield, co. Berks, esquire, and relict of John Bury of Sulham, esquire, son and heir of William Bury of Culham, stepfather to Edward Wilmot. Her birth and marriages are recited in certain proceedings in Chancery, when her son and heir, Thomas Bury or Berrye of Steeple Barton, esquire, put forward a bill 23 April 1600 against his uncle, Reade Stafford, esquire, and his mother Elizabeth Wilmot and her husband (Chan. pro.
Eliz. S. xiii. 60). In this bill young Thomas Bury asserts that, although Thomas Stafford, his grandfather, gave him his own marriage by will, the said Edward Wilmot married him before he came of age to one Judith Humfreys. Edward Wilmot and his wife reply that the match was of Thomas Bury’s own making, however much he may repent it now without any seeming reason.

48
Edward Wilmot and Elizabeth Stafford had issue two sons:—

i. Charles Wilmot, Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, of whom hereafter.

ii. Stafford Wilmot, to whom his uncle John Wilmot conveyed an annuity of 100 marks, as is recited in the nuncupative will of the said John, made about Bartholomew-tide 1614.

Charles Wilmot, Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, son of Edward Wilmot of Culham, and grandson of Edward Wilmot of Witney, is usually and wrongly described as son of the said Edward Wilmot of Witney. He was born about 1571, matriculating at Oxford (Magdalen College) 6 July 1587 as aged sixteen. He left Oxford without a degree, and is said to have gone to Ireland as a page. He was knighted at Dublin 5 August 1599 by the Viceroy of Essex. M.P. for Launceston 5 April to 17 June 1614. On 3 June 1616 he became president of Connaught, his government being seated at Athlone, from which town he took his title when on 4 January 1620-1 he was created Viscount Wilmot of Athlone. He died between 29 June 1643 (when his son's barony was created), and April 1644, when his son Henry and Sir Charles Coote were appointed joint-presidents of Connaught.

His will, dated 12 May 1643, indicates the broken fortunes of his later years. His executors, Thomas Leake, esquire, a baron of the Exchequer, and Robert Wolrich, esquire, are to take order for the payment of the mortgage money upon his manor of Long Marston and his other lands in Herts and Bucks. All of the said lands remaining unsold when his debts are paid he gives to his grandchild Charles Wilmot and his issue, with remainder to his son Henry Wilmot, to whom he gives the lease of his house wherein he dwells at Charing Cross. The will lay unproved for ten years and more, administration with the will annexed being at last granted 2 June 1654 (P.C.C. 403 Alchin) to Michael Babington, a creditor, who had been named in the will as the testator's servant.

He was first married to Sarah Anderson, fourth daughter of Sir Henry Anderson, Sheriff of London 1601-02 by Elizabeth, daughter of Francis Bowyer, citizen and grocer. She died in 1615, her burial being found in the parish regist­ers of St. Olave Jewry and St. Martin’s-in-the-Fields. Be­tween 9 November 1627 and 28 April 1630 (on which date she was gossip to the daughter of Viscount Valen­tia) he mar­ried his second wife, Mary Colley, daughter of Sir Henry Colley of Castle Carbery, co. Kildare, knight, by Catherine, daughter of Sir Thomas Cusack, the Lord Chancellor of Ire­land. She was relict of Garret Moore, first Viscount Moore of Drogheda, and was buried 3 July 1654 at Drogheda by her first husband. She had no issue by Charles Wilmot.

Charles, Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, has issue by Sarah Anderson, his first wife, three sons and a daughter:—

i. Arthur Wilmot, who probably served under his father in Ireland. He was a legatee under the will of his uncle Sir Arthur Wilmot in 1628-9. He married Penelope Hill, daughter of Sir Moyser Hill of Hills­borough, provost-marshal of Ulster and ancestor of the Downshire family, by his first wife, Alice, daugh­ter of Sorley Boy MacDonnel. She married (ii) Sir William Brooks of Sterborough, K. B., son and heir of the attained Lord Cobham, who died 20 Septem­ber 1643 of his wounds after the second battle of Newbury, by whom she had issue. The widow mar­ried (iii) Edward Russell, son of Francis, fourth Earl of Bedford, who died 21 September 1665 and was buried at Chenes 10 October. By him she was mother of Edward Russell, Earl of Oxford, and Lord High Admiral, the victor of La Hogue (1653-1727). Arthur Wilmot died without issue 31 Oc­tober 1632 and was buried at St. Michan’s, Dublin.

ii. Charles Wilmot, who was christened 11 March 1610-1 at St. Martin’s-in-the-Fields, a legatee under the will of his uncle Sir Arthur Wilmot. He died v. p. with­out issue.

iii. Henry Wilmot, second Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, and fourth Earl of Rochester, of whom hereafter.

iv. Elizabeth Wilmot, christened 25 May 1612 at St. Martin’s-in-the-Fields. She probably died young and unmarried.

Henry Wilmot, first Earl of Rochester and second Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, was christened 26 October 1613 at St.
Martin's-in-the-Fields. He is said to have been born 2 November 1612, and his coffin plate gives his age as forty-five at his death on 19 February 1657-8. He matriculated at Oxford (All Souls) and was M.P. for Tamworth in 1641. In his father's lifetime he was created Lord Wilmot of Adderbury in the peerage of England by patent 29 June 1643. In April 1644, his father being dead, he was appointed to the presidency of Connaught jointly with Sir Charles Coote. A privy councillor 1650, he was created Earl of Rochester by patent 13 December 1652. He was made a Field-Marshal in 1654 and Colonel of an English regiment of foot in Flanders 1656. He died at Ghent in Flanders at one o'clock in the morning 19 February 1657-8, and was buried at Sluys 24 February 1657-8 by the grave of Lord Hopton (State Papers, Domestic Series, 1558). His body, which has been embalmed, was afterwards buried at Spelsbury, as appears by a coffin plate.

He married (i) Frances Morton, daughter of Sir George Morton of Milborne St. Andrews and of Clenston, co. Dorset, knight, by Katherine, daughter of Sir Arthur Hopton, the wedding being recorded in the parish register of Chelsea 21 August 1633. By her, who was born in 1600, he had a son:—

i. Charles Wilmot, styled Viscount Wilmot. He died during his father's lifetime at Dunkirk 1652-57. On the restoration administration of his goods was granted 27 November 1660 (P.C.C.).

He married (ii) Anne St. John, daughter of Sir John St. John of Lydiard Tregoze, co. Wilts, by Lucy, daughter and heir of Sir Walter Hungerford of Farley, knight. She was born 5 November 1614 and was first married to Sir Francis Henry Lee of Ditchley, Bart., the marriage settlements being dated 30 June 1637, by whom she had issue the Lees, Earls of Litchfield, descending from this match. He was buried 23 July 1639 at Spelsbury. She survived her grandson, the last Earl of Rochester of this family, and was buried at Spelsbury 18 March 1695-6. Her will, dated 1 June 1683, with a codicil 23 March 1692-3, was proved 1 April 1696 (P.C.C.) by Edward, Henry Lee, Earl of Litchfield, the grandson and executor. By this marriage the Earl of Rochester had issue a son:—

ii. John Wilmot, second Earl of Rochester, of whom hereafter.

John Wilmot, second Earl of Rochester, was born at Ditchley 10 April 1648, a scandal preserved by Wood asserting that he was begotten by Sir Allen Apsley. Richard Salway, esquire, was guardian of him and of his half-brother Sir Francis Henry Lee during their minority (Chan. depns. Bridges, 393). He matriculated at Oxford (Wadham College) 11 December 1660, and was created M. A. 2 September 1661, being then aged thirteen. On 8 Sept. 1667 a warrant was issued to the Lord Keeper for calling him to parliament, he being then a minor. Ranger of Woodstock Park 1674. He died at the rangers' lodge at two o'clock in the morning on 26 July 1680 in his thirty-third year, and was buried at Spelsbury 17 August (M.I.).

He married Elizabeth Malet, daughter and heir of John Malet of Enmore, co. Somerset, esquire, by Union, daughter of Francis Hawley, first Lord Hawley of Donamore. The marriage took place 29 Jan. 1666-7, the earl having first endeavoured to carry her off by violence on 26 May 1665. She survived her husband little more than a year, being buried 20 August 1681 at Spelsbury. She died of an apoplexy.

His will, undated, with a codicil 22 June 1680, was proved 23 February 1680-1 (P.C.C. 31 North) by John Cary of Woodstock, esquire, power being reserved, etc., to the Countess of Rochester, the relief, the Countess-mother, Sir William St. John, Sir Allen Apsley and Sir Richard How. He made his mother and the guardians of his son and heir. He gave a legacy of 150l. to Mrs. Patience Russell, and upon an infant child, named Elizabeth Clerke, presumably his bastard daughter, he settled a life annuity of 40l. out of his manor of Sutton Malet. Arabella Wilmot, another natural daughter of his, died at her lodgings in Fleet Street 11 February 1765.

John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, had issue by his wife Elizabeth Malet, a son and four daughters:—

i. Charles Wilmot, third Earl of Rochester, of whom hereafter.
ii. Anne Wilmot, who was christened 39 April 1669 at Adderbury. She married (1), at Adderbury 1 September 1685, Henry Bawnton of Spye Park, co. Wilts, esquire, who was christened 17 November 1664 at Bromham. He was M.P. for Chippenham in 1668, and died in 1691. His will, dated 19 June 1691, was proved 10 August 1691 (P.C.C. 129 Vere). The senior descendant of this marriage is Mr. J. Horace Round, of West Bergholt, the historian. She married (ii) Francis Greville, and from this second marriage descend the Earls of Warwick.

iii. Elizabeth Wilmot, christened 13 July 1674 at Adderbury. She married Edward Montagu, third Earl of Sandwich, the allegation for the marriage license being made 8 July 1689 (Fac. Off.). He was born December 1670, and was master of the horse to Prince George of Denmark 1690-1705. He died 20 October 1729 and was buried at Barnwell. His relict died 2 July 1757 in the Rue Vaugirard in Paris, where she had lived as a widow. She was a woman of great wit, her qualities being celebrated by Lord Chesterfield in his Letters, and a termagant wife. Her husband is said to have been kept by her a prisoner in his own house.

iv. Malet Wilmot, christened 6 January 1675 at Adderbury. She married John Vaughan of Trawscoed, co. Cardigan, esquire, at St. Giles'-in-the-Field, 18 August 1692, by licence from the Faculty Office. The allegation for marriage license was made 17 August 1692, he being a bachelor of St. Giles's parish, aged twenty-three, and she a spinster of the parish of St. Anne's, Soho, her parents dead, and her grandmother the Countess consenting. He was created baron of Fethard and Viscount Lisburne, and was Lord Lieutenant of Cardigan in 1714. He died in 1721 and was buried 5 April 1721 at Greenwich, having survived his wife about five years. His family had been seated since the beginning of the thirteenth century at Trawscoen, where they still remain as Earls of Lisburne.
Charles Wilmot, third and last Earl of Rochester of the Wilmot family, was christened 2 January 1670-1 at Adderbury. He died 12 November 1681 (as is recorded in the Adderbury parish register) and was buried 8 December 1681 at Spelsbury (as 'John' Earl of Rochester). Administration of his estate was granted 30 May 1682 (P.C.C.) to Anne, Countess Dowager of Rochester, grandmother and guardian to his three sisters and co-heirs.

The arms of this family of Wilmot, as put up in Witney Church by Edward Wilmot of Witney in the time of Queen Elizabeth, were silver a fesse gules between three eagles’ heads rased sable with a golden unicorn couché upon the fesse between two golden escallops. The unicorn may have been suggested by the crest of their kinsfolk, the Cottymores. The Earls of Rochester, however, replaced the unicorn by a third escallop. (From the Ancestor By Barron—London 1904.)

AN IRISH PEER ON THE CONTINENT

... Miss Catherine Wilmot, eldest of the six daughters of a Captain Edward Wilmot, a young woman of about twenty-eight, living with her parents, in the vicinity of Cork.

Though Irish by birth, her family belonged to an old Derbyshire stock. The first connection with Ireland was the marriage of her great aunt, Alice Wilmot, with the Rt. Rev. John Ryde, Archbishop of Tuan, who held that See from 1752 to 1775. It is said that Mrs. Ryde induced her brother, Robert Wilmot, to send his two sons to Ireland, but the fact that his cousin, Sir Robert Wilmot, Bart., was Private Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant, a position carrying with it great opportunities for patronage, was another and probably more powerful incentive. Be this as it may, Mr. Wilmot sent both his sons to Ireland, the elder being taken from Eton to finish his studies at Trinity College, Dublin, while the younger, Edward, the father of our authoress, obtained a commission in a regiment on the Irish Establishment. In 1771, while stationed at Cork, Captain Edward Wilmot married a Miss Moore, by whom he had three sons and six daughters. On returning from the Army, Captain Wilmot was fortunate in obtaining a position in the Customs as Port Surveyor of Drogheda, and went to reside there. Doubtless to be near his wife's relatives, he afterwards got transferred to a similar employment at Cork, which enabled him to live apparently in some affluence, at a county seat at Glanmire, not far from that city ....

Thomas Wilmott, who died in 1701, is buried in a Kent church with Mary, his wife, who died 1689. By her he had issue Thomas Wilmott, of Betersden, gent., who died in 1753, and was buried here, as was Elizabeth, his wife, who died in 1741. They had two sons, Thomas and Edward, of Tenterden, and three daughters, one of whom, Elizabeth, married George Witherden, of this parish. Thomas Wilmott, the eldest son, was of Bethersden. He married Mary, daughter of Mr. Thurston, and died 1769, at 52, as above mentioned and lies buried in this church. In the middle aisle of this church lie the Wilmotts of this parish.

WANTAGE CHURCH (BERKSHIRE)

LADY WILMOT

In the Religiuiae Hearianae Vol. 1 p. 131, it is stated that: “Lady Wilmot, wife of Sir George Wilmot, of Grove, near Wantage, in Berks, ordered her skull to be preserved in Wantage Church where she, together with her husband and son, is interred. Which skull is, according to her desire, preserved in a chest in that church, the several parts of the skull being described and explained by a surgeon. On it are these verses, writ, as ‘tis guessed by herself, viz:

“Ladies, when you your perfect beauties, see,
Think ‘em but tenants to mortality;
I was as you are now, young, fair and clear,
And you must only be as you see me here”.

SECTION TWO

THE VIRGINIA WILMOT, WILMOTH IMMIGRANTS

The Original Lists of Persons of Quality, Emigrants, Religious Exiles, Political Rebels, Serving men sold for a term of years, apprentices, children stolen, maidens pressed and others, who went from Great Britain to the American Plantations, 1600-1700, with their ages, the localities where they formerly lived in the mother country, the names of the ships in which they embarked, and other interesting particulars from manuscript preserved in the State Paper Department of the Majesty's Public Records Office, England, edited by John Camden Hotten, London, 1875, contains the names of Edward Wilmott and Hugh Wilmott. We know that Edward came to the Virginia Plantations in 1635. It is more than likely that Hugh came with him, but we have no further record of Hugh Wilmott.

EARLY VIRGINIA IMMIGRANTS, 1623-1666

Thomas Wilmot, 1648, brought by Richard Wyatt.
Edward Wilmott, 1635, brought by William Spencer.
Edward Wilmott, 1637, brought by William Spencer.
Ann Wilmott, 1650, brought by Richard Jacob, Northampton Co.
Anne Wilmott, 1653, brought by Robert Bayly, Northampton Co.

Family 1—
Edward Wilmot—emigrant came to Virginia, June 19, 1635—wife Annis Wilmoth—made will 15th of February 1647.

Children:
1. John.
2. Frances.

Edward, the immigrant, was brought to Virginia June 19, 1635 by West and was bound out, probably for his passage.
William Spencer, of James City, Virginia, Yeoman and Ancient Planter was Burgess for Mulberry Island in 1623, received 1100 acres of land on Lawns Creek for the importation of 22 immigrants, of which Edward Wilmott was one. Spencer owned Goose Hill at the lower end of Jamestown Island in Virginia. The name still remains. (Vol. 3, Virginia Magazine of History and Biography 1896.)

ISLE OF WIGHT COUNTY WILLS—VIRGINIA WILL OF EDWARD WILMOTH

I, Edward Wilmoth being at this time, very weak in body, but perfect of memory:

Imprimis. I do by these presents make my beloved wife Annis Wilmoth, my full and whole Executrix of all my goods and chattels in Virginia, or elsewhere, particularly. I give unto my wife aforesaid four milch cows, a steer and a heifer that is on Lawn's Creek side, and a young yearling bull. Also I give unto my daughter Frances, a yearling heifer. Also I give unto my son, John Wilmoth, a cow calf; and to my son, Robert Wilmoth, a cow calf. Also if any of these children dye before they come to age, it is my Will the said cattle shall come to the survivor. Also the plantation that we are upon I give unto my wife and all my household stuff and moveables. Also I entreat John Jackson and George Coboraf to be my Overseers for the performance of my last Will and Testament, being a true Act and Deed of mine own.

Witness my hand this 15th day of February 1647.

Edward Wilmoth

John Pawley to Edward Wilmot, May 13, 1664, 100 acres of land, which said Pawley took up for said Wilmot for trans. 2 servants, Said Pawley sell all overplus land adjoining unto Wilmot for 700 lbs—land in James City County on Lawnes Creek. Pat. to Pawley, June 18, 1639.

Edw. Wilmot assigned all my right to Henry White, 8/12/1644.
The name of the early immigrants to Virginia was spelled Wilmot, and Wilmott, but not long after their arrival it began to be spelled Wilmoth, and for the most part has continued to be so spelled down through successive generations to this day. Edward, who came in 1635, had changed the spelling of the name by 1647 when he made his will, signed by himself, "Edward Wilmoth".

Edward left surviving him three children, two of whom were boys, John and Robert. It is not known whether these two sons of Edward, the immigrant, married and left issue. Our efforts to locate their descendants, if any, have been unsuccessful.

We are likewise without information as to the descendants of Thomas Wilmot, later spelled Wilmoth. We have found a record of Thomas in the county court of Lower Norfolk, Virginia bearing date of December 25, 1653—five years after his arrival in America as an immigrant. We know nothing of his family, not even so much as to whether he was married or had any children.

Thomas Wilmot—Certificate of Head Rights in the County Court of Lower Norfolk, Virginia, December 25, 1653, Certificate to Lemuel Mason, Gent. for 250 acres of land for bringing five persons—one of whom was Thomas Wilmot.

In a letter dated Gosport April 29, 1693, James Blair in writing to Francis Nicholson, Governor of Virginia, mentioned that Capt. Wilmot lodges in this place. Keeps his chamber and for the most part his bed being much tormented with the Stranguary. He told me how kindly your honor remembered me. Capt. Wilmot has the misfortune to have about 1600 pounds of tobacco seized at Deal, which he brought over in the Wolfe; he had put it into the Grafton with about 30 of his men who were brought over from the Wolfe to the Elizabeth, he says he never designed to put it ashore, but to give it in presents to the fleet. He desired me to tell this to your Honor. I fancy for such a small parcel they will not refuse to let him have the benefit of an Entry. (Vol. 7 pp. 166, 167, Va. Magazine of History and Biography.)

The traditions of some of the branches of the family are to the effect that three or four brothers came into the river sections of Virginia about 1730 to 1740 and settled; and that later these brothers separated, one or two of them remaining in Virginia and others going to the colony of North Carolina. Here is where the tradition of the four brothers commenced, and like all tradition contains the kernel of truth. For four Wilmoth brothers, in after years, followed the James River from its source almost across the state. Here the brothers separated, one going south into North Carolina, where some of his descendants still live, and spell the name Wilmoth, Wilmeth.

They went through Danville, where records are still found and some of the name living. It is from this brother that descendants may be found in parts of Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, and on to the Pacific Ocean.

Of the fourth brother, Thomas, but little is known. We give the following:

Nov. 18, 1777, Thomas Wilmouth and wife Ann sold to Conrad Good, land on Skidmore’s Run, waters of South Branch of Potomac, patented to said Wilmouth July 20, 1768, Vol. 3, page 555.

Will of Thomas Wilmot recorded August 24, 1778, by his son Thomas (the second).

There is a discrepancy of four generations between Edward in Isle of Wight in 1635 to Thomas.

The four generations moved slowly westward with the course of empire, but much of the actual history has been lost through the destruction of Court Records by fire and war. Where Thomas the first and his wife Ann were born and married is unknown. He died of record in 1778. His probable birth was about 1700, and his marriage probably about 1730. Thomas the second was born 1734, and died December 24, 1823, as records on his tombstone state, being in his 89th year. (Isner Cemetery.) Thomas the second was, therefore, forty four years of age, when his father died, but in 1771, he had land grant in Pendleton County—Page 68 of Henning’s Statutes at Large show Thomas Wilmouth a member of Virginia Militia of Augusta County in 1758; undoubtedly Thomas the second as his father would be too old for military service (Va. Co. Records Vol. 2, Page 62).

The Wilmoth Family is noted for longevity, tradition stating that one member of the family lived to be 104, so Thomas may have been born much earlier than the date given.

It is not improbable that the descendants of Edward and Thomas remained in America and reared families. The next record we find of Wilmoths in Virginia is on the rivers, James and Rappahannock, or sections adjacent thereto. Thomas Wilmoth was buying and selling lands in what is now Prince Edward, Amelia and Lunenburg Counties in Virginia as early as 1760. We have been unable to locate any connection between the Tidewater family of Wilmoth, Wilmot, with those who settled in the river sections further inland, and there is a lapse of one hundred years between the last record of Thomas Wilmoth, the immigrant, and that of the Prince Edward County Thomas Wilmoth. However it may be that the latter descended from the original immigrants.

It may be that the Wilmoths who came to the river sections of Virginia were original immigrants. There is a tradition that some of them came from Scotland and Ireland, and that they began to come to the Valley of Virginia and the Valleys of the Rappahannock and James Rivers from 1725 to 1738. Records show that many of such immigrants were established in Halifax County Virginia between 1740 and 1750 and from thence found their way into Charlotte, Prince Edward and Lunenburg Counties, and many of them made strong and permanent settlements there.

We are assured from the official records that there were two contemporary Thomas Wilmoths in the colony of Virginia, both of whom bought and sold land. One of them operated in the counties of Amelia, Prince Edward, Charlotte and the other Augusta, Rockingham, Pendleton and Harrison Counties. Both of these Thomas Wilmoths had a son by the name of Thomas Wilmoth, Jr. We have been able to locate the names of the children of the Prince Edward County Thomas from official documents obtained from the clerk of the court at Charlotte County Virginia. We know that the will of the Augusta County Thomas Wilmoth was filed at the Court House in Harrisonburg, Rockingham County in 1778. The will itself was burned during the Civil War but the abstract of wills plainly shows that Thomas' will was submitted for probate by his son Thomas, Jr. in Rockingham County Virginia. It may be that these two Thomas Wilmoths were related as cousins. The record clearly indicates that they were not brothers.

There are to be found many descendants of the Prince Edward Thomas Wilmoth in that section of Virginia at the present time, and especially in Halifax County. The children of this Thomas scattered to some extent. William and his brother migrated to what is now Wayne County North Carolina and purchased land, while Joseph Wilmoth moved to the Northern neck of Virginia to that part of Loudoun County Virginia which is adjacent to Harpers Ferry. From there he and his descendants moved to Ohio and produced many families, a record of which follows in these pages.

There was an Ezekiel Wilmoth who went from Virginia and settled in what is now Surry County North Carolina on Mitchells River. We know but little concerning Ezekiel except that he was born in 1719. It is probable that he was one of the brothers to whom reference is made above. There are many families in North Carolina who belong to the line of Ezekiel Wilmoth and concerning whom a record may be found herein.

The Thomas Wilmoth of Augusta County Virginia was a land dealer and trader. He has many descendants, most of whom live in what is now West Virginia. The families which have descended from him are described hereafter with interesting family and historical information.

THOMAS WILMOTH OF PRINCE EDWARD AND LUNENBURG COUNTIES, VA.

Prince Edward County; Deed Book 2, page 7: Abstract Indenture made 8th July, 1760, between Edmund Harper of the County of Prince Edward of the one part, and Thomas Wilmoth of the same county . . . for twenty two pounds current money “he the said Edmund Harper” sells to Thos. Wilmoth land in the counties of Prince Edward and Amelia, “on both sides of the Ridge between the Heads of Sandy River, Snails Creek and Flat Creek”, containing one hundred and one and a quarter acres, bounded, etc.

Prince Edward County, Va.; Deed Book 2, page 42, Know ye that I, George Moore, of the county of Lunenburgh for and in consideration of the yearly rent of 15 pounds to be paid by Thomas Wilmut of Prince Edward County . . . have rented, Leased and do let unto the said Thomas Wilmoth one certain tract . . . in Prince Edward County . . . on both sides of the Main Ridge Road, known by the name of Moore’s Ordinary, together with the Houses, Orchards, etc. This is dated December 17, 1760.

Deed Book 2, page 191: Indenture made April 13, 1762, between Thomas Wilmut of the county of Prince Edward of the one part and Richard Burks of the same county; for the sum of 46 pounds 8 shillings, and 11 pence . . . a certain tract of land in Prince Edward County, containing 101 1-4 acres, bounded, etc.

Deed Book (Prince Edward County, Va.) 2, page 167: This Indenture made the 18th of May, 1763, between Richard Perryman and Mary his wife of the county of Halifax of the one part, and Joseph Billups and Thomas Wilmutt of Lunenburg County of the other part . . . for 15 pounds . . . a certain tract of land containing 110 acres in Prince Edward County . . . on the head of Nottoway River in the same county, bounded, etc. Witnesses: John Wilmutt, Thomas Wilmutt, Stephen Collins.

Thomas Wilmoth, Sr. lived in Prince Edward and Charlotte Counties, Virginia, and died prior to 1794. He had a son Thomas, Jr. who also died prior to 1794. According to an indenture or deed, given by the heirs of Thomas, Sr., and also of Thomas, Jr. on the 21st day of December, 1794, which is on record in the Land Office of Charlotte County, Virginia, we find his children were:

Children:
1. Thomas, Jr.
2. John.
3. William (see North Carolina).
5. George.

All of these children were born prior to 1773. Thomas Wilmoth, Sr. lived at St. Patricks Parish, Prince Edward County, Va., as early at 1760 as a deed is on file at Prince Edward Court House, Va., in which land was deeded by him on April 30, 1762. The oldest deed on record was given on the 8th of July, 1760, wherein Edward Harper, in the County of Prince Edward, sold to Thomas Wilmoth a certain tract of land.

Thomas Wilmoth, Sr. owned land in Prince Edward County, Va. prior to 1763, and had at least two sons who had reached their majority at that time, namely, John and Thomas, both of whom witnessed a deed by Thomas Wilmoth, Sr. and Joseph Billups, May 18, 1763.

Thomas T. Wilmot, Jr., lived in Lunenburg County—m. Mary. By deed dated December 17, 1772 sold land located in Charlotte County, Virginia to Robert Smelt of Charlotte County Virginia. Deed witnessed by his brother John Wilmoth.

Thomas Wilmoth, Jr. (s. of Thomas, Sr.) lived in Lunenburg County, Va. which adjoins Charlotte County, Va. m.

Children:
1. James.
2. Nancy.

In view of the fact that the heirs of Thomas, Jr. signed the deed mentioned above they must have been at least 21 years old, this would make the children of Thomas, Jr. having been born prior to 1773.
George Moore in the Parish of Cornwall, Prince Edward County, rented or leased land to Thomas Wilmoth, Sr., St. Patricks Parish, Prince Edward County, for a period of five years. This commenced the 24th of December 1760. This lease was witnessed by John Wilmoth, son of Thomas, Sr.

SECTION THREE

WILMOTHS OF VIRGINIA AND WEST VIRGINIA
THE FOUR WILMOTH BROTHERS SETTLE ON CHEAT RIVER IN 1774

We cannot be sure of the motive for this settlement. The lure of adventure in new places was evidently one motive. The Virginia General Assembly’s proposal to give four hundred acres of land to each pioneer who settled west of the Alleghenies in sections hitherto unoccupied was perhaps the compelling motive.

In 1773, we find James and Thomas, Sr. exploring the Cheat River, and selecting land in the vicinity of the present Stone House on Shaver’s Fork of Cheat. Shaver’s Fork may be a misnomer. In the period following the Revolutionary War, until after 1800, this stream was known to the pioneers of Randolph County as Wilmoth River, because of the Wilmoth Brothers’ settlement.

In the Spring of 1774, the four Wilmoth brothers, James, Thomas, John and Nicholas, Sr. Each “patented” four hundred acres on both sides of the river, in the vicinity of the Stone House. They came from Augusta County, near Staunton, Virginia.

John and Nicholas, Jr. were married and brought their wives with them. It is probable that Nicholas was the older brother, and Thomas the younger. John was older than James. They were sons of Thomas Wilmoth, Sr., who was a real estate dealer, in the vicinity of Staunton. The records show that he bought and sold many tracts of land. He had much wealth in land. This makes it more probable that the spirit of adventure, rather than land, caused his sons to cross the mountains. They could have had sufficient land from their father. Thomas, Sr. died in 1778, near Staunton. It is difficult to trace his ancestry, as it is uncertain to which of three branches of the Wilmoth family farther east in Virginia he belonged.

Thomas, Jr., great grandfather of the writer, was married to Amy Schoonover, of the Leading Creek settlement, July 17, 1798. The descendants of these four brothers will be traced elsewhere in this history.
The four brothers, except John, who was of slighter build, were large and strong. James was the largest, being over six feet tall, and weighing more than two hundred pounds. He was known in all the near settlements for his feats of strength and agility. He could chop down more large trees than any other two men. Thomas and Nicholas were almost as large and strong as James. The other settlers rapidly coming in from Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland spoke of the three brothers as the “Big Wilmoths.”

The four brothers were good citizens, above the average in intelligence and natural leaders. From them have descended farmers, ministers, teachers, lawyers and doctors. The records of the descendants is generally good, if a little inferior to the virtues of their sturdy ancestors.

JAMES WILMOTH KILLED BY INDIANS

The last Indian raid, in what is now Randolph County, occurred in the early 1790's. About March first, a messenger came from the Tygart Valley settlements to the Leading Creek and Wilmoth settlement, on Cheat, that there were reported from farther west, indications of an Indian raid. The Wilmoths crossed the mountain to the Leading Creek settlement. It is said that James objected to this move, and insisted that they stay home and fight the Indians. He gave up his protests and went with the others, when it was pointed out to him that the Indians would set fire to their houses and leave them defenseless. They first drove all their cattle to the west side of the river, near the house of James. It was thought that the Indians would follow the east side of the river. James had been married about three years before. There were two children. It was unusually cold for March. There was snow on the ground. After being at the Leading Creek fort a few days, James determined to come back to Wilmoth River, to ascertain if the Indians had come to the Wilmoth settlement, and get some leather, which was much needed at the fort. His brother, John, had a tanning trough in John’s Run, named for John, near the present site of the Stone House, on the east side of the river. James crossed the river from the west to the east side, in a dugout at the mouth of John’s Run. He obtained the needed leather, and went to the top of a high hill on the east side of the river. He followed the top of the hill for more than a half mile. From this point he could see his house, on the west side of the river. It is not known why he descended the hill and waded the river to his farm. It may be that he was so much angered when he saw that the Indians had killed some of the cattle that he resolved to attack them. It is more probable that he saw no Indians, or only a small number, which he thought he could defeat in combat. After he crossed the river, he came upon a large body of Indians. The running fight followed. He was killed and scalped a mile up the river from the place at which the fight began. It was believed that he made a good fight. Blood in the snow at points along the trail, but not in his steps proved that some Indians had been wounded or killed. The soldiers came to Wilmoth River, the next day, in search of the raiding Indians, and found the trail of James Wilmoth, and his tragic death written in the snow. They buried his body where they found it, on the hillside above the river, on the land which he owned. The location of the burial place is not known. The body of the strongest and bravest of the Wilmoth brothers lies in an unknown grave.

THE OLD LETTER

There was formerly in the possession of Troy B. Wilmoth, of Elkins, West Virginia, an old letter, written in 1689 by Richard Wilmot, Derbyshire, England, to his brother, Louis Wilmot, Rappahannock, Virginia. The Stone House, on Cheat River, owned by Troy B. Wilmoth and his sister, Grace Wilmoth Mullins, was destroyed by fire in 1906, leaving only the stone wall standing. The letter has not been seen since the fire. It is assumed that it was destroyed in the fire. The letter had a crest at the top, showing a coat of arms. The letter referred to Louis going to Virginia, from England, in 1688, and his being a soldier in King William’s War between the English and the French, 1689-1697. The letter also refers to Richard paying for the passage of Louis to America, of which amount, four pounds remained unpaid. If Louis was an ancestor of the present Wilmots, Wilmoths, Wilmeths, and others, it is evident that he was not thrifty, if he could not repay his passage loan in nine years, but he was a soldier eight years, and a soldier’s pay, in those days, was only food, lodging and clothing. We should not be ashamed of this battle scarred ancestor.
The writer is convinced that Rappahannock in the address of the letter referred more particularly to the river than to the county or post office of that name. Rappahannock County and post office are in the interior of Virginia, in the Blue Ridge. There was no settlement there at the date of the letter. Rappahannock River flows into Chesapeake Bay, north of James River. There was evidently settlement on this river in 1697.

THE STONE HOUSE

The Stone House, on Cheat River, was built by Thomas Wilmoth, Jr., and his son, Levi, in 1825. It was built of stone taken from Cheat River. It is two and a half stories high. Its walls are two feet in thickness. The building was struck by lightning in 1884. The stones dislodged were replaced, and there was no serious damage. The Stone House was destroyed by fire, except the walls, in 1906. It was rebuilt by the present owners, Troy B. Wilmoth and Grace Wilmoth Mullins the following year. It is still occupied as a residence. Upon the death of Levi Wilmoth, the Stone House and land descended to his only child, Baxter Wilmoth. After Baxter’s death in 1889, it became the property of his two children, Troy B. and Grace Wilmoth, the present owners. The house is a well known landmark on Cheat River.

ABSALOM WILMOTH

Absalom was the son of Thomas, Jr. He had much native ability. Absalom had only the education that the pioneer life could give. He was a well known orator. People would come for miles to hear him speak. His oratory soon brought him into politics. He served as Deputy Sheriff of Randolph County, and later held the same position in Barbour County.

In 1868, the Democrats hardly dared nominate candidates for state office. The Civil War left bitter feeling. But, a few Democrats met in Weston, and nominated a candidate for Governor. The choice of the Convention was Absalom Wilmoth. He made a whirlwind oratorical campaign, holding meetings, and making speeches as far north as Wheeling, south to Charleston, east to Harpers Ferry, and west to Parkersburg. His fiery oratory won him a large following. When the votes were counted, he was defeated by only one hundred one votes. He was ever after known as Governor Wilmoth.
He believed until his death that he really won the Election, but that it was stolen from him. Many of his family and friends still think that was true.

Dr. Eugene Wilmoth, son of Oliver, was a well known doctor of medicine, in the early history of Elkins. He had formerly taught school in Randolph and Barbour Counties. He died in the service of his profession. He was mounting his horse to visit a patient when he was stricken with a heart attack, and fell dead.

Henry Wilmoth, of Meyersdale, Pa., was the son of Alfred J. Wilmoth, and grandson of Absalom Wilmoth. He accumulated a large fortune in the lumber business in the mountains of West Virginia. His fortune, at the time of his death ran into the millions. His widow, two daughters and two sons, Fred and B. D. still live in the fine residence erected by Henry, in Meyersdale. These are the wealthiest of the West Virginia branch of the Wilmoth family.

WILMOTHS IN EDUCATION

Levi N. Wilmoth, son of Thomas, Jr., was the first teacher in the Wilmoth family. He taught the first school in the Wilmoth section of Cheat River. He was a good business man. Levi kept an account book, with comments on some accounts, that is unique. Troy B. Wilmoth, his grandson, still has the account book in his possession.

Levi’s son, Baxter, taught for a few years on Cheat River. He became much devoted to church work, being a leader in the M. E. Church South.

Arnold Wilmoth was a successful teacher.

Sylvester Wilmoth, Louis Wilmoth and Alonzo F. Wilmoth were well known school teachers from 1875 to 1895.

Alonzo Wilmoth served a term as County Superintendent of Schools of Randolph County. To a later period belongs the teaching of Rebecca Wilmoth Dick, daughter of Arnold, Dr. Eugene, Flora, Alice and Malinda, four children of Oliver Wilmoth. Later is a present day teacher, Emily J. Wilmoth, daughter of Alonzo F. She is now Assistant County Superintendent of Randolph County Schools. She was formerly assistant principal of Elkins High School. A.B. and A.M., West Virginia University.
Contemporary with Emily J. Wilmoth is Troy B. Wilmoth, son of Baxter. He began teaching at the age of sixteen. He was county Superintendent of Randolph County Schools, 1915-23. He has been employed seven years in Randolph and McDowell Counties, as District Superintendent of Schools. He is now Chief Clerk in the office of Randolph County Superintendent of Schools. He is a graduate of Concord State Teachers College, Athens, W. Va., Davis and Elkins College, A.B., Elkins, West Virginia, and West Virginia State University A.M., Morgantown, W. Va. Troy formerly had something of a flair for politics. Besides being nominated and elected County Superintendent in 1914 and 1918, he was Chairman of the Randolph County Executive Committee from 1920 to 1924, Democratic candidate for State Senator in 1924. Defeated by the Republican candidate. Member State Democratic Executive Committee, 1928-32.

Wilmoths who have been teachers, but have gone into other work are Grace Wilmoth Mullins, daughter of Baxter; Anise Wilmoth, daughter of Joseph; Kathleen, wife of Clark Lee; Forrest, Orris and Dorie, children of Jacob M. and Cora Wilmoth; Murphy, daughter of Johnson.

Some teachers of the present, in Randolph County, are Stark Wilmoth, Principal of Elkins Junior High School, A.B. and A.M., West Virginia University, and Morris Wilmoth, Principal Kerens Graded School, A.B. Davis and Elkins College. Both are sons of Jacob M.

In Tucker County, Walter Wilmoth is a school teacher and Methodist minister. He is the son of Marion. Frank Wilmoth, son of George, is a teacher in Pocahontas County. Delbert Wilmoth and Sevva, daughter of Bernard E., are teachers in Barbour County. Oliver, Jr. is a teacher in Brantonty County. Dollie, daughter of Tucker L. is teaching in Marion County. We must not leave out our beloved former teachers, Henry C., of Washington and Los Angeles, long a government clerk in Washington, and Albia H., of Phoenix, Arizona. They were long teachers in Randolph County. They are sons of John K. Wilmoth.

CIVIL WAR

The Wilmoth family of Randolph and Barbour Counties had members in service in the Confederate Army. They fought gallantly for the lost cause.
Colonel Coleman Bowman, of Barbour County, was most distinguished. He was the son of Peggy Wilmoth Bowman, and Henry Bowman, grandson of Thomas, Jr. He was a gallant captain of Confederate Cavalry, and was promoted to Colonel.

Colonel French Harding, husband of Luceba Wilmoth Harding, was a distinguished cavalry leader throughout the war. His father-in-law was Archibald Wilmoth. Lieutenant Jacob Wilmoth was in the Confederate Army.

Benjamin and Jackson Wilmoth were brave Confederate soldiers.

PRESENT DAY WILMOTHS

Among those who have achieved more than ordinary success and who hold important positions are: Orris B. Wilmoth, Office Deputy Sheriff of Randolph County. Henry Wilmoth, Deputy Sheriff of Barbour County. Forrest Wilmoth, son of Jacob M., has an important position in the United States Government Forest Service, in Elkins.

Dr. Cleveland Wilmoth, son of Bryan, of Glen Jean and Charleston, is one of the most successful dentists in his particular part of the state, with offices at both places mentioned above.

Clare Harding, son of Luceba Wilmoth Harding, is a successful lawyer, of Randolph County. He was formerly Prosecuting Attorney of the county.

The Wilmoths of West Virginia are usually good citizens, and industrious workers. They are honest and public spirited, willing to take their part in the world's work.

JACOB V. WILMOTH

The following sketch gives an interesting soldier experience in the life of Jacob V. Wilmoth prepared and submitted by John V. Wilmoth, son, of Belington, West Virginia.

"Jacob Vanscoy Wilmoth was born near New Interest, Randolph County, Virginia (now Kerens, West Virginia) March 31, 1845. He was the youngest son of Samuel and Jemima (Taylor) Wilmoth. His father died when he was thirteen years old and his older brothers, James Allen, Andrew Jackson, Taylor Isaac and Leonard all had married except the latter, who had gone West. The support of his widowed mother, and younger sister, Eliza, who was then seven years old, all devolved upon him. His oldest sister, Julianne, married Elmore B. Phillips. A sister, Emaline, died in infancy.

The war between the states, 1861, coming on he was so much harassed by the Federal authorities, and fired by his love for the cause of the south, he, in March 1862, at the age of 18, joined his Cousin, Capt. Haymond Taylor's Company, of the 18th Virginia Regiment (Gen. John D. Imboden's Command), and followed the fortunes of that Command until the winter of 1864 and 1865, when he was transferred to Gen. Lomax's Command. In the winter of 1862, 1863 he and some of his comrades, who had been at home on a furlough, were returning South. They bivouacked for the night near the "Sinks" on Cheat Mountain. The snow was five or six inches deep and they lay peacefully slumbering around their camp fire, possibly dreaming of mother and loved ones at home, or battles that they had passed through; or was yet to be fought. It must have been midnight when a squad of forty or more of the "Swamp Dragons," as they were called, crawled up within ten steps of them and fired, killing Oliver Triplett, a cousin, who was lying by his side, with their heads on the same chunk of wood for a pillow, and one of their overcoats for cover. When he awakened he realized what the trouble was and jumped up and started to run. The overcoat was still on him, and as he ran he caught one of his feet in it, which threw him to the ground, and as he fell he heard them say; "There we got you" as they fired again. Luther Parsons, Dow Adams and Anthony Triplett were wounded, but made their escape with Adam Stalnaker and Lafe Ward. Taylor Chenoweth and Perry Weese were captured. After running two or three hundred yards, Jacob stopped and looked back at the "Swamps" supposing that his comrades had all been killed, when someone said in a low tone, "Is that you Jake?" He found Lafe Ward there and they made their way nine miles on the frozen ground, without his shoes, through the snow to a Mr. Zickafouces's home, who gave him a large pair of shoes, for which he was thankful and which he wore to Crab Bottom. He had left his revolver, shoes, coat and hat at the camp. His Uncle, Isaac Taylor, went to the camp and took the body of his nephew, Oliver Triplett to his home on Cheat Mountain, for burial, and found that nine balls had struck him.

The overcoat that covered them was still there and he counted sixty holes in it. "The Swamps" must have cut slugs (pieces of lead) to load their guns, for when the surgeon at Crab Bottom removed the piece of lead from the leg of Luther Parsons it was not a ball but a piece of lead pounded in shape to fit the gun.

He died December 16, 1919 and was laid to rest by the side of his beloved wife at Central Chapel near Meadowville, West Virginia. He had professed faith in Christ some forty years, and had lived a consistent Christian of the M. E. Church, South.

James Wilmoth, son of Thomas, Jr., was murdered by the Indians, the date of the tragedy is uncertain, but it was probably at the time of the Leading Creek Massacre. The Wilmoth settlement was apprehensive of a raid by the Indians and had sought safety at Friends and Wilson's Fort. James ventured to make a visit to the settlement, when his whereabouts were betrayed to the savages in the community by the barking of a dog with him. The Indians killed him from ambush near where the stone house now stands.

WILLIAM WILMOTH, JR.

William Wilmoth, Jr., great grandfather of the author, and his wife, Mary Ann Crawford Wilmoth, and family were lured by the opportunity of securing land in Kentucky and Tennessee. Some of the pioneers migrated into middle Tennessee but the ancestor and his wife located in Kentucky where the wife died. Alex Shelton told the author that the Wilmoths went to Obion County in Tennessee and some of them to Kentucky. He states Ann Crawford Wilmoth died in Kentucky. After correspondence with his son, James Washington, of McNairy County, Tennessee, he decided to spend his remaining days with James. Accordingly, James Washington Wilmeth made the trip from McNairy to Kentucky on horse back and brought his father to spend the evening of his life with him. There were no bridges over the Tennessee River at that time and it had to be forded. His father lived a comparatively short time in the hospitable home of his son, who was then a prosperous planter on Cypress Creek. He is buried in the Wilmeth graveyard, which land was dedicated and set apart by James Washington Wilmeth for burial purposes from his own plantation.

William Wilmoth (s. William, Sr.) m. (1) ; (2) Ann Crawford. Lived in North Carolina, Rutherford County. Father was William who patented land in Rutherford Co., N. C., 1794.

Issue—Gabriel Wilmoth who was born 1789 and married Sally Dogget 1807. Had son, William, by his first wife. Gabriel Wilmoth, son of William, son of William, born in North Carolina, moved from the state of North Carolina through Tennessee bound for Iowa. According to a letter of James Ransom Wilmeth, Sr., dated June 7, 1906, Gabriel was an elder half brother of James Washington and Joseph Bryson Wilmeth. Some of his descendants were in the Union Army and fought in the battle of Corinth. While opposite them fought first cousins, sons of Joseph Bryson Wilmeth on the Confederate side.

James Washington Wilmeth, in a letter to his brother, Joseph Bryson written August 12, 1845 says, "John, their brother, lived then in Scott County, Missouri."
Name was changed from Wilmoth to Wilmeth by Joseph B., James Washington and one or two other Wilmoth brothers, after their migration from North Carolina to Tennessee about 1825.

William Wilmeth and wife, Ann Crawford, had the following issue:

Children:
1. William—d. 1846 in Arkansas—m. Peggy Kirkland.
2. Frank C. Moved to Tennessee, thence to Arkansas and Texas.
4. Lawrence—s. Moved to Kentucky, unheard of after the Mexican War.
6. Jennie—d. Tennessee—m. Samuel Thompson, Rutherford County, N. C.
7. Lucinda—m. Peter Billings.
8. Wincy—m. ___ Wilmeth. Moved to Kentucky.
9. John—m. ___ ODaniel.

William C. Wilmoth (s. William, s. William) d. 1846 in Lawrence County, Arkansas—m. Peggy Kirkland in N. C.

Children:
2. Marion F.
5. James.
7. Johnson.

Marion F. Wilmoth (s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) m. Amelia Driver. Born in North Carolina, moved with his father to Kentucky, thence to Tennessee and Arkansas. He was married three times. Had a sister, Ella, of whom we have no record. Died 1909 at the age of 98 years.
Children:
1. Mary—m. Maples.
4. Ellen.
5. Frances.
7. Lizzie.
8. Dick (Richard).

George Wilmoth (s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) b. in Ark. 1854—d. at Mountain Home, Ark., 1937—m. Nancy Woods.

Children:
1. Mary—m. Briggs.
2. Mattie—m. Thomas Austin.
3. Alameda—m. William Austin.
4. Frank—m.
5. Nathan—m. Austin.
6. Zudie—m. Fred Britain.
7. George M.

Nathaniel Bluford Wilmoth (s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) b. in Ark. 1858—d. in Dallas—m. (1) Mary Maples—b. 1857; (2) Lizzie Glass Hammond.

Children by first wife:

Children by second wife:
2. Paul—d. young.
Bertie Lee Wilmoth (s. Nathaniel B., s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) m. Edna DeShields. Both of them died young and left three children to be reared by the DeShields grandparents.

Children:
1. Ola.
2. Fay.

James F. Wilmoth (s. Nathaniel B., s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) m. DeShields, widow b. in Arkansas. Had two children, girls.

Ugie Wilmoth (dau. Nathaniel B., s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) b. in Ark.—m. Sevier Campbell.
One child:
Dean Campbell.

Joseph Clarence Wilmoth (s. Nathaniel B., s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) b. in Ark.—m. Maude Tinsley.
Child:
Joseph.

Children:
1. Ellis Joy—b. 1922.

Irma Rea Wilmoth (dau. Nathaniel B. and Lizzie) b. in Ark. —m. (1) Charles Beavers; (2) Joseph Porter.
Child:
Wilma Joy.

Allyn Nathan Wilmoth (s. Nathaniel B., s. Marion, s. Wm., s. Wm., s. Wm.) b. Mar 10, 1907 in Ark.—m. Madge Walker July 6, 1925. Lives in Dallas, Tex.
Children:

Frank Crawford Wilmeth (s. William, s. William) b. 1805—d. June 10, 1889—m. (1) ; (2) Amanda Tucker; (3) Miranda Conner. Emigrated to Texas 1845, died in Bell County. Minister of the Christian faith, farmer.
Children:
1. James—d. during Civil War—m.
5. Nancy—d.—s.
6. Elizabeth—d.—s.
7. Joseph—d.—s.
8. William.
11. G. Dallas—d. 1917.
12. Carroll K.
14. Flora—m. Scott.
15. Lee.
17. Walter.

George Dallas Wilmeth (s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) d. 1917—m.
Children:
1. Arthur—d.
2. R. L. Lives in Rocky, Oklahoma.
3. Two younger brothers.

Frank C. Wilmeth, Jr. (s. Frank C., s. William, s. William)

Children:

Walter William Wilmeth (s. Frank C., Jr., s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) m. Ida McClellan 1910.

Children:
1. Alice Juniata—b. 1911.

Hattie Wilmeth (d. Frank C., Jr., s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) m. Henry Crone, in Wilson, Texas.

Children:
1. Edith Crone.
2. Honora Crone.
3. L. D. Crone.
4. F. C. Crone.
5. Walter Gordon Crone.

G. K. Wilmeth (s. Frank C., Jr., s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) m. Gladys Boydson.

Children:
2. Virginia Louise—b. 1924.
Maggie Wilmeth (d. Frank C., Jr., s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) m. Joseph P. Hobbs, Jr.
Child:

Frances Wilmeth (d. Frank C., Jr., s. Frank C., s. William, s. William) m. Firris Copeland, lives in Long Beach, California.
Child:
1. Frances Elaine Copeland.

J. B. WILMETH AND WIFE, COLLIN COUNTY, TEXAS PIONEERS

By James Ransom Wilmeth, Fourth Child

One of the pioneer families that played a part in the settlement of Collin County was that of Joseph Brice and Nancy Wilmeth. He was of Irish or English descent, on his father's side, son of Wm. and Mary (Crawford) Wilmoth, and born in North Carolina Sept. 11, 1807.

He had no record and a very meager tradition of his ancestry. The story as oft repeated and well remembered, is that his grandfather came as a youth from Ireland or England on prepaid steerage passage but on arrival in America he was bound out by the ship captain to labor for a term of years to pay the passage again. Though this arrival in America was of early enough date to insure participation in the revolutionary struggle, no family tradition tells of a taint of Toryism or boast of patriotic service. The migration of Wm. Wilmeth's family from North Carolina to Kentucky took place when Joseph Brice Wilmeth was but a boy. Later, following the youthful adventures of J. B., they moved southward and settled in McNary County, Tenn. Here on the 26th of Dec. 1826, he was married to Nancy Ferguson, daughter of James and Martha (Hogge) Ferguson. Her place of birth was on "Caney Fork of Cumberland," near Sparta, Tenn., to which wild region, with wooded hills and gushing streams, her father had been attracted by its abundance of wild game, soon after his discharge from the Revolutionary Army in which he had served from his sixteenth year. This service, however, developed the rather unusual occurrence of father and son opposed to each other in war. For his father was the Col. Ferguson, who fell commanding the British forces at the memorable battle of King's Mountain, Oct. 7, 1780. He was the second son of Jas. Ferguson, afterward Lord Pitfour, of Pitfour, an eminent advocate, and for twelve years one of the Scotch judges, and was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, 1744. His mother was Anne Murray, daughter of Alexander, Lord Elibank. His father and uncle Jas. Murray, Lord Elibank, were regarded as men of large culture, equal in erudition and genius to the authors of the Scotish Augustan age. Having acquired an early education, young Ferguson, says a British writer, sought fame by a different direction, but was of equally vigorous and brilliant powers. Entering the army in his fifteenth year he strove for efficiency and distinction. After the battle of Minden he was said to have performed "prodigies of valor" in some minor action against the Germans and French and in quelling an insurrection of the Caribs on the Island of St. Vincent. Stationed for a time at the peaceful garrison of Halifax, N. S., he disdained the inglorious ease and set himself anew to study and master the art of war. The terror inspired by the boasted effectiveness of American riflemen set his genius to work to invent a new gun and train men in the use of it. The result was a breech-loading rifle, which he could fire with wonderful accuracy seven times a minute. Being assigned to service in America under Gen. Clinton in 1777, such was his zeal and efficiency that he became the idol of the British and the dread of the Revolutionists. With a special assignment of three hundred loyalists, called American volunteers, of which he had the choice of both officers and men, he figured conspicuously in nearly every action from the siege of Charleston to the ill-advised encampment on King's Mountain. Here, out-witted and overtaken by the united bands of mountaineers and Black-Water men, disappointed of expected reinforcements, and too proud or too self-confident to attempt to escape, he met defeat and death at the hands of the men whom he had despised and denounced as bandits and cowards. This cutting short of Ferguson's career was a fortunate stroke for the American cause.

In the early part of his military career, ere he had scarcely attained his majority, he had taken a wife and was raising a family. To care for children in camp or garrison was inconvenient, so they were left with relatives; with an older brother, Moses Ferguson, a well-to-do planter in Virginia. He had left his son, James, the father of Nancy Wilmeth. At the breaking out of the Revolution James found himself a youth of sixteen, toiling or shirking toil with his blind uncle’s slaves in the tobacco fields. When the call to arms came he gladly exchanged the slave’s garb of a tow shirt for the American uniform and the hoe for a musket and became a soldier in the Patriot army. So serving, he lacked, according to family tradition, but about four hours march of being in the battle in which his father was slain.

In the fall of 1831 J. B. Wilmeth and his father-in-law, Jas. Ferguson, headed a movement of about ten families, all related by blood or marriage, who crossed the Mississippi at Memphis, Tenn., and located in Lawrence County, Ark. For about a decade and a half no one was more actively engaged in the various enterprises of that region than J. B. Wilmeth. He rafted timber to New Orleans, became village blacksmith, served as United States soldier escorting Choctaws and Chickasaws from Mississippi to Indian Territory, farmed, distilled whiskey, raised live stock, served as clerk of the courts, preached the gospel. This last was the unexpected. He had experienced a religious backset in his youth during the “great awakening” as it was called, in Kentucky, attended by jerks, dances and other weird manifestations.

Having sought oft and earnestly with prayers and tears and failed to feel the mysterious spell, thought to be the means and evidence of regeneration he had fallen into a state of doubt and indifference. But on hearing some plain Arkansas preachers read a practical gospel out of the New Testament his mind grasped it at once. He and his wife soon became obedient to the faith. And he soon determined that it was his duty to preach this appreciable and practicable gospel to others. This he did without money and without price, and without serious interference with other business, for he made his own house a chapel for Christian teaching and worship to which his neighbors were oft invited on Lord’s days and nights. Two of his brothers, Frank C. and Jas. W., were also preachers. The latter, losing his wife, returned to Tennessee where he soon married again, farmed, preached, reared a family and died.
In 1845 J. B. Wilmeth having learned—mainly from an advertising pamphlet of a colony agent—of the fertility and other attractions of the broad prairies in the region of “The Three Forks of Trinity” and also of the grant of title free to one mile square to every head of a family locating in the colony, he determined to possess himself and family of a Texas home. He accordingly resigned his clerkship of the Lawrence County Court, which he had successfully held for eight years, and began preparations for the move. Six vehicles, great and small, such as Arkansas shops could turn out, with teams to suit, some four-horse, some combined oxen and horse, and the Madam’s “carry-all” with one big horse. To complete the train was F. C. Wilmeth’s two-horse wagon. Then about forty head of saddle and loose horse stock and a hundred head of sheep, provisions for six months or more, tents and plenty of heavy homemade bed clothes were Nancy Wilmeth’s special care. Her spinning wheel and loom along with plenty of guns of different kinds and caliber with ammunition, were deemed indispensable; likewise plows, hoes, mattocks, spades and a complete set of blacksmith’s tools.

About the last of Oct. the procession moved out. When in line, the company counted as follows: J. B. and Nancy Wilmeth, with ten children; Mansel W., Martha M., Ketura M., Jas. R., Jos. B., Wm. C., Hiram F., Nancy Ann, Jno. F. and Andrew J.; attaches of the family; Jas. Blackwell, a nephew of Nancy Wilmeth; a young man by the name of Isaac Smith; Jordon O. Straughan and wife, with four children, Emily, Elisha B., Edward and Mary J. (J. B. Wilmeth had hired J. O. Straughan as farm hand, but soon finding him a clever scribe, he used him as a deputy in the clerk’s office. And on resolving to move to Texas he proposed to bring him and family along simply for his services in driving a four-horse team and for his general cleverness as a traveling companion) and F. C. Wilmeth and wife with six children: Lucinda M., James, Jno. G., Polly Ann, Elizabeth and a nephew, Alex Thompson. The route was taken via Batesville and Little Rock; at the latter place considerable dry goods, especially gay colored calicos, bridles and other leather goods, ammunitions, and a barrel of whiskey were laid in. The last was then thought to be an antidote for all the ills of such a journey, except high water and Indian attacks. Red River was ferried at Lane’s Port.
Clarksville, the first Texas town, of probably thirty to forty houses had a cake shop, where the young folks got a treat of the regular old-fashioned ginger cake, compounded, basted and baked to a molasses brown on the back, by “black granny”—no doubt the inventor as well as vendor of this most delicious loaf. At Skidmore’s Mill, a few miles west of Clarksville, the company rested a day or two to await the grinding of an additional supply of meal. Pinhook, or Paris had nothing in sight save a dozen or more cabins. Here all signs of civilization were left behind. A dim wagon way called the “Military Trail,” stretched across the prairie to the southwest. The first night out without wood or water, the next night camp was pitched on the bank of East Fork. The woods were dense, the stream narrow, deep, dark, sluggish. Bridging was proposed, and soon the work began. Two tall cottonwood trees standing near each other on the west bank were felled so as to span the stream. Flooring was obtained from rafts constructed by previous emigrants and drifted nearby, and by cutting and splitting additional timbers. The puncheons were simply laid loose on the cottonwood sills; the wagons were rolled across by hand and the teams hitched to them on the west bank. It was Christmas day when this bridge was completed and crossing began. The next day brought the company to Dallas, then only about a half dozen cabins, where they spent most of the week in camp about two hundred yards south of where the courthouse now stands. Some of the men went west to select sites for settlement, and on Jan. 1, 1846 the company camped on the south bank of the West Fork near the present site of Grand Prairie station. J. B. Wilmeth and J. O. Straughan having selected adjacent sections fronting on West Fork at this point. F. C. Wilmeth located four miles further west near the Travis Trading House, then vacant, in the edge of cross timbers.

Game was abundant, deer everywhere, bear, turkeys and wild bees in the woods just north of West Fork, and buffalo a day’s ride to the southwest. But houses were to build and lands to put in cultivation. To this all hands addressed themselves with such persistence as to allow little time for hunting. Three tribes of Indians, however—Kickapoos, Tonkawas and Keechies—camped for the winter hardby, were not unwelcome neighbors in this emergency, for they were more than willing to exchange venison, etc., for calicos and ammunition. They professed to be very friendly to the whites but would occasion­ally suggest that by and by when the grass would grow plenty that the Comanches would come to steal horses. They would, however, give it an optimistic coloring in favor of the settler by dramatizing a scene in which the Comanche would get down to unhobble the horse, the white man would shoot and the Comanche fall. Some thinking ones surmised that these friendly fellows, having learned the lay of the land might turn Comanche and play the scene differently. A brief buffalo hunt brought in the carcass of one old bull. The beef was large but the quality poor. It had the one merit, however, of being “gamy.” The rug with its mop, was immense, a pallet for a whole family of children. A later and more extended hunt brought in more and better beef. On this hunt J. B. Wilmeth, who furnished the saddle stock for the expedition, lost six of his best mares, taken in by a mustang herd and made wild in one night. Jas. Mills, a young man boarding in the family and putting in a farm without fence north of West Fork, as there was no stock on that side, proposed to recover the mares by killing the mustangs one by one. In this he was succeeding measurably but was drawn away into the Mexican war by soldiers passing through early in the summer. The rangers that in compliance with previous petition had been stationed in this region, seeing the mares the next summer with fine colts following them offered fabulous prices for them. Bill Davis hearing of this, and being expert with a lasso and fond of adventure, agreed to capture them for one half, so in the summer of ’47, taking two fleet horses and a spirited mule, with Mans Wilmeth as aid, after about ten days’ day and night chase, brought in two mares with mustang colts.

About the rising of grass the Wilmeth brothers with some young men, made a trip to the Brazos country, about Whee­lock, to buy corn and cattle. They brought back about seventy head, among them some very large long horned oxen. At this time the prairie spreading from West Fork toward Mountain Creek seemed a sea of waving green, and when the full­uddered cows came lowing home and the hum of myriads of bees was heard on this boundless field of wild flowers, who could say a new Canaan, literally flowing with milk and honey, had not been found? The farm work had not let up till by the middle of May nearly fifty acres of corn from knee to shoulder high promised bread for the future. But Canaan had its Philistines and West Texas had its wild Indians. The settlers with families west of Trinity at this time, as nearly as memory can now recall, were about a baker’s dozen. These were heads of families as now remembered: Judge Hoard, Overton, (who built the first mill), Combs, Cockerel, Graham, Carpenter, Wilson, J. O. Straughan, J. B. Wilmeth, Bradshaw, F. C. Wilmeth, Joel Blackwell and son, Hiram. To these might be added a half dozen young men improving claims or working with families. There may have been others near the Trinity and southward, but if so, their names and locality had not been learned. Rangers had been petitioned for but had not yet materialized. The Indians began to wear war paint and otherwise threaten the settlements. The settlers were but a handful compared to the savages in sight, and imagination pictured the boundless wastes beyond Cross-timbers alive with predatory tribes. The Mexican War, it was feared, might aggravate the enmity toward the whites. Visions of midnight burnings and massacres of women and children haunted the settlers’ dreams. So the whole Arkansas delegation, with stock and all, gathered at J. B. Wilmeth’s for consultation. The common feeling was to seek safety by falling back to some of the stronger settlements east of Trinity. But during a week of hurried preparation the Indians disappeared and the majority concluded to remain. But the Wilmeths and J. O. Straughan pushed with live stock and other movable effects across Trinity at Cedar Springs above Dallas. They took the ridge route north. A more enchanting scene than the train and herds moving over this most beautiful stretch of prairie, with little children on horse and foot rounding in the calves and sheep, could hardly be imagined. A fine view of some of the finest country on the face of the globe was here afforded. On the head of White Rock, settlements began to come into view. Those of Jacob Baccus and Jas. Herndon were right on the road. Others were seen in the distance. Buckner, the acknowledged county seat of Collin County and headright home of Col. Jack McGarrah, the present Wygle place, was reached. It was hardly “a wide place in the road,” the travel not having been sufficient yet to give it width. It had its importance, nevertheless, as a public gathering place with a store and the indispensable “liquor” and some other goods for sale. Above all it was an intelligence office where could be learned the news from the different settlements, of the Indian camps and incursions, and of the more than welcome newcomers to the settlement. Though from their first attempts at settlement nearly three years before up to about a year previous they had lost several of their number by the hands of the savages, had houses sacked and horses stolen, fear of Indians seemed to have subsided, and their gardens, sweet potato patches, fresh sodded pumpkin fields and green corn waving above the fences, gave the country a hopeful aspect. Our procession, however, bearing now more to the east, moved on and having crossed Honey Creek and East Fork, camped about a quarter from the latter, that place being then held down by a man by the name of Shelby.

Nancy Wilmeth had taken in the situation as she had seen things from her “carry-all” and heard them discussed in camps. She suspected that “Uncle Frank” was heading for the poor hills of Tennessee and that her husband was only too prone to accommodate the inclinations of his good-natured elder brother. This camp was said to be within a few miles of the east boundary of the Peters’ colony grant. Her determination was never to cross this boundary. The breakfast was set and thanks were given. Nancy’s secret thanks were that she was well within the colony with seven sons and three daughters. A few tears, a few firm words, and the law was laid down, that while she lived her children should never be carried to Arkansas nor Tennessee, but that her body should be buried within the bounds of this colony. J. B.’s reply to this Medo-Persian decree was thoughtful, submissive silence. Uncle Frank was moody and mum, especially in the presence of “the power behind the throne.” J. O. Straughan seemed neutral and cheerful, ready for any fate. Within a week the improvements and claim of Moses Wilson, on the ravine two miles north of the site of the present McKinney courthouse, had been purchased at a cost of $600, and the family of J. B. Wilmeth installed in their headright homestead, to be, as Nancy wished, her residence for the rest of her natural life. Thus did the little woman’s fiat, fate these three families to become citizens of Collin. Nor were any regrets expressed in after years as to the outcome of her action. A brief survey of the horizon brought nearly or quite a hundred heads of families and young men into view within the county. Some wheat was harvested in the Coffman neighborhood in 1846. J. B. Wilmeth bartered dry goods for seed and sowed some on his own and some on land rented of Tolly Dunn in the fall. A good crop was cradled next spring. At this time Jesse T. Veal, the clock peddler, appeared. He furnished the people with Seth Thomas clocks at about $25 apiece. He plied his trade well for some years, making not a little money, making his home in meantime at J. B. Wilmeth's.

The chief effort was to fence and turn the prairie sod with big plows and long ox teams. Not long had J. B. Wilmeth's wagon been unloaded till his blacksmith shop was set up. Plows had to be sharpened and other implements forged and welded. Nancy's loom was also set up and the cards and wheel brought into play. Homespun was the main dependence. Cotton and wool had to be finger-picked, carded and spun by hand, and woven into cloth. In this the Wilmeth women folks were expert. They even brought to bear some knowledge previously acquired in the manufacture of silk. Having brought a small supply of silk worm eggs with them, they reared the worm on wild Collin County mulberry leaves and so produced a good quality of silk thread, fingers. Some of this they put in the stores to sell for sewing thread, the rest they used to make brilliant silken stripes in their homespun dresses. And most of these pioneer women worked in the same way to help the country on.

The Fourth of July 1846 was celebrated at Buckner by a barbecue, public speeches and a dance. Some of the speakers remembered were Uncle Jake Baccus, Col. Jack McGarrah and the young doctor G. A. Foote. The doctor and the colonel figured also in the dance, the latter taking a set with his eldest granddaughter.

The county officers showing up at that time were: Jonathan Allen, chief justice; Tolly Dunn, clerk; King Custer, sheriff; Leonard Searcy, assessor and collector; and Godfrey Baccus, treasurer. Maj. Samuel Bogart seemed a distinguished character, not alone from the fact that he was a representative of the people, but also from the reputation that he brought with him of having individually slain a Mormon before he came to this country. The badge continually reminding of this was, a weapon-loaded pair of saddle bags carried in public on his left arm. He as well as the other officers, had evidently been elected in Fannin County prior to the creation of Collin by an act of the legislature Feb. 1846. He had not sought public position without a purpose. He was a man of individuality and executive ability and he did things. To him was attributed the act requiring the relocation of the county seat within three miles of the center of the county. In carrying this out, Geo. White having been appointed to make the survey to find the center, ascertained it to be about three miles nearly southeast of the site of the present courthouse. This was late in 1847. The commissioners appointed to secure a site and lay off the town were Jno. Fitzhugh, W. C. McKinney, J. B. Wilmeth, Jno. Melton and another not now remembered. Two sites of 160 acres each were tendered; Sloan's Grove, three miles southeast of center, to be called Sloanville, by Bennett and Lee Martin; and the present, or northwest site, to be called McKinney, by Bill Davis. An election held early in 1848 gave a decided majority for McKinney. Though only 120 acres of the Davis offer were secured the town was soon plotted, surveyed and lots put on sale. Improvement began at once. A frame storehouse was hauled across the prairie from Buckner and set fronting south on the site of the Foote House. This served for some years for the Almarine and C. C. Alexander house, Geo. Barnett, Clerk. "Our House," a saloon, by E. Whitley & Co. sprang up about the place of Abbott's book store. Dr. Worthington built a little board office about where the First National Bank now stands. Soon Uncle Jno. Lovejoy, Sr., came, built a store and residence back of it, on the southwest corner of the square and kept store and hotel. Residences sprang up here and there. Mrs. Standifer improved on the hill to the south, putting in farm and furnishing country board to some of the bachelor business men. Peter Wallace built a blacksmith shop and residence on southeast corner of square. But growth expands too much to attempt any further details.

A courthouse was built during 1848 and 1849, and courts organized. J. B. Wilmeth served for a time as District Clerk under appointment from Judge Mills. Later he was elected County Judge and served in that capacity for one or more terms, making a specialty during this service of locating the county's school lands on the best territory then available. Much of this, however, was undone later by floating them to accommodate individual settlers.

As in Arkansas so in Texas, J. B. Wilmeth made his house a place of Christian teaching and worship. At an appointment for preaching at the old Throckmorton place he met some disciples from the McKinney settlement. Turning his attention at once to these, in Nov. 1846 a church was constituted in the house of Carol McKinney—recently vacated from the loss of his wife, with Ashley McKinney and J. B. Wilmeth as Deacons. Soon their place of meeting was changed to a new community meeting house built a mile south, near the Collin County line, and named Liberty, Succession, Mantua, Van Alstyne.

In the summer of 1847 he organized a church at his own house, with F. C. Wilmeth, Henry Webb, John Larimore, Jas. Masters, officers. Later it held its annual meetings in the courthouse at McKinney. His evangelistic efforts, preaching and founding churches, extended to Dallas, Denton, Grayson and Fannin Counties. Many of these have grown to be strong churches.

HOW PIONEERS MADE BREAD

The mills in this country in 1846 and prior to that time were mortars or “steelmills.” The latter was much like a coffee mill, but larger, and operated by two cranks. One strong man or two boys could do the work, that is, grind a mess for a medium family in an hour, or four or five bushels in a day. The first relief from this method of making meal was Dick Howard’s little two-horse mill started in the fall of 1847 on East Fork about two miles north of where Chambersville now is. Plenty of corn and some wheat was made and it could not near grind for all. The next year the Hart mill on Honey Creek was put in operation. It was a peculiar concern, run also by horsepower, and made both meal and flour. Later Capt. Stapp put an old fashioned draft wheel four-horse mill with flour bolting attachment at the old Stapp or Preston Scott place.

About the fall of 1848 came Henry Wetsel, Sr., an expert Pennsylvania German mill man, who had made and operated mills in Arkansas. J. B. Wilmeth employed him to make a four-horse draft and band wheel to which he attached a little patent burr mill. This made not a little good meal and flour for two or three years. Later he and his son, Mansel, built an ox mill, inclined tread wheel, to run by friction instead of cogs. It ground some, but was not a success.

About 1850, the Wetsel boys having come, in addition to their wheelwright and cabinet work, went into the mill business. Their first effort was a first-class ox mill in south part of McKinney. It almost satisfied the increased demand and made money for its owners. They however, took another step and set up a steam saw and grist mill a mile east of town. Bob Fitzhugh also put a steam mill six or seven miles south of town. By this time others were springing up in different places.

In the fall of 1848 a brick mason by the name of Wilkes and J. B. Wilmeth undertook to manufacture brick at the old crossing on Wilson Creek, to the south of Benge's park. The result was a lime kiln rather than a brick kiln. What they had taken for sand was merely pulverized periwinkle shell. The thoroughly burnt material all slacked to lime. Only those on the outside, slightly burnt or dried like adobes, were fit to put into a chimney. And of these J. B. Wilmeth got enough to build a good stack chimney. They form a part of the chimney in the old homestead today.

Early in the '50's J. B. Wilmeth began to buy slaves and give his attention more to farming and raising stock, more especially horses and mules. With nearly 200 acres in cultivation and a harvester and thrasher of his own, his wheat and barley output amounted to a good deal. When the rupture in the government occurred, he was found on the secession side and contributed liberally to the outfitting of the Confederate army, furnishing forage, mules, horses and men, seven of his sons being enrolled in the ranks. His knowledge of military tactics previously acquired in United States service was now turned to account in assisting to organize and drill the early regiments, raised in Collin. But he went further, and organized a regiment of state militia with which, as lieutenant colonel, he served for a time on the Gulf coast. Meantime his wife Nancy, was not of less service to the country, for she not only managed the negroes and farm in her husband's absence, but also furnished nearly all the clothing for her sons and husband, even to heavy overcoats and blankets, while in Confederate service, from her own loom. The war ended, the cause and two sons lost, nine negroes freed, and the evidences of amounts furnished the soldiers and supplies to the army reduced to mere waste paper, the twain addressed themselves again, with their accustomed energy, to the problems of social and domestic economy, helping to build the New South. Their house, as in the past, was still an inn for the traveler and a place for religious service. As some of the older children in their marriage had been furnished homes in the early seventies a distribution of land was made, giving to each of the ten that survived the war one hundred acres for a homestead. This left the father and mother still in possession of their old homestead, on which they remained until Jan. 1892, when, after sixty-six years of married life together, and having raised twelve children, all except two of them—Jas. B. and Wm. C., lost in the war—married and were raising families they died so nearly together—she on the 14th and he on the 15th—that they were laid to rest side by side in the same tomb.

William Wilmoth, paternal ancestor, had Revolutionary Service in Morgan District, North Carolina.

Nancy Ferguson, wife of Joseph B. Wilmeth, was the daughter of Joshua Ferguson. The home of the Ferguson family was in the Second District of McNairy County, Tennessee. These people were substantial citizens, and descended from the Col. Ferguson, of King's Mountain, of the Revolution. The oldest of this family was Joshua Ferguson, who was a soldier in the war of 1812. He was in the battle of Horse Shoe Bend, and at New Orleans during the battle of the eighth of January, 1815, but not in the battle. This old settler died in the second district, and was about eighty-five years of age. His death was about 1872. He is buried in the old Sulphur Springs burying ground. Around the life of this old man is woven the ever interesting and romantic history of the Indian, with whom he once lived, and with whose life he was familiar.

JAMES RANSOM WILMETH

Born in Lawrence County, Arkansas, Oct. 17th, 1835. At the age of twelve, he was baptized by old Brother J. H. O. Polly. In 1857, he went to school at Bethany, Va. He started to Virginia from Texas on horseback, but before he arrived in Virginia, he sold his horse and saddle and walked the rest of the way. The funds derived from the sale of his horse and saddle were to help him through school. As he walked toward Bethany, he earned his board and lodging along the way by helping children with their lessons at night. He had taught and preached before going to college and he was very proficient in the art of teaching children. While Mr. Wilmeth was at Bethany, he wore a suit of clothes which his mother had spun and wove, cut and made with her own hands. Alexander Campbell was one of his teachers. The young student did janitor work and preached that he might make his means go as far as possible.

When he returned from Bethany, he married Miss Martha Florence Lowry, near McKinney, Texas. In this vicinity he established his home. He built a schoolhouse in his yard and dreamed of eventually turning his school into a college which was to be known as Beacon College, but the Civil War shattered his dream. Mr. Wilmeth was opposed to war. He could not harmonize the teaching of Jesus with the bloody act of taking the life of his fellowman. He, nevertheless, entered the Army as a Chaplain and did much preaching to the soldiers.

He taught in Add-Ran College at Thorp Springs, in McKinney, San Marcos, and many other places. His last teaching was at Corinth, Arkansas where he assisted his brother in a college there. He preached in many places and he was deeply loved wherever he went.

He delivered the first graduating address at Add-Ran College in 1876.

Mr. Wilmeth's last days were spent at Ebony, Texas, on his farm. His life was a benediction to his neighbors. He was an humble man, but a very wise and admirable soul. He entered into rest October 30, 1919.

COLLIN McKINNEY WILMETH, better known to his friends and relatives as MAC, was born to Joseph Brice and Nancy Furgeson Wilmeth on January 2nd, 1848, at McKinney, Texas.

He spent his boyhood days at the Old Wilmeth Homestead, located about two miles North of McKinney, and received his early education from a private school in the city or town of McKinney, Texas, after which, in the year of 1868, he entered Lexington University, in the State of Kentucky, and after four years of study he received his degree. During this period of time he made a special study of the Spanish language, preparing himself to be a missionary in the Rep. of Mexico, which had been his desire since early in life.

He began his preaching of the Gospel in Texas, and was well known throughout many of the States as an able preacher and outstanding minister of the Church of Christ.

During a series of religious services, which he conducted in Lebanon, Tenn., he met Mary Griffeth Rutherford, daughter of Griffeth and Mary Lambeth Rutherford, to whom he was married on August 12th, 1873, after which he returned to McKinney, Texas, the place of his birth, where he made his home for several years, following his life work as an educator and preacher of the Gospel, also as publisher of a Religious Paper at McKinney, known as "The Texas Christian Monthly" which was established in 1875 by him and his brother, James R. Wilmeth.

In 1877 he moved to Dallas, Texas, establishing a publishing house in connection with his paper, and conducted the preaching at the First Church of Christ at Dallas, for a period of years, at the same time evangelizing extensively throughout the Southern States.

About the year of 1883 or 1884 he was professor of languages at Add-Ran Christian College at Thorp Springs, Texas, and in 1886 he established the Nazareth University, at Dallas, Texas, and continued his work as a preacher of the Gospel and publisher of a Christian Paper, when, in the fall of 1888 he moved his university, paper and family to Corinth, Ark., where he remained for eight years.

At this period of his life he felt and thought that the time was ripe for the fulfillment of his lifelong desire to establish a missionary colony in the Republic of Mexico, so after spending three months traveling in Mexico, searching for a place for such an establishment, he returned to the States and in the fall of 1897 he lead a colony of American people to Tampico, Mexico, where on the banks of the beautiful Tamesi River he established his colony which was named Bryan City, Rep. of Mexico.

His work was scarcely started in this newly found city and vicinity, when he was stricken with Yellow Fever, and on October 12th, 1898, he died of this dreadful disease, leaving behind him a life well spent in work for God and Humanity, at the age of fifty years. He was survived by his widow, Mary Griffeth Rutherford Wilmeth, two sons, Warner Lambeth Wilmeth and Joe Brice Wilmeth, and four daughters, Mrs. Irene Nannett Wilmeth Watson, Lucy Rutherford Wilmeth, Mary Emberson Wilmeth and Annie Mec Wilmeth.

JAMES WASHINGTON WILMETH

James Washington Wilmeth was born in Rutherford County, North Carolina, and migrated westward, with his father and other members of the family. His father, William Wilmoth, went to southern Kentucky, not far from Hickman, and lived there for some twenty years. Several sons, including James Washington, if they went to Kentucky, did not remain there, for we find a number of them in west Tennessee, be-between 1820 and 1825. Among those who went to Tennessee were Joseph Bryson Wilmoth, Frank Crawford, James Washington, Marion and probably others. James Washington and Joseph Bryson were employed by the United States Government, in helping to transport the Choctaws, the Chickasaws, the Cherokees and other Indian tribes, who lived in Alabama and Mississippi, across the Mississippi River, through the Territory of Arkansas, to what was then known as the Indian Nation, now a part of Oklahoma. This migration took place in the late twenties or early thirties. These brothers were fascinated with the rich, undeveloped Arkansas territory, and afterwards moved from McNairy County, Tennessee, to Logan County, Arkansas, where they took up land and established homes.

Prior to their leaving Tennessee, Joseph Bryson Wilmoth had married Nancy Ferguson. James Washington Wilmoth married Sarah Shelton. After removing to Arkansas, Sarah Shelton Wilmeth died, leaving one infant son, Joseph Wilmeth. The father took little Joseph, as soon as he was large enough to stand the trip, back to Tennessee, where he was placed in the Shelton family. He afterwards married Falby Shelton, a younger sister of Sarah, and lived the rest of his life on a large plantation on Cypress River, in McNairy County, Tennessee.

He was successful as a planter and stock raiser, and was a leader in his community. He established White Oak Church on his plantation, and set apart eleven acres of his plantation as a cemetery, which is still in existence. He was a forceful speaker, and took active interest in civil affairs for his day and generation. As a preacher and minister, he was noted for his power and forcefulness.

He did not believe in slavery, and when the Civil War broke, he threw the weight of his influence with the Union. However, his two sons, Joseph, by his first wife, and Benjamin Franklin, oldest child by his second wife, both ran away from home and joined the Confederate service. Joseph lost his life while returning home on a furlough. When within a few miles of home, he attempted to ford the Tuscumbia River, which was swollen from heavy rains. His horse became entangled in some vines, and he was swept into the current and lost his life.
His brother, Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth, father of the author and compiler of this volume, joined the Cavalry of the Confederate Service, under General Nathan Bedford Forrest, and was in a number of battles and engagements. Forrest's command was noted for celerity and quickness of action.

As the war progressed, James Washington Wilmeth, together with others who were interested in the abolishment of slavery, took the stump and made speeches throughout McNairy County, the result being that a regiment of Union soldiers was recruited in this county for Civil War service. However, he paid dearly for his devotion to the United States. During his absence from his plantation, it was over-run and many depredations committed, his animals were slain and used to feed the hungry soldiers. It became necessary for him to place himself under the protection of the Union soldiers, later in the War, after the Union troops had entered the state by way of Cairo, Ill.

It required a good deal of courage and patriotism for a man living in that portion of Tennessee, where he made his home, to stand out for his Government. He did this without waiving. He lived for ten years after the close of the Civil War, and died in 1874, highly honored and respected by all who knew him.

Memorandum left by James Washington Wilmeth in his diary, concerning his ancestors, said that his father's name was William and that his knowledge as to the rest of the family is too limited to undertake to say anything about them except what I have heard my grandfather say. The purport being about as follows:

"It indicates that the grandfather of William was in the British Military service probably during colonial war days. The memorandum is indefinite but it does state that this grandfather of his and his wife deceased leaving their only son behind them and that this son found and cultivated a friend by the name of Cooper and when he reached maturity he married Miss Cooper of the same family who bore him six children, five boys and one girl by the names of John, James, William, other names not given. This William is a father of James W. and great grandfather of the author. He spoke in this memorandum of John Crawford of Irish descent as being an ancestor living in Burke and Rutherford Counties, North Carolina.

The name of his grandfather, according to deeds on file in Rutherford County, North Carolina, was William Wilmoth, Sr.

It is from this deed that we have established the fact that William, Jr., father of James Washington, was the son of William, Sr.

William migrated to Kentucky, was twice married. He was great grandfather of the author. The name of his first wife is unknown. He had a son by the name of Gabriel who was probably named after Gabriel, son of the first William. Mary Ann Crawford Wilmoth was the great grandmother of the writer.

JAMES LILLARD WILMETH

The compiler of this volume was born at Chewalla, McNairy County, Tennessee, October 10, 1870, son of Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth and Isabella DePoyster Wilmeth. On his father's side, he is descended from the Virginia and North Carolina branches of the Wilmoth family. On his maternal side, from the DePeyster family, of New York, concerning whom there is a history of the family of John Watts DePeyster. His paternal ancestor on his mother's side was named Abraham, who migrated through New Jersey, stopping for a time in Delaware, thence through Maryland into southwest Virginia, thence into East Tennessee and later to West Tennessee.

Isabella DePoyster's father was Littleton Washington DePoyster, and both his father and grandfather were named Abraham DePeyster. Note change in spelling of the name.

Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth moved from Tennessee to Arkansas in 1878, and settled on a farm in Nevada County, near Prescott, the county seat. His son, the compiler, attended public schools, the Martinet Academy, taught public school at the age of seventeen, attended a church college in Howard County, Arkansas, 1890 to 1893; principal of the Emmet High School, 1894. He took Civil Service Examination at Texarkana, Arkansas, September, 1894; appointed to clerkship in the United States Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., as a result of the examination, and assumed his duties, at very small salary, on February 25, 1895. He was promoted, through successive grades of clerkship, during his first eight years of clerical service, until he reached the position of Assistant Chief of Division.

Having read law in the office of the leading firm of lawyers in Prescott, Arkansas, prior to coming to Washington, he was admitted to the Senior Law Class of Columbian University (now George Washington University) in the Fall of 1895, but was prevented from finishing his course, on account of the untimely death of his father, Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth, late in 1895. Some years afterwards, he took the full course in law at the National University Law School, Washington, D. C., and received LL.B. degree in 1906. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Nu, Legal Fraternity, Choate Chapter, with headquarters in the National Capitol.

Shortly after his graduation in law, he was assigned to the preparation of cases involving suit on money order accounts. Later, in 1906, he was transferred to the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury, as Law Clerk, and Government Expert Accountant, where he served for four years.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Honorable Franklin McVeagh, appointed him Chief Clerk of the entire Treasury Department, December, 1910. In addition to the duties of Chief Clerk, he was made Chairman of the Committee on Personnel, and was also Chairman of President Taft’s Economy and Efficiency Committee for the Treasury Department, and represented that Department in many hearings before Congress, connected with appropriations and reorganizations, etc.; also in the matter of securing retirement for Government employees; assisted in reorganization of the Department; was made Chairman of the General Supply Committee, which was created by Act of Congress in 1910, and under which, one single, uniform contract was made for furnishing a given kind of supplies, common to all the ten executive departments of the Government, as well as for the independent establishments of the Government. This committee inaugurated many reforms and economies in the purchase of Government supplies, which had a far reaching effect for good. The same principle applies in the purchase of Government supplies to this day. Under it, many economies were effected and better business methods adopted.

During his term as Chief Clerk, as Superintendent of the magnificent Treasury building, located at Fifteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D. C., this fine old building was modernized, under his supervision. The black columns of the colonnades were removed, and beautiful granite monoliths were installed in their place. The interior of the building was subjected to many changes, including vaults, and the installation of electric control, which is still in use.
He prepared a report, and submitted recommendation to the Secretary of the Treasury and Postmaster General, urging that contracts with the Express Company, for the transportation of money and currency of the Government and banks, be terminated, and that the Government transport its money in United States mail cars. This recommendation was finally adopted, at tremendous yearly saving in cost to the Government.

The early part of August, 1914, after the outbreak of the World War, he was sent to Europe, by the President of the United States and Secretary of the Treasury, as custodian, in charge of $1,500,000 in gold, which was sent to Europe for the relief of American citizens, stranded on account of war moratoriums. In addition, he also was custodian in transit of $3,000,000 in gold, which was transmitted along with the money appropriated by Congress, for the American Bankers Association, on the battleship Tennessee. In addition to the funds under his control, the people of America, who had members of their families abroad, were permitted to deposit money in National Banks in the United States, the same to be made available, through him, to their relatives or dependents abroad. The Secretary of the Treasury transferred $1,000,000 of these funds to his credit. He deposited the same in the Bank of England. This was a sterling account and was disbursed by him.

He spent several months in Europe, visiting Germany, Holland, Belgium, and France, with Headquarters in England; established disbursing officers in England and various countries on the continent, and supplied them with funds, and gave them instructions as received through the State Department daily as to the payment to American travelers.

Served seven years as Chief Clerk of the United States Treasury Department, was transferred and appointed Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing by Secretary Wm. G. McAdoo, December, 1917. It was at the time of his transfer that the several Liberty Bond issues, for financing the World War were being executed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. This was the largest task of its kind that the Government had ever undertaken, and perhaps one of the largest of all time. During his term of more than four years, as Director upwards of $150,000,000,000 in money and papers of value were issued by the Government and executed under his direction. There were 8,452 employees in the Bureau at its peak of employment.

Among the important reforms and improvements made under his direction and during his term were the following:

The increasing to eight notes on a steel plate, instead of four, as before. This almost doubled the output. Since his term as Director closed, notes have been made smaller, and the number of subjects to the plate increased; making of engraved plates for intaglio printing by electric processes, instead of the old way of engraving an original plate, and making a transfer roll, and then transferring that to a soft plate and hardening it. The number of impressions was increased immeasurably by making these plates by the new process, and great economies were effected; he also discarded the time-worn system of burning the fat out of linseed oil, for ink-making purposes, and adopted the plan of purchasing linseed oil from which the fat had been extracted by electrical process; he also extended the system of making postage stamps by rotary presses. There were only two rotary presses in the Bureau at the time he was made Director. These were largely increased during his term. Every process of making postage stamps is combined in this one machine, which was designed in the Bureau under supervision. He also did away almost entirely with hand plate printing presses, and substituted power presses in their stead.

He left the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, March 31, 1922, and spent more than a year with offices in Washington, representing contractors, and practicing before the Treasury Department, also as General Agent of a Surety and Casualty Company.

Up to the time of his appointment as Chief Clerk of the Treasury Department, he maintained a home at Vienna, Fairfax County, Virginia. This is the county in which Mount Vernon, Home of George Washington, is situated. Later, he moved to the District of Columbia, and afterwards, established a home at Takoma Park, Maryland. He served the large, growing, incorporated town of Takoma Park as Mayor for two terms.
He was elected National Secretary of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, at Burlington, Vermont, June, 1923, and at present is serving his seventeenth year in this important office. He has participated in community and public affairs, and has endeavored to take a part in the scheme of things, as the following narrative of activities will show:

Member of Disciples Church; served for years as Sunday School Superintendent, teacher and elder, and was Commissioner of the State of Pennsylvania in the matter of funds for the establishment and building of the National City Church, in Washington, D. C.; he was also Commissioner of the Disciples Pension Fund for the State of Pennsylvania, for the retirement of preachers and ministers; he is an officer of the International Convention of the Disciples Church, and at present a member of the Board of Managers of the United Christian Missionary Society of the same; he was elected and served two terms as President of the Pennsylvania Christian Missionary Society; at the present time is member of the Board of Directors of that society; took an active part in the foundation of the Federal Council of Churches in the District of Columbia, and was for years, Chairman of its Missionary Committee; was a member, for years, of the Board of Managers of the District of Columbia Young Men's Christian Association, and assisted in the establishment of retirement fund for employees of the Young Men's Christian Association of this country; served in this capacity during the troublesome days of the World War, when such a heavy burden was placed on the Association at Washington.

Is a Past Master of Crescent Lodge of Masons of Virginia, now, by affiliation, Past Master of Lafayette Lodge No. 19, F.A.A.M., Washington, D. C.; member of Mt. Vernon Chapter No. 12, Royal Arch Masons, and Council at Alexandria, Virginia; Past Consul, Modern Woodmen of America Camp; Past Councilor, Vienna Council No. 12, Jr. O.U.A.M., Vienna, Va.; Past State Councilor, Jr. O.U.A.M., State of Virginia; admitted as representative of the National Council, Jr. O.U.A.M., Boston, Mass., June, 1907, and has attended fourteen biennial sessions of the National Council since that date. The Honor of Past National Councilor was conferred upon him, by unanimous vote of the Session held at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C., June, 1937.
Member of University and Manufacturers and Bankers Clubs; the Historical Society of Pennsylvania; the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania and the Museum of Art.

EZEKIEL WILMOTH

James Wilmoth writes, from Roaring Gap, N. C, May 20, 1912, that Ezekiel Wilmoth was said to have come from England and settled on the head waters of Mitchell's River; also that William Wilmoth, son of Ezekiel, left North Carolina and went to Tennessee or Kentucky, and was never heard of afterwards.

There is a tradition in Ezekiel's line that he came to North Carolina from New Jersey. The writer has been unable to verify such statement. The name of Ezekiel is found in one or more of the Connecticut families of Wilmoth, but there is no evidence that Ezekiel is descended from the Connecticut branch of the family.

He settled on Mitchell's River, in what is now Surry County, North Carolina. He bought and sold land. The records of Surry and Wilkes County show that he began to purchase land as early as 1786. There are quite a number of land purchases and sales by him up to 1822. He did not confine his operations to his immediate neighborhood, but traded in a number of different counties. Buying and selling land appears to be the chief business of not only Ezekiel, but of Thomas Wilmoth, of Augusta, Pendleton and Rockingham, and other counties of Virginia, also of William and Thomas Wilmoth, who owned and sold land in Prince Edward, Charlotte and Lunenburg Counties, Virginia, also in Wake and other counties in North Carolina. Some of the Deeds appearing in Wake County, North Carolina, positively identify William Wilmoth, land trader, as being from Charlotte County, Virginia.

It seems rather plausible to the writer that Thomas, of Upper Virginia and Thomas of Prince Edward and Charlotte Counties, Virginia, must have been related; probably cousins. It is positively known that William, who migrated from Virginia to North Carolina was the son of Thomas Wilmoth who lived in Prince Edward and Charlotte Counties, Virginia.

There were two William Wilmoths in North Carolina, one the son of Ezekiel and the other the son of Thomas Wilmoth, of Virginia.

Thomas E. Snow of Rockford, North Carolina, under date of April 29, 1914, furnished record taken from the old Wilmoth Bible:

Ezekiel Wilmoth—b. July 1, 1716.
Mary Wilmoth—b. June 4, 1764.
Sarah Wilmoth—b. May 27, 1784.

LETTERS FROM TWO MARYLAND PIONEERS IN KENTUCKY (1789-1793.)

(John Wilmot to Benjamin Talbott, of Baltimore County, Md.)

Kentucky Burbon County January 24th 1789.

Dear Sisters & Brothers & freinds—haveing an Opertunity to Rite you I intend to give you a Short Account of our journey to this Country tho it was a very tedious one. the first Day of October 1788 we set off—the 28th Day of the same Month we all arrived at Mr. Oingsis Mill on Monnegahale. there we staid nine Days waiting for the botes. I think we met with no more hardship nor Difficulty than we might Reasonably expect on our journey to that place. we laid by eight Days & traveld twenty. we was very heavy loaded & cood travel but slo.

the sixth Day of November brother Robert & Mr. hall with all three of our familes except myself went on bord the botes & floted down the River, John Cockey Oings & myself with the negro boys drove the horses by land down to the mouth of Buffolo where we arrived in three Days. the botes arrived at the same place in six Days. there was much bad weather at the time, the boats laid by near three Days out of the six. I went on borde at that place and tooke all the horses in & in three Days & four Nights more we arrived at lime stone. A short and pleasant Passage doun the River we had after I went on bord. Some of us was on shore every Day shoooteing turkeys & kild as many as we cood eat the most of the way down the River. We staid at lime stone several Days and then proceed on our journey by land. the Rodes being very bad we was ableged to leave the half of our goods at the River and have not brought them yiet.

the 27th of November we arrived at this place wich is ten miles from lexington. we got an empty cabin wich brother Roberts famile and mine lived in five weaks. then I movd of about half a mile where I expect to make a crop on rented land. I have not purchased any land yiet nor shant tel I see more of the Country.

I think we have been grately favoured throughout our journey thanks bee to Almity God for it. We have had our helth reasonable wel tho we was exposed to the cold & wet weather.

I have given you some account of our journey, I will give you some smal acount of the Country as far as I am Able.

the land as far as I have traveled wich is about 70 miles in length and about 20 miles across the Country is very rich except about 10 miles wich is very pore hilly & stony. the Rest is levil. A beautiful soil not a stone to be seen except in branches or Creeks & I have Reason to believe this rich body of land extends much further than I have seen.

likewise I am credible informed there is in this Country large bodies of broken hilly pore land such as no person could live on only servaid to sell to those that never saw it.—I advise you all never to buy land without seeing it first unless you can depend on the person that sells it to you tho he should offer it for six pence per acre. I have been offered land for three pound per hundred since I came here tho I would not have it as a Gift. a great Deel of this bad land lays on licking, the price of good land is from 10 to 12 shillings per acre in the Settlement, Virginny Money. out of the Settlement it may be had for a Dollar per acre. for my part I am not disappointed.
hear is peace and plenty except on some part of the frontears where the Savages is frequently stealing horses.

but in the Settlement I believe we are as free from Danger as you are in baltimore. I am much pleased with the Country, I think it will be the best part of North America. We have a trade with the Spaniards which is a great help for this Country. they receive our tobacco. Give for it money or Goods. A number of Men have gone to the Spaniards and got passports from the Governor to trade there as much as they please.

I can not assert what is the common produce of this land but I have Reason to believe it yields from 10 to 12 barrels of corn per acre.

I did promise to Rite to several of my freinds but must omit it at preset as I would wish to see more of the Country first as I might then give them more satisfaction. I write no one in particular but I write you all together for this time expecting to hear from you all the first opportunity. My family is all in good health & desires to be remembered to you all.

Corn here is from six shillings to ten per barrel. Pork fifteen shillings per hundred. beef sixteen. horses is much cheaper here than they are with you. Sheap is 20 shillings a head. there is fine Range here in the Woods for creators, tho the corn is much hurt with the frost in some places.

I had like to forget to mention the water. I find it is good except in some particular places and much plentier than I expected to find it.
When you write direct to Grants Old Station Burbon County which is the place where I now live. So I wil bid you all farewell till the next opertunity.

(Signed) J. WILLMOTT.

(Robert Wilmot to Benjamin Talbott.)

Oct. 3, 1791.

Dr. Sir.—I imbrace this favourable oppertunity by Mr. Killey who is coming to baltimore, to let you kno that we are all well through the mercy of God. the offis is opened to survey the officers land of the Contineltle line, and as we all are concerned in this land of billes, and as it is out my power to luck after it, I think it would be well done in you to do it. we must all bear a proposional part of the expence. the office is kept at Philadelphia and if you get the Warrents mine can be got at the same time, and then I will engage to lay the warrents and have the Rest of the business done.

A copy of the will out of the office & the county seal to it & a power of atturney will do the business I am informed.

tell my Acquaintances that has a nosion of seeing this Country not to halt between two opinion. that bugaboo of the Indians is quite removed out of the way.

I give my love with Priseys to my dear Sister and family Uncle & Aunt with the family & Connexion & to others if they inquire after us. farewell, & if it is out of our powers to meet heare let us strive to meet in heaven. from Yours

(signed) ROBT. WILLMOTT.

REVOLUTIONARY SERVICE

William and Robert Wilmot joined the Revolutionary forces at the outbreak of the war and were recommended at an early date for commissions in the Maryland Militia. William was appointed by the Council of Safety on August 5, 1776, Ensign in Capt. Zachariah MacCubbin's Company, of Colonel Josiah Carvel Hall's battalion, Maryland Militia for the flying camp and was active in the enrolling of recruits for the service. On December 10, 1776 he was commissioned First Lieut. of Capt. Benjamin Brookes' Company, 3rd. Maryland Regiment, under the command of Col. Mordecai Gist, and was promoted to a captaincy in the same regiment on October 15, 1777. He was transferred January 1, 1781 to the 2nd. Maryland Regiment, commanded by Col. John Ganby, with Lieut. Col. John Eager Howard, second in command.

His name shows in service record between August 1, 1780 and January 1, 1782, and again between January 1, 1782 and January 1, 1783.

In a pay list for pay due non-commissioned officers and privates of the Maryland Line from January 1, 1782 to January 1, 1783, his Company is styled the First Company, 4th Battalion. His death is referred to in Archives of Maryland, Vol. 18, page 479.

In the early fall of 1782, Capt. Wilmot commanded a party of observation attached to the camp of the Southern Army, located at Ashley Hill, on the Ashley River, ten miles from Charleston. His post was upon John's Island, near Charleston, where he kept in close touch with all the plans and movements of the enemy within the town.

As a soldier he was fearless, ambitious and fond of adventure, and the very qualities which secured for him promotion in the military calling were destined to be the means of his final un-doing.

On November 14, 1782, just one month prior to the evacuation of Charleston by the British, Kosciusko suggested to Capt. Wilmot and Lieut. Moore of the Maryland Line, the fatal enterprise of crossing over to James Island for the purpose of surprising a party of the enemy's wood cutters from Fort Johnson. A negro who furnished information to the Americans participating in this adventure is believed to have been sent as a decoy to lead them into an ambuscade. At any rate, the enemy was well prepared for the surprise and poured into the little party so deadly a fusillade that Capt. Wilmot was killed instantly, while Lieut. Moore, with others, were left on the field covered with wounds. Kosciusko escaped injury, although his weapon was shattered in his hand and his coat pierced by four balls.

Young Wilmot was buried by the British with all the honors of war, having achieved the unique distinction of being the last to shed his life's blood in an engagement between American and British troops during the Revolution.

Historians of the Revolutionary period give the following record:

"Capt. Wilmot, with a small command, still continued to cover John's Island and to watch the passage of the Stono, and his love of enterprise led him, occasionally, to cross the river and harass or watch the enemy on James Island."

"In one of these adventures, November 14, 1782, undertaken in conjunction with Kosciusko, against a party of the enemy's woodcutters, he fell in an ambuscade, was himself shot dead, and Lieut. Moore, his second in command, and a servant, severely wounded and made prisoners.

"This was the last bloodshed in the American War."

The British accorded him a full military funeral.

It is not definitely known just the exact spot where Capt. William Wilmot was buried by the British, but it is believed to be in the Episcopal Church-yard on James Island. The writer of this volume has visited this cemetery and endeavored to locate the precise burial place, but without success, as there was no positive means of identification—no tombstone or marker having been erected in honor of his memory and patriotic services.

It is a regrettable thing to note that Capt. Wilmot's life was sacrificed in the service of his country after the Treaty of Peace had been signed. Had it not been for the slow means of communication in that day and time, no doubt, his useful life would have been preserved.

The Maryland Historical Magazine, Volume 6, Page 140, contains a letter from Captain William Willmott to Benjamin Talbott, Baltimore County, Maryland, written at headquarters on Schoolkill, thirty-four miles above Philadelphia, and giving an account of a defeat of the Revolutionary forces at Staten Island and his wonderful escape from the Hessians. In this letter John Willmott, his oldest brother and head of the family upon the death of his father Robert Wilmot, Sr., in 1773 is mentioned. Mention is made of Sarah (Merryman) Wilmot, wife of Robert, Sr., and mother of John and William, died in 1781; Mary (Polly) Wilmot, sister of John and William, married Thomas Gittings of Baltimore County.

THE WILL OF CAPTAIN WILMOT

In the name of God, Amen. I, William Wilmot, of Baltimore County and State of Maryland . . . being at this time called to the defense of my Country, do hereby make this my last will and testament . . . Item. I give and bequeath unto my brother Robert Wilmot . . . one tract of land lying in Baltimore County called Snake Den containing one hundred acres, also one lot of land lying in Winchester Town, Frederick County. Item. I give and bequeath unto my sister Sarah Talbott . . . the sum of twenty-five pounds. Item. I give and bequeath unto my sister Eleanor Bowen . . . the sum of twenty-five pounds. Item. I give and bequeath unto my sister Ruth Wilmot . . . the sum of one hundred pounds and my young horse three years old. Item. I give and bequeath unto my brother Richard Wilmot . . . seventy-five pounds. Item. I give and bequeath unto my brother Benjamin Wilmot . . . the sum of twenty-five pounds. Item. I give and bequeath unto my sister Mary Wilmot . . . the sum of one hundred pounds. Item. I give and bequeath unto my sister (in law) Ann Wilmot, wife to my brother John, my Riding mare. Item. I give and bequeath unto my brother Robert Wilmot above named . . . one negro boy named Will and also one negro woman named Judah, she and her increase. Whereas the principal part of my personal estate consists in certificates from the State of Maryland my will and desire is, that the legacies mentioned in this will, shall be paid off with the money arising therefrom when received, and whereas my aforesaid brother Robert at this time belongs to the Continental Army and may from the fortune of War, fall before he disposes of what I have hereby bequeathed to him, and in such case my will and desire is that my brother Richard Wilmot . . . should inherit the tract of land called Snake Den and the negro boy called Will, and that my brother Benjamin Wilmot . . . should inherit the tract of land lying in Winchester’s Town, Frederick (County), and also the negro woman named Judah and her increase. All of which I have bequeathed to my aforesaid brother Robert. I do nominate, constitute and appoint my brother in law Benjamin Talbott to be the executor of this my last will and testament ... twenty-first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eighty one.*

ROBERT WILMOT

Colonel Robert Wilmot, a Lieut. of Artillery from Baltimore County, Md., throughout the Revolutionary War, came to Kentucky before the organization of the State, settled with his family on a large tract of land in Bourbon County in 1786; was first elected to the Legislature in 1796, and was several times reelected; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of Kentucky of 1799 that formed the second constitution of the State and was one of the most worthy and valuable of the pioneer settlers of the State. His daughter, Rebecca Ridgely Wilmot, married Joel Scott—son Robert W. Scott, lawyer, farmer and stock raiser, born November 2, 1808.

Scott established the free school system of Kentucky. He was educated in Transylvania College, married Elizabeth Watts Brown, daughter of Dr. Preston W. and Elizabeth Watts
Brown of Frankfort, Ky. Her father was a son of Rev. John Brown and Margaret Preston (daughter of John Preston and Elizabeth Patton of Virginia, from whom descended several of the distinguished families of Virginia and Kentucky) and youngest brother of Hon. John Brown, Hon. James Brown and Dr. Samuel Brown. They had seven children—Dr. Preston B.
Scott, Dr. John O. Scott, Mary Brown Scott, married Col. _____
Mayor of Frankfort; Rebecca E. Scott, married Lafayette Green; Louise R. Scott, married E. Rumsey Wayne of Owensboro, Ky.; Elizabeth W. and Henrietta R., unmarried. Reference Biographical Encyclopedia of Kentucky 1878.

Children:
1. William R. (M. D.)—b. Apr. 2, 1783—d. 1834—m. in Missouri, returned to Kentucky.

A letter found in the Maryland Archives, Vol. 12, p. 254 from a Committee recommending Robert Wilmott, a native of Baltimore County, and attached to the Liberties of America for Commission as a Lieutenant or Ensign in the service. This petition bears the signature of about twelve of the leading citizens and is dated September 2, 1776.

Col. Robert Wilmot was in Bourbon Co. as early as 1790. Petition No. 2277, Archive Dept. Va. State Library: 27 Oct. 1790—“To the Honorable and general Assembly at the town of Richmond in the State of Virginia; The petition of Sundry of the Inhabitants of the County of Bourbon humbly prays you or honours to grant you Petitioners and Inspection 800 Tobacco on Stoner at the Town of Hopewell and your Petitioners in are in Duty your Humble Servts." Among the petitioners is Robert Wilmott (Hopewell is now Paris).

Wilmot’s name was not signed to a petition, 27 Oct. 1788.

In 1927 there was a memorial tablet placed on the Bourbon County court house by the D. A. R. listing the names of “Soldiers of the American Revolution who died—citizens of Bourbon County”. Official record of these soldiers was obtained by the D. A. R. before listing. Robert Wilmot was among them. No title given.

Robert Wilmot, writing from Bourbon County, Kentucky, 1837, states that his grandfather, John Wilmot, came from England and settled in Baltimore County, where he married. Reference is here made probably to his great grandfather, John Wilmot, Sr., who died in 1719. Among Maryland early settlers, a John Willymot was transported in 1676 and a Robert Willimot in 1678. John and Robert Wilmot were in Baltimore County as Taxables in 1694, probably brothers.

Lt. Robert Wilmot received slightly less than 3000 acres of land, in payment for his Revolutionary service.

WILL OF ROBERT WILLMOTT
I, Robert Willmott, of Bourbon County and State of Kentucky, being of sound mind, and memory, do make this my last will and Testament; My Executor hereinafter named, is empowered and requested to pay all my just debts, funeral expenses first.

Second: having heretofore given and advanced to my sons William, Charles, and Robert, therefore portions of my estate, I will and bequeath nothing more to them nor their heirs.

Third: I give and bequeath to my youngest son, John F. Willmott, one hundred acres of land where I now reside; and also four or five acres more or less over the old road adjoining the line of Michael Huffman, on the Southeast side; with all the appurtenances thereto belonging; with all my stock of every kind, and plantation Utensils, with all my Household furniture of every description.

Fourth: That the said son John F. Willmott, is to pay to his five sisters, namely, Rebecca Scott, Sally Hitt, Polly Price, and Priscilla Keen, and Ann Stevens, or their heirs of such as are dead, an equal part of the full sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, the money being previously put in his hands by me. Polly Price is already paid her part; and Ann Stevens' heirs is also paid off by me. I except the fifth part, that would be coming to Sally Hitt—I give and bequeath it to her daughter Polly Ann Chenoeth, my Granddaughter; I do this because my said daughter Sally Hitt brought to her last husband, to that amount Estate; and her daughter Polly Ann, has been cut out of his estate, by an informality in his last will and testament; and as it was intended that my five daughters, above named, should have an equal part of my lands unbequeathed, and each of them.

Fifth: Having sold their parts to my son John F. Willmott, their portions of the lands, and he having their full receipts for the purchase money, and I knowing the fact, I by this will, bequeath to said John F. Willmott, their interest in the land, and make him the only heir to inherit all my lands where I now live; I do by this invest him with complete title and possession to their portions, as well as all the rest of my lands.

Sixth: I further bequeath to my son John F. Willmott, my negro man named Steven, for him and his heirs forever.

Seventh: I give and bequeath to my Granddaughter Priscilla A. Willmott, one negro woman named Mary, to her and her heirs forever, except hereinafter named.

Eight: I give and bequeath to my grandson, William W. Willmott, one Yellow Boy named Lishe, about eight years old to him and his heirs forever.

Ninth: I give and bequeath to my Grandson Robert Willmott, son of my son John F. Willmott, a negro boy named Henry Black, about five years old, to him and his heirs forever.

Tenth: I give and bequeath to my Grandson Isaac F. Willmott, one yellow girl, about four years old, to him and his heirs.
forever. It is my will and desire that my son John F. youngest daughter, Rebecca, have the first child that her sister Priscilla's woman has, a live born and lives one year, for her and her heirs forever.

Eleventh: And as will be money coming to me from the Government and Maryland, after my decease, my will and desire is, that my Executor John F. Willmott, receive and receipt for the same, and pay an equal part to all his brothers and sisters or their heirs: Again, as there may be coming to me from England, a considerable sum or Legacy, and perhaps not till after my decease; if so my desire is that my son, Charles R. Willmott and John F. Willmott do prosecute the claim; the one half of it for my trouble and expense; and the other half to be equally divided between the grandchildren of the old John Willmott from England. There is now but three alive, myself, Polly Hall, and Polly Gittings, of Baltimore; and if they are dead, the Great Grandchildren will come in for their equal parts of it, or part of other half.

Twelve: Now it is my will and desire and last request, that if either of the above named heirs appears to be dissatisfied, and brings any dispute or any suits, or causes any suits, or objects to this will being spread on record, in any attempt to debar my son John F. Willmott, whom I appoint my Executor, from carrying this will into effect, shall not inherit one cent what is bequeathed to them, and their parts are to be taken and divided equally amongst the balance of the heirs that is friendly to this will.

Thirteen: I will and desire in this will to make void and revoke all others heretofore made.

Given from under my hand and seal this sixteenth day of May eighteen hundred and thirty-eight. Acknowledged in the presence of the subscribing witness. Acknowledged and signed on the other side.

Col. Robert Wilmot and his brother John lived in Bourbon County, Kentucky, in the old homestead. The original homestead is located on Brown’s Station Pike and is about eleven miles from the city of Lexington.

The original house built before 1800 by Robert Wilmot, was located about forty yards to the north of the present brick house which was built by John Fletcher, son of Robert, around 1840. The foundation of the original house are partly visible at this time. The original house is approximately 20 by 40 feet. The ground is slightly higher than site of present house. Nearby is another house undoubtedly erected by Robert Wilmot. Built of beautifully hewn logs which are well preserved, two rooms long with an old fashioned rock, stack chimney between. An areaway, wide enough for the chimney with its broad foundations and shoulders, separates the rooms. This areaway is now closed, but was perhaps originally open. This must have been the kitchen originally used by Col. Wilmot and his family.

Adjacent to the house grounds and between the house now standing and that built by Col. Robert Wilmot and the barn and out-buildings, and slightly to the left is the family burial lot which covers a small space probably 30 by 50 feet and has a substantial iron fence about it. It was impossible to tell the exact number of graves in this plot. It is certain that there were twelve bodies, possibly more. Priscilla Dorsey Wilmot was buried there in 1814 and Col. Robert Wilmot in 1839. Rebecca Wilmot Scott is buried here, John Fletcher Wilmot and wife, Harriet Skillman Wilmot, two infant children of Isaac Franklin Wilmot and Nina Boone Wilmot are there. Hattie P. Cummins, daughter of Sarah Catherine Wilmot Cummins and Dr. B. F. Cummins also are there.

The monument over the graves of Col. Robert Wilmot and his wife Priscilla Dorsey was erected by their son John Fletcher who inherited the home place. It was hauled from Frankfort, Kentucky, before there were any railroads and during the trip the shaft was broken. It was never replaced, the broken shaft being used. The monument is pretentious considering the time when erected. It now stands about ten feet high and the first part of it is built square and on the top stands the broken shaft, three or four feet high. The inscriptions are on the faces of the square base; the material containing the inscriptions is a white, crumbling sandstone. It is with difficulty that the inscriptions can be read. They are as follows:

“Mrs. Priscilla Dorsey Wilmot died April 9, 1814 in the 52nd year of her age.”

“Col. Robert Wilmot was born December 25, 1757, in Maryland near Baltimore, enlisted in the Revolutionary Army in 1776, remained five years an artillery officer. Married Priscilla Dorsey, April 17, 1781. Moved to Bourbon County, Kentucky, about 1792. Represented the county seven years and was a member of the Convention. Died August 5, 1839.”

“This monument erected to their memory by their son, John Fletcher Willmott.”

MISCELLANEOUS—MARYLAND AND KENTUCKY

Maryland Calendar of Wills, Vol. 3, page 95, contains the will of Henry Willmutt, Dorchester County, dated February 26, 1696—probated June 4, 1707. To his daughter, Eliza, 50 acres of land known as “Willmutt’s Adventure”.

RUTH WILMOT, married January 26, 1784, by Rev. Mr. West, Nathan Bowen to Ruth Wilmot. (Reference Baltimore Marriage License.)

Benjamin Willmot lived in Easton, Maryland, and was a watch maker by trade. See deed dated June 12, 1801, from George Brinsfield to said Willmot. Purchased and owner all or part of the Estate known as “Londonderry”, adjoining the town of Easton, and sold land adjoining the Court House. See Book J. L. No. 29, page 98; also see same book under date of September 20th, 1801. Benjamin Willimott was evidently single as he signed all deeds alone. He sold "Middle Neck" to William Harrington December 8th, 1801, and this transaction is recorded in the above book. There are many real estate transactions between 1798 and 1828.

He executed a deed March 17, 1802, sold house in Easton. See page 314. He was Justice of the Peace and acknowledged bill of sale of negro boy August 21, 1802. See page 444 of the same book.

Married in this city on Tuesday evening last, by the Reverend Mr. Judd, Mr. Robert Getty of George Town, to the amiable Miss Margaret Wilmot of this city. (Reference Baltimore Gazette, December 29, 1808.)

David A. Willmoth, M.D., Louisville, Kentucky, b. in Hardin County, Ky., Oct. 24, 1874, s. of William and Parmelia (Klinglesmith) Willmoth. Father b. in Hardin County, Kentucky, in 1851, the son of Louis Willmoth, a Virginian, who came with his parents from Virginia, settling in Washington County, Kentucky. The Willmoths have been farmers and a few generations back were noted as breeders and trainers of thoroughbred race horses.

Robert Wilmot of Frankfort, Kentucky, writes under date of March 27, 1906: "Chester R. Wilmot, Louisville, Kentucky, is my only son. I am the only son of William Wilmot who was an only son of Robert Wilmot who came to the United States from England in 1815 in Frankfort, Kentucky. He left a brother and sister in England".

SECTION SIX

CONNECTICUT

From information obtained abroad, it appears that "a large proportion of the members of the New Haven Colony came from Hereford, Surrey, Kent, London, Warwickshire (Coventry, 1597) and Yorkshire".

THE CONNECTICUT BRANCH OF THE WILMOT FAMILY

History does not record the motive which prompted the pioneer immigrant, Benjamin Wilmot, to leave his home in England to migrate to the Colony of Connecticut. The record is silent as to whether he was in search of religious freedom or whether he was a person in difficulty by reason of taking issue with a dominant political party of his day and generation in England; or whether he had heard of the richness of lands and the opportunities of acquiring land with plenty of room to establish a home in England's plantations and colonies in America. Whatever the reason, he came and came to stay. He became the head, or progenitor, of numerous families bearing his name who have distinguished themselves as citizens in nearly all the walks of life. We find them early taking part in the political affairs of the Colonial towns, cities and communities. We find them sending their sons to quell Indian uprisings and to maintain law and order; and to make their contribution to the organization and support of churches, schools and colleges.

Their patriotism and devotion to liberty are fully evidenced by the fact that their gallant sons, enlisted in the Revolutionary Army in the cause of freedom. Names of this family's sons appear as officers of the line, supported by recommendations of their home, civic and political citizens and private soldiers names adorn the pages of Colonial and Revolutionary history.

Radiating from the original New Haven Colony, the descendants of this first immigrant have gone to other states and established homes. We find them in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, and also in southern and western states.
It is doubtful if any of the other migration of the Wilmot family to America has produced a larger, or more widely scattered membership than the Connecticut branch. For this reason it has been very difficult to secure the names, addresses, and other data necessary to present complete families records.

The compiler and author is greatly indebted, and extends grateful thanks, to Donald Lines Jacobus of New Haven, Connecticut, and Horace J. Willmot of Massillon, Ohio, for permission to use their family data on this line of the family headed by Benjamin Wilmot, the Connecticut immigrant.

The Wilmot Family of New Haven, Connecticut, by Donald Lines Jacobus contains certain duplications in his Wilmot Family which follows: "Both lines are given with this explanation, that one was prepared quite a good many years ago and the data was not as complete as that which appears in his "Families of Ancient New Haven".

THE WILMOT FAMILY OF NEW HAVEN, CONN.
By Donald Lines Jacobus

1. Benjamin Wilmot and his wife Ann settled early in New Haven, Conn. At "a Court the 2th of Maye 1648," "Old Goodman Willmote and Samuel Marsh tooke the oathe of fidelitie" (Colonial Records, vol. i, p. 111). His son Benjamin was in New Haven at least as early as 1641. On May 1, 1654, "Old Goodman Wilimot desired the Court, that his son may be freed from training which was considered, and with reference to his own age, his wife's weakness, and their living at a Farm, his Son was freed, only is to attend as other Farmers do" (Colonial Records, vol. ii., p. 180). The son referred to was William. The father, Benjamin, died Aug. 18, 1669, aged "about fourscore"; and his wife died Oct. 7, 1668.

ABBREVIATIONS FOR SOURCES OF INFORMATION

These abbreviations are made up of two parts, the first signifying the town, the second, the kind of record. Thus, in NHV, NH means New Haven and V the vital statistics of that town. In WdT1, the Wd means Woodbridge and T a gravestone inscription, the figure following the T designating a particular graveyard. In HC2, the H stands for Hamden and C for a Congregational church there, the figure following the C specifying the particular church. NoHx means the Episcopal church of North Haven, x always standing for an Episcopal church and NoH for North Haven. A list of general symbols for towns and kinds of record are given below, followed by a list (arranged alphabetically by symbols) of the specific record sources.

GENEALOGICAL RECORD OF THE WILLMOT FAMILY
By Horace J. Willmot
When and where this name began is not known, but the branches of this family tree have increased in number until they are scattered throughout our country. In order that coming generations may know something of past generations I have, for several years, been gathering data to provide a genealogical record of the Willmot Family. I now prepare this record, which is, to the best of my knowledge, correct and reliable.

The family records of my family, as well as those of my father, my grandfather, and my great-grandfather, are still in existence and in their own handwriting, and the records of those back farther were furnished me by relatives and friends who procured same from official records in libraries, etc.

From my four grandchildren, Donald Curtiss Willmot, David Melvin Cunningham, and Ruth Wilma Cunningham, and Ralph Willmot Cunningham, all of Massillon, Ohio, back to the oldest ancestor by name, Willmot, whom I have record at this date, there are, inclusive, eleven generations, as Americans.

(Some duplication appears between the Jacobus and Horace J. Willmot lines. Both are reproduced as given.—The Compiler.)

CORRECT SPELLING OF FAMILY NAME

The name, Wilimot, Wilmot, Wilmott, Willmott and Willmote has been often changed, (usually by others than the possessors of such names, but sometimes by the possessor himself). For instance, my brother “Guy Johnson Wilimot” in the last years of his life changed his signature from Wilimot to Wilmot. My father’s brother, James Stewart Willmot, did, during the later years of his life, use “Wilmot” as signature.

PROBABLE NATIONALITY

In support of my assumption that my earliest American ancestor was English, I refer the reader to the New International Encyclopedia (1916), Second Edition, Vol. XX, Page 61; The Encyclopedia Americans (1928), Vol. 23, page 589; and The Encyclopedia Brittanica, 14th Edition, Vol. 19 (1929), page 362. From these we learn that Henry Wilmot was the First Earl of Rochester and that he died in 1658.

His son, John Wilmot, then became the 2nd Earl of Rochester at the age of 11 years. He was born at Ditchley, Oxfordshire, April 10, 1647, and was an English poet, wit, and courtier. He had entered Wadham College, Oxford, when only 12 years old and when 14 was, with other persons of rank, made a M.A. by Lord Clarendon. On leaving Oxford he traveled in France and Italy with a tutor, after which he became attached to the Court and rose high in favor with Charles II, who made him one of the gentlemen of the Bedchamber and Comptroller of Woodstock Park. He had also served with credit in the fleet under Lord Sandwich. He married, at the age of 20 years, a beautiful heiress, Miss Mallett.

He wrote prose and verse with facility, and Anthony Wood speaks of him as "the greatest scholar among the nobility of his day." "The Edition of his poems contains such exquisite lyrics as entitle him to rank as the best song writer between Carew and Burns." His published works include many love songs, and elegant "Imitations of Horace on Lucilius," "A Satire Against Man", "An Essay of Nothing", and others. He wrote the famous epigram on Charles II, asserting that he "Never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one." He died July 26, 1680, leaving a son, Charles, the 3rd Earl of Rochester, who died the following year, Nov. 12, 1681.

WILMOT

Benjamin Wilmot was born in England and settled in New Haven, Connecticut in the early days of that colony. He took the oath of fidelity May 2, 1648. His son Benjamin was in New Haven as early as 1641. On May 1, 1654, "Old Goodman Wilmot desired the Court that his son may be freed from training which was considered, and with reference to his own age, his wife's weakness and their living on a farm, his son was freed only to attend as other farmers do". The son referred to was William. Benjamin Wilmot died August 18, 1669, aged "about fourscore", and his wife October 7, 1668. Children: Ann, Benjamin and William, who continues the line and is further mentioned below.

William, son of Benjamin Wilmot, took the oath of fidelity, May 22, 1654. He married October 14, 1658, Sarah, daughter of John and Tabitha Thomas. He died in 1689, and his wife, December 28, 1711, aged seventy-two. Children: Benjamin, born March 7, 1661; Sarah, March 8, 1663; William, October 17, 1665; John, January 20, 1667; Anna, February 26, 1670; Alexander, December 13, 1672; Tabitha, November 12, 1675;
Mary, January 7, 1677; Thomas, September 21, 1679; Elizabeth, March 24, 1682.

John, son of William Wilmot, was born January 20, 1667. He married Sarah, daughter of John and Sarah (Smith) Clark. After his death, she married Lieutenant Daniel Sperry, February 7, 1733. Children of John and Sarah Wilmot: Sarah, born February 26, 1695; John, May 4, 1696; Mercy, February 3, 1698; Elizabeth, April 20, 1703; Joseph, May 28, 1706; Anna (twin) February 11, 1709; Rebecca (twin); Amy married January 5, 1738, Obed Johnson Valentine born December 14, 1713.

Valentine, son of John Wilmot, lived in Woodbridge, Connecticut, married Rachel, daughter of Isaac and Abigail (Cooper) Johnson. Children: Valentine, born August 9, 1785, died before 1753; Amy, July 14, 1737, died young; Amy, June 15, 1739; Experience, September 14, 1741; Rachel, August 11, 1743; Rebecca baptized 1745; Eunice baptized March 29, 1747; Abigail baptized January 22, 1749; Lois baptized September 30, 1750; Valentine baptized September 30, 1753; Walter 1755.

Valentine 2 son of Valentine 1 Wilmot was baptized September 30, 1753, died in 1828. Was a farmer and lived in Milford, Connecticut. Married Martha. Children: John, Nancy, Finnette who married Eliphat Tyrrell.

John 2 son of Valentine 2 Wilmot was born in 1779 in Milford, now Bethany, Connecticut, and died there in 1837. Married Asenath Clark, born April 29, 1789, died February 1, 1887, daughter of Andrew and Annie Clark. Her father served in the Revolutionary War with gallantry and distinction.

The following Wilmots served in the Revolution: John, David, Daniel, Amos, Elisha, Francis, Joel, John A., Joseph, Samuel, Thomas, Timothy, Walter.

The early records of the Probate Court of New Haven, Connecticut, show the Will of Benjamin Wilmott, Sr., aged “about four score”. Will made August 7, 1669, contained bequests to three children of son Benjamin to Benjamin, Nathan and Mary Burrill, and Lydia French, children of his daughter Anna and to son William.

William Judson made a will September 20, 1661, to wife’s daughters, Hannah and Elizabeth Wilmot.

BENJAMIN WILMOT
Born 1589—Died Aug. 18, 1669.

When and from where the above named ancestor came it has not been my pleasure to learn, but he and his wife Ann, are recognized in “Families of Ancient New Haven” by Donald Lines Jacobus, page 1981; and “New England History and Gen. Register,” Vol. 59, page 67; as having settled early in New Haven, Conn., and per Court Entry 1654 A. D., Colonial Records, Vol. 2, page 180, we learn that his son, Benjamin, was in New Haven as early as 1641. There were two other children Ann and William, according to the “Court Entry”.

Benjamin was about 31 years of age when the Mayflower landed in 1620, (wherever he was) and was about 13 years old when Bartholomew Gosnold sailed directly across the Atlantic.
for the American coast, discovering the continent near Nahant, May 14, 1602, and, sailing southward landed upon a sandy point which he named Cape Cod. The French had not yet turned their attention to the New World. He was 20 years old when Henry Hudson anchored in New York Bay. From four to seven weeks were required to cross the Atlantic then. I have been unable to obtain the record of birth of Ann, wife of Benjamin, but she died October 7, 1668, and he died less than a year later, Aug. 18, 1669.

From the "Colonial Records, Vol. 1, Page 111, it would appear that the above Benjamin was also named or nicknamed "Goodman" for they show that on May 2, 1648, "Old Goodman Willmote and Samuel Marsh tooke the oathe of fidelitie."

Of the three children before mentioned we have no record of either Ann or Benjamin, but will on the following pages give the record available of William Wilmot.

WILLIAM WILMOT
Born about 1638—Died 1689.

William Wilmot took the oath of fidelity May 22, 1654. (This per New England Historical & Genealogical Register—by Jacobus, page 67.) He was married October 14, 1658, to Sarah Thomas, who was born about 1640 and died Dec. 28, 1711. She was the daughter of John and Tabitha Thomas. * * *

To them were born ten children;—note there was a "Benjamin" named after William's father. A William after himself; and an "Anna" probably after his (William's) sister. The names and dates of births of the ten children will follow below, but the dates of their deaths I have been unable to obtain.

1. Benjamin—b. 1661.
2. Sarah—b. 1663.
5. Anna—b. 1670.
6. Alexander—b. 1672.
7. Tabitha—b. 1675.
8. Mary—b. 1677.
10. Elizabeth—b. 1682.

THOMAS WILMOT³
b. Sept. 21, 1679—d. 1752.

He was the ninth child of William Wilmot and Sarah Thomas Wilmot, and was baptised in Woodbridge, Conn., in 1748, when in his 69th year.

On June 27, 1705, he was first married to Mary Lines, by J. P. Maj. Ebenezer Johnson. They resided at New Haven, Conn. Had five children.
1. William⁴—b. 1706.
2. Ezekiel⁴—b. 1708.
3. Daniel⁴—b. 1710.

On Mar. 2, 1721, Thomas³ again married, this time to Sarah Barnes Moulthrop, to whom one child was born.
1. Mary⁴—b. 1725. She married John Beecher in 1744.

Thomas⁸ Wilmot was a Captain according to a report furnished the writer by Amelia Wilmot, of Mantua, Ohio, in 1930. It is believed that a sword now in the writer’s possession, having been handed down from his father, A. D. Wilmot, who said it had been handed down for several generations; was the property of Thomas⁸ Wilmot, but if not, then presumably it was the property of one of the next (fourth) generation, of which several from that family were in the Revolutionary War.

ASA WILMOT

He was the fifth child of Thomas Wilmot and Mary Lines Wilmot, and was united in marriage in 1740 to Sarah Johnson, by Rev. Mr. Noyes. Sarah Johnson was born Nov. 1, in 1715 and died Jan. 24, 1804 at Waterbury, Conn., aged 89 years. To this union the following eight children were born.

1. Elijah—b. 1742—m. Hannah Hine.
3. Asa—b. 1748—d. young.

ASA WILMOT

b. Aug. 6, 1752—d. 1804 in Cheshire, Conn.

This Asa Wilmot was the fifth child of Asa Wilmot, and was married on Jan. 10, 1776, to Esther Curtiss—b. Jan. 10, 1757.

He was in the Revolutionary War, as were also his next older brother Thomas and his three younger brothers, Amos, Joel and Elisha.

To these parents were born the following ten children:

Abraham is the one from whom the Claridon, Geauga Co., Ohio, Wilmots descended, of which Charles Wilmot, Attorney of Chardon, Ohio, is a descendant. Charles’ father was Frank Wilmot, deceased, to who reference will probably be made later in this record. Another Claridon Wilmot is Marshall J.

Note:—Part of the information regarding Asa Wilmot and his ten children (six’s) was furnished me by Marshall J. Wilmot, of Claridon, Ohio, May 31, 1913, who stated the information was secured by Albert Turner from an old Bible (90 years old) at New Haven, Conn.

ASA WILLMOT (or Wilmot) 6

The Bible belonging to Asa 6 Willmott is in the possession of and before the writer, Horace J. Willmott, Massillon, Ohio, the great-grandson of Asa 6 Willmott. The family record in same furnishes me with official dates of his family.

Asa 6 Willmott was the fifth child of Asa 5 Wilmot and of Esther Curtiss Wilmot, his wife.

Asa 6 was an apprentice of John Ford at the carpenter's trade, in 1804, and worked on the first academy built in Burton, which was completed in 1806. They were the first carpenters in Burton, Ohio.

He married Abigail Marie Durand, Feb. 17, 1811, the ceremony was performed by J. P. Lyman, Burton. They settled a mile north of Burton Village, and built the house long known as the Stoddard house. In taking down the chimney of this house, years later, a brick was found on which was distinctly marked the print of a deer's foot. The brick is now in the possession of the Historical Society. Asa 6 lived about seventeen years after the death of his wife, he spent his last years at the home of his son, Curtiss Guy, on Oak Hill, where he died Nov. 21, 1858, and was buried in Burton, Ohio, December 14th.

Abigail Marie was bapt. in Dec. 14, 1793, and died May 29, 1841, and was buried in Burton, O. Most of this Willmot family are buried near the center of the cemetery to the southwest of Burton Hill near the Cuyahoga River.

The five children of Asa 6 were:

4. Asa⁷—b. Apr. 13, 1820—d._____

Apparently Asa⁷ went back east, was married, and lost his wife sometime between March 1849, and Dec. 25, 1855, according to two letters from Asa⁷ to his brother Curtiss G.⁷ Asa⁷ had a son George E.⁸ who was in the 1st. Conn. Heavy Artillery in the Civil War.

Sometime before Oct. 26, 1862, Asa⁷ married again and a four-page letter of above date mailed from New Haven Oct. 28, 1862, to Curtiss G.⁷ did not reach him as Curtiss died on the date Asa mailed it.

This family was one of the early pioneers of Geauga Co., Ohio, with whom they are entitled to our grateful recognition for laying the foundation of our prosperity and happiness. Coming from New England homes with their rugged character, sterling worth, economical habits, love of liberty and equality, high ideas of religion and interest in education, they indelibly stamped like characteristics, generally upon their offspring. Let us revere their memory, emulate their worth, and practice their virtues. Frank Denton of Chardon, O., wrote for the Pioneer History of Geauga Co., "God bless the brave old Pioneers, Who forged our native land! Their names and deeds my soul reveres, I love that noble band, O yes, as long as Freedom's Sun On Hopes bright sky appears, Next to the men at Lexington, Shall be the Pioneers."

ABRAHAM WILMOT

Abraham Wilmot was the 8th child of the 10 children of Asa Wilmot, the 2nd, (Gen. 5th) and was therefore a brother of Asa Wilmot, the 3rd, (Gen. 6th).

Abraham Wilmot and descendants are often spoken of as the Claridon (Geauga Co., Ohio) Wilmots, while Asa Wilmot, and descendants, are oftentimes referred to as the Burton, or South Burton (Geauga Co., Ohio) Willmots. From "Pioneer History of Geauga Co., 1880: we condense the facts that Abra­ham came to Claridon, O., from Cheshire, Conn., on foot with Samuel Newel, in 1815. (His Brother Asa, a Carpenter, had come to Burton, Ohio, about 10 years before.) Mr. Wilmot and Mr. Newel selected lot 3 section 12 and divided it, Abraham taking the west half, Newel the East, and the price paid was $3.00 per acre. Abraham returned to Cheshire, Conn., in 1817. He married Nancy Tuttle, and brought his bride to Claridon, Ohio, in 1818. Nancy was born June 23, 1797, died June 2, 1875. They found a house into which they moved, about a mile and a half from his land. He chopped trees and put up a cabin on his own land, and moved into it in the spring of 1819. Later he erected good buildings on his land. They raised six children; a seventh child, Thomas, lived only seven weeks. In 1877 five of Abraham’s children lived in Claridon. All of the family and 13 of the grandchildren were professors of religion and members of the Congregational Church, of which Abraham and wife had been members for more than 40 years. Their children were:

CHARLES J. WILMOT7
b. May 24, 1822—d. April 2, 1887.

Charles J. Wilmot, the 3rd child, but the 1st son of Abra­ham and Nancy Tuttle Wilmot was a great addition to the then growing numbers of those sturdy pioneers, and had an excellent helpmeet and wife in Arabella Moffitt, of Claridon, O., to whom he was married about 1849-50. She was born in Genesee Co., New York, about 1828 and died in Claridon, Ohio, April 27, 1874, Charles J. died in Claridon, Ohio, where both are buried.

Children:

2. Hubert H.—d. in Iowa—m. Mary Watts. One dau. living in Claridon, Ohio, Faye Starr.

FRANK ARTHUR WILMOT

Frank Arthur Wilmot, the first born of three sons was born in Hambden, Geauga Co., Ohio, and married Anna Louisa Brewster at Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 18, 1874. She was born May 27, 1847, in Cleveland, Ohio, and died in February 1908. Both died at and are buried in Claridon, Ohio. The children of this union were:

1. Charles Austin—a. Sept. 22, 1875, in Cleveland, Ohio—m. Mable Shaw of Chardon, Ohio. They have one son, King Wilmot, who resides in Chardon.

From Press notice in Chardon, Ohio, newspaper of death and funeral of Frank Arthur Wilmot—"Frank A. Wilmot was born Dec. 28, 1850, in Hambden, Ohio, in a home which his father, Charles Wilmot, had built from logs which grew on a wooded tract of 800 acres, which his grandfather purchased in the days when clearings in Geauga County were few and far between. As he grew into boyhood and manhood in this comfortable, primitive home and his strength increased he sided more and more in the operations of the growing farm and helped enlarge the clearing around the home. Anne L. Brewster was a direct descendant of Rev. Wm. L. Brewster of Mayflower fame. Mr. Wilmot was educated in Claridon and Oberlin College and after coming to Claridon he was an active promoter of the idea of good roads movement as far back as 1892. He took a leading part in the improvement of the splendidly creditable condition of Claridon cemetery.

WALTER ABRAHAM WILMOT
b. Aug. 5, 1880.

Walter Abraham Wilmot was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and was the 3rd son of the 5 children of Frank Arthur Wilmot, all boys. He married Nina May Starr on Feb. 18, 1901, they reside at Huntsburg, O. She was born Dec. 16, 1877. They operate a business at Huntsburg, O. To them two children were born:

MARGARET PAULINE WILMOT
b. Mar. 23, 1902.

Margaret Pauline Wilmot born at Youngstown, O., married Harlan Edmond Tucker, Oct. 16, 1925. He was born at Huntsburg, O., Feb. 2, 1904, and died Aug. 27, 1927. They had one child, Ellen—b. Aug. 4, 1926, at Mesopotamia, O. Margaret and her daughter, Ellen, make their home with Margaret's parents at Huntsburg, O.

ELIZABETH WILMOT
b. April 22, 1906.

CURTISS GUY WILMOT

He was the first born child of Asa and therefore the first of this family born in Geauga Co. He was born in Burton, probably North part, but established a farm home on Oak Hill, where he lived and died.

He married Polly Ann Charter, of Burton, July 21, 1836. She was one of the thirteen children of Solomon and Olive Charter, who had seven girls and six boys as follows:

1. Abigail Charter—m. Garry Crampton.
2. Electa Charter—m. Elisha Carlton.
6. Arville Charter—m. Seth Cady.
7. Emily Charter—m. Wm. Faze.

The six boys were: Derius, Oliver, Solomon, Henry, Reuben and Eli.

Henry was a whaler in the Atlantic; Eli a violinist in Cleveland. Solomon Charter located on N. W. corner of lot 42 near Baird's mill, in Burton, O., in 1810. His wife, Olive, was a daughter of Nathan Parks. He was early engaged in cutting the first road toward Burton from Troy, and was a great chopper. Born in Orwell, Vt., Apr. 3, 1792, Nathan Parks came to Burton about 1799 and once had the windows of his house broken by the Indians. Andrew D. Willmot always claimed that Solomon Charter was a Scotchman, that Polly Ann was one-half Scotch, making Andrew one-fourth Scotch, and the writer one-eighth Scotch; and the Scotch ancestors came from near Leeds, and that they left wealth in England where the name was spelled Chater. Henry Charter, brother of Polly Ann, spent several months in England to recover same but without results.

To Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Willmot were born seven children as follows:

Certainly a great handicap befell this excellent family when on Jan. 16, 1856, the Reaper Death deprived it of the wife and mother in her 39th year, leaving Lorilla under 6 years, Henry under 8, Polly under 10, James under 12, Curtiss T. 14 and Andrew under 16. Elizabeth had married about two years before. Again the Reaper gathered another, Curtiss Thomas, five months and ten days later. It placed a great responsibility on Andrew who realized such, and for several years looked after the welfare of, and guarded the children. How well, they always showed by their great love and friendship for him. They all developed into honorable, just and upright adults bound to one another in friendship and love. In later years Henry Newton Willmot went west and lived and died unmarried at Douglass, Butler Co., Kansas, on August 30, 1873.

For a record of the other remaining children of this union, see later pages of this genealogy.

Curtiss Guy later married Lucy Ann Rhodes, of Middlefield, O. To them was born one child George Abram Willmot who died at about four years of age. Curtiss Guy died October 28, 1862, and was buried in Burton, O., cemetery by the Cuyahoga River.

ANN ELIZABETH WILLMOT

She was the first child of Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Charter Willmot, born at Oak Hill in Burton, Ohio, married Charles William Gould, Aug. 27, 1853.

ANDREW DURAND WILLMOT

He was the second child, and first son of Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Willmot, was born at Oak Hill in Burton, Ohio. On the early death of his mother, his sister (older) being married, he assumed a large portion of the care and guidance of the other children, varying in age from less than six years old to him, then less than sixteen.

He worked, away from home, for board and continued to attend school two years, 1856 and 1857. He worked from before daylight to fifteen minutes before school time and from time school was out till supper time, and after supper till 9 p. m. Andrew tried the baking business with Myric & Cady, in Cleveland one year from Mar. 1857 to Mar. 1858, but it did not agree with his health. He later did much trapping and made a business of trapping with George Brown for two winters.

He apprenticed at shoe making for Nathan Truman, in Burton, and finished the trade with James L. Johnson, in Parkman, O. He was married to Marcia Johnson, of Nelson, a descendant of Governor Bradford of the Mayflower, by “Squire” Butts, June 12, 1863, at Cuyahoga Rapids, Ohio. The village property at Parkman, the second house west of the M. E. Church was their home till 1886 and was the birthplace of three children, all boys.

He had bought out his “boss”, J. L. Johnson, and continued in this business until about 1872 and was recognized as a high grade workman.

Again changing business on account of health, he learned the carpentering trade with Stilmon Pulsipher, Alva Sperry, et al., then began for himself. As a high grade carpenter, he worked on hundreds of buildings in Parkman and surrounding towns, among which were the High School Building, the Congregational Church, and Opera House in Markman, Y.M.C.A.
at Hiram, School House at West Farmington, etc. He also did light farming and carpentering after 1886. Marcia died, Jan.
26, 1916, aged 77 years, two months and 13 days. She was buried in the North cemetery at Parkman, O.

Soon after Marcia’s death, Andrew with Burritt C. and his wife and Guy J. sold the farm and moved to a new home on North Street, Garrettsville, O. Here Andrew Durand died Sept. 24, 1921, in his 82nd year. He was buried by the side of his wife in Parkman, O. They were both Congregationalists.

Andrew had early developed natural musical talent and for years furnished orchestra music. He was also a member of the old Parkman Band organized about 1866, and he was a charter member of the present Buckeye band for years. About 1880 he organized Willmot’s orchestra which was maintained for over 20 years.

Andrew and Marcia enjoyed 53 years of married life. They celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary on June 12, 1913, at Maple Grove. They were both firm believers in the Christian faith. Their Christian virtues were widely recognized and their influences had always been for good. Three children were born to them.

JAMES STEWART WILLMOT

He was the fourth child of Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Willmot, and was born on the farm at Oak Hill, in Burton, O. He was about eleven years of age when his mother died. His fine character and worth, that would have been ordinarily attributed to one of more mature years, asserted its manliness and he, with his brother Andrew Durand so successfully coped with the situation in looking after the welfare of the other younger members of the family, that the results were a complete success and culminated in producing fine, sturdy, pure characters of all, who were recognized as valuable citizens in their respective locations. The great regard of those who knew them was not exceeded, however, by that fraternal regard that one had for another among the brothers and sisters and their husbands and wives.

He was, later, greatly favored, and justly, by the winning of the heart and hand of Emily Adesta Hall, a well educated and accomplished daughter of Alanson and Caroline Hall. Mr. Hall was from Old Lyme, Conn., hence another pioneer from New England.

James Stewart Willmot and Emily Adesta Hall were married April 11, 1869.

He was a cheese maker for years, as well as a farmer, in youth, and for several years lived at Colebrook and other towns in northeastern Ohio. For a number of years resided at Stokes, Virginia, on a large plantation home, on the James River. Later he organized and promoted the Keystone Butter Company, Johnstown, Penna., which he managed with his nephew and partner, Charles William Gould very successfully. They lived there until James Stewart Willmot retired from active business, after which they resided for about twelve years at Linesville, Penna., in a fine home he built there, among loving relatives and admiring neighbors.

He passed on out of the activities of the living Mar. 3, 1922, after fifty-three years of happy, contented married life. His illness was of but a few weeks, against which he made a brave but ineffectual struggle. He was a man of sterling character, which won the respect of all who knew him. He was a faithful and conscientious member of the Universalist Church, regular in his attendance and liberal in support of its interest, having been for several years, and until his death, one of the board of trustees of the local church.

He was a member of Pine Lodge F. & A. M. at Linesville. His wise council and friendly aid was often sought and were greatly missed after his demise.

The faithful wife is still living as this record is being prepared. She sold the home at Linesville and now spends her winters in Florida. She spends summers with relatives and friends in Ohio and Pennsylvania, with her brother, Preston Hall, and great niece, Mrs. Thomas Corrigan, at Salem, Ohio.

POLLY AGUSTA WILLMOT

She was the fifth child of Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Willmot, born on Oak Hill, Burton, Ohio, April 11, 1846. Her mother died when she was in her tenth year.

She married Johnie Bower Nov. 24, 1867. Her married life was short as Mr. Bower was shot, accidentally or otherwise, while hunting. He died Sept. 18, 1870. In later years Polly Agusta married Jerry Reinhart. They resided on a farm for many years at Brecksville, Ohio, where she died Jan. 16, 1905, and was buried in Brecksville.

LORILLIA EDNA WILLMOT

She was the seventh child of Curtiss Guy and Polly Ann Willmot, and was left motherless at six years of age. She lived with her sister Ann Elizabeth for a few years. She married Albert Barnes Griffing, a cheese maker, at New Lyme, Ashtabula Co., O., December 22, 1872. He died April 1, 1930.

GUY JOHNSON WILLMOT

He was the first of three children, all sons, born to Andrew Durand Willmot and his wife Marcia Willmot. All three children were born and reared in Parkman, where they attended Parkman Schools and were brought up as Congregationalists.

At about twenty years of age he went west, going first to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he found employment in office work. He went later to Omaha, Nebraska, and thence to Deadwood, S. D., where he was connected with the Gem Theatre. While in Deadwood he was married to Miss May Steinberg of Philadelphia, Penna. Later they lived in Richmond, Virginia, Baltimore, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa. Later came back to Parkman where he found work, first in the J. L. Johnson Grocery & Drug Store, and then moved to Mantua for two years as gardener for Newton Rice. They again returned to Council Bluffs where he lived a number of years, after which they spent three years in Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles, and Tucson, Ariz., and partially regained his health, but at a serious financial loss. His love and loyalty to his parents, brothers, and friends, never waned and they reciprocated in kind.

A stroke, some months before his last illness, made his last summer a disturbing one. His last illness was only for a week and was undoubtedly caused and aggravated by his brother Burritt’s illness.

He died October 19, 1931, at Burritt Willmot’s home, Garretsville, O. not conscious of the fact that Burritt his brother had died the day previous, Oct. 18, 1931. A double funeral service and burial was held for them, and Guy was buried on the family lot, by his mother, in the North Cemetery in Parkman, O.

BURRITT CLYDE WILLMOT

He was the second of three children, born to Andrew Durand Willmot and his wife, Marcia Willmot. Burritt’s musical interest and talents were exceptional, being a fine violinist, trombonist; he had a fine ear for music but an undeveloped voice. He was for years connected with his father's, other orchestras, of Parkman, O., and Cleveland, O., Garrettsville Band and other musical organizations. Seldom a day passed that songs, hymns and music in his home were not indulged.

He early learned the carpenter's trade from his father, and followed in his father's footsteps until recently. He worked at different times in Geauga, Lake and Trumbull counties, and Warren, Cleveland and Youngstown, O. He lived in Parkman during his early life, then for a time in Charidon, later at Maple Grove, and in his last years at Garrettsville.

He was united in Marriage to Miss Della Whitcomb of Parkman, O. Dec. 3, 1912. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whitcomb, of Parkman, O. To them were born three daughters:

Mable Jane—b. July 17, 1919.

He was a very devoted son, husband and father, and took very splendid care of his parents in their declining years, residing with them as long as they lived. He was no less devoted to his brothers, Guy and Horace, and to his own family.

At the double funeral and burial of the brothers, Burritt and Guy, an overflowing crowd was present, including representatives of practically all of the living relatives and a host of friends from Parkman, O. their old home town.

Burritt's last illness lasted only about a week, he died Sunday, Oct. 18, 1931.

I, the only surviving brother, Horace J. Willmot, wish to modestly affirm that great credit is due to Guy and Burritt for what they went through in life. I particularly affirm that Burritt possessed a more marked degree, honesty, purity, faithfulness, and finer qualities, than any other I have ever known, in which opinion I feel sure all those who knew him will agree. The wife and two children are living at the home in Garrettsville, Ohio—1935.
HORACE JAMES WILLMOT
b. June 11, 1876

He was the third and last child, all sons, born to Andrew Durand Willmot and his wife, Marcia Willmot. He was born and raised in Parkman, O., and graduated from High School, class of 1896. In the school year 1896-97 he taught the Primary Department, in 1897-98 the first Intermediate Department. After three years of teaching in Parkman he entered the employ of the Foundryman’s Laboratory, of Cleveland, Ohio, and was stationed for the year at Toledo, O. as an inspector and sampler.

While in Toledo, he became acquainted with Anna L. W. Behrns, whose parents lived at Monroe, Michigan. Her mother, Dorothea Christine Behrns, was born in Germany and located in Monroe, Michigan, where both parents died and are buried. Horace and Anna were married in Toledo, Nov. 16, 1901 by Presbyterian Minister Rev. Coyle. Ill health of Horace’s mother made it advisable upon request, to locate temporarily in Parkman where they resided a few months in the Washington Hatch home, east of grist mill, then for one and a half years with his parents. Horace did agency work and operated for some time Lee W. Burton’s Printing Office. In June 1904 they moved to Chardon, O. where he was employed as Solicitor and Pressman by Elmer Reinoehl, owner of Geauga County Record. Later they built and resided in their own home on Maple Street.

In 1909 Mr. Reinoehl sold his interests in the Geauga Printing Co. and selected and induced Horace to enter his employ in Massillon, O., at Reinoehl Printing Co.’s office. Horace sold his Chardon, O., home, and June 9, 1909, moved to Massillon, Ohio, which has since been his residence.

Horace remained in the employ of Mr. Reinoehl from summer of 1904 to Mar. 8, 1930 since which time he has operated on his own business, the Willmot Sales Agency.

He played the cello in his father’s orchestra for eight years. Became a member of Western Phoenix Lodge, F. A. M. No. 296 at Parkman, O. and has reported, considerable for newspapers. His recreation from manual labor consisted largely in reading and exhaustive study of religions, economics, politics, and history and devoted considerable time to the study of optometry, medicine and other kindred subjects.

In Massillon his work was for several years divided between sole solicitor part time, till he had built up a large business for the firm and part time pressman. Later he was for several years, working foreman of the pressroom and bindery department, while during the last four years of his connection there he was in a special office and had charge of costs and cost accounting, etc.

BERTHA MARCIA WILMOT
b. June 21, 1916

Bertha, the first of three children, all girls, of Burritt Clyde Willmot and Della Anna. Born at Maple Grove, Troy Township, Geauga Co., O. Later the family moved to Garrettsville, Portage Co. where she attended the public schools and graduated from Garrettsville High School in the class of 1933, with high honors, holding first place in the bookkeeping class. She is a fine pianist, and also played the violin in the high school orchestra.

EDNA DELLA WILLMOT
b. June 2, 1917

Edna, the second of three children of Burritt Clyde Willmot and Della Anna Willmot was born at Maple Grove, Troy Tnp., Geauga Co., O. The family moved to Garrettsville, Ohio where she attended school and graduated from Garrettsville High School in the class of 1934, with honors for excellence in English. She completed the four year high school course in three years.

Edna was married May 16, 1938 at New Cumberland, W. Va. to John Edgar Murray, Jr. of Ravenna, Ohio. He was born in Willoughby, O. Feb. 23, 1918. He is the first child of John Edgar Murray.

MABLE JANE WILLMOT

CURTISS FREDERICK WILLMOT
b. Oct. 11, 1902

He was the first child of Horace James Willmot and Anna L. W. Willmot, and was born at Parkman, O. The family moved to Chardon, O. in 1904 then to Massillon, Ohio, June 9, 1909 where he began school at age seven with his sister, Marcia Christine, age six in the old North Street School. They continued and graduated together from Massillon High School, class of 1921.

Curtiss spent part time while in high school working at the Ohio Printing Co. plant, but after graduating accepted an office position with the City Engineer. In the fall of 1921 he received an appointment at the Massillon Post Office. He delivered Parcel Post until a carrier vacancy occurred, since when he has continued as letter carrier to the present date—April 1935.

He is musically inclined and plays the violin. He joined Sippe Lodge, I.O.O.F., was Noble Grand; is now a member of Eureka Encampment, (and was chief Patriarch), and Canton Patriarch’s Militant; and is a very enthusiastic work­er in Oddfellowship.

His marriage to Ethel Elizabeth Fisher, on June 1st, 1925 was solemnized by Rev. Donaldson of the First Baptist Church, Massillon, and following a wedding trip, they immediately began housekeeping in the new home already prepared at 824 Commonwealth Ave., N. E. where they still reside. She is the daughter of William Fisher and Anna Wenzinger Fisher, and was born in Jackson Township, Jan. 29, 1907.

One child: Donald Curtiss Willmot\textsuperscript{11}—b. Dec. 17, 1926.

She attended Longfellow School in grades and Junior High and graduated from Washington High School class of 1934 of which there were two hundred twenty-five members. She was on the Annual Board and typist of the annual and was one of the twenty-five selected to the National Honor Society.

She attended Kent State University from 1934 to 1936 when she graduated with honors. She secured a position teaching in the Massillon Public Schools. Her first position was as first grade teacher at Lincoln School where she taught three years, and was then transferred to the Sixth grade at Emerson School where she is now 1939-40. She is active in church work, having been a Sunday school teacher for a while as well as holding offices in the Sunday School and Young People's departments of the Baptist church. She was also president of the Massillon Youth Council, a member of the Stark Co. Youth Council, and editor of the "Link" a paper issued by the Wooster Association of Baptist Young People.

ELISHA WILMOT
b. Mar. 12, 1763—d.

Elisha was the son of Asa the first generation and Sarah Johnson Wilmot and was the youngest of eight children of this union. He married on Jan. 30, 1785 to Hannah Gladding, b. Aug. 27, 1764; died 1843 at Mantua, Ohio, and was buried in the Old South burial ground at Mantua. Hannah was the daughter of John Gladding, Jr. and Mrs. Lucretia Smith Gladding. They were both apparently from Bristol, Connecticut, Elisha resided at one time at Cheshire.

Elisha evidently died before 1814 for in that year Hannah G. Wilmot, a widow, came to Mantua, O. with her son "Ella" or "Elly" or "Elihu" as he has been variously called, and two daughters Esther, her eighth, and Cleona, her ninth child. Later she married Smith and lived in Dover, Ohio. After his death she returned to Mantua, O. where she died and is buried. Was member Congregational Church.

The children of Elisha and Hannah Wilmot were according to information furnished by a relative, Mrs. Doris Strong, to Maud A. Wilmot, of New Orleans, and she to Miss Minnie Wilmot, deceased of Mantua, O. and she presented the facts, to the writer as follows:
1. Electa—b. 1785—m. Tillotson Terrell in Conn. 1804. Emigrated to Ohio in 1810.
2. Betsey—b. 1787.
5. Ebenezer—m. (1) Harriett Pardy, (2) Phorbe Matson.

Elisha and his four brothers, Asa, Amos, Joel and Thomas were all in the Revolutionary War. Elisha enlisted May 18, 1780 and served the balance of the War. He was in Capt. Daniel Pendleton’s Company. (Ref. “Conn. Men of War of Rev., War of 1812, and Mexican War.”)

ELLA or ELLY or originally, ELIHU WILMOT
b. Feb. 26, 1789—d. Mar. 25, 1832

Note: The following is part of matter written by Martha Wilmot Squire, to Amzi Wilmot, in 1882, just after the laying of the corner stone of the foundation for the barn on the farm which was the first home of Ella (Elihu) and Lucretia Blair Wilmot, then the property of Amzi Wilmot, and later of William and Carrie Wilmot Spray. The original of the document is in the hands of Carrie Wilmot Spray.
Brother Amzi:—Here are a few lines that should have been deposited in the corner stone of the barn; but perhaps you may like to have them, even now. Years ago, I penned down the following just as mother told it to me.

"Ella Wilmot was born Feb. 26, 1789 at Cheshire, Conn. New Haven Co. He came to Ohio in Aug 1802 with Amzi Atwater, then went back to Conn. with Amzi Atwater in June 1805. He then moved to Mantua, O. Portage Co. in the spring of 1806.

SILAS WILMOT⁶

b. Oct. 18, 1790—d. Nov. 2, 1855

Note: Amelia Wilmot of Mantua (deceased), wrote that “the following was given by Mrs. Bertha Pember, a granddaughter of Silas, on Sept. 11, 1930, and is no doubt correct, as she obtained names and dates from an old Bible, gravestones in cemeteries and from memory.”

Silas, the 4th child and second son of Elisha Wilmot⁶ and Hanna Gladding Wilmot, was born in Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 18, 1790—d. in Eaton, Ohio, November 2, 1855. Married Chloe Tyler in 1810 and settled the same year in Eaton, Ohio. Chloe died Feb. 2, 1839, age 46 years. Their children were:

The above fourteen children are all of the 7th generation of this Wilmot Generation. Don Carlos Wilmot above 7 m. Deborah Phillips, Nov. 11, 1833—Their children were: Edgar Wilmot, Byron Wilmot and a daughter.

EBENEZER WILMOT 8

Ebenezer was the fifth child of Elisha and Hanna Gladding Wilmot, married (1) Harried Pardee; (2) Phoebe Matson. It is thought he settled in Liverpool Township, Medina County. It is also probable that he was married in Conn. The marriage records of Medina Co., O., have been searched and several marriages of Wilmots found, but as the parents names were not given there is no proof that they were descendants of 300 Ebenezer. Birth and death records were not kept in Ohio until 1867, making it difficult to trace the earlier generations.

ELISHA JOHNSON WILMOT
b. 1793—d. 1867

Elisha Johnson Wilmot was the sixth child of Elisha and Hanna Gladding Wilmot—b. at Wallingford, Conn. He came to Ohio and was married to Jerusha Bright of Shalersville, O., June 1824. Jerusha was born 1802, Portage Co., Ohio. The following names of their children are given from memory, being told by my (Amelia Minnie Wilmot) father, (Amzi Wilmot) and Aunt Sophronia:

Seth Wilmot, Thomas Wilmot, Willis G. Wilmot, Willard Wilmot, all residents of Pittsburgh, Penna.

Elisha Johnson Wilmot was in the war of 1812. There may have been other children. The only one we have record of is Willis G. Wilmot—b. 1826—married 1853 to Martha Conway. It is said he began with nothing but willing hands, ready mind, and that Willis early worked in a coal mine. They acquired a fine home, corner of Bouquet and Wilmot Streets, Pittsburgh, Pa., not far from the Carnegie Library and Art Institute. He was credited with having ability above the average miner. Howbeit he was promoted to overseer, rose to higher positions and became a coal merchant and shipped coal to New Orleans on river boats over the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. He spent winters in New Orleans and established business there. Later he became interested in boats that brought bananas from the West Indies. He went to Northern Michigan to oversee the building of a boat for the carrying. When completed this boat was taken through the lakes and St. Lawrence River on the way to New Orleans. Willis G. was a passenger on this boat and died on the voyage in 1897.

The children of Willis G. and Martha Conway Wilmot were: Constance Wilmot, a fine character, died aged 18 years. Robert Watson Wilmot—b. Feb. 19, 1858 at Pittsburgh, Pa.; Adele Wilmot—b. 1860—died in California and Maud Wilmot who died at age 15 years.

Robert Watson Wilmot, son of Willis G. Wilmot, son of Elisha Johnson Wilmot, son of Elish Wilmot, son of Asa Wilmot, the 1st was b. Feb. 19, 1858, at Pittsburgh, Pa., married Caroline Stanton of Chicago, Ill., October 19, 1878. She was the daughter of Thomas Stanton. Robert followed his father in business with success and located in New Orleans, Louisiana. He served in the State Legislature. He is now a retired Capitalist and Club Member. The children of Robert and Caroline are: Maud A.—b. in Chicago, Ill., interested in family history and a member of D.A.R., also Colonial Dames of America. She furnished the information regarding the brothers and sisters of Ella Wilmot and states that the early generations of Wilmots in Conn. were allied with the Yales, Dept. Gov. Matthew Gilbert, Thomas Gregson, William Ives, Capt. Nathaniel Turner, Rev. John Sherman, The Lines, Thompsons, Gov. Wm. Jones, Gov. Theophilus Eaton, etc. Line follows:

CONNECTICUT MISCELLANEOUS

Dr. Samuel Wilmot was a surgeon in the British Army. He came to America during the Revolutionary War, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Bunker Hill. Before an exchange was effected he met General Washington and became his ardent admirer. Dr. Wilmot was a man of prominence in his profession and served as surgeon to the King.

Dr. Robert Wilmot, son of Dr. Samuel Wilmot, was born in Exeter, England, graduated from Eton College, came to American in 1837, bringing with him his family, four sons and one daughter, Eliza Eardley Wilmot. One of his sons was drowned during the voyage. He went to Indiana, where he bought a farm and continued the practice of medicine. He featured the brain in his study and research work and published a book on that subject. He was above seventy-three when he died. Following his death, his son Robert conducted the farm for a time, but sold it a few years later and moved with his widowed mother to Michigan.

Samuel Russell Wilmot, son of Dr. Robert Wilmot, was born in England, July 28, 1829, died in Bridgeport, Connecticut, February 4, 1897, came to America with his parents, lived on the farm for a time, was an inventor and manufacturer, moved to Connecticut, married Sarah M. Guernsey in 1855.
She was born September 20, 1838. Children: Florence E. born
September 5, 1859 at Watertown, Connecticut, married Willis
F. Hobbs of Rhode Island; Jendall, died in infancy; Effie died at the age of three years; Frank Ashley, born in Brooklyn, New York, February 21, 1865; Ethel M. married Percy L.
Bryning.

Frank Ashley, son of Samuel Russell Wilmot, moved to Bridgeport, Connecticut, with parents in infancy. Married Florence Margaret Cartwright, September 26, 1888. Children:
Russell Cartwright Wilmot, born December 12, 1889; Margaret Florence, April 21, 1891, Dorothy Eardley, May 31, 1892, Gladys Elizabeth, September 15, 1893; Frank Ashley, December 20, 1899; Edwin Guernsey, February 3, 1902.

Savages Genealogical Dictionary, Vol. 4, pages 580-581, names a Thomas Braintree (Wilmot) "one of the petitioners for grant of a plantation on lands of Pumham, 1645, that the Indian Chief had sold to Garton and his fellow believers, whom our rulers for their misbelief had confiscated, is probably the same man who at Rehoboth married Mary Robinson, June 7, 1674, lived there June 27, 1678.

A former Wilmoth having died in February 1677, married Rachel Read, having his name ending with h, and, no doubt, in later days it has expanded to Wilmarth.

In October 1645, Thomas Willmott was among the freemen who were granted a plantation by Pumhame."

Samuel Wilmot a descendant of William Wilmot, the younger, baptized 1744 was a tory, moved to New Brunswick during the Revolutionary War became Major in British Army. His grandson, Lemuel Allen Wilmot was member of Parliament, Judge Supreme Court and Prime Minister and Attorney General of New Brunswick, as well as Governor of the Province—Robert Duncan Wilmot, another grandson, was a member of Parliament, Surveyor General, Provincial Secretary, Member of Privy Council of Canada, Speaker of the Canadian Senate and Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick.

Wilmot, lawyer from near Derby, England, lawyer for one John Ashwell, heir to William Ashwell, deceased, 1672.

Old Willmott, May 2, 1647, City of New Haven, Conn.; Benjamin Willmott, his son, drew lot 25 or a part of it 1641—June, 1639—Benjamin Willmott is one of the planters of New Haven, his name is given in an autograph signature.

George W. Wilmot of Fenton, Michigan says that his father’s name was George Washington Wilmot and grandfather’s name was Walter Wilmot. (See Family 30 of the Wilmot Family by Donald Lines Jacobus.)

Frank Wilmot of Bridal Veil, Oregon, states that he is the son of George Washington Wilmot of Fenton, Michigan, and that he has a Cousin, Dr. Borden Wilmot, an attorney in New York City.

Harvey E. Wilmot of St. Louis, Missouri, states that he was born in Missouri, that he is the son of Nathaniel H. Wilmot, born in Massachusetts, and grandson of Nathaniel N. Wilmot, whom he states was born in Salisbury, England.

J. E. Wilmot of Durant, Georgia, advises that he is from the Connecticut branch of the family and that his grandfather was named Eli T. Wilmot. No further record.
Arthur A. Wilmot of Wilmington, Del., says: The writer was born and reared in Wayne County, Pennsylvania, in the same vicinity in which David Wilmot grew up. I understand he spent his early boyhood days at Bethany, Pennsylvania, a few miles north of Honesdale. My father had moved to, and resided in, South Canaan Township, about thirteen miles west of Honesdale.

HON. DAVID WILMOT OF PENNSYLVANIA

David Wilmot—b. Jan. 20, 1814—d. March 16, 1868, aged 54 years. He descended from William Wilmot who was born in England and married Tabitha Thomas 1658—died 1689, leaving five sons and five daughters, all of whom married and had issue.

John, s. of Wm.—b. Jan. 20, 1667—m. Sarah Clark—father of nine children, among them Valentine—b. Dec. 14, 1713—m. Rachael Johnson and settled at Woodbridge, Connecticut where he remained for two generations.

Valentine's line included a son David and David's son Randall, father of David Wilmot of Proviso fame. Randall—b. May 20, 1792 at Woodbridge, Conn. Randall's mother was Lois Granis of Conn., his wife Mary Grant of Sullivan County, New York, is said to be a relative of the famous General in the Civil War, and President of the United States, Ulysses Grant.

By his first wife he had one son who was the Honorable David Wilmot of Pennsylvania and author of the famous "Wilmot Proviso". His second wife was Mary Carr, born Burlington, New Jersey, August 28, 1803. Their children were as follows:

Randall Wilmot died in Bozetta, Ohio July 9, 1876. His wife Mary died in the same place March 27, 1880.

David married Anna Morgan in Bethlehem, Penna., Nov. 28, 1836 and had three children.
1. Clarence Grant.
2. David.
3. Thomas Morgan

The first two of his children died before maturity; Thomas M. died in 1875 at the age of 30.

David Wilmot belonged to the Masonic fraternity, having joined Union Lodge No. 108, at Towanda, Pa., in 1844. He belonged to the Royal Arch Chapter, Masons; and also was an Odd Fellow. He was elected Member of Congress, later United States Senator; appointed Judge of Court of Claims. Died in Towanda, Pa., March 16, 1868, of congestion of the brain. President Lincoln offered him the cabinet post of Attorney General, which he declined.

He is buried in Riverside Cemetery, Towanda, Pa. His Headstone contains the following epitaph:

DAVID WILMOT
Born January 20, 1814
Died March 16, 1868
Aged 54 years.

"Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever exist in any part of said territory, except for crime whereof the party shall first be duly convicted."

Other tombstones in his burial plot are as follows:

ANNA MORGAN
Wife of Hon. David Wilmot Born April 14, 1814—Died March 5, 1886

JAMES GRANT
Son of David and Anna Wilmot,
Died April 10, 1848, age ten years, six months, and five days

DAVID
Son of David and Anna Wilmot, Died July 19th, 1861, age two months

THOMAS M.
Son of David
Born August 3rd, 1845—Died October 6th, 1875

Thus David Wilmot's line became extinct.
The following is taken from Kulp's "Families of Wyoming Valley":

"David Wilmot was admitted to the Bar of Luzerne County Pennsylvania, August 5, 1834. He was the son of Randolph Wilmot, and his wife, a daughter of James Carr of Canaan, Wayne County Pennsylvania. He was educated in the schools of his native town and at the Aurora (N. Y.) Academy. At the age of eighteen he removed to Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania and read law in the office of George W. Woodward. Soon after his admission to the Luzerne Bar he removed to Towanda, Pennsylvania, where he immediately took a prominent position as a democratic politician. For several years he occupied a commanding position in the political affairs of the county and won wide reputation as an able and effective speaker. In 1844 Mr. Wilmot received the unanimous nomination of the democracy for Congress in the district composed of the counties of Bradford, Susquehanna and Tioga, henceforth known as the "Wilmot District". He was elected by a large majority, and took his seat at the opening of the twenty-ninth Congress. In 1845, where, in common with the democratic party, he favored the annexation of Texas. On August 4, 1846, the President sent to the Senate a confidential message asking an appropriation to negotiate a peace with Mexico. A bill was introduced in the House appropriating two million dollars for the purpose specified. It had now become so apparent that the proposition was intended to strengthen the pro-slavery influence in the general government, that, at Mr. Wilmot's suggestion, a consultation was held by a few of the Northern representatives who were opposed to the extension of slavery. The result of which was the offering by Mr. Wilmot of the celebrated proviso which has been so generally known as the "Wilmot Proviso", which provided that in any territory acquired from Mexico "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever exist at any part of the territory except for crime", etc. This proviso was adopted in committee and the two million bill containing the proviso was sent to the Senate, where it was killed by John Davis of Massachusetts, talking against time and preventing its passage.
In 1846 Mr. Wilmot again received the unanimous nomination of his party for Congress and was reelected. In 1848 the question of slavery began to be agitated and the free soil party was formed which nominated Martin Van Buren for Presidency. Wilmot again received the unanimous nomination for Congress, and was reelected by a large majority. He was succeeded by Galusha A. Grow in 1850. On the formation of the republican party, Mr. Wilmot very soon espoused its principles and identified himself with the movement. In fact, the very measure he had proposed in Congress in 1846 had no small influence in leading to its existence. At the republican national convention held in Philadelphia in 1856 Mr. Wilmot was proposed as the candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Fremont. He could have commanded the unanimous nomination, but was averse to it. He was chairman of the committee on Resolutions, and drew up the platform adopted by that convention.

The next year, 1857, Mr. Wilmot was nominated for Governor. He had, under the provisions of the amended constitution, creating an elective Judiciary, been chosen president Judge of the Judicial District composed of the counties of Bradford, Susquehanna and Sullivan in 1851, but resigned the office for the purpose of entering the gubernatorial contest. Although defeated by William F. Packer, his speeches made throughout the state had awakened a deep interest in the principles of the republican party, and the party was strengthened by his canvass.

In 1860 Simon Cameron was named in the Pennsylvania republican convention as their first choice for President and according to usage, Mr. Cameron selected Mr. Wilmot as delegate at large to the Chicago convention, of which he was made temporary chairman and when Mr. Cameron's name was withdrawn, used his great influence to secure the nomination of Abraham Lincoln, whose confidence he enjoyed during his administration. The selection of Gen. Cameron to be secretary of war, created a vacancy in the Senate which Mr. Wilmot was elected to fill, and took his seat in that body March 1861. He was a delegate to peace convention in the same year. A wide field of honor and usefulness seemed opened before him. But at the outset of his Senatorial career his health began gradually to fail, until it was almost impossible for him to attend the routine of his duties. He served two years on the committees of Foreign Affairs, Claims and Pensions, and was succeeded in 1863 by Charles R. Buckalew.

At the conclusion of his Senatorial term, Mr. Wilmot was appointed by President Lincoln, a judge of the Court of Claims, which office he held up to the time of his death, March 16, 1868. His wife was Ann, a daughter of Thomas W. Morgan, an oldtime resident of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who at one time kept the Arndt Hotel which stood at the ground now occupied by the residence of E. P. Darling on River Street. He was proprietor of "Morgan's mill", on Solomon's Creek, since known as "Petty's mill". Mrs. Wilmot died March 25, 1888. Of the Wilmot family, no sons or daughters remain to transmit to posterity the honored name. One son born to them died in boyhood having been accidentally poisoned by eating the root of the wild parsnip, mistaking it for an edible root."

Blackman's History of Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania (1873), Page 235, has the following:

"David Wilmot, of "Proviso" fame, was born in Bethany, Wayne County, Pennsylvania, and was about eighteen years old when his father, Randall Wilmot, moved into Dimock from Wayne County about 1832, and located on the top of the hill west of the Corners. The place has since been known as Benjamin McKeebeys and is now occupied by the widow of John Sawyer. Here Randall Wilmot kept a store for a time, but afterwards removed to the shore of Elk Lake, where H. Spafford now resides, and eventually left the county.

Young Wilmot evinced a love for reading which craved greater facilities for indulgence than his own limited store of books or that of his neighbors could gratify. Fortunately the library at Woodbourne was open to him, with its many volumes; among others those written by the peace loving, slavery hating followers of William Penn. Years afterwards, he referred to the privilege enjoyed here, as one that influenced his own principles in regard to "human rights" and that indirectly, at least eventuated in the "Wilmot Proviso".
He spent only his vacations in Dimock, having engaged in the study of law at Wilkes Barre. He afterwards settled in Towanda, Pennsylvania. Once while enjoying a vacation on Elk Lake, with another youth, he was by some carelessness dumped into the lake, and was barely rescued from drowning.

The Bradford Reporter gave an extended sketch of Mr. Wilmot soon after his decease, from which the following is taken.

"In 1844, Mr. Wilmot received the unanimous nomination of the democracy of the 12th Congressional District composed of the Counties of Bradford, Tioga and Susquehanna, and thereafter known as the Wilmot district. He was chosen by a large majority and took his seat at the opening of the 29th Congress in December 1845. The annexation of Texas which Mr. Wilmot, in unison with the Democratic party of the North, had supported was consummated in 1845, and was speedily followed by war with Mexico. The "Wilmot Proviso" provided that in any territory acquired from Mexico "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall ever exist in any part of the territory except for crime, etc." The slavery question did not enter prominently into the canvas in the Congressional district in 1846 at the time of Mr. Wilmot's second election. He received, as usual, the unanimous nomination of his party.

Having received the nomination at the hands of the Democratic party of the district in 1850, the pro-slavery branch of the organization set about defeating his return to Congress. Mr. Wilmot at once offered to give way for any person who would represent the principle for which he was contending. Hon. Galusha A. Grow was named by Mr. Wilmot as an acceptable person; and he was accepted and elected.

Under the provisions of the amendment to the Constitution making the judiciary of the state elective, Mr. Wilmot was chosen President Judge of the Judicial District composed of the counties of Bradford, Sullivan and Susquehanna in 1851. He presided till 1857 when he resigned and became the candidate of the Republican party for Governor and was beaten by Wm. F. Packer, through the treachery..." of the Conservative and know nothing leaders. He was restored to his place upon the bench by appointment—Judge Bullock having occupied the position—and was again chosen to fill the place at the next election.

The selection of General Cameron as Secretary of War, by President Lincoln created a vacancy in the U. S. Senate, to fill which Mr. Wilmot was elected and took his seat in that body March 18, 1861. He served two years in the Senate, on the Committee on Foreign Affairs, Claims and Pensions, and was succeeded in 1863 by Mr. Buckalew.

At the conclusion of his senatorial term he was appointed by President Lincoln a judge of the Court of Claims, which office he held up to the time of his death. He died at Towanda March 16, 1868, aged fifty-four.

GENERAL MISCELLANEOUS

John Willmorth of Twisp, Washington, submits the following information: "I do not know the full name of my grandfather, but I know his old homestead is near Quincy, Illinois. My father visited it in 1878 and found my Uncle James Willmorth then living on the old homestead. My father was born there and I have heard him say that the family came to Illinois from Kentucky. Frank Willmarth came from Illinois to Iowa between 1850 and 1860 and was married to Hannah Bacon. Four children were born to this union:

1. William—d. in infancy.
2. Frank M.
3. Mary M.

My brother, William, my sister and myself were born in Iowa, Frank was born in Idaho. I was born in Jasper County, Iowa, 1860, sister born 1863. My parents crossed the Plains in 1864 and located in the famous placer camp, Alder Gulch, Montana. They came from there to Boise City, Idaho, in 1869 where my brother Frank was born in 1871. Raleigh, October 19, 1932.

A. R. NEWSOM Secretary.
Record of Maryland troops in the Continental Service lists Robert Wilmott as a private on board the ship Defence on the 19th of September 1776, George Cook, Commander.

John Wilmott was issued a Commission as Ensign in Colonel Edward Cockey's Battalion of Militia in Baltimore County, December 20, 1776.

William Wilmot was Commissioned an Ensign in Colonel Halls Battalion of Militia for the flying company Monday, August 5, 1776 by the Baltimore Council. See Maryland Archives, Volume 12, Page 170.

John W. Hill, Consulting Engineer of Cincinnati, Ohio, submits the following: "My grandfather, Thomas Wilmuth came to this country about the year 1800 and lived here until his death February 22, 1860, dying at the age of 102 years and forty days. I understand that his ancestors came to Maryland about 1635. This Mr. Wilmuth had a family of eleven children, all of whom are now dead. Mrs. Amanda Wilmuth Hill, and an aunt living in the State of Indiana, Mrs. Ellen Wilmuth Glenn. My grandfather, Thomas Wilmuth was a very reticent man, that little information could be obtained from him of the history of his family prior to the Revolution. I understand that he was a soldier of the Revolution in a Maryland Contingent and that originally his family were Roman Catholics, changing during my grandfather's time to the Presbyterian faith."

MILITARY SERVICE OF BENJAMIN FRANKLIN WILMETH

James Washington Wilmeth, father of Benjamin Franklin, was a devout Union man and lent his influences and made speeches in behalf of the Union at the outbreak and during the Civil War. Notwithstanding his adherence to the Union, his oldest son Joseph slipped away and joined the Confederate service and was in a number of engagements. He was drowned in the Tuscumbia River while returning on a furlough. There were no bridges and in fording the river he and his horse were entangled in some vines, and he lost his life. He was within three miles of home at the time of the accident.

Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth, at the age of sixteen, ran away and joined Nathan Bedford Forrest's Command and was in the Military Service of the Confederate Army and served for a considerable length of time. His enlistment was as follows:

"2nd Co. I. 15 (Stewart) Reg't Tenn. Cav. C.S.A. (Capt. J. L. Morphis) which subsequently became 3rd Co. He. (Forrest's) Regt. Tenn. Cav. C.S.A."

According to records, Benjamin Franklin Wilmeth saw some real service in the Command of Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest's First Cavalry which engaged in a number of Mississippi battles, and also at Florence, Alabama, and in a number of Tennessee counties, including Shelby and the city of Memphis.

A. C. Wilmoth was a member of Company C. of the 20th Regt. of Virginia Vol. Enlisted at St. John's Church Lunenburg County, May 20, 1861.

George Washington Wilmoth of Virginia, now West Virginia, was a Confederate Soldier.

Maj. Joseph French Harding, born Nov. 9, 1838 in Anne Arundell County, Maryland, son of Jos. & Alice Elliot Harding. Entered service at beginning of War—23 years of age—saw service the entire duration of War, in many hard fought battles and had many seeming miraculous escapes, wounded though several times.

He rose to rank of Major and was named for promotion of Colonel when the war closed.

In '69 Major Harding married Miss Lucebe Wilmoth a member of an established family in the County. For many years Major Harding with his family maintained a home in Beverly, W. Va., where he practiced his profession—law. Later they came to Elkins to live, established a lovely hospitable home—The Retreat—lived there until the final summons came. Members of his family continue to live in the home where they revere the memory of their father and relate many of his "War" Stories. Also among cherished possessions is a Diary or Journal kept by their father while in service in the Southern Army.

Jacob V. Wilmoth of Virginia, now West Virginia, C.S.A.
Burrhus, s. John, s. Miles, s. Jeremiah, s. Jeremiah, s.
